Four years of growth has boosted the YMCA of Twin Falls' membership and offerings.

BY STEVE KADEL
skadel@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Matt Quesnell was a member of the YMCA of Twin Falls about 10 years ago, until he moved away.

Now back in the Hansen area, he re-joined the facility this past summer and got a surprise when he walked in.

"It has grown a lot," he said. "It's clear they put a lot of money into upgrading the fitness equipment."

The last four years have been a big growth period for the organization.

Membership jumped from 2,700 to 8,500, said spokeswoman Donna Cleland, and $1 million in facility upgrades and new equipment has been added in those years.

The growth coincides with Gary Ettenger becoming the Y's executive director. But he downplays his own contribution, giving much of the credit to the board of directors.

"The board was ready, willing and able," Ettenger said. "We've had a great board. Growth is not easy. It is really difficult to triple your membership and keep everything on an even keel."

Fatal Stabbing Followed Fistfight

Investigators weigh charges.

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The fatal stabbing of a 24-year-old Twin Falls man allegedly started with a fistfight, Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loeb said Monday.

Jeremiah D. Paiz, 24, died from stab wounds early Saturday morning following the incident at the Canyon Crest Dining and Event Center at 330 Canyon Crest Drive in Twin Falls.

Police arrived at about 1 a.m. Saturday and later arrested Cayde Lish, 21, of Twin Falls on charges of voluntary manslaughter.

Investigators are not sure who started the fight, Loeb said.

"We're still trying to investigate that," he said.

Loeb said investigators are sifting through witness statements to find out what was said before the fight.

"At some point during the fistfight, when the victim was hitting the suspect, the suspect pulled a knife and stabbed the victim," Loeb said. "That's the preliminary information that we have."

While the stabbing is confirmed as the official cause of death, Loeb said he had not seen the autopsy results and didn't know details of Paiz's

ELECTION 2012

Should Fishing, Hunting, Trapping Be Protected by the Constitution?

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • This election, Idahoans will be asked to vote on whether the right to hunt, fish and trap should be added to Idaho's state constitution. Here are the details:

What it's about: Sen. Lee Heider, R-Twin Falls, who crafted the amendment, said it's about protecting Idaho's heritage. Hunting, fishing and trapping have always been part of Idaho's culture, and adding the amendment will protect that heritage from future attempts to erode Idaho's wildlife management laws, Heider said.

The Idaho Fish and Game Commission supports the amendment.

"The Idaho Fish and Game Commission's legal authority to regulate hunting, fishing, and trapping is not impacted by this amendment," says an Oct. 3 open letter from the commission. "This amendment would also keep punishment for those who violate our wildlife laws."

Four Candidates on Ballot for CSI Seat 3

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • With four candidates, it's a busy race for seat 3 on the College of Southern Idaho's board of trustees.

The candidates are vying for the position that will be vacated by current trustee Allan Frost, who isn't running for reelection.

While many of the candidates have some education-related board or teaching experience, they have distinctly different goals if elected.

Kimberly resident J. Pat Branch — who is semi-retired, but is involved in ministry and veterans groups — said the cost of textbooks for students is "too stinkin' high."

He said he'd like to see the CSI board address the topic with professors.

"I would like to see the cost of books go down," Branch said.

Another thing he said he'd like to address is that students in programs such as equine studies and veterinary technology — as well as the rodeo team — need their own practice facility.

The Eldon Evans Expo Center, he said, should continue to be used for special events.

Branch also said he's a disabled veteran and would focus on making sure veterans who are CSI students get the counseling and advising they need.

Jerome resident Jack Nelsen — a third-generation dairy farmer — said his goals include making sure CSI is affordable and accessible to students.

Nelsen said one issue is representation on the CSI board from different areas of the college district, which is made up of Jerome and Twin Falls counties.

The college, he said, needs someone who represents the north side of the Magic Valley.

Nelsen said he's uniquely qualified to be a trustee due to his background in agriculture, arts and education.

"Not a lot of people have experience in all those things," he said.

Nelsen used to teach music classes at CSI in the 1980s and was pep band director.

"CSI has been a huge part of my life for almost 40 years now," he said.

Twin Falls resident Laird Stone

— an attorney — said the CSI board is "losing a tremendous amount of experience" since current trustees Donna Brizee and Frost aren't running for reelection.

"I thought my experience on the State Board of Education would help bridge that gap," he said.

Stone said he gained experience as a member of the state board with the budgeting and accreditation processes.

One of his goals is to keep education accessible for students of all ages.

Stone's wife is working toward an associate degree from CSI. He has a son who's a college graduate and another currently in college.

Jerome resident Michael Tylka — a retired businessman who used to work for telephone companies — said he wants to be on the CSI board for one term.

"As a retired person, I believe in staying active in the community," he said, adding that he wants to

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stocks Lower on Weak Outlook for 3Q, Asian Economy

NEW YORK • Investors looked warily at forecasts for poor U.S. corporate earnings and weaker growth in Asia and decided there wasn't much reason to buy stocks. The Dow Jones industrial average gave up 26.50 points to close at 13,583.65 points Monday. The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 5.05 points to 1,455.88 and the Nasdaq composite lost 23.84 points to 3,112.35. Companies in the S&P 500 index are expected to post an overall decline in profits for the first time in 11 quarters, according to FactSet. The third-quarter earnings season starts on Tuesday when aluminum maker Alcoa releases its results.

A view of the Perrine Bridge over the Snake River in Twin Falls.

Curious Mind Who Was That Perrine Guy?

Who is the Perrine Bridge named after?

The I.B. Perrine Bridge is named for Ira Burton "Bert" Perrine, who spearheaded the early 20th-century irrigation projects in the Magic Valley and is credited as the founder of Twin Falls. Perrine was an Idaho farmer, rancher, and businessman. He moved to Idaho Territory in 1884 from Indiana and established his operation in the Snake River Canyon in Jerome County.

After a recession that lasted from 1893 to 1897, Perrine pounced on the opportunity to develop an 'irrigated paradise' under the aegis of the Carey Act of 1894. Perrine received a gold medal for his fruit display at the 1904 Louisiana Purchase Exposition in St. Louis, Mo. The ranch remained in the Perrine family until 1964, when it was sold and became part of Blue Lakes Country Club. Beginning in 1893, Perrine persuaded investors to build a dam on the Snake River along with a canal system to irrigate the area. As a result, the Twin Falls Land and Water Co. was founded in 1900 and Milner Dam was subsequently completed in 1905. After Twin Falls was founded in 1904, Perrine served as a bank president and owned a hotel. Perrine is buried near his former ranch. Besides the bridge, I.B. Perrine Elementary School is named after him. The first bridge was named the Twin Falls-Jerome Intercountry Bridge, opened to traffic in September 1927. "At 502 feet above streambed, this new bridge was the highest in the world," said Gentry. By 1971, the original bridge was outdated and truck weight restrictions were imposed, said Gentry. Construction on the current bridge began in May 1973 and was completed in July 1976. The original bridge to the west was disassembled. Have a question? Just ask and we'll find an answer for you. One Injured in Morning Shoshone Street Crash

TWIN FALLS • A Twin Falls city employee was injured in a two-vehicle crash Monday morning. Joan L. Lang, 56, was driving her own vehicle on a personal errand and had to be extricated after the crash, city spokesman Joshua Palmer said. She was taken to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center. She is employed by the Twin Falls Police Department in its administrative division. According to Idaho State Police, Lang was driving west on Second Avenue East at about 8:20 a.m. in a Volkswagen Jetta. At the same time, Jesse R. Kindred, 68, of Kimberly, was headed north on Shoshone Street in a 2003 Chevrolet Silverado pickup. At the intersection of the two roads, Kindred failed to stop at a red light and collided with Lang, according to ISP. Twin Falls police and fire were called to the collision and provided traffic, safety and medical services, Palmer said. ISP took over the investigation of the crash to avoid any conflict of interest once first responders realized the city employee was involved. Both Kindred and Lang wore seatbelts. Lang was treated in St. Luke's emergency room and released.

CSI Starts Evening Welding Classes

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho welding program will start two evening welding programs the week of Oct. 15 at the welding lab in CSI's Desert building.

Introduction to Welding (WELD S004) is designed for the beginner who has little or no experience and would like to learn the basics. The class begins with safety procedures and moves through the basics of SMAW and GMAW welding. Class meets Monday and Wednesday evenings for five weeks starting Oct. 15, and the cost is $225. Special Welding is designed for the welder who has experience and would like to hone skills, earn certification, or learn advanced skills such as stainless steel welding. Groups are welcome. The class will meet Tuesday and Thursday evenings for five weeks beginning Oct. 16, and the cost is $225.

Arrangements can also be made for CSI welding instructors to bring the specially equipped welding trailer to your worksite or business to allow your employees customized training in familiar surroundings. The cost depends on the number of personnel and the time required.

Eight new board members were added recently, bringing the total to 20. "These are people who are very passionate about the Y," Ettenger said.

Recent success comes largely from the 140 classes and programs that are offered weekly. More than 6,000 people attend at least one group class each month, and Ettenger said more than 250 children attend weekly classes — not counting activities in the city pool, which the Y operates on behalf of Twin Falls.

He believes the membership boost would be even larger if the Y had more space.

The director is committed to adding even more programs for children, and a big future goal involves building a large space dedicated to children's activities. The Florence Gardner Trust has pledged $200,000 to help it become a reality but more fundraising is needed.

"Once built, we will have an incredible area for kids to exercise after school, on weekends and during summer," Ettenger said. "This is an important project and we need some more people in the community to step forward and help us."

He noted that national studies have found that one in three American children are overweight or obese. Many experts believe that number will grow to one out of two in the next several years, he added.

"For the first time in the history of the United States, the generation that our high school kids are in is expected to have a shorter longevity than their parents' generation," Ettenger said. "That's tragic and the Y needs to work hard to turn that around."

The $1 million in investments the YMCA has made includes the XR Zone, an area specifically for children ages 6 to 14. It's a high-tech environment that appeals to youths with a dance space, lights and other attractions that make working out enjoyable, Ettenger said.

Cleland added that the Y has Idaho's only Jacob's ladder, similar to the one seen on "The Biggest Loser" television series. She emphasized that other top-of-the-line exercise equipment has been added in recent years, too.

New activities are being added as well. The first of three community 5K runs will be held Oct. 27, with others on Thanksgiving Day and New Year's Day.

There's more work to be done, however. Cleland said the Y needs new roofs on the two buildings it owns, two repaved parking lots and four renovated locker rooms. Major mechanical upgrades or replacements, and improved energy efficiency enhancements also are necessary, Ettenger said.

