Hassani Challenges Carter for County Sheriff

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Two men with more than two decades of law enforcement experience each seek the title this fall of Twin Falls County sheriff.

The sheriff's current annual salary is $73,700.

Incumbent Sheriff Tom Carter,

a Republican, said he's accomplished the goals he set when he took office and is ready to take on new ones. Challenger Kelly Hassani, who is running as an independent, thinks it's time for a change in Twin Falls County and believes he's the one to do it.

Hassani was a senior investigator at the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office until he was dismissed in May. Hassani said he was injured in an on-duty car crash, and the long-term effects required certain accommodations at work he said the sheriff's office would not provide. He is currently still pursuing a lawsuit against the county and said the Idaho Human Rights Commission is investigating.

"The accommodations were not practical for a patrolman, that's about all I can say, but I did not terminate him," Carter said back in May.

This fall, Hassani said he believes the sheriff's department is too top-heavy and wants to "invert the pyramid" of the office, putting deputies and citizens at the top and the sheriff at the bottom.

Event Could Lead to Scholarship in Stabbing Victim's Name

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Out of their sadness, friends and family of a Twin Falls man who died last week hope to create some good.

Those who knew Jeremiah Paiz are hosting a benefit auction, dinner and dance Friday evening. Paiz died from his wounds after an alleged stabbing on Oct. 6. Suspect Cayde Lish, 21, is accused of voluntary manslaughter in the death.

Family friend Sonia Leon said the idea was first to gather funds to help the Paiz family through their loss, but has since grown.

"After talking it's evolved into a possibility for a memorial benefit fund," Leon said.

Leon said she and the Paiz family are talking about creating a nonprofit.

Storm Knocks Out Water Pumps, Thousands Lose Power

TWIN FALLS • A severe thunderstorm swept through the Magic Valley on Tuesday afternoon, spreading debris and knocking out power in many locations throughout the region, including the water pumps for the city of Twin Falls.

The wind storm knocked out the pumps that bring water out of the canyon for about an hour, said city of Twin Falls public information officer Joshua Palmer. The city had a two-day supply of water at the time. Palmer said workers could have switched on the power to the pumps sooner, but approached the situation cautiously because they didn't want to blow any fuses.

The storm also downed trees and power lines across the Magic Valley, causing about 11,500 power outages in the area. As of 6 p.m. Tuesday, there were still 6,100 homes without power with no estimated time of restoration, said Idaho Power spokesman Kevin Winslow.

Winslow said crews were scattered throughout the entire coverage area and would work through the night

Gooding to Send Water Debt Request to Judge

BY JULIE WOOTTON

GOODING • Despite opposition from residents, the city of Gooding will file a petition to finance water system improvements without a public vote.

Gooding City Council members voted unanimously Monday night to seek a 5th District Court judge's permission to take on long-term debt for the project.

The estimated project cost is about $9.45 million, though that doesn't include potential grant funding.

Mayor Duke Morton told the Times-News there isn't a timetable yet for the judicial process.

After city officials submit information to the attorneys handling the petition, "they'll give us a timetable back," he said.

During a quiet meeting Monday, there wasn't any discussion before the council voted.

T.F. Man Arrested for Sonic Robbery

BY ALISON GENE SMITH alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Twin Falls man was arrested Monday night after he allegedly robbed the Sonic Drive-In on Blue Lakes Boulevard.

Christopher Cole, 29, is charged with robbery and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

At about 10:14 p.m. Monday, Twin Falls police were dispatched to Sonic for a call about a robbery, said city spokesman Joshua Palmer.

According to Palmer, officers were already in the vicinity because they were called by a concerned citizen who lives near Sonic and saw a suspicious vehicle.

When officers arrived at Sonic, an employee said a male subject entered the restaurant through an unlocked door, held the employees at gunpoint and told them to lay on the ground before demanding money, Palmer said.

Employees handed the man an undisclosed amount of cash before he fled, Palmer said. According to Palmer, one of the employees recognized the man as a former employee of Sonic, Christopher Cole.

Palmer said police learned Cole frequented the Signature Bar at 717 Main Ave. They went to the bar where they found the vehicle matching the description from the concerned citizen, Palmer said.

Police found Cole, 29, in the back passenger seat, Palmer said. Once officers searched the car, they discovered a large amount of cash and a handgun, Palmer said.

Cole was arraigned on his charges on Tuesday. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Oct. 26.

Hundreds gather to celebrate Hollister Elementary School's centennial Saturday in Hollister.

From the Notebook

iPad Preferences

When I visited the school in Castleford last week, it seemed like iPads were everywhere.

I've seen classes at other schools using the mobile device. But seeing dozens of students carrying iPads in the hallways isn't as common.

In Castleford, every high-schooler received an iPad last month to use at school. Students are also allowed to bring them home.

But some of the students haven't been using their iPads at home - nor have they been using them for schoolwork.

In one case, it was a personal preference.

"I prefer to write papers on a computer," 17-year-old Mike Wiersma said.

Michael Nield, 15, had a different concern. He doesn't have wireless Internet access at home, so he has to get online at school.

100 Years, but Not Everything Changed

Adults and their smaller counterparts wandered the halls, their footsteps interrupted only by their own delighted chuckles.

Hundreds had gathered to take a gander at Hollister Elementary School. After 100 years of education, it was time to share some of the memories rooted within the building's bricks.

Behind the stage in the library, former students looked for their names they had drawn on the wall, some more than 50 years ago. Many of the younger folks were quick to point theirs out, while others let their eyes wander for stretches at a time.

One classroom had been set up to show how the technology had changed over the years all the way from an old Opa-Scope to today's interactive whiteboards.

In many ways nothing has really changed. Young people still fill the classrooms. Teachers still teach reading, writing and arithmetic. Yet, so many of the tools and policies would be foreign to an educator a century ago.

TWIN FALLS • For those frustrated with construction on Addison Avenue, you're going to have to wait a little longer for its completion.

Twin Falls police are looking for two vehicles that drove through wet cement on Addison Avenue on Friday evening. The incident ruined the new road surface, forcing contractor PMF to tear up that section of the road and start over, said Joshua Palmer, spokesman for the city of Twin Falls.

That will add about 10 days to the project and cost an estimated $15,000.

According to Palmer, the incident was likely an accident caused by confusion over where to drive.

At least one of the vehicles is a large truck, and one vehicle may have blown a tire.

Man Accused of Exploiting Child

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Twin Falls man was arrested Sunday after police accused him of lewd conduct with a child.

Police said Bruce Slater, 48, was seen in an inappropriate picture with a young child. Police allegedly located the picture after searching a phone belonging to Kandi Mohr, who was charged in September along with Michael Meyers with sexual abuse of a child. Police say the two, both 45 and of Hansen, abused a young child for several years.

On Sunday, Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies went to Slater's home in Twin Falls with a search warrant. According to a report by detectives, Slater's wife identified the 3-year-old child in the picture.

The report states Slater agreed to an interview with deputies. He reportedly said he knew about Mohr and Meyers' involvement with a young child, but couldn't prove it so he never said anything. He also denied any involvement with the child Mohr and Meyers are accused of abusing.

When deputies informed Slater they had evidence he abused another child, the report states, Slater seemed surprised and asked to see the evidence.

Eventually, the report states, Slater admitted to undressing in front of the child and to taking an inappropriate photograph with the child.

"He continued to say that it was a stupid thing he did and that he should have never taken the picture," the report states.

Slater was arrested and charged with lewd conduct with a child under 16 and willfully possessing sexually exploitative material depicting a child.

Preliminary hearings for Mohr and Meyers are scheduled for Friday. Slater's preliminary hearing is scheduled for Oct. 26.

Environmental Group Sues Over Idaho River Dredging

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • An environmental group said Tuesday it had sued the state after the governor and other officials approved a plan to dredge the Salmon River for gold — an operation some contend will harm migrating fish habitat and create hazards for anglers.

The Idaho Conservation League announced it had asked a 4th District Court judge to require the state to approve a reclamation plan before signing off on any mining projects.

In September, Grangeville miner Mike Conklin was awarded a five-year lease by the Idaho Land Board, giving him sole access to a half-mile stretch of river about 13 miles downstream of Riggins where he can mine the gravel for precious metal.

The Boise-based environmental group contends Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter and the other board members ignored laws meant to protect Idaho's water, arguing that miners who use gasoline-powered suction dredges often leave big holes in the riverbed that damage valuable habitat for salmon and steelhead.

"Before anyone goes on to our lands which need to be protected for the benefit of water quality, fisheries and wildlife, and public health and safety, miners need to submit a restoration plan before they're allowed access onto these properties," said Jonathan Oppenheimer of the environmental group. "If there's anywhere there ought to be a high level of scrutiny, it's in the bed of the Salmon River, which is one of the gems of Idaho."

Staff members at the Idaho Department of Lands who oversee mineral leases with proceeds and royalties that benefit public schools, contend the league is misinterpreting state rules and laws governing suction dredge mining and reclamation requirements.

Eric Wilson, minerals program manager, told the Land Board in August that regulation of recreational dredgers such as Conklin falls to the Idaho Department of Water Resources, and the Department of Lands only has jurisdiction over awarding a lease.

On Tuesday, Wilson declined to comment on pending litigation.

Some anglers have also opposed Conklin's permit, saying it will hurt popular steelhead fishing areas and create hazardous holes where people could fall in and drown.

In addition to Otter, the Land Board members named as defendants are

Secretary of State Ben Yursa, public schools chief Tom Luna, attorney general Lawrence Wasden, and controller Brandon Woolf.

The Idaho Conservation League says a judge should reverse the Land Board's order granting Conklin a lease. It also wants a review of whether the state erred in deciding that laws such as the Dredge and Placer Mining Protection Act and the Surface Mining Act don't apply to the project.

OUR VIEW

Jim Patrick the Best Choice for District 25

The two candidates running for Senate seat A in District 25 impressed the Times-News editorial board with their knowledge of state issues and vision for the future. The race pits Democrat Scott McClure against Republican Jim Patrick. While we think the district will be well represented no matter who wins, Patrick wins our endorsement.

A farmer for 40 years, Jim Patrick possesses first-hand knowledge of his constituents' needs and the problems Magic Valley agriculture will face in the future. Chief among those concerns is aquifer management.

Patrick envisions a conservation system based on monetary value, where unused water rights can be sold to fellow farmers. That, combined with supporting state resources for water studies and aquifer recharge, makes Patrick a strong advocate for the Magic Valley's most precious resource.

As a founding member of Magic Valley Bank, Patrick is ready if re-elected to examine lien law for ag loans following some confusion earlier this year over who should have first lien on dairy cows. And Patrick promised to continue to be an advocate for ag research funding, if the money is available.

