ELECTION 2012

2 Challenge Ramsey for Blaine Sheriff

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

KETCHUM • Three candidates with varied amounts of Wood River Valley law enforcement experience are vying to be Blaine County's next sheriff.

The sheriff's current annual salary is $90,377.

Incumbent Gene Ramsey, a Republican, was appointed sheriff in March of last year after longtime Sheriff Walt Felling announced his retirement for health reasons. If re-elected, Ramsey said he isn't looking to make any drastic changes within the department but would maintain the goals he accomplished over the past 14 months.

Inmersión Dual Dual Immersion

The Blaine County School District looks at options for the future of its growing language program.

Jill Lecrone, a teacher at Woodside Elementary School in Hailey, works with Joseph Romero during a dual immersion program on Tuesday.

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

HAILEY • As first-grade teacher Adan Sanchez taught his students about syllables, he spent most of the time talking in Spanish.

But occasionally during the Tuesday morning lesson, he switched over to English if a student got confused.

When students broke into groups, some used pieces of paper to string together different sounds.

Next week, the Woodside Elementary School students will start reading text in Spanish.

"We're actually moving along pretty quickly," Sanchez said.

The English and Spanish languages, he said, share a lot of consonant sounds.

Sanchez said the theory behind dual immersion is that students will transfer language skills between English and Spanish.

And "the kids learn from each other," he said.

On the interactive whiteboard in Sanchez's classroom, a few Spanish words were written in a child's handwriting next to hand-drawn pictures.

"Zapato" was written next to a picture of a shoe. Nearby, a carrot was labeled with its Spanish name, "zanahoria."

Nearly everything in the classroom — from posters to the daily schedule — was written in Spanish.

Half of the first-grade students in the dual immersion program were next door learning in English.

Teacher Jill Lecrone helped one student sound out the name "Sam" as part of a story they were reading.

A Program for a Growing Need

Since the school opened its doors about seven years ago, Woodside Elementary School in Hailey has seen a shift in demographics.

This year, 51 percent of the students are English language learners.

'A CYCLIC THING' Ring rot is found on some Magic Valley farms; officials continue to study impact of zebra chip.

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

Editor's note: This story originally ran in Sunday's Agriculture section, but was inadvertently cut off. The Times-News regrets the error.

KIMBERLY • Potato growers in Idaho are caught between good news and bad.

A 2-month-old export ban on potatoes from Washington, Oregon and Idaho recently was lifted by the South Korean government.

The bad news: Zebra chip, a disease that damages potatoes by causing flecks in their flesh, is still a problem on some south-central Idaho farms, hitting growers where it hurts most — their pocketbooks.

"The bottom line is that it has affected the whole Northwest," said Frank Muir, president and CEO of the Idaho Potato Commission. "It hasn't been a significant impact just on Idaho."

What can help? A long, cold winter, he said.

But then there's this: bacterial ring rot disease, which also has been found in some Magic Valley crops, Muir said.

Mainly a threat to the appearance and storage of potatoes, bacterial ring rot is not associated with health concerns. But processors won't purchase the infected tubers.

Living Loved

"The secret to loving is living loved." — Max Lucado

Our first step of love is not toward the unlovable person who is giving us fits, but to a loving God who has given us mercy and forgiveness. Sometimes we need a love transfusion to save our marriage, preserve a friendship, or escape loneliness, abandonment and depression.

Love gives us a clear map to where we are going and how to best serve our families, friends and community. Love is all the reason we need to care for others and persevere through hard times.

We stop using others to meet our self-centered needs and recognize our relationships are based on giving and joining, rather than getting and separation. We come together with others as whole individuals with unique giftedness. We build loving communities where relationships are inclusive with unconditional acceptance for the uniqueness of each person. We join hearts to serve, help and love each other.

Life is not about explaining or judging our teenagers' behavior or motives, but being there for them. We tune in to what they think is important. Let our inner voice teach us how to love and join together for mutual benefit. This gives us all the direction we need for parenting. We choose to act or react out of love or fear.

Tom grew up with alcoholic parents, who abused and neglected him. He learned to hide pain from his friends, but that didn't make it go away. Without the loving acceptance and affirmation he needed, he began to isolate and withdraw into himself. His anger grew into hate. Without a map of love for life, he began to explore different paths that took him deeper into his bitter and lonely life. His math teacher saw in Tom's dark eyes a cry for help and reached out to him. That love gave Tom a second chance.

I encourage you to choose love instead of fear and peace instead of conflict. As we refocus our thoughts on doing the loving thing, our minds begin the healing process. Tom found happiness by letting go his past fear and moving on in a new direction of love.

He found acceptance as a part of a community. He received the joy of belonging. He no longer felt alone and abandoned. Love changed his heart, and his words and actions began to communicate love to others. Living loved, he began to heal, grow healthy and strong.

We are all equally teachers and students of each other in community. And, with God's loving help, there is hope for anyone.

Today, someone needs my forgiveness, tolerance, service, kindness, charity, patience, good example and respect. Which is it for me? I won't go on hiding behind a myriad of excuses, which keep me only surviving without the map of love to guide me.

A mother's heart, a man's dog or a faithful friend give us clear pictures of a changed world where love is. Living loved, we can all make a difference.

Immersion

And out of those 181 children, 108 are enrolled in the dual immersion program.

Molly Michalec, the school district's dual immersion coordinator, said the 12-year-old program is also one way of reaching out to English language learners.

Under the Blaine County School District's program, students learn in both English and Spanish.

In each class, there are native English speakers and native Spanish speakers.

At each school, the dual immersion program is run through a collaboration of two teachers per grade level.

It's the only program of its kind among south-central Idaho schools.

With growing enrollment in the dual immersion program, there are some large decisions on the horizon for the Blaine County School District.

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

Woodside Elementary School fifth-graders Samantha Gutierrez, left, Julissa Palomera and Valente Palomera use a catapult to launch pingpong balls during science class in Hailey at a dual immersion program on Tuesday.

The Future

Over the years, the school district's dual immersion program has grown significantly.

In 2001, there were just 60 students in the program. Now, there are more than 600 in kindergarten through the fifth grade.

And there are about 200 dual immersion students in middle and high school.

The school district is looking at the future of the program at the elementary school level.

The first meeting about the topic was in February 2011, and many more meetings followed.

Michalec said changes are being considered because of the growth of the program, as well as a disproportionate number of special needs students in some classrooms.

At Woodside Elementary, fourth-grade dual immersion teacher Deborah Van Law said she'd like to see the program continue strong.

"I just want to see the opportunity for kids to participate," she said.

Last month, the board of trustees voted to look at two options.

The first: Woodside Elementary would become a magnet school. It would serve just dual immersion students.

Non-dual immersion students in the Woodside attendance area would go to Bellevue or Hailey elementary schools.

One dual immersion class per grade level would remain at Hemingway Elementary School in Ketchum.

Tiffany Lago — co-PTA president at Woodside Elementary — has a first-grader at Woodside who isn't in the dual immersion program.

That could mean changing schools if the first proposal is chosen.

Lago said Woodside Elementary is a great school and "the thought about going somewhere else is a bummer."

She said the magnet school concept makes sense, but has pros and cons.

"You're not going to make everyone happy," she said.

The second option: One classroom of dual immersion per grade level at each of the district's four elementary schools.

That would mean one fewer class per grade level.

Woodside Elementary Principal Brad Henson said it's a tough decision.

"We want to make sure we do it right," he said.

If Woodside becomes a magnet school, it would lead to a more bilingual culture in the school building.

Henson said it would also mean dual immersion elementary school teachers would be under one roof.

School district spokeswoman Heather Crocker said current dual immersion students will be able to stay in the program.

In November, the school district's board of trustees will look at results of a survey to see which option community members prefer.

Crocker said a decision could come as early as December.

Changing Demographics

Kathleen Diepenbrock has seen how the number of English language learners has grown over the years.

Diepenbrock — who has been an English as a New Language (ENL) teacher in Blaine County for 18 years — said just 4 percent of students in the school district were English language learners when she started.

Since then, there has been a "pretty steep growth curve," she said.

Now, the school district has the largest percentage of "Limited English Proficient" (LEP) students out of the state's 31 largest school districts.

Last year, 23 percent of the district's students in the third through 10th grades were LEP.

Diepenbrock — who is one of several ENL teachers at Woodside Elementary — said all schools in Blaine County have seen changing demographics. The shift mirrors the population of the Wood River Valley.

Crocker said hospitality and construction remain some of the largest industries in the area.

New homes are being built in the area, she said, despite the economic downturn.

What's Happening at Woodside?

On a rainy Tuesday morning, students arrived at Woodside Elementary School with jacket hoods over their heads.

Once inside the school building, Henson greeted each student with a high-five.

Over the past few years, the school's population of English language learners has hovered around 50 to 60 percent of the student body.

"What that says is classrooms look fundamentally different for teachers," Henson said.

He said it can be a huge learning curve for teachers, but the district has provided training on how to work with students who speak English as a second language.

Also, Woodside Elementary has more employees who are fluent in Spanish than ever before.

Henson estimated there are about 15 this year — from teachers to front office employees.

With changing demographics, Henson said one challenge is making sure Latino parents have a voice at the school.

Woodside Elementary organizes community nights to encourage parents to come to the school.

Programs are presented in both English and Spanish.

Lago said she hasn't noticed a large increase in English language learners.

She said it's great for her first-grader to have classmates who are native Spanish speakers.

"As a parent and a PTA member, the population at Woodside is so diverse," she said.

With a large population of English language learners, the dual immersion program also plays a role.

Diepenbrock said there are only 73 LEP students who aren't in the dual immersion program.

It allows the school's ENL teachers to work with a smaller number of students and prioritize which ones most need the help.

Fourth-grade teacher Katharine Oliver — who has a non-dual immersion classroom — said the changing demographics have been a good thing.

But with the dual immersion program growing, she doesn't have as many English language learners in her class this year.

She said changing demographics at Woodside have led to a richer classroom environment and challenged teachers to grow.

"It just adds a beautiful, cultural enrichment to our lives," she said.

Sheriff

Challenger Steve England, an independent, said he's running because he wants to expand his law enforcement knowledge and ambition.

"I hit my ceiling at the Hailey Police Department," England said. "I strongly believe in having a stake in your community. The community needs to trust and appreciate their law enforcement!"

Write-in candidate Larry Clark is running as a Republican. Clark was a finalist to be appointed sheriff when Fleming retired last March.

If elected, Clark says the Blaine County Sheriff's Office needs to improve its communication both inside and outside the department.

Clark also said he wants to increase drug prevention programs in schools.

"There needs to be better communication," he said. "I'm not going to bad-mouth the department with issues. They don't need to be brought out outside of the department. There are a lot of smart people at the county, we can improve these areas."

However, Ramsey argues that the sheriff's office has improved its communication.

"There is not a communication breakdown at this department," he said. "What we've really tried to do is bring that transparency to the whole process. That's been a goal the county has been working on in the last 14 months!"

During his time as sheriff, Ramsey worked to secure a $1.4 million grant for radio equipment and installed the county's E911 system shared by the area law agencies. Ramsey said he would like to seek out more grants to further programs within the department if reelected.

For England, he said he would increase neighborhood patrols in subdivisions in the county and start a victim advocate program at no cost to the department.