He estimated the financial cost at $400,000 to $500,000.

"Our need is pretty great," Cleland acknowledged.

That's why membership prices were boosted recently and why efforts are under way to increase membership to 10,000 by January. Ettenger said anyone who wishes to give tax-deductible contributions may contact him at 410-2496.

"I have been absolutely touched by our members' overwhelming support of our fee increase," he said. "While I agree there is never a good time for a fee increase, members have approached me in large numbers stating that they want this Y to be here for their kids and for their grandkids and they are glad we are pushing on to keep it moving in the right direction."

Quesnell, the member who re-joined during the summer, acknowledged that the price increase coincides with tough economic times.

"Unfortunately, the Y isn't immune to that financial

T.F. City Council Approves Agreement to Update Wastewater Facility Plan

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • On Monday, the Twin Falls City Council approved an agreement with CH2M Hill to update its wastewater facility plan.

City engineer Troy Visek told the council that the plan is required to keep up with commercial and resi-

The plan will cost $178,093, and is subject to approval from the Department of Environmental Quality. The city's budget for the plan was $250,000.

injuries Monday.

It does not appear Paiz and Lish had ongoing problems with each other or even knew each other well, Loeb said.

"If they did it was extremely casual," he said.

On Saturday, family and friends of Paiz started a petition at ipetitions.com protesting the voluntary manslaughter charge and asking for Lish to be charged with murder.

"We must stand up for our friend JD, and victims everywhere for what is right, NOT what is cheaper and easier for the Prosecutor," the petition states.

As of 5 p.m. Monday, there were more than 800 electronic signatures on the petition.

Idaho law defines voluntary manslaughter as the killing of a human "upon a sudden quarrel or heat of passion," while murder must include "malice aforethought or the intentional application of torture to a human being."

The maximum punishment upon conviction of murder is death or life in prison; the minimum is 10 years in prison. Conviction on a voluntary manslaughter charge can result in a maximum 15-year prison sentence and a $15,000 fine.

While Loeb said he sympathizes with friends and family of the victim, he said most people don't have all the facts about the case yet.

The actual charges to be filed against Lish could be anything at this point, Loeb said.

"When police arrest someone, they do it with what they have at the moment," he said.

Today, Loeb said he and investigators are meeting to decide what Lish could be charged with.

"We'll look at what we think the facts are and look at what the law says," Loeb said. "We'll determine by (Tuesday) what the charges should be."

Loeb said if Lish is officially charged, he'll be arraigned at 1 p.m. today at the Twin Falls County Courthouse.

Online court records show Lish was ordered to start two years of supervised probation in Twin Falls County on Aug. 7 for a second driving under the influence charge. In May, he was placed on a year of unsupervised probation in Lincoln County for buying or consuming alcohol as a minor, the court records show.

Police are still looking for more information on the fatal stabbing. As of Monday, Loeb said only two people are officially eyewitnesses to the alleged crime.

"If people are eyewitnesses to this, have them call police," Loeb said. "A lot of people were there and just scattered."

Twin Falls police can be reached at 735-4357.

On the academic side, Tylka said he's particularly interested in the "technical side of things," such as training programs for "young people who aren't degree-oriented."

Tylka previously taught business administration classes at Pima Community College in Arizona.

"I believe in getting an education," he said.

When it comes to economic development, Stone said he'd like the board to look at training opportunities for businesses already in the area.

He said he looks at CSI as an economic development tool.

"CSI is a tremendous asset to the Magic Valley," he said.

On the topic of academic degrees, Branch said he's not in favor at this point of CSI becoming a four-year degree provider at this point.

He said he'd like the college to continue working with four-year universities, as well as grow its own health science programs.

Stone said he'd like to see CSI develop more agreements with four-year universities.

Canyon Park Proceeds; Next Step, Infrastructure

BY STEVE KADEL
skadel@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The developer of a 200,000-square-foot shopping center on the south Snake River Canyon rim may be close to getting approval to build infrastructure for the project.

Gerald Martens of EHM Engineers, the firm doing the Canyon Park design work, said Monday the site development plan will be given to city of Twin Falls officials within a week.

The plan outlines where roads and utilities will be located as well as parking areas, landscaping and drainage features. If the city engineering department approves the plan, it frees Canyon Park Development to begin adding those elements.

The project is planned for a section of empty land just west of the Perrine Bridge and the Buzz Langdon Visitor Center.

Martens said he anticipates approval before the end of the year, "which will allow us to begin improvements in the spring."

"We are in the process of finalizing lot dimensions so we can record the plat," he said. "There is no change in the basic plan, just minor adjustments among the various users."

Reene Carraway, city zoning and development manager, said the City Council has already approved the final plat but it hasn't been recorded. The document requiring engineering department sign-off is the construction plan.

That still wouldn't give Canyon Park Development the green light to construct buildings, she added. A separate building plan must be submitted and gain building department approval for that to begin.

Twin Falls Community Development Director Mitch Humble noted that work has progressed on the site near Golden Corral during the summer.

"They are pushing dirt around and that's OK," he said. "They are grading and flattening. They can dig a hole but can't put a water or sewer line in it."

The project calls for 12 lots for shops and restaurants on 25 acres. The construction price is estimated at $25 million.

St. Luke's Home Care Comes to Hailey

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

HAILEY • St. Luke's Home Care will open a branch office in the Wood River Valley on Oct. 10, according to the health system's staff.

St. Luke's Home Care is currently available in McCall, the Treasure Valley and Magic Valley. The service provides health care in a patient's home at any age or stage of life, according to Mary Lou Long, St. Luke's director of Home Care.

Services include skilled nursing, physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, social work, nutritional counseling, respiratory therapy and home health aide service. However, St. Luke's is not offering hospice service.

Some of the staff working for St. Luke's Home Care will be the same staff currently employed by Idaho Home Health and Hospice, Lou Long said. The two organizations do not have a "no-compete" clause in their staffs' contracts, and allow therapists and nurses working for either provider to work for both organizations.

Idaho Home Health and Hospice doesn't plan to leave or cut back its services, said Merrilee Stevenson, nursing director for the Wood River Valley home care provider.

"We're not going anywhere. We've been providing a service to that area for 25 years," Stevenson said.

St. Luke's will have a six-person staff. Idaho Home Health and Hospice employs 10 people.

The St. Luke's office will be located in the Hailey Clinic building at 1450 Aviation Drive.

NO GATE ON GROWTH

A Twin Falls gate manufacturer has seen business boom.

TWIN FALLS • Eagle Gate Systems of Twin Falls has an enviable business problem.

The company is suddenly so busy that its staff is running at full speed just to handle all the orders.

"We're having the best year we've ever had," said Tom Skeem, owner of the 13-year-old security gate business. "We're up 70 percent over last year."

He's hired some part-time workers to help installer Zac Hutchins and office manager Joan Spencer, and is considering adding more full-time employees in the future.

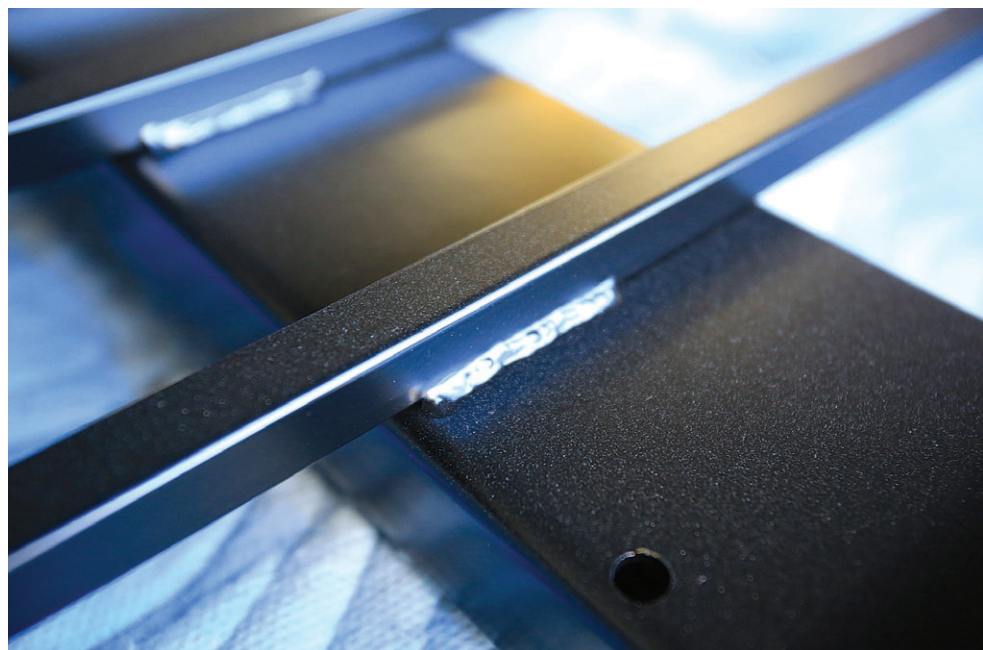

"We're very small," Skeem said. "We always have been. It doesn't take much to make us feel overwhelmed."

But the boost in business is something he welcomes, whether it comes from an improving local economy or the fact that Eagle's reputation is starting to get noticed.

"It's probably a mixed thing," the owner said. "Some of it seems to be that people who wanted to do something with a gate are now ready."

Hutchins loaded up another gate Monday morning that is destined for a Twin Falls self-storage facility. It received its finish from Idaho Powder Coatings in Kimberly, which does frequent work for Eagle Gate. Powder Coating shop manager Eric Fowler said the black exterior surface will last seven to 10 times longer than paint.

applying its powder coating. "We've used Powder Coating for years, and it's always been a good product," Skeem said.

Eagle's customers are a mix of residential and commercial buyers. Blaine County homeowners have become a particularly good market — about half of Eagle's sales — because the company has built relationships with developers there over the years, Skeem said.

Eagle's focus is on gate automation. There are several options for customers, from radio transmitters to telephone entry and card reader opening systems. Some are computer-programmable so the owner can track who entered the gate and when.

Exit detectors open the gate automatically when people are leaving.

The product is manufactured at Eagle's location at 2188 Fourth Ave. E. in Twin Falls.

Skeem came to the security gate business by way of his father, who worked in the industry and developed a product called the silent operating sensor, which sold nationally.

"He was involved early on in the gate industry," Skeem said.

Mine Layoffs Hit Hard in Challis, Salmon

BY ZACH KYLE
Post Register

CLAYTON • Custer County and nearby communities were left reeling after 104 workers were laid off from the Thompson Creek Mine.

