Animal-rights Group Pushes Companies to Drop Dry Creek

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

MURTAUGH • The animal advocacy group responsible for producing hidden camera footage at Dry Creek Dairy is now demanding companies stop using products made from the dairy operation.

The hidden camera footage shows a cow being dragged out of a barn with a chain wrapped around its neck, workers beating cows with a cane as the animals slip on a wet concrete floor, and workers punching and jumping on cows between metal bars in the milking stalls.

The footage was filmed by an employee who also worked for Los Angeles-based Mercy for

Watch the Footage

Mercy for Animals has released the hidden camera footage allegedly filmed at Dry Creek Dairy. To watch the video, go to <http://bit.ly/RfZ7x6>. Warning: the link does include graphic and violent scenes.

Animals, said Matt Rice, director of investigations for the nonprofit.

“This is our first investigation in Idaho and the fourth case we’ve documented criminal animal abuse,” Rice said. “This is leading us to believe that animal abuse is running rampant in the dairy industry.”

After being made aware of the footage, Luis Bettencourt — owner of the dairy southwest of Murtaugh — fired five of his employees in August. Three of the five employees are being charged with animal cruelty in Twin Falls County, according to court documents.

Bettencourt has since shown the video to all of his 500 employees and had them sign a contract stating that type of behavior was unacceptable. He then installed video cameras in the barn and hired an additional supervisor.

This isn’t normal industry practice but it should be, said Bob Naerebout, executive director of the Idaho’s Dairymen’s Association.

Candidates Highlight Economy and Energy

BY STEVE KADEL
skadel@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The race for state Senate in District 23 pits an experienced Republican legislator against a challenger who believes political debate in Idaho is framed too much by the Republican Party.

Incumbent Sen. Bert Brackett, R-Three Creek, is running for a third term in the Senate. His opponent, independent candidate Bill Chisholm of Buhl, has run for various offices over the past three decades without success.

Brackett emphasizes his conservative leanings, saying Idaho must continue its economic recovery without increasing the budget. He has served two terms in the Senate and 1 1/2 terms in the House.

“There are still challenges out there,” he said of seeking re-election. “It’s a challenge and rewarding to serve in public office so I look forward to continuing.”

If returned to office, Brackett said he would not try to revive the pre-abortion ultrasound mandate that was a controversial part of the last legislative session. However, he added, “I am pro-life and my record reflects that.”

Brackett declined to identify places where the state budget might be cut.

“We’ve been through the budget crunch the last three or four years,” he said. “We’ve cut all the easy places. As the economy improves we’ll be trying to prioritize where we put the resources we do have.”

Public education, both at the K-12 level and higher education, needs more funding, Brackett said.

“We’ve definitely turned the (economic) corner and started back up, although maybe not as fast as some of us would like to see,” he said. “Right now we are on a 3 to 3 1/2 percent growth rate. Hopefully we can at least continue that.”

“There are new businesses in the state, and existing businesses are expanding. We have made the tough decision to live within our means, but I want to keep the state

SAN ANTONIO • On Feb. 7, Terence “Bo” Jones nearly lost everything.

The U.S. Army private from Twin Falls was serving in southern Afghanistan when he stepped on an antipersonnel mine while on foot patrol.

Jones, who turned 22 on Oct. 3, lost both of his legs in the explosion and nearly lost his left arm. Doctors at a German hospital were able to stabilize his arm enough that it could be saved, though his bones are fused at the elbow. The percussion from the blast also shattered Jones’ pelvis and he underwent extensive surgeries to clear debris from his wounds.

Eight months later, the open wounds have closed, a metal plate and long screws hold Jones’ left arm in place and new legs have been ordered.

Sending a Package?

In a few weeks, Jones will move to the Center for the Intrepid in San Antonio. Until then, for cards, letters or care packages: PFC Terence Jones RM 226 Audie L. Murphy VA Polytrauma Center 7400 Merton Minter St. San Antonio, TX 78229

“I’m not letting anything stop me,” he said Monday in a phone interview from San Antonio, Texas.

Evening Wildfire Threatens South Hills Structures

TIMES-NEWS

ROGERSON • A small wildfire threatened homes and cabins in the South Hills Wednesday evening, as federal fire crews moved to quash it.

The 50-acre wildfire was reported late Wednesday afternoon. The cause was unknown that evening, according to Heather Tiel-Nelson, spokeswoman for the U.S. Bureau of Land Management.

The threatened structures were located just west of Magic Mountain and Thompson Creek. The fire closed the 500 Road connecting Shoshone Basin Road and Rock Creek Road.

The Twin Falls and Cassia County sheriff’s offices were on scene providing assistance at the closure, Tiel-Nelson said.

Six engines, a water tender and a dozer all responded, along with air support and six smokejumpers.

The fire is estimated to be contained by 6 p.m. Friday and controlled by Sunday.

For the latest on the fire today, visit Magicvalley.com.

HIDDEN HISTORY

BY MYCHEL MATTHEWS

Twin Falls County Historic Preservation Commission

DECLO • History is full of myths and conspiracy theories — and one of these myths pulled into town on the rails and never left.

Shakespearean actor and Confederate secret agent John Wilkes Booth shot President Abraham Lincoln at Ford's Theatre in Washington, D.C., on April 14, 1865. Most historians — but not all — agree that Booth was tracked down and killed in a barn in Virginia nearly two weeks later. Booth's body was buried in Green Mount Cemetery in Baltimore.

Others say that government agents killed the wrong man in Garrett's barn. Rumors of his escape from the barn began to circulate even before Booth's body was cold. Some say the body was hastily buried to cover up the government's mistake.

Nearly 40 years later, a man claiming to be John Wilkes Booth committed suicide in Enid, Okla.

"This isn't the story you'll find in textbooks," said Valerie Bowen, director of the Cassia County Historical Museum in Burley.

The man claiming to be Booth turned out to be a drifter who called himself David E. George. George bore a striking resemblance to Booth, and could spout Shakespeare at the drop of a hat.

Some folks in Enid took George's confession seriously. An undertaker embalmed the body, fully expecting that someone from the government or Booth's family would claim it.

But the body — which eventually became mummified — remained unclaimed until an old friend came for it.

The friend, Finis L. Bates, had heard George's story before. Twenty years after Lincoln's assassination, George (who then went by the name John St. Helen) was ill and thought that he would soon be dead. George confessed to Bates, who was a lawyer.

After George recovered, Bates notified the government of St. Helen's confession, but no one seemed interested.

After hearing of George's suicide and mummification, Bates asked a judge in Oklahoma for the body. The judge agreed, thinking that Bates would give his friend a decent burial.

Instead, Bates wrote a book called "The Escape and Suicide of John Wilkes Booth — Written for the Correction of History" and put the mummy on tour. They say that the mummy made more money on tour than John Wilkes Booth ever did as an actor.

Eventually, the mummy — which by then was affectionately known as "John" — was leased to William Evans, known as the Carnival King of the Southwest. Evans paid a $40,000 bond, plus a fee of more than $2,000 a year, to display "John" in his so-called greatest freak-animal show in the country.

After a train wreck destroyed his carnival business, Evans traveled from town to town in a luxury Pullman rail car, charging folks a fee to see "the body of John Wilkes Booth" in a coffin.

Evans later retired, and moved "John" and his Pullman car to a small potato farm in Declo. He eventually left town with the mummy, but Evans left the Pullman car in Declo.

Evans' Pullman car "has come a long way," said Bowen. Since it was sold, the rail car has been used as a barber shop, a residence and a pig pen.

The rail car was moved from Declo to the Cassia County Historical Museum in Burley a few decades ago, where it was cleaned up and remains on display.

"It's not the plush private car it used to be," said Bowen, "but it's not a pig pen anymore."

"John" was last seen publicly in 1976, before the mummy was sold to a private collector.

Two Plead Not Guilty in Home Invasion Robbery

TWIN FALLS • Two men accused in the home invasion robbery of a Buhl couple have pleaded not guilty to charges related to the alleged crime.

Luis Sotelo, 20, of Murtaugh, and Dylan Contreras,

20, of Shoshone, both had court dates Tuesday. Sotelo pleaded not guilty to a robbery charge, and Contreras pleaded not guilty to two second-degree kidnapping charges and a robbery charge.

Pretrial dates for both men are set for Dec. 3. A trial date for both is scheduled for Dec. 18 with an alternate date on Jan 8, 2013. An additional alternate date for Sotelo's trial is set for Dec. 26.

John Valenciano Jr., 19, of Twin Falls, and a 16-year-old boy also charged in the alleged crime are scheduled to be arraigned on Oct. 15.

All four are accused of robbing the home of Leo and Judy Ray, who own Fish Processors of Idaho, on Aug. 7.

AUTOPSY DONE ON BODY FOUND IN CANAL

TIMES-NEWS

HANSEN • The autopsy of a 22-year-old Hansen man whose body was found in an irrigation ditch Sunday was completed Tuesday, Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office spokeswoman Lori Stewart said.

Stewart said officials will most likely wait until a full toxicology report is complete to release any more details. That could take several weeks, she said.

Ty Vincent Seamons, whose family last heard from him on Oct. 3, was found a mile and a half downstream from his Honda Civic, which was submerged in water.

Deputies found the unoccupied vehicle near 3800 E. 3543 N. on Saturday.

Stewart said authorities do not believe foul play was involved, although the investigation is continuing.

Cruelty

“Both are good steps to prevent this from happening again. It’s something a lot of our producers don’t have in place and that they should. There needs to be a better vetting process when hiring employees,” Naerebout said. “What is shown in that video is not tolerated.”

However, Mercy for Animals believes Bettencourt’s actions are “a little too late,” Rice said.

“If it wasn’t for Mercy for Animals, this would still be happening,” Rice said.

As a result of the video, the group is asking companies like Burger King to stop buying milk products sourced from the Dry Creek Dairy.

Burger King Worldwide is aware of the video but does not have a relationship with the dairy, the fast food chain said in a statement.

“Burger King Worldwide estimates that a fraction of our dairy products, less than 1 percent, could have originated at the Bettencourt facility where the video that depicts inhumane treatment of dairy cows was allegedly filmed,” according to the statement provided.

Bettencourt sells his milk to Jerome Cheese Co., which is owned by Daviso Foods International Inc. Davisco then sells its milk products to another producer which sells products to Burger King.

At this time, it is unlikely Daviso would stop purchasing milk from Bettencourt, said Jon Davis, CEO of the company.

“I know Luis Bettencourt. I know his ethics. He has no benefit to continue cruelty to animals,” Davis said. “This is a rogue incident.”

The three employees each face a misdemeanor charge for their actions. As of Wednesday, Jesus Garza is charged with one count of animal cruelty and is scheduled to appear in court on Oct. 16 for a pre-trial conference. Javier Victor Rojas-Loayza and Jose Acensio both have warrants out for their arrest for animal cruelty charges.

Idaho lawmakers just recently passed the state’s first felony animal cruelty law during the 2012 legislative session. Under the law, a person is only charged with a felony if they have two prior animal cruelty convictions within the 15 years prior to the third charge. Animal-rights groups had sought a harsher punishment, but the final law reflects a compromise with livestock and dairy groups.

Sen. Bert Brackett, R-Rogerson, who was involved with crafting the final law, wasn’t aware of the Bettencourt incident when contacted by the Times-News on Wednesday. However, he said that the fact that the employees are being prosecuted shows that the process is working.

“Obviously this type of behavior cannot be condoned and this is particularly egregious,” he said. “It sounds like they can and should be prosecuted under the statute.”

Idaho’s Animal Cruelty Law: A Refresher

Idaho’s felony animal cruelty law was just passed during the last legislative session. Under the law, animal cruelty starts as a misdemeanor. But a person can be charged with a felony if they have two prior animal cruelty convictions within the 15 years prior to their third charge. Each incident of alleged cruelty — regardless of the number of animals involved — is charged as one count.

The penalties for the felony are the same as the previous third-offense misdemeanor for the crime — a fine of $500-$9,000 and up to a year in jail.

is cruising through his recovery. Tuesday, Jones had two more reconstructive surgeries. Once he heals from those, he’ll begin the process of adapting to prosthetic legs.

Like many soldiers who returned from the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, some of the lasting effects on Jones are the result of a traumatic brain injury sustained in the blast. While his injuries have affected his memory, Jones said he’s not letting it slow him down.

“As long as I can ride motorcycles, shoot animals and have fun that’s good enough for me,” he said.

Keeping a positive attitude and continuing to do the things he loves has helped him make it through the past few months.

“You just get to the point where you don’t realize you have a problem anymore,” he said. “I don’t think of myself as an amputee. I’m not a hero, I’m just a normal guy. Just built different.”

Many of Jones’ days now are filled with physical therapy as he learns how to maneuver in his wheelchair and does strength training to regain function in his left arm.

“I’ve yet to find something that really challenges me,” he said.

So, far the toughest feat he’s conquered is getting off the floor into his wheelchair relying on one arm, he said.

Now, falling out of his chair when no one is around to help him is no longer a

Kimberly Council to Revise Clinic Lease

BY DAVE WILKINS
For the Times-News

KIMBERLY • The Kimberly City Council on Tuesday decided a long-term lease agreement is the best option for a planned health care clinic on city property.

The city would retain ownership of the building and old city hall site on Main Street under the proposed long-term lease. A previous lease agreement was found to be in violation of state law because it allowed for the eventual transfer of city property to Family Health Services without a competitive bid process.

“I think the city needs to retain ownership interest in that property,” City Attorney Tim Stover advised the council prior to its vote.

Other options on the table included transferring ownership of the property to the Kimberly Urban Renewal Agency or selling the property to the highest bidder at auction.

Family Health Services, a nonprofit, plans to build a clinic on the old city hall site to serve the city’s low-income population. The city has already been awarded a $500,000 community development block grant to pay for the project.

Terms of the new agreement have not been determined. Construction, which was originally scheduled to begin this month, could be delayed.

In other action Tuesday, the council voted to explore the possibility of selling several residential building lots in the Stonegate Subdivision.

The lots have declined in value since the city acquired them in a lawsuit with a developer a few years ago.

But now that the housing market has begun to recover, it may be time for the city to sell, elected officials said.

“My thought is to strike while the iron is hot,” Councilman Jim Eisenhower said.

Mayor Tracy Armstrong said he would like to see a new appraisal of the lots.

“They were appraised a couple years ago, but they were appraised really low,” he said.

“The market is coming back. Obviously, our hope would be that the value of the lots would be coming back as well so we can reclaim the money that we have wrapped up in that development.”

The council also took under advisement a request to help a local food bank.

Robyn Moss, coordinator of the Rock Creek Food Bank, asked that the city kick in $225 a month to pay for the delivery of donated food. The need is great, she said.

“We’re averaging 175 homes a month that we are serving,” she told the council.

The local food bank is also looking for volunteers and a building, Moss said.

“We don’t need a large building. Eight hundred square feet would be plenty of space,” she said.

The next council meeting will be held at 6 p.m. Oct. 23 at the Kimberly Middle School Commons Room. The first item on the agenda will be a public hearing on city water rates.

business-friendly. It’s important to keep that reputation.”

Chobani’s new Twin Falls plant is an example of important economic growth, Brackett said, adding that such firms have a ripple effect.

“Chobani brings so many ancillary businesses, so many spinoff businesses,” he said. “It becomes exciting.”

Brackett points to his experience on the Joint Finance-Appropriations, Natural Resources, and Transportation committees as a reason to be re-elected.

