Brackett Trial Declared Mistrial on First Day

BY ALISON GENE SMITH

TWIN FALLS • The trial for a man accused of sexually exploiting a 16-year-old girl ended in a mistrial Monday morning during the opening statements.

Robert Brackett, 44, is representing himself in the case. He faces eight counts of using a child in or possessing sexually exploitative material, and seven counts of sexual battery committed by lewd or lascivious acts on a minor child aged 16 or 17.

Brackett told the Times-News Monday that in his opening statements, he said he was facing eight life sentences if he was convicted.

Prosecutor Julie Sturgill moved for a mistrial, saying the statement prejudiced the jury.

In court, Brackett said he did not intend to cause a mistrial and said he believed the jury instruction stating

Luna Defends Ed Reforms in Buhl

BUHL • With the election about a week away, public schools chief Tom Luna encouraged attendees at a Buhl meeting to ask questions about Students Come First topics that trouble them the most.

"You won't hurt my feelings," he said. "It's that important."

Luna spoke Monday during a Magic Valley Republican Women meeting at the Clear Lake Country Club.

About 25 people — ranging from members of the Republican women's group to parents — came to the meeting.

"I believe this is the most important election in our children's lifetime," Luna told the group.

Voters will decide during the Nov. 6 election whether to uphold or overturn the three laws that make up

One successful brownfield project offers lessons for other efforts.

TWIN FALLS • Tucked in the corner of a cramped trailer is a gallon of a pink-brown liquid in a plastic container.

It sloshes and foams when Saiid Dabestani digs it out of the trailer. He waves it around as he spreads his arms across the empty lot on which the trailer sits on.

"This is what we pulled out of the ground, gallons of it," he said, sweeping his arm across the dirt-covered lot. "Look at the color. This is leaded gasoline."

Dabestani was standing in the middle of the former Super Quik Stop in Twin Falls. Weeds crowded the cracks between the pavement where pump stations once stood. The fuel tank was removed when the station closed in 1985, but hundreds of gallons of gasoline remained underground.

Over time, contamination from the site led state officials to declare the site a brownfield — an area blighted by contamination and where redevelopment is often hindered.

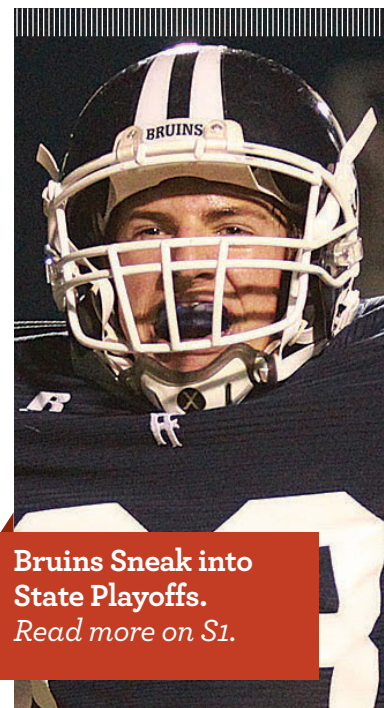

There are close to 65 brownfields in Idaho. Fifteen of those, including the site on Washington Street North, are located in the state's south-central region.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Storm Will Keep Financial Markets Closed Tuesday

NEW YORK (AP) • Stock trading will be closed in the U.S. for a second day Tuesday as Hurricane Sandy bears down on the East Coast. Bond trading will also be closed.

The last time the New York Stock Exchange was closed for weather was in 1985 because of Hurricane Gloria, and it will be the first time since 1888 that the exchange will have been closed for two consecutive days because of weather. The cause then was a blizzard that left drifts as high as 40 feet in the streets of New York City.

The New York Stock Exchange and Nasdaq said they intend to reopen on Wednesday and would keep investors updated.

Much of the East Coast was at a standstill Monday as the storm approached. Mass transit and schools were closed across the region ahead of the storm hitting land, which was expected to happen later Monday.

Areas around New York's Financial District were part of a mandatory evacuation zone. The storm surge is already pushing water over seawalls in the southern tip of Manhattan.

CME Group's New York trading floor was closed, but its electronic markets for commodities were functioning. Crude oil fell 74 cents to close at $85.54 in electronic trading. CME said electronic trading for commodities would also be open Tuesday.

Curious Mind
Auger Falls' Bridge and Basins

In the new Auger Falls Heritage Park there are about 40 basins of various size and shape that have leveled beds, cleared of rock, and berms on their perimeter. No sign of irrigation ditches. When were they built and for what purpose? Same for the defunct concrete bridge above Auger Falls.

COURTESY PHOTO
 This photo of the Auger Falls area, taken in 1965 from the west side of Rock Creek Canyon toward the northeast, shows an ITD gravel pit in the foreground and the road out of the canyon in the background.

Lee Glaesemann, staff engineer for the city of Twin Falls, said the basins were created in about 1980 by Idaho Frozen Food to treat wastewater after potato processing.

Formerly, Idaho Frozen Food (now ConAgra Foods Lamb Weston) piped wastewater through the Rock Creek Canyon to the Snake River Canyon, said Dennis Bowyer, Twin Falls parks and recreation director. The company's wastewater now goes through the city's treatment plant.

There is now money in the city's budget to reuse the wetland basins, said Bowyer. A million gallons a day of treated wastewater will be distributed in the settling ponds in the near future.

As for the bridge?

"The concrete bridge and the adjacent road into the canyon were both built by the Idaho Transportation Department to haul gravel from the Auger Falls site to build the interstate in the late 1950s into the 1960s," Glaesemann said.

He said the adjacent road is the one straight south of the 4-way stop on the west end of the Jerome Country Club. "I hear that it is useable, but I don't think it gets much maintenance. I believe it crosses a couple different landowners, so no single entity maintains it"

Since the bridge was built below the highway mark, it's washed out and the decomposing cement slab is balancing above the river with no connection to either bank. "Eventually we'd like to make a trail loop," said Bowyer. "We want to develop more trails; some gravel and some paved. We want to preserve it.

"Do we rebuild or put in a new bridge?" J-U-B Engineers is currently developing a conceptual plan for an alternative wastewater reuse project, Bowyer said.

The city acquired 520 acres of land in the Snake River Canyon in 2002 with the intention of protecting, enhancing, rehabilitating and preserving the distinctive natural and cultural characteristics of the property, while creating an outdoor experience to be enjoyed by area residents. In 2011, they received 161 acres from the Bureau of Land Management through a congressional transfer.

If the bridge is rebuilt, it will be a pedestrian bridge only, said Bowyer. "It's for hikers and bikers." The only way to view Auger Falls is by foot.

"Currently there is no public access across the Snake River," he said.

Bowyer advises recreationists to "prepare for an afternoon. You can get around a lot faster on a bike."

Jerome Council May Decide on Subdivision Today

BY JULIE WOOTTON
 jwootton@magicvalley.com

JEROME • After two years of discussion and project changes, a decision could come tonight about a zoning change that would allow multi-family housing units in a Jerome subdivision.

For phase II of the Maple Ridge Subdivision project, developers want a zone change from single-family residential to multi-family residential.

Originally, Jerome City Council members were scheduled to make a decision earlier this month.

But after developers met with the city attorney, another public hearing was scheduled.

"The real frustration stems back to a few weeks ago," subdivision owner Aaron Robertson said.

