Murder Trial Likely to Stay in Twin Falls

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The trial for a man accused of shooting and killing his brother in February will most likely stay in Twin Falls County. The defense attorney for Damon Azure, 33, of Rupert, had asked a judge to move the trial outside of the county because of existing media coverage. But 5th District Judge Randy Stoker denied that motion Thursday, saying none of the media coverage has been sensational or inaccurate and therefore it is likely still possible to find a fair jury.

At about 11:20 a.m. Feb. 12, Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies reportedly found Seanachan Azure dead from gunshot wounds in northeast Twin Falls County. His brother, Damon Azure, was allegedly in a nearby car, where deputies reported finding a handgun and ammunition. Azure's attorney, Marilyn Paul, Twin Falls County's chief public defender, also sought to dismiss the murder indictment against Azure based on several challenged to the grand jury. But Stoker also denied that motion Thursday.

Health Insurance Exchange: State or Fed Controlled?

Otter has until Nov. 16 to announce Idaho's decision to the federal government.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • After weeks of discussing the right course for Idaho, an advisory group will announce its final recommendations on how the state should set up a health insurance exchange.

Under the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, states must set up an online health insurance exchange that's up and running by Oct. 1, 2013. It is now up to Idaho to decide if it will allow the federal government to control the exchange or choose to go with a state-based exchange. Earlier this year, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter appointed a 13-member working group to submit its recommendations

FINANCIAL AID

How Will Elections Affect the Pell Grant, Other Loans and Scholarships?

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • About one-third of College of Southern Idaho students — 3,063 — received a Pell Grant this year to pay for school.

And the number continues to climb. Jennifer Zimmers, CSI director of Financial Aid, said she expects this year's number will be higher than the 3,800 students who had a Pell Grant last school year. "We're going to surpass that year," she said.

With the presidential election just a couple of weeks away, Zimmers said the future of Pell Grants depends on who is elected.

"Obviously, it will impact our students if they decrease the amount," she said.

It could mean students would have to find other ways — such as loans or scholarships — to cover college costs.

The Federal Pell Grant Program provides funding to low-income students to pay for college expenses. Students can receive up to $5,500 each school year.

Program Already Changing

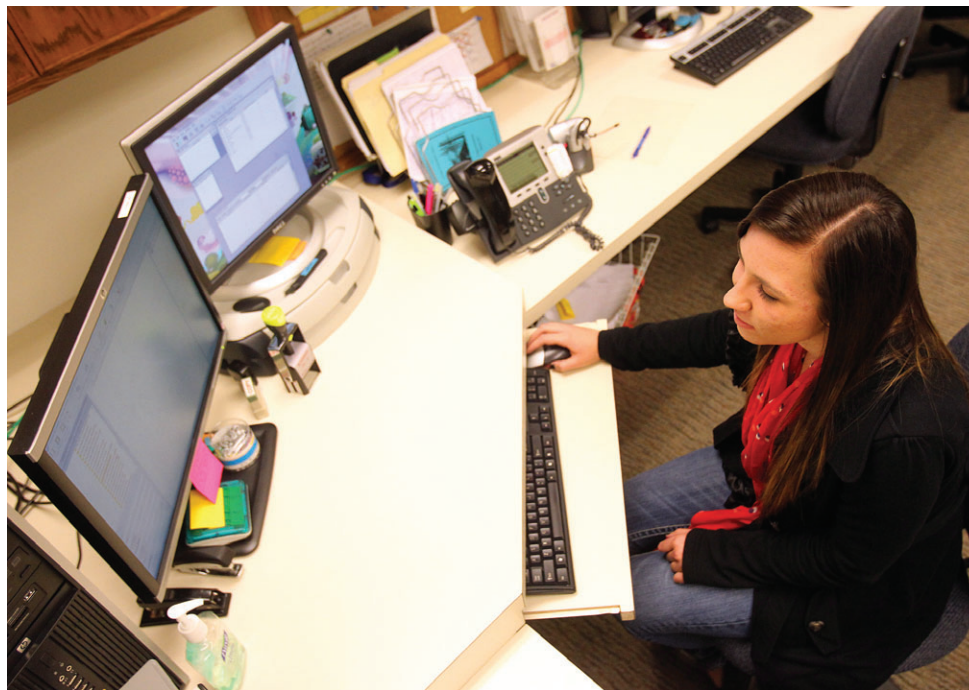

One change to the Pell Grant program came this year. Now, students can receive Pell Grants for a maximum of 12 semesters — down from 18.

Unlike loans, students don't have to repay the grants. Both part- and full-time students can apply.

Students can still apply for a Pell Grant for this school year — whether they're currently enrolled or are planning to take late-start classes.

When students apply, Zimmers said they're reporting income from one year ago.

TWIN FALLS • The Times-News and Magicvalley.com were recognized Thursday by parent company Lee Enterprises for exhaustive coverage of this year's wildfire season.

The newsroom staff received the Lee President's Award for Excellence in News for its work, which included constant online and print updates for weeks on local threats to health and safety. Wildfires threatened homes, lowered air quality and caused evacuations in one of the busiest seasons in recent years.

The award judges gave special recognition to Times-News chief photographer Ashley Smith, whose images received nationwide attention and who underwent firefighter training this spring.

The Times-News' sister paper, the Elko (Nev.) Daily Free Press, also received a President's Award for Innovation for reinventing its successful Mining Quarterly publication — improving all areas including content, presentation, marketing and advertising results.

Six Presidential Candidates on Idaho's Ballot

BY MELISSA DAVLIN

Lots of Candidates

President Barack Obama and former Massachusetts governor Mitt Romney aren't the only candidates for president on Idaho's ballot.

Four others join the Democratic and Republican nominees for president. Are those four long shots? You bet. But if you're curious, here's a brief run-down on the others who hope to occupy the Oval Office.

Still not satisfied with the selection? Thirty four people, including actress Roseanne Barr and a man who goes by Santa Claus, have declared their intent to run as write-ins for president with the Idaho Secretary of State's office. Virgil H. Goode

Constitution Party Rocky Mount, Va.

Virgil Goode's main focus is adhering to the United States Constitution. Goode is also a strong opponent of amnesty for undocumented immigrants, and wants to make English the country's official language.

Gary Johnson

Libertarian Party Salt Lake City, Utah

Former New Mexico governor Gary Johnson is an advocate for small, efficient government and low taxes. He also wants to reform the nation's drug policy.

CANDIDATES TALK TO JEROME VOTERS

BY JULIE WOOTTON

jwootton@magicvalley.com

JEROME • Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall and challenger Ken Rushing disagreed during a Thursday night candidate forum about patrolling in outlying areas of the county.

Rushing said there have been complaints from bars in Jerome that there are sometimes 10 deputies looking for people driving under the influence.

He said there's no one patrolling other areas of the county.

McFall disagreed with Rushing.

“I don't think he's been over there looking,” he said.

A few dozen residents attended a one-hour candidate forum at the Jerome Public Library, hosted by the Jerome Civic Club. Audience members submitted questions on notecards to candidates for Jerome County sheriff and District 25 house and senate.

On the topic of patrolling, McFall said the east side of Jerome County is occasionally neglected. But he said there are now three deputies who live in Hazelton.

Rushing said he heard from Hazelton residents that there's a deputy who's getting his apartment paid for by the sheriff's office.

He asked McFall if that was true. McFall said yes, a deputy who was provided space in a migrant housing unit.

McFall said the deputy is expected to be available if something happens.

Candidates also addressed how they'd fund a new jail.

Rushing said it would be through a bond brought to voters. He said the building needs enough space to accommodate future needs, not “one that just fits us now.”

McFall said past attempts at passing a bond have failed by a handful of votes.

He said he'd like to see a 165-bed facility.

Education Reform

One question was what the next step should be in education reform.

Jim Patrick, who is running for District 25 Senate and served three terms in the Idaho House of Representatives, said if the laws pass, there will probably be refinements.

For the technology piece, “we want to encourage further use of dual enrollment,” he said.

That's when high school students take a class and earn both high school and college credit simultaneously.

Patrick said if the laws fail, the unions will probably be in control of the money and things will likely go back to the “old days” in terms of the education system.

Opponent Scott McClure said he likes the old days.

He said he doesn't like it when the state or federal government puts a top-down directive on schools.

It's a “totally negative approach to government,” he said.

McClure said it's disrespectful to school administrators, teachers and school board members.

He also said the laptops the state selected to distribute to high school teachers and students are already outdated.

Cindy Shotswell, who is running for District 25 house, said school employees make the best decisions — better than mandates handed down to all school districts.

“I like the idea that teachers know what's best for their students,” she said.

Technology can't replace teachers, Shotswell said.

She said it's important for students to gain social skills and learn how to interact with one another in a classroom setting.

Opponent Clark Kauffman said technology is a tool to help teachers.

“I don't think anyone has ever said a laptop is going to replace a teacher,” he said.

Idaho Wind Developer's Woes Mount with Suit

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • Legal challenges facing an Idaho wind energy company are mounting, after a contractor building one of its projects in Minnesota went to court asking a judge to hand over control.

Fagen Inc. says it's entitled to ownership of the 18-turbine "Big Blue Project," near Blue Earth, Minn., on grounds that Exergy Development Group hasn't repaid a $11.4 million loan.

Granite Falls, Minn.-based Fagen says Exergy disputes ownership of the project, causing confusion that's threatening the entire undertaking's survival.

"Because time is of the essence in the continuing construction of the project, and because defendants' actions jeopardize the project itself, the harm resulting from defendants' breach of contract is massive, immediate and irreparable," Fagen wrote in documents moved to U.S. District Court in Minnesota on Tuesday.

The lawsuit names Exergy owner James Carkulis and his top executive, Elizabeth Woolstenhulme.

"Exergy believes the allegations in the lawsuit are entirely without merit and the company will vigorously defend its position in court," the Idaho company said in a statement to The Associated Press.

Exergy already faces a $37.9 million civil suit from a turbine owner in Pennsylvania that says it hasn't been paid.

The Boise-based company has also suspended more than $300 million worth of projects in its home state and has struggled to pay some of its other bills.

But in August, Carkulis had maintained that the Minnesota project was one of its bright spots, offering it as a reason for why his company would survive any current turbulence.

A Fagen spokeswoman, Taunja Kelvington, didn't immediately comment on the lawsuit on Thursday.

But in court documents, the contractor — which describes itself as a builder of facilities for manufacturers, agricultural and alternative energy producers — says a February pact it struck with Exergy gives it control of the Big Blue project because the Idaho company hasn't come up with an $11.4 million loan repayment.

On Feb. 29, Exergy transferred 99 percent of ownership of the project to the contractor, in exchange for reducing Exergy's loan obligations to Fagen, according to the documents.

Subsequently, Exergy had the option to repurchase ownership by June 29.

Failure to do so would give Fagen 100 percent ownership, the documents contend.

"Exergy failed to exercise its purchase option," Fagen's lawyers wrote. "As a result ... defendant Exergy is no longer a member."

The problem now, Fagen contends, is that Carkulis and Woolstenhulme are still insisting they are in control of the project.

That's complicating efforts to have the turbines up and spinning by Dec. 31, an event that would result in the Big Blue project missing out on federal tax grants worth $22 million.

"If the Big Blue project doesn't become operational by Dec. 31, 2012 ... the Big Blue project may fail irrevocably," Fagen wrote.

In its statement Thursday, Exergy says the lawsuit won't delay the project's timely completion.

In the separate legal fight over the turbines from Pennsylvania, Carkulis is accused of failing to pay for 32 turbines due to be transported to Idaho, according to the complaint.

WITH LAPTOP CONTRACT SIGNED, FOCUS NOW SHIFTS TO FUNDING

BOISE (AP) • Now that state officials have signed a $180 million deal to put laptop computers in the hands of Idaho high school students and teachers, the challenge facing lawmakers when they come to Boise in January may be finding the cash to pay for the program.

On Tuesday, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter and public schools chief Tom Luna announced that Hewlett-Packard submitted the low bid and won the eight-year contract. Integrating laptops into high school classrooms statewide is a key component the Students Come First education overhaul pushed by Luna and approved by lawmakers in 2011. The fate of putting laptops in public schools will ultimately be decided by voters Nov. 6. If voters reject Proposition 3, the laptop plan will be scrapped, saving lawmakers from having to make another tough financial decision at a time when the state economy is showing signs of emerging from recession.

But if Proposition 3 survives, lawmakers will have to find more than $9.9 million to cover the costs of getting the first batch of laptops in the hands of a third of high school students next fall.

The annual price increases to more than $18 million the following year when another one-third of students get machines, then grows to more than $26 million in the third year when all students have the devices, according to contract details obtained by The Associated Press Wednesday.

The contract obligates the state to pay $26.4 million each of the last four years of the deal and includes a $14.2 million buyout clause if the state opts out.

"There is a little sticker shock there," said Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, who co-chairs the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee. "It's a little concerning to me. But we all chose to think that this was the direction the state needed to go."

Under terms of the contract, the state will pay about $300 per student — per year — for the computers. That price also includes costs for maintenance and repairs, software upgrades, professional training for teachers and upgrades to wireless networks in classrooms to handle the increase in online traffic. Computers will also be replaced with new models every four years, according to the contract.

In 2011, when lawmakers were considering the laptop plan, Luna and his staff estimated the cost for five years at $60.8 million.

When costs for improving the wireless infrastructure are added to the equation, staff pegged the total five-year price tag at $70.8 million.

Say 'NO' to abusing the Constitution Vote NO on HJR 2!

HJR 2 is a misguided solution looking for a problem:

- There are no threats to Idahoans' rights to hunt or fish. The claim that the Legislature or Idaho citizens might vote to ban fishing or deer hunting or elk hunting is preposterous.
- The Idaho Constitution should be reserved for protecting basic democratic rights. Passage of this proposed amendment would set a bad precedent for changing the Constitution to benefit particular groups.
- If HJR 2 is passed, new laws pertaining to wildlife would be challenged as unconstitutional. Idaho taxpayers would spend money litigating these issues.
- By making hunting, fishing and trapping a "preferred means of managing wildlife," HJR 2 would hinder the Department of Fish and Game in its use of other management tools.
- HJR 2 includes a perpetual guarantee of a right to trap wildlife. Unlike hunting and fishing, trapping is a cruel and prolonged way to kill animals, as well as a threat to pets and hunting dogs. Passage of HJR 2 would interfere with future regulations regarding trapping.
- If HJR 2 is defeated, existing rights to hunt, fish and trap will remain in effect.

Please vote NO on HJR 2!

Lawyers for Homeless Shelter Seek Almost $2M

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • The city of Boise could see its tab for losing a lawsuit over housing for the homeless climb from $1 million to nearly $3 million once attorneys' fees and costs are added.

A federal jury ordered the city to pay $1 million to Community House in September, after finding that the city discriminated against homeless women and children and retaliated against the organization when board members complained. Now the attorneys that represented Community House in the lawsuit are asking that their client be compensated for fees and costs — which they say total nearly $1.9 million.

Under federal law, the winner of a lawsuit can generally seek to recover attorney's fees and costs from the losing side. The fees and costs have to be approved by a judge and they can be appealed, just like the verdict itself. But they can substantially raise the financial stakes for the losing party.

Attorneys for the city, meanwhile, have asked U.S. District Judge Candy Dale to issue a judgment notwithstanding the verdict — a legal move in which a judge can set aside a jury's finding and issue a new verdict — or to hold a new trial. In the city's motion filed Wednesday, the city contends that the judge made mistakes during the trial and that the verdict wasn't supported by the evidence presented in the case.

In Community House's motion for attorney's fees and other supporting documents, also filed Wednesday, attorney Howard Belodoff said that he and several other attorneys and staffers with Idaho Legal Aid Services worked on the case over the past seven years.

"Given the complexity and difficulty of the issues, the appeals, the defenses raised by Defendants, the length of time it took before a jury heard the case and contingent nature of the case, few if any attorneys would have considered representing the plaintiffs who had no resources to compensate counsel or pay the costs," Belodoff wrote in a court document.

Community House and the city of Boise worked together in the 1990s to build and run a homeless shelter and soup kitchen, funded largely through federal grants and private donations. But over time, the relationship began to unravel, and in 2003 the city began looking for a new organization to run the shelter. When Community House officials learned the city planned to partner with the Boise Rescue Mission — which houses only men — Community House filed a complaint under the Fair Housing Act contending that the move amounted to discrimination against the homeless women and children currently living there because it would leave them with no place to go.

The city of Boise officially entered into a lease-and-purchase agreement with the Boise Rescue Mission in 2005, passing an ordinance to make it a shelter for men only. Community House then sued in federal court, bringing a number of claims including discrimination and retaliation.

The city strongly denied those claims and the lawsuit eventually went to trial in August. After 11 days of testimony and arguments, the federal jury sided with Community House, finding the city violated the state constitution, discriminated against homeless women and children and retaliated against Community House.

The jury awarded the organization $1 million, which Belodoff said would be used to house and provide for homeless families, women and children.

Meridian Man Found Guilty of Second-degree Murder

BOISE (AP) • An Ada County jury found a Meridian man guilty of second-degree murder Thursday in the March 2011 shooting death of his wife's lover in a drug store parking lot.

Jurors deliberated for more than seven hours before returning with the guilty verdict against Robert Hall, 42. He was charged with first-degree murder in the death of attorney Emmett Corrigan, but jurors were allowed to consider a lesser charge.

Sentencing is tentatively set for Dec. 13.

In closing arguments Wednesday, both the prosecution and the defense acknowledged it's unknown how the shooting happened. It wasn't captured on the store's video camera, Hall told investigators he couldn't remember what happened, and his wife, Kandi Hall, testified she had turned away from the men before the shots were fired.

"As much as we'd like to be able to tell you, 'Hey, we can switch on the video and prove it to you,' unfortunately we can't," defense attorney Rob Chastain told jurors.

But prosecuting attorney Jason Spillman argued there was enough evidence to determine a murder occurred.

"Folks, you didn't see a murder but the evidence, the circumstances, allow you to find beyond a reasonable doubt that one occurred," he said.

Prosecutors argued Rob Hall went to the parking lot at a Meridian Walgreen's that night with a gun, knowing his wife's car was there and that she'd been having an affair with her boss, Corrigan.

"What was the defendant doing at Walgreen's? He was hunting for them. He wasn't just waiting, he was hunting for them," Spillman said.

Defense attorneys said Hall only intended to talk to his wife.

Idaho Inmate: My Father May Have Killed Utah Girl

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • An Idaho inmate facing extradition for the 1983 sexual assault and beating death of an 11-year-old Ogden girl says his father may have committed the murder, a newspaper reported Thursday.