"It would become part of the officer's duties to patrol those areas," England said. "For the program, I would use personnel currently in place so we wouldn't have to change the budget."

Housing, Chobani on T.F. Agenda

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Today, the Twin Falls City Council will hold a public hearing on a zoning amendment request for a proposed low-income housing development.

Developers plan to locate the property on Field Stream Way between North College Road and Pole Line Road West. The proposed complex would include 60 units, a playground and carpools. The request includes minor amendments to the existing zoning requirements, such as materials used on the exterior of the complex.

According to a timeline provided to the city, the developers have applied for low-income housing funds and tax credits. They expect to hear if they will receive that funding by late November. Developers plan to begin construction in June 2013, and be ready for residents in February 2014.

The agenda also includes a request to establish a Local Improvement District on a piece of Chobani's property, though the agenda packet includes no other mention of the item. City Council members will receive the petition and related materials at tonight's meeting.

The Twin Falls City Council meets today at 5:30 p.m. at the Twin Falls City Council Chambers, 305 3rd Ave. E.

ROMNEY VS. OBAMA

Watch the Debate

Undecided voters will be the targets when Mitt Romney and President Obama hold their third and final debate tonight at 7 local time. Most of the major networks will broadcast the debate.

PSST, TAXES GO UP IN 2013

BY STEPHEN OHLEMACHER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • President Barack Obama isn't talking about it and neither is Mitt Romney. But come January, 163 million workers can expect to feel the pinch of a big tax increase regardless of who wins the election.

A temporary reduction in Social Security payroll taxes is due to expire at the end of the year and hardly anyone in Washington is pushing to extend it. Neither Obama nor Romney has proposed an extension, and it probably wouldn't get through Congress anyway, with lawmakers in both parties down on the idea.

Even Republicans who have sworn off tax increases have little appetite to prevent one that will cost a typical worker about $1,000 a year, and two-earner family with six-figure incomes as much as $4,500.

Why are so many politicians sour on continuing the payroll tax break?

Republicans question whether reducing the tax two years ago has done much to stimulate the sluggish economy. Politicians from both parties say they are concerned that it threatens the independent revenue stream that funds Social Security.

They are backed by powerful advocates for seniors, including AARP, who adamantly oppose any extension.

"The payroll tax holiday was intended to be temporary and there is strong bipartisan support to let that tax provision expire," said Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah, the top Republican on the Senate Finance Committee. "The continued extension of a temporary payroll tax holiday has serious long-term implications for Social Security and, frankly, it's not even clear that it has helped to boost our ailing economy."

The question of renewing the payroll tax cut has been overshadowed by the expiration of a much bigger package of tax cuts first enacted under President George W. Bush. The Bush-era tax cuts also expire at the end of the year, and Congress is expected to try to address them after the election, in a lame-duck session.

The payroll tax cut could become part of the mix in negotiations that could go in many directions. But lawmakers in both political parties say they doubt it.

"I think there's a growing consensus that Congress and the president can't continue to divert such a critical revenue stream from Social Security," said Rep. Kevin Brady of Texas, a senior Republican on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee. "I think more and more Americans understand that that payroll tax cut, while politically appealing, is endangering Social Security."

Ex-Venezuelan VP Says He Met with Fidel Castro

BY ANDREA RODRIGUEZ
Associated Press

HAVANA • Former Venezuelan Vice President Elias Jaua said Sunday that he met with aging revolutionary icon Fidel Castro for five hours and showed The Associated Press photos of the encounter, quashing persistent rumors that the former Cuban leader was on his deathbed or had suffered a massive stroke.

Castro

Jaua also confirmed that the 86-year-old retired Cuban president personally accompanied him to the Hotel Nacional after their meeting Saturday, in which they talked about politics, history, culture and tourism.

"He had the courtesy of bringing me to the hotel," Jaua said Sunday, adding that Castro looked "very well."

Jaua showed a photograph of himself seated in a minibus along with the former Cuban leader, Castro's wife, Dalia Soto del Valle, a hotel executive and several other people. The photo shows Jaua and Castro smiling broadly, and the former Cuban leader is wearing a checked shirt and cowboy hat.

The public appearance was Castro's first in months. A top Hotel Nacional executive told the AP earlier Sunday how Castro had dropped off the Venezuelan guest, then stayed on to chat with hotel staff.

"Fidel Castro was here yesterday, he brought a guest and spoke to workers and hotel leaders for 30 minutes," commercial director Yamila Fuster said. Fuster was not present, but hotel director Antonio Martinez is seated next to Castro in the photo shown by Jaua.

After 3 Dead, Suspect Shoots Self

BY DINESH RAMDE
Associated Press

BROOKFIELD, Wis. • A man police suspected of killing three and wounding four by opening fire at a tranquil day spa was found dead Sunday afternoon following a six-hour manhunt that locked down a shopping center, country club and hospital in suburban Milwaukee.

Authorities said they believed the shooting was related to a domestic dispute. The man they identified as the suspect, Radcliffe Franklin Haughton, 45, of Brown Deer, had a restraining order against him.

Brookfield Police Chief Dan Tushaus said Haughton died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound and was found in the spa. Authorities initially believed Haughton had fled and spent much of Sunday looking for him.

The shooting happened about 11 a.m. at the Azana Day Spa, a two-story, 9,000-square-foot building across from a major shopping mall in Brookfield, a middle-to-upper class community west of Milwaukee. Hours later, a bomb squad descended on the building, and Tushaus said an improvised explosive device had been found inside. It was not clear whether it remained a threat.

Haughton's father, Radcliffe Haughton, Sr., spoke to a television station and The Associated Press shortly before police announced his son's death. In telephone interviews from Florida, he said he had last spoken to his son a few days ago, but didn't have any indication anything was wrong. He begged his son to turn himself in.

After learning of his son's death, he said, "This is very sad."

Police released little about Haughton other than a physical

Online court records showed a temporary restraining order was issued against him Oct. 8 in Milwaukee County Circuit Court because of a domestic abuse complaint. Haughton appeared in court Thursday, when a no-contact order was issued, and he was told to turn all his weapons over to the sheriff's department.

It was not clear who sought the restraining order, but his father said he was married.

A sea of ambulances and police vehicles collected at the scene shortly after the shooting. A witness, David Gosh of nearby West Allis, told the Milwaukee Journal-Sentinel he was returning from duck hunting with his father and a friend when he saw a woman emerge from the spa, screaming, as she ran into traffic. The area is near an interstate and a busy commercial road.

"She ran right out into the street and was pounding on cars," Gosh told the newspaper. Moments later, a man with a handgun ran out. He appeared to be chasing the woman but then went back inside, Gosh said.

The mall, a country club adjacent to the spa and the hospital where survivors were taken were among the buildings locked down as police searched for Haughton. At the hospital, staff members were escorted inside and critically injured patients were accepted with a police escort. Officers were stationed at all main entrances.

People inside the mall waited patiently for updates during the lockdown.

"We're just sitting watching the news and also trying to find out what's going on," a mall restaurant employee Gina Kralik said.

Scientists Link Deep Wells to Deadly Spain Quake

BY JORGE SAINZ AND FRANK JORDANS
Associated Press

MADRID • Farmers drilling ever deeper wells over decades to water their crops likely contributed to a deadly earthquake in southern Spain last year, a new study suggests. The findings may add to concerns about the effects of new energy extraction and waste disposal technologies.

Nine people died and nearly 300 were injured when an unusually shallow magnitude-5.1 quake hit the town of Lorca on May 11, 2011. It was the country's worst quake in more than 50 years, causing millions of euros in damage to a region with an already fragile economy.

Using satellite images, scientists from Canada, Italy and Spain found the quake ruptured a fault running near a basin that had been weakened by 50 years of groundwater extraction in the area.

During this period, the water table dropped by 274 yards as farmers bored ever deeper wells to help produce the fruit, vegetables and meat that are exported from Lorca to the rest of Europe. In other words, the industry that propped up the local economy in southern Spain may have undermined the very ground on which Lorca is built.

The researchers noted that even without the strain caused by water extraction, a quake would likely have occurred at some point.

But the extra stress of pumping vast amounts of water from a nearby aquifer may have been enough to trigger a quake at that particular time and place, said lead researcher Pablo J. Gonzalez of the University of Western Ontario, Canada.

Miguel de las Doblas Lavigne, a geologist with Spain's National Natural Science Museum who has worked on the same theory but was not involved in the study, said the Lorca quake was in the cards.

"This has been going on for years in the Mediterranean areas, all very famous for their agriculture and plastic greenhouses. They are just sucking all the water out of the aquifers, drying them out," he told The Associated Press in a telephone interview. "From Lorca to (the regional capital of) Murcia you can find a very depleted water level."

De las Doblas said it was "no coincidence that all the aftershocks were located on the exact position of maximum depletion."

"The reason is clearly related to the farming, it's like a sponge you drain the water from; the weight of the rocks makes the terrain subside and any small variation near a very active fault like the Alhama de Murcia may be the straw that breaks the camel's back, which is what happened," he said.

Funeral for Slain Lebanese Intelligence Chief Turns Ugly

BY PATRICK J. MCDONNELL
Los Angeles Times

BEIRUT • A politically charged funeral for a slain police intelligence chief devolved into clashes in the heart of the Lebanese capital Sunday as angry mourners tried to storm the prime minister's office but were pushed back by troops.

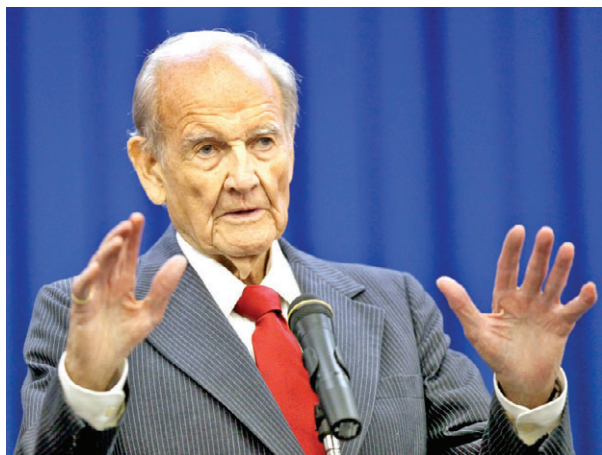

Soldiers used tear gas and fired shots in the air to disperse the enraged crowd of several hundred—mostly young men, some wielding sticks.

The clashes followed a somber and peaceful funeral for Gen. Wissam Hassan, the police intelligence chief assassinated Friday in a car bomb in a upscale Beirut neighborhood.

Authorities initially said eight people were killed in Friday's explosion, but have since reduced the death toll to three, including the police official and a bodyguard.

The car bombing — the first significant attack in the Lebanese capital in four years — has outraged opponents of Lebanon's government and resulted in calls for the nation's ruling coalition to resign. The incident has also raised tensions in a nation with deep religious and political divides and a history of sectarian conflict.

George McGovern speaks Jan. 20 during First Coast Technical College's winter commencement ceremony in St. Augustine, Fla. A family spokesman says, McGovern, the Democrat who lost to President Richard Nixon in 1972 in a historic landslide, has died at the age of 90.

