Man Builds Home on What He Believes Is His Property

BLM Says It Is Public Land and He Must Move His

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

GOODING • The line dividing public and private gets a tad blurry when it's covered in sage brush.

If you ask Richard Saiya, his private property line ends at the 87-year-old fence just west of Gooding.

However, the Bureau of Land Management disagrees. Pointing to a historical archaeological site nearby, the agency claims that despite Saiya's fence, the area is public land.

At the very root of the dispute is an unfinished construction project. With a partially built deck and uncovered roof, it has all the makings of a future home. But whether the project will reach completion remains unknown.

According to a BLM letter sent to Saiya, the agency claims he developed not only an unapproved structure but roads, utilities and a pipeline without authorization on public land.

Hall Retires From NFL

TIMES-NEWS

GLENN'S FERRY • Former Glens Ferry and Boise State football standout Corey Hall retired from the NFL on Friday.

Hall

A two-way threat for Glens Ferry as a line-backer and running back, Hall was named the 2001 Class A-3 (now 2A) player of the year when he led the Pilots to the state championship game, where they lost 12-7 to Kami-ah.

A linebacker at Boise State, Hall played as a fullback and on special teams for five NFL seasons, four with the Green Bay Packers, who selected him in the sixth round of the 2007 NFL Draft. Hall won a Super Bowl ring when the Packers beat Pittsburgh in Super Bowl XLV.

He spent 2011 with New Orleans before being released Sept. 8, just before the 2012 season was set to start. Hall signed with Arizona on Tuesday but told multiple media outlets on Friday his body wouldn't let him play the way he wanted.

TWIN FALLS • Two men were arrested on gun charges Wednesday at a Twin Falls bar after an argument.

Twin Falls police responded to the PressBox at 1749 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls for a call about a man who pointed a handgun at another man, according to a police report.

Police spoke with the alleged victims who said a man identified as Tyler Dean Anderson pointed a handgun at them and said he was going to shoot them all, the report states.

According to the report, Anderson was found outside the 700 block of Oleary Way in Twin Falls where he allegedly

Stocks Seal 3Q Gains Despite Bumpy Final Days

NEW YORK • Stocks posted solid gains for the third quarter, although the ride got bumpy at the end. Stocks fell five days of the last six, including on Friday, the last trading day of the quarter. But the big indexes are still up 4 percent or more for the three months. They're ahead 10 percent or more for the year.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 48.84 points to close at 13,437.13. The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 6.48 points to 1,440.67. The Nasdaq composite index fell 20.37 points to 3,116.23.

Community Night Showcases Classroom Technology

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • As a newcomer to Twin Falls, Heidi Wade was surprised to learn how much technology is used in classrooms.

On Thursday night, she and Joshua Besancon attended a community night hosted by the Twin Falls School District and Discovery Education showcasing technology used in classrooms.

"It's really neat to see there's that much technology," Wade said, adding it wasn't what she expected after arriving from California.

Her daughter Madaleigh Wade — who goes Bickel Elementary School — said she liked seeing videos Thursday that middle schoolers made.

Parents and students got to choose from about 15 different sessions led by Twin Falls educators.

Topics ranged from blended learning to digital safety.

After participants went to a few sessions, they screened a Discovery Education video titled, "The Making of a Frozen Planet."

Isaiah Hanson and Amanda Olsen brought their fourth grader to the community night.

Isaiah said he learned about new technology he was never aware of, such as interactive whiteboards.

It was surprising, he said, to see what's out there in classrooms.

Discovery Education

For the first time this year, all Idaho schools have access to digital content through Discovery Education.

The J.A. and Kathryn Albertson Foundation provided funding to buy the initial license for the program in the spring.

"They saw a real need initially," said Jacque Hyatt, professional development coordinator for the Idaho State Department of Education.

After this school year, the cost of the program will be covered through Students Come First classroom technology funds.

Hyatt said the community night was a way to let people know about Discovery Education and how it's used in classrooms.

Later this fall, parents and students will have access to the program. Resources include digital textbooks, podcasts, games and research tools.

Community Night

On Thursday night, Vera C. O'Leary Middle School teacher Annette McFarlin played videos produced by students during the "Lights, Camera, Action" session.

O'Leary students write scripts, produce and edit videos on topics such as the school announcements or campus feature stories.

"The kids are engaged and using the technology at all levels," McFarlin told the audience.

They also make career connections, while strengthening reading, writing and communication skills.

In another classroom, two Twin Falls High School students demonstrated a micro-controller program they developed that reads and records light and temperature data.

Binary codes filled the classroom projector as students worked on a computer.

Junior Thor Lund and senior Isaac Laris started the project during a summer internship at Twin Falls High School.

By this winter, the program will be used in the high school's science department.

In a classroom nearby, second-grade teacher Cathy Adams talked with attendees about how she uses blended learning in her classroom.

It means combining in-person instruction with online and interactive tools.

Wolf Back on Grid after Eluding Satellite

BY JEFF BARNARD
Associated Press

GRANTS PASS, Ore. • Oregon's famous wandering wolf was back on the grid Friday after escaping satellite surveillance for five straight days, allaying fears something might have happened to him.

But OR-7 eluded biologists trying to get a look at him up close and personal on Thursday in the wilds of Northern California, where he has been searching for a mate since last winter.

Karen Kovacs of the California Department of Fish and Game said she and other biologists found a wolf track in the dirt when they went looking for OR-7 in steep, timbered country on the Plumas National Forest, but they did not pick him up on a radio tracking device or see any other sign of him. The area had abundant deer for him to prey on, she said.

"Whether or not he was in an area that satellites couldn't get a fix on him, or his collar is starting to malfunction, we don't know," she said. "But he is back online this morning in western Plumas County."

They left an automated trail camera to see if they can get a picture of him, like the one taken by a hunter in Oregon last year. Though reports of wolf sightings come in regularly, there has been no hard evidence of any other wolves in California, Ko-

This Nov. 14, 2011 file photo from a hunter's trail camera appears to show OR-7, the young male wolf that has wandered more than 1,000 miles across Oregon and Northern California looking for a mate and a new home. After five days off the grid, OR-7's GPS collar downloaded a location Friday in western Plumas County, Calif., allaying fears something may have happened to him.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

vacs said. Meanwhile, a public hearing is scheduled for Wednesday in Sacramento, Calif., on whether to put gray wolves on the California state endangered species list. Conservation groups petitioned the California Fish and Wildlife Commission for the protection, but at least one rural county — Tehama — has formally opposed the idea.

The biggest opposition to the restoration of wolf populations has come from ranchers fearful they will prey on livestock, but so far there have been no reports OR-7 has attacked any.

The gray wolf is a federally protected species in California.

OR-7 was born in northeastern Oregon as a member of the Imnaha Pack, and was captured and fitted with a tracking collar a year and a half ago. The GPS system sends daily signals to a satellite that plots his position, allowing biologists to follow his trek across Oregon into Northern California. The collars typically last about two years.

The young wolf left his pack a year ago to find a mate and a new territory. He is the first wolf known to roam into California since the last trapping of a wild wolf in 1924. Not long after he left, state wildlife authorities put a kill order out on his father and another member of the pack for killing cattle. The Oregon Court of Appeals is considering whether the order violates the state Endangered Species Act.

Judge: Post-9/11 Arrests Get Trial

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • An Idaho jury will decide whether the U.S. government misused a law designed to ensure key witnesses show up for trial to target Muslim men after the 9/11 terrorist attacks, a federal judge said.

Thursday evening's ruling from U.S. District Judge Edward Lodge in Boise enacts a recommendation made by a magistrate earlier this year. It's a win for former Idaho man Abdullah al-Kidd, who has been embroiled in a lawsuit against the government for seven years, contending his arrest as a material witness in 2003 was simply a way for the FBI to keep him locked up while it investigated him for any potential crimes.

Lodge agreed that al-Kidd was falsely imprisoned. A jury should decide if the government's motives for the arrest were pure, the judge said.

Al-Kidd's attorney, Lee Gelernt with the American Civil Liberties Union, said al-Kidd has always believed in the court system and the ruling vindicated him.

"We have been saying for a decade that the government misused the material witness law and now a federal court has agreed that a trial in necessary to get to the bottom of the government's post September 11 practices," Gelernt said. "The court firmly concluded that there is too much contrary evidence simply to credit the government's explanation for why an innocent U.S. citizen like Mr. al-Kidd was arrested."

DOJ spokesman Charles Miller did not immediately return a phone message left by The Associated Press. The government has several options moving forward: DOJ attorneys could try to appeal all or part of Lodge's ruling, they could allow the remaining claims in the case to move toward a trial or they could seek a settlement with al-Kidd.

Al-Kidd is a U.S. citizen who had changed his name from Lavoni T. Kidd when he converted to Islam as an adult.

Student Loan Default Figures Show Moderation

BY JUSTIN POPE
Associated Press

After a sharp jump during the worst of the recession, new figures show the number of students defaulting on federal loans seems to be stabilizing. Students at for-profit colleges continue to have the highest default rates but the sector saw some improvement compared to last year.

The latest cohort default rates, released Friday by the Department of Education, show 13.4 percent of student borrowers whose first payments came due in fiscal 2009 had fallen behind by last September, or within three years of entering repayment. That was down slightly from a 13.8 percent trial rate calculated last year for the cohort that entered repayment in 2008.

Still, default figures are "really the tip of the iceberg when it comes to looking at borrower distress," said Debbie Cochrane, research director at The Institute for College Access and Success in California. "For every borrower that defaults on their loans there are many more in distress struggling to make repayments."

The department has traditionally measured default rates by the number of borrowers falling behind within two years of entering repayment, but is shifting to a three-year measurement to better capture the number of students who eventually can't make payments.

The latest two-year default rate rose slightly, from 8.8 to 9.1 percent, which followed a sharp jump from 7.0 percent a year ago. Those latest two-year figures translate to 375,000 of the 4.1 million students who borrowed in fiscal 2010 falling quickly into repayment problems.

The overall numbers may have been helped by new regulations and efforts to improve default rates at a number of larger for-profit chains, though students at for-profit schools remain far more likely to fall into default than their counterparts elsewhere. The latest figures show 22.7 percent of students at for-profits default within three years, though that's down from 25 percent a year ago.

The comparable three-year default figures are 11 percent at public institutions and 7.5 percent at private non-profits.

Critics contend default rates are higher at for-profit colleges because they provide poor value for money, have poor graduation rates, and have too few incentives to ensure their students succeed in the job market. Cochrane also believes for-profits are finding ways to game their default figures.

"We have to be skeptical that this reflects improvements in student outcomes," she said.

For-profit colleges say they're working to improve and argue higher default rates are to be expected because they serve lower-income students. The Career College Association, which represents for-profit colleges, did not immediately return a phone message seeking comment.

The Department of Education is pushing borrowers to take advantage of income-based repayment programs, which can cap monthly payments at 15 percent of discretionary income, but which remain unknown to many borrowers.