In a letter sent to The Salt Lake Tribune, Gregory Seamons acknowledged to "fooling around" with 11-year-old Rebecca Lemberger prior to her death in 1983, but he said he suspects his father likely killed the girl.

His father, Larry Bingham Seamons, died nearly a decade ago.

Lemberger, who lived in the same neighborhood, was last seen walking to school on March 2, 1983. Her body was found the next day in a shed in a field. She had been sexually assaulted and died from a blow to the head.

Seamons wrote that his father picked him and a neighborhood girl up one morning, and his father said he would drive him to school first and then drop her off at another school, the newspaper reported Thursday.

"I never saw this girl again and a few days later it came out on the news that she had been killed," he wrote in the letter.

Authorities have said DNA evidence from the scene of the murder matched Seamons' DNA from a national database.

Seamons is serving a sentence of four to 11 years for an unrelated 2007 second-degree kidnapping conviction in Ada County, Idaho. He is scheduled to be released in 2017.

Seamons remains in segregation at the Idaho prison due to the media attention his case has generated, he said in the letter.

"Lots of kids fool around sexually but that doesn't mean one kills the other. I am innocent of this charge and angry that they plan to blame it on a 15-year-old boy," Seamons wrote.

Ogden Major Crimes Sgt. Tim Scott said this is the first time Seamons has pointed the finger at his deceased father, a move he described as "convenient" considering the elder Seamons is dead.

He said police would follow up any new leads, but he also said they are confident the right man has been charged with the rape and murder.

The girl's mother, Nola Mahon, said she doesn't remember Seamons or his father and doesn't believe either one ever visited their home. But she said she has confidence in the work performed by Ogden investigators.

"I think the DNA speaks for itself," she said. "Thank God for DNA."

In the letter, Seamons also claimed that his father molested him in the shower shortly after the girl died, but that he never told anyone until he was in his 30s. He said he suspects his father may have molested other youth.

According to Weber County court records from 1965, Larry Seamons was confined to a state mental hospital after he pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity to a charge of indecent assault on a 4-year-old girl when he was 21. Charging documents show he acknowledged that he and the girl had been naked together in a bed.

Psychiatrists determined that Larry Seamons was "legally sane" and had a passive-aggressive personality with some paranoid traits, according to court records. He subsequently pleaded guilty to taking "indecent liberties" with the child, completed probation and, as a result, the case was dismissed, court records showed.

OPINION

"After living at home for a while, young people have kind of maxed it out. They are heading to bigger, vibrant cities, predominantly, because they're looking for economic opportunity and building their social networks."

William H. Frey, a Brookings Institution demographer on current U.S. census data.

OUR VIEW

Lee Heider: the Best Choice for District 24

Senate District 24 candidate Lee Heider showed himself to be thoughtful and open minded. He didn't just answer the questions asked of him during an interview but engaged the Times-News editorial board in a dialogue. During the hour and a half we spent with him, our interaction with Heider showed a style of leadership the Magic Valley would appreciate from a representative in the Idaho Senate.

We endorse Heider for the District 24 seat.

He is being challenged by Pat Marcantonio — a former Times-News reporter and online editor — who is making her first run for political office.

Marcantonio said she chose to run because she has been a life-long Democrat and it was "time to put your money where your mouth is." She promised to be a voice for people who are traditionally under-represented in Idaho. She pointed out that even though she is a political novice, "No one is born a legislator," but her profession as a journalist taught her how to research the issues and to listen.

Marcantonio took several stands the Times-News editorial board agrees with. She believes in more local control for municipalities in the form of Local Option Tax and she is opposed to Proposition 1, 2 and 3. "I refuse to call them reforms," she said.

But what ultimately kept us from giving her the newspaper's endorsement was best illustrated in her stand on the state's tax code. She said that instead of cutting taxes, she would eliminate some of the "more than 90" exemptions. When we asked for specifics, she could not list the exemptions she would cut. Days later, during the recording of a televised debate, she gave the same answer but still did not have specifics to offer.

Marcantonio said, "For 20 years, I covered city, state and county issues as a reporter. I have the background." We believe her assumption that she knows the system because she spent years covering it would ultimately be her Achilles heel as a legislator.

Heider, we recognize, has the incumbent's advantage in his knowledge of the issues. He also has an advantage in that he already established his place as a member of JFAC, the Health and Welfare and the Resources and Environment committees — positions he hopes to assume again next session. He is a valuable voice for the Magic Valley in the legislature.

He is already hard at work on seven pieces of legislation for the coming session, he said, including a bill that would keep convicted teenage felons from returning to school and additional language to the existing law that would make organ donation easier.

Heider spent much of his energy in the last session getting the Right to Hunt amendment on the ballot. While the Times-News disagrees that this language should be added to the state constitution, we appreciated Heider's candor about all he learned from the process.

"I learned it's not my bill," he said. "It belongs to everyone in the state."

He promised to vote with his conscience and for his constituents, even if it's politically unpopular among members of his party.

"I would rather serve a shorter time in the senate than violate my principles," he said.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Scott Tverdy the Best Candidate for CSI Position 1

The CSI community should feel honored that so many have stepped up to offer the gift of their time, heart and experience to act as a sounding board and provide counsel for the times ahead. This also leaves no easy choices on Election Day for voters. We see an unprecedented field of candidates — all of them seemingly capable of taking on the job at hand.

Thus, those of us who can and will vote find ourselves saddled with the responsibility to carefully study the experience of each candidate and, by doing that, we can ensure ourselves the luxury of voting for the most qualified of some solid candidates. I know a great deal about one of the candidates for the Position 1 seat — he stands out!

Scott Tverdy served on my school board for 10 years while I was the superintendent of Castleford Schools. During that time, he was also very involved with the Idaho School Boards Association, where he served as one of its officers for four terms and was the state president of the association for one. I remember Scott being involved locally and on the state level with groundbreaking work on college prep, vocational/technical education and even with remediation programs for students who were falling behind. Scott carries with him not only his public service experience in education but also many experiences in the realm of private business management. The combination puts him in a unique position to provide qualified input on the mission and goals of the college.

Scott's farm/ranch background offers evidence of his ability to work long and hard. His long list of community service projects speaks to his character and to his commitment to the public. Scott's background in banking guarantees a trained look at economy, budget, planning and economic development. He is also a heck of a nice guy who is friendly and very approachable. Above all of that, I respect and trust him as an individual who always serves with integrity.

Please look at Scott Tverdy as an excellent choice for filling the Position 1 seat on the CSI board. I also want to express my admiration for all who have stepped up to run for this board. Your participation is an example of democracy at its best. CSI and the Magic Valley are both magnificent examples of what can happen when hard work and great ideas combine, and the process begins when people like you are willing to step up. Best wishes!

Voting for Sheriff Carter Again

Hassani challenges Carter for Twin Falls County sheriff. Both have good qualifications, so who do you vote for? I have listened to both men speak, and I am voting for Sheriff Carter again.

Hassani came to the Buhl Senior Center recently. He said Twin Falls County is a dangerous place to live, and he wants to change that. He said it is time for a change. OK, change what, why? What is the problem, what needs to be fixed and how? I was rather lost with his statement, and I remember hearing another person make that same statement four years ago. Now look where we are.

In the Oct. 17 Times-News story about this sheriff challenge, Hassani said he needed special accommodations at the sheriff's office for him to be at work. What are these and what is this going to cost us? And another thing I do not understand — Hassani is pursuing a lawsuit against the county he wants to be sheriff for. What is that going to cost us and how is that going to work if he is elected sheriff?

Sheriff Carter, on the other hand, identified what he wanted to accomplish and has, in fact, accomplished what he said he was going to do. Now he has set new goals for the sheriff's department. I believe he will continue doing as he says and delivering good quality law enforcement and leadership as he has done these past four years.

If you want to hear him speak and ask him a question, he will be at the West End Senior Center, 1010 Main St. in Buhl, on Sunday, Oct. 28, at noon. Come join us for lunch and no, you do not have to be a senior to eat there. We are open to the public. We are having good food and conversation.

Former CSI President Gives Endorsement to Dr. Scholes

It was gratifying to see the number of quality citizens who have indicated a willingness to serve on the CSI Board of Trustees. I think this interest demonstrates an understanding that CSI does play a significant role in the Magic Valley.

However, I am endorsing the candidacy of Dr. Thad Scholes who is an incumbent seeking re-election. Dr. Scholes has been on the board for a number of terms and offers an experienced perspective of leadership and vision, since at this time the remainder of the board will be serving their first terms.

I think it would be important to review some of the CSI board's decisions over the past many years that have had a significant impact on our publics. Establishing outreach centers in Burley, Hailey, Gooding and Jerome to allow students to attain educational objectives when they might have otherwise been unavailable.

Developing a microwave system to connect all the outreach centers, CSI and universities by telecommunicating various education programs to and around our valley.

Initiating dual credit opportunities for high school students which allow them to earn college credits while still in high school, thus gaining the benefit of completing their education in a shorter time period.

Collaborating with the college and universities to bring various four-year degree programs to the Magic Valley, which allow our publics to stay home with their families and jobs and still achieve their educational goals.

Supporting the formation of the Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization, which has played a major role in the recruitment of business and industry to our valley.

During my tenure as CSI president, they provided leadership and vision by either expanding or building 15 new educational facilities to meet the space demands of an ever-increasing enrollment. In addition, the board negotiated with the Twin Falls School trustees to exchange properties on North College Road, which has allowed growth for both the college and the school district.

This is just a small indication of the foresight and ingenuity that Dr. Scholes and the board have demonstrated over the past many years. I urge you to vote for Dr. Scholes for the CSI Board of Trustees and continue CSI's history of providing the best in educational opportunities for our Valley.

JERRY MEYERHOEFFER

Nelsen Would Keep Jerome County in Mind on CSI Board

I have known Jack Nelsen for many years. He is honest, hard-working and has been successful in whatever he does. I believe he would be a very good representative from Jerome County for the College of Southern Idaho Board.

The people need Jack to represent us because we pay taxes to CSI and should have a say in what goes on. If Jack is not elected, we are at the mercy of what the people across the river (south side) do with our tax money. Maybe then it will be time to get out of paying taxes to CSI. That money could go for a new county jail, new police station and improvements to our sewer plant.

Chiarella Challenges Nielsen for House Seat

mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Political newcomer Pam Chiarella is challenging Rep. Pete Nielsen for House Seat B in the new Legislative District 23.

Nielsen has served five terms in the Idaho Legislature, and currently serves on the education, environment and judiciary committees.

Nielsen is a strong supporter of the Students Come First laws and dual credit classes. At a Wednesday candidate forum at College of Southern Idaho, he praised dual credit, saying it allows families to save money on higher education.

Chiarella strongly opposes Students Come First, and testified against the bills when they were first introduced in 2011.

Chiarella's biggest issues are education, the economy, tax equality and civil liberties.

"My priority definitely is to reform education in Idaho, but in a manner that is consistent with research and evidence-based practices," she said.

She is also concerned about infrastructure and the economy.

The new District 23 encompasses Elmore and Owyhee counties, plus the western part of rural Twin Falls County, stretching from near Buhl to the Oregon border.

Bickle ran as a write-in candidate for the Democratic nomination in the primary. After receiving enough votes, she is officially on the ballot for the Nov. 6 general election.

On her Web page, Bickle says she is concerned about the economy in rural Idaho, restoration of education funds, infrastructure and environmental funds.

Wills is a member of the House transportation, education and judiciary committees.

LeFavour, Simpson Face Off for Congressional Seat

mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A popular Boise state senator is challenging a long-term incumbent for his seat in Congress.

Nicole LeFavour is running against U.S. Rep. Mike Simpson for the House seat in Idaho's Congressional District 2.

Both have experience with setting government budgets. LeFavour served on the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee in the Idaho Legislature, and Simpson is a member of the House Appropriations Committee and the House Budget Committee. Simpson also serves as the chairman of the Subcommittee on Interior, Environment, and Related Agencies.

LeFavour, a Democrat from Boise's North End, has campaigned tirelessly throughout Congressional District 2 since the end of the 2012 legislative session. In a solidly Republican district, LeFavour said she hopes to bypass party lines and put policy above politics.

Through his appropriations subcommittee, Simpson has worked to limit the scope of the Environmental Protection Agency, which he says overreaches in its authority. He's also pursued other budget reforms for federal lands agencies.

LeFavour has criticized Simpson for voting against the Lily Ledbetter Fair Pay

Act, but Simpson said he didn't like the legislation because it only extended the statute of limitations for reporting complaints and did nothing to address equal pay for women.

"To suggest I don't care about fair pay for women is just patently absurd," Simpson said, adding he hasn't seen a good piece of legislation that addresses fair pay for women.

Simpson said he also works across the aisle. He pointed to his active membership in the Go Big Coalition, which is tasked with forming bipartisan budget legislation. LeFavour, a vocal opponent of Idaho's Students Come First education reform laws, has challenged Simpson to give his opinion on Propositions 1, 2 and 3. If a majority of voters vote "No" on the propositions in the general election, the education laws will be overturned.

"My question is, is this the type of policy you would support on a national level?" LeFavour said.

Simpson, who donated to Idaho public schools chief Tom Luna's 2010 campaign and received an endorsement this year from the Idaho Education Association, said he doesn't want voters to consider his opinion on Students Come First.

"I haven't taken a position on it," he said. "Because that's an issue that voters are going to decide in November."

Lawyer: Send Idaho Disclosure Case to Fed Court

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • A group seeking to avoid being forced to reveal donors whose $200,000 financed TV ads promoting public schools chief Tom Luna's education overhaul filed a request Thursday to move the case to federal court.

The effort by Education Voters of Idaho came just hours before a state judge in Boise is scheduled today to consider Secretary of State Ben Ysursa's demand that the group disclose its donors.

Education Voters of Idaho, whose founders include Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's campaign manager, Debbie Field, and former Gov. Dirk Kempthorne's chief of staff, Phil Re-berger, contributed more than $200,350 to a related political action committee, Parents for Education Reform, for broadcast advertising meant to help save the overhaul on Nov. 6.

Ysursa argues the group is required by Idaho's 38-year-old Sunshine Law to disclose its donors.

But group attorney Christ Troupis has said his client is a nonprofit, 501(c)4 organization that's allowed under federal law to shield donors' identities to preserve their free-speech rights.

In his filing in U.S. District Court, Troupis maintains that Education Voters of Idaho have 1st Amendment and 14th Amendment constitutional claims.

Luna's education changes limit union bargaining power, promote teacher merit pay, and require online classes and student laptop computers.

This dispute has made headlines ahead of the Nov. 6 vote on whether Luna's overhaul will survive.

Deputy Secretary of State Tim Hurst told The Associated Press on Thursday evening that lawyers from the Idaho attorney general's office were reviewing Troupis' filing before deciding how to respond.

Fourth District Judge Deborah Bail is due to consider Ysursa's motion for a temporary restraining order at 1:30 p.m. today in her Boise courtroom.

Ysursa wants donors' names disclosed by next Friday, four days before the election, in a bid to inform voters of just who is behind the group.

Paul argued several jurors on the grand jury had some kind of relationship with people in law enforcement, and the judge who questioned the jurors did not question them thoroughly enough about how those relationships might affect their decision in the case.

Stoker asked Paul if the jurors made any statements that showed express bias about law enforcement.

Paul said they did not, but argued the jurors weren't questioned enough for that potential bias to be revealed.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loeb's countered that many of the relationships were not close, and only one potentially involved the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office, the agency that first responded to the scene.

Paul also brought up that one juror had some knowledge of one of the witnesses. Loeb's said even if that juror's vote was not counted, 14 more jurors still voted to indict Azure on the murder charge.

On a grand jury, 12 out of 16 jurors must agree for an indictment to go through. Loeb's said the 16th juror was dismissed from the case because they started talking about facts they believed about the case from media reports.

Stoker conditionally denied the motion to move the trial. He said Paul has the right to ask him to reconsider if it appears that finding a fair jury will be difficult after all.

Azure's trial has already been delayed after he was initially declared unable to assist in his own defense. At his first appearance in front of a judge — by video in February — Azure was uncooperative and confined to a restraint chair. In June, after a stint in the Idaho Security Medical Program, Azure was again declared competent for trial.

At Thursday's hearing Azure appeared in leg restraints and handcuffs, which is typical for jail inmates.

A new trial date for Azure has not been set, but a status hearing is scheduled for Dec. 3.

One issue still outstanding: In late September, Paul filed a motion seeking to overturn Idaho's ban on using an insanity defense. Stoker has yet to rule on that request, though the Idaho Supreme Court has rejected such appeals multiple times over the last 20 years.

Exchange

on how the state should set up an exchange. Once given the recommendations, Otter has until Nov. 16 to announce Idaho's decision to the federal government.

A state-run exchange is a popular option among state and local officials. However, the reform law's tight deadline structure doesn't give states much time to create something from scratch. If Idaho can't show the federal government it can have an exchange operating by Oct. 1 of next year, the federal government has the authority to take over the exchange.

Despite the quick turnaround, Idaho has the time and resources to set up a state-based exchange, said Heidi Low, director of the Idaho Health Exchange Alliance, a coalition of local health care leaders.

"The timelines are tight but it is doable," Low said.

Idaho will make the deadlines if it chooses to run its state-based exchange through a nonprofit, said Julie Taylor, director of governmental affairs for Blue Cross Idaho.

Idaho has a precedent of using a nonprofit to meet federal healthcare requirements. In 2009, Otter designated the Idaho Health Data Exchange to oversee federal grants for health information technology.

In order to speed up setting up the exchange, Otter should approve the nonprofit through an executive order, Taylor said.

"We tried passing a state exchange with legislation last year and it didn't go anywhere," she said. "If we wait again for the Legislature to approve a nonprofit, we would waste all that time between now and then."

While no one knows exactly what the exchange will look like, local business leaders want the exchange to remain in Idahoan hands.

"I think a state exchange would be accountable to Idaho businesses," said Cally Parrot, vice president corporate relations/organizational development for Buhl-based Clear Springs Foods.

"I really believe in preserving our state rights and we can better control the costs and minimize the costs," she said. "A nonprofit can continue to move forward in that way, to continue keeping costs low and generally improving the health in Idaho."

Debbie Lattin, who owns a Twin Falls insurance company, agrees.

"A nonprofit exchange keeps healthcare costs in a free market situation," she said. "That's really what we need for employers and employees."

Couldn't Afford School without It

When it comes time to pay for college, Brooklyn Taylor relies on federal financial aid.

The first-year College of Southern Idaho student received a Pell Grant this year. She also works 12 hours a week through the Federal Work Study program at the college's financial aid office. Taylor said she can mold her work schedule around classes, "which is really nice."