“Those are all good committees,” he said. “I feel I have benefitted my constituents.”

Chisholm said he’s running because the Republican Party’s right wing has dominated Idaho politics. He wants to see a more balanced approach to solving the state’s problems.

“It’s bad enough that we have a one-party system,” he said, “but now we have only have one element of one party. There needs to be some balance. A one-party system is a poor way to set public policy. Better debate makes better public policy.”

He says education must be fully funded. If money isn’t available, Chisholm said, “We have to figure out ways to improve it even if we’re short of funds. I support multi-discipline courses. You can combine things and make them more interesting.”

Occupation: Handyman, carpenter, small ranch owner, yoga teacher.

Education: Bachelor of business administration from Idaho State University.

Government experience: Has run unsuccessfully for several offices since 1978.

Chisholm says evidence of his interest in education came in 2007 when he served on an advisory committee that helped Idaho Power start an program to teach high school students how to do energy audits. Elementary students also learned about energy efficiency in homes.

“The kids began telling the adults to turn off the lights,” Chisholm said.

He supports investing in a broad range of renewable energy sources.

“We can do much better in design to use the energy of the sun,” Chisholm said. “I am an advocate of smaller-scale wind and solar energy so people can have (sources) on their house or business.”

He describes himself as a problem-solver, having worked as a wilderness survival instructor with troubled youths, a wildland firefighter and a damage assessor for the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Chisholm believes those experiences would help him make decisions as a state senator.

“When something comes up, I take a look at the big picture,” he said. “A shortcoming with our public policy is that we don’t ask the next question: if we do this, then what? We need to take the discussion a step further to make sure we don’t create another problem.”

Also, Chisholm said he has a strong background in environmental issues and would be an advocate for the environment if elected.

Mont. Campaign Finance Limits Put Back in Place

HELENA, Mont. (AP) • The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reinstated Montana's campaign donation limits, telling the federal judge who struck down the limits that the panel needs to see his full reasoning so it can review the case.

The court intervened late Tuesday less than a week after the judge's decision opened the door to unlimited money in state elections — during the height of election season.

In response, U.S. District Judge Charles Lovell issued a 38-page conclusion Wednesday morning that reinforced his earlier decision finding that the state's limits are too low to allow effective campaigning. He suggested the state Legislature would have a “clean canvas” to perhaps establish new, higher limits that could meet constitutional muster.

The 9th circuit did not immediately respond, leaving the state limits in place — for the time being. The legal back and forth came with less than a month until Election Day.

Montana limits range from $630 for an individual contributing to a governor's race to $160 for a state House candidate. The amounts are adjusted each election cycle to account for inflation. The law also limited aggregate donations from political parties.

Conservative groups emboldened by the 2010 U.S. Supreme Court's Citizens United decision have made Montana the center of the fight over many campaign finance restrictions.

The groups have convinced a federal judge to strike down several laws as unconstitutional, including the cap on contributions given to candidates by individuals and political parties.

Over the past week, Montana election officials had urged candidates to abide by the old limits. But attorneys for conservative and Republican groups advised candidates they could take unlimited money during that window.

Some candidates said they would abide by the old limits, while others considered the idea of taking larger donations.

NONPROFIT IDAHO REFORM BACKER SHIELDS DONORS

BOISE (AP) • A promoter of Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna's education reforms isn't revealing the source of hundreds of thousands in campaign cash by giving it through a nonprofit group whose donors he says are exempt from disclosure.

The Idaho Statesman reported Wednesday a pro-reform nonprofit, Education Voters of Idaho, created by Boise-based lobbyist John Foster, gave $200,350 to another group, Parents for Education Reform, for broadcast ads touting the reforms.

Though Parents for Education Reform disclosed its contribution — its only one, according to the Idaho Secretary of State — Education Voters of Idaho won't file a similar sunshine report detailing its backers. That's because it's exempted from such requirements by federal tax laws governing nonprofit, 501(c)(4) “social welfare organizations,” Foster said, adding there's precedent in Idaho for such donor protections.

“I'm a big believer in the First Amendment, and the rights of people and corporations to engage in the political process as they see fit, without restrictions,” he said.

Bail Set for T.F. Man Charged with Rape

MOSCOW (AP) • Bail was set at $125,000 for a Twin Falls man charged with raping an acquaintance behind a fraternity house at the University of Idaho.

Moscow police arrested 21-year-old Jesse Vierstra early Sunday. The former University of Idaho student made an initial court appearance Tuesday and told Magistrate John Judge that he was innocent.

Feds Approve $4.5M for Trinity Ridge Fire Rehab

BOISE (AP) • Federal forest officials say they have approved $4.5 million to restore acreage damaged by the Trinity Ridge Fire in the Boise National Forest.

The U.S. Forest Service approved the spending this week for repairs that include watershed protection, road and trail improvements and noxious weed treatments. The work is scheduled to begin immediately and wrap up by this winter.

The biggest expense will be an estimated $2.1 million to place straw mulch in areas to protect Bull Trout fisheries, soil stabilization and vegetation recovery in three watersheds.

Another $2 million will be used on road improvements and upgrading stream crossings.

The Trinity Ridge Fire started on Aug. 3 and burned nearly 229 square miles including popular recreation spots. The fire is projected to be fully contained next week.

Man Gets Prison for Vegas Chip Heist

LAS VEGAS (AP) • A California man was sentenced Wednesday to two to five years in a Nevada prison for his role in a botched grab-and-run casino chip heist last May at the Bellagio resort on the Las Vegas Strip.

Michael Quinn Belton, 25, of Nuevo, Calif., apologized in court and gave Clark County District Court Judge Kathleen Delaney a letter saying he wanted to enter the military and turn his life around.

“I’m sorry about what I did,” Belton said in a raspy voice as he stood shackled to other jail inmates in the courtroom. “It was poor judgment on my part.”

Belton could have faced up to 21 years in prison, but a presentencing report recommended no more than seven years.

Delaney chose a more lenient sentence but rejected a bid by Belton’s public defense lawyer, Dedree Miles, for probation for what Miles called a “stupid and foolish” robbery attempt at a Las Vegas resort featured in the 2001 movie “Ocean’s Eleven.”

“I don’t know what was going on in his mind,” Miles said of her client.

The grandparents have since died, Miles said. No Belton family members were in the courtroom.

Belton told police the plot was hatched by a man who posted an Internet ad offering a job repossessing vehicles in the Las Vegas area, then recruited Belton and another man for the robbery once they got to town.

Police never found the man who they said used the name Carlos Rodriguez when he rented a room for Belton at the Mandalay Bay resort.

“When he found out what the real job was, he agreed,” Miles said Wednesday. “At that moment of desperation, maybe he was thinking, ‘Hey, it’s in the movies. Maybe it’s something we could possibly get away with.”

Prosecutor Danae Adams said Belton and the other would-be robber wore wigs and sunglasses, and the other man sprayed a pepper spray-type substance at a blackjack dealer and player before Belton snatched $115,000 worth of chips and tried to run.

3 Arrested for Transporting Marijuana on Amtrak Train

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) • Law enforcement officers in northeastern Montana have arrested three people suspected of transporting several pounds of marijuana while riding an Amtrak train.

Roosevelt County Sheriff Freedom Crawford said Tuesday his office received a tip over the weekend that a passenger on the train had a warrant out for his arrest in North Dakota.

Officers arrested David Koepke of Reno, Nev., on Saturday near Mondak. He was jailed on $100,000 bond. Crawford said officers found at least two pounds of marijuana in his luggage.

And on Oct. 2, deputies arrested Morris Hayden and Amberly Dobbins after witnesses reported seeing them walking along the tracks east of Poplar, Crawford said in a news release. He said both had jumped off a moving train, and Dobbins was injured.

Wildlife Officials Say Coyote Attack ‘Strange’

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • Utah officials are awaiting the results of a rabies test on a coyote that attacked a guard at a Kennecott Utah Copper site in Salt Lake County, calling the attack rare.

The woman was sitting in a booth Monday night when the coyote entered through the door and lunged at her, Kennecott spokesman Kyle Bennett said. The coyote bit the woman before she was able to get it out of the security station.

A Unified police officer responded and fatally shot the animal. The animal’s head was sent to a laboratory managed by the Utah Department of Health early Tuesday for a rabies test. The rest of the coyote was sent to the Utah Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory for a necropsy.

The guard was treated with a few stitches and released from the hospital.

John Shivik, mammal program coordinator for the Utah Division of Wildlife Resources, said the animal looked healthy but that more may be known about what led to the attack after the laboratory tests.

“This was an isolated, rare, strange and uncommon thing to happen,” he told The Salt Lake Tribune for a story Wednesday. “We need to figure out what was going on.”

At least four bats from across Utah have tested positive for rabies this year, but it is uncommon for other mammals to carry the disease.

U.S. Duo Shares the 2012 Nobel Prize

LENNART SIMONSSON
DPA, MCT Information Services

STOCKHOLM • U.S. researchers Robert J. Lefkowitz and Brian K. Kobilka on Wednesday shared the Nobel Chemistry Prize for their pioneering studies on cell receptors, which enable each cell to sense its environment, the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences said. Their research on “G-protein-coupled receptors” could also contribute to developing better drugs, according to the Nobel Committee.

Receptors serve as sensors for cells, communicating from outside the cell to the inside, similar to the body’s sensors for light (eyes), smell (nose) or taste (mouth), the committee said. G-protein-coupled receptors comprise “a whole family of receptors,” it said, noting that “about half of all medications achieve their effect through G-protein-coupled receptors.”

Antihistamines, beta blockers and different drugs for psychiatric conditions use receptors. “The receptors are a bit like the switchboard in a building,” explained Sara Snogerup Linse, a committee member. “How it works is very important information for the development of drugs.”

“Thanks to the receptors I now can enjoy a cup of coffee,” she said, as an assistant poured her a cup. “And thanks to Lefkowitz and Kobilka I know how it works.” Lefkowitz is with Duke University Medical Center in Durham, N.C. He used radioactivity in 1968 to trace cells’ receptors, discovering several and gaining an initial understanding of them.

Kobilka, affiliated with Stanford University School of Medicine in California, worked as a research assistant with Lefkowitz in the 1980s and was instrumental in tracing a key gene that codes the receptor for adrenalin. The 57-year-old told dpa the news had hit him “like a thunderbolt ... I keep trying to convince myself that this is not a dream.”

The phone had rung in the middle of the night, he said. “Since then there’s been one call after the other. I am answering the house phone, my wife is on the mobile.”

But the prize has not gone to his head. “I am not interesting, rather dull,” he said. “I can’t offer much besides a bit cycling here and there.”

Earlier he told Swedish Radio that the Nobel Committee had had to phone him twice, because “I didn’t make it to the phone in time.”

Lefkowitz told the committee in Stockholm by phone that he was “very, very excited,” to receive the prize.

“I was fast asleep and the phone rang. I was wearing earplugs. My wife gave me an elbow. And there it was, a total surprise.”

“By then, I was wide awake. Surely, Stockholm did not call to ask me for the weather,” Lefkowitz told dpa a few hours after the call.

After the flood of emails from friends, he said it felt as though he was “reliving my whole life.”

He hadn’t yet found the time to notify his five children and five grandchildren. “Not one of them is in science. I think they saw how hard I was working and came to the conclusion: This is not for us,” he laughingly told dpa.

“I was going to get a haircut today, I am afraid I will have to postpone that ... It’ll be a pretty crazy day at my office,” he told Swedish Radio.

Both plan to travel to Stockholm for the award ceremony on Dec. 10.

Wolf Hunting Begins in Wis. and Minn.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) • For years, vacationers and farmers across northern Wisconsin and Minnesota have heard the eerie howl of the gray wolf and fretted the creatures were lurking around their cabins and pastures, eyeing up Fido or Bessie. The tables are about to turn: Both states plan to launch their first organized wolf hunts in the coming weeks.

The hunts won’t be anything on the scale of the two states’ beloved whitetail deer hunts, when hundreds of thousands of hunters rearrange work and school schedules and fan out across the woods. Both states have limited the number of wolves hunters can kill and capped the number of permits, creating an exclusive club of hunters. Wolf hunting isn’t unheard of in the United States. Alaska, Montana, Idaho and Wyoming allow it. Federal officials removed Great Lakes wolves from the endangered species list in January. That spurred Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin lawmakers to draft bills establishing hunts, too, pushing aside animal advocates’ concerns that the wolf populations remain too fragile to sustain hunting.

Farmers in all three states have long complained about wolves wreaking havoc on their livestock. Wildlife officials estimate there are now 700 wolves in Michigan and 850 in Wisconsin. About 3,000 roam Minnesota, the largest wolf population in the lower 48 states.

High Court Questions Texas Affirmative Action

WASHINGTON (AP) • Supreme Court justices sharply questioned the University of Texas’ use of race in college admissions Wednesday in a case that could lead to new limits on affirmative action.

The court heard arguments in a challenge to the program from a white Texan who contends she was discriminated against when the university did not offer her a spot in 2008.

The court’s conservatives cast doubt on the program that uses race as one among many factors in admitting about a quarter of the university’s incoming freshmen. The liberal justices appeared more supportive of the effort. Justice Anthony Kennedy, whose vote could be decisive, looked skeptically on Texas’ defense of the program. “What you’re saying is what counts is race above all,” Kennedy said. He has never voted in favor of an affirmative action program but has voiced support for diversity in education.

Twenty-two-year-old Abigail Fisher, the rejected student who sued, was among the hundreds of spectators at the arguments. Also in attendance was retired Justice Sandra Day O’Connor, who wrote the majority opinion in a 2003 case that upheld the use of race in college admissions. Changes in the court’s makeup since then, especially O’Connor’s departure, could affect the outcome of the Texas case. Justice Samuel Alito, O’Connor’s successor, has voted consistently against racial preferences since he joined the court in 2006 and appears likely to side with Fisher. Among the liberal justices who looked more favorably on the Texas admissions system was Justice Sonia Sotomayor. She told Bert Rein, Fisher’s Washington-based lawyer, that he was looking to “gut” the 9-year-old decision.

The university says the program is necessary to provide the kind of diverse educational experience the high court has previously endorsed. Along with race, the university considers community service, work experience, extracurricular activities, awards and other factors as it seeks to fill out its incoming classes. The bulk of its slots go to students who are admitted based on their high school class rank, without regard to race.

In 2008, the freshman class of more than 6,600 included 1,713 African-American and Hispanic students. Of those, 216 were admitted under the program that is being challenged. Opponents of the program say the university is practicing illegal discrimination by considering race at all, especially since the school achieves significant diversity through its race-blind admissions.

No one on the court Wednesday expressed opposition to diversity in education. But Chief Justice John Roberts, Justice Antonin Scalia and Alito raised repeated objections to the affirmative action plan. Roberts wanted to know how the university would determine when it had a “critical mass” of diversity on campus that would allow it to end the program. Near the end of the session, he complained, “I’m hearing a lot about what it’s not. I would like to know what it is.”

Scalia, a dissenter in the 2003 case, mocked the university’s efforts to have more minority students not just in the student body as a whole but at the classroom level. “How do they figure out that particular classes don’t have enough? What, somebody walks in the room and looks them over to see who looks Asian, who looks black, who looks Hispanic? Is that how it’s done?” Scalia said.