He said they asked for another public hearing after finding out City Council members had talked with residents.

"Information is supposed to be presented in a public forum," Robertson said, though he noted it's fine for community members to send in a letter if they can't be at a meeting.

Having testimony presented during meetings is a way to ensure "everyone has a fair shake," he said.

Robertson said today's public hearing allows for the opportunity to rebut public comments if people have concerns.

After going through the process of scheduling another public hearing, however, Robertson now says Councilman Chris Barber went around knocking on residents' doors talking to them.

He alleges Barber was trying to convince people "on the negative nature of the zone change."

"It's improper from start to finish," Robertson said.

Barber said he just wanted to go door-to-door to let residents know that a public hearing was scheduled.

"My intent was not to change anyone's testimony," he said.

Barber said he'll abstain from voting on the zoning change after he makes a statement. And he said he accepts the blame for going door-to-door.

"It wasn't anybody's fault but my own," he said.

Barber said in the past, city officials have posted signs around town announcing a public hearing. But that didn't happen this time.

"Citizens have the right to know what's going on in the community," he said.

Keystone Construction manages the Maple Ridge Subdivision, located off Tiger Drive. Phase II of the project calls for 93 units, including single-family homes, twin homes and four-plexes.

Barber said the developers are trying to cause trouble and called the city's attorney after finding out he went door-to-door.

He said he cares about the community and has gone door-to-door before.

A real-estate agent, Barber said he agrees that multi-level housing options should be in every community and they boost local economies.

The issue, he said, is that developers should have planned better.

Barber said changing the zoning to allow for multi-family housing units would negatively impact the value of current homes in the subdivision.

Robertson said he doesn't know what's next if the council denies the zoning change.

But if the change is denied, it wouldn't be the first time. In March 2011, the council voted 3-1 to reject a zoning change for the project.

Then, developers made changes to phase II of the project to address concerns such as lack of street parking and not enough variety in the floor plans for the units.

Trick-or-Treat Forecast Looks Clear, Warm

Temperatures will be warming and our skies will be sunny for the first half of the week. An area of high pressure centered over Wyoming will be in control of our weather as we go into Wednesday.

Today will feature sunny to mostly sunny skies with afternoon highs warming to the upper 60s to low 70s. The winds will be variable in direction with speeds between 10 to 15 mph.

We do it all over again for Halloween Wednesday, with afternoon highs reaching 70 degrees, with plenty of sunshine. The trick-or-treat forecast for your little ghouls and goblins will be quite nice. Temperatures between 6-9 p.m. Wednesday will be 65 to 55 degrees with clear skies, so no need for that big bulky jacket to cover up those costumes.

These temperatures are unusual for this time of year as our average high should be around 58 degrees. Temperatures may be warm, but we are not expecting to set any record highs over the next few days. The record high for today is 80 set back in 1937 and Wednesday's record is 75 back in 2008.

Mom Accused of Cancer Fraud Now Alleged to Have Faked Pregnancy

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

BUHL • A Buhl woman who was accused, along with her husband, of holding a fraudulent cancer fundraiser has now been accused of seeking financial aid for a faked pregnancy.

According to an affidavit filed in 5th District Court, Lisa Holley met with Buhl United Methodist Church pastor Penny Hodges in December 2011, and told Hodges she was pregnant with triplets and was in need of financial assistance.

Lisa Holley, 44, and her husband Michael Holley, 54, deny the charge and maintain Lisa was pregnant and miscarried.

"Whoever made this report on me said I had a fake pregnancy," Lisa Holley said Friday to the Times-News. "I have a doctor's statement that I was pregnant and I lost my baby."

The affidavit alleges Holley of depriving people of $1,435 through deception.

The affidavit states Hodges received a phone call from a woman who identified herself as Holley's stepmother from Nevada. The woman reportedly asked Hodges to assist Holley, and said the pastor would be repaid.

Hodges said she gave Holley $50 of her own money and has never been repaid, the affidavit states.

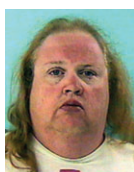

In January, the affidavit states, Hodges got a call from a person claiming to be a midwife from St. Luke's. The person said she was caring for Holley and asked if Hodges or the church could assist her in obtaining items for Holley because she was pregnant with triplets, the affidavit states.

Later that month, the affidavit states, Hodges sent out an email to members of the church and asked for assistance. The affidavit states Hodges was suspicious and also called St. Luke's, which said it did not have a midwife program.

According to the affidavit, church congregants donated a $100 gift card to Ridley's Family Markets, $300 toward the purchase of a vehicle and one family donated $500.

On Monday, Holley told the Times-News she never received cash or a gift card.

In February, the affidavit

states, a man told Hodges he bought a washing machine for $185 and delivered it to Holley's home. Also in February, a group of women at the church purchased about $300 of new baby items for Holley, the affidavit states.

Then in March, the affidavit states, Holley allegedly called Hodges and said she miscarried and gave the donated items to a friend who either had infants or was currently pregnant.

Holley told the Times-News she donated the baby items she received to local thrift stores.

According to the affidavit, subpoenas to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center and St. Luke's Jerome turned up no records at the Jerome hospital, but a pregnancy test was found at the Twin Falls hospital. A lab technician told police that Holley was not pregnant and said the lab work was done for Holley's doctor at Family Health Services in Twin Falls, the affidavit states.

Records from FHS reportedly showed Holley was not pregnant during the time she was cared for there, according to the affidavit. A doctor's note from a March 12 visit reportedly said Holley believed she was pregnant following a test at the Pregnancy Crisis Center.

This is when the lab work from St. Luke's Magic Valley that later came back negative was completed, the affidavit states.

On Monday, Holley said this test was after she miscarried.

According to the affidavit, investigators believe there is no record from between July 2011 and September 2012 from any hospital or Holley's personal doctor to show that she was ever pregnant with triplets.

On Monday, Lisa Holley told the Times-News that police looked at the wrong hospitals and the records she has come from an out-of-town hospital. Holley did not want to say which hospital it was until after her initial court appearance. Holley said police also could have found records through the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

Online court records don't yet list the date of Holley's initial court appearance on the new charge, but Holley said she's scheduled to appear in court on Wednesday.

Two Injured in Stabbing

BY ALISON GENE SMITH

TWIN FALLS • Two people were injured in an early morning stabbing Sunday, according to the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office.

Deputies are investigating an altercation involving several people that occurred at about 4:30 a.m. Sunday at 1790 Blake St. N. in Twin Falls.

According to court documents, authorities responded for a call about a man who was stabbed in the stomach.

As officers arrived, they noted seeing pools of blood in the street near the home.

A knife was reportedly found in the front yard of the home, the documents state.

The court documents detail a verbal altercation that then turned physical.

According to the documents, rocks were thrown at one point during the fight and a female was hit in the head and began bleeding profusely.

Nicholas Gray, 20, of Buhl, was arrested on a charge of aggravated battery after the fight, a release from the sheriff's office stated.

Orlando Ramirez, 18, of Jerome, was transported by a private vehicle to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center for a stab wound. A minor was also transported by private vehicle but was later taken by air ambulance to Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise.

The incident is still under investigation, the release stated.

Water Released from Magic Reservoir for Repair Work

TIMES-NEWS

SHOSHONE • The Big Wood Canal Co. expects to release about one-third of Magic Reservoir's current volume to make space for repairs.