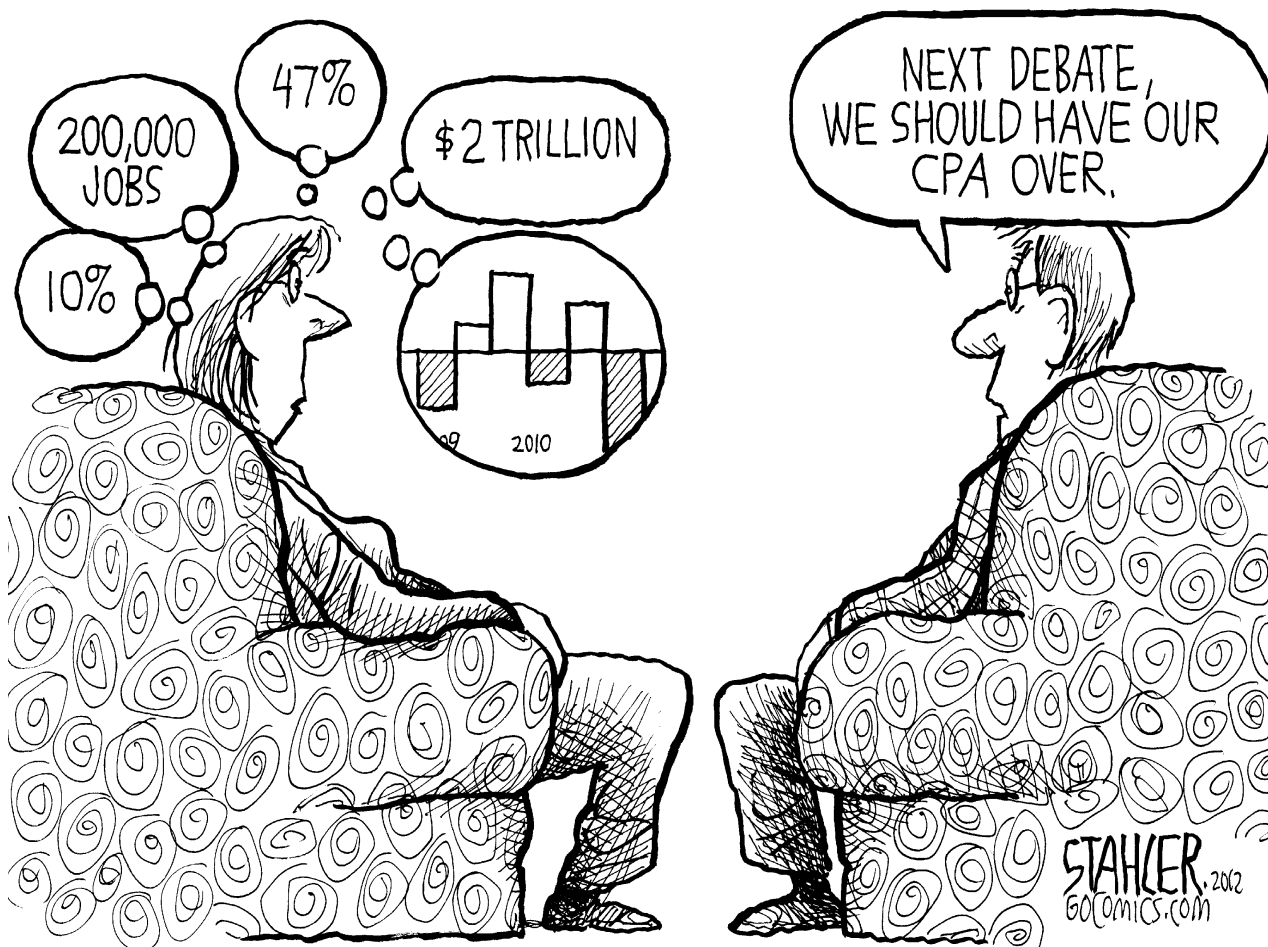

We believe his experience farming the Magic Valley – through good times and bad – will make him a strong voice for local farmers.

Patrick failed to impress, however, in the areas of corporate taxes and education. He favored repealing the personal property tax for businesses in order to spur growth, but couldn't provide many specifics on a plan of action. The same went for the Luna Laws, which he supports, even while admitting they're not perfect.

Education was a strong focus for McClure. He sees education as the key to economic development. He supports better funding for K-12 education to post-secondary training for jobs available in the Magic Valley. He pointed out that the Legislature took control of education funding, only to cut it by 19 percent.

McClure would like to see the state and universities enter into partnerships with local processors in order to provide better training for workers. He said employers are putting a higher value on experience and education, and training workers for those positions would encourage companies to come to the area.

While we believe Patrick will be the best advocate for District 25 interests, we encourage McClure – a fiscal conservative, Magic Valley native and business owner – to stay involved whenever and wherever possible.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Jack Nelsen the Right Candidate for CSI Board of Trustees

This letter is to announce my support for Jack Nelsen for Position 3 of the CSI Board of Trustees.

Trustee Allan Frost has served us well but isn't seeking re-election and has said he'd like to see someone from Jerome County fill his position. The choice could not be clearer.

Jack Nelsen, who is a CSI alumnus and effective contributor to the CSI music department for more than 20 years, will devote himself to ensuring that CSI maintains its competitive tuition rates and continues to provide a high quality education for its students. His experience as chairman of the Jerome County Planning and Zoning Commission and his community involvement makes him a dependable and insightful candidate that we can count on to do the job right. He has shown that he has solid values and the character of a good leader and will represent Jerome County and the northside area with accountability and an open mind with the overall health of CSI a priority.

A vote for Nelsen is a vote for a responsive and resourceful CSI Board. I encourage you to vote for Jack Nelsen on Nov. 6.

Woman Believes She was Scammed by House Painter

This is a cautionary tale for all but especially for senior women who, for one reason or another, have had to take over for their husbands.

Our home needed a new coat of paint, so I contacted a locally advertised painter, accepted his bid to either spray paint or roller brush the house. I was a target of his scam from Day 1.

He first spray painted the house, then switched to a roll for the second coat, meaning I wouldn't be able to tell by looking what had been painted and what hadn't. When done, he left me a full gallon of paint and I paid him after doing an eye-level walk around.

A couple of weeks later, I discovered by accident the west side of the house hadn't received a second coat of paint. I confronted the painter and he agreed to paint all those areas he had "overlooked!" I have an uneasy feeling there are parts of our home that still don't have two coats of paint.

To prove my point that I was a target for his scam, he claimed he had applied 15 gallons of paint, but the paint store told me he bought eight gallons on Aug. 31 and two gallons a couple of days later (and one of those was the gallon he left with me).

I am sorry if telling my story has a wrongful impact on all the honest, hard-working painters in our area.

Vote for Jack Nelsen for CSI Board of Trustees

We recommend Jack Nelsen for CSI Board member.

We have known Jack and his family for many years. He has been a steady worker on his family's dairy farm near Jerome.

Jack has shown support for CSI by being so active in the basketball pep band they had for nearly 20 years. He directed this band at one time.

He is able to manage people and yet, with a sense of humor, get through tough spots.

Jack has shown a civic responsibility by being active there.

What Influence Does Islam Have Over Obama?

One of the questions that is not being asked by the media about the debacle in Libya is whether Muslims in the Obama administration with ties to the Muslim Brotherhood are softening our response to the ongoing jihad against America and Western traditions.

Frank Gaffney, president of the Center for Security Policy, identifies a number of individuals in sensitive positions in our government that are helping to moderate our thoughts about what Islam represents and how we should accommodate its views.

The Muslim Brotherhood is the grandfather of the extremist elements of Islam that have pledged to implement a worldwide Caliphate to rid the world of infidels such as us. Their creed promotes lying to the infidel to advance the cause of Islam; it says there is no crime in killing the infidel, any infidel and promotes slavery of women.

There are already judges in our courts that think Muslims in our country should be able to discipline their people following Sharia or Islam's code of law. Honor killings are acceptable. Efforts are being made through the United Nations to pass a law that would ban unacceptable speech about any religion. Wake up!

Our failures in countries where Islam is dominant or seeks to become dominant may not be that big of a problem for President Obama. His early years were imprinted with memories of Islam. If we want our economy to improve and if we want to remain free, Obama must be retired.

Republican Party Has Become Greedy, Self-centered

It is Sunday (Oct. 9) and our Times-News is filled with Republican thinking. The head of the GOP actually said he "hopes that someone at the top of BSU with a little pull will reconsider billing them $34,000 for using its facilities and whined that the Democrats only got charged one-third that amount."

It is arithmetic again – the GOP used the facility 14 hours, the Democrats, five hours; and one third of $35,000 is $11,600, not $13,000, plus they did not clean up after themselves as the Democrats did. I think they got a bargain!

Why no prior agreement? Not smart! For a GOP that campaigns on "being interested in the education of our children," why would it even think of having the college help foot its bill? If "someone with a little pull" does get the bill lowered, that someone should be fired!

This is typical of this modern-day Republican Party. It is not your Republican Party of old that your grandma and grandpa and mom and dad and yes, even I could vote for. It has become so greedy and self-centered that all that is important to it is the next dollar in its pocket.

I urge you to drive around the state and take notice of the good that has happened the last four years. Road and bridge construction and a huge amount of windmills we see is our money being spent on us, no some foreign country's.

Yes, this administration has spent money, but any good businessman will tell you "it takes money to make money." The prior administration took $242 billion surplus and 3 percent unemployment to trillions of dollars of debt and an 8 percent unemployment rate. And now, their new candidate can only complain that "we are not cleaning up their mess quick enough." Can we survive another spoiled little rich kid as the head of our nation?

Sheriff

"The sheriff's job is to serve everybody," he said.

Carter said he trimmed the administrative staff when he took office and each person who's there now has a specific and necessary job.

"The idea of too much administration and not enough people holds no water," Carter said.

Hasanni had several ideas for ways to improve the Twin Falls County Jail. Locking down the majority of inmates for 23 hours a day would serve as a strong deterrent against returning to jail, he said. On the other hand, letting eligible inmates get out and participate in a work crew that served the public would mean fewer people physically in the jail every day, he said.

"You can't just arbitrarily punish people," Carter said of the idea of a 23-hour lockdown.

Carter also said the state sets many of the standards for inmate classification and those standards decide what kind of cell a person is housed in.

"We keep everyone locked down that's appropriate," he said.

Besides his own lawsuit, Hassani said voters should look at other suits from former sheriff's office employees and inmates against the county during Carter's term.

Carter said he doesn't make personnel decisions based on politics or whether he thinks the person might sue afterward.

"I'm not the least bit sorry for any personnel decisions," he said.

As for suits from former jail inmates, Carter said they do not reflect a lack of training among jail deputies. His office deals with each suit and each employee individually, he said.

"People make mistakes," he said. "Even people who have been well trained."

If elected, Hassani said he would like to use technology such as alternative energy vehicles and a crime text message or email alert system for people who have signed up. Tuesday, he said he'd like a chance to debate Carter.

"I believe I'll do an exceptional job as I did in everything else in law enforcement," Hassani said. "When voters vote on Nov. 6, they'll get exactly what they asked for."

Carter said people should look to the positive accomplishments the sheriff's office has made during his term, like adding more certified instructors, increasing the number of K-9 deputies and returning money from his budget to the county's general fund every year.

"I love my job," he said. "I plan on doing it just as long as they'll have me."

likely into the morning to restore power.

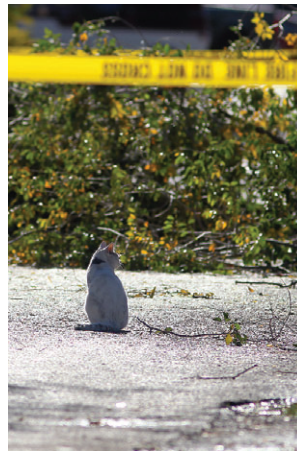

Filer Middle School escaped major damage from a pine tree that fell on the roof. Principal Shane Hild said students were in class at the time, but the tree fell above offices. Hild said the tree damaged a gutter, but the roof itself was not damaged. He said the tree was removed and cut apart in front of the school.

"People are already calling to take the wood," Hild said.

Twin Falls resident Tom Evans was at his bay window watching the wind hurl branches around outside and had just turned away when a crash rattled the house. Evans said a 100-foot-long tree fell across his yard, landing on his driveway and partly on the trunk of a friend's car.

Evans said he is not sure how he is going to remove the tree.

"I told my friend, we're going to have a tree-cut-

Lt. Craig Stotts of the Twin Falls Police Department said a tree damaged one car on Main Street badly enough that it had to be towed, and three other cars were damaged on Fillmore Street when a canopy collapsed on them. A tree fell across Shoshone Street at 10th Street for a

Wood Waste Facility Accepting Debris

Twin Falls residents are invited to dispose of branches and other wood debris at a wood waste collection site at 987 Rose St.

The facility will be until Oct. 17. The site is normally open Saturdays from noon to 5 p.m. but opens when there is a community-wide need to dispose large amount of wooden debris, according to a city news release.