I-84 Lanes to Be Closed Near Burley

TIMES-NEWS

BURLEY • The westbound lanes of Interstate 84 will be closed for two nights as crews work to replace two damaged girders on the 850 West Road bridge, west of Burley.

The detour will begin 10 p.m. Monday and continue through 6 a.m. Tuesday, then resume Tuesday night through Wednesday morning.

The closure is required as crews remove a portion of the overpass roadway above the westbound lanes of Interstate 84 at about milepost 205. The section of Interstate 84 between Burley and Kasota Road will be closed between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. for two nights Monday through Wednesday.

All westbound traffic will be detoured onto Idaho 27 at the Burley interchange – exit 208, north to Paul and west on Idaho Highway 25 to the Kasota Road interchange – exit 201.

Work to replace the girders and roadway will continue through mid-November. Drivers will continue to see intermittent single-lane closures near the structure during regular work hours, 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Thursday.

Cannon Builders, of Blackfoot, is the contractor for the $142,000 repair project. The damage occurred when an illegal over-height load struck three girders, according to an Idaho Transportation Department announcement. The repair is to be paid for by private insurance.

Cassia County's Newest Magistrate Judge Takes Oath

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Colleagues, friends and family packed the 5th District Cassia County District Courtroom Friday as Blaine P. Cannon took his oath of office as Cassia County's newest magistrate judge.

Cannon received his oath from Cassia County 5th District Judge Michael Crabtree.

"I've spent many, many hours at this very podium in this courtroom over the years and I think it's the first time I've done it wearing a dress," said Cannon after his mother, Arlene Cannon, helped him don his judge's robe for the first time.

"I've often heard it said that in the halls of justice all the justice happens in the halls," Blaine Cannon said. "And I think that's true. As a judge, I hope I don't forget that. It really is the attorneys, clerks, bailiffs, police officers and the litigants themselves. They are generally the ones who find a way to work toward a just result on their own."

Minidoka County 5th District Magistrate Judge Rick Bollar said all of the 5th District judges share the pride of service, respect for the bar and their fellow judges and the appreciation for the need to serve their communities.

Cannon was chosen to fill Bollar's seat after Bollar was appointed as a magistrate in Minidoka County.

"As we've all noticed after becoming judges, your jokes are funnier," said Bollar. "Your stories are more interesting and often times half the people leaving the courtroom think you've done the right thing."

Bollar said in the courthouse Cannon will rarely hear his given name – instead it will be replaced by "judge," a word that is "oddly both a verb and a noun."

Cannon's strong sense of direction and identity will serve him well, Bollar said.

"If you ever lose your perspective you can do what I do, I remind myself that the only person in the room who really knows what's going on – is the clerk," Bollar said.

Cannon thanked his former boss Al Barrus, Cassia County prosecutor.

"He took a chance on me almost 12 years ago and gave me the best job I've ever had," said Cannon, who started his career as a public defender in Minidoka County.

Cannon also thanked his mother and father.

"Anything I've accomplished I owe to them," Cannon said. "They are the best."

Convicted Felon Arrested for Possession of Guns

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • On Monday, Twin Falls County Sheriff's deputies were serving a search warrant on a residence belonging to Brice Wilson as part of an investigation. Wilson was convicted of felony lewd conduct with a minor in 1992, and did not have his right to bear arms restored.

As the deputies entered the home, they found several firearms, air rifles and a crossbow. The firearms included black powder rifles and black powder revolvers. All the weapons were placed into evidence.

On Wednesday, Wilson was attested for ten counts of being a felon in possession of a firearm and booked into the Twin Falls County Jail.

According to a police report, Wilson, 57, told deputies a "retired cop friend" of his told him it was it was legal to own black powder guns.

Wilson was held on a $5,000 bond and a preliminary hearing is scheduled for Oct. 5.

Reported Battery May Be Gang Violence

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Police responded to the emergency room at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center just after midnight Thursday morning for a call about a man being battered at his home in the 1100 block of Washington Street South.

According to the police report, the alleged victim had a four-inch laceration starting in the middle of his head and running toward his face. The report states the man received multiple staples and will have permanent scarring.

According to the report, the man identified Joaquin De Jesus Estrada, 21, as the person who hit him over the head with a stool.

The alleged victim told police he thought the attack might have been gang related.

Estrada was booked into the Twin Falls County Jail on felony aggravated battery and held on a $15,000 bond. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Oct. 15.

Potatoes Spill, Driver Injured in Two-Truck Collision Friday

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Two trucks collided Friday morning, sending a female driver to the hospital and a load of potatoes into a barrow pit.

Lori Stewart, spokeswoman for the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office, said deputies responded at about 11 a.m. after a truck hauling a semi-trailer and a ten-wheeler truck collided at 3200 North and 4400 East. The 10-wheeler was carrying a load of potatoes and rolled onto its side, Stewart said.

Stewart said the intersection was blocked for a few minutes, but crews were soon able to open one lane and get traffic flowing again.

CSI Gooding Campus to Host Workshop

TIMES-NEWS

GOODING • The College of Southern Idaho's North Side Center will host a free advising and financial aid workshop next month.

The event is scheduled for noon to 2 p.m. Oct. 10 at CSI's Gooding campus.

During the workshop, students will receive advising and registration information for the upcoming spring semester.

Registration for spring classes opens Nov. 5.

Students will also learn more about the process of obtaining financial aid and scholarships.

Prospective students, current students and parents are encouraged to attend the workshop.

Although the workshop is free, advanced registration is requested.

Call 934-8678 for more information or to register.

first denied owning a handgun and told police he just pointed at people with his fingers, mimicking a gun.

The occupants of a nearby home allowed police to access their home security system, the report states. In their surveillance video, Anderson can allegedly be seen pulling up in the same vehicle he left the PressBox in, exiting the vehicle with a handgun and holster and placing the gun, holster and several rounds of ammunition near a fence next to the house.

Police located the gun and took it for evidence, the report states. At that point, Anderson told police he was arguing with several people at the bar when they began to circle him, the report states.

"He said that he went to his vehicle to get his gun after his friend Patrick Knierler made the comment that they should all get their guns," the report states.

Knierler was arrested on charges of carrying a concealed weapon while under the influence and exhibition or use of a deadly weapon. Anderson was charged with aggravated assault.

According to the report, Anderson said he was having a bad day because his girlfriend broke up with him.

A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Oct. 5.

Trespass

Federal code states the maximum penalty could be a $1,000 fine or possible jail time.

Saiya owns three lots surrounding the public area, and the unauthorized development may be connected to construction projects on private property, according to the letter.

The BLM sent a cease and desist letter and would like to see Saiya move his house off the public land, said Heather Tiel-Nelson, spokeswoman for the agency.

Since the investigation is currently being negotiated between the two parties, the BLM can't comment on the case, Tiel-Nelson said.

Saiya said he doesn't plan to back down easily.

"Do you think I did this on purpose?" Saiya said during a phone interview.

"Do you think I would intentionally build a house on public land? It's my land. The fence has been there forever."

Saiya is working with a lawyer to discuss possible options on what to do. Saiya is pointing to faulty information from BLM surveyors. But so far, the BLM is standing its ground.

This isn't the only Saiya building faced with proper authorization conflicts. On top of a house, Saiya also set out to build a barn.

According to Gooding

County Planning and Zoning, Saiya built the barn without applying for a building permit. Once county officials found out about the building, they requested that Saiya apply for a permit. Saiya complied and a permit was granted.

"We're trying to figure out something," Saiya said. "I would like to see this resolved before winter so we can finish getting the roof on. It's going to cost a lot more money if we can't get that up."

Obama Cabinet Flunks the Disclosure Test

JIM SNYDER
Bloomberg News

WASHINGTON — On his first full day in office, President Barack Obama ordered federal officials to “usher in a new era of open government” and “act promptly” to make information public.

As Obama nears the end of his term, his administration hasn’t met those goals, failing to follow the requirements of the Freedom of Information Act, according to an analysis of open-government requests filed by Bloomberg News.

Nineteen of 20 Cabinet-level agencies disobeyed the law requiring the disclosure of public information. In all, just eight of the 57 federal agencies met Bloomberg’s request for those documents within the 20-day window required by the Act.

“When it comes to implementation of Obama’s wonderful transparency policy goals, especially FOIA policy in particular, there has been far more ‘talk the talk’ rather than ‘walk the walk,’” said Daniel Metcalfe, director of the Department of Justice’s office monitoring the government’s compliance with FOIA requests from 1981 to 2007.

The Bloomberg survey was designed in part to gauge the timeliness of responses, which Attorney General Eric Holder called “an essential component of transparency” in a March 2009 memo. About half the 57 agencies eventually disclosed the out-of-town travel expenses generated by their top official by Sept. 14, most of them well past the legal deadline.

Bloomberg reporters in June filed FOIA requests for fiscal year 2011 taxpayer-supported travel for Cabinet secretaries and top officials of major departments. Justice Department official Melanie Ann Pustay said in an interview that disclosure of those records is in the public interest.

Even agency heads who publicly announce their events — including Holder, Secretary of State Hillary Clinton and Health and Human Services Secretary Kathleen Sebelius — didn’t provide the costs of their out-of-town trips more than three months after the initial request.

“It’s ironic that the demands in the presidential campaign for Mitt Romney’s tax returns are unrelenting, but when it comes time to release the schedules for senior appointees there’s the same denial of access,” said Paul Light, a New York University professor who studies the federal bureaucracy.

The travel costs generated by some other Obama officials — Transportation Secretary Ray LaHood, Energy Secretary Steven Chu, Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Lisa Jackson, and Homeland Security chief Janet Napolitano — also remain undisclosed. Government travel costs have received greater scrutiny since a report by the General Services Administration’s inspector general on April 2 revealed that a 2010 Las Vegas junket — featuring a mind reader and a clown — cost taxpayers more than $823,000. Since then, GSA Administrator Martha Johnson has resigned and the IG has referred the matter to the Department of Justice.

Records obtained as a result of another Bloomberg FOIA request showed that the GSA almost tripled its expenditures for conferences from 2005 to 2010. Taxpayers paid $27.8 million for more than 200 overnight gatherings attended by at least 50 GSA employees over the five-year period, according to the records.

During the first year of the administration, cabinet agencies employed exemptions 466,402 times, a 50 percent jump from the last year of the presidency of George W. Bush. While exemption citations have since been reduced by 21 percent from that high, they still are above the level seen during the Bush administration, according to Justice Department data.

Teacher Kills Masked Teen, Learns It Was His Son

NEW FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP) • A small Connecticut town was sent reeling in grief and confusion Friday after a popular fifth-grade teacher shot and killed a knife-wielding prowler in a black ski mask, only to discover it was his 15-year-old son.

No immediate charges were brought against the father, Jeffrey Giuliano, in the slaying of his son, Tyler, who was gunned down in his aunt’s driveway next door to his own home around 1 a.m. Thursday. “It’s something out of a Hollywood script,” said John Hodge, the first selectman, or top elected official, in the town of nearly 14,000 people about 50 miles from New York City. He said he couldn’t recall another killing in his eight years on the job.

