ALBION • Albion's State Normal School campus wasn't always known for its haunted mansions.

Before men with chainsaws were hired to scare teenagers, the site threatened to harm innocent onlookers with only a few soil samples.

Lead and asbestos had leaked into the ground from exterior paint and underground pipes over the years. Eventually, state officials declared the site a brownfield in 2007.

At that same time, Troy Mortensen was in the middle of purchasing the Normal School property from the city of Albion.

"We knew the site was a brownfield when we bought it, but the contamination removal was not near as difficult like removing oils or chemicals," he said. "But it was an extensive process."

Prior to Mortensen purchasing the property, the city of Albion applied for and received a state grant to reimburse 70 percent of the cleanup efforts for up to $150,000. Knowing that most of the costs would already be covered, Mortensen began cleaning up the site almost immediately after buying the property.

It took close to $100,000 to remove all of the hazardous materials, according to state assessment documents. By the end, the toxins were no longer in the ground and the property's value increased by more than 133 percent, jumping from $600,000 to $1.4 million in less than two years.

Inmate Fires Lawyers, Makes His Own Case

BY ALISON GENE SMITH

TWIN FALLS • Robert Benjamin Brackett has been in the Twin Falls County Jail for almost two years and still hasn't been to trial — until today.

In those two years, he's fired several attorneys and in March decided to represent himself against accusations that he engaged in sexual activity with a teenage girl. As his own defender, he has filed dozens of motions and filed a suit against Twin Falls County claiming his rights have been violated. Since March, he terminated his co-counsel who was appointed to help him through the legal process.

"Every attorney I've ran into, they're really working for a person to take a deal," Brackett said in a phone interview from the Twin Falls County Jail Thursday. "If you look at the Idaho Rules of Professional Conduct, any attorney is supposed to represent you

Fossil Beds Fire Quashed

TIMES-NEWS

HAGERMAN • Rural fire crews and the U.S. Bureau of Land Management responded Sunday to a 50-acre fire at the Hagerman Fossil Beds National Monument.

The fire started on National Park Service land, but then burned its way onto BLM land, spokeswoman Heather Tiel-Nelson said. In addition to the BLM, the Bliss, Wendell and Hagerman rural fire districts were all at the scene.

Containment of the fire was expected at 10 p.m. Sunday, and crews hoped to have it fully extinguished at 11 p.m.

The fire is human-caused, Tiel-Nelson confirmed, though investigators don't know much more yet about its origins.

Voices of History Still Speak

"Those who cannot learn from history are doomed to repeat it." — George Santayana

Loyd Bakewell
Words of Encouragement

The value of history is that it prepares us to live more humanely in the present than we have in the past. Thoreau believed we have an obligation not to commit injustice and not to give injustice our practical support.

Nate Turner became a legendary black hero who broke his chains and murdered white people because slavery had murdered Negroes. He lived in a racist world in which the rights of property, including property in slaves, were often more important than human rights.

As early as 1755, Benjamin Franklin issued the rallying cry against tyranny when he wrote, "Those who would give up essential liberty to purchase a little temporary safety deserve neither liberty nor safety."

Thomas Jefferson declared, "All men are created equal and endowed with unalienable rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." This required equal opportunity for everyone. It is the duty of every American to defend those rights. We have important work ahead for us.

George Washington, our first president, sacrificed his personal desires for the greater good of our country. Tolerance and liberality were his watchwords. "We are a young nation," he said, "and have a character to establish."

Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "The female mill workers in Lowell, Mass., were too sharp to be easily manipulated." They even published their own 32-page magazine as an ode to self-improvement and a symbol of a brave new gender equality for women.

The Trail of Tears provided one of the most tragic chapters in American history in the way whites drove most of the eastern tribes into the interior. Dee Brown wrote about "their bones being forgotten in a thousand burned villages ... before the axes of twenty million invaders."

The voice of Harriet Tubman with the Underground Railroad still echoes from history. She instilled new strength and determination in the slaves. During her 10 years of guerrilla action, the great commando leader never lost a slave through capture or return.

Words from Lincoln's Gettysburg Address sum up a fitting response to the brave men and women who gave their lives for our freedom. "It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us ... that the government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Russ Tremayne, Ph.D, history professor at CSI, believes that history asks us to look at the bigger picture facing our nation today. We still have a hunger problem. Discriminations have not ended. Our education needs to get back to the basics that teach us how to get along with each other. He said, "Humanities might encourage us to use technology for the improvement of society rather than its destruction."

Word of Encouragement: While caring can't be legislated, it can be lived. We get through hard times with a positive attitude that looks up and perseveres.

Brownfields

Why It Matters

If brownfield sites are not cleaned up, the pollutants buried underground will find a way to infiltrate surrounding groundwater sources and even contaminate the air, said Aaron Scheff, brownfield response program manager for the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality.

"We're finding that air quality is more of a driver for cleanup," Scheff said. "It's complicated stuff but ask yourself, do you breathe more or do you drink more?"

When petroleum compounds break down — often found underground at former gasoline stations — they can contaminate the air and cause adverse health affects including cancer, Scheff said. Former landfills can release gases like methane, which is explosive, or hydrogen sulfide gas, which can kill a person in high enough concentrations.

The Need for Funding

While there are close to 65 brownfield sites in Idaho, there are few funding opportunities to help mitigate the costs of a brownfield cleanup. With fewer funding opportunities, there can be less incentive for property owners to remove the pollutants. The site of a former dry cleaning business can cost as much as $25,000 to clean up, while mines can easily cost twice that much, Scheff said.

And Idaho communities seeking funding help usually compete with metropolitan areas across the nation, he said.

The U.S. Environmental

A view of the former Albion Normal School, which used to be a brownfield site before it was cleaned up. While there are close to 65 brownfield sites in Idaho, there are few funding opportunities to help mitigate the costs of cleanup.

Protection Agency offers brownfield cleanup grants each year but Idaho rarely makes the cut. The EPA clumps Idaho with Oregon, Washington and Alaska into Region 10. It's an area that has 25 percent of the United States' landmass but only about 4 percent of the nation's population.

For the past five years, the EPA has awarded the majority of its cleanup grants to states in the eastern U.S., primarily states in the Rust Belt, New York and New Jersey.

The former Albion Normal School is seen in the distance.

The odds don't get better on a state level, either. In 2006, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter approved a pilot program for Idaho that allotted $1.5 million of state funds for brownfield cleanup projects. The money was split among 10 projects with the promise that property owners would receive a 70 percent rebate of up to $150,000.

Three of the sites were located in south-central Idaho, including the former Mr. A's Dry Cleaning and Super Quik Gas Station in Twin Falls and the Albion State Normal School.

The pilot program has yet to be renewed for another set of projects since many of the sites are still in the middle of the cleanup process. In the meantime, Idaho currently does not offer any grants but loans are available for brownfield cleanup, said Bruce Wicherski, volunteer cleanup program manager for DEQ.

"It's never a cheap thing to have to undertake (cleaning brownfields)," he said. "You always balance that against with what you're going to do once the site is cleaned up."

Property Payoff

For Jerome resident Gary Huber, the incentive to clean up his brownfield property ultimately came down to wanting to increase its value.

In 2009, DEQ officials contacted Huber and told him that he needed to clean up contamination coming from a former underground fuel tank. Metals had leaked into the ground from the tank and officials wanted the site cleaned.

The contamination wasn't that extensive and once he agreed to the cleanup, DEQ officials handled all of the pollution removal, Huber said.

"I suppose it will improve the property value when I decide to sell it down the road," Huber said. "I still have the property but one day I might sell it."

With the economy still recovering from a recession, Mortensen isn't sure that his property's estimated value would still be as high today as it was after the cleanup. He agreed that cleaning up brownfield sites is important, but noted the financial help also helped kickstart those efforts.

"We had our part we had to pay and DEQ had their part," he said. "It was a pretty smooth process. It's something we would have done eventually if we hadn't had the funding but I don't know when."

FEDS INVESTIGATING IDAHO DISABILITIES COMPLAINT

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (AP) • The Department of Education Office for Civil Rights is investigating a disability discrimination complaint against North Idaho College.

The federal agency is investigating a student's complaint involving the use of a service animal and a special accommodation.

Anthony Cruz, 59, filed an Americans with Disabilities Act complaint against the school in September. He said the school initially denied him use of his service dog in class for the fall semester.

NIC spokeswoman Stacy Hudson said the school's disability policies followed federal law.

Cruz, who has spinal stenosis and diabetes, said the dog is trained to alert him when his blood pressure gets too low. He said he registered for NIC's fall semester and was granted financial aid, and then he approached the school's

Center for Educational Access about accommodating his disabilities. He asked for a special chair because of his spine problems and that he be allowed to use his service dog in class.

Cruz contends that the center took from late July to the end of August to process his requests and required him to give documentation proving he earned disability benefits. He said he also had to obtain a new doctor's prescription for the service dog, though he already had one from 2009.

"I'm not looking at this as benefiting me, but it benefits the general public and people with disabilities," Cruz said.

Hudson said the school is cooperating with the federal agency's investigation.

"NIC's position continues to be that Mr. Cruz was not denied use of a service animal on campus and that he was provided with the opportunity to have reasonable accommodations based on his request," Hudson said.

Virgil Edwards, independent living advocate with the Disabilities Action Center Northwest, said the center might be included in the discussions between the college and the federal agency.

"I hope that the educational part of this is really brought out," Edwards said. "That people need to stand up for themselves."

Brackett

with zeal. I haven't seen that here?"

It's a highly unusual situation, said Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loeb. Loeb said he couldn't comment about this case until the trial is over.

Brackett's trial begins today. The charges stem from January 2011, when he was accused of engaging in sexual activity with a 16-year-old Wendell girl at his Twin Falls home on multiple dates in December 2010 and January 2011. He also allegedly detained the girl at his home during a Jan. 9, 2011 argument.

Over the past 22 months the charges against him have varied. He is currently facing eight counts of using a child in or possessing sexually exploitative material and seven counts of sexual battery committed by lewd or lascivious acts on a minor child aged 16 or 17. One count of sexual battery by committing lewd or lascivious acts on a minor aged 16 or 17 was dropped in October 2011.

If convicted, each sexual battery count is punishable by up to 25 years in prison and each child pornography count carries up to 10 years in prison.

Access to Information

Since he's chosen to represent himself, Brackett has petitioned for access to phones, computers, the Internet and law books.

Twin Falls County Jail Administrator Capt. Doug Hughes said an inmate decides to represent himself every few years and jail staff do the best they can to accommodate those inmates.

"With Brackett, I think we've gone above and beyond what we need to," he said.

Hughes said he believes Brackett's co-counsel and the investigator he hired should be sufficient to help him navigate the legal system. Brackett was also allowed to review court rules and view evidence in an area of the jail, Hughes said.

"I don't think there's much else that can be afforded to someone who's incarcerated," he said.

For several months, Brackett was allowed use of a phone in the booking area of the jail while handcuffed to an area near the phone. Eventually, jail staff decided it was a security risk to have an inmate in the booking area of the jail. Now, Brackett must use a phone in his cellblock that uses an automated system.

Brackett was not charged for any calls from the booking area or the cellblock phone until earlier this month when his free phone privileges were taken away, Hughes said.

In a court hearing about his access to phone use on Oct. 10, Brackett described how he was not able to leave messages or navigate automated phone menus because of the inmate call system on the cellblock phone. Since Brackett has hired an investigator to help with his case, Brackett said jail staff told him to have the investigator make those calls.

Hughes testified at the hearing that the jail staff chose to stop allowing Brackett to access the booking area phone due to security issues in the booking area.

"Things transpire in booking that he doesn't need to be aware of," Hughes said.

Brackett was accused of abusing his free phone privileges by giving his assigned personal identification number away to other inmates so they could also have free calls.

At the Oct. 10 hearing Brackett explained he was asking other inmates to have their family members call the numbers he could not access from jail, like companies that use automated phone menus. In exchange, Brackett said he allowed other inmates to use his free phone time to speak to their own families.

"I can't just ask somebody to do something for me," Brackett said at the hearing. "This is jail, you don't get anything for free."

'They're Going to ... Make an Example of Me'

Brackett said other drawbacks to representing himself while incarcerated include not being able to gather all the witnesses he wanted and not being allowed a hardcover Black's Law Dictionary because hardcover books are not allowed in the jail.

Brackett said he believes several entities within the county are working together to make his case more difficult for him to win.

"I think they're going to try to make an example of me," Brackett told the Times-News Thursday. "I'm to the point I know the truth in my heart, I know these things didn't happen. I'm not a child molester and not a child pornographer."

Brackett said the public should look him up on the Idaho Supreme Court Repository online to see for themselves what he's gone through over the past months.

Brackett's trial is scheduled to last through Friday this week and Brackett said at his pretrial hearing that he plans to call more than 20 witnesses, some of whom will overlap with witnesses called by prosecutors.

More Than 100 Motions

Much of what Brackett planned to use as part of his defense will be excluded from the trial after prosecutors made motions to bar mention of the court's prior motions in the case, allegations the court violated Brackett's rights, allegations about "bad acts" of the alleged victim and evidence of an alternative perpetrator in the case.

In a hearing discussing the motions, Brackett said he was left in a catch-22.

In Judge Richard Bevan's written decision about the motions, he stated Brackett will not be allowed to reference the more than 100 motions Bevan has ruled on over the course of the case. Bevan states that according to Idaho law, the only relevant evidence is any that makes the existence of any fact in the case more or less likely. For the same reason, Brackett will not be allowed to reference alleged violations of his rights in court.

Despite his limitations, Brackett said one of the pros to representing himself in court is the ability to see all the evidence he said he wouldn't have access to otherwise.

"I'm not asking for a not guilty verdict; I'm asking for fairness across the board," he said.

Memory Pill Does for the Brain What Prescription Glasses Do for the Eyes, Claims US Surgeon General Candidate

Remarkable changes observed, helps restore up to 15 years of lost memory power in as little as 30 days!

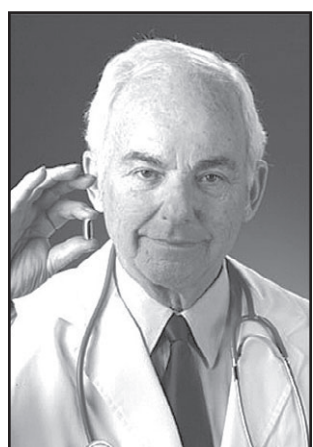

SPOKANE, WASHINGTON – Help is on the way for those who routinely lose their car keys, forget to call people back, or misplace their TV remote control.