Drop-offs may be made free of charge as long as the wood is clean. Acceptable materials include: unpainted lumber, pallets, tree limbs up to 35 inches in diameter, leaves, shrubs and wood shingles. Unacceptable materials include: wood treated with creosote, painted wood, logs or limbs over 32 inches in diameter and waste from commercial activities.

The purpose of the wood waste recycling facility is to reduce the amount material that ends up in a landfill. The materials converted to wood chips will be available to anyone on a first come, first served basis.

The no-cost program is only available to Twin Falls residential households.

brief period, but the tree was cleared and all major roads were open by 3:30 p.m., Stotts said.

Winds over 30 mph continued through the afternoon in the Twin Falls area, with gusts reaching nearly 50 mph in the early afternoon, according to the National Weather Service. A wind advisory remained in effect until 8 p.m. in the western Magic Valley and 9 p.m. in the east.

it so they can continue to raise funds and eventually create a scholarship that would benefit the local Latino community.

"That's the path that this is going to start to take," she said. "We're hoping it could be an annual event."

Several businesses in Twin Falls and Jerome have already donated gift cards or items to be auctioned off, as well as items to help put on the event.

Anchor Bistro and Montana Steak House in Twin Falls and Spin Design Photographics and Appliances Etc in Jerome are a few of the businesses that have contributed. But those few just scratch the surface, Leon said.

RJ Gonzales, a friend of Paiz's, created stenciled T-shirts depicting Paiz to try to raise money for his friend's family. He makes the stencils as a hobby and said he just wanted to do what he could to help.

Then, he learned that 120 T-shirts awaited his stencils in Twin Falls.

"It got carried away. I didn't know I'd be making that many," he said.

Gonzales grew up in Twin Falls and now lives in Chino Hills, Calif. He said friends and family near and far asked him to make the shirts. Anyone who gave a donation of any amount was given a shirt, he said.

"People want them shipped out of state," he said. "His family in Texas wants some, someone in San Francisco wants some. It's pretty big."

A few years ago, Gonzales said, he visited Twin Falls and showed Paiz his stenciled T-shirts. Gonzales called his current shirts a tribute to his friend.

"I think he would like it," Gonzales said.

Leon said the Friday event will offer another chance for friends and family to get together and remember.

"I think it was a community that got a hard blow," she said.

The Facebook group Friends of JD was a place for many people to express themselves through writing and vent in the days after Paiz's death, she said.

Friday, members of the group wrote on Facebook that they were told to delete the group in an effort to avoid the trial for Lish being moved to another county.

Tuesday, Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loeb said he didn't speak to anyone directly about the Facebook page but did answer questions Paiz's family had about the publicity surrounding the case.

Loeb said general publicity about a case generally doesn't cause a judge to want to move a case out of county, but sensational or inaccurate publicity could.

Moving a trial to another county is a hardship on everyone involved and costs both the prosecutor's office and the defendant's attorney more money, Loeb said.

"More than just cost, we're denying the people of this county, wherein the offense has occurred, to hear the case in their county. I don't like to see that," he said.

Leon said she and the Paiz family hope the support following Paiz's death will continue in a positive way, and Leon said she'll continue to help out.

"I'm capable and I'm willing to do everything possible to help the family just because he wasn't just whoever, he was close to us," she said.

A preliminary hearing for Lish was scheduled for Monday but has been delayed by more than a month. It was rescheduled for 8:15 a.m. Nov. 23 at the Twin Falls County Courthouse.

Gooding

The decision comes after dozens of residents attended three town hall meetings and a public hearing on the topic.

Fewer than 10 people attended the meeting Monday.

Gooding resident Jo Ann Doerr told the council there's a petition circulating.

Residents signing it don't want work done on the water system without a public vote, she said.

Doerr asked to be kept updated on the judicial confirmation process.

City officials are pursuing water system improvements because pipe is rotting in the water delivery system, Morton told the Times-News last month.

Also, he said sediment has risen so high that water has trouble moving and has flooded some residential basements.

Water users would have to repay the loan for the project with a 1 percent interest rate. Morton said last month that water rates

What Is Judicial Confirmation?

Idaho's constitution limits how local government entities such as cities can take on long-term debt — essentially, a protection for the taxpayers who have to pay that debt.

One option is to have the public vote on the debt in one of Idaho's four regular yearly elections. Another alternative is asking a judge to review the debt and deem it an ordinary and necessary expense of the city. In the latter case, the judge renders his decision in an open court setting much like any other court proceeding would be conducted.

could double.

Improvements to the water system are needed for the health, safety and welfare of citizens, according to the resolution approved by the City Council.

The city also has to comply with state water system requirements.

Family of Missing Woman Thanks Investigators

RUPERT (AP) • The family of a Rupert woman missing since December 1988 on Tuesday thanked investigators who believe they've found her remains.

Norine Boyd, mother of three from Rupert, was last seen on Dec. 20, 1988, about two weeks after police obtained a warrant charging her with stealing $992 from a local man.

On Friday, Rupert Police Det. Jeff McEwen and criminal analyst Diane Gines were pursuing information connected to the disappearance with a cadaver dog and personnel trained in forensic anthropology when they discovered human remains in the City of Rocks area.

McEwen told the Times-News on Monday that evidence at the scene indicates there's "a good probability" the remains are those of Norine Boyd.

The Rupert Police Department told Boyd's family about the discovery, and the family issued a prepared statement Tuesday morning.

"The family of Norine Kay Boyd would like to thank all the officers and Diane Gines for all the hours and hours of investigation they performed to give the family closure after 24 years and bring the body of Norine Boyd home. Rest in Peace, Norine. You are finally back home," the family's statement said.

Confirmation of the remains as Boyd's still awaits the results of a DNA test.

Ysursa Likely to Demand Donor Names Ahead of Vote

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • Secretary of State Ben Ysursa says he's likely to demand that a group helping finance the campaign to save Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna's education reforms reveal the names of its contributors.

Education Voters of Idaho collected at least $200,000 to promote Luna's reforms ahead of the Nov. 6 referendum, but says it doesn't have to disclose donors because it's a nonprofit organization under federal tax law.

On Monday, Ysursa said the group has yet to provide a legal explanation for why it's not a political action committee required by Idaho's 1974 "Sunshine laws" to disclose donors ahead of the election.

He said it appears to violate what he calls his office's "11th Commandment:" that political groups need to tell the public where they get their money from.

"It eviscerates the law if we don't get disclosure," Ysursa said in an interview inside his 2nd floor Capitol offices. "We personally do not believe there's a doubt here."

Absent a response from the group, Ysursa said he'll seek

"legal remedies" that could include a request for a court order for it to reveal its donors. He expects to act this week.

Susan Buxton, Education Voters of Idaho's attorney, didn't return a call seeking comment Monday.

John Foster, a lobbyist who founded the group, declined to comment.

Education Voters of Idaho was incorporated as a nonprofit, 501(c)(4) group under federal Internal Revenue Service laws. As such, Foster has said its contributors are shielded from disclosure, to protect their free-speech rights.

Its involvement in the campaign came to light when it gave at least $200,000 to a related political action committee, Parents for Education Reform, to finance broadcast ads touting the reforms. Parents for Education Reform disclosed the contribution in its state filings last week.

Despite any federal tax status of Education Voters of Idaho, Ysursa said he's convinced it's still got a duty to disclose its financiers under state law.

"I haven't seen any IRS provision that would supersede state law on disclosure," he said.

Fact Check: Ad Uses Union Comment Out of Context

BOISE (AP) • A new ad promoting an Idaho education overhaul recycles a 3-year-old speech from a retired union leader, using a portion of it out of context to bash those trying to repeal the changes on Nov. 6.

The advertisement unveiled Monday on the Internet and Idaho television and radio station uses an excerpt from a 2009 speech by former National Education Association top lawyer Bob Chanin.

It claims Chanin's words illustrate why the union has spent more than $1 million to defeat a series of new education laws promoted by Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna.

In the excerpt, Chanin says, "It is not because of the merit of our positions. It is not because we care about children. And it is not because we have a vision of a great public school for every child. It's because we have power."

The reference to union power underpins the overhaul proponents' message that out-of-state labor organizations are working to kill Luna's changes — not to help students but because unions fear an erosion of their clout.

But Chanin's retirement speech, to union members in San Diego, predated Luna's 2011 "Students Come First" plan by two years.

Poll: School Reforms Face Ballot Box Test

BOISE (AP) • A new Idaho Statesman poll of likely voters across the state shows that a series of laws overhauling public education faces a tough test at the ballot box next month.

The newspaper poll released Sunday, less than four weeks before the Nov. 6 general election, also shows that support is soft for three public school propositions among respondents who identify as Republicans.

The poll, conducted by Washington D.C.-based Mason-Dixon Polling and Research, questioned respondents on the education referendum and a variety of other political and state issues. The poll was conducted last week and is based on interviews of 625 voters who said they were likely to take part in the election and has a margin for error of no more than plus or minus 4 percentage points.

The newspaper reported that opponents outnumber supporters on two of the three propositions on the ballot.

On Proposition 1, which centers around a 2011 law limiting teacher contract negotiations to pay and benefits, the poll found that 42 percent would vote to reject the law compared to 38 percent who support it. About 20 percent of voters say they are still undecided.

For Proposition 2, the measure asking voters to reject or uphold the merit pay law for teachers, the newspaper reports that 42 percent support the plan while 39 percent would reject it and 19 percent remain undecided.

The poll also shows those against Proposition 3 outnumber those who like it. Prop 3 focuses on a plan to give computers to high school students and teachers and require students to take online courses before graduation. The poll found that 47 percent of likely voters would reject the measure, while 40 percent are in favor and 13 percent have yet to make up their mind.

Obama, Romney in Crackling Debate

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) • An aggressive President Barack Obama accused challenger Mitt Romney of favoring a “one-point plan” to help the rich in America and playing politics with the recent deadly terrorist attack in Libya in a Tuesday night debate crackling with energy and emotion just three weeks before the election.

Romney pushed back hard, saying the middle class “has been crushed over the last four years,” that 23 million Americans are struggling to find work and that the death of the U.S. ambassador to Libya was part of an unraveling of the administration’s foreign policy.

The president was feistier from the outset than he had been in their initial encounter two weeks ago, when he turned in a listless performance that sent shudders through his supporters and helped fuel a rise by Romney in opinion polls nationally and in some battleground states.

Obama and Romney disagreed, forcefully and repeatedly — about taxes, measures to reduce the deficit, energy, pay equity for women and health care as well as foreign policy across 90 minutes of a town-hall style debate.

Immigration prompted yet another clash, Romney saying Obama had failed to pursue the comprehensive legislation he promised at the dawn of his administration, and the president saying Republican obstinacy made a deal impossible.

Ann Romney, center, wife of Republican nominee Mitt Romney, takes a seat in the audience before the debate.

Romney gave as good as he got. “You’ll get your chance in a moment. I’m still speaking,” the former Massachusetts governor said at one point while Obama was mid-sentence, drawing a gasp from the audience. He said the president’s policies had failed to jumpstart the economy and had cramped energy production.

The open-stage format left the two men free to stroll freely across a red-carpeted stage, and they did. Their clashes crackled with energy and tension, and the crowd watched raptly as the two sparred while struggling to appear calm and affable before a national television audience.

Both men had rehearsed extensively for the encounter, a turnabout for Obama. “I had a bad night,” the president conceded, days after he and Romney shared a stage for the first time, in Denver. His aides made it known he didn’t intend to be as deferential to his challenger this time, and the presidential party decamped for a resort in Williamsburg, Va., for rehearsals that consumed the better part of three days.

Romney rehearsed in Massachusetts and again after arriving on Long Island on debate day, with less to make up for.

Asked Tuesday night by one member of the audience how he would differ from former President George W. Bush, the last Republican to hold the office, Romney said, “We are different people and these are different times.”

