Police Arrest Twin Falls Man Linked to Suspected Homicide

Lish

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls Police arrested Cayde Lish, 21, of Twin Falls, Saturday morning following a fatal stabbing that occurred at Canyon Crest Dining and Event Center.

Police have charged Lish with voluntary manslaughter, according to Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebbs.

Around 1 a.m. Saturday, police were dispatched to Canyon Crest Dining and Event Center, located at 330 Canyon Crest Drive in Twin Falls. A stabbing at the location took the life of Jerimiah D. Paiz, 23, of Twin Falls.

Paiz's body was lying on the sidewalk just outside the main entrance, said Will Rengel, who was working as a disk jockey at Canyon Crest the night of the stabbing.

"I was going out to say goodbye to some friends and they told me somebody had been stabbed," Rengel said. "I went outside and saw the body right on the sidewalk. There were already some police there but they hadn't arrested anyone yet."

Paiz's girlfriend was talking to the police but was visibly upset, Rengel said. She was telling the officers that the man who had stabbed Paiz had run off into a nearby field.

"I was pretty shocked at the whole situation," Rengel said. "The guy was lying there in a puddle of blood. Canyon Crest is a calm and classy place. You don't expect to see something like that there."

On Public Land, the Fire Still Burns

Clair Teeter pauses for a photo on his land near Elba on Thursday that burned during a wildfire in August, while a Raft River Electric crew replace a power pole damaged during the blaze. Teeter is hoping to find ways for landowners to go onto public lands to create firebreaks so wildfire will not encroach onto their private land or burn grazing allotments.

Heat generated from this season's wildfires on public lands is still felt by ranchers who are limited in how they can assist.

BURLEY • As wildfires raged across the Magic Valley this summer, not all the heat came from the flames.

Some farmers and ranchers who use grazing allotments to feed livestock during the summer or own land bordering public lands felt red-hot anger and frustration. The source: federal lands policies that prevent them from crossing onto public land to help suppress wildfires.

Fires Fan Ranchers' Anger

In August, Elba resident Clair Teeter arrived home to find a wall of flames 12 feet high in front of his house that spread from a wildfire on adjacent public land.

He drove through the fire and with the help of local firefighters, saved his family's home.

Later that afternoon, he stood in his yard and looked over his still-smoldering farm equipment that did not escape the blaze.

This license plate on a trailer on Clair Teeter's land near Elba melted in a fire in August.

It was 16 years to the day after another rangeland fire had destroyed four miles of his fencing and 150 tons of hay.

Teeter's anger boiled over. "You can't go onto public land even to save your own home," Teeter said. "They'll give you a ticket. Thirty years ago my grandfather would have got up and shot somebody over this?"

Local firefighters take responsibility for putting out wildfires that reach private property. However, during a raging wildfire local fire crews are spread thin as they fight the blaze at multiple crossover points.

Landowners sometimes watch as crops, livestock and equipment burn, because public land policies prevent them from using their own tractors or dozers to make firebreaks on public lands to prevent the blaze from encroaching on their property.

"You've got government officials telling you how to do things. And those public officials couldn't ranch if you gave them one — they'd go broke," Teeter said.

Dennis Crane, farmer and commissioner for Cassia County, said the issue causes a lot of angst among landowners.

"I hear about it all the time, especially when we have a fire," Crane said. "It's really typical for people to be angry and frustrated by the policy?"

Academic • North Valley Mary Patterson

Between being an exceptional musician as she plays the violin in Mrs. Diana Dewey's strings class, taking the basketball court with an amazing level of skill and sportsmanship, and acing her classes at North Valley Academy Charter School, Mary excels in just about anything she puts her mind to. Says Mary: "My motivation in school has a lot to do with my parents encouraging me to be the best I can be, but my main motivation is that I want to be a successful person in life. I want to be able to accomplish all my goals and be the best person I can be."

"Education is a door into the future in my eyes and I enjoy learning new things. Education is a path that can lead you as far as you want to go in life."

Mary hopes to one day go to Harvard and become a criminal lawyer.

Athlete • Declo Kai Garner

Kai is a senior at Declo High School where he plays quarterback and safety, leading the Hornets to a current 5-0 record. He is a three-year varsity letterman in football and basketball and has made the trip to the state track meet each of his high school years. Last year he was first team all-state defensive back and all-conference quarterback. He has also been the KMVT athlete of the week. Kai hopes to someday be part of a college football program.

Artist • Raft River Eleanor Ramos

One Millionth Home Weatherized

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Keeping a home safe and warm isn't the easiest task when money gets tight. However, thanks to a federal weatherization assistance program, turning up the heater is a little easier for those struggling across the nation.

Recently, South Central Community Action Partnership celebrated the 1 millionth home to receive weatherization assistance using federal stimulus money in the U.S. since 2009. The local nonprofit has completed more than 6,000 homes in the Magic Valley, according to a SCCAP news release.

The 1976 federal Weatherization Assistance Program has helped make 7.4 million homes more energy efficient for low-income families.

As part of a national marking of the milestone, SCCAP hosted a demonstration of the milestone home on Sept. 27. There, officials showed off how they conduct an energy the workplace campaign funds United Way's grants to local agencies.

Last year, the campaign raised more than $100,000 to help 25 local agencies and six senior center Meals on Wheels programs.

"United Way is shying away from setting a specific funding goal," said Bill

Knopp, executive director for the area's local United Way office. "If we came up short one year, it's perceived as though they failed but that's not the case. Any money raised is a success."

The campaign relies on businesses urging their employees to donate portions of their paychecks – either by donating a one-time gift or contribute a portion of their hourly wage.

It's a convenient way to donate, Knopp said. Most of the work has already been done for the individual.

"We verify that these agencies are a legitimate 501(c)3 and they are utilizing those funds properly," he said. "We do the work for the people."

Major contributors in the past have been Costco, St. Luke's Health System but even smaller businesses like Enterprise Rent-A-Car have 100 percent participation, Knopp said.

This year, United Way would like to see Greek yogurt producer Chobani also contribute to the campaign, he said. United Way is also hoping for more contributions to come from the city of Kimberly this year.

"These are local citizens that are impacted by our giving," Knopp said. "We are very thankful to all of our contributors."

public land. In such cases or for incidents of other property damage, the agencies themselves and by extension, the public could be held responsible for one citizen's actions.

In June, the BLM sent out letters reminding ranchers about the agency's stance. The letter cited agency concerns about private citizens fighting fires, including their lack of training, fire safety equipment and the means to communicate with agency fire crews.

"One thing that we dread, and there's always the possibility of it happening, is someone could lose their life," said BLM spokeswoman Heather Tiel-Nelson.

Other downsides are less dire, but still problematic. In some cases, citizens' equipment has been ruined during a fire; other times, a rancher's dozer or tractor has destroyed artifacts. Independent suppression actions may violate federal law and conflict with land-management plan activities, according to the letter.

And there are consequences for those who disregard the BLM's advice.

Tiel-Nelson said during an incident this summer, one individual who held a grazing permit in the Jarbidge area received a warning and then a misdemeanor citation for unauthorized destruction of vegetation. Tiel-Nelson said he pleaded guilty and received a $1,250 fine. The amounts of the fines are determined on a case-by-case basis.

"In this particular case he was also issued a ticket for operating a moving vehicle with an open container of alcohol," Tiel-Nelson said.

Chris Simonson is fire management officer for the U.S. Bureau of Land Management's Twin Falls District. The citation is the only one he remembers ever being issued by the BLM in south-central Idaho.

"It's not common at all and not where we want to go," Simonson said. "This individual was really belligerent to the officer."

'They Know the Land'

Tiel-Nelson said the BLM has two basic priorities when suppressing wildfires. The first priority is protecting the firefighter and providing public safety, followed by protecting property and valuable resources.

Tiel-Nelson said the BLM recognizes that ranchers are a valuable resource for public lands. Often, she said, "they know the land like the back of their hands," which can be an important resource for BLM firefighters.

"I'm really sensitive to their concerns," she said.

Ranchers such as Will Bedke also look at the issue from both sides.

Bedke runs 800 head of cattle 20 miles south of Oakley. He also contracts two dozers for fire use on public lands. This season he helped out on the Minidoka Complex, Little Birch Creek and Conner Creek fires as well as a couple of fires in Utah and Nevada.

"As a rancher I see the need for it," Bedke said. "And I can also help out my neighbors. I sympathize 100 percent with them. It's their livelihood and you can't fault them for wanting to protect it."

However, Bedke has been in the heat of a fire right beside the BLM and Forest Service fire crews — and he understands the dangers.

One of the most important ways ranchers can help is to share information like cattle locations with resource advisers in the BLM field offices and with the fire incident commanders at the scene of a fire.

The BLM and Forest Service work together and their policies on the issue are similar.

"We don't have private individuals out firefighting," said Julie Thomas, spokeswoman for the Sawtooth National Forest. "But, we do have them doing other things on fires like delivering meals."

More Help on the Ground

Bedke contracts his equipment with public lands through a program that allows private citizens to certify their equipment for use during a wildfire.

But the landowners still must be dispatched by the agency in question before they can help.

Simonson said the BLM program allows individuals and businesses to sign up to contract their equipment during a wildfire.

The equipment must meet stringent specifications and sometimes, its operators must undergo training. All the paperwork has to be in place before fire season starts. If the BLM dispatches a rancher to a fire and they provide help, they are paid.

Under certain circumstances, a rancher's equipment can be contracted on a one-time basis, but it still must meet specifications.

Thomas said the Forest Service has a similar program.

Simonson said businesses from across the nation compete each year for the contracts and for a place on the dispatch priority list.

"This is where the waters get a little muddy," he said.

Fire assignments are voluntary and landowners focused only on their own backyards can decline them, he said. But turning one down may slide the landowner down the dispatch priority list, he said.

There are also procedures private citizens must follow. Crane said contracted ranchers still have to have an agency guide walk in front of their equipment before they dig firebreaks to ensure there are no environmental or archaeological issues along their route.

Simonson said not having enough guides during a busy fire season can be an issue, although the agency has the ability to order guides when needed from other areas.

"We have a number of them but when we are busy they are assigned to other tasks," Simonson said.

In general, Simonson said, farmers and ranchers express concern about the process.

"The ranchers think it's cumbersome for them and I don't disagree with that, but it's not in my ability to change that locally," Simonson said.

A Workable Compromise

In July, the Idaho Department of Lands formally recognized the first rangeland fire protection association in Idaho. Based around Mountain Home, the group has a memorandum of understanding with the BLM and Idaho Department of Lands to fight fires on those public lands.

"The key is having a working relationship with BLM, the Department of Lands and the Forest Service," said Wes Wootan, member of the association, Elmore County commissioner and farmer.

Similar associations exist in the timber industry in northern Idaho, and allow citizens to assist the Forest Service in fighting wildfires there.

Wootan said there are 14 members in the Mountain Home RFPA, and most of them are ranchers.

A fire last year near the Blair Trail Reservoir sparked the formation of the association. Area ranchers believed they were keeping the fire contained, Wootan said, but were forced to leave the scene when BLM crews arrived.

"It destroyed a lot of livelihood for the ranchers," Wootan said.

Wootan said after unproductive meetings with the BLM the ranchers met with representatives from the Idaho Department of Lands, who encouraged them to form the association.

It took about a year for the members to put together the nonprofit organization with a board of trustees and obtain their own liability insurance. They also completed 40 hours of wildfire training.

The Department of Lands provided them with firefighting gear, communications equipment and a fire engine.

"One thing that we dread, and there's always the possibility of it happening, is someone could lose their life."

four fires including the Stout Fire in July.

"This benefits the ranchers but it also protects the community," he said.

Wootan said the group hopes in time to procure more surplus equipment from public land agencies.

"We think this is going to take off and go throughout southern Idaho," he said.

Simonson said another group in the Saylor Creek area plans to kick off an organizational meeting for a second fire association next month.

He remains cautiously optimistic about ranchers forming firefighting associations until they develop more of a history. Injury or death are real risks even for highly trained firefighters, he said.

"In my professional opinion this is the right way for individuals to go about this," he said.

Model for the Future?

The RFPA members believe their association is already paying off, and they're already looking to improve it.

During this fire season, Wootan said, the Mountain Home RFPA responded to

Buhl Students to Help Spruce Up Businesses

BY STEVE KADEL
skadel@magicvalley.com

BUHL • This town is bursting with pride and several residents will prove it Wednesday.

The first Buhl Pride Project is set for 8-10:15 a.m. in a two-block area where 40 volunteers will wash windows of 64 businesses.

Larry Hall, one of the event organizers, said 30 of the volunteers are high school students and the others are adults who will supervise them. He said schools Superintendent Byron Stutzman, also an organizer, hopes to instill a sense of volunteering in youths.

"He wants students to learn to give back to the community that has supported them throughout their growing years," said Hall. "We have a good team and everyone is excited."

Pam McClain and Janet Franklin are other organizers. They intend to make the pride project a quarterly event with leaf raking in late November, spring cleanup in March, and painting of some buildings' facades in June.

"The city of Buhl is big on pride," Hall said. "They really want to keep things cleaned up. This is an organized way to keep things painted and so on."

Volunteers will gather near the senior center at Broadway and Main at 8 a.m. to get washing tips from Gilbert Pryor, owner of Pro Window Washing. Mayor Tom McCauley and Stutzman also will speak before students head out in teams of two to do their work.

They're starting early and compressing the work time to be in school at 10:30 a.m. when classes begin on Wednesday, Hall added.

The project is being spearheaded by the Buhl Economic Council to bring the downtown business district into top physical shape.

What Voters Need to Know

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
 mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The Nov. 6 election is a month away, but did you know you could cast your vote this week?

Absentee voting is about to begin. Whether you're a new voter this year or just need to brush up on the basics, here's what you should know:

Voter registration: You can register in person at the polls, but the deadline for pre-registration at your county courthouse is Oct. 12. If you vote early, you can also register at the polling place.

Polling places: Some polling places have changed since the May primary election, though not all have been finalized. If your precinct's polling place has changed, you will receive an information card in the mail from your county clerk.

Absentee ballots: The deadline to request an absentee ballot is Oct. 31. Make sure you are already registered if you are trying to mail in a ballot. Check with your county clerk for absentee ballot request forms. In-person absentee voting at county courthouses begins Oct. 9.

Voter ID: Voters must present a valid photo identification, which includes a driver's license, state ID card, student ID card from an Idaho education institution, U.S. passport, federal ID card or tribal membership card.

Party affiliation: Remember the confusion about party affiliation in the newly closed Republican primary? It's gone with the general election. Anyone can vote for any candidate, regardless of affiliation.

Legislative districts: Because of redistricting, your legislative district and precinct boundaries might have changed. Visit idahovotes.gov to find your precinct, polling place and legislative district.

Unmanned Vehicle Found in Canal

TIMES-NEWS

HANSEN • An unoccupied vehicle was discovered in an irrigation lateral south of Hansen on Saturday, according to the Twin Falls Sheriff's Office.

Deputies were dispatched to 3800 East and 3543 North to find a Honda Civic submerged in water. The owner of the Civic is Ty Vincent Seamons, 22, of Hansen.

According to deputies, his family last heard from Seamons on Wednesday.

Deputies, Twin Falls Search and Rescue and family members searched the surrounding area on foot for four and a half hours but Seamons has not been found as of Saturday evening.

Divers will search the canal today once water levels drop, according to deputies.

Seamons is 5 feet, 11 inches, 190 pounds, has brown hair and hazel eyes. Anyone with information about this incident is asked to contact SIR-COMM at 735-1911.

POWER OUTAGE PLANNED FOR MOVING HOUSE

TIMES-NEWS

HAILEY • Sporadic power outages will occur beginning Wednesday just north of Ketchum and south to Hailey for as long as two hours, said Idaho Power Co. officials.

The outage will follow the route of a customer moving a house from north of Ketchum to Hailey starting at 7 p.m.

Idaho Power representatives will notify affected customers in advance by telephone twice before the outage. The utility company will also post electronic road signs about the outage.

The house will begin moving from the North Fork Store and end at North Fourth and Spruce in Hailey. The majority of the move is along the Idaho Highway 75 corridor.

Areas not impacted include Elkhorn, East Fork, Golden Eagle, Greenhorn Road, and the cities of Ketchum and Sun Valley.

U.S. Postal Service Intercepts Twin Falls-Bound Marijuana

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismsmith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • On Oct. 1, a United States postal inspector contacted Twin Falls police, and said he had a package at the Boise Processing and Distribution Center that was suspected of containing marijuana.

According to the report, the package had an odor of marijuana coming from it.

The report states that the package came from Sacramento, Calif., and was addressed to Renee Lattin in the 300 block of Shoup Avenue in Twin Falls.

The report states that the inspector in Boise asked for a search warrant to open the box, and a certified canine indicated there was marijuana present.

On October, the report states, the inspector opened the box and found four jars with raw marijuana inside. The jars were labeled to say "Super Skung 59g" "Alfo 13g," "Grand Daddy 46g" and "Blue Dream," the report states.

On Oct. 3, Twin Falls officers and the Boise inspector worked together to perform a controlled delivery of the package. After delivering the package, police obtained a search warrant for the house.

According to the report, Lattin, 53, immediately stated, "it's in there on the dresser."

The report states that Lattin told police her sister in California grows marijuana and sent it to her so she could sell it.

Lattin also told police she already sold some of the marijuana for $300, the report states. Police also allegedly found a grinder, roller, brass bowl, screens, pipes with burnt residue, a digital scale and the packaging the marijuana was sent in, the report states.

When police officers searched Lattin's phone, the report states it was apparent she was also selling prescription drugs.

Lattin was arrested on a charge of possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver and held at the Twin Falls County Jail on a $2,500 bond. Melissa De-naughel, 33, of Rock Springs, Wyo., was also arrested on attempted possession of a controlled substance, for allegedly attempting to buy methadone from Lattin.

Expensive Caucus Drained Idaho GOP Campaign Cash

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • Southwestern Idaho Republicans celebrated the March 6 “Super Tuesday” presidential caucus in Ada County as the nation’s biggest event of its kind, with some 9,000 people descending on Boise State University’s Taco Bell Arena.

“We’re thrilled,” Ada County GOP Chairman Dwight Johnson said that night.

After the party, however, came the hangover: A surprise $35,000 bill.

The hefty tab has left the group with little to give Republican contenders for the Nov. 6 election.

“We’ve been out scraping,” concedes Darrel McRoberts, a former Idaho GOP state senator and Ada County GOP treasurer. “We don’t have anything near like we did two years ago.”

After BSU wouldn’t reduce the tab significantly, party members are also leaning against holding a big, single-site caucus in 2016.

Perhaps most galling for GOP faithful, however, is this: When then-U.S. Sen. Barack Obama held an event for 14,000 people in 2008 at the same venue, his tab was $12,959 — a third what Republicans paid.

“What we’re hoping, too, is that somebody can convince BSU, somebody at the Board of Education that’s got some pull there, to say, ‘Hey, why’d you do that to the Republican Party?’”

Darrel McRoberts, a former Idaho GOP state senator and Ada County GOP treasurer

Amid the cash crunch, the Ada County GOP is using donated headquarters space in south Boise. Two years ago, its headquarters was in high-profile downtown Boise quarters.

Meanwhile, GOP Sen. Mitch Toryanski is embroiled in a close race with former Democratic Rep. Branden Durst in east Boise. When Toryanski beat Durst in 2010, the Ada County GOP gave him $1,000.

“I really have not counted on getting anything from them at all this year,” Toryanski now says. “If you don’t have as much coming in, there’s things you can’t do. If you were planning to do two mailers, maybe you do just one.”

McRoberts said BSU officials originally estimated a price of $10,000 to $12,000 to rent 12,480-seat Taco Bell Arena. Later, that climbed to $17,000.

But GOP officials in Ida-ho’s most-populous county were unprepared for the bill they got in April: $31,197.88, plus a $3,953 invoice for parking. McRoberts believes BSU drove too hard a bargain.

“There’s a lot of people that feel that way,” he said. “What we’re hoping, too, is that somebody can convince BSU, somebody at the Board of Education that’s got some pull there, to say, ‘Hey, why’d you do that to the Republican Party?’”

Why was Obama’s bill for his Feb. 2, 2008, event so much less?

BSU spokesman Frank Zang said they were two distinct events, held years apart, with different demands — and costs.

Unlike Obama, Ada County Republicans didn’t sign a contract with BSU. Also, Taco Bell Arena charged them a $5,000 facility fee, introduced after 2008 to help erase operating losses.

Moreover, Obama’s event covered five hours, the Republicans’ was 14 hours. GOP equipment costs ran $6,000, compared with just over $2,000 for Obama. Caucus cleanup cost $2,750; in Obama’s case, volunteers collected garbage.

“It’s almost an apples-to-oranges comparison, when you look at the two events,” Zang said Friday. “One was a half-day event, one a full-day event. The events had different durations, setup requirements, different facility-fee structures.”

Taco Bell Arena director Lisa Cochran, writing in a recent letter to Republicans explaining the differences, pointed out that John McCain in 2008 was offered the same services for the same price as Obama, if he’d come.

With the election near, Ada County Republicans are hoping Republican Mitt Romney beats Obama, then seeks a second term, making a big 2016 GOP caucus unnecessary.

But should Obama prevail and the 2016 election be wide open, then many, including regional GOP Chairman Rod Beck, favor using multiple high school gymnasiums, not returning to BSU.

“I particularly didn’t like it when we got such a gigantic bill,” Beck said. “It was really kind of like sticker shock.”

Mormon Church Lowers Age Limit for Missionaries

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • The Mormon church will lower its minimum age requirements for missionaries from 19 to 18 for men and from 21 to 19 for women, the faith’s president announced Saturday.

Thomas S. Monson said at the church’s 182nd semiannual General Conference that the historic change is expected to significantly increase the missionary force of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints — currently more than 55,000 worldwide.

The new age requirements will take effect immediately and replace limits that had been in effect for decades. Mormon men serve full-time, two-year missions, while women serve 18-month missions.

“I am not suggesting that all young men will — or should — serve at this earlier age,” Monson said, adding it’s an option based on individual circumstances and a determination by local church leaders.

Missionaries must be graduates of high school or its equivalent, he said.

Monson also said the church will build temples in Tucson, Ariz., and Arequipa, Peru. In Arizona, three temples already are in operation and two others — in Phoenix and Gilbert — are under construction. The state is home to about 400,000 church members.

The temple in Arequipa will be the third in Peru, which has more than 500,000 church members. Members in Arequipa, Peru’s second most populous city, currently attend temple services about 500 miles away in Lima.

The church, with its more than 14.1 million members, has 139 operating temples worldwide and has another 29 planned or under construction.

