Man Guilty in Machete Attack Sentencing for Martin Hernandez-Vargas Set for Dec. 17

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The jury found the defendant guilty in a trial about an attack with a machete. At about 11 a.m., the trial attorneys finished their closing statements.

Twin Falls County Chief Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Stan Holloway told the jury both the accused, Martin Hernandez-Vargas, and the victim have fuzzy memories of what happened the night of May 13, but the stories added together paint a clear picture of what happened.

"The defendant said he alone was at (the victim's) house," Holloway said.

The deputies who testified all said there was blood at the victim's house, on the propane tank outside, on the ground and at the neighbor's house where he went for help, Holloway said.

Hernandez-Vargas testified that a fight over the machete happened in a pickup parked at the house, but no blood was actually found inside the pickup, Holloway told the jury.

"This isn't a CSI or a Hollywood makeup job," Holloway said of the victim's injuries.

Holloway told the jury there was no reason for the alleged victim to lie about the events and try to get Hernandez-Vargas in trouble.

Nuclear Commission Meets in Twin Falls

BY MELISSA DAVLIN

TWIN FALLS • Will Idaho advance in the nuclear field? And how would that affect Idaho citizens?

On Friday, business and government leaders from across Idaho gathered in Twin Falls for a meeting of the Leaders in Nuclear Energy Commission. Though the commission is largely business- and research-minded, members heard concerns about health and safety from the public.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter commissioned the group to make recommendations on Idaho's future in the nuclear industry. Options include research and creating storage facilities. Since its formation in February, the commission has held meetings throughout the state.

The commission heard presentations Friday on the reported safety of dry cask storage for spent nuclear fuel, transportation, disaster preparedness and the Eastern Snake Plain Aquifer.

There are contaminants from existing nuclear storage in the aquifer, said Gerry Winter, hydrologist with the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality. Much of that contamination came from injection wells, which put contaminated water directly into the aquifer.

Buhl Middle School students clean up Minidoka National Historic Site.

EDEN • Surrounded by an expansive desert landscape, a group of Buhl Middle School students watched as Carol Ash pointed to something in the distance.

"Look that direction over to that telephone pole," she told students.

At the Minidoka National Historic Site, the eighth-graders shifted their bodies and looked. "That's where the camp began," Ash said.

Then, she passed out pictures of what the area looked like as a relocation camp in the 1940s.

The chief of interpretation and education for the Minidoka National Historic Site and Hagerman Fossil Beds National Monument led a group of students on a tour.

More than 100 eighth-graders from Buhl Middle School spent this week learning about the internment of Japanese Americans during World War II.

On Friday, students wrapped up their lessons with a visit to the historical site. They cleaned up the area and took a guided tour.

The Minidoka Relocation Center was one of 10 centers in the United States where more than 120,000 West Coast people of Japanese ancestry were forced to live during World War II.

Do I Really Need a Flu Shot?

Flu season is upon us. How important is it for me and my family to get a flu vaccine this year?
— Jamie, Burley

Answered by Dr. Trevor Satterfield, M.D., St. Luke's Clinic, Family Medicine:

It is important to get a flu vaccine each year. It is much better to prevent an illness than to try and cure it. With the annual flu vaccine, we are trying to stop the spread of the virus before it becomes a problem. The influenza virus does have the potential to be very harmful, killing an estimated 20,000-40,000 Americans each year.

Many people believe that getting the flu vaccine will make them sick with the flu. The vaccine does not cause the flu, though some people may experience slight tenderness around the shot area. If you do get sick, it might be a cold, not the flu. It is likely that you were already exposed at some other time and the timing is coincidental.

It is good to remember that a cold is not the flu, though the two terms are interchanged often. A cold will present with a variety of symptoms, like sneezing, cough, running or stuffed nose or sore throat. With influenza, symptoms are similar, yet different – fever, headaches, body aches, sore throat or stuffy nose, and many times can lead to respiratory issues, especially in high risk populations, like babies, toddlers and the elderly.

There are two ways in which the flu vaccine can be administered. The most common form is with a shot, which is available to all ages. Another alternative is through a nasal spray, which can be given to people from the ages of 2 and 49. There may be reasons why some people may not be able to get the nasal spray inoculation versus the injection – they may have asthma or some other condition that would not allow them to use the nasal spray.

Even though the vaccine does fully protect you from getting influenza, it is better to have some form of protection than nothing at all, especially if you or one of your family members fall into a high risk group, such as small children and the elderly. These populations are especially susceptible to the flu, so it is important to reduce the risk factors of getting influenza.

You can get the flu vaccine at your primary care doctor's office. Just call and they will schedule a time to come when it is convenient for you. There are also a variety of local retail outlets that also offer the vaccine.

Through the program, students complete two service learning projects. Friday's clean up effort was one of them.

GEAR UP is a federal initiative, with funding for schools with a high percentage of low-income students.

The goal: to better prepare students to succeed after high school.

After a week of studying about the Japanese-American internment, students got to see the site of the old relocation camp.

"They have more of an appreciation for it," GEAR UP coordinator Adrea Storey said.

The historical site is right "in our backyard," she said, but students weren't aware it existed.

"None of our kids even knew what this was or where this was," she said.

On Friday, students hauled trash items, cleared the area around the old fire station, cleaned park signs, removed weeds and picked up garbage.

Ash told students that it's a large job to maintain and restore historical sites. She only has three staff members to maintain two historical sites.

"What you did today is really important," she said.

Eighth-grader Julie Nejezchleba said she spent the morning cleaning park signs.

This week, she said, she learned that Japanese-Americans' rights were violated, even though "they were just like us."

"It's just unreal," she said.

She said she also learned how little living space they had at the camp.

Classmate Amanda DeWitt said she learned this week about how the civil rights of internees were violated.

Launching an Educational Program

In September, Buhl school employees contacted Ash to ask about the possibility of having students come to the site.

Buhl Middle School eighth-graders tour one of the barracks that housed Japanese-Americans interned at the Minidoka Relocation Center during WWII.

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

There wasn't any curriculum in place to teach students about Japanese-American internment.

The groups worked to develop a weeklong curriculum. This week, students completed the National Park Service's Junior Ranger Program.

Ash said the Buhl Middle School week was a pilot program. She said she'd love to do more with schools.

"This seemed like a perfect way to try this out," she said.

The Japanese-American internment is a tough topic, Ash said, that's more appropriate for older students.

For students, the week began with a presentation by Annette Rousseau, education specialist for the Minidoka National Historic Site.

Curriculum included cultural arts programs, as well as a look at children who were internees at the camp.

Storey said she'd like the service-learning project to become a yearly occurrence for eighth-graders.

Another goal, she said, is to look at expanding the curriculum over two weeks.

Social studies teacher Theresa Silvester said it has been a good project and hopes to tweak it for future years.

She said she hopes students will tell others about the site, which plays an interesting role in Idaho's history.

"They've done their part to preserve and protect the site," she said.

In the 1940s, there were about 600 structures at the Minidoka Relocation Center. It spanned about 33,000 acres.

Now, there are only a few buildings left.

After the camp closed, many of the buildings were moved off the land.

Ash told a group of students that people could buy a whole building, half or a third of one. Buildings served a variety of purposes — from homes to barns.

Ash said a number of them went to Jerome High School and were used as classrooms. And others were used as housing for a labor camp.

Restoring the Historical Site

The Minidoka National Historic Site was created in 2001.

After years of planning, restoration efforts have accelerated over the past one-and-a-half years.

Currently, one project is restoring a guard tower on the property. Boise State University's School of Engineering is working on the project, Ash said.

It's scheduled for completion in November 2013. The Friends of Minidoka group was awarded a grant for the project.

Last year, a 1.6-mile trail was created so visitors can access different areas of the historic site.

There are also 23 signs along the way with information, as well as directional signs.

Another project last year was reconstructing the Honor Roll.

It lists the names of Japanese-Americans from the relocation center who served in the military during World War II.

problems is where you have a driver push the contamination down," Winter said. But, he added, the industry has changed, and current laws now prevent those injection wells.

Russell Neely, chief operating officer for Edlow International Co., addressed transportation of nuclear materials. He said there are 20 million shipments annually of nuclear material worldwide. Of those, 5 percent are directly related to nuclear fuel; others include medical and agricultural materials.

"There's a lot of stuff moving out there, safely, every day," Neely said.

The commission heard from a panel that discussed business opportunities nuclear programs could bring to the state.

Research programs would bring jobs to the state and help industries that work closely with the Idaho National Laboratory, said Nathan McMasters, president of Diversified Metal Products in Idaho Falls.