Through federal financial aid, her college expenses are covered. She uses whatever's left over to pay rent and buy food.

What would she do without a Pell Grant?

"I probably would have stayed home," she said.

Taylor said it's nice that her parents don't have to pay for any of her college expenses. And she also got the opportunity to live on her own.

If her Pell Grant award amount goes down in the future, "it would definitely have an effect," she said.

year, as scheduled under current law.

That figure has grown by more than $900 since 2008 for a program that is the largest source of federal aid for students, according to a September Associated Press story.

Under the education issues page on Mitt Romney's campaign website, he states he'd "strengthen and simplify the financial aid system."

In a May whitepaper titled, "A Chance for Every Child" — posted on his campaign website — Romney argued that even as federal spending for higher education has grown, the costs of attending college and student debt have ballooned.

"A Romney Administration will refocus Pell Grant dollars on the students that need them most and place the program on a responsible long-term path that avoids future funding cliffs and last-minute funding patches," according to the whitepaper.

'Black Mold' Meningitis Challenges Scientists

WASHINGTON (AP) • The black mold creeping into the spines of hundreds of people who got tainted shots for back pain marks uncharted medical territory. Never before has this particular fungus been found to cause meningitis. It's incredibly hard to diagnose, and to kill — requiring at least three months of a treatment that can cause hallucinations. There's no good way to predict survival, or when it's safe to stop treating, or exactly how to monitor those who fear the fungus may be festering silently in their bodies. "I don't think there is a precedent for this kind of thing," said Dr. Arjun Srivastava of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Health officials and doctors have tracked down most of the 14,000 people potentially at risk for fungal meningitis, blamed for the deaths of 24 people and sickening more than 300. "This is definitely new territory for us," he said. But they're learning fast, piecing together clues that promise some hope. Doctors are beginning to detail in medical journals the first deaths in this outbreak, and the grim autopsy findings make clear that treating early is crucial, before the fungus becomes entrenched. In one case, a woman died in Maryland after the fungus pierced blood vessels in her brain, leading to severe damage. People getting treated earlier "seem to be doing OK," with fewer of the strokes that characterized the outbreak's beginning, said Dr. Carol Kauffman of the University of Michigan. She has advised the CDC and co-authored advice in the New England Journal of Medicine on how to handle the complex medication used in treatment. With the tainted shots recalled in late September, that means the period of greatest risk is nearing an end. And it should help doctors bombarded with calls from the worried determine who most needs a spinal tap to look for the very earliest signs of infection.

COLORADO SHOOTER RETURNS TO COURT

CENTENNIAL, Colo. (AP) • The suspect in the Colorado theater shootings returned to court Thursday for another hearing, but the judge mostly dealt with scheduling matters. James Holmes had short brown hair, bushy sideburns and a mustache when he appeared in Arapahoe County District Court. He sometimes peered around the courtroom with his eyes opened wide and his eyebrows arched. The hearing was originally scheduled to consider a request by the defense to delay Holmes' preliminary hearing, where the judge would decide whether Holmes should stand trial. Defense lawyers, however, asked for more time to prepare to argue for a delay, and the judge granted it. The judge said he planned to release his decisions on some of the motions filed by the attorneys and by the media seeking access to more information. Court officials said the decisions were not expected to be made public until Friday. The specific matters the judge planned to rule on were not immediately known. Holmes is charged with first-degree murder and other crimes in the July 20 shootings in the Denver suburb of Aurora that killed 12 people and wounded at least 58.

This NOAA satellite image taken Thursday shows Category 2 Hurricane Sandy moving northward across the Bahamas.

EASTERN STATES PREPARE FOR 'FRANKENSTORM'

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) • Utilities and governments along the East Coast are working to head off long-term power failures as forecasters predict a major storm to hit a region already skittish after foul weather in recent months that plunged residents into darkness for weeks. Power companies from the Southeast to New England are telling independent contractors to be ready to help fix storm damage quickly and are asking employees to cancel vacations and work longer hours. "Although we are not certain the storm will impact the state, we need to be prepared," Connecticut Gov. Dannel P. Malloy said Thursday. "That means everyone, especially the state's utility companies." Federal and private weather forecasters say there is a good chance much of the coast will get hit with gale-force winds, heavy rain, flooding and maybe even snow early next week through Halloween on Wednesday. Hurricane Sandy, now in the Caribbean, is expected to merge with a winter storm and a blast of arctic air, creating what forecasters are branding "Frankenstorm."

Several storms in the region cut power off for extended periods in the past year or so, including Tropical Storms Irene and Lee in the summer of 2011, a freak Halloween snowstorm last year and violent weather in the mid-Atlantic region in June this year. Connecticut was among the hardest-hit states last year when Irene and the snowstorm knocked out power to more than 800,000 homes and businesses in the state. Some were without electricity for more than a week after both storms. In Massachusetts, Gov. Deval Patrick has given utilities until Friday to submit plans for the storm. When asked during Thursday on WTKK-FM whether utilities would be ready, Patrick responded, "They'd better be." New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg on Thursday noted some uncertainty in the forecasts and said the city was striking a tone of calm preparedness. "What we are doing is we are taking the kind of precautions you should expect us to do, and I don't think anyone should panic," Bloomberg said. The city has opened an emergency situation room and activated its coastal storm plan.

Japanese Nuclear Plants Worry Over Contaminated Water

TOKYO (AP) • Japan's crippled nuclear power plant is struggling to find space to store tens of thousands of tons of highly contaminated water used to cool the broken reactors, the manager of the water treatment team said. About 200,000 tons of radioactive water — enough to fill more than 50 Olympic-sized swimming pools — are being stored in hundreds of gigantic tanks built around the Fukushima Dai-ichi plant. Operator Tokyo Electric Power Co. has already chopped down trees to make room for more tanks and predicts the volume of water will more than triple within three years. "It's a pressing issue because our land is limited and we would eventually run out of storage space," the water-treatment manager, Yuichi Okamura, told The Associated Press in an exclusive interview this week. TEPCO is close to running a new treatment system that could make the water safe enough to release into the ocean. But in the meantime its tanks are filling up — mostly because leaks in reactor facilities are allowing ground water pour in. Outside experts worry that if contaminated water is released, there will be lasting impact on the environment. And they fear that because of the reactor leaks and water flowing from one part of the plant to another, that may already be happening. The concerns are less severe than the nightmare scenario TEPCO faced in the weeks after the March 11, 2011, earthquake and tsunami knocked out power and cooling systems at the plant, leading to explosions and meltdowns of three reactor cores in the world's worst nuclear disaster since Chernobyl. The plant released radiation into the surrounding air, soil and ocean and displaced more than 100,000 residents who are uncertain when — or if — they will be able to return to their homes. Next month, Okamura's group plans to flip the switch on new purifying equipment using Toshiba Corp. technology that is supposedly able to decontaminate the water by removing strontium and other nuclides, potentially below detectable levels, he said. TEPCO claims the treated water from this new system is clean enough to be potentially released into the ocean, although it hasn't said whether it would do that. To deal with the excess tainted water, the utility has channeled it to more than 300 huge storage tanks placed around the plant. The utility has plans to install storage tanks for up to 700,000 tons — or about three more years' worth — of contaminated water. There's also a risk the storage tanks and the jury-rigged pipe system connecting them could be damaged if the area is struck by another earthquake or tsunami. Goto, the nuclear engineer, believes it will take far longer than TEPCO's goal of two years to repair all the holes in the reactors.

Presidential Elections to Pass $2 Billion Mark

WASHINGTON (AP) • The 2012 presidential campaign was expected Thursday to pass the $2 billion mark in fundraising, according to accounting statements submitted to the government, thanks to an outpouring of cash from both ordinary citizens and the wealthiest Americans hoping to influence the selection of the country's next leader.

The eye-popping figure puts this election on track to be the costliest in history, fueled by a campaign finance system vastly altered by the proliferation of "super" political committees that are bankrolling a barrage of TV ads in battleground states.

President Barack Obama and Republican challenger Mitt Romney had brought in more than $1.5 billion through the end of September, according to previous fundraising reports submitted before the final pre-election accounting statements were due Thursday night.

Obama hadn't yet disclosed his fundraising for early October, but Romney's campaign said it raised $111.8 million in the first two weeks.

Added to that: more than $230 million in donations involving super PACs since 2011.

The largest of those were two pro-Romney groups. American Crossroads, a Republican-leaning super PAC with ties to former President George W. Bush's longtime political counselor Karl Rove, reported raising at least $68 million through September. Restore Our Future, founded by former Romney aides, reported raising $110 million so far. Priorities USA, a pro-Obama group founded by two former aides to the president, reported raising $50 million through last month.

The $2 billion fundraising figure doesn't include nearly $130 million spent on political ads by non-profit groups that aren't required to file campaign finance reports or disclose their donors. Such so-called social welfare organizations are governed by tax laws, not election laws, although they are often affiliated with established super PACs.

Presidential candidates in 2008 raised more than $1.8 billion in inflation-adjusted figures. This time, new factors have contributed to the sharp escalation in the campaign money chase.

This year marked the first time that both major party candidates opted out from the public financing system established to set limits on how much a presidential candidate can raise and spend.

Both Obama and Romney would have been eligible for about $100 million in taxpayer money to support their campaigns through the general election, but both gambled — correctly — that they could raise and spend far more.

A sign next to a body scanner describes what Transportation Security Administration officers see on their computer screens as volunteers go through the first full body X-rayscanner installed in 2010 at O'Hare International Airport in Chicago.

Government Replaces Body Scanners

CHICAGO (AP) • The federal government is quietly removing full-body X-ray scanners from seven major airports and replacing them with a different type of machine that produces a cartoon-like outline instead of the naked images that have been compared to a strip search.

The Transportation Security Administration says it is making the switch in technology to speed up lines at crowded airports, not to ease passenger privacy concerns. But civil liberties groups hope the change signals that the equipment will eventually go to the scrap heap.

"Hopefully this represents the beginning of a phase-out of the X-ray-type scanners, which are more privacy intrusive and continue to be surrounded by health questions," said Jay Stanley, a privacy expert at the American Civil Liberties Union.

The machines will not be retired. They are being moved to smaller airports while Congress presses the TSA to put in place stronger privacy safeguards on all imaging equipment.

In the two years since they first appeared at the nation's busiest airports, the "backscatter" model of scanner has been the focus of protests and lawsuits because it uses X-rays to peer beneath travelers' clothing.

The machines are being pulled out of New York's LaGuardia and Kennedy airports, Chicago's O'Hare, Los Angeles International and Boston Logan, as well as airports in Charlotte, N.C., and Orlando, Fla.

The TSA would not comment on whether it planned to remove machines from any other locations.

Some of the backscatter scanners have gone to airports in Mesa, Ariz., Key West, Fla., and San Juan, Puerto Rico. The TSA is still deciding where to send others.

The switch is being made as the TSA is under pressure from Congress.

Legislation approved in February gave the agency until June to get rid of the X-ray scanners or upgrade them with software that produces only a generic outline of the human form, not a blurry naked image.

Panetta: U.S. Lacked Early Information on Benghazi Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) • The U.S. military did not quickly intervene during the attack on the U.S. Consulate in Libya last month because military leaders did not have adequate intelligence information and felt they should not put American forces at risk, Defense Secretary Leon Panetta said Thursday.

In his most extensive comments to date on the unfolding controversy surrounding the attack in Benghazi, Panetta said U.S. forces were on heightened alert because of the anniversary of 9/11 and prepared to respond. But, he said, the attack happened over a few hours.

"(The) basic principle is that you don't deploy forces into harm's way without knowing what's going on; without having some real-time information about what's taking place," Panetta told Pentagon reporters. "And as a result of not having that kind of information, the commander who was on the ground in that area, Gen. Ham, Gen. Dempsey and I felt very strongly that we could not put forces at risk in that situation."

Panetta was referring to Gen. Carter Ham, the head of U.S. Africa Command, and Gen. Martin Dempsey, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

In a letter to President Barack Obama Thursday, House Speaker John Boehner questioned if the White House considered military options during or immediately after the attack, and he questioned what the president knew about the security threats in the country. He said the national debate over the incident shows that Americans are concerned and frustrated about the administration's response to the attack.

A mourner pays his respects at the public viewing for former U.S. senator and three-time presidential candidate George McGovern on Thursday at the First United Methodist Church in Sioux Falls, S.D.

Friends Pay Tribute to McGovern

SIoux FALLS, S.D. (AP) • Mourners from near and far paused Thursday before the flag-draped coffin of former Sen. George McGovern to pay their respects to the liberal Democrat whose spectacularly failed 1972 bid for president helped reshape his party and who later championed the fight against global hunger.

McGovern died Sunday at age 90. His funeral is today.

Vice President Joe Biden, who served in the Senate with McGovern in the 1970s and early 1980s, was among those expected to attend Thursday's public viewing and prayer service.

Most of those who showed up early at the First United Methodist Church were friends, neighbors, constituents or admirers of McGovern.

Among them was Burton Barnard, a 68-year-old from western Wisconsin. After driving 300 miles, he was toward the front of the line when the church opened for a four-hour viewing period.

"There's not that many people I would drive that far for," Barnard said. "McGovern was a deeply moral and principled leader for us in the 60s and 70s."

Francis and Nancy McGowan of Sioux Falls, both retired, said they attended the viewing because they held McGovern in high esteem because he cared for people.

BP Caps Dome Tied to Oil Sheen

NEW ORLEANS (AP) • BP PLC said Thursday it has capped and plugged an abandoned piece of equipment that is believed to be the source of a sheen spotted near the site of its massive 2010 oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico.

The London-based oil giant said it placed a 750-pound cap over an 86-ton steel container that the company had deployed in a failed effort to contain the spill. BP also inserted plugs on the top and sides of the container, which had been lowered over a leaking drill pipe in an effort to funnel oil to the surface.

BP and the Coast Guard both say no oil has been seen leaking out of the container since it was capped and plugged. The operation started Tuesday and lasted roughly 26 hours.

The sheen appeared on the Gulf's surface in September. BP plans to monitor the sheen by satellite for several more days.

The Coast Guard says it has directed BP to submit a plan for either removing remaining oil from the container or removing the container itself after the oil is removed.

U.S. Returns 4,000 Archaeological Relics

EL PASO, Texas (AP) • More than 4,000 archaeological artifacts looted from Mexico and seized in the U.S. have been returned to Mexican authorities.

U.S. officials displayed the relics at the Mexican Consulate in El Paso before handing them over during a ceremony Thursday.

The National Archaeological Council of Mexico says the items mostly date from before European explorers landed in North America.

Council President Pedro Sanchez says they include items from hunter-gatherers in pre-Columbian northern Mexico, such as stones to grind corn, statues, figurines and copper hatchets.

WASHINGTON (AP) • Weekly applications for U.S. unemployment aid fell last week to a seasonally adjusted 369,000, a level consistent with modest hiring.

The Labor Department said Thursday that unemployment benefit applications dropped by 23,000, from a revised 392,000 the previous week. The four-week average, a less volatile measure, rose to 368,000.

The figures appear to have stabilized after being distorted in the previous two weeks by seasonal adjustment problems.

Applications are a proxy for layoffs. When they fall below 375,000, it suggests hiring is strong enough to lower the unemployment rate.

Applications have fluctuated between 360,000 and 390,000 since January. At the same time, employers have added an average of nearly 150,000 jobs a month. That's barely enough to lower the unemployment rate, which has declined from 8.3 percent to 7.8 percent this year.

Robert Kavcic, an economist at BMO Capital Markets, said jobless claims have struggled to fall below 360,000 this year.

Soundtrack to History: 1878 Thomas Edison Audio Unveiled

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) • It's scratchy, lasts only 78 seconds and features the world's first recorded blooper.

The modern masses can now listen to what experts say is the oldest playable recording of an American voice and the first-ever capturing of a musical performance, thanks to digital advances that allowed the sound to be transferred from flimsy tinfoil to computer.

The recording was originally made on a Thomas Edison-invented phonograph in St. Louis in 1878.

At a time when music lovers can carry thousands of digital songs on a player the size of a pack of gum, Edison's tinfoil playback seems prehistoric. But that dinosaur opens a key window into the development of recorded sound.

"In the history of recorded sound that's still playable, this is about as far back as we can go," said John Schneider, a trustee at the Museum of Innovation and Science in Schenectady, where it was played Thursday night in the city where Edison helped found the General Electric Co.

The recording opens with a 23-second cornet solo of an unidentified song, followed by a man's voice reciting "Mary

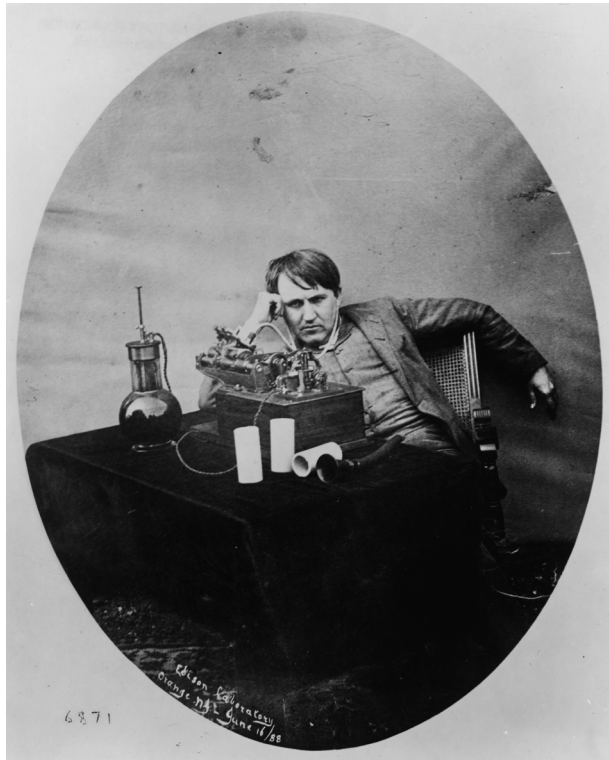

Had a Little Lamb" and "Old Mother Hubbard." The man laughs at two spots during the recording, including at the end, when he recites the wrong words in the second nursery rhyme.

"Look at me; I don't know the song," he says.

When the recording was played using modern technology during a presentation Thursday at a nearby theater, it was likely the first time it had been played at a public event since it was created during an Edison phonograph demonstration held June 22, 1878, in St. Louis, museum officials said.

The recording was made on a sheet of tinfoil, 5 inches wide by 15 inches long, placed on the cylinder of the phonograph Edison invented in 1877 and began selling the following year.