At a later news conference, Jeffrey R. Holland, of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles, said church leaders were unsure how many more missionaries would serve because of the lowered age requirements but they expect a boost.

He also said leaders considered extending the length of missions for women to two years, but decided to see how the lower age goes first before possibly taking that step, The Salt Lake Tribune reported.

Tens of thousands of Mormon faithful were gathering in Salt Lake City through today for the general conference.

Century-old E. Idaho Creamery to Close

REXBURG (AP) • A century-old creamery in eastern Idaho is closing, ending a run stretching back to before World War I and adding to a list of agricultural-related casualties that mark Idaho’s evolving economy.

The Rexburg Standard-

Journal reports the Nelson-Ricks Creamery Co. closes its Rexburg facility on Oct. 13.

Idaho’s milk industry is the nation’s third-biggest, but managers of the creamery based in Salt Lake City said the future of the 16-employee Idaho operation was too dim to keep the doors open.

There’s been talk for a year, since management went through a shake-up, that the writing was on the wall.

Dairy farmers in the region will have to find a new place to sell their milk.

Former Gov. Decries Lack of Political Leadership

BY ERIC BARKER
Lewiston Tribune

LEWISTON (AP) • Cecil Andrus likes old-school politics and says both the nation and the state could use a good dose of leadership that used to be common in his heyday.

Politicians at both levels are too concerned about perpetuating themselves in office and not willing enough to make the tough decisions to solve real problems.

"The leadership at the national level is almost zero for both political parties," he said. "They are more concerned about (raising money) and being re-elected than what is best for the American people."

The four-term Idaho governor will be on hand for the Cecil D. Andrus Statesmanship Award banquet Saturday at the Red Lion Hotel in Lewiston. David Adler, the director of the Andrus Center for Public Policy at Boise State University, will be the keynote speaker at the banquet that will honor Marguerite McLaughlin of Orofino, who served two terms in the Idaho House and nine terms in the Senate.

In Idaho, Andrus laments the state's slide into one-party rule where Republican leadership crushes even its own members for daring to go against the grain.

"It has become a one-party system controlled by a small handful of allegedly powerful individuals who dictate the message," he said. "They don't even allow members of their own party to disagree with the leadership and vote their own convictions."

He notes former Republican Rep. Tom Trail of Moscow was stripped of his leadership position on the Agricultural Affairs Committee and Leon Smith, R-Twin Falls, lost the chairmanship of the Transportation Committee after the men dared to challenge House Speaker Lawrence Denney on procedural votes.

"That kind of garbage has got to end if we are ever going to have true Democracy," Andrus said.

He also said both state and national legislators give themselves too many perks like health care and pensions, which the voters back home don't have. Term limits would solve the problem, Andrus noted.

"I would give them two terms in the Senate and an equal number of years in the House and then they are gone," said the longest-serving governor in Idaho history.

But the Idaho Legislature overturned a term limit initiative and a constitutional amendment would be required to institute the concept in Congress.

Andrus also doesn't exclude the press from criticism. He hosted former Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., at the Andrus Center in Boise recently to speak about the national debt and his plan, co-authored by Erskine Bowles, to bring it under control. Andrus said the event, centered on arguably the nation's biggest long-term threat, was ignored by the media.

"You people have to step up and participate in the education of the American people," Andrus said of the media. "They don't even know how much $14 trillion is."

Lacking term limits, Andrus said it will take a resurgence of leaders with conviction. One need look no further than the career of McLaughlin to find an example of leadership and integrity, he said. They both started their political careers in Orofino and have known each other for more than 50 years.

Ore. Man Arrested in Idaho after Chase

PARMA (AP) • A 24-year-old Oregon man led officers from two counties on a high-speed chase before finally surrendering following a brief stand-off in an Idaho trailer.

The Idaho Press-Tribune reports Adan William Oviedo eventually gave himself up after barricading himself inside a trailer in Parma, in western Idaho.

He was being sought on three warrants when law enforcement officers in Oregon Force attempted to stop Oviedo's vehicle.

That's when he bolted, driving at high speed through fields and through Parma at speeds in excess of 50 mph — much faster than the local municipal limit.

He now faces a felony alluding charge in Payette County as well as possession of paraphernalia and a delaying and obstructing charge in Parma.

Officers believe that Oviedo will face additional weapons charges following their investigation.

"Wolves do what wolves do," McIrvin said. "They have always been killers."

McIrvin estimates the Wedge Pack of wolves has killed between 40 and 50 head of cattle on his Diamond M Ranch, located near the Canadian border north of Kettle Falls in northeastern Washington. That prompted a huge effort by the state Department of Fish and Wildlife to wipe out the pack, less than a year after adopting a plan to recover wolf populations in the state.

The Wedge Pack needed to be wiped out because the wolves appeared to have switched from preying on deer, elk and moose and instead were focusing on cattle, state officials said. The expensive hunting effort — which included shooting wolves from helicopters — concluded last week.

"Of course it's very bitter-sweet," said Dave Ware, game division manager for the agency. "We are in the first year of implementing our plan and to have this level of conflict with a rancher was unacceptable."

The hunt was expensive, although the costs have not been tallied yet, Ware said. They include four days of helicopter use, plus weeks of overtime for various state employees, Ware said.

He said any future wolf hunts will probably not have to be on this scale.

The Wedge Pack of wolves, named for the area they inhabit along the Canadian border near Laurier, is one of an estimated 12 wolf packs in the state. It is the only one that was creating problems, said Mitch Friedman of the environmental group Conservation Northwest.

"This rancher has politicized the situation, while many other ranchers recognize that wolves are part of the landscape," Friedman contended.

While wolves will always get a few cattle, a problem of the scale in this case is likely to be rare, Friedman said.

But McIrvin said the efforts to re-establish wolves in Washington have gone too far.

"You can always have a wolf or two come into an area and it's no big deal," McIrvin said. "But we have so many packs and so many wolves."

The state announced in late September that the entire pack would be eliminated. But tracking the wolves proved difficult, even as cattle losses piled up.

"The Wedge Pack experience has been hard on everybody, which makes it difficult but necessary to look forward. We want to see commitments from the state and cattlemen to expand early use of nonlethal efforts so we don't have to go through this again."

Conservation Northwest

"They kill from midnight to 2 or 3 in the morning," McIrvin said. "You don't see them in the daytime."

Teams of hunters worked round the clock, but most of the pack remained at large until a helicopter was brought in. Then it took only a few days to wipe out the pack, including the alpha male, officials said.

Fish and Wildlife director Phil Anderson said the effort was necessary.

"Lethal removal will remain a wolf management option, but we will use it only as a last resort," Anderson said. "We are committed to the recovery and sustainability of the gray wolf in Washington, and its numbers are increasing rapidly."

Friedman said that after spending 25 years working to recover wolves in the state, he was grief stricken by the elimination of the pack.

"The Wedge Pack experience has been hard on everybody, which makes it difficult but necessary to look forward," Conservation Northwest said in a press release. "We want to see commitments from the state and cattlemen to expand early use of nonlethal efforts so we don't have to go through this again."

Gray wolves were eliminated by hunters as a breeding species in Washington by the 1930s, but they began returning to the state from Idaho, Oregon and British Columbia in the mid-2000s. The first confirmed pack was found in 2008.

They are listed as endangered throughout Washington under state law and the western two-thirds of the state under federal law.

A wolf management plan approved late last year required 15 successful breeding pairs for three consecutive years to remove endangered species protections. The goal of the plan is to recover wolf populations while minimizing livestock losses.

Ware said Washington is still learning how to manage wolves, in part by studying what states like Idaho and Wyoming have done.

In the case of the Wedge Pack, the terrain is so mountainous and heavily forested that it was difficult to keep wolves and cattle separated, Ware said. Most wolf packs are operating in more open country, he said.

"We are pretty surprised with how quickly we got there," he said of the need to eliminate the pack. "We are one year into implementing our plan and already we have a worst-case scenario."

But conflicts between cattle and wolves occur in all the states where the animals are present, Ware said.

Government agencies must not be perceived as unwilling to act when wolves begin preying on cattle, Ware said.

"The Wedge is probably the poster child for where you could expect problems," Ware said.

Jackson Wayne Allred

Dec. 10, 1926-Oct. 3, 2012

BURLEY • A man of keen mind, quiet dignity and un-failing humor, Jackson Wayne Allred, will be missed and warmly remembered by his family and friends. Jack passed away Wednesday, Oct. 3, 2012, at Portneuf Medical Center in Pocatello.

Jack was born to Herbert Ross and Lydia Mary (Hawkins) Allred on Dec. 10, 1926, at American Falls, Idaho. Jack attended schools in Twin Falls through high school, then at Farragut College in Bayview, Idaho. He worked at the shipyards of Spokane until he was old enough to enlist. He then joined the U.S. Navy and was a World War II veteran. Jack met and married the love of his life, Betty L. Hillegas of Kimberly, on July 18, 1948. They made their home at Murtaugh, where Jack began his lifetime farming operation. He later moved to Burley and continued to farm with his brother, Robert, his son, Jackson, and nephew, Mitch Allred — later joined by grandson, J.W. Allred.

Always a generous man and devoted husband, Jack was involved with many worthwhile projects, including the Idaho Youth Ranch, chairman of the Idaho Potato Commission, longstanding member of the National Potato Board, and a loyal benefactor of the College of Southern Idaho. He was awarded the Outstanding Young Farmer by Twin Falls County and Farmer of the Year by the Mini-Cassia Chamber of Commerce.

Jack and Betty volunteered for U.S. Aid and traveled several times to Egypt to teach farming skills there. They traveled the world, learning new cultures and enjoying new adventures. He was a long-time member of the Murtaugh Community Church and later of the Burley First Presbyterian Church. He lived a devoted Christian life. Jack had many skills and talents. He was a carpenter, building homes and cabins. He was a private pilot and flew often to Ketchum, Idaho, to join family at the cabin. He loved to snow ski and was still skiing at the age of 80. Golf became a passion. He golfed often with friends and acquaintances at courses around Oceanside, Calif., where he and Betty spent winter months.

Jack leaves behind his loving and dedicated wife, Betty Allred of Burley; one son, Jackson W. Allred (Laurie) of Burley; a daughter, Jill M. Wornell (Paul) of Burley, Chelsey Wornell of Boise, Jeanine Allred of Hailey, KyLee Wornell of Claremont, Calif., Tessa Wornell Bogue (Rick) of Boise and Christopher Wornell (Laura) of Plainfield, Wis.; great-grandsons, Corbin and Dillon Allred of Burley; a special niece, Miriam Allred Smith (Richard) of Burley; and niece, Connie Jones (Stephen) of Boise. He was preceded in death by his parents; his brothers, James Allred and Robert Allred; a granddaughter, Allison Wornell Allen; and a nephew, Mitch Allred.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 9, at the First Presbyterian Church, 2100 Burton Ave. in Burley, with the Rev. Dr. David Henry officiating. Military rites will be provided by the Mini-Cassia Veterans Organization. Burial will follow at 2:30 p.m. at Sunset Memorial Park Cemetery in Twin Falls. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Monday, Oct. 8, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Tuesday at the church.

The family suggests memorials be directed to the Burley First Presbyterian Church or the College of Southern Idaho.

Hugh Green

May 11, 1919-Oct. 3, 2012

JEROME • Precious in the sight of the Lord are the death of His Saints. Hugh Green went home to be with his Lord on Wednesday, Oct. 3, 2012. He will be missed by family and friends but we know he is in a better place.

Hugh was the second son of Elmer M. Green and Ana Byrl Van Horn Green. He was born on May 11, 1919, in Carbon County, Utah. The family moved to Jerome County, Idaho, in the spring of 1936.

Hugh served his country during World War II in the U.S. Navy.

He and his dad farmed together until his father's death in 1968. Hugh always had horses around. He took his girls riding whenever he could spare the time. Every fall Hugh would go hunting, mostly with men in his church.

For several years, he and Glen Ferrell drove draft horses together. They broke several horses to drive. One grandson grew up in grandpa's yard. Many days he would slip out of his house and ask grandpa "where are we going today?"

Church was a vital part of his life from the time of his salvation. He was in church when work allowed and made sure his family was there when he couldn't be there. He served on the Deacon Board for many years, was on the finance committee many years, and was church treasurer for several years.

Hugh instilled into his children and grandchildren the value of hard work.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Elmer and Ana Green; his brothers, Morris and A. Dee Green; and his wife, Rhoda Green. Survivors include his sister, Neva Andrews in Minnesota; his daughters, Alicia Evangelista (Ovidio) of Brighton, Colo., Judy Broadfield (Richard) and Bonnie Miller (Gary), both of Jerome; and 14 grandchildren.

A celebration of life will be held at 10 a.m. Monday, Oct. 8, at Grace Baptist Church in Twin Falls. Interment will follow at the Jerome Cemetery. Arrangements are under the care and direction of Demaray Robertson Funeral Chapel in Jerome.

Donations can be made to Twin Falls Christian Academy.

Betty Jean Messenger Heimgartner

May 13, 1940-Oct. 2, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Betty Jean Messenger Heimgartner, 72, of Nampa, Idaho, passed away Tuesday, Oct. 2, 2012, with her family and friends by her side as she drifted off to be with the Lord.

She was born May 13, 1940, in Jerome, Idaho, the eldest daughter of Edward and Olive (Dorman) Messenger. Betty attended schools in Jerome, graduating from Jerome High School in 1958, and furthered her education at Northwest Nazarene College and Twin Falls Business College. Betty worked as a bookkeeper.

She married Paul Stinnette in 1960. Their union was blessed with one child. They were later divorced. On June 1, 1984, she married Eugene Heimgartner in Buhl, Idaho. Gene had two sons and a daughter by a previous marriage.

Betty was a talented seamstress who did not meet a project that she could not master. She loved to read intriguing books and was devoted to studying the Bible. She loved to travel and trips that allowed for seeing other parts of the world. She enjoyed the beauty and peace that nature provided. She devoted much of her time and energy as a caregiver to family members, including her mother and mother-in-law until her own health made it impossible to be a caregiver and become the care receiver. Betty was wonderful, wife, mother and grandmother.

She leaves to celebrate her life her daughter, Janel (Jeff) Pickens of Nampa; stepson, Rick (Netta) Heimgartner of Culdesac, Idaho; stepson, Jerry (Jana) Heimgartner of Pendleton, Ore.; and stepdaughter, Teresa (Kevin) Teater of Pendleton, Ore.; sister, Sue (Tom) Capps of Twin Falls, Idaho; sister-in-law, Mary Messenger of Parker Dam, Ariz.; 10 grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren; and a host of other relatives and friends.

She was preceded in death by her husband of 28 years, Eugene Heimgartner (Aug. 20, 2012); her parents, Edward and Olive Messenger; her brother, Dennis Messenger; and grandson, Justin Heimgartner.

Donations may be made to a charity of your choice.

Interment will take place at 4 p.m. Friday, Oct. 12, at the Jerome Cemetery.

A celebration of her life will take place at 1 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 13, at the Twin Falls Nazarene Church. Please join the family for a reception at the church in the Sawtooth Room following the service. Services are under the direction of Rosenau Funeral Home. Family and friends are encouraged to share their memories at www.rosenaufuneralhome.com.

SENIOR
Q. I know that eyesight is precious. What can I do to protect mine? I am 62.
A. Have your eyes checked regularly by an eye care professional—an ophthalmologist or optometrist. Yearly eye exams are suggested for people over age 60. Be aware that during the exam the eye care professional may put drops in your eyes to dilate the pupils. This way he or she can look at the back of each eye. Remember to bring another driver to get you home safely. While a little inconvenient, dilation is the best way to find eye diseases that have no early signs or symptoms. Have your eyeglass prescriptions checked during this visit. Seek professional help right away if you: suddenly can't see or things look blurry; have eye pain, double vision or see flashes of light; or, experience redness or swelling of your eye or eyelid. See your doctor about diabetes and high blood pressure, which can cause eye problems if not treated.

James Monroe Peterson Jr.

July 24, 1945-Oct. 1, 2012

DECLO • James Monroe Peterson Jr., age 67, passed away Monday, Oct. 1, 2012, at his home in Declo.

James was born July 24, 1945, in Atlantic City, N.J., to James Monroe and Norma Wray Johnson Peterson. He was married to Sharon Hultgren in 1964 and, though they later divorced, they remained friends throughout life. He built log cabins in the summer in Alaska, then spent his winters in the Virgin Islands singing and playing guitar for a living. Later in life, he rode his three-wheel bike from Declo, Idaho, over the Sierra Nevada Mountains to the California coast with his dog.

Jimmy was a talented singer and guitarist, expert carpenter and knife maker, and fixer of all things in need. When his mother passed away in 1998, he returned to Declo to help care for his aging father. He gave his dad the privilege of living at home on the farm until his father's death in 2010. He will be lovingly missed by his brothers and sisters, friends and especially by nieces and nephews who loved his humor and music.

He is survived by two sisters, Julia Dawn of North Carolina and Bonnie W P (Russell) Bair of Declo; three brothers, Wendell Bryant (Ivy) Peterson of Vicksburg, Miss., Jonathan L. Peterson of Burley and Erik S. (Anita) Peterson of Draper, Utah. James was preceded in death by his parents.

A graveside service was held Saturday, Oct. 6, at the Declo Cemetery under the direction of the Rasmussen Funeral Home of Burley.

Maxine Brannon Ford

Sept. 3, 1928-Oct. 1, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Our beautiful wife, mother, grandmother and great-grandmother returned to her Heavenly Father on Monday, Oct. 1, 2012, after a long battle with Alzheimer's and heart disease.

She was born on Sept. 3, 1928, to Benjamin H. Brannon and Helen L. Brannon in Marion, Ind. She moved with her father to Twin Falls as a teenager where she met her sweetheart, Wayne A. Ford; they have been married for almost 65 years. Before she was married, she worked at a movie theatre and would sneak Wayne and his basketball team members in for a free show; she also worked in a burn unit at a hospital. When she got married, she had the hardest job of all, being a wife to a very busy man and mother to six rowdy kids. The old adage is really true in this case; behind every great man is an even greater woman. Dad could not have survived without her. She is the love of his life and they really did live "Happily Ever After." She loved children and would have had 40 of her own if she were able. She loved to bake and cook, she was arguably the best cook around, and was famous for her brownies. She was involved with the PTA, Job's Daughters and cooked many a meal for the Masonic Lodge. We all loved to camp and spent many summers at Baker's Creek about 15 miles out of Ketchum, Idaho. Mom loved everything about camping, the cooking, cleaning, the long walks and the frequent games of baseball. Sometimes there would be 30 or 40 people there to cook and clean for but that never got her down. She would have loved to live in the mountains all the time if she could have.

Following are recollections from Maxine's six children:

Michael Ford: "My mom was a loving and devoted mother. She was always there for me whenever I needed her. Mom never learned to drive and walked everywhere she went when dad was working. Since I was the oldest it was just her and me a lot of the time. I think she was more excited about me getting a drivers license than I was. Because I was so short, I couldn't see over the steering wheel and she solved that problem by getting me a pillow to sit on. I Love My Mom!"

Michael and Sheryl Ford • Jeffery and Missy Ford (Conner and Carson)

• Ryan and Nancy Merritt (Kelsy)

• Jennifer Ford

• Curt Ford (Madison and Gary)

• Thad Merritt

• Seth Merritt

Karen Ford Kinney: "My Mom was the most precious woman. Six kids, wow!!! What a bundle of love and patience she had. She taught me so much.

She taught me how to be a good cook and to enjoy cooking for those we love. But mostly she taught me how to love and cherish those we love. She cherished her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren so much; her eyes would sparkle whenever she saw one of her grandchildren or great-grandchildren. Even in the last weeks of her life, as sick as she was, she knew when one of her grandkids was around; you would see the sparkle in her face.

She and I had great fun working with Dad at the Masonic Lodge. Many dinners were had there when he was Master of the lodge. We had great fun! We also worked with the Job's Daughters Bethel #19. That was when her brownies became 'famous.' So much so she was given the infamous 'Brownie Award'! She loved it! For years she was being asked to make brownies for one event or another. And she did it proudly and lovingly, as she did everything else.

At this very moment my mom is in Heaven, doing what she so loved to do, she is sitting in her rocking chair in Heaven's nursery rocking her great-granddaughter and all the other babies who need a grandma.

I love you mom, and I am so very proud to have known you, what a blessing you have been."

- Amy Kinney
- Katie and Skylar Johns (Mia)

Randy Ford: "Ma sure was a great mother, that's for sure. She had more patience than anyone I knew. She had to have with six kids! I have to admit I did my fair share to test her patience. She kept a bar of Lava soap at arms reach. And it wasn't because I got dirty! She had an uncanny way of telling when I was doing something wrong because no matter what I was doing she had the quick hand of justice ready. I remember one day we were walking down the street and a dog came running out at us. It scared me, but Ma just smacked it with her purse to keep it away from me. She sure loved all of us, alright. She had to have with all of the crap we all gave her. I love you, and I sure will miss you. I sure was lucky to have you for a Ma."

Randy and Janet Ford

- Travis Ford (Ashley, Alexander and Ella Marie)
- Rebecca and Jason Dean (Logan)

Kathie Ford Kudart: "The things that I remember about my mom. Whenever she was doing housework she always whistled, I always thought that she sounded like a bird and that she had the most beautiful voice that I had ever heard. I also remember when us kids came home from school she always had snacks ready for us. Whenever I was with my friends they always wanted to come to my house instead of going home to theirs. I just hope that I have been half as good a mother as my mom was. So long mommy, I will miss you dearly and I will look forward to the day that I will see you again."

- Mike and Jennifer Kudart (Sabre Steams, Josh and Emma)
- Tina Lee and Jon Shell (Steven Lee and Linkin Shell)
- Robert and Jamie Lee (Ayden Nyborg, Gregory and baby on the way)

Kim Ford: "There was never wait until your father gets home at the Ford house, Ma always took care of the discipline." Kim remembers what a good cook she was. Homemade brownies, pies, doughnuts, chicken and noodles, and pickled eggs. The holiday dinners were a feast to behold. Terri remembers the beautiful hairdos she did all by herself. She also remembers Ma rocking the babies to the tune of "Rock of Ages," and the funny game of "Slowly I Turn" she played with the babies to make them giggle.