After the argument concluded, Fisher read a brief statement outside in which she said she hoped the court would rule that race or ethnicity “should not be considered when applying to the University of Texas.” The university said in court papers that Fisher would not have been admitted even without a racial preference program.

A decision should come by late June.

Experts: Global Warming Means More Antarctic Ice

WASHINGTON (AP) • The ice goes on seemingly forever in a white pancake-flat landscape, stretching farther than ever before. And yet in this confounding region of the world, that spreading ice may be a cockeyed signal of man-made climate change, scientists say.

This is Antarctica, the polar opposite of the Arctic. While the North Pole has been losing sea ice over the years, the water nearest the South Pole has been gaining it. Antarctic sea ice hit a record 7.51 million square miles in September. That happened just days after reports of the biggest loss of Arctic sea ice on record.

Climate change skeptics have seized on the Antarctic ice to argue that the globe isn’t warming and that scientists are ignoring the southern continent because it’s not convenient. But scientists say the skeptics are misinterpreting what’s happening and why.

Shifts in wind patterns and the giant ozone hole over the Antarctic this time of year — both related to human activity — are probably behind the increase in ice, experts say. This subtle growth in winter sea ice since scientists began measuring it in 1979 was initially surprising, they say, but makes sense the more it is studied. “A warming world can have complex and sometimes surprising consequences,” researcher Ted Maksym said this week from an Australian research vessel surrounded by Antarctic sea ice. He is with the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution in Massachusetts.

Many experts agree. Ted Scambos of the National Snow and Ice Data Center in Colorado adds: “It sounds counterintuitive, but the Antarctic is part of the warming as well.” And on a third continent, David Vaughan of the British Antarctic Survey says that yes, what’s happening in Antarctica bears the fingerprints of man-made climate change. “Scientifically the change is nowhere near as substantial as what we see in the Arctic,” says NASA chief scientist Waleed Abdalati, an ice expert. “But that doesn’t mean we shouldn’t be paying attention to it and shouldn’t be talking about it.”

Sea ice is always melting near one pole while growing around the other. But the overall trend year to year is dramatically less ice in the Arctic and slightly more in the Antarctic.

Heating Costs to Rise This Winter as Cold Returns

NEW YORK (AP) • Americans will pay more to heat their homes this winter as they feel something they didn't feel much of last year: cold. Prices for natural gas, heating oil and other fuels will be relatively stable. But customers will have to use more energy to keep warm than they did a year ago, according to the annual Winter Fuels Outlook from the Energy Department's Energy Information Administration. Last winter was the warmest on record. This year temperatures are expected to be close to normal. Heating bills will rise 20 percent for heating oil customers, 15 percent for natural gas customers, 13 percent for propane customers and 5 percent for electricity customers, the EIA announced Wednesday. Heating oil customers are expected to pay an average of $3.80 per gallon, the highest price ever. That will result in record heating bills, at an average of $2,494. That's nearly $200 more than the previous high, set in the winter of 2010-2011. Kathleen Ryan of Cohoes, in upstate New York, is on a payment plan in which she is billed for oil November through May to spread out the costs. But with oil prices high and a hint of winter chill in the air, she is concerned. "You have no idea what Mother Nature is going to bring," she said. "They're already talking about frost this weekend. My costs could double." She regrets not switching over to natural gas earlier this year when sewer line work in her neighborhood would have made it easier to run a gas line to her home. But she has a plan to keep a lid on her heating bills. "I'm going to buy a portable heater, an electric heater," she said. That could help. Customers who use natural gas, electricity or propane will see lower bills than in a typical winter because of relatively low prices. For example, natural gas should average $10.32 per thousand cubic feet. That's 0.8 percent higher than last year but 13 percent lower than the five-year average. Rising heating oil costs come at a time when funding for low-income heating assistance is falling. Over the last two years, federal heating assistance funding has been cut to $3.5 billion from $5.1 billion. The number of households receiving assistance has dropped by 1.1 million over the period, according to Wolfe. Just 6 percent of the nation's households use heating oil, but they tend to be in some of the coldest parts of the country where heating needs are high, mainly in the Northeast. About half use natural gas for heat and 38 percent use electricity. Five percent of households use propane and 2 percent use wood. Electricity prices will fall 2.3 percent to 11.4 cents per kilowatt hour, the government estimates. Propane prices will fall 8 percent in the Midwest to $2.02 per gallon and 13 percent in the Northeast to $2.95 per gallon. Natural gas, propane and electricity prices are relatively low because of a dramatic increase in domestic natural gas production over the last five years. Natural gas is used to generate about one-third of the nation's electricity and is instrumental in setting the price of electricity. Recently drillers have been increasing production of so-called natural gas liquids, including propane. Heating oil will hit record prices because it is made from crude oil. Crude is priced globally, and has stayed high because of increasing world demand, worries about supply disruptions in the Middle East, and stimulus programs from central banks around the world that encourage investment in oil and other commodities. Oil has averaged $95.95 per barrel in the U.S. so far this year, up from an average of $94.86 in 2011. Consumers in the Northeast already have an issue with oil: high gasoline prices. Drivers in New England are paying an average of $3.955 per gallon, up 44 cents from a year ago, according to the Energy Department.

Iran's Spy Agency Finds Voice in Cyberspace

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) • A glimpse into the shadow world of Iran's main spy agency is now a click away. In an unexpected display of outreach, the Intelligence Ministry now hosts a website with addresses of provincial offices, appeals for tips and anti-American essays that mock rising obesity rates, large prison populations and school shootings. There's no mission statement on the site, but it appears part of stepped-up attempts by Iran's leadership to promote national unity and project its authority amid Western sanctions and international isolation. After protests in Tehran last week over Iran's slumping currency, the nationally broadcast Friday prayers tapped heavily into the theme of shared sacrifice in times of trouble. And on Wednesday, Iran's Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei described the sanctions as a "war against a nation." The new website also fits into Iran's narrative of fighting a "soft war" in cyberspace against Western cultural and political influences. For more than a year, Iran's leaders have touted plans for a "clean" Internet that could presumably try to block Western content, but Web experts have raised questions about its technical feasibility. "The ministry is going online to make its presence known to the Iranian public, especially the young who use the Internet," said Meir Javedanfar, an Iranian-born political analyst based in Israel. "This is basically a show of force." What the new Farsi-language site, www.vajia.ir, lacks in innovation (mostly a simple list of stories and links), it makes up for in pure anti-American bluntness. Click on "America from a Different Perspective." The list of shame includes the huge U.S. prison population, rising obesity, school shooting statistics, why supporters of euthanasia seek to "kill grandparents" and how giant chain stores such as Walmart are smothering small businesses. Another essay claims the chief goal of U.S. economic sanctions is not to force concessions over Tehran's nuclear program, but to incite civil unrest. It specifically cites U.S. diplomat Jillian Burns, who set up Washington's first Iranian monitoring office in Dubai in 2006 and is currently the consul in Herat in western Afghanistan, where Iran has strong cultural and economic ties. There was no immediate comment from the State Department. Tehran-based political commentator Hamid Reza Shokouhi sees the website — the web name is the Farsi acronym for the Intelligence Ministry — as part of a new image-building campaign by Iran's ruling system in the Internet era, which has left authorities in a constant struggle to block opposition sites and Western influences. "Economic and military threats against Iran have increased. Under such circumstances, it is necessary to reduce the gap between the people and the ruling system," said Shokouhi. "The website is a move in this direction. This is a big deal." It's far from the first time that Iran's leadership has planted its flag in cyberspace. Websites have operated for years for Khamenei and others including President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad — in Farsi, English and Arabic. More than a dozen state-run and semiofficial news services also flood the Web around the clock. "The leadership, particularly within the hardline elements of the Intelligence Ministry, has an obsession with the notion that Washington is coordinating a soft revolution to unseat the Islamic Republic," said Suzanne Maloney, an Iranian affairs expert at the Brookings Institution in Washington. Part of Iran's counter-strategy appears to be a kind of information overload in response to U.S. initiatives, such as the State Department's launch last year of a "virtual embassy" in English and Farsi that seeks to reach out to ordinary Iranians. The site was quickly blocked by Iranian authorities, but firewall bypasses such as proxy servers are widely used by Iran's young and tech-skilled population. "There is probably an element of mimicry here as well," said Maloney. "The Iranians enjoy turning the table on Washington and imitating American tactics." Last week, a U.S. broadcast oversight board accused Iran of jamming regional radio and television programming that includes the Persian services for the Voice of America and the BBC. And on Monday — two days after the website was launched — Iran's Intelligence Minister Heidar Moselehi claimed that Iran's secret services have the upper hand in the Web war with the West. "The intelligence apparatus confronts enemy measures in the cyber front," the official IRNA news agency quoted Moselehi as saying. The intelligence minister was at the center of one of Iran's most public political feuds. Khamenei last year demanded Moselehi keep the post despite objections from Ahmadinejad, who was so angered that he boycotted government meetings for more than a week. In response, the ruling clerics arrested dozens of Ahmadinejad's allies and left him politically weakened entering his final year in office. A journalist at Tehran's moderate Shargh newspaper, Soroush Farhadian, interprets the new website as an effort by intelligence agency to gain its own voice. "One of the objectives is to demonstrate its independent position rather than speaking through the semiofficial news agencies," he said.

Drought Cuts U.S. Crops Below Demand for 1st Time in 38 Years

JEFF WILSON
Bloomberg News

CHICAGO • Drought damage to corn and soybean fields in the United States, the world's top grower and exporter, is eroding supplies of the nation's two largest crops to below year-earlier consumption levels for the first time since 1974. The government probably will say Thursday that the U.S. corn harvest and inventories on Sept. 1 will be a combined 11.604 billion bushels, less than the 12.33 billion consumed and exported last year, according to a Bloomberg survey of 31 analysts. Soybean supplies will be 2.932 billion bushels, below the 3.157 billion used in 2011. Supplies failed to top usage from the previous year only twice since 1960 for corn and five times for soybeans, U.S. Department of Agriculture data show. Record heat in June and July sparked the worst drought since 1956, sending corn and soybeans prices to record highs. Morgan Stanley predicted corn may rally 35 percent in a year, while Barclays Plc sees soybeans gaining 16 percent. Higher costs for dairies, grain processors and livestock producers helped send global food prices in September to the highest since

March, United Nations data show. "Supplies of both corn and soybeans will be tight, and we expect prices to rebound after the report," said Bill Tierney, the chief economist for Chicago-based AgResource Co. and a former USDA grain analyst. "There is no evidence that current prices are rationing soybean supplies, and there will be less supply relief for corn" from South American harvests that start in February, he said. Corn futures have jumped 15 percent this year to $7.415 a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade, and soybeans surged 28 percent to $15.425 a bushel. The 24 commodities tracked by the Standard & Poor's GSCI Spot Index rose 3.2 percent in the period, led by wheat's gain of 33 percent. The MSCI All-Country World Index of equities climbed 11 percent, and Treasuries returned 1.9 percent, a Bank of America Corp. index shows. In its report Thursday, the USDA probably will cut its domestic corn-production forecast to a nine-year low of 10.616 billion bushels, down 1 percent from 10.727 billion estimated in September and the fourth straight monthly reduction, according to the average of estimates in the Bloomberg survey. As recently as June, the government predicted a record harvest of 14.79 billion bushels. Combined with the government's Sept. 1 estimate of reserves at 988 million bushels, total U.S. supply will be 6.3 percent below estimated consumption last year. Inventories before next year's harvest may fall to 656 million bushels, the lowest since 1996, a Bloomberg survey showed. Prices have dropped from the record of $8.49 on Aug. 10, as exports slowed and farmers increased sales from newly-harvested fields. Corn futures for December delivery touched $7.05 on Sept. 28, the lowest since July 12. Soybean futures that reached an all-time high of $17.89 on Sept. 4 slipped as low as $15.04 on Oct. 3. There are still signs that farmers will store more of their remaining supply in a bet prices will increase. Premiums paid on Tuesday above Chicago futures for corn delivered to export terminals near New Orleans and in Decatur, Illinois, were the highest since at least 2008, a sign that grain merchants are increasing inventories from this year's harvest, said Tim Emslie, the research manager for Country Hedging in Inver Grove Heights, Minn.

MUBARAK LOYALISTS ACQUITTED IN ATTACK ON PROTESTERS

CAIRO (AP) • An Egyptian court on Wednesday acquitted 24 loyalists of ousted President Hosni Mubarak who had been accused of organizing one of the most dramatic attacks on protesters during last year's uprising, the "Camel Battle," in which assailants on horses and camels charged into crowds in Cairo's Tahrir Square. The 24 were found innocent on charges of manslaughter and attempted murder. The defendants included some of the biggest names of Mubarak's regime, including the former parliament speaker and the head of the now-dissolved ruling party, along with government ministers and businessmen. A 25th defendant died during the course of the trial. The Feb. 2, 2011 assault left nearly a dozen people killed and was a major turning point in the 18-day wave of protests that led to Mubarak's downfall. It came a day after Mubarak spoke on national television, saying he would eventually step down. The emotional speech won him sympathy and drained the numbers of protesters in a days-long sit-in in Cairo's Tahrir Square, the heart of the uprising. But then the attack came. A crowd of Mubarak supporters waded into the young activists at the sit-in. Amid the melee, a number of men on horses and camels swept in, trying to beat and trample protesters. The assault, widely aired on TV, turned into an all-out battle that lasted two days, with more protesters flooding into the square to defend it in clashes that saw the two sides pelting each other with stones, bricks and firebombs. In the end, the Mubarak supporters were driven away.

Vice Presidential Debate's No. 1 Rule: If Chatter's about You, You're Doing It Wrong

THE WASHINGTON POST

The dark art of the vice presidential debate begins with a single rule: If everybody's talking about you, you're doing it wrong.

Since 1976, there have been eight televised face-offs between vice presidential nominees. The ninth will come today, when Vice President Biden debates Republican Rep. Paul Ryan (Wis.) in Danville, Ky.

By now, both parties have worked out tactics to fit this odd ritual. They require the barbed wit of an insult comedian and the humility of the hind legs in a two-man horse costume.

Candidates are told: Talk up your running mate. Zing your opponent. But avoid letting your career or your policy ideas become the focus. On the biggest night of your political life, it's not about you.

On Thursday, the stakes will be unusually high, and the job of playing second banana especially tough. Biden spent 36 years in the Senate. Ryan crafted a plan for re-making the entire government.

Now, the proud, successful men will have to insist — convincingly — that they'd rather talk about somebody else.

"Whatever you stood for, you stand for the team now,"

Republican vice presidential candidate Paul Ryan, left, tours the Piedmont Precision Machine Co. on Sept. 19 in Danville, Va.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

said Samuel Popkin, a professor at the University of California at San Diego who has helped coach Democrats in debates. Popkin said the task might be especially touchy for Ryan, because Romney has said he would not adopt Ryan's famous budget plan in full.

"You need his goal in life to be power now, not power later," Popkin said. "The only way I can see you do that is to get Ryan to say, 'Romney's budget is better than what I started with.'"

At the polling firm Gallup, researchers recently analyzed survey results before and after every running-mate debate since 1976 (except 1980, when there was no debate). "We really don't see any statistical change in any of them," said Frank Newport, Gallup's editor in chief.

But this year, both parties hope, could mean much more.

Democrats hope that Biden can make up for Obama's tentative, defensive performance in the first presidential debate last week. That would mean attacking Ryan over Romney's plans for taxes, Medicare and the budget.