State police spokesman Lt. J. Paul Vance said the boy had never been in trouble with the law, and some of those who knew him described him as a good kid with an easygoing personality. Investigators and acquaintances said they were at a loss to explain what he was doing outside dressed all in black and carrying a weapon.

“Certainly, that is the major question we are trying to answer at this point,” Vance said.

U.S. AIMS TO RALLY SYRIAN OPPOSITION WITH NEW AID

NEW YORK (AP) • The Obama administration moved Friday to rally Syria’s opposition with pledges of $45 million in new non-lethal and humanitarian assistance as the administration and other world leaders lamented the failure of diplomatic efforts to push Syrian President Bashar Assad from power.

Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said the U.S. would contribute an additional $15 million in non-lethal gear — mostly communications equipment — to the civilian opposition trying to oust Assad as well as $30 million in new humanitarian assistance to help those affected by the continuing violence.

She also delivered a new, stark warning to Iran that it must stop arming and supporting the Assad regime.

“It is no secret that our attempts to move forward at the U.N. Security Council have been blocked repeatedly, but the United States is not waiting,” Clinton said as she announced the new aid at a gathering of the Friends of Syria group that she hosted at a New York hotel on the sidelines of the UN General Assembly. She and other foreign ministers from the group met with nine Syrian opposition figures, including several who traveled from Syria to attend Friday’s session, to discuss strategy.

With U.N. action blocked by Russia and China, Clinton said the rest of the world must support the Syrian opposition. She also said it was urgent that the fractured foes of the regime unite around plans for a political transition that could put an end to more than three decades of Assad family rule. Activists say the current 18-month long conflict has led to more than 30,000 deaths.

“Conditions in Syria continue to deteriorate as the Assad regime relentlessly wages war on its own people,” Clinton said. “We see more bodies filling hospitals and morgues and we see more refugees fleeing their homeland and flooding into neighboring countries.”

In Washington, Defense Secretary Leon Panetta said new intelligence suggested the Syrian government has moved some of its chemical weapons in order to protect them, even though the U.S. believes that the main sites remain secure.

The new U.S. humanitarian assistance — which brings America’s total humanitarian contribution to more than $130 million since the crisis began — will include food, water, blankets and medical services to victims of the violence. U.S. officials said on Thursday that an earlier shipment of medical goods provided by USAID had just arrived in southern Syria. The officials would not provide details of how the aid made it into Syrian territory.

The additional non-lethal support brings the total U.S. contribution in that area to nearly $40 million since the crisis began and includes 1,100 sets of communications equipment, including satellite-linked computers, telephones and cameras and training for more than 1,000 activists, students and independent journalists.

“We are working to help them strengthen their networks, avoid regime persecution and document human rights abuses,” Clinton said. The U.S. is not providing military aid to the rebels although it acknowledges that other countries are.

Clinton’s announcement came as fighting intensified in Syria’s largest city, Aleppo, with the most widespread battles reported in three months in the city of 3 million people as rebel forces launched a new offensive against Assad.

Despite some battleground success, there have been complaints that the opposition is hopelessly splintered and unable to coalesce around a transition plan that was adopted by members of the U.N. Security Council in Geneva over the summer.

“It is encouraging to see some progress toward greater opposition unity, but we all know there is more work to be done,” Clinton said. U.S. officials have noted that revolutionary councils in cities including Damascus, Homs, Aleppo, Idlib and Deir al-Zour were becoming increasingly organized.

California Man Behind Anti-Muslim Film Ordered Jailed

LOS ANGELES (AP) • A federal judge on Thursday determined that a California man behind a crudely produced anti-Islamic video that inflamed parts of the Middle East is a flight risk and ordered him detained.

Citing a lengthy pattern of deception, U.S. Central District Chief Magistrate Judge Suzanne Segal said Nakoula Basseley Nakoula should be held after officials said he violated his probation from a 2010 check fraud conviction.

Nakoula, 55, was arrested Thursday. He had eight probation violations, including lying to his probation officers and using aliases, and he might face new charges that carry a maximum two-year prison term, authorities said. Nakoula will remain behind bars until another hearing where a judge will rule if he broke the terms of his probation. After his 2010 conviction, Nakoula was sentenced to 21 months in prison and was barred from using computers or the Internet for five years without approval from his probation officer.

In July, a 14-minute trailer for the film “Innocence of Muslims” was posted on YouTube, leading to protests around the Middle East. Nakoula, a Christian originally from Egypt, went into hiding after he was identified as the man behind the trailer, which depicts Muhammad as a womanizer, religious fraud and child molester.

CHEERS AND JEERS

CHEERS to the farmers who nominated Filer High School to receive the $10,000 grant from the Monsanto Fund. The Times-News was told that five farmers pitched in on the application: Roger Blass, Cindy Meyer, Larry Meyer, Bruce Thaete and Jeff Woody.

Thank you for taking the time to support ag programs in the schools. The $10,000 grant will be used for employee training on how to use blended learning to expand the agriculture program.

Out of 3,342 school districts nominated nationwide, Filer was among 176 to receive a grant.

CHEERS to the many local winners of the Governor’s Awards for the Arts: Dr. Allan and Frances Frost, Robert Moore, David Alderson, Lona Hymas-Smith (in memoriam) and Theodore “Ted” Hadley.

The awards presentation at College of Southern Idaho was both touching and inspiring.

When Lona Hymas-Smtih’s husband took the stage to accept the award for his late wife, there wasn’t a dry eye in the house. At the end of his acceptance speech, there was a standing ovation.

CHEERS to Damien Munoz, the 6-year-old Rupert boy who saved the life of a teenage girl who was choking on popcorn at a movie theater this past weekend. Munoz’s quick thinking and his courage makes him a hero. His story was published first in the Times-News, then made national news.

Munoz performed the Heimlich Maneuver on 13-year-old Bethany Hill of Rupert in the lobby of the Century Cinemas of Heyburn. His quick thinking helped dislodge some popcorn, and Bethany was able to cough up the rest.

There were no adults present when Bethany began choking in the theater lobby. She fell to the floor, spurring Damien into action.

He knew what to do because his grandmother, Betty Amen, taught him the Heimlich.

LETTER OF THANKS

Faith in Action Volunteers an Inspiration to Community

The Jerome Senior Center and the seniors of Jerome County would like to thank all the wonderful volunteers who participated in Faith in Action.

The Believers Church and the Jerome Presbyterian Church organized this wonderful event to help seniors with tasks and jobs around their homes that they were not able to do themselves. These volunteers painted, repaired and replaced fixtures. They trimmed bushes, cut down trees, weeded and mowed lawns. They cleaned windows, sanded steps and spent many hours just helping the seniors with whatever they needed.

It was an absolute pleasure to get to know the individuals and families during lunch afterward. We cannot express our gratitude and heartfelt appreciation enough. You are truly an inspiration to our community.

Burley is Lucky to Have Riverview Urgent Care

Fellow Mini-Cassians:

I am a teacher and earlier this month I found myself afflicted with the dreaded “pink eye.” I presented myself at the Evening Medical Clinic at 5 o’clock on a weekday, unaware that it was open only on the weekends. Thankfully, I was directed to Riverview Urgent Care Clinic located in the former Hollywood Video building by Cal Ranch. I went there and was immediately impressed with the cleanliness of the facility, the courtesy of the staff, and the hours: open daily from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

The receptionist was welcoming, the assistant who took my health history was efficient and friendly, and Dr. Appleton took his time and was very thorough in his examination. In the days that followed, a staff member called to check on my progress and encouraged me to return if I needed follow-up care.

A week later, another family member had occasion to utilize the facility and was quickly seen, treated and soon on her way home. She was also favorably impressed with the care received at Riverview Urgent Care and intends to go there as necessary.

I feel we are very fortunate to have a medical facility of this caliber in our area and will not hesitate to refer people to Riverview. Please, if you know of anyone who is in need of medical care, let them know there is a fine clinic available right here in Burley. And oh yes, se habla espanol!

Thanks To All Who Donated Time, Money to Support Local Veterans

I want to express gratitude to all the individuals and groups who support our community and our local veterans. Recently, the Burley Kiwanis Club, Mini-Cassia Veterans, students from the Mini-Cassia Technical Center and other local businesses came together to make some improvements at Kiwanis Park.

Casey Jones, an instructor at the Tech Center, volunteered his students to paint the World War II tank near the Burley Airport. The paint was donated by Pro Paint in Burley. The Burley Kiwanis Club and Mini-Cassia Veterans were also there to install a new stone monument honoring all branches of the military and veterans past, present and future. The stone and engraving were donated by Streamline Precision, concrete was donated by Kloefer Concrete, and labor was donated by Thompson Concrete.

The Kiwanis Club of Burley and the Mini-Cassia Veterans thank all those that were involved in sprucing up our community and for supporting our armed forces. It is great that we have so many local businesses that are willing to give back to the community.

New Details Emerge on Colorado Shooter

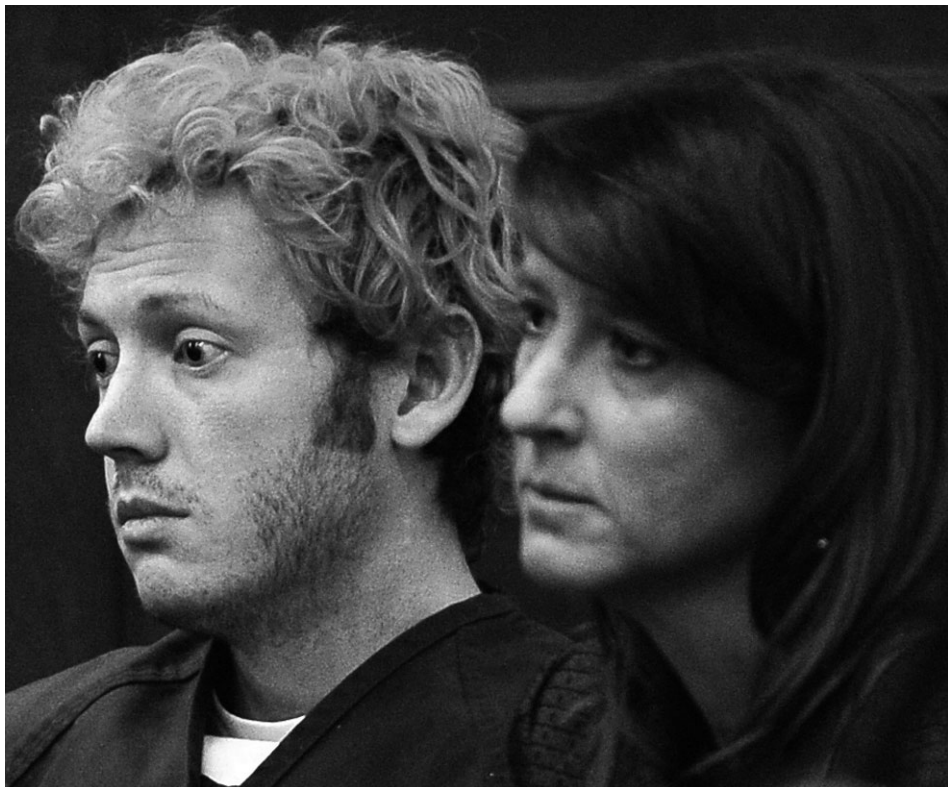

DENVER (AP) • The suspect in the Aurora movie shooting case mailed “burnt currency,” along with a notebook, to his psychiatrist before the attack. He threatened a professor and was banned from a university campus before withdrawing from its neuroscience graduate program. His defense team has added a psychiatrist.

