The cause of an explosion at the home of Rep. Fred Wood, R-Burley, remained under investigation Monday.

BURLEY • A woman injured Saturday in an explosion at a Burley home continues to recover in a Utah hospital.

Hospital staff at the University of Utah's Burn and Trauma Center said Monday that Amy Wood remained in "good" condition.

Wife of state Rep. Fred Wood, R-Burley, she was burned in the explosion that occurred while the couple ate dinner at their

The explosion from a basement room converted into a gun safe lifted up the patio slab at the back of the home, which doubled as the roof of the safe room, and collapsed the patio roof.

Amy Wood was on the patio when the explosion occurred.

Investigators are still reviewing the incident, and it's not clear if the explosion stemmed from something in the safe room. Ivan Hibbert, deputy state fire marshal, told the Times-News Sunday that reports on the explosion may not be available for a couple of weeks.

Several Sources Can Spark Fires

A room of stored ammunition and reloading supplies can hold enough explosive force to cause the damage seen in Burley, a local firearms expert said.

Safe rooms are often built very heavily, said Dan Hadley, reloading expert and employee at Red's Trading Post in Twin Falls. If a spark occurs, he said, that ignites the stored gunpowder and the room can "become like a cartridge case with the pressure finding release at the weakest spot, which would be the roof."

When gunpowder ignites, he said, it creates an expanding gas.

In rooms with a lot of stored ammunition and reloading supplies "it could easily blow a roof off," he said.

Sparks or heat can come from several different sources. Hadley said if gun cleaning and oiling supplies are kept in a room in a closed container, it can lead to the possibility of spontaneous combustion.

"Something like that is more likely to happen in an auto repair shop where there are more rags," he said.

He said although cleaning and oiling supplies are volatile, "they are safe if the directions are followed." It's always best to store them in a location separate from reloading supplies and ammunition, he advised.

Another source of ignition is some type of electrical short, Hadley said.

Safe rooms often have a dehumidifier, which has the potential of shorting out. Sparks can also be generated from static electricity in carpeting or from a light bulb exploding.

Gun safe owners generally don't have carpet in such rooms and turn the lights out when they leave, Hadley said.

Missing Canadian Walked 9 Miles before Collapsing

BY CALEY COOK Elko Daily Free Press

ELKO, Nev. • A Canadian man who hiked away from his stranded van to get help near Merritt Mountain a year and a half ago walked for more than nine miles before collapsing and dying, according to Elko County sheriff's detectives. The remains of

Albert Chretien,

who went missing along with his wife in March 2011, were discovered over the weekend by a pair of local elk hunters in a heavily wooded area in northern Elko County.

Albert Chretien's remains were found west of his stranded vehicle and on the north side of Merritt Mountain, Elko County Sheriff's Detective Dennis Journigan said.

Detective Jim Carpenter said the area where Chretien's body was found is heavily wooded and about one mile from the nearest road.

Carpenter said the location is about seven miles from the location of the van, though because of the terrain and heavy snowfall, it's likely Chretien walked more than that distance.

The location is also about seven miles from Mountain City, Nev., though the direct route there goes over a mountain pass.

Carpenter said there were no apparent injuries to Chretien, and that he likely died of exposure or exhaustion.

Even though Chretien was only 100 yards off the highway, the hike from the van would've been incredibly strenuous in 10 feet of snow, Journigan said.

"He was sort of traveling in the right direction," Journigan said, "but he took a wrong turn and went over a pass. He fell victim to the winter weather."

Chretien's remains were intact, Journigan said, and he was identified using personal effects in his pockets

Jerome Officials Want to Resurrect Park Plan

BY JULIE WOOTTON jwootton@magicvalley.com

JEROME • Jerome County officials want to resurrect a fiveyear-old plan to improve the Snake River Canyons Park.

Terry Halbert, district manager for the North Side Soil & Water Conservation District, presented a three-year action plan to commissioners Monday.

They didn't take action, but the topic will come back in a few weeks. Halbert said he's excited about the proposal and thinks it's a "huge thing for Jerome County residents? Developing the park, he said, would mean commercial businesses wouldn't be allowed on the Jerome side of the canyon rim. Although it would mean a loss in potential tax revenue for Jerome County, Halbert said having open land in the area – and the ability to see the canyon is beneficial for citizens. A master plan for the Snake River Canyons Park was created in 2007 by several groups and members of the public, but was never put into action.

Litter and safety concerns at the park - just east of U.S. Highway 93 on the north rim of the Snake River Canyon were the subjects of discussions this spring.

Out of a few dozen points in the three-year action plan proposal, some include hosting clean-up days at the park, forming a Snake River Canyons Park committee, planning events to take place at the park, and creating a "Friends of the Snake River Canyons Park" nonprofit group.

Also, Halbert said a goal is to develop marketing materials including text and visuals — to help people get excited about the park.

"The Snake River Canyons Park doesn't have an image," he said.

Stocks Rise Following Expansion in Manufacturing

NEW YORK • U.S. stocks mostly rose on Monday as growth in manufacturing provided more evidence that the economy may be picking up, or at least not getting any worse.

The gains came after news that U.S. manufacturing grew in September for the first time in four months.

The Institute for Supply Management, a trade group of purchasing managers, also said its gauge of manufacturing employment rose following a decline in August. That's a hopeful sign that the government's monthly employment report, due out Friday, could come in better than analysts have been expecting.

Why Twin Falls Moved 45 Degrees

Why did city planners in Twin Falls move away from the original tilted road grid in favor of north-south and east-west roads?

he city of Twin Falls was developed in conjunction with the water delivery systems built to irrigate the semi-arid high desert plain in southern Idaho. Initially, Twin Falls grew to serve the needs of the homesteaders and farmers who relied on the Snake River.

"This whole area was surveyed in square-mile increments by the federal government before the city of Twin Falls existed," said Lee Glasemann, a staff engineer for the city of Twin Falls. "The survey generally created a grid of onemile squares of property. Along the edge of each of the squares is where they granted the counties roadway easements. When the founders of the city laid out the original town site, they chose to go diagonal, within the established grid, rather than with it?"

From the beginning, Glasemann said, the founders had to tie those diagonal streets into existing north-south and east-west streets (today's Blue Lakes Boulevard, Washington Street and Addison Avenue).

"The one-mile grid preexisted the plat and the diagonal streets caused the Five Points intersection issue the day it was recorded. It wasn't the other way around," GlaeKimberly Williams-Brackett semann said.

"If I were to guess, I think later developers didn't want to fight the existing one-mile grid system and didn't have to if the original city leadership didn't require a continuation of the diagonal system. The whole system is set up in north-south, east-west squares. It's hard to go against it?"

Several possible reasons have been given as to why the city founders pursued a diagonal grid.

Twin Falls was founded in 1904 as a planned community, designed by Emmanuel Louis Masqueray, the architect responsible for the 1904 St. Louis World's Fair. Masqueray was part of the City Beautiful Movement in the early 1900s, which was a reform philosophy concerning North American architecture. The original layout, Glaesemann said, was intended to sell the area to early investors and get people to come to the Magic Valley.

Looking at annexation for new development after the original town site, Glaesemann said, it took more than 15 years for the city to expand. Several more expansions are then recorded in the 1930s, he said. "The City Beautiful

This image shows the original Twin Falls townsite tilted by 45 degrees from the north-south grid of roads most Idaho cities use.

Movement must have ran its course and diagonals went away."

John E. Hayes was designated to do the layout and surveying of the town site late in April 1904. College of Southern Idaho history professor Jim Gentry said Hayes surveyed the town so that prevailing breezes would blow across the streets instead of sweeping them from one end to the other, so that all the town site could be irrigated adequately, so the sun would hit all four sides of a house at least once during the day, and so the slope of the land would help with street and sewer construction.

Historic Preservation Commission Chairman Randall Watson said the terrain typically drains away from Rock Creek Canyon in the original town site. "By aligning the original town site roads on the diagonals, this ensured that surface irrigation would drain properly down each road and prevented flooding.""

In his book "Tales of the Tract," historian James Varley wrote of one other possible reason for the tilt, given by the Boise Statesman at the time so that Shoshone Avenue would lead directly to Shoshone Falls, had it ever been extended.

Here's more about the local winners:

Christy Addey • 1st Grade, Horizon

For Christy Addey, Jerome is truly home. It's where she grew up and has spent her teaching career.

"I've basically taught first grade for 16 years," she said.

Through the Jerome School District's mentoring program, Addey works with new teachers or those moving to a different grade level. Addey helps teachers usually in her same grade level - learn how to manage their classrooms and provides ideas. She also sits down with new teachers and helps them put together lesson plans.

She said the goal is to help new teachers feel comfortable and be successful.

"I learn a lot from the mentees," she said. "They come with fresh ideas and new information that I haven't seen in a while."

Addey was nominated for the mentorship award by Horizon Elementary Principal Teresa Jones, as well as a teacher she mentored three years ago.

Jones said in addition to being a mentor for new teachers, Addey is also "a mentor to her whole gradelevel team."