The water releases began today, routed for now along the Richfield Canal to the Little Wood River, according to an announcement from the canal company. A much larger release is expected to begin after Nov. 1 down the Big Wood River channel north of Shoshone, lasting about 10 days.

People with property in or along the Big Wood channel should take necessary measures to protect that property, the canal company advised.

The repairs involve the interior tunnel control gate at the dam. The reservoir currently contains about 54,000 acre-feet of water; canal company officials expect one-third of that will be drained.

An acre-foot is enough water to cover one acre one foot deep.

Big Wood ended its irrigation deliveries to farmers on Oct. 3 when the reservoir was closed. Bridge construction activities in the channel and other irrigation company maintenance kept the water from being released earlier.

Sunday Fire Believed Sparked by Motorcycle

TIMES-NEWS

HAGERMAN • Investigators believe a Sunday afternoon fire near Hagerman was caused by a motorcycle laid down in a patch of grass.

Fire crews fully extinguished the 160-acre fire at 2 p.m. Monday.

The fire was near the Hagerman Fossil Beds National Monument, but was all on Bureau of Land Management land, said BLM Monument Manager Holly Hampton. Initial reports put the fire at 50 acres, and originally predicted full control at 11 p.m. Sunday.

Investigators are still determining who laid the motorcycle down, BLM spokeswoman Heather Tiel-Nelson said.

Maria Vielmas watches a drum major while performing with the Wendell High School Marching Band during halftime on Oct. 19 in Wendell. Through sponsorship by Glanbia, the band recently received new uniforms complete with black crested Trojan helmets.

Glanbia, Other Donors Give Wendell Band Fresh Look

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

WENDELL • When members of Wendell High School's marching band went to competitions this fall, they were missing something.

"All the other bands have these fancy uniforms," senior Megan Benson said. But for Wendell students, their uniform was a white T-shirt and black pants.

"We didn't look as professional as we could have," Benson said.

So for her senior project, she decided to change that.

Benson, who is the color guard captain, started asking for donations in order to buy uniforms.

Her efforts paid off big. Glanbia Foods donated $16,000 to cover the cost of 50 band uniforms and 10 color guard uniforms.

Company spokeswoman Whitney Beem wasn't available to comment on the donation Monday.

Including the Glanbia donation, Benson raised $21,000. One way she brought in donations was through a dinner fundraiser in May.

"We're really grateful that people donated so much," she said.

The extra money went toward replacing some old instruments and repairing other broken ones.

For Wendell High's marching band, the competition season is just about over.

The 47 member ensemble performed at competitions in Burley, Pocatello and Pleasant Grove, Utah.

Health Nonprofit Expands Burley Services

BY LAURIE WELCH

Robins

BURLEY • Family Health Services in Burley has expanded its staff to include a licensed clinical social worker.

Jordan

Robins, who holds a master's degree in social work, is now offering counseling services to children, adolescents and adults.

"I graduated from Burley High School so coming back here was kind of like a 'circle of life' moment," Robins said.

Family Health Services is a nonprofit organization that provides medical, dental and behavioral health services. Medical clinics are located in Buhl, Burley, Jerome, Fairfield, Rupert and Twin Falls. Dental clinics are located in Burley, Fairfield and Twin Falls with a mobile unit serving Buhl and Jerome. Behavioral health services are now available in Burley and Twin Falls.

The organization provides services based on a sliding-fee scale. Patients needing counseling can call for an appointment: 678-0101. Medicare, Medicaid and private insurance are accepted.

Robins has been a practicing clinical social worker for the past six years and received his master's degree from Virginia Commonwealth University.

"I have been blessed to know a number of honorable people over the years who have helped influence my life for the better."

Jordan Robins

Robins' services include marriage counseling, parenting skills, treatment for addictions including substance abuse and sex or Internet addictions, mood disorders and behavior problems in children.

Robins said when the opportunity came up to practice in Burley, he felt like his "path was being guided."

Robins said his own list of mentors is long, starting with his parents, church leaders and friends.

"Of course, it is the foundation set by my parents that contributed most to where I am at," he said.

"While I believe people are entitled to less than what we would often like in life, I truly feel each person should have the opportunity of growing up in a home where both a caring and responsible father and mother are present. I can only imagine the enormous impact this would have on our society.

"In the meantime, I enjoy helping others develop the insight, skills and confidence needed to improve their lives."

Poll: Scant Demand for Microsoft's Windows 8

BY MICHAEL LIEDTKE
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO • Microsoft bills Windows 8 as a "re-imagining" of the personal computer market's dominant operating system, but the company still has a lot of work to do before the makeover captures the imagination of most consumers, based on the results of a recent poll by The Associated Press and GfK.

The phone survey of nearly 1,200 adults in the U.S. found 52 percent hadn't even heard of Windows 8 leading up to Friday's release of the redesigned software.

Among the people who knew something about the new operating system, 61 percent had little or no interest in buying a new laptop or desktop computer running on Windows 8, according to the poll. And only about a third of people who've heard about the new system believe it will be an improvement (35 percent).

Chris Dionne of Waterbury, Conn., falls into that camp. The 43-year-old engineer had already seen Windows 8 and it didn't persuade him to abandon or upgrade his Hewlett-Packard laptop running on Windows 7, the previous version of the operating system released in 2009.

"I am not real thrilled they are changing things around," Dionne said. "Windows 7 does everything I want it to. Where is the return on my investment to learn a new OS?"

Microsoft usually releases a new version of Windows every two or three years, but it's different this time around. Windows 8 is the most radical redesign of the operating system since 1995 and some analysts consider the software to be Mi-crosoft's most important product since co-founder Bill Gates won the contract to build an operating system for IBM Corp.'s first personal computer in 1981. Microsoft is hoping the way Windows 8 looks and operates will appeal to the growing number of people embracing the convenience of smartphones and tablets.

The consumer ambivalence, however, was even more pronounced when it came to Microsoft's new tablet computer, Surface, which was built to show off Windows 8's versatility. Sixty-nine percent of the poll's respondents expressed little or no interest in buying a Surface, which Microsoft is hoping will siphon sales from Apple Inc.'s pioneering iPad and other popular tablets such as Amazon.com Inc.'s Kindle Fire and Google Inc.'s Nexus 7.

The results indicate Microsoft still has work to do to create a bigger buzz about Windows 8 and help consumers understand the new operating system's benefits, even though the company provided several previews of the software at various stages in the final 13 month leading to its release. But the information apparently resonated mostly with industry analysts, reporters, technology blogs and gadget geeks.

Microsoft is in the early stages of an estimated $1 billion marketing campaign that will include a siege of television commercials to promote Windows 8 to a wider audience.

That still might not be enough to sway longtime Windows users such as Mary Sweeten. She is 75, and not eager to learn the nuances of a new operating system. She, too, is comfortable with her current desktop computer running on Windows 7.

Mother of Mo. Sen. McCaskill Dies at 84

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) • Betty Anne Ward McCaskill, the mother of Missouri Sen. Claire McCaskill and a political trailblazer in her own right, died Monday at her home in St. Louis after a long struggle with heart and kidney problems, the senator said.

The first-term Democratic senator, who is locked in a close re-election race with Republican Rep. Todd Akin, canceled most of her campaign events starting last week to spend time with her 84-year-old mother. She said Saturday that her mother suffered from acute cardio-renal failure and had lost consciousness at several points in recent days.