Those were the few tidbits of information in hundreds of pages of heavily-redacted court documents released Friday, which serve as the best chance the public has to understand what happened before James Holmes allegedly opened fire at a midnight screening of the new Batman movie more than two months ago.

The documents shed little light on Holmes’ possible motives or whether the university ignored warning signs about him. That’s partly because Arapahoe County District Judge William B. Sylvester continued to keep under seal the key documents in the case — the affidavit that lays out prosecutors’ case against Holmes, and the search warrants that allowed them to gather evidence against him.

Another impediment is the heavy redaction of the documents. Some are entirely blacked out. In others, Sylvester’s rulings on legal disputes, references to years-old case law and even copies of newspaper articles are redacted, along with information about the investigation.

The documents do shed a little more light on one of the main disputes in the case — Holmes’ threats against a professor, possibly the university psychiatrist, Dr. Lynne Fenton, who has testified that she contacted campus police after her last meeting with Holmes June 11. Fenton, who testified Aug. 30, said she went to police to gather more information and communicate her “concern.”

She did not refer to her concern as a threat.

Prosecutors contended that Holmes was barred from campus after making the threats. The University of Colorado has said that Holmes was denied access to nonpublic buildings on campus because he withdrew as a neuroscience graduate student, not for safety reasons.

A university spokeswoman did not return a call for comment on Friday. The university has previously refused to comment on how it handled Holmes, citing a gag order that Sylvester imposed. Before the gag order, university officials said their police force had no contact with Holmes and that the chief of the department knew nothing about him.

The defense team sought sanctions against prosecutors for contending Holmes had been barred from campus, arguing that the false statements could contaminate the jury pool. But Sylvester shot that down, ruling the statements were within legal bounds.

Defense attorneys did not return a call for comment Friday.

The most legally significant disclosure Friday was the inclusion of the psychiatrist on Holmes’ defense team. Holmes’ attorneys have said he is mentally ill.

“This is unusual in a normal case, but not surprising in this case,” said criminal trial lawyer Dan Recht, former president of the Colorado Criminal Defense Bar. “Presumably he’s (the psychiatrist) the one who is going to opine on whether Holmes is insane or not.”

Other documents likely contain new information, but are blacked out. For example, in one pleading, attorneys describe how law enforcement handled the package that Holmes sent Fenton, which was discovered four days after the attack and also after Holmes allegedly booby-trapped his own apartment.

POLICE: MAN SHOT BY OFFICERS HAD EXPLOSIVE DEVICE

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • A man who threatened to detonate a bomb at a Salt Lake City light rail station before an officer fatally shot him Thursday night actually had an explosive, police said.

Police Detective Dennis McGowan said it’s not clear how powerful 39-year-old Anthony Mayhew’s explosive was, but authorities closed down nearby streets and train service at the Gallivan Plaza TRAX station before shooting him and having robots destroy his backpack about 11 p.m. Thursday.

Mayhew was pronounced dead at a hospital shortly after the confrontation.

One officer has been placed on administrative leave pending an investigation into the shooting.

Police responded to the station about 9 p.m.

Thursday and said they found Mayhew carrying what appeared to be a switch with wires leading to a backpack.

Mayhew took things out of the backpack and alternately sat down and stood up before he stopped talking to negotiators about two hours later, McGowan said.

When he began walking toward police and didn’t comply with orders to stop, one officer shot him, McGowan said.

A police report described the officers as “fearing for their lives and given the credible threat of an explosive device.”

After the bomb squad destroyed the backpack, officials collected the remnants and tested it for explosive material.

Mayhew’s last address was in West Jordan. Police have not released a motive.

With Quota Filled, Wolf Season Closes in Montana

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) • Wolf hunting outside Glacier National Park was shut down after a wolf was killed this week, filling an area quota on the predators, according to a Fish, Wildlife and Parks spokesman Friday.

The animal was taken by an archery hunter west of Glacier, one of two areas in the state where there’s a specified harvest limit this hunting season. The other is north of Yellowstone National Park, where hunters have so far taken two of the three wolves that will be allowed this season.

There are no quotas on wolves for the rest of Montana as officials seek to drive down the predator’s population.

It’s the state’s second consecutive wolf season and third in modern times following their recovery from widespread extermination last century.

Utah Activist Drops Conviction Appeals

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • Environmental activist Tim DeChristopher is giving up appeals of his conviction for bidding on oil-and-gas parcels he couldn’t pay for at a federal auction in Utah.

DeChristopher said Friday he was dropping appeals after being turned back earlier this month at the Denver-based 10th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals.

“Throughout every stage of this legal process, it has been a predetermined conclusion that I should be punished for standing up to the collusion between government and corporations,” DeChristopher said in a statement to The Association Press. “Any potential discussion of ethics, justice or the role of citizens has been banished from the court.”

From the start, DeChristopher asserted the government auction in 2008 was illegal and that he was acting in civil disobedience to safeguard wild lands near Utah’s national parks from drilling.

On Friday, DeChristopher said his fate was sealed by a trial judge who refused to let him testify about his environmental motives.

“As a result, our defense team has been restricted to debating a narrow range of technicalities rather than the critical issues of the case,” said the University of Utah economics graduate.

DeChristopher has served 14 months of his two-year sentence at a federal prison in California and is due to be released in April.

His first appeal was rejected Sept. 14.

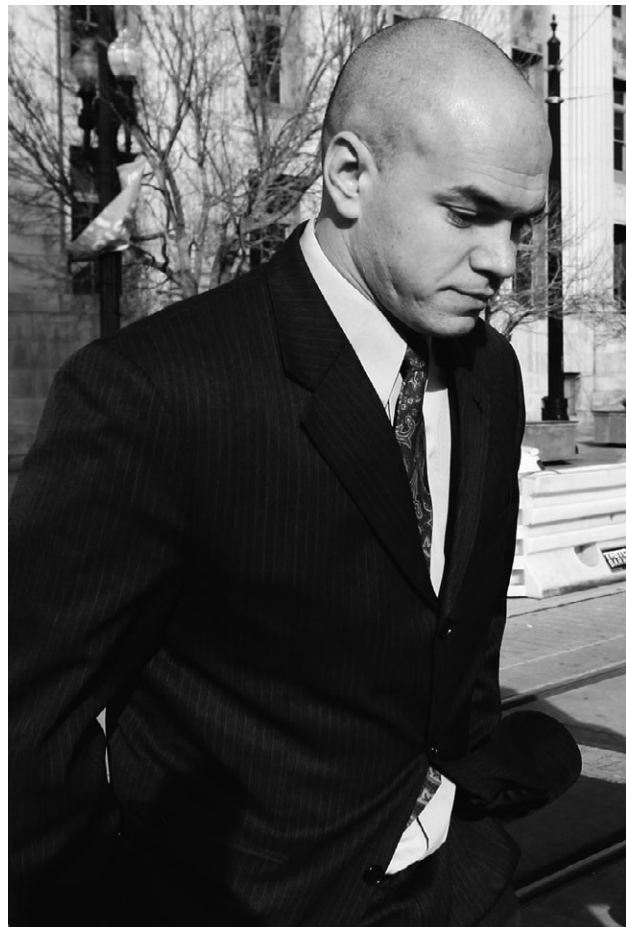

A three-judge panel of appeals court judges ruled he knowingly broke the law when he jumped into the bidding to run up prices for oil-and-gas parcels. Other bidders complained DeChristopher cost them hundreds of thousands of dollars in higher prices.

He ended up winning 14 drilling sites for nearly $1.8 million, but acknowledged he had no money.

The Obama administration later upended the auction that was held in the final months of President George W. Bush’s administration, rescinding many of the parcels and denying them to winning bidders.

“Whether the BLM complied with all applicable environmental regulations in conducting the auction has nothing to do with whether defendant organized a scheme, arrangement or plan to circumvent or defeat” the law, the 10th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals ruled.

The Bureau of Land Management runs auctions of federal drilling parcels.

Activist Tim DeChristopher leaves the Frank E. Moss Federal Courthouse last year in Salt Lake City.

NAMPA SCHOOL DEFICIT AT $4.5M

NAMPA (AP) • The Nampa School District's budget deficit is now projected at $4.5 million, up from a $2.8 million shortfall announced in August, according to officials.

No employees will be laid off this school year to address the shortfall, Deputy Superintendent Josh Jensen said Thursday. But he says drastic changes will have to be made in the district's $68.7 million projected spending for the current fiscal year.

"At this point in the game, we need to look at all options," said Jensen, who is leading the district after the resignation of Superintendent Gary Larsen after 18 years in the job.

Larsen disclosed the initial $2.8 million gap in the district's 2012-13 budget to the school board last month. But last week, in his resignation letter, he said the shortfall was "drastically" different.

The $4.5 million figure emerged Thursday, after district officials decided to give the discrepancies more scrutiny.

"We didn't see this coming and figured we'd better take a hard look," Jensen said.

The Nampa School District is the third largest in the state, with more than 15,000 students. School board chairman Scott Kido said the district could look into selling some property to make up the difference.

Danielle Sisayaket, a district accountant whose job was eliminated a year ago, has filed a lawsuit alleging she was fired for pointing out mishandling of public funds within the district.

Teachers Leaving in Bigger Numbers

BY JESSIE L. BONNER
Associated Press

BOISE • Idaho teachers are leaving the profession in bigger numbers, with more than 1,800 making their exit last year, but at the same time, more individuals are getting certified to become educators, the state Department of Education said Friday.

The agency's data also show an increase in the number of individuals seeking an alternative, quicker route to certification in Idaho instead of attending a traditional four-year education program offered through a college or university.

More than 957 of the 1,884 teachers who left the profession during the 2011-2012 school year cited "personal reasons." The departures increased significantly from the previous year, when 1,276 teachers left the profession, and the year before, when 716 exited.

Last year, the statewide teachers union attributed the increased exits to new education reforms that limited collective bargaining and eliminated job protections.

The group is concerned that more teachers are leaving the profession at such a rapid rate, IEA President Penni Cyr said Friday.