"She's just a really great leader and they respect her,"

Karen Konrad • Counselor, Minico

Minico High School in Rupert, Karen Konrad describes herself as a "jack of all trades when it comes to the high school experience."

Konrad has been an educator since 1984.

When she first arrived at Minico High in 2001, she was a teacher. In 2006, she became a school counselor. And for eight years she has served as Minico High's senior class adviser.

"It kind of puts me on both sides of the road there," she said. She said receiving the mentoring award is a "great comment" on her relationship with her colleagues. "The one thing I'm good at is building relationships," she said.

Konrad was nominated for the award by last year's school principal. Current Principal Suzette

Miller – who is in her first year in the position - didn't submit the nomination, but has known Konrad for many

She said Konrad is highly respected by her peers and is a role model for professionalism as an educator. "I'm thrilled for her," Miller said. "She's definitely deserving of this honor."

Patty Scherer • 3rd Grade, Hailey

Third-grade teacher Patty Scherer helped launch the Blaine County School District's mentoring program 12 years ago.

Scherer – who teaches at Hailey Elementary School - has been a teacher for 31 years. Twenty of those years have been in Blaine County.

There, new teachers across the school district meet at least weekly with their assigned mentors, in addition to group meetings. Mentors go over the school district's expectations for teachers and best practices for teaching.

They also observe new teachers in their classrooms.

"All of those conversations are private," Scherer said, and school principals do their own evaluations, a system that builds trust.

Toone said it's important that those teachers find a support system.

"Without a team effort, people could quickly burn out," she said.

That can lead some to leave the profession. "I truly believe that you have to help people get through the first few years," Toone said. While working with mentees, she'll review

everything from the school

Woman Describes Alleged Home Invasion

BY ALISON GENE SMITH alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A woman who said she was a passenger in a car with several men accused of a home invasion robbery in Buhl told a judge her version of events Monday during the first part of a preliminary hearing.

John Valenciano, Dylan Contreras, Luis Sotelo and a 16-year-old boy have all been arrested on charges relating to robbing the home of Leo and Judy Ray in Buhl. The Rays own Fish Processors of Idaho. The hearing will determine if the case advances to district court for trial.

The 18-year-old woman, who has not been charged with any crimes related to the home invasions, said she was invited to come hang out with Valenciano and Contreras the afternoon of Aug. 7.

After that, the woman described being asked to buy bullets and staying up all night with Valenciano, Contreras, Sotelo and the 16year-old boy as they drove around Gooding, Jerome and Twin Falls counties.

At one point, the woman said the group went to a home out in the country in Jerome. There, she testified, everyone but her did methamphetamine. She said she recognized the drug because she used to take it.

Under cross-examination, the woman described how she got out of a rehab program in May and is currently on probation. She told the court all her random drug tests have come up clean.

The woman testified that she was able to stay up all night without drugs because she was scared.

Rosemary Emory, a Twin Falls County deputy prosecutor, asked the woman why she did not call on her cellphone for help if she was so scared.

"John told me to take the battery out of my phone," she

The woman described how the group drove to a home in Eden. The woman said she and Sotelo stayed in the car, which belonged to her mother, while Valenciano, Contreras and the 16-year-old all entered the house. The three were inside for about 15 minutes and returned with a cellphone, watch and blanket, she said.

The woman then described how the group all traveled to Buhl. By that time it was 6 a.m. or 7 a.m., she said. The woman said the group dropped Sotelo off at the bottom of the driveway. The woman then wait ed in the car, she said, while the three others entered the house. After 20 minutes, the woman said the three came out carrying guns, two safes and laptop computers.

At one point after getting back in the car, the woman said Valenciano said they tied up people inside the house.

Next, the woman said the group dropped off Valenciano and Sotelo and then went to Jerome, where she rented a motel room for Contreras and the 16-year-old.

The preliminary hearing will continue this afternoon because of scheduling conflicts with the attorneys. Leo and Judy Ray are expected to testify, as well as a detective on the case.

If granted, the federal government would deed land in the area to Jerome County.

Opinions Mixed on Local Option Tax Increase

BY STEVE KADEL

skadel@magicvalley.com

KETCHUM • Tom Keenan has two views of a proposed tax increase that would boost the number of flights and therefore tourists coming into the Wood River Valley.

The owner of Towne and Parke Fine Jewelry in Ketchum realizes more visitors would translate to more dollars spent overall.

"I understand the need,"

However, Keenan says he and other Ketchum retail business operators are at a competitive disadvantage because nearby Hailey businesses wouldn't charge the 1 percent local option tax (LOT) on retail goods.

Keenan now charges 8 percent tax on his sales -a6 percent state tax and 2 percent LOT. The latter will jump to 3 percent if voters in Sun Valley, Ketchum and Hailey approve the measure Nov. 6. A majority vote of 60 percent is needed for it

In Hailey, where there is no LOT on retail sales, the new tax would apply only to rental cars and lodging. "I think the LOT is needed," Keenan said, "but I've done the research. Utah's tax is county-based so it doesn't put one group of retailers at odds with other retailers. In these economic times, all retailers are looking for is a level playing field, and we don't have it."

He added that other Ketchum retailers agree with him but are reluctant to make waves.

"Some are less willing to be outspoken than I am," Keenan said.

Proponents of the tax boost say it could generate up to $2 million a year and bring 24,000 new visitors through Hailey's Friedman Memorial Airport every year. That's because much of the tax money will be used as a minimum revenue guarantee for airlines, encouraging them to add flights from places such as Los Angeles and Seattle.

Eric Seder, president of Fly Sun Valley Alliance, a nonprofit group pushing the tax increase, said it would only be in place for five years so all the ramifications could be determined. Some of the money would go to marketing the area, he said.

Seder and colleague Carol Waller of Fly Sun Valley Alliance were unavailable for comment Monday. However, Seder previously told the Times-News a 1 percent tax increase would improve the local business climate and "definitely enhance property values."

Proponents also say more flights are critical to improving the Sun Valley economy because the area has seen a net loss of air seats during the past 10

City Tables Bungee Request

BY MELISSA DAVLIN Times-News

TWIN FALLS • How many ways are there to safely jump off the Perrine Bridge?

More than one, argued Eric Lyman, owner of Twin Falls bungee jumping company Over the Edge, Incorporated. On Monday, Lyman sought a letter of support for bungee jumping from the Twin Falls City Council.

The council tabled the request, saying they hoped to hear a presentation from the Idaho Transportation Department before making a final decision.

The Perrine Bridge is under ITD's jurisdiction, said city manager Travis Rothweiler. The ITD allows BASE jumping from the bridge without a permit, but prohibits any activity that requires an anchor attached to the structure for fear of damage, Rothweiler said.

But bungee jumpers can sidestep that concern, Lyman said. A person on top of the structure can act as the anchor, avoiding any potential damage.

Lyman hoped to get the council's support for bungee jumping, but some council members were wary of offering an official endorsement before hearing all sides of the story. After discussion, they voted to ask ITD to give a presentation on the activity.

In May, Lyman wrote a reader comment to the Times-News asking why the state's transportation department favors BASE jumping over bungee jump-

"Several years ago, a couple of bungee dudes from California attached abrasive cables to the Perrine's handrails and caused minor cosmetic damage," Lyman said in his comment. "But wanting to ban bungee for its potential to damage the bridge is like banning pedestrians for their potential to commit vandalism. Most anyone can observe that bungee can be done without damaging the bridge and that it impacts traffic identically to BASE."

COURT BRIEFS

Hearing Continued for Woman Accused of Abusing Girl

The preliminary hearing for a Hansen woman accused of molesting a child for several years was delayed Monday.

The preliminary hearing for Kandi Gay Mohr, 45, was delayed for three weeks until Oct. 19.

David Michael Meyers, 45, also of Hansen is scheduled for a preliminary hearing on Oct. 19.

Both Mohr and Meyers are charged with sexual abuse of a minor under 16 and two counts of lewd conduct with a child under 16.

According to detectives, Mohr and Meyer both participated in sexual abuse of the child. In an interview with police, Mohr allegedly admitted to abusing the child on more than one occasion.

Case Proceeds against Couple Accused of Faking Ailment

Lisa Dawn Holley and Michael Wayne Holley waived preliminary hearings Monday on charges of grand theft by deception.

The couple is accused of falsely claiming their daughter was being treated for cancer, then raising funds for her supposed treatment.

According to Buhl police and Idaho State Police detectives, the girl does not actually have cancer and lives with relatives in Seattle.

The two were arrested at the fundraiser, a car wash, in Buhl after undercover detectives from ISP spoke to Lisa Holley saying they wanted to donate $1,200 to her daughter's medical bills.

Man Accused of Planning Rape to Enter Plea

A man who was accused of planning the rape of a woman through Craigslist was in court Monday for a preliminary hearing.

Justin Matthew Crawford, 32, waived the hearing. He was charged with solicitation of rape and solicitation of burglary after police said he posted an ad on Craigslist claiming to be the woman and asking to be raped in her home.