Doug Sayer, CEO of Premiere Technology, said if Idaho doesn't jump on nuclear-related industries, other states will. But, he said, the state should only act if it makes environmental, social and economic sense.

During the public hearing, some Idahoans voiced their concerns. Bill Chisholm of Buhl said the panel consisted of government and economic leaders, and had little environmental representation. He was skeptical of plans to make an interim waste storage facility.

"My experience is you bring the waste in, it ain't going to leave. That makes it a permanent storage facility, not an interim storage facility," said Chisholm.

Liz Woodruff, executive director of the Snake River Alliance, pointed to a 1995 agreement between then-Gov. Phil Batt and the federal government that stopped additional nuclear waste from being stored at INL.

"No means no," Woodruff said. "And you'll continue to hear us say that as this commission goes forward."

The commission's final meeting is in November in Moscow. After the report's release, the public has until Dec. 24 to submit comments on the commission's recommendations.

Hernandez-Vargas' defense attorney Ben Andersen told the jury in his final argument that the main question in the case was whether prosecutors could prove the battery was not justified. He said there are doubts in the case and gaps in the victim's memory of everything that went on that night.

Those gaps are like gaps in a bridge that make it impossible to cross, Andersen told the jury. He also called the alleged victim's testimony uncredible.

"It can't support the heavy burden," he said,

Andersen said when police saw the bloody scene and the victim's wounds, they jumped to the conclusion that Hernandez-Vargas must be guilty of the crime.

In his final closing argument, Holloway asked the jury if they could blame the victim for not remembering.

"He almost bled to death from a potentially lethal blow," Holloway said.

Judge Jonathan Brody, a district judge from Minidoka County was filling in for Judge Randy Stoker Friday.

A sentencing hearing was set for Dec. 17.

North Canyon Medical Center, St. Luke's Jerome, St. Luke's Elks Rehab and CSI's Office on Aging are also sponsors and providing screenings.

The Mountain States Tumor Institute is providing free skin cancer screenings at the fair.

Carol Springer, MSTI's administrative secretary, said local dermatologists will be on-hand to do free, quick screenings.

"If you have a spot you're concerned about, come in," she said.

Based on what the dermatologists see they'll recommend a follow-up, she said.

The skin cancer screening area will also have a GlowVista skin analyzer machine to help people visualize any sun-damage on their face, she said.

Springer said the screenings are free for all ages and the dermatologists see about 100 people every year.

Anythings Pawsible Closer to Constructing Wendell Animal Shelter

BY BLAIR KOCH
 For the Times-News

WENDELL • The Wendell City Council approved building plans for a new animal shelter during its Thursday meeting.

The blueprints, drawn by Ike Smith of Kimberly, are for an 800-square-foot building with several kennels, complete with radiant floor heating and exercise space.

The facility is projected to cost about $85,000 and the nonprofit Anythings Pawsible told the council they have $15,000 raised and much more pledged.

Coordinator Mary Holley said they investigated several grants they believe will fund the remaining balance necessary for construction.

Some Magic Valley businesses instituted employee giving programs, including Macy's of Twin Falls.

The plans call for more accommodation than the group originally planned. Holley said with regulations sweeping states mandating animal shelters be handicapped accessible and have medicines locked away, for instance, the city will be ahead of the curve.

"Certain things (needing) to be compliant, like five feet of space around the toilet ... made the building grow," Holley said.

With an isolation room, the shelter will better accommodate sick dogs that can be removed from the general population, Holley said.

Anythings Pawsible volunteer and City Clerk Shelly Harral said the council approving the building plans was the first step.

"Now we can seek out grant funding and get to building. Depending on how fast we get funding will determine how quickly we break ground," Harral said.

Once built, the city will have ownership in the shelter and will have to manage the intake of animals.

proved a $750-a-month lease for the three-bedroom farmhouse the city acquired as part of its 235-acre land purchase for its sewer treatment project.

Gun Businesses Thrive During Obama's Term as President

WASHINGTON (AP) • President Barack Obama has presided over a heyday for the gun industry despite predictions by the National Rifle Association four years ago that he would be the “most anti-gun president in American history.”

An analysis by The Associated Press of data tracking the health of the gun industry shows that sales are on the rise, so much that some gun manufacturers can't make enough guns fast enough. Major gun company stock prices are up. The number of federally licensed, retail gun dealers is increasing for the first time in nearly 20 years. The NRA is bursting with cash, and Washington has expressed little interest in passing new gun laws.

Obama has made no promises to impose new gun control legislation and doesn't have the support in Congress or among voters even if he did. “[Obama] is the best thing that ever happened to the firearm industry,” said Jim Barrett, an industry analyst at C.L. King & Associates Inc. in New York.

New Experimental Drugs Help Prevent Alzheimer's Disease

ELIZABETH LOPATTO
Bloomberg News

NEW YORK • Three studies set to explore the use of experimental drugs that may become the first to change the course of Alzheimer's disease aren't looking to cure the illness. Their goal is to prevent it altogether.

The independent trials will begin in 2013 and run for three to five years, testing as many as five drugs in almost 1,500 volunteers who haven't shown any of Alzheimer's mind-altering symptoms, yet carry a strong genetic risk for the disease or display early physical evidence in the brain.

The newest strategy abandons a drive that failed to stop Alzheimer's once memories recede. Instead, as with heart disease, scientists are exploring if the mind-robbing ailment can be prevented or at least delayed using drugs that act roughly like Pfizer's Lipitor and other statins. The idea, driven by new information that tracks the disease's progression back through time, is to act years before symptoms occur to rid the brain of proteins that can later destroy nerve cells.

A breakthrough can't come soon enough. The number of Alzheimer's cases globally is expected to double within 20 years as the world's population ages, to as many as 65.7 million people in 2030 and 115 million by 2050, the Geneva-based World Health Organization said in April. At the same time, studies completed as recently as the last three months involving drugs made by Pfizer and Johnson & Johnson, the world's two biggest makers of health products, and Eli Lilly & Co. showed virtually no progress in slowing or stopping the disease in patients in the later stages of the disease. Lilly said on Oct. 8 that its drug, solanezumab, provided no benefit to advanced victims in a trial. The research did suggest the medicine may help in a small way in those with early symptoms.

The next step, Buckholtz said, is to determine if pushing the use of drugs like these back in time, when the disease is just beginning to form, will make a difference. Enabling researchers to get an ever earlier look at the progression of Alzheimer's has been the development of new imaging agents, such as Pittsburgh Compound B or PiB, that highlights the activity of beta amyloid, the hallmark protein that makes up the brain's tangles.

That work has allowed scientists to think of Alzheimer's as a kind of chain reaction, much like that leading up to heart disease, said Randall Bateman, a neurologist at the Washington University in St. Louis who is leading one of the three studies.

Top Security Official Among 8 Dead in Beirut Explosion

BEIRUT (AP) • A powerful car bomb tore through the heart of Beirut's Christian sector Friday, killing a top security official and seven others in a devastating attack that threatened to bring the war in Syria directly to Lebanon's doorstep. The blast sheared the balconies off apartment buildings, upended cars and sent dazed rescue workers carrying bloodied children into the streets.

Dozens of people were wounded in the blast, the worst the Lebanese capital has seen in more than four years. The state-run news agency said the target was Brig. Gen. Wissam al-Hassan, head of the intelligence division of Lebanon's domestic security forces.

Al-Hassan, 47, headed an investigation over the summer that led to the arrest of former Information Minister Michel Samaha, one of Syria's most loyal allies in Lebanon. “Whenever there is a problem in Syria, they want to bring it to us,” said Karin Sabaha Gemayel, a secretary at a law firm a block from the bombing site.

Samaha is accused of plotting a campaign of bombings and assassinations in Lebanon at Syria's behest, to spread sectarian violence in Lebanon. Also indicted in the August sweep was one of the highest aides to Syrian President Bashar Assad. A senior Lebanese police official said Samaha confessed to having personally transported explosives in his car from Syria to Lebanon with the purpose of killing Lebanese. Analysts said al-Hassan's killing was a clear signal that Lebanon cannot insulate itself from the Syrian conflict, which has been the most sustained and powerful challenge to the 40-year Assad family dynasty.

Friday's blast also was a reminder of Lebanon's grim history, when the 1975-1990 civil war made the country notorious for kidnappings, car bombs and political assassinations. Since the war's end, Lebanon has been a proxy battleground for regional conflict, and the Mediterranean seaside capital has been prey to devastating violence.