"We are losing an unacceptably high number of experienced teachers," said Cyr, Teacher Sonia Galaviz is shown Aug. 29 in her elementary school classroom in Boise after classes. Galaviz plans to vote against a sweeping Idaho education overhaul.

who reiterated her organization's stance that the sweeping education overhaul approved in 2011 is making Idaho unattractive to educators. "If we continue to silence teachers' voices and impose one-size-fits-all mandates, the best and brightest teachers will be discouraged from working in the schools that need them most."

Public schools chief Tom Luna countered that his education changes, which are subject to voter approval in November, weren't to blame for the jump in departures. He said the recession was more likely the culprit for why teachers were ditching the profession.

Luna's office maintained that argument for the latest data, saying the biggest reported increase in the number of teachers leaving the profession was during the 2010-2011 school year, when 1,300 teachers exited the profession. That was up 600 from the previous year.

The latest data show an increase of 560 leaving the profession during the 2011-2012 academic year.

"It's clear that when you look at the data over the course of the past few years, this has more to do with economic recession than with education reforms," said state Department of Education spokeswoman Melissa McGrath.

Senators Punch Playoff Ticket

BY JOHN DERR
For the Times-News

GOODING • It took a while, but Gooding found its offense.

The Senators took control of the Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference with a dominating 46-14 victory over Kimberly Friday night.

Celebrating homecoming, Gooding (6-0, 2-0 SCIC) struggled to move the ball in the first quarter, but recovered nicely to stay undefeated on the season. It also guaranteed the Senators a berth in the state playoffs. A win against Filer next week earns them the conference crown.

“The senior class has been working hard for this since freshman year, and the other classes are following,” said Josh Faulkner, who threw three touchdown passes and ran for two more.

“Once we get our options going we can move the ball,” added Faulkner, who tallied 46 yards rushing and 70 more through the air. “We felt like we would get things going, that’s what we do.”

It was Kimberly got into the end zone first. James’ Higginbotham did most of the work on the Kimberly’s (1-4, 0-1) first drive. He returned the punt 20 yards, connected with Jesse Sutherland twice on crossing patterns, then took it the final five yards.

Late in the first quarter Gooding answered, running the prefect play against the Bulldog hard-charging defense. Faulkner found Josh Finley on the middle screen and, with a line of blockers, he easily made it the 57 yards for a touchdown.

“Once I caught it I saw a lot of open space,” said Finley, who tallied 80 yards while being a force on the defensive end also. “We need to work together, that’s what we focused on.”

After an interception by Tyler McCoy, Faulkner did all the work, running for 37 yards on four carries putting the Senators up for good. Torin Brunson finally found a gap and scampered for 34 yards while Faulkner added his second rushing score of the quarter.

Minico Blisters Wood River on Homecoming

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • Shay Chandler walked off Bill Matthews Field with a big smile on his face Friday night.

Not just because his Minico Spartans won their homecoming game 46-13 over Wood River, but also because the senior had a rare chance to do what all quarterbacks love to do.

Throw the football. Chandler completed 7 of 10 passes for 154 yards and three touchdowns as Minico took advantage of Wood River loading the box against the run.

And who could blame the Wolverines? After all, the Spartans had rushed for more than 300 yards in each of its first four games. On Friday, Minico had 295 yards rushing, despite missing senior running back Jordan Browning for the second week in a row due to a leg injury. Taylor Seaton led Minico with 106 yards on the ground.

“We can throw the ball. Shay’s a good quarterback. We just haven’t been in a position where we’ve felt like we needed to, but it’s something that we have to start working on as we move toward the playoffs,” said Minico head coach Tim Perrigot.

It was Minico’s 12th straight Great Basin Conference win and ninth in a

“We struggled (in last week’s loss to Idaho Falls) and this week is a confidence boost,” Chandler said. “We just need to get better every week, get everybody healthy and keep moving forward.”

Six different Spartans found the end zone. Seaton, Daryn Terry, and Matt Harper each had touchdown receptions. Seaton, Jake Beamer, Caleb Worley and Will Morgan scored rushing TDs.

After turning the ball over three times in last week’s loss, the Spartans’ first offense didn’t cough up the football at all on Friday.

'Unstoppable' CSI Spikers Dominate North Idaho College

BY DAVID BASHORE

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho volleyball team can't control that it's ranked No. 3, when it believes it's deserving of more. With kill after thunderous kill, the Golden Eagles stated their case at the expense of No. 4.

CSI racked up 49 kills to just six errors in attack, playing what coach Heidi Cartisser called one of the most complete matches in her seven-season tenure in a 25-10, 25-15, 25-20 thrashing of North Idaho College on Friday.

"I'm speechless. It was just unstoppable," said Keani Passi, who had 16 of the Golden Eagles' kills and just one attack error. "We have an awesome group of girls, and something just clicked and we found that next level."

CSI (18-1, 3-0 Scenic West) was on fire early, racing out to a 15-3 lead in the first set. The Golden Eagles didn't commit a single attack error in the first set, picking up 14 kills and imposing their will from the onset.

After an early timeout in the second set, North Idaho didn't make very many adjustments the rest of the way, as if the Cardinals (14-2, 1-2) knew that it just wasn't their day.

Emily Ottinger had eight kills, while Liene Mellupe and Heather Meeuwse cleaned up defensively with 12 and 18 digs, respectively.

The Golden Eagles are off until next Friday when they make the long road trip to Colorado Northwestern Community College and Utah State University-College of Eastern Utah.

KIMBERLY GIRLS TO RECEIVE LEGEND STATUS

KIMBERLY • The Idaho High School Activities Association announced Friday that the 1984 Kimberly High School girls basketball team will be presented as the 2013 "Legends of the Game" on championship night of this season's state girls basketball tournament.

Led by head coach Terry Dowd, the Bulldogs won the A-2 (now known as 3A) state championship that season.

JEFFREY ALLRED, DESERET NEWS - ASSOCIATED PRESS
Brigham Young quarterback Tayson Hill (4) carries the ball for a touchdown as Hawaii players pursue during the second quarter of an NCAA college football game Friday in Provo, Utah.

FRESHMEN HILL, WILLIAMS LIFT BYU OVER HAWAII 47-0

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PROVO, Utah • Freshman quarterback Tayson Hill ran for 143 yards and a touchdown and passed for two more scores in his first start and Brigham Young cruised to a 47-0 victory over Hawaii on Friday night, spoiling former Cougars assistant coach Norm Chow's return.

Freshman running back Jamaal Williams added 155 yards and two scores for BYU (3-2).

Starting in place of the injured Riley Nelson, Hill was 12 of 21 for 112 yards, with TD passes of 22 and 12 yards. His rushing totals were the most by a BYU quarterback since Brandon Doman — the Cougars' offensive coordinator — gained 164 yards on 18 carries in 2001. BYU finished with 396 yards on the ground.

Williams replaced starting running back Michael Alisa, who broke his right forearm in the first quarter.

The shutout was BYU's first since Nov. 7, 2009, when it beat Wyoming 52-0.

Hawaii dropped to 1-3.

The Cougars' seventh-ranked defense set up two other scores by forcing quarterback Sean Schroeder into a pair of fumbles.

Overall, BYU outgained Hawaii 540-149, and held a 30-9 advantage in first downs and a 396-41 edge in rushing.

While the easy win helped BYU get over stinging back-to-back losses to Utah and No. 24 Boise State, the blowout loss was the second straight for Chow's team. Last week, the Warriors lost by 45 at home to Mountain West Conference foe Nevada. The 69 points were the most ever allowed at Aloha Stadium, and the seven touchdowns Nevada's Stephon Jefferson scored tied an NCAA record.

two interceptions by Tyler Magnelli.

"It is my senior year, you have to bring it," said Magnelli.

Justin Childers chipped in two field goals in the final period, one from 44 yards out.

Kimberly coach Kirby Bright like the start, but the turnovers made the difference.

"I liked the start, that is exactly what we needed to do in a conference championship game. The turnovers, we shot ourselves in the foot," said Bright.

The Bulldogs go out of conference next week, battling Burley.

Twin Falls' Thomas Corr launches the ball against Jerome Friday night at Jerome High School in Jerome.

Gooding

Just before half, Kimberly's Mikelle Ferguson was taken from the field by ambulance after breaking his leg while attempting to catch a pass in the end zone.

Both teams scored in the final two minutes of the half, but the Senators took the 26-14 lead into the locker room.

Gooding dominated after the break, limiting Kimberly to 1 yard of offense in the third quarter and forcing three turnovers, including fourth and one at the Tigers 40-yard line — they were stopped and the momentum completely shifted.

"The guys said they wanted to go for it," Bruins coach Allyn Reynolds said. "It kind of took the wind out of our sails."

For most of the first half the Tigers appeared inferior. Offensively, they rarely got more than three yards on first and second down. The Bruins' conservative defensive approach allowed few passing lanes for Thibault and his pistol/spread attack. Defensively, the Tigers gave up 23 yards of four yards or more through the first two-plus quarters.

But with the fourth-down stop, the turnovers and a few lucky bounces, the Tigers dominated the final 18 minutes.

"I felt that we had the superior team the whole time," said defensive lineman Josh

Clark, who had a sack and multiple disruptions in the second half. "The scoreboard wasn't intimidating because it wasn't their offense doing good, it was our team making mistakes. We weren't discouraged because they were doing so good, we were motivated because we knew we could do better."

break. The Wolverines gained just 41 yards of offense and three first downs in the first half. Beamer snagged two interceptions.

Wood River running back Ian Keys finished with 115 yards and a touchdown.

"Whistle to whistle, I can't fault our kids' effort. It's still a matter of our execution is lacking," said Wood River head coach Kevin Stilling.

Perrigot noted the large crowd and festivities — which included skydivers and fireworks — helped enhance the homecoming experience.

"The community did a great job for these young men and that was their way to thank them, by putting points on the board and winning the football game," Perrigot said.

Next week, Wood River (1-2 overall, 0-1 GBC) heads to Twin Falls while Minico travels for an out-of-conference game at Preston.

Bradley, Bubba Give U.S. Early Ryder Cup Lead

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MEDINAH, Ill. • Keegan Bradley made Friday at the Ryder Cup feel like the best day of his life, and it wasn't too shabby for the rest of the Americans.

Bradley led a strong performance by rookies on both teams at Medinah by teaming with Phil Mickelson for two wins against Europe's best two partnerships. Even with Tiger Woods getting shutout on opening day for the fourth time, the United States took a big step toward regaining the cup by taking a 5-3 lead.

Leading the way was Bradley, the former PGA champion whom Mickelson took under his wing last year for a series of money games at the majors to prepare the New England kid for moments like this. And did he ever deliver.

"This is literally what I've dreamt about since I was a little kid," Bradley said. "I got to do it next to my idol all day." Bradley holed a 25-foot birdie putt in morning foursomes to hand Luke Donald and Sergio Garcia their first loss ever in Ryder Cup foursomes. Next up were Rory McIlroy and Graeme McDowell, and the Americans won the first three holes. Mickelson wasn't there only for support. Right when Europe was trying to rally, the four-time major champion closed it out with a 7-iron to 2 feet that was conceded for birdie.