Just like a good pair of glasses can make blurry vision, sharp and crystal-clear, there's a new, doctor-recommended memory pill that can do the same thing for your brain, sharpening your memory and mental powers, and making that slow-thinking, sluggish brain as sharp as a tack.

In controlled research studies, the prescription-free formula, known as Procera AVH® has been shown to increase memory, mood, and mental clarity, but it does much more than that.

Time Travel for Your Brain?

If you have ever dreamed of traveling back in time, this drug-free compound may be the next best thing.

UCLA Geffen School of Medicine Assistant Clinical Professor and Internist, Robert Heller, MD uses and recommends a drug-free method to increase memory, mental focus and concentration.

During research trials at the prestigious Brain Sciences Institute, clinical researchers witnessed a remarkable transformation in study participants' brains.

Over a period of a few weeks, scientists observed the formula "biochemically coaxing" aging brains to function more youthfully, helping restore the speed, memory abilities and mental powers enjoyed as far back as 15 birthdays ago.

Younger Brain in 30 Days?

If the results of this randomized, double-blind, placebo controlled study, published in JANA, a leading scientific journal, are to be believed, it is entirely possible that you can get your new, younger-functioning brain in as little as 30 days.

This is old news for Robert Heller, MD, who uses and recommends the formula

"It's not a drug," says Dr. Heller, "it's a nutritional supplement that can help a foggy, sluggish brain become a sharper, quicker, and healthier brain."

Wake Up Call for Tired Brains

For years, Dr. Heller looked for an effective solution to patients' complaints about mind and memory.

"I searched for a remedy or treatment that could help my patients, even friends and family, regain the memory and mental sharpness we all seem to lose with age. I am quite happy to now recommend Procera AVH as it gives the brain much needed support against free radicals, inflammation and improve the decline in neurotransmitters, and blood flow and oxygen."

"It's like reading an eye chart with the right pair of glasses instead of an old pair of lenses. Everything comes into focus, your brain is more crisp, more focused, clearer, and sharper."

Dr. Con Stough at the Brain Sciences Institute concurs, "It's a fairly unique, fast-acting process that pumps the brain full of more energy, improves blood circulation to the brain and increases the key neurotransmitters that are responsible for cognitive functioning."

A randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study on what may be the world's first truly effective memory pill was conducted at this university research facility.

Elizabeth K. of Rochester, New York experienced a night-and-day difference in her mind and memory.

At the age of 54, her memory was declining at an "alarming rate."

"I was about to consult a neurologist when I read about Procera AVH." Elizabeth decided to give it a try.

"It took about a month for the memory benefit to kick in. Six months later, even my husband was impressed with my improved memory. And I am very happy with my renewed mental clarity and focus!"

A 'Bonus' Effect?

Elizabeth was pleasantly surprised with one of the formula's "bonus effects."

"Within a week I felt a wonderful change in my mood. It was such an unexpected bonus," smiles Elizabeth.

Pharmacist Gene Steiner, Pharm.D. was relocating to another state and was apprehensive about taking the state board of pharmacy jurisprudence examination, a daunting examination that tests a candidate's mastery of pharmacy law.

Dr. Steiner took Procera AVH daily for two weeks prior to the test, and passed with flying colors. "The recall I experienced was near fantastic," says Steiner.

Curiosity piqued, Dr. Steiner did his own research to learn more about the formula

He read about a US cognitive researcher who had taken a new approach to treating memory loss, addressing the "energy crisis" that occurs naturally in human brains around the age of 40-50.

Author, researcher, preeminent brain expert, and lead formulator for Procera AVH, Joshua Reynolds, explains, "One-third of your brainpower may be lost by the age of 40, and 50 percent may be lost by the age of 50!"

Half-Blind... and Can't See It

"If you were to lose half your vision, essentially go half-blind, you would surely notice it," says Reynolds.

"But the gradual loss of mental acuity and brainpower over many years may be too subtle for people to notice."

This explains why many Procera AVH users seem surprised at the effects.

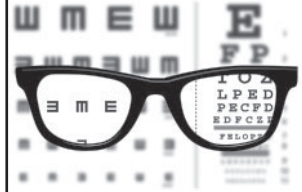

Mark S. in Alego, Texas, was worried about being at his best during sales calls. "I really needed something to help with mental clarity, focus and memory. I have to be at my best when I meet with clients."

Shortly after he started taking Procera AVH, Mark was amazed at how sharp and mentally focused he was during his appointments.

"It was definitely a noticeable difference. I was very pleased with Procera AVH and happy to know it will help me stay at my best."

Neural Pathways, Energized!

Three clinically validated brain energy nutrients in Reynolds' formula have been shown to "light up aging brains like a Christmas tree."

Age-related vision loss is easily corrected with glasses. A novel drug-free compound has been found to help restore age-related memory loss and poor mental focus in as little as 30 days.

Procera revitalizes tired sluggish brains cells with a fresh supply of oxygen and key vital nutrients. Plus, it helps restore depleted neurotransmitters, which increase and enhance alertness, concentration, and memory.

"We included acetyl-L-carnitine, a natural modified amino acid with a proven record of memory enhancement," says Reynolds.

"It's the same brain nutrient found in cold-water fish, but you'd have to eat over 20 servings of fish to get what's in one daily dose of Procera AVH."

The formula also contains vinpocetine, a substance that helps deliver increased oxygen and glucose to your brain.

"Vinpocetine helps increase circulation in the brain, so your brain feels more alive, like a breath of fresh air," says Reynolds.

The third ingredient is huperzine, a potent plant chemical shown to improve learning and memory at all ages.

"Students can do better in school when they take it," adds Reynolds. "And the US government has been studying huperzine's neuroprotective powers against the brain-damaging effects of pesticides in food."

Selwyn Howell credits Reynolds' memory pill with bolstering his confidence.

"It helped me speak out more than I used to. I am growing more confident every day."

Carey S. reports, "I feel so much more focused and with the new energy I'm now ready to tackle the things I've been putting off for years!"

Officials: $13.7B in Water Projects Needed in Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • Utah's thirst for water over the next 20 years will come with a $13.7 billion price tag, and the state should prepare to pay now rather than wait until taps run dry, state officials said.

The Utah divisions of water quality and water resources have joined other public agencies in compiling a statewide list of water and sewer projects and their costs, the Deseret News reported.

Utah Division of Water Quality Director Walt Baker said water systems have set aside money for operations and maintenance, but wholesale replacement is often ignored because of the huge costs.

He said it takes financial savvy, foresight and political will to build a savings account that can help pay for huge infrastructure needs and upgrades to keep pace with growth.

"I see it firsthand in communities where the most important thing is for them to keep their rates low," Baker said. "They do that by not paying the piper with replacement costs."

The Jordan Valley Water Conservancy District has a long-range financial plan that socks money away for water delivery projects to keep up with new growth, district general manager Richard Bay said.

The district chipped in $40 million for its share of the Provo Reservoir Canal, and plans to spend $82 million for its share of thousands of acre-feet of water being developed in a northern Utah County aquifer.

"Our service population area is not only growing, it's accelerating," Bay told the Deseret News. "Our 600,000 people will double in the next four decades. And each project seems like we have to reach farther and farther away, so each project is becoming more expensive and more complicated than the last one."

Mike Wilson, manager of the Metropolitan Water District of Salt Lake and Sandy, said his district has built up enough reserves to move ahead with a $42 million project to replace a concrete storage reservoir.

The reservoir, which holds 40 million gallons of water, stands at the end of an aqueduct that brings water from Deer Creek into the Salt Lake Valley.

"It is clear that some of the infrastructure is aging and needs attention," Wilson said. "It is a matter of managing expectations so people are not surprised when it comes."

Victims of '92 Military Copter Crash in Utah Honored

ANTELOPE ISLAND, Utah (AP) • Twenty years after they were killed in a helicopter crash near Antelope Island, 12 American service members were remembered at a memorial service.

Family, friends and veterans gathered Saturday afternoon on the Great Salt Lake island to rededicate a memorial in their honor.

"There is really nothing we can do as much as remember. ... We remember each of them personally and we remember each of their families," Lt. Gov. Greg Bell told the crowd.

On Oct. 29, 1992, five Army Rangers and seven Air Force Special Operations airmen died when their Air Force MH-60G

Pave Hawk helicopter crashed off the northern tip of Antelope Island while on a training mission.

The helicopter was flying without lights in low cloud cover and little visibility, and got too close to the water before crashing. Only the pilot, Air Force Maj. Stephan Laushine, survived.

They were in the last of four helicopters flying in a group from Hill Air Force Base to the Army's Dugway Proving Ground in Utah.

A 7-foot granite monument on the island, which displays their names and photos, was first dedicated in 1994.

Organizers said families of eight of the 12 victims came from across the nation to attend Saturday's service.

They included Katie Scholl, who was just 6 when her father, Mark Scholl, was killed in the crash on a cold, rainy night.

"I just had a desire to come out and deal with it," a tearful Scholl said. "I've learned there are so many other people impacted by this and I appreciate all their love and support."

Byron Bird remembered the life and service of his son, Jeremy, who died in the crash.

"It isn't just about my son; it's about all of them," he said. "He's just a point that you go to that brings all the other ones in. When I'm talking about my son, I'm actually talking about all (veterans)."

7 More Tibetans Set Themselves Afire Last Week

BY TOM LASSETER
McClatchy Newspapers

BEIJING • Seven ethnic Tibetans in China set themselves on fire in the past week, bringing the number of self-immolations in defiance of Chinese government rule to about 60 since last year, according to the Tibetan government in exile and an advocacy group.

The London-based Free Tibet rights advocacy group said the string of self-immolations, from Oct. 20 to Oct. 26, was the highest in a single week since the current spate began in March 2011.

Six of the self-immolations reportedly resulted in deaths.

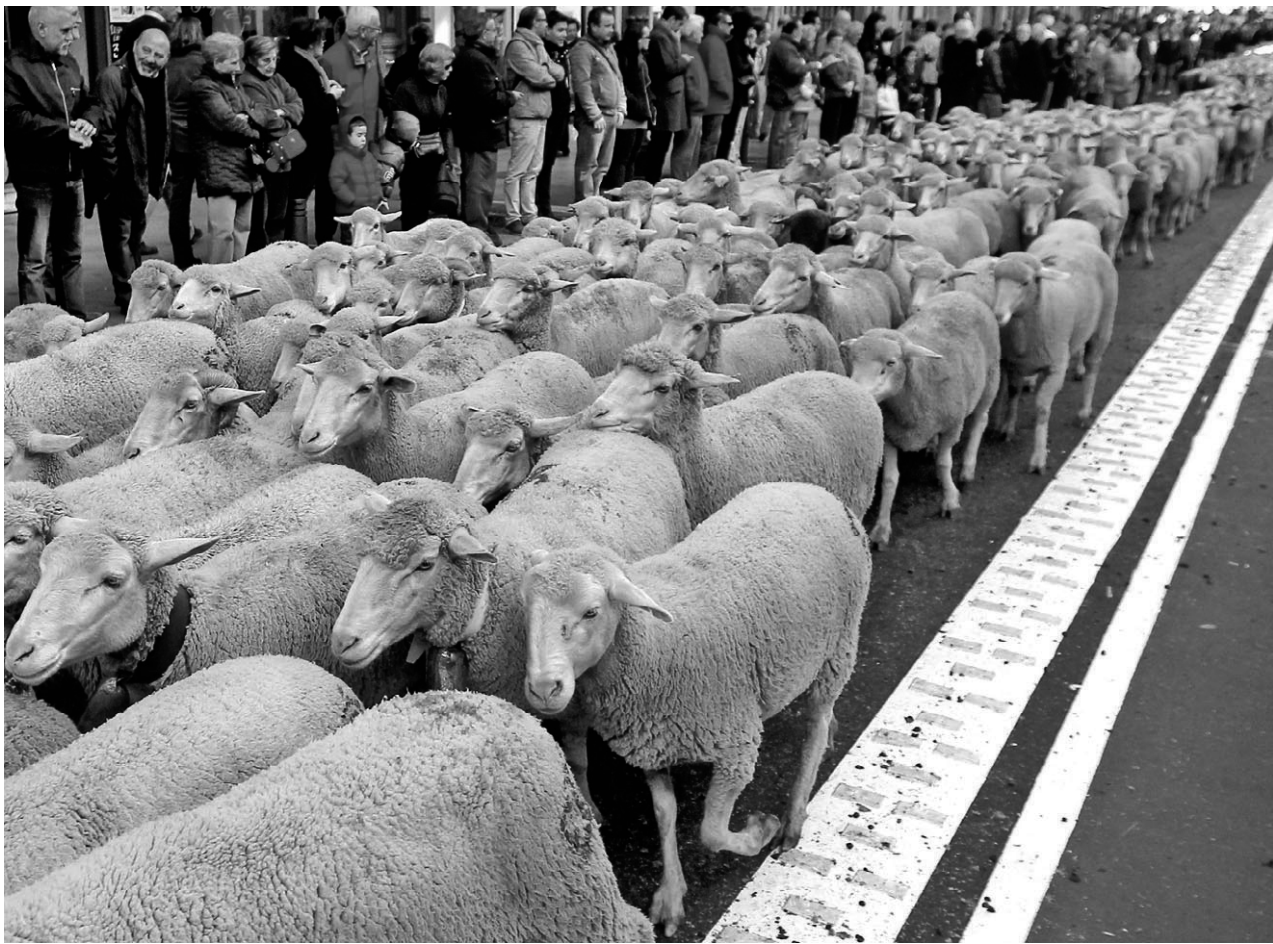

The Chinese government maintains that the acts of protest are part of a conspiracy linked to the Tibetan spiritual leader the Dalai Lama, who fled to India after a failed uprising in 1959. But Tibetan groups say they're a local reaction to an oppressive regime that's worked to undermine traditional Tibetan culture, religion and language — a sentiment repeated by ethnic Tibetans in interviews over the past two years in areas where self-immolations have occurred.

While the self-immolations have clustered in a region in the north of China's Sichuan Province, they have also spread across two other provinces and Tibet itself, which is ruled by Beijing and known officially as the Tibet Autonomous Region.

Of the seven self-immolations last week, five were reported in China's western Gansu Province and two were said to have occurred in the Tibet Autonomous Region.