An entry of plea hearing is now scheduled for Oct. 15.

Child Porn Case Heads to District Court

A man charged with 13 counts of possessing or accessing child pornography waived his right to a preliminary hearing Monday.

Daniel Joseph Roach, 29, will be arraigned in Twin Falls County 5th District Court on Oct. 9 on the charges.

The Filer man, whom police investigated in 2010 and 2011 for possession of child pornography, was arrested after a concerned citizen spotted him with a child in late August

Oct. 13, 1953, in Coronado, Calif., the second of four children of Ernie and Janet Forbis. The family moved to Bellevue, Idaho, in 1970. Ginny graduated from Wood River High in 1971. She was married to Robert Logue in 1971 in Hailey, Idaho, and they had two children, Scott Logue and Leya Logue. Ginny later divorced and met the love of her life, Charlie Chizum, in Bellevue. They were married on the beach in Seaside, Ore., in 1976. Their son, Joseph, was born in Hailey in 1981. Ginny worked at the Wood River Journal newspaper in Hailey for more than 13 years and then went to work at Paul's Market until Paul's closed. From there, she began work at Albertsons, where she continued to work until ill health forced her to retire.

Ginny enjoyed working and thrived on the close knit family of friends she met and shared with while at work. She was especially fond of her association with co-workers and customers at Albertsons and felt the loss of their friendship and close connection when she was no longer able to be there. Ginny enjoyed her time gathering with loved ones and spending time laughing in warm, sunny weather near serene water and sandy beaches. She cherished the fond memories of idyllic vacations that she and Charlie spent in Sayulita, Mexico.

Ginny was feisty, spirited, lively and humorous. She was beautiful, always had a fabulous smile, was intelligent, hard-working and adventurous, and had a quick wit and wry sense of humor. She loved her children and grandchildren; she loved life, and she cared deeply for her friends, co-workers and family. Ginny was courageous and determined throughout her long illness. She fought a long, hard fight and never gave up all the way to the end.

Ginny is survived by her husband, Charles J. Chizum of Jerome; son, Scott (Marci) Logue of Bremerton, Wash.; daughter, Leya Logue (Doug Dugger) of Hailey; son, Joseph (Carrie) Chizum of Hagerman; father, Ernie (Louise) Forbis of Guffy, Idaho; sister, Earnet (Phil) Dixon of Shoshone; brother, Mike (Judy) Forbis of Meridian; brother, Dewain Forbis of Pennsylvania; and numerous aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews and cousins. Ginny was especially proud of and fond of her seven grandchildren, Tazmin and Raylin Lyons of Hailey, Lacey Magil, Rachelle and Whitney Logue of Washington, and Addison and Ava Chizum of Hagerman. She was preceded in death by her mother, Janet Forbis.

Cremation has taken place, and a service for Ginny will be at 2 p.m. on her birthday, Saturday, Oct. 13, at The Church of Jesus Christ Latter-days Saints in Hailey. Cremation was under the care of Wood River Chapel. Friends and family may go to www.wood riverchapel.com leave a condolence, share photos and memories.

Marjie L. Sweetwood

Dec. 4, 1920-Sept. 28, 2012

BOISE • Marjie L. Sweetwood, 91, of Boise, died peacefully at home Friday, Sept. 28, 2012, of complications due to old age.

The funeral will be conducted at 2 p.m. Friday, Oct. 5, at Summers Funeral Homes, Ustick Chapel in Meridian. A graveside service will be held at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 6, at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls.

Mrs. Sweetwood was born Dec. 4, 1920, at Twin Falls, a daughter of Lee and Elda Leichliter. After attending a one-room country school for much of her elementary education, she graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1939. Marjie attended the University of Idaho, where she met her future husband, Charles Sweetwood of Los Angeles, Calif. They were married June 3, 1943, in Moscow in a double wedding ceremony with her sister, Wilma and her husband, Russel Stewart. With her husband in the Army, the couple moved to Fort Benning, Ga., and Camp Robinson, Ark., before he was sent overseas. While Charles was overseas, she gave birth to their two children, Susan and David.

Following World War II, the couple lived in Pocatello. In 1953, she and the twins joined Charles for a year in Israel, and they then moved to Boise. In 1962, Charles joined the U.S. State Department in Washington, D.C. They were posted to India and then South Africa, retiring to Boise in 1980.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Charles; her brother, Robert Leichliter; and sisters, Ellen (Peg) Bagnall and Wilma (Bill) Stewart. Survivors include their daughter, Susan and her husband, Alvin Burgemeister; their son, David Sweetwood and his wife, Libby Roberts; granddaughters, Kristina Burgemeister Thelen and her husband, Timothy Thelen, and Amy Sweetwood Carrasco and her husband, Joseph Carrasco; and seven great-grandchildren. She is also survived by her brother-in-law, Russel Stewart, as well as many nieces, nephews and dear friends.

The family suggests that memorials be made to the Idaho Food Bank or to a favorite charity.

As a daughter who is taking care of my aging mother, I guess I am a caregiver! I don't like the term, because I see helping Mom as something I do because I love her. However, I can use some help.

A. There are many non-profit and commercial websites that offer information for caregivers. You need to "consider the source" when you read articles and advice given over these sites. We are happy to give you one especially good government website for people who are providing care for loved ones. This is the website for the National Institute on Aging: www.nia.nih.gov/ health. This website has many free booklets and fact sheets on a great number of subjects that you might find helpful. Topics range from Home Safety for People with Alzheimer's Disease to Older Drivers to Talking with the Doctor! These publications should be relevant whether the reader is caring for aging parents, an older relative, a family friend or a neighbor.

JUSTICES OPEN NEW TERM

WASHINGTON (AP) • The Supreme Court plunged into its new term Monday with a high-stakes dispute between businesses and human rights groups over accountability for foreign atrocities. The next nine months hold the prospect for major rulings on affirmative action, gay marriage and voting rights.

The term that concluded in June set a high bar for drama and significance, and the new one holds considerable potential as well. Cases involving some of the most emotional issues in American life are likely to be decided after voters choose a president and new Congress next month.

Meeting on the first Monday in October, as required by law, the justices entered the crowded marble courtroom for the first time since their momentous decision in late June that upheld President Barack Obama's health care overhaul.

The decisive vote in favor of Obamacare, Chief Justice John Roberts was smiling as he led the justices into the courtroom. The conservative chief justice will be watched closely in the coming months for any new indications of a willingness to side with the court's liberals, as he did in the health care case.

Roberts formally opened the term, and the court turned quickly to its first argument, which could have far-reaching implications.

The dispute involves a lawsuit against Royal Dutch Petroleum, or Shell Oil, over claims that the company was complicit in murder and other abuses committed by the Nigerian government against its citizens in the oilrich Niger Delta.

Human rights groups are warily watching the case because it would be a major setback if the court were to rule that foreign victims could not use American courts, under a 1789 law, to seek accountability and money damages.

The justices appeared ready to impose some limits, but it was unclear how far the court would go to shield businesses and perhaps individuals as well.

Justice Samuel Alito said the Nigerian case has no connection to this country because the businesses, the victims and the location of the abuse all are foreign. "Why does this case belong in the courts of the United States?" Alito asked.

Among other concerns raised by the justices was the prospect that U.S. firms could "be sued in any country in any court in the world," in Justice Anthony Kennedy's words.

The Obama administration is partly on the oil company's side in this case. "There just isn't any meaningful connection to the United States," Solicitor General Donald Verrilli Jr.

Skydiver Wants to Break Sound Barrier

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) • His blood could boil. His lungs could overinflate. The vessels in his brain could burst. His eyes could hemorrhage.

And, yes, he could break his neck while jumping from a mindboggling altitude of 23 miles.

But the risk of a gruesome death has never stopped "Fearless Felix" Baumgartner in all his years of skydiving and skyscraper leaping, and it's not about to now.

Next Monday over New Mexico, he will attempt the highest, fastest free fall in history and try to become the first skydiver to break the sound barrier.

"So many unknowns," Baumgartner says, "but we have solutions to survive."

The 43-year-old former military parachutist from Austria is hoping to reach 690 mph, or Mach 1, after leaping from his balloon-hoisted capsule over the desert near Roswell.

He will have only a pressurized suit and helmet for protection as he tries to go supersonic 65 years after Chuck Yeager, flying an experimental rocket plane, became the first human to go faster than the speed of sound.

Doctors, engineers and others on Baumgartner's Red Bull-sponsored team have spent as much as five years studying the risks and believe they have done everything possible to bring him back alive. He has tested out his suit and capsule in two dress rehearsals, jumping from 15 miles in March and 18 miles in July.

Baumgartner will be more than three times higher than the cruising altitude of jetliners when he hops, bunny-style, out of the capsule and into a near-vacuum where there is barely any oxygen and less than 1 percent of the air pressure on Earth.