Friday's explosion ripped through a narrow street at midafternoon in Beirut's mainly Christian Achrafieh neighborhood, an area packed with cafes and shops. Doors and windows were shattered for blocks, and several blackened cars appeared to have been catapulted through the air.

A Lebanese security official said al-Hassan, who was married with two children, had just returned from visiting family in Paris. He was either on his way to or from work in a non-armored car with his driver, who also was among the dead, said the official. Al-Hassan's body was so disfigured in the blast that his bodyguards only recognized him from his sneakers, said a paramedic at the scene.

Labor Tries to Put Collective Bargaining in Michigan Constitution

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) • It's hardly a return to the Depression era, when company guards roughed up labor organizers at auto plants. But times are grim for unions in the Rust Belt, even in a longtime bastion like Michigan. Here, emergency managers have been given the power to throw out union contracts in financially struggling cities. Neighboring Wisconsin has stripped public employees of collective bargaining rights and Indiana has approved “right-to-work” legislation.

Now, after a series of setbacks at the hands of Republican governors and legislatures, labor is attempting a bold gambit in hopes of regaining some momentum: a first-of-its-kind ballot initiative in the Nov. 6 election that would put collective bargaining rights in the Michigan constitution — and out of lawmakers' reach.

If successful, the strategy could serve as a model for other states, encouraging unions to bypass hostile officeholders and take their case directly to the voters. Twenty-one states allow citizens to vote on proposed laws and 18 permit their constitutions to be amended through referendums. The initiative route has been used successfully by other interest groups for everything from banning gay marriage and affirmative action to guaranteeing hunting rights.

“We're working hard to get this passed. We're not going to leave any resources on the table because it could be a harbinger of things to come across the country,” said John Armelagos, 57, a registered nurse in Ann Arbor.

A labor coalition called Protect Working Families has poured about $6.5 million into television ads supporting the proposal, according to the nonprofit Michigan Campaign Finance Network. Two business-backed groups have spent a similar amount in opposition, while high-ranking Republicans — including Gov. Rick Snyder and Attorney General Bill Schuette — are campaigning against the measure.

“It's now clear that unions are experimenting with a new weapon, a new tactic to undo results of elections they don't like,” said Rich Studley, president of the Michigan Chamber of Commerce. “It's sour grapes from sore losers.”

Labor has traditionally defended its interests by providing money and armies of volunteers to pro-labor candidates, usually Democrats. But its political success rate began dropping as unions and their treasuries declined with changes in the economy.

Opponents contend the constitutional measure, which would cover both public and private employees, would make union leaders more powerful than elected officials. Opposition ads charge the amendment could prevent schools from firing

ASSOCIATED PRESS

employees with criminal records and limit use of background checks for school employees. Critics also say the initiative continues a trend toward cluttering state constitutions with policies that should be hashed out by legislatures and governors.

Given the high stakes, the union movement considers that a price worth paying. “Labor is on the defensive,” said Lawrence Mishel, president of the Economic Policy Institute, a liberal research and policy organization in Washington, D.C. “This could very well be a turning point if the people of Michigan affirm collective bargaining.”

What Malala Yousufzai Could Teach Sandra Fluke

There is a man from the Northeast who left his native Pakistan many years ago,

Christine M. Flowers

Philadelphia Daily News

worked hard, got his green card, and brought his family to the United States. He is a very good person, a proud American citizen who plans to vote this November because, as he tells me, this country has given him so much and he has a duty to return the debt.

We are lucky to have him.

He is lucky, too. If he were still living in the Swat region on the border with Afghanistan, every day would bring with it the possibility of death. It is a part of the world where young girls must hide in their homes if they want to learn reading, where child marriages are commonplace and where the Taliban rules.

My friend has two daughters. They don't need to shroud their faces when they go out into the street, are able to choose their own friends and, most important, walk with their heads high into the classrooms they love.

For this, more than anything else, my friend rejoices in the greatness and promise of America. I never fully understood what it meant to be from Pakistan, or any other country where my gender was a birth defect. I've always had the best schooling, unlimited opportunities and men in my life who said "go ahead" instead of "follow behind me."

I've learned a few lessons from "Salim," including the importance of humility (haven't excelled in that subject,) enthusiasm in little things like running water and functioning electricity, and tranquility of spirit. More important, I've learned true gratitude for the freedom that I, a woman, possess.

That's why the recent talk of a war on my gender angers me to the point that I want to scream "have you, my sisters, lost your senses?" Sandra Fluke, with her simpering demands and outstretched hands, makes me ashamed to call myself a woman, makes me want to sit this Georgetown law student down and tell her the story of Malala Yousufzai.

Sandy has spent so much time this summer and fall drumming up sympathy for her condom crusade that she probably hasn't heard about this Pakistani woman, really just a child of 14, who was shot in the head last week by an enraged group of Taliban soldiers. Her crime? Speaking out about the importance of education. Teaching her friends how to read. Meeting with ambassadors and other important men, asking them to do something for the women of her beleaguered country. Malala is in a coma now, and no one knows if she'll awake.

I asked Salim about Malala, and he shook his head. "This is why I came here 13 years ago," he said to me. "My oldest daughter was five when I left Pakistan, and I knew that if I stayed, she would never have the life I dreamed for her." Now, his beautiful firstborn is finishing high school, contemplating college and stretching wings that would have been crushed under the weight of the Taliban. Salim looks at his own child and thinks of Malala. "I feel for that young girl's father," he says.

Perhaps Sandra Fluke might learn a few important lessons from Salim. She could put down her torts and contracts books for a few minutes and look into my friend's beautiful blue eyes, listen to him talk about American promise and opportunity, see his brilliant teenager and reflect on the message she's been trying to sell us for the past contentious months.

For all of its superficial imperfections, this country loves its women. It gives us ample space to develop interests and skills, respects our right to earn an education, demands that we be treated equally at work and in the sports world, and even legislates creatively so we can do whatever we want with our reproductive parts. But for Sandy, that wasn't enough. She and her like-minded friends wanted all of this plus free birth control. They wanted to make the rest of the country believe that women were being "raped" when they submitted to a legitimate medical procedure. They screamed bloody murder when the highest court of the land said you couldn't dismember an infant and call that "choice."

CHEERS to the U.S. Department of Education for granting Idaho schools a waiver from some of the requirements and benchmarks in No Child Left Behind. Idaho was among the first states to push for more flexibility under No Child Left Behind.

Nationwide, 33 states and the District of Columbia already have been

CHEERS to the Rupert Police Department for never giving up on its search for Norine Boyd. For 24 years, the department kept Boyd's case open in hopes of solving it someday.

Boyd, the mother of three boys, went missing from her Rupert home in December 1988. Her car was found near the Twin Sisters rock formation at the City of Rocks in March 1989. "My biggest fear was the police would close the case and forget about her," said Necia McDonald, Boyd's mother. Thank goodness they didn't.

Rupert Det. Jeff McEwen and Diane Gines, a reserve officer and retired criminal analyst, took a cadaver dog to the site one week ago to try to get coordinates for a grid search. Then, the dog "hit" on what appeared to be human remains. McEwen and Gines had tracked down and re-interviewed the hikers who originally found Boyd's car and were setting up another search of the area when the remains were discovered. Evidence at the scene indicated the remains might be Boyd's. The partial skeleton was sent to a forensic pathologist in Boise who will use dental records and DNA to make a positive identification.

Thank You to Staff of St. Luke's

I had surgery recently at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center. I was nothing but impressed with my doctor and his staff. The entire process from pre-admitting down to discharge was nothing but friendly, professional and caring. I was fortunate to be assigned a nurse named Diane in pre-op, and I cannot say enough good things about her. Her skills, professionalism and care were above reproach. She made me feel better going into what I was dreading. The operation room staff was also wonderful, as was post-op. My nurses and CNA's on the floor once I got there could not have been more attentive. Thank you especially to Lyn and Kerry (my night nurse). I cannot remember the names of my CNA's, but how kind you all were - thank you. I went home and had some problems that landed me in the emergency room, and the staff there was wonderful as well. A big thank you to Kendell and Robert and, of course, Dr. Roberts. And the biggest thank you to Dr. David Allen and Kathy, Dr. Humphrey's nurse who did a wonderful job, took the time to make me feel comfortable and explained things to make me feel OK. The hospital was clean, my room beautiful and comfortable. The housekeeping staff and dietary staff deserve recognition for jobs well done. Thank you all for a very pleasant experience.

Tribal Court's Authority Questioned

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) • The jurisdiction of a Native American tribal court was challenged Friday by the developer of a popular glass bridge over the Grand Canyon who has been locked in a multi-million dollar contract dispute with an Arizona-based tribe.