George McGovern Dies; Lost 1972 Presidential Bid

BY KRISTI EATON
AND WALTER R. MEARS

SIoux FALLS, S.D. • George McGovern once joked that he had wanted to run for president in the worst way — and that he had done so.

It was a campaign in 1972 dishonored by Watergate, a scandal that fully unfurled too late to knock Republican President Richard M. Nixon from his place as a commanding favorite for re-election. The South Dakota senator tried to make an issue out of the bungled attempt to wiretap the offices of the Democratic National Committee, calling Nixon the most corrupt president in history.

But the Democrat could not escape the embarrassing missteps of his own campaign. The most torturous was the selection of Missouri Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton as the vice presidential nominee and, 18 days later, following the disclosure that Eagleton had undergone electroshock therapy for depression, the decision to drop him from the ticket despite having pledged to back him "1,000 percent."

It was at once the most memorable and the most damaging line of his campaign, and called "possibly the most single damaging faux pas ever made by a presidential candidate" by the late political writer Theodore H. White.

After a hard day's campaigning — Nixon did virtually none — McGovern would complain to those around him that nobody was paying attention. With R. Sargent Shriver as his running mate, he went on to carry only Massachusetts and the District of Columbia, winning just 38 percent of the popular vote in one of the biggest landslides losses in American presidential history.

"Tom and I ran into a little snag back in 1972 that in the light of my much advanced wisdom today, I think was vastly exaggerated," McGovern said at an event with Eagleton in 2005. Noting that Nixon and his running mate, Spiro Agnew, would both ultimately resign, he joked, "If we had run in '74 instead of '72, it would have been a piece of cake."

A proud liberal who had argued fervently against Vietnam War as a Democra-

"I am a liberal and always have been. Just not the wild-eyed character the Republicans made me out to be."

George McGovern

tic senator from South Dakota and three-time candidate for president, McGovern died at 5:15 a.m. Sunday at a Sioux Falls hospice, family spokesman Steve Hildebrand told The Associated Press. McGovern was 90.

McGovern's family had said late last week that McGovern had become unresponsive while in hospice care, and Hildebrand said he was surrounded by family and lifelong friends when he died.

"We are blessed to know that our father lived a long, successful and productive life advocating for the hungry, being a progressive voice for millions and fighting for peace. He continued giving speeches, writing and advising all the way up to and past his 90th birthday, which he celebrated this summer," the family said in the statement.

A funeral will be held in Sioux Falls, with details announced shortly, Hildebrand said.

A decorated World War II bomber pilot, McGovern said he learned to hate war by waging it. In his disastrous race against Nixon, he promised to end the Vietnam War and cut defense spending by billions of dollars. He helped create the Food for Peace program and spent much of his career believing the United States should be more accommodating to the former Soviet Union.

Never a showman, he made his case with a style as plain as the prairies where he grew up, sounding often more like the Methodist minister he'd once studied to become than longtime U.S. senator and three-time candidate for president he became.

And he never shied from the word "liberal," even as other Democrats blanched at the word and Republicans used it as an epithet.

"I am a liberal and always have been," McGovern said in 2001. "Just not the wild-eyed character the Republicans made me out to be."

Jean Mathis Clough

Sept. 27, 1932-Oct. 19, 2012

TWIN FALLS • On Oct. 19, 2012, our precious wife, mother and grandmother Jean Mathis Clough ascended to Heaven in the arms of angels. Jeanie was a vibrant, beautiful woman who loved life and everyone in her life to the fullest.

She was born on Sept. 27, 1932, in Twin Falls, Idaho, to Troy and Elna Jones. She was raised and attended schools in Gooding and Twin Falls. She met the love of her life, James Mathis. They were married June 9, 1951, in Ely, Nev. After marrying, they moved to El Paso, Texas, while he was serving in the Army. After completing his tour of duty, they moved to Twin Falls where they lived and raised their family. They were blessed with three daughters Sylvia, Debra and Lynn. Her passion in life was her family & friends.

She was a "domestic engineer" being the best wife, mother and homemaker. Her hobbies began and ended with Christmas. In her home it was Christmas everyday with shopping, planning, cooking, decorating, wrapping and pondering all year where to place the biggest Christmas tree in town. Basically, she was Santa's right-hand man and a jolly ol' soul. Her other hobbies included bowling, camping, Yahtzee, cards, Jackpot and visiting with her loved ones.

On Nov. 27, 1995, her first husband, Jim, passed away. Four years later, she was blessed with a new love, Phillip Clough. They married April 10, 1999, in Las Vegas, Nev. They spent many of their golden years traveling the United States and snowbirding in Arizona.

Survivors are husband, Phillip Clough; brother, Gail Jones, Twin Falls, Idaho; children, Sylvia (Rick) Krambule, Syracuse, Utah, Debra (Paul) Clark, Lynn (Brian) Harmison, Twin Falls, Idaho, Donita Taylor, Litchfield Park, Ariz., and Tony (Debra) Clough, Twin Falls, Idaho. She has 14 grandchildren, 31 great-grandchildren, one great-great-grandchild on the way and numerous nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her parents; first husband; two brothers, Nyle and Armond Jones; a sister, Letha Hall; a son, Shane Clough; and two great-great-grandchildren, Kairyn and Gabriele Kilburn.

At the time of her death, she resided at Heritage Assisted Living. The family would like to express deep appreciation and gratitude for the wonderful care mom received and exceptional hospitality for the family. We would also like to thank Visions Home Health and Hospice for their guidance and care during this most difficult time.

Visitation will be held from 5-7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 22, 2012, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 23, 2012 at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home.

Those who wish may share memories and condolences on Jean's memorial page at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

OPINION

“He’s forgetting what his own positions are, and he’s betting that you will too. We’ve got to name this condition that he’s going through. I think it’s called Romnesia.”

President Barack Obama on Republican rival Mitt Romney, who countered by calling the moniker ‘silly word games’

Props 1, 2 and 3 Might Have a Chance

From since a couple of months past the time the three school propositions — 1, 2 and 3 — aimed at overturning what have been called the “Luna laws” were developed and circulated, they looked like losers. I’ve written and said as much.

Randy Stapilus
Ridenbaugh.com

Today, not so much. In Idaho’s political climate, you couldn’t possibly call them a slam dunk for passage, but the route to repeal does look more realistic than even, say, a month ago.

The laws were passed at the request of Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna and Governor C.L. “Butch” Otter in the 2011 legislative session. They were sprung as a massive surprise, unmentioned in the preceding election campaign (Luna never hinted at what was ahead), for legislators as well as people in the state. They’ve become known for greatly reducing teacher collective bargaining ability, merit pay which could link to teaching to tests, and large-scale provision of laptop computers to students.

Jerry Evans, the four-term Republican SPI who retired in 1995 and one of the most knowledgeable Idahoans ever on the mechanics of the state’s education system, cited the impacts in a recent column opposing the laws as aimed at reducing the influence of the Idaho Education Association, “in effect trading teachers for computers” and prospectively “the base salary for all teachers may be further reduced.” (Don’t try arguing school budgeting with Evans; he knows more about that than you do.)

Still, in Idaho’s political climate, there’s a “so what’s your point?” element to the debate. The passion against the laws seemed to trend downward from the spring of 2011 through this summer, and that kind of passion can be hard to rebuild. The November election looks likely to draw out a lot of Republicans to vote in Idaho, and while not all Republicans supported the laws, most of Idaho’s Republican leadership did and does.

But something is afoot. Numbers from the Associated Press (sourced from the Department of Education, which Luna runs) show that the number of Idaho teachers departing of their own volition, as opposed to layoffs or firings, increased in 2011 by more than 500 compared to the year before, and more than 1,000 more than the year before that — this in a bum economy that logically would have kept teachers hanging on to their jobs. Word of such a large trend may well have circulated around the state.

Have there been other changes on the ground? Based on the purely political evidence, you tend to think so. News stories about the slowness of laptop deliveries may have sunk in. There’s been an energetic campaign pushing the referenda which seems to have cohered only since mid-year, but maybe that has something to do with it too.

Debates over the issue, such as one a few weeks back featuring Luna and (in the opposition) state Representative Brian Cronin, have turned unexpectedly testy — an indicator that this isn’t a runaway issue. And then there’s the recent polling, some by the anti-law group but also from news media, which seems to show the laws failing.

Whether they will is still unclear. A lot depends, as ever, on who turns out to vote, and Idaho’s very conservative voters are likely to be there in full force. But in a way that didn’t look likely even a couple of months back, this seems to be developing into a real, live, serious battle.

Stone a Good Choice

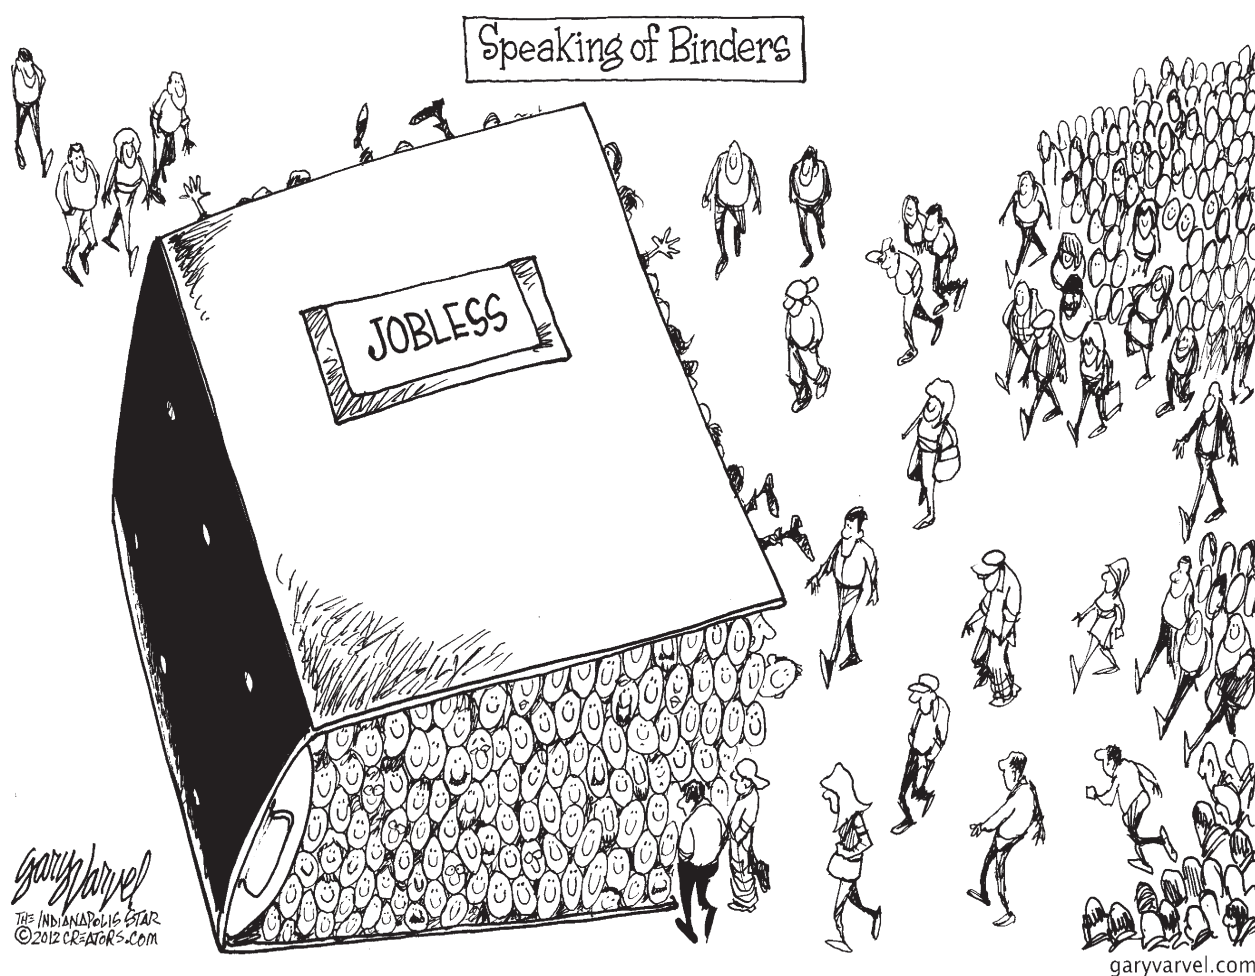

Laird Stone is a nice, well-liked man. He is a lifetime Magic Valley resident, a successful partner in an excellent law firm, a longtime supporter of the College of Southern Idaho, married years and years to a CSI graduate and has been named the prestigious Chamber of Commerce Lifetime Achievement Award winner.