The protesters included Dhondup, who like many Tibetans apparently uses only one name, a man in his 60s from a farming and nomadic family who last Monday set himself aflame beside a monastery in Gansu's Xiahe County. The two self-immolations in the Tibet Autonomous Region involved a 20-year-old and a 25-year-old who set themselves on fire together on Thursday. Free Tibet said they were cousins. The next day, two Tibetan men in their 20s set themselves on fire separately in Gansu's Xiahe County — both died.

Chinese authorities have tried hard to prevent independent research on the subject. Foreign journalists are banned from travel without permission in the Tibet Autonomous Region, and security roadblocks deny access to Tibetan areas in outlying provinces. That's led to a situation in which verification of many details is between difficult and impossible. "Chinese state security are out in large numbers in the area, Internet and telephone communication systems are often blocked and Tibetans are afraid to talk about what is happening because they fear that their communications are being monitored by the government," said a statement by Free Tibet.

MADRID • Spanish shepherds led a flock of more than 2,000 sheep through central Madrid on Sunday in defense of ancient grazing, migration and droving rights threatened by urban sprawl and modern agricultural practices.

Many tourists and residents were surprised to see traffic cut to allow the ovine parade to bleat its way across some of Madrid's most upscale urban streets.

The right to use droving routes that wind across land that was open fields and woodland before Madrid grew from a rural hamlet to the great metropolis it is today has existed since at least 1273.

Every year, a handful of shepherds defend the right and, following an age-old tradition, on Sunday paid 25 maravedis — coins first minted in the 11th century — to city hall to use the crossing.

Shepherds have a right to use 78,000 miles of paths for seasonal livestock migrations from cool highland pastures in summer to warmer and more protected lowland grazing in winter.

Participants dance as shepherds lead their sheep through the centre of Madrid on Sunday.

The movement is called transhumance and in Spain up until recently involved close to a million animals a year, mostly sheep and cattle.

Modern farming practices are however increasingly confining animals to barns, because shepherding is costly, according to the Ministry of Agriculture, which has been promoting

Hawaii is Safe After Tsunami Hits Less Hard Than Expected

BY KIM MURPHY
Los Angeles Times

Thousands of people who evacuated their homes along Hawaii's coast were allowed to return early Sunday after tsunami waves hit the islands with less intensity than predicted.

The highest wave was about 5 feet from peak to trough — about 2 feet above sea level — on the island of Maui, according to the Pacific Tsunami Warning Center. No serious damage was reported.

The waves were triggered by a 7.7 magnitude earthquake off British Columbia, which also resulted in brief tsunami warnings for southeast Alaska and the Pacific Northwest coast. But Hawaii was in the direct line of a surge that proved to be smaller than expected.

"The tsunami arrived about when we expected it should. It was a little smaller than we expected," said Gerald Fryer, a geophysicist at the Pacific

Tsunami Warning Center in Oahu.

The warning Saturday evening touched off traffic jams as sirens sounded and a mandatory evacuation took effect in coastal areas, including Waikiki Beach, where hotel guests were moved to higher floors. More than 800 people checked into emergency shelters on the Big Island, the Honolulu Star Advertiser reported.

There were isolated reports of some boats being pulled partially from their moorings as small waves, all less than 3 feet above sea level, hit various shores across the islands.

The final tsunami advisory ended at 4 a.m. Hawaii time.

Gov. Neil Abercrombie said residents were still advised to avoid beaches.

EIGHT DIE IN BOMBING OF CHURCH IN NIGERIA

BY ROBYN DIXON
Los Angeles Times

JOHANNESBURG • At least eight people were killed Sunday in a suicide attack on a Roman Catholic church in northern Nigeria, according to officials. About 100 others were injured, raising fears that the death toll could rise.

Nigeria's National Emergency Management Agency confirmed in a statement Sunday that eight people died in the blast in Kaduna. No group claimed responsibility. The attack was similar to previous terrorist attacks by the Islamist insurgent militia Boko Haram, which models itself on Afghanistan's Taliban and wants to impose Sharia law across the country.

"A number of casualties were evacuated to hospitals. The incident was suspected to be triggered by a suicide bomber in a car which relevant security agencies may soon determined," NEMA spokesman Yushau Shuaib said in the statement.

The bombing follows a string of deadly terrorist attacks in the north, many targeting churches. Extremists also have launched assaults on police stations, burned schools, bombed automatic teller machines and assassinated politicians.

Another Look at the $180M HP Contract

Large government contracts, those in the tens or hundreds of millions of dollars or – gulp! – more, can be hard things for non-fiscal specialists to digest. But along came one in Idaho a few days ago we could chew on.

Randy Stapilus

Ridenbaugh.com

This was the contract, one of the largest single state government awards in Idaho history, by the Department of Education awarded to Hewlett-Packard Corporation: $181.9 million for laptops, and their repair and a wireless system for Idaho schools. The price adds up to about $293 per laptop (for a half-million of them), plus additional for upfront and buyout costs. (These numbers should be considered approximations; there are a lot of moving pieces among the contract numbers.)

This per-unit price doesn't sound unreasonable, factoring in on one hand the normal purchase price for a basic laptop using Windows, and on the other the cost savings in such as large mass buy.

In our small business, though, it wouldn't have made the cut.

Not because of the HP brand: Two of our most-used machines, including the laptop on which this is written, are HPs. But we make only limited use of Windows (somewhat more of a couple of Apple computers). Mostly, we use the operating system called Linux, and we use it on those HP machines. One reason we use it is because it's free – literally, downloadable for free, no strings, no catch. All the software we use on it, ranging from close equivalents to Windows Office to browsers to desktop publishing and technical software, and a good deal more, is also free. It ranges the Internet even better than Windows, no surprise since the bulk of Web server computers worldwide are run on Linux or on closely allied software. And not only that, it's “open source,” which means you can (if you choose) go into the guts of the program, and change anything you want. Can't do that with proprietary programs.

This software is coded so efficiently that everything I use on my Linux machines can nearly fit onto a single CD; you'd need shelves of CDs to contain Windows or Windows Office. It can run more efficiently on smaller and older computers than Windows can, and run longer on them as they age. A nonprofit in Portland (called Free Geek) for years has been reconditioning old and small-capacity computers, outfitting them with Linux, and sending them to local nonprofits and to underdeveloped countries around the globe; those machines are great for education, and they cost a pittance. Open source runs faster, with fewer errors, and is nearly impervious to viruses, worms and the like. (No need for expensive anti-virus software.) The main area where Windows and Mac's OS X clearly surpass it is in the realm of computer games. One of the main world headquarters for open source development is the Pacific Northwest; the original developer of Linux, a Finn named Linus Torvalds, lives outside Portland.

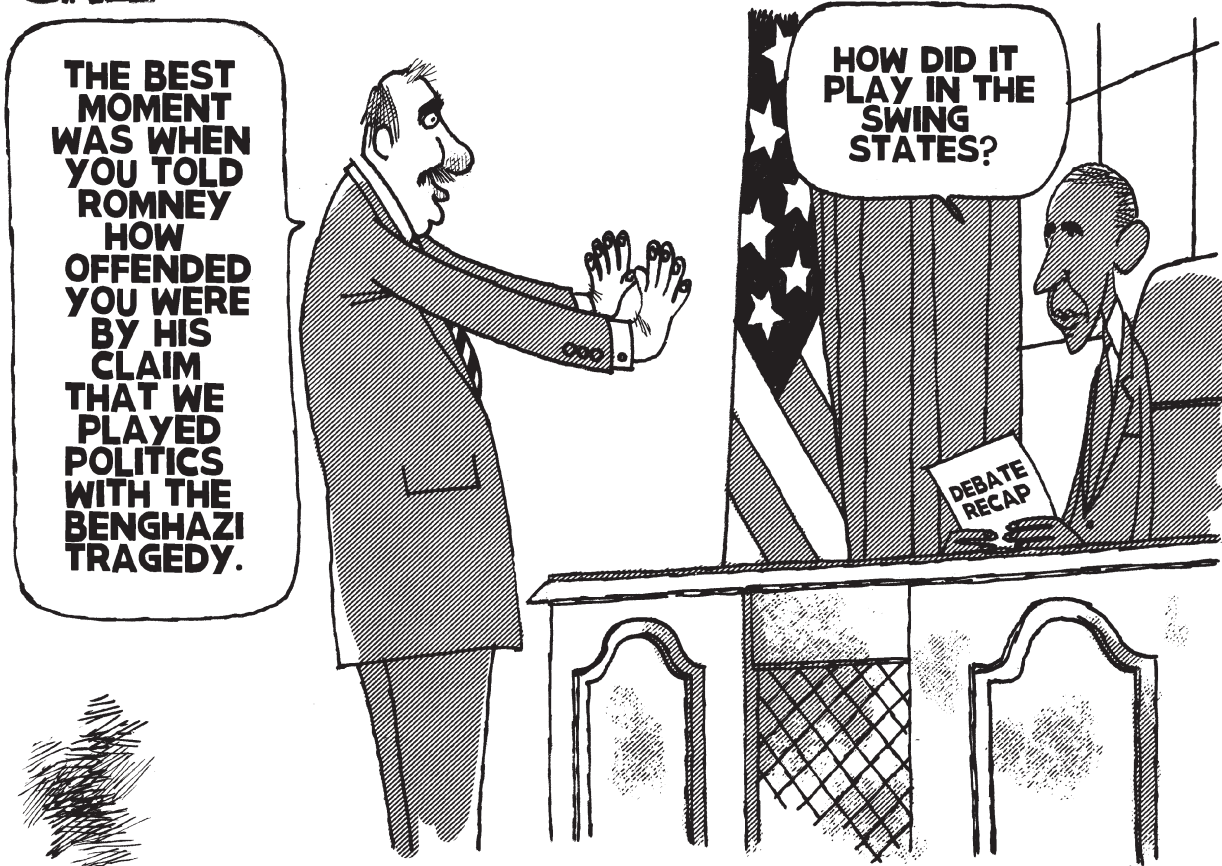

Another educational point relating to open source: Tech-oriented students could actually take the lead in setting up computer systems and wireless networks around the schools.

Is this news to you? (Was it ever considered by the Department of Education?) Here's something Linux and open source don't have: A huge marketing budget underwritten by a massive corporation. There are several fair-sized companies developing variations (called “distributions”) of Linux, and profitable spin-offs, but most people on the street have never heard of them.

If they had, you wonder what they might think on reflection about the state of Idaho's new contract.

Be Wary of Costume Contact Lenses

As kids across Idaho put the final touches on their Halloween costumes, I would like to caution parents and teens to stay away from the over-the-counter decorative or colored contact lenses seen in stores.

If you plan to wear costume contact lenses, the Idaho Society of Ophthalmology urges you to get an eye exam and prescription from a licensed eye care professional. Claims that contact lenses are one-size-fits-all or don't require an eye exam are false, and retailers who sell decorative contact lenses without a prescription are breaking the law. Non-prescription contacts can cause serious eye infections, injuries and blindness. Unfortunately, the patients hurt by these products are those who are unaware of the damage they can cause.

As an ophthalmologist, I see the types of traumatic injuries these lenses can cause, which can lead to permanent vision loss. Please, don't let the scary part of Halloween be an eye injury!

Mr. Luna, Class Size Does Matter

$16.2 million is diverted for Prop 3, classrooms balloon to 30 students and Mr. Luna says, “Class size doesn't matter.”

Teachers' perspective: We talk with every student, every day. We listen to every student read every day. As students complete assignments, we oversee immediate corrections. When hands go up, we acknowledge every student. Tests are corrected while students work, providing immediate, invaluable feedback. We know what each family values. We see parents often; we've just had a second teacher-parent evening. I've never felt this productive in 22 years of education. We have 11 to 16 students in our private school classes. Some days as a public school teacher of 34 students, I wasn't even sure if a student had been present, let alone acknowledged. Misbehaving students got far more attention than those who were trying to learn. Maneuvering through 34 desks to help one student presented a challenge; helping 10 was sometimes impossible. How effective did I feel then?

Support smaller classes for every child, public or private. You can't put “Students First” when class sizes are so big; no one effectively acknowledges a child's presence. Mr. Luna, class size does matter! Sometimes, it's the thing that matters most!

Change Your Clock Then Change Your Smoke Alarm's Battery

The Rock Creek Rural Fire Protection District has a simple but powerful reminder for all members of our community next weekend. When you change your clocks for daylight saving time, change the batteries in your smoke alarms and carbon monoxide detectors, and please remind your friends, family and neighbors to do the same.

Twenty-five years ago, Energizer and the International Association of Fire Chiefs recognized a disturbing trend that many home fire fatalities were taking place in homes without working smoke alarms. So the Change Your Clock Change Your Battery program was developed to help reduce and, hopefully one day, eliminate this number.

Along with thousands of fire departments nationwide, Energizer and the IAFC have been reminding communities to check and change their smoke alarm batteries and to make sure their smoke alarms are working when they set their clocks. Working smoke alarms cut the risk of dying in reported home fire structures in half.

As a 12-year fire service veteran, I have witnessed firsthand the tragedy and devastation of home fires. It's even more heartbreaking when a young life is cut short. Thousands are injured and killed each year from home fires. Overall, almost 66 percent of home fire deaths in this country occur in homes without working smoke alarms. Considering that residential fire deaths peak in winter months, it's critical to check and change your smoke alarm batteries each and every fall.

We hope you'll join our fire department, Energizer and the International Association of Fire Chiefs in sharing this lifesaving information with your readers and encouraging them to help make a difference in our city and across the country. Contact the Rock Creek Rural Fire Protection District for questions, or if you know someone who needs help replacing a battery in their smoke alarm at 423-4336.

Laptops Should Be Thought of as Tools Not Solutions

Laptops are wonderful tools and certainly can enhance the learning process of our students. But too often, tools are presented as solutions rather than tools. If laptops are truly a solution, I am anxious to have explained to me the problem to be solved.

Our schools should be curriculum-driven rather than test-driven. “Curriculum-driven” meaning designing learning activities that develop the talents of our students to become the best they can be, realizing “that one size does not fit all.” If we develop our students to become the best they can be, they will be prepared to be successful in life and to be strong, contributing citizens. Test-driven meaning designing learning activities that prepare students to regurgitate facts on standardized tests in order to make the school “look good.”

The purpose of assessments is to validate that learning has occurred, not to label nor sort students. Parents are the most important teachers a child will ever have and as the partnership between parents and teachers in our public school system is strengthened and assessment is properly used to communicate the progress of the children to their parents, our students will succeed. Along with well-trained, highly qualified teachers in our public schools, it is essential for those most important teachers referred to above, the parents, to provide proper nurture and a home full of love, support and encouragement for their children.