Drug Firm May Have Misled Regulators

BOSTON (AP) • The specialty pharmacy linked to a deadly meningitis outbreak may have misled regulators and done work beyond the scope of its state license, Massachusetts Gov. Deval Patrick said Wednesday.

Meanwhile, a second pharmacy connected to the New England Compounding Center in Framingham has shut down for state and federal inspection.

The New England Compounding Center made a steroid that was used in injections for back pain that were later found contaminated. More than 130 people in 11 states have been sickened. Twelve have died.

On Wednesday, Patrick told reporters that state and federal agencies "may have been misled by some of the information we were given."

The company was licensed to fill specific prescriptions for specific patients but exceeded that, he said.

"What they were doing instead is making big batches and selling them out of state as a manufacturer would, and that is certainly outside of their state license," he said.

Massachusetts U.S. Rep. Ed Markey seized on Patrick's statement, and sent a letter to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, asking if it believes it was misled by the company.

MOM WHO GLUED TODDLER'S HANDS: I'M NOT A MONSTER

DALLAS (AP) • A mother who admitted to beating her 2-year-old daughter and gluing the child's hands made a plea for leniency Wednesday, saying she was no longer the "monster" who committed the attack.

"I will never forgive myself for what I did to my own daughter," said Elizabeth Escalona, who pleaded guilty in July to felony injury to a child.

Police say Escalona lost her temper last year with Jocelyn Cedillo over potty training problems. Escalona beat and kicked Jocelyn before sticking her hands to an apartment wall using an adhesive commonly known as Super Glue. The child was hospitalized for days.

Judge Larry Mitchell has a wide range in choosing Escalona's sentence: Anything from probation to life in prison is possible. Prosecutors are asking for a 45-year sentence.

Defense attorney Angie N'Duka asked Escalona what she thought of photos that prosecutors presented earlier this week showing her daughter's injuries.

"Only a monster does that," Escalona responded.

N'Duka then asked Escalona whether she thought she was a monster. "When that happened, I was," Escalona replied.

Escalona asked Mitchell for an opportunity to show she had changed, adding that she would accept any sentence as fair.

"I want everybody to know I'm not a monster," Escalona said. "I love my kids."

Escalona admitted to hitting and kicking her daughter but said she didn't recall why she did it.

Prosecutors have portrayed Escalona as an unfit mother with a history of violence. They have played recordings in which Escalona as a teenager threatened to kill her mother. They said she was a former gang member who started smoking marijuana at age 11.

Her sentencing hearing is scheduled to resume today.

Jocelyn suffered bleeding in her brain, a fractured rib, multiple bruises and bite marks, and was in a coma for a couple of days. Some skin had been torn off her hands, where doctors also found glue residue and white paint chips from the apartment wall, witnesses testified.

Escalona's family has acknowledged their dismay and anger following the attack, but both her mother and sister asked the judge for leniency.

Investigation of Flooding Near Dam to Take Months

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP)—Authorities say an investigation into flooding along a river near Traverse City is expected to take months.

Brown Bridge dam resulted from failures apparently connected to a station that was to gradually release water from Brown Bridge pond.

than two weeks, but the pond emptied in hours.

Jim Pawloski is a member of the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality's Dam Safety Unit. He told the Traverse City Record-Eagle an exact cause might not be known if too much evidence washed away.

About 50 property damage claims have been filed.

The 28-mile-long Boardman River flows into Lake Michigan at Traverse City. The Brown Bridge dam is the first among three to be removed to return the river to its natural flow.

ON TARGET: YOUR WEEKLY HUNTING REPORT

Bull Elk Taken During Muzzleloader Season

Several nice bull elk have been taken in the southern units during this year's muzzleloader season, said Jeff Frost, owner of Intermountain Taxidermy and Worldwide Adventures in Twin Falls. The season goes until Oct 15.

"Hunters are reporting limited windows of opportunity in the early morning and around sunset due to the full moon, but have still managed successful hunts," Frost said.

General hunts: General hunts opened Wednesday for deer and elk statewide, he said, noting that "hunters are hoping for cooler temperatures to settle in and keep the game moving throughout the day."

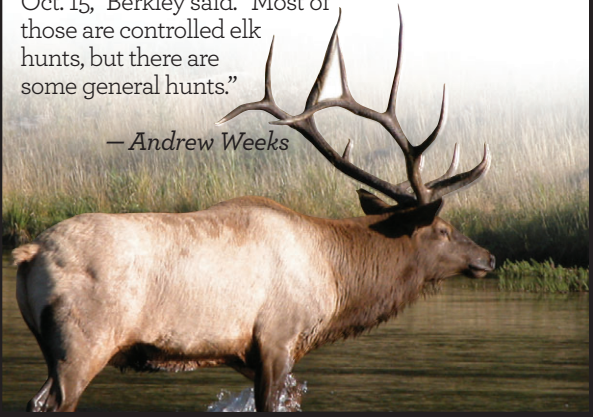

Regan Berkley, an Idaho Department of Fish and Game biologist, said hunts might see a little more hunter density in some units this season.

One option: Access YES! properties, she said. "There's some really great ones in some areas — units 49, 44 and 48 are some great properties," Berkley said. But some of them have restrictions, so it's good to check before heading out. Do that online at fishandgame.idaho.gov/ifwis/huntplanner/accessyesguide.aspx

The general season goes until Oct. 31.

What's next: "There are several openers on Oct. 15," Berkley said. "Most of those are controlled elk hunts, but there are some general hunts."

The Soldier Mountain Change

Town hall meeting tonight will address new ownership of Soldier Mountain Ski Area.

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

FAIRFIELD • Soldier Mountain Ski Area is changing ownership and the new owners are holding a town hall meeting Oct. 11 to inform Fairfield residents and give them the opportunity to ask questions.

The ski resort was owned by Hollywood actor Bruce Willis, who is handing over control to a non-profit organization, Soldier Mountain Ski Area Inc., formed by five people in 2012.

The names of the five people haven't been released, but Justin Nyquist with Red Sky Public Relations, said three of them grew up in Fairfield and one still lives there.

The meeting is meant to let the people of Fairfield know what's going on and give them the story first, Nyquist said, but everyone is invited to attend.

The town hall meeting will begin at 6 p.m. today at the Fairfield Legion Hall, behind the Post Office, in Fairfield.

"They're definitely going to touch on the vision of Soldier Mountain," Nyquist said. "They all feel strongly that the community should be up-to-date on information and is part of the discussion."

Where the Hunters Celebrate SUCCESS

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

HANSEN • The drone of an engine and then: "Here comes one now," Mike McDonald said. "Looks like they have a couple of deer in the back."

He rose from a folding chair, grabbed a clipboard and waited for the pickup to approach.

Sure enough, two deer — their legs cut off, their bellies sliced, their tongues hanging out — lay on the front and back of two ATVs inside the pickup's bed.

It wasn't a pretty sight, unless you're a hunter.

"We were up here yesterday," Jerome hunter Dan Stone said Saturday. "We went home last night without anything, but decided to come back up this morning."

By early afternoon in the South Hills, Stone and his two companions, including son Daniel Stone, had harvested two young mule deer, both bucks, about 2 and 3 years old. They had stopped at an Idaho Department of Fish and Game hunter check station about halfway up the canyon on Rock Creek Road.

How could they tell the bucks' age? Not by the antlers, but by the teeth.

like we do," said McDonald, a regional biologist with Fish and Game. He and Gene Wright, a Fish and Game volunteer, were at the station to make sure hunters were legal, to ask questions in a survey and to inspect the deer.

"Is it OK if we cut the mouth of this one?" McDonald asked the Stones.

Wright sliced the deer's mouth, opening the jaw wider so they could look at its teeth.

"I'd say this one is about 2 1/2 years," McDonald said after a minute.

Wright measured the antlers. "It has a 19-inch spread," he said.

The two bucks the Stones harvested Saturday weren't trophy by any means, McDonald said, but the quality you expect to see in the hills.

After the inspection, the questions:

"How many deer did you see?" McDonald asked Daniel Stone.

"Probably around 15," he replied.

"How many of them were bucks?"

"Five or six," he said.

Sounds about right. Most hunters in the hills usually see other animals besides the ones they harvest. It's a good season for deer hunting, McDonald said, if not a

Nine youngsters come running, gathering around the

Christensen is in her mid-70s. But the Ketchum woman, who stands just a shade above 5 feet, approaches the world around her with the wide-eyed reverence and curiosity of the children she leads across logs, through creeks and up rock piles, grabbing snakes, fish and butterflies as she goes.

Green Bay Waters Provide Chance to Chase Big Muskies

BY PAUL A. SMITH
Milwaukee Journal Sentinel

GREEN BAY, Wis. • According to the planetary chart, the sun had risen. But the water of Green Bay was cloaked in dark, gray fog and low clouds at 7:30 a.m. Central time.

We'd have to take the sunrise as an article of faith.

That's not a stretch for anglers, who by nature trust in the unseen.

But when it comes to musky fishing — the "fish of 10,000 casts" — it requires an extra measure of belief.

"They're out there," said Dennis Radloff, 45, of Oconomowoc, Wis., looking at the dark water from the Metro Public Boat Launch. "I have a really good feeling about today."

Radloff has more than two decades of guiding experience to back up his optimism.

And in a rare confluence of schedules, this early October day was indeed shaping up to be memorable.

Our group of four included Dennis' father, Randy Radloff, 65, of New Holstein; fishing guide Brett Jolly, 34, of Green Bay; and me.

Radloff runs Sterling Guide Service. Jolly runs Captain Jolly Charters.

They are cooperators, not competitors. And along with a third local guide, Brett Alexander, they share information daily and assist each other in staying "on the bite."

"We probably talk most when the fishing is toughest," Radloff said.

On a rare off-day for the guides (they had clients cancel), the four of us set out to test the waters.

The outing was notable for several reasons. It was the first time good friends Radloff and Jolly fished in the same boat.

The trip was in prime time for fall musky fishing.

And most important for Radloff, it was the first time he'd been able to get his father on the water in some time.

"You get working and you're typically so busy. . ." Radloff said, issuing a son's lament.

Past misgivings dissolved as we motored into the bay and focused on the present.

The air temperature was about 50, the water about 60. The fog lifted as we passed through the lower bay's shipping channel about 8 a.m.

Flocks of gulls wheeled in the air and dived onto the water. Feeding birds are typically a good omen for anglers.

"They're in here eating shad," Jolly said of the gulls. "If the bait fish are here, bigger fish will be, too."

Jolly slowed the boat as we reached a shallow flat in the southwestern corner of the bay and he and Radloff began to set lines.

The best musky action typically comes by trolling large crank baits behind planer boards. The water on the flat was 7-10 feet deep; the lures were set to run about 5 feet down.

Radloff said the muskies follow migrations of gizzard shad, yellow perch and whitefish to various parts of the bay in late summer

"By being out here every day, we keep on top of the movements. "You line up as many of the details in your favor as possible and good things can happen."

Dennis Radloff

and fall.

"By being out here every day, we keep on top of the movements," Radloff said. "You line up as many of the details in your favor as possible and good things can happen."

Though the bay and Lake Michigan had a native population of musky, the species was effectively eliminated in local waters through the middle 1900s by a variety of factors, including habitat degradation and water pollution.

In the 1980s, the Department of Natural Resources launched a reintroduction program for the native strain of musky, called the Great Lakes spotted muskellunge.

It led to a resurgence of the fishery and earned Green Bay a reputation as one of the state's top musky fishing destinations.

Radloff has caught-and-released as many as 14 muskies in a day on the bay with clients. He's also had a six-day streak during which he landed 10 or more muskies a day.

Jolly had a 13-musky day with a group of inexperienced anglers on a bachelor party outing.

At the end of the trip, which included an hour lunch break in town, the anglers asked: "Was this a good day?"

Growth rates and survival of muskies on the bay has been exceptional. A 53-inch, 53-pound musky caught in 2001 was aged at 12½ years old. In most areas of Wisconsin, it takes from 18 to 20 years for a musky to reach 50 inches.

However, the discovery of viral hemorrhagic septicemia fish disease in the bay took some wind out of the fisheries' sails in the last decade. The stocking program was suspended from 2007 to 2009 and has since been resumed at a fraction of the former rate.

The muskies have spread out and are using more areas of the bay, said Radloff, and fishing pressure has affected catch rates for many anglers, too.

A professional musky tournament held on the bay in September produced a total catch of zero fish over two days.

That can happen, especially in bad weather. But as always, it helps immensely to have experience on your side. The fish of a lifetime can be a short troll away.

"Not that muskies are Harvard-educated braniacs, but they have adjusted to fishing tactics and pressure," Radloff said.

Watch Mars Approach Its Stellar Doppelganger

In the second century, AD, the Greco-Roman astronomer Claudius Ptolemaeus (AKA Ptolemy) wrote his famous Almagest, in which he cataloged the locations of more than 1,000 stars. So influential was Ptolemy's tome that eight centuries later the Persian astronomer al-Sufi used it as the primary source for his work in Arabic, The Book of Fixed Stars.

Most of the named stars today retain the names translated from Greek to Arabic by al-Sufi. But a handful are still known by their Greek designations.

One of these is Antares, the brightest star in Scorpius, the Scorpion.

Antares's conspicuous red color is the source of its name, which translates as "against Mars" ("anti-Ares) in Greek. Antares's imagined rivalry with Mars was likely inspired by its location near the plane of the solar system.

Thus, when Mars's two-year orbit carries it through Scorpius, it passes fairly close to the Scorpion's heart, which is similar in both brightness and color.

Although they're a bit challenging to see, Mars is currently near Antares. The difficulty lies in the fact that both are currently quite low in the southwest after sunset, and thus must shine through low-lying haze in a twilight sky. Currently, Mars appears to the right of Antares, but the gap between them will shrink each day until Oct. 21, when Mars will lie less

Sky Calendar

Planets:

One hour after sunset: Mars: SW, very low
One hour before sunrise: Venus: ESE, low
Jupiter: WSW, high
Moon: New moon 10/12, 6:02 a.m.; near Mars 10/18; first quarter 10/21, 9:32 p.m.
Other data: Orionid meteor shower peaks 10/21, 10 p.m. (more meteors visible after 1:30 a.m., up to 20/hour) than four degrees (twice the width of a thumb at arm's length) above Antares.

The best time to look for this biennial pairing is around 8 p.m., keeping in mind that they'll set before 9 p.m. If you succeed, consider this: Antares is a red supergiant star, almost 900 times wider than the sun. Put another way, if Antares occupied the sun's position, its surface would engulf Mars's entire 282 million-mile-wide orbit.

Next column: Dogs, both celestial and terrestrial.

The check station was one of two in the hills last weekend. The other was on Shoshone Basin Road near Rogerson.

"Shoshone Basin doesn't have the luxurious accommodations we have here," McDonald said. "A paved turnout."

"The road over there is pretty dusty," Wright added.

Fish and Game, McDonald said, rotates the check stations to different areas in the region during the youth and controlled deer hunt seasons, which both opened Oct. 5 in Idaho. They're open until Oct. 31.

Wright was at the station Friday through Sunday, accompanied by a different Fish and Game officer each day. As he and McDonald waited for the next hunters on Saturday, they talked about the day, the outdoors and what they do during the slow times while waiting for the next hunter.