Though the questions were from undecided voters inside the hall — in a deeply Democratic state — the audience that mattered most watched on television and was counted in the tens of millions. Crucially important: viewers in the nine battlegrounds where the race is likely to be settled.

The final debate, next Monday in Florida, will be devoted to foreign policy.

U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton speaks after a meeting with Peru’s President Ollanta Humala in Lima, Peru, Monday.

Secretary of State Clinton Takes Responsibility for Attack in Libya

BY PAUL RICHTER

Tribune Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON • As criticism mounted on the Obama administration, Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton acted Monday to shield the president from blame for the deadly September attack on a U.S. mission in Libya, saying that any fault lies with her as America’s top diplomat.

“I take responsibility,” Clinton told a CNN interviewer during a trip to Peru.

U.S. Ambassador J. Christopher Stevens and three other Americans were killed Sept. 11 when dozens of heavily armed men drove up in a convoy and attacked and burned the thinly protected U.S. diplomatic mission and a nearby annex in Benghazi.

Two State Department security officers who served in Libya this year told a House oversight hearing last week that they had requested an extension of a 16-member military team at the U.S. Embassy in Tripoli, several hundred miles away from Benghazi, but that mid-level State Department officers in Washington had rejected the request.

In addition to the congressional probe, the State Department has convened a formal review of the assault, and the FBI has sent agents to Libya to conduct a criminal investigation.

Though the incident could mar Clinton’s record as chief diplomat, Republicans in Congress and on the campaign trail have raised few questions about her role. They have charged instead that the failure to protect the diplomatic mission reflects a broader failure of foreign policy by Obama as he runs for re-election.

Clinton has kept a generally low profile on the issue and on Friday she declined to answer a reporter’s question about precisely what she was doing during the attack.

On Monday, Clinton portrayed the mounting criticism as motivated by political partisanship. “I want to avoid some kind of political gotcha,” she said.

She said Obama and Vice President Joe Biden were not involved in decisions about the level of security for diplomats in Libya, a country that has been overflowing with weapons since an armed insurgency toppled and killed former leader Moammar Gadhafi last year.

PICASSO, MONETS STOLEN IN NETHERLANDS HEIST

AMSTERDAM (AP) • Thieves broke into a Rotterdam museum on Tuesday and walked off with works from the likes of Picasso, Monet, Gauguin and Matisse potentially worth hundreds of millions.

Police haven’t said how they pulled off the early hours heist, but an expert who tracks stolen art said the robbers clearly knew what they were after.

“Those thieves got one hell of a haul,” said Chris Marinello, who directs the Art Loss Register.

The heist at the Kunsthall museum is one of the largest in years in the Netherlands, and is a stunning blow for the private Triton Foundation collection, which was being exhibited publicly as a group for the first time.

“It’s every museum director’s worst nightmare,” said Kunsthall director Emily Ansenk, who had been in Istanbul on business but returned immediately. News of the theft “struck like a bomb,” she said at a press conference in the museum’s cafe. She declined to reveal any details of how the thieves got in and out with the paintings, or how the museum is protected, other than describing its security as “state of the art” and “functional.” Willem van Hassel, the museum’s chairman, said its security systems are automated, and do not use guards on site.

Police arrived at the scene five minutes after an alarm was triggered, he said. He described the museum’s insurance as adequate for the exhibition. Police spokeswoman Willemieke Romijn said investigators were reviewing videotapes of the theft, which took place around 3 a.m. local time. She called on any witnesses to come forward with information.

The Art Loss Register’s Marinello said the items taken could be worth “hundreds of millions of euros” if sold legally at auction. However, he said that was now impossible. Interpol sent a bulletin alerting member countries to the theft, along with images of the stolen paintings. They were: Pablo Picasso’s 1971 “Harlequin’s Head”; Claude Monet’s 1901 “Waterloo Bridge, London” and “Charing Cross Bridge, London”; Henri Matisse’s 1919 “Reading Girl in White and Yellow”; Paul Gauguin’s 1898 “Girl in Front of Open Window”; Meyer de Haan’s “Self-Portrait,” around 1890, and Lucian Freud’s 2002 work “Woman with Eyes Closed.” The collection was on display as part of celebrations surrounding the museum’s 20th anniversary.

Marinello said the thieves have limited options available. They may try to seek a ransom from the owners, the museum or the insurers. They could also conceivably sell the paintings in the criminal market — but only for a fraction of their true worth. He said the idea that an unscrupulous private investor might have commissioned the works’ theft was far-fetched. “That’s something that comes from Hollywood movies,” he said.

The Triton Foundation is a collection of avant-garde art put together by multimillionaire Willem Cordia, an investor and businessman, and his wife, Marijke Cordia-Van der Laan. Willem Cordia died last year.

Asenk said she spoke on behalf of the family in saying “we are shocked, but we will go on.”

“All involved want the public to still be able to see these kinds of special collections and private collections,” she said.

The museum was cordoned off as police carried out their investigation Tuesday, but it will reopen Wednesday, she said.

The Kunsthall museum is a display space that has no permanent collection of its own — the name means “art gallery” in Dutch.

A public viewing memorial will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 17, at the Buhl First Christian Church. A service will also be at 11 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 18, at the same church.

Paul was born Jan. 29, 1917, in Spokane, Wash., to Suzanna (Meyers) Kennedy and John Robert Kennedy. He was the youngest born but was proud he was the longest living (in years) of four brothers and two sisters. After graduating high school, his lifetime occupation was farming. Paul married Anna Marian Dujardin on April 20, 1943. They enjoyed life together for 45 years before Anna's death in July of 1988. They are survived by two children, Charlene Maxton (Barry) Howsden and Elvera (William) Wiegand.

It was a joy to him to be able to have a garden for a couple years, the trips to the local senior center for lunch, and the extended and local care they provided in the last two weeks of his life. Paul had requested, in lieu of flowers, that donations be made to the Christian Church campground in Fairfield, Idaho.

Wayne L. Ward

Jan. 22, 1926-Oct. 13, 2012

NAMPA • Wayne L. Ward, 86, of Nampa, passed away Saturday, Oct. 13, 2012.

Wayne was born Jan. 22, 1926, to Ray and Wilma Ward in their farmhouse in Sheldon, Mo. The family moved to Buhl, Idaho, in 1935 where they farmed in the Cedar Draw area. Growing up on a farm taught Wayne all about the value of hard work, a lesson he carried with him all his life.

Wayne graduated from Buhl High School in 1943, then served in the 6th Army during World War II, where he trained for the invasion of Japan. After the war ended, he spent a year in Korea before coming home on his 21st birthday in 1947. He married his high school sweetheart, Donna May Wiegington, on June 1, 1947. Donna wore a dress of the finest silk Wayne had brought back from Korea.

Wayne farmed, drove truck and worked as a police officer until he hired on with the Union Pacific Railroad in 1952. Life as a railroader meant lots of moves; Glenn's Ferry, Nampa, Ogden, Twin Falls, Salt Lake City and finally Pocatello. Along the way, Wayne and Donna had four children, Diana Kay, Wilford Ray and twins, Larry Duane and Gary Wayne.

Wayne retired from Union Pacific in 1990. Wayne and Donna became full-time RVers and traveled wherever the weather and their whims took them.

They spent most summers in Nampa and winters in Las Vegas, Nev., enjoying family and friends, old and new. They finally settled in a cozy home in the Silvercrest retirement community in Nampa when the road got too long to travel.

Wayne was preceded in death by his parents; and his wife, Donna. Wayne is survived by his children, Diana (Gary) Hill of Nampa, Will (Vonna) Ward of Salt Lake City, Utah, Larry (Debbie) Ward of Boise and Gary Ward of Boise; 10 grandchildren; and 11 great-grandchildren.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be made in Wayne's name to the Operation Warmheart, P.O. Box 4188, Mountain Home AFB, ID 83648.

A viewing will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 18, at the Nampa Funeral Home Yraguen Chapel. A graveside service will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Oct. 19, at the West End Cemetery in Buhl. An online guestbook may be signed at www.nampafuneralhome.com.

Cambodia's Former King Sihanouk Dies at 89

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) • He was many things to the Cambodia he helped navigate through half a century of war and genocide — revered independence hero, ruthless monarch and prime minister, communist collaborator, eccentric playboy, avid filmmaker. Most of all, perhaps, Cambodia's former King Norodom Sihanouk was a cunning political survivor who reinvented himself repeatedly throughout his life. He died Monday at age 89 of a heart attack in Beijing.

First crowned king by the French in 1941 at the age of 18, Sihanouk saw his nation transformed from colony to kingdom, from U.S.-backed regime to U.S. bombing zone, from Khmer Rouge killing field to a modern, fragile experiment in democracy.

Frances E. Binam

June 30, 1939-Oct. 12, 2012

BURLEY • Frances E. Binam, age 73, a longtime resident of Burley, passed away because of her many ailments Friday, Oct. 12, 2012, at Bridgeview Estates in Twin Falls, Idaho, while surrounded by her family. She knew this was her temporary home with her body so tired and worn, she took the Lord by the hand and he led her safely to her forever home.

Frances was the second born of four children to Raymond J. Jensen of Copenhagen, Denmark, and Roma (Bywater) Jensen of Corrine, Utah. She was born June 30, 1939, in Rupert, Idaho. At the young age of 16, she married James Mansford (Red) Binam of Harrison, Ark., on Aug. 5, 1955, at the Twin Falls Courthouse. They spent most of their marriage in the Burley area with the exception of a few years in California near Eureka Springs. Together they had and raised three children and later adopted and raised a granddaughter.

Frances attended schools in Acequia and Rupert, Idaho. She spent much of her early childhood helping her mother and sister with chores and other household duties around the house. Frances enjoyed being surrounded by family and friends as often as possible. She especially looked forward to birthdays and holidays because she knew she would be with family and friends while making lasting memories. She had a contagious laugh, a quick sense of humor, a warm smile, a gentle touch and loving arms to embrace us kids.

Frances worked within various types of jobs and had several titles along the way, but the one she took the most pride was as a time clerk at Ore-Ida/McCain's until her retirement after 37-plus years in 2000. She was a longtime member of the Paul Congregational Church. She liked to take road trips, go shopping with family and friends, and go for long visits to her children and grandchildren's homes. She loved talking for hours on the phone, watching television, listening to a variety of music.

She was admired by many for her strong will, tremendous inner strength, and her perseverance through her many trials and tribulations. This last year had tested her in so many ways. The devotion of loved ones, her miraculous strength, the tender care of a wonderful medical staff, along with her unending love for her family, friends and the Lord carried her through that and numerous other struggles. Frances is finally free of pain; she has her voice back, and she is whole again. She is celebrating with a reunion in heaven with those loved ones that have passed on before her.

"Twas grace that taught my heart to fear

And grace my fears relieved.

How precious did that grace appear,

The hour I first believed.

My chains are gone, I've been set free;

My God, my Savior Has ransomed me.

And like a flood, His mercies run;

Unending love, Amazing grace."

(Amazing Grace, My Chains Are Gone by Chris Tomlin).

Frances is survived by her children, Ervin of Burley, LeNita of Heyburn, Gloria Lee (Victor) of Twin Falls and Melissa DeNaughe (Danny), also of Twin Falls; six grandchildren; 11 great-grandchildren with one more expected in November; her sister, Ramona Kelley (Lester) of Nampa; her brother Byron Jensen of Rupert; and many cousins, nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her parents; her brother, Merlin Jensen; two grandchildren, Shaylyn DeNaughel and Mollie Matsen; a niece, Ruby Marie Jensen; and several close friends.

The funeral will be held at 1 p.m. Friday, Oct. 19, at the Paul Congregational Church, 121 N. Second W., with Pastor Brandon Wallace officiating. Burial will follow in the Paul Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 18, at the Morrison-Payne Funeral Home, 321 E. Main in Burley, and one hour prior to the service Friday at the church. Services are under the direction of Morrison-Payne Funeral Home in Burley.