Thompson Creek Metals, which owns the molybdenum mine, announced Wednesday it was suspending the stripping aspect of the operation.

Losing 100 jobs will ratchet Custer County's unemployment rate from 6.7 to 10.7 percent, said Will Jenson, regional labor economist for the Idaho Department of Labor.

That number doesn't take into account that many mine employees hail from Salmon, Mackay and the surrounding area, Jenson said. But the actual figure could be worse.

"A lot of businesses in the area survive off of wages that are earned and spent by Thompson Creek employees," Jenson said. "When there's a layoff of 100 people, it won't just be limited to those 100 people."

Chairman and CEO Kevin Loughery said the declining value of molybdenum and weakening demand for it domestically, as well as in China and Europe, prompted the cut.

Loughery said the company will save about $100 million by halting stripping.

The remaining workforce of about 300 will continue mining ore that already has been stripped until the end of 2014, he said. The company then will re-evaluate the operation. If the market doesn't rebound, the operation will close until the market improves, Loughery said.

"There's no question about that," Loughery said. "If between now and the end of 2014 there's no stripping, we won't (resume operations)."

With the exception of Idaho National Laboratory, layoffs of more than 100 employees are rare in eastern Idaho, Jenson said.

More than 120 workers lost their jobs when the Idahoan Foods potato processing plant near Dubois closed in 2009. The last major mine layoff came in 1999 when as many as 200 workers lost jobs after the Bear Track Mine near Salmon closed, Jenson said.

Melissa Fitzgerald, executive director for the Challis Area Chamber of Commerce, said she wasn't ready to comment on the long-term consequences. But she said the news wasn't good.

"We recognize this is a big blow to the individuals in our community," Fitzgerald said. "Layoffs, of course, have a large impact on our local economy."

Wells Fargo Creates Military Affairs Program

TWIN FALLS • Wells Fargo has created a military affairs program to boost efforts to serve active duty military and veterans. The company, which has three outlets in Twin Falls, plans to emphasize getting active duty military and veterans into homes, helping veterans get back to work and providing financial education training.

"It's an honor to serve those who have selflessly put their lives on the line for our freedom," said Jon Campbell, head of Wells Fargo community and government relations. "We created the Military Affairs Program to expand our outreach to members of the military, veterans and their families who may be facing financial hardships — it is part of our commitment to helping communities succeed by being a part of the solution."

As the top originator of VA loans, Wells Fargo will continue to help provide safe, sustainable housing to veterans and active duty military through quality mortgages, financial assistance and donations via non-profit organizations, the company said in a news release. Wells Fargo is continuing to get veterans back to work by providing mentoring and networking opportunities, offering interview and resume preparation and hiring veterans through the Heros2Hired Program. Additionally, Wells Fargo plans to increase the financial education training it provides through nonprofit organizations.

Cogan Passes Financial Regulatory Exam

TWIN FALLS • In an effort to expand the services that Brian Cogan can offer his tax and accounting clients, Cogan has passed the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority's exam that designates him as an investment company and variable contracts representative.

The test gauges candidates' knowledge of investment products such as mutual funds, unit investment trusts and certain types of money market funds.

"Passing this exam will allow me to expand my business to include financial services," said Cogan.

He has chosen to affiliate with H.D. Vest Investment Services. The company supports an independent network of tax and non-tax professionals who provide comprehensive financial planning solutions, including securities, insurance, money management services and banking solutions.

Approximately 4,800 independent contractors manage more than $28 billion in assets for 1.8 million individuals, families and small businesses in all 50 states. Cogan joined H.D. Vest in 2012 after deciding to broaden his services beyond accounting, income tax preparation and QuickBooks support.

US Panel: China Tech Giants Pose Security Threat

BY MATTHEW PENNINGTON
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • American companies should avoid sourcing network equipment from China's two leading technology firms because they pose a national security threat to the United States, the House Intelligence Committee warned Monday.

The panel said in a report that U.S. regulators should block mergers and acquisitions in this country by Huawei Technologies Ltd. and ZTE Corp, among the world's leading suppliers of telecommunications gear and mobile phones.

Reflecting U.S. concern over cyber-attacks traced to China, the report also recommends that U.S. government computer systems not include any components from the two firms because that could pose an espionage risk.

"China is known to be the major perpetrator of cyber-espionage, and Huawei and ZTE failed to alleviate serious concerns throughout this important investigation. American businesses should use other vendors," the committee's chairman, Rep. Mike Rogers, R-Mich, told a news conference. He said the Chinese companies could not be trusted with access to computer networks that support everything from power grids to finance systems.

The recommendations are the result of a yearlong probe, including a congressional hearing last month in which senior Chinese executives of both companies denied posing a security threat and being under Beijing's influence.

Rogers said they are clearly tied to the Chinese government, and that allowing Huawei and ZTE to provide network equipment and services in America risks confidential consumer information and undermines core national security interests. He said the committee was not concerned about the sales of handsets that make up the bulk of their U.S. businesses, but rather network infrastructure where they have made fewer inroads.

William Plummer, vice president for external affairs for Huawei, said his company, a private entity founded by a former Chinese military engineer, was being victimized because of U.S. government concerns about China's government.

House Intelligence Committee's chairman, Rep. Mike Rogers, R-Mich

"Huawei is Huawei, Huawei is not China," he told reporters. "My company should not be held hostage to someone's political agenda."

Ahead of the report's release, China's foreign ministry said investment by telecommunications companies is mutually beneficial. "We hope the U.S. will do more to benefit the interests of the two countries, not the opposite," spokesman Hong Lei said at a regular briefing in Beijing Monday.

The panel's recommendations, however, will likely hamper Huawei and ZTE's ambitions to expand their businesses in America. Their products are used in scores of countries, including in the West.

The bipartisan report could also become fodder for a presidential campaign in which the candidates have been competing in their readiness to clamp down on Chinese trade violations. Republican Mitt Romney, in particular, has made it a key point to get tougher on China by designating it a currency manipulator and fighting abuses such as intellectual property theft.

Rogers said its release had nothing to do with politics, and was motivated by the need to alert U.S. companies of the risks. The committee's top Democrat, C.A. Dutch Ruppersberger, said U.S. companies should proceed with "their eyes wide open." He cited an estimate from the U.S. Cyber Command that more than $300 billion in U.S. trade secrets was stolen last year.

GM Moves to Bring Computer Technology In-house

BY TOM KRISHER
Associated Press

DETROIT • Now hiring in Detroit: scads of software developers and programmers.

General Motors is moving past layoffs and the Motor City's rusty, low-tech image. It's setting out on its own to develop software and invent the most advanced gizmos for your car.

The nation's biggest automaker plans to hire up to 10,000 computer professionals in the next three-to-five years as it tries to lead the auto industry with cutting-edge technology.

It's a bold and expensive move, counter to the industry's history of buying software and other electronic applications from outside companies. Experts say it's also the start of a trend as manufacturers realize that software is among the few things that will set them apart from competitors.

"The companies that build the software themselves in general are going to have an advantage," says David Kirkpatrick, author of a book about Facebook and CEO of Techonomy Media Inc., a New York firm that specializes in setting up technology conferences. "If you outsource the development of software in particular to others, you can risk ... your own ability to compete in the future."

General Motors Co. isn't alone in trying to move more technology development under its roof. But the plans of its biggest competitor, Ford Motor Co., aren't nearly as ambitious.

GM aims to bring 90 percent of its computer technology work into the company by recruiting workers to four new information technology centers around the nation. Ford recently joined GM, BMWAG and Renault-Nissan in opening a technology office in California's Silicon Valley, although it's staffed by only about 15 people.

GM's first "Information Technology Innovation Center" was announced last month in Austin, Texas, with plans to hire 500 programmers and software experts. And Monday the carmaker unveiled plans to hire 1,500 more at a second computer center in Warren, Mich., on the campus of its big tech center. GM already has product designers, engineers and other technical experts at the site, including the team that created the Chevrolet Volt electric car.

The other two sites haven't been revealed.

Staff at the centers will try to stay on top of software trends. They'll develop the latest ways to link smartphones with cars or control a vehicle's heating and air conditioning with voice commands. They'll also be counted on to invent technology that no one's thought of yet. And GM also sees long-term cost savings when the centers are fully in operation.

Canyon Park

"We have firm commitments for a majority of the space," Martens said, declining to name specific tenants.

He said there could potentially be 12 tenants, but called that "highly unlikely" because some businesses will probably occupy more than one lot.

In April, Humble told the Times-News that a Kohl's department store will be one of the tenants. No other tenants have been named.

Humble said the identity of the businesses may become known when they apply for a building permit. That's what happened when Walmart and Jimmy John's came to town, he said. However, sometimes space is built as a leased shell or "speculation space" and an occupant won't be listed on documents.

The proposed development became controversial in May and early June when some citizens began a movement to block what they called a visual blight on the rim. A few people spoke during Planning and Zoning Commission and City Council meetings while others sent letters to the Times-News voicing their opposition. One writer said, "Mother Nature has already developed the rim as it is."

Opposition to the development appears to have become less vocal since the council's vote. Carraway said Monday she has not received any calls objecting to Canyon Park for the past few months.

Danish Saxophonist John Tchicai Dies

COPENHAGEN (AP) • Danish saxophonist and pioneer of free jazz in Europe, John Tchicai, has died. He was 76.

Tchicai moved to New York in 1963 and co-founded The New York Contemporary Five with Archie Shepp. He later became a leading figure of the jazz avant-garde movement in Europe. He also played with John Coltrane, Milford Graves, Carla Bley and Steve Swallow.

Tchicai was born to a Danish mother and a Congolese father in Denmark. He returned to Europe in 2001 and eventually settled in southern France.

His former wife, Margriet Naber, said Monday that he had died in the hospital earlier that day. No cause of death was given but Tchicai has been in a coma since suffering a brain hemorrhage in June.

No funeral arrangements were immediately available.

New Studies Link Hearing Loss to Several Medical Problems
Research Shows Importance of Early Detection

— Chicago, IL
New research now connects hearing loss to a wide assortment of health issues. These findings appear to indicate that hearing loss, a condition currently untreated in about 85% of those affected, may, in fact, be the nation's most damaging and costly sensory concern.

Untreated Hearing Loss Could Put You at Risk

found that individuals who neglect or ignore hearing loss put themselves at greater danger for a broad range of physical, cognitive and emotional problems, including dementia, depression, irritability and balance issues. Even mild hearing loss was shown to triple the chance of falls, especially among older adults.