"I'll listen to the football game, do a crossword puzzle, read," McDonald said. Other times, they'll eat lunch, munch on snacks and look for deer on the hillsides. "We've seen a few"

Soon, a car pulled up: a Toyota Corolla, two women inside. The driver rolled down her window, stopped and said: "We have an elk in the truck."

"Oh, really?" McDonald responded.

Wright laughed. The women chuckled, then sped away.

"Smart aleck," McDonald said with a laugh.

Other drivers who went by the check station slowed their vehicles to see what was going on, or waved as they passed by.

"We're not hunters, just sightseers," said one man in a pickup truck.

Wright says he's been volunteering since 1991 — about the same time that McDonald came on board as a Fish and Game staffer.

They've met a lot of hunters over the years and never tire of hearing the stories and seeing the harvest.

"This one was in bed when I got it," Daniel Stone said of the deer he shot.

"Did you bed it down?" McDonald asked.

"Kind of," Daniel Stone said.

When he took the shot, it scared a second deer out of

After checking licenses and tags, inspecting the deer and chatting for a couple of minutes, McDonald thanked the hunters.

25th year of teaching "Ants and Plants" classes for College of Southern Idaho this year. Many of her young charges have returned as her assistants, chasing after frogs and scouring plants for caterpillars. Others have gone on to study environmental-related studies in college.

"It's been the fastest 25 years of my whole life," she says. "Some years it's been so much fun I've told CSI I was going to pay to do this."

Christensen has been working on behalf of critters in Idaho ever since she was moving boxes into her family's cabin in the Stanley Basin many years ago and noticed salmon stranded in the irrigation ditches. Panicked, she scooped up the salmon in her moving boxes and carried them back to Valley Creek.

She keeps a menagerie of deer mice skeletons and other critters in her freezer, pulling them out for the youngsters to examine.

When a two-foot snake poops on her, she reacts with concern for the snake.

"Wasn't that a mean thing to do to a snake? To scare it like that?"

"We have not seen a spider today so I'm counting on you guys to find me a spider. I love spiders because they eat insects," she adds.

Hailey resident Katie Corkery says her 8-year-old daughter, Madelaine, has been attending Christensen's weekly Science Hour at The Community Library for years.

"To get out in nature with her is so special. She's like the Pied Piper. She leads the kids down the nature trail and challenges them to use their eyes and ears to see what's going on all around them. I love how she captives them," she adds.

Christensen may have a little arthritis creeping into her joints. But she doesn't let that slow her down as she demonstrates how a rabbit hops.

She points out horsetails which, she notes, the dinosaurs used to eat. She explains how Idaho salmon use their sense of smell — "they smell their own river" — to return to their place of origin after making their way to the ocean. She digs out a deer leg to show how deer walk on their toenails to help them run quicker.

"Humans and bears don't need to do that," she adds, "because they have other ways of protecting themselves."

"How do you know so much?" asks one dark-eyed girl.

"Well, honey, I'm old and I've been studying a long time," Christensen replies.

"She knows pretty much everything and she's good with the kids," observes Galena Hansen.

"I worry about the kids now," says Christensen. "They spend so much time on technology. If they don't learn to love nature, who's going to take care of it?"

Washington's Oldest Shooting Preserve Flush with Pheasants

BY RICH LANDERS
The Spokesman-Review

Farms along the Palouse River are well-known for producing bumper crops of wild game birds, but for nearly half a century, Pheasant Valley Preserve has taken bird hunting to a different level.

The farm is Washington's oldest licensed game-bird shooting preserve. While most of the 1,300 acres are devoted to farming or grazing, 400 acres of irrigated river bottomland is seeded with some of the 6,500 pheasants being raised this year in huge netted pens.

Washington's general pheasant season runs Oct. 20-Jan. 13. At Pheasant Valley — 8 miles north of LaCrosse, Wash., at the end of Wiedrich Road — the hunting season runs from September through April.

Preserve members or clients who book by the day can complement their hunt with a round of sporting clays.

The traps and shooting stations are arranged up a basalt-rimmed side canyon that will challenge any shooter's skills.

Want to work on that shot you missed last year at chukars flushing down-canyon below your feet?

There's a station for that.

But whatever you call Pheasant Valley Preserve, it's first and foremost a Whitman County farm the Wiedrich family is proud to have homesteaded in 1902.

Jack O'Connor lost track of that distinction on his first visit to the shooting preserve, family members say.

The Idaho writer, famous for his Outdoor Life magazine stories and books about hunting and shooting, came along with a Pheasant Valley member around the time the operation became Washington's first licensed shooting preserve in 1967.

Fay Wiedrich, the farm's owner, was walking with the group toward the pheasant hunting fields when O'Connor handed him his shotgun, re-tied his bootlace, and then indicated that the farmer should carry his shotgun until they got to where the dogs would find pheasants.

At that time, Wiedrich offered 16 memberships and O'Connor wanted in, Jana Sprague, Wiedrich's daughter, confirmed this week in front of the homestead house that hunters and clays shooters can rent by the night.

"Some members died or dropped out occasionally, but for Mr. O'Connor, Dad never had an opening," she said.

One of the most influential men in the hunting was welcome as another member's guest, but Wiedrich wouldn't let him become a member.

"Our members are like family," she said.

The preserve has increased openings for memberships that range from $1,700 to $3,200 a year.

To make ends meet, Pheasant Valley also allows groups to make reservations by the day:

- Sporting clays, $35 per shooter.
- Pheasant hunting, $300 per group.

"We get a lot of father-son groups from Washington State University," said Terry Cummings, who took over as preserve manager this year following the death of Jerry Townsend, who ran the show for 20 years.

Cummings said he's working through the learning curve with help from others familiar with the operation.

"It's always something," he said. "A mink got in the pens and killed over 200 pheasants."

He shook his head pointing to one pen where some roosters had their long tail feathers pecked out by other birds. "We clipped all of their beaks to prevent that, but I didn't realize how quickly the beaks grow back. Way faster than a fingernail."

LEGENDS OF THE FALL

BY KARL PUCKETT
Great Falls Tribune

GREAT FALLS, Mont. • The two bulls, separated by about 30 yards, made eye contact and began trotting toward each other.

“A showdown’s brewing,” whispered Bill Berg of the Fish and Wildlife Service, watching the pitched battle from a nearby gravel road.

One of the bulls, in a show of bravado, scrapes his antlers on a bush, prompting the other to turn away. Before the heat of the breeding season ends, many more confrontations will occur, but not all of them will end as peacefully.

“They’ll fight until one of them is so worn out he just leaves,” Berg said.

Bow-hunting season for elk is open in Montana now. Rifle season begins Oct. 20.

But during the rut, hundreds of the state’s most beloved big-game animal regularly gather at the Slippery Ann Elk Viewing Area at the Charles M. Russell National Wildlife Refuge, where hunting is off limits.

The display of classic elk rut behavior, such as bulls bugling and fighting over cows, is increasingly becoming must-see viewing for both residents and out-of-state visitors interested in watching and photographing wild elk in their element rather than shooting them.

In 2011, 3,000 people made the trip to the Missouri River elk mecca, even though it’s located at the remote refuge far off the beaten path, 70 miles northeast of Lewistown.

With elk consistently occupying the area in the fall, an intimate wildlife experience is almost the rule rather than the exception, and that draws a crowd.

“I see a big one!” said 3-year-old Weston Sauby, standing in a pickup truck bed, binoculars trained on the herd.

This year, his father, Nick Sauby of Billings, Mont., bow hunted five miles downriver from the elk-viewing area, and bagged a 5-by-5 bull elk, “not huge but a trophy for me.” Even if he doesn’t get an elk, Sauby said, the opportunity to watch the prized animals from a stone’s throw away is a thrill, and he stopped to share the experience with his son.

In 2011, 950 vehicles were counted at the viewing area from Sept. 1 to mid-October, said Matt deRosier, manager of the CMR’s Sand Creek Wildlife Station.

Nick Sauby of Billings and his son, Weston, 3, watch elk gather in the evening on Sept. 12 at the Charles M. Russell National Wildlife Refuge during the annual rut 60 miles northeast of Lewistown, Mont.

Slippery Ann, he said, has become known as the most reliable place in Montana to consistently see elk up close, deRosier said.

Wildlife viewing is one of the FWS’ six priority offerings at wildlife refuges nationally, and the CMR elk viewing area fits the mission perfectly, deRosier said. He once talked to a couple who went on an African safari to view wildlife. The experience at Slippery Ann, they told him, was no less impressive.

On a recent chilly evening, 30 vehicles were parked along the road. Binoculars, not rifles, were in the hands of visitors. Elk grazed as close as 50 to 60 yards away.

Visitors driving through Yellowstone can see elk, too, Berg notes, “But the ability to get right in amongst them like this place is hard to find.”

Between 3,000 and 5,000 elk occupy the 1.1 million-acre CMR and a perfect storm of factors draw elk to the 1,200-acre Slippery Ann.

For one, elk seem to know that the wildlife viewing area is off-limits to hunters.

Between 200 and 300 animals congregate there from late August to mid-October.

Elk also are drawn by the green river bottoms where they bed in the trees during the heat of the day before venturing into the open to graze on grasses and shrubs in the evening, within full view of the road, Berg said.

“It’s kind of an oasis in a very parched climate,” Berg said.

On a cool night, activity typically begins about two hours before sundown. Nightly shows are occurring now.

“When the bulls start to bugle, it can get pretty noisy,” Royetta Dvorak says.

Dvorak and her husband, Allen, have been the camp hosts at Slippery Ann for seven years. Each evening, they count elk and visitors.

They’ve already recorded license plates from 15 states this year.

Visitors often turn the elk viewing into a tail-gating party, with some people even setting up tables of wine and cheese, Royetta Dvorak says. Occasionally, visitors need to be warned not to move off the road in attempts to get a closer look at the elk.

“We tell them, ‘Just sit and they’ll come to you,’ “ she says.

Elk were all but gone from the Missouri River Breaks at the turn of the 20th century, done in by hunting pressure, but they were reintroduced from Yellowstone Park in 1951.

Today, the population is flourishing and is known for its trophy bulls, which grow exceptionally large antlers because of the lush habitat provided by the Missouri River, which flows through an otherwise desert-like landscape that receives only 10 to 12 inches of annual precipitation. The ratio of 30 to 35 bulls per 100 cows in the Breaks is much higher than the ratio in other areas, Berg said.

The harsh climate at the refuge also is managed specifically for wildlife habitat and hunting requires a special permit as opposed to areas that are open to all hunters during the general season.

Both factors have aided the overall population, Berg said.

Elk often are associated with timbered habitat but the Breaks elk are one of the few remaining prairie elk populations in the country, making a trip to Slippery Ann a unique viewing opportunity because they can be easily spotted in open country, Berg said.

“It’s a little different than going up in the mountains and relying on hearing their bugle to determine their location,” Berg said.

As the sun began to set on a recent Wednesday evening, a few hundred cows and calves with a few young bulls sprinkled in the mix grazed just outside of a grove of trees.

The elk kept a constant watch on the people on the road. If anybody moved toward them, the elk would have left, Berg said.

“It’s really interesting and beautiful to hear,” says Arle-da Hopkins, 65, of Great Falls, who was visiting for the first time with her brother, Amos First Raised of Fort Belknap, and sister Loretta Retan of Chinook.

First Raised noted the irony of having so many elk within his view. When he’s hunting, he said with a laugh, they’re usually “four miles away.”

“Hear ‘em but never see ‘em,” he says.

Early-season Tips for Dogs

BY RICH LANDERS
The Spokesman-Review

SPOKANE, WASH. • Hot, dry weather is hard on dogs, which is why hunters must give special attention to their dogs during early bird-hunting seasons. Based on years of experience, Dan Hoke, veteran dog trainer from Dunfur Kennel near Cheney, offered these tips:

- Trim toenails. Don’t let them get long and break off.
- Hunt early in the morning and late in the afternoon.
- Keep hunts short. Most dogs need weeks of hunting to get into shape, but even fit dogs can suffer heat exhaustion, which could set them back for weeks or months or possibly kill them.

- Bring plenty of water for the dog, and yourself.
- Check dogs for seeds in eyes and be wary of cheat-grass and other seeds getting into ears. Cotton stuffed in ears can help prevent trouble. Q-Tips and saline solution used by contact lens wearers can be squirted to irrigate and extract stubborn seeds that get under a dog’s inner eyelids.
- Keep expectations in check. If the dog didn’t get any training during summer, don’t expect it to have improved since last hunting season.
- Scenting conditions usually are not prime in early season. Even good dogs will miss birds.

Bull Creek and Silver Creek Trails Are Back

IDAHO STATESMAN

Two popular motorized trails in the Middle Fork of the Payette River drainage about 45 miles north of Boise opened Oct. 1, after being closed for more than two years.

The 22-mile Bull Creek and Silver Creek trails on the Emmett Ranger District reopened following extensive work by crews from Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation, Boise National Forest, Trails Unlimited, and motorized clubs.

The trails are open for motorcycles and non-motorized recreation. ATVs or UTVs are prohibited. That provides “sustainable and manageable opportunities while reducing impacts to natural resources and watershed values,” national forest officials said.

Reconstruction included:

- Installing 42 arched culverts throughout the 22-mile trail system, which gets water off the trail and prevents trail erosion.
- Rerouting 10 sections of trail.

- Building a 35-foot bridge.
- Building a 40-foot retaining wall.
- Connecting the upper Bull Creek Trail with the Rice Peak Trail for a longer ride opportunity into the Cascade Ranger District.
- Completing extensive brush cutting and clearing of the trail.

The Treasure Valley Trail Machine Association volunteered to work on weekends over a two-year period. In addition, the Squaw Butte Backcountry Horseman volunteered with trail clearing.

The Emmett Rough Riders ATV Club volunteered trail clearing on the Telephone Ridge Trail, which was key to hauling equipment and better access to the upper Bull Creek Trail.

The trail system will be open from July 1 through Nov. 14.

For more information on the trail system, call the Emmett Ranger District at 365-7000.

Reconstruction is finished on the two trails.

Time To Make Camp Reservations

IDAHO STATESMAN

The Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation is now accepting reservations for stays in state parks.

Campers interested in using the rolling 9-month reservation window also need to know about fee changes affecting overnight stays in the parks, which begin in 2013.

Changes

- All overnight guests will be required to pay the $5 per day, per vehicle state park motor vehicle entrance fee (MVEF) in addition to camping, cabin and yurt rental fees for stays beginning in January 2013. Idahoans can avoid the fee by purchasing the new Idaho State Parks Passport.
- Out-of-state visitors can avoid the fee by purchasing an MVEF annual sticker.
- The Idaho State Parks

Passport is a $10 annual sticker for Idahoans that will be available at the time they register their recreational vehicles (RVs) or passenger vehicles, online, by mail-in renewal or at any county DMV office. The Idaho State Parks Passport is valid for either one or two years, and will expire concurrently with a vehicle registration.

Note: Those who have already purchased a vehicle registration for this year can purchase an Idaho State Parks Passport by visiting a county DMV office.

Bring the license plate number for the vehicle for which the pass will be used.

- The current $40 Annual Motor Vehicle Entrance Fee (MVEF) Sticker for out-of-state visitors will still be available at all Idaho State Parks, online at [www.parksand recreation.idaho.gov](http://www.parksand recreation.idaho.gov), or by calling (800) 247-6332.

Ty Vincent Seamons

Aug. 17, 1980-Oct. 3, 2012

HANSEN • Ty Vincent Seamons, 32, of Hansen, Idaho, passed away Wednesday, Oct. 3, 2012, in Hansen.