It makes me tired when I see standardized testing politicized and misused to compare schools on unlevel playing fields and to brow-beat and bully teachers. Merit pay is not the pathway to school improvement.

Educating our populace is a wonderful concept and I believe essential to our national security and is key to our prosperity. How wonderful it is to be citizens of the United States of America!

Trial in 1977 Killing Asks: Were Suspects Framed?

BY RYAN J. FOLEY
Associated Press

IOWA CITY, Iowa • Two black men wrongly convicted in the 1977 murder of a white Iowa police officer hope to prove something they couldn't during trials that sent them to prison for 25 years: that detectives framed them to solve a high-profile case.

During a civil trial that starts Wednesday in Des Moines, Terry Harrington and Curtis McGhee will argue that Council Bluffs police officers coerced witnesses into fabricating testimony against them in the killing of John Schweer.

Schweer was found dead while working as the night watchman at a car dealership. Harrington and McGhee, then teenagers from neighboring Omaha, Neb., say detectives used threats against a group of young black car theft suspects to trump up evidence targeting them because of their race and pressure to solve the retired captain's killing.

Despite little physical evidence, Harrington and McGhee were convicted at 1978 trials and sentenced to long prison terms. They were freed in 2003, after the Iowa Supreme Court found that prosecutors committed misconduct in concealing reports about another man seen near the crime scene with a shotgun. The key witnesses had also recanted their testimony, saying they were pressured into implicating the men.

After winning their freedom, they filed lawsuits against prosecutors and officers they blamed for forcing them to spend their adult lives in the Fort Madison prison. Their case reached the U.S. Supreme Court in 2009 over the issue of whether suspects have the constitutional right not to be framed by prosecutors. Before justices ruled, Pottawatomie County agreed to pay $12 million to settle claims against two former prosecutors while not admitting wrongdoing.

The settlement did not resolve claims against Council Bluffs and former detectives Dan Larsen and Lyle Brown. Harrington and McGhee claim Larsen and Brown coerced the group of black car theft suspects into fingering them in the death. Investigators took the star witness, a 16-year-old confessed liar with numerous aliases, to the crime scene, gave him details about the murder weapon, and had him repeatedly change his story until it was plausible, the lawsuit claims.

The witness, Kevin Hughes, was aggressively questioned in Schweer's death after he was pulled over several weeks later driving a vehicle stolen from a Nebraska dealership. He first implicated three other men who had alibis before eventually claiming Harrington pulled the trigger and McGhee drove the getaway car after they went to steal a car from the dealership. Schweer was guarding. Hughes said later he lied to get reward money and avoid being charged himself. Other witnesses also recanted.

Jurors will be asked to decide at trial, scheduled to last through Nov. 16, whether detectives, who were both white, and the city violated Harrington and McGhee's civil rights and, if so, how much they should receive in damages.

"We have waited for a very long time to have this trial and we look forward to having an opportunity to present our case," said Stephen Davis, an attorney for McGhee, now married and living in a Midwestern community he does not want to disclose.

Who Is for and against Propositions 1, 2 and 3?

Who is "buying" and who is expressing sincere concern?

The money behind the Yes for Idaho Education campaign is coming from a few "benevolent deep-pocketed" entities. Many of these sources are out-of-state sources and are heavily invested in online education and/or stand to make millions by "selflessly" serving Idaho students by selling mobile computing devices and providing mandatory online education services which have no accountability standards to meet and which can be outsourced to India and China. Some are currently being sued for breaking the laws of states in which they are operating.

The money behind the Vote No on Propositions 1, 2 and 3 campaign is coming from thousands of parents, concerned citizens and of course "evil, self-serving" teachers who have joined their professional association to advocate for their students and their profession. Idaho is one of the states which are right to work states where forced membership in such associations is illegal. Almost half of all of the states are right to work states.

Time for the Ranting to End

This letter is for Mark from Hailey.

People have been putting up with your ranting for years now with very little or no backlash, but enough is enough. Your letters reek of hate and contempt for all Republicans and your message never changes. You go on and on about issues that make you sound like you don't know what you are talking about. Don't talk about people not being Christians because you set a poor example yourself. Jesus preached love, but you preach the opposite. You are starting to sound like a far left loonie!

By the way, how many more "freebies" can America afford? Can you say Greece? If you want to send a big check to Sandra for contraceptives, go for it! As for me, I work too hard for my money to share it with someone who just wants "freebies" for "girl stuff." Who is going to pay for "men's stuff"? I give to more meaningful organizations than this.

So Mark, take a tip from Bill O.: Run out to get some fresh air (now that the smoke has dissipated), have a shot of Kool-Aid and, for all of our sakes, get a grip! The way I see it, you've got way too much time to write letters and way too much ink in the pen. Have a nice day.

'Students Come First' Is a Lame Ruse

It's been said that the one-room school generation put man on the moon. Why was the one-room school an education success? Easy: As the teacher's attention progressed through the grades, each grade got a review of last year's studies plus a preview of next year's effort.

I wouldn't suggest a return to the one-room school, but the concept of small classroom advantages is evident. Now we are faced with an off-the-wall slogan of "Students Come First" and Internet courses. A better outcome might be smaller classes, individualized attention and one student learning from the questions of others. Maybe the catch-phrase for academic progress might better be "Teachers Come First." The Internet is no more astute than the oft-times fool that puts his name to the page.

Students Come First is obviously a lame ruse to destroy the will and influence of the Idaho Education Association, while the activities of lobbyist "bag-men" remain acceptable. It would appear that the Idaho Legislature is afflicted with the same self-serving interests as the U.S. Congress. The "noble experiment" of democracy and "one person, one vote" has lost significance to favor "campaign contributions."

If you want better-educated kids, step up and pay the price for better-motivated teachers and talented administrators. Let's have some business-like organization demanding discipline and performance from all levels, students to superintendents. We might also hope for a Legislature more concerned with service than self.

Vote 'Yes' on Props 1, 2 and 3 to Maintain Our Progress

For the last 18 months, Idaho schools have been living and working under education reform. The results? Negotiations are going better than ever before. Teachers will get more money — close to a 6 percent increase!

Schools are finally getting the tools they need to create a 21st Century classroom. Teachers aren't laid off just because they were the last ones hired. School Boards finally have the ability to do the job they were elected to do. Parents can have input on teacher evaluations. High school students are taking dual credit paid for by the state.

What's wrong with this? Nothing! This is progress. The union doesn't want progress. It just wants power. It has no plan but more money with less accountability. Keep Idaho's education moving forward! Vote "Yes" on all the propositions!

Donna Pence Needs Your Vote To Continue Her Eight Years of Work

Donna Pence has devotedly served District 26 (Blaine, Camas, Lincoln and Gooding counties) as state representative since 2004. She is seeking re-election in order to continue her eight years of work as our district legislator and to maintain continuity of the teamwork and institutional knowledge District 26 values.

Donna Pence moves forward and pledges to continue the district's town hall meetings to receive our input, strive actively to resolve the issues facing District 26 and Idaho, and report to us weekly during the legislative session. As an active member of the Education, Agriculture and Natural Resources committees, issues of most importance and for which she is well qualified are education, jobs and preserving our quality of life.

Education: A retired educator, Pence asks: Can we allow our students to be short changed if current funding is Superintendent Luna's "the new normal"? Will schools need to seek more funding from our property taxes? She strongly urges Idahoans to vote "no" for Proposals 1, 2 and 3 on Nov. 6 and will persevere in fighting for our students' futures and the taxpayers' financial well-being.

Jobs: To create more jobs, Donna will continue with efforts such as HB 606 that she co-sponsored last session. HB 606 was designed to assist with an income tax credit to existing agricultural processing companies who added the next level of production to their business function. The bill passed the House and was held in the Senate Tax Committee; Donna will ensure it is on the docket again next session.

Preserving our quality of life: Donna is passionate our natural resources and the opportunities to enjoy them. We are all responsible for our air, water, soil, and other natural resources and to make sure we leave them in good shape for our future generations. Donna and her husband own and operate a wholesale tree farm and set a fine example of good stewardship. Additionally, Rep. Pence has been so concerned about the sage grouse issues that she asked Gov. Otter if she could attend the Sage Grouse Task Force meetings, even though she was not assigned to the group. The governor agreed and Donna attended all meetings as an ad hoc, non-voting member.

For Donna to win re-election, the support of District 26 voters is essential. Please make the effort to vote early by absentee ballot or on Election Day at your polling place. If you would like more information about Pence, visit her website www.donnapence.com or contact her at donnapence25@msn.com. I look forward to her service in the next term.

Reasons To Support Each Education Proposition

Having been "in school" for most of my life, 22 years as a student and 26 years as a tenured professor with the University of Idaho, I have an abiding interest in education. And as a grandfather of three children in Idaho public schools, I have a personal interest in seeing that my grandchildren receive the best education possible to make them competitive in a world economy. Thus, I've tried to learn as much as possible about Propositions 1, 2 and 3 on the November ballot.

A recent visit with Tom Luna was very enlightening, and I came away impressed by the rationale behind the three proposals. I favor Proposition 1 because it will put control in the hands of locally elected school boards and will phase out tenure. This will prevent excellent, new teachers from being laid off first in tough economic times just because they were hired last. I favor Proposition 2 because it will add a merit component on top of a teacher's abysmally low base salary. Eighty percent of all teachers will receive a bonus of $2,000 to $8,000 per year, the funding for which is already in place (thus, no new taxes to implement this). And I favor Proposition 3 because our world is changing, and our educational system needs to catch up and provide kids with laptops and other tools they need in the classroom.

Idaho school boards know the value of this proposition, because 85 percent of them have applied to the State Board of Education to be among the first group to receive computers. Computers will never replace teachers, and arguments to the contrary are absurd. As people, we tend to be creatures of habit. Change is uncomfortable, but when well thought-out, it can also be very beneficial.

Props 1, 2 and 3 are indeed well thought-out and will benefit Idaho school kids for years to come. I will vote yes, yes and yes on Nov. 6, and I hope you will, too.

Donna Pence Considers Schools the No. 1 Priority for Idaho

Donna Pence has served as a state representative for our district since 2004 and is now seeking re-election. I have known Donna since her first term and have walked some of the Hailey streets with her and observed her interaction with and interest in her constituents.

She has served us well as a member of the Idaho Legislature Education, Agriculture and Natural Resources committees. In 2012, she championed legislation that provided tax credits for value added ag jobs, spoke up for alternative energy development and encouraged more state support for rural development. She and her husband live near Gooding and appreciate the opportunities it affords for service to both charitable and social functions in which they participate.

Donna is a retired teacher. She considers schools the No. 1 priority for Idaho and our future so that students will acquire lifelong skills to meet the demands of a changing job market and lifestyle. A vote for Donna will permit us to continue to benefit from her representation and legislative expertise. She, along with our senator and other representative, will hold meetings for us during the next session as they have in past sessions. Plan to attend these informative meetings where they answer questions and keep us abreast of Idaho legislative activities.

My vote this term has been cast for Donna; please widen her support circle by casting your vote for Donna Pence (now District 26).

Thanks.

Armand Would Be Qualified To Serve as a CSI Board Member

It is my understanding that Armand Eckert is interested in serving as a member of the board of trustees for the College of Southern Idaho, Position 2. My name is Gus Spiropoulos, and I have known Armand for better than 28 years. Based upon the type of person Armand is, along with his business and public service background, I sincerely feel Armand would be extremely qualified to serve as a member of the board for CSI.

I first met Armand years ago while I was serving as the superintendent of the Buhl School District. Armand started his public service work as a trustee of the Buhl School District Board. He was elected to this position based upon his background as a local businessman and former certified public accountant. He has since served a total of 15 years as a trustee on the Buhl School Board, seven as chairman. Armand was of tremendous help to me in erasing a huge school district budget deficit I inherited when becoming the Buhl School District superintendent. His knowledge and expertise in financial matters was extremely valuable to the community and school district.

Armand's K-12 school board experience would be a natural transition to the college level. He has had additional public service work as a member of the Idaho School Boards Association (a total of five years) and was president for two consecutive terms.

Armand's business experience will be an added plus to CSI's professional technical training and the relationship which CSI has with current and potential future businesses looking to locate in the Magic Valley. Another asset Armand would bring to the CSI's board is his experience in helping struggling students stay in college through his participation with the Southern Idaho Learning Center.

It is my hope and desire that Armand Eckert be given serious consideration to serve on CSI's board of trustees. I cannot think of anyone better qualified for this important position.

Conservatives Are Trying To Do The Right Thing for Us Idahoans

The Republican team you have supported in the past is of course running in this election. Since Jerome County is now with parts of Twin Falls County, I would like to support the legislators and candidates of our two counties. These are Reps. Hartgen and Bell and Sen. Heider and candidates Patrick and Kauffman.

I know these people personally and I know they are conservative and are trying to do the right thing for us and the state of Idaho. We are going through some very tough times and it may get worse in the future before it gets better. These people have led the way in keeping our state solvent in the past. The Democrats opposing them have shown themselves to be the same old tax-and-spend liberals we know.

I would also like to speak in support of the three education propositions on the ballot. Education must become responsive to the school boards and enter into modern times.

I thank you for reading my letter, and please vote Nov. 6.

Support Our Kids By Voting No on Props 1, 2 and 3

The supporters of Props 1, 2 and 3 are refusing to release the names of the donors who gave them $200,000 to pay for broadcast advertising in support of public schools chief Tom Luna's education overhaul ahead of the Nov. 6 vote. It leaves a lot to the imagination that it could possibly be an out-of-state online school hoping to get a job teaching Idaho students or it is a big out-of-state computer company who is hoping to get the bid to supply the technology.

We as voters need to look at all the facts and realize that Luna has sold Idaho's kids to the highest bidder and our tax dollars are going out of state lining big institution pockets. We have wonderful and dedicated teachers in Idaho that care about our kids.

Please vote no on Props 1, 2 and 3. Support our kids and save our schools. If these laws pass, you can bet our taxes will go up, schools will have to pass more levies because Luna will give the districts less money to work with so he can fund his projects.

Please vote no on Props 1, 2 and 3.

Palestinians to Seek U.N. Recognition

BY MOHAMMED DARAGHMEH
Associated Press

RAMALLAH, West Bank • The Palestinian president is moving forward with his plan to seek upgraded observer status at the United Nations next month, despite American and Israeli threats of financial or diplomatic retaliation, officials said Sunday.