Kim and Terri Ford

- Melanie and Kody Rumpfelt (Presten, Alexa and Saleen)
- Matt (deceased) and Liz Ford (Kaleb, Paiglyn (deceased) and Faith)

Kristine L. Ford: "When I was small and my brothers and sisters were in school my mom and I would go downtown to Woolworth's and have ice cream sodas. She always helped me with my homework and when we were done I would ask her to draw me ladies heads. My mother could do anything whether it was cooking, drawing or singing she was the best and she instilled in me the love of the arts. But most of all she taught me the true love of Christ not only by the things she said but by her actions of loving and caring for others. She and my father always have someone they are looking out for and they love everyone unconditionally. I only hope I can continue her legacy by being kind and loving to others. I love you mom!" Kris Maxine is survived by her husband, Wayne; six children, 16 grandchildren; 25 great-grandchildren; and her sister, Margaret (Rob) Livingston. She is preceded in death by her parents; three siblings; her grandson, Matt Ford; and great-granddaughter, Paiglyn Ford.

In lieu of flowers, the family asks that donations be made to the Alzheimer's Association: www.alz.org

Maxine will be honored at a "celebration of life" at 10 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 13, at the Turf Club, 734 Falls Ave. in Twin Falls, where there will be a program and a lunch buffet. Arrangements are under the direction of Trent Stimpson and staff at Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

Bryce K. Tracy

Aug. 25, 1933-Oct. 4, 2012

MALTA • Bryce Kay Tracy, age 79, of Malta, was born Aug. 25, 1933, in Yost, Utah, the youngest child of Jesse and Luella Coleman Tracy. Bryce passed away Thursday, Oct. 4, 2012, at his home in Malta.

Bryce was born at home at the "Upper Place" in Johnson Creek. He attended grade school in Yost and high school in Malta, where he was involved in school sports. He especially enjoyed track, baseball and basketball. He also enjoyed singing and often had the leading musical role. He graduated from Malta High School in 1951. Bryce was drafted into the U.S. Army in 1953 and served during the Korean Conflict. He married Sharon Kay Perry on Sept. 18, 1959, in Albion, Idaho, and they recently celebrated their 53rd wedding anniversary. To this union were born four children.

Bryce was a hard worker and had a variety of jobs. He worked in home construction, farming, ranching and seeding for the BLM. He worked for the Raft River Highway District and later returned full time to what he loved best - working the farm and ranch in Yost and Malta. Bryce served with his wife as 4-H leaders and later as 4-H lamb superintendents from 1977 until 1986. He was also a member of the Cattlemen's Association. He enjoyed fishing, hunting, training horses, telling stories, joking around, auctions, coin collecting and antiques.

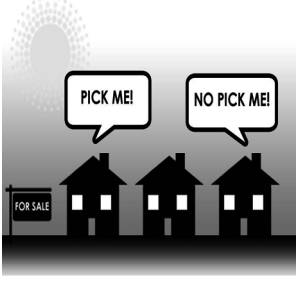

Bryce leaves behind his beloved wife, Sharon Tracy of Malta; his children, June Kay (Dennis) James of Elba, Perry Lon (Christi) Tracy of Hyde Park, Utah, Bryce Eugene (Tawnya) Tracy of De-clo and Shelia Rae (JR) Schenk of Richmond, Utah; 14 grandchildren; and seven (soon to be nine) great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his parents; one brother, LaVere Tracy; one sister, Rhea Evans; three grandsons, Ethan D. James, Joseph Bryce James and Ian James; and a great-granddaughter, Benelli Kay Hulme.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 11, at the Malta LDS Church, with Bishop Jeff Johnson officiating. Burial will be in the Valley Vu Cemetery with military rites provided by the Mini-Cassia Veterans Organization. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 10, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Thursday at the church.

Brenda Gail (Sessions) Reed

Dec. 17, 1950-Oct. 3, 2012

HOLLISTER • Brenda Gail (Sessions) Reed, 61, of Hollister, passed away Wednesday, Oct. 3, 2012, at home after a long battle with many medical problems.

Danny Reed of Hollister, Idaho; brother, Phillip Sessions of Jacksonville, Fla.; daughter, Alaina Robinson of Tampa, Fla.; stepsons, Damon and wife, Breze

Reed of Puyallup, Wash., and Jason Reed of Nampa, Idaho; niece, Jessica Tatum of Jacksonville, Fla.; grandchildren, Alysen Springer of Hollister, Idaho, Jennifer Springer, Isaac and Samantha Reed of Puyallup, Wash., Lexi Reed of Buhl, Idaho, and Monique Reed of Homedale, Idaho. She was preceded in death by her grandson, Cameron Patrick Reed; and her parents, Joseph and Frances Sessions; brother, Mark Sessions; and mother-in-law, June Dobbs.

She was born Dec. 17, 1950, in Florence, S.C. She graduated from high school in Jacksonville, Fla. While growing up in Jacksonville, Fla., Brenda was a talented classical pianist who performed many recitals at the Riverside Women's Club.

She loved to fish, travel and spend time with her grandchildren and family. Brenda's two favorite places she traveled to in her life were Key West, Fla., and Jarbidge, Nev.

Brenda worked as executive assistant for her father's insurance agency and for the vice president of CSX Technologies Division in Jacksonville, Fla.

She actively donated her time to many non-profit organizations in the North Florida area and with active-duty Navy families.

Surviving is her husband,

No services or memorial are planned as per Brenda's wishes.

Brenda's wish was that in lieu of flowers, donations be made in her name to Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation in your local area. Those wishing to share memories and condolences may do so at www.magicvalleyfuneral-home.com.

Billie L. Palmer

Nov. 16, 1943-Oct. 4, 2012

BURLEY • Billie Lowell Palmer passed away at his home in Burley on Thursday, Oct. 4, 2012, at the age of 68, surrounded by his cherished family.

He was born Nov. 16, 1943, in Burley, Idaho, to Willard Lowell and Lola Marie Wardle Palmer. He attended schools in Declo, Burley and Rupert as his family moved around the Mini-Cassia area quite a bit. He was active in the LDS Church, after being baptized at age 17, where he served in many capacities. Following high school, Bill joined the U.S. Army and was stationed at Fort Ord in California. He was a gunner operator and was very honored to serve his country.

He married Linda Osterhout in August 1961, and they were blessed with two beautiful daughters, JoDee (Adams) and Tami (Hutchison). They later divorced, and he married Veda Anell Montgomery in Yost, Utah, on April 19, 1968. They were sealed for time and all eternity in the Odgen Utah LDS Temple on Feb. 18, 1975. They were blessed with three more children, Monica (Grooms), Billy and Dustin. His children and grandchildren brought him much joy in life.

Bill worked for the J.R. Simplot Company for 33 years. He began his career there at C&Y Farms in Raft River in 1971 and worked there until C&Y closed in 2000. He and Veda moved to Mountain Home, where he continued working for Simplot at Grandview Farms and Trucking. In 2002, he retired from Simplot, and he and Veda were able to return to Burley, where they truly felt at home. Bill worked for Handy Trucking until 2010, when he finally quit working due to his health.

Bill was a member of the Lions Club and also a volunteer fireman in Malta. He loved to hunt and to fish and spent many hours looking for deer with his children. He also loved to drive, whether it be a quick trip to Pomerelle or a weekend driving through Yellowstone Park. He enjoyed boating and spent a lot of time on the river playing with his family. Bill left an imprint on our hearts, and he will be greatly missed by his beloved family and friends he made throughout his life.

Bill is survived by his wife, Veda of Burley; his children, JoDee (Brian) Adams of Henefer, Utah, Tami (Brad) Hutchison of Malta, Monica Grooms of Glendale, Ariz., Billy (Amber) Palmer of Burley and Dustin (Jamie) Palmer, also of Burley; 19 grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren. Bill was also survived by his two sisters, JoAnn Cary-Yates and Sheryl Jordan. He was preceded in death by his parents; a sister, Darlene Matlock; and two grandchildren, Colby and Courtney Adams.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 11, at the Burley LDS Stake Center, 2050 Normal Ave., with Bishop Larry Kloepfer officiating. Burial will be in the Pleasant View Cemetery with military rites provided by the Mini-Cassia Veterans Organization. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 10, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 1 until 1:45 p.m. Thursday at the church.

Jack W. Tolman

Jan. 21, 1925-Oct. 4, 2012

BURLEY • Jack Waldo Tolman, age 87, of Burley, passed away Thursday, Oct. 4, 2012, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls.

Jack was born Jan. 21, 1925, in Oakley, Idaho, the eighth of 11 children born to Parley Lambert Tolman and Lydia Vilate Tolman. He served in World War II. He married Elaine Millard on March 12, 1947, in the Salt Lake LDS Temple. They moved to Burley in 1948 and lived for 61 years in the same house. They are the parents of seven children. He owned Tolman Upholstery in Burley. Jack was always active in the LDS Church and served in many positions, including as a missionary with his wife to Oklahoma and in the Logan Utah LDS Temple. He had a strong testimony and enjoyed visiting different temples. He loved going fishing and traveling with his family.

Jack was preceded in death by his parents; nine siblings; and one grandchild, Jacque Elaine Tolman. Jack is survived by his wife, Elaine Tolman of Burley; his children, Julie Stohel of Caldwell, Ronald (Jacque) Tolman of Boise, David (Lorinda) Tolman of Burley, Renae (Don) Halverson of Rupert, Sheryl (Mike) Brown of Rupert, Mark (Debbie) Tolman of Caldwell and Scott (Teri) Tolman of Boise; one brother, Jaren (Norma) Tolman of Mesa, Ariz.; 27 grandchildren; 37 great-grandchildren; and two great-great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Wednesday, Oct. 10, at the Burley LDS Stake Center, 2050 Normal Ave., with Bishop Larry Kloepfer officiating. Military rites will be provided by the Mini-Cassia Veterans Organization. Burial will be in the Marion Cemetery in Oakley. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 9, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Wednesday at the church.

Joe Meyer, Wyoming State Treasurer, Dies

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) • Joseph "Joe" Meyer, Wyoming's state treasurer and its longest-serving attorney general, died Saturday. He was 71.

Meyer died in Cheyenne with his family by his side, his family said in a statement. He died after battling lung cancer and a lengthy illness, longtime family friend Dave Picard said.

Gov. Matt Mead called the death a "tremendous loss for all of Wyoming" and ordered flags to be flown at half-staff for the next 15 days.

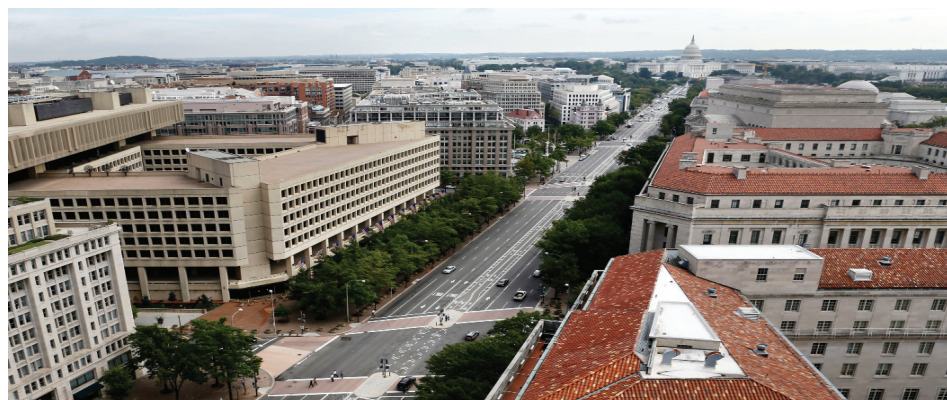

Former Vice President Dick Cheney, a longtime friend, said he knew "of no one who knew more about the workings of government than Joe. He put his knowledge to work for the benefit of our state, and he shared it generously."

Meyer, a Republican politician, has been state treasurer since 2008 and was re-elected in 2010 after running unopposed. He was first elected to state office as Wyoming secretary of state in 1999. Before public office, he served as Wyoming's attorney general from 1987 to 1995. He was appointed by then-Gov. Mike Sullivan.

WASHINGTON • Add Pennsylvania Avenue, the president's street, to the list of America's troubled spots.

The famed street between the U.S. Capitol and the White House has "fallen into disrepair," according to the Cultural Landscape Foundation, which placed the avenue on its list of a dozen threatened landscapes around the country. Benches are falling apart, trees have been cut down, water fountains often don't work, and "unsightly security planters" litter the avenue, according to the group dedicated to raising awareness of important landscapes.

The poor report card on the avenue — the route of the inaugural parade and designated a national historic site in 1965 — is the latest black eye for the nation's capital.

Grants to Help Create More Than 100 New Jobs in the Magic Valley

BY STEVE KADEL
skadel@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Three south-central Idaho businesses are receiving grants from the Idaho Department of Labor totaling about $567,000 to train new employees. The money is from the Idaho Workforce Development Training Fund, which is financed by employers through a 3 percent contribution from unemployment insurance taxes. It reimburses companies for the cost of training employees for new jobs if the positions pay at least $12 an hour and include employer-provided health care. Amalgamated Sugar got about $406,000 to train 78 new maintenance mechanics in safety, preventative maintenance, fabrication, hydraulics, pneumatics, mechanical repair, and proper care and use of tools at its Twin Falls and Paul plants. The average training cost was estimated at $5,000 for jobs paying an average of $14.28 plus benefits, according to Department of Labor spokesman Bob Fick. Marti Friesen, human resources director at Amalgamated's Paul plant, said they expanded during the past year, building a new lime kiln and other facilities. The work was done last spring, she said, adding that the state grant covered all training costs. "We had no idea it would involve that kind of money," she said. The company, owned by Snake River Sugar Co., is a grower-owned cooperative headquartered in Boise. It also has a processing plant in Nampa. The sugar marketed by Amalgamated is beet sugar, taken from sugar beet roots. Boise Paper Holdings will receive up to

Eden Man Helps Set Beef Checkoff Priorities

TIMES-NEWS

DENVER • Cevin Jones, president and CEO of InterMountain Beef in Eden, joined other members of the Beef Promotion Operating Committee in Denver recently as the group approved $40 million to fund 42 programs for the 2013 national beef checkoff program. The checkoff plan assesses $1 per head on the sale of live domestic and imported cattle, as well as a comparable assessment on imported beef and beef products. States keep half the money and forward the other half to the Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board. Jones is one of 10 committee members representing the Federation of State Beef Councils, a division of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association. "This year we had more proposals than we could fund, so we had to take a hard look at the requests and consider those with the greatest potential to move the beef demand needle," he said. "Naturally there was a lot of discussion but in the end the committee acted on one goal: to do what was right for the industry." Idaho producers, like many of their fellow cattlemen around the country,

You Call the Shots

Autumn days are filled with goodness almost impossible to describe. There is a satisfaction and contentment in them. You look at your rifle as you have not looked at it during the summer, and the thought of venison steak is pleasant, though the hunting trip may still be several weeks away. Speaking of guns, it was with pride that I learned that Kim Rhode from California in this year's Olympics was awarded a gold medal for her skeet shooting competition. Kim was the first American to win five medals in five consecutive Olympics. She said her dad taught her to use a gun. When she won, she said, "I wanted to run, scream, cry and I just didn't know which to do first." Her quote was, "Never give up. We need more women, inner city women and more youth involved in our sport." I learned that Kim often helps young people learn to shoot. I wish I could have seen more of champion shooting in London, but unfortunately it seems TV coverage did not see fit to cover her 99 out of 100 championship skeet shots. It would have been a chance for game hunting enthusiasts to see an American shooting icon make history. The reason I am so interested is that as a teen, every fall, my dad took me pheasant hunting with him. He taught me well as there is not one male in our family that will skeet shoot against me anymore. No, I don't score nine out of ten, but close. Since I now have daughters interested in big game hunting, I am a lot more enthusiastic about it. (Of course, I get to horseback ride while I'm there.) I learned that the number of women putting in for wild game permits has nearly doubled in the past 10 years. Last fall, I do not know if our

Some Farm Programs Change, Fade Away

BY CINDY SNYDER
For the Times-News

TWIN FALLS • Of the 37 farm programs that expired with the 2008 farm bill on Sept. 30, the one that will have the most immediate impact is the end of the Milk Income Loss Contract program. The MILC program compensated dairy producers when domestic milk prices fell below a specified level. Although milk prices have been high enough that the price support program wasn't kicking in, there is no other safety net to help battle the highest feed costs on record. Producers hope the next farm bill will include a new program to provide revenue assurance. In the meantime, Lance Phillips, Twin Falls County executive director for the Farm Service Agency, reminds dairy producers they still need to

TWIN FALLS • The Idaho branch of the U.S. Natural Resources Conservation Service has posted a new set of presentations regarding soil health on its website. According to a NRCS press release, the PowerPoint presentations were part of three workshops held in August at sites across southern Idaho to help producers learn about managing their soil health. Speakers included Ray Archuleta, Dr. Rick Haney and Marlon Winger. The key to maintaining good soil health, according to the release, is using limited crop rotations and a mix of cover crops to ensure a continuous living plant cover. When combined with a long-term, no-till system, the results closely mimic a natural system and should restore soil structure and soil productivity, the release states. Several publications on soil health and cover crops can be found on the site. Visit: <http://www.id.nrcs.usda.gov/technical/agronomy.html>.

$17,400 to train 15 people in safety, production, operations and ergonomics. The new jobs will increase the payroll at the Burley cardboard box manufacturing plant to 134 positions. The average training cost was estimated at $1,160 for jobs paying an entry wage of $13.33 plus benefits.

At High Desert Milk in Burley, a grant of up to $144,000 will help the company staff its new butter manufacturing facility, scheduled for an official opening Jan. 1, 2013. Twenty employees will be hired for operations, laboratory work, safety and maintenance jobs.

High Desert will employ 80 people total when the new hires are added, with an average hourly wage of $14.74 plus benefits, Fick said.

High Desert controller Carla Robinson said butter production will actually start before January. Some of the new employees have been hired but other jobs remain to be filled and the company is still taking applications, she said.

"It's all local people, and we need more people," Robinson said, adding the new jobs will pay from $12.50 to $18 per hour.

Current employees will be shifted to butter production, with new hires replacing them in the company's non-fat dry milk facility. Robinson said High Desert sells its product domestically and to foreign markets.

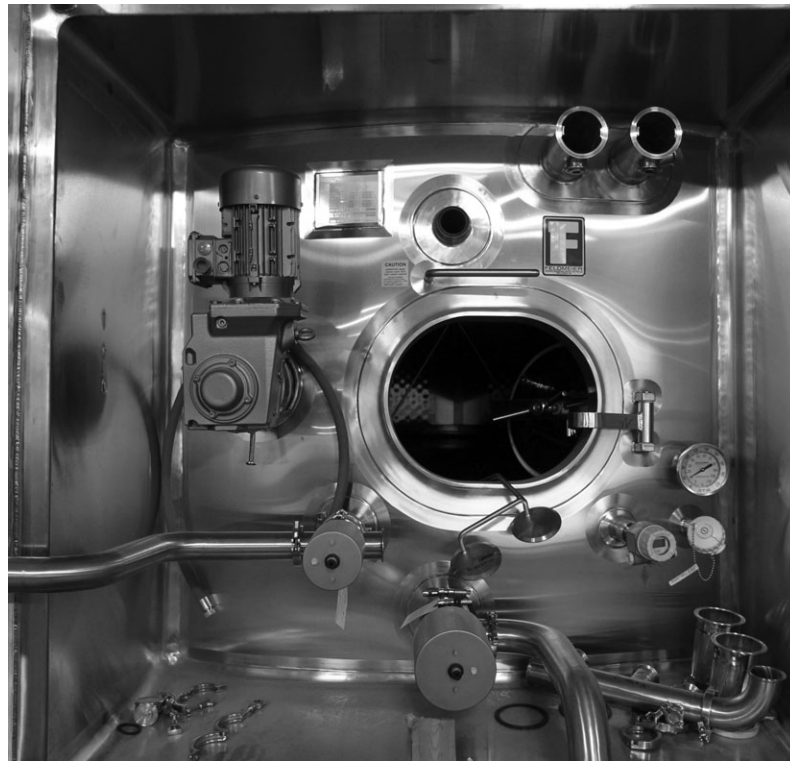

She added that butter will be sold in bulk at first, although other market options are being explored.

"There are all kinds of plans," Robinson said. "It is wide open now because there are lots of opportunities for us. We have a lot of customers who use butter also."

Because butter is a new product for High Desert, the current employees who shift to that department must be trained, she said.

High Desert Milk was formed in 2001 by six dairymen who wanted to increase their return per hundred-weight of milk and provide a stable market for the product. The firm milks 26,000 cows, farms 30,000 acres, and markets 1.8 million pounds of milk per day, according to its website. High Desert had sales of $100 million in 2009, the website says.

two daughters were in competition with each other or not, but Beth emailed that she shot a 4-point buck at 200 yards, and her sister, Renee, responded that her 2-point at 200 yards was harder to hit as he was a smaller target. (Renee did shoot a 4-point several years earlier.) They both said, "It's the thrill of the hunt that I go for." They are fun to be with.

My husband, two of our daughters, four grandsons, a great-grandson, and even a great-granddaughter were counting the hours for hunting season to open for deer and elk. Neither rain nor snow nor wind can keep them from the hunt.

I'll never forget the first youth hunt our grandson Conner went on. We took him up Soldier Creek to get his doe. She was a hard one to seek out and when we did find her and got her moving, she let out a snort that would have scared all the critters large or small. We had seen her with a large herd at about 100 yards away and needed to get closer. We watched her separate from the bunch and we thought she might be a dry doe. Our goal was to make sure Conner did not hit any of the other deer. However, she must have had a nose that could detect any dangerous smell even in the Idaho strong wind. She was an overly smart doe and after tracking her all afternoon, we finally spotted her. We split up so we could direct her toward Conner. We heard Conner shoot and hiked up to where we had left him. He stood there bathing in his glory over his doe he shot at 80 yards.

Some things have not changed — the challenge, the excitement and the camaraderie to go hunting. While a pack-string and long days in the saddle might sound romantic to some, the reality is it's hard work, time-consuming and for everyone but the most dedicated, wildly impractical. More and more hunters are using four-wheel vehicles for transporting their kill and that's fine if it's allowed in the area they are hunting.

When we go hunting and camping, we often take our younger grandchildren along. They seem to enjoy the youth hunts, teaching them hunter safety is a responsibility most grandpas wish to do. Yet, the hunter safety program offered by the Fish and Game Department is the best way to start and in Idaho it is mandatory. Remember, there will always be another shot. Do be safety minded. You will not get the opportunity to call the shot back.

If you're a hunter and you have never set a hunting goal, I hope you consider doing it. Step up and get outside your comfort zone. I challenge you to plan your next hunt with that young neighbor or grandchild. The memories from it will consume your mind, body and soul.

To me, hunting is a deep abiding joy of an old love that can become a precious part of you — as precious as the memories I have when I hunted with my dad.

turn in their production records by Nov. 1 to receive their last MILC payment. Checks will be issued by Dec. 28, the last day the software program used for MILC will be operational.