Ty was born Aug. 17, 1980, in Pocatello, Idaho. Ty was the son of Mike and Deena Jurak of Kimberly, Idaho. His childhood was spent in Moreland and Dubois, Idaho, before moving to Kimberly, where he graduated from high school in 1999.

Ty was an exceptional fisherman and especially loved fishing the Snake River small mouth bass. He was known to yell out the number of the fish — “23, 24, 25,” etc. — as he was pulling them in. He also loved all music. His favorite band was “Five Finger Death Punch.” Ty liked to spend time playing his guitar and drums. Music was his inspiration and solace. Ty was an avid New York Giants fan. He also enjoyed KTM dirt bikes — wrecked every one he had. He was always an extremist.

Ty met the love of his life, Stefanie Bluemel, in 2004. Not only did he meet his soul mate but he also became a daddy to Zoey Rae. In 2006, their son, Evyn Tyler, was born. Ty was so happy and proud to be called “Dad.” He was a great provider and always strived to make sure his family didn’t go without. His sweet family will forever love and miss him.

Ty was an excellent equipment operator, running a potato harvester in Idaho, New Mexico and California. He also worked demolition with “Sarge” in California. He loved his job destroying things all day long and being able to eat seafood every night. Ty worked at Gary’s Oil City, and Chuck’s Big O Tires in Elko, Nev. He was an excellent manager and always made customers his No. 1 priority, always going out of his way to say, “Hi.” In 2009, Ty returned to Kimberly to help his brother, Cole, open The Oil Pit. His extensive knowledge in the vehicle service industry was a tremendous help to his brother. In 2011, Ty returned to the family business, Red Baron Ag Service Inc., where he worked until his passing. He managed the ground crew and operated an air flow spreader with great dedication and commitment to perfection.

Ty was known for his “brutal sarcasm” but always greeted everyone with a warm smile and a hug. He never forgot the people in his life. Ty made all around him feel important. He could build a friendship with a stranger in a matter of moments. Ty’s friendships were forever; he had several lifelong friends that were like part of his family.

Ty is survived by his sweetheart, Stefanie Bluemel; daughter, Zoey Rae; son, Evyn Tyler; his parents, Mike and Deena Jurak of Kimberly; his four brothers, Clay (Ali), Nick, Cole and Jordan; his sisters, Jennifer (Kich) Tarp-ley and Jessica Schaak; his grandmother, Donna Conan; his grandparents, Gary and Shirley Sea-mons, and Kevin Seamons; and many aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews, cousins and friends. Ty was preceded in death by his grandfathers, Frank Conan and Mike Jurak IV; grandmother, Dallas Jurak; one cousin, Amy Cummings; and one uncle, Lynn Seamons.

A funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Oct. 12, at the Kimberly United Methodist Church, with interment to follow at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. A gathering for family and friends will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 11, at White Mortuary “Chapel by the Park.” Arrangements are under the direction of Dustin Godfrey and the staff at White Mortuary “Chapel by the Park.”

The Jurak and Seamons family would like to extend their gratitude for the great display of community support shown in this situation through the long days of searching and grieving.

A memorial fund for Zoey Rae and Evyn Tyler will be available for contributions from friends and family at First Federal Savings Bank of Kimberly.

And as Ty would say: “Make sure you do one thing for me — Keep it real.”

Leslie Neal Childs

June 4, 1953-Oct. 6, 2012

FILER • Leslie Neal Childs, 59, of Filer, died Saturday, Oct. 6, 2012, at St. Luke’s Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls.

Les was born June 4, 1953, to James E. Childs and Marvel (Cramer) Childs Bridge. He grew up in and around Idaho and graduated from Dietrich High School in 1972. While in high school, he was voted class president and friendliest guy. After high school, Les worked in various jobs, including auto body, welding and drywall. Les was an avid hunter and fisherman, enjoying trips with his brothers throughout his life. He loved the outdoors and spent as much time as he could enjoying the natural beauty of Idaho. Although his sister, Angie, wasn’t much for hunting, the memories of Les spending time with his little sister are cherished memories to her. After having been surrounded by five brothers for his entire life, a baby sister was a new adventure and he took on the big brother role with pleasure.

Les is survived by his brothers, Allen Childs of Twin Falls, Daniel Childs of Shoshone, Michael Childs of Shoshone and James Childs of Twin Falls; his sister, Angela Bridge of Jerome; his stepfather, Arnold Bridge of Twin Falls; and numerous nieces, nephews, aunts and uncles. He was preceded in death by his parents, James E. and Marvel; and his younger brother, Mark.

We cherish the memories of our brother and, although he is no longer here with us, we are grateful to have known and loved him. May he find the peace he deserves.

A celebration of Les’ life will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 11, at White Mortuary, Chapel by the Park, 136 Fourth Ave. E. in Twin Falls. Services are under the direction of Trent Stimpson and staff at White Mortuary.

New Studies Link Hearing Loss to Several Medical Problems

Research Shows Importance of Early Detection

— Chicago, IL
New research now connects hearing loss to a wide assortment of health issues. These findings appear to indicate that hearing loss, a condition currently untreated in about 85% of those affected, may, in fact, be the nation’s most damaging and costly sensory concern.

Many Everyday Illnesses Can Harm Hearing
Scientific findings now point to an extensive list of common medical conditions — from high blood pressure and diabetes to measles and chicken pox — as potential causes for hearing damage. Even more surprisingly, a list of over 200 medications, including common antibiotics, allergy drugs and even aspirin — can result in permanent or short-term hearing loss.

A Simple Hearing Screening — Your First Line of Defense
“With so much evidence emerging on the potential link between hearing loss and various illnesses and medications, it becomes all the more pressing for people to identify and address hearing loss early on,” says Dr. Sergei Kochkin, executive director of the Better Hearing Institute (BHI). Treating hearing loss at its onset can slow, or even stop, its progression, along with many serious physical and psychological illnesses.

That is why experts urge anyone over 50 to make hearing screenings a routine part of their medical care. It is also recommended that before starting any medication, a licensed hearing care professional should establish a baseline record of an individual’s hearing, in order to track potential changes over time.

Good News — Today’s Hearing Aids are Incredibly Effective
For people diagnosed with a hearing loss, recent breakthroughs in design and sound processing have enabled today’s hearing aids to be extremely small, and offer a remarkably natural listening experience. Modern hearing aids actually know how to prioritize what wearers need to hear, and how to suppress, or block, extraneous noise.

found that individuals who neglect or ignore hearing loss put themselves at greater danger for a broad range of physical, cognitive and emotiona problems, including dementia, depression, irritability and balance issues. Even mild hearing loss was shown to triple the chance of falls, especially among older adults.

FORMER FLA. CONGRESSMAN SAM GIBBONS DIES AT 92

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) • Former U.S. Rep. Sam M. Gibbons, who served 17 terms in Congress and rose to head the powerful Ways and Means Committee before his retirement, died late Tuesday or early Wednesday at a Tampa retirement home, according to his son. The elder Gibbons was 92.

Elected in 1962, Gibbons never lost an election and was among the Tampa Bay region’s best-known politicians. He is considered the “father” of the University of South Florida for pushing through legislation to create the school while serving in the Florida Legislature in the 1950s.

SOMEBODY NEEDS YOU

Volunteers — St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center has several volunteer opportunities for friendly, compassionate individuals who can set priorities; have the physical ability to walk, stand and sit for a period of time; and can take the initiative and be flexible in differing roles to provide help or comfort to patients, visitors and staff. Information: Kim Patterson, 814-0861, or visit the Volunteer Services Office on the lower level at St. Luke's, 801 Pole Line Road W., Twin Falls.

Volunteers — Interfaith Volunteer Caregivers has an increasing list of caregiver needs, particularly in Buhl, Gooding and Wendell. Several drivers are needed in Gooding to provide transportation for dialysis patients. Housekeepers, carpenters and handymen, and drivers are needed in Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding and Lincoln counties. The group also needs volunteers to help with fundraiser projects. Older teens (with parental permission and supervision), church-service groups, and those who want to help will need to attend a brief training and enroll as volunteers for these specific events. Volunteers are reimbursed for mileage and covered with excess auto liability insurance. Information: 733-6333.

Volunteers — Alliance Home Health and Hospice needs volunteers to help support patients at a critical point in their lives, give respite and support for family members, or help in the office with clerical work. Orientation and training session are available for volunteers. Information: Nicke Cutler or Jeannie Benson, 733-2234.

Volunteers/donations — CSI Refugee Center has families in need of weekly volunteer support and the center also needs dictionaries, comforters, heavy blankets, winter clothing, small sofas and loveseats, and a washing machine in good condition. Information: Ben, 736-2166, or 1526 Highland Ave. E., Twin Falls.

Volunteers — Hospice Visions seeks volunteers to make a difference in the lives of caregivers and those experiencing end-of-life issues. Volunteers are needed for companionship, bringing joy during difficult times and easing burdens, including letter writing, singing, playing cards and games, reading or being a friend. Information: Flo, 735-0121.

Volunteers/drivers — Twin Falls Senior Citizens Center needs drivers age 18 and older with vehicles for the home-delivered meals program. Routes take 40-70 minutes each; mileage is reimbursed. Volunteers also are needed to set the tables and help serve meals on a regular basis for one hour per day. Information: Gary, 734-5084.

Joseph Barnard Romney

July 20, 1935-Oct. 6, 2012

REXBURG • Joseph Barnard Romney returned to his Heavenly Father surrounded by his wife and children on Saturday, Oct. 6, 2012, in Provo, Utah, after becoming ill at his mountain home on the upper Provo River.

Joe was born July 20, 1935, in Salt Lake City, Utah, to Junius Stowell Romney and Ruth Stewart Romney. He attended East High School and was a graduate of the University of Utah. Joe served a mission for the LDS Church in Great Britain. He later served as an officer in the Army. He played the cello in the Utah Symphony Orchestra, where he met Florence Black, whom he married. They have four children, one of whom died soon after birth.

Rexburg that allowed him to work with and eventually pass on the business to one of his sons. Joe was a "people person" and was known for his hard work, quick smile and constant service to any and all that needed help.

Above all, Joe loved his Savior Jesus Christ. He was a faithful member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and committed to following the teachings and example of Jesus. He was a great example himself of charity, service and non-judgmental love. He will be greatly missed by all those who knew him, but we find comfort knowing that he is happy and healthy with family and friends that have gone before.

Joe received a J.D. and also a Ph.D. degree from the University of Utah and practiced law for about two years. Following that, he began his teaching career in history at California Polytechnic State University in San Luis Obispo, Calif., where he became a full professor. Joe continued teaching in Rexburg, Idaho, at Ricks College, later to become BYU-Idaho, where he taught religion, philosophy and cello. There he was also associate director and director of the Honors Program.

Joe loved spending time with family at his beloved mountain home, where he rode horses, went fishing and hiking and spent quality time with his wife, children, 11 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. He also shared his love of good music with his family and friends through choir, teaching cello and participating in various musical groups. Joe loved working in the yard and making it beautiful. He helped start a frozen yogurt business in

BUHL • Loraine Elizabeth Edmons, 71, of Buhl, passed away Monday, Oct. 8, 2012, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls surrounded by family and friends.

Loraine was born June 4, 1941, in Huntsville, Ark., to Clarence and Clitie Byrd. When Loraine was very young, her mother married Donis Holman and the family moved to Filer, Idaho. She went to school in Filer and eventually received her GED from the College of Southern Idaho.

In 1958, she married Thomas Edmons and moved to Buhl. Together they had four children. Loraine worked for Green Giant and Seneca for 25 years as a lot checker. She was well known for catering weddings. She made extraordinary wedding cakes, dresses and tuxes and would plan and coordinate the events. She was a very active member of the Buhl Church of Christ. Loraine was always taking care of friends, neighbors and relatives and always willing to help any one in need. She was an excellent mother and grandmother and loved her family very much. She will be greatly missed by those who knew her.

Loraine was preceded in death by her mother, Clitie

Holman; stepfather, Donis Holman; father, Clarence Byrd; infant son, Scott Edmons; and brother, Lee Byrd. She is survived by her husband, Thomas Edmons of Buhl; sons, Jay (Tammy) Edmons of Buhl, Dale (Cathy) Edmons of Aberdeen, Wash.; daughter, Kay (Ray) Massey of Twin Falls; sister, Dovie Darchuk of Moses Lake, Wash.; five grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; and numerous aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews and cousins.

A funeral service will be at 11 a.m. Friday, Oct. 12, at the Church of Christ in Buhl. Interment will follow the service at the West End Cemetery in Buhl. Arrangements are under the direction of Farmer Funeral Chapel in Buhl.

Community School Girls Win District Title

TIMES-NEWS

SUN VALLEY • The Community School girls soccer team had three players score twice on Wednesday, as the team beat Filer 7-0 to win its fourth straight 3A District IV title.

Ellie Swanson, Lilly Jenner and Jordan Fitzgerald all scored two goals. Hayley Murach netted the other. Fitzgerald had two assists.

The Cutthroats (16-2-1) advance to the 3A state tournament, which starts next Thursday at Sunway Soccer Complex. They'll open up tournament play in a 2 p.m. game against the winner of a Saturday game between the runners-up from Districts I-II and III.

Filer (8-7-4) hosts Bliss on Friday for the district's second berth to state.

BLISS 4, WENDELL 1

BLISS • Estefany Altimirano and Cassie Villavicencio each scored twice to help Bliss eliminate Wendell.

The Bears (10-3-2) visit Filer on Friday for the district's second berth in the 3A state tournament.

Kaila Cordero scored for Wendell, which ends its season at 4-9-2.

Dinged Up Golden Eagles Taking an Early Breather

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • It was oddly quiet for a 2 p.m. on Wednesday at the CSI gymnasium, normally the height of practice for the men's basketball team. No yelling, horns, whistles or squeaking shoes, but plenty of swishing.

Just three days before the men play their first opponent of the season in the Salt Lake City Community College Jamboree, head coach Steve Gosar didn't have enough healthy bodies to run a full practice on Wednesday.

So they shot around.

"We've never had this before," Gosar said. "Hopefully we're getting it all out of our system now."

Eleven of the Golden Eagles' 15 scholarship players were either out or limited at Wednesday's shoot-around, though none of the recently suffered injuries was serious. Jon Pulsifer has a strained medial collateral ligament. Montigo Alford, Montarius Hall and Kennedy Esume have strained shoulders. Juwan Newman, Kareem Storey and Sebastien Michineau were nursing sore ankles. Darius Johnson sat for precautionary reasons with concussive symptoms.

After a week and a half of mentally and physically grueling practices, the Golden Eagles were ready for a few light days, as today and Friday should be much of the same.

"There is just a lot that we have put in and sometimes we are thinking too much," Gosar said. "We have to play harder and so many times it's paralysis by analysis. We get slower because there are so many things to think about. It's a little bit of an overload on their system."

Alford, the speedy point guard who tweaked the same labrum he tore on the first drill of the first practice last year, said he and his teammates are beginning to develop the quality that has largely defined the men's basketball program over the years.

"This place, it's tougher than most (Division I schools), honestly," Alford said. "I talk to people who play at (D-I schools). When you think about CSI, the first thing you think of is, you have to be tough. Right now we have chemistry, but there are still egos out there that need to be fixed. They will be fixed once the games come along. I've been here and I kind of know. This is a reality check."