Many Everyday Illnesses Can Harm Hearing

Scientific findings now point to an extensive list of common medical conditions — from high blood pressure and diabetes to measles and chicken pox — as potential causes for hearing damage. Even more surprisingly, a list of over 200 medications, including common antibiotics, allergy drugs and even aspirin — can result in permanent or short-term hearing loss.

A Simple Hearing Screening — Your First Line of Defense

"With so much evidence emerging on the potential link between hearing loss and various illnesses and medications, it becomes all the more pressing for people to identify and address hearing loss early on," says Dr. Sergei Kochkin, executive director of the Better Hearing Institute (BHI). Treating hearing loss at its onset can slow, or even stop, its progression, along with many serious physical and psychological illnesses.

That is why experts urge anyone over 50 to make hearing screenings a routine part of their medical care. It is also recommended that before starting any medication, a licensed hearing care professional should establish a baseline record of an individual's hearing, in order to track potential changes over time.

Good News — Today's Hearing Aids are Incredibly Effective

For people diagnosed with a hearing loss, recent breakthroughs in design and sound processing have enabled today's hearing aids to be extremely small, and offer a remarkably natural listening experience. Modern hearing aids actually know how to prioritize what wearers need to hear, and how to suppress, or block, extraneous noise.

New hearing aids are so small, they practically vanish in the ear.

SYRIA'S CROSS-BORDER SALVOS MEANT TO SEND MESSAGE TO TURKEY

BEIRUT (AP) • Syria's cross-border attacks on Turkey in the past week look increasingly like they could be an intentional escalation meant to send a clear message to Ankara and beyond, that the crisis is simply too explosive to risk foreign military intervention.

With Turkey eager to defuse the crisis, the spillover of fighting is giving new life to a longshot political solution, with the Turks floating the idea of making President Bashar Assad's longtime vice president, Farouk al-Sharaa, interim leader if the president steps aside.

A military option — which would involve foreign powers that already have expressed a deep reluctance to getting involved in the crisis — is still not on the table, analysts say, despite six consecutive days of Turkish retaliation against bombardment from inside Syria.

"Syria is aware that Turkey cannot go a step further," said Ali Tekin, assistant professor of International Relations at Ankara's Bilkent University. "The Turkish people don't want a war and there are no vital national interests at stake to warrant a war. Syria sees this."

The most recent flare-up between Syria and Turkey started Wednesday, when a shell fired from Syria slammed into a house in the Turkish border village of Akcakale, killing two women and three children. That set off the most serious and prolonged eruption of violence along the frontier since the uprising began nearly 19 months ago.

Although it was not clear whether Wednesday's shelling was intentional, Turkey responded swiftly by firing back and convening parliament for a vote that authorized further cross-border military operations if necessary.

Turkish Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan cautioned Damascus not to test Turkey's "limits and determination." But the Syrian shelling has continued every day — leading many observers to conclude the acts are intentional provocation.

"It's not an accident. You can't send shells across the border by mistake five days in a row," said Mustafa Alani, a Middle East analyst of the Geneva-based Gulf Research Center, just hours before Syrian shelling struck Turkey for a sixth day.

There have been no other reports of casualties from the shelling since Wednesday's deaths.

An activist group said Monday the number of people killed in the conflict crossed the threshold of 32,000.

Romney: Obama Made Middle East Less Secure

LEXINGTON, Va. • Barack Obama's chief foreign policy achievement was his order to carry out the raid in Pakistan that killed Osama bin Laden. But Mitt Romney challenged his rival, arguing Obama has not done enough to secure peace in the Middle East, allowing terrorists to build strength while "leaving our destiny at the mercy of events."

During a formal foreign policy address at the Virginia Military Institute, Romney said Americans should take pride "in the blows that our military and intelligence pro-professionals have inflicted on al-Qaida" in Pakistan and Afghanistan — which he called "real achievements won at a high cost."

But he said al-Qaida "remains a strong force in Yemen and Somalia, in Libya and other parts of North Africa, in Iraq, and now in Syria."

"Drones and the modern instruments of war are important tools in our fight, but they are no substitute for a national security strategy for the Middle East," Romney said.

High Court Looks at Race in College Admissions

WASHINGTON (AP) • Nine years after the Supreme Court said colleges and universities can use race in their quest for diverse student bodies, the justices have put this divisive social issue back on their agenda in the middle of a presidential election campaign.

Nine years is a blink of the eye on a court where justices can look back two centuries for legal precedents. But with an ascendant conservative majority, the high court in arguments Wednesday will weigh whether to limit or even rule out taking race into account in college admissions.

The justices will be looking at the University of Texas program that is used to help fill the last quarter or so of its incoming freshman classes. Race is one of many factors considered by admissions officers. The rest of the roughly 7,100 freshman spots automatically go to Texans who graduated in the top 8 percent of their high school classes.

A white Texan, Abigail Fisher, sued the university after she was denied a spot in 2008.

for why affirmative action is back on the court's calendar so soon after its 2003 decision in Grutter v. Bollinger is that the author of that opinion, Sandra Day O'Connor, has retired. Her successor, Justice Samuel Alito, has been highly skeptical of any use of racial preference.

Justice Anthony Kennedy, a dissenter in the 2003 decision, probably holds the deciding vote, and he, too, has never voted in favor of racial preference.

As a result, said Supreme Court lawyer Thomas Goldstein, "No matter what the court does, it is quite likely that the UT program is going to be in big trouble."

The challenge to the Texas plan has gained traction in part because the university has produced significant diversity by automatically offering about three-quarters of its spots to graduates in the top 10 percent of their Texas high schools, under a 1990s state law signed by then-Gov. George W. Bush. The admissions program has been changed so that now only the top 8 percent gain automatic admission.

Nobel Prize Goes to Stem Cell Researchers

LOS ANGELES TIMES

LOS ANGELES • Two scientists who upended fundamental beliefs about biology by demonstrating that every cell in the body has the potential to grow into every other type of cell have won the Nobel Prize in Physiology or Medicine.

Sir John Gurdon and Dr. Shinya Yamanaka were honored Monday for "the discovery that mature cells can be reprogrammed" to return to a very early state of development, the Nobel committee said in its citation.

Their research is still years away from yielding a clear breakthrough in medical treatment. But the work has completely upended the study of intractable conditions including heart disease, diabetes and Alzheimer's by allowing scientists to grow disease-specific — and even patient-specific — cells for experimentation in the laboratory, experts said.

"It's nothing short of a revolution in how we think of a cell," said Dr. Deepak Srivastava, director of the Roddenberry Stem Cell Center at the Gladstone Institutes in San Francisco, where Yamanaka works one week out of each month.

British scientist John Gurdon, left, speaks in London, and Japanese scientist Shinya Yamanaka, right, speaks in Kyoto after they were named winners of the 2012 Nobel Prize in medicine for discovering that mature, specialized cells of the body can be reprogrammed into stem cells — a discovery that scientists hope to turn into new treatments.

Gurdon, 79, performed his seminal work at Oxford University in the late 1950s and early 1960s — a good deal of it before Yamanaka was born.

Working with frogs, he showed in 1962 that replacing the nucleus of an egg cell with the nucleus from cell taken from a tadpole's intestine allowed the egg to develop into a fully functional clone of that tadpole.

The discovery shocked his colleagues in the field. At the time, it wasn't clear if different types of body cells had different DNA or if they shared the same genetic instructions and just read them differently, Srivastava said. Gurdon's experiments indicated that genes did contain the same genetic code and that individual cells were capable of creating an entire animal — and thus any of its component parts — if properly manipulated.

Support the Conservative Agenda with your Vote

As the Republican Precinct chairperson for Precinct 3, I want to remind those eligible to vote to register and vote, either in the Nov. 6, 2012, general election or by absentee ballot. The absentee ballots are available through the office of the Twin Falls County Clerk.

I would encourage you to support the conservative agenda advanced by Lance Clow, Steve Hartgen and Lee Heider. Lance is the newcomer, and Steve and Lee have been strong in their representation of the interests of this district. We need strong conservative voices to increase the employment opportunities for the citizens of Magic Valley. The three will work toward that goal.

Every vote does count, so see you at the polls.

No Government Entity had any Part of Creating the Earth

With little fanfare, there is, right here in Idaho, a factory that goes on year after year producing. In addition, it filters the air, is fueled from a natural, organic, renewable source. Its effluence is biodegradable and, with remarkably little maintenance, most serious equipment repairs are done in house. With an onboard computer, it efficiently determines the amount of energy required to operate. With automatic temperature control, it self-regulates the amount of air and fuel is needed to operate at maximum performance.

Due to visual stimulation of the component output control module, with robotic-like efficiency, little wasted motion of moving parts are called for and are held at rest until required. Without outside help, a sensitive warning sensor tells of impending danger and notifies the computer to ready defensive measures. While never completely shut down, even for equipment repair, when output of product need is lessened, the entire factory goes into sleep mode but is ready for immediate response when called upon.

The factory is built completely from local materials and its product output is of use here and abroad and the energy co-efficient is greater than solar, wind, nuclear, coal or oil burning. Long before the planet is considered obsolete due to age, wear or misuse, it begins to plan for its own replacement. This plant can mean the continuation of the American way of life, either self-determination or its own demise.

And although the government says it financed, built, supported and encouraged it, no local, state or federal entity had any part or interaction with the development of this plant. God made it, and although Obama thinks he's god, he's not and, good or bad, humans will, with or without help from a higher intelligence, determine their own course.

How Can Luna Justify Expense of Laptops?

The idiocy of these so-called Luna Laws is insulting. As an Idaho teacher, I have never felt as unappreciated as I do now.

I teach in a low-income community where kids come from troubled families and live in deplorable conditions. For most students of poverty, survival is the chief concern, not education. Kids don't care about improving ISAT scores when they're hungry or have no bed to sleep in. Why would they?

Yet, despite these challenges, we met AYP and were rated a four-star school.

It was a real slap in the face when we were denied Pay for Performance money. Who is Luna to say our students haven't shown enough growth, even though they score proficient, quite a feat considering their circumstances? Why should my income be dependent on that when so many of these factors are out of my control?

Like other teachers, my salary has been cut. My district is so hard up that I have no budget to buy frogs for my biology students or rockets for my physical science class. I'd love to take my earth science kids to the wastewater treatment plant, but the expense of a field trip is out of the question. With all that we must do without, how can Luna justify spending money on laptops?