The family would like to extend their gratitude and appreciation to the caring staff of Bridgeview Estates Secondary Unit, Hospice Visitation, Dr. Cole Johnson, Dr. James Retmier and Dr. Randall Wraalstad for the loving care of our mother, grandmother, sister and aunt.

Don't Have the Time to Make Steamed Puddings? Episcopalians Will Do It for You

TWIN FALLS • Ascension Episcopal Church is taking orders for its annual sale of steamed plum puddings and carrot puddings for the holidays.

Whether or not a warm steamed pudding with light sauce is a Christmas memory for your family, it's certainly a convenience, church member Cindy Jardine said. The pudding can be placed in a slow cooker or in a steamer on the back of the stove, to be ready to serve at dessert time.

The puddings are rich with sugar, fruit, nuts and spices, and each serves six to eight.

Because of the long cooking required to make steamed puddings, many families abandon the tradition. But here Ascension does the cooking; you just reheat them and make the sauce.

The recipe for the church's "plum" pudding came from England and was given to an Episcopalian in Caldwell in the early 1950s, then to Ascension in 1994. Flaming plum puddings take center stage in Christmas stories such as Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," but "Christmas plums" is the English term for what Americans call dates.

The recipe for the church's carrot pudding came from the Wallington family in Jerome in the early 1970s. Carrot puddings are fat-free, but they still contain sugar, nuts, raisins, carrots and potatoes for a filling dessert, Jardine said.

The Episcopal puddings cost $8 each and do not contain any alcohol. They are decorated and wrapped to use as gifts. They must be frozen or refrigerated until serving. Sauce recipes are included.

To order, call the church at 733-1248 prior to Nov. 4; the office is open 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. Puddings can be picked up at Ascension Episcopal Church — 371 Eastland Drive N. in Twin Falls — between 9 a.m. and noon Nov. 12.

ONLINE: An Easy Way to Get That Oak Taste

Times-News City Editor Nate Poppino blogs on all things beer at "Idaho On Tap." Here's what's on his mind this week:

"The air gets cool. The days get short. And as a homebrewer, your thoughts turn to large, malty beers.

"Maybe — just maybe — this is the year you'll try barrel aging.

"The idea can be intimidating. You've read about the tricks to buying a used barrel and the sanitation challenges.

"For some folks, that's a challenge worth chasing. For everyone else: Don't worry. You can start much smaller.

TWIN FALLS • You may never look at organic food the same again.

Organic fruit or beans may look like any other piece of fruit or any bag of beans, but it takes a lot of steps, documentation and paperwork — from farmers to haulers to distributors — for food to wear that State of Idaho Organic Certification Seal.

In 2002, the Idaho State Department of Agriculture received its accreditation as an organic certifying agency from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Organic Program. For organic certification, a food producer or handler must submit an application, pay a fee based on last year's gross organic sales and undergo an on-site inspection and sometimes unannounced inspections.

On Oct. 11, agriculture investigator Kim Flynn traveled from Boise to Twin Falls to look at the organic side of Soranco Bean Products Inc. She does about 80 inspections a year across Idaho.

It usually takes Flynn two weeks after her inspection to put together her report. If all the company's organic requirements were met, it's certified as an organic handler with its certificate arriving in about six weeks. Even though only about 3 percent of Soranco Bean Products is organic, the inspection is still throughout. It lasted more than four hours with most of the inspection spent inside the office of Toni Carlton, general manager of Soranco, talking about documentation.

Every year companies that either grow or handle organic products are required to undergo an inspection. It always starts with a meeting to go over a lot of paperwork that proves they are providing organic produce, crops or meat.

The paperwork provides traceability and protects the integrity of the organic product, Flynn said.

Here, the beans are not grown by Soranco, but by a certified organic grower. From the time they arrive on a truck until they leave, they are tracked with a form and signature.

TWIN FALLS • There are traditional jelly flavors like strawberry and grape. Then there are more unique flavors like boysenberry and jalapeno. But have you ever tried wine jelly?

Neither had Tennisa Gillaspay.

She doesn't even like wine, but she is the creative cook behind Topsy Cellars Gourmet Jellies, a Twin Falls-based online business that sells homemade jellies made from Idaho wines.

"I'm not a big wine drinker. I like the colors and the smell," Gillaspay said.

She has created jellies made from root beer and Dr Pepper, but those flavors weren't a hit with friends and family like the

When Gillaspay's high school friend Tina Mariani moved back to Idaho two years ago, the idea for the company started to form. Gillaspay welcomed Mariani back home with some of her wine jellies.

"I told her, 'Have you ever thought of selling them?'" Mariani said.

With Gillaspay as the jelly maker and Mariani doing the paperwork, research and promoting, Topsy Cellars Gourmet Jellies launched in July. It already has a small Facebook following.

The jellies come in flavors like Cabernet Sauvignon, Chardonnay, Merlot, White Zinfandel and Topsy Huckleberry. From one bottle of wine, Gillaspay can make about six or seven 8-ounce jars, and 13 4-ounce jars.

"I love it. It's phenomenal and it's locally made," said Paulette Scheer, owner of Angelic Expressions in Twin Falls.

Organic Seal

Basically, Flynn said, Soranco needs to show that organic beans do not mix with the conventional beans the company also mills and packages. When conventional beans run across the milling line there has to be a complete cleaning — which can take six to seven hours — before the organic beans can run.

There is a similar process when milling organic and non-organic beans. The 10 steps for clean-down between varieties must be initialed and dated.

The same goes for where beans are stored. And if an area needs to be fumigated for pests, documentation needs to show the organic beans were removed from the area.

If she were investigating a ready-to-eat product like onions, she explained, the paperwork would be different and more abundant. It would include a section on just the water that is used and might include taking a sample.

The organization of all that paperwork determines how long the meeting lasts, and companies are charged by the hour.

Flynn sat across from Carlton typing information into a laptop. Also sitting in on the meeting was the company’s quality assurance manager, Wayne Gause.

“What I have here is a copy of last year’s inspection. You come out with zero issues, pretty impressive,” Flynn said. “If there were any non-compliances or issues we would go over that, but there was not, so we’ll go to section two: labeling.”

There are strict guidelines for organic labels. For example, the ISDA has to be below who packed or handled it last. The USDA seal has to be bigger than the ISDA seal.

There are rules that Soranco has records for even though the rules themselves do not ask for them.

For instance, the rules state that there should not be any commingling with inorganic products during inbound and outbound transport. The rules don’t state outright that the truck must be clean. But the company developed paperwork to show organic and conventional commingling does not occur.

“Documentation is documentation. I don’t care if it’s on a napkin,” Flynn said.

The more organized the company is, the quicker the inspection goes.

Soranco keeps a lot of its own rules and documentation in clear plastic sleeves inside white binders. There’s a binder on just packaging.

“How many binders do you got?” Flynn said with a laugh.

“I’m getting quite a collection,” Gause said.

The organic certification program is supposed to give the consumer assurances regarding the term “organic” when it is used in the marketing and labeling of food products.

“The first year we did this it was confusing,” Carlton said, but she added it’s about maintaining the beans’ organic integrity.

According to ISDA, certification also benefits Idaho producers by facilitating the development of out-of-state and out-of-country markets for their Idaho certified organic products.

The ISDA even goes through its own inspection by the USDA.

“It was intimidating,” Flynn said. The last inspection lasted a week of eight-hour days.

...

Organic crop inspections are usually done by Sept. 30 because producers and handlers want to qualify for the Organic Certification Cost Share Programs, which reimburse a portion of the costs of organic certification. This is first-come, first-served, Flynn said, but this year ISDA received enough money to reimburse everyone who applied before the deadline.

As the inspection at Soranco drew near its end, Flynn toured the Soranco’s storage and milling sites. She stopped and talked with Mike Parks, mill operator, as the roar of beans being cleaned and sorted caused the two to stand close as he talked.

Flynn’s walk-through of the storage and mills took less than an hour. Then it was back to the Soranco office to look over more files in cabinets.

When Flynn left that day she would give Carlton a receipt for all the documentation she provided — just another step in that never-ending documentation.

Learning to Love the Beefy Flavor of Flank Steak

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

So you think you know steaks? And maybe you do.

But truth is, you probably only really know the particular cuts you buy over and over again. That's good, but there's a world of great beef out there to explore. And many of those cuts (and by the way, butchers are creating new ones all the time) are far more versatile than you think.

You could spend ages learning the different cuts of beef and the various names for each (there isn't nearly as much naming standardization as you would think). But I think it's better to simply pick a cut you haven't often prepared at home and start playing around with it. That's how I learned to love flank steak.

First, the basics. Flank steaks are lean cuts from the rear side of the cow and are characterized by rich, deep beefy flavor and a slightly chewy texture. Traditionally, London broils were made using flank steaks, though today any of the leaner, less tender cuts often are substituted.

Flank steaks are easy to identify by sight because they are flat and have a long, horizontal grain that runs the length of the meat. These steaks are meant to be briefly grilled or broiled to rare or medium-rare, then thinly sliced across the grain. The result is deliciously beefy and substantial.

Flank steaks also love to be marinated. And because they have a heartier texture, they can handle more acidic marinades for longer, even overnight.

When shopping for flank steaks, note that some grocers will label them "London broil." Just note that they also sometimes label other cuts as "London broil," too. So when in doubt, it's best to ask.

For the weeknight home cook, flank steaks are the perfect cut. They can be tossed with a marinade the night before and left in the refrigerator until dinner. And they cook in just minutes on the grill or under the broiler. As with all meat, flank steak should rest for 5 to 10 minutes after cooking before slicing to let the juices redistribute.

For more ideas for using flank steak, check out the Off the Beaten Aisle column over on Food Network: <http://bit.ly/Ov6NtC>

Balsamic-Pepper Flank Steak with Grilled Pears and Blue Cheese

For extra flavor, the mari-nade can be mixed with beef broth, then boiled and reduced until thick (while the steaks cook), then drizzled over the finished dish. Start to finish: 30 minutes (plus marinating). Servings: 4.

1/4 cup balsamic vinegar
2 cloves garlic
1 tablespoon black peppercorns
Kosher salt
1 1/2 pounds flank steak
2 pears, peeled, halved and cored
Crumbled blue cheese, for topping

In a blender, combine the vinegar, garlic, peppercorns and 1 teaspoon of kosher salt. Blend for 20 seconds, then transfer to a wide, shallow bowl.

Add the steak to the marinade, turning to coat. Refrigerate for at least 30 minutes.

When ready to cook, heat the broiler with a rack 6 inches from the heat. Line a rimmed baking sheet with foil, then coat it lightly with cooking spray. Cut each pear half into 4 slices, then arrange them on one half of the prepared baking sheet.

Remove the steak from the marinade and set it on the other half of the sheet. Broil everything for 5 minutes, then use tongs to flip the steak and pears. Broil for another 5 minutes for medium-rare.

Let the steaks rest for 10 minutes, then cut into thin slices against the grain. Divide the slices between 4 serving plates, then top each with pear slices. Top each serving with a bit of crumbled blue cheese.

A Pear Crisp with a Savory-Sweet-Spicy Aroma

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

Ground cardamom gives this simple fall-friendly crisp a sweet-spicy flavor that you will smell as much as taste. Don't worry too much about which type of oats to use in a recipe such as this. Though we prefer old-fashioned rolled oats, feel free to use the "quick" variety if that's what you happen to have. The differences won't be tremendous.

Cardamom Cranberry Pear Crisp

Start to finish: 1 hour 15 minutes (15 minutes active). Servings: 8.