The decision sets the stage for a new showdown between Israel and the Palestinians at the world body, following last year's attempt by the Palestinians to seek status as a full member state. Although that initiative failed to pass the U.N. Security Council, it caused months of diplomatic tensions with Israel.

"We will go to the U.N. regardless of any threats," said Tawfik Tirawi, a senior member of President Mahmoud Abbas' Fatah movement. "I expect the Israelis to take punitive measures against us, if we win this status, but this is our choice and we will not retract it."

This year, the Palestinians are seeking "nonmember state" status in the U.N. General Assembly, where passage is assured. The 193-member assembly is dominated by developing nations sympathetic to the Palestinian cause. Officials say they are looking for what they call a "quality" majority that includes European countries as well, though Germany and Britain, for instance, have been cool to the Palestinian plan.

While upgraded status would not change the situation on the ground, the Palestinians say the move is still significant. They will ask for international recognition of a Palestinian state in the West Bank, Gaza Strip and east Jerusalem, territories captured by Israel in the 1967 Mideast war.

They believe the U.N. vote would then require Israel to withdraw to the pre-1967 lines or face international legal action. Israel rejects a full return to those lines, and says the borders between Israel and a future Palestine must be reached through direct negotiations.

Dragon Ship Back on Earth After Space Station Trip

BY MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. • An unmanned space capsule carrying medical samples from the International Space Station splashed down in the Pacific Ocean Sunday, completing the first official private interstellar shipment under a billion-dollar contract with NASA.

The California-based SpaceX company gently guided the Dragon into the water via parachutes at 12:22 p.m., a couple hundred miles off the Baja California coast.

Astronauts aboard the International Space Station used a giant robot arm to release the commercial cargo ship 255 miles up. SpaceX provided updates of the journey home via Twitter, including a video of the Dragon separating from the ISS.

The supply ship brought back nearly 2,000 pounds of science experiments and old station equipment. Perhaps the most eagerly awaited cargo is nearly 500 frozen samples of blood and urine collected by station astronauts over the past year.

The Dragon is the only delivery ship capable of returning items, now that NASA's shuttles are retired to museums. Atlantis made the last shuttle haul to and from the station in July 2011.

SpaceX — more formally Space Exploration Technologies Corp. — launched the capsule three weeks ago from Cape Canaveral, full of groceries, clothes and other station supplies. Ice cream as well as fresh apples were especially appreciated by the station residents, now back up to a full crew of six.

It's the second Dragon to return from the orbiting lab; the first mission in May was a flight demo. This flight is the first of 12 deliveries under a $1.6 billion contract with NASA.

"It was nice while she was on board," space station commander Sunita Williams said as the Dragon backed away. "We tamed her, took her home and, literally and figuratively, there's a piece of us on that spacecraft going home to Earth."

EASTERN U.S. BRACES FOR SUPERSTORM

BY JENNIFER PELTZ AND ALLEN G. BREED
Associated Press

NEW YORK • From Washington to Boston, big cities and small towns Sunday but-toned up against the onslaught of a superstorm that could endanger 50 million people in the most heavily populated corridor in the nation, with forecasters warning that the New York area could get the worst of it an 11-foot wall of water.

"The time for preparing and talking is about over," Federal Emergency Management Administrator Craig Fugate said as Hurricane Sandy made its way up the Atlantic on a collision course with two other weather systems that could turn it into one of the most fearsome storms on record in the U.S. "People need to be acting now."

Forecasters said the hurricane could blow ashore today night or early Tuesday along the New Jersey coast, then cut across into Pennsylvania and travel up through New York State on Wednesday.

Airlines canceled more than 5,000 flights and Amtrak began suspending train service across the Northeast. New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore moved to shut down their subways, buses and trains and said schools would be closed on Monday. Boston also called off school. And all nonessential government offices closed in the nation's capital.

As rain from the leading edges of the monster hurricane began to fall over the Northeast, hundreds of thousands of people from Maryland to Connecticut were ordered to evacuate low-lying coastal areas, including 375,000 in lower Manhattan and other parts of New York City, 50,000 in Delaware and 30,000 in Atlantic City, N.J., where the city's 12 casinos were forced to shut down for only the fourth time ever.

"We were told to get the heck out. I was going to stay, but it's better to be safe than sorry," said Hugh Phillips, who was one of the first in line when a Red Cross shelter in Lewes, Del., opened at noon.

"I think this one's going to do us in," said Mark Palazzo, who boarded up his bait-and-tackle shop in Point Pleasant Beach, N.J., with the same wood he used in past storms, crossing out the names of Hurricanes Isaac and Irene and spray-painting "Sandy" next to them. "I got a call from a friend of mine from Florida last night who said, 'Mark, get out! If it's not the storm, it'll be the aftermath. People are going to be fighting in the streets over gasoline and food.'"

Authorities warned that the nation's biggest city could get hit with a surge of seawater that could swamp parts of lower Manhattan, flood subway tunnels and cripple the network of electrical and communications lines that are vital to the nation's financial center.

Sandy, a Category 1 hurricane with sustained winds of 75 mph as of Sunday evening, was blamed for 65 deaths in the Caribbean before it began traveling northward, parallel to the Eastern Seaboard. As of 8 p.m., it was centered about 485 miles southeast of New York City, moving at 15 mph, with hurricane-force winds extending an incredible 175 miles from its center.

It was expected to hook inland during the day today, colliding with a wintry storm moving in from the west and cold air streaming down from the Arctic. Forecasters said the combination could bring close to a foot of rain in places, a potentially lethal storm surge of 4 to 11 feet across much of the region, and punishing winds that could cause widespread power outages that last for days. The storm could also dump up to 2 feet of snow in Kentucky, North Carolina and West Virginia.

WHO: Jerome, Minico and Twin Falls
WHERE: Canyon Ridge High School
WHEN: 6 p.m.
ADMISSION: Open to the public at no charge.
PROCEDURE:

- A 5 p.m. coin flip will determine the two teams that will play first.
- Once play begins, both teams will have one possession starting at the opposing 40-yard line. If the teams are tied after one possession, each team will get a possession from the 25-yard line. If still tied, the teams will continue from the 10-yard line until the tie is broken. When play starts from the 10-yard line, teams must attempt a 2-point conversion if a touchdown is scored.
- The team that wins the first round will then play the team that sat out the first round.
- If, after all teams have played twice, a team has won twice, that team will win the playoff and earn the district's "A" seed. The team that went 1-1 will take the "B" seed and the winless team will be eliminated.
- If all three teams go 1-1 after playing twice, a new round will take place, and will continue to take place until the tie is broken.
- The "A" seed hosts Skyview in the quarterfinals and the "B" seed travels to Middleton.

For the Times-News

MOSCOW • Jason Gesser expected his first week as Idaho's interim football coach to be hectic. But he probably didn't think there would be this much drama.

Quarterback Dominique Blackman and linebacker Conrad Scheidt have been kicked off the team after failed drug tests and tight end Taylor Elmo was suspended — possibly for the rest of the year — for posting an inflammatory message on Twitter in the wake of Robb Akey's firing, sources told The Spokesman-Review.

Idaho athletic director Rob Spear confirmed Saturday night that Elmo was suspended, but Spear said the red-shirt junior could return to the team this year.

"It depends on how Taylor responds," Spear said.

Elmo's tweet, which has since been deleted, criticized Spear for cutting ties with Akey last Sunday, with a month left in the season.

"U of Idaho is stupid as hell for what they did," he tweeted. "Fire a man to keep your own job???"

What We Learned: Week 9

The playoffs are here in full force. Where did the time go? While a handful of teams have seen their seasons come to an end, the rest are revealing the last few bits of their respective team snapshots, though it may take another day or two to figure some of these two teams out.

Bruins can get five yards from the 40, they're at the long end of Ben Worst's range. All the way around, should make for an interesting clash tonight.

anybody — I've been voting Declo No. 1 for more than a month in the 2A poll and have had Gooding right behind Fruitland and Shelley almost all season. But it's only going to get more difficult with Declo traveling to face Grangeville and Gooding playing Teton.

Carey wants nothing more than to take on Lighthouse Christian at full strength. The Panthers looked in control of last year's 1A-II championship game before quarterback Jordan Dilworth broke his collarbone, which rendered them one-dimensional and let the Lions take advantage. This Carey team might not be quite as good as last year's, while this Lighthouse Christian team appears to be much better. It's an enticing rematch if nothing else. Similarly, Butte County gets another crack at defending champion Grangeville its only loss in the last two seasons. I suppose inconsistency is better than being consistently bad, though. The secret to Wendell's success has been keeping Alex Swainston healthy, as he ran all over the Vandals last week and has been instrumental in securing at least a .500 season. Quarterfinal opponent Firth is an entirely different animal, but seems like things are looking up under second-year coach Jon Helmandollar.

- 1. We don't know any more about the Great Basin Conference than we did before the season started. When the season began we pegged Twin Falls, Minico and maybe one other team to threaten for the two playoff spots. Turned out that mystery team was Jerome, but none of the three teams distinguished itself from the other two, and then there was the clear gap to the other three schools that we all knew about. That's why we have a Kansas City playoff today, and if I'm honest, I'm not sure who has the advantage. Minico has a great red-zone offense, Jerome has a big-play offense. Twin Falls is probably the most balanced of the three and has one of the best placekickers in the state — even if the
- 2. Gooding and Declo took time to adjust to playoff football after soft regular season schedules. Both teams were a perfect 8-0 in the regular season, but played an opponent with a winning record (though it must be noted that mutual opponent Wendell improved to 5-4 by beating McCall-Donnelly last Friday). With both facing .500 or better teams last week, it took a little bit to acclimate to the step up in ability. Aberdeen led Declo 12-8 after the first quarter, but the Hornets cranked things up a notch. It took Gooding the entire game to survive American Falls before emerging with a seven-point win. I'm not saying that neither team is good because they haven't played
- 3. Wendell is a difficult team to figure out. The Trojans had a couple of bad losses, to Melba and Buhl, along with losses to Gooding and Declo. But they took down a McCall-Donnelly team that handed defending champion Grangeville its only loss in the last two seasons. I suppose inconsistency is better than being consistently bad, though. The secret to Wendell's success has been keeping Alex Swainston healthy, as he ran all over the Vandals last week and has been instrumental in securing at least a .500 season. ## NFL ROUNDUP

Steelers Shut Down Griffin III, Redskins 27-12

PITTSBURGH • The Steelers turned Robert Griffin III into just another rookie quarterback, swarming Washington's precocious star in a dominant win.

Griffin completed just 16 of 34 passes for 177 yards and a score while managing 8 yards rushing.

Pittsburgh quarterback Ben Roethlisberger had no such issues, throwing for 222 yards and three touchdowns as the Steelers (4-3) won consecutive games for the first time this season.

Jonathan Dwyer added 107 yards rushing in his second NFL start. Pittsburgh jumped on Washington (3-5) early, scoring on its first four possessions and never letting Griffin get loose.

Heath Miller caught four passes for 46 yards and his sixth touchdown of the season for the Steelers.

FALCONS 30, EAGLES 17

PHILADELPHIA • Matt Ryan threw touchdown passes on Atlanta's first three possessions against Philadelphia and new defensive coordinator Todd Bowles, and the Falcons remained the NFL's only unbeaten team with a 30-17 victory over the Eagles on Sunday.

The Falcons improved to 7-0 for the first time in franchise history while the Eagles (3-4) lost after a bye for the first time in 14 games under coach Andy Reid since 1999.

Ryan finished 22 of 29 for 262 yards and three TDs for his first win against his hometown team in three tries.

GIANTS 29, COWBOYS 24

ARLINGTON, Texas • Lawrence Tynes kicked two of his five field goals in the fourth quarter and Eli Manning and New York remained undefeated at Cowboys Stadium with a win after blowing a 23-point lead.

The Giants overcame a fourth-quarter deficit to win for the 20th time in Manning's career. None were quite like this one.

New York (6-2) led 23-0 just 2 minutes into the second quarter when defensive end Jason Pierre-Paul returned an interception 28 yards for a touchdown. That was the third interception thrown by Tony Romo, among six turnovers by Dallas (3-4).

The NFC East-leading Giants didn't score again until Tynes kicked a 43-yard field goal with 10:20 left for a 26-24 lead. He added a 37-yarder after Stevie Brown recovered a fumble.

Dallas celebrated what seemed to be a 37-yard touchdown catch by Dez Bryant with 10 seconds left. But the play was reviewed, showing that Bryant's hand touched out of bounds first.

LIIONS 28, SEAHAWKS 24

DETROIT • Matthew Stafford threw a 1-yard touchdown pass to Titus Young with 20 seconds left.

Zach Miller made a spectacular, 16-yard catch on a toss from Russell Wilson with 5:27 left to put the Seahawks ahead.

Seattle (4-4) couldn't stop the Lions (3-4) on their last possession.

Stafford led a 16-play drive that started at Detroit 20 with 5:27 remaining. The possession began with a 15-yard pass to Calvin Johnson and was kept alive with third-down conversion passes to Johnson in Lions territory and to Joique Bell to set up the winning score from just outside the goal line.

BROWNS 7, CHARGERS 6

CLEVELAND • Rookie Trent Richardson rushed for 122 yards and scored a touchdown in the Browns' soggy, wind-whipped win.

Richardson, pulled last week at Indianapolis when he was ineffective because of a rib injury, carried 24 times as the Browns (2-6) won their second straight game at home — and first for new owner Jimmy Haslam. Richardson scored on a 26-yard run in the first quarter and the Browns were able to hang on despite not generating much offense in blustery, rainy conditions.

The Chargers (3-4) dropped their third straight. San Diego had a final chance, but quarterback Philip Rivers' pass was batted away by Browns cornerback Buster Skrine with 1:24 left.

Rivers finished 18 of 34 for 154 yards

PATRIOTS 45, RAMS 7

LONDON • Tom Brady led touchdown drives on the first five possessions and New England cruised at Wembley Stadium.

The Rams looked ready to put up a fight when Sam Bradford hit Chris Givens with a 50-yard touchdown pass on the opening drive. But Brady cut through the St. Louis defense at will to give New England a 28-7 lead by halftime, then hit Brandon Lloyd for a 9-yard score to start the third quarter.

New England surpassed 350 yards of total offense for the 17th straight game, breaking an NFL record set by the Rams in 1999-2000.

COLTS 19, TITANS 13 OT

NASHVILLE, Tenn. • Andrew Luck threw a 16-yard touchdown pass to Vick Ballard at 4:49 of overtime.