If a student isn't driven enough to succeed in a physical classroom, what makes Luna think he'll do it in a virtual one? Requiring online classes does nothing more than set students up to fail. Congratulations to those who'll be receiving a bonus. You deserve every penny. But spare a thought for those of us who're left wondering how we're supposed to work harder and do better than we already do. Where is our motivation supposed to come from when even our great leader doesn't care?

United Nation's Agenda 21 (Sustainable Development) Will Destroy Freedom

The pro-American, anti-Communist John Birch Society had two speakers give presentations recently before 140 concerned citizens at the Red Lion Hotel. William Jasper and Joe Wolverton both concluded that to preserve freedom and independence the United States must get out of the communist controlled United Nations. Jasper said that 20 years after the United Nations birthed the "sustainable development" scheme known as Agenda 21, its tentacles to control everybody have stretched across America at all levels of government. Wolverton outlined the United Nation's plan to disarm Americans.

In 1992, the United Nation's Earth Summit resulted in Agenda 21, the UN's 1,100 page report to implement sustainable development. The Earth Summit was signed by President Bush and 178 world leaders.

The United Nation's Agenda 21 is a plan for world government to redistribute our wealth by controlling every human activity on the planet. The goal is power and control, not real concern for the environment. The global warming hoax is being used to scare us into accepting government controls with all power consolidated in the tyrannical United Nations.

It is being implemented through the Environmental Protection Agency, and Departments of Interior, Commerce, Energy, Education and HUD. The International Council for Local Environmental Initiatives (ICLEI) facilitates local governments to implement Agenda 21. Unelected bureaucrats facilitate the agenda.

Agenda 21 is implementing a global regime that will monitor, oversee and strictly regulate our planet's oceans, lakes, streams, rivers, aquifers, sea beds, coastlines, wetlands, forests, jungles, grassland, farmlands, deserts, tundra and mountains and our use of these resources to control us, too.

It plans to protect the atmosphere with fraudulent carbon dioxide greenhouse gas reductions. Almost 32,000 U.S. scientists have signed a petition, www.petitionproject.org, against man-caused global warming and that CO2 is not a pollutant, but needed for food and oxygen on the planet.

Agenda 21 proposes plans for cities, towns, suburbs, villages and rural areas. It envisions a global scheme for health care, education, nutrition, agriculture, labor, production and consumption. In summary, this means a global police state as this is being implemented worldwide under UN control.

The 1,100 page Agenda 21 document is summarized and published under the title, "Agenda 21: The Earth Summit Strategy to Save Our Planet" (Earth Press, 1993). Agenda 21 is an undisguised call for total regimentation of all life on the planet with all power to the anti-American United Nations.

Sustainable development is a dictator's dream come true. It is an emerging all-purpose, open-ended, "enabling act" granting global central planners carte blanche to claim it means whatever they want it to mean. The UN estimates it may cost $2.5 trillion per year to implement.

Many cities and counties are pulling out of ICLEI as exposure of the tyrannical Agenda 21 increases. We must get out of the United Nations by passing Representative Ron Paul's H.R.1146, eliminate the EPA, and expose the global warming hoax and sustainable development frauds. Local governments must stay out of ICLEI.

Agenda 21 must be opposed and stopped to preserve freedom.

Can I Phone a Friend?

Last week's debate was important not only because Mitt Romney "won" and thereby energized his moribund campaign. It was important because Romney won in a way that exposed and deepened President Barack Obama's two greatest vulnerabilities in this election, while overcoming, at least for one night, Romney's greatest weakness.

Maybe we should have seen this coming. For weeks, Romney had performed so badly and had fallen so far behind in swing states that if this campaign were a Ryder Cup singles match, you'd have said the president felt he had the match in the bag with just a few holes left to play. So he did the worst thing you can do in match play golf: He started playing not to lose. He continued with an uninspired, vague and cautious campaign and just waited for Romney to keep hitting balls out of bounds. Romney, his back to the wall, had no choice but to start aggressively playing to win.

He did so by repositioning himself as a center-right Republican moderate. Yes, this required him to mischaracterize and disguise key aspects of his platform on taxes and health care. But because Obama did not pounce on that abrupt Romney shift to the center, Romney's arguments were allowed to be presented without any counter and, as I said, scored a direct hit on Obama's two greatest vulnerabilities. The first, and the most dangerous threat to Obama's reelection, is a critical mass of voters saying this: "Barack Obama, nice man, good father, great that we finally elected an African-American. He tried hard. But you know what? I just want to try something new, even if I don't know it will work."

That sentiment is deadly for Obama. As long as Romney didn't seem like a credible alternative, Obama kept it at bay, even though the economy has stagnated. But

Romney reawakened that mood by the confident and crisp way he talked about the mechanics of how jobs are created — through startups, small businesses and entrepreneurship — and the catalytic power of markets. His presentation crackled with a freshness and a sense of possibility that was completely missing in Obama's monotone discussion of health care, deficits and government programs. And where Obama had a chance to talk about how his own green jobs initiative has actually spurred all kinds of innovations and startups, he whiffed. (As some have noted, it is too bad the debate rules didn't allow him to phone a friend.)

I confess, spending time with inventors, social entrepreneurs and people who start companies really floats my boat — and I am not alone. If there has been one consistent weakness to this president's public messaging, it is that it is often lacking in any excitement about innovation and entrepreneurship — the real drivers of our economy. In recent years, all net new jobs in the United States have come from startups.

Obama knows this, and, in his convention speech, at least he actually spoke to it eloquently, saying: "We honor the strivers, the dreamers, the risk-takers, the entrepreneurs who have always been the driving force behind our free enterprise system."

Yes! Yes! Yes! Mr. President. And, in the next debate, look into the camera and tell us what you are going to do in a second term to multiply the number of those risk-takers by 10. Give those people who are saying, "Nice guy, but I just want to try something new," a real reason to be excited that you not only want to deliver national health insurance but also an innovation economy that will ensure we can afford it.

13,000 Got Steroid Shot Linked to Meningitis

NEW YORK (AP) • As many as 13,000 people received steroid shots suspected in a national meningitis outbreak, health officials said Monday. But it's not clear how many are in danger.

Officials don't know how many of the shots were contaminated with meningitis-causing fungus tied to the outbreak. And the figure includes not only those who got them in the back for pain — who are most at risk — but also those who got the shots in other places, like knees and shoulders.

Those injected in joints are not believed to be at risk for fungal meningitis, said Curtis Allen, a spokesman for the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. He said there was no breakdown available of how many had the shots in the back or in joints.

The CDC count of cases reached 105 on Monday, including eight deaths. A ninth death was reported late Monday by a Nashville, Tenn., hospital.

Tennessee has the most cases, followed by Michigan, Virginia, Indiana, Florida, Maryland, Minnesota, North Carolina and Ohio.

All had received shots for back pain, and investigators suspect a steroid medication made by a specialty pharmacy. About 17,700 single-dose vials of the steroid sent to 23 states have been recalled. Inspectors found at least one sealed vial contaminated with fungus, and tests were being done on other vials.

The first known case of the rarely seen fungal meningitis was diagnosed last month in Tennessee. The steroid maker, New England Compounding Center, recalled the drug.

'This is done,' said Larry Kmetz on Wednesday about the 1960's-era scale model of Los Angeles that he built in his basement in Coeur d'Alene.

In Idaho Basement, L.A. Takes Shape

BY SCOTT MABEN
The Spokesman-Review

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) • After 10 years of painstaking work late into the night, Larry Kmetz says he's done.

He built a city in his basement and is ready now to devote his time to other passions.

Kmetz, 70, assembled a scale model of the downtown Los Angeles of his youth.

"I guess it was just a love for where I grew up," the Coeur d'Alene retiree said.

Pieced together from custom efforts and model kits, the city rose and spread across platforms spanning 144 square feet. It includes dozens of buildings, from banks to theaters to churches, as well as an industrial area, mass transit and minute landscaping.

"Believe me, I'm not a modeler. I don't know how I did it," Kmetz said. "I think the big guy said, 'All right, you like LA? Well, I'm going to let you build it!'"

He recalls moving to Los Angeles from Gary, Ind., in 1948 and being fascinated with the big city.

"I was 6 years old, and we stayed downtown in Skid Row. But I didn't know any difference. All I knew was I saw these old yellow street cars rocking on the track. I thought they were cool, and I used to love to ride them,"

Kmetz said. "And LA was my playground."

Growing up in South Central, he would explore the sprawling metropolis, marvel at the architecture and tune in to the hum of city life.

"It was kind of a hustle and bustle for a young kid that I thought was pretty cool," he said.

Anyone who knows old LA will recognize some of the iconic architecture Kmetz has recreated — the 27-story Los Angeles City Hall, which still stands after 84 years, and the massive natural-gas storage tanks of the Los Angeles Gas Co., which disappeared in the 1960s.

"This was scratch-built from a coffee can," Kmetz said, pointing to one gas tank dominating his favorite part of the replica. "That was a devil"

A highlight is an electric trolley running the full 18-foot length of the model, bound for Pasadena. Tiny overhead wires allow him to run the tram between stations and past waiting commuters under palm trees.

The smallest embellishments offer some of the most delicious visual treats: water tanks on apartment roofs, street signs, lamp posts, fire plugs, park benches — even coffee cups at a walk-in McDonald's restaurant.

Nonprofit Group Handed Soldier Mountain Ski Area

FAIRFIELD (AP) • Hollywood actor Bruce Willis is handing over the keys to a small Idaho ski area to a nonprofit group.

Willis, who starred in TV's "Moonlighting" and the "Die Hard" movie franchise, has owned Soldier Mountain Ski Area near Fairfield, in the mountains between Boise and Sun Valley.

But he's been trying to exit the operation — and sell his home and a bar in nearby Hailey.

Now, five people have formed a nonprofit that's assuming ownership of Soldier Mountain, a three-lift, 867-vertical-foot resort.

A town hall meeting is scheduled Thursday to formalize the handover between Willis and the group, Soldier Mountain Ski Area, Inc.

The names of the five people behind the nonprofit haven't been released, but a public relations firm that's touting the change-of-hands says some live in Fairfield.

A Border Patrol agent holds a funeral program for slain agent Nicholas Ivie during services Monday at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints meetinghouse in Sierra Vista, Ariz.

Border Agent Remembered in Ariz.

SIERRA VISTA, Ariz. (AP) • Family members and hundreds of uniformed law enforcement officers gathered Monday to mourn the U.S. Border Patrol agent killed last week in an apparent case of friendly fire, remembering him as a family man who wouldn't want loved ones and colleagues shedding tears over his death.