As a veritable melting pot of basketball talent — with players from all over the country who've played under a variety of offensive and defensive systems — Gosar and his staff have a lot on their plates in early October.

"We start from ground zero every single year," Gosar said. "We teach stance. Where you're supposed to be defensively."

Alford, one of the standouts in the team's Basketball Bash scrimmage Saturday, is one of the few familiar with

And a Freshman Shall Lead Them: Gooding Boys Win District Title

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

GOODING • Wendell's path to victory in the 3A District IV boys soccer tournament championship game seemed pretty simple: stop Gooding goal machine Federico Mendez.

It worked — except the Trojans forgot about Ramon Bernal.

Used primarily in defense this season, the freshman continued to make the most of his time up top, scoring twice and setting up a third goal in Gooding's 4-2 win on Wednesday.

Bernal opened the scoring by heading in a corner kick in 11th minute, then delivered a cross eight minutes later that was diverted into the net by a Wendell player for an own-goal.

"I just wanted to do my best and help the team win," Bernal said. "I like playing forward, and I'll do it as long as coach lets me."

After taking the two-goal lead into halftime, Gooding ran out of sight in the second. Bernal pounced on a scuffed clearance and lashed it into the net to make it 3-0 midway through the period.

The result ended a long wait for District IV glory for Gooding. Even when the Senators won the state championship in 2009, they did it as the runner-up from District IV.

"After three years of being second place, we really wanted to win a district championship for our coach and our school," said Mendez, who delivered the corner kick on Bernal's first goal and later scored one himself, the senior's 33rd of the season.

Wendell (10-3-2) has lost all three meetings with Gooding this season, but hasn't fallen to anybody else.

Jorge Diaz scored a couple late goals for the Trojans, who were able to play more of their direct style in the second half, but by that time it was academic.

"We made some adjustments at halftime and we were able to create a lot more chances," said Wendell coach Jon Goss. "We wanted to win today of course, but I like where we're at, and I think Friday is going to be a good game for us."

Wendell hosts Buhl on Friday for the district's second and final berth to the state tournament.

NCAA Upholds Boise State Scholarship Sanctions

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOISE • The NCAA has rejected an appeal from Boise State and is standing by its decision that the football program must reduce the number of scholarships it hands out this season and the next.

The Division I Committee on Infractions announced the decision Wednesday and in the process rejected an appeal filed by the school stemming from a broader package of sanctions handed down by the NCAA last year.

As part of the penalty package, the NCAA ordered the football program to cut scholarships from 85 to 82 for the 2012-13 and 2013-14 academic years. The school had already self-imposed the scholarship reduction for last season.

Still, Boise State lawyers argued that the scholarship sanction was excessive, especially when compared to past infraction cases investigated by the NCAA.

But NCAA officials denied that the Boise State case has direct comparison to any past cases.

“While past infractions cases and their respective penalties are part of the institutional memory of the Committee ... when it tailors the penalties in a case, they do not provide a ‘one-size-fits-all’ measure of whether a penalty is fair and appropriate,” the committee said in its report.

“Each case — and the fairness of the penalties imposed in each case — ultimately stands on their own facts,” the report stated.

The decision upholding the sanctions is the latest twist in the case in which the NCAA found a lack of institutional control.

After Boise State’s appeal, these guys to understand the ownership they have in this program comes with leadership.”

CSI Women’s Prepares for Saturday Scrimmage

The Golden Eagles women’s team will travel to Caldwell to play its first opponent of the year — College of Idaho — in a running-clock scrimmage on Saturday morning.

It’s a chance for the freshman-heavy squad to get a feel for what they’ve signed up for.

“I’m excited to see how the freshmen are going to look at (College of Idaho), like oh man, this is the real deal,” sophomore starting point guard Adriana Dent said.

“That’s when you realize you are at the college level.”

Golden Eagles coach Randy Rogers says he’ll start Dent and sophomores Candace Prestwich, Megan Tanner, Jessie Saint-Felix and freshman Cassidy Skidmore. The rest won’t be on a set rotation. Saturday is a chance for Rogers to see what his freshman have to offer. Outside of the starters, the rest of the roster will get minutes based on player combinations the staff wants to see, and as Rogers put it Wednesday, the “feel” he develops for them.

Saturday — has been dealing with the penalties despite the appeal process. The school imposed that scholarship reduction in 2011 and took the penalty again this year.

The infractions case focused on a series of violations involving more than 75 athletes and several men’s and women’s teams over a five-year period. Violations ranged from recruiting infractions to impermissible transportation and lodging, and prompted the departure of longtime athletic director Gene Bleymaier.

Since then, the university has bolstered its oversight and hired a new director of compliance. The school has also made changes to its student-athlete handbook and put new emphasis on education and awareness programs for athletes.

Suspended Barone Charged with DUI

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW • Suspended University of Idaho center Kyle Barone was arrested on a DUI charge over the weekend.

The Moscow-Pullman Daily News reports that Barone was arrested on the Washington State University campus early Sunday after a campus police officer saw a vehicle stopped in the wrong lane and then saw it cross both lanes of traffic into a parking space, where it hit a curb.

The police report says

Barone’s blood-alcohol level at the scene was 0.186 percent, more than twice the legal limit.

The Daily News reports Barone, who is 23, appeared in Whitman County District Court Monday, shortly after coach Don Verlin announced that Barone had been suspended indefinitely for a violation of team rules.

Barone was Idaho’s top returning player in scoring, rebounding, assists, blocks and steals. The 6-foot-10 senior averaged 12.9 points and eight rebounds per game last season.

Football Coach Accused of Hitting Utah Boy in Game

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SALT LAKE CITY • A youth football coach struck a 13-year-old player from an opposing team near the sideline during the fourth quarter of a tied game, giving the boy a concussion and outraging parents and spectators, a Utah police sergeant said Wednesday.

Police arrested Nathan Harris for investigation of felony child abuse after watching grainy video and talking to witnesses about Saturday’s incident in Payson, about 60 miles south of Salt Lake City.

“As the 13-year-old ran down, Mr. Harris stepped out and hit him with his forearm under his chin,” police Sgt. Lance Smith said. “And then Mr. Harris stepped back and just stood there.”

Referee David Durrant said the boy looked like he was about to go out of bounds — or had just gotten out of bounds — when he was hit near the sideline of the visiting team.

“It looked like the coach had a lot of time to move, he didn’t move, and he stood there and delivered a blow,” Durrant said.

Durrant threw a penalty flag and ejected Harris.

The incident was an accident and there was no malice behind Harris’ actions, attorney Dean Zabriskie said. He said police have relied too heavily on witnesses who were standing far away and the video — which was shot from the opposite sidelines — shows Harris wasn’t too close to the field and appears to show the coach stepping backward as players came toward him.

Also, it looks like a player who was pursuing the 13-year-old had some contact that pushed the boy toward Harris, he said.

“It seems to me like a tempest in a teapot,” Zabriskie said.

Harris, a volunteer assistant whose son was also playing in the game, was arrested Monday and posted $5,000 bail on Tuesday. The Utah County Attorney’s office will decide whether to file charges.

Police said the boy was expected to miss a month of playing time. His team won in overtime with a field goal, Durrant said.

Gosar and staff are waiting.

I keep telling these guys they are driving the bus. This is their team. I’ve got the directions, our staff has the directions, but they are driving the bus. If they decide to put it in the ditch there is nothing we can do to stop them. libero Heather Meeuwssen. “We want to play like we did at the end, taking it to them.”

If the Golden Eagles want to win the Scenic West Athletic Conference championship, and potentially move up from the No. 3 spot they’ve been stuck at in the national polls for weeks, this weekend is going to be the one that does it.

Wins at No. 5 Salt Lake and Snow College this Friday and Saturday, respectively, would all but wrap up the conference for CSI, which currently stands alone at 5-0 in the Scenic West standings. Two wins this weekend would mean CSI would have to lose at home to either Utah State-Eastern or Colorado Northwestern, in addition to next week at North Idaho College.

“This is a clutch weekend for us, and we’re really playing well.”

Heidi Cartisser, CSI coach

The home losses are something you may not want to bet on, but CSI is bullish about its chances on the road.

“This is a clutch weekend for us, and we’re really playing well,” CSI coach Heidi Cartisser said. “This group is remarkably mature. They pay attention to everything that’s going on (nationally), but they’re still composed enough to focus on what they can handle.

“These are two tough places to play, but the girls are ready for the challenge.”

Steelers Need to Lower the Flags Against Titans

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • When the Pittsburgh Steelers are around, flags fly.

Despite playing one fewer game than most teams, the Steelers lead the AFC in penalties with 37. It's something they must clean up soon.

Fortunately for Pittsburgh (No. 9 in the AP Pro32), the opponent this week is Tennessee (No. 30), perhaps the most disappointing team in the conference. When they meet Thursday night in Music City, the Steelers (2-2) will be a 5 1/2-point choice over the Titans (1-4), whose main problem is a sieve of a defense that has yielded a league-high 181 points.

If the Steelers don't stop attracting those yellow handkerchiefs, though, taking advantage of Tennessee's inability to stop anyone will be difficult.

"They're just small mental errors," Steelers center Maurice Pouncey said. "It's a part of football. Sometimes it happens. That's something that we've got to tighten up if we want to be the team we want to be."

Handing the opposition more than 86 yards per game in penalties just won't cut it, especially on the road, where the Steelers are 0-2 and played their worst game of the season — and perhaps several seasons — in a sloppy 34-31 loss at Oakland.

The Titans will take anything anyone wants to hand over, and backup quarterback Matt Hasselbeck — Jake Locker is out with a left shoulder injury — will be comforted by the absence of star safety Troy Polamalu (right calf).

"We're all trying to get better," Titans safety Michael Griffin said. "In the past, you started seeing a lot of finger pointing, things of that nature. Right now we're all still together." And still losing together. STEELERS, 17-13

Alabama Set to Grab Pole Position in BCS Race

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The picks:

The first BCS standings of the season come out Sunday. Is this important? Well, sort of.

Since the BCS was implemented in 1998, only twice has neither of the teams ranked first or second in the initial standings reached the national title game.

Seven out of 13 teams that started No. 1 in the standings played for the national championship. Six times the second-place team in the first standings played for the BCS title.

Four times a team has started third and finished in the top two, and four times a team has started fourth and played in the big game.

Six teams have come from fifth place or farther back to reach the championship game. LSU started the farthest back in 2003 at No. 12.

Conclusion: Just like in auto racing, it helps to start in the front row, but expect some passing and maybe a wreck or two.

The coaches' poll and the Harris poll are the driving forces behind the BCS standings. A compilation of six computer rankings also count for a third of a BCS rating, but essentially the computers break ties when two teams are very close in the polls.

Alabama, an overwhelming No. 1 in the polls, is just about a lock to be first when the standings are released Sunday, barring a major upset of the Crimson Tide at Missouri on Saturday.

The Tigers are still looking for their first Southeastern Conference victory, coming off a loss to Vanderbilt, and they will be without injured starting quarterback James Franklin (knee). So good luck beating 'Bama.

Oregon is off this week and stands a good chance to be right behind Alabama in the BCS standings, just as it is in the polls. The Ducks are a solid No. 2 in both.

The computer ratings going into this weekend treat Notre Dame a bit better than the pollsters. The Fighting Irish are ranked seventh in the polls, but first in two of the five computer ratings that have already been released. A sixth doesn't start coming out until Sunday.

And with the Irish facing another strong opponent Saturday, at home against Stanford, don't be surprised to see Notre Dame ahead in the BCS standings of some teams that it trails in the polls if it beats the Cardinal.

The most important thing to remember is this: Don't get too worked up. There are plenty of games to be played.

Wait about a month or so, and then get worked up.

26 Testified Against Lance Armstrong

sport has ever seen."

Lance Armstrong said he wanted to see the names of his accusers. The U.S. Anti-Doping Agency gave him 26, including 11 ex-teammates.

The world's most famous cyclist said he wanted to see the hard evidence that he was a doper. The agency gave him that, too: About 200 pages filled with vivid details — from the hotel rooms riders transformed into makeshift blood-transfusion centers to the way Armstrong's ex-wife rolled cortisone pills into foil and handed them out to all the cyclists.

In all, a USADA report released Wednesday gives the most detailed, unflinching portrayal yet of Armstrong as a man who, day after day, week after week, year after year, spared no expense — financially, emotionally or physically — to win the seven Tour de France titles that the anti-doping agency has ordered taken away.

It presents as matter-of-fact reality that winning and doping went hand-in-hand in cycling and that Armstrong was the focal point of a big operation, running teams that were the best at getting it done without getting caught. Armstrong won the Tour as leader of the U.S. Postal Service team from 1999-2004 and again in 2005 with the Discovery Channel as the primary sponsor. USADA said the path Armstrong chose to pursue his goals "ran far outside the rules."

It accuses him of depending on performance-enhancing drugs to fuel his victories and "more ruthlessly, to expect and to require that his teammates" do the same. Among the 11 former teammates who testified against Armstrong are George Hincapie, Tyler Hamilton and Floyd Landis.

USADA Chief Executive Travis Tygart said the cyclists were part of "the most sophisticated, professionalized and successful doping program that Armstrong did not fight the USADA charges, but insists he never cheated.

His attorney, Tim Herman, called the report "a one-sided hatchet job — a taxpayer funded tabloid piece rehashing old, disproved, unreliable allegations based largely on axegrinders, serial perjurers, coerced testimony, sweetheart deals and threat-induced stories."

Aware of the criticism his agency has faced from Armstrong and his legion of followers, Tygart insisted his group handled this case under the same rules as any other. Armstrong was given the chance to take his case to arbitration and declined, choosing in August to accept the sanctions instead, he noted.

"We focused solely on finding the truth without being influenced by celebrity or non-celebrity, threats, personal attacks or political pressure because that is what clean athletes deserve and demand," Tygart said.

The report called the evidence "as strong or stronger than any case brought in USADA's 12 years of existence."

In a letter sent to USADA attorneys Tuesday, Herman dismissed any evidence provided by Landis and Hamilton, saying the riders are "serial perjurers and have told diametrically contradictory stories under oath."

The testimony of Hincapie, one of Armstrong's closest and most loyal teammates through the years, was one of the report's new revelations.

"I would have been much more comfortable talking only about myself, but understood that I was obligated to tell the truth about everything I knew. So that is what I did," Hincapie said of his testimony to federal investigators and USADA.

His two-page statement did not mention Armstrong by name. Neither did statements from three other teammates-turned-witnesses, all of whom said this was a difficult-but-necessary process.

Sides Still at Odds in NHL Labor Talks

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Five hours of talks in two sessions between the NHL and the players' association did little to move the sides closer to a deal in the nearly one-month lockout.

The NHL's top two executives — Commissioner Gary Bettman and Deputy Commissioner Bill Daly — met with the NHLPA's main negotiators — executive director Donald Fehr and special counsel Steve Fehr — for nearly an hour Wednesday morning to assess where the sides were on Day 25 of the NHL lockout, but there was no concrete discussions on the troublesome core economic issues preventing a deal.

A four-hour session that stretched into evening centered on player health and safety issues along with other miscellaneous legal topics. The health issues involved seeking multiple medical opinions on injuries, and who should make determinations when a player is healthy enough to return to action after being hurt.

"We have some disagreements in those areas," Daly said. "When you get to this point of the discussions on some of those areas, that is to be expected so we're kind of refining some of the things we continue to have disagreements on."