If producers don't turn in their final production report by Nov. 1, Phillips said, there won't be enough time to get the paperwork processed and a check issued before the software shuts down. Once that happens, there is nothing the Farm Service Agency can do, he said.

Crop Reporting Date Change

While 37 programs ended a week ago, many others continued — and some of the latter are changing. One of those is crop reporting requirements.

In the past, producers had one deadline for filing crop reports — essentially an accounting of all acres planted. But starting this year, FSA is aligning crop reporting deadlines with those used by the USDA Risk Management Agency for purchasing crop insurance.

That does not mean that producers are purchasing crop insurance when they file their crop reports with FSA, Phillips said. The change is merely intended to match deadlines across federal programs.

During the transition period from the old one-date system to the new multi-date system, producers were not charged late fees for missing deadlines. That is no longer the case. Producers will now be charged $46 to file a late crop report, Phillips said.

"FSA must go out and visually inspect fields when late reports are filed," he said. The fee offsets costs associated with driving out to inspect fields to make sure they were planted to the

"If it doesn't snow this winter, we could move immediately into a disaster declaration for 2013."

Lance Phillips, Twin Falls County executive director for the Farm Service Agency crops reported on the form.

Here are the new deadlines that producers need to be aware of this fall:

- Nov. 15: alfalfa, pasture and grazing land.
- Dec. 15: all fall-planted crops such as winter wheat or winter barley, fall-seeded alfalfa, fall canola.
- Jan. 15: fruits.
- July 15: spring crops including spring-seeded alfalfa, spring grains, sugar beets, potatoes, beans, corn and peas.

NAP Insurance

FSA offers assistance for crops that are not normally covered by crop insurance through NAP or the noninsured crop disaster assistance program. Even though FSA does not know exactly what NAP will look like in 2013, Phillips says the agency is continuing to take signups.

He strongly encourages livestock producers and alfalfa growers to sign up their rangeland and hay ground, even though program specifics aren't known yet. That deadline is Dec. 3, 2012.

Phillips assumes future disaster programs will be similar to past programs in that all crops must be insured to qualify for disaster programs. And with both Cassia County and Elko County, Nev., already declared disasters, producers are likely to qualify for disaster payments.

"If it doesn't snow this winter, we could move immediately into a disaster declaration for 2013," Phillips said.

NAP costs $250 per crop up to a maximum of $750 per operation. "It's a pretty inexpensive way of making sure you will qualify for drought disaster next year, should it be available," Phillips said.

Hay growers, in particular, should take a close look at NAP. In the past, crops did not have to be enrolled if the crop represented less than 5 percent of the farm's total revenue. A 1,000-acre farm with just 40 acres of alfalfa may not have had to worry about NAP coverage in the past, but with alfalfa hay selling for $250 to $300 per ton, it may behoove producers to purchase insurance.

Heard from the IRS?

The 2008 farm bill also ushered in an era of checking a farm operator's adjusted gross income as a means of ensuring that only producers who earned below a certain threshold qualified for farm program benefits.

Producers filled out a form with FSA that was verified by the Internal Revenue Service using income tax forms.

Unfortunately, some discrepancies have been discovered between the FSA and IRS forms, and a result farmers are receiving collection letters from the IRS.

Phillips said there is no reason to panic. Producers who receive a letter should go to their local FSA office before Dec. 3. "It takes about 10 minutes to get it cleaned up," Phillips said. "We can get you in and out the door."

At the same time, producers shouldn't take the letter lightly. If the matter isn't resolved by Dec. 3, the IRS will dock direct payments made to the producer and tax returns. Producers who miss the deadline will have to appeal the decision to the national office.

Producers should also keep all the paperwork related to the collection letter, including Form 1099s, to take to their accountants.

demand drivers last year, Jones noted in a news release from the Federation of State Beef Councils. The 2013 national checkoff plan takes that potential into account, including approval of more investment in Japan where many in the industry anticipate the market opening soon to cattle 30 months and older, Jones said.

Farm Co-ops Measure Record Income

October is National Cooperative Month and 2012 is the United Nations International Year of Cooperatives, so it is extra special to celebrate record farm cooperative income in 2011.

According to statistics released Oct. 2 by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, farmer, rancher and fishery cooperatives posted record sales of $213 billion and $5.4 billion in net income, surpassing the previous record sales year of 2008 by $10 billion while besting the old income record by $500 million.

“These new cooperative sales and income records for 2011 underscore the strength and productivity of the nation’s farmer- and rancher- owned cooperatives, and the vital role they play in the nation’s economy,” said Dallas Tonsager, undersecretary for Rural Development, in a statement. “Primarily because of mergers, the number of farm co-ops continued to decline, but memberships and asset values are up.”

Tonsager also noted that co-op employment levels remained strong, with cooperatives employing 184,000 full-time, part-time and seasonal workers, up slightly from 2010.

Restaurant Performance Up

The National Restaurant Association’s Restaurant Performance Index (RPI) “posted a modest gain” in August, according to the association’s monthly RPI release.

This is the first increase in the overall index in five months. Sixty-one percent of the survey respondents reported higher same-store sales than one year earlier in their August responses. Only 25 percent reported lower sales. Both of those are sharp improvements from July when only 53 percent reported higher year-to-year sales and 36 percent reported lower.

Problems Found at New Mexico Peanut Butter Plant in 2010

BY MARY CLARE JALONICK
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Food and Drug Administration found what it called “objectionable conditions” at a New Mexico peanut butter plant in 2010, two years before the current outbreak of salmonella poisoning linked to Trader Joe’s peanut butter produced there.

The FDA said Friday that a recent inspection found salmonella in the plant which produced Trader Joe’s Valencia Creamy Peanut Butter and many other nut butters and nut products for several large national grocery chains. The Trader Joe’s peanut butter is now linked to 35 salmonella illnesses in 19 states — most of them in children under the age of 10.

Though the illnesses have only been linked to the Trader Joe’s peanut butter, New Mexico-based Sunland Inc. has recalled everything made in the plant since March of 2010 — a total of 240 products. The company last month recalled 101 products that were manufactured in the plant this year.

FDA has found problems at Sunland before. Agency records show two inspections at the plant in 2009 and 2010 found “objectionable conditions” but classified the findings as not meeting the agency’s threshold for action. According to the records, any corrective action on the part of the company was voluntary. The FDA has not released details on what the objectionable conditions were or why the agency visited the plant twice in two years. An FDA spokesman said the agency is preparing to release that information. Sunland did not respond to requests for comment.

An FDA investigation conducted last month after the illnesses were linked to the plant found salmonella in environmental samples taken from various surfaces, officials said. The agency did not release any other details about current conditions at the plant. Washington state health officials also confirmed the presence of salmonella in an opened jar of the Trader Joe’s peanut butter found in a victim’s home, the FDA said.

The federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said Friday that officials now count 35 salmonella illnesses in 19 states across the country that can be traced to the Trader Joe’s peanut butter. The greatest numbers of illnesses were in California and Texas, which each reported five illnesses.

Salmonella can cause diarrhea, fever and abdominal cramps 12 hours to 72 hours after infection. It is most dangerous to children, the elderly and others with weak immune systems. Those sickened reported becoming ill between June 14 and Sept. 18, according to the CDC, and 63 percent were children under the age of 10. No deaths have been reported.

Brandi Henson’s four year-old son Jackson was one of those victims after he ate peanut butter his mother bought at a Trader Joe’s in Shrewsbury, Mass. Just two days after Henson brought her third child home from the hospital, Jackson started complaining he didn’t feel well. What followed was five days of unbearable cramps and diarrhea, and Henson said it was a month before he felt like himself again. Health officials in Massachusetts later linked Jackson’s infection to the Trader Joe’s peanut butter.

Henson said she tries to shop at stores like Trader Joe’s for better ingredients, and she didn’t think something like this could happen. She is now suing Sunland and Trader Joe’s because she says she wants to hold them accountable.

“We especially buy organic and all natural foods as much as we can because we’re trying to protect our kids and be healthy, and to know that the food we’re buying is tainted, we just don’t want that to happen,” she said.

Many of the brands included in the recall are labeled organic or “all natural,” and major peanut butter brands like Jif, Skippy and Peter Pan are not a part of it. The recall includes nut butters and nut products sold at Whole Foods Market, Target, Safeway, Costco, Fresh & Easy, Harry and David, Sprouts, Heinen’s, Stop & Shop Supermarket Company, Giant Food of Landover, Md., and several other stores since 2010.

Some of those retailers used Sunland ingredients in items they prepared and packaged themselves or sold the peanut butter in jars labeled with a store brand. Some stores and companies that used Sunland products as ingredients have issued additional recalls.

The products recalled include peanut butters, almond butters, cashew butters, tahini, and blanched and roasted peanut products. The expanded recall this week added several varieties of flavored butters and spreads, including Sunland’s Thai Ginger Butter, Chocolate Butter and Banana Butter. Brand names included are Target’s Archer Farms, Safeway’s Open Nature, Earth Balance, Fresh & Easy, Late July, Heinen’s, Joseph’s, Natural Value, Naturally More, Peanut Power Butter, Serious Food, SnacLite Power, Sprouts Farmers Market, Sprouts, Sunland and Dogsbutter.

Compromise on the Table for Ranchers, BLM

Who can blame them? Ranchers are on scene when a fire ignites because lightning struck the allotment where they are grazing cattle.

They spring into action. They bring out equipment to dig fire lines. They try to douse the flames with available water. They do so to protect their cattle, their equipment and their livelihood.

But what they are doing is illegal. Ranchers are told by the Bureau of Land Management not to fight fires on public land they graze and if they ignore those orders, they are ticketed and fined. Bring the topic up with most ranchers - especially after this fire season - and the anger and frustration is immediately apparent in their faces.

Being asked to stand back while your life's work goes up in flames to avoid the liability concerns of a federal agency is more than most men can bear.

In today's front page story, Clair Teeter talks about feeling powerless to protect four miles of fencing and 150 tons of hay burned in a recent fire.

"You can't go onto public land even to save your own home," Teeter said. "They'll give you a ticket. Thirty years ago, my grandfather would have got up and shot somebody over this."

It's just as easy to understand the other side of the issue. Fighting a fast-moving wildfire is dangerous work. If a rancher dies or is injured trying to fight a fire, the BLM and the taxpayers will be liable.

Finally, it appears a compromise is on the horizon for this divisive issue.

Going Home

There's a certain quality of light in a kitchen on the night you move out of a home.

Autumn Agar

From the Editor

It's dark outside. The walls are bare. The cupboards are empty. And the light shining down on it all is bright and white, quiet and clean.

And as I scrubbed the last of the grime out from underneath the knobs on the stove, everything seemed possible.

We bought a home. We wrapped everything we own in newspaper and packing tape and trucked it across town. One flat tire on Blue Lakes later, our life was in piles in the garage of our new home.

I stood at the door of our rental for one last moment looking around. We pulled up in a U-Haul six months ago, exhausted from driving the oversized truck through wind and ice and snow and a little surprised we survived it. April turned to May and the wind died down, the air warmed up, the fields greened, wildfires ignited in almost every direction and we went to 1,000 open houses.

Buying a new home is reminiscent of the humiliations of dating someone who doesn't really like you that much.

You make an offer and then wait. You check your cell phone every few minutes waiting for an answer.

After courting a few houses, you finally get an offer accepted. And the true humiliation begins.

I read the headlines — the financial meltdown, new regulations, tightened credit markets — but what that means to you and I is ... getting a mortgage these days is hell.

I sent the bank documentation of every thought and feeling and pinched penny my husband and I had for the past few years and then they asked for more.

Waiting to hear back from the mortgage officer with a final answer is like being a teenage girl waiting for a boy to call. And just like a teenage girl, I started chewing my nails again as I refreshed the page on my email account and looked at the phone wishing it would ring.

Should I drop the loan officer an email to check on the progress or will I seem too forward?

I'll hold off to send the email until 10 a.m. the next morning — that's long enough, right?

Write and delete and write the email again until it seems as casual as possible — "Just checking in ... any word from the underwriters?"

We got the "clear to close" message the day before we were set to close. By that time, I was a wrung-out dishrag. I squeaked out a "thanks."

After that, it went so fast. A pile of papers slid across the table to sign and initial. Then the keys and a congratulatory cookie basket.

I stood in our new kitchen and sliced open the first box. I unwrapped a coffee mug and placed it onto an empty shelf.

The doorbell rang. It was our new neighbor with a housewarming plant.

I forgot the unpacking and stood in the doorway and talked. The stress of the past few months lifted from my shoulders as we talked about the neighborhood, and Texas where we both moved from, and the trash pickup schedule. And the lighthearted chatter echoed a bit in the empty foyer of our new home.

POINT/COUNTERPOINT

Question: Should the United States Eliminate the 'Death Tax?'

Dead People Don't Pay Taxes

Most Americans don't realize how concentrated wealth and income is in the United States, and the degree it has increased over the past three decades. In 1982, the top 1 percent received 12.8 percent of all income, and the bottom 80 percent received 48.1 percent. In 2006, those values were 21.3 percent for the top 1 percent and 36.8 percent for the bottom 80 percent — a distribution approaching that of Mexico (Source: "Wealth, Income, and Power" by G. William Domhoff, <http://bit.ly/tbpuJQ>).

Bill Gates, and several other billionaires, have stated clearly that they favor the estate tax because they don't want to live in a country with a "royal" class. Probably all rational people would agree that someone who inherits and runs a farm or business should not be subject to an estate tax (that is, taxed out of that farm or business). However, wealth in liquid assets or multiple industries and securities is quite another matter.

One of the arguments against the estate tax, or for that matter increasing taxes on the wealthy, is that they will not create jobs. Economics 101: Business will hire another worker when the increase in business income exceeds the wage, benefits, and administrative costs of that additional worker. Business hires workers to make more money, not less money. Let's say a businessman calculates an increase in his income of $10,000 if he hires another worker, and let's say his taxes are increased from 35 percent to 40 percent. Is there someone who thinks he would not hire that worker if his net income increased by only $6,000 rather than by $6,500 (if his tax rate had not increased)?

We are told that inherited wealth generally disappears over the next couple of generations; that is, after an entrepreneur creates a multi-million dollar estate, the kids and grandkids squander it. Inherited wealth is not a ticket to entrepreneurship; indeed, it is more likely to be a ticket to alcohol or drug addiction, or an otherwise wasted life.

Lynden Williams

Uncle Sam Should Be Written Out of the Will

The Death Tax is really a name used to describe the estate or inheritance tax.

Chris James

Estate tax has had a long and controversial history. Because it is unpopular, the federal estate tax has been reduced over the last decade from over 50 percent to 35 percent and during the Bush Era tax cuts the exemptions also increased from one million to five million dollars. So, essentially if you had an estate worth more than $5 million you could be taxed at the highest rate of 35 percent. During 2011, Congress failed to pass a bill that would have reinstated the estate tax and essentially the tax is kind of in limbo. If tax cuts are allowed to expire, the tax rates on estates could increase.

The estate tax is an example of double taxation and redistribution of wealth. People should not have to visit the IRS and the mortician on the same day. The death tax discourages entrepreneurship because it sends the message "you have worked hard, you have saved your money, you have paid taxes, but after you die you cannot pass all the fruit of your labor on to your family without giving Uncle Sam 35 percent." For some reason, advocates of this law think inheritance should be taxed at nearly the same rate as gambling winnings. They say the transfer of property between loved ones has to be taxed. But it is criminal to charge a 35 percent tax rate on a gift from a parent to a child. Only the government could get away with such highway robbery. This tax is especially detrimental to family farms which make up the largest portion of millionaires in Idaho. Junior may have worked on the farm all his life, but when Dad passes away, Uncle Sam shows up with a $1,750,000 tax bill (35 percent of $5 million). There is no way he has the money to pay taxes on that property so they have to sell off part of the farm or get a loan just to pay taxes. The right to this wealth belonged to the deceased person. They are the ones who accumulated it and paid taxes on it all their lives. They should have the right to distribute it how they choose, whether to family, friends, or charity.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Opponents of HJR2 Will Say Anything to Stop Trapping in Idaho

Organizations inside and outside Idaho are encouraging a “no” vote on HJR2 in the November election. HJR2 is the proposed constitutional amendment that will make hunting, trapping and fishing rights under the Idaho Constitution. These organizations will say and do anything to stop trapping in Idaho, and they are using a campaign of misinformation about trapping to derail HJR2.

What anti-trapping and anti-HJR2 groups fail to see is that if they ever succeed in banning trapping, trapping will still never go away. Government agencies will be forced to pick up the slack for animal damage control that is currently being done by private trappers. This will force the exorbitant cost of government agency nuisance animal control onto the general public by way of increased taxes.

Furthermore, trapping is an amazing tool used across the nation to capture and relocate animals to historic or more suitable habitat. All manner of traps, including cage traps, foot-hold traps and snares are used to accomplish that. In fact, snares are now being used to effectively and economically fit wolves with inexpensive radio collars.

There are many cases every year where a private trapper captures a non-target animal that must be released alive. Often, that live, unharmed animal is transferred to Fish and Game to be released in a location where populations are low for that animal.

HJR2 is the most important legislation in favor of Idaho’s sportsmen to come out of the Idaho Legislature in recent times. HJR2 must pass on Nov. 6 to protect and preserve the rights to hunt, trap and fish in Idaho. Please don’t allow a campaign of deliberate misinformation to sway your vote.

Readers are encouraged to contact the Idaho Trappers Association (www.idaho-trappersassociation.com) for more truth about trapping.

Re-elect Stephen Hartgen, a Proven Leader

The Magic Valley is a great place to live and raise a family. One concern I have is that the firefighters.

This summer, the Idaho Department of Lands formally recognized the first rangeland fire protection association in Idaho. Based around Mountain Home, the group of 14 people, most of them ranchers, has an agreement with the BLM and Idaho Department of Lands to fight fires on public lands.

The association created a blueprint for ranchers in our area who live with seasonal fire danger.

Participating will take time and commitment from ranchers. The Mountain Home association members completed 40 hours of wildfire training and formed a nonprofit with a board of trustees so they could obtain their own liability insurance.

And for its part, the Department of Lands provided the association with firefighting gear, communications equipment and a fire engine.

During this fire season, the Mountain Home RFPA responded to four fires. The olive branch has been put down by the BLM and the Idaho Department of Lands. The ball is in the court of ranchers who have long complained about the limitations put on them in the past to protect their livelihoods.

future may bring some challenges to us as a result of the upcoming election. For this reason, I am writing this letter of support for Stephen Hartgen, who is running for reelection of his seat as a representative for District 24B.

I have known Stephen for more than 20 years and find him to be an honest, forthright and very effective legislator. He has represented the citizens of southern Idaho very well since 2008. He has served on the Commerce and Human Resources, Education and Environment-Energy and Technology committees. He is running for the leadership position of caucus chairman this year, which will place him in a position of positive influence for the Magic Valley.

I am voting for Rep. Hartgen because he is committed to supporting small businesses. He has been a leader in economic development, promotes and votes for legislation that strengthens businesses in the Magic Valley and is actively involved in promoting conservative ideals. Stephen continues to be supported by small-business organizations, including the Realtor association in Idaho. He voted for increased funding for education in the last session and is at the forefront of new technology and innovation in our schools.

Rep. Hartgen is a proven leader, with a track record that represents the ideals that I believe will keep our future bright.

Please join me in voting for Stephen Hartgen, representative for District 24B on Nov. 6 to continue to move the Magic Valley forward.

City Prosecutor Investigating How Long He Can Do Nothing

I am happy for the victims of Blaine Smith’s alleged assault with a deadly weapon in Burley. At least they will get their day in court. If they lived in Twin Falls and the weapon-brandishing lunatic was an attorney, most likely the outcome would be much different.

Evidently, if you are an attorney, it is OK for you to threaten honest, hard-working men whose only “crime” was working late so that they could support their families. Too bad those men don’t have jobs that give them the leisure time to sit on their decks and enjoy the summer evening sipping cocktails with their wives.

As I was preparing to submit this letter, yet another gun incident has occurred in Twin Falls. As with the Burley incident, the men who pulled the gun were arrested and charged. The message in Twin Falls seems clear: don’t pull your gun unless you are an attorney!

And as for the “investigation” being conducted by city prosecutor Fritz Wonderlich, a good place to start might be with a call to the person who was called out with, “Let’s get this gun fight started.” It seems most likely that our city prosecutor is investigating how long he can do nothing until this “alleged” assault with a deadly weapon fades to a bitter memory for those involved. How sad!

Arts on Tour Should Find Different Venue for Next Performance

It has always been my opinion that when someone sponsors an individual or an event, that sponsor is legally responsible for the outcome of that performance.

The sponsorship of the Arts on Tour of “Forbidden Broadway” has got to go down as one of the biggest disasters of recent times. The disaster was not in the performance of the cast, as they are true professionals, but in the venue selected for this performance.

The CSI Fine Arts auditorium’s acoustics and sound system were so bad that it made it impossible for us to hear with any type of clarity the words being sung. We paid decent money to sit in Row S on the right side and no patron could ascertain any words.

As a sponsor, you should be furious with this venue and find another venue before the next performance. As a first time goer to the Arts on Tour series, it will be our last unless a new venue is secured.

We suggest as a sponsor, you should write an apology to all of the patrons who paid to see and “tried” to hear this performance.

What a sham, and you should be ashamed.

Development Comes from a Community That Supports Participation

Editor’s note: Hayden Gunnell will be writing a regular column for the Times-News looking at life in the Magic Valley from his perspective as a senior at Kimberly High School. In this column, he is simply introducing himself.

A high school kid, who has lived in Idaho half of his life, growing up border-jumping between this great Gem State and it’s subordinate neighbor, Utah. That’s me.

I’ve had a deep immersion in both urban and rural areas, but the question almost always arises, “Which do you like best?” Honestly, I’ve come to find that this little valley I call my home has everything I could want, combining a proficient city-life with plenty of country fields. I’m Hayden Gunnell, a senior at Kimberly High School.

As I’ve lived here, I have come to love participating in our community. I enjoy being involved in various organizations such as the Kimberly Fine Arts Society, and working at our local Boys and Girls Club. I was also privileged to proudly represent the Magic Valley at Nationals Debate, thoroughly relishing every opportunity to teach individuals from around the map where we are from, and what we Idahoans have to offer.

For a more personal portrait, diversification is my favorite action. I love all things music, literature, and political. Under personality analysis, it’s been said I’m a “Herald” personality. I suppose this is seemingly undeniable, because in all of these areas, I have an unquenchable, and ‘irritating’ as described by teachers of past, urge to share all of my ideas with those around me, regardless of the level of profundity. Furthermore, I am a fan of sports, while unsurpassably uncoordinated myself, and like to try my hand every once in a while at the more approachable activities such as croquet and badminton. Rest assured, my inabilities shine there as well, regardless of many hours of practice, or lack thereof.