The Colts (4-3) have beaten Tennessee in seven of eight overall and seven of the past 10 in Nashville.

The Colts did it with Luck leading a pair of 80-yard touchdown drives. The top pick overall in April's draft set up Delone Carter's 1-yard TD run that tied it up at 13 with 3:24 left in the fourth quarter.

In overtime, Ballard capped the drive, taking a screen pass and going up the left side where he jumped toward the goal line for the TD.

The Titans fell to 3-5.

BEARS 23, PANTHERS 22

CHICAGO • Robbie Gould kicked a 41-yard field goal as time expired to rally the Bears.

The Bears trailed 19-7 in the fourth quarter when the game turned in a big way.

Chicago (6-1) took over on the Carolina 38 after Brad Nortman shanked a 6-yard punt, and Jay Cutler connected with Kellen Davis on a 12-yard scoring pass with just under seven minutes left.

Then, on Carolina's next play, Steve Smith slipped on a pass pattern and Tim Jennings returned his second interception of the game 25 yards for the go-ahead score.

Cam Newton drove the Panthers to the Chicago 27, and Justin Medlock's 45-yard field goal hit the right upright and went through to put Carolina (1-6) ahead 22-20 with 2:27 remaining. Medlock had five field goals.

On the winning drive, Cutler moved the Bears 55 yards to the 23 to set up Gould's kick. The Panthers lost their fifth straight game.

PACKERS 24, JAGUARS 15

GREEN BAY, Wis. • Aaron Rodgers went back to an old favorite, connecting with Donald Driver on a 4-yard touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Rodgers threw two touchdowns, passing Bart Starr for second place on Green Bay's all-time list, and Dezman Moses gave the Packers their first touchdown on a blocked punt in almost 22 years. But Green Bay (5-3) had a surprisingly tough time with the NFL's worst team, which lost its fourth straight.

Playing without top receivers Greg Jennings and Jordy Nelson, Green Bay's offense struggled to find its groove all afternoon. Jacksonville (1-6), meanwhile, looked unfazed by the absence of Maurice Jones-Drew. Backup Rashad Jennings finished with 115 yards of offense, and Cecil Shorts had a career-best 116 yards on eight catches.

DOLPHINS 30, JETS 9

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. • Matt Moore stepped in for an injured Ryan Tannehill and Miami rolled to its third straight victory.

Moore threw a touchdown pass to Anthony Fasano, Olivier Vernon recovered a blocked punt in the end zone for a touchdown and blocked a field goal, and the Dolphins smothered Mark Sanchez and the Jets' offense Sunday.

After a week of trash talking between both sides, the argument was won on the field by the Dolphins (4-3) — and it was no contest. They were helped by some hideous play by the Jets (3-5), who have lost two straight.

Tannehill injured his left knee and quadriceps muscle on a sack on third down by Calvin Pace on the Dolphins' second possession of the game. Moore finished 11 of 19 for 131 yards.

Sanchez was 28 of 54 for 283 yards with a touchdown and interception.

RAIDERS 26, CHIEFS 16

KANSAS CITY, Mo. • Carson Palmer threw for 209 yards and two touchdowns, and Oakland stuffed struggling Kansas City for its sixth straight win at Arrowhead Stadium.

Sebastian Janikowski was perfect on four field-goal attempts, and the Raiders (3-4) nearly became the third straight team to keep the Kansas City offense out of the end zone.

BRONCOS 34, SAINTS 14

DENVER • Peyton Manning shook off a bleeding right thumb after banging it on an opponent's helmet to throw for 305 yards and three scores and lead the Denver Broncos to a 34-14 victory over the New Orleans Saints on Sunday night.

It was Manning's fifth straight 300-yard game, setting a franchise record for Denver (4-3) and matching his personal best.

San Francisco Giants' Ryan Theriot reacts after scoring from second on a hit by Marco Scutaro during the 10th inning of Game 4 of baseball's World Series against the Detroit Tigers Sunday in Detroit.

Giants Beat Tigers 4-3 in 10 Innings for Sweep

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT • Marco Scutaro singled home the tiebreaking run in the 10th inning, and the San Francisco Giants beat the Detroit Tigers 4-3 on Sunday night to complete a four-game sweep and win their second World Series title in three years.

Ryan Theriot, who went hitless for St. Louis in Game 7 of last year's Series, singled softly into right field off Phil Coke opening the 10th.

Brandon Crawford sacrificed, nearly bunting the ball past Coke. Angel Pagan struck out and Scutaro singled into short center field as Theriot slid home ahead of Austin Jackson's throw.

Pablo Sandoval, who hit three homers in Game 1, was selected Series MVP. He was 1 for 5 in Game 4, dropping his Series average to .500 (8 for 16).

Santiago Casilla got the final out of the ninth for the win, and Sergio Romo struck out the side in the 10th for his third save, freezing Triple Crown winner Miguel Cabrera with a called third strike to end it. The Giants ran out of the dugout and bullpen to celebrate between the mound and second base.

Of the 24 teams to take 3-0 Series leads, 21 swept and three won in five games.

Delmon Young hit a tying home run off Matt Cain in the sixth. Cabrera and San Francisco's Buster Posey homered, marking the first time both reigning batting champions went deep in the same Series game.

San Francisco's Brandon Belt hit an RBI triple off the right-field wall in the second inning following a ground-rule double by Hunter Pence. But on a night when the wind was gusting to right field at up to 25 mph, Cabrera put Detroit ahead for the first time in the Series with a wild-blown, two-run drive in the third.

Cabrera's drive, on an 86 mph breaking ball, sailed over Pence, who thought he would catch it but ran out of room in front of the right-field wall on the cool, blustery night. It drove Jackson, who had walked with one out, and ended Detroit's 20-inning scoreless streak.

San Francisco had not trailed since losing Game 4 of the NL championship series, when the Giants fell into a 3-1 series deficit against St. Louis.

With a light rain falling, Scutaro reached on a chopper to third leading off the sixth and, one out later, Max Scherzer hung an 82 mph breaking ball. Posey drove it down the left-field line, where it stayed a few feet fair and landed a couple of rows over the wall for a 3-2 lead.

That advantage didn't last long. Young sent an opposite-field, no-doubt drive into the right-field stands in the bottom half, setting off cheers among the crowd of 42,152, with many fans waving white rally towels.

Andy Dirks followed with a single and Jhonny Peralta hit a drive that Gregor Blanco caught against the wall in left.

After watching Barry Zito, Madison Bumgarner and Ryan Vogelsong each allow one run or none in the first three games, Cain gave up three runs and five hits in seven innings with five strikeouts and two walks.

Scherzer, pitching on nine days' rest, gave up three runs and seven hits in 6 1-3 innings, struck out eight and walked none. After he left with a runner on second and one out in the seventh, lefty Drew Smyly retired Brandon Crawford on a flyout and righty Octavio Dotel induced a groundout from Angel Pagan.

Smyly, Dotel and Coke combined for 22-3 innings of hitless relief before the 10th.

Jeremy Affeldt followed Cain and struck out four in a row before Peralta hit a ninth-inning drive to center that the wind carried and was caught by Pagan on the warning track.

Casilla relieved and hit Omar Infante with a pitch, breaking his left hand. Danny Worth ran for Infante and Gerald Laird hit into a force-out.

Sandoval was 1 for 5, dropping his Series average to .500 (8 for 16). He also made a nimble play to throw out Quintin Berry on a bunt to third.

Detroit's Prince Fielder was hitless in four at-bats, dropping to 1 for 14 in the World Series (.071) and 1 for 25 (.040) against right-handers in the postseason.

Jimmie Johnson Wins at Martinsville, Takes Points Lead

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MARTINSVILLE, Va. • Jimmie Johnson's expectations are high at Martinsville Speedway, and his results keep showing why.

The five-time series champion raced to his seventh career victory on NASCAR's trickiest oval Sunday, and the triumph helped him erase a seven-point deficit and supplant Brad Keselowski as the points leader with three events remaining.

But before handing Johnson the title, he cautioned, there's plenty of racing yet to do.

"I'm ecstatic about the win today and ecstatic about the points lead, but this is no cake-walk," Johnson said after the 59th victory of his career and fourth this season. "These guys are bringing their best each and every week. ... The next two races will tell the tale. Anything can happen. We could both wad it up next week and Clint Bowyer is your champion."

Johnson moved two points ahead of Keselowski, who finished sixth for his highest career showing at the track. The series next moves to Texas and Phoenix before finishing up at Homestead-Miami.

"I know this championship's going to come down to Homestead," Keselowski said. "You've just got to be in position to where you've got a shot at it and we're doing the things it's going to take."

Both drivers needed only to look at Denny Hamlin's day to be reminded that things can go south fast. Hamlin seemed poised to get in the thick of it, and then had an electrical problem that sent him to a 33rd place finish and out of contention.

"When these things happen, you've just got to suck it up and move on," Hamlin said. "There's nothing I can do about it. One of these days it's going to be our time. It's just not right now."

Keselowski's day was nowhere near as adventurous as Hamlin's, but effective all the same.

He started 32nd, methodically worked his way forward, and was never really a factor until he took a late gamble to grab the lead — and a crucial bonus point. He was leading the race briefly when a caution flag flew and he and Dale Earnhardt Jr. opted to stay out, then watched as the other 16 lead-lap cars all headed for pit road for fresh tires.

"I think we've learned a lesson here in the past not pitting late, and that certainly came into play," Johnson said. "I felt like it was going to be a problem for him. We've been there before and stayed out and got beat."

When the race went back to green with 19 laps to go, Keselowski was a sitting duck whose best bet was to hang on for as long as he could and then avoid any Martinsville mayhem that cropped up in a furious dash to the finish.

Vandals

Blackman, a junior starter who has thrown for 1,610 yards and nine touchdowns, was suspended for the first game of the season for undisclosed reasons. A source told The Spokesman-Review that he was booted off the team late this week for a third failed drug test.

Gesser was not available for comment Saturday night.

Blackman transferred to UI last year from Old Dominion and, after sitting out 2011, was the Vandals' clear-cut top QB in fall camp. He was named starter in mid-August, but sat out the season-opening loss to Eastern Washington and was 1-6 as the team's signal-caller.

Scheidt started three games this year before his sustaining a face fracture in practice. He did not return after the injury.

Elmo has appeared in four games and caught two passes for 11 yards. He played in all 12 games last year and was praised by Akey at the end of the 2010 season for stepping in for the injured Daniel Hardy.

Akey was replaced last week after going 20-50 in five-plus seasons. Gesser, Idaho's 33-year-old offensive coordinator, was put in charge of the program for the final four weeks of the season.

Idaho (1-7) hosts San Jose State on Saturday at 2 p.m. after its lone bye week of the season.

Explanation Key

The BCS Average is calculated by averaging the percent totals of the Harris Interactive, USA Today Coaches and Computer polls. Team percentages are derived by dividing a team's actual voting points by a maximum 2875 possible points in the Harris Interactive Poll and 1475 possible points in the USA Today Coaches Poll.

Explanation Key

Six computer rankings are used to determine the overall computer component. The highest and lowest ranking for each team is dropped, and the remaining four are added and divided to produce a Computer Rankings Percentage. The six computer ranking providers are Anderson & Hester, Richard Billingsley, Colley Matrix, Kenneth Massey, Jeff Sagarin, and Peter Wolfe. Each computer ranking accounts for schedule strength in its formula.

DEARABBY: The other day at my in-laws; my mother-in-law, father-in-law, "Bert," and I were in their computer room. Bert has pictures of his family posted on his bulletin board and we often look at them when we're in the room.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

One of the photos he posted recently I found disturbing. It was of a young, well-endowed woman in her early 20s wearing a tight tube top. What disturbed me was that Bert has printed my 16-year-old daughter's name underneath and the date "2017." When I asked him about it, he said that was what she will look like at 21. My mother-in-law said she thought it was crude, and I think it's unnerving for a grandfather to be picturing his only granddaughter in such a manner.

We have a great family life and I wouldn't want that to end over a picture, but I don't want to look at it, and I don't think this is behavior that's expected from a man in his 60s.

How should I broach the subject that the photo needs to come down?

— CONCERNED FATHER FROM GREAT LAKES

DEAR CONCERNED FATHER: Grandpa "Bert" appears to be a dirty old man. I'm not sure "you" should talk to him about this. It would have more impact if you, your wife AND your mother-in-law do it together. When you do, tell him that putting your daughter's name under the picture was in poor taste and you ALL want the picture with your daughter's name shredded. (That way you're sure it's gone.)

Privately, your wife should ask your daughter if Grandpa Bert has ever done anything that made her uncomfortable. If the answer is yes, confront him. If not, explain your concerns to your daughter, tell her you and your wife love her, and she can always come to you with any concerns of her own.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a young mother who dropped out of high school because I didn't have enough credits. I started a great job in fast food and have a very understanding boss. I met my boyfriend at work. We've lived together since before my son was born and he has helped me to raise my boy. (His biological dad left me and has had no contact since I was two months pregnant.)

Lately I have been incredibly depressed. I'm nowhere I wanted to be in life, miserable in my relationship and have started to hate my job. I'm clinically diagnosed as bipolar and on medication. I have also been seeing a therapist since I was very young. I don't know what to do. I don't want to throw my life away. I love my son and want the best for him. Any advice on how to pick myself up?

— DOWN DEEP IN CLEVELAND

DEAR DOWN DEEP: Yes. Tell your therapist that you are cycling into a depression. Your medications may need to be adjusted. Next, explore completing your high school education by getting a GED degree, which may widen your employment opportunities. Once you're feeling better, you should consider whether you want to end the romantic relationship you have with your boyfriend. When your emotions are on an even keel, you'll be better able to make that decision.

P.S. If you're not receiving child support, contact the department of social services in your state, because your child's father should have been contributing regularly.

DEAR ABBY: When filling salt and pepper shakers that aren't marked, does the salt go into the one with the fewer holes on the top?

— PLEASE PASS THE SALT

DEAR PLEASE PASS THE SALT: There is no set rule. Although traditionally the salt shaker is the one with more holes, because doctors now advise Americans to cut back on our salt intake, it might make more sense to put it into the shaker with fewer holes.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"It gets late early out there."

— Yogi Berra

It happens more often than it should that declarer falls at the first hurdle — miscalculating whether to duck or win the trick. Today, when West leads the spade six against three no-trump, East covers dummy's 10 with the jack. How do you plan to make nine tricks?