David Jin's lawyer, Troy Eid, told a three-judge panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that the Las Vegas businessman should not have to fight his legal battles in the Hualapai tribal court system, saying it lacks authority to hear the case.

Eid also said the tribal court is not giving his client a fair shot to protect his financial stake.

Jeffrey Gross, an attorney for the tribe, denied the allegations and told the panel that Jin signed a contract allowing the operation of the Skywalk to be governed by Hualapai law. Gross argued that Jin first must exhaust his legal options in tribal court before turning to federal courts.

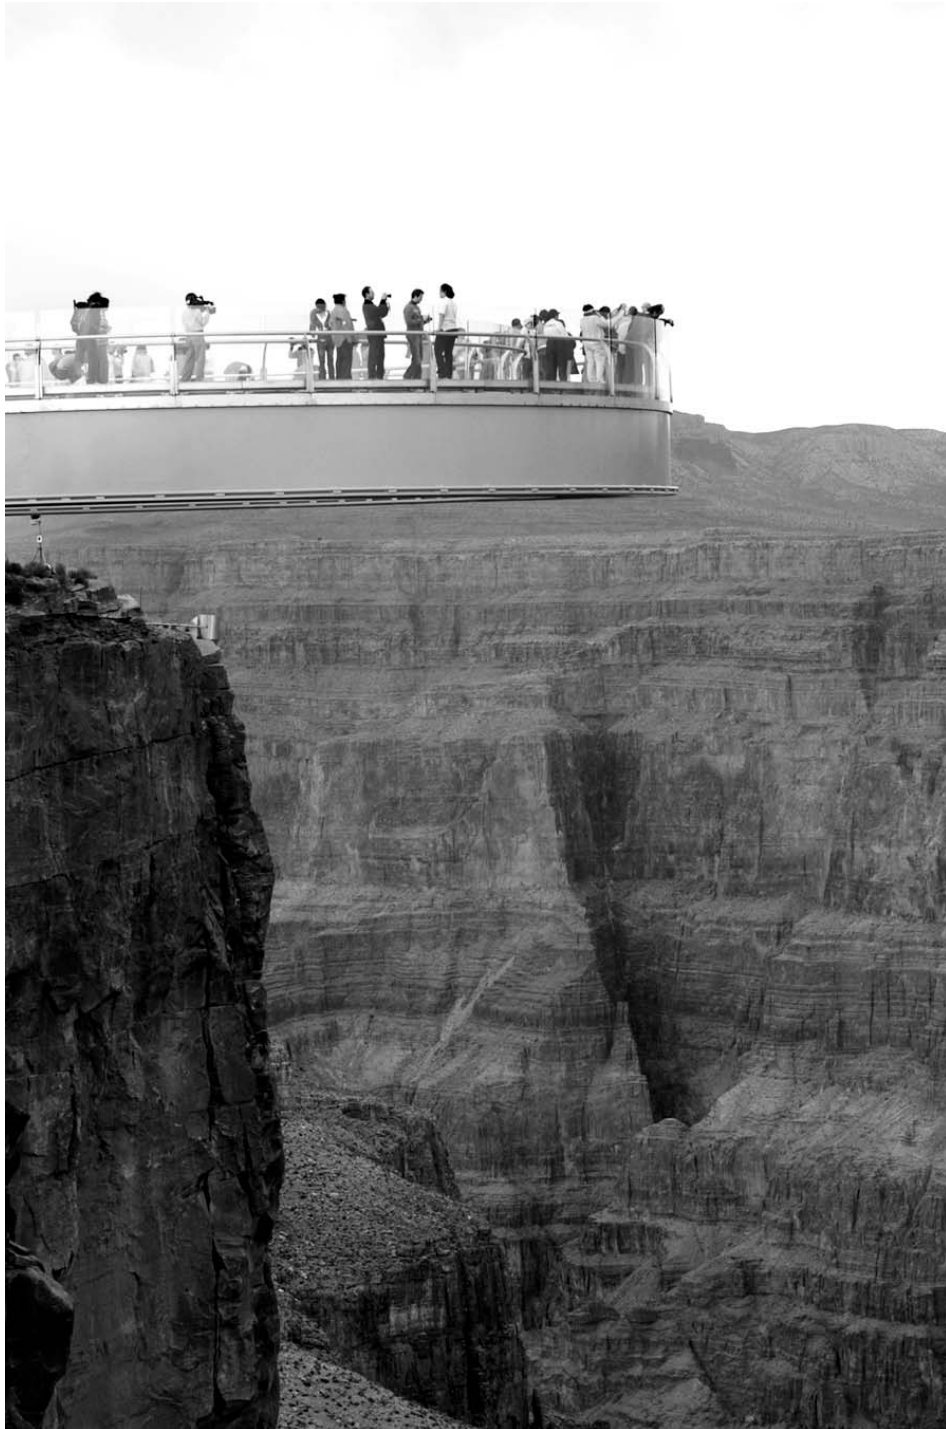

The fight between Jin and the tribe could be worth tens of millions of dollars and stems from a disagreement over management fees and an incomplete visitor center.

The dispute prompted Hualapai leaders to sever Jin's contract. They say he is owed $11 million for fair market value of the Skywalk. Jin, however, says his rights are worth closer to $100 million. He has alleged in lawsuits that his constitutional rights are being violated.

The Grand Canyon Skywalk extends in a horseshoe shape from the canyon's edge on tribal land in western Arizona, giving visitors a view of the Colorado River 4,000 feet below. Jin invested $30 million to build it.

It's unclear when the panel will rule in the dispute over jurisdiction.

The judges said they understood the claims and are aware of the financial stakes.

People walk on the Skywalk in 2007 during the First Walk event at the Grand Canyon on the Hualapai Indian Reservation at Grand Canyon West, Ariz.

They also said they realize both parties are anxious for a resolution.

The judges also asked Gross half-heartedly if they would see the parties back again for another possible round of appeals.

"Or not," Gross said. "Because we don't know what's going to happen in tribal court and that's the whole point of exhausting the administrative remedies in tribal court because that process may prevent us from coming back." There is an exception to exhausting tribal court remedies if Jin's attorneys can prove that the tribal court has acted in bad faith. He's been unsuccessful so far.

Board Approves 2nd Year Law Classes in Boise

BOISE (AP) • A proposal approved by the Idaho State Board of Education gives permission for the University of Idaho College of Law to offer second-year students classes in Boise.

The board approved the proposal 4-3 Thursday during a meeting in Lewiston.

The Spokesman-Review reported the idea must still be approved by the Idaho Legislature along with a $400,000 appropriation to pay for it.

Under the plan, UI law school students would still have to take classes in Moscow during the first year.

In 2008, the university sought to expand its law school presence by adding a full-fledged branch campus in Boise. But the board scaled back the idea to just third-year students.

Anti-bison Landowners To Deny Hunter Access

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) • Some Montana landowners are dropping out of a hunter access program to protest the state's plans to relocate bison from Yellowstone National Park.

The Billings Gazette reports dozens of landowners have published their names in northeastern Montana newspaper ads saying they plan to close their lands to hunters until state officials drop those plans.

Retired rancher Rich Suduth from the Hinsdale area said the move is designed to get the attention of Fish, Wildlife and Parks by cutting into its revenue.

"If the hunters don't have any place to hunt, they won't buy high-dollar licenses," he said.

FWP officials said about 50 of 1,300 landowners have dropped out of a program that pays landowners for public hunting access, including 15 in northeastern Montana.

Six of those 15 landowners cited FWP policies and bison as the reason for not renewing their contracts, according to Alan Charles, who oversees the Block Management Program.

"I understand, the bison issue is going to be a hot one," Charles said. "Landowners, I think, feel frustrated as to how they can influence policy."

The program still has about 8 million acres open to hunters, but in the Hinsdale area, at least, hunters may find their options more limited.

"We have attrition in Block Management every year for various reasons, but this year people are making a statement about the bison by not renewing their contracts," said Pat Gunderson, FWP regional manager in Glasgow. "Our philosophy is to work closely with landowners, and we'll continue to focus on that."

The bison policy protest comes as FWP is in the process of developing a state bison management plan.

2 Kids Arrested after 6 Kittens Killed in Vegas

LAS VEGAS (AP) • Two 11-year-olds have been arrested for allegedly throwing rocks that killed six newborn kittens in southwest Las Vegas.

Police say the children were taken into custody Thursday and booked into Clark County Juvenile Hall. They face seven counts each of animal cruelty.

Police say neighbors heard breaking glass at an apartment complex on Russell Road about 5 p.m. on Oct. 9.