It was a day Bradley didn't want to end.

"Oh, baby, I wish we could go 36 more," Bradley said.

He wasn't the only rookie to shine on a mild day in the Chicago suburbs. Nicolas Colsaerts, the 29-year-old from Belgium, helped Europe avoid getting shutout in afternoon fourballs by single-handedly taking down Woods and Steve Stricker.

Colsaerts made eight birdies and an eagle — a 10-under 62 if he was keeping score on his own. He teamed with Lee Westwood, who was just along for this amazing ride for a 1-up victory that ended 11 hours of enormous cheers and plenty of American red on the leaderboard.

Woods and Stricker also lost to Ian Poulter and Justin Rose in morning foursomes, making this the fourth time in the seven Ryder Cups that Woods has played that he lost both matches on the opening day.

There was nothing he could do against Colsaerts, the biggest hitter in Europe who isn't too bad with the putter, either.

"Nicolas probably had one of the greatest putting rounds I've ever seen," Woods said, high praise coming from a 14-time major champion.

Woods turned in a mixed performance. He missed a 6-foot birdie putt on the 15th to fall 2 down, and then came back with a bending, 25-foot birdie putt on the 16th and a shot into 4 feet on the 17th that looked as if it might square the match. Instead, Colsaerts rolled in a 25-foot birdie putt for a halve. Woods had a 12-foot birdie putt on the 18th to halve the match, only it caught the left lip.

Both captains made sure all 12 of their players got into the game early, though European captain Jose Maria Olazabal set himself up for second-guessing when he sat out Donald, Garcia and Poulter for the afternoon matches. They have a combined 31-13-5 record in the Ryder Cup.

Mickelson set an American record by playing in his ninth Ryder Cup, and he won his opening two matches for the first time in his career. Mickelson came up with some big putts and amazing shots, and the 42-year-old felt about 10 years younger playing alongside Bradley.

"It could be the best day of my life," Bradley said.

Downtown Church

A year after moving downtown, a Twin Falls church says it feels welcome in its new location.

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The lights dimmed inside the old Cain's furniture building — now home to Magic Valley Bible Church — in downtown Twin Falls. A slide show set to gospel music flashed across the wall: photographs of the building in various phases of reconstruction as church members readied for the move.

Some of the members at the Sept. 16 worship service laughed when a photo showed a church member in a hard hat; others had tears in their eyes as they watched the pictures tell a story of faith and hard work.

Visitors to the dedication service didn't have to view the slide show to know its end; all they had to do was look around. A large cross stood like a sentinel near the podium, giving the facility a much different look than it had when it was a furniture store. Rows of chairs lined a large room where sofas and recliners once sat — the chairs filled with people holding Bibles.

A church, Pastor Greg "Bear" Morton told the audience before the slide show, is made of the people in its congregation, not the building. In that context, the church, formerly at 601 Shoshone St. N., could move anywhere, but it chose to be downtown.

Its coming, however, was not without controversy.

The chief opposition came from downtowners who thought the church would prevent a nightlife-driven rehabilitation of the area.

Jeff Hepworth, a Downtown Alive co-chairman and one of several who argued against the move, said the church would hurt downtown activities and doesn't fit his group's vision for the area, though he specified none of them are anti-church or against this specific church.

He said he wanted more bars and restaurants downtown, not a religious facility.

Others jumped on board, however, and said they thought the church's presence would be a good thing for the area.

What are people saying now?

ED GLAZAR • FOR THE TIMES-NEWS

Parted curtains allow a glimpse inside Magic Valley Bible Church as a window reflects people walking through Historic Downtown Twin Falls to attend service on Sept. 23.

Getting Real, Getting Help

At least it's no longer an illusion that people within the church have it together and people outside the church don't. Church people are finally fessing up that they have hurts, habit, and hang ups like everyone else. We're learning to be a little more authentic.

Church folk have historically been notorious for keeping issues carefully tucked away in the closet. Being of Western European extraction, where stoicism is the emotional norm, and "suck it up" the general world view, demonstrating emotion for me has never been all that compelling. Let alone allowing someone to get a glimpse of my true emotions. Translate that into a church environment, and it's only natural that we're generally hesitant to discuss anything more personal than sports allegiances, commodity prices, or partisan politics.

Paul's mandate in Gal. 6:2 that we "Carry each other burdens..." really makes a subliminal statement. At first glance, it would appear that the primary point of that statement would be to those called to serve someone in need. That's true. However, there's another message implied here. Sometimes the greater challenge is for the burden bearer to be authentic enough to allow someone to assist with their burden!

Brian Vriesman
Pastor's Corner

I know of a lot of Christians willing to help carry someone's burden. I know fewer Christians willing to allow others into that inner sanctum of their lives to assist them with their burden. The ability to assist someone else requires a willing heart, the ability to ask for help requires a humble heart. I'm not sure which is the more difficult. I'm not sure which is the rarer commodity.

So what do you think is the greater symptom of spiritual maturity? A willingness to assist someone in their burden bearing, or a willingness to allow someone to assist you in carrying yours?

The next time you recognize someone has a need and you have an opportunity to assist-go for it! Also consider this... the next time you recognize YOU are the one with the burden, allow that willing burden carrier the privilege of being like Jesus to you. In the process, both of you will be taking a step of faith.

A family enters Magic Valley Bible Church on Sunday in downtown Twin Falls.

"I don't even know they're there," said Alan Fife, owner of 208's Finest Tattoo Shop, noting he'd like to see all the empty buildings filled. His shop isn't open Sundays, so church traffic doesn't bother him and weekly church events hasn't hurt his business.

"Anything's better than having the buildings empty," he said.

Sherry Dowalo, owner of Magic Valley Thrift Store just west of the church, said the traffic the church brings on Sundays has helped her business.

"It's been wonderful," she said.

Her son Will DeWalt, who works at the store, said the only thing that's been a challenge is church members parking in front of their store. But they're OK with that as long as people keep coming downtown.

"We're trying to renovate this side of the street," he said. "I think anything works for downtown as long as it's legal. ... It's nice to see people moving into the buildings."

Has the church experienced opposition since moving into the building?

Afterschool Spirituality

A church-sponsored program inspires learning, friendship.

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

TWIN FALLS • Since its inception, 17-year-old Simon Halsell has been participating in the Twin Falls First Presbyterian Church's once a week afterschool program called LOGOS.

The Twin Falls teen said the program has led him to new friendships, pride and accountability, and a deeper awareness of how he treats others.

Another 20-week season of LOGOS is set to start at the church on Wednesday.

Although LOGOS includes Bible study, Halsell said its not "heavy theology" and activities aren't all spiritually based.

"My favorite activities are more intellectual, although there are physical games and activities, too," Halsell said. "One of my favorite things we've done is building a popsicle stick bridge and seeing whose could handle the most weight."

According to the LOGOS ministry website, Theologos-ministry.com, the program is "a non-denominational Christian ministry that works in partnership with local church leaders to build young disciples of Jesus Christ."

First Presbyterian Church LOGOS Chairwoman Kathy Price initiated the program five years ago. Having grown up within the church, Price participated in LOGOS as a youth and thought the ministry was exactly what the congregation needed.

"Before LOGOS our afterschool program wasn't consistent and it didn't have much of an impact," Price said. "Now we have about three dozen kids, from pre-kindergarten to the 12th grade, with weekly attendance over 90 percent."

She said the program helps teach children and youth to become disciples for Jesus Christ, while teaching them how to treat their peers as "children of God," instead of with disrespect.

Participants have time for recreation, snacks, Bible study and worship at LOGOS, Price said. The evening's highlight is the family-style dinner, where a group of about six youth are paired with two "table parents" throughout the sea-

Plan to Go

What: The First Presbyterian Church is gearing up for its sixth season of LOGOS, an after-school youth ministry.

When: 4-7 p.m. for children pre-kindergarten through third grade; 4-7:45 p.m. for children sixth grade and up, Oct. 3-March.

Where: 209 Fifth Ave. N., Twin Falls.

Cost: Registration is $90 for one child, $150 for two and $210 for three. Call for additional pricing.

son.

"Every week dinner leads to many conversations and relationships are forged," said volunteer Linda Foreman, 60, of Twin Falls. "There is a theme every week and for the Super Bowl we had 'Souper Bowl' where everyone brought food to donate to the food pantry and our conversation started out talking about football, but we ended up discussing children who go hungry right here in Twin Falls."

COURTESY PHOTO

Children participate in afterschool activities at the First Presbyterian Church LOGOS program in Twin Falls.

Foreman has been a part of LOGOS since the beginning. She said adults in the church now know every child's name and vice versa.

"It's thrilling to have that many kids know you, and you feel good, like you have a positive impact on their lives," Foreman said. "It's good that these kids know they are supported and loved. They can talk with us about anything, and sometimes they need an adult to talk to that isn't mom or dad or a grandparent. We're here for them."

The entire church body is closer, thanks to the afterschool ministry, said Halsell's mother, Melanie Halsell.

Although many participants are church members, the program is open to the public.

"The relationships are multi-generational and without LOGOS many of those relationships would not have formed," she said.

Retirement Ceremony Honors Outgoing Pastor

KIMBERLY • A retirement ceremony for Pastor Steelman Borden will be held after worship at 10:45 a.m. Sunday at the Kimberly Christian Church, 307 Madison St. E.

A retirement reception for Borden and his wife, Diane, will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday at the Ageless Senior Citizen Center in Kimberly. Refreshments will be served. The public is invited.

Borden has served Kimberly Christian Church for 15 years and will be replaced by Dan Daugherty. Borden was recently honored at the Inter-mountain Christian Camp in Fairfield by having the new multi-purpose building named the "Borden Lodge" for his efforts in helping convert raw land into a thriving church camp complete with six cabins and development of the water and sewer system, as well as the construction of the multi-purpose building.

Aaron Michael to Perform at Twin Falls Church

TWIN FALLS • Aaron Michael Weil will perform live in concert at 5 p.m. Sunday at the First Southern Baptist Church, 392 N. Washington in Twin Falls.

Weil originally played the mandolin and sang lead and harmony for the Weil Family Band, which presented musical ministry for many years. By 2000, the older siblings married and left home. Aaron became a lead guitarist, the group changed its name to the Aaron Weil Band and he continued to travel with his parents for five more years. He has performed with Sons of the Pioneers, Ricky Skaggs and Mack Harris, formerly of the Christian group, "4 Him."

The public is invited. Admission is free, but freewill offerings will be accepted. Refreshments will be served.

First Southern Baptist Church is starting a new project to minister to the youth called "The Gospel Project." Meetings will be held at 6:30 p.m. Fridays. All young people are invited.

Rupert Church Plans Harvest Bazaar

RUPERT • The Rupert United

Methodist Women's annual Harvest Bazaar will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Friday at the church, 605 H St. A luncheon of chicken noodle soup, a variety of salads, bread and cookies will be served. The luncheon is by freewill donation.