Agent Nicholas Ivie was killed last week as he and two other agents responded to a sensor alarm aimed at detecting smugglers crossing into the U.S. The shooting occurred at night about five miles north of the border near Bisbee.

The FBI said it appeared to be friendly fire involving only the agents. An investigation was ongoing.

"If Nick were here he'd say, 'Guys, I'm taken care of. Just take care of my girls, my wife and my family,'" brother Joel Ivie, also an agent, said during the funeral.

Dozens of agents on horseback lined the street outside The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints meeting house, leading with them Ivie's riderless horse, nicknamed Mouse for his rounded ears.

"He loved that horse," his brother said.

The investigation continued into the shooting that also injured another agent.

The head of the U.S. Border Patrol agents' union said Ivie apparently opened fire on his two colleagues thinking they were armed smugglers, and was killed when they shot back.

Ivie apparently opened fire first but it remained unclear why, National Border Patrol Council President George McCubbin said.

"I don't know what it was he saw or heard that triggered this whole event," McCubbin said. "Unfortunately it resulted in his death and another agent injured."

McCubbin and Acting Cochise County Sheriff Rod Rothrock said Ivie knew the two other agents also were heading to the area on foot, and they knew he was responding, but the three apparently didn't know they were so close.

Court Allows Shooting Victim To Sue Gun Maker

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) • A former high school athlete who was shot in 2003 may sue the companies that made and distributed the handgun used in the crime, an appellate court ruled.

The appellate panel said the Buffalo man's lawsuit should have been allowed to move forward because Williams' claims fall within exceptions contained in the Protection of Lawful Commerce in Arms Act, a 2005 federal law shielding gun makers from lawsuits over criminal use of products.

It is the first case in which a court has held that a gun manufacturer may be held liable under the PLCAA, according to the Washington-based Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence, which brought the appeal.

"If a gun company knows or has reason to know that a dealer or distributor that is selling the guns is doing so irresponsibly and in some cases, illegally, they need to do something about it," Brady Center attorney Jonathan Lowy said Monday. "They can't just continue to blindly supply them, knowing they're going to be arming criminals and just pocket the money and look the other way?"

Williams was 16 when he was shot by a gang member in a case of mistaken identity as he played basketball outside his home. The bullet to his stomach ended his hopes of a Division I college basketball career.

Attorneys for Williams argued the gun had ended up on the streets of Buffalo and in the hands of convicted shooter Cornell Caldwell through gun trafficker James Bostic, who'd bought some 200 guns from a federal licensed firearms dealer.

Crowds of Alaska Airlines passengers wait in long lines of the check-in area Monday at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport in Seattle during a system-wide outage of the computers the airline uses to check in passengers.

Alaska Airlines Fixes Computer Problem That Caused Delays

BY DOUG ESSER

Associated Press

SEATTLE • Alaska Airlines has fixed the computer problem that delayed flights Monday across its 64-airport network on the West Coast and in Mexico and Canada, and operations slowly were returning to normal.

The problem was caused by a severed fiber optic line that cut the Seattle-based airline's connection to its ticketing system at 7:40 a.m.

Lines of frustrated passengers grew at the airline's Sea-Tac hub and at other airports as the company was unable to put passengers on planes, except by handwritten paperwork.

Alaska Airlines said the data connection was restored before 1 p.m. but passengers could still expect some delays as the system adjusted.

The problem was caused by a combination of two fiber optic cuts in the Sprint system. One occurred at a construction site along railroad tracks between Chicago and Milwaukee and the other was somewhere between Portland and Seattle, said Sprint spokeswoman Crystal Davis in Reston, Va.

"Typically if there's just one cut traffic reroutes automatically," Davis said. "Because there were two cuts with hours of each other, it caused this disruption."

The airline told waiting passengers at Sea-Tac they could rebook later at no charge.

About half the flights at Sea-Tac are Alaska Airlines or its sister airline, Horizon Air.

No other airlines or any airplanes at Sea-Tac were affected by the problem, airport spokesman Perry Cooper said. But lines were out the door in the Alaska Airlines part of the terminal.

Seattle-based Alaska Airlines is the seventh-largest U.S. airline based on passenger traffic and is the dominant U.S. West Coast air carrier. It has an average of 436 flights a day at 64 destinations.

Alaska and Horizon Air are owned by Alaska Air Group.

Officials Rethink Lake Levels for Kokanee

SANDPOINT (AP) • Idaho fisheries biologists are rethinking the formula used for several years to set recommendations for winter lake levels at Lake Pend Oreille in an effort to boost kokanee salmon recovery.

Since the 1990s, the Idaho Department of Fish and Game has pegged its annual recommendation for winter pool levels to egg-to-fry survival rates. But the reliability of that metric has fallen into question amid closer scrutiny of the data collected by the department.

Initially, survival rates ranged at expected levels of 6-to-15 percent, but those rates have grown higher recently even when the lake is drawn down to lowest levels, which reduces the amount of shoreline spawning habitat. The accuracy of the survival rate is important because it's the scientific basis for recommending a higher winter pool of 2,055 feet above sea level and the lower pool of 2,051 feet, according to a story published by the Bonner County Daily Bee.

"Three years in a row, we had these really high egg-to-fry survival rates — so high that they weren't really even plausible," said Andy Dux, Fish & Game's principal fishery research biologist in the Panhandle.

The egg-to-fry survival rate takes into account several categories, including estimates of wild and hatchery fry abundance, sex ratios and the number of wild or hatchery spawning fish. Department officials say they remain confident in the accuracy of those individual categories, but have growing doubts about accuracy when all those factors are thrown into the same mix.

Two Men Arrested for Trying to Sell Stolen Wire

POST FALLS (AP) • Two Washington state men were arrested in northern Idaho last week after allegedly trying to sell more than 600 pounds of copper wire stamped with the name of a regional power company.

The recycler in Post Falls called police on Oct. 3 after noticing the wire was unusually clean and stamped "Avista."

Police arrested 28-year-old Jason W. Wing of Cheney and 22-year-old William R. Fossell of Colbert. Both are charged with felony possession of stolen property. Fossell also was wanted on a fugitive warrant.

An investigation found two Spokane contractors had recently reported the theft of several rolls of copper wire belonging to Avista, along with numerous tools.

One of the victims of the theft identified the wire and some tools Wing and Fossell had in their van.

Murtaugh Cancels Rest of Football Season

Head coach also resigns as program's problems mount.

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

MURTAUGH • The Murtaugh School Board voted Monday to forfeit the remainder of the school's high school football season.

The decision comes just more than two weeks after Murtaugh's game at Rimrock was abandoned in the third quarter when half the team's 12 players suffered injuries. Shortly thereafter, Murtaugh announced it would forfeit its next two games, Sept. 28 vs. North Gem and Oct. 3 at Rockland, due to its inability to field the required eight players.

Also, the board accepted the resignation of head football coach Mike Nunnelee, who was not present. In two seasons as the head coach, Nunnelee led the Red Devils to a 5-11 record, the final four losses by forfeit.

Monday's decision to forfeit the final two games — Friday at Sho-Ban and Oct. 19 vs. Castleford — was met with much trepidation, but in the end, several board members voiced their concern for kids' health. Currently, only seven players are healthy and maybe four more are injured but could possibly play. The team hasn't practiced the past two weeks, which raised concerns about playing a game in four days without proper preparation.

"There were too many concerns about the kids' safety and health that (the board) just couldn't ignore," said Murtaugh athletic director Clete Edmunson.

Three football players present at the meeting spoke to the board.

BOISE • The Boise State defense is quickly learning that taking is better than giving.

After five games, the No. 24 Broncos have gotten so good that the defense ranks among the best in the nation in creating turnovers, averaging nearly one takeaway per quarter.

So far, the young defense's knack for stripping balls and picking off opposing quarterbacks is a big reason a rebuilding Boise State (4-1, 1-0 Mountain West) is back in the AP Top 25.

Saturday's 41-14 victory at Southern Miss was a prime example. The defense picked off two passes in the first half, giving the offense a short field en route to a 24-0 lead at the half. The defense also recovered three fumbles to help preserve the win.

Coach Chris Petersen was at a loss Saturday to explain his team's thieving ways. But defensive lineman Darren Koontz attributed Boise State's 17 takeaways — tied for second best nationally with Oregon and UCLA — to a mindset that makes stripping, punching and jarring the football out of a ball carrier's arms an essential part of tackling.

"We've always paid attention to the turnover battle ... just because it's a big statistic in the outcome of a game," Koontz said. "Getting a turnover just gets everyone pumped up and gets the offense out there in a good mood. It can change the game so much, change the energy of the game."

All season long the Broncos defense has specialized in bolstering the mood of the offense. Against Michigan State and in a 7-6 victory over BYU, the interceptions returned for touchdowns offset an offense struggling to move the chains and score consistently. The defense notched five takeaways against Michigan State, five more against BYU, and two weeks ago three recovered fumbles helped stake Boise State to a 25-0 halftime lead at New Mexico.

Jorge On the Spot for Wendell

dbashore@magicvalley.com

WENDELL • For significant stretches of Wednesday's Class 3A District IV boys soccer tournament semifinal, Wendell dominated the possession and scoring-chance categories, but only beat Buhl's defense once.

That had to change in the second half, and senior captain Jorge Diaz made sure it did.

Diaz struck twice in three minutes early in the second half to settle Wendell's nerves and lead the Trojans to a 3-1 win over Buhl, advancing to the tournament's championship game against Gooding.

"I was just trying to help the team have a chance to win state like we did two years ago," said Diaz, an unsung hero of that 2010 title team.

In the 45th minute, Juan Carlos Rodriguez capitalized on a poor clearance attempt and laid it off for Diaz, who popped it in off the underside of the crossbar. Three minutes later Diaz sprung the defense again and rounded the goalkeeper to put the game to rest.

Jorge Valera scored Wendell's first-half goal, the only strike in a half that was all Trojans (10-2-2) early but saw them just capitalize one time.

After absorbing pressure for nearly 25 minutes of each half, Buhl (11-4-2) finally came back into the game and started dictating its own tempo. It all came for naught, though, as the Indians managed 18 shots but just four on target — more than half the others were blocked.

"We just couldn't get anything going in the midfield," said Buhl coach Tracy Clark, whose team played without Juan Perez due to yellow card accumulation. "Without 'JD' (Perez's nickname), it's hard. It was too little, too late for us today."

Eddie Verduzco scored Buhl's goal, four minutes into second-half stoppage time.

Wendell visits Gooding on Wednesday for the district title.