Witnesses say they saw the two juveniles throwing rocks against a building before running from the area.

Authorities say the children had been throwing rocks at a mother cat that was giving birth, and her kittens ultimately died.

Luna Laws Supporters Won't Disclose Donors

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • A group promoting Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna's education overhaul refused Friday to disclose its donors, instead suggesting it be allowed to take back its money.

Education Voters of Idaho's new lawyer, Christ Troupis, told Secretary of State Ben Ysursa that his client is a nonprofit organization that's exempt from campaign disclosure under federal law.

Still, Troupis says the group — created Aug. 16 amid the battle over Luna's overhaul — would take back its $200,000 contribution that went for TV commercials touting the education changes, in exchange for Ysursa dropping demands that donors' names be released.

Troupis also went on the counterattack, saying Ysursa's efforts to secure the identities of Education Voters of Idaho's financiers were having a chilling effect on the group's free-speech rights.

"My client has ceased its lawful participation in constitutionally protected political activity based on those threats, and thus has already suffered irreparable and immediate harm," Troupis wrote. "At a critical time, Education Voters of Idaho has been completely removed from the public discourse on issues of Idaho education reform."

Luna's education reforms, passed by the 2011 Idaho Legislature to limit union bargaining power, promote teacher merit pay, and require online classes and student laptop computers, are the subject of a heated Nov. 6 repeal effort.

The repeal is being pushed by the Idaho Education Association teachers union.

To help save the overhaul, Education Voters of Idaho gave just over $200,000 to a related political action committee, Parents for Education Reform, for broadcast advertising.

The groups share leaders and addresses.

Felon Headed Back to Prison for Having Guns

BOISE (AP) • Convicted felons are forbidden from having guns, but a 38-year-old Fort Hall man amassed an arsenal in 2011 — a cache of rifles and handguns that resulted in another stint behind bars.

Robert Frank Sorrell will spend 21 months in prison after his sentencing on Friday in U.S. District Court.

Back in 2006, Sorrell was convicted of methamphetamine possession — a crime punishable by a term of imprisonment exceeding one year.

Consequently, he was barred for possessing firearms.

That didn't stop him, however, from collecting at least four: A search warrant executed at Sorrell's residence uncovered two .22 caliber rifles, a .357 caliber revolver and a 12-gauge shotgun.

After an hour of scoreless play, Jesse Cardenas headed one home from a tight angle on a corner kick to send Gooding to a 2-0 win over Bonners Ferry on Friday to reach the 3A boys soccer championship game at Sunway Soccer Complex.

and finally Cardenas found enough space to flick the ball between post and goalkeeper to break the stubborn Badgers' resistance.

"We've been working on that play all season, and I just told Rico to get it there fast," said Cardenas. "I was just really happy when it went in."

She burst onto the girls soccer scene her freshman year, doing damage on the right wing. Then, out of necessity, she switched to central defense as a sophomore.

BURLEY • Anticipating a Great Basin Conference and playoff-deciding match-up next week against Minico, Twin Falls passed the ball in its 45-13 win against Burley Friday — and passed the ball a lot.

Perhaps it was to prove to itself it could, efficiently, take advantage of a stacked box; perhaps to give Minico more to think about; or perhaps because they knew quarterback Thomas Corr and his targets will have to be sharp to beat Minico's defense.

And after Corr completed eight of his last 10 passes, Twin Falls may have accomplished all three.

"We tried to get more balance this week and get Corr into a good rhythm," Bruins head coach Allyn Reynolds said. "We've got to be more than one-dimensional next week."

Corr finished completing 12-20 passes for 181 through roughly three quarters of play. Running back Anthony Archuleta, in his second game back from injury, had two rushing touchdowns and kick-return to begin the game, all three scores in the first quarter.

TWIN FALLS • After building a lead in the second quarter, two key starters went down and the Lions could not keep up.

Losing Adam Taylor and Eli Berndt to injury, Lighthouse Christian struggled after the break, falling to Butte County 72-40 in nonconference action Friday night.

"They are a physical football team and it took its toll in time," said Lighthouse Christian coach John van Vliet. "At our level we don't have the depth."

The game featured a lot of offense. It was the passing game of the Lions versus the running game of the Pirates. While Logan Bosma threw five touchdowns and 284 yards, Butte County amassed 540 rushing yards with a trio of running backs.

BY RYAN HOWE

OAKLEY • Declo won its fifth consecutive Canyon Conference championship and capped its second undefeated regular season in four years Friday night with a 52-0 win over Oakley.

Declo (8-0) scored on its first two possessions, but then struggled to find its rhythm. Declo fumbled five times in the first half and Oakley recovered three of them.

"The biggest thing was execution and mental stuff. Instead of doing what we do, we were trying to make things happen," said Declo senior quarterback Kai Garner, who completed 5 of 14 passes for 120 yards and a touchdown.

Declo regrouped at halftime and scored three third-

"They were ramped up, not sustaining blocks and weren't executing like we always have. They were over playing. You have to play within yourself, and in the second half we played much better," said Declo coach Kelly Kidd.

Declo received 495 yards of offense, led by Jason Gillette's 162 yards rushing on 20 carries and 59 receiving yards on two grabs. The senior running back cashed in three touchdowns.

Twin Falls Girls Fall in Semifinal

TIMES-NEWS

IDAHO FALLS • The Bruins almost had Bishop Kelly.

Almost. After playing the two-time defending state champions scoreless through halftime, Twin Falls' defense finally broke as Bishop Kelly scored three times to win 3-1 on Friday in the 4A girls soccer semifinal, the Knights' 67th straight win.

Maddie Watkins got the goal for Twin Falls, which will play Moscow for third place today.

WOOD RIVER 3, KUNA 2 IDAHO FALLS • Haley Montgomery scored twice to lead Wood River to the consolation final.

Tayte Kelly scored the other goal for the Wolverines, while Sage Rust stood on her head, making 15 saves to keep her team in it. Wood River plays Preston for fourth place today.

4A BOYS SOCCER TOURNAMENT SANDPOINT 2, WOOD RIVER 0 IDAHO FALLS • The Wolverines got a dose of their own medicine, getting shut out by Sandpoint in the semifinals.

Wood River lost its second game of the season, both by shutout. The team has posted 11 shutouts in 18 games this season. The Wolverines will play Middleton today for third place.

JEROME 3, CENTURY 1 IDAHO FALLS • Jerome got goals from three different players to bounce back and reach the consolation final.

Daniel Lopez, Alberto Vidaca and Gerardo Gonzalez scored for the Tigers. Gonzalez added an assist in the win.

Jerome plays Blackfoot for fourth place today.

CSI Volleyball Clinches Scenic West Title

TIMES-NEWS

COEUR D'ALENE • The road to the NJCAA Division I volleyball tournament officially goes through Twin Falls.

The third-ranked College of Southern Idaho sewed up the Scenic West Athletic Conference championship on Friday, beating No. 7 North Idaho 25-20, 25-23, 25-20.

For a team single-minded in its goal of winning a national championship, there was a little joy after this one ended.

"They knew that they clinched the conference, so we kind of celebrated at the end," said CSI coach Heidi Cartisser. "We wanted to get a little more rhythm than we were doing and we did that toward the last half of that third game. It wasn't amazing but they pushed when they had to. When it came down to it they made the right plays."

Keani Passi had nine kills, while Tineke Bierma, Liene Mellupe and Emily Ottinger each had seven. Heather Meeuwsen led the team with nine digs.

The win gets the Golden Eagles (23-1, 8-0 Scenic West) just a share of the conference title, but with it comes hosting rights and the No. 1 seed for the Region 18 Tournament in two weeks.

"Being on the road three weeks in a row has some to do with us not being quite so sharp," Cartisser said. "It's going to be really nice for us to get through tomorrow and get home. We have four more to go before nationals."

CSI visits NWAACC undefeated team Blue Mountain (Ore.) today.

Lighthouse

Early on things looked good for Lighthouse Christian (7-2) as it wasted little time getting on the board. Logan Bosma went deep to Eli Berndt, who reached as far as he could to haul in the pass then kept his balance for the 51-yard touchdown pass.

Butte County (6-2) responded, driving down the field twice to take the lead.

Back came the Lions Bosma connected with Berndt again for 32 yards then picked up his second touchdown pass, hitting Philip DeMello from 6 yards out knotting the score after one.

Lighthouse Christian charged ahead early in the second as DeMello then intercepted Butte County and returned the ball into Pirate territory. Six plays later Taylor took the hand-off, reversed field and dove into the end zone.