For the topping:

MATTHEW MEAD • ASSOCIATED PRESS

1/2 cup (1 stick) butter, room temperature
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
3/4 cup all-purpose flour
3/4 cup oats
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon salt
For the filling:

8 pears, peeled, cored and sliced
8-ounce package frozen or fresh cranberries
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon ground cardamom
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons cornstarch

Heat the oven to 400 degrees. Coat a 9-by-9-inch pan with cooking spray. To make the topping, in a medium bowl use an electric mixer to beat together the butter and brown sugar until creamy. Add the flour, oats, cinnamon and salt. Stir together until the mixture just forms moistened crumbs and small clumps. Set aside. To make the filling, in a medium bowl, toss together the pears, cranberries, brown sugar, cardamom, salt and cornstarch. Spread the mixture evenly into the prepared pan. Sprinkle the topping evenly over the filling. Bake for about 1 hour, or until the pears are tender and bubbling and the topping is well browned. Per serving: 400 calories; 110 calories from fat (28 percent of total calories); 12 g fat (7 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 30 mg cholesterol; 74 g carbohydrate; 8 g fiber; 47 g sugar; 3 g protein; 130 mg sodium.

What Happens when Cheese Fondue Becomes a Soup

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

1 cup broken pretzels

This soup will help put a little meat on your bones. We wanted to know what would happen if we replicated the awesomeness that is cheese fondue, but as a soup. This is what we got. We topped our soup with crumbled pretzels because we like the contrast between the rich and creamy soup and the salty, crunchy pretzels. But croutons — especially homemade and just lightly crunchy — also would be a delicious way to top this soup. Crushed corn tortilla chips would be great, too.

Pretzel Cheddar Soup

Start to finish: 45 minutes. Servings: 6.

- 4 ounces bacon, diced
- 1 medium yellow onion, diced
- 1 medium leek, white part only, diced
- 2 medium carrots, diced
- 2 stalks celery, diced
- 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
- 12-ounce bottle ale
- Pinch of cayenne
- 1 cup low-sodium chicken broth
- 1 cup milk
- 1 pound very sharp cheddar, grated
- Salt and ground black pepper

In a large deep pot, such as a Dutch oven, cook the bacon over medium heat until crispy and browned, about 6 to 8 minutes. Using a slotted spoon, transfer the bacon to a paper towel, leaving the drippings in the pot. Add the onion, leek, carrots and celery to the pot. Increase heat to medium-high and saute the vegetables until browned, about 10 minutes. Add the flour and stir to coat the vegetables. Stir in the Worcestershire sauce, Dijon mustard, ale and cayenne. Stir continuously while returning to a simmer. Add the chicken broth and milk and mix well. Return to a simmer, then cover and lower the heat to medium. Cook until the vegetables are tender, about 15 minutes. Working in batches, transfer the mixture to a blender and puree until smooth. Return the soup to the pot over low heat, then stir in the cheese, a little at a time. Do not allow the soup to boil. Season with salt and black pepper. Ladle into crocks or bowls and serve topped with broken pretzels. Per serving: 500 calories; 300 calories from fat (60 percent of total calories); 34 g fat (17 g saturated); 0 g trans fats; 95 mg cholesterol; 24 g carbohydrate; 2 g fiber; 6 g sugar; 25 g protein; 940 mg sodium.

A Bowl of Comfort — Chicken Soup with Dumplings

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

A basic chicken soup is fine for when you need warmth and comfort.

But what about those particularly blustery fall evenings when fine isn't sufficient? For those evenings, we have created this more robust take on the basic chicken soup, a version that oozes even more comfort and warmth thanks to the starches and savory ingredients.

First, the latter. We amplify the savory side of this soup by sauteing a half pound of mixed mushrooms. And for good measure, we also add a handful of dried porcini mushrooms. For starchy comfort, we top the soup with pillowy soft dumplings. And to tie it all together, we lace the dumplings with savory Parmesan cheese.

Want to make it vegetarian? Just substitute vegetable broth and leave out the chicken.

Mushroom and Chicken Barley Soup with Parmesan Dumplings

Start to finish: 45 minutes. Servings: 6.

- For the soup:
- 1 ounce dried porcini mushrooms, chopped
  - 2 tablespoons vegetable or canola oil
  - 1 pound mixed sliced mushrooms
  - Salt
  - 2 medium shallots, sliced
  - 1 leek, white part only, sliced
  - 1 pound boneless, skinless chicken thighs, cubed
  - 1/2 cup pearled barley
  - 2 teaspoons minced fresh rosemary
  - 1 tablespoon minced fresh thyme
  - Ground black pepper
  - 6 cups low-sodium chicken broth
- For the dumplings:
- 2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
  - 2 tablespoons sugar
  - 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
  - 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder

MATTHEW MEAD • ASSOCIATED PRESS

- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
- Pinch cayenne pepper
- 1 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 2 eggs
- 1 1/2 cups buttermilk
- 1/2 cup (1 stick) butter, melted

In a small bowl, combine the porcini mushrooms with 1 cup of boiling water. Set aside.

In a large deep pot, such as a Dutch oven, heat the oil over medium-high. Add the mixed mushrooms and sprinkle lightly with salt. Saute until browned, about 10 minutes. Add the shallots and the leeks and continue to cook until softened, 6 to 8 minutes.

Add the chicken and cook just until browned. It does not need to cook through. Add the barley, rosemary, thyme, a few grinds of black pepper, the broth and the porcinis with the soaking water. Cover and reduce the heat to maintain a simmer. Simmer until the barley is tender, about 45 minutes.

Meanwhile, prepare the dumplings. In a medium bowl, whisk together the flour, sugar, baking soda, baking powder, salt, black pepper and cayenne. Stir in the parmesan. In another bowl, whisk together the eggs and buttermilk, then the melted butter. Gently stir the liquid ingredients into the dry ingredients just until combined.

Drop the dumpling mixture by the tablespoon onto the top of the soup. Cover, bring to a boil and cook for 5 to 7 minutes. Per serving: 760 calories; 310 calories from fat (41 percent of total calories); 35 g fat (16 g saturated; 0.5 g trans fats); 170 mg cholesterol; 72 g carbohydrate; 6 g fiber; 10 g sugar; 40 g protein; 1260 mg sodium.

Dinner in 35 Minutes: Lemon Lentil Soup

BONNIE S. BENWICK
The Washington Post

It takes no more than a slight chill in the air to send us searching for a weeknight soup recipe. We've used red lentils here; use yellow lentils and you'll serve what looks like a bowl of sunshine, made bright by the last-minute additions of lemon juice and preserved lemon.

If you have leftovers, you're in luck: The soup tastes better the next day.

Serve with warm flatbread. Adapted from "Little Flower: Recipes From the Cafe," by Christine Moore (Prospect Park Books, 2012).

Lemon Lentil Soup

Makes 8 cups (4 to 6 servings).

- 1/2 medium onion
- 1 medium rib celery
- 1 medium carrot
- 1 or 2 cloves garlic
- 12 ounces red or yellow lentils
- 7 cups no-salt-added vegetable broth
- 2 teaspoons curry powder
- 1 teaspoon ground turmeric
- 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
- 2 or 3 lemons
- 1/2 preserved lemon
- Kosher salt
- Freshly ground black pepper

DEB LINDSEY • FOR THE WASHINGTON POST

Mince the garlic (to taste). Pick over the lentils to discard any stray bits, then rinse and drain them in a colander. Combine the broth, lentils, onion, celery, carrot, garlic, curry powder, turmeric and ground ginger in a Dutch oven or a large saucepan. Bring to a boil over high heat, then reduce the heat to medium-low and cook (uncovered) for 15 to 20 minutes; the lentils should be cooked through yet still hold their shape.

Meanwhile, juice the lemons to yield 1/2 cup of juice. Finely chop the preserved lemon half.

Stir in the lemon juice and preserved lemon. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Divide among individual bowls; serve hot.

A Fall Soup that Is Sweet, Creamy and Smoky

BY ALISON LADMAN

For The Associated Press

With its robust blend of sweet, creamy, spicy and smoky flavors, this soup is perfect for a chilly fall afternoon. The beautiful orange color, the subtle smoky-spicy flavor of the chipotle, and the satisfying creamy texture make this recipe a perfectly seasonal lunch or appetizer. Consider topping the soup with seared shrimp or shredded pork for a quick weeknight dinner.

A Pumpkin Bread that Can Handle Any Add-in

BY ELIZABETH KARMEI
For The Associated Press

For me, nothing signifies the end of summer as poetically and viscerally as seeing pumpkins in a patch. One look at that field and I start salivating for all of my favorite pumpkin dishes.

I love the earthy simplicity of pumpkin pie. And I feel like a pioneer when I wash the seeds that I have taken out of my carved pumpkin and roast them. No surprise, but that was always my favorite part of carving a pumpkin when I was a kid! Pumpkin and sage also dress up cheese grits this time of year, and I've even added pumpkin to chili. But I never thought of adding chocolate to pumpkin until last year.

For some reason, I became obsessed with baking chocolate pumpkin bread and asked everyone I knew if they had a good recipe. I was looking for a dense quick bread with a deep pumpkin flavor that could stand up to lots of add-ins. I love slicing a loaf of bread and seeing the cross-section of fruit and nuts and chocolate.

After I tried a few that were less than stellar, I mentioned my quest to an industry friend, who gave me a pumpkin muffin recipe that turned out to be excellent. I adapted it to make pumpkin bread, but you could easily use my version for muffins, as well. It is an oil-based quick bread and I use untoasted walnut oil, but you can use any neutral vegetable oil.

I also reduced the sugar a bit and added light brown sugar and extra spices to give the loaf a deeper flavor that would stand up to the dark chocolate chips and walnuts that I used. When I make this bread closer to Thanksgiving, I add dried cranberries for a seasonal touch, but the bread also is good with the addition of golden raisins and dried cherries.

Finally, I decorate the top of the bread with whole walnut halves or a layer of chopped walnuts. I love the look and the texture of this extra touch. It dresses up a simple loaf of quick bread and gives it a rustic, home-made but professional presentation.

A note about pumpkin — I have tried every type of pumpkin, from roasting my own and making puree to testing all of the brands out there. I will never roast a pumpkin for baking again. The pulp was watery and did not have that concentrated flavor I love. I also suggest staying away from pumpkin pie "filling." I prefer Libby's pure pumpkin puree.

Pumpkin Bread with Dark Chocolate and Walnuts

Start to finish: 1 hour 15 minutes (15 minutes active). Servings: 2 loaves, 16 slices.

- 4 eggs
- 3/4 cup granulated sugar
- 3/4 cup packed light brown sugar
- 15-ounce can pureed pumpkin
- 1 1/4 cups walnut oil (not toasted)
- 3 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 generous teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon table salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground dry ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
- 2 cups dark chocolate chips
- 2 cups lightly toasted walnuts, plus more for decorating the top
- 1 cup dried cranberries (optional)

Heat the oven to 350 degrees. Coat 2 standard loaf pans with baking spray. In a large bowl, beat together the eggs, both sugars, pumpkin and oil until smooth. In a second bowl, whisk together the flour, baking soda, baking powder, cinnamon, salt, ginger and nutmeg. Add the dry ingredients to the wet and mix well. Fold in the chocolate chips, walnuts and cranberries, if using. Fill each of the prepared loaf pans about three-quarters full with batter. Drop each on the counter a few times to release any air bubbles. Sprinkle additional walnuts over the top of each loaf, using your hand to gently press them into the batter. Place the pans on a baking sheet to make it easier to pull out of the hot oven.

MATTHEW MEAD • ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bake for 50 to 60 minutes, or until a toothpick inserted at the center of each loaf comes out clean. Let cool for at least 1 hour before slicing into thick chunks. # Commentary: Idaho Vandals Passing Blame as Losses Mount

Troy Warzocha

Lewiston Tribune

If there ever was a time for the Idaho Vandals to sit in front of the mirror and do a little soul searching, this week seems just as good as any.

Soul searching on yet another dismal season that is already lost midway through October.

Soul searching after a 38-7 whipping at the hands of a Texas State team that went 6-6 as a member of the Football Championship Subdivision a year ago.