Despite my interests being many, I love all that I do. I truly appreciate a community that recognizes the importance of connection and service. I’ve noticed that the growth I’ve achieved while living in this area hasn’t necessarily come in the form of monetary benefits, lavish attractions, or chic culture. My development comes from a community who supports participation. For whether I’m writing my next string quartet, or writing my next debate case, or even helping paint a house, I have a home that stimulates a work ethic, and allows for an individual to actually succeed.

Therein lies the difference from every other area I’ve lived. It seems we here, in our small towns, support and demand success. I only hope for that success.

The Democratic Party built a strong coalition during the depression by favoring the “little” guy over the wealthy. We are conceding that important issue to Obama now with our silly oppo-

Essentially the government is coming to the heirs of these estates and saying: “I know your parents died and they picked you as heirs, but I don’t like that they are giving you all this money so we are going to take 35 percent because we know how to distribute it better than your parents.”

Idaho does not have a gift tax and the estate tax expired in 2004.

This does not seem to have negatively impacted our state coffers and I think the federal government could take a lesson from Idaho that taxing estates is wrong.

Idaho School Boards Association Endorses Proposition 1

Proposition 1

- Places our children's education in the hands of local school boards rather than in the hands of the unions.
- Requires parental input to be part of a teacher's and principal's job evaluation. (If proposition 1 does not pass, parents will not be allowed to play a role in teacher evaluations.)
- Requires all labor negotiations to be in open meetings rather than behind closed doors as they were in the past.
- Requires a portion of a teacher's job evaluation to be based on student achievement.
- Limits all collective bargaining agreements (with unions) to 1 year.
- Eliminates $4 million per year in early retirement bonuses and redistributes those funds to areas more beneficial to the students. (Teachers were the only government employees who were paid a bonus of $18,000 for simply retiring early.)
- Phases out "tenure." Tenure inhibits the school boards' ability to take corrective action on poorly performing teachers.

Phasing out "Tenure."

Idaho is blessed with great teachers! Most teachers are absolutely fabulous! They choose their profession because they care about kids and they want to make a difference for their students' future. But as in all professions, there are some who are ineffective in their jobs. In these rare cases, a teacher sometimes just loses interest in children or in teaching. In those cases it would probably be better for both the teacher and the children for the teacher to choose a different profession. But when the rules are that a teacher can coast without any serious consequences and is granted a job for life, regardless of the teacher's inadequacies, it is a path for disaster—especially for the kids.

For decades, states and school boards have recognized "tenure" after just 3 years of teaching. "Tenure" makes it almost impossible to remove a bad teacher. Teachers with "tenure" are essentially granted a job for life regardless of their effectiveness or behavior. Technically, an extremely poor teacher with tenure can still be terminated; however, because unions use "tenure" as a defense against termination, regardless of a teacher's poor performance, the legal costs and documentation of terminating a teacher with tenure can often exceed $200,000. It is simply much easier and far less expensive to allow a poor teacher to stay in the system. It is only the luck of the draw as to which children get those teachers from year to year. Education experts tell us that the concept of "tenure" is the biggest reason for the deterioration of the American school system. Proposition 1 phases out the concept of "tenure" and allows administrators to take corrective action with non-performing or poor-performing teachers.

Important: Tenure does not immediately go away. No current teachers who have tenure will lose tenure. All teachers will keep the tenure that they now have. But the concept of tenure will be phased out over time for new teachers, allowing school boards to reward better teachers and to ask more from teachers who are below standard.

Idaho School Boards Association Endorsement

"Idaho school boards are better because of these education reform laws, and we can't imagine going backwards. Help us do our job effectively. We encourage Idahoans to vote for local governance and vote YES on Proposition 1. Your school boards need your yes vote on November 6."

—Idaho School Boards Association

(ISBA represents all school boards in the state of Idaho)

Proposition 2:

- Introduces pay for performance to reward effective teachers.
- Teachers will continue to be paid their salaries based on the number of years they have taught and their level of education. (Nothing changes with their current salaries or how they are calculated.) But in addition to their current pay, teachers will be eligible to earn an additional bonus of up to $8,000 per year depending on their schools' performance each year.
- Provides three ways to earn additional bonuses: 1) teach in a school that shows student academic growth; 2) teach in a hard-to-fill position; or 3) take on a leadership role. Teachers can earn one, two or all three bonuses.
- Actual bonus qualifications are determined by each local school board.
- These pay-for-performance bonuses are already fully funded with $38 million for teachers without increasing any taxes.

Important:

1. 85% of all Idaho teachers qualified for bonuses this past school year. The average is approximately $2,000 per teacher. Many teachers will receive an $8,000 bonus. Over $38 million is in the bank ready to be paid out. But the union has tried to block payment of these and future bonuses. Because the union has placed Proposition 2 on the ballot, future bonuses cannot legally be paid unless voters pass Proposition 2.

2. Prior to Idaho's implementation of this pay-for-performance plan, all teachers were paid the same. For example: If I am the best teacher in my school district and I have taught 8 years and have a master's degree, I make the same amount as the most ineffective teacher in my district who has taught 8 years and has a master's degree. These rules prevent school districts from rewarding and retaining their most effective teachers, causing school districts to lose many of their best teachers each year.

3. The unions object to Proposition 2 because it significantly increases teacher pay without union control. For decades, unions have convinced teachers that they would never receive a raise without union involvement. Union bosses fear that when teachers learn that states are willing to pay teachers more without union pressure, the union will become obsolete.

Proposition 3:

- Brings all classrooms in Idaho into the 21st century by providing teachers and students with the latest technology in every classroom.
- Every student in grades 9 to 12 will be provided a laptop in class. Security regarding laptops and other technology in the classroom will be determined by local school districts under the guidance of local school boards.
- All students can earn up to 36 college credits (equivalent to one year of college) before graduating from high school, all paid for by the state, saving parents and families thousands of dollars in college expenses.
- In addition, beginning in the year 2016, before a student will be able to graduate, he or she will be required to take at least two credits of distance (online) or blended learning sometime in their high school careers. These two courses will be taken at school, during the school day, in a classroom with a teacher.

Important:

1. This technology will provide an equal opportunity for all children, regardless of their families' financial status, to become proficient in the latest technology, allowing them to be competitive in college and in the workplace. Prior to this legislation, where children lived in Idaho determined the quality of the education they received, because of insufficient funding in some school districts.
2. Laptops are not replacing teachers, but they are replacing textbooks, calculators, word processors, and computer labs. This saves millions of dollars per year. This proposition makes every classroom in every Idaho school a world-class learning environment. No longer will students have to wait their turn for the computer lab. Now all teachers will have the necessary tools to learn and teach in a 21st century environment.
3. Union bosses are inaccurately suggesting that this is an unfunded mandate and that teachers will someday be replaced by computers. Neither is true. This legislation is fully funded by the savings the computers produce each year and by other efficiencies. No teachers are being replaced.

This ad was paid for by Melaleuca. A logical question would be why Melaleuca (or any other company) would be interested in education reform. The answer is simple. Melaleuca hires over 500 new Idaho employees every year. At any one time Melaleuca has dozens of unfilled, high-paying positions because there are not enough qualified people to fill them. Better education would make a world of difference to Melaleuca and to the young people we hire.

SpaceX Readies for Historic Flight

BY W.J. HENNIGAN
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES • Rocket maker SpaceX is poised to return to the International Space Station with its Dragon spacecraft to carry out the first contracted cargo resupply flight in NASA's history.

SpaceX performed a successful demonstration mission to the space station in May, showing NASA that the company could do the job. SpaceX, based in Hawthorne, Calif., has secured a $1.6 billion contract to carry out 12 such cargo missions, and Sunday's mission would be the first.

SpaceX's Falcon 9 rocket is set to blast off at 8:35 p.m. EDT Sunday from Space Launch Complex 40 at Cape Canaveral, Fla., carrying the Dragon capsule packed with 1,000 pounds of food, water and supplies.

"I'm still quite nervous about it because it's just our second mission to the station," Elon Musk, SpaceX's 41-year-old billionaire founder and chief executive said.

"We're hoping that this mission goes as smoothly as the last one."

With last year's retirement of the space shuttle fleet, NASA is eager to give private industry the job of carrying cargo and crews, in hopes of cutting costs.

Meanwhile, the space agency will focus on deep-space missions to land probes on asteroids and Mars.

Another aerospace firm, Orbital Sciences Corp. of Dulles, Va., is nipping at SpaceX's heels with a test flight of its commercial rocket set for later this year. Orbital has a $1.9 billion cargo-hauling contract with NASA. The company is running tests on its Antares rocket at a launch pad at NASA's Wallops Flight Facility in Virginia for a separate resupply mission.

Critics, including some former astronauts and members of Congress, have voiced concerns about NASA's move toward private space missions. They contend that private space companies are risky ventures with unproven technology and say that the missions should be handled by NASA flight-proven hardware.

But SpaceX, formally known as Space Exploration Technologies Corp., has quieted many opponents after its successful demonstration mission, though it still faces opposition.

"A SpaceX failure back then, or indeed a slip-up on the next launch, would give ammunition to congressional critics, who in many cases are trying to bring home the bacon for their own constituents," said Tim Farrar, president of the consulting and research firm Telecom, Media & Finance Associates Inc. in Menlo Park, Calif. "Continued success on SpaceX's part makes it much harder to argue for continuing to invest in traditional contracts."

U.K. Health Secretary Backs 12-week Abortion Limit

LONDON (AP) • Britain's new health secretary has said he favors reducing the limit for women to have abortions from 24 weeks of pregnancy to 12, sparking criticism from opposition lawmakers and women's rights activists.

Jeremy Hunt, who took up the job just a few weeks ago, said he believed that 12 weeks was "the right point," telling the Times newspaper in an interview published Saturday: "It is just my view about that incredibly difficult question about the moment that we should deem life to start."

The comments followed recent remarks from Culture Secretary Maria Miller — also the minister for women — who said she would like to see the law tightened so that the limit comes down to 20 weeks.

The Prime Minister's office at Downing Street stressed that Hunt was expressing purely personal views, and that the government has no plans to change laws on abortion.

But his remarks, coming just ahead of the annual Conservative Party conference, immediately stirred up political debate and anger from pro-choice campaigners. Abortion is a divisive political issue in Britain, though not as much so as in the U.S., where it has flared up in the presidential campaign despite the candidates' reluctance to dwell on the topic.

The 24-week limit applies to England, Wales and Scotland. Abortion is illegal in Northern Ireland except when the mother's life is in danger or there is a serious threat to her health.

Department of Health figures show that the vast majority of abortions last year were carried out at under 13 weeks. Critics of Hunt's position argue that the current 24-week limit should be kept because severe health problems such as Down syndrome are often not revealed in testing until later in the pregnancy.

They say the remarks show that Hunt does not have a full understanding of why women need late abortion services.

"I think women and families across the country will find it staggering that the priority for this government is playing politics with people's lives, like this," said Diane Abbott, the health spokesman for the opposition Labour Party. "Late abortion only affects a small number of women, who are often in extremely challenging circumstances."

Prime Minister David Cameron said that he did not agree with Hunt's position, and instead personally favored a more "modest" reduction in the legal limit. Home Secretary Theresa May expressed similar views Saturday, telling the BBC in an interview that "there is scope for some reduction."

"My own view is probably a reduction to 20 weeks. That is a personal view of mine," May said.

SYRIA VOWS TO 'CRUSH' REBELS

BY KARIN LAUB
Associated Press

BEIRUT • Syria's military will "crush" armed rebels, President Bashar Assad's defense minister warned Saturday, as the regime shelled rebel positions in two cities and near the Lebanese border in a widening offensive.

Neighboring Turkey, meanwhile, set new rules of engagement after three shells from Syria hit Turkish territory Saturday. Turkey retaliated with artillery, as it has for the past four days, and Turkish Foreign Minister Ahmet Davutoglu said this would now be the standard response.

Davutoglu insisted that "we haven't taken a step toward war," but Turkey's threat to fire back for each errant Syrian shell was bound to keep border tensions high. Turkey is one of Assad's harshest critics and a key supporter of Syria's opposition.

The latest Syria-Turkey crisis erupted earlier this week, after a Syrian shell killed five civilians in a Turkish border town.

The Syrian regime has apologized and tried to defuse tensions by pulling some tanks back from the border, according to a Turkish Foreign Ministry official who spoke on condition of anonymity in line with government regulations.

A Syrian rebel sits with his weapon in the rebel-held town of Tel Abyad, Syria, Friday.

Still, the week's daily cross-border exchanges have heightened fears of a regional conflagration.

Syrian mortar rounds are likely to hit Turkey again as regime forces try to retake rebel-controlled areas near the border. Two of the shells that fell in Turkey on Saturday were fired in clashes between government troops and opposition fighters in a Syrian border village.

Syria's civil war has been stalemated for months, but Syrian Defense Minister Gen. Fahd Jassem al-Frej insisted Saturday that the regime is gaining the upper hand.

The government denies it is facing a home-grown rebellion, saying it is being targeted by a foreign conspiracy against the regime's support for anti-Israeli groups.

"The most dangerous parts of the conspiracy have ... passed and the killing is on its way to decline," said al-Frej, who was named to the job after his predecessor was assassinated in July. He offered amnesty to rebels who repent but said those who don't "will be crushed under the feet of our soldiers."

The Syrian president, meanwhile, made a rare public appearance Saturday to commemorate the anniversary of the outbreak of the 1973 Arab-Israeli war, also known as the October War.

Assad laid a wreath at the country's statue of the Unknown Soldier in Damascus, then passed along a line of saluting army commanders in dress uniform, shaking hands with each. The ceremony, broadcast live on Syrian TV, seemed designed to show Assad remains in control.

Syria's state-run news agency SANA linked Saturday's anniversary to the current conflict, saying that in both cases "Syria is facing an enemy armed with Western and Israeli weapons."

Congressman Calls Evolution Lie from 'Pit of Hell'

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) • Georgia Rep. Paul Broun said in videotaped remarks that evolution, embryology and the Big Bang theory are "lies straight from the pit of hell" meant to convince people that they do not need a savior.

The Republican lawmaker made those comments during a speech Sept. 27 at a sportsman's banquet at Liberty Baptist Church in Hartwell. Broun, a medical doctor, is running for re-election in November unopposed by Democrats.

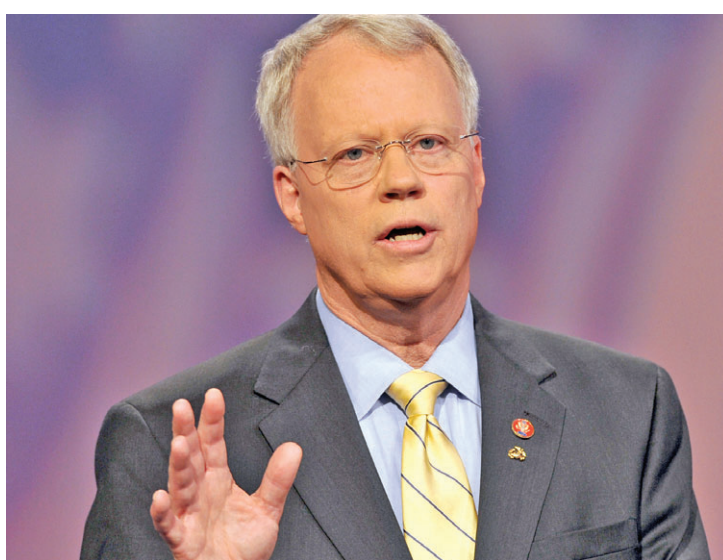

"God's word is true," Broun said, according to a video posted on the church's website. "I've come to understand that. All that stuff I was taught about evolution and embryology and Big Bang theory, all that is lies straight from the pit of hell. And it's lies to try to keep me and all the folks who are taught that from understanding that they need a savior."

Broun also said that he believes the Earth is about 9,000 years old and that it was made in six days. Those beliefs are held by fundamentalist Christians who believe the creation accounts in the Bible to be literally true.

Broun spokeswoman Meredith Griffanti told the Athens Banner-Herald that Broun was recorded speaking off-the-record to a church group about his religious beliefs. He sits on the House Committee on Science, Space and Technology.

It seems unlikely that Broun's remarks were supposed to be kept private. The banquet was advertised, Broun spoke before an audience and the video of his remarks was posted on the church's website.

Iran 'Confidence' Bid Shifts Uranium to Fuel Stock

ALI AKBAR DAREINI

TEHRAN, Iran • In a bid to ease international concerns over its nuclear program, Iran has converted more than a third of Tehran's most highly enriched uranium into a powder for a medical research reactor that is difficult to reprocess for weapons production, experts and U.N. monitors say.

The work — noted in a technical report by the U.N.'s nuclear watchdog agency in late August — suggests Iran is trying to display enough goodwill to restart nuclear talks with world powers, while aiming to soften demands by the U.S. and others to halt Tehran's

An influential Iranian parliament member, Hossein

Naqavi, said the country was taking a "serious and concrete confidence-building measure" by converting some of the 20 percent enriched stockpile into U3O8, or uranium oxide, in the form of powder.

The move also appears to be part of a wider strategy to seek relief from tightening Western sanctions in exchange for step-by-step plans to scale back uranium enrichment, which Washington and its allies fear could lead to weapons-grade material. Iran insists it only has peaceful nuclear ambitions.

But it has offered no substantial concessions to cut into Iran's stockpile of 20 percent enriched uranium, the highest level acknowledged by the Islamic Republic. Iran already has enough to provide fuel for its Tehran research reactor for years and labs are equipped to make more material at that level, said Olli Heinonen, former director-general at the U.N.'s International Atomic Energy Agency who headed the organization's Iran file until 2010.

So far, Iran's proposals have met with resistance from the West as the economic toll from the embargos take a toll, including protests this week after the nation's currency shed nearly 40 percent of its value.

Iran's 20 percent enrichment program is among the core disputes. That's because it can be boosted to weapons-grade far more rapidly than the 3.5 percent-enriched uranium used for Iran's lone energy reactor.

Iran says it needs this degree of enrichment for its medical research reactor, which can produce isotopes for cancer treatment. It also has announced plans to build more such reactors. The U.S. and allies want Iran to halt the 20 percent production and ship the rest of the material outside the country.

The impasse has put talks on hold between Iran and a six-nation group, the permanent Security Council members plus Germany.

Iranian officials repeatedly insist they will never give up the capacity uranium enrichment. But tightening Western sanctions and growing public outcry could open Tehran's leadership to more deal-making.

Thousands of demonstrators gathered in Madrid to protest and call for a referendum on policies that Prime Minister Mariano Rajoy has implemented in breach of election pledges.

As Economy Crashes, Spain's Small Towns Suffer in Silence

BY MARIA TADEO
Bloomberg News

ECIJA, Spain • At 10 a.m. on a hot Friday, Antonio Rodriguez Alvarez and his brother, Francisco, sit outside a bar, drinking an anise liquor with water. Unemployed laborers, they visit the job center daily at 9 a.m. in search of work. When there is none, they repair to the bar and worry.

Antonio, 44, is divorced and living with his mother. He split with his wife partly because of constant fights about money and his lack of a job. He now weighs going to France, where he heard there is work picking fruit. His 22-year-old daughter is planning a move to the Canary Islands to work in the tourism industry. He said he doesn't blame her.

"Young people are leaving this town," he said. "There's no hope, no jobs. Days are long. You wake up, it's the crisis. You go to bed, it's the crisis. It's always the same around here."

While crowds in Madrid and Barcelona take to the streets to protest austerity measures triggered by the European crisis, Spain's small towns and rural areas are quietly disintegrating. The despair of Ecija, a city of 40,000 in the southern region of Andalusia, is measured in rising divorce rates and fleeing young people. Pride in Spain's four-decade rise has been replaced with bitterness over the collapse of an economy built on construction and real-estate speculation that has left wreckage deep in the Spanish heartland.

"Spain's economic miracle was science fiction," said Javier Madero Garfias, 67, an architect who has designed hundreds of Ecija's buildings since 1973. "I don't think we'll ever go back to what we used to be. This is the first time the kids are worse off than their parents in Spain."

Spain is in its second recession since 2009 and its economy is predicted to contract 1.3 percent in 2013. Industrial output has declined for 12 consecutive months. On Sept. 27, the government revealed its fifth austerity package in nine months that includes 13 billion euros ($16.9 billion) in tax increases and budget cuts. The government has already reduced unemployment benefits and civil servant salaries while raising sales taxes.

In Ecija, the unemployment rate has soared to 30 percent after mattress and furniture factories that supplied the housing industry closed, said Juan Wic Moral, mayor from 2003 to 2011.

"Four years ago we wanted to build a 3 million-euro public swimming pool, a new town hall and three new bridges," Wic said. "These days we're talking about a new soup kitchen."

Ecija is a town of white-washed homes in a maze of narrow, winding streets that date to the Roman era. Its culture is also centuries old, from the horse breeding that began in the region 600 years ago to the 11 Baroque church towers that mark the skyline.

Rural Spain, the land of Don Quixote and El Cid, has long been romanticized by politicians and in popular culture. Andalusia is particularly celebrated, with its traditions of bull fighting and flamenco dancing regarded as uniquely Spanish.

During the boom years between 2000 and 2006, Ecija thrived. Employment grew as factories built home fixtures and furnishings. Madero, the architect, added as many as 10 freelancers to his permanent staff of five to keep up with his building projects. Construction and real estate "acted as a vacuum cleaner," sucking up all the local capital and talent, said Fernando Fernandez, an economist at IE Business School in Madrid.

When the boom ended, Ecija had nothing to fall back on. Spain went from building 60,000 houses a month in 2006 to fewer than 5,000 a month this year. In 2004, Madero's firm designed buildings that contained between 500 and 600 apartments. This year, he expects just 25 units will be built. His firm has shrunk to three employees: Madero, his daughter and his son-in-law. He fired his own brother.

"I never imagined construction would end so abruptly," Madero said. "One day the phone stopped ringing."

Called "the frying pan of Andalusia," Ecija often records Spain's hottest temperatures. In August, when the thermometer reaches 44 degrees Celsius (111 Fahrenheit), the city's streets are empty for much of the day, as residents with the means escape to the beach or retreat into air-conditioned homes.

Honda Recalls 2002-06 CR-V for Fire Risk

BY DEE-ANN DURBI
Associated Press

DETROIT • Honda Motor Co. is recalling CR-V crossovers from the 2002 to 2006 model years because an electrical switch in the driver's side door could melt and cause a fire.

Honda and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration announced the recall Saturday.