"For some time, Mom's health has not been good, and our family takes comfort that she is now at rest," McCaskill said in a statement announcing her mother's death.

Oakley Man Stable after Saturday Crash

BY LAURIE WELCH

lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • An Oakley man remained in intensive care Monday at a Pocatello hospital following a two-vehicle crash Saturday on Idaho Highway 27 near Oakley.

William Gee, 54, of Oakley, was transported by air ambulance to Portneuf Regional Medical Center after the crash at 1600 S. Road and Idaho 27.

The crash occurred at 6:17 p.m., according to a Cassia County sheriff's report.

Portneuf hospital spokeswoman Brenda

Stanley said Gee was listed in stable condition at the hospital's intensive care unit.

The driver of the second vehicle, Michael L. Hunter, 61, of Oakley, was taken to Cassia Regional Medical Center.

According to the report, Hunter, who was driving a 2011 GMC truck westbound on 1600 S. Road, allegedly failed to stop at a stop sign at the intersection.

Gee was driving a 1982 GMC truck southbound on the highway when Hunter's vehicle struck his truck in the front of the driver's side.

Both vehicles came to rest on the southwest side of the intersection facing west in a field and were "severely damaged from the crash," the report states.

According to the report, Gee appeared "badly injured" and was unable to speak.

While Hunter was being attended to by medical personnel at the scene, he told deputies that he did not know what caused the crash, the report states.

According to the report, Hunter was wearing a lap and shoulder seatbelt. Gee was not wearing a seatbelt.

Charges are still pending, according to the report.

Declo Woman Injured in Crash

TIMES-NEWS

DECLO • A two-vehicle crash Monday morning closed the intersection of Idaho highways 81 and 77 in Declo for about an hour and a half.

The crash sent a Declo woman to the hospital.

According to a press release issued by Idaho State Police, the crash occurred at 7:26 a.m.

Alejandro Valentin-Santiago, 21, was driving west on Idaho 81 in a 2002 Volkswagen. Meanwhile, Katherine Thompson, 58, of Declo, was traveling east on the same highway in a 1997 Geo Prisma.

According to ISP, Valentin failed to yield the right-of way while attempting to turn south onto Idaho 77, colliding with Thompson's vehicle.

The drivers of both vehicles were wearing their seatbelts.

Thompson was taken by ground ambulance to Cassia Regional Medical Center.

Skiers Partially Buried by Mont. Avalanche; 1 Hurt

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) • Officials say three skiers triggered an avalanche in the mountains north of Bozeman, Mont., over the weekend that partially buried all three and injured one of them.

The Gallatin National Forest Avalanche Center says the skiers were ascending a south-facing slope in the Bridger Range when they triggered the snow slide Sunday. They reported feeling the slope collapse with a "whump" and saw the snow fracture above them. All three were swept to the bottom of the slope and buried up to their chests.

KTVM-TV reports a 53-year-old man suffered a deep laceration to his knee and a hip injury that prevented him from walking out.

The skiers called Gallatin County Search and Rescue at noon, and the injured person was taken out on a toboggan by 3:30 p.m.

2 Ore. Teens Missing Since Saturday Found Safe

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) • Two Oregon teenagers who didn't return from a weekend hike are safe after spending two nights in wet, windy weather.

Jackson Chandler, 17, and Bradley Nelson, 16, were found Monday afternoon by a driver not connected to the search party, Clackamas County Sheriff's Deputy Nate Thompson said. They did not need medical attention.

Television cameras captured the boys' emotional reunion with relatives after rescuers escorted them to the trailhead.

Chandler and Nelson told reporters they went in the wrong direction and got lost. The Boy Scouts and avid hikers did not have food, but they drank water and slept under trees that blocked the rain.

"Be forewarned. Assume that you will be in the midst of flooding conditions, the likes of which you may not have seen at any of the major storms that have occurred over the last 30 years."

Connecticut Gov. Dannel P. Malloy

Why I Am Pro-Life

Hard-line conservatives have gone to new extremes lately in opposing abortion. Last week, Richard Mourdock, the tea party-backed Republican Senate candidate in Indiana, declared during a debate that he was against abortion even in the event of rape because after much thought he "came to realize that life is that gift from God. And even when life begins in that horrible situation of rape, that it is something that God intended to happen." That came on the heels of the tea party-backed Republican Rep. Joe Walsh of Illinois saying after a recent debate that he opposed abortion even in cases where the life of the mother is in danger, because "with modern technology and science, you can't find one instance" in which a woman would not survive without an abortion. "Health of the mother has become a tool for abortions anytime, for any reason," Walsh said. That came in the wake of the Senate hopeful in Missouri, Rep. Todd Akin, remarking that pregnancy as a result of "legitimate rape" is rare because "the female body has ways to try and shut that whole thing down."

These were not slips of the tongue. These are the authentic voices of an ever-more-assertive far-right Republican base that is intent on using uncompromising positions on abortion to not only unseat more centrist Republicans — Mourdock defeated the moderate Republican Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana in the primary — but to overturn the mainstream consensus in America on this issue. That consensus says that those who choose to oppose abortion in their own lives for reasons of faith or philosophy should be respected, but those women who want to make a different personal choice over what happens with their own bodies should be respected, and have the legal protection to do so, as well.

But judging from the unscientific — borderline crazy — statements opposing abortion that we're hearing lately, there is reason to believe that this delicate balance could be threatened if Mitt Romney and Rep. Paul Ryan, and their even more extreme allies, get elected. So to those who want to protect a woman's right to control what happens with her own body, let me offer just one piece of advice: to name something is to own it. If you can name an issue, you can own the issue. And we must stop letting Republicans name themselves "pro-life" and Democrats as "pro-choice." It is a huge distortion.

In my world, you don't get to call yourself "pro-life" and be against common-sense gun control — like banning public access to the kind of semiautomatic assault rifle, designed for warfare, that was used recently in a Colorado theater. You don't get to call yourself "pro-life" and want to shut down the Environmental Protection Agency, which ensures clean air and clean water, prevents childhood asthma, preserves biodiversity and combats climate change that could disrupt every life on the planet. You don't get to call yourself "pro-life" and oppose programs like Head Start that provide basic education, health and nutrition for the most disadvantaged children. You can call yourself a "pro-conception-to-birth, indifferent-to-life conservative." I will never refer to someone who pickets Planned Parenthood but lobbies against common-sense gun laws as "pro-life."