And most importantly, a bit of soul searching on how they got themselves into this mess in the first place.

Because a mirror never lies — which in the case of the Idaho Vandals, is a cruel reality.

For the past two weeks, Idaho coach Robb Akey has been grasping at straws about a final new beginning and after his team's league-opening win over New Mexico State, stated that the Vandals had a share of the WAC lead.

Without even putting up a fight, that beginning is gone and so is Idaho's brief stay at the top of the conference.

Both were easily conceded

ed in San Marcos, Texas, on Saturday against a better-prepared and better-coached Bobcats team.

Pegged as only 2-point favorites entering the contest, the Bobcats were seen as relative equals to the Vandals, at least in the eyes of oddsmakers.

On the field, as well as on the sideline, the teams were anything but.

Kaylee Holmstead shares a laugh with teammates during volleyball practice Tuesday at CSI in Twin Falls.

EARNING HER WINGS

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Ask College of Southern Idaho volleyball coach about red-shirt freshman middle blocker Kaylee Holmstead, and the praise starts flowing.

"She's athletic, she's quick and she knows how to close a block," Cartisser says about Holmstead. "She jumps really well, and she's got long arms. She's only 5-foot-11 but she plays like she's 6-1 or 6-2."

It's a far cry from when Holmstead first popped up on CSI's radar as an athletic, raw senior-to-be coming from tiny Halfway, Ore. (pop. 334), and moving to not-much-larger Declo.

Holmstead had never played club volleyball — almost a prerequisite for playing major college volleyball — and the coaching staff was guarded. She said she could touch the basketball rim, and Cartisser was skeptical.

"They have so many kids from these small schools that send them stuff, so they're always unsure," Holmstead said, conceding there's validity in a college staff's jadedness.

So what's the difference with Holmstead?

"I really enjoy working hard," she says. "It's a challenge to me."

Working hard, combined with pure athletic ability, has compensated for the perceived shortcomings in Holmstead's game: She's not polished enough. She's not tall enough. She doesn't put enough balls away. She doesn't have enough on-court experience.

Part of that comes from redshirting her first season at CSI. An abandoned experiment with shifting her to outside hitter forced her to think her way through the game, all the while adjusting from Class 2A prep volleyball to the most storied program in the junior college ranks.

When CSI did its jump charts during one practice last season, Holmstead's was the highest. It wasn't performance or adjustment that was the source of frustration — that came from the

Bruins Clinch Fourth Straight State Berth

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Just as it had in their previous match-up, Jerome's volleyball team jumped out to an early first set lead. And just like last time, Twin Falls went on a run Tuesday in the 4A District IV semifinals that was large enough — 16-0 — to extinguish any faint hope the Tigers had of breaking Twin Falls' winning streak against Great Basin Conference opposition, now at 56 after winning 25-9, 25-15, 25-19.

They're still the Bruins, and now they've guaranteed themselves a state playoff berth, and will have the opportunity to four-peat as district champions Thursday night, where they could match up with the Tigers for the fifth time this season.

"Things are starting to come together," Bruins coach B.J. Price said.

"Everybody is starting to gel."

Kaitlyn Merritt had 25 digs, Sierra Starley had 16 kills, three blocks and four aces, two of which came in the 16-0 run in the first set. Regan Harr had 37 assists.

"Jerome being scrappy and giving us the ball allows us to keep taking it back at them," Starley said. "It's fun to play teams like that because they force you to step up."

As they've shown against the Bruins all year, the Tigers were scrappy. But every time they got multiple diving efforts to keep the ball alive, they could never transition to offense. At times they seemed content to simply prolong a rally.

BYU Coaches Await Impact of Lowered Missionary Age

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PROVO, Utah • Point guard Cooper Ainge just turned 19, yet if he knew a year ago what he knows now he'd be off on his church mission rather than in his first season as a Brigham Young basketball player.

That's the situation of many Mormon athletes after a new rule recently went into effect that lowers the age when members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints can go on a mission from 19 to 18. It's already affecting players deciding now whether to come to schools across Utah, and BYU in particular.

Among those could be top high school recruit Jabari Parker, a Mormon who included BYU on his top five list earlier this month. He also plans to make official visits to Duke, Florida, Michigan State and Stanford.

A 6-foot-8 forward, Parker is one of the most prized recruits to come along in recent years.

While he has told some his plans were to attend college for a year then either go on a mission as his brother did, or jump to the NBA, the fact that he turns 18 in March could affect his thinking.

Coaches can't talk about specific recruits, but BYU basketball coach Dave Rose acknowledged the new rule won't affect this year's team but could have a big effect on his 2013, 2014 and 2015 classes.

ASSOCIATED PRESS
BYU's Cooper Ainge speaks with reporters during NCAA college basketball media day Oct. 10 in Provo, Utah.

"For our coaching staff, it will be a process," said Rose, who has spreadsheets that slot missions along with scholarships available and the timing of such. "What it basically does is it gives every LDS player that has a desire to serve a mission another option. What we need to do is find out what they are planning on doing. My role here as head coach is to support their decision."

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has more than 55,000 full-time missionaries worldwide, spreading information about their faith and doing humanitarian work. Most missions for men are two years.

steadily regressed since 2009 — currently making it one of the laughingstocks of the FBS.

Much of the blame falls on the shoulders of Akey and Athletic Director Rob Spear — two men who seem to be more occupied with sniping at each other through the media rather than working together to lift the Vandals out of the doldrums of the FBS.

After the North Carolina game, Spear said on the postgame radio show that performances like the Vandals' 66-0 loss don't help when trying to secure an independent schedule for next year.

Fewer than two days later, Akey spent the final 15 minutes of his weekly press conference with local media on a tangent about how the lack of a 2013 schedule hurts recruiting.

In a season where the perception of the program will likely have a significant impact on the Vandals' future at the FBS level, two of the athletic department's most influential leaders are working their hardest to deflect blame for Idaho's shortcomings instead of plotting a course and providing many of those who donate to the program with some much-needed transparency.

And through it all, Idaho President Duane Nellis continues to sit idly by as Akey and Spear each drill holes in Idaho's boat while openly complaining that the other isn't emptying the water buckets fast enough.

Seven games into 2012, it's clear that Idaho lacks several things on the field — most notably wins, preparation and discipline.

Leadership, however, is the one overriding attribute missing from every level of Idaho's power structure.

It's a crippling deficiency in authority which has paralyzed the Vandals while the conference carousel spins, leaving Idaho at the end of a football cul-de-sac with little chance for escape.

Maybe this week, instead of wearing shirts under their powers that say "finish," the pads that be can add a little -ed onto the end of it.

At least then they'll no longer be trying to fool the man in the mirror.

still struggling to adjust to life in the Football Bowl Subdivision following back-to-back losses to Nevada and New Mexico, Texas State coach Dennis Franchione showed that minor talent deficits can be made up in a big way through preparation and coaching.

A longtime coach at the FBS level, Franchione, who abruptly left both Alabama and Texas A&M in controversial fashion before landing back at Texas State for a second tenure, thoroughly outcoached Akey in every sense of the word.

It was obvious soon after kickoff that Idaho had no clue on how to stop Texas State's option attack, and by the third quarter, the Bobcats broke the weak-willed Vandals.

In that penultimate frame, a kickoff following a Texas State field goal went unfielded as it bounced into the end zone and sat on the ground for several seconds before a Vandal finally realized what was happening and fell on it for a touch-back.

"This team is mentally checked out," I said to a friend and Idaho alum as we watched Texas State nearly recover a kickoff in Idaho's own end zone. All he could do was disappointedly nod in agreement.

True to form, Idaho immediately gave the ball back after a three-and-out and decided that three quarters of embarrassment were enough as it allowed Bobcat running back Marcus Curry to run untouched through the heart of the defense for a 24-yard score to open the fourth three plays later.

While it would be easy to blame the players for quitting (again) in what should have been a winnable game, this one I'm pinning on the coaches. Well, them and the rest of Idaho's dysfunctional leadership.

There's a reason why the Vandals haven't won two games in a row since 2009.

There's a reason why Idaho has been outscored 138-20 after halftime this season.

And there's a reason why the program as a whole has

Judge Wants to See NFL Bounty Documents

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW ORLEANS • A federal magistrate judge has ordered NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell to provide the court with documents related to the league's bounty investigation of the New Orleans Saints.

The order by Magistrate Daniel Knowles on Tuesday came in response to suspended linebacker Jonathan Vilma's efforts to initiate the discovery process in his defamation case against the commissioner. Vilma has said the NFL has allowed him to review only a fraction of documents related to bounty matter.

Knowles issued a compromise order in which only the court, and not Vilma, may see the documents — including reports of interviews with witnesses — before a subsequent order is made on whether to allow discovery to proceed.

NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said league officials have already discussed the order with Knowles and have agreed to comply.

The order comes a day after Vilma re-filed a related lawsuit in the same New Orleans federal court asking for his season-long suspension to be overturned. That lawsuit also has argued that the NFL has failed to fully disclose its evidence in the bounty investigation.

The NFLPA filed a similar request on behalf of three other current or former Saints players suspended in the probe: Saints defensive end Will Smith (four games), free agent defensive lineman Anthony Hargrove (seven games) and Cleveland linebacker Scott Fujita (one game).

The players' lawsuits contend that Goodell is incapable of acting as a neutral arbitrator in the bounty matter, in large part because his public statements soon after the NFL's investigation was made public last March indicated that he already had determined the guilt of the players before the disciplinary process began.

All four of the players are technically eligible to play this weekend because their appeals of their suspensions within the framework of the NFL's labor agreement are pending. Goodell has scheduled their appeal hearings for Oct. 23 and could rule soon afterward. In the meantime, the players are hoping U.S. District Judge Ginger Berrigan will ultimately issue a ruling that voids Goodell's decision to suspend the players and order a neutral arbitrator to handle any further discipline in the matter.

when you get the opportunity," Jerome head coach Rick Burke said. "We were putting the ball in play as opposed to getting a swing on it. You have to generate points against Twin Falls because, as everyone knows, they aren't going to give them to you."

Savannah Lott had seven kills and six blocks for the tigers, Lyndzie Parker added 31 digs.

WOOD RIVER 3, CANYON RIDGE 0

The Wolverines defeated Canyon Ridge 25-11, 25-13, 25-22 Tuesday and will play Jerome Thursday, with the winner clinching a state tournament berth and a spot opposite Twin Falls in the district tournament final.

Kori Paradis had seven kills, Lilly Richards had seven kills and six blocks while Ciceley Peavey had 13 digs for Wood River.

"Maybe by the end of the season we are all peaking at the same time," Wood River coach Tim Richards said. "It will be either be Jerome or us. All we want is a chance."

CANYON RIDGE 3, MINICO 0 Canyon Ridge defeated Minico 27-25, 25-11, 25-17 in the first match of the night.

"We started the season out slow, but we started picking up momentum as it went on and by the end of the season we were getting our wins," Riverhawks coach Staci Boer said. "We peaked right before districts. It was a good ending and I'm proud of them."

Keri Schwarz had 10 kills and four blocks against Minico. Emily Bell contributed 26 digs. Canyon Ridge will graduate five seniors this year and Boer said next season will be a "rebuilding year."

The Spartans were led by Kailee May with 12 kills and six digs, as well as Hannah Bailey with eight kills and 25 digs.

"We had a really diverse team," Fayelynn Garret said. "We have a lot of returning starters next year and a lot of talent coming up."

the 2A poll behind Firth, which got nine top votes. Grangeville, which got the other vote, was followed by Salmon and Marsing.

Gooding remained a solid third in the 3A poll, which saw Shelley close in on top-ranked Fruitland. Snake River and Teton rounded out the poll.

Blackfoot remained No. 1 in the 4A poll despite a heavy loss to 5A No. 1 Madison. Middleton moved up a spot to second after beating former No. 2 Bishop Kelly, which is now third. Skyview and Lakeland were fourth and fifth, respectively. Minico received one vote.