He is involved in many community activities from Scouting to youth sports and is a member of a local church. More importantly, Laird Stone is very well qualified to represent the citizens of Jerome and Twin Falls counties as a member of the CSI Board of Trustees.

As well as his glowing personal qualifications, he was a leader for several years on the Idaho State Board of Education. Laird is a natural leader but has retained a strong sense of humbleness and an attitude of servitude.

Both Lois and I will be voting for Laird Stone on Nov. 6. We invite you to join us.

How Many Lawsuits Is Too Many?

How many “lawsuits” do you voters need before you realize Tom Carter is costing lots of money?

I do not get the paper all the time, but so far I have read about two. Interesting how they hit the paper after we have voted.

It’s time to vote again, and I want to know how many are just waiting until after we vote again?

Thank you, Etta Mauldin

One of our own encouraging people of our valley has left our presence. She lived a life which was dealt to her in a very unique way. Her name was Etta Mauldin.

When we look at life today, sometimes it is hard to visualize her life. Our nation was going through very hard times. The Depression hit our land and money had no value. I have to sit back and wonder what in the world we would do if this should happen to our America today.

As life happened, she met and fell in love and was married at an early age. She had three small boys when the dust storms hit Kansas and the decision to leave was made because of no food or money. She and her beloved Oren heard of work for hire in mines of Kellogg, Idaho.

They traded their team and wagon for a vehicle and headed west. But as life happens, when they got as far as Jerome, their vehicle broke down. No way to fix it, they had to figure out how to survive with no family to help and only their courageous spirits.

They were hard workers and must have been very creative. A farmer let them stay in their barn for that first summer while Oren helped with farming and planting, mostly by hand.

Etta must have been very creative because she canned everything and wasted nothing. Fifteen hundred quarts of harvest were her goal as her family grew, which was eaten by spring and time to start the process over again. Her world was without power or water, at times, with small babies and cotton diapers. A world foreign to many, but a reality memory to lots of our readers.

World War II came along and ration stamps. Etta made soda crackers with some of her flour rations as a way of trade and warm crackers with butter is in the memories of her children. Later in life, she turned to candies and even great-grandchildren have memories of her candy instructions with not a drop of waste of sugar or water. Each batch was made in the same pan. And the leftover bowl and pan drippings were mixed with warm water as a drink at the end of a hard day.

It turned out a fun celebration to hear of her 96 years. The time when a doctor told her that she needed to do one thing for herself. She took it to heart, for herself and each of her children. Maybe that was when she took a piece of paper and pencil and started writing poetry. Her poems were full of reality, laughter and creativity.

Oh that our lives can end in such a song. Thank you, Etta Mauldin, for living at this time when we were able to meet you.

Vote No on Props 1-3

I urge you to vote no on Props 1, 2 and 3.

Tom Luna proposed these laws in 2011. Parents and educators examined this plan and flooded the Legislature asking our representatives reject them. Mr. Luna pushed them through anyway. Immediately, outraged Idaho citizens collected enough signatures to put them on the ballot for repeal.

Proposition 1: “The law that gives parents a voice” implies all educators (also parents and grandparents) have been ignoring you. This law also “ended tenure” which Idaho teachers have never had. Continuing contracts were issued the third year of teaching with school board approval. Fair employment practices required districts to inform teachers of unsatisfactory performance and give them six weeks to improve before dismissal. Now a teacher can teach all year, get good evaluations and still be fired. Teachers also lost the opportunity to discuss important student needs during negotiations. Check recent teacher turnover in schools and ask yourself why.

Prop 2: “The way to reward teachers” with pay for performance. This implies that teachers have not been working tirelessly for students, but if we pay you for passing this test (the only way a district will get any money), they will finally start teaching better. Do you really believe that?

Prop 3: The “21st Century Learner” law. For years, teachers have brought their own technology into classrooms because of inadequate funding. What does Idaho do? During economic emergency, they divert funds from districts to pay for laptops for students. Many districts already offered online college courses. This is nothing new. Have you voted for a levy recently? Are class sizes larger because districts cannot replace teachers? Are parents buying more supplies? This law only stripped local districts of control over their budgets.

So I urge you, vote no on Props 1, 2 and 3.

Generate Billions or Waste Trillions

In response to Mr. Hartley’s comments on President Obama and Mitt Romney (Oct. 15):

You stated that the reason President Obama did so poorly in the debate was because he was preoccupied with so many situations crucial to our well-being. His reaction to “all those crucial situations” was to participate in the TV talk show circuit and jet to Las Vegas for a lavish party the day after our embassy was destroyed and our ambassador was brutally murdered. You also stated that all Mitt Romney had to do to get ready for the debate was to “count his money!”

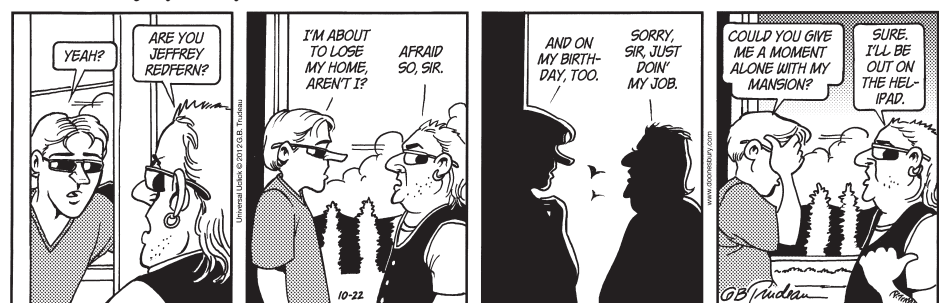

Why do you have a problem with successful businessmen counting their money? Mitt Romney’s Bain Capital invested private money and made successful businesses out of AMC Entertainment, Burger King, Burlington Coat Factory, Clear Channel Communications, Domino’s Pizza, Dunk ‘n’ Donuts, Sports Authority, Staples, Toys “R” Us, Warner Music Group.

Obama invested taxpayers’ money in Solyndra (bankrupt), Ener 1 (bankrupt), Beacon Power (bankrupt), Abound Solar (bankrupt), Amonix Solar (bankrupt), Spectra Watt (bankrupt), Eastern Energy (bankrupt). All of these companies were Obama campaign contributors.

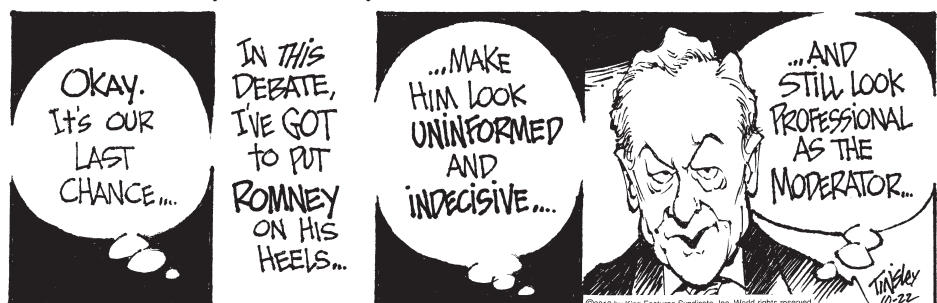

Do you want a businessman who has generated billions or a president who has wasted trillions. You decide!

Repealing Obamacare Would Increase Federal Deficit

There is a lot of political misinformation out there right now and it has a lot of people scared. I don't think scaring people is nice, so I want to discuss some of this misinformation.

There is a website called Politifact Truthometer that you can go to and check out for the truth. (Politifact is a non-partisan Pulitzer prize-winning entity.) This site is really interesting because it tells you what is true and what isn't true on both the Democratic and Republican sides.

I want to talk about Obamacare. People have been told that small businesses will be required to cover their employees with health insurance. This is only true if you have 50 or more full-time employees. (See sections 1513 and 4980H of the Affordable Care Act). For larger companies, those with 50 or more full-time employees, there are fines if they do not offer insurance and one of their employees qualifies for government-subsidized insurance.

There are no penalties for businesses with fewer than 50 full-time employees, but there are tax credits for employers who have their employees insured no matter how many employees they have. If the law is allowed to fully take effect, small businesses will be allowed to choose from exchanges which will give them more options and choices just as some larger companies do.

Have you ever noticed that people who work for large companies have a lot better insurance than the rest of us? The choices they have and the added competition allows them better care. If you like your policy, you can keep it unless your employer changes it or your insurance company changes it. Obamacare does not change it.

When the Republicans in Congress went to the Congressional Budget Office and asked about repealing this law. The Congressional Budget Office put out a report that says the repeal of Obamacare would cause a net increase in the federal budget deficits of $109 billion over the 2013 to 2022 period. Let me restate that, repealing Obamacare would make the federal deficit go up! (Letter to the Honorable John Boehner providing an estimate for H.R. 6079, the Repeal of Obamacare Act) Go onto these sites and check out my facts.

Keep Teachers in the Classroom

I have reservations about Props 1 and 2, but I will use my limited space to discuss Prop 3.

First, some background on Mr. Luna. During his 2010 re-election campaign, Mr. Luna often referred to the great shape of Idaho's schools under his leadership. Yet within seven weeks of the election, Mr. Luna was putting forth sweeping education reforms that were never mentioned during his campaign. I would like to discuss Prop 3 from an economic perspective comparing the creation and loss of jobs.

The city of Twin Falls recently worked very hard using the Urban Renewal and Tax Increment Financing Laws to bring Chobani Yogurt to the Magic Valley. Chobani will bring an estimated 450 to 500 jobs to the Twin Falls area. Yet in one move, the Idaho Legislature, with the urging of Mr. Luna, cut approximately 800 jobs. The loss of these jobs affected our teachers, the tax-paying leaders of Idaho communities.