"They're a good team, but if our defense can hold and we can keep (Gooding star Federico Mendez) from getting his shot off, because he's got a good one, I think we can win," Diaz said.

Buhl hosts the Community School Wednesday in a loser-out game.

Idaho Suspends Basketball Player Barone

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW • Idaho basketball star Kyle Barone has been suspended indefinitely after a violation of team rules.

Coach Don Verlin announced the suspension of the senior on Monday.

Barone is a three-year letter winner who enters this season as the team's active leader in points, rebounds, assists, blocks and steals. He was a 2012 Second-Team All-WAC selection.

Verlin says Barone's status will be re-evaluated as the season progresses.

Idaho men's basketball holds its first practice on Friday.

St. Louis Cardinals center fielder Jon Jay is congratulated by teammates as he returns to the dugout after catching a fly ball at the warning track to retire Washington Nationals batter Danny Espinosa during the sixth inning of Game 2 of the National League division baseball series Monday in St. Louis.

Cardinals Rout Nationals 12-4, Tie NLDS 1-all

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. LOUIS • Three hits and an excruciating loss one day, double-digit runs and a laughter the next. The St. Louis Cardinals have been that type of team all season. The defending World Series champions tied their NL division series with Washington at one game apiece by doing what they do best — forgetting about what happened the day before and concentrating on the game at hand. They lost the division series and NLCS openers last year, and look how that turned out. Carlos Beltran hit the last two of the Cardinals' four homers and St. Louis chased an ineffective Jordan Zimmermann early in a 12-4 rout of the Nationals on Monday. "We know this offense has the potential to do this," Cardinals rookie manager Mike Matheny said. "It was nice to see this, and hopefully it becomes contagious and the guys just keep going." Daniel Descalso and Allen Craig also went deep to help the Cardinals build a big lead that compensated for a two-inning start from an ailing Jaime Garcia. Craig hit his fifth career postseason homer and scored three times. "If we get things going, we feel like we can carry the team," Craig said. "As you saw tonight, we put a lot of good swings on the ball and really drove the ball. It was a lot of fun." Ryan Zimmerman and Adam LaRoche hit consecutive homers in the fifth for the Nationals, who head home for the remainder of the best-of-five series. But the NL East champions are without All-Star ace Stephen Strasburg, shut down for the rest of the season early last month to protect his surgically repaired arm. "I miss him not experiencing this with us and he misses not experiencing it with us," Nationals manager Davey Johnson said. "But we did the right thing, there's no question. "He'd have been the guy that opened the series." Garcia was taken out with a shoulder injury and sent for an MRI exam. The left-hander missed two months this season with shoulder fatigue. "It just wasn't right the whole time. I had to come out of the game," Garcia said. "I don't know how it happened, I don't know when it happened. "I'm just hoping it's not too bad, but at the same time you've just got to wait and see how it goes." Game 3 is Wednesday afternoon at Nationals Park, the first postseason contest in the nation's capital since the original Senators played the New York Giants in the 1933 World Series. Edwin Jackson starts for Washington against longtime Cardinals ace Chris Carpenter, who made only three starts during the regular season because of injury. "Today, for us, was a must-win game," Beltran said. The Cardinals seem to live for those. They lost the division series and NLCS openers last fall, then finished strong in the World Series after spotting Texas a 3-2 lead. So, they're on familiar ground. And once again, as a wild card. "We knew how big this game was for us," center fielder Jon Jay said. "We've seen it all year — when we are able to do that, we are pretty dangerous." ORIOLES 3, YANKEES 2 BALTIMORE • Andy Pettitte slapped his glove, angry he had allowed another run. For the New York Yankees, it was yet another night of missed chances. Instead of winning both games at Camden Yards, the Yankees headed home with a split in their best-of-five AL division series against the Baltimore Orioles following a 3-2 loss in Game 2 Monday night. And now when the series resumes Wednesday night, they face having to get at least one win from the back end of their rotation. The rest of the series will be played in the Bronx.

Francona Gets Fresh Start with Indians

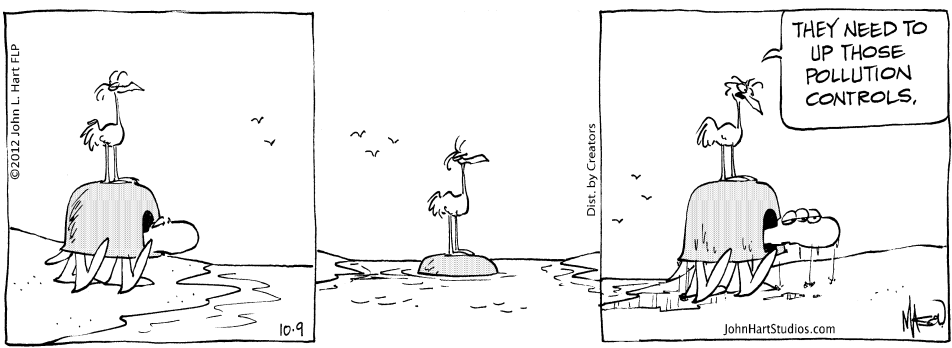

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEVELAND • Terry Francona could have waited to manage somewhere else. At some point, a more talented team in a major market with a massive payroll would make him an offer. But if he was going back, there was only one team for him. And when the Cleveland Indians called, Francona was on his way. "I knew it was right for me," he said. Francona, who led the Boston Red Sox to two World Series titles, was introduced Monday as the new manager of the Indians, who crashed in the second half this season after contending for four months. It's a family reunion of sorts for Francona, who has ties with the Indians stretching back over 50 years. His father, Tito, played six seasons in Cleveland and Francona spent a year working as an assistant in the Indians' front office after he was fired by Philadelphia. Francona signed a four-year contract. He hopes to stay even longer. "I don't want to be a rental manager," he said. "I didn't want to come in worried. I want to be part of the solution. I want to stick around. I didn't come here to go to pasture." With an impressive resume that includes ending Boston's 86-year drought between world championships, Francona was picked by the Indians over Sandy Alomar Jr., who served as the club's bench coach before taking over as interim manager for the final six games after Manny Acta was fired on Sept. 27. Francona is inheriting an Indians team that finished 68-94 and 20 games out of first place in the AL Central. Cleveland went 18-45 after July 27, an inexplicable collapse that cost Acta his job and sent Indians general manager Chris Antonetti and president Mark Shapiro searching for a strong leader to take over a club with young talent and potential. They didn't have to look far. The night Acta was dismissed, Antonetti called Francona, who spent the past year working as an analyst for ESPN. Before long the two friends were hammering out contract terms. "There's two main reasons I'm here today — Chris Antonetti and Mark Shapiro," Francona said. "We've kept in touch for the last 12 years. I value not only their friendship but their guidance and their leadership. I know we have challenges ahead of us but I look forward to us tackling these challenges as a unit, as a 'we.' I'm genuinely excited to do that." After being introduced by Antonetti, Francona looked toward the back of the room, where his 78-year-old father sat proudly. "In 1959, a guy hit .363 and that was the year I was born," Francona said, "and it just so happens to be the same guy that is the best father a son could ever ask." Francona said he became emotional when he informed his dad that he was the new manager of the Indians. "I kind of cried a little bit," Francona said. "I didn't want to, but it just happened. You can't take a job because your dad was a good Indian, but it's a still a good story. It's pretty special." Tito Francona said he offered his son some advice when he learned he was interviewing in Cleveland. "I said, 'Stop right there,'" the elder Francona said. Francona has not yet hired any coaches for his staff. Alomar is under contract for one more season with Cleveland and has been offered the chance to return as the team's bench coach. But the 46-year-old Alomar could be a candidate for other managerial openings in Boston and Colorado. Since accepting the Indians' offer on Saturday, Francona said he has reached out to several players on Cleveland's roster and is eager to begin getting the Indians, who haven't made the playoff since 2007 — when they lost to Francona and the Red Sox in the ALCS — headed in the right direction. "This is a clean slate for everybody," said Francona. "Dealing with players is fun. Dealing with young players is really fun." Francona said the year working as a broadcaster has re-energized him. He acknowledged making mistakes during his final season in Boston as the Red Sox collapsed by going 7-20 in September and missed the playoffs. The pressure took its toll on Francona, forcing him to withdraw from the game and reflect "on what mattered to me." "To do this job and do it correctly, you've got to be all in all the time," Francona said. "I was showing some signs of wear and tear. But I wouldn't have interviewed here if I didn't think it was the right thing to do." Francona has some simple goals for the Indians. "We're going to compete," he said. "We're always going to compete. We may not win every game, but we won't back down from anyone." With Cleveland, Francona won't enjoy the same hefty payroll he had with the Red Sox, who were able to add high-priced free agents to complement their stable of young talent. While some fans fixate on baseball's economic imbalance, Francona said success and failure isn't predicated on dollars spent. "Tampa has done it for years in the American League East," he said. "They've gone toe to toe with Boston and New York. Oakland is doing it. That's not something I spend a whole lot of energy on. My job is to get the players that we have to play the utmost of their ability, and then even beyond that to care about each other on the field fiercely and start building loyalty. "I don't really care what players are making. What I want them to do is play the game right." As word circulated around baseball of his interest in the Indians, Francona said he was met by some who wondered if he was serious. Cleveland? Really? "They said, 'What are you doing? Why don't you wait for a team that's guaranteed to win?'" The people that were asking didn't know me as well as I thought," he said. "I'm looking forward to this challenge. I can't guarantee we're going to win. Nobody can, but I'm excited about the chance to go about this and make this better."

DEAR ABBY: Many women like surprises. Most men don't. My wife can't understand that. She recently "surprised" me by informing me she had made non-refundable arrangements for us to visit a foreign country. She said I had once mentioned that I'd like to see it. I have no recollection of saying so, but I suppose it's possible.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

Abby, I am physically barely able to endure such travel. My balance is bad and walking is extremely painful for my legs and hips. I wish she would have discussed her plan with me in advance. It's possible she wanted very much to go and suspected I'd tell her it would be unwise for me to do it.

Now that we're locked in, I'll go. But if it becomes too arduous, I'll tell her that we're going to have to leave the group and return home immediately. Perhaps that would help her understand that she should talk to me about a plan that includes me before implementing it. Abby, can you comment?

— GOT AN UNWELCOME SURPRISE

DEAR SURPRISE: What your wife did was wrong; she's well aware of your physical limitations. Foreign travel isn't cheap. Before laying out sizable chunks of money, most couples discuss the expense. I think your method of handling the situation is a good one, particularly if no accommodations can be made for your disability by the company arranging the trip.