If all goes well, he will reach the speed of sound in about half a minute at an altitude of around 100,000 feet. Then he will start to slow as the atmosphere gets denser, and after five minutes of free fall, he will pull his main parachute. The entire descent should last 15 to 20 minutes.

He will be rigged with cameras that will provide a live broadcast of the jump via the Internet, meaning countless viewers could end up witnessing a horrific accident.

Baumgartner is insistent on going live with his flight.

"We want to share that with the world," he says. "It's like landing on the moon. Why was that live?"

His team of experts — including the current record-holder from a half-century ago, Joe Kittinger, now 84 – will convene inside a NASA-style Mission Control in the wee hours Monday for the liftoff of the helium balloon at sunrise.

"All the things that can happen are varying degrees of bad," offers Baumgartner's top medical man, Dr. Jonathan Clark, a former NASA flight surgeon.

Clark was married to space shuttle astronaut Laurel Clark, who was killed aboard Columbia while it was returning to Earth in 2003, and he has dedicated himself to improving astronauts' chances of survival in a high-altitude disaster.

NASA is paying close attention, eager to improve its spacecraft and spacesuits for emergency escape, but is merely an observer; the energy drink maker is footing the bill and will not say how much it is costing.

The No. 1 fear is a breach of Baumgartner's suit. If it breaks open, potentially lethal bubbles could form in his bodily fluids.

Huge Tax Increase Looms at Fiscal Cliff

WASHINGTON (AP) • A typical middle-income family making $40,000 to $64,000 a year could see its taxes go up by $2,000 next year if lawmakers fail to renew a lengthy roster of tax cuts set to expire at the end of the year, according to a new report Monday.

Taxpayers across the income spectrum would be hit with large tax hikes, the Tax Policy Center said in its study, with households in the top 1 percent income range seeing an average tax increase of more than $120,000, while a family making between $110,000 to $140,000 could see a tax hike in the $6,000 range.

Taxpayers across the income spectrum will get slammed with increases totaling more than $500 billion - amore than 20 percent increase — with nine out of 10 households being affected by the expiration.

The expiring provisions include Bush-era cuts on wage and investment income and cuts for married couples and families with children, among

The expiration of the large roster of tax cuts is one of the issues confronting voters in November, with the chief difference between Obama and GOP candidate Mitt Romney being the tax treatment of wealthier earners. Obama is calling for permitting rates on individual income exceeding $200,000 and family incoming over $250,000 to go back to Clinton-era rates of as much as 39.6 percent.

Both candidates call for rewriting the tax code next year, but any such effort promises to be difficult and could take considerable time.

Monday's study, by the independent Tax Policy Center, deals with the immediate increases set to slap taxpayers in January under the existing framework of the tax code.

Few are talking of renewing Obama's payroll tax cut, even though that would mean a healthy tax increase for many working people. Working families with modest incomes would be hit hard as the child tax credit would shrink from a maximum of $1,000 per child to $500.

As a result, a married couple earning $50,000 with three dependent children that currently receives an almost $1,500 income tax refund largely due to the child tax credit would see their fortunes reversed by more than $3,000 next year and pay more than $1,500 in income taxes while seeing their payroll taxes go up by $1,000 if the full menu of tax cuts expire.

Labor Petition in Iran Shows Alarm

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) • For weeks, a manifesto complaining about Iran's stumbling economy circulated in secret among factories and workshops. Organizers asked for signatures and the pages began to fill up.

In the end, some 10,000 names were attached to the petition addressed to Iran's labor minister in one of the most wide-reaching public outcries over the state of the country's economy, which has received a double pounding from tightening Western sanctions alleged mismanagement President Mahmoud

Ahmadinejad's government.

The rare protest document – described to The Associated Press this week by labor activists and others suggests growing anxiety among Iran's vast and potentially powerful working class as the ruling system struggles with the latest sanctions, which have targeted critical oil exports and blackballed Iran from international banking networks.

It also appears to reinforce the U.S. and European assertions that the economic squeeze is bringing increasing pressures on Iranian authorities. President Barack Obama and others argue that sanctions and diplomacy are the best way to wring concessions over Iran's nuclear program even as Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu pushes for a "red line" declaration that could trigger military action.

While Iran's leadership still has broad-based public support in the nuclear standoff with the West, the petition and sporadic street demonstrations over the slumping economy suggest a growing distinction between the national pride of nuclear technology and the economic hardships from Tehran's defiance.

"We'd rather be us than them."

President Barack Obama spokeswoman Jennifer Psaki commenting after many polls show Obama, who is within reach of the 270 electoral votes needed to win a second term, with a steady lead over Republican Mitt Romney.

The World We're Actually Living In

or the first time in a long, long time, a Democrat is running for president and has the clear advantage on national security policy. That is not "how things are supposed to be," and Republicans sound apoplectic about it. But there is a reason President Barack Obama is leading on national security, and it was apparent in his U.N. speech last week, which showed a president who understands that we really do live in a more complex world today - and that saying so is not a cop-out. It's a road map. Mitt Romney, given his international business background, should understand this, but he acts instead as if he learned his foreign policy at the International House of Pancakes, where the menu and architecture rarely changes.

Rather than really thinking afresh about the world, Romney has chosen instead to go with the same old GOP bacon and eggs — that the Democrats are toothless wimps who won't stand up to our foes or for our values, that the Republicans are tough and that it is 1989 all over again. That is, the U.S. stands astride the globe with unrivaled power to bend the world our way, and the only thing missing is a president with "will." The only thing missing is a president who is ready to simultaneously confront Russia, bash China, tell Iraqis we're not leaving their country, snub the Muslim world by outsourcing our Arab-Israel policy to the prime minister of Israel, green light Israel to bomb Iran - and raise the defense budget while cutting taxes and eliminating the deficit. It's all "attitude" - without a hint at how we could possibly do all these contradictory things at once, or the simplest acknowledgment that two wars and a giant tax cut under former President George W. Bush has limited our ability to do even half of them.

Let's look at the world we're actually living in. It is a world that has become much more interdependent so that our friends failing (like Greece) can now harm us as much as our enemies threatening, and our rivals (like China) collapsing can hurt us as much as their rising. It's a world where a cheap YouTube video made by a superempowered individual can cause us more trouble than the million-dollar propaganda campaign of a superpower competitor. It is a globalized economy in which the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the U.S.' largest business lobby, has opposed Romney's pledge to designate China as a currency manipulator and is pressing Congress to lift Cold War trade restrictions on Russia, a country Romney has labeled the U.S. "No.1 geopolitical foe." It is a world where, at times, pulling back - and focusing on rebuilding our strength at home - is the most meaningful foreign policy initiative we can undertake because when the U.S. is at its best - its institutions, schools and values — it can inspire emulation, whereas Russia and China still have to rely on transactions or bullying to get others to follow. It is still a world where the use of force, or the threat of force, against implacable foes (Iran) is required, but a world where a nudge at the right time and place can also be effective.

Add it all up and it's a world in which the U.S. will have greater responsibility (because our European and Japanese allies are now economically enfeebled) and fewer resources (because we have to cut the defense budget) to manage a more complex set of actors (because so many of the states we have to deal with now are new democracies with power $emanating from their people not just one \, man-like \, Egypt$ or failing states like Pakistan) where our leverage on other major powers is limited (because Russia's massive oil and gas income gives it great independence and any war we'd want to fight in Asia we'd have to borrow the money from China). This complexity doesn't argue for isolationism. It argues for using our power judiciously and in a nuanced fashion. For instance, if you had listened to Romney criticizing Obama for weakness after the attack on the U.S. consulate in Benghazi, Libya, you'd have thought that, had Romney been president, he would have immediately ordered some counterstrike. But, had we done so, it would have aborted what was a much more meaningful response: Libyans themselves taking to the streets under the banner "Our Revolution Will Not Be Stolen" and storming the headquarters of the Islamist militias who killed the U.S. ambassador. It shows you how much this complexity can surprise you.

The one area where Romney could have really challenged Obama on foreign policy was on the president's bad decision to double-down on Afghanistan. But Romney can't, because the Republican Party wanted to triple down. So we're having no debate about how to extricate ourselves from our biggest foreign policy mess and a cartoon debate -"I'm tough; he's not" — about everything else. In that sense, foreign policy is a lot like domestic policy. The morning after the election, we will face a huge "cliff": how to deal with Afghanistan, Iran and Syria, without guidance from the candidates or a mandate from voters. Voters will have to go with their gut about which guy has the best gut feel for navigating this world. Obama has demonstrated that he has something there. Romney has not.

Mr. Howe, We are Not Different, We are Americans

Mr. Coats, I see you believe it is OK for stereotypes to exist. I see that you believe it is OK to perpetrate racist tendencies on the fine people of Idaho. You miss the point, sir.

The article didn't point out differences but made bigoted views of quote diversity. I have lived with witnessing this quote differences as I had a diverse upbringing with a black brother, black sister, Vietnamese sister, a Catholic sister-in-law and a Jewish sister-in-law while having Episcopal and Lutheran family members. I don't believe I push my religion on others because of stereotypes. I literally was waiting for Mr. Howe to say that people from Idaho eat red meat and eat potatoes while those from Oakland were black and eat chicken and watermelon.