The problem involves around 268,000 vehicles. Honda said rain or other liquids could enter through a driver's open window and damage the master power switch on the door. If that happens, the switch could overheat and melt, causing a fire.

NHTSA said owners should park CR-Vs from those model years outside until the recall is performed to avoid any property damage from a fire. A fire could start even when the ignition is off and the CR-V is parked.

But Honda said it isn't necessary to park the vehicles outside. The switch can be seriously damaged only if someone spills liquid onto it or lets a large quantity of rain water into the car through the driver's side window, Honda spokesman Ed Miller said.

Customers concerned that their switches may have been damaged that way can ask a dealer to inspect their cars. Most vehicles will only need to have a cover plate installed inside the switch to prevent any liquid from coming in, Miller said.

Honda said owners have reported four fires but no injuries or crashes associated with the issue.

The company will begin contacting owners next month and will repair the vehicles for free.

It was the third major recall this week for the Japanese automaker, which usually sits near the top in J.D. Power and Associates' annual rankings of vehicle quality.

Earlier this week, the company said it was recalling 820,000 Civic compact and Pilot SUVs from the 2002 through 2004 model years because the headlights can fail. CR-Vs were recalled earlier this spring for that same issue.

Honda also said this week that it's recalling 600,000 Accord midsize cars because a faulty power steering house can leak and cause a fire. That recall affects Accords with V6 engines from the 2003 to 2007 model years.

NHTSA also announced earlier this week that it's investigating complaints that Honda Odyssey minivans and Pilot SUVs can roll away after drivers remove the ignition key. That investigation involves vehicles from the 2003 and 2004 model years.

Also Saturday, the government announced a recall of 44,300 Ram 1500 and Dodge Dakota pickup trucks from the 2009 and 2010 model years. The trucks have a nut that could loosen on the rear axle, causing drivers to lose control of their vehicles. The government and Chrysler Group LLC said there have been 15 reports of rear axle failure and three minor injuries related to the issue.

Boy's Body Found; Death Two Years Ago Unreported

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. (AP)

• A routine child welfare investigation led to the discovery Saturday of a toddler's corpse buried in the backyard of a Long Island home.

State police unearthed the remains in the dead of night at a tidy house in Farmingdale after being told by the boy's mother that he died two years ago. The circumstances of his death remained unclear Saturday.

The boy, Justin Kowalczyk, was about 17-months-old when he died in the summer of 2010, police said. Authorities said the family never reported the child's death.

"It is absolutely a suspicious death and it is being investigated as such," said State Police Major Patrick Regan. "We don't have a cause of death, and to our knowledge, there was never a report made of the child being missing."

Investigators were trying to determine how the child died and why the family kept it a secret.

Officials with Suffolk County's Child Protective Services agency initially went to the home Wednesday to check on the health of one of the woman's three children. They grew concerned when the family couldn't account for the whereabouts of a child born in 2009.

That led to a police interview of the mother, Heather Kowalczyk, who told them the child had died shortly after the family moved to Farmingdale from Orange County two years ago, Regan said.

On Friday, police sought Kowalczyk's boyfriend, Robert Rodriguez, who is the father of her two older children, ages 6 and 9, but not of Justin. As of Saturday afternoon, he had refused to answer questions, Regan said.

"He did not come in willingly. He is not cooperating," Regan said.

Bus from Canada Overtakes on Exit Ramp

WAYNE, N.J. (AP) • A tour bus from Canada carrying about 60 people bound for New York City overturned on a highway exit ramp in northern New Jersey early Saturday, slid down an embankment and landed on its side, injuring 23 people on board, authorities said.

The driver, who suffered a gash in his arm, told state police that he was cut off by another vehicle, though it was not immediately clear whether that caused the crash around 7:30 a.m. on eastbound Interstate 80 in Wayne.

Some windows burst during the crash and their frames pinned three people, but they were quickly freed and taken to hospitals with the other injured. The bus had been chartered by a church group.

Eight of the injured passengers were admitted in critical condition, hospital spokeswoman Liz Asani said. Further details on their injuries were not disclosed. The rest of the injured, including two young children, were being treated for minor injuries at two other hospitals.

State police have said none of the injuries are considered life-threatening.

"It was terrifying," Norma Cumberbatch, 66, of Toronto, told The Star-Ledger of Newark. Cumberbatch, who was traveling with her 68-year-old sister, Marjorie, said she struggled to free her legs from fallen luggage and other debris before trying to find her sister.

"I just took my leg out and then said, 'Where's my sister? I want my sister!'"

Marjorie Cumberbatch said she heard "thump, thump, thump. Then I looked up and I saw people over me screaming and crying."

Passengers who were unhurt were put on another bus and continued their journey, authorities said.

The coach bus was from

Rescue workers stand by after a bus overturned in a ditch at an exit ramp off Route 80 in Wayne, N.J. Saturday. The chartered tour bus from Toronto carrying about 60 people overturned on an interstate exit ramp. Three people have been taken to hospital with nonlife-threatening injuries.

Toronto-based AVM Max 2000 Charter Services Inc., state police said. The phone for AVM Max rang unanswered Saturday afternoon, and the company did not respond to an email Saturday.

The crash was the latest of several coach bus accidents over the past few years on American highways. Last year, a bus carrying gamblers from a trip to a Connecticut casino struck a guardrail as it entered New York City, then toppled over and hit a signpost that sliced off the top of the bus. Thirteen people were killed. A manslaughter trial for the driver began last month.

Saturday's accident backed up traffic in the area for hours while law enforcement officials and emergency services vehicles attended to the scene. Several highways connect there, and the area is known locally as the "spaghetti bowl," according to The Record.

CLEANING

Question:

With fall in the air, I've got the urge to get out and clean my windows before it gets too cold. I must be crazy, but I really want to do this myself. What tips can you give me for a positive and "streak free" experience?

"Clean Freak Avoiding the Streak!"

Answer:

I admire your energy! Get out now and avoid the freeze. Clean windows like the PROS with proper equipment. Use an extended squeegee with swivel action and get to all window shapes at any angle without streaking. With the extra extension handle, clean any window without a ladder. It also features a quick release mechanism, so you can change blades in seconds. When done, stand back and admire your dirt free, grime free, dog slobber free, and bird do-do free windows!

Cuban security forces escort Spanish citizen Angel Carromero, center, to the courthouse to attend his trial in Bayamo, Cuba, Friday.

Cuban Blogger Sanchez Freed from Detention

BY PETER ORSI
Associated Press

HAVANA • Cuban authorities released noted blogger Yoani Sanchez more than a day after she was taken into custody near the eastern city of Bayamo, where she traveled for a Spanish man's trial over a car crash that killed another prominent dissident.

Sanchez said via Twitter that authorities "deported" her and her husband back to their Havana home late Friday night, and that she had been held for 30 hours.

"We were released! Thanks to all those who raised their voices and their tweets so we were able to return home," she wrote.

Sanchez, her husband and another man were detained Thursday before they could reach Bayamo, where she said she intended to cover the trial of Spaniard Angel Carromero as a journalist. Sanchez has gained international fame — and raised the ire of island authorities — with her descriptions of daily life in Cuba on her blog Generation Y, and she also writes for Spanish newspaper El Pais.

Calls to Sanchez's cell phone were not answered Saturday, but her husband, Reinaldo Escobar, said police were polite, though they insisted the couple would not be allowed to attend the trial because their presence would be provocative. After a few hours at a detention center, they were loaded into a vehicle and driven back to Havana.

"They dropped us off in front of our building at night," Escobar said.

The detentions had been criticized by international press and human rights groups, as well as governments including Washington. Human rights monitors complain that Cuba has adopted a tactic of short-term detentions lasting a few hours or a couple of days to harass dissidents and disrupt their activities.

The Cuban government considers the island's small community of dissidents to be dangerous counterrevolutionaries bent on undermining its sovereignty, and bloggers aligned with President Raul Castro's alleged that Sanchez's real intention was to tarnish the court proceedings.

Carromero, who is affiliated with a youth wing of Spain's ruling conservative Popular Party, and a Swedish political activist traveled to the Caribbean island this summer to support dissidents. They were driving to eastern Cuba on July 22 when Carromero lost control on an unpaved section of road being repaired, and crashed into a tree.

Dissident Oswaldo Paya, famous abroad for a petition drive a decade ago demanding political change, and another government opponent were riding in the back seat and died in the accident.

ISRAELI JETS DOWN DRONE

BY IAN DEITCH
Associated Press

JERUSALEM • Israel scrambled fighter jets to intercept a drone Saturday that crossed deep into Israeli airspace from the Mediterranean Sea, shooting the aircraft down over the country's southern desert, the military said.

The incident marked the first time in at least six years that a hostile aircraft has penetrated Israel's airspace, and Israeli officials said they were taking the incident seriously, raising the possibility of retaliatory action.

It was not immediately clear who launched the drone, but suspicion quickly fell on the Lebanese Islamic militant group Hezbollah. The Iranian-backed group is known to have sent drones into Israeli airspace on several previous occasions.

Tensions are running high between Iran and Israel over Tehran's nuclear program, which the West believes is cover for the development of atomic weapons. The Islamic Republic denies the allegations, and says its program is for peaceful purposes only. Israel has threatened to carry out a military strike against Iran's nuclear facilities to prevent Iran from acquiring such weapons.

Lt. Col. Avital Leibovich said Israeli ground systems detected the drone, which flew over the Gaza Strip but did not originate there, Saturday morning. They alerted the air force, which scrambled the jets to intercept the aircraft. She said Israel was still trying to determine where the drone took off from. Nobody was hurt in the incident.

Leibovich said Israeli jets escorted the drone before deciding to bring it down in the northern Negev area, which is largely uninhabited.

The drone, which was downed near the Yatir Forest close to the West Bank, had spent about 20 minutes in Israeli air space, an Israeli military official said on condition of anonymity in line with protocol.

Amanuel Haile has been in the U.S. for six months after living in a refugee camp in Ethiopia.

The Survivor Who Wants to Shape His Future

When We Met

I met Amanuel Haile at the College of Southern Idaho's Refugee Center. I was about five minutes late for our meeting. Luckily, Haile was running late as well and showed up smiling and apologizing. He had caught a ride with a friend to meet me.

At 21, Haile's smile does not reveal he has left a great deal behind to be where he is today.

Haile was wearing a long-sleeved Aeropostale shirt, plaid shorts and black DC shoes.

For someone who grew up in Eritrea, a small African nation, this late-summer heat was nothing. It's the cold he's a little worried about. In a couple of months he will see snow for the first time.

He stopped briefly to say hello to a woman sitting behind one of the desks in the entrance. A large map of the U.S. hanging on a wall was the first thing I noticed when I walked in. Most of the rooms in the building looked like offices, but we found a place to sit around a large table in a conference room.

Haile has been in the U.S. for six months after living in a refugee camp in Ethiopia for five years.

At 16, Haile and two friends decided to make the three-day trek to the Ethiopian border. They went without food and water while trying to avoid wild animals like hyenas and the Eritrean military. One of his friends was shot by the military patrolling the border. The other friend did make it, and he now lives in North Carolina.

Haile left home because he wanted to go to college.

"You have to go into the military ... that's why I flee my country," Haile said. "No, I have a right to graduate and study whatever I want."

For the first time in years, Haile said, he feels "better," but in Eritrea he left behind two sisters and his mother.

"I can't get them to come here," said Haile, whose father died when he was 6.

Haile said the only way he will see them again is if they make the same dangerous journey he did or he returns home.

Why You Might Know Him

Haile is studying for the GED. Though he graduated from high school, the Eritrean government didn't allow him to receive his diploma.

When he is not studying, or teaching his roommates English, you might catch him playing basketball, soccer or frisbee golf at CSI.

"I always study and play basketball and visit my family," Haile said.

By that, he means he talks with them on the phone. Some days are harder than others to be away from them.

What's Next for Him

Haile plans to study nursing. He wants to help others and make money so he can help himself and his family. Haile said he is glad he lives in Twin Falls.

"It's peaceful and a small city," he said.

If he ever went to someplace like New York City, he said, he would be in shock.

Haile prefers the rural setting. But someday, he said, he will feel ready to make that journey, too.

DANCING PARTNERS

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

Irene Christensen of Buhl and her husband, Roy, celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary this month. The two were married during World War II while Roy trained with the U.S. Navy.

On the dance floor, through a war, through joy and heartbreak, Roy and Irene Christensen have shared seven decades.

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

BUHL • Seventy-three years ago, Roy Christensen asked Irene to be his partner at a dance in St. Edward, Neb.

Roy was 20 and Irene 17. She was the best dancer Roy had ever met. For a man who had been dancing since he was 4, it was an important quality he looked for in a future wife.

"I think I'll marry you," Roy told her that night.

And though he didn't propose on the spot, Irene said they have been "dancing fools" since.

On Oct. 3, Roy and Irene were spending a quiet afternoon at home in Buhl. A friend was coming over later and they would all go to lunch. That day was their 70th anniversary, but there were no big plans. Irene, 90, was dressed in a teal pantsuit and Roy, 93, in navy slacks and navy shirt with stripes. They sat in their living room decorated with family photos and plastic flowers. In one picture Roy stood in his garden; 1987 was written at the bottom.

That weekend they would celebrate their marriage with around 50 of their friends and family at an open house in Buhl.

"I can't believe we've been together for 70 years," Irene said.

Roy agreed, looking across the room at his wife, friend and mother of his two children.

Not many couples get to sit where these two are today. U.S. Census Bureau statistics from 2010 show that only 6 percent of married couples even pass their 50th anniversary. So even fewer get to celebrate a 70th.

The wind chime tossing on the Christensens' porch outside sounded a tune for the couple on their day.

A Ketchum man's research on the 1937 Guernica bombing finally comes to light.

BY KAREN BOSSICK

KETCHUM • Bill Smallwood had already written two dozen science textbooks, Gulf War books and biographies on Ernest Hemingway, Idaho Sen. Jim McClure and others.

But the effort he put into writing those paled in comparison with what it took to write his just-published book, "The Day Guernica Was Bombed: A Story Told in the Words of Witnesses and Survivors."

First, the Ketchum man had to live among Basque sheepherders in wintry conditions to learn their language, which he says may be the most difficult language on earth. Then he had to win over the confidence of people who still lived under the iron grip of Spanish dictator Francisco Franco to get them to tell the story.

"I went back to The Basque Country on Sept. 13, 1971. It was not until May Day that I had my breakthrough," said Smallwood as he described the clandestine meetings that a courageous Basque lawyer set up to help him collect 124 interviews with those who had

Your Idaho Spring Will Need these Bulbs

Bulbs are for believers. Anyone who would take a misshapen lump that looks like a sick onion, plant it in the ground in October and wait six months for a flower is either a visionary or a raving lunatic.

Part of the reason tulips, daffodils and hyacinths look so spectacular to us in the spring is that they show up right when our eyes have become saturated with the grays and whites of winter. Remembering to plant spring-blooming bulbs in the fall could be considered a litmus test of our ability to plan for the future. They are like little time capsules. You will plant them while the presidential campaign is raging around us, and they will emerge next April completely oblivious to whom we put in office.

Spring bulbs are also great teachers. Their spectacular but ephemeral beauty invites us to live in the moment, to stop and smell the hyacinths.

Bulbs work especially well planted under and around groundcovers and spring-blooming perennials. Although trying to time them too tightly can lead to disappointment, checking for approximate bloom times is important. Tulips in particular have a broad choice of flowering seasons. Typically they are sold as early-, mid- or late-blooming. In southern Idaho, early tulips will usually start blooming in late March, mid-season tulips in April and late bloomers in early May. Don't hold me to this because there are many variables that affect when they will bloom in any given year, so check your local listings.

You may have wondered about some bulbs being described as good for "perennializing." Avoiding the

After the night of their first dance, Roy and Irene dated for about three years. Then he enlisted in the U.S. Navy shortly after World War II broke out. He first went to San Diego and then was sent to Chicago to train at Navy Pier for aviation metalsmith. Around that time, Irene's family was moving from Nebraska to Twin Falls.

"He called me and told me there's lots of jobs in Chicago," Irene said. "So I decided to go to Chicago, this country girl."

She did find a job fairly quickly at a candy shop and cafe.

"I loved the big city," Irene said. "It was the first time I went on an escalator."

And the ballrooms, Irene said, were pure heaven. During the day they worked, and at night they danced.

"I'd get in for nothing, and she'd cost $1.13," Roy said.

On Oct. 3, 1942, Roy and Irene married in Chicago. Then Roy was sent to Florida and Irene followed by train. Their children Connie and Galen were both born in Florida. So when Roy was sent back to California to install jet engines in airplanes that patrolled islands in the Pacific, Irene went to Idaho to raise their children.

Irene wondered if it might be the last time she would see her husband, because he was soon told that he would be deployed to war. But he never had to go.

The same day he was given orders to ship out, WWII ended.

So Roy hitchhiked from San Pedro back to San Francisco — with a guy who said he invented the trigger for the atomic bomb that ended WWII.

At 4 a.m. Irene was wakened by knocking at the door and the face of her husband.

"I had no idea. I couldn't believe my eyes," Irene said. Roy kind of laughed and said: "We didn't have cell phones back then."

In April, the couple returned home to Idaho for good after living near their daughter in Billings, Mont., for four years.

They were so happy when she decided to retire and move home, and now Connie lives across the street. After 31 years in the livestock transportation business, the Christensens said they have a lot more friends in the area than in Billings — even though, Irene said, most friends their age are dead or in poor health.

"We've had a good wonderful life in Idaho," Irene said.

The couple said they never fought, but it doesn't mean they haven't experienced heartbreak together. In 1957, their 9-month-old son died. In 24 hours he was just gone, Irene said. Nowadays their home is often filled with the laughter of babies and children. They have three great-grandchildren.

So what is the key to their long marriage?

"Communication," Irene said. "And we did everything together."

Last year, the Christensens had to give up dancing — because of Roy's legs and Irene's knees.

But even though they can't waltz like they used to, Roy never forgets to give Irene a kiss every night and every morning.

Smallwood

been there on April 26, 1937, when Hitler used the tiny market town of Guernica as a testing ground for the bombing of civilian targets.

An enthusiastic traveler, Smallwood ventured into The Basque Country at the height of the Franco-led totalitarian Spanish government. The vacation started out as a lark, driving around in a convertible, pretty girls on either arm, too much wine. But when he broached the subject of politics he saw a fear in the people's eyes that he had never seen before.

"There are informants everywhere," he said one bartender told him, refusing to speak another word.

As he probed, Smallwood learned that the official Franco version of Guernica was that rebels had dynamited the town, while the people told a different story.

"I said, 'That deserves to be told. I'm going to go back to Idaho and learn Basque and I'm coming back for a year and I'm going to get the true story of what happened,'" he said.

Smallwood kept his word. A year later he returned, eventually piecing together the story of how Luftwaffe units bombed the town for four hours nonstop. What the bombs didn't destroy, fire did as it swept through destroying 80 percent of the town's buildings and killing even those who had escaped to the safety of bomb shelters.

The turmoil didn't leave Basques who would come to the Magic Valley unscathed.

Alicia Aldana Dredge of Rupert, who was interviewed for Rupert native Brent Baras' new "Basques in the West" film, said her mother told her stories about Guernica.

When the first bombs hit everyone ran out of their houses scattering in different directions, not knowing where to find refuge, she said. Her mother ended up in the woods, but even those hiding in the woods were not safe as soldiers with machine guns picked them off.

When the smoke cleared, 1,654 of the town's 5,630 inhabitants were dead.

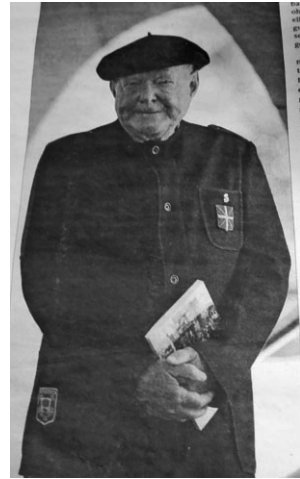

The arms factories and main bridge were intact, Smallwood said, showing the intended target had been civilians.

Smallwood said he interviewed one man who worked a newsstand who described how he threw two girls in a ditch and lay on top of them as fighter planes moved in shooting at those who ran. The fighter planes strafed him, leaving one arm hanging from the tendons. One of the girls took off her hose to wrap around him to stop the bleeding, and he was carried in a chair to the hospital where his arm was amputated.

"I later interviewed a woman in Boise who described the very same story. Needless to say, when I returned to The Basque Country, I returned with a big box of fancy cigars and cognac for that guy," Smallwood said.

But Smallwood's hopes of publishing his book were dashed just as he finished it, when a Dartmouth University professor wrote an article titled "The Guernica Myth" that said Picasso had been duped into painting that famous anti-war painting of screaming women and dismembered bodies. The article was republished in The Saturday Evening Post and other publications.

Smallwood put his manuscript away and forgot about it until former Idaho Secretary of State Pete Cennarrusa, who often served as a liaison between Idaho Basques and The Basque Country, told a Basque history professor. The professor got a Basque foundation to publish it.

"He said he never knew anybody had been interviewed," Smallwood recounted. "He said, 'It has to be published immediately and you have to present it at the 75th anniversary!'"

Smallwood received an expenses-paid trip to The Basque Country earlier this year to present his work. The book is available through Amazon.com for $28, and The Community Library in Ketchum has ordered two copies of the book that was buried for so long, said the library's Lauren Zondag.

"Bill is an extremely interesting man, so I can imagine the book will be as interesting," she said.

Smallwood is just glad it has finally seen the light of day.

"You have no idea the pain I saw in the eyes of people who had seen their husbands killed, their children killed," he said. "It was a tremendous relief finally to be able to do what I set out to do — to deliver the truth."

Dirt

issue of whether or not perennializing is or should be a word; aren't all bulbs considered perennial? The hard truth is that many of the really splashy varieties may live for only two or three years — similar to the shelf life of most boy bands.

A better way to refer to bulbs that will really take up residence in your garden is bulbs that will naturalize. These varieties will slowly colonize an area and can be counted on to return each year. In many cases daffodils are better at expanding their territory than are tulips. Some bulbs can be so good at naturalizing that they become a nuisance; grape hyacinths (Muscari) are a case in point. Don't be afraid to plant them, just make sure they have some room and that you won't mind them popping up in unexpected places after a few years.

It is important to plant bulbs deep enough. The general rule of thumb is to plant them two to three times deeper than the length of the bulb itself. If planted too shallow the bulb is more susceptible to frost damage. It is best to err on the side of planting too deep, as the only disadvantage of planting somewhat deep is that the bulb may be slightly later to emerge in the spring.

Whatever spring bulbs you decide to try, keep hope in your heart while you dig in the dirt.