P.S. I'm advising you to get travel insurance well in advance.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in love with a beautiful woman. She's divorced with two kids, 15 and 17. I believe the 15-year-old boy is feeling threatened by my presence. He has become very "clingy" to his mother and tries to get between us.

I love both of her kids and treat them like my own. I know it's a delicate situation and I want to do the right thing. The disrespect he shows me is becoming an issue, and I know his mother won't do anything about it. I have mentioned it a few times and nothing has changed.

I know she would be crushed if I ended this relationship, because recently she asked me to move in by Christmas. Marriage has been discussed prior to or shortly thereafter. Please help.

— DISRESPECTED IN OHIO

DEAR DISRESPECTED: Do not move in with this woman unless she first agrees to premarital counseling with you to ensure that you're both on the same page regarding parenting, and then family counseling with her children. As much as you care about them, you are not their parent. Because your ladyfriend appears to ignore problems when they arise, without counseling nothing will change. Be warned.

DEAR ABBY: Our son and daughter-in-law have invited us for Thanksgiving in another state. We'll fly there with my husband's mother.

Recently my daughter-in-law mentioned that we may all (11 of us) be going to some sort of buffet instead of making the dinner at their home. We would also end up paying for the meal.

I would much rather cook for them than eat and pay for a Thanksgiving meal at a buffet or restaurant. How can we get this across to our son and daughter-in-law without hurting their feelings?

— NO BUFFET FOR US IN LEAVENWORTH, KAN.

DEAR NO BUFFET: How about saying it in plain English? Tell them you would be glad to prepare the dinner, and if your daughter-in-law would help you, the task wouldn't be onerous for either of you.

P.S. Unless the men are "all thumbs" in the kitchen, they could pitch in, too. Multigenerational rituals are the glue that keep a family together.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Ah, but a man's reach should exceed his grasp,
Or what's a heaven for?"
— Robert Browning

This week's deals all come from last fall's Bermuda Bowl in Veldhoven, Netherlands, won by the Dutch. On this deal from Australia's qualifying match against USA-1 in the Bermuda Bowl, Sartaj Hans played skillfully to land a three-no-trump contract that failed at many tables.

For the U.S., Martin Fleisher led the spade four, ducked in dummy and taken by Mike Kamil with the king. On the spade return, Fleisher played low on declarer's jack. Hans played a diamond to dummy's ace, cashed the diamond king, then ran the club 10 to West's jack. A low spade cleared the suit and put the lead in dummy.

This position was reached at many tables, but whereas many of the unsuccessful declarers took a second club finesse, letting West win and cash out his spades for down one, Hans instead played a club to his ace, realizing that he wanted to keep West off play, at least for the time being.

Next he cashed his two diamond winners. Fleisher could spare a heart on the third round of diamonds, but he had to let a spade go on declarer's final diamond.

Now Hans exited with a club, leaving Fleisher on lead. That player could cash a spade, but then had to lead a heart, giving declarer his eighth and ninth tricks with a club and heart winner.

Had West discarded a heart instead on the fourth diamond, declarer would have led a heart himself and built an extra trick for his side in that suit.

ANSWER: With a minimum hand and not even half a spade stopper, just bid three diamonds. If your partner has a full opener, he will bid again. If he does not, you are surely high enough. A two-spade call here would suggest a better hand or better spade fragment.

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 9, the 283rd day of 2012. There are 83 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Oct. 9, 1967, Latin American guerrilla leader Che Guevara was killed by the Bolivian army a day after he was captured while attempting to incite revolution.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1446, the Korean alphabet, created under the aegis of King Sejong, was first published.

In 1776, a group of Spanish missionaries settled in present-day San Francisco.

In 1888, the public was first admitted to the Washington Monument.

In 1910, a coal dust explosion at the Starkville Mine in Colorado left 56 miners dead.

In 1930, Laura Ingalls became the first woman to fly across the United States as she completed a nine-stop journey from Roosevelt Field, N.Y., to Glendale, Calif.

In 1936, the first generator at Boulder (later Hoover) Dam began transmitting electricity to Los Angeles.

In 1940, rock and roll legend John Lennon was born in Liverpool, England.

In 1946, the Eugene O'Neill drama "The Iceman Cometh" opened at the Martin Beck Theater in New York.

In 1958, Pope Pius XII died at age 82, ending a 19-year papacy. (He was succeeded by Pope John XXIII.)

In 1962, Uganda won autonomy from British rule.

In 1974, businessman Oskar Schindler, credited with saving about 1,200 Jews during the Holocaust, died in Frankfurt, West Germany (at his request, he was buried in Jerusalem).

In 1987, author, politician and diplomat Clare Boothe Luce died in Washington at age 84.

Ten years ago: A man was shot to death at a gas station near Manassas, Va., in the latest sniper shooting in the Washington, D.C., area. Aileen Wuornos, who killed six men along Florida's highways in 1989 and 1990, was executed by injection. West Coast longshoremen returned to ports crammed with cargo after a lockout that ended only after President George W. Bush intervened. The space shuttle Atlantis arrived at the international space station, bringing with it a 14-ton girder. Daniel Kahneman, a U.S.-Israeli citizen, and Vernon L. Smith, an American, won the Nobel prize for economics; John B. Fenn of the U.S., Koichi Tanaka of Japan and Kurt Wuehrich of Switzerland won the Nobel Prize in chemistry.

Five years ago: Republican presidential hopefuls Mitt Romney and Rudy Giuliani clashed over tax and spending cuts, each claiming greater commitment than the other in a debate in Dearborn, Mich. Two Armenian Christian women were shot dead in Baghdad by security contractors working for Australian-owned Unity Resources Group. France's Albert Fert and German Peter Gruenberg won the 2007 Nobel Prize in physics for a discovery that lets computers, iPods and other digital devices store reams of data on ever-shrinking hard disks. Actress Carol Bruce died in Woodland Hills, Calif., at age 87.

One year ago: At least 27 people were killed and more than 200 injured during massive clashes in downtown Cairo in the worst sectarian outburst since the February revolution. The NHL returned to Winnipeg after 15 years; Carey Price stopped 30 shots as the Montreal Canadiens put a damper on a massive civic celebration with a 5-1 victory over the Jets. The Milwaukee Brewers beat the St. Louis Cardinals 9-6 in Game 1 of the National League Championship Series. Sir Paul McCartney married Nancy Shevill at Old Marylebone Town Hall in London.

Found Dogs:

Male adult Yellow Labrador found Midway & W 5th St in Filer 10-7-12. Call to identify. If not claimed will be available for adoption 10-11-12.

Male Rottweiler & Shepherd mix puppy about 10 weeks old. Call to identify. Found 10-8-12 on Midway in Filer. Will be available for adoption 10-12-12 if not claimed.

Available for Adoption:
"Daisy" Female 10 week old Labrador & Border Collie mix puppy. She is a real sweetie!..not hyper and loves giving kisses. She is black with a little white on her chest and paws.

"Shooter" Young adult male black with white markings Aussie and Heeler mix with docked tail. He is very sweet and loves to play with his buddy Carlie. Shooter would be the perfect fit for a family, come meet him today!

"Carlie" Female Aussie & Heeler mix young adult. This little girl is very sweet and really gentle. She knows commands and is just waiting for her forever home!

"Dash" male young adult Black Labrador mix. He is a three legged guy (missing a hind leg that was amputated). This doesn't slow him down a bit. He knows commands and will make someone a great companion. Please call about him today.

"Buster" male (neutered) adult Boxer & possibly Pit Bull mix. He is a great dog. He is not very big in size. He gets along with other dogs, cats, and loves children. He is house trained and leash trained as well. Please give this guy a second chance at his forever home.

"Jack" Labrador & Border Collie mix puppy. He is about 12 weeks old. He came into the shelter with his sister Jill. He is a great pup! Really affectionate and playful. He is also working on being house trained.

"Yogi" is available for adoption again. He needs to be an only dog as he is very jealous! He has a wonderful personality though. He just needs to be an only child. He is house trained and neutered already. He walks on a leash well too. Please give him a second chance!

Our shelter is full at this time and we need your help adopting dogs. Some of these dogs have been in our shelter waiting for a long time for their forever families. If you have been thinking about adopting please do not wait! We would appreciate any food donations available as well. Thanks so much for your shelter support!

The adoption fee is $75 and includes spaying/neutering and the first set of vaccinations.

IF OCTOBER 9 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You can make major strides in your business and love lives between now and the end of December. Right now, your judgment is better than usual, so this is a great time to make decisions or plans for the future. People who are good for you may grow closer, while those who are not good for you retreat into the background. You might receive an offer or opportunity that could alter your life for the better. Your business savvy gives you the advantage when dealing with career or the job market. April is another golden time when you can safely begin any matter of significance successfully.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Win by keeping your nose to the grindstone. You may be attracted to the unusual or distracted by social demands. Ignore an urge to break away from those you love if they put too much pressure on you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): True love doesn't need to be dull. You might think you will be happier if you can escape routine and experiment with new friends and fast romances, but real happiness lies in sticking to your commitments.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make 'em proud. The sensational and outrageous might get you in the news, but those with high expectations expect your loyalty first. This is a good time to install new software or tackle technology.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): When you trust yourself to do the right thing, you can trust others. You might be surprised by unexpected calls and visits today, but all of your interruptions will be pleasant ones. Put on your best smile.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Remain confident and remember that experience is the best teacher. Forgetting to fulfill a promise can make for commotion during the day. Make sure you have fulfilled commitments and sleep like a baby.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Sociable Venus is in your sign, but it might be time to get back to work. Make a valiant effort to fulfill commitments and honor promises — even if there are numerous distractions that block the way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Give peace a chance. Be contented with what you have, who you are and whom you're with. Accept your blessings. Waiting for something or someone to make you happy is a sure way to be miserable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It is time to breathe the fresh air into your financial condition. Dust off the cobwebs and open the windows. Your strength lies in honoring your commitments, not in taking advantage of trust.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Partners will yearn for company no matter what is on the agenda and you certainly make a perfect companion. You will be at your best if you can be physically active in a constructive way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Popularity pops your top. You could experience frequent interruptions. Love and fun may be in the air, but a nagging feeling that something has been overlooked may spoil the peace and tranquility.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Breathe in the future, breathe out the past. When you are overly strict and set impossibly high standards for yourself, you can suffer from indecision. Plan ahead now.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Just because the past taps on your shoulder, doesn't mean you have to look back. Concentrate on making your future secure by using practical and time-tested methods. Create an atmosphere of tranquility.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