The score would be costly as Taylor would need to be helped from the field after injuring his ribs and would not return.

Lighthouse Christian kept the pressure on, recovering the onside kick. Berndt caught his second touchdown pass, this time from 10 yards out. Berndt would also leave the game with a concussion.

The Pirates took advantage of the shorthanded Lions, scoring twice in the final minutes, including recovering a fumble late in the half and turning it into points with just five seconds on the clock.

Butte County's clock-eating run game dominated the clock in the third quarter while getting into the end zone twice. The Lions had just four plays, gaining just a single yard.

Lighthouse Christian's offense regained life in the final period with Bosma tossing touchdown passes to Dylan Wilson and DeMello as they pulled with 16, but a late 95 yard pick-six ended any chance of a comeback.

The Lions lost just their second game of the season, both to Division 1 teams moving on to state, a good sign heading into the playoffs.

"Not a lot of people lined up to play Butte County. It was a physical game and we will be sore, but it will serve us well in the playoffs," said van Vliet.

The game marked the end of the regular season for the Lions as they have a bye the final week. Their next game will be in the first round of the state playoffs when they will likely host Carey, who they defeated in the state championship game last year.

quarterback with starter Zander Cook out with injury. Bobcats coach Jed Thomas said Greener played well, and for the most part was accurate. But two interceptions, including one by outside linebacker Joey Hobson, gave Twin Falls short fields.

Brayden McCracken had two touchdowns for the Bobcats, and showed the kind of between-the-tackles power normally reserved for Bruin backs Jacob Johnson and Archuleta.

"That's the best I've seen (McCracken) run," Thomas said.

The most meaningful takeaway from Friday, however, was that the Bruins appear to be on an upward trajectory: reducing mistakes, shutting opponents down on defense halves at a time, and showing off a wealth of talent on offense, which could all be healthy and in-tune for the first time all year next week.

The Bruins played without speedster Jason Byce, who should be back next week after suffering a hamstring injury. Bruins receiver David Leon had two high-skill receptions Friday night, one deep down the sideline. Hobson delivered the hit of the game as he came unblocked from his outside linebacker position, clocking Bobcats running back Travis Osterhout to the delight of the road sideline.

The Bruins will host Minico Friday night.

battled, never gave up. Every game we fought 'til the end." Declo's defense intercepted four passes and recorded its fourth shutout, which ties the school record for shutouts in a season.

"You need a reality check going into the (playoffs)," said

Kidd. "I thought Oakley played tough, tough football. They gave a valiant effort. We have a lot of weapons and it's hard to hold us down."

In its first season playing up a classification and back in 11-man football, Oakley's season ends with an 0-7 record.

"My heart breaks for these kids that we didn't get a win," said Oakley head coach Tim Behumin. "We were so close in the three other (conference) games. We talk about no moral victories, but I want these kids to know how proud I am of them. They played like warriors."

"... These seniors sacrificed so much; we asked them to go to a different level and do something extremely hard. I pray that they understand that the efforts they gave - now it hurts a lot, but they are going to find that it will pay big dividends for them because they had to play like warriors in everything they did."

Declo will make its 14th state playoff appearance in 15 seasons when it hosts the third-place team from District V (to be determined today in a three-way playoff) next week.

Broadcasting for the Lord

A Twin Falls church-owned radio station reaches a potential audience of 42 million listeners.

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A room full of blinking lights and switches, a microphone and small television monitors.

Above the entry door a light was turned off, but if it were on it would read ON AIR — the message and music being broadcast to millions of listeners across the country.

River Christian Fellowship has put Twin Falls on the map with CSN International, a radio network that broadcasts religious messages every week to a growing audience.

“We reach about 42 million potential listeners right here from little ol’ Twin Falls,” Program Manager Don Mills said during a tour of the station Thursday. “We have more than 400 translators across the country.”

The radio network started in 1988 by church pastor Mike Kestler. Mills, who at the time did not have broadcast experience, said he learned a little at a time, starting in 1994 when he came on board.

“Back then we had only one station,” he said.

Now it’s a different beast, but its mission is the same: to spread a gospel message of hope.

Church services are broadcast at 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sundays. Programs originating from other locations across the country, with various different pastors, also are broadcast through CSN. There also is a program where Kestler answers questions about the Bible, weekdays starting at 4 p.m. Most of the calls he receives come from other states.

It’s a time for the church to reach out, sharing their biblical beliefs.

“We’re pretty straight down the line with your traditional evangelical Christians,” Mills said.

The church also plays contemporary church music, often getting responses from a young crowd of listeners.

“Listen to this,” Mills said, as he cranked up the volume on a song. “How can you not like that?”

On the Air

Listen to River Christian Fellowship’s national CSN Radio broadcast at 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday, and 4-5 p.m. Monday through Friday at KAWZ 89.9 FM and KEFX 88.9 FM. Or listen at www.csnradio.com. To contact the church, 733-3133.

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

Daniel Davidson, director of operations at CSN International, describes how they transmit content to about 400 stations around the country.

A feather in the radio’s cap, Mills said, is that it introduced some of today’s popular Christian musicians: Matt Redman and the group Hillsong, for instance.

Thank-you notes, letters and autographed pictures from the musicians hang on walls near the studio.

What’s not on the walls, but just as special to the station’s management, are the listeners, many who’ll drop thank-you notes on the station’s Facebook page. Sometimes fans from out of state will drop by to tour the church and broadcasting facility.

“How cool is that?” Mills said. “People actually make us a part of their vacations... We’re thankful to God to have those kinds of relationships.” A tough part about church radio? Though most of the broadcasts are automated, they’re closely monitored 24/7.

‘All You Need is Love’

Love is talked about over and over in the Bible. In the New International Version it is mentioned 508 times. That is probably because it is the one characteristic that should be most evident in our lives if we are God followers.

Love is number one on the Fruit of the Spirit list in Galatians 5:22. It ranks number one, because God has given it high level priority. Love outranks faith and hope in I Corinthians 13, where it says that these three remain — faith, hope and love — and the greatest of these is love.

We should be in pursuit of living a life filled with the love of God dwelling inside of us. It’s easy to live selfishly. It’s much harder to lay down our lives, walk in love, and live selflessly. We can determine to aim to live the higher life, where the attributes of love are more than evident. That higher life is a place where kindness, patience, forgiveness, courtesy, humility, generosity, and honesty toward others are a natural by-product of our authentic love for God.

Sometimes it is OK to ask “what if” questions. What if I didn’t retaliate? What if I didn’t have the last word? What if I kept my opinion to myself? What if I chose to say nothing instead of saying something damaging? What if I apologized first? What if I said something sweet instead of something negative? What if I asked, “how we can solve this?” What if we talked it out instead of leaving mad?

Dorette Schaal

Pastor’s Corner

Those “what if” questions can get us way down the road of love. We don’t have to live selfishly. We can make love a way of life, and live in harmony and peace with those around us.

“What if” you give it a try? You might be pleasantly surprised at what you discover.

So, why not start today? Work on being more loving with your family. Choose to walk in love. Let someone else go first. Say yes instead of whining and complaining. Prefer others above yourself. Love is an action.

When we begin acting with love all the time, our environments become more inviting. That line from the famous song by the Beatles is true ... all you need is love.

It is a great place to start, a fulfilling way to live and it can change you and those around you. Love really is the answer!

The church's several engineers, spread across the country, do a lot of traveling to make sure things are running properly in the field, said operations manager Daniel Davidson.

Some of the towers the church uses are located as far away as Alaska and Hawaii. The church also operates low-frequency television stations, pulling down Christian programs from its row of satellites that sit behind the church.

Austin Morris joined the church in 2005, she said, about the same time she started listening to CSN.

"It's pretty positive for folks who are in a dark place and might not have anyone else around to talk to," Morris said. "I like how we have a variety of pastors on, so if you're not sure about one you can get another view."

"We're here, we're there, we're not everywhere," Mills said. In his office is a map with push pins, both green and red, marking the locations of the radio's many different translators. A slew of them dot California's Pacific Coast.

"I feel like we are so blessed," Mills said. "We have 35 people work for us, and we can potentially reach 42 million people. I'm very honored to be working in this for the Lord, and to get paid for it. I feel good about what we're doing. The world needs something like this."

OBITUARIES

Veva Lanora Ridgway

Jan. 14, 1929-Oct. 18, 2012

JEROME • Veva Lanora Ridgway, 83, of Jerome, passed away Thursday, Oct. 18, 2012, at Ashley Manor in Kimberly.