Madison cemented its grip on top spot in the 5A poll, with Highland and Eagle following. Borah and Rocky Mountain tied for fourth.

Carey's jump back into the rankings was the only movement from last week among all District IV teams in this week's Top 5s.

DETROIT TIGERS catcher Alex Avila catches a foul ball hit by New York Yankees catcher Russell Martin in the second inning of Game 3 of the American League championship series Tuesday in Detroit.

ASSOCIATED PRESS Tigers, and Miguel Cabrera had an RBI double.

DETROIT • Justin Verlander took a shutout into the ninth inning and the Detroit Tigers held on to beat the New York Yankees 2-1 Tuesday night for a 3-0 lead in the AL championship series.

Phil Coke gave up consecutive singles with two outs in the ninth before striking out postseason star Raul Ibanez for his second save in two games.

Verlander allowed only a pair of singles by Ichiro Suzuki and a leadoff homer by Eduardo Nunez in the ninth. Delmon Young hit a solo home run for the Yankees starter Phil Hughes was lifted in the fourth because of a stiff back, and manager Joe Girardi's lineup shuffle - Alex Rodriguez was benched again - failed to snap New York out of its untimely hitting funk.

The Tigers were on a historic pitching run even before their ace took the mound Tuesday. With the exception of a four-run ninth inning against Detroit closer Jose Valverde in Game 1, New York had been shut out for the entire series.

U.S. coach Jurgen Klinsmann said before the game that "you can only win a game if you attack and go forward, and that's what we're going to do. We're not going to look for a tie."

That certainly held true. The Americans were the more aggressive team its German coach has been trying to develop and less like the side that struggled over a muddy cricket pitch to a 2-1 victory over Antigua on Friday - an outcome that took most of the pressure off Tuesday night's game.

The U.S. (4-1-1), seeking its seventh straight World Cup appearance, topped its semifinal group with 13

Success does not consist in never making blunders, but in never making the same one the second time.

Holmstead

redshirt itself.

"It took me a while to get used to not playing, because I really wanted to be out there," she said. "But I really learned a lot.

Sometimes you can learn more by sitting and watching."

Holmstead's one season in action for CSI has been up and down. She's arguably the best blocker of the four available middles, but she's not as strong a hitter. She also had a finger injury that took a couple screws and a splint to fix.

She was a virtual lock to start each match before the injury, but as the Golden Eagles have trucked along without her, she needs to fight her way back into the lineup.

That's potentially dropped the amount of NCAA Division I interest, but the CSI staff believes Holmstead is a Division I-caliber player, regardless of whether she leaves CSI after two years or returns for her final season of JUCO eligibility.

Holmstead has already made up her mind, more or less.

"I love CSI, but I think it's time to move on," she said.

Cartisser has left the door ajar for Holmstead's return in 2013, however unlikely it may be.

"At the end of the day we're going to do what's best for Kaylee," Cartisser said. "With the amount of credits she came here with, academically it may not make a lot of sense (for her to come back). We'd love to have her back, but we're going to do what's best for her."

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 17, the 291st day of 2012. There are 75 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Oct. 17, 1777, British forces under Gen. John Burgoyne surrendered to American troops in Saratoga, N.Y., in a turning point of the Revolutionary War.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1610, French King Louis XIII, age nine, was crowned at Reims, five months after the assassination of his father, Henry IV.

In 1711, Jupiter Hammon, the first black poet to have his work published in America, was born on Long Island, N.Y., into a lifetime of slavery.

In 1807, Britain declared it would continue to reclaim British-born sailors from American ships and ports regardless of whether they held U.S. citizenship.

In 1912, Pope John Paul I was born Albino Luciani at Forno di Canale, Italy.

In 1931, mobster Al Capone was convicted of income tax evasion. (Sentenced to 11 years in prison, Capone was released in 1939.)

In 1933, Albert Einstein arrived in the United States as a refugee from Nazi Germany.

In 1941, the U.S. destroyer Kearny was damaged by a German torpedo off the coast of Iceland; 11 people died.

In 1961, French police attacked Algerians protesting a curfew in Paris. (The resulting death toll varies widely, with some estimates of up to 200.)

In 1973, Arab oil-producing nations announced they would begin cutting back oil exports to Western nations and Japan; the result was a total embargo that lasted until March 1974.

In 1987, first lady Nancy Reagan underwent a modified radical mastectomy at Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland.

In 1989, an earthquake measuring 7.1 on the Richter scale struck northern California, killing 63 people and causing $6 billion worth of damage.

In 1992, Japanese exchange student Yoshi Hattori was fatally shot by Rodney Peairs in Baton Rouge, La., after Hattori and his American host mistakenly knocked on Peairs' door while looking for a Halloween party. (Peairs was acquitted of manslaughter, but in a civil trial was ordered to pay more than $650,000 to Hattori's family.)

Ten years ago: Ira Einhorn, the '70s hippie guru who'd fled to Europe after being charged with murder, was convicted in Philadelphia of killing his girlfriend, Holly Maddux, and stuffing her corpse in his closet a quarter-century earlier. (Einhorn was later sentenced to life without parole.)

Five years ago: President George W. Bush, raising Beijing's ire, presented the Dalai Lama with the Congressional Gold Medal and urged Chinese leaders to welcome the monk to Beijing. Comedian Joey Bishop, the last of Sinatra's Rat Pack, died in Newport Beach, Calif., at age 89. Singer Teresa Brewer died in New Rochelle, N.Y., at age 76.

One year ago: Rolling through small Southern towns in a campaign-style bus, President Barack Obama pressed lawmakers back in Washington to start taking up pieces of his rejected jobs bill and mocked the Republicans who had shot it down in toto. Financier Carl Lindner Jr., who used his experience running the family dairy store to build a business empire whose reach included baseball, banks and bananas, died at age 92.

Far in the rolling clouds their glorious strings."*
— Lloyd Mifflin

In today's deal, you have bid to what looks like an excellent no-trump slam. North's jump to six may seem precipitous, but he has so many high cards that he would be a pessimist not to drive to slam.

Since you have nine tricks outside hearts, three tricks from that source will give you your contract. However, while it might appear that all you need to do is find one heart honor outside, you will need to exercise considerable care in managing your entries. Can you see why?

The point is that you may need to take three finesses in hearts, so you should arrange your play of the spade suit with this in mind. After winning the club lead, you play the spade king and overtake with the ace. The first heart finesse loses to West's king and you win the club return. You then lead the spade 10, overtaking with dummy's queen when West follows low.

If spades break 3-2, you can afford this double overtake; the spade jack will draw West's last spade. If instead East began with a singleton spade, you will have cleared the way for a finesse of dummy's eight! Let's say that East does indeed show out on the second spade. You take a second heart finesse, which wins, and return to dummy with a marked finesse of the spade eight. After cashing the spade jack and spade three, you finesse for the third time in hearts and mark up your slam.

ANSWER: How many points are there in this deck? Since it is very common nowadays to use a jump to two spades as semi-preemptive (the same hand but with, say, ace-fifth of spades), it is not easy to show a limit bid in spades. Best is to pass — which initially indicates nothing to say — then to jump in spades to show a real spade invitation.

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old stepson, "Justin," doesn't drink or do drugs. For the most part, he stays out of trouble. The problem is, he has been caught for the third time having unprotected sex.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

My anger isn't at Justin so much as at his parents, obviously his father. Justin has lied repeatedly about this. His father lets him get away with many things, for the most part minor. But this is different. A 15-year-old boy can't take care of a baby, and having sex with multiple partners means exposing everyone involved to STDs.

My husband is a smart man, but for some reason he seems to think this will end well. I worry about his son becoming a father too soon and missing out on his full potential. My husband and his ex have dealt with this by trying to ignore it, and for the most part I haven't involved myself. But the more I think about it, the more I see the danger of Justin's life being changed forever because his parents don't want to make him unhappy for a minute.

I love my husband and stepson. Allowing this to continue isn't the right path for anyone. Am I overreacting? If not, what can I do that won't cause a huge blowup with my husband?

—ALARMED IN CHICAGO

DEAR ALARMED: You're not overreacting. Your husband is doing his son no favors by enabling his irresponsible behavior instead of asserting himself and acting like a parent. Justin may think that fathering a child will make him a "real man." But unless your husband can get through to him that REAL men take care of themselves and their partners, and REAL men don't risk bringing children into the world they can't take care of, then face it: He's letting his son play baby roulette, and it's only a matter of time until he'll be a grandpa.

DEAR ABBY: My son has a wonderful girlfriend, "Michelle." They live with my ex-husband and visit my husband, "Daryl," and me twice a month and on special occasions. Michelle is sweet, caring, smart and funny. The problem is, she doesn't wear a bra. Ever.

Relatives have commented about it to us at family gatherings because she's not flat-chested. We already know. It's obvious. Daryl feels a woman should go without a bra only in the privacy of her own home, and I agree. He thinks I should buy Michelle a bra as a "subtle hint." I don't think that's wise, and I don't want to offend her.

Because it doesn't seem to matter to my son, should we continue to keep our opinions to ourselves?

—SEES A NEED FOR SUPPORT IN FLORIDA

DEAR SEES A NEED: Because people are talking, it would be a kindness to say something to Michelle — but DELICATELY, so she doesn't think you are criticizing her. If you have a good relationship with her, invite her to join you for lunch and, while you're on the subject of the last gathering, mention that some of the relatives noticed her bralessness. Then tell her that you need to go lingerie shopping and invite her along. Ask her to help you pick out a few pretty things for yourself, and then offer to treat her to some things she likes. She just may take you up on it.

IF OCTOBER 17 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: New contacts, groups and gatherings can inspire and fire you up during the next four to five weeks. If you join a health club, for instance, you might become enthused about your physical health, or if you join a business organization, your ambitions could be tweaked. Get out there and circulate and you will be blessed by new friends and fresh inspiration. Get career moves and financial affairs in order during December, when smart end-of-the-year planning is called for just as your stars are in the best position for sound business tactics. A whirlwind romance in February might prove disappointing, so wait until June to make irrevocable decisions about love.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Raise the bar. Don't try to just get by today; seek serious challenges. You are at the top of your game and your actions will speak louder than your words. Your aggressiveness will amplify your appeal.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Create a masterpiece. Put creative juices into action by turning an idea into reality. Remember the rules of decorum in social situations; don't speak out of turn. Avoid stepping on someone else's toes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Give a little to get a little. You'll find that being generous to those in need will reap dividends well worth the investment. Make analogies to subjects that interest you when forced to deal with uninteresting situations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Don't let the cat out of the bag. If someone had enough confidence in you to share a secret, you should live up to that trust by keeping it to yourself. Find diversions to interest a romantic partner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Remain centered on achieving long-term goals. Find time to put key plans into action and get the ball rolling with new strategies or improvements. You can release some extra energy in social situations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Put the pedal to the metal. The time for planning and thought is past; now is when action should be taken. Using cost-effective measures will draw the notice of superiors and earn you extra recognition.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't show your hand too soon. Disclosing privileged information at the wrong time will only make things easy for the opposition. Patience and discretion are essential to achieve the best result.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't waste a valuable asset for the sake of getting something new. Keeping up with the Joneses may be stylish, but can also leave a burning hole in your pockets. Keep personal expenses within the budget.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't look a gift horse in the mouth. Be grateful when you are at receiving end of unexpected generosity, but don't expect it to become a habit. Don't let social situations distract you from career goals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Find out who your friends are. Your recent run of success may bring out the green-eyed monster in some. Be respectful of other people's feelings, but remember that you have nothing to apologize for.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones. Before you begin pointing out the faults of others, remember that you have shortcomings of your own. It's never too early to plan for the future.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The best decision is not always the most popular one. Your obligations and responsibilities far outweigh personal feelings. Some may question your decision, but respect the courage needed to make it.