ASK POLICEMAN DAN

Well here it is October already which means that once again I will be talking about domestic violence since it is Domestic Violence Awareness month.

I could talk about how three times as many people are killed by loved ones and acquaintances than were killed in the 911 murders. I could also talk about how more than fifty percent of the men in our prison system were raised in domestically violent homes. I could even talk about how going to domestic violence calls is the most dangerous call for law enforcement officers to respond to, but I won't this time. I will talk about how domestic violence affects us as a society.

Before we start here let me remind you that domestic violence is all about control. Controlling another person's behavior is the main goal. That control does not always or usually contain physical violence but will when loss of control starts to happen. That is why leaving a domestic violent relationship can be the most dangerous time for the victim and law enforcement.

First let's talk about the impact on children. Most of us know that children who grow up in domestically violent homes tend to become next generation abusers and victims. Sometimes these children start using bullying techniques to mirror what they have learned. This is often another reason that dating violence occurs. Children are visual learners and often repeat what they see or don't see at home. Often kids in gangs will tell you that parenting was something they never had.

We now turn our focus towards the employers. Billions of dollars each year are lost from employee absences. Many of these absences are directly related to domestic violence. Did you know that homicide is the leading cause of death for females in the workplace?

Here are some alarming statistics for workers dealing with domestic violence: 96% experience problems at work due to abuse, 74% are harassed while at work by their abuser, 56% are late to work, 28% leave work early and 54% miss entire days of work. Do you have employees that do this? There may be a reason.

All right, I know now you are saying, "But what can I do if the victim does not report the abuse to me, the employer?" Well here are a few ideas to try: manager training on how to recognize the signs of D.V. in their staff and how to discuss the workplace policies around the issue of awareness and increase sensitivity. Employers can accommodate employees' need for flexible schedules by not penalizing them if they need to attend court proceedings, meet counselors or relocate to a shelter. Employee training, brown bag seminars, newsletter articles and brochures on domestic violence are all ways that an employer can create an environment where it is safe to talk about domestic violence. Just to name a few. Warning for the employer: If an employee comes to you and reports they are a victim of domestic violence and you let them go, the Feds might be coming to explain why you can't do that.

I will end with asking for help. The Mini-Cassia Domestic Violence Shelter is holding a fundraiser on Oct. 13th at the Rupert Square at 2 p.m. called "Walk a Mile in Her Shoes." Men will be walking in high heels, including yours truly. My goal is to collect $5,280 ($1 a foot) and if the goal is reached I have agreed to also wear a dress. If you wish to donate please feel free to contact me.

HERITAGE CHARTER SCHOOL TEACHER AWARDED GRANT FOR CLASSROOM USE

JEROME • Ms. Ashley Freeman, a 3rd grade teacher at Heritage Academy Charter School in Jerome has been awarded a $500 Classroom Grant from Northwest Professional Educators, the state's only non-union professional teacher association. The award will provide Ms. Freeman's classroom with a digital projector and accessories to augment visual learning and efficient access the Internet, PowerPoint, and other computer-based aides which help to bring learning concepts to "life."

"Northwest Professional Educators is happy to provide Ms. Freeman this classroom grant to enhance student learning," said Ms. Omilin. "NWPE is proud to reward educators for their hard work and creativity in the classroom. Ms. Freeman's award is certainly well-deserved as she seeks ways to increase student achievement."

NWPE awards $500 teacher scholarships and classroom grants twice a year. Teachers who are new to the profession or their classroom are also eligible for $250 New Classroom Start-Up Grants. All educators are eligible for the awards although NWPE members receive first preference. The next application deadline is March 1, 2012. The deadline for New Classroom Start-Up Grants is December 31.

Northwest Professional Educators is a nonprofit, non-union, professional educators' organization focused on students as educators' highest priority and improving the professionalism of education.

Career Counseling Day to Take Place at CSI North Side Center

GOODING • The College of Southern Idaho North Side Center will hold a Career Counseling Day at the North Side campus in Gooding on Tuesday, Oct. 16. The day will consist of two free workshops to help people focus their job search and move forward productively.

From 9:30 a.m. to noon, individuals can investigate what kinds of jobs fit their talents and personalities through a career exploration workshop. Participants will discuss job options in a small group with a facilitator, and then take several online inventories that will help them assess their interests and possible job matches.

From 1 to 3:30 p.m., individuals can participate in a job-seeking skills workshop that will provide helpful tips for the job search process, such as how to prepare a resumé and how to present a strong interview.

"The career counseling day will provide practical

Career Fair Planned at CSI

TWIN FALLS • Students in the College of Southern Idaho's health science programs will hold a free career fair for the general public from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 20, at CSI's Health Sciences building on North College Road.

The focus of the fair is to reach out to the community, especially to young people who are starting to think about their future careers.

Admission is free to the community and to vendors in order to encourage as much participation as possible by both groups. Families can expect to find lots of activities geared toward their youngsters as well as career information and tips on healthy lifestyles and choices.

Activities will include a teddy bear clinic, mock emergency scenarios, tongue depressor crafts, better tooth brushing and hand washing, scrubs dress up, a visit from the Air St. Luke's helicopter, ambulance tours, and displays of many of the teaching tools used in CSI's health sciences programs. Prizes will be raffled.

CSI programs taking part in the career fair will include Registered Nursing, Practical Nursing, Radiologic Technology, Medical Assisting, Dental Assisting, Dental Hygiene, Surgical Technology, EMT/Paramedic, Physical Therapist Assistant, Certified Nursing Assistant and Addiction Studies. Representatives from CSI's Health Science and Human Services programs will be available to answer questions.

Anyone wishing to set up a display is encouraged to contact Becky Brown, CSI Associate Degree Nursing Instructor, at 732-6744 or at bbrown@csi.edu.

Buhl Public Library Hosts Identity Theft Program

BUHL • Did you know that identity theft is the fastest growing white collar crime in the United States? That $1.7 billion is reported paid out because of ID theft/fraud? That there were 729 ID theft victims in Idaho in 2010 and 50 in Twin Falls in 2005?

The Buhl Public Library will host a free program about identity theft from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 11.

Lyle Hansen from the University of Idaho extension in Jerome will discuss how not to be a victim of this now common crime. He will explain what identify theft is, how it happens and how it can affect your life; what warning signs people should be looking for and what to do if you should become a victim; how to minimize your risk; and free websites and contact information to help consumers fight identity theft.

Hansen, a Rupert native, is an associate professor and personal finance extension educator for the U of I and is also an accredited financial counselor. He has degrees in family financial planning and family consumer sciences from Utah State University. He has worked in insurance and banking besides education.

Hansen also will do another workshop from 7 to 9 p.m. Nov. 27, with an emphasis on personal finance and stretching your holiday dollars. He says he believes that the University of Idaho Extension and its staff are the best kept secret in the area, and one he intends to share.

SENIOR CENTERS OFFER BUS RIDE TO JACKPOT

JEROME • Come Party with us on the bus to Jackpot, Nev.

A bus will leave the Jerome Senior Center at 5 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 10, and arrive at the Twin Falls Senior Center at 5:30 p.m. to pick up anyone interested in going.

Dental Hygiene Class Holds Raffle

Students in the College of Southern Idaho's Dental Hygiene junior class of 2014 are conducting a raffle, proceeds of which will be used to help them attend off campus training.

The grand prize is 200 pounds of home-raised beef, which will be cut and wrapped by the end of January. Second prize will be the proceeds of a 50/50 raffle, expected to be up to $750 for the winner. Third, fourth, and fifth prizes will be themed gift baskets.

Tickets are sold for $15 each by Junior Dental Hygiene students at booths and CSI games. Tickets can also be purchased by calling Andie Dayley at 732-6751 or by emailing the CSI Dental Clinic at dentalclinic@csi.edu.

NKorean Soldier Defects to SKorea Across Border

BY HYUNG-JIN KIM
Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea • A North Korean soldier killed two of his superiors Saturday and defected to South Korea across the countries' heavily armed border in a rare crossing that prompted South Korean troops to immediately beef up their border patrol, officials said.

The soldier shot his platoon and squad leaders before crossing the western side of the Demilitarized Zone at around noon, a Defense Ministry official said, citing the soldier's statement after he was taken into custody by South Korean border guards.

The official, who declined to be named because questioning by authorities was ongoing, had earlier said one of the killed North Korean troops was a company commander but later corrected it, saying the information was mishandled in the first couple of hours of the development.

He said South Korean guards heard six gunshots before the North Korean soldier crossed the border. He also said the soldier used a loudspeaker to let South Korean guards know his intention to defect after the killings. The official said the motive behind the defection was unclear.

No unusual military movement was detected from the North Korean side of the border after the crossing, but South Korea immediately instructed its border troops to step up their guard, a South Korean Joint Chiefs of Staff official said. He also declined to be named, citing office rules.

There was no immediate comment from communist North Korea's state-run media. Defections across the land border are rare, though North Koreans occasionally come to the South by boat. Last year, a North Korean civilian defected to the South across the land border. The last defection across the Demilitarized Zone by a North Korean soldier occurred in 2010, officials said. Another soldier and an officer also defected to the South across the border in two separate crossings in 2008.

The vast majority of North Koreans fleeing their homeland travel through China and Southeast Asia before arriving in the South.

More than 24,000 North Koreans have arrived in the South since the 1950-53 Korean War ended in a cease-fire, not a peace treaty.

The area where Saturday's defection took place is along the route to a South Korean-financed industrial complex in the North Korean border town of Kaesong, officials said.

Border security has been tighter than usual along the border in the past few years as military and political tensions between the rival Koreas soared. In 2010, a South Korean naval ship sank and 46 of its sailors died in an incident blamed on North Korea, though Pyongyang denies involvement. Later that year, North Korea bombarded a South Korean front-line island, killing two marines and two civilians.

After 14 years in Power, Chavez Confronts Tough Challenger

BY JUAN FORERO
The Washington Post

CARACAS, Venezuela • Weakened from battling cancer and visibly bloated, President Hugo Chavez is fighting for his political life as he faces a presidential election Sunday against a charismatic challenger who has energized a once disunited opposition in a way none of the populist leader's foes ever has.

At stake is the president's experiment to remake Venezuela, a 14-year transformation characterized by the expropriation of private companies, diplomatic initiatives to counter U.S. influence and a near-mystical bond with the country's poor masses.

Two established pollsters show Chavez, 58, with a substantial advantage, underscoring the loyalty of millions he has commanded since sweeping into power in 1998. But two others have Chavez and the challenger, Henrique Capriles, 40, a lawyer and former governor who has never lost an election, in a virtual dead heat.

"This is seriously competitive," said Cynthia Arnsion, director of the Americas program at the Woodrow Wilson Center in Washington. "I would say it's the first time since Chavez was elected that the accumulated learning experience of the opposition and the accumulated problems of the country have brought the race to a place where it's almost too close to call."

The election is almost certainly being watched closely by Iran, which has found an ally in Venezuela, and myriad small countries in Latin America that have received aid in return for support against Washington.

The outcome is also expected to be tracked by energy markets. Venezuela recently surpassed Saudi Arabia as the country with the biggest certified oil reserves, and Chavez is considered a price hawk within the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries, or OPEC, an organization Venezuela helped found.

Capriles campaign officials said they believe that the large number of undecided voters in some polls will break for the challenger at the ballot box, leading to Chavez's defeat. It is a bold prediction that is buttressed by the opposition's recent revival after years of uninspired campaigning and the disenchantment many Venezuelans express to pollsters about decaying infrastructure, rampant violent crime and shoddy services.

But the president's advantage is undeniable. A state media apparatus has provided fawning coverage of the campaign, and his administration has provided prospective voters with gifts ranging from refrigerators to new apartments. "He has given love and made it easy for the people, the only president we have had who has had anything to do with the poor," said Sole0x241a Arcila, a nurse who came out Thursday for Chavez's last pre-election speech. "Chavez will be here forever."

Still, there are signs that things are not as rosy for the president as they have been in the past. Political analysts say Chavez's campaign has been lackluster, and nagging questions remain about his health, which is still a state secret.

CSI Basketball Teams Introduced at Bash

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Darius Johnson winked and waved to his new fans, who responded rather tepidly, clapping the same way they had for the near 50 players and dancers introduced before him. Half an hour later, Johnson jumped from behind the rim, spun 180 degrees in the air and dunked the basketball.

The response was much different; Johnson, officially a Golden Eagle.

The College of Southern Idaho men's and women's basketball teams put on a show for a few hundred fans Friday night at the annual Basketball Bash.

"It was nice to meet everybody," freshman guard Jaysean Paige said. "To see the vibe, how it's going to be."

Paige was one of the night's stars, finishing second in the dunk contest to Johnson. Paige played high school basketball at Perry High in Kentucky, where some nights nearly 5,000 fans would pack the gym to watch. It wasn't Paige's first dunk contest, either. Still, like his teammates, Paige appeared anxious to make a positive first impression.

"It's a lot different from where I am from," Paige said. "It's a lot more quiet and people are a lot nicer (in Twin Falls). I'm adjusting well."

Vandals Earn First Win

BY JOSH WRIGHT
For the Times-News

MOSCOW • Friday, Trey Farquhar got a surprise foot rub from an Olympic gold medalist. And Saturday, after Idaho's 26-18 win over New Mexico State, he earned something almost as rare for a place-kicker.

Praise from a quarter-back.

"This is the man right here," Vandals QB Dominique Blackman told reporters as he wrapped his arm around Farquhar in the media room.

Farquhar was perfect again on field goals in front of a season-high homecoming crowd of 14,755 at the Kibbie Dome. All four of his kicks, including two from beyond 50 yards, proved vital in Idaho's first victory of the season.

In a game filled with mishaps — particularly from the Aggies, who had four turnovers, eight penalties and two turnovers on downs — Farquhar's rock-solid performance stood out.

It was already a special weekend for the senior after Idaho alumna Kristin Armstrong, a two-time gold medalist in cycling, met Former Burley High basketball star Ben Searle suffered a severe concussion in 2010 while playing for Walla Walla Community College, which ended his collegiate playing career.

CONCUSSIONS NOT JUST A FOOTBALL INJURY

BURLEY • He had been there for a week, wrapped in blankets and holed up in his bedroom with the shades drawn.

Ben Searle's college basketball playing career had ended abruptly, snatched away from him by a serious head injury. But basketball wasn't his main concern at the moment. Instead, he wondered, Who is this woman taking care of me, and why does she call me Son?

It was January 2010, almost two years after Searle had left his hometown of Burley to attend Walla Walla Community College on a basketball scholarship. As a 6-foot-4 sophomore shooting guard, he was averaging 17.2 points per game and was the best player on the team, according to WWCC coach Jeff Reinland.

In high school, Searle had helped Burley High win back-to-back Class 4A state championships with a 53-1 record over two seasons. He also played football for the Bobcats, but quit after his junior year after two concussions left him with lingering headaches.

Then, on Jan. 9, 2010, just moments into the second half of Walla Walla's game against Columbia Basin, Searle ran down the court and cut across the baseline. As he entered the key, an opposing player's elbow caught Searle in the temple, knocking him unconscious.

When he awoke, Searle didn't know where he was. He didn't recognize his coach or teammates. He didn't know his birthday, or even who his parents were.

Minico Shocks Top-seeded Wood River

TWIN FALLS • Bang, bang.

It happened that fast. And suddenly the unbeatable team went down in the second round of the Class 4A District IV boys soccer tournament. Minico dealt No. 1-seed Wood River its first loss of the season, 2-1 Saturday at Sunway Soccer Complex.

"We just played with heart," said Minico co-captain Geovanni Mendoza. "I think our defense did good and that's what made the difference today."

The Spartans (7-7-3), who had previously lost 2-1 and 3-0 to Wood River during the regular season, had only one shot on goal in the first half, but generated six in the second half.

After 57 scoreless minutes, a Wood River full-back had possession of the ball when Minico's Geovanni Saldana picked his pocket and buried the goal that put the Spartans ahead 1-0 and left the Wolverines scrambling.

With the spark of momentum, Minico quickly struck again four minutes

Wood River (10-1-4) otherwise dominated play throughout the game, especially in the first half.

"Frustrated," said Wood River coach Luis Monjaras. "Just the fact that we could have finished it off earlier in the first half and we didn't."

The Wolverines had several scoring chances,

"They had a lot of shots, but we just got to work harder and do the same thing and turn it to them," said Minico co-captain Edgar Tapia.

Zack Freeman scored for Wood River during stoppage time.

Minico coach Armando Tapia said the key was a midseason switch of some players to the back line has helped strengthen his team's defense.

"Wood River is a great team, and winning a team like that is just going to boost our confidence. The win came at the right time," Armando Tapia said. "These guys are hungry for it. They want to prove to (last year's team that went to state) that they can also get it done."

Minico advances to play at Jerome Tuesday, with the winner earning a state berth. Wood River will play an elimination game Tuesday.

"We still feel very confident," said Monjaras. "If we have to go in the hard way, we've done it before. Just bring on who's next and go from there because we still have plans to go to state."

Boise State Routs Errant Southern Mississippi

ASSOCIATED PRESS

HATTIESBURG, Miss. • Joe Southwick threw for three touchdowns and Boise State took advantage of five turnovers to breeze past Southern Mississippi 40-14 Saturday.

The Broncos (4-1) won their fourth straight by intercepting Golden Eagles quarterback Ricky Lloyd twice and recovering three of four fumbles by Southern Miss, which is 0-5 for the first time since 1976.

The 5-1 edge in turnovers came one week after coach Chris Petersen's team used three New Mexico fumbles to survive a 32-29 scare.

"I don't know how we keep getting turnovers," Petersen said. "But it sure makes things different for us. I'm not sure why we're getting them — whether we're just in the right place at the right time or what — but as long as they are coming like they did today, we're going to be in every game and we have a chance to win most of them."

The first interception came on Lloyd's fifth attempt of the game and set up Southwick's 11-yard scoring pass to Matt Miller that put the Broncos on top 7-0. Linebacker Tyler Gray returned his first-career interception 34 yards to the Golden Eagle 11-yard line, and Southwick and Miller connected on the ensuing play.

The lead swelled to 24-0 at the half when another Southern Miss turnover set up Southwick's second touchdown, a 33-yard strike to Chris Potter with 6 seconds left in the second quarter. That proved to be an insurmountable deficit for the Golden Eagles, who came into Saturday ranked 119th in the country in total offense.

"That was nice to get that score there," Southwick said. "We got the ball back after another turnover, and we're thinking, 'Let's just get into field goal range.' Luckily, (Potter) was able to get free and get some separation. I didn't think he had moves like that."

Southern Miss' two touchdown drives came on consecutive possessions in the third and fourth quarters after Anthony Alford replaced Lloyd at quarterback, but the Broncos answered both touchdowns with scores of their own.

Southwick connected with Kirby Moore for 27 yards and his third touchdown pass to make it 37-7, and Michael Frisina added his second field goal of the afternoon from 31 yards out with less than three minutes left to close out the game.

Southwick finished 17-of-26 passing for 201 yards with an interception.

D.J. Harper led the Broncos in rushing with 14 carries for 51 yards, including touchdown runs of 11 and 19 yards.

Defending Conference USA champion Southern Miss gained a season-high 424 yards to Boise State's 310, but averaged just 16.9 yards on kickoff returns, 2.5 on punt returns and missed two first-half field goals from 33 and 38 yards.

JEROME NEGOTIATES CANYON RIDGE TEST

BY DAVID BASHORE

dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Sometimes a team can dominate every aspect of a game but the scoreboard.

For the better part of the Jerome boys soccer team's game Saturday at Sunway Soccer Complex, that was precisely the case. Finally, the Tigers broke Canyon Ridge's resistance and won 2-0 to advance to the 4A District IV Tournament championship game.

Firmly in control but unable to create many clear chances, Jerome (9-1-6) ultimately broke through when Jose Hernandez's anticipation left him in the right spot to capitalize on a mistake and slip the ball past Riverhawk goalkeeper Josh Clark.

"I just saw that their guy hit the ball wrong, and it was all instinct," said Hernandez, one of Jerome's captains. "Things happen, but we just wanted to stay up (mentally)."

With the lead, Jerome was able to play its direct, counter-attacking style to ruthless effect. A through-ball pass sprung Alberto Vidaca on a breakaway a short time later, and he likewise poked the ball past a helpless Clark to double Jerome's advantage.

From there was a matter of playing the possession game and keeping the ball away from Canyon Ridge, which looked sturdy in defense — the two goals notwithstanding — but offered minimal attacking threat.

"We were trying to play a counter-attacking game and we don't have the speed for that," said Canyon Ridge coach Derek Riddle. "We've been working on short passes and quick movement all season, but we ended up trying to play a different kind of game and we're not built for that."

Jerome advances to the district championship game yet again. The Tigers will host Minico on Tuesday, hoping to win back the title and clinch a state tournament berth — they reached the title game last year but lost to Burley and then got upset by Wood River and ended up missing state altogether.

Canyon Ridge (6-6-4) hosts Burley on Monday in an elimination game.

Cutthroat Boys Survive Bliss in Shootout

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Chris Nalen had never been in a penalty shootout before. He didn't even know all the rules.

One thing the goalkeeper did know was to keep the ball out of the net, and he did that twice to help the Community School boys soccer team beat Bliss on penalty kicks Saturday at Sunway Soccer Complex to survive the single-elimination first day of the 3A District IV Tournament.

The final score read 3-2, after the Cutthroats won the shootout 4-3.

"I just started guessing at first, and that wasn't working out too well, so I made sure to just watch the ball," said Nalen, conceding that the change in tactics afforded him a split-second less reaction time. "I've just got to use my height to my advantage."

Jay Fitzgerald put the Cutthroats (9-5-2) ahead in the first minute, and Ben Kanelitsas doubled their lead near the end of the first half. But Jesus Duenas pulled Bliss (4-8-1) level with a penalty kick and a header from a corner kick in the second half.

Cameron Jenner could have won it for the Community School near the end of regulation but his one-on-one effort slammed off the base of the post.

The Community School visits Gooding on Monday.

BUHL 5, FILER 1

TWIN FALLS • Kevin Hernandez scored a hat trick to lead Buhl past Filer.

Filer struck first on a goal by Eduardo Ortega in the 17th minute, but just three minutes later Buhl's Luis Carmona buried a rebound for the equalizer. Hernandez scored just before and just after half-time, then again in the 73rd minute. Buhl's other score came on a Filer own-goal.

Buhl (11-3-2) visits Wendell on Monday. Filer ends its season at 1-15-1.

WENDELL 5, DECLO 0

TWIN FALLS • Eder Macias scored a hat trick, including a goal 10 seconds into the game, to lead Wendell.

Jose Vielmas and Jose Barajas also scored for the Trojans (9-2-2), who host Buhl on Monday.