Veva was born Jan. 14, 1929 in Seattle, Wash., the daughter of Clyde Lewis and Pearl Weaver Bevans. She had two brothers and two sisters. Veva loved to fish, hunt, crochet, knit, garden and spend time with her family. Her father was a baker and decided to move from Seattle to the Jerome area to farm and started a dairy north of Jerome. Mom always worked on the farm. She would help herd their cows out on the desert. This was where she met the love of her life, James D. Ridgway, who was also herding cows. Veva helped milk the cows, transport the milk to the ditches for cooling and then loaded them on the truck to take to the creamery. James D. and Veva L. were married July 1, 1951, in the Jerome Nazarene Church. They had three sons together, Johnnie L., Jay D. and James D. Mom and dad supported many teams and clubs. These include softball teams at church, 4-H clubs, the Gatehook softball and volleyball teams and all the activities their sons and grandchildren were involved in.

She was preceded in death by her husband; her parents; her two brothers, Howard and Lonnie; and her sister, Illa. She is survived by her sister, Eatheal; her three sons, Johnnie (Vivian), Jay (Darla) and James (Kathy); and her grandchildren, Jamie, Vanessa, Ashlee, James D. III, Christopher, Cassidy, Danielle, Brianna, Tara and Nicole; as well as one great-grandchild, Evelynnn.

The family would like to give a very special thanks to the staff at Ashley Manor in Kimberly and Hospice visions.

The funeral will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 20, at Rosenau Funeral Home, with burial to follow at the Jerome Cemetery. Friends are encouraged to share their memories at www.rosenau-funeralhome.com.

Janet Louise Ashley Owen

April 1, 1931-Oct. 18, 2012

KIMBERLY • Janet Louise Ashley Owen passed away Thursday, Oct. 18, 2012, at Oak Creek Rehabilitation Center in Kimberly, Idaho, following a long battle with Alzheimer's.

Janet was born April 1, 1931, in Emmett, Idaho, to Fred and Hattie Ashley; the youngest of nine children who have all preceded her in death. Janet graduated from Emmett High School in 1950. During her sophomore year in high school, Janet met Duane Owen and they were married July 29, 1950. From this union were born three children, Sharon, Greg and Sue. Janet and Duane moved from Emmett to Lewiston, Idaho, in 1958, when Duane joined the Idaho State Police. The family moved to Twin Falls in 1961, to Buhl in 1967, and returned to Twin Falls in 1974. In 1978, the couple returned to Lewiston when Duane was promoted to sergeant. While living there, Janet was very active in the Orchards Church of the Nazarene, including a clown ministry for children. She was also involved in Mothers Against Drunk Driving as an advocate in courtrooms.

When Duane retired in 1987, they moved back to southern Idaho to be close to their children and grandchildren. Janet worked various jobs in her lifetime — sorted potatoes on the potato trucks during harvest, worked pack at Green Giant, weighed beet trucks, licensed cars, was a radiology aide at Magic Valley Hospital and a clerk at the Twin Falls County courthouse. However, her favorite occupation was being a mom and grandma. She could make anything with a pound of hamburger, the best soups out of next to nothing, Spanish rice that no one knows how she made, roast beef and brown gravy and fudge. She was also quite a musician. She was first chair in the Emmett High School orchestra for most of her high school years. She was also pianist and played for family sing-alongs but preferred not to be in the public eye.

Surviving Janet is her husband of 62 years, Duane Owen of Kimberly; children, Sharon Reed of Boise, Greg (Jean) Owen of Boise and Sue (Mel) Stokesberry of Twin Falls; seven grandchildren, Jason, Jennifer, Tara, Shaun (Jen), Nathan (Megan), Nicholas and Patrick; and five great-grandchildren, Ariana, Cooper, Charlie, Emma and baby Kaylee arriving in January.

The service will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, Oct. 22, at the Kimberly Nazarene Church. The family will be greeting friends from 6 to 8 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 21, at Rosenau Funeral Home. A private graveside service will be held at the West End Cemetery in Buhl, Idaho. Friends are encouraged to share their memories of Janet at www.rosenaufuneralhome.com.

Little-known Monuments
Haunt U.S.-Mexican Border

SAN ANTONIO (AP) • Like silent sentries, they stand guard over 690 miles of varied terrain stretching from the Rio Grande to the Pacific. About 50 of the 276 monuments date to the 1850s, constructed after the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo ending the Mexican War. The majority were erected in the 1890s, when the land was resurveyed and a connect-the-dots line of obelisks — from a quarter mile to five miles apart — was installed by the International Boundary Commission to demarcate the border.

Most of us don't even know the monuments exist.

Until about six years ago, neither did David Taylor. "I didn't have any sense they were there, and most people don't," said Taylor, whose monument images are featured in the Fotoseptiembre exhibit "Alien Contexts: Mexico and the U.S.," which runs through Nov. 21 in the art gallery on the main University of Texas at San Antonio campus.

The Las Cruces photographer, who teaches at New Mexico State University, says he is trying to reveal with the ongoing project "a highly complex physical, social and political topography during a time of dramatic change."

3-Time Giro Winner
Fiorenzo Magni Dies

ROME (AP) • Fiorenzo Magni, a three-time Giro d'Italia champion, has died of an aneurism. He was 91.

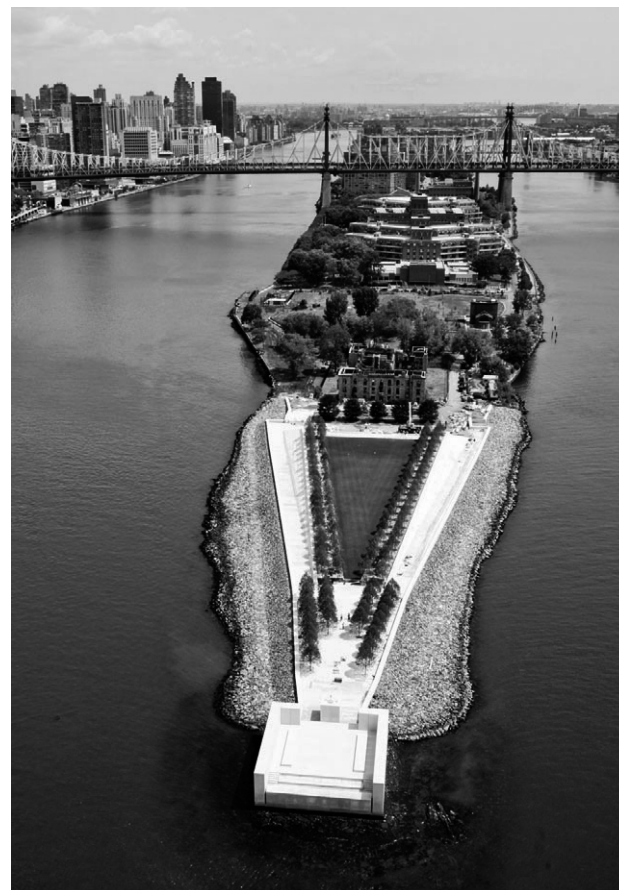

The Italian cycling federation announced Magni's death Friday.

The Giro winner in 1948, 1951 and 1955, Magni was a rival of cycling greats Fausto Coppi and Gino Bartali.

Italian cycling federation president Renato Di Rocco says that Magni was "respected and feared" by Coppi and Bartali, and that he helped revolutionize cycling by opening the sport to companies not associated with bicycles.

Di Rocco called for a minute's silence in Magni's honor to be held before every cycling race in Italy this weekend.

FDR Memorial Park
is Dedicated in NYC

NEW YORK (AP) • Dignitaries on Wednesday dedicated a new memorial state park overlooking the United Nations to former President Franklin Roosevelt.

The Franklin D. Roosevelt Four Freedoms Park, on an island in the East River, "will stand forever as a monument to the man who brought us through the Great Depression and brought us victory over great evil," Mayor Michael Bloomberg told several hundred people at the dedication ceremony, celebrating a design 40 years in the making.

Former President Bill Clinton said Roosevelt's dream for a better world "is still the right dream for America" and the park should remind the nation his lofty goals are worth pursuing.

The triangular park is named after Roosevelt's 1941 State of the Union address, known as the Four Freedoms Speech, given before America got involved in World War II. Roosevelt said the way to justify the enormous sacrifice of war was to create a world centered on four essential human freedoms: freedom of speech and expression, freedom of worship, freedom from want and freedom from fear. The words were later incorporated into the charter of the United Nations.

The park sits on Roosevelt Island, a 2-mile slice of land between Manhattan and Queens. The 4-acre expanse of green is flanked by 120 trees leading to a colossal bronze bust of Roosevelt at the threshold of a white granite open-air plaza.