A hand crank turned the cylinder under a stylus that would move up and down over the foil, recording the sound waves created by the operator's voice. The stylus would eventually tear the foil after just a few playbacks, and the person demonstrating the technology would typically tear up the tinfoil and hand the pieces out as souvenirs, according to museum curator

Chris Hunter.

Popping noises heard on this recording are likely from scars left from where the foil was folded up for more than a century.

"Realistically, once you played it a couple of times, the stylus would tear through it and destroy it," he said.

Only a handful of the tinfoil recording sheets are known to survive, and of those, only two are playable: the Schenectady museum's and an 1880 recording owned by The Henry Ford museum in Michigan.

Prosecutors: Teen Confesses in Death of Colorado Girl

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) • Prosecutors said Thursday a Colorado teenager confessed to killing a 10-year-old girl who lived less than a mile from his home — a crime authorities previously said was probably committed by someone known to the small community of Westminster.

In addition, prosecutor Hal Sargent said 17-year-old Austin Reed Sigg acknowledged a separate attack in May on a female runner by a stranger who grabbed her from behind and put a rag that smelled of chemicals over her mouth. Police said the two crimes were connected but didn't elaborate. Authorities also said they had DNA evidence to prove their case.

Seven of Jessica Ridgeway's family members sat with their arms around each other as Sigg made his first appearance in a heavily guarded courtroom in Golden. Sigg glanced in their direction just once. Four of his family members also were in court, and they occasionally sobbed during the hearing. At one point he spoke to the judge, saying in a high-pitched voice, "I don't understand what that ..." before breaking off when one of his attorneys began speaking to him. When District Judge Ann Gail Meinster asked Sigg if a parent was present, he said yes and looked toward his relatives.

In the audience, Jessica's mother, Sarah Ridgeway, wore a purple ribbon in her hair. Purple was Jessica's favorite color, and purple ribbons and balloons have become a symbol of remembrance for her family and the public.

Sigg is being held without bail on suspicion of murder and kidnapping in the death of Jessica, and attempted murder and attempted kidnapping in the case of the runner. Prosecutors, who have yet to decide whether to prosecute Sigg as an adult, are expected to formally charge him next week.

Jessica disappeared three weeks ago after leaving her home in the Denver suburb to walk to school. She never arrived. Her remains were found on Oct. 10.

Sigg was taken into custody late Tuesday after police received a phone call from his mother Mindy Sigg, who later told The Associated Press in a phone interview that he turned himself in.

56 Dead in New Ethnic Violence in Myanmar

KYAUKTAW, Myanmar (AP) • At least 56 people were killed and nearly 2,000 homes destroyed in the latest outbreak of ethnic violence in western Myanmar, a government official said Thursday.

The 25 men and 31 women were reported dead in four Rakhine state townships in violence between the Buddhist Rakhine and Muslim Rohingya communities that erupted Sunday, local government spokesman Win Myaing said.

He said some 1,900 homes had been burned down in fresh conflict, while 60 men and four women were injured. It was unclear how many of the victims were Rohingya people and how many were Rakhine.

In June, ethnic violence in the state left at least 90 people dead and destroyed more than 3,000 homes. Tens of thousands of people remain in refugee camps.

The unrest broke out days after the U.S. held what it described as an encouraging human rights dialogue with Myanmar — the latest sign of diplomatic re-engagement with the former pariah state, which has also seen the easing of sanctions to reward it for democratic reforms. The unrest is some of the worst reported in the region since June, after clashes were set off by the alleged rape and murder of a Buddhist woman by three Muslim men in late May.

The crisis in Myanmar's west goes back decades and is rooted in a dispute over where the region's Muslim inhabitants are from. Although many Rohingya have lived in Myanmar for generations, they are widely denigrated as foreigners — intruders who came from neighboring Bangladesh to steal scarce land.

The U.N. estimates their number at 800,000. But the government does not count them as one of the country's 135 ethnic groups, and so — like neighboring Bangladesh — denies them citizenship. Human rights groups say racism also plays a role: Many Rohingya, who speak a distinct Bengali dialect and resemble Muslim Bangladeshis, have darker skin and are heavily discriminated against.

JAILERS WORRY ABOUT DENTAL FLOSS AS A WEAPON

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) • Dental floss may prevent toothaches, but it's given jailers plenty of headaches.

When a group of New York prisoners sued last month to demand access to dental floss, officials said they had to consider "security issues." As it turns out, jail — and jailbreak — history is tightly tangled with the stringy decay fighter.

In Texas, officials believe a prisoner used floss to cut his way out of his cell, then jumped a fellow inmate and knifed him to death.

In Maryland, Illinois, West Virginia and Wisconsin, inmates collected enough floss to braid it into ropes and escape, or try to, over prison walls.

A group of escaped prisoners on the run in Texas used floss to sew up their gunshot wounds.

And a man in an Illinois jail used floss to stitch together the dummy he left in his bed when he took off.

Experts say floss, or the plastic holder it sometimes comes in, has been used to strangle enemies, to escape, to saw through bars, to pick handcuffs, to make a hand grip on a shank and to hoist contraband from one level of cells to another.

"These inmates can make a weapon out of a chewing gum wrapper," said Steven Kayser, whose company sells a floss product advertised as prison-safe. "Floss is right up there on the danger list."

Officials at the Westchester County Jail in Valhalla were somewhat leery when 11 inmates, acting without a lawyer, filed a $500 million lawsuit demanding access to dental floss.

Lead plaintiff Santiago Gomez said the jail was "violating inmates' federally protected civil rights by not allowing inmates access to dental floss, while acknowledging that it will result in cavities if you fail to floss your teeth."

He said the inmates had been brushing three times a day, "tongue and gums included," but were still getting cavities, bleeding gums, enduring constant tooth drilling and mental anguish.

Deputy Commissioner Justin Pruyn said the jail is not required to supply floss to inmates and said floss posed security concerns. But the jail has since brought in a supply of Kayser's "Floss Loops," hard plastic designed to break before they can be used as a weapon.

Front Yard Landscaping for the Holidays by Jeffrey Anderson, All About Lawns Columnist

Front Yard Landscaping for All Four Seasons

Most people enjoy their front yards during spring, summer, and fall. Green grass, blooming flowers, and leafy trees provide a picturesque scene. Autumn brings its own spectrum of dazzling colors. That same front yard can be a holiday winter wonderland if you put some thought into the trees you choose for landscaping.

Holiday Lights Aglow

A nighttime drive during the holiday season offers a great chance to see the array of beautifully decorated homes and yards. The yards often include an evergreen tree strung with festive lighting. Evergreen trees are attractive year round, but with holiday lights they become magical.

What to Plant and Where to Plant It

Consider several factors before you decide on a tree and where to plant it.

- 1. Location. Some evergreen trees eventually reach great heights and as they grow their base can become quite large. They need a lot of room to grow without restriction.
- 2. Drainage. Evergreen trees have varying watering requirements. Look at your front yard and how the water will drain from the planting area. Research your preferred evergreen type and its watering needs.

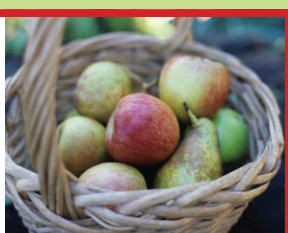

3. Sunlight. All evergreens need adequate sunlight to maintain a full shape. Any portion blocked from sunlight does not have full branches.

4. Obstacles. An evergreen's roots do not grow past obstacles like driveways, sidewalks, and building footers, and as an evergreen ages it needs a good root system to support it.

There are many types of evergreen to consider, including:

- White, Blue, or Norway Spruce
- Scotch, Virginia, or Eastern White Pine
- Balsam Fir
- Eastern Red Cedar

Front yard landscaping with evergreens can provide a beautiful setting for every season, and become radiant during the holidays.

Obama Backs Gay Marriage Measures

ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Barack Obama on Thursday threw his support behind ballot measures in Maine, Maryland and Washington state that would legalize same-sex marriage.

Though the president first voiced his general approval for gay marriage in May, he had not previously offered specific endorsements of the three measures.

"While the president does not weigh in on every single ballot measure in every state, the president believes in treating everyone fairly and equally, with dignity and respect," said Paul Bell, the campaign's press secretary.

"Washington's same-sex marriage law would treat all Washington couples equally, and that is why the president supports a vote to approve Referendum 74," Bell said.

In Maine, gay-rights supporters put the measure on this year's ballot in hopes of reversing the results of a 2009 referendum in which voters rejected a same-sex marriage law.

In Maryland and Washington, gay-marriage laws were passed by lawmakers and signed by the governors earlier this year, but opponents collected enough signatures to hold referendums on the laws.

Ed Murray, a gay state senator in Washington, expressed gratitude to Obama.

"When I first began fighting in the legislature for marriage equality ... I would never have dared to dream that a president of the United States would one day step forward at this crucial moment, in the middle of his own close re-election campaign, to offer his support for our efforts," Murray said.

CEO Group Urges Tax Hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) • CEOs from more than 80 major U.S. companies are pressing Congress to reduce the federal deficit by raising taxes and cutting spending. The deficit and how to tame it has become a key theme in the presidential campaign.

They warned in a statement issued Thursday that the uncertainty spawned by the deficit, which has topped $1 trillion for four consecutive years, is dampening businesses' hiring and investment and stifling the fragile economic recovery.

The CEOs said the solution requires a combination of higher taxes and reduced government spending including on entitlement programs such as Medicare and Medicaid. They also seek federal investment in infrastructure and math and science education.

"What it really comes down to is if we still have the political will to be a great country," Dave Cote, chairman and CEO of Honeywell International Inc., said in a statement.

The CEOs head a diverse array of corporations, including Aetna Inc., Microsoft Corp., JPMorgan Chase & Co., Time Warner Cable Inc., Merck & Co. Inc., General Electric Co., Dow Chemical Co., Verizon Communications Inc., Bank of America Corp., AT&T Inc. and Allstate Corp.

Some members of the group rang the opening bell Thursday at the New York Stock Exchange.

The group endorses the proposals of a special bipartisan commission that called for about $3 in spending cuts for every $1 in tax increases to save around $4 trillion.

Republican politicians and lawmakers have vigorously opposed tax increases. GOP presidential nominee Mitt Romney would lower deficits mostly through deep spending cuts and eliminating unspecified tax deductions. He also wants to lower the top tax rates on corporations and individuals.

President Barack Obama has proposed reducing the deficit by slowing spending gradually, to avoid suddenly tipping the economy back into recession.

He would raise taxes on households earning more than $250,000 and impose a surcharge of 30 percent on those making more than $1 million.

The deficit, the shortfall created when the government spends more in a year than it collects, currently has the government borrowing about 31 cents for every dollar it spends.

A year-end deadline looms for Congress and the White House to work out a deal on the deficit. Otherwise across-the-board spending cuts and tax increases will automatically kick in, slicing about $100 billion from federal budgets and raising taxes by $400 billion as the nation goes over the so-called "fiscal cliff" in early January.

Microsoft Makes Risky Bet with Windows 8

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Microsoft unveiled a radical redesign of its world-dominating Windows operating system Thursday, introducing a touch-enabled interface that attempts to bridge the gap between personal computers and fast-growing mobile devices powered by the company's fiercest competitors.

The debut of Windows 8 heralded the biggest change to the system since 1995, when the company first offered built-in Internet support. And with so much riding on it, the overhaul could be Microsoft's most important product since co-founder Bill Gates won the contract to build an operating system for IBM Corp.'s first personal computer in 1981.

To succeed, the new version will have to be innovative and elegant enough to attract consumers who've fallen in love with notebook computers, tablets and smartphones running software from Apple and Google.

"What you have seen and heard should leave no doubt that Windows 8 will shatter the perceptions about what a PC really is," Microsoft CEO Steve Ballmer crowed at a New York launching.

300 Abuse Victims in BBC Scandal

LONDON (AP) • The scale of the child sex abuse scandal engulfing the BBC expanded on Thursday as authorities announced that 300 potential victims had come forward with accusations against one of the broadcaster's most popular children's entertainers and that others might have acted with him.

The scandal swirling around one of Britain's most respected news organizations also prompted a spirited defense from New York Times chairman and publisher Arthur Sulzberger Jr. of the paper's incoming CEO, the former top executive of the BBC.

In a letter to staff, Sulzberger said he was satisfied that Mark Thompson, who was the BBC's director general until last month, had no role in the decision to scrap an investigative segment about the abuse allegations against the late Jimmy Savile.

The well-known children's TV and radio host is accused of using his fame to coerce teens into having sex with him in his car, his camper and even in dressing rooms on BBC premises.

Police Commander Peter Spindler, head of the Scotland Yard inquiry into the scandal, said Thursday that 300 potential victims had come forward so far and even more were expected to contact authorities.

He said all but two of the cases involved girls and that detectives had interviewed 130 people.

Family of Slain N.J. Girl Silent on Facebook Posts

CLAYTON, N.J. (AP) • Relatives of a slain 12-year-old girl from southern New Jersey said Thursday they want to avoid jeopardizing the criminal case and will not comment on the revelation that three days before she disappeared, she may have exchanged online messages with one of the teenagers accused of killing her.

"We want swift justice for Autumn," said Paul Spadofora, a great uncle and godfather of Autumn Pasquale, whose body was found in a recycling bin Monday near the teenagers' home. "We don't want to jeopardize the case."

Two brothers, 15 and 17, were charged with murder and other crimes against the girl, who would have turned 13 on Oct. 29. Authorities say the younger boy lured her to their home by promising to trade bicycle parts.

Both teens are due in court Friday for a hearing on whether they should remain in a juvenile detention facility.

A Facebook account that appears to belong to Justin Robinson had a picture posted in August of a BMX bike. On Oct. 17, a post apparently from Autumn asked: "Is tht ur bike?"

The two exchanged a volley of messages in abbreviated language. He answered, "yeuop." She proclaimed, "Thts sexy!" He responded, "lol thx" and later added: "yess cme 2 my house."

The exchange is no longer available on Facebook, but someone took a screenshot and saved it to the photo-sharing site ImageShack.

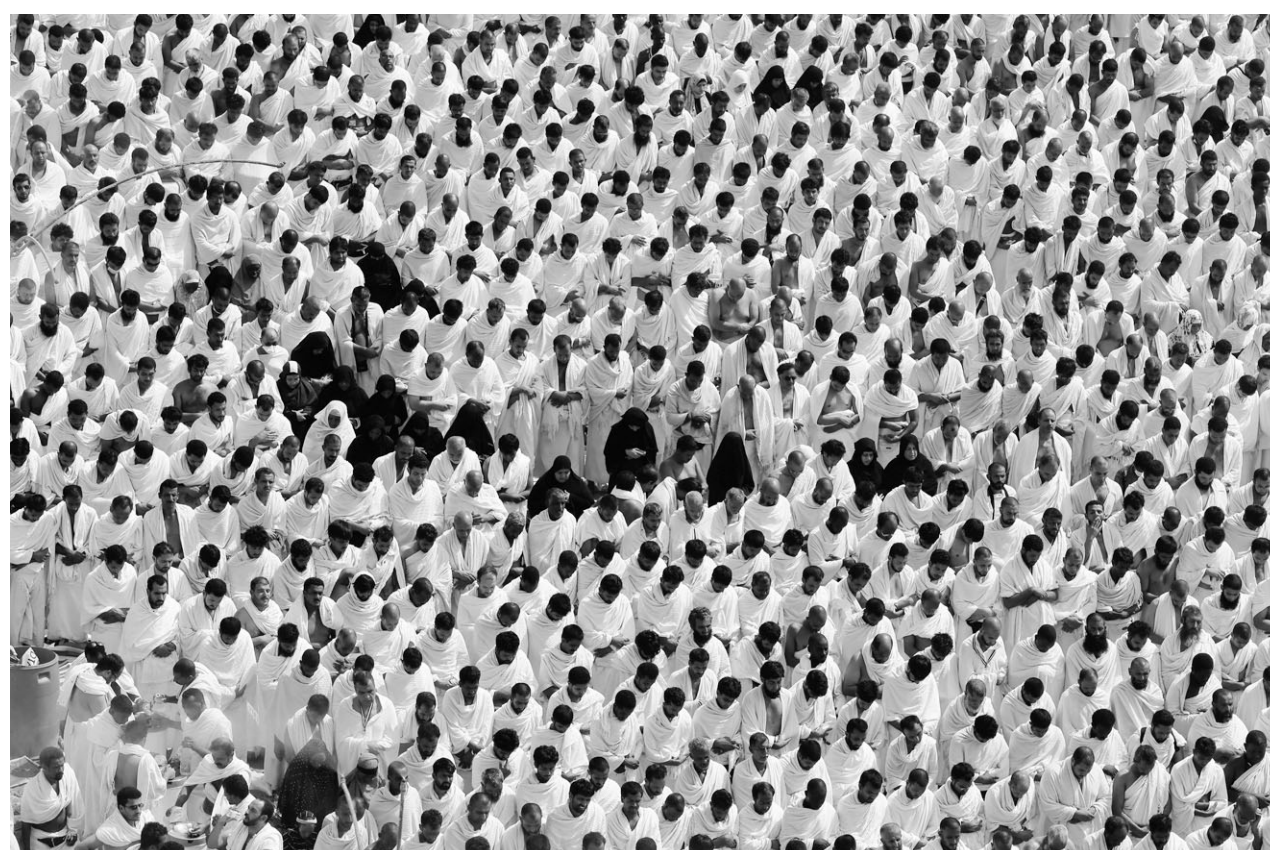

Autumn disappeared Saturday, three days after the exchange.

The Gloucester County Prosecutor's Office would not comment on the postings.

Authorities said Anita Saunders, the mother of the two suspects, called police because she was concerned about something one of her son's posted on Facebook. But police have not disclosed exactly what the posting said.

Gloucester County Prosecutor Sean Dalton said the mother's tip led investigators to the recycling bin behind a vacant home next to hers where Autumn's body was found — and to her sons.

Authorities have not released the names of the teens because they are charged as juveniles, though prosecutors say they are likely to seek to have the case moved to adult court.

Muslim pilgrims pray outside Namira mosque in Arafat near the holy city of Mecca, Saudi Arabia on Thursday.

Muslims Begin Hajj Pilgrimage

MOUNT ARAFAT, Saudi Arabia (AP) • Hours before sunrise Thursday, thousands of Muslims from around the world stood in the dark on a rocky desert hill, preparing for prayers on the first day of the annual hajj pilgrimage, a central pillar of their faith.

Muslims believe that prayer on Mount Arafat is their best chance to erase past sins and start anew.

The four-day hajj features millions packed shoulder to shoulder in prayer and supplication. According to Islam, each able-bodied believer must make the pilgrimage once.