4A District IV Tournament

BURLEY 4, TWIN FALLS 0

TWIN FALLS • Armando Diaz scored twice to help Burley eliminate Twin Falls.

Jaxon Greener and Brenner Downs also netted for the Bobcats (4-10-3), who visit Canyon Ridge on Monday.

The Bruins end the season at 3-12-3.

Maddie Watkins, Mehli Marcellus, Jordyn Clark, Kylie Greenawald and Becca Behrens scored for the Bruins. Ashley Cox scored on a free kick and Jordan Giltner converted a penalty kick for the Tigers.

Jerome (7-9-1) hosts Burley on Monday. Twin Falls (15-2-0) hosts Wood River on Tuesday for the district championship game.

WOOD RIVER 4, CANYON RIDGE 0

TWIN FALLS • The Wolverines generated 12 shots on goal in the shutout victory.

Haley Montgomery scored a goal and assisted on another. Samantha Sutton converted a penalty kick, Bridgett Thomas netted a goal and Miranda Gasenica rounded out the scoring on an assist from Maggie Sfringi.

Wood River (10-5-0) will play at Twin Falls in the district title game on Tuesday. Canyon Ridge (6-7-2) plays Tuesday against an undetermined opponent.

BURLEY 1, MINICO 0

TWIN FALLS • Tally McCombs scored the only goal of the game, directing in a free kick from Aubrie Vale in the first half to eliminate Minico.

3A District IV Tournament

BLISS 3, BUHL 1

TWIN FALLS • Cassie Villavicencio's quick-fire double helped Bliss put away Buhl.

Estefany Altimirano scored the opener for Bliss, but that was canceled out by Buhl's Maria Montgomery. Villavicencio broke the deadlock in the 69th minute and then scored again from the ensuing kickoff.

Bliss (9-2-2) hosts Filer on Monday. Buhl ends the season at 2-13-1.

WENDELL 4, GOODING 1

TWIN FALLS • Hannah Lancaster had a hat trick, all assisted by Lupita Vargas, as Wendell advanced to play the Community School on Monday.

Naomi Diaz scored the other for Wendell. Taylor Anthony had the lone goal for the Senators.

Wendell (4-7-2) faces the Community School on Monday. Gooding ends its season at 3-9-1.

FILER 3, DECLO 2, OT

TWIN FALLS • Jenna Jarolimek netted the golden goal as Filer survived in overtime.

Jana Brown put Declo ahead in the ninth minute and the Hornets led until Miria Juarez tied it 1-1 in the 64th minute. Then the Wildcats took the lead in the 72nd minute on Darby Robertson's goal, before Declo's Cassie Treadaway tied it up with two minutes left in regulation.

Filer (7-6-4) advances to play Bliss on Monday. Declo ends its season at 1-6-7.

The two squads had at least one moment in the scrimmage, dunk or three-point shooting contest. The men won the three-point shooting contest 50-32, led by James Reid, who sunk 18. Candace Prestwich made 15 for the women. Point guard Montigo Alford had the play of the scrimmage for the men, spinning between two defenders for a double-pump layup. Adriana Dent turned her defender inside-out for two in the women's scrimmage.

While the women lost the three point contest, they outscored the men in the scrimmage, 23-21 to 23-19.

"The year we won the (regional championship) the (scrimmage) score was 7-1, so this is going to be a pretty good team," 11th-year Golden Eagles coach Randy Rogers said. "They were nervous though. These 11 freshmen didn't know what to expect playing in front of fans."

Dietrich boys basketball coach Wayne Dill was on hand to watch both teams, but paid special attention to his daughter, freshman Moriah Dill, who had a basket in the scrimmage.

"It's fun to see her play," Wayne Dill said. "It's fun to see these new teams. The guys can get the ball down in a hurry and get it in the hole. For a first deal, you come out and you still don't know what you have."

After a day spent raising money for the athletic program at the Fly Like an Eagle golf event, according to Rogers, many were tired. And still weeks away from a real game, there is very little known about either squad. But given the grins on the faces of those who stuck around for the player meet-and-greet, interest is piqued.

with the team Friday and took out her one of medals in front of Farquhar.

"She rubbed (my right foot) with the gold medal," he said with a smile. "It was pretty awesome."

Farquhar, who has yet to miss a field goal at home this year, matched a career high with a 55-yarder to end the first half. Instead of being up by just a touchdown, Idaho took a 20-10 lead into the break.

"He closed that the half with a little momentum," said Idaho coach Robb Akey, whose team beat an FBS team for the first time at home since Dec. 4, 2010.

The Vandals (1-5, 1-0) were coasting before New Mexico mounted a late touchdown drive, kept alive by an un-sportsmanlike penalty on Idaho's Quayshawne Buckley. It was his third personal foul of the game.

The Aggies (1-5, 0-2) converted a two-point play after their score to draw within eight points, but Idaho's Roman Runner pounced on the on-side kick. With 1:55 left and the Aggies out of timeouts, Idaho was able to run out the clock with kneel downs.

"So now we've won a game, we've just got to learn to win," Blackman said. "Winning teams would put that team away."

Despite a third 300-yard game for Blackman this season, he bemoaned a number of missed opportunities by the offense. Akey also wasn't

COLLEGE ROUNDUP

No. 6 Gamecocks Destroy No. 5 Georgia

ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBIA, S.C. • Connor Shaw threw two touchdown passes and ran for another, Ace Sanders had a dazzling 70-yard punt return touchdown and No. 6 South Carolina's defense dominated fifth-ranked Georgia in a 35-7 victory Saturday.

The Gamecocks (6-0, 4-0 Southeastern Conference) won their school-record 10th straight game with a performance that marked certainly marked them an Eastern Division front-runner — and maybe showed they're capable of even more.

N.C. STATE 17, NO. 3 FLORIDA STATE 16

RALEIGH, N.C. • Mike Glennon found Bryan Underwood for a 2-yard touchdown pass on fourth down with 16 seconds left, helping North Carolina State rally to beat third-ranked Florida State.

The Seminoles (5-1, 2-1 Atlantic Coast Conference) appeared poised to strengthen their grip on their division, leading 16-0 at halftime behind a dominating defensive performance. But the Wolfpack (4-2, 1-1) inched closer after halftime before coming up with a game-turning blocked punt with 2:27 left, giving the ball back to Glennon at the FSU 43 with a chance to complete a stunning comeback.

NO. 10 FLORIDA 14, NO. 4 LSU 6

GAINESVILLE, Fla. • Mike Gillislee ran for a career-high 146 yards and two touchdowns, bringing Florida to life in the second half to beat LSU.

Led by Gillislee and a dominant defense, Florida's grind-it-out victory provided a signature win for coach Will Muschamp in his second season in Gainesville. It was the program's first win against a ranked team since beating rival Georgia in 2010.

NO. 7 KANSAS STATE 56, KANSAS 16

MANHATTAN, Kan. • John Hubert ran for 101 yards and four touchdowns on just 10 carries, and Collin Klein had two touchdowns running and throwing as Kansas State routed Kansas.

Klein finished with 129 yards passing and 116 yards rushing to help the Wildcats (5-0, 2-0 Big 12) pile up more than 50 points for the third straight year against their biggest rival. They've won four straight against the Jayhawks (1-4, 0-2) since Bill Snyder returned as coach.

NO. 8 WEST VIRGINIA 48, NO. 11 TEXAS 45

AUSTIN, Texas • Geno Smith passed for four touchdowns, leading No. 8 West Virginia to another wild shootout win in the Big 12.

South Carolina quarterback Connor Shaw, left, throws a short pass to running back Marcus Lattimore during the first quarter of Saturday's college football game against Georgia.

NO. 9 NOTRE DAME 41, MIAMI 3

CHICAGO • Cierre Wood and George Atkinson III gave Notre Dame its first 100-yard rushing duo in a decade, and Everett Golson came off the bench to lead the No. 9 Irish in what was a very tame sequel to the famed "Catholics vs. Convicts" rivalry.

NO. 12 OHIO ST. 63, NO. 20 NEBRASKA 38

COLUMBUS, Ohio • Braxton Miller rushed for 186 yards, zig-zagging 72 yards for one score and passing for another, to lead No. 12 Ohio State before the largest crowd ever at Ohio Stadium.

Miller broke his own QB rushing mark at Ohio State (6-0, 2-0 Big Ten). Corey Brown returned a punt 76 yards for a TD, Bradley Roby brought back an interception 41 yards and Carlos Hyde scored on four runs before a raucous crowd of 106,102 in the Horseshoe's 90th season.

NO. 14 OREGON STATE 19, WASHINGTON STATE 6

CORVALLIS, Ore. • Jordan

Poyer had three interceptions, Sean Mannion passed for 270 yards and No. 14 Oregon State survived a shaky start.

Markus Wheaton had 95 yards receiving and a touchdown but it was the Beavers defense which kept the Cougars at arm's length on the day when Mannion, who threw three interceptions, was more down than up.

NO. 15 CLEMSON 47, GEORGIA TECH 31

CLEMSON, S.C. • Tajh Boyd threw for a career high 397 yards and DeAndre Hopkins had 173 yards receiving to lead Clemson over Georgia Tech.

The Tigers (5-1, 2-1 Atlantic Coast Conference) gained 601 yards, while the Yellow Jackets (2-4, 1-3) gained 483.

IOWA ST. 37, NO. 15 TCU 23

FORT WORTH, Texas • Jared Barnett threw three touchdowns to Josh Lenz, who later had a scoring toss of his own on a trick play, as Iowa State ended TCU's FBS-best 12-game win streak.

It was the first Big 12 home game for conference newcomer TCU (4-1, 1-1), which played without suspended quarterback Casey Pachall.

NO. 17 OKLAHOMA 41, TEXAS TECH 20

LUBBOCK, Texas • Landry Jones passed for two touchdowns, Blake Bell ran for two more and Oklahoma beat Texas Tech to avenge a home loss to the Red Raiders last season.

Both of Jones' touchdown passes went for 13 yards — one each to Justin Brown and Kenny Stills. Bell, in at quarterback, scored his touchdowns from a yard out.

NO. 18 STANFORD 54, ARIZONA 48, OT

STANFORD, Calif. • Chase Thomas intercepted a tipped pass by Matt Scott in overtime, Stepan Taylor ran for a 21-yard score two plays later and Stanford rallied from a two-touchdown deficit to stun Arizona.

Josh Nunes threw for a career-high 360 yards and two touchdowns and ran for three more scores for Stanford (4-1, 2-1 Pac-12) to offset Scott's record-setting performance.

NO. 20 MISSISSIPPI ST. 27, KENTUCKY 14

LEXINGTON, Ky. • Tyler Russell passed for two touchdowns and Mississippi State held Kentucky to just 228 yards on offense in the victory.

NO. 22 RUTGERS 19, CONNECTICUT 3

PISCATAWAY, N.J. • Jawan Jamison ran for 110 yards and Wayne Warren returned an interception 25 yards for a score as Rutgers suffocated UConn to remain undefeated.

PENN ST. 39, NO. 24 NORTHWESTERN 28

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. • Quarterback Matt McGloin scored on a 5-yard run with 2:37 left and Penn State rallied from 11 points down in fourth quarter to beat Northwestern.

PORTLAND STATE 77, IDAHO STATE 10

PORTLAND, Ore. • Kieran McDonagh threw for 280 yards and a score and rushed for four touchdowns as Oregon State dismantled Idaho State.

D.J. Adams piled up 148 yards on 14 carries for the Vikings.

Kevin Yost threw for 281 yards, a touchdown and two interceptions for the Bengals.

Late Friday

BYU 6, UTAH STATE 3

PROVO, UTAH • Freshman quarterback Taysom Hill passed for 235 yards and a touchdown, and Brigham Young's defense did the rest.

The Aggies (4-2) had a chance to tie the game with 7:47 left but Josh Thompson pulled a 38-yard field goal attempt wide left.

THERE'S NEVER BEEN A BETTER TIME TO BUY! UNLIMITED CHOICES! INTEREST RATES ARE LOWER THAN EVER!

Today is Sunday, Oct. 7, the 281st day of 2012. There are 85 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight: On Oct. 7, 1929, former Interior Secretary Albert B. Fall, one of the main figures of the Teapot Dome scandal, went on trial in Washington, D.C., charged with accepting a bribe from oil tycoon Edward L. Doheny. (Fall was found guilty and sentenced to a year in prison and fined $100,000; he ended up serving nine months. Ironically, Doheny was acquitted at trial of offering the bribe that Fall was convicted of taking.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date: In 1849, author Edgar Allan Poe died in Baltimore at age 40.

In 1858, the fifth debate between Illinois senatorial candidates Abraham Lincoln and Stephen Douglas took place in Galesburg.

In 1910, a major wildfire devastated the northern Minnesota towns of Spooner and Baudette, charring at least 300,000 acres. Some 40 people are believed to have died.

In 1949, the Republic of East Germany was formed.

In 1960, Democratic presidential candidate John F. Kennedy and Republican opponent Richard M. Nixon held their second televised debate, in Washington, D.C.

In 1982, the Andrew Lloyd Webber-Tim Rice musical "Cats" opened on Broadway. (The show closed Sept. 10, 2000, after a record 7,485 performances.)

In 1985, Palestinian gunmen hijacked the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro (ah-KEE'-leh LOW'-roh) in the Mediterranean. (The hijackers, who killed Jewish American tourist Leon Klinghoffer, surrendered two days after taking over the ship.)

In 1991, University of Oklahoma law professor Anita Hill publicly accused Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas of making sexually inappropriate comments when she worked for him; Thomas denied Hill's allegations.

In 1992, trade representatives of the United States, Canada and Mexico initialed the North American Free Trade Agreement during a ceremony in San Antonio, Texas.

In 2001, the current war in Afghanistan started as the United States and Britain launched air attacks against military targets and Osama bin Laden's training camps in the wake of the Sept. 11 attacks.

Ten years ago: In an address to the nation, President George W. Bush labeled Saddam Hussein a "homicidal dictator" and said the threat from Iraq was unique and imminent. The Washington-area sniper struck again, shooting and critically wounding a 13-year-old boy as his aunt dropped him off at school in Bowie, Md. British researchers Sydney Brenner and John E. Sulston and American researcher H. Robert Horvitz won the Nobel Prize in medicine. The space shuttle Atlantis lifted off on a mission to the international space station.

Five years ago: Tyler Peterson, a 20-year-old sheriff's deputy, went on a shooting rampage in Crandon, Wis., killing six people, including his ex-girlfriend, before taking his own life as police closed in. Nine skydivers and a pilot were killed when their Cessna Caravan 208 crashed in Washington's Cascade Range. In a race run in scorching heat that left one man dead, Kenya's Patrick Ivuti won the Chicago Marathon by a fraction of a second; another 250 runners were taken to hospitals because of heat-related ailments.

One year ago: The Nobel Peace Prize was awarded to three women: President Ellen Johnson Sirleaf of Liberia, Liberian activist Leymah Gbowee, and Tawakkul Karman, who began pushing for change in Yemen long before the Arab Spring. The Minnesota Lynx completed a near-perfect postseason by beating the Atlanta Dream 73-67 to complete a three-game sweep of the WNBA championship series.

IF OCTOBER 7 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You might appear to have your finger on the pulse of the business world between now and the mid-November. Good advisers and friendly advice can steer you clear of anyone, or anything, unsuitable. Because you can anticipate the ups and downs of commercial concerns and since your judgment is sound, you might do better than usual with investments or business strategies. In January and March, be sure that you pursue viable goals and that you don't get caught up in a romantic wild goose chase. Next April a period of opportunities and luck returns, so plan ahead so that you can use that month to put key plans into motion.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Enjoy every moment you have. There are no rewinds, only flashbacks. The urge to mingle is strong during the week to come, so be sure to plan on attending social affairs and get-togethers.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): They say that a sucker is born every minute, but the only sucker you care about is a lollipop. Even the smartest person can fall for a scam, but you have the advantage of wise advice in the upcoming week.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Play for keeps. In the week ahead, you can count on promises being fulfilled and apologies being accepted. Acting on generous impulses and striving to be a pillar of cooperation will not be regretted.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accomplishment builds self-esteem and confidence. Look around you and see what you have built up over the past few years. Take pride in your bank balance as well as your values in the upcoming week.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your life is a canvas, so make sure you paint yourself a whole lot of colorful days in the week ahead. Embrace every opportunity, no matter how small, and you may create lasting improvements to brighten your life.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Impulsiveness is your undoing. You know there are some things and people you should avoid. In the week ahead, spend time with people who are good for you while doing things that make you happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Approach, but don't reproach. Make it your mission to be as fair as possible when dealing with others in the week to come. Although you might overstep the bounds of propriety, apologies will be accepted.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The secret to success is to know where to find the information and how to use it. In the week ahead, you can easily improve your bottom line by ferreting out the details and putting them to good use.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Hit the ground running. In the week ahead, you will be able to see what is most important to you and might receive several opportunities to form bonds with people who have your best interests at heart.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Do not confuse motion and progress. A rocking horse keeps moving, but does not go anywhere. In the week to come, be sure that your activities and ideas have a genuine purpose and you will succeed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The smallest act of kindness is more powerful than the best intention. In the week to come, you can help the unfortunate, make a donation or just do something nice for someone without being asked.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your destiny is not fated; you have some control. This week, you might be tempted to make an impulsive change when loved ones don't measure up to your expectations. Ask for advice from a friend first.

If your RV has seen more driveway than open road advertise with a classified ad today.733.0931 ext 2

DEAR ABBY: My Aunt "Betty," with whom I have always been close, is 68 and retired. She is abusing prescription drugs and spends several days a week passed out or confused — sometimes hallucinating. I rarely call her anymore because all she does is mumble and make odd comments. Sometimes she passes out on the phone.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

My uncle is in denial. He comes from a generation where family problems are kept within the family. He refuses to seek professional treatment for her or get her into detox. Caring for Aunt Betty is affecting his health, but he refuses to budge.

Please don't tell me to notify her doctor — I already tried. Aunt Betty is an accomplished manipulator and doctor shops until she finds new doctors who load her up when the old ones won't cooperate. She does have genuine health issues that require meds, but her doctors have said she would never be stoned if she used them properly.

Confronting my aunt when she's coherent only makes her angry. She denies she's abusing drugs because "they are all prescription." My mom is dead and I'm worried about my aunt and uncle's health. Help!

— DESPERATE NIECE IN FLORIDA

DEAR DESPERATE: Start calling your aunt more often, because addiction is an illness and denial is one of the symptoms. Older people do react differently to medications than younger ones do, and a dose that might be tolerated when someone is middle-aged can be too great for a senior.

Because your uncle isn't able to insist that your aunt get professional help, allow me to offer a suggestion. The next time she passes out during one of your phone conversations, do what you'd normally do if someone else lost consciousness while talking to you. Call 911. When she winds up in the emergency room, her doctor will be alerted about the overdose. It would be a first step in seeing her get the help she needs. P.S. There's a common misconception among older people that because a drug is "prescription" it's somehow not addictive. And your aunt isn't the first person to fall into this trap.

DEAR ABBY: Our wedding plans have taken a sudden turn. My fiancée, "Carolyn," has a wealthy father with a reputation for being an extreme tightwad. Carolyn was profoundly touched when he offered to pay for most of the wedding expenses.

Last night, Carolyn's mother confessed to us that Carolyn's father is not paying for the wedding. He is deducting the expenses from Carolyn's inheritance from her grandmother. (The father is executor of her grandmother's estate.) He has no idea that his wife told Carolyn, and we're sworn to secrecy because she will get into "deep, deep trouble" if he finds out she told.

To make matters worse, he has the gall to make demands about the wedding as if he was paying for it himself.

Carolyn is so deeply hurt by this deception that she doesn't even want her parents to attend the wedding. All of the joy has gone out of the wedding for her — and therefore, for me as well.

Abby, how do you think we should handle this?

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

Dear Mr. Wolff:

At our club, my partner thought he should have tried for a grand slam on a hand where we bid six, making seven. The club expert's response was that in a local game, even if the grand seems likely to make, stay at six no-trump because club players rarely bid grand slams. So bidding a small slam at no-trump will virtually always tie for a top at matchpoints. Do you agree?

How High Is Up? Sioux Falls, S.D.

ANSWER: Your adviser was absolutely right. Grand slams are bid so infrequently that you need to know that EVERYONE will be in the small slam before you start thinking of one. On rare occasions, you will have a key-card auction that lets you count 13 tricks.

Dear Mr. Wolff:

When playing with an expert, I had an accident on this pair of hands. I held ♠ A-J-10-8-3-2, ♥ A-K-4, ♦ J-8-7, ♣ A, facing ♠ K-7-4, ♥ Q-J-10-7, ♦ A-K, ♣ 10-7-5-2. We were playing two-over-one game-forcing, and the bidding went one spade — two clubs — two spades — four spades — All pass. Where did we go wrong?

Missing Link, Lorain, Ohio

ANSWER: I agree with all the calls you made (a jump to three spades by opener should be a better suit). However, opener should continue with five clubs and not think of passing. I don't mind Blackwood with an open suit when my values suggest I don't have any real likelihood of two fast losers. Then responder can show his diamond control, and opener will not stop short of the small slam.

Dear Mr. Wolff:

What are your views on leading from three, four or five small at no-trump? If you select this suit to lead, should you lead high, middle or low?

Small, Medium, Large; Pueblo, Colo.

ANSWER: Circumstances alter cases, but with that caveat I suggest high or low from three small (certainly high from touching cards) and second highest from four small. From five, a lot depends on whether I think I might want a shift if my lead doesn't work out. If so, I'd lead second highest; otherwise, fourth highest.

Dear Mr. Wolff:

Recently you presented this bidding problem: ♠ 8-5-4, ♥ 5, ♦ K-Q-8-3-2, ♣ A-10-8-4. After your partner doubled two spades and the next hand raised to three spades, you suggested a cautious call of four diamonds, in case partner had a one-suiter in hearts. If your partner had such a hand, why would he not just bid four hearts himself, directly, rather than doubling first?

Getting to the Point, Bremerton, Wash.

ANSWER: You might double, then bid hearts with a hand based on high cards not tricks, since your values would be more flexible. By contrast, with a long solid suit and less in high cards, you might bid hearts directly.

Dear Mr. Wolff:

In one of your columns, after an overcall of a strong no-trump, a pair of French experts bid to a major-suit game. This was allowed to make on a sort of cross-ruff, leaving me wondering how often a trump lead would be close to automatic on such auctions.

Trump Attack, Dallas, Texas

ANSWER: Right you are! It is surprising how often it is true that when you are facing a strong balanced hand, you should lead trumps against the opponent's contract. The fewer points they have, the more likely they are going to need to take their trumps separately.