Where will the bulk of the money saved from eliminating teachers go? This money will fund the out-of-state computer and for-profit online education companies. The same companies who provided more than $100,000 to Luna's campaign fund in 2010. I suspect these are the same companies that skirted around the Idaho Campaign Finance Laws in order to anonymously contribute $200,000 to the Vote Yes on Props 1, 2 and 3 Campaign.

Thirty-three years in education (17 years as a middle school principal) taught me the value of a quality teacher in the classroom. There is no substitute for an individual teacher's knowledge and ability to inspire students to achieve. Everyone can remember that special teacher that made a difference in their lives. Will a laptop do that?

Even a recent TV ad campaign by Exxon Mobil states research regarding the importance of well-trained teachers in the classroom. Keep Idaho's tax money in Idaho! Keep Idaho's teachers in the classroom! Vote no on Props 1, 2 and 3.

Pence Relates to the Taxpayer

Dear District 25 voters:

Please support the re-election of Donna Pence as our District 25 representative for Blaine, Camas, Gooding and Lincoln counties.

Donna is an especially valuable and versatile legislator because she relates to the farmer, the businessman, the educational community, parents and, of course, all of them as taxpayers. She also is unique in that she doesn't subscribe to group think legislation. A continuous flow of party line rubber stamped votes is not in Idaho's best interest. In any organization, political or otherwise, a diversity of ideas and opinions makes for stronger and better decisions.

As a longtime resident of southern Idaho, she understands the different situations that exist in our small rural communities and works tirelessly with commissioners, school trustees and constituents to find ways to solve our unique needs.

Donna has the experience and training as an educator to continue to fight for the right combination of opportunities for our kids. As a retired teacher, Donna understands that a good education is more important than ever before in Idaho's history. Today's world has little room for educational shortcomings or failures. A less than adequate education may doom many of our future generation to a life of poverty.

Donna Pence has the right background to help Idaho prepare for the future.

Please support Donna Pence this November.

Scholes Should Retain CSI Position

As a trustee, Dr. Scholes has helped direct the College of Southern Idaho to become a major educational and economical player in the Magic Valley.

We would urge all registered voters to vote for Dr. H. Thad Scholes in this upcoming

All is Not Well with Public Lands

All is not well with our precious public lands in north Idaho. There is an ominous mega-issue looming on the Clearwater/Nez Perce National Forest. The U.S. Forest Service inexplicably proposes a horrible land trade in which 39,000 acres of cut-over and already industrialized private checkerboard parcels in the Upper Lochsa would be acquired by the Forest Service for equal acreage privatized in scattered national forest parcels in several north Idaho counties. Your public parcels to be bartered are prime timbered lands with immense wildlife, watershed and recreation values. To liquidate them is unacceptable!

Please see the excellent eye-opening articles at: www.stophtheswap.net.

Thousands of angry citizens are protesting this proposed land heist as are Friends of the Clearwater and Friends of the Palouse Ranger District. Ten or more knowledgeable retired federal foresters are gravely concerned. You can help by writing to Regional Forester Faye Krueger (fkrueger@fs.fed.us) in Missoula and USFS Chief Tom Tidwell (ttidwell@fs.fed.us) saying "no way." Stress that only the no action alternative in the environmental impact statement is acceptable.

Economist Clarence Chapman wrote a telling research piece showing that Western Pacific Timber stands to garner $150 million, gaining 126 million board feet of harvestable timber. The irreplaceable public parcels would disappear! Gone. Privatized.

It gets worse. WPT has hired the notorious disgraced ex-Idaho Sen. Larry Craig and timber lobbyist Mark Rey to grease political skids. This is appalling. Looming behind WPT is the shady Tim Blixseth. Google him up for a shock. Contact your Idaho senators and insist they oppose this fatally flawed exchange.

Please speak out. Demand accountability and no exchange (give-away) from the USFS. Yes to public lands remaining in public hands and a resounding no to WPT and Blixseth, the USFS, insidious public land privatization schemes and the subterfuge of Craig and Rey. So much is at stake.

Don't Let Politicians Take Away Your Rights

Idahoans love and respect their rights: free speech, gun ownership and private property, for example. Idahoans don't like politicians messing with their rights. Politicians often have axes to grind, catering to special interest groups who have given them campaign money.

Current politicians in Idaho have proposed a new Idaho constitutional amendment. It would take away the right that Idahoans currently have: The right to pass a citizens' initiative, if needed, when politicians have failed to act.

This proposed amendment, called HJR2, is a power grab by politicians in the Statehouse. It takes away the rights of Idahoans to initiative and referendum, with regard to hunting, fishing and trapping.

Idaho has a long-standing reputation of promoting ethical hunting and fishing. Our Idaho Fish and Game biologists do a very good job protecting our rights and our wildlife.

Don't let the politicians in Boise take away your rights.

Vote "no" on HJR2 on Nov. 6.

GOP Trio Will Help Our Country

Citizens of Twin Falls District 24, you have an opportunity to elect two individuals in the Nov. 6 election who will truly represent the conservative ideals we admired and shared with the late President Ronald Reagan. Three men who are not only conservative but are honest and will vote for the GOP principles so vital to restoring our cities, counties and nation to those ideals we so desperately need.

These men are to be admired for their convictions, integrity and work ethics. Lee Heider, Lance Clow and Stephen Hartgen will follow the leadership of the Republican Party and promise to listen to their constituency. Lance and Stephen will work hard on water and road issues, small business, agriculture, alternate energy methods, education and the health and welfare of our fellow citizens. Sen. Lee Heider will vote for these same issues in the Senate. These three proven conservative leaders believe in our Constitution and the ideals so crucial to grassroots America.

As local businessmen, they know the current struggles facing many of us. Both Lance Clow and Stephen Hartgen will be the best choice for small business and for those who are the working backbone of America. They have lived the American dream and know that hard work, integrity and sound principles will eliminate the destructive path on which our nation is being led. They will help restore jobs and growth for Idaho.

Please vote Tuesday, Nov. 6, for State Sen. Lee Heider and State Reps. Lance Clow and Stephen Hartgen. Encourage your friends to vote for these honorable men who will be proactive advocates for our area and the great state of Idaho.

I would like to urge voters to return Dr. Thad Scholes to the CSI Board of Trustees in the coming election.

Thad has a longstanding effective experience on the board and would provide needed continuity to help preserve the success that the College of Southern Idaho has provided to the students and economy of our region.

As a retiring board member not seeking re-election, I have had the unique opportunity to observe Thad's performance and chairman of the board of trustees for the last two years. He has overseen the adoption of the new board by-laws, approval of construction for student housing and many other initiatives.

The college continues to be in excellent financial shape and provides the most cost-efficient quality education in the state of Idaho.

Please consider Thad's knowledge and experience when voting for the trustee positions at the College of Southern Idaho.

Heider, Hartgen and Carter Best for Our State

I want to express my support for Lee Heider, Steve Hartgen and Tom Carter. Each of these gentlemen are vitally needed in their respective offices.

I have known Sen. Heider for 12 years and respect him a great deal. I have listened to him at meetings and know he is up to date about our state and our local community. He listens to his constituency and he fights on our behalf.

House Rep. Stephen Hartgen is a hard worker on our behalf. Steve is finishing up on a four-year term and is ready and eager for more. Steve has worked on and chaired several House committees. He is up to date on issues and fights for us in the House. Steve says he plans to run for caucus chairman in the House in 2013. We need a leader like this from Twin Falls. Gov. Otter supports Steve and says Steve "... is one of the most accomplished and civic-minded citizens of southern Idaho ... well qualified and prepared."

Sheriff Tom Carter must stay in the sheriff's office. He has improved relations with other agencies. He has stayed within his budget and has been getting the job done. There is no need of change in the sheriff's department.

Please join me in supporting these gentlemen with your vote on Nov. 6.

Try Tumeric for Dealing with Body Pain

Regarding letter sent in from David Putnam about stopping growth of cancer was interesting reading. But as I checked and talk with others when I could not find apricot seeds, as I was told by other people and the health store says it's against the law to sell them. Where do you get them — from the tree and dry them out?

I have an interest in telling readers if you have bad pain in your back, arms or hips, try what I have done after I visited the doctor for four appointments and therapy for eight appointments to no available help from them. So I searched stores where they sell turmeric and bromelain.

I decided to try out ground turmeric at two grocery stores; check their price on a pound before you buy. Mix it with your food as it does not work too well in liquid. After two days, the pain in my lower back and shoulder disappeared for good; pain no more; just comes up and disappears fast.

I searched for bromelain; not available in ground. But both together or separate are available in capsules. Be sure to get yourself a copy of them first and read all about them before you decide to try them. Health stores may have a copy of it or you're welcome to get a copy from me if you send a stamped envelope to 223 Borah Ave. W., Twin Falls, ID 83301.

county commission, Ketchum city council and as Ketchum mayor.

If elected, Garcia would focus on restructuring the county's government system. He said he would refuse to vote on a budget if it didn't slash the commissioners' salaries by at least half.

He also dislikes the county's approach to land-use planning. Garcia said there needs to be more emphasis on protecting private property rights rather than catering to protecting the area's aesthetics.

"Our entire political system isn't working," Garcia said. "We have a one-party dictatorship for all of Idaho but here in the Wood River Valley, it's the opposite dictatorship."

McCleary said she's proud of the work she's been a part of to protect the area's mountain overlay. The efforts preserve and enhance the environment, she said.

If reelected, McCleary said she would continue to improve air service in the county and work with local leaders to better the county's economy.

"... When you focus on the big picture issues, a lot of them are the same today as they were a few years ago," she said. "There are some issues a community will always face and you have to keep making an effort, you can't just make one token attempt to fix something."

Garcia is a retired military veteran and wildland firefighter. McCleary has worked as a middle school social worker and was the director of Youth Adult Konnections in Blaine County for five years.

Sunday Crash Injures 1

TIMES-NEWS

JEROME • A two-vehicle crash 12 miles north of Twin Falls sent one woman to the hospital Sunday.

Shortly before 1 p.m. Sunday, Idaho State Police say Lynn A. Nelson, 70, of Twin Falls, was attempting to enter U.S. 93's southbound lane, near milepost 62, from the right shoulder of the road in a 2002 GMC Sonoma pickup. James E. Patterson, 80, of Ogden, Utah, was heading south on the same road in a 2005 Lexus LS 430 sedan.

According to ISP, Nelson didn't see the sedan and pulled into the lane, at which point the sedan hit his pickup.

Everyone involved in the crash wore a seatbelt, according to ISP. Suzanne H. Patterson, 79, of Ogden and a passenger in the sedan, was taken by ground ambulance to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls. She was the only person listed by ISP as injured; mid-afternoon Sunday, she was still being evaluated in St. Luke's emergency room.

The incident cause partial lane blockage on U.S. 93 for about 35 minutes, according to ISP.

Trial to start for triple-slaying suspect

BOISE (AP) • The trial for a man accused of killing his girlfriend and her two boys before burning their bodies in the southwestern Idaho desert is scheduled to start Monday in Elmore County.

Jorge Alberto Lopez-Orozco has pleaded not guilty to three counts of first-degree murder. The Idaho Statesman reports the trial is expected to last more than a month.

Police say he killed 29-year-old Rebecca Ramirez and two of her sons, 4-year-old Ricardo and 2-year-old Miguel, in 2002 before fleeing to Mexico. He was apprehended in 2009 and extradited back to Elmore County in March of 2011.