"Let all your feuds be abolished," the Prophet Muhammad said in his last sermon on the hill called Jabal al-Rahman, Mountain of Mercy, in the area of Mount Arafat. "You must know that every Muslim is the brother of every Muslim...between Muslims there are no races and no tribes...do not oppress and do not be oppressed."

Some 1,400 years later, Muslims believe on this day and at this place, the gates of heaven are open for prayers to be answered and sins to be forgiven.

"I have feelings that cannot be described in words. We thank God for the chance to perform the hajj here and visit God's house in Mecca," said Mustafa Daama, 27, from Mauritania.

On other parts of the mountain, Muslims chanted in unison, "Labayk Allahu-ma Labayk," or "Here I am, God, answering your call."

ACCUSED CHARGED IN MOSQUE SHOOTING

BALTIMORE (AP) • A man accused of killing a Georgia megachurch volunteer leading a prayer service in a chapel was charged more than a decade ago with a shooting at a mosque in Maryland, police documents show.

Floyd Palmer was part of a security detail at a Baltimore mosque in June 2001 when he shot another man working with him, wounding him in the back, according to a police report obtained by The Associated Press on Thursday. Palmer tried to fire again, but the gun jammed. When other people ran over to him, he turned the gun on them, but it wouldn't fire, according to the documents.

During a pretrial psychological evaluation, Palmer said the shooting occurred in part because he believed that NFL player Ray Lewis and members of his own family were out to get him.

Palmer was committed to a psychiatric hospital in 2004 after pleading not criminally responsible to the mosque shooting. Despite objections from prosecutors, a judge released him in 2006 on the condition that he abide by a number of restrictions for five years.

It's not clear when Palmer made his way south. He had been working at the Rev. Creflo Dollar's World Changers Church International just south of Atlanta, but quit in August for "personal reasons," Fulton County Police Cpl. Kay Lester said.

On Wednesday, authorities said the 51-year-old Palmer walked into a chapel and opened fire, killing Greg McDowell, 39, who was leading a morning prayer service for a group of about 25 people. McDowell is identified as a warehouse manager for the church on a LinkedIn Web page.

British Army Dog Joins List of Animal War Heroes

LONDON (AP) • British soldiers and military dogs gathered at a London army barracks Thursday to honor a fallen hero with selfless courage, nerves of steel — and four legs.

Theo, a bomb-sniffing springer spaniel who died in Afghanistan on the day his soldier partner was killed, was posthumously honored with the Dickin Medal, Britain's highest award for bravery by animals.

Theo worked alongside Lance Cpl. Liam Tasker, searching for roadside bombs in Helmand province, a Taliban stronghold.

Tasker, 26, died in a firefight with insurgents in March 2011, and Theo suffered a fatal seizure hours later. Tasker's mother, Jane Duffy, says the pair were inseparable. She's convinced Theo died of a broken heart.

"They'll be watching us, and they'll be so proud," she said. "I just wish they were here to get it themselves."

Since 1943, the Dickin Medal has recognized gallantry by animals serving with the military, police or rescue services.

Canine Commandos

Theo is the 28th dog to receive the medal, awarded by animal charity PDSA and named for its founder, Maria Dickin.

One of the earliest winners was Rip, a mongrel found abandoned in a bomb shelter and adopted by a London air raid warden.

He was credited with finding more than 100 people trapped in rubble by German bombs during the 1940 Blitz.

Another World War II hero was Rob, a collie who joined British commandos in more than 20 parachute operations behind enemy lines in North Africa and Italy.

His medal citation said that "his presence with these parties saved many of them from discovery and subsequent capture or destruction."

Dogs have also been honored for service in Bosnia, Iraq, Afghanistan and during terrorist attacks.

After the Sept. 11 attacks, Apollo, a New York Police Department German shepherd, received the medal on behalf of all search and rescue dogs at the sites in New York and Washington, "for tireless courage in the service of humanity."

Winged Warriors

Pigeons' homing instinct makes them excellent messengers, and more than 200,000 served with British forces during World War II. Some 32 were awarded the Dickin Medal for carrying back vital information from the frontline.

Feathered medal-winners include Gustav, a pigeon serving with the Royal Air Force, "for delivering the first message from the Normandy Beaches from a ship off the beach-head" on June 6, 1944, the day of the D-Day landings.

GI Joe, a member of the U.S. Army Pigeon Service, was honored for flying 20 miles (32 kilometers) in 20 minutes with a message that stopped U.S. planes bombing an Italian town occupied by British troops in October 1943, saving the lives of at least 100 Allied soldiers and many civilians.

Heroic Horses

Upstart, a London police horse, is one of three equine recipients of the medal.

He was honored for a World War II incident in which a German flying bomb exploded 75 yards away, "showing both horse and rider with broken glass and debris." Despite this, "Upstart was completely unperturbed and remained quietly on duty with his rider," controlling traffic until calm was restored.

A Fearless Feline

Only one cat has ever received the Dickin Medal.

Simon, a Royal Navy ship's mascot, was honored for his service on HMS Amethyst, a ship shelled by Chinese Communist forces on the Yangtze River in 1949.

Cultural Historian, Author Jacques Barzun Dies at 104

BY HILLEL ITALIE
Associated Press

Jacques Barzun, a pioneering cultural historian, reigning public intellectual and longtime Ivy League professor who became a best-selling author in his 90s with the acclaimed "From Dawn to Decadence," has died. He was 104.

Barzun, who taught for nearly 50 years at Columbia University, passed away Thursday evening in San Antonio, where he had lived in recent years, his son-in-law Gavin Parfit said.

Praised by Cynthia Ozick as among "the last of the thoroughgoing generalists," the tall, courtly Barzun wrote dozens of books and essays on everything from philosophy and music to baseball and detective novels.

In 2000, he capped his career with "From Dawn to Decadence," a survey of Western civilization from the Renaissance to the end of the 20th century. The length topped 800 pages, and the theme was uninspiring — the collapse of traditions in modern times — yet it received wide acclaim from reviewers, stayed on best-seller lists for months and was nominated for the National Book Award and the National Book Critics Circle prize. Even the Rolling Stones' Keith Richards said he was reading it. "The whole thing is a surprise, because scholarship is not exactly the thing people run after these days, or perhaps at any time," Barzun told The Associated Press in 2000.

Along with Lionel Trilling, Dwight Macdonald and others, the French immigrant was a prominent thinker during the Cold War era, making occasional television appearances and even appearing in 1956 on the cover of Time magazine, which cited him as representing "a growing host of men of ideas who not only have the respect of the nation, but who return the compliment." In 2003, President Bush awarded him a Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian honor, praising Barzun as "a thinker of great discernment and integrity. ... Few academics of the last century have equaled his output and his influence." In 2010, he received a National Humanities Medal.

Barzun had first-hand knowledge of much of the 20th century and second-hand knowledge of a good part of the 19th century. His great-grandmother, born in 1830, would give him chocolate and tell him stories, an experience that helped inspire him to become a historian.

A scholar's son, Barzun was born in Creteil, France in 1907 and grew up in a household where Modernism was the great subject and visitors included Jean Cocteau, Ezra Pound and Guillaume Apollinaire, upon whose knee he once sat. But World War I drove the family out of the country and across the ocean to the United States.

"The outbreak of war in August 1914 and the nightmare that ensued put an end to all innocent joys and assumptions," Barzun later wrote. "By the age of ten — as I was later told — my words and attitudes betrayed suicidal thoughts; it appeared that I was 'ashamed' to be still alive." Reading consoled him, especially "Hamlet," but he never recovered his early "zest for life." In 1990, he defined himself as a "spirited" pessimist, explaining that he retained a "vivid sight of an earlier world, soon followed by its collapse in wretchedness and folly."

Allen Ginsberg, another Barzun student, once joked that his former professor was a master of "politeness."

Barzun's greatest influence was on the writing of cultural history; he helped invent it. As a student at Columbia he was among the first to integrate the narration of wars and government with the evolution of art, science, education and fashion.

Guatemala Excavates Early Mayan Ruler's Tomb

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) • Archaeologists announced Thursday they have uncovered the tomb of a very early Mayan ruler, complete with rich jade jewelry and decoration.

Experts said the find at Guatemala's Tak'alik Ab'aj temple site could help shed light on the formative years of the Mayan culture.

Government archaeologist Miguel Orrego said carbon-dating indicates the tomb was built between 700 and 400 B.C., several hundred years before the Mayan culture reached its height. He said it was the oldest tomb found so far at Tak'alik Ab'aj, a site in southern Guatemala that dates back about 2,200 years.

Orrego said a necklace depicting a culture-headed human figure appeared to identify the tomb's occupant as an "ajaw," or ruler.

"This symbol gives this burial greater importance," Orrego said. "This glyph says he ... is one of the earliest rulers of Tak'alik Ab'aj."

No bones were found during the excavation of the tomb in September, probably because they had decayed. Experts said the rich array of jade articles in the tomb could provide clues about production and trade patterns.

Susan Gillespie, an archaeologist at the University of Florida who was not involved in the excavation, said older tombs have been found from ruling circles at the Mayan site of Copan in Honduras as well as in southern Mexico, where the Olmec culture, a predecessor to the Mayas, flourished.

Olmec influences are present in the area around Tak'alik Ab'aj, indicating possible links.

Gillespie said that because it is near a jadeite production center, the find could shed light on early techniques and trade in the stone, which was considered by the Maya to have sacred properties.

Tom Everton Coonts

March 9, 1942-Oct. 23, 2012

KIMBERLY • Tom Everton Coonts passed away from a heart attack at his home in Kimberly, Idaho, on Tuesday, Oct. 23, 2012.

Tom was born in Twin Falls, Idaho, on March 9, 1942, the first child of Ted and Viola (Gray) Coonts. He attended Bickel Elementary and O'Leary Junior High and graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1960. He attended Northwest Christian College in Eugene, Ore., and Idaho State University in Pocatello, Idaho, before joining the Army. Tom served in the Army and National Guard for six years.

Tom's summer job during high school was a line-man's "gofer" for Idaho Power Company. Also during high school, he met the love of his life, Janet Rodman; they dated for seven years, but both Tom and Janet ended up marrying other people. Tom married Carol Larsen in June 1964, and they had one daughter, Wendy Lynn. After returning from the Army, Tom worked for the Forest Service before starting full time at Idaho Power in Jerome and Kimberly. Tom's long-time friend, Tom Ash, recruited him to work at Cain's Furniture in Twin Falls, and Tom took a brief "hiatus" from Idaho Power. These were the lean years, and Tom learned he was great at customer service but not at closing a sale. Tom eventually returned to his long-term employment at Idaho Power. Tom and Carol divorced in 1986 and, after some matchmaking on behalf of Tom's parents, a recently divorced Janet was reunited with Tom and they were married on July 17, 1987.

Tom loved his work as a manager of supply stores for linemen crews in Idaho Power's Southern Division. He had a talent for picking good employees and fostering a cohesive group who loved to come to work each day. Tom trusted everybody to do their best, and that trust was reflected in the productivity of the stores under his management. In the past few days, the steady stream of former co-workers who have stopped by to pay their respects and share their stories of Tom is a testament to how much he was respected at Idaho Power as both a leader and a friend. Tom retired from Idaho Power in 2002.

Tom and Janet moved to Kimberly in 1999. They enjoyed collecting antiques and refinishing old furniture. Tom was appointed to the Kimberly City Council in 2001 and elected to a four-year term in 2003. He was instrumental in laying the groundwork for many projects that came to fruition over the last five years in Kimberly. Tom had an open door to all of the citizens of Kimberly and was willing to listen to everyone. He continued to be involved in city issues and was a mentor to young council members and was still respected by city workers at the time of his death. Tom's most recent "community project" was overseeing the remodel of the Ageless Senior Citizen Center in Kimberly. Tom's diligence and patience saw the project to completion, and the center will be a comfortable and functional place for seniors to gather in the years to come.

Tom and his best friend, Tom Ash, had a 25-year adventure together playing and coaching softball. They also hunted in the mountains and canyons around Featherville, Idaho. Tom Ash was a precious friend, confidant and mentor. They erected a cabin, with the help of their fellow hunters and softball players, which became Tom's sanctuary. Ironically, the cabin was repaired and remodeled just last year and Tom was looking forward to sharing it with Janet and not all of the mice and other critters that annually took up residence in the cabin.

Tom was a lifelong member of the Twin Falls Christian Church and the Kimberly Christian Church. Before he was old enough to go to school, he would sit on the sidewalk outside his home across from Bickel School and convince school children to come to church with him on Sunday. Tom was very proud of a small Bible he was awarded at age 6 for bringing the most new members to church.

Tom was laid back, fun loving and quick witted. You might wonder if he was joking with you or not except for that twinkle in his eye and a grin on his face. Tom always followed the rule, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." Tom's door was open to friends, family and citizens who sought advice. He was always willing to offer help to anyone. His passing leaves a huge void in the community and in the hearts of those who knew and loved him!

Tom is survived by his wife and soul mate, Janet Coonts of Kimberly; daughter, Wendy (Fred) Nye of Filer, Idaho; stepson, D. Christopher (Elizabeth) Smith of Tri-Cities, Wash.; grandchildren, Josh Simono, Alicia Simono, Conner Smith and Aidan Smith; great-grandchildren, Avery and Ella; and his brother, Richard (Catherine) Coonts of McCall, Idaho. He was preceded in death by his parents, Ted and Viola Coonts.

Arrangements are being handled by Rosenau Funeral Home with a viewing taking place from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 26 at the funeral home. A celebration of Tom's life will take place at 3:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 27, at the Twin Falls Christian Church, with a graveside service to follow. Please be prepared to share your stories and memories of Tom at the funeral. After the funeral, a fellowship dinner will take place at 6 p.m. at the Kimberly Christian Church. All of Tom's friends are invited to attend!

In lieu of flowers, please make donations to the Tom Coonts Memorial Fund that has been established at First Federal Savings to purchase heart defibrillators to be placed in schools, senior centers and the homes of heart patients. Family and friends are encouraged to share memories at www.rosenaufuneral-home.com.

Q. My daughter says it may be time for me to stop driving. How can I know for sure?

A. Driving skills can decline with age or due to certain health conditions. How to know? Here are some questions to ask yourself: Has a friend or family member expressed concern about your driving? Obviously, your daughter has. Has your doctor advised you to limit driving for health reasons? Have you been pulled over by a police officer and warned about poor driving behavior? Have you had near misses or accidents in the last 3 years? Do you ever get lost on familiar routes? Do your thoughts wander when you drive? Do you become confused or angry? Do other drivers honk at you frequently? Do cars or people walking seem to appear out of nowhere? Do you have trouble moving your foot between the gas and brake pedals, or do you confuse the two? Answer these questions honestly. Be aware of your limitations and how they may affect your driving. The most important thing is to be safe on the road.

3 Spooky Storylines to Startle a Laugh

tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • With Halloween around the corner, get in the spooky mood with these three plays. They're treats with a few tricks.

'Hotel Frankenstein'

This tale puts the "trap" in tourist trap. It features vacationers who are vampires and a wolfman, with a cameo from the Frankenstein monster himself.

Dr. Frankenstein's granddaughter, Henricka Baroness Von Frankenstein, has discovered her grandfather's journals detailing his botched creature. Henricka thinks she can do better — all she needs is the right brain. In order to find the perfect specimen, she advertises the Frankenstein castle as a resort.

With the help of her not-so-loyal assistant, Egor, the trap is set, and soon the Woodknocker family is at the door. But Henricka does not count on the famous Count Alucard, his wife, Natasha, and the grandson of the Wolfman, who respond to her ad as well.

"Secret passageways, diabolical plots and young love all play major roles in this spooky spoof that will have you howling with laughter," said a release from the Renaissance Arts Center.

"I'm not into the scary part of Halloween; I like the comedy. It's like Abbott and Costello meet Frankenstein or the Wolfman, that type of humor," director Jim Jolley said.

See it: "Hotel Frankenstein" will show at 7 p.m. Oct. 26-27 and 29-31, plus a 2 p.m. matinee on Oct. 27, at the Historic Wilson Theatre, 600 F St. in Rupert. Admission is $5. Organizers encourage you to wear a costume, but attending as you are is allowed.

'It Was A Dark and Stormy Night'

This 1950s-style murder mystery takes place at a hotel just outside of Boston. And though it might make you laugh more than squirm, be assured that the plot will have you guessing throughout: "Who did it?"

"It Was A Dark and Stormy Night" — the first production of the 2012-13 season at Buhl High School — is a spoof on the whole dark-and-stormy-night scenario and includes characters such as the creepy Uncle Silas and a couple of scream queens.

"It's a real ensemble cast," director David Blaszkiewicz said. "The kids are all doing a great job."

Special effects will have you shuddering in your chair as the sights and sounds of wind, thunder and lightning transport you to a room at the Wayside Inn.

See it: "It Was A Dark and Stormy Night" will show at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 1-3 at the Buhl High auditorium. Tickets at the door are $6 for adults and $5 for students and senior citizens.

'Lady Bluebeard'

Hungry for murder with a slice of pie?

The dinner-theater performance of "Lady Bluebeard" tells the true story of hometown serial killer Lyda Trueblood, also known as Lyda Southard, who buried four husbands. The storyline starts with Lyda's beginnings in Missouri to her graduation from Twin Falls High School, and follows her until she is released from prison.

"It's her story with some twists and turns," local playwright Stephanie Holman said.

But this story isn't all about murder and mayhem as Holman shows the lighter, more humorous side of Lady Bluebeard. Whenever Lyda is about to kill again, the audience will hear the apple pie chant.

And when Lyda is about to go to prison for her deeds, you'll hear "When the Saints Go Marching In." With the exception of Lyda's prison theme, all music for the show was originally scored by Linda Schoepp.

Historical Homesite Becomes Creepy Circus

TIMES-NEWS

HANSEN • Combine history and a haunted house and you get Stricker After Dark.

It's a Halloween event at the historical Rock Creek Stage Station and Stricker Homesite. The Friends of Stricker will host the third annual Stricker After Dark from 7:30 p.m. to midnight Oct. 26-27, at 3715 E. 3200 N. near Hansen. Admission is $5, and you can expect a roaring campfire and movies. Concessions will be available.

What's this haunted house's twist? "We keep it rooted in history," said

Jennifer Hills, board president of Friends of Stricker.

In past years, they've told spooky stories inspired by things that happened at the site or on the Oregon Trail. But this year, the Stricker After Dark theme is "The Scariest Show on Earth" — a creepy, old-fashioned circus on the lawn of the Stricker home, inspired by the Sells-Floto Circus that came through Twin Falls in 1907.

Guests will go through a series of tents, such as the Ringmaster's Tent and the Hall of Mirrors, and they'll finish their night with a walk through

INSTANT CRITIC

Music: Cherish the Ladies

Seen Oct. 19 at College of Southern Idaho auditorium, Twin Falls.