"We had no discussion of the major economic isues or system issues, so that continues to be a disappointment from our perspective."

The sides will meet again today — which should have been NHL opening day — but there are still no plans to delve into how the sides will split up hockey-related revenue that was in excess of $3 billion last season.

Steve Fehr took a more optimistic view of what was discussed Wednesday, but lamented that the discussions were taking place instead of action on the ice.

"You often don't know whether you're making progress until you look back on it," he said. "We were just sort of discussing the overall status of the bargaining and where the parties are."

The NHL is eager to get a new proposal from the union on the main economic issues, but the players contend that they have moved closer to the league's demands in their previous offers while the NHL has only sought to take more away from the union in each proposal it has made.

"I think we're making progress in a number of the areas that were discussed today," Steve Fehr said. "They were good discussions. It's a shame that they are going on in the midst of a lockout when we could be doing it while we're playing or we could've been doing it a month ago or two months ago."

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On Friday, the 18th day of January, 2013, at the hour of 10:00 o'clock a.m. of said day at Alliance Title & Escrow, 1411 Falls Ave. E., Ste. 1315, Twin Falls, in the County of Twin Falls, State of Idaho, Ryan M Fawcett, as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property situated in the County of Twin Falls, State of Idaho, and described as follows, to wit:

LOT 17 IN BLOCK 7 OF PHEASANT MEADOWS SUBDIVISION, PHASE 1, TWIN FALLS COUNTY, IDAHO, RECORDED IN BOOK 20 OF PLATS, PAGE 5.

The Successor Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113, Idaho Code, the Successor Trustee has been informed that the street address of 1285 Golden Pheasant Dr., Twin Falls, Idaho, is sometimes associated with said real property.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by SIAMAK SEPEHRI and REZVAN MOOSAVI, Husband and Wife, Grantor, to Ryan M Fawcett, Successor Trustee, for the benefit and security of FIRST FEDERAL SAVINGS BANK OF TWIN FALLS, recorded March 5, 2007, as Instrument No. 2007-005032, Mortgage records of Twin Falls County, Idaho; and assigned to the IDAHO HOUSING AND FINANCE ASSOCIATION by Assignment of Deed of Trust recorded on April 12, 2007, as Instrument No. 2007-008444, Mortgage records of Twin Falls County, Idaho. THE ABOVE GRANTOR IS NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506 (4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay when due, monthly installment payments under the Deed of Trust Note dated March 2, 2007, in the amount of $893.00 each, for the months of January through September, 2012, inclusive; and for each and every month thereafter until date of sale or reimbursement. All delinquent payments are now due, plus accumulated late charges, plus any costs or expenses associated with this foreclosure. The accrued interest is at the rate of 5.59% per annum from December 1, 2011. The principal balance owing as of this date on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $114,457.14, plus accrued interest at the rate of 5.59% per annum from December 1, 2011.

Application proposes diverting up to 295 cfs of water from the Yankee Fork into an artificial side channel for fish habitat and recreation purposes for anadromous fish species. The point of diversion is located approximately 8.9 miles north and 10.3 miles east of Stanley.

This application proposes the diversion and use of water tributary to the federally designated Salmon River Wild & Scenic River. The decreed minimum stream flow rights for the federal Wild & Scenic Rivers are subordinate to certain categories of water use and to specific amounts of water use established after the minimum stream flow. The water use proposed in this application will benefit from the subordination provision because it is for non consumptive purposes.

The applicant has proposed to subordinate this use to all future rights within the Yankee Fork drainage, unless otherwise indicated on the face of the individual water rights.

Permits will be subject to all prior water rights. For additional information concerning the property location, contact Southern Region office at (208) 736-3033; or for a full description of the right(s), please see

SUMMARY OF ORDINANCE NO. 1106
BILL NO. 590
AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF JEROME, IDAHO, IMMEDIATELY TERMINATING THE REVENUE ALLOCATION AREA FOR THE SOUTH LINCOLN PROJECT AREA (AREA 1); REQUIRING DISTRIBUTION OF ANY SURPLUS DETERMINED TO EXIST AS OF SEPTEMBER 30, 2013, PURSUANT TO SECTION 50-2909, IDAHO CODE; AUTHORIZING THE JEROME URBAN RENEWAL AGENCY TO FILE THE ORDINANCE, TOGETHER WITH THE BOUNDARY MAP AND LEGAL DESCRIPTION, WITH THE OFFICE OF THE COUNTY RECORDER, THE COUNTY ASSESSOR AND THE IDAHO STATE TAX COMMISSION AS PROVIDED IN SECTION 63-215, IDAHO CODE; PROVIDING THAT A COPY OF THIS ORDINANCE SHALL BE GIVEN TO EACH OF THE TAXING ENTITIES AFFECTED BY SAID REVENUE ALLOCATION AREA; APPROVING THE SUMMARY OF THE ORDINANCE; AND PROVIDING AN EFFECTIVE DATE.
NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF JEROME, IDAHO:
Section 1: That the revenue allocation area contained in the Third Amended and Restated South Lincoln Urban Renewal Plan, as more particularly described in Exhibit C and Exhibit D, is hereby terminated, consistent with the termination provisions set forth in the Local Economic Development Act, Title 50, Chapter 29, Idaho Code, as amended (the "Act").
Section 2: That the tax year 2012 revenues from the increment value as levied upon within the revenue allocation area are not needed for the payment of any Agency indebtedness or Agency projects to be completed before September 30, 2013, and should flow to the respective taxing districts pursuant to Idaho law.
Section 3: That any surplus will be distributed prior to the end of the Agency's 2013 fiscal year on or before September 30, 2013. Any surplus funds will be remitted to the County Treasurer to be distributed to the taxing districts in the same manner and proportion as the most recent distribution to the taxing districts of the taxes on the taxable property located within the revenue allocation area. See I.C. 50-2909(4). Further, any other remaining funds in subsequent fiscal years received by the Agency from delinquent taxes after September 30, 2013, shall be disbursed in the same manner each fiscal year.
Section 4: That a copy of this Ordinance shall be sent to and/or filed with the Jerome County Assessor's Office, the County Auditor/Recorder and the Idaho State Tax Commission, together with a boundary map and legal description, to provide notice of termination of the revenue allocation area in the Third Amended and Restated South Lincoln Urban Renewal Plan.
Section 6: That this Ordinance shall be in full force and effect immediately upon its adoption, approval and publication.
Section 7: Approval of Summary.
EXHIBITS TO THE ORDINANCE
Exhibit A Termination Plan setting forth an estimate of remaining project costs and other administrative fees and costs, together with an estimate of any surplus that may be available for distribution on or before September 30, 2013

Jeanne Phillips

I have spent a portion of my life incarcerated, starting when I was a teenager. I'm now 22 and doing time for selling drugs. I have never been able to find a decent job, although I have my GED and tried to attend a school for nursing, but I screwed it up. Selling drugs seemed to be the only way to make enough to support myself.

I'd like to find a decent job with opportunity, and be able to pay my bills and save a little. I'm tired of my crazy lifestyle and want to settle down. How can I go about finding a job? Keep in mind, I don't have a resume and although I have had many jobs, I never stayed very long, and I have a criminal record.

— SERVING TIME
IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR SERVING TIME: I admire that you have decided to change your life and walk the "straight and narrow" from now on. A place to start would be to talk to the prison chaplain. Some religious denominations have programs in place to help inmates and former inmates successfully transition back into society.

The oldest prison/re-entry group in the country is the Pennsylvania Prison Society. Their website is at prisonsociety.org. If they don't serve the community into which you will be released, they will know an organization that does. Their re-entry program helps former prisoners attain self-sufficiency through a four-day job readiness workshop, which teaches the skills necessary to find and keep a job. Pre-registration is recommended, and their phone number is 215-564-6005, ext. 117. Call Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

DEAR ABBY: I had my first boyfriend when I was 16. The relationship lasted 13 years and we had a child together. Now that it's over I don't know what to do.

It has been nine months and it seems like my heartache is getting worse. I can't breathe. It feels like my heart has been ripped out of my chest and stepped on. It hurts even more because he started dating immediately after the breakup. I can't even talk to another man. I feel lost and have never been on a date with anyone but my ex.

I feel like I deprived myself of my youth. I cry every day. I can barely watch or see couples without getting depressed and breaking down. I need to see some type of light. Do you have any advice?

— DEPRIVED OF
MY YOUTH

DEAR DEPRIVED: Nine months is a long time to cry every day. You have been hit with what I call a "double-whammy." You are grieving for your lost relationship, and because this was your first and only one, you never learned how to handle a broken romance.

A counselor can help you through your grieving process and, in addition, help you to build the social skills you will need to move forward. Please don't put it off. Do this not only for yourself but also for your child so you can be the most effective parent you can be.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

*"The nicest child I ever knew
Was Charles Augustus Fortescue.
He never lost his cap, or tore
His stockings or his pinafore."*

— Hilaire Belloc

Today's deal from last year's Bermuda Bowl features the match between the young USA-2 squad and Bulgaria. It shows both U.S. pairs combining nicely for a gain.

Against four hearts, both Wests led a small club. John Hurd realized that if the club finesse was right, he really did not need to take it. He put up dummy's club ace, won the second trick with his heart jack, and continued with the heart seven. Victor Aronov took his ace and led a small spade, declarer getting it right by playing the jack. West won the trick with his ace and shifted to the diamond 10, but declarer won the trick, played a trump, and claimed. He still had to lose a club trick when diamonds did not behave, but he had his contract.

In the other room, the Bulgarian declarer played dummy's club queen at trick one and could no longer make his contract. Justin Lall played his club king and switched to the diamond two, the only card to defeat the contract. Declarer won the trick with dummy's queen and played a heart. Lall ducked this trick, then won the next trick with his heart ace to switch to a small spade. Seeing the ruff coming, declarer took his only legitimate chance by playing his king. Joe Grue won with his ace and returned a diamond for his partner to ruff. East now cashed the spade queen for two down.

ANSWER: In competition your partner's two-heart bid shows extras. A reversion to three clubs by you would be nonforcing. With a good hand you could cue-bid, but that might deny a clear direction. Here, you know you want to play clubs, so jump to four clubs, which is forcing. You can cue-bid later.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1779, Polish nobleman Casimir Pulaski, fighting for American independence, died two days after being wounded during the Revolutionary War Battle of Savannah, Ga.

In 1811, the first steam-powered ferryboat, the Juliana (built by John Stevens), was put into operation between New York City and Hoboken, N.J.

In 1862, during the Civil War, Confederate forces led by Gen. J.E.B. Stuart looted the town of Chambersburg, Pa.

In 1890, the Daughters of the American Revolution was founded in Washington, D.C.

In 1910, Theodore Roosevelt became the first former U.S. president to fly in an airplane during a visit to St. Louis, Mo.

In 1932, the first American political telecast took place as the Democratic National Committee sponsored a program from a CBS television studio in New York.

In 1942, the World War II Battle of Cape Esperance began in the Solomon Islands, resulting in an American victory over the Japanese.

In 1958, the lunar probe Pioneer 1 was launched; it failed to go as far out as planned, fell back to Earth, and burned up in the atmosphere.

In 1968, Apollo 7, the first manned Apollo mission, was launched with astronauts Wally Schirra, Donn Fulton Eisele and R. Walter Cunningham aboard. The government of Panama was overthrown in a military coup.

In 1984, space shuttle Challenger astronaut Kathryn Sullivan became the first American woman to walk in space.

In 1986, President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev opened two days of talks concerning arms control and human rights in Reykjavik, Iceland.

In 1992, in the first of three presidential debates, three candidates faced off against each other in St. Louis, Mo. — President George H.W. Bush, Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton and businessman Ross Perot.

Ten years ago: The Senate joined the House in approving, 77-23, use of America's military might against Iraq. Former President Jimmy Carter won the Nobel Peace Prize. A man was shot to death at a gas station near Fredericksburg, Va., in the latest slaying by the Washington-area sniper. A chain reaction crash on a foggy interstate near Cedar Grove, Wis., killed ten people and injured 40 others. A teenager set off a homemade bomb inside a crowded mall in Vantaa, Finland, killing himself and six others.

Five years ago: The Bush administration reported that the federal budget deficit had fallen to $162.8 billion in the just-completed budget year, the lowest amount of red ink in five years. Cold medicines for babies and toddlers were pulled off shelves amid concerns about unintentional overdoses. Briton Doris Lessing won the 2007 Nobel Prize in literature. Werner von Trapp, a member of the musical family made famous by the musical "The Sound of Music," died in Waitsfield, Vt., at age 91.

One year ago: Presidential challenger Mitt Romney accused President Barack Obama of failing to lead in a time of economic peril but sounded less conservative than his Republican rivals in their debate in Hanover, N.H., defending the 2008-2009 Wall Street bailout and declaring he could work with "good" Democrats. U.S. officials accused agents of the Iranian government of plotting to assassinate the Saudi ambassador to the U.S. The U.S. women rolled to their third title at the world gymnastics championships held in Tokyo. The Detroit Tigers won their first game of the 2011 AL championship series, sweeping past the Texas Rangers 5-2 in Game 3.

IF OCTOBER 11 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Go ahead and wish upon a star. If you wish for exciting and permanent friendships, it is entirely possible you could find them by December. The cosmic conditions that surround you at that time make everyone appreciate your friendship more than usual and any matter that depends upon trust and commitment, such as a new job or business, will thrive. Your business ideas and romantic adventures might come to nothing as February and March go by. But whatever you set in motion during late April and early May has a high likelihood of success, so plan to launch key enterprises or make crucial changes then.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be dynamic and direct. Warmth and enthusiasm will greet your efforts on the business scene. Overcome bashfulness and be direct because a fresh new face may be just the one you have searched for.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your motto of the day might be, "Out with the old and in with the new." Anything new, unconventional or outrageous can be fascinating. Remain open to fresh viewpoints and progressive-ness.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may need to read between the lines. Good communication skills are important but listening skills will do more to help you sort truth from fiction. Remain objective if faced with conflicting data.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Do not be awestruck by others and try to copy them. Nobody can be you as efficiently as you can. Others might seem to be better or wealthier or more accomplished, but there is only one you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): New goals can be developed. Entertain fresh strategies and refuse to repeat past mistakes. Experiment with new tactics, creative ideas, and policies; try a different approach to problems or people.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Scratch an inventive itch. Your resourcefulness may be in full flower when you are at home or faced with intricate family situations. Significant people may seem enthused about your ideas and plans.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Success will not lower its standard to accommodate you. You must raise your standards to achieve success. With the sun in your sign, you will have a chance to see what is most important and seek it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pick up where you left off. Small interruptions might sidetrack you, but it is easy to get back on target quickly. You must fully investigate your financial facts before you act on new investment ideas.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are bound to make a breakthrough in the next few days. Your love of adventure and risk-taking might rise like a thermometer on a hot day as Mars in your sign gets a heads-up from Uranus.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): There is a restless need for a change of pace in the air today. You may feel like clowning around or may be forced to deal with the unexpected. Don't let passing whims control your credit cards.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be the go-getter who gets the most. Being on the cutting edge of the latest technological advances can improve your public image. Friendly overtures from others can raise your self-esteem.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Keep an eagle eye trained on any changes that might affect your finances. Your quick thinking could save the day, as well as your pennies. Mingle with those who display an objective and rational outlook.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