Available for sale at the Food Court will be homemade bread, pies, pastries, caramel corn and candy. A new addition this year will be a Christmas Shop featuring decorations, gifts and gently used Christmas items. The Craft Booth will have items for sale ranging from crocheted, embroidered and quilted items to wood products.

A special feature this year is a cross-stitched and hand-quilted king-size quilt. The blocks for the quilt were given to the church by the family of Mary Ann Barinaga following her death. Mary Ann served as the president of the UMW for several years as well as working in Christian education and finances. The quilt was completed for the bazaar by Ila Lloyd.

The public is invited. Information: 436-3354.

Orphanage Run Planned in October

HAGERMAN • The second annual 4.1 Orphanage Run for Senegal, Africa, will be held Oct. 20.

The run is the result of a small group of people who wanted to support the Obadiah Project and it's founders, Jose and Marli, who have been doing long-term mission work in Africa for more than 20 years. The Obadiah Project was founded with a dream to rescue the children from begging on the streets and abuse and provide them with a secure environment. Land was purchased and fenced. A doctor/dentist office, home for the caretakers and mission team and the first children's home with 17 children living in it have been completed. The goal of supporters of the project is to build 11 more homes for about 18 children each.

Steve Gilbert and Brenda Evers organized the 4.1 Orphanage Run to raise awareness of the street children in western Africa and to pull together the Christian community beyond denominations. Gilbert has been active in African missions for about 20 years. Evers is currently Mission and Outreach Elder at the Living Waters Church in Wendell.

This year's 4.1 Orphanage Run begins at 10 a.m. at the Hagerman City Park. Participants are encouraged to arrive by 9 a.m., especially those registering that day. It will be timed by Blue Circle Sports. Registration may be done online at www.bluecirclesports.com, with a discount offered if done by Oct. 12. A form to send via regular mail is available at www.orphanagerun.org.

The race team is seeking sponsors, participants and volunteers. Information: Gilbert at 539-6000 or sgilbert7777@gmail.com; Evers at 731-6133 or brenda-sue-evers@hotmail.com.

"Actually, quite the opposite," Morton said. "Many of the business owners have seen the renovation taking place and have actually come to the facility to see what we have done with it. They have expressed kind words of welcome and were amazed at what our people have done."

Carleen Thomas, a downtown shopper, said she has no problems with a church in the heart of Twin Falls.

"Lighthouse used to be down here. I think it's a good idea," she said, noting that it provides an opportunity for downtown apartment dwellers who might not have transportation to another church.

The congregation moved into the building at 204 Main Ave. N. in early 2011, but the building wasn't complete until this summer.

It wasn't easy work to get done, Morton said, but it has paid off.

The work brought church members closer together, he said, and helped them to better see the hand of God in their efforts.

Magic Valley Bible Church was organized on Sept. 12, 1999, meeting first in homes of the members and then at space leased by First Christian Church. In January 2010, it started looking at options for its own building.

Morton said the congregation still has work to do on the building, but it's taking a breather now to enjoy what already has been accomplished.

"We paid cash for the building, so we own it," he said. "As far as how long do we stay downtown? That is up to the Lord. We are a people amazed and blessed to call 204 Main Ave. N. home."

OBITUARIES

Lillian McCord Ling

June 28, 1942-Sept. 27, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Lillian McCord Ling, 70, passed away unexpectedly at home Thursday, Sept. 27, 2012.

Lillian was born June 28, 1942, in Burley, Idaho, to Fred Austin McCord and Alice Allen McCord. She was a middle child with an older sister, Aileen, and a younger brother, Darold. She grew up on a farm near Emerson and graduated from Minico High School in 1960. She then graduated from Twin Falls Business College in 1961. On Nov. 9, 1963, she married Kenneth F. Ling. They had two children, Bradley Frank (1966) and Nancy Sue (1969).

In 1978, Lillian went to work for the Twin Falls County DMV, from which she retired in 2008 after 30 years of service. Lillian loved to read and was a wonderful cook. She loved camping and the outdoors. After their retirement, Lillian and Ken took several wonderful trips together. She was devoted to her family and took great pride in her five grandsons.

Lillian is survived by her husband of 49 years, Ken Ling; son, Brad (Loma) Ling of South Jordan, Utah; daughter, Nancy (Doug) Albrethsen of Twin Falls, Idaho; and grandchildren, Jared, Jayden, Grayson, Parker and Rhyn Ling. She is also survived by her sister, Aileen DeVisser of Filer, Idaho; and her brother, Darold McCord of Boise, Idaho. She was preceded in death by her parents.

A funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 2, at the Caswell LDS Chapel, with Bishop Greg Stanger officiating. Viewings will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Monday, Oct. 1, at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park" and one hour prior to the service Tuesday at the church.

Arrangements are under the direction of Lance Cox. Friends may leave condolences by visiting www.whitemortuary.com.

CAMBODIA GENOCIDE DEFENDANT FREED DUE TO ILLNESS

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) • Cambodia's war crimes tribunal set free a former leader of the Khmer Rouge on Sunday, upholding a decision that has outraged survivors seeking an explanation of the mass killings committed more than 30 years ago.

Eighty-year-old Ieng Thirith, who has been declared mentally unfit for trial, was driven out of the U.N.-backed tribunal's compound by family members. She made no comment to reporters.

The Sorbonne-educated Shakespeare scholar served as social affairs minister during the Khmer Rouge's 1975-79 rule, during which an estimated 1.7 million people died of execution, medical neglect, overwork and starvation.

The tribunal initially announced its decision to free Ieng Thirith on Thursday, saying medical experts had determined there was no prospect for her to be tried due to a degenerative mental illness that was probably Alzheimer's disease.

Prosecutors then delayed her release by filing an appeal demanding that conditions be set to restrict her freedom.

On Sunday, the tribunal's supreme court said it had accepted the appeal, which is expected to be heard later this month. In the meantime, it set three provisional conditions on her movement.

The tribunal said Ieng Thirith must inform the court of her address, must turn in her passport and cannot leave the country, and must report to the court whenever it summons her.

Ieng Thirith was the Khmer Rouge's highest-ranking woman and also a sister-in-law of the group's top leader, Pol Pot, who died in 1998. She is accused of involvement in the "planning, direction, coordination and ordering of widespread purges," and was charged with crimes against humanity, genocide, homicide and torture.

Three other senior Khmer Rouge leaders are currently on trial, including her husband, 86-year-old Ieng Sary, the regime's former foreign minister; 85-year-old Nuon Chea, its chief ideologist and No. 2 leader; and 80-year-old Khieu Samphan, a former head of state.

The tribunal said earlier that Ieng Thirith's release does not mean the charges against her are being withdrawn and is not a finding of guilt or innocence. It plans to consult annually with experts to see whether future medical advances could render her fit for trial, although that is considered unlikely given her age and frailty.

Survivors of the Khmer Rouge called Ieng Thirith's release shocking and unjust. They said they have waited decades for justice and find it hard to feel compassion for her suffering. "It is difficult for victims and indeed, all Cambodians, to accept the especially vigorous enforcement of Ieng Thirith's rights taking place at the (tribunal)," said Youk Chhang, director of the Documentation Center of Cambodia, a group that researches Khmer Rouge atrocities.

In a statement Sunday, he noted the irony of Ieng Thirith receiving "world class health care." As social affairs minister she was "personally and directly involved in denying Cambodians even the most basic health care during the regime's years in power," he said.

The lengthy delays have been costly and raised fears that the former leaders could die before their verdicts come.

No Tax, No Blessing: German Churches Insist on Levies

BERLIN (AP) • The road to heaven is paved with more than good intentions for Germany's 24 million Catholics. If they don't pay their religious taxes, they will be denied sacraments, including weddings, baptisms and funerals.

A decree issued last week by the country's bishops cast a spotlight on the longstanding practice in Germany and a handful of other European countries in which governments tax registered believers and then hand over the money to the religious institutions.

In Germany, Catholics, Protestants and Jews pay a surcharge of up to nine percent on their income tax bills — or about €56 ($72) a month for a single person earning a pre-tax monthly salary of about €3,500 ($4,500). For religious institutions, struggling to maintain their congregations in a secular society where the Protestant Reformation began 500 years ago, the tax revenues are vital.

The Catholic Church in Germany receives about €5 billion ($6.5 billion) annually from the surcharge. For Protestants, the total is just above €4 billion ($5.2 billion). Donations, in turn, represent a far smaller share of the churches' income than in the United States.

With rising prices and economic uncertainty, however, more and more Catholics and Protestants are opting to save their money and declare to tax authorities they are no longer church members, even if they still consider themselves believers.

"I quit the church already in 2007," Manfred Gonschor, a Munich-based IT-consultant, said. "It was when I got a bonus payment and realized that I could have paid myself a nice holiday alone on the amount of church tax that I was paying on it."

Such defections have hit the Catholic Church especially hard — it has lost about 181,000 tax-paying members in 2010 and 126,000 a year later, according to official figures. Protestants, who number about 24 million nationwide, lost 145,000 registered members in Germany in 2010, the most recent year from which figures are available.

But the figures include some people who still want to baptize their children, take communion on major religious holidays, marry in a religious ceremony and receive Christian burials.

The group We are Church, which claims to represent tens of thousands of grassroots Catholics, said many Germans stop paying the tax because they disagree with the church's policies or simply want to save money — not because they have lost their faith.

"I haven't quit because I still think that I might want to get married in a church one day, even though I know that's absurd," said Anna Ainsley, a 31-old-year banker and a Protestant from Frankfurt. "But when I see my tax declaration, then I think every year that I should finally quit."

Christine Solf, a Munich-based consultant, says she doesn't attend services regularly but appreciates the church's charitable work. For her, church membership is also a family tradition.

"I know people who quit for financial reasons but then still want their children to be baptized. That's not OK in my opinion," she said.

Actor Herbert Lom in Oct. 1955 at the London Airport.

'Pink Panther' Actor Herbert Lom Dead at 95

LONDON (AP) • Herbert Lom, the durable Czech-born actor best known as Inspector Clouseau's long-suffering boss in the comic "Pink Panther" movies, died Thursday, his son said. He was 95.

Alec Lom said his father died peacefully in his sleep at home in London.

Herbert Lom's handsomely lugubrious look and rich, resonant voice were suited to comedy, horror and everything in between. It served him well over a six-decade career in which roles ranged from Napoleon Bonaparte — whom he played twice — to the Phantom of the Opera.

The London-based star appeared in more than 100 films, including "Spartacus" and "El Cid," acted alongside film greats including Charlton Heston and Kirk Douglas, and worked for directors from Stanley Kubrick to David Cronenberg.

But Lom was most famous for playing Charles Dreyfus, the increasingly unhinged boss to Peter Sellers' befuddled detective Clouseau in the popular "Pink Panther" series. The two actors starred together from "A Shot in the Dark" in 1964 until Sellers' death in 1980, and Lom continued in the series until "Son of the Pink Panther" in 1993. Alec Lom said his father was forever grateful to director Blake Edwards for offering him a comic role after years of being cast as "the suave Eastern Bloc gangster with the dark looks."