Flutes, fiddles and flying feet impressed a receptive audience. Joanie Madden, the front woman for this team of Irish musicians and dancers, enhanced the show with her humor and background material. Four-hundred-year-old songs and the Irish vocalist made this one of the best Arts on Tour programs.

— Cathy Wilson of Buhl

A Cappella: Magichords; Whiffenpoofs

Seen Oct. 20 and Oct. 22 at CSI auditorium.

Introducing the fledgling Testosterone — a young companion act for the mostly gray-haired Magichords on Saturday night — Magichords director Lance Cox said a cappella is heating up on campuses all over. I believed it two nights later, when I heard five local a cappella student groups open for Yale's Whiffenpoofs.

— Features Editor Virginia Hutchins

Dance: Community Barn Dance

Hosted Oct. 20 by Buhl Chamber of Commerce at Old Sandmeyer Barn.

The heavy wooden barn loft took a lot of pounding from dancing couples as the Jason Lugo Band entertained with contemporary country music. The Sandmeyer barn became a spectacle to see decked out in Christmas lights and harvest decor. Community spirit made it a great success with a surprising turnout.

CSI Students Assemble 190 Vendors for Craft Show

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho's largest annual student-run event of the year, the Harvest Time Festival, is set for its three-day run Nov. 9-11 at the CSI Expo Center. The arts and crafts show is spearheaded by students in CSI's Collegiate DECA Club, formerly the DEX Club.

DECA co-adviser and hospitality management professor Dianne Jolovich said the students have lined up 190 vendors featuring jewelry, candles, ceramics, holiday decorations, wood and metal crafts, fudge, kitchen novelties, dolls and doll clothing, games, toys and more.

CSI Hosteurs Club students will sell food throughout the show, including loaded baked potatoes, homemade chili, Navajo tacos, scones, bread bowl soup and beverages.

Festival hours are 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Nov. 9-10 and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Nov. 11. Proceeds between 2 and 4 p.m. Sunday will be donated to the CSI Refugee Center.

Admission is $2; children under 12 get in free. Admission tickets will enter customers in raffles held every 25 minutes.

Other CSI student clubs that are helping with the event are horticulture, equine, veterinary technology and the rodeo teams.

Parking will be available near the Herrett Center for Arts and Science. A free shuttle will run between the two parking lots every 15 minutes. No parking is allowed on North College Road.

seen other places try something like this," board member Amber Avila said. "Usually, it's in a parking lot, but we decided to try the park, instead."

Trunk or Treat is a new addition to the Halloween menu in the Wood River Valley, which always goes all out for Halloween.

The party gets under way from noon to 2 p.m. Oct. 27, with a free Witches Tea and Pumpkin Carving Contest in Spook Alley between Jane's Artifacts and The Mint on Hailey's Main Street. Youngsters are invited to don their witch and warlock costumes and hop aboard their brooms for some cider, tea, treats, games and prizes.

Saturday night, Ketchum turns into Spooksville as it hosts its annual "Nightmare on Main Street." Main Street — yes, Idaho Highway 75 — will be closed from 7 p.m. to 4 a.m. so that creepy crawlers and others can enjoy music provided by DJ Poly and Doc Rock, along with other shenanigans through 11 p.m. Prizes will be awarded for Best Male, Best Female, Creepiest, Sexiest, Best Group and Best Overall costumes at 10:30 p.m.

The focus will again turn to the youngsters on Oct. 31, when Hailey merchants stage their seventh annual Hailey Halloween Hoopla.

"It's a big deal; we counted 1,500 kids last year," said chamber representative GeeGee Lowe.

Merchants with black and orange balloons outside their businesses will hand out treats for the little goblins, witches and monsters from 3 to 6 p.m.

There will be hot dogs and macaroni and cheese for children wearing costumes between 4 and 6 p.m. at the Haunted Kitchen outside Cowboy Cocina in the Meriwether Building, 111 N. First Ave.

Aqua Pro Spa and Pool will unveil its Spooky Hollow during that time at 15 E. Bullion St.

And King's will host a costume contest, 3-5 p.m. at 615 N. Main St. Pre-kindergartners can strut their stuff at 3 p.m.; those in kindergarten through third grade at 3:30 p.m.; fourth-through sixth-graders at 4 p.m.; seventh- through 12th-graders at 4:30 p.m., and adults at 5 p.m. Prizes — including a bicycle, chamber bucks good at local businesses and gift certificates — will be awarded to the top three in each category.

Meanwhile, storekeepers will vie for prizes themselves with storefront-decorating contests and scarecrow contests.

Several Hailey homes are in the running for Best Decorated House.

Among them is Pati Meyer, who had 21 4- to 10-year-olds turn her house at 311 N. Second St. in Hailey into a "dead and breakfast."

"I was raking my yard and I decided it was so big that I needed to have the kids come decorate," she said. "They decided if they win they want to donate their winnings to feed hungry children — maybe buy turkeys and deliver them to their families or give needy families $25 each."

Rupert Christmas Tree Festival Seeks Donors

RUPERT • The four-day Caring and Sharing Christmas Tree Festival, set for Nov. 23-26 at the Rupert Civic Center, raises money for the Minidoka Health Care Foundation and its health-related community causes.

The event features more than 150 decorated Christmas trees, wreaths and many other holiday items, all donated by community members. At the festival, you can also expect nonstop entertainment, a Teddy Bear Breakfast and visits with Santa, a gala opening luncheon and a Senior Social.

The admission-free event draws thousands of visitors, organizers said.

Now beginning its 14th year, the festival has raised more than $380,000 in its history to help the foundation assist Mini-Cassia's child protection team, shelter, veterans association, Minidoka senior center, Wee Links, Pomerelle

Ski Patrol, students in health-related careers, and others. The foundation also supports Minidoka Memorial Hospital with equipment and program funding. Festival organizers are seeking donations for trees, wreaths and decorative items, as well as volunteers to assist with all aspects of the event, entertainers to perform and sponsors to help with event costs. This year's theme: "Christmas Glows With Love." The civic center is at 505 Seventh St. in Rupert. Information: Tammy Hanks, 436-0481, ext. 124.

"For me...
It all came together at CSI."

— Mary Coakley, 2012 Graduate

"I didn't know anyone when I came to CSI, but everyone made me feel welcome the day I arrived.

The instructors were wonderful and helpful. So helpful in fact, they even answered emails on weekends if I had questions. And because of the small class sizes, I experienced true one-to-one instruction.

And with CSI's low tuition, I saved A LOT of money.

I have my Associate's Degree - now I'm studying for my Bachelor's on the CSI campus through Idaho State University. My future couldn't be brighter and I couldn't be happier.

For me, it all came together at CSI."

Amsterdam improv trio Cactus Truck will stop in Twin Falls for a Nov. 19 concert.

Dutch Improv Trio to Perform at CSI

TWIN FALLS • The avant-garde free-improvisation trio Cactus Truck will present a free evening of sonic anarchy at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 19 in the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Recital Hall.

Saxophonist John Dikeman, bassist/guitarist Jasper Stadhouders and drummer Onno Govaert are on a 40-day U.S. tour in support of their recent recording, "Brand New For China!" (Public Eysore Records). It includes stops in New York, Philadelphia, Denver, Seattle, Salt Lake City, Portland, Los Angeles, New Orleans and 27 other cities.

Cactus Truck creates startlingly intense music, not merely in terms of volume or velocity but through complete physical and psychological surrender, CSI's Brent Jensen said. Listeners can find hints of Delta blues, free jazz, Japanese noise and No Wave in this music.

Cactus Truck, based in Amsterdam, has collaborated with members of The Ex, including Terrie Ex, Andy Moor, Arnold de Boer (ZEA) and Colin McLean, as well as Ab Baars, Han Bennink, Dave Rempis, Jeb Bishop, Peter Jacquemyn, Teun Verbruggen, Gerri Jaeger (Knalpot) and Jon Rune Strom.

Information on the group: cactustruck.com.

The concert is free to the public, but donations to the CSI Jazz Club will be accepted at the door.

Secular Group Hosts Film

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho's Secular Student Alliance will show the film "Letting Go of God" by Julia Sweeney at 6 p.m. Nov. 8 in the Fine Arts Recital Hall.

A former "Saturday Night Live" cast member, Sweeney is best remembered for her role as Pat, the nasal-voiced, gender-mysterious character with sweaty palms.

Her one-woman stage show, the basis for the film, chronicles Sweeney's journey from Catholicism to atheism. She discusses her struggle to find a religion that makes sense to her before concluding that the universe doesn't require a deity.

The SSA is hosting the film with permission from Sweeney. Admission is free.

Information: alliance adviser Megan Jacobson, 732-6426 or mjacobson@csi.edu.

Minico, Twin Falls Square Off in Late-season Clash

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Just like everyone drew it up — sort of.

As they've done the last few years, Minico and Twin Falls lock horns tonight on the football field in a game that will have major implications for the Great Basin Conference championship race, as well as the chase for the league's two playoff berths.

One wins, and things become crystal clear. The other, and things possibly get even more complicated.

"We know we have to win," said Twin Falls running back Anthony Archuleta, whose Bruins will be eliminated from playoff contention if they don't. "We've been hearing talk in the hallways all week and stuff like that, but we're just worrying about being ready for Minico?"

Twin Falls hasn't claimed victory in the series since 2005, but this could be the Bruins' best shot in years. They loaded up the schedule for a night like this, and they've had their backs to the proverbial wall since losing to Jerome late last month.

Every game has been must-win from that point on, and Twin Falls has stepped up to the challenge, playing its best football over the last few weeks. That coincided with the return of Minico running back Taylor Seaton.

Archuleta, as well as quarterback Thomas Corr and others, from injuries that held them out for several weeks.

"The thing about Twin is they played some tough games early so it was difficult to tell what kind of team they were," said Minico coach Tim Perrigot. "They remind me of us a little bit. They've been battling through some difficult injuries and they've been trying to get healthy. I'm sure everybody will be out there and ready to play!"

The Spartans have also been playing some of their best ball of the year. Their defense pitched a shutout of Canyon Ridge's offense, though two special team scores made the 26-12 result look more tenuous than it was.

But that was with, and against, a run-heavy

TWIN FALLS • Last call for the playoff train.

Two of the five classifications involving District IV finish up their regular seasons tonight, and only two of the six playoff berths have been claimed. The other three divisions are in their first round of cross-division games to settle the state quarterfinal participants. Depending on who you talk to it's a first-round game or a play-in game. For simplicity's sake we'll call it the playoffs, even if it's not sanctioned by the state association.

In any case, there are some tasty games on offer, starting at the 4A ranks, where the right combination of events — namely wins for Twin Falls and Jerome — would force a three-way playoff between those two and Minico. The same could go down in the 1A-II ranks if North Gem beats Castleford and Rockland beats Sho-Ban in an all-District V clash.

Also in the 1A-II ranks, there's a simple solution in the northern division of the Sawtooth Conference: The winner of today's Carey-Clark County game goes on, the loser goes home. Less is more, sometimes.

The picks:

JEROME (4-4) AT BURLEY (3-5)

Describing Jerome's offense, Tiger head coach Sid Gambles said it best, "We've been like a streak shooter in basketball. We either get on a warm streak, or we've been really cold." If Jerome can secure the ball and score four or five touchdowns, Burley will struggle to keep up due to several key injuries. Already eliminated from playoff contention, the Bobcats are playing for pride and their homecoming. Jerome has a lot more on the line, however, amid a three-team race atop the Great Basin Conference standings.

Jerome 34, Burley 14

MINICO (6-2) AT TWIN FALLS (4-4)

Seems like every year the Minico-Twin game comes down to the final minutes. It figures to be close again this year, but the Bruins will have the home field advantage and the playmakers to finish it off.

Twin Falls 24, Minico 21

CANYON RIDGE (2-6) AT WOOD RIVER (2-5)

Both teams are wrapping up disappointing campaigns that never seemed to get started. Canyon Ridge showed promise in the first week, hanging tough with a highly thought-of Columbia team that turned out to be overrated. Wood River's opener got canceled and the Wolverines' season has been stop-start ever since. They're at home, though, and they should send the Blaine County fans home happy.

Wood River 26, Canyon Ridge 16

KIMBERLY (3-5) AT WEISER (4-4)

These teams have plenty of "good" losses — Weiser to Fruitland, as well as Oregon 4A schools Ontario and Baker; Kimberly to Gooding and Declo — but it doesn't make for a good matchup on paper. Get ready for plenty of smashmouth football in western Idaho tonight, with Weiser's veer offense and Kimberly's Wing-T/double-wing combo. Whichever can stop the other more often will win the game. The Bulldogs are playing better, but home field advantage speaks for a lot.

Weiser 24, Kimberly 20

AMERICAN FALLS (5-3) AT GOODING (8-0)

The Beavers were flying high with the rest of the 3A unbeaten for half the season. Then the wheels fell off, starting with a loss to a decent but not great 2A team in West Side, then a surprise loss to Bear Lake and a crushing defeat to Snake River last week. Gooding had a week off and got a good scout in, but Cole McGinnis' status is still unknown with a knee injury. With or without him, the Senators should have enough to move on to the quarterfinals.

Gage Hoping for Moore at State XC Meet

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

FILER • Filer's star cross country runner Gage Moore is friends with Gooding's star cross country runner Eliseo Garcia. Moore does not begrudge Garcia's success, but a Times-News feature on Garcia prior to the 3A District IV meet last week got Moore's antennas up.

"Gage is the most competitive

The fact that Moore had lost to Garcia in every race Garcia was healthy was motivation enough, but it was as though Moore, who nearly won the 3A state meet last year, was a forgotten man in the Magic Valley.

CSI Men Tabbed No. 7 in Preseason Poll

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho mens basketball team found itself back in the top 10 of the NJCAA Division I poll on Thursday.

The Golden Eagles checked in at No. 7 in the preseason rankings, which are largely based on last season's finish combined with returning talent.

The 2011-12 national champion South Plains (Texas) checked in at No. 1, while Northwest Florida State was at No. 2. Howard (Texas), Chipola (Fla.) and Indian Hills-Ottumwa (Iowa), the last of which is coached by former CSI head man Barret Peery, rounded out the top five.

CSI has six games scheduled against teams ranked in the preseason poll, four of those to be played in Twin Falls — No. 12 Monroe (N.Y.) Nov. 10 Indian Hills Nov. 24, and No. 24 North Idaho Jan. 12 and Feb. 23.

The Golden Eagles go to No. 11 Casper (Wyo.) Nov. 17 and visit North Idaho Feb. 2. CSI's women's team was unranked in the preseason poll, also released Thursday. Scenic West Athletic Conference rivals North Idaho (No. 3) and Salt Lake (No. 14) were given preseason rankings.

The first in-season polls will be released next month.

4A GREAT BASIN CONFERENCE (TWO QUARTERFINAL BERTHS)

Minico has clinched a share of the conference title. The Spartans will clinch the outright title and a playoff berth with a win over Twin Falls. The Spartans can also clinch a playoff berth with a Jerome loss to Burley.

Jerome will clinch a playoff berth with a Twin Falls loss to Minico. The Tigers will be eliminated from playoff contention with a loss to Burley combined with a Twin Falls win over Minico.

Twin Falls will clinch a playoff berth with a win over Minico, combined with a Jerome loss to Burley. The Bruins will be eliminated from playoff contention with a loss to Minico.

Burley, Canyon Ridge and Wood River have been eliminated from playoff contention.

Note: If Twin Falls beats Minico and Jerome beats Burley, a Kansas City playoff between Jerome, Minico and Twin Falls will be necessary to determine the conference's two playoff berths.

CSI Volleyball Sweeps Home Tri

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho volleyball team moved one step closer to its little goal.

CSI swept a home tri-match Thursday against Blue Mountain (Ore.) and Colorado Northwestern, the latter of which put the Golden Eagles one win away from completing a perfect run through the Scenic West Athletic Conference.

CSI (26-1, 9-0) beat Colorado Northwestern 25-16, 25-11, 25-12 on the strength of 13 kills from Keani Passi and 12 error-free kills from Kaylee Holmstead, who added three blocks (two solo).

But the thorn in the Golden Eagles' side was a lackluster third-set performance Thursday night against Blue Mountain, which saw their consecutive sets won streak end at 17. CSI won the match 25-12, 25-14, 18-25, 25-16.

"I was disappointed with our focus in the third set. They thought they could win on talent only, and you can't," said CSI coach Heidi Cartisser. "Set four, we came back out and were fine. But at this point in the season we can't have let-downs, and we had one tonight."

Passi had 18 kills for the Golden Eagles, while Holmstead assisted on seven of the team's 11 blocks.

Blue Mountain beat Colorado Northwestern 25-12, 25-13, 25-15 in the third match. Castleford High graduate Kendra Flores had 16 assists on the day for Colorado Northwestern.

CSI rounds out the regular season on Saturday against Utah State-Eastern.

ABERDEEN (4-4) AT DECLO (8-0)

With a potential matchup against defending state champ Grangeville looming in the quarterfinals next week, Declo must guard against looking ahead and focus on the task at hand: the upstart Aberdeen Tigers, who survived a three-team playoff Saturday. Home field advantage has been kind to Declo, which has lost only one home playoff game since 2004 (last year to Firth in the quarterfinals). The Hornets average 518 yards and 53 points per game, while their starting defense has only allowed two touchdowns this season. However, none of Declo's opponents has a winning record. In fact, the eight teams share only 16 wins between them. Will the Hornets' soft regular season schedule come back to bite them in the postseason? Maybe, but not this week.

Declo 34, Aberdeen 12

MCCALL-DONNELLY (5-3) AT WENDELL (4-4)

You can point to one easy reason that McCall-Donnelly will win this game: The Vandals took down reigning 2A champ Grangeville this season. You can just as easily point to a bad loss against Melba, which also beat Wendell. The Trojans are pretty simple to figure out. If they score 20 or fewer points, they lose (0-4). Figuring out which Wendell team will show up is the hard part. Go with the more known quantity.

McCall-Donnelly 24, Wendell 14

GREENLEAF FRIENDS (5-3) AT HAGERMAN (8-0)

Hagerman's state-best win streak stands at 20. With one eye on a potential rematch with Butte County next week, it'll be important for the Pirates to avoid going bust tonight. Don't bet on that happening, though. Hagerman rolled past Rimrock, the best team in District III. Greenleaf is the third best team.