Mexico's policy is not to extradite suspects who might face execution, so prosecutors agreed not to pursue the death penalty in the case.

Declo Resident Hurt in Rollover

TIMES-NEWS

BURLEY • A Declo resident was flown to a Pocatello hospital Friday after his vehicle rolled on the western edge of Burley, Idaho State Police say.

Brent Osterhout, 20, was headed east on U.S. Highway 30 when he crossed the center line and went into the west-bound lanes, according to ISP. He then overcorrected to the right and returned to the eastbound lanes before making another overcorrection to the left, according to ISP. Osterhout's vehicle then rolled, coming to rest on the dividing line between the eastbound and west-bound traffic.

Ejected from the vehicle, Osterhout was flown to Portneuf Medical Center in Pocatello. The incident blocked traffic for more than two hours.

ISP continues to investigate the crash.

Potatoes

Growers should take aggressive action to keep the disease from spreading, said Phillip Nolte, a seed potato specialist for the University of Idaho.

"It's not a new disease, but is a cyclic thing, usually popping up every six to seven years," he said. "We last saw problems with it in 2002, and there was an earlier flare up in the mid-1990s."

Growers at the time controlled the disease by stepping up sanitation practices, cutting seed during spring planting and thoroughly disinfecting equipment and storage facilities, Nolte said, noting the bacteria can remain viable for years in dried slime and potato sap left on equipment and storage surfaces. But after a few years growers get lax in their practices, and the disease pops up again.

"Growers simply have to break the cycle," he said. "Otherwise they're doomed to suffer from it again. It's not cheap, it's not fun, but it's the way to manage the disease."

Ring rot is transmitted by seed, perhaps those coming from other states. It first was detected in the U.S. in the 1930s.

"We're not exactly sure how it turned up here," Muir said. "We don't yet know the magnitude of it, but anytime it's found it hurts the grower. ... The key thing is, we've been on top of this. A working group led by U of I communicates with growers to make sure they know the measures to take to keep from getting it and how to identify it."

The university also continues to monitor for zebra chip.

First detected in Idaho in 2011, zebra chip, an unsightly tuber with dark stripes, isn't a health danger to consumers. But growers can't sell the infected potatoes.

When affected potatoes are fried, there is severe darkening of the chip or fry.

There's no health concerns eating a potato with zebra chip, Muir said. But they don't taste good.

"It not only creates an off color but can create an off flavor."

Zebra chip was discovered in the 1990s in Mexico and in 2001 in southern portions of the United States. It steadily moved north thanks to the psyllid, a tiny insect that carries the pathogen.

"It wasn't even on our radar a couple of years ago," said Erik Wenninger, assistant professor of entomology for the University of Idaho's Kimberly Research and Extension Center. "It's definitely an issue, but how big of an issue we're still trying to determine."

A five-month long program earlier this year by the UI to investigate the disease turned up a number of Magic Valley crops that had zebra chip, Wenninger said. Few were found on potato farms in Treasure Valley and eastern Idaho.

A number of Magic Valley fields had no trace of psyllids, he said, while others were found with quite a few. One sample detected more than 200 insects. The extension office currently is monitoring crops at 16 different Magic Valley sites.

Muir said what Idaho potato growers need most is a cold winter to kill the psyllids.

"We need Mother Nature to work for us, not against us," he said, noting that moderately warm winters the past few years have welcomed the insects. "We can't send all the psyllids back to Mexico, but they're finding they can enjoy life in the north just as they do down south."

Certain insecticides work, he said, but that's an added expense to the farmer.

In August, the federal government provided

$109,000 for the University of Idaho to monitor potato fields and research the effects of zebra chip on tubers during storage — a topic about which little is known.

"There's still obviously a lot of fields we haven't gotten to yet," Wenninger said.

Magic Valley's Athletes of the Week

11-man Football: Vincent Burke, Canyon Ridge. Burke returned not one, but two kickoffs 90-plus yards for touchdowns, accounting for all the Riverhawks' points in a 26-12 loss to Minico on Friday.

8-man Football: Garrett Sant, Shoshone. With the Indians needing a win to keep playoff hopes alive, Sant rose to the occasion, throwing for 389 yards and three touchdowns in a 50-44 win over Raft River.

Boys Soccer: Federico Mendez, Gooding. Mendez scored four goals and assisted on three others, giving him a hand in seven of Gooding's eight goals on the way to the 3A state championship.

Girls Soccer: Sage Rust, Wood River. Peppered by Kuna for 17 shots on goal Friday, Rust saved 15, just enough for the Wolverines to stay alive in the 4A state tournament.

Volleyball: Lily Richards, Wood River. In a winner-to-state, loser-out match with Jerome on Thursday, Richards had 16 kills and 19 digs as the Wolverines made state for the first time since 2008.

Boys Cross-country: Gage Moore, Filer. Moore ran a heady race at the 3A District IV championships, sitting back before dropping the hammer for a time of 17:35, best in the district last week.

Girls Cross-country: Rachel Youren, Gooding. On a blustery day at Gooding Country Club, Youren navigated the 3A District IV championship course in 20:13, the week's best time by a District IV runner.

Robb Akey talks during a December 2006 news conference in Moscow where he was announced as the new head football coach at Idaho. Akey replaced Dennis Erickson.

Sunday Surprise: Vandals Drop Akey

BY JOSH WRIGHT
For the Times-News

MOSCOW • In his first year as Idaho football coach, Robb Akey referred to Boise State as the "donkeys." It was one of many bold things he said the last five-plus seasons to stir up the Vandals' long-suffering fan base. But increasingly, Akey's witty remarks and one-liners came after Idaho losses — seven of them already this year, 17 the past two seasons and 50 overall since 2007. With his message souring and his team's performance waning, the jovial coach was fired Sunday by UI athletic director Rob Spear. Offensive coordinator Jason Gesser, the 33-year-old former Washington State quarterback, will serve as interim coach. Gesser is in his first year as Vandals' offensive coordinator and had never coached collegiately before joining Akey's staff in 2011 as running backs coach. "The president (Duane Nellis) and I believe it is important to make this move now so we can immediately begin the process of hiring a new coach for the 2013 season," Spear said in a statement. "We appreciate Coach Akey's enthusiasm and dedication to the University of Idaho, but this is the right move at this time." Spear was not available for further comment, and Akey did not return messages left Sunday evening.

What We Learned: Week 8

Last weekend put a bow on the regular season for three of the five football classifications represented in District IV. Or so we thought. Apparently the 1A-I ranks wanted a little more of the spotlight, so there will be even more football to be played before the playoffs start this week. That's just the start of what we learned from the last weekend in prep football.

1. Five conference games weren't enough for Challis, Raft River and Shoshone. The math was pretty simple for Raft River and Challis: Win and you're in. Neither could do it. Shoshone needed both to lose (the Indians were playing Raft River) just to force a Kansas City playoff. That's what ended up happening, and as a result all eyes will be on Carey this evening as the three teams battle for two playoff spots. Shoshone's been a tough team to figure out, but the Indians have arguably the best player among the three (Garrett Sant) at the most important position (quarterback), and that could give them the edge. Really, though, all bets are off in this scenario because too much weird stuff can happen. Should be plenty entertaining, though.

2. That might not be the only Kansas City playoff we have. Twin Falls is coming good at the right time, with a balanced pass-run attack resulting in a big win over a depleted Burley squad. I know that the Bobcats were down their three best skill players in QB Zander Cook, receiver/DB Carson Hawker and do-everything Jackson Kunz, but 45-13 is still 45-13. This is more about Twin Falls freeing Thomas Corr up to throw the ball more, like he was doing in the beginning of the season, as well as getting Anthony Archuleta back in the backfield, which is a huge difference for the Bruins. Minico comes to town this week, and the Spartans can settle seeding with a win — they'd be the top seed, Jerome the second, and Twin Falls out. But if the Bruins win and Jerome beats Burley as expected, we'd have a Kansas City playoff at the highest level of District IV football. Tantalizing.

BSU RISES IN COLLEGE POLLS

Boise State jumped up a spot or four in all of the college football polls after trouncing the UNLV Rebels Saturday in a 32-7 win in Boise. The Broncos advanced three spots in the AP Top 25 Poll to No. 21. Boise State also moved up four spots in the USA Today coaches' poll (No. 18) and the Harris Interactive poll (No. 19). In the BCS standings, the Broncos moved up just one spot to No. 21.

Alabama has run its streak of weeks at No. 1 in The Associated Press college football poll to eight, the longest stay atop the rankings by the Crimson Tide. Alabama voted 59 of 60 first-place votes from the media panel. The Tide has twice previously been No. 1 for seven consecutive weeks — in 1979 when Bear Bryant coached 'Bama to a national title and in 1980 when the Tide finished sixth.

Oregon is No. 2 for the fifth consecutive week, though the gap between the Ducks and No. 3 Florida, which received the other first-place vote, narrowed after the Gators beat South Carolina 44-11 on Saturday. Alabama had gone three straight weeks as unanimous No. 1. The rest of the top six was also unchanged after No. 4 Kansas State, No. 5 Notre Dame and No. 6 LSU all won. South Carolina dropped from ninth to No. 17.

NFL ROUNDUP

Raiders Rally Past Jaguars in 26-23 Overtime Victory

ASSOCIATED PRESS

OAKLAND, Calif. • Sebastian Janikowski kicked a 40-yard field goal after Cecil Shorts III fumbled on the opening possession of overtime and Oakland rallied from 14 points down in the second half.

Carson Palmer threw one TD pass and ran for another to force overtime for the Raiders (2-4) before they won it after Lamarr Houston forced a fumble that Joselio Hanson recovered at the Jacksonville 21.

After one play to center the ball, Janikowski came on to kick the winning field goal to end a rough day for the Jaguars (1-5).

The Jaguars lost star running back Maurice Jones-Drew to a left foot injury on the opening drive and quarterback Blaine Gabbert to an injured left shoulder in the second quarter and managed only two downs after halftime behind backup quarterback Chad Henne.

TEXANS 43, RAVENS 13 HOUSTON • Matt Schaub threw two touchdown passes, Arian Foster ran for two scores and the Houston Texans dominated a showdown of the AFC's two teams, routing the Baltimore Ravens 43-13 on Sunday.

Johnathan Joseph returned an interception 52 yards for a touchdown and the Texans (6-1) beat Baltimore for the first time in seven meetings. Antonio Smith had two sacks, J. J. Watt deflected the pass that led to Joseph's interception and Houston's defense returned to form after an embarrassing loss to Aaron Rodgers and Green Bay last week.

Terrell Suggs, the 2011 defensive player of the year, had a sack and three tackles in his first action for Baltimore (5-2) since undergoing surgery on his right Achilles tendon last May. Joe Flacco threw two interceptions and was sacked four times.

GIANTS 27, REDSKINS 23 EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. • Eli Manning threw a 77-yard scoring pass to Victor Cruz with 1:13 to play and New York overcame a late touchdown by rookie sensation Robert Griffin III.

Manning's pass to Cruz came two plays and 19 seconds after Griffin capped what was a potential game-winning, 77-yard drive with a 30-yard touchdown pass to Santana Moss. The rookie had kept the drive alive with a 19-yard pass off a desperate scramble on a fourth-and-10 play deep in his own territory and a 24-yard run on the next play.