We are not different. We are Americans, and it takes people like Mr. Howe and you, Mr. Coats, to keep stereotypes alive and racism at the forefront. My best guess is that you believe in keeping people down and promote your belief in your own religious and ethnicity superiority. Get rid of your stereotypes and simply compare the things that made those football players alike. For example, how much hard work they put on the football field, in the classroom and the heart and desire to be winners. Instead, I guess we should point out the education stereotypes.

Oh, that's right, our state lags behind many in that realm so that wouldn't fit the objective of the racist comments.

Opposing Abortion Except in Cases of Rape, Incest is Inconsistent

I've heard it said the great thing about liberalism is never having to think. Unfortunately, that makes for some pretty ignorant letters, as was evident on Monday's (Sept. 24) editorial page. If the gentleman from Hailey had actually thought through the prolife position, he would have found it to be logically consistent, even if personally disagreeable.

It's as simple as this: All people are "endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." The pro-life position is that the fetus is a separate, unique human with a right to life, regardless of the circumstances of its conception. As in a planned pregnancy, a fetus conceived in rape or incest is also a separate, unique human, not an "abomination." If abortion is permissible for an unwanted pregnancy such as this, why should any other unwanted pregnancy be denied termination? Opposing abortion except in cases of rape or incest is a logically inconsistent position. Which of Jesus' teachings condoned killing the innocent?

On the other hand, if one views the fetus as simply a mass of cells akin to a tumor, there's no reason to restrict abortion for any reason at any time. Of course, a fetus does, at some point, become a separate, unique human being. The challenge with this position is defining where that point is (a heartbeat? brainwaves? breaking of water? birth?). Another complication with this position is that it leaves the government – politicians and bureaucrats — to make that decision. The government does so well with life and death decisions

By the way, if Idaho, with its balanced budgets and nearly fully funded public pension obligations, is such a poor place to live, why not try life in a blue paradise such as Chicago, Washington or Los Angeles?

STEVEN HUETTIG Hazelton

Educate Yourself About Rodent Borne Hantavirus

We should be aware of the deaths and sickness in Yosemite this summer. They were caused by hantavirus carried by a rodent species called deer mice. This species is found across Idaho at higher elevations. We spray any dropping found with a mixture of bleach and water, then carefully clean the area. Never vacuum; it would make the virus airborne and possibly deadly.

There is no cure for hantavirus. The best control is cleanliness, leaving no food supply; however, at times this rodent seems to multiply with no apparent reason. Control through rat poison like D-con is the only option available; no other rodent control including traps is as effective. We have used it safely with no danger to pets, people or wildlife for decades.

One of the thousands of new regulations coming from this administration outlawed D-con and 19 other rat poisons. Costly litigation has prevented it from being removed from the grocery store shelves yet. I am convinced that by not allowing the Park Service to use this effective rat control resulted in loss of life. The ban seems to be based on two alternative assumptions: one that it is inhumane; two that children can ingest the poison if used improperly. Investigations into cases of children being made sick by ingesting the poison is usually where it was placed openly in a child's play

The thousands of new regulations being adopted will affect us all; however, most importantly, the unintended consequences may not be clear for a long time and take decades to change. This ban could affect a substantial portion of our food supply and will certainly cause more deaths. Cities or other local governments where misuse of this product has apparently caused problems should be able to ban a product. Nationwide regulations and bans by the federal government are dangerous, costly and irresponsible.

Miners Find Ancient Shark Teeth

POCATELLO (AP) • A crew of miners working in southeastern Idaho's phosphate patch unearthed the latest fossil evidence that sharks once swam the seas that covered the region more than 250 million years ago.

Last week, miners employed by Monsanto Co. discovered a spiral-shaped array of fossilized teeth buried in a heap of deposits at a site near Soda Springs. The crew, recognizing the importance of their find, immediately called Idaho State University professor Leif Tapanila, who identified the teeth and linked them to a prehistoric shark called Helicoprion.

Because the body of the species was made of cartilage just like modern sharks, the teeth are often all that remains of this once giant fish that lurked in the seas that once covered the region.

"It was widespread 250 to 270 million years ago," Tapanila, also the curator of earth sciences at ISU's Museum of Natural History, told the Idaho State Journal.

The fossil will be added to the collection at the museum, which is home to 29 of the 100 known Helicoprion fossils collected worldwide.

The discovery came as Tapanila and his associates at the university prepared for a summit this week featuring other experts on Helicoprion to discuss the possible features of the giant shark. The largest fossil at ISU would indicate that the animal was 20 to 30 feet in length.

"It was likely the largest fish in the sea," Tapanila said.

The professor and his undergraduate assistant, Jesse Pruitt, immediately drove to Soda Springs to retrieve the latest discovery from an area known as the Enoch Valley. The fossil was extremely fragile and broke into many pieces when they removed it, but some of the fossilized teeth remained nearly intact.

Tapanila has plans for those teeth. He will take thin sections from those teeth and examine them under microscopes to gather more data about the molecular composition of the shark.

over the objection of local lawmakers. The tests have been in place for many years in Utah, Salt Lake, Davis and Weber counties.

The Cache County Council rejected a vehicle emissions program on Aug. 14, but the Utah Air Quality Board says it has the power to bend county lawmakers to state authority.

Bird, however, said he will try to persuade Cache County to go along or substitute other pollution reduction strategies, such as requiring large employers to provide carpools and let employees work from home on bad-air days.

"We'll exhaust all the options," he said.

Industrial bakeries also are objecting. Under new rules, such operations will be required to install expensive catalytic converters for their ovens to remove ethanol, a byproduct of yeast leavening. Catalytic converters burn off volatile organic compounds that contribute to smog.

EarthGrains Baking Cos. Inc. told regulators the converters will cost too much, and it can't meet deadlines to install them in time.

By the company's math, it costs $9,735 to scrub a ton of ethanol from oven exhausts. Industrial bakeries subject to the rule release a total of 170 tons of ethanol a year.

High Court Maintains Roadless Rule

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) • Environmental groups hailed the U.S. Supreme Court's rejection of an appeal challenging a federal rule that bars development on 50 million acres of roadless areas in national forests, ending one of the main legal battles that had left the rule in doubt for more than a

"The Supreme Court action validates arguably one of most important public land conservation polices in a generation," said Jane Danowitz, a director of the Pew Environment Group, which has worked on the rulemaking since 1998. "Without the roadless rule and its national standard of protection, these millions of acres of pristine forest land could be opened to a variety of development, including logging, mining and drilling."

The justices said Monday they will leave in place a federal appeals court decision in a case brought by the state of Wyoming and the Colorado Mining Association that upheld the so-called roadless rule that took effect late in the presidency of Bill Clinton.

Wyoming and the Colorado Mining Association said closing so much forest land to development has had serious consequences for residents of Western states and the logging, mining and drilling industries.

protection from development to preserve forested areas that provide wildlife and natural resource habitat for hunting, fishing and recreation as well as other benefits. They note the rule has exceptions to allow logging in order to protect the forest from severe wildfires and for public safety.

"We're glad the Supreme Court put the final nail in the coffin of Wyoming's case," Tim Preso, an attorney with Earthjustice, said.

The decision means there's just one more legal challenge pending against the rule. The challenge filed by Alaska is pending in federal court in Washington, D.C.

Danowitz expressed confidence that Monday's Supreme Court decision would mean the demise of the Alaska challenge as well.

"When you get an action by the highest judicial body in the land that validates the roadless rule that bodes well for any future litigation," she

Wyoming Gov. Matt Mead said restrictions on 3 million acres of national forest in the state would have economic consequences for the state, which relies heavily on the mineral extraction industry.

PUBLIC NOTICE OF CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

Come

Today!

Two amendments to the Idaho Constitution will appear on the November 6, 2012 General Election ballot. These amendments have been proposed to the people for ratification following action by the legislature. The proposed amendments, the Legislative Council's Statements of Meaning and Purpose and Result to be Accomplished, and the Statements For and the Statements Against are listed as follows

S.J.R. 102

Text of Proposed Amendment

IN THE SENATE SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 102 BY JUDICIARY AND RULES COMMITTEE

A JOINT RESOLUTION PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO SECTION 5, ARTICLE X, OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF IDAHO, RELATING TO THE CONTROL OVER STATE PRISONS; TO PROVIDE THAT THE STATE BOARD OF CORRECTION SHALL HAVE THE CONTROL, DIRECTION AND MANAGEMENT OF ADULT FELONY PROBATION AND PAROLE; STATING THE OUTSTION TO BE SUBMITTED. THE QUESTION TO BE SUBMITTED TO THE ELECTORATE; DIRECTING THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL TO PREPARE THE STATEMENTS REQURED BY LAW AND DIRECTING THE SECRETARY OF STATE TO PUBLISH THE AMENDMENT AND ARGUMENTS AS REQUIRED BY

Be It Resolved by the Legislature of the State of Idaho: SECTION 1. That Section 5. Article X. of the Constitution of the State of Idaho be amended to read as follows: Section 5. STATE PRISONS -- CONTROL OVER. The state legislature shall establish a nonpartisan board to be known as the state board of correction, and to consist of three members appointed by the governor, one member for two years, one member for four years, and one member for six years. After the appointment of the first board the term of each member appointed shall be six years This board shall have the control, direction and management of the penitentiaries of the state, their employees and properties, and of adult felony probation and parole, with such compensation, powers, and duties as may be prescribed by law.