Hagerman 56, Greenleaf 16

RAFT RIVER (3-5) AT GRACE (7-1)

Raft River makes its first postseason appearance since 2009 and looks to win its first playoff game since 2008. When Raft River traveled to Grace on Sept. 14, the Trojans had the lead until Grace scored the go-ahead touchdown with under a minute to play and won 26-20. To avoid the same long bus ride home from Grace tonight, Raft River will need to limit big plays from Grace quarterback Josh Jensen, avoid costly penalties, and cash in on red zone chances — things it struggled to do against the Grizzlies last time.

Grace 32, Raft River 30

CAREY (6-2) AT CLARK COUNTY (6-2)

Winner of this game gets the No. 2 seed for the playoffs. This won't be an easy tune-up for the Panthers before heading into the postseason. The Bobcats are going to put up a fight for the No. 2 seed.

Carey 48, Clark County 36

NORTH GEM (3-5) AT CASTLEFORD (6-2)

Similar to the Carey-Clark County game, Castleford can get into the playoffs with a win. North Gem would gum up the works and likely create a three-way tie for that second berth if it wins. There may be a Kansas City playoff on Monday, but don't expect it to come from the Sawtooth South.

Castleford 56, North Gem 12

Saturday BUHL (2-6) VS. SHELLEY (8-0), HOLT ARENA

Not much has gone right for Buhl this season, but the Indians got some help from Kimberly last week to make sure they got into the playoffs. The reward? A chance to play championship contender Shelley on the fast track.

1A-II SAWTOOTH CONFERENCE (TWO QUARTERFINAL BERTHS PER DIVISION)

North Division

Dietrich has clinched a share of the division championship and the top playoff seed. The Blue Devils will clinch the outright conference title with a win over Camas County.

The winner of today's

Camas County, Mackay and Richfield have been eliminated from playoff contention.

South Division

Lighthouse Christian has clinched the division championship outright and the top playoff seed.

Castleford will clinch the division's second playoff seed with a win over North Gem. The Wolves will be eliminated from playoff contention with a loss, combined with a Rockland loss to Sho-Ban.

Rockland will be eliminated from playoff contention with a loss to Sho-Ban or a Castleford win over North Gem.

North Gem will be eliminated from playoff contention with a loss to Castleford. The Cowboys can clinch the division's second playoff seed with a win, combined with a Rockland loss to Sho-Ban.

Murtaugh and Sho-Ban have been eliminated from playoff contention.

offense, which Twin Falls can mirror if it so chooses. However, the Bruins established better balance against Burley last week and also have a strong special teams corps with Ben Worst's foot and Archuleta's return ability.

"It looked we were going to be a mostly running team with our three running backs, but (Corr) has come back and proven he can throw the ball well, too," said Bruin defensive back John Hohnhorst. "Those are the kinds of things that really help a team out."

Minico doesn't need to throw the ball, but the Spartans believe they can if they must. They much prefer to pound it out on the ground with the up-tempo Wing-T, and when they're averaging some 400 yards on the ground per game, it's tough to fault them.

"I think we proved that we can pass the ball against Wood River, we had three touchdown passes and (quarterback Shay Chandler) had a good game," said Minico tight end/defensive

"We don't want to be in a situation where we're playing on Monday."

Tim Perrigot,

end Matt Harper. "So we can pass it if we need to, but if we can just run the ball, we're going to run it."

It will be senior night for the Bruins, and there will be plenty of emotion on both sides of the stadium. Minico can repeat as outright Great Basin champion and earn a home playoff date with District III third-place team Skyview.

Twin Falls wants to prolong its season, if only to Monday, when a Kansas City playoff would be necessary if the Bruins win and Jerome beats Burley. The Bruins would get in with a win and a Burley win.

Minico, naturally, wants to make things as simple as possible.

"We don't want to be in a situation where we're playing on Monday," Perrigot said. "We want to take care of business on Friday."

Boise State Not Taking Wyoming Lightly

BY DAVE SOUTHORN
Idaho Press-Tribune

BOISE • Between the attrition the Boise State Broncos faced before this season, coupled with the ever-present bull's-eye on their backs, they knew they'd be facing their fair share of battles.

Four of No. 21 Boise State's first seven games have been decided by 10 points or less, while Saturday's opponent, Wyoming, has already played in five such games.

The difference is that the Broncos are 3-1 in those contests, while the Cowboys are 1-4.

"In our conference, I believe we're the best," Boise State senior nickel Dextrell Simmons said. "I think every other team thinks that too, so they're going to give it their all. We're not going to get poor effort from Wyoming. I know they're going to come out with everything they have."

Even though Boise State is playing football atypical of the past couple seasons with an offense currently ranked 85th and no games with 41 or more points, it is approaching its 10th 10-win season in the past 11 years.

The outside perception that this is a reloading year has not been lost on the Broncos.

"People (for) some reason viewed that this is the year to beat the Broncos," senior receiver Chris Potter said. "We've really taken it to heart. We have had the mindset that maybe teams can, if the Broncos beat themselves. We focus on ourselves and at the task at hand."

Case in point for not underestimating any teams — Sept. 29 at New Mexico. Against the Lobos, who had one win in each of their previous three seasons, the Broncos led 25-0 at the half before the Lobos' option started to hum. The Broncos left with a 32-29 win.

"It was definitely a point in time where we realized we could be beat," Simmons said. "We need to do everything in our power not to let that happen again."

For the second week in a row, following last Saturday's 32-7 win over UNLV, the Broncos draw a one-win opponent in Wyoming. Again, they believe the record is an aberration. After all, four of the Cowboys' six losses have been by a combined 13 points.

Boise State coach Chris Petersen was quick to point out that the score at halftime last season — in Boise — would have been 7-7 if not for a Hail Mary pass to Matt Miller as the second quarter ended.

"I think this is a good team, a very, very scary team for us," Petersen said. "... You go on the road and play like that, you'll get beat."

Wyoming often employs two athletic quarterbacks in sophomore Brett Smith and freshman Jason Thompson, who have combined for 1,567 passing yards, 282 rushing yards, 15 passing touchdowns and seven interceptions.

Like Boise State, six receivers have at least 10 catches.

"They're a well-balanced team, great competitors — all their games have come down to the wire, so we know they're going to give us their best," Boise State cornerback Jamar Taylor said.

The Cowboys will have a unique situation presented Saturday, as coach Dave Christensen has been suspended this week after a tirade against Air Force coach Troy Calhoun on Oct. 13.

Offensive line/running backs coach Pete Kaligis will take over head coaching duties Saturday.

"The team's taking it very well," Kaligis said. "... With everything we've been through this season, they've done a good job focusing every week, so this won't add to it."

Boise State is expecting even more of an effort from Wyoming with the Cowboys' spate of close losses, and especially Christensen's absence.

"I would definitely think, if I'm one of their players, I'm going to try to rally behind my coach a little bit

No. 21 Boise State (6-1, 3-0 Mountain West) at Wyoming (1-6, 0-3), 3:30 p.m. (CBS Sports Network)

SERIES RECORD: BOISE STATE LEADS 6-0

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Wyoming is looking for anything positive in a season gone sour on the field and now with the one-week suspension of its head coach Dave Christensen for his profanity-laden outburst against Air Force coach Troy Calhoun. The confrontation occurred two weeks ago but Wyoming didn't suspend and fine Christensen until this week, meaning he will not be on the sideline against Boise State. Boise State has won six in a row.

KEY MATCHUP

Wyoming QB Brett Smith vs. Boise State's front seven. Smith is the engine that makes Wyoming's offense go. Smith is averaging 301.8 yards per game total offense but has missed two games and part of another because of concussions. Boise State's defense is ranked in the top 10 for pass defense (158 yards per game), pass efficiency defense (95.6) and points allowed (13.5). It has held opponents scoreless in the first half in each of the last five games.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Wyoming: LB Ghaali Muhammad leads the Cowboys in tackles this season, with 64 total tackles, including 41 solo. He ranks third in the Mountain West in tackles, averaging 9.3 per game.

Boise State: RB D.J. Harper has 32 career touchdowns and needs one more to rank him fifth in school history. Harper ranks ninth all-time at Boise State in career rushing yards (2,250), and needs 19 more to move up to seventh on the list.

FACTS & FIGURES

Boise State sophomore WR Matt Miller is three receptions shy of 100 for his career. ...The Broncos defense has held four of this season's seven opponents to their lowest-scoring game of the season. ...Boise State has not lost a game in October since 2001 when it fell to Rice 45-14 on Oct. 6. ... Wyoming is looking for its first home win of the season. UW lost its first three home games by one (27-28 to Air Force), two (22-24 to Cal Poly) and three (31-34 to Toledo). ...The Cowboys have had five of their first seven games decided by a touchdown or less but have won only one of the close games — a 3-point overtime win at Idaho.

and give a little bit extra," Boise State tight ends/special teams coach Scott Huff said.

The Idaho Statesman

BOISE • As he prepares to hire a fourth football coach since becoming Idaho's athletic director in 2003, Rob Spear is confident that he can find the right man to turn around the program.

He'd better. There aren't many athletic directors who get five chances to get the most important hire in the department right, and there is a growing chorus of Idaho fans who don't think Spear should get the chance to replace Robb Akey, who was fired Sunday.

Junior tight end Taylor Elmo put his frustration into a tweet Sunday night, suggesting that Spear's decision to fire Akey was in part to keep the heat off of him.

"Fire a man to keep your own job??" Elmo tweeted.

Spear bristled at the idea that this decision would have a larger reflection on him than others.

The first three coaches he hired went 29-76. Nick Holt left for a coordinator job at USC. Dennis Erickson, considered a coup at the time, bolted for Arizona State after one season. And then there was Akey, a successful defensive coordinator at Washington State.

University President Duane Nellis issued a statement of support after Akey's firing.

"Every hire I make is an important hire," Spear said. "We will do the right thing here."

Even if the midseason timing felt a bit odd, the case for firing the personable Akey was clear and defensible. In five-plus seasons, he was 20-60. The Vandals are 3-17 since the start of 2011 and rank No. 117 in the country in scoring offense (16.0) and scoring defense (42.0) through eight games and seven losses this season.

"It's all about performance on the football field," Spear said.

Spear, who got his PhD from Idaho in 1989, defended his department-wide record in the wake of Akey's firing.

"We have a very successful athletic program. The data shows we are the second-best athletic program in the WAC. I'll let that stand for itself," Spear said.

While Idaho finished second in the WAC Commissioner's Cup standings in 2011-12, the department finished sixth or seventh in the league's all-sport standings in each of the previous five years.

But it is football that towers above all else in intercollegiate athletics and it is there that the Vandals have struggled under Spear. Those problems run far deeper than any single football coach.

Since 2000, under four head coaches, Idaho has had just one winning season (2009) and has won fewer than 33 percent of its games (40-121). Until those underlying factors are addressed, it's hard to see how the next coach will avoid a similar fate.

Akey's $365,767 salary ranked among the bottom 15 in the Football Bowl Subdivision and the total staff compensation ranked as the sixth-lowest in the FBS, according to USA Today. Spear said next head coach would be paid about the same.

Despite improvements to the athletic facilities and the Kibbie Dome under Spear, the Vandals' facilities are sub-par compared to most of their competitors.

Idaho is without a conference for 2013, though Spear pulled together a surprisingly effective independent slate. He said Idaho is committed to independence until the Vandals find a conference home.

"Consistency has been the difficult thing," Akey said. "It's going to continue to be a challenge with the independent status until a league gets found."

Spear, a former professional basketball player, is deeply passionate about Idaho's success.

"The opportunities at the University far outweigh the challenges," Spear said. "It's a great opportunity for someone to come in here, make a difference and turn a program around."

The pressure is also on Spear. He needs to define a clear path forward, set realistic goals and bring a fractured fan base together. He gets one more chance to fix the football program.

NBA Deputy Commissioner Adam Silver, left, smiles as Commissioner David Stern speaks during a news conference following a NBA Board of Governors meetings in New York, Thursday. Stern announced he will retire on Feb. 1, 2014, 30 years after he took charge of the league. He will be replaced by Silver.

Stern to Retire as NBA Commissioner in 2014

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • NBA Commissioner David Stern will retire on Feb. 1, 2014, 30 years after he took charge of the league. He will be replaced by Deputy Commissioner Adam Silver.

The announcement came at an NBA Board of Governors meeting Thursday.

Stern told owners during their two days of meetings of his plans, and the board unanimously decided Silver would be his successor.

"I decided that things are in great shape and there's an organization in place that will ultimately be led by Adam that is totally prepared to take it to the next level," Stern said.

Stern, who turned 70 last month, became commissioner on Feb. 1, 1984. He has been the NBA's longest-serving commissioner, establishing the league's brand around the world, presiding over team expansion and overseeing the establishment of the WNBA and the NBA Development League.

"You'll be remembered as the best of all-time," Silver told Stern, sitting to his left on a podium during a news conference.

Stern said he decided on his plans about six months ago, having guided the league through a lockout that ended nearly a year ago. He said the league is in great shape and he's confident in Silver, who has been the league's No. 2 since 2006.

"I don't know what else to say other than to recite what I told the owners yesterday in executive session," Stern said. "I told them that it's been a great run, it will continue for another 15 months, that the league is in, I think, terrific condition."

Stern is the one who got it there, taking over what was a second-rate league with little-to-no TV presence and making basketball one of the world's most popular sports.

He cited the success of the 1992 Dream Team, which helped spark the league's international explosion, but said everything "just keeps getting better than that."

"For the most part it's been a series of extraordinary experiences and enormous putting together of pieces of a puzzle and it goes on forever," Stern said. "And there will always be another piece of the puzzle and so the question is at what point do you decide that, let someone else do it? That's the point that I'm at now."

Stern was the league's outside counsel from 1966-78, then its general counsel before becoming executive vice president of business and legal affairs from 1980-84. He replaced Larry O'Brien to become the league's fourth commissioner.

The NBA has added seven franchises during his tenure.

Minnesota Timberwolves owner Glen Taylor, the outgoing chairman of the Board of Governors, said the average player salary had grown from $250,000 when Stern took over to $5 million.

The league has reported huge increases in ticket and merchandise sales, and TV ratings are at an all-time high.

"There are all kinds of other business metrics we could look at that would define David as one of the great business leaders of our time," Silver said.

Taylor and Spurs owner Peter Holt, who is replacing him as board chairman, said the owners will work to have a contract with Silver by April. Silver came to the NBA 20 years ago and served a variety of positions before becoming the deputy commissioner in 2006.

Stern said he wouldn't leave until he knew there was a successor ready, and he has repeatedly said Silver is ready for that role. Stern said he would always remain available to take a call and help the league. "Life is a journey and it's been a spectacular journey," Stern said. "Each step along the way there are things that you have to do, things that you maybe wish you hadn't done. But I don't keep that list, and so I'm totally pleased and I'm particularly pleased with the transition of which we're now embarking."

New York Yankees great Don Larsen reacts during a June 28 news conference announcing the auction of his 1956 perfect game uniform in New York. Larsen is auctioning off the Yankee pinstripes he wore in 1956 when he pitched the only perfect game in World Series history, and will use the proceeds to pay college tuition for his grandchildren, one in college and the other a high school freshman.

Sports Stars Sell Memories, Beat Tax Increase

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Rather than leave a 56-year-old uniform hanging in a closet at his northern Idaho home, Don Larsen decided it should be used for education.

He's auctioning off the Yankee pinstripes he wore in 1956 when he pitched the only perfect game in World Series history, and will use the proceeds to pay college tuition for his grandchildren, one in college and the other a high school freshman.

"I'm not getting any younger and I want to see them get an education before I leave," the 83-year-old Larsen said. "They'll be appreciative later, more so than now, I'm sure."

Similarly, Bob Knight is selling his NCAA championship rings and other mementos to fund education in his family. "I have two grandsons," the Hall of Fame basketball coach said, "and my wife has a niece and nephew, who would get good use out of this."

In fact, a slew of sports memorabilia is on the market, coincidentally or not, just ahead of possible tax increases that could eat up some of the proceeds.

Also up for auction in coming weeks are baseball star Ozzie Smith's Gold Gloves, Evander Holyfield's boxing championship belts and an original of the agreement Pete Rose signed when he was banned from baseball for life in 1989.

"Sounds like a bunch of guys with full expectations that the Bush tax cuts are going to expire by year's end and not be back for next year," said Steve Gill, associate professor of accounting at San Diego State's Lamden School of Accountancy.

And starting Jan. 1, there will be a new Medicare tax on income from investments for higher-earning people. The IRS hasn't issued rules yet, so money from the sale of collectibles may be subject to the new levy.

"The 3.8 percent Medicare tax would probably be the thing that immediately popped into my mind in terms of what folks may be thinking about," said David Boyle, Americas director of personal financial services for the accounting firm Ernst & Young.

Some athletes used to give away the shirts off their backs or leave them in the clubhouse at season's end. Not anymore.

"If I knew then what I know now, I would have saved all my uniforms," baseball Hall of Famer Yogi Berra said.

These days, polyester double-knit has replaced wool flannel uniforms, and the 10,000-plus outfits sent to the 30 big-league clubs by Majestic Athletic are highly desired by fans. But it is gear from decades ago that is more prized.

"It's just a more honest period of time. Things were clearer. Things were simpler," said Brandon Steiner, whose Steiner Sports Memorabilia is auctioning the Larsen jersey and Knight collection in an online sale that will end Dec. 5.

Retired athletes and auction houses took notice in May when a circa-1920 Babe Ruth jersey was sold by SCP Auctions for $4.4 million to Lelands.com, which had a buyer lined up.

"Now not everybody is going to have a $4.4 million piece of memorabilia, but they might have something that is worth between $25,000 and $250,000," said Ken Goldin of Goldin Auctions, which is selling the Rose agreement. "So different deals are being cut with the auction houses to bring that particular memorabilia to market while the players perceive it to be a good time to do so."

Larsen threw his last big-league pitch in 1967—when the average major league salary was $19,000. That would cover only a small slice of the price of top memorabilia these days.

In the same auction as the Ruth jersey, a 1934 Ruth Yankees cap that was owned by pitcher David Wells sold for $537,278, about $507,000 more than Wells paid for it.

The baseball that rolled through the legs of Red Sox first baseman Bill Buckner in Game 6 of the 1986 World Series sold in May for $418,250. Two years ago, the bat Kirk Gibson used for his game-winning home run for the Los Angeles Dodgers in the first game of the 1988 World Series sold for $575,912.

Those were bargains compared with a rare 1909 Honus Wagner baseball card that sold for $2.35 million in 2007, then resold six months later for $2.8 million to Arizona Diamondbacks owner Ken Kendrick, who allowed baseball's Hall of Fame to display it.

"Sports people are nuts," Knight said. "Look at how much they would pay for Babe Ruth's cap or Honus Wagner's card. I guess these are people who want to own things, things that are the results of what someone else did in sports."