Cruz, however, blew by Josh Wilson and Madiue Williams and the more than 80,000 fans in MetLife Stadium celebrated as Manning triumphantly pumped his fist.

Griffin had Washington moving for another score when Moss was tackled by Chase Blackburn after an 11-yard reception and rookie Jayron Hosley recovered at the Washington 43.

PACKERS 30, RAMS 20 ST. LOUIS • Aaron Rodgers threw for 342 yards and three touchdowns and Green Bay's depleted defense flourished on the road.

Randall Cobb caught two touchdown passes and Jordy Nelson had eight receptions for a season-best 122 yards for the Packers (4-3), who brought a huge contingent of cheeseheads that was just as loud as the home fans and chanted "Go, Pack, Go!" during the Rams' final possession. Rookie Casey Hayward made his first start in place of injured Sam Shields and intercepted his fourth pass in three games.

Green Bay ended the Texans' unbeaten start at Houston last week, but had alternated losses and wins the first six weeks. Rodgers was 30 for 37 for his fourth 300-yard game this season.

SAINTS 35, BUCCANEERS 28 TAMPA, Fla. • Jonathan Vilma played for the first time while appealing a season-long suspension for his role in the Saints bounty program and Drew Brees threw for 377 yards and four touchdowns in the come-from-behind win.

Oakland Raiders wide receiver Rod Streater (80) catches a pass over Jacksonville Jaguars cornerback Derek Cox (21) during the fourth quarter of an NFL game in Oakland, Calif., Sunday.

While it's debatable how much Vilma's return impacted the Saints defense, the unit turned back two drives near the end zone in the second half, including the final three plays of the game to preserve New Orleans' second straight win.

Brees extended his NFL record for consecutive games with at least one TD pass to 49, while leading long scoring drives on four straight possessions to turn a 14-point deficit into a 28-21 halftime lead.

Josh Freeman threw for 420 yards and three touchdowns for the Bucs. His bid to force overtime ended with three straight incompletions from inside the Saints' 10.

PATRIOTS 29, JETS 26 OT FOXBOROUGH, Mass. • Rob Ninkovich recovered a fumble by Mark Sanchez after Stephen Gostkowski kicked a 48-yard field goal in overtime for New England.

The Patriots (4-3) moved into sole possession of first place in the AFC East. The day started with all four teams tied at 3-3, but the Jets (3-4) and the Buffalo Bills lost, while the Miami Dolphins were idle.

Gostkowski tied the game with a 43-yard field goal on the last play of regulation.

In overtime, each team gets the ball unless the first team with it scores a touchdown. So the Jets had a chance after the Patriots kicked a field goal. New York moved from its 15 to its 40 before Sanchez lost the ball as he was being sacked and Ninkovich recovered, ending the game.

COLTS 17, BROWNS 13 INDIANAPOLIS • Andrew Luck became the first Colts quarterback to run for two touchdowns in a game since 1988.

Indy (3-3) has already won one more game than it did in 2011.

Brandon Weeden threw for 247 yards and two touchdowns, but Trent Richardson, who tried to play through a rib cartilage injury, sat out the second half after running eight times for 8 yards in the first half. The Browns (1-6) have lost 11 straight road games.

Luck scored on runs of 3 and 5 yards in the first half. Weeden threw a 14-yard TD pass to Greg Little in the second quarter, and a 33-yard

TD pass to Josh Gordon in the third quarter.

COWBOYS 19, PANTHERS 14 CHARLOTTE, N.C. • Dan Bailey made a go-ahead 28-yard field goal with 3:25 remaining to help Dallas end a two-game losing streak.

With Dallas trailing 14-13, Tony Romo led the Cowboys (3-3) into field goal range with a 10-play, 44-yard drive to send Dallas to its ninth consecutive regular-season victory over the Panthers (1-5).

Romo had 227 yards and a touchdown.

On a fourth-and-1 at their 39, the Panthers caught Dallas' defense changing personnel and Cam Newton quickly completed a pass for an apparent first down. But officials ruled the Cowboys called time-out before the snap. On the ensuing play, Morris Claiborne collided with receiver Louis Murphy before the ball arrived, but no flag was thrown.

Bailey added his fourth field goal of the game with 53 seconds left.

TITANS 35, BILLS 24 ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. • Matt Hasselbeck hit Nate Washington for a 15-yard touchdown with 1:03 left in leading Tennessee.

It was Hasselbeck's 22nd career fourth-quarter comeback and second in consecutive weeks. It happened in a game in which running back Chris Johnson enjoyed a long-awaited breakout performance with 195 yards rushing and two scores.

Jamie Harper also scored twice for Tennessee (3-4). Jason McCourty's interception of a Ryan Fitzpatrick pass set up the decisive drive.

Fitzpatrick finished 27 of 35 for 225 yards and three scores, but turned the ball over twice, including a lost fumble. Buffalo is 3-4.

VIKINGS 21, CARDINALS 14 MINNEAPOLIS • Adrian Peterson ran for 153 yards and a first-quarter touchdown, and Minnesota survived an ugly second half to hang on for the win.

Percy Harvin caught Christian Ponder's only touchdown pass, but Ponder threw an interception that led to a second-quarter touchdown run by LaRod Stephens-Howling. Ponder has seven turnovers in the last three games; two of them were turned into touchdowns last week at Washington.

Arizona's John Skelton went 25 for 36 for 262 yards

NLCS GAME 6

Giants Beat Cardinals 6-1 to Force NLCS Game 7

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO • Ryan Vogelsong and the San Francisco Giants saved their season once more, pushing St. Louis to a winner-take-all Game 7 in the NL championship series.

Turns out the defending champion Cardinals aren't the only team that's tough to put away in October.

Vogelsong struck out a career-best nine batters in another postseason gem, and the Giants avoided elimination for a second straight game by beating St. Louis 6-1 on Sunday night.

Marco Scutaro delivered a two-run double and Buster Posey drove in his first run of the series with a groundout in the first inning as San Francisco struck early to support Vogelsong.

San Francisco's Matt Cain and St. Louis' Kyle Lohse are set to pitch in a rematch of Game 3, won by the Cardinals. There's a forecast of rain in the Bay Area during the day.

"It's kind of a joke in the clubhouse. About 60 percent of my games have rain in the forecast," Lohse said. "I know these guys, I've seen them for six games. I know what I need to do. ... It's time to get it done."

These wild-card Cardinals sure seem to like the all-or-nothing route in October, while San Francisco thrives playing from behind.

Five games with their year on the line, five wins for these gutsy Giants this postseason. Now, it comes down to one game for the past two World Series champions to get back, with the Detroit Tigers waiting.

Pitching to chants of "Vogey! Vogey!" from the sellout crowd of 43,070 at AT&T Park, the right-hander didn't allow a hit until Daniel Descalso's broken-bat single to center with two outs in the fifth. Vogelsong struck out the side in the first and had already fanned five through two innings.

"This place is going to be loud, I can tell you that," Vogelsong said of Monday night.

Scutaro had no chance for a collision with Matt Holliday this time. In their first game back at AT&T Park since Holliday took out the second baseman with a hard slide in Game 2, Holliday was scratched about an hour before first pitch because of tightness in his lower back, and Allen Craig replaced him in left field.

It hardly mattered the way Vogelsong pitched.

The Cardinals managed their only run on Craig's two-out single in the sixth. St. Louis had gone 15 innings without scoring after left-hander Barry Zito won 5-0 on Friday in Game 5.

"I just tried to do really the same thing he did, come out and set the tone early for us," Vogelsong said.

Vogelsong had his second stellar seven-inning outing against the Cardinals in a week, allowing four hits and one run. He walked one in a 102-pitch performance and lowered his postseason ERA — all this year — to 1.42.

"I just believe that it's my time," Vogelsong said.

After taking a 3-1 lead back home at Busch Stadium, Mike Matheny's Cardinals will have to find some offense in a hurry if they want to get back to the World Series.

"We've got to make some adjustments but our team's done that all season," Matheny said. "One thing I know is these guys take these to heart."

These Cards might just prefer close calls. Just like last year.

They won the NL's second wild card on the second-to-last day of the regular season, then won at Atlanta to reach the division series. The Cardinals rallied from a 6-0 deficit with a four-run ninth inning to stun the Washington Nationals 9-7 in Game 5 of the division series.

The Giants got to St. Louis ace Chris Carpenter again. The Cardinals' winningest postseason pitcher with 10 victories looked out of sync for the second straight start — and he left with a nearly identical line as in his 7-1 Game 2 loss here last Monday, down to the hits, earned runs, unearned runs and innings.

Carpenter was done in by one big inning this time, too. He allowed six hits and five runs, two earned, in four innings.

Vogelsong reached on shortstop Pete Kozma's fielding error in the second, scoring Brandon Belt after he led off the inning with a triple. Scutaro came up two batters later and doubled home two more runs.

The 10 unearned runs allowed by the Cardinals are the most in an NLCS, according to STATS, LLC — topping the

Explanation Key
The BCS Average is calculated by averaging the percent totals of the Harris Interactive, USA Today Coaches and Computer polls. Team percentages are derived by dividing a team's actual voting points by a maximum 2875 possible points in the Harris Interactive Poll and 1475 possible points in the USA Today Coaches Poll.

Six computer rankings are used to determine the overall computer component. The highest and lowest ranking for each team is dropped, and the remaining four are added and divided to produce a Computer Rankings Percentage. The six computer ranking providers are Anderson & Hester, Richard Bilmesley, Colley Matrix, Kenneth Massey, Jeff Sagarin, and Peter Wolfe. Each computer ranking accounts for schedule strength in its formula.

Matt Kenseth (17) takes the checkered flag to win the NASCAR Sprint Cup Series auto race at Kansas Speedway in Kansas City, Kan., Sunday.

Matt Kenseth Wins, Brad Keselowski Keeps Points Lead

ASSOCIATED PRESS

KANSAS CITY, Kan. • The fast, smooth new surface at Kansas Speedway had the potential to wreak havoc on the Chase for the Sprint Cup championship.

The recent repave cluttered Sunday's race with a record 14 cautions — a season high in the Sprint Cup Series — and contributed to issues that affected at least four title contenders. But the standings looked much the same when Matt Kenseth took the checkered flag in a battered Ford that he banged hard into the wall mid-way through the race.

Kenseth still managed to drive it to his second victory in three races, while Brad Keselowski dodged accident after accident to hang onto his seven-point lead over Jimmie Johnson in the standings with four races remaining in the Chase.

"I was thinking, 'Man, this has to be entertaining for everybody to watch,'" Kenseth said. "There was a lot of wild stuff happening."

That was an understatement Sunday, when the longest green-flag run was 35 laps early in the race. Some of the cautions were caused by tire problems, others were for single-car spins, including Chase drivers Johnson, Tony Stewart and Greg Biffle.

And, Danica Patrick wrecked herself when she intentionally wrecked Landon Cassill.

"You know, everybody has been asking all season long where the cautions have been," Keselowski said. "Well, they flew to Kansas and they've been hanging out here because there was caution after caution."

Biffle's spin ended his day with a hard crash into the wall.