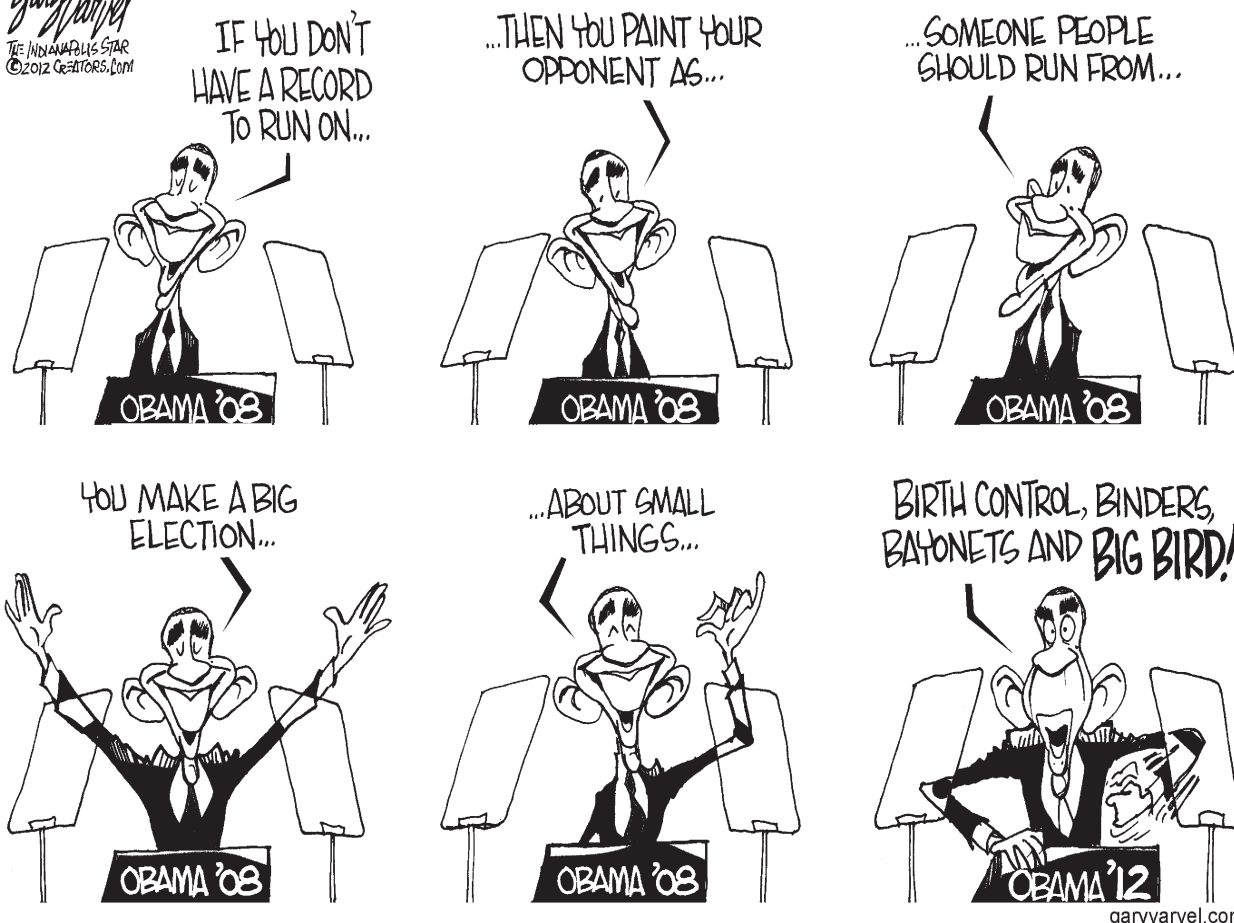

"Pro-life" can mean only one thing: "respect for the sanctity of life." And there is no way that respect for the sanctity of life can mean we are obligated to protect every fertilized egg in a woman's ovary, no matter how that egg got fertilized, but we are not obligated to protect every living person from being shot with a concealed automatic weapon. I have no respect for someone who relies on voodoo science to declare that a woman's body can distinguish a "legitimate" rape, but then declares — when 99 percent of all climate scientists conclude that climate change poses a danger to the sanctity of all life on the planet — that global warming is just a hoax.

The term "pro-life" should be a shorthand for respect for the sanctity of life. But I will not let that label apply to people for whom sanctity for life begins at conception and ends at birth. What about the rest of life? Respect for the sanctity of life, if you believe that it begins at conception, cannot end at birth. That radical narrowing of our concern for the sanctity of life is leading to distortions in our society.

Respect for life has to include respect for how that life is lived, enhanced and protected — not only at the moment of conception but afterward, in the course of that life. That's why, for me, the most "pro-life" politician in America is New York City Mayor Michael Bloomberg. While he supports a woman's right to choose, he has also used his position to promote a whole set of policies that enhance everyone's quality of life — from his ban on smoking in bars and city parks to reduce cancer, to his ban on the sale in New York City of giant sugary drinks to combat obesity and diabetes, to his requirement for posting calorie counts on menus in chain restaurants, to his push to reinstate the expired federal ban on assault weapons and other forms of common-sense gun control, to his support for early childhood education, to his support for mitigating disruptive climate change. Now that is what I call "pro-life!"

USA on Brink of Losing National Independence, Personal Freedoms

Thirty-seven senators oppose consideration of treaties during the lame-duck session. Thirty-seven senators have pledged, in a letter circulated by Sens. Mike Lee (R-Utah) and Pat Toomey (R-Pa.) and addressed to Majority and Minority leaders Harry Reid (D-Nev.) and Mitch McConnell (R-Ky.), to "oppose efforts to consider a treaty during" the lame-duck session.

Because treaties require a two-thirds majority in the Senate to be ratified, this group of 37 senators will be able to block any treaties introduced on the floor of the Senate in this year's lame-duck session. Two treaties that are likely to be considered after the Nov. 6 elections are the U.N. Law of the Sea Treaty and the U.N. Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. The currently stalled U.N. Arms Trade Treaty could even be resuscitated in time for consideration in November or December.

Although these 37 senators will be sufficient to block the ratification of any treaty during the lame-duck session (a minimum of 34 are required to block treaties), tremendous forces can be brought into play by establishment elites to change votes. The U.N. is really on the brink of becoming a world government. And that means we're on the brink of losing our national independence and our personal freedoms.

Therefore, please contact our senators and urge them to block the consideration of any and all treaties in the lame-duck session. Something as important as treaty ratification should not be undertaken by a lame-duck Senate with many retired and defeated senators casting votes.

'Yes' on Props 1, 2, 3 Means Idaho Children Win

The debate that is currently swirling in Idaho regarding education reform has never been this important.

On Nov. 6, we have the opportunity to support Gov. Otter in making our Idaho education system an example for the rest of the nation. We have the opportunity to provide an education system for Idaho students that will allow them to learn and have access to immeasurable knowledge that will keep them on pace with the rest of the world. Voting "yes" on Props 1, 2 and 3 will give our kids an opportunity to compete in an ever-changing world; a world that is far more competitive than when I graduated from high school.

The decision is simple: A "yes" vote means that Idaho kids win. A "no" vote means that unions win. Vote "yes" on Props 1, 2 and 3 because Idaho kids need a win, not a teacher's union.

Re-elect Doug McFall to Jerome County Sheriff

As a volunteer chaplain for the Jerome

County Sheriff's Office, I have had the honor of knowing and working with Sheriff Doug McFall, who is seeking re-election as sheriff.

Sheriff McFall is a sheriff that is civically involved in updating community groups on what is happening in the county. He is also a sheriff that is out with the citizens making himself available to them. He is a working sheriff that I have personally seen working evenings, nights and weekends. He is a sheriff that is there for the victims, and he and his department work hard to take care of those victims. Under his watch, the sheriff's office has had multiple drug seizures, has kept the department's budget in line, been able to update the officers' equipment for their safety, and he has personally worked hard in gaining pay increases for his staff.

Sheriff McFall treats everyone he meets with dignity and respect, which in turn relates to the respect he receives from the officers he leads and from the community he protects. Sheriff McFall leads with high standards of ethics, honesty and integrity. These are core values I feel a sheriff needs in order to lead a sheriff's department.