"Shall Section 5, Article X, of the Constitution of the State of Idaho be amended to provide that the State Board of Correction shall have the control, direction and management of adult felony probation and

Legislative Council's Statement of Meaning, Purpose and Result to be Accomplished S.J.R. 102

Currently. Section 5. Article X. of the Constitution of the State of Idaho provides that the Board of Correction shall have the control, direction and management of adult probation and parole. The proposed amendment would insert the word "felony" before the word "probation" and would clarify that the Board of Correction's authority is limited to the supervision and management of felony offenders. Consequently, if the proposed constitutional amendment is adopted, the Board of Correction would have the authority to supervise or manage misdemeanor probationers Misdemeanor probationers would continue to be supervised by Idaho counties, as is permitted by law.

Legislative Council's Statements FOR the Proposed Amendment

 Currently, adult felony probationers are supervised by the Board of Correction through the Idaho Department of Correction. This amendment would preserve local control of the misdemeanor probation process by clarifying that the state's role is limited to felony offenders, while counties have supervision authority over misdemeanor probationers.

2. Because the Idaho Constitution is not clear regarding state and local supervision of adult felony and misdemeanor probationers, legal challenges could result in unwanted changes to the current system.

This amendment would allow voters to provide constitutional clarification.

Statements AGAINST the Proposed Amendment

made only for major issues of interest to the state or in the event of a constitutional

2. This Section preserves the statewide uniform felony probation system, but does not address possible different misdemeanor probation treatment among judicial districts.

Be It Resolved by the Legislature of the

SECTION 1. That Article I, of the Constitution of the State of Idaho, be, and the same is hereby amended by the addition thereto of a NEW SECTION, to be known and designated as Section 23, Article I, of the Constitution of the State of Idaho and to read as follows: SECTION 23. THE RIGHTS TO HUNT, FISH

AND TRAP. The rights to hunt, fish and trap, including by the use of traditional methods are a valued part of the heritage of the State of Idaho and shall forever be preserved for the people and managed through the laws rules and proclamations that preserve the future of hunting, fishing and trapping. Public hunting, fishing and trapping of wildlife shall be a preferred means of managing wildlife. The rights set forth herein do not create a right to trespass on private property, shall not affect rights to divert, appropriate and use water, or establish any minimum amount of water in any water body, shall not lead to a diminution of other private rights, and shall not prevent the suspension or revocation, pursuant to statute enacted by the Legislature, of an individual's hunting, fishing or trapping license

Ballot Question

"Shall Article I, of the Constitution of aho be amended the addition of a New Section 23, to provide that the rights to hunt, fish and trap, including by the use of traditional methods, are a valued part of the heritage of the State of Idaho and shall forever be preserved for the people and managed through the laws, rules and proclamations that preserve the future of hunting, fishing and trapping; to provide that public hunting, fishing and trapping of wildlife shall be a preferred means of managing wildlife; and to provide that the rights set forth do not create a right to trespass on private property, shall not affect rights to divert, appropriate and use water, or establish any minimum amount of water in any water body, shall not lead to a diminution of other private rights, and shall not prevent the suspension or revocation, pursuant to statute enacted by the Legislature, of an individual's hunting, fishing or trapping license?

Legislative Council's Statement of Meaning, Purpose and Result to be Accomplished H.J.R. 2aa

This proposed amendment would provide that the rights to hunt, fish and trap are a valued part of Idaho's heritage and would preserve these rights for the people of Idaho and manage these rights through the laws of the state. This amendment specifies that hunting, fishing and trapping shall be a preferred means of managing wildlife. This amendment does not create a right to trespass or affect rights to divert or appropriate water. This amendment also will not prevent the suspension or revocation of licenses issued by the state for hunting, fishing or trapping.

Legislative Council's Statements FOR the Proposed Amendment

1. Hunting, fishing and trapping have long been practiced by the people of Idaho, and this amendment preserves Idaho's great sporting heritage.

2. Hunters, fishers and trappers help sustain a healthy ecosystem, and this amendment provides sportsmen meaningful and permanent protection to hunt, fish and trap. Without constitutional protection, bans on certain types of hunting and trapping have been successful in other states and have incrementally eroded sportsmen's rights.

Statements AGAINST the Proposed Amendment

1. Future legislation to address public concerns regarding inhumane and unsportsmanlike practices could be affected by this amendment.

This amendment is unnecessary because the rights to hunt, fish and trap are not threatened and are already protected by law.
3. The Idaho Department of Fish and Game's wildlife management decisions could be constitutionally challenged as a result of this amendment.

World-record Paper Carrier Retires

Idaho Press-Tribune

IDAHO

NAMPA • Darlyne Markus, 83, has been delivering papers for more than 54 years a decade longer than any other woman on record. But, saddening many of her customers, the Guinness World Record holder has retired, delivering her last paper Sunday before most people were even awake.

Markus, of Nampa, loved her job, she said, but never set out to break a world

"It's a good feeling, but at first I never even thought of it. It's just something I did because I enjoyed it, it was healthy for me," Markus

The route carried her through a dark time in life, she said. As a young mother who had lost a baby boy six years prior and had undergone a hysterectomy that caused nervous breakdowns, Markus said she needed something to get her out of the house. So, at age 29, she accepted a part-time paper route job in the afternoons with Idaho Free Press, now the Idaho Press-Tribune.

She's been working the night shift for about 20 years, traveling 43 miles each night, seven nights a week, often with the help of her husband, Bruce, the former Canyon County assessor. They haven't been on vacation in years.

You won't find Markus patting herself on the back, even though she drove the route each night, through holidays, storms and sickness. Her daughter Nancy Salisbury says she doesn't know how Mom did it.

"No matter how sick she was, she'd go," Salisbury

"I just felt like it was my job," Markus responded, 'and I've never had to have the company cover my route. . I've always rented a car (if needed) and done it myself."

All the praise and attention made Markus laugh.

"Oh look at me, aren't I awesome?" she joked with a big grin on her face.

Laughter is no stranger in the Markus household. Looking back over her mom's career, Salisbury said it's the "goofball stuff" she remembers most.

"We've always had humor. If we didn't, we'd have been down a long time ago," Markus said. "... We enjoy life. You know what, if you don't laugh, you don't got much. No matter what your circumstances are, if you can laugh, then you're OK."

She laughed a lot with her customers, too, especially in the old days when she collected the delivery fees from them face to face.

"My people like me," she said with a smile. "... They feel like I've been dependable."

They don't want her to quit, she said, but they understand it's time. About eight of her customers have been with her from the start.

"She was always, always concerned about customers," Salisbury said. "If she got a call that somehow they got missed, she would be in the car, in her robe, in her slippers,

National Wildfire Teams Getting Harder to Fill

LEWISTON (AP) • Officials with the National Interagency Fire Center are studying ways to boost recruitment for the teams that manage wildfires and other disasters.

A shrinking and aging federal workforce is expected to make it more and more difficult to recruit members of incident management teams.

"It's hard on families and it can be hard on careers and it's often hard to fill in for an IMT (incident management team) member who may be gone for six weeks out of a summer," Don Smurthwaite, a spokesman for the National Interagency Fire Center at Boise, told the Lewiston Tribune.

The National Wildfire Coordinating Group interviewed thousands of people in the wildfire response system to come up with a solution. The group made a series of recommendations, including streamlining training requirements and being more flexible with team size and makeup.

NIFC currently categorizes teams based on the level of experience and skill they possess. Type 1 teams are sent to the most complicated or pressing wildfires, while Type 2 teams primarily handle slightly less challenging blazes. One recommendation is that the types of teams be combined and structured so they can be easily sized up or down depending on the needs of the incident they are working on.

"The past philosophy was one size fits all. In the future there will be a closer look at the demands and needs of the incident and (an effort) to scale the incident management team to the particulars of that wildfire, or whatever the situation is," Smurthwaite

Some incident team members fear that approach will cause a loss of cohesion among team members.

Bobby Kitchens, a veteran of incident teams, said he thinks the modular approach will work, but if team members don't know each other as well, it could make them less efficient.

Winless Record the Least of Idaho's Challenges

BY JOSH WRIGHT

For the Times-News

MOSCOW • Idaho football coach Robb Akey said Monday the winless Vandals have "washed away" a lost weekend at North Carolina – the 66-0 trouncing from the Tar Heels and every other detail of the cross-country trip.

"We exorcised it (Sunday)," Akey said.