If you let the spade jack hold, East will shift to the heart queen very smartly and, as he has two entries to his heart suit, you will lose a spade, three hearts, a diamond and a club for down two.

So you must win the first trick and then decide which minor suit to play next. I hope you will see that you should play on diamonds next, because tackling clubs first would see you lose the contract whenever West began with five spades, and the diamond ace, and East started with the club king.

You should lead the diamond king next. East wins his diamond ace and exits with a spade. Only now do you duck the spade, severing the link in spades between the defenders' hands.

You will win the next trick in hand and take the club finesse by running the club nine. East will win the king and will have no spade to play. So you will make two tricks in each of spades, hearts and diamonds, plus three in clubs.

Note that even if East did have a spade to play, you would still take nine tricks as long as spades were originally 4-4.

ANSWER: Dummy is going to put down a Yarborough with long spades, while declarer has at least six diamonds and about a 19-count. Your target should be to look for the most passive option. My guess would be to lead a spade, since I expect declarer to have no more than a singleton. Thus, leading the suit cannot cost a trick.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

IF OCTOBER 29 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY:

The year ahead offers you both tests and opportunities to expand your scope of influence. During the next four to six weeks, life may teach you serious lessons unless you meet obligations without fail. Be patient and look for the silver lining, because in January you will be able to rise and shine. That is the best month to apply for a new position, ask for a commitment from a loved one or meet the soul mate you have been searching for. In February and March, avoid launching new projects or making changes – even though you will be extremely popular and will benefit by networking. Be grateful for help and assistance, but don't depend upon others to do what you yourself should be doing.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Become goal-oriented. Your financial dreams and ambitions may take the spotlight. Do the things you have been always wanted to do. A good friend may extend an invitation to a fun filled excursion.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Today's full moon might give you a chance to demonstrate sensitivity. Revitalize a relationship by being sincere and truthful. Speak frankly with your children or mend fences with a loved one.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Hang out with the in crowd. You probably know the saying, "You're known by the company you keep." Act in ways that would impress a visiting dignitary and be an asset to a significant other.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Today's full moon may bring fall activities and personal projects to the completion stage. Your sun sign is ruled by the moon, so you could be more sensitive to others to the lunar cycles.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Today's full moon illuminates both your career ambitions and family activities. You always seem to be juggling your job and interests in the outside world with the needs and goings-on at home base.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Actions speak much louder than words. Go out of your way to prove you mean what you say. A special someone might appreciate your companionship while trick-or-treating in the evening hours.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Turn the other cheek until you blush. This is an excellent time to kiss and make up to repair the smallest misunderstanding. Someone is waiting for any tiny excuse to smother you with affection.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You will tend to attract people who mirror your own attitudes. Today's full moon could highlight the ways in which you and another person are in harmony. If you don't like what you see, think deeply.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Observe body language to understand the true message. Share your ideas, hopes or dreams. You will intuitively know when a special someone needs an encouraging pat on the back or a helping hand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't rock the boat if you wish to continue gently down the stream. Good manners and a friendly demeanor may earn Brownie points where it counts. Try not to go to extremes with generosity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Under the light of tonight's full moon, you will be able to make more progress by cooperating than by competing. Set problems to rest between you and a loved one by being sensitive to feelings.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Champion commitment. Make sure you honor your promises and all will go well for you. This is a good day to read a book of inspirational poetry or to ask for advice from a more experienced person.

CSI Basketball PREVIEW

No Standouts Not a Bad Thing for CSI Men

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Annually, it's the biggest question surrounding the College of Southern Idaho men's basketball program — it begs the most anticipated answer.

Who is going to be the guy that replaces the guy that left?

By "guy," Golden Eagles fans are talking about the man — the leader, leading scorer, one who often becomes the Division I star basketball player.

Two years ago it was now Baylor University All-American Pierre Jackson. Last year it was now-Texas A&M transfer Fabyon Harris.

This year's answer could simultaneously deceive, disappoint and delight: nobody.

"There is no clear cut all-star," freshman James Reid said. "I don't think it's because we don't have one, it's because we have more than one. The way we learn to play with each other will make us better. We will have 7-8 leading scorers throughout the year. That's a credit to the way we're going to play and the overall talent."

CSI head coach Steve Gosar has largely been mum on who he believes will replace the missing point production of Harris (17.1), Rafriel Guthrie (15.1), Luke Cothron (14.0), and Pat Swilling (12.3) from last season.

Only game action will show who is capable, but with this group, it could change multiple times over the course of the season.

"Last year's team

A Melting Pot of TALENT, CULTURE

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • To someone unfamiliar with junior college basketball, it could be tough to explain why a teenager from Turkey, another from Warri, Nigeria, and a third from Guadeloupe would leave their families, friends and lives to fly to southern Idaho to meet up with Americans.

Americans who represent the most distant corners of the United States and much in between; why those Americans, some from quite western and southern towns, others from hard-living inner-cities, could ever imagine spending most of their waking hours in each other's presence, not just trying to break down cultural barriers, but bonding.

Call it the power of CSI men's basketball.

"It's a melting pot," sophomore University of Montana transfer Billy Reader said. "We've got kids from all over. This team is one of the closest teams I've been on. We don't really care where people are from. It really doesn't matter. We all came together with one goal in mind: to win the championship."

Kennedy Esume, a 6-foot-10 statue of a young man from Nigeria had never played organized team basketball prior to stepping into the CSI gym in early September.

Why would he want to come to Twin Falls?

"I left Nigeria to win a championship," Esume said. "I miss family everyday, but that is my motivation right now."

Juwan Newman, a lanky shot-blocking transfer from New Mexico Military Institute, originally from Baltimore, is used to adapting to a

Golden Eagle Women Could Take Time to Jell

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Eleventh-year College of Southern Idaho head women's basketball coach Randy Rogers has a few terabytes of mostly accessible basketball data stored in his head. This year's team might require an external hard-drive.

Rogers spent much of the last two months exploring his internal memory for the methods he knew he'd forgotten, ways to synergize his team's sometimes disparate talents into a cohesive, free-flowing and efficient group.

"There are 20 different offenses in my head and sometimes I forget what I've run and I'll go through files and see something I forgot," Rogers said. "We change offenses every week. I'm trying to get a feel for this team. We are going to develop as coaches and adjust our offense to the talent level."

Rogers is now working on a high-low offense that he picked up from the New Mexico Lobos men's teams of the '90s.

"With our size, we should be getting the ball inside and looking for opportunities," Rogers said. "By the end of the year we

'Shorty' Standing Tall in Year Two

Adriana Dent runs down a loose ball after a block during practice Oct. 23 at CSI in Twin Falls.

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • College of Southern Idaho sophomore point guard Adriana Dent, a southern California native, spends a lot of her summers on rollercoasters at Universal Studios, where her dad works.

It's an easy way to describe her freshman season with the Golden Eagles last year, it might even describe her game at times — the lane her descent as defenders expect exhilarating changes of speed but can only hang on.

If only Dent could have numbed the pain she felt in November the same way a tired but accurate analogy numbs the mind.

Dent played on her early-season broken foot for awhile before getting surgery. She then sat out six weeks and lost her starting job.

It all hurt. But there's a new ride: Return of "Shorty." This time she's the leader.

"I like being in control," Dent said. "I don't like being timid. I'm very aggressive and I want to be all over the court. (Head coach Randy Rogers) likes that I'm vocal, and he still corrects me, and I'm still trying to get used to point guard."

Dent could not get used to the stabbing and throbbing in her foot the way she's likely to adapt — and perhaps already has — to her new role.

She woke up one morning before a tournament not sure what to think about her the odd pain in her foot. She hobbled slowly through the airport terminal. Dent is fast.

She played one game on it, went up for a rebound, got ready disciplined, structured culture. But there's something different about Steve Gosar and the Golden Eagles basketball program that's affected him off the court.

"It's the way we do things, it's changing me as a person every day we have to work," Newman said. "I'm developing more as a man first. But I didn't think it would be like this with my teammates. We do a lot together."

Sarp Gobeloglu, once a member of the 18-and-under Turkish national team, flew out to Twin Falls from Istanbul, a city of close to 14 million.

Idaho and the six states that border it have a smaller combined population. Never mind having to polish his English and learn how to play American style basketball, Gobeloglu had to figure out brand new ways to spend his time.

The team and school demands, and teammates in the dorms, have him covered there. It's allowed Gobeloglu to appreciate his new surroundings.

"It's peaceful here," Gobelglu said. "Much less people, more peace. The people are very nice and I love the place. It's very comfortable to be here. I didn't expect to love this area."

Gobelglu said he hadn't experience culture shock, but he might be going through one of sorts on the court.

"The players are very tough, physically tougher than in Europe," Gobelglu said. "They play much better defense. I have a hard time getting used to it here, but every day I'm getting better."

Gosar said that every year he has to rebuild the basketball foundations of the freshman class. Not just changing their habits, but teaching systems and concepts that many of them are unfamiliar with.

Basketball can be an almost entirely different sport in cities like New York, Chicago, and Baltimore compared to iterations on the west coast, and even the south, according to freshman guard James Reid, from Bend, Ore.

"The ball on the west coast is a lot more cerebral, but then a lot of athletes come from the southeast and northeast," Reid said.

"But we all started from ground zero. I think that helps us with chemistry. Everyone meets everybody. The pieces we have, if we can fit that all together, we can be something special."

Darius Johnson, a high-rising, versatile wing from Baton Rouge, La., might call that jambalaya.

"Sarp and Kennedy aren't used to the language," Johnson said. "And Sebastian (Michineau from Guadeloupe, also played in France), you catch about half the stuff he says. The slang is very different, music, dance, how you dress it's different. But if you can hoop and play basketball, you can play basketball."

Utah transfer, point guard Kareem Storey thinks of it as something bigger than hoops — if that's even possible.

"It's even crazier that we all get along so well," Storey said. "Basketball is so wonderful because it helps you meet new people. I get to meet people from across the water, across the country, and it just brings people together."

"That's what life is about, meeting new people."

Standouts

strengths may not be this year's team strengths," Gosar said. "Losing a guy like Fabyon, not just in the points, you can find someone who can score points, but it's hard to replace his passion for winning and his toughness. We have some pieces and they look good on paper. It's going to be interesting to see how it all comes together."

The Golden Eagles appear to have all the offensive weapons a coach could ask for, even if those attributes are spread across the team and not contained to a premier shot-creator. They have post scoring in Billy Reader, and in-time, perhaps Kennedy Esume, Juwan Newman and Montarius Hall — all of whom should impact the offensive end by increasing shot attempts through offensive rebounds. CSI has three point snipers in Reid, Sarp Gobeloglu and Zack Rosette. It has two lightning quick guards in Kareem Storey and Montigo Alford.

"I love running the offense and making sure my teammates eat before I eat," Storey said.

It has slashers, athletic mismatches who should thrive in motion sets and transition — Trevor Ritchie and Darius Johnson; a mid-range expert in Dustin

Watts, who despite being undersized, has the length to finish and the stroke to come off a screen inside the 3 point line; a do-a-little-of-everything combo guard in Sebastian Michineau.

"Everybody on the team can score the ball," Michineau said. "It's going to be balanced."

Balance is a relative term. Perhaps the most intriguing offensive player of all, freshman Jaysean Paige, has the range of Reid and the finishing of Johnson, and is probably the fastest, but not quickest, player on the team.

But Paige could have a ways to go. He played on a "run-and-gun" team in New York, and demonstrates a tendency to settle for tough, contested 3-point shots.

"There is a lot of talent on this team, so it's not all about me, it's all about the team," Paige said. "I know my team needs me to be a lot better defensively to reach its peak. I have to be a lot better."

A basketball cliché — offense leads to defense — could be a truism for the Golden Eagles until roles are defined, and offensive sets mastered.

But when that happens?

"We talk about Kentucky a lot, they get the best guys and they have to learn to play with each other," Reid said. "They had the six best guys in the country, but when they played with each other they were unstoppable."

“I like being in control. I don’t like being timid. I’m very aggressive and I want to be all over the court. (Head coach Randy Rogers) likes that I’m vocal, and he still corrects me, and I’m still trying to get used to point guard.”

to turn for a fast break, and felt something. She continued to play, limping.

“The coach for the other team was like, she’s hurt, she’s hurt,” Dent said. “The trainer said I broke it.”

Dent was replaced and taken to the bench. She then proceeded to talk her coaches and the training staff into popping a couple of over-the-counter pain pills, double-wrapping her foot, creating a new sole for heel support, and playing the next game.

“I was in denial, basically,” Dent said.

The display of toughness made an impression, but the one-footed basketball player didn’t last much longer on the court. She wasn’t able to see a doctor for another two days, and had to walk down a full flight of stairs in the team’s hotel when the electricity went out.

“I tried to be tough, I didn’t want to be a wimp,” Dent said. “But I was in so much pain. I cried so much, I called everybody. It hurt so bad!”

There’s no question Dent will sacrifice for her teammates — a group whose members agree are extremely close so far — but just as she learned when to sit down last year, she’ll have to learn how to slow down and run a team this season.

“Adriana will have a lot on our shoulders,” Rogers said. “But right now she is finding it and enjoying her role as point guard. She very vocal and will get more and more vocal as she sees that things aren’t working as they need to. She will say it. She wanted to step up last year but, as a freshman, decided it wasn’t her place. She is not self-conscious about that now!”

Her inexperienced teammates needed a voice.

“(Dent) makes sure we are doing what we need,” freshman starter Cassidy Skidmore said. “She doesn’t let us slack off!”

Dent was a wing most of her high school career until her senior year at the state tournament, when her coach decided he needed the ball in Dent’s hands more. Rogers saw the same thing in recruiting Dent, and made her his starting point guard prior to the injury.

With an inconsistent jump shot but an ability to push the pace, defeat even quick guards off the dribble and finish, Dent had the base set of attributes to develop into a good, perhaps great one. Rogers lauded her mental development over the last year, too. Dent seems to know what she’ll need to do, and she may be asked to carry her team early in the year.

“It’s like being the quarterback,” Dent said. “You have to see the floor, you have to be demanding and vocal. I like being the person in control!”

Her teammates will jump on, hoping Dent isn’t hopping this time.

should be having some success with that. Most of our other stuff is running shooters off screens.”

Rogers continues to explore because his team — largely freshmen with four sophomores with little experience — have yet to fully demonstrate what he perceives as latent offensive talents.