I urge the voters of Jerome County to vote Nov. 6 for the re-election of Doug McFall as Jerome County Sheriff.

Why Would Anyone Oppose Props 1, 2 and 3?

As I learn more about the education initiatives that are on the ballot, I am more puzzled as to why educators could be voicing their opposition. It seems to me that all three pieces are great for students, which is the only reason for an education system.

Prop 1 does away with the archaic tenure system. I believe Idaho has great teachers for the most part, but we all know there are a small portion that have become ineffective. How many years does a district keep teachers simply because of tenure and how many students are negatively affected?

Prop 2 has been incorrectly labeled as teaching to a test. Again those good teachers we have in Idaho should be fairly compensated. Teachers can earn bonuses for working in hard-to-fill positions. Teachers can earn bonuses for taking on leadership responsibilities. Teachers and administrators will also receive bonuses for working in schools that meet student academic growth targets set at both the state and local levels.

Finally prop 3, the technology piece. How do we expect our kids to be competitive in the world if we don't teach them to use technology? When asked which districts wanted to be the first to have the technology, 85 percent of districts requested being first. The ability to get rid of poor teachers, the chance for teachers to be paid for the good work they do and the chance to bring education into the 21st century all seems to be a positive for kids.

I don't know why anyone would oppose Props 1, 2 and 3. Please join me in voting yes, yes and yes on Props 1, 2 and 3.

McClure, Shotswell Will Represent Voters, Not a Party

The Republican Party's leadership has it partly right. Elected legislators should do what they are told.

In today's Republican Party, however, that translates to only doing what Grover Norquist, Tom Luna, Lawrence Denney and ALEC tell them to do. We need a new future for Idaho, one in which our elected representatives inquire about and do what their constituents want them to do.

District 25 (Jerome and Twin Falls counties) candidates Scott McClure and Cindy Shotswell actually ask constituents what they want done in Boise. Idaho needs a new future that doesn't follow the Republican Legislature's failed 40-year formula that has made Idaho 50th in K-12 funding, 46th in total educational revenues per full-time student, 49th in per capita personal income, and 40th in per household income.

Do you believe Idaho should have local control of education, which at least means not having an out-of-state special interest group write the boiler plate for Idaho's educational legislation? Do you have concerns about the money trail of the Luna legislation? Do you really think sending education dollars to out-of-state for-profit online "educators" who will never even see your children is the answer? Are you happy about the Republican leadership's positions on women's salaries, health care and access to contraception?

You know what they say about doing something over and over again and expecting a different outcome. It has also been said that absolute power corrupts absolutely. Don't let Republican political bosses and their cronies continue to short circuit Idaho's state government. It's time for fresh ideas from elected officials who actually solicit, care about and respond to their constituents' needs and perspectives.

You won't be ignored any more if you vote for Scott McClure for Idaho State Senate and Cindy Shotswell for state representative.

Fornshell Solves Problems Based on Outcomes Not Ideology

From Steve Hartgen's list of

"accomplishments," it appears his real talent and interest lies in serving his party. Perhaps we should free him to do that and elect someone else to serve all of us in the Idaho Legislature?

Rosemary Fornshell has strong bipartisan support to represent all of us. She values people regardless of their politics and solves problems based on outcomes not ideology. In 30-plus years working in Twin Falls, Fornshell's commitment to individuals has been clear. She was a social worker in child protection; at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center; she helped start the first hospice in the Magic Valler. At CSI, Fornshell established a human resource department and then taught economics and business, becoming head of that department. Now that she is "retired," she wants to use her talent to work with people from all walks of life representing all of us in the Idaho Legislature.

Even while employed, Rosemary volunteered for organizations that work to provide affordable medical care and for organizations dedicated to protecting the rights of all individuals. Presently, she is president of Habitat for Humanity of the Magic Valley Inc. and serves on several other boards. Fornshell has been studying the Props 1, 2 and 3 legislation and its source — ALEC, a conservative out-of-state PAC and, based on her study, her experience as a teacher and what she has learned from listening to the students, parents and teachers who will be affected by these laws, she is voting "no" on Props 1, 2 and 3.

Using this simple process — study and listen — is how she will serve us in the Legislature. If you know Rosemary Fornshell, you already love and respect her. If she is elected, you will soon love and respect her.

Syria Launches Nationwide Airstrikes

BEIRUT (AP) • Syrian fighter jets pounded rebel areas across the country on Monday with scores of airstrikes that anti-regime activists called the most widespread bombing in a single day since Syria's troubles started 19 months ago.

The death toll for what was supposed to be a four-day cease-fire between the regime of President Bashar Assad and rebels seeking his overthrow exceeded 500, and activists guessed the government's heavy reliance on air power reflected its inability to roll back rebel gains.

"The army is no longer able to make any progress on the ground so it is resorting to this style," said activist Hisham Nijim via Skype from the northern town of Khan Sheikhou.

Activists said more than 80 people were killed nationwide Monday while videos posted online showed fighter jets screaming over Syrian towns, mushroom clouds rising from neighborhoods and residents searching the remains of damaged and collapsed buildings for bodies. One video from Maaret al-Numan in the north showed residents trying to save a boy who was buried up to his shoulders in rubble. Another showed the dead bodies of a young boy and girl laid out on a tile floor.

The airstrikes focused on rebel areas in the northern provinces of Aleppo and Idlib, as well as on restive areas in and around the capital Damascus. The regime has been bombing rebel areas in the north for months, but had sparingly used its air force near the capital, presumably to avoid isolating its supporters there.

But analysts say rampant defections and rising rebel capabilities have lessened the regime's ability to take back and hold rebel areas, making air strikes its most effective way to fight back.

Monday was supposed to be the fourth and final day of an internationally sanctioned cease-fire to coincide with the Muslim holiday of Eid al-Adha, one of the holiest periods of the Muslim calendar. But violence marred the truce almost immediately after it was to go into effect on Friday and continued apace through the weekend.

U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon said Monday he was "deeply disappointed" that the warring parties didn't respect the cease-fire and called on the divided international community to unite to stop the bloodshed.

"As long as the international community remains at odds, the needs, attacks and suffering will only grow," he told reporters in South Korea.

Envoy Lakhdar Brahimi, who represents the U.N. and the Arab League and presented the plan, told reporters in Moscow that he'd keep trying to lessen the violence and "put an end to it."

World powers remain divided on how to stop Syria's crisis, with the U.S. and many Arab and European nations calling for Assad to step down while Russia, China and Iran continue to back the regime.

Sandy Crashes Ashore in Jersey

THE PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER

PHILADELPHIA • An already destructive Sandy struck Atlantic City Monday night, bearing down with destructive winds and massive surges as it transformed into a "post-tropical" storm — but was in no way less of a threat.

The National Hurricane Center issued a statement saying Sandy made landfall along Absecon Boulevard in West Atlantic City — coinciding with high tide. The storm was on track to parallel the Atlantic City Expressway inland, with a direct path to Cherry Hill, N.J., and Philadelphia.

The resulting surge was already adding fuel to likely historic flooding as the bay and ocean merge along the barrier islands on the New Jersey coast. Heavy rain and advancing wind gusts have already spawned havoc hours before landfall.

Forecasters expect widespread damage at the Jersey Shore and as the storm continues to move inland. Wind speeds have now been clocked at 80 mph at Surf City on Long Beach Island, and are picking up further inland.