What remains, though, is a crippling uncertainty about the Vandals' yet-tobe-finalized 2013 schedule as a Football Bowl Subdivision independent.

Athletic director Rob Spear is still trying to piece together the final eight of 12 games for next year, and Akey said not having a full slate is having a "tremendous impact on our recruiting, our planning for the future, on everything."

The instability has most clearly manifested itself in recruiting battles.

"There's a lot of rocks getting thrown around" by opposing coaches about Idaho's situation, Akey said. The Vandals have a couple verbal commitments, he added, but others "who I think we have a shot at have been kind of waiting to see" what the schedule looks like.

Meanwhile, Akey has talked with members of the current roster about the Vandals' situation — both before the season and more recently on a playerby-player basis when questions arise.

Regarding this year's team, which is 0-5 for the first time since 2003, he said, "We don't need to worry about next year. We need to pay attention to now."

Nonetheless, the Vandals' sixth-year boss said the topic has come up with parents of current players, some of whom have contacted the NCAA to see what options their sons have if Idaho were to move to the Big Sky Conference or go independent.

Akey has also talked with Spear as recently as last week about finding the best opponents given the less-thanideal circumstances. The Vandals have world champion racing legend rolled into town the other day, burned through about $1,000 of race fuel and then left before hardly anyone noticed.

You may have heard him — that unmistakable roar of a flatbottom race boat engine as it churns the Snake River is typically reserved for one weekend every June.

The man strapped inside that K-Boat reaching speeds up to 140 mph has won so many championships and broken so many records, he can't even remember them all. Granted, that may partially be due to the countless concussions he's received from wrecking.

But that's Duff Daily. He's always been a daredevil, taking his bike off jumps when he was a kid. Only difference now is his toys have gotten faster and more dangerous.

Proof? Just Google "Duff Daily Boat Crash" for photographic evidence.

"Looking at that scared me," Daily said when asked about the online photos of his boat barrel-rolling seven times in a 2009 crash in Lincoln City, Ore. "I should be dead right now, there's no doubt."

The retired Miami firefighter has been racing since 1964. Now 59 years old, Daily is one of the living legends in the sport. Every summer, he travels from his home in Florida to race the Idaho Regatta in Burley.

"I love Burley. It's my favorite race of the year, and that's not a load of crap, it really is. I love this place," Daily said. "I've been wet here a couple times and have had some bad experiences, but that's racing."

At this year's Regatta last June, Daily and Boise boat owner Mike Stock debuted "El Cid," a uniquely designed K-Boat. Since then, they've crisscrossed the country racing it, from Washington to New York. They were in Burley last week testing and tuning seven different propellers and engine combinations. The 2012 season is over, but it's never too early to get ready for next year's races.

"With Duff it's really easy because I've known him since I was 15 years old," said Stock. "We've raced against each other and for each other. I wouldn't have built this boat without having Duff as the driver because of his knowledge. If you had a new boat and a green driver, you'd be (in trouble)."

Said Daily: "I've been wanting to build a different boat for years for this class to make it safer and faster. Mike stepped up and said let's do it. We're trying to

MONDAY NIGHT FOOTBALL

Chicago Bears cornerback D.J. Moore (30) tackles Dallas Cowboys tight end Jason Witten (82) during the second half of Monday's football game in Dallas.

Cutler, Defense Lead Bears Over Cowboys

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ARLINGTON, Texas • Those 30-something defenders for the Chicago Bears showed Tony Romo how much they can still play. Lance Briggs and Charles Tillman, two of the five defensive starters for Chicago in their 30s, returned interceptions for touchdowns, and the Bears beat the Dallas Cowboys 34-18 on Monday night. Though Romo was only sacked once, on the Cowboys' opening series, he was pressured relentlessly and threw five interceptions. That matched his career high, set five years ago in his first full season as a starter.

Briggs' interception came in a wild two-play exchange of turnovers midway through the third quarter.

Bears quarterback Jay Cutler was nearly flawless after halftime, when he completed 11 of 12 passes for 219 yards and two touchdowns. That included a 34yard score to Devin Hester to start the half and a 31yarder to Brandon Marshall with $6^{1/2}$ minutes left.

Cutler was 18 of 24 overall for 275 yards.

Major Wright, who returned an interception for a touchdown in Chicago's last game, had two of the five interceptions. D.J. Moore has nine career interceptions, three of them against Romo after getting another one Monday night.

Chicago's first fumble of the season came when Cutler was sacked by DeMarcus Ware and Victor Butler recovered at the Bears 27.

On the very next play, Romo was trying to escape pressure when he was hit from behind by Henry Melton. The ball popped forward into the air and Briggs grabbed it and rumbled for his first interception return for a score since 2005 to put the Bears (3-1) ahead 24-7. Once again, the Cowboys (2-2) are a .500 team. They are also one of the lowestscoring team in the NFL with only 65 points.

Since the start of the 1997 season, Dallas is 122-122 in regular-season games. They have won only one playoff game in that span after three Super Bowl titles in a four-year span in the first half of the 1990s.

Romo finished 31 of 43 for 307 yards and a touchdown. When the Cowboys got the ball back in the final 3 minutes, Kyle Orton got his first action since the veteran quarterback signed a free agent deal during the offseason to be Romo's back-

Like the rest of the offense, Southwick has had his ups and downs in the first season without Moore, who won more games than any other quarterback in college football history.

Boise State struggled to put up points, scored TDs on just three of 12 red zone trips and didn't get in the end zone at all in two of their first three games. It didn't help that Boise State played two of the nation's best defenses in Michigan State and Brigham Young early on.

Although Southwick's statistics through the first three games were decent, and he's avoided sacks and thrown only two interceptions all season, Boise State lacked the sizzle, consistency and high-scoring threat that have been the hallmark of the offenses coached by Chris Petersen the previous six

But Petersen said Southwick and the offense turn a corner against the Lobos. Petersen also recognized something Saturday all head coaches want to see in their quarterback: Confidence.

"He made strides," Petersen said. "To me it was some of the things we've been seeing in practice. We really hadn't seen it in the last couple of weeks. I thought last week he had a good week (of practice) and it really carried over to the game. If we can just keep building on that we'll be in really good shape."

Knocking off New Mexico on the road, however, wasn't enough to prevent the Broncos (3-1) from dropping out of the AP Top 25. After holding at No. 24 for the last two weeks, Boise State got just 53 points in voting Sunday, well off the total of 122 received by No. 25 UCLA. The Broncos moved into the coaches' poll, at No. 25, and that's the one that counts toward the BCS standings.

They have a chance to improve their standing in the AP voters' minds Saturday when they travel to Southern Mississippi, a team they've beaten twice before, including a 24-7 victory in Hattiesburg in 2008.

TECH MIDDIEKAUFF'S QUOTE OF THE DAY We are all here for some special reason. Stop being your past. Become the architect of your future

SALT LAKE CITY • The new-look Utah Jazz can only hope their transformation this year is as dramatic as that of once soft-spoken big man Enes Kanter, who wasn't afraid to show off his slimmed-down, muscledup physique in a series of daring Twitter posts this offseason.

"He needs his own reality show," backup guard Earl Watson quipped Monday as the team showed off its new

The 6-foot-11 Kanter, aka

Big Turkey, was ready to show off his six-pack of abs, and even had his jersey untucked before team officials urged a little restraint.

The former Turkish national team member said he simply wanted to show how hard he and his teammates have been working this summer. "I am not afraid of anybody and also we are not afraid of anybody," said Kanter, once afraid to utter more than a few words of English. "We have a really good and talented team and we are going to go out there and compete every night. "

Granted the Jazz still don't have a superstar, and neither one of the Williams they added to the roster is named Deron.

Management hopes the addition of outside shooters and a point guard with swagger, coupled with key veterans in the final year of their contracts, will help them achieve a new goal.

Rather than just making the playoffs as they did before being swept out last season, Utah wants a deep

"We don't have the superstar," said new point guard Mo Williams, acquired in an offseason trade. "We have to do it collectively each and every night."

Tyrone Corbin, who finally has a full training camp and preseason to prepare, said the talent is there for a deep run after a 36-30 finish in the condensed regular season.

"We feel good about where we are, but we have a lot work to do," said Corbin, thrust into the job when Hall of Famer Jerry Sloan abruptly retired in February 2011. "It's not going to be easy and we're not going to surprise anyone. But we have enough talent on this team to compete. We'll see where things Spear told Spokesman-Review (Spokane, Wash.) last month he had contracts for eight games pending.

"There have been a couple suggestions (to Spear) that have come out of my mouth that I didn't think I was capable of saying, but I have," Akey quipped.

This week's opponent, New Mexico State, is largely in the same situation as Idaho. With the WAC no longer an option for football, both schools have scrambled to secure games as FBS independents. And it's likely Idaho and New Mexico State will play each other twice next year - once in Moscow and once in Las Cruces.

"I don't think anybody here or at their place is a fan of having to do it twice in the same season," Akey said. "It happens to be a little bit of a necessity right now."