"I lost it, man. It got away from me off of four and we wrecked it," said Biffle, who dropped five spots in the standings to 11th. "I had no indication, no little wiggle, no sideways. It just got away from me and it killed our day."

Johnson, who led 44 laps early, was far luckier.

He had pitted from the lead and was back in traffic when a caution came out, and he spun by himself shortly after the restart. He, too, hit the wall on his spin, but crew chief Chad Knaus called him to pit road to get a look at the car instead of conceding laps by going to the garage for repairs.

Knaus then methodically dictated team orders, as Johnson stopped on pit road at least a half-dozen times for repairs over two caution periods.

"That looks good, man. They did a much better job than I thought they would," he told Johnson as he drove away. "There's really nothing wrong with that thing."

Even Keselowski was surprised to see the heavily taped No. 48 back on the track when the race went green.

"I thought you said the 48 car wrecked?" he asked his crew. "He looks fine."

Team owner Rick Hendrick praised the team efforts during a stop in the media center during the race.

"I have never in my 30 years of racing seen anyone perform that kind of surgery and not lose a lap," Hendrick said.

In the end, Johnson salvaged a ninth-place finish and was carefully inspecting his Chevrolet after the race.

"I'm just now getting a chance to look at the damage on the car and it's pretty severe," he said. "I'm impressed that they fixed it as they did. All things considered, without my mistake, I think we had a shot to win."

It was still good enough to keep the Chase margin unchanged with Keselowski, who finished a spot ahead in eighth. He came into the race with a seven-point lead and left with a seven-point lead as the series heads next weekend to Martinsville Speedway in Virginia.

"I'm glad to have survived the carnage and brought back a decent car," Keselowski said. "Whew! Just a tough day."

Martin Truex Jr. finished second, Paul Menard was third in the first race back for crew chief Slugger Labbe, who served a six-race suspension for an infraction at Michigan.

Kasey Kahne finished fourth and was followed by defending champion Stewart, who overcame both a spin during the race and a pit road penalty for leaving his stall with equipment still attached to his car.

"An eventful day," Stewart said. "Our guys led by (crew chief) Steve Addington, they never gave up. That's how we won a championship last year, by never giving up. We've got a little bit of work to do, but we're gaining on it."

3. Kimberly is peaking at the right time.

The Bulldogs' ceiling may not be as high as it's been in recent years, but there's still a lot to be said about stringing together four quarters of football at this time of year. Kimberly has done it in back-to-back games, the final two of its regular season against Buhl and Filer to surge into second place in the final SCIC standings. I'm not sure whether this team is much (or any) better than last season's state quarterfinal squad that ran into a buzzsaw against Marsh Valley at Holt Arena. What I do know is that I'd much rather take my chances in the road against Weiser, Kimberly's opponent this week, than playing Shelley in the first round, which was the reward for third place in the SCIC (Buhl). James Higginbotham and Co. could do enough to make it tight or spring the upset, if things go right and Kimberly continues on its upward trend.

4. Lighthouse Christian may have cause for concern despite having everything wrapped up.

This space was supposed to be a "don't read too much into the Lions' loss to Butte County" paragraph, but that changed when Adam Taylor and Eli Berndt both left Friday's game in the second quarter, neither to return. The pair makes up two of the three key cogs in the Lighthouse Christian offensive machine, and that balance was what made them so dangerous. The Lions have the benefit of a bye this week to get ready for their state quarterfinal home game against the Sawtooth North's second-place team, the winner of this week's game between Carey and Clark County. Whether Taylor and/or Berndt can get back for that game could speak volumes about whether Lighthouse Christian remains the team to beat in IA-II, or if the team is vulnerable to the quarterfinal upset.

Akey was 20-50 in his stint with the Vandals and 1-7 this year. With a 70-28 loss at Louisiana Tech on Saturday — the third time this year UI has given up at least 60 points — the Vandals are guaranteed their 12th losing season in the last 13 years.

After the Vandals went 8-5 in 2009 and won the Humanitarian Bowl, Akey signed a contract extension that raised his annual salary to $355,796 plus incentives. His buyout calls for him to receive his base salary — $165,796 per year — through December 2014 or until he is hired by another school.

Gesser's appointment as interim coach is the latest step in his sudden rise up the coaching ranks.

Two years ago, he was the coach at Eastside Catholic High in Sammamish, Wash.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

“What we anticipate seldom occurs; what we least expected generally happens.”
— Benjamin Disraeli

When the opponents pre-empt, you are often forced to guess, but how unreasonable is it today to bid slam, hoping for the spade queen or spade length in dummy?

The defenders lead the heart queen to your ace. You cash the spade ace and your worst fears are realized when West discards on this trick. What should be your plan next?

You must now strip all the clubs from the hand that has the diamond ace. If East has only two clubs, you need to decide which defender has the diamond ace, but why not cash two clubs to see if you can find out more? Best is to lead the club queen first. After all, West may give you honest count if he thinks his partner needs to know when to take his club winner.

When you cash a second top club, you discover the club break, so it is quite safe to take just one of your remaining club winners (not both!), then lead a diamond. You need West to have the diamond ace — if East had it, he could exit with his last club. When West wins and plays a red suit, you win in dummy, pitching your club from hand and take the spade finesse.

Note that had you cashed your last club before leading your diamond, whoever wins the diamond ace can play a second diamond and force you to ruff in hand, preventing you from taking the spade finesse.

NORTH ♠ 5 3 2 ♥ 9 ♦ K Q 10 8 7 ♣ 7 6 5 2	EAST ♠ Q 7 6 ♥ K 5 2 ♦ 6 4 2 ♣ 10 9 8 3
WEST ♠ --- ♥ Q J 10 8 7 6 4 3 ♦ A J 9 5 ♣ 4	SOUTH ♠ A K J 10 9 8 4 ♥ A ♦ 3 ♣ A K Q J

Vulnerable: Both
Dealer: South

The bidding:
South West North East
2♣ 5♥ Pass Pass
6♠ All pass

Opening lead: Heart queen

LEAD WITH THE ACES

South holds:

♠ Q 7 6 5
♥ K 9 6 3
♦ J 2
♣ J 9 4

South	West	North	East
Pass	1♦	1♥	1♠
3♥	3♠	Pass	4♠
All pass

ANSWER: Sometimes the simplest solutions are the best. Since declarer is as likely as dummy to be short in hearts, you might as well lead a low heart. Partner can win and continue the suit in an attempt to tap declarer out and maybe establish your small trumps.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I married, I thought I had hit the jackpot in mothers-in-law. We were becoming friends, going shopping together, etc. Boy, was I wrong. Now, five years later, I can't stand her. Just 15 minutes with her sends me over the edge. She's rude, judgmental, and gossips like a teenager about everyone.

DEAR ABBY

Jeanne Phillips

She put together a cookbook for me filled with my husband's favorite recipes. Guess what? After trying half a dozen of them and failing at every one, I realized she had changed and added or omitted certain ingredients in every single one. When I asked about it, she told me she just wanted her son to prefer her cooking over mine.

Then there was the time she was baby-sitting and took our son to see Santa Claus for the very first time without asking or telling us. That's an event parents want to be part of. I found out about it months later when I looked through her scrapbook.

I'm not sure of her motives, but she has something against me. My husband is on my side 100 percent when it comes to his mother. He can't stand to be around her either. What is the appropriate way to handle her? She makes us want to move away.

— READY TO PACK IN OHIO

DEAR READY TO PACK: It isn't necessary to move away to distance yourself from people like your mother-in-law. Limit the time you spend with her. When you must see her, be careful not to say anything negative about anyone or give her sensitive information you don't want shared. If you want to prepare a special food for your husband, go online and find recipes that haven't been "doctored." You'll find plenty of them. Then let him rave about your cooking.

As for the incident with Santa, remember that your son was so young he probably has no memory of it. Many little children are frightened by big strangers in red suits, which is why smart parents don't force the exposure. And now that you know what poor judgment your mother-in-law has, make other arrangements for a sitter when you need one.

But don't cut her off. However she managed it, she created the wonderful husband with whom you are blessed.

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorced father of two children, one in college and the other in high school. I have reached a point in life where I can take trips and make time for me. I am well-educated and earn an above-average income. I'm in decent shape and considered a "catch" by many of the single women I encounter. But most of the women in my age bracket (mid-40s) or slightly younger no longer take care of themselves.

I'm looking for a very attractive woman to accompany me through life. Most single men I know also put a premium on a woman's appearance. Why don't women understand this? Where would you suggest finding a suitable partner for someone in my situation?

— MR. PARTICULAR IN TUCSON

DEAR MR. PARTICULAR: Start at the nearest gym. If that doesn't net you what you're trolling for, another place to look would be the Playboy Mansion in Los Angeles. Hef throws large parties there, many of which are charity fundraisers. Who knows? For a generous donation you might meet a woman who meets your high standards — providing you have enough assets of your own to merit her interest.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. IF OCTOBER 22 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Be poised for hard work and accomplishment between now and the first of the year as practical motivations and ambitions take hold of your heart. While past mistakes or old obligations could slow you down, dealing ethically and sensibly with your responsibilities will give you a boost to the top of the heap. Early December is the very best time to make crucial decisions about your money, job or career. From January through March, true love or making lasting improvements to your health is possible, as other people in your life will be more dependable and your appeal to others is at its highest point. Start any key initiative for business then, or commit to a relationship, and it is very likely to succeed.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): High energy levels give you the edge. You can get a lot accomplished in a short amount of time. Be sure to honor all existing obligations and responsibilities to the letter, but don't begin new projects.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Love the one you're with. Someone looking for carefree fun or a quick fling could brighten your day or tug on romantic heart-strings. Enjoy the good things money can buy, but don't get into debt.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): People are likely to notice that beneath your serious, professional exterior beats a generous heart. You are a team player and can use that to your advantage if things get sticky in the next few days.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Rub someone the right way and a genie might pop out of the bottle to grant your romantic wish. A casual romance could wind up as "just a friend," but a true partner could be more affectionate than usual.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep on top of it. You possess a knack for finding unique purchases that fit the budget but still reflect good taste and refinement. The flame of true love is burning brightly so indulge your sweetheart tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Give in to impulses because a special someone will know that your heart is in the right place. It is possible that you could be inaccurate about dollars and cents so keep a lock on your bank account.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be a helper, not a yelper. You won't mind being at everyone's beck and call once you realize you are just another cog in the wheel. When everyone pulls together, it makes a heavy load seem lighter.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Plan ahead. Make peace with a boss or significant other while the opportunity exists and before a molehill becomes a mountain. Strive for all the cooperation possible in the next few days.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Just be there and be fair. The offer of a helping hand at the right moment will lighten the face of even a dedicated sourpuss. Partners may be in a hustle as deadlines loom and require assistance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Serious matters could occupy your mind. Perhaps you are in the mood to be stricter and more unyielding than usual. It might be best to sleep on decisions for a few days until things fall in place.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): It might be best to sit on your hands and avoid meddling with things for a few days. Burn the midnight oil to complete your tasks if necessary. It will be important to fulfill responsibilities to a "t."

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are your best when you mingle with others. Use your eagerness to knock on doors and ask for the sale. Don't lose your momentum or the chance to get ahead by daydreaming the day away.