Downed trees and power outages were reported throughout the region.

Sandy started to make a left-turn toward New Jersey about 5 a.m., churning in a massive sweep straight toward Atlantic or Cape May counties in what meteorologists say would be a storm of historical proportions.

By 5 p.m., it was 30 miles off the coast of Cape May, but had been battering the region all day. The storm was moving at 28 mph.

By 8 p.m., it was just about on top of the coast.

The preceding surge all day long had been so powerful that it knocked out parts of Atlantic City's famed boardwalk at the northern end. Major flooding was recorded in Ocean City and the Wildwoods.

New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie said at a 5:30 p.m. news conference that tens of thousands of utility customers were without power, and said it was too late for most of those who refused to leave.

He said substations were being powered down on the barrier islands. The governor said that emergency responders will no longer carry out rescues on the barrier islands. He told residents to not try to get out now. Helicopters were grounded.

China Cancels Plans for Chemical Plant following Weekend Protests

LOS ANGELES TIMES

BEIJING • After a weekend of protests, Chinese authorities capitulated to thousands of well-organized, middle-class demonstrators and canceled plans for the expansion of a petrochemical plant in a small coastal city near Shanghai.

Sinopec, the state oil monopoly, had been planning an $8 billion expansion of an industrial complex in Zhenhai already suspected of raising cancer rates in Zhenhai.

"With living standards going up, people want not only fresh air and clean water, they want a stronger voice about what's happening around them," said Timothy Tang, a 29-year-old working in finance who was in-involved in the protests in Ningbo, a larger city that administers Zhenhai.

Protest organizers said they had been encouraged by a similar uprising last year in Dalian, where middle-class protesters managed to stop a plant that also would produce paraxylene, a toxic petrochemical used in the manufacturing of plastic bottles and polyester.

"This chemical became notorious after the Dalian protests and we thought we needed to take action as well," said Tang. "The local government made concessions after only two days of protests so they must have faced strong pressure from Beijing to wrap things up fast."

The Communist Party opens a weeklong congress Nov. 8 in Beijing to announce China's new leadership lineup and the country is under a security lockdown throughout.

Ningbo's party secretary, Wang Huizuo, said in a statement posted Monday on the local government website, "All government departments and local residents need to maintain social stability and create a great environment for the grand opening of the 18th Party Congress."

The official Ningbo Daily on Monday hailed the decision by the local government late Sunday as reflecting the "people's will."

At the height of the demonstrations on Saturday, as many as 5,000 people converged on local government offices.

Judge Rules Group Must Disclose Donors

BOISE (AP) • A judge ruled Monday that a nonprofit group must disclose donors who financed more than $200,000 in campaign ads touting public schools chief Tom Luna's education overhaul.

Fourth District Judge Michael Wetherell ruled in favor of Secretary of State Ben Ysursa, who had filed the lawsuit against Education Voters of Idaho. Wetherell gave the group a deadline of 3 p.m. Wednesday to disclose its donors.

Ysursa argued that voters now headed to the polls ahead of the Nov. 6 election that will decide whether Students Come First changes survive will suffer irreparable harm if they can't find out who put up the money for the ads.

Wetherell agreed with Ysursa that Education Voters of Idaho was a political committee with an obligation to publicly reveal its financiers, under Idaho's 38-year-old Sunshine initiative. The judge gave Ysursa's office permission to pursue civil penalties and attorney costs; deputy secretary of state Tim Hurst said nothing has been decided, beyond simply winning disclosure.

"The voters have a right to the most full, most accurate information they can get in spite of the many obstacles placed in their way by those who would prefer to hide behind catchy, vague names," Wetherell wrote in a 19-page decision. "Nothing has been shown which overrides the strong, substantial interest of the citizens of Idaho in knowing who is seeking to influence them as they exercise their right to vote."

DIG SITE REVEALS EARLY BOISE

BOISE (AP) • A porcelain-toothed dollhead so creepy archaeologists took to calling it "Chuckie" after the murderous movie doll.

Intact bottles whose stamped glass tells tiny tales: "Sarsaparilla, Lowell, Massachusetts."

A shoe made of scab-brown leather as delicate as papyrus.

A porcelain lid from a jar of "Oriental Tooth Paste," advertised as "England's Favorite Dentifrice."

Those are some of the 7,000 to 10,000 bits and pieces of Boise history turned up during a two-week excavation in August of an old well on Boise's Basque block.

University of Idaho archaeologists also found marbles, tobacco tins and shards of flowered china in the well next to the Cyrus Jacobs/Uberuaga House on Grove Street.

The items offer a glimpse of what life was like for upper-middle-class Boiseans in the post-Civil War years.

"They help us see what strivers of that era were emulating," said UI anthropology professor Stacey Camp, who co-directed the dig with her fellow professor Mark Warner.

Camp thinks many of the artifacts date to the era of the house's original owners, the Jacobs family, who built the home in 1864. It did not become a Basque boarding house until the following century.

Cyrus Jacobs was an entrepreneur and merchant who owned a number of businesses. The preponderance of toys and remnants of imported products found reveal a family with expendable income, Camp said.

Why and how items ended up in the well is anyone's guess. The well could have doubled for a time as a garbage disposal, and residents also could have dropped items into it by mistake. The children of Grove Street could have been experimenting with their toys, never intending to lose them forever.

The excavated items will be the centerpiece of a lab course Camp is teaching next semester. Students will catalog the objects and see whether they can match or "crossmend" any of them to shards and objects unearthed during an earlier Basque block dig in 2004.

The community beyond Idaho has taken notice of the significant Boise dig. Archaeology Magazine included it in the "World Roundup" column in its latest issue, along with the discovery of a slave ship in the Bahamas and a Neolithic bow in Spain.

Idaho Mulls Setting Up Oil and Gas Regulator

BOISE (AP) • Idaho may set up a new board to oversee its nascent oil and natural gas industry, a bid to put more knowledgeable people with fewer conflicts of interest in charge.

The Idaho Statesman reported that the Department of Lands is drafting the proposal for the 2013 Legislature.

Currently, members of the Idaho Land Board, including Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter along with the attorney general, secretary of state, controller and public schools superintendent, regulate the industry.

A new board would include five members appointed by the governor, with each familiar with various aspects of the industry: oil and gas drilling, geology and water resources — as well as landowners with and without mineral leases of their own.

The idea is to shift regulation from elected officials and put decision-making in the hands of people with deeper knowledge of the issues at stake.

The oil and gas industry is giving a tentative thumbs-up to the proposal — while withholding final judgment, based on what the legislation looks like when it emerges for public consideration.

"As always, the devil is in the details," said Suzanne Budge, executive director of the Idaho Petroleum Council.

Environmentalists who this year fought changes to laws governing the industry were initially receptive, too, as they claim that the existing system is rife with conflicts.

Justin Hayes, Idaho Conservation League program director, said the Idaho Land Board is often the steward of not only the endowment land, but the mineral rights beneath it.

The board's top priority under the Idaho Constitution to maximize return to the state for schools and other endowment land beneficiaries. Meanwhile, it not only writes the rules governing oil and gas drilling, but is also the final interpreter of them, Hayes said, setting up a situation where its members can't possibly make a decision without becoming tied in knots of competing interests.

"That's a four-way conflict," Hayes said.