"It was a new lease of life as an actor, one he embraced warmly," Alec Lom said.

"He had many funny stories about the antics that he and Peter Sellers got up to on the set. It was a nightmare working with Peter because he was a terrible giggler and, between my father and Peter's laughter, they ruined dozens and dozens of takes."

Born Herbert Karel Angelo Kuchacevic ze Schluderpacheru in Prague in 1917, Lom came to Britain just before World War II and began his career as a radio announcer with the BBC's Czech-language service.

Adopting the shortest stage name he could think of, Lom had his first major movie role as Napoleon in 1942's "The Young Mr. Pitt."

He played a psychiatrist counseling a traumatized pianist in "The Seventh Veil," a big box-office hit in 1945, and had roles opposite Richard Widmark, in the moody "Night and the City" (1950), Henry Fonda in "War and Peace" — Lom was Napoleon again — and a pre-James Bond Sean Connery in truck-driving thriller "Hell Drivers" (1957).

In the comedy "The Ladykillers" (1955), one of the best-loved British films of the 1950s, Lom played a member of a ruthless crime gang fatally outsmarted by a mild-mannered old lady.

Horror roles included the title character in Hammer Studios' "The Phantom of the Opera" in 1962, and Van Helsing in 1970's "Count Dracula," opposite Christopher Lee.

A postwar American career was stymied when Lom was denied a visa — he suspected because of his left-wing views — though he later appeared on U.S. TV series including "The Streets of San Francisco" and "Hawaii Five-O."

In the 1950s, Lom also had stage success playing the King of Siam in the original London production of the "The King And I" at the Theatre Royal Drury Lane, opposite Valerie Hobson.

Lom is survived by his sons Nicholas and Alec, and his daughter Josephine.

Bidders must be prepared to tender the trustee the full amount of the bid at the sale in the form of cash, or a cashier's check drawn on a state or federally insured savings institution. Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in that certain Deed of Trust. The default for which this sale is to be made is: Failure to pay the monthly payment due 03/01/2012 of principal, interest and impounds and subsequent installments due thereafter; plus late charges, with interest currently accruing at 5.000% per annum; together with all subsequent sums advanced by beneficiary pursuant to the terms and conditions of said Deed of Trust, and any supplemental modifications thereto. The principal balance owing as of this date on said obligation is $81,350.75, plus interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations thereunder and in this sale, together with any unpaid and/or accruing real property taxes, and/or assessments, attorneys' fees, Trustees' fees and costs, and any other amount advanced to protect said security, as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust. Therefore, the Beneficiary elects to sell, or cause said trust property to be sold, to satisfy said obligation. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THIS FIRM IS ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT AND ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE, AND THAT THE DEBT MAY BE DISPUTED. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a) IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION. DATED: 08/22/2012, RECONTRUST COMPANY, N.A., Name and Address of the Current Trustee is: RECONTRUST COMPANY, N.A., 1800 Tapo Canyon Rd., CA6-914-01-94, SIMI VALLEY, CA 80028-1821, PHONE: (800) 281-8219. ANSWER: It is very tempting to bid two no-trump, going for the big payout if you are right; but here you have a viable alternative, which is to bid two spades. The point is that with such a misfit and no real club stopper, your chances of making three no-trump are very slim. Also, if partner has extras, he can still bid on if he wants.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend of one year has told me he needs to focus on getting his life together — getting a better job, concentrating on his career and finding himself. At this point in his life, he knows he can't provide for me and give me what I want, which is to settle down in a few years.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

He said he is unsure when he will have his life together and he doesn't want me to wait for him. He feels he needs to be "selfish" now and focus only on himself. We have talked about breaking up, and while he has faith that we will be together again, I can't bring myself to end things with this amazing man.

— AFRAID TO LET GO
DEAR AFRAID: When a man says he wants to focus only on himself and he doesn't want you to wait for him, what he is really saying is, "It's over." While the prospect of moving on after having invested a year in the relationship may be anxiety-provoking, at this point, you really have no choice. And don't expect to "be together again" anytime soon because his road to self-discovery could take a long, long time if it happens at all. Please accept my sympathy for your heartache.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old boy. My dad and I have a disagreement. I have been throwing away the lunches my mom packs for school because I don't like them and buying school lunches. I realize this was ungrateful and dishonest, and I regret doing it.

As a punishment, Dad won't let me go to one of my best friends' birthday party. I'm fine with being punished, but I think this punishment is unfair to my friend because he doesn't get to have me at his party. Instead, I think it would be better to be grounded or made to do extra chores. Who's right?

— NORMAL TEEN IN ORINDA, CALIF.
DEAR TEEN: You are a born negotiator. Instead of taking your punishment, you're trying for a plea bargain. I wouldn't be surprised if in the future you become a successful lawyer.

However, regarding your question — I'm not getting in the middle of this one. And I'm pretty sure that this is a punishment you won't soon forget. Bon appetit!

DEAR ABBY: My aunt has been diagnosed with a progressive form of dementia and has had to be permanently hospitalized. She is no longer able to perform basic life functions and also has violent outbursts. Her prognosis is not good, and she'll likely die within a year.

I'm engaged and getting ready to send out invitations to my wedding. However, I'm unsure how to address the invitation to my uncle.

My aunt will almost certainly be alive at the time of my wedding, but there is no possible way she can attend. It seems wrong to ignore her existence and address the invitation only to "Mr. John Smith." But it feels equally wrong to address it to "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith," knowing she cannot attend. Your advice would be greatly appreciated.

— POLITE BRIDE-TO-BE IN CONNECTICUT
DEAR POLITE BRIDE-TO-BE: Address the invitation to both your aunt and uncle, but when you do, include a sweet note saying you understand that she won't be able to attend, but hope that he will be able to join you on your special day. I'm sure it will be appreciated.

Today is Saturday, Sept. 29, the 273rd day of 2012. There are 93 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Sept. 29, 1862, Prussia's newly appointed minister-president, Otto von Bismarck, delivered a speech to the country's parliament in which he declared the issue of German unification would be decided "not through speeches and majority decisions" but by "iron and blood (Eisen und Blut)." (Some references give the date of this speech as Sept. 30, 1862.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1789, the U.S. War Department established a regular army with a strength of several hundred men.

In 1829, London's reorganized police force, which became known as Scotland Yard, went on duty.

In 1902, William Topaz McGonagall, affectionately remembered as one of Britain's worst poets (if not the worst), died in Edinburgh, Scotland.

In 1907, the foundation stone was laid for the Washington National Cathedral, which wasn't fully completed until this date in 1990.

In 1912, movie director Michelangelo Antonioni was born in Ferrara, Italy.

In 1938, British, French, German and Italian leaders concluded the Munich Agreement, which was aimed at appeasing Adolf Hitler by allowing Nazi annexation of Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland.

In 1957, the New York Giants played their last game at the Polo Grounds, losing to the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9-1. (The Giants moved to San Francisco.)

In 1962, Canada joined the space age as it launched the Alouette 1 satellite from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California. The musical "My Fair Lady" closed on Broadway after 2,717 performances.

In 1978, Pope John Paul I was found dead in his Vatican apartment just over a month after becoming head of the Roman Catholic Church.

In 1982, Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules laced with cyanide claimed the first of seven victims in the Chicago area. (To date, the case remains unsolved.)

In 1987, Henry Ford II, longtime chairman of Ford Motor Co., died in Detroit at age 70.

In 2005, John G. Roberts Jr. was sworn in as the nation's 17th chief justice after winning Senate confirmation.

Ten years ago: Israel bowed to U.N. demands and U.S. pressure, pulling troops and tanks out through the barbed wire encircling Yasser Arafat's West Bank headquarters. West Coast longshoremen were ordered off their jobs for a second time in a costly labor dispute with shipping lines. Europe beat the Americans to win the Ryder Cup, 15 1/2-12 1/2.

Five years ago: President George W. Bush signed a bill to prevent a government shutdown, but lambasted Democrats controlling Congress for sending him the stopgap measure while they continued to work on more than a dozen spending bills. Actress Lois Maxwell, who'd starred as Miss Moneypenny in 14 James Bond movies, died in Fremantle, Australia, at age 80.

One year ago: Germany kept alive hopes that the 17-nation euro currency could survive the debt crisis as lawmakers in Europe's largest economy voted overwhelmingly in favor of expanding the powers of the eurozone's bailout fund. Phillip Matthew Hannan, the former New Orleans archbishop who eulogized President John F. Kennedy and who served more than three decades as the popular leader of his Roman Catholic archdiocese, died on the 47th anniversary of his ordination.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

IF SEPTEMBER 29 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Right now, you may be looking forward to a year of living flirtatiously. Because you may indulge in fantasies, this could be a good month for a vacation or to experiment with a sideline. A lasting romantic relationship could manifest in December or January. That is also the best time to make crucial decisions or set important plans into motion. You will be more likely to get in contact with what is helpful, healthy and high-minded and could meet someone who has your best interests at heart. Ambitions might take center stage in March, when you will have the best success by being obedient to rules and carefully organized.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be poised to deal with people who skate on the cutting edge. If you are enthused about an investment or purchase, and want to compete with experts, you tend to hear only what you want to hear.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Turn up the volume on the radio. Someone might broadcast his or her intentions, but your wishful thinking blocks the reception. A companion might make a better assessment of a situation; listen up.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Meet challenges with composure. An unexpected visitor might drop by, so be prepared to share a meal or some time. You may be surprised to find a knack for activities you never dared try before.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Power to the people. The media might have a meaningful message, but it may run contrary to your own belief system. Be advised that someone could camouflage their true intentions or purpose.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Wheeling and dealing under these stars might bring unexpected results. An unbridled desire for excitement could put you at odds with a partner. Hold off on making irrevocable decisions or commitments.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Rock on, but remain steady as a rock. You may be a calming influence for those who are tense or caught up in troubles. It may be necessary to stand up for your rights, but don't throw down the gauntlet.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Faithfulness and fidelity are the finest feathers to wear in your hat. You will find more happiness this weekend if you make an effort to be like Horton, who hatched his egg by never wavering in his devotion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Whatever seems too good to be true usually is too good to be true. Find something worthwhile in the midst of fantasies. Even a circus sideshow is worthwhile fun once you accept it for what it is.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Grab an inflatable ring before jumping into the pool. It would be wise to take precautions before attempting something risky. People in general may seem somewhat eccentric and unpredictable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't feel pressured by circumstances to adopt a stance. A restless inability to rest or relax may create tensions between you and others. You will find little time for idyllic idling this weekend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Diplomatic skills might be needed to overcome controversy and avoid disagreements. Cooperation requires plenty of give and take from both sides. What is good for the goose is good for the gander.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Here we go round the mulberry bush. Face the facts if the time isn't right. You might become involved in an endless game of phone tag or have trouble pinning someone down to a commitment.