Wealthy sports junkies view a 1952 Mickey Mantle card the same way others look at their 401(k).

"While the stock market is up and down, and while real estate is up and down, the memorabilia market has really gained a lot of steam over the last couple years," said Goldin, whose Rose auction runs through Nov. 17.

Instead of being auctioned online, Holyfield's collection will be sold Nov. 30 at Julien's Auctions in Beverly Hills, Calif., which also sells rock 'n' roll and Hollywood memorabilia.

"People look at these items not just as fans. They look at them as an investment. It's a way to diversify their portfolio," owner Darren Julien said. "We're very popular in Asia and Russia, and that's where a lot of the money is coming from. Items that used to sell for $8,000 to $10,000 can bring $200,000 to $300,000 now."

Soccer superstar Lionel Messi and Argentina could participate in a special Copa America tournament in the United States in 2016, according to CONMEBOL, the confederation overseeing South American soccer.

Negotiations Ongoing to Bring Copa America to USA

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • More negotiations are needed before Copa America, the championship tournament for South America, is staged in the United States in 2016.

An announcement that the tournament would take place in the United States was made Wednesday by CONMEBOL, the confederation overseeing South American soccer. But it was premature, according to CONCACAF, which runs the sport in North and Central America and the Caribbean.

US Soccer Federation President Sunil Gulati said Thursday that his organization has not agreed to host the tournament or participate in it "at this time."

The tournament would celebrate the 100th anniversary of CONMEBOL.

CONMEBOL said at a meeting of its executive committee Wednesday in Argentina that the proposed tournament would include the 10 South American confederation teams, plus the United States, Mexico and four others from the CONCACAF region, which comprises North and Central America and the Caribbean.

If the agreement is confirmed, the event will take place between the 2015 and 2019 Copa America tournaments.

CONMEBOL said in a statement that the four CONCACAF teams would be added according to their rankings in the Gold Cup, the CONCACAF regional championship.

CONMEBOL said the event would be played in July, but offered few other details. It would be the first time the event is played outside South America and could be a huge financial success showcasing Brazil and Argentina to North American fans.

NOTICE OF HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City Council ("Council") of the City of Twin Falls, Idaho, respectively adopted and approved its Resolution on the 22nd day of October, 2012, which, among other things, established and provided for the following:
Notice of Hearing: At a hearing to be held by the Council on the 5th day of November, 2012, at 6:00 o'clock p.m., or as soon thereafter as all objections and protests may be heard, at the City Hall, Council Chambers, 321 Second Avenue East, in the City of Twin Falls, Idaho, the Council shall hold a hearing to consider all protests and objections filed in writing for the creation of Local Improvement District No. 2012-1 (the "District") for the acquisition, installation and construction of sewer system, pre-treatment system, water system, related utility extensions, and road improvements and other related facilities and improvements. The Council reserves the right to adjourn the hearing from time to time to a fixed future time and place until all protests and objections have been heard. Owners of property to be assessed and situated within the boundaries of the proposed District hereinafter described have up to and including the hour of 5:00 o'clock p.m. on the day of said hearing, to file with the Twin Falls City Clerk, City Hall, 321 Second Avenue East, Twin Falls, Idaho, written protests and objections to the creation of the said District, or to the acquisition of said property or making of the improvements proposed to be constructed and installed within the said District, or making any other protests and objections in relationship to the Council's intent to create said District.
Modified District; Boundaries: The District will be a "Modified District" within the meaning of Idaho Code Section 50-1705. A description of the boundaries of the proposed District to be created and the property within said District to be assessed for a portion of the total costs and expenses of the aforesaid improvements are described as follows:
 (a) District Boundaries: The boundaries are as set forth on Exhibit A attached hereto.
 (b) Property to be Assessed: All property within the District subject to assessment under Title 50, Chapter 17, Idaho Code.
Description of Project: The acquisition, installation and construction of sewer system, pre-treatment system, water system, related utility extensions, road improvements and other related facilities and improvements to benefit the property within the District.
Estimated Costs: The probable costs and expenses of the above acquisition and construction of the Project together with costs and expenses incurred for equipment, engineering, clerical services, advertising, printing, inspection, collecting assessments and interest thereon, financing costs, reserves, legal services for preparing the proceedings and advising in regard thereto are estimated to be $32,509,000, of which other grant or funding sources will pay approximately $-0- and $32,509,000 will be paid from assessments on property within the District.
Method of Assessment: The method of assessment as to each parcel within the District will be by the uniform square foot method based on benefits derived from the Project. Said formula is for the total of all said costs of the Project to be divided by the total number of square feet of real property in the District and then multiplied by the number of square feet held by each owner within the District. It is expected that local improvement bonds ("LID Bonds") will be issued by the District to finance the Project and that simultaneously therewith, bonds of the Urban Renewal Agency of the City of Twin Falls, Idaho (the "URA Bonds") will be issued for the Project. It is further expected that as long as payments are made on the URA Bonds, such payments will be a credit against payments of installments on said assessments and payments of the LID Bonds.
Additional Information: Anyone desiring further information pertinent to said intent to create said District may examine, or receive a copy of, the Resolution on file in the office of the City Clerk, Twin Falls City Hall, 321 Second Avenue East, Twin Falls, Idaho.

Today is Friday, Oct. 26, the 300th day of 2012. There are 66 days left in the year.
Today's Highlight:
On Oct. 26, 1942, Japanese planes badly damaged the aircraft carrier USS Hornet in the Battle of the Santa Cruz Islands during World War II. (The Hornet sank early the next morning; the battle itself ended in a tactical victory for Japan, but ultimately a strategic win for the Allies.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1774, the First Continental Congress adjourned in Philadelphia.
In 1825, the Erie Canal opened in upstate New York, connecting Lake Erie and the Hudson River.
In 1861, the legendary Pony Express officially ceased operations, giving way to the transcontinental telegraph. (The last run of the Pony Express was completed the following month.)
In 1881, the "Gunfight at the O.K. Corral" took place in Tombstone, Ariz.
In 1902, women's rights pioneer Elizabeth Cady Stanton died in New York at age 86.
In 1921, the Chicago Theatre, billed as "the Wonder Theatre of the World," first opened.
In 1949, President Harry S. Truman signed a measure raising the minimum wage from 40 to 75 cents an hour.
In 1958, Pan American Airways flew its first Boeing 707 jetliner from New York to Paris in 8 hours and 41 minutes.
In 1962, the thriller "What Ever Happened to Baby Jane?" starring Bette Davis and Joan Crawford, had its premiere in New York.
In 1972, national security adviser Henry Kissinger declared, "Peace is at hand" in Vietnam. Aviation innovator Igor Sikorsky died in Easton, Conn., at age 83.
In 1979, South Korean President Park Chung-hee was shot to death during a dinner party along with his chief bodyguard by the head of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, Kim Jae-kyu, who was later executed.
In 1982, the medical drama "St. Elsewhere" premiered on NBC.

Ten years ago: The hostage siege by Chechen rebels at a Moscow theater ended with 129 of the 800-plus captives dead, most from a knockout gas used by Russian special forces who stormed the theater; 41 rebels also died. Tens of thousands of anti-war protesters circled the White House after Jesse Jackson and other speakers denounced the Bush administration's Iraq policies. The Anaheim Angels defeated the San Francisco Giants 6-5 in Game 6 of the World Series, forcing a seventh and final showdown.
Five years ago: A federal jury in Kansas City, Mo., decided that Lisa Montgomery, convicted of killing expectant mother Bobbie Jo Stinnett and cutting the baby from her womb, should receive the death penalty. The Georgia Supreme Court freed Genarlow Wilson, saying his 10-year sentence for consensual oral sex with another teenager, a 15-year-old girl, was cruel and unusual punishment. Friedman Paul Erhardt, television's "Chef Tell," died in Upper Black Eddy, Pa., at age 63.
One year ago: President Barack Obama recalled his struggles with student loan debt as he unveiled a plan at the University of Colorado Denver that could give millions of young people some relief on their payments. In a verdict that disappointed pro-democracy activists, two Egyptian policemen who beat a man to death were convicted of the lesser charge of manslaughter and given a relatively light sentence in a case that helped spark Egypt's uprising.

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating the greatest man I've ever met in my life for three years. "Jared" has wonderful kids and a successful career. He's handsome and is kind to me, my kids and my family. We enjoy each other immensely, and we are now engaged.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

We are social drinkers, but about once a year Jared gets incredibly intoxicated and changes into the most horrible person I have ever seen. It's all verbal yelling — nothing physical — but it's still inexcusable. After an "episode" he is guilt-ridden and apologetic for weeks. I believe he's sincere, but it has made me rethink our engagement. He had an episode a week ago — the third during the time we've been together.

Our kids are close and care about each other. I love Jared, but if I have to endure another instance of this I don't think I can go through with the marriage. I'm still angry about the last bout, and he's still guilt-ridden. How do I approach this?

— CONFLICTED IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR CONFLICTED: The first thing to do is make it your business to attend some Al-Anon meetings. When you do, you'll soon realize that the behavior Jared is exhibiting can escalate.

While Jared may be able to handle his liquor 364 days a year (now), what happens on that 365th is a deal-breaker. Unless you want to spend your life worrying every time Jared picks up a glass who he will be when he puts the glass down, draw the line now. Tell him the person he becomes during these "episodes" is a stranger you have no desire to have anything to do with — ever — and if he can't GUARANTEE that you will never see that person again, the marriage is off. Of course, this will mean the end of his social drinking and probably yours. If what you have together is as special as you say, it is only a small sacrifice.

Be prepared, because he will probably deny he has a problem. Unless you want to become a miserable nervous wreck, you must not relent. The explosion, the guilt, the "honeymoon" period afterward are similar to the cycle of domestic violence, so be aware of that.

DEAR ABBY: My beautiful son died five years ago. He chose his death by hanging — suicide. He had suffered for years, and all our love couldn't help him. He once told me, "Mom, I don't want to live like this anymore. I want to be with Jesus."

We know we will see him again. Still, I find it hard to tell people how he died. I know I don't have to, but it still haunts me sometimes. I'd like to know how others who have been through the same thing feel about this. Thank you for your support.

— MOM IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR MOM: I'm sorry about the death of your son, who suffered from severe chronic depression. When there is a suicide, the family can experience a range of emotions — including anger, sadness and guilt. When a child commits suicide there can also be feelings of self-recrimination. If that's the case with you, please seek counseling.

I'm sure that when your letter is published, I'll hear from readers who will share their experiences. If you will visit the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention website, www.afsp.org, you can search for a suicide survivor support group in your area, because talking with others who have experienced this can be helpful.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"A man is not idle because he is absorbed in thought. There is a visible labor and there is an invisible labor."

— Victor Hugo

In today's deal, West knew that his opponents were in a thin three-no-trump contract (East had to have a few points for his voluntary heart bid) and so was reluctant to lead a heart, which could easily have given declarer a trick. Instead, he chose what he hoped was a passive diamond, and in a way he was right because the diamond did not give anything away.

Declarer won in hand with the queen, played a club to dummy's jack and East's 10, then led a club back to his queen, East following with the nine and West winning his king.

West now switched to the heart queen, which held the trick. What now? West continued with another heart, won by declarer's ace, and declarer rattled off four more club tricks. At this stage, declarer had seven tricks and needed two more. Everyone was reduced to four cards, and as dummy was discarding after West, there was an answer to anything the defense did. West's best shot was to come down to three spades and a singleton diamond ace. But declarer simply kept two diamonds and two spades in dummy and led a diamond up.

When the heart queen held, what West needed to do was cash both his aces before he played another heart. Since East had given count in clubs and hearts, West might have been able to work out declarer's shape. This defense would force declarer to give East a heart trick after he has cashed his clubs.

ANSWER: Pass. A double of two diamonds would be penalty here, but you need rather more in defensive strength than this hand. Since the opponents are fairly sure to be correcting to two hearts now, a contract against which you have no sure winners, you don't want to encourage partner to double that contract unless he has real extras on defense.

IF OCTOBER 26 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Maintain a low profile for the next four to six weeks. Your ambitions are peaking, but you must pay your dues to become a member of the club. Work hard between now and mid-December, but avoid irrevocable changes or to taking on any additional financial obligations. You are an apt pupil and will learn to handle your money wisely. After the first of the year, when your focus has shifted to spiritual goals, you can concentrate on improving your health or outlook by joining a spa, taking yoga classes or developing a healthier lifestyle. March is the best month to make key decisions and launch important projects.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Play hard to get. Get a new perspective by talking to unusual people in the immediate environment, but don't put your heart on the line. Your genuine interest in others will encourage popularity.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Amorous assignations could heat passions to the boiling point. Make sure you bring oven mitts, so you don't get scalded. An innocent casual flirtation could easily be turned into a lasting friendship.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be as good as you can be at everything you do. Don't be overly embarrassed or feel guilty about errors. It takes a lot of baby steps before you learn to take big steps. You have to start somewhere.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Pinch pennies today and there will be ample cents to spend tomorrow. You may feel like you are on your own, so take charge without waiting for outside help. Put off romantic ideas until tomorrow.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Opposites really do attract. But it is always the birds of a feather who end up flocking together. Friendships are highlighted under these cosmic conditions and you may be tempted to give your heart away.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your social skills are in high demand. Others in close connection could be somewhat curt and to the point. You have the ability to soothe ruffled feathers and facilitate team spirit in group settings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't let past mistakes or hesitations keep you from trying once again. If you fall off a horse, it's best to climb right back into the saddle as soon as possible. Your romantic yearnings will be satisfied.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Let the good times roll. Real love won't fall apart when there are minor distractions. Romantic stars are twinkling, so treat someone to dinner or offer a token of your appreciation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Romantic fantasies can come true. You are likely to hit the target if you aim for lasting affection. Reassess financial matters and consider changes that can make significant improvements to your life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Crawl out from under your rock. Cosmic conditions are improving by leaps and bounds; concerns about threats to your security are a thing of the past. Pick up the phone; make social contact a priority.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Friends and lovers might actually be the same thing. Your ability to attract love and admiration gets four gold stars. While you are at your best, go ahead with a job interview or public appearance.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The worst that can happen has probably already occurred. Don't let your imagination or concerns get the best of you. Be prepared to roll with the punches if a few minor upsets change your plans.

motion Thursday. Paul argued several jurors on the grand jury had some kind of relationship with people in law enforcement, and the judge who questioned the jurors did not question them thoroughly enough about how those relationships might affect their decision in the case. Stoker asked Paul if the jurors made any statements that showed express bias about law enforcement. Paul said they did not, but argued the jurors weren't questioned enough for that potential bias to be revealed. Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loeb's countered that many of the relationships were not close, and only one potentially involved the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office, the agency that first responded to the scene. Paul also brought up that one juror had some knowledge of one of the witnesses. Loeb's said even if that juror's vote was not counted, 14 more jurors still voted to indict Azure on the murder charge. On a grand jury, 12 out of 16 jurors must agree for an indictment to go through. Loeb's said the 16th juror was dismissed from the case because they started talking about facts they believed about the case from media reports. Stoker conditionally denied the motion to move the trial. He said Paul has the right to ask him to reconsider if it appears that finding a fair jury will be difficult after all. Azure's trial has already been delayed after he was initially declared unable to assist in his own defense. At his first appearance in front of a judge — by video in February — Azure was uncooperative and confined to a restraint chair. In June, after a stint in the Idaho Security Medical Program, Azure was again declared competent for trial. At Thursday's hearing Azure appeared in leg restraints and handcuffs, which is typical for jail inmates. A new trial date for Azure has not been set, but a status hearing is scheduled for Dec. 3. One issue still outstanding: In late September, Paul filed a motion seeking to overturn Idaho's ban on using an insanity defense. Stoker has yet to rule on that request, though the Idaho Supreme Court has rejected such appeals multiple times over the last 20 years.

Use of Pell Grants Continues to Rise

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@gmagicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • About one-third of College of Southern Idaho students — 3,063 — received a Pell Grant this year to pay for school. And numbers continue to climb. Jennifer Zimmers, CSI director of Financial Aid, said she expects this year's numbers will be higher than the 3,800 students who had a Pell Grant last school year. "We're going to surpass that year," she said.

With the presidential election just a couple weeks away, Zimmers said the future of Pell Grants depends on who is elected. "Obviously, it will impact our students if they decrease the amount," she said. It could mean students would have to find other ways, such as loans or scholarships, to cover college costs. The Federal Pell Grant Program provides funding to low-income students to pay for college expenses. Students can receive up to $5,500 each school year. One change to the Pell Grant program came this year. Now, students can receive Pell Grants for a maximum of 12 semesters — down from 18. Unlike loans, students don't have to repay the grants. Both part-time and full-time students can apply. When students apply, Zimmers said, they're reporting income from one year ago. "I think the economy has still kind of been on a downturn," she said, although it's picking up a bit.

Zimmers said there are still students out there who are struggling. Some couldn't find jobs and decided to go back to school.

Exchange

how the state should set up an exchange. Once given the recommendations, Otter has until Nov. 16 to announce Idaho's decision to the federal government. A state-run exchange is a popular option among state and local officials. However, the reform law's tight deadline structure doesn't give states much time to create something from scratch. If Idaho can't show the federal government it can have an exchange operating by Oct. 1 of next year, the federal government has the authority to take over the exchange. Despite the quick turnaround, Idaho has the time and resources to set up a state-based exchange, said Heidi Low, director of the Idaho Health Exchange Alliance, a coalition of local health care leaders. "The timelines are tight but it is doable," Low said. Idaho will make the deadlines if it chooses to run its state-based exchange through a nonprofit, said Julie Taylor, director of governmental affairs for Blue Cross Idaho. Idaho has a precedent of using a nonprofit to meet federal healthcare requirements. In 2009, Otter designated the Idaho Health Data Exchange to oversee federal grants for health information technology. In order to speed up setting up the exchange, Otter should approve the nonprofit through an executive order, Taylor said. "We tried passing a state exchange with legislation last year and it didn't go anywhere," she said. "If we wait again for the Legislature to approve a nonprofit, we would waste all that time between now and then." While no one knows exactly what the exchange will look like, local business leaders want the exchange to remain in Idahoan hands. "I think a state exchange would be accountable to Idaho businesses," said Cally Parrot, vice president corporate relations/organizational development for Buhl-based Clear Springs Foods. "I really believe in preserving our state rights and we can better control the costs and minimize the costs," she said. "A nonprofit can continue to move forward in that way, to continue keeping costs low and generally improving the health in Idaho." Debbie Lattin, who owns a Twin Falls insurance company, agrees. "A nonprofit exchange keeps healthcare costs in a free market situation," she said. "That's really what we need for employers and employees."