There are outside shooters — Cassidy Skidmore, Candice Prestwich — who should get open shots off of post-entry passes to Jessy Saint-Felix and 6-foot-2 freshman Sarah Viehweg. Saint-Felix is trying to rediscover her former self, when she showed flashes of being a go-to post as a freshman. Viehweg, an ambidextrous and nimble-for-her-size post, is pushing her for minutes.

“Saint-Felix is just as good or better as she was when she left,” Viehweg said. “We make each other better during practice.”

But such an inside-out attack, which could prominently feature sophomore forward Megan Tanner on the elbow, is anything but proven. Adriana Dent, returning from a broken foot last year, is a strong-willed, hard-driving athletic point guard who scores around the basket, but is still developing as a playmaker and quarterback.

The biggest learning curve for the Golden Eagles may not come from white board or film. The freshmen, and even the sophomores who’ve played about as much as freshmen, will have to learn how to avoid paralysis by overanalysis, and to assert themselves on offense while still keeping turnovers low — a tough task when adjusting to the speed of the college game.

“We need to get reminded of what we need to do,” Skidmore said. “Sometimes I catch myself doing what I did in high school practice, and I pay for it!”

With plenty of minutes up for grabs among at least 10 freshmen, all of whom are trying to adjust to college

“Everybody is so even and has different strengths and we can all contribute differently. It will all depend on what they need at that moment. You have to come every day to show coaches that you’re willing to do your best.”

Cassidy Skidmore

basketball and college life, the Golden Eagles may not get off to a flying start. But the intra-squad competitions have picked up in intensity recently, which could help the team make up for it what it lacks with a mean streak.

“I have to battle every day,” Skidmore said. “Everybody is so even and has different strengths and we can all contribute differently. It will all depend on what they need at that moment. You have to come every day to show coaches that you’re willing to do your best.”

Rogers hopes he can both buy time for his freshmen to develop on offense and create a permanent identity: hustle. There are consequences — usually extra conditioning — when the team gets outworked.

“We have to help each other to create, we have to set good screens,” Rogers said. “We have to have more possessions than our opponents; that will be key for us.”

Rogers hopes to imbue his players with Dennis Rodman’s energy and mindset, the coach said. His players are starting to get the hang of it.

“You have to get a rebound, it’s hard, you either rebound or you don’t,” Tanner said. “You just have to want it. Coach Rogers talks a lot about rebounding. It’s all in our heads: rebound or run. I’d rather rebound.”

CSI MEN'S BASKETBALL TEAM

Montigo Alford

Height: 5-9
Class: Freshman
Position: Guard
Hometown/previous school: Bloomington, Calif. (Summit)
Coach Gosar's take: "It's fun to watch Montigo and Kareem go at it because they both have each other's best asset. Extremely quick point guard and as he settles in and just knocks the rust off the game, sitting out last year with the shoulder injury, he is really going to help us. As he and Kareem improve their decision-making, the better they'll be."

Alford

Kennedy Esume

Height: 6-10
Class: Freshman
Position: Center
Hometown: Warri, Nigeria
Coach Gosar's take: "He's a big strong young man. He's still learning the game and how we play it in the United States, but he has a really bright future. He's got great hands and is as strong as an ox. As he understands the game, his better days are ahead of him because he works hard."

Esume

Sarp Gobeloglu

Height: 6-9
Class: Freshman
Position: Forward
Hometown: Istanbul, Turkey
Coach Gosar's take: "Sarp is a really skilled four, can really shoot the ball with range. He has a great feel and good ball skills. As he adjust to our game and the American style of play and his body fills out, he will have a bright future for us. Very smart young man, picks up things very quick."

Gobeloglu

Montarius Hall

Height: 6-6
Class: Freshman
Position: Forward
Hometown/previous school: Gastonia, N.C. (Oak Hill Academy)
Coach Gosar's take: "Trying to transition into power forward spot. He's a guy that has a really nice low-block game. Really athletic and strong. As he transitions into it he's an undersized guy who is really athletic, and can really dribble the ball and get to the rim."

Hall

Myron Harris

Height: 6-0
Class: Freshman
Position: Guard
Hometown/previous school: Chicago, Ill. (Green Valley)
Coach Gosar's take: "He's a redshirt this year. He's a walk-on."

Harris

Darius Johnson

Height: 6-3
Class: Freshman
Position: Guard
Hometown/previous school: Baton Rouge, La. (McKinley)
Coach Gosar's take: "He's a multiple position guy. He can play everywhere from one to four. He's got great presence as a point guard, and really understands how to initiate the offense. A great passer and at the same time we use him at the four spot where he can guard the post and has a way of passing the ball. He's a mismatch at the four. A lot like Rafriel Guthrie. A really hard guard because he can put it on the deck and get to the rim."

Johnson

Sebastien Michineau

Height: 6-0
Class: Sophomore
Position: Guard
Hometown: Baie-Mahault, Guadeloupe
Coach Gosar's take: "It's nice having Sebastien back. Starter, one out of two people who played minutes for us last year. We'll rely on him for leadership and understanding. He's a guy who will play the point and some of the off-guard for us, and is a guy that I know understands everything we're doing on both sides of the ball. Hopefully he can transition from that freshman to that sophomore leader."

Michineau

Juwan Newman

Height: 6-7
Class: Sophomore
Position: Forward
Hometown/previous school: Baltimore, Md. (New Mexico Military)
Coach Gosar's take: "He gets better and better, every day and every week. He keeps doing what we ask him to do, and I'm excited to see him in February and March. He's long and athletic, probably the only shot-blocker we have on this team. Runs the court hard and can finish strong. I love coaching Juwan."

Newman

Jaysean Paige

Height: 6-1
Class: Freshman
Position: Guard
Hometown/previous school: Jamestown, N.Y. (Perry Central)
Coach Gosar's take: "A very talented freshman. He can score the ball at ease. He's got a nice jumper, strong enough that he can get to the rim. He has a chance to be as good of a guard as there is in the league as he develops and understands shot selection and opportunities at this level."

Paige

Jon Pulsifer

Height: 6-0
Class: Sophomore
Position: Guard
Hometown/previous school: Twin Falls, Idaho (Twin Falls)
Coach Gosar's take: "He's had a great off-season. He's lost 20 pounds since the end of last year. He's really improved his outside shooting and mobility on the perimeter. He's put himself in position to get some playing time for us this year."

Pulsifer

Billy Reader

Height: 6-9
Class: Sophomore
Position: Center
Hometown/previous school: Lake Oswego, Ore. (Univ. of Montana)
Coach Gosar's take: "He's a very skilled five man that understands how to fight and create space in the post. Is really good with creating angles and is really going to be a big help for our guard because he creates attention when the pass goes inside. He'll get a lot better when our guards become comfortable finding him."

Reader

James Reid

Height: 6-3
Class: Freshman
Position: Guard
Hometown/previous school: Bend, Ore. (Mountain View)
Coach Gosar's take: "He can really shoot the ball. He's got really good range, can shoot it out to the NBA line and can really stretch the defense. He's a guy that will be a great complement for our inside post players. It will be really hard for his defender to double down on the post."

Reid

Trevor Ritchie

Height: 6-4
Class: Sophomore
Position: Guard
Hometown/previous school: Portland, Ore. (Colorado School of Mines)
Coach Gosar's take: "Another guy who can play multiple positions for us, one to four. He has a great basketball IQ, can really shoot the ball from the perimeter, and finds ways to score. Great mid-range game and can get to rim. Sneaky athletic and finds ways to get angles to the rim and finish."

Ritchie

Detwon Rogers

Height: 6-5
Class: Freshman
Position: Forward
Hometown/previous school: Raleigh, N.C. (New Hanover)
Coach Gosar's take: "Real skilled perimeter four man. When that Achilles' (out until late December) is healthy he is really athletic. Can stretch the defense, range out to the NBA 3-point line and when he gets it going he can put two and three 3s together in a hurry."

Rogers

Zack Rosette

Height: 6-2
Class: Freshman
Position: Guard
Hometown/previous school: Rock Springs, Wyo. (Rock Springs)
Coach Gosar's take: "Redshirted for us last year. Works his butt off in practice, really competes and I think he'll find some back-up minutes this year."

Rosette

Kareem Storey

Height: 5-10
Class: Sophomore
Position: Guard
Hometown/previous school: Baltimore, Md. (Univ. of Utah)
Coach Gosar's take: "He is a very quick point guard who has a lot of experience under his belt. He's a guy who is so quick, like Montigo, can create without a ball screen. Kareem is as good an on-ball defender as I've been around. As he settles into what we're doing he's going to be a huge asset to running this team this year."

Storey

Dustin Watts

Height: 6-3
Class: Freshman
Position: Guard
Hometown/previous school: Renton, Wash. (O'Dea)
Coach Gosar's take: "He's a long, athletic kid that can score the ball and be a really disruptive defender when he's being aggressive. He has the ability to finish on perimeter and get inside and finish with his length. He has a nice mid-range game, can really score the ball and we're going to need him to be aggressive on both sides of the court."

Watts

CSI WOMEN'S BASKETBALL TEAM

Adriana Dent

Height: 5-5
Class: Sophomore
Position: Guard
Hometown/previous school: Canyon Country, Calif. (Canyon)
Coach Rogers' take: "Pure athlete; great bounce in her legs; can get up and grab rim. Maybe our best rebounder, she can get from one end of floor to another, finishes very well but needs to work on jump shot. She came back (from broken foot) in January and lost her starting spot last year. She wasn't much of a scorer last year, didn't have as much confidence as she has this year. She really developed mentally since last season."

Dent

Moriah Dill

Height: 5-11
Class: Freshman
Position: Forward
Hometown/last school: Dietrich, Idaho (Dietrich)
Coach Rogers' take: "She doesn't take a lot of chances. We need her to understand that she is a lot better basketball player than she gives herself credit for because she is an unknown factor. She can put ball on the floor, she can rebound and she can score. We need those things consistently out of her."

Dill

Julia Dufurrena

Height: 6-0
Class: Freshman
Position: Forward
Hometown/previous school: Winnemucca, Nev. (Lowry)
Coach Rogers' take: "She failed baseline testing (concussion, out indefinitely), but was playing extremely well for us, leading us in rebounds."

Dufurrena

Rai Franklin

Height: 5-8
Class: Freshman
Position: Guard
Hometown/previous school: Post Falls, Idaho (Post Falls)
Coach Rogers' take: "She is our most fearless kid. Very physical. She will sell out her body whatever she can do to make play successful. In an open spot, a good shooter. Sometimes gets loose with handle. She will definitely get under the skin of her opponents and drive them crazy."

Franklin

Alli Furniss

Height: 5-7
Class: Freshman
Position: Guard
Hometown/previous school: Rigby, Idaho (Rigby)
Coach Rogers' take: "She is only practicing a couple of days a week now (after injury). She is an all-around player. In high school she rebounded, stole, scored, and we are going to ask her to do all those things for us. Physically, she is still injured and has a ways to go. She is kind of hurting out there on the floor."

Furniss

Zulieka Grinsell

Height: 5-6
Class: Freshman
Position: Guard
Hometown/previous school: Spring Creek, Nev. (Spring Creek)
Coach Rogers' take: "She is solid, a winner. All she's done is win three state championships. She is probably our best passer, and once she understands the speed of this game she will be solid. She's the best post-entry passer. She can shoot it, but a really unselfish kid just learning to play defense at this level."

Grinsell

Candice Prestwich

Height: 5-6
Class: Sophomore
Position: Guard
Hometown/previous school: Murray, Utah (Murray)
Coach Rogers' take: "She is a shooter. I've seen her come out and knock down 10 in a row. She is fearless. She does a good job of getting the shot off — it's a pretty shot. Solid defender. Learned a lot coming off bench last year and playing behind three guards that were pretty good."

Prestwich

Elodie Roussas

Height: 5-9
Class: Freshman
Position: Guard
Hometown: Paris, France
Coach Rogers' take: "She is kind of learning to play at this level, knowing there are other kids at this level that are talented. She learning English. Big thick strong kid. Hopefully we get her back after surgery in December or January (torn meniscus)."

Roussas

Jessy Saint-Felix

Height: 6-2
Class: Sophomore
Position: Forward
Hometown: Rovers, Martinique
Coach Rogers' take: "She has a face-up jumper, she can get up and down the floor, hit her own shot off the dribble and around the basket. We need her to play well for us to be a success."

Saint-Felix

Cassidy Skidmore

Height: 5-5
Class: Freshman
Position: Guard
Hometown/last school: Terreton, Idaho (West Jefferson)
Coach Rogers' take: "She comes off a team where she did 90 percent of scoring, and when she is on she is on and she hit some big shots for us this weekend. She has to understand risk and reward. She'll take it in and get her shot blocked inside where it wasn't in high school."

Skidmore

Megan Tanner

Height: 5-9
Class: Sophomore
Position: Forward
Hometown/previous school: Ogden, Utah (Bonnevill)
Coach Rogers' take: "She is physical, plays bigger than she is. Can score around bucket, hit 15-footer. Fastest big kid, can really fly up and down floor and is in great shape. She doesn't mind taking and giving contact. You'll see her more at the four spot."

Tanner

Patrice Toston

Height: 5-7
Class: Freshman
Position: Guard
Hometown/previous school: Seattle, Wash. (Franklin)
Coach Rogers' take: "She is a very talented point guard coming off a very successful high school career. Handles ball, can finish in traffic or under pressure, has a great 15-foot pull-up jumper. Needs to work on shooting from the perimeter and being more careful, but very talented and should play a lot of minutes for us."

Toston

Stephanie Toumson

Height: 6-1
Class: Freshman
Position: Forward
Hometown: Basse-Terre, Guadeloupe
Coach Rogers' take: "Has athleticism around the basket, very long, athletic and has nose for the basket. She is going to give us some really good minutes."

Toumson

Brittany Wirth

Height: 5-11
Class: Freshman
Position: Forward
Hometown/previous school: Gooding, Idaho (Gooding)
Coach Rogers' take: "She was our 15th signee. A local kid that is a success story and she is our best big kid that can step up and shoot a 3. Solid from out there and does a good job of going after offensive rebounds, keeps the ball high, finishes around basket and is awkward footwork wise, but she is best scoring around the bucket."

Wirth

Sarah Viehweg

Height: 6-2
Class: Freshman
Position: Forward
Hometown/previous school: Inkom, Idaho (Marsh Valley)
Coach Rogers' take: "She could be our go-to big inside. She can go to her left, her right and rebounds the ball extremely well. And as big as she is, she runs the floor really well. We think she can beat other teams' big woman down the floor and move the ball ahead."

Viehweg