Even without a win in the nonconference portion of its schedule, Idaho's goal remains claiming the WAC title, Akey said. Yet he also seems content on taking smaller steps.

"A win is everything. That matters more than anything," he said. "You have to understand: Getting invitations to (recruits') homes was made before this season ever got started. Generally speaking, you're received a little bit better walking in the door of a home visit wearing a new bowl ring as opposed to a bowl ring, or they've seen you on TV and you've got a good win-loss record behind you."

"Obviously 'most recent' is now because everybody doesn't care about yesterday. It's what have you done for me today that was good? That's the way of the world."

Mixed-gender Swim Relays to Debut at World Cup

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates • The battle of the sexes has hit the pool.

Today's opening meet of the World Cup in Dubai will feature 4x50-meter mixed relays for the first time. Teams will be made up of two men and two women, and it is up to them to decide the order - so, for instance, a woman could race against a man on the anchor leg.

The initiative will be part of all eight World Cup meets. Swimming's governing body, FINA, has said the relays could be introduced at the shortcourse world championships in Istanbul in December and one day become an Olympic event.

"It's really important for every discipline, every sport, to improve, to look forward to develop further," FINA executive director Cornel Marculescu said Monday. "We will test it in the World Cup and see how this is going and will probably introduce at the world championship if results are acceptable for swimmers and coaches."

The lineups for the relay were not available Monday, but the top swimmers competing include 100 breaststroke Olympic champion Cameron van der Burgh and multiple Olympic medalist Therese Alshammar. They both welcomed the new event as a chance to further raise the profile of swimming, which often suffers a significant drop in interest between Olympics.

"When we bring in these kinds of relays, it will be extremely exciting for the first couple of years," Van der Burgh said. "No one knows what will happen. Who are the favorites? How it will work? Who they will choose? I'm all for making sport bigger."

The move comes in the wake of Chinese star Ye Shiwen's amazing performance at the 2012 London Games, in which her last freestyle lap in winning the women's 400 individual medley was a splitsecond faster than what American champion Ryan Lochte posted in the final 50 of the men's race.

DEAR READERS: If you like the way things are going, VOTE. If you don't like the way things are going, VOTE. If you have never voted before, VOTE. (Don't be embarrassed by your ignorance - when you get there, they'll show you how.)

DEAR ${f A}{
m BBY}$ Jeanne Phillips

If you're not registered to vote and don't know where to register, contact the League of Women Voters, your county registrar's office or your secretary of state's office for details. All are listed in your phone directory or online. The deadlines for registering vary from state to state.

Don't let anything - or anybody – keep you from voting on Tuesday, Nov. 6. It may be the most important thing you will do all year.

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating a divorced woman for four years. She said in the beginning that she had very little sexual experience because her former husband "had problems," but decided after the divorce to find out what she was missing. She hasn't discussed this in detail, but once in a while she lets out little snippets of information that lead me to believe she was active.

Do I have a right, now that we're engaged, to know how many partners she had since the divorce? She's being evasive about it.

- WONDERING WIDOWER

DEAR WONDERING: No, you do not have that "right," because if she answers the question, your next questions will be what are their names, how many times did she sleep with them and were they better than you are in bed. Sometimes it is wiser to leave the past in the past and simply appreciate the special relationship you have with the person you love.

DEAR ABBY: "Webbed in Columbia, Md." wondered what kind of spider went up the waterspout (July 8). Well, it depends on the location of that spout. Waterspouts in England, Australia (and I'm guessing Canada) attract spiders that are "incy wincy." American waterspouts are climbed by "itsy bitsy" spiders. (And at this time of vear we see really big ones.)

Between English-speaking countries there are also slightly different lyrics for "The Wheels on the Bus" and "Ring Around the Rosie." Because my hubby and I are from opposite sides of the Atlantic "pond," our son is learning multiple versions of many things.

- SUNKISSED INHOUSTON SUNKISSED:

DEAR Readers young and old responded to that letter, and you are correct that it depends upon which side of the pond you hail from. In the United States, it's also "teensy weensy" and "itty bitty." In Switzerland, it's "inky dinky." And then there was the following submission:

DEAR ABBY: The confusion may stem from "Webbed's" family members having confused the "Itsy Bitsy Spider" poem (song) with the "Itsy Bitsy Teeny Weeny Yellow Polka Dot Bikini" song. The spider song I learned in school and the bikini song I heard when my dad belted it out. It made us all laugh. Thanks for the memories.

- KAREN IN RENO, NEV.

ANSWER: Your partner's fourspade call showed a spade control (not necessarily good news) and interest in slam. When you hold solid trumps and partner looks for slam, you know he has a good hand. Here, the only sensible noise you can make is to bid five diamonds, suggesting no club control but something in diamonds. That lets partner decide whether to bid beyond five hearts.

Found Dogs:
Male Aussie mix young adult found at LDS church on Fair St in Buhl 9-27-12. Please call to identify.

Female Aussie and Border Collie mix puppy found in Buhl 7-27-12. Call to identify. If not claimed will be available for adoption 10-2-12.

Available for Adoption:

'Ally-Mae" Female Betriever & Shepherd mix? This is going to be a smaller doggie. She is only about 25 lbs and will likely not get a lot bigger. She is very playful and loves everyone.

'Carlie" Female Aussie & Heeler mix young adult. This little girl is very sweet and really gentle. She knows commands and is just waiting for her forever home! 'Dash" male young adult Black Labrador mix. He is a three legged guy (missing a hind leg that was amputated). This doesn't slow him down a bit. He knows commands and will make someone a great companion. Please call about him today.

"Buster" male (neutered) adult Boxer & possibly Pit Bull mix . He is a great dog. He is not very big in size. He gets along with other dogs, cats, and loves children. He is house trained and leash trained as well. Please give this guy a second chance at his forever home

'Jack" Labrador & Border Collie mix puppy. He is about 12 weeks old. He came into the shelter with his sister Jill. He is a great pup! Really affectionate and playful. He is also working on being house trained. Yogi" is available for adoption again. He needs to be an only dog as he is very jealous! He has a wonderful personality though. He just needs to be an only child. He is house trained and neutered already He walks on a leash well too. Please give him a second chance!

Our shelter is full at this time and we need your help adopting dogs. Some of these dogs have been in our shelter waiting for a long time for their forever families. If you have been thinking about adopting please do not wait! We would appreciate any food donations available as well. Thanks so much for your shelter support :) The adoption fee is $75 and includes spaying/neutering and the first set of vaccinations.

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 2, the 276th day of 2012. There are 90 days left in the year. Today's Highlight:

On Oct. 2, 2002, the Washington, D.C. area sniper attacks began as a resident of Silver Spring, Md., was shot and killed in a store parking lot in Wheaton; the next day, five people were shot dead, setting off a frantic manhunt lasting three weeks. (John Allen Muhammad and Lee Boyd Malvo were finally arrested for 10 killings and three woundings; Muhammad was executed in 2009; Malvo was sentenced to life in prison.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1780, British spy John Andre was hanged in Tappan, N.Y., during the Revolutionary War.

In 1835, the first battle of the Texas Revolution took place as American settlers fought Mexican soldiers near the Guadalupe River; the Mexicans ended up withdrawing.

In 1941, during World War II, German armies launched an all-out drive against Moscow.

In 1944, Nazi troops crushed the two-month-old Warsaw Uprising, during which a quarter of a million people were killed.

In 1950, the comic strip "Peanuts," created by Charles M. Schulz, was syndicated to seven newspapers.

In 1958, the former French colony of Guinea in West Africa proclaimed its independence.

In 1967, Thurgood Marshall was sworn as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court as the court opened its new term.

In 1970, one of two chartered twin-engine planes flying the Wichita State University football team to Utah crashed into a mountain near Silver Plume, Colo., killing 31 of the 40 people on board.

In 1971, the music program "Soul Train" made its debut in national syndica-

In 1985, actor Rock Hudson died at his home in Beverly Hills, Calif., at age 59 after battling AIDS.

In 2006, an armed milk truck driver took a group of girls hostage in an Amish schoolhouse in Nickel Mines, Pa., killing five of them and wounding five others before committing

Ten years ago: The New Jersey Supreme Court ruled unanimously the Democratic Party could replace Sen. Robert Torricelli on the November ballot with former Sen. Frank Lautenberg.

Five years ago: Blackwater chairman Erik Prince, testifying before the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee, vigorously rejected charges that guards from his private security firm had acted recklessly while protecting State Department personnel in Iraq and Afghanistan. Five workers were found dead 1,000 feet inside an empty underground water tunnel following a chemical fire at a Colorado hydroelectric plant. A federal jury in New York ordered the owners of the New York Knicks to pay $11.6 million to former team executive Anucha Browne Sanders, concluding she'd been sexually harassed and fired out of spite. Tony Award-winning actor George Grizzard died in New

One year ago: Syrian dissidents formally established a broad-based national council designed to overthrow President Bashar Assad's regime, which they accused of pushing the country to the brink of civil war.