The statue is an enlargement of a 28-inch bust of Roosevelt, also a New York governor, created by American sculptor Jo Davidson. It sits in a stone niche on the back of which a passage from the Four Freedoms speech is carved. The statue sits a mere 300 yards across the river from the headquarters of the United Nations, which Roosevelt helped found.

The park will open to the public on Oct. 24.

Former U.S. Ambassador to the U.N. William vanden Heuvel, chairman of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Four Freedoms Park LLC, said, "We hope visitors of different ages will understand that the four freedoms are the core values of democracy and that each generation has to be sure to protect them."

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and Mayor John Lindsay first announced creation of the memorial park and appointed Louis Kahn as its architect in 1973. Vanden Heuvel, who was there that day, said Kahn completed the drawings a year later. That year, Rockefeller became vice president, and the city verged on bankruptcy. With no money, the park was shelved.

The project was revived by vanden Heuvel in 2005 after an Oscar-nominated documentary about Kahn, "My Architect," brought renewed interest.

Over the next seven years, $53 million was raised, $34 million from private donors. The rest came from the city and the state. The park had been embroiled in a legal dispute with two of its major donors over how prominently their names would be displayed. The Alphonso Foundation, which donated $10.8 million, reached an undisclosed settlement, while the Reed Foundation, which gave $2.9 million, won a court judgment for its name to be engraved in an area near the memorial bust as spelled out in a contract. The park had argued that such a placement would dishonor Roosevelt and defile Kahn's work.

Roosevelt was stricken with polio at age 39 and needed a wheelchair for the rest of his life, and a sculpture highlighting his disability is planned. The statue, by sculptor Meredith Bergmann, will depict him seated in a wheelchair, reaching for the hand of a young girl on crutches.

Seventy-year-old Nancy Brown, who got polio at age 7 and attended the ceremony in a wheelchair, said the sculpture will be "an inspiration to people who are disabled, especially children."

In the next several years, the park hopes to transform a nearby abandoned hospital into a visitor's center. About 15,000 people live on the northern end of the island, which is reachable by tram or subway. The park plans to work closely with Cornell University, which is planning a graduate center on the island, on a nearby dock to transport people via water taxi and ferry.

NEED COUPONS?

Be a coupon clipper every Sunday

DEAR ABBY: I'm 13, and a few weeks ago I met a guy online, got his number and we texted — a lot. Before I knew it, we were flirting up a storm.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

He lives in Tennessee and I'm in Texas. He's the same age as I am, so I don't see anything wrong with liking him, even if he's so far away. We have decided not to date until we have a chance to meet each other in person.

The problem is, I feel like I love him. He doesn't call me "hot," he calls me "gorgeous." He doesn't call me "Babe," he calls me "Angel." He listens to me when I have a problem and gives me sweet advice.

Yes, I know I'm young and love is supposed to come later in life. Yes, it seems shady that I met him online and we have never talked face-to-face. I know I might be mistaking love for infatuation — I've heard all this before. But I trust this boy to be faithful and supportive of me.

How can I tell if I love him or not? Should I cut off contact with him? Is it OK to feel the way I do?

— TEENAGE GIRL IN A DREAM

DEAR TEENAGE GIRL: I'm all for young love, but before plunging in, I think both parties should know with whom they are having the pleasure. Has it occurred to you that because you met this person online and have never spoken face-to-face that he might NOT be who he says he is?

The person you have described may not be a teenage boy in Tennessee. He could be an adult man (or woman) ANYWHERE. He doesn't communicate in the language most teens of today use. He doesn't call you "hot," he doesn't call you "Babe." He is using terms that someone much older would use.

Personally, I think you should take a giant step backward until you AND a more experienced adult in your life learn more about him. Adults who carry on online romances with 13-year-old girls are called predators for good reason.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend of four years, "Taylor," and I are opposites in that I like to be on time and he is generally late. We usually work this out by leaving for an event I choose at the time I want, and leave for his friends' gatherings when he wants.

My problem is leaving for the airport when we travel together. We use public transportation, which takes 45 minutes, but things can go wrong and make it longer.

Taylor would like to leave so we arrive at the airport 45 minutes before our flights. This causes me a lot of stress because security lines can be long and I'm afraid of missing our plane. We have had to run through airports in order to avoid being left behind.

I'd like to be at the airport an hour and a half before flight time to be safe. Taylor hates waiting in the terminal when security is light and thinks we could be doing other things with our time. Please save me from our next argument and tell us who is right.

— FRAZZLED TRAVELER IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR FRAZZLED: You are. Better to be safe than sorry, especially when you have nonrefundable tickets, I have been on flights when seats were given to standby passengers because the ticketed passenger was held up for some reason. There are worse things than having to kill a half-hour at the airport. Missing your flight is one of them.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

IF OCTOBER 20 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your ability to be organized and precise helps you succeed during the next few weeks since a demanding schedule could challenge you to remain on your toes. Once the middle of November arrives, however, you will be able to be a bit more carefree and could even enjoy a romantic escapade or vacation. Getting ahead in the material world won't be far from your mind in December, when the stars help you make savvy decisions regarding finances, investments and career. In March, you could realize a longtime dream; that is a great time to launch a career, business, or financial enterprise that will enjoy lasting success.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't put off until tomorrow what you can do today. Procrastinating never got anything done so spring into action; do whatever needs doing. Don't waste your hard-earned money on a trivial purchase.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Think first, act second. You can diffuse a potentially volatile situation at home simply by employing some basic logic. You may be alerted to an enticing opportunity if you keep your eyes and ears open.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Flip a coin. If charts, graphs and infinite data haven't helped you come to a decision, then making a random choice may be the best solution. Beware of those with hidden agendas.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A rolling stone gathers no moss. Avoid developing a green posterior by staying up and active throughout the day. Physical activity provides the most satisfaction and does wonders for the waistline, as well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The game is afoot! Put your inner Sherlock Holmes to work by solving a mystery or tackling a mental puzzle. The brain requires just as much exercise as the body. A minor risk may be worth taking.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A good deed is a reward in itself. Though your generosity may not be appreciated, you will know in your heart that you've done the right thing. Don't waste time trying to change other people's opinions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do your homework. The more information you collect about a subject, the better you'll be able to make an educated decision. You may come to realize that you've outgrown one of your long term goals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The greatest achievements spring from the humblest beginnings. The idea that's been rattling around in your head could be the little acorn that grows into the great oak. Don't place limits on your ambition.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Expand your mind. Take in whatever fresh information you can find on any given subject, as there is no such thing as useless knowledge. Tried-and-true solutions could make things easier tomorrow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Throw caution to the wind. Set goals as high as possible and work toward them. The higher you raise the bar, the greater the reward. An offhand comment could hold the answers you've been looking for.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Look before you leap. Don't drive into unknown territory without first studying a map. Careless comments in mixed company could cause unnecessary friction. Mend the fence with adversaries.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Seek experienced counsel. A mentor may help you find a new perspective to tackle the problem that you can't seem to find an answer for. Don't be too proud to heed good advice when it comes your way.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Must I change my triumphant songs? said I to myself; Must I indeed learn to chant the cold dirges of the baffled? And sullen hymns of defeat?"
— Walt Whitman

Second hand low is not always best. Consider today's deal from the 2011 Bermuda Bowl, where South generally ended up playing two or three no-trump on a club lead to his nine. All declarers next played the diamond king, and most Easts won the second diamond to return a club. South does best to win and lead a spade, hoping to force an entry to dummy's diamonds.

West should now infer that East must have the spade king to have won the diamond. So if South leads a low spade, West must insert the 10! Now the defenders can deny declarer an entry to dummy whatever he does. By contrast, if South starts by leading out the spade jack, both defenders must duck

When Chris Bosenberg of South Africa was declarer, he played on diamonds at trick two. East took the second diamond and played back a heart.

Declarer finessed, cashed the club ace, and exited with a low heart — a fine play. East won and returned a low heart, letting declarer repeat the finesse (West pitching his diamond and a club) and play a spade to the nine and king. That now ensured the entry to dummy for the contract.

Here, the blocking play of the spade 10 by West would not have worked. East could win the spade king and return a spade, but declarer could play the spade jack. Now West's winning the trick gives declarer the entry to dummy, while ducking the trick leads to West's being subsequently endplayed in spades.

ANSWER: You have just enough to raise to four spades. The reason is that had your partner made a three-spade overcall, he would have already shown a decent opening bid. The double followed by a new suit shows even more extras, and while you cannot be sure your diamond queen and doubleton club will be useful, it is better to have them than not.