Oil and gas is a small, relatively new industry in the state, where there's currently no commercial production from deposits discovered largely in the western part of the state. The latest auction of state lands for exploration — 1,900 acres in Payette and Washington counties, held in August — reaped only $4,450, with just a single company bidding.

Still, with fears that hydraulic fracturing, or "fracking," that accompanies many such projects could damage the region's groundwater, the issue of regulating the industry has garnered attention that likely dwarfs the actual size of Idaho's potential gas production.

In the 2012 Legislature, Hayes' group helped spearhead energetic but ultimately unsuccessful efforts to defeat legislation that limited the ability of local governments to regulate oil and gas drilling projects.

PUBLIC NOTICE OF CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

Two amendments to the Idaho Constitution will appear on the November 6, 2012 General Election ballot. These amendments have been proposed to the people for ratification following action by the legislature. The proposed amendments, the Legislative Council's Statements of Meaning and Purpose and Result to be Accomplished, and the Statements For and the Statements Against are listed as follows:

S.J.R. 102

Text of Proposed Amendment

IN THE SENATE SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 102 BY JUDICIARY AND RULES COMMITTEE

A JOINT RESOLUTION PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO SECTION 5, ARTICLE X, OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF IDAHO, RELATING TO THE CONTROL OVER STATE PRISONS; TO PROVIDE THAT THE STATE BOARD OF CORRECTION SHALL HAVE THE CONTROL, DIRECTION AND MANAGEMENT OF ADULT FELONY PROBATION AND PAROLE; STATING THE QUESTION TO BE SUBMITTED TO THE ELECTORATE; DIRECTING THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL TO PREPARE THE STATEMENTS REQUIRED BY LAW AND DIRECTING THE SECRETARY OF STATE TO PUBLISH THE AMENDMENT AND ARGUMENTS AS REQUIRED BY LAW.

Be It Resolved by the Legislature of the State of Idaho:

SECTION 1. That Section 5, Article X, of the Constitution of the State of Idaho be amended to read as follows:

Section 5. STATE PRISONS -- CONTROL OVER. The state legislature shall establish a nonpartisan board to be known as the state board of correction, and to consist of three members appointed by the governor, one member for two years, one member for four years, and one member for six years. After the appointment of the first board the term of each member appointed shall be six years. This board shall have the control, direction and management of the penitentiaries of the state, their employees and properties, and of adult felony probation and parole, with such compensation, powers, and duties as may be prescribed by law.

Ballot Question

"Shall Section 5, Article X, of the Constitution of the State of Idaho be amended to provide that the State Board of Correction shall have the control, direction and management of adult felony probation and parole?"

Legislative Council's Statement of Meaning, Purpose and Result to be Accomplished S.J.R. 102

Currently, Section 5, Article X, of the Constitution of the State of Idaho provides that the Board of Correction shall have the control, direction and management of adult probation and parole. The proposed amendment would insert the word "felony" before the word "probation" and would clarify that the Board of Correction's authority is limited to the supervision and management of felony offenders. Consequently, if the proposed constitutional amendment is adopted, the Board of Correction would not have the authority to supervise or manage misdemeanor probationers. Misdemeanor probationers would continue to be supervised by Idaho counties, as is permitted by law.

Legislative Council's Statements FOR the Proposed Amendment

1. Currently, adult felony probationers are supervised by the Board of Correction through the Idaho Department of Correction. This amendment would preserve local control of the misdemeanor probation process by clarifying that the state's role is limited to felony offenders, while counties have supervision authority over misdemeanor probationers.

2. Because the Idaho Constitution is not clear regarding state and local supervision of adult felony and misdemeanor probationers, legal challenges could result in unwanted changes to the current system. This amendment would allow voters to provide constitutional clarification.

Statements AGAINST the Proposed Amendment

1. Changes to the Constitution should be made only for major issues of interest to the state or in the event of a constitutional crisis.
2. This Section preserves the statewide uniform felony probation system, but does not address possible different misdemeanor probation treatment among judicial districts.

H.J.R. 2aa

Text of Proposed Amendment

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 2, AS AMENDED BY WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE

A JOINT RESOLUTION PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO ARTICLE I, OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF IDAHO, BY THE ADDITION OF A NEW SECTION 23, ARTICLE I, TO PROVIDE THAT THE RIGHTS TO HUNT, FISH AND TRAP, INCLUDING BY THE USE OF TRADITIONAL METHODS, ARE A VALUED PART OF THE HERITAGE OF THE STATE OF IDAHO AND SHALL FOREVER BE PRESERVED FOR THE PEOPLE AND MANAGED THROUGH THE LAWS, RULES AND PROCLAMATIONS THAT PRESERVE THE FUTURE OF HUNTING, FISHING AND TRAPPING, TO PROVIDE THAT PUBLIC HUNTING, FISHING AND TRAPPING OF WILDLIFE SHALL BE A PREFERRED MEANS OF MANAGING WILDLIFE AND TO PROVIDE THAT THE RIGHTS SET FORTH DO NOT CREATE A RIGHT TO TRESPASS ON PRIVATE PROPERTY, SHALL NOT AFFECT RIGHTS TO DIVERT, APPROPRIATE AND USE WATER, OR ESTABLISH ANY MINIMUM AMOUNT OF WATER IN ANY WATER BODY, SHALL NOT LEAD TO A DIMINUTION OF OTHER PRIVATE RIGHTS, AND SHALL NOT PREVENT THE SUSPENSION OR REVOCATION, PURSUANT TO STATUTE ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE, OF AN INDIVIDUAL'S HUNTING, FISHING OR TRAPPING LICENSE; STATING THE QUESTION TO BE SUBMITTED TO THE ELECTORATE; DIRECTING THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL TO PREPARE THE STATEMENTS REQUIRED BY LAW; AND DIRECTING THE SECRETARY OF STATE TO PUBLISH THE AMENDMENT AND ARGUMENTS AS REQUIRED BY LAW.

Be It Resolved by the Legislature of the State of Idaho:

SECTION 1. That Article I, of the Constitution of the State of Idaho, be, and the same is hereby amended by the addition thereto of a NEW SECTION, to be known and designated as Section 23, Article I, of the Constitution of the State of Idaho and to read as follows:

SECTION 23. THE RIGHTS TO HUNT, FISH AND TRAP. The rights to hunt, fish and trap, including by the use of traditional methods, are a valued part of the heritage of the State of Idaho and shall forever be preserved for the people and managed through the laws, rules and proclamations that preserve the future of hunting, fishing and trapping. Public hunting, fishing and trapping of wildlife shall be a preferred means of managing wildlife. The rights set forth herein do not create a right to trespass on private property, shall not affect rights to divert, appropriate and use water, or establish any minimum amount of water in any water body, shall not lead to a diminution of other private rights, and shall not prevent the suspension or revocation, pursuant to statute enacted by the Legislature, of an individual's hunting, fishing or trapping license.

Ballot Question

"Shall Article I, of the Constitution of the State of Idaho be amended by the addition of a New Section 23, to provide that the rights to hunt, fish and trap, including by the use of traditional methods, are a valued part of the heritage of the State of Idaho and shall forever be preserved for the people and managed through the laws, rules and proclamations that preserve the future of hunting, fishing and trapping; to provide that public hunting, fishing and trapping of wildlife shall be a preferred means of managing wildlife; and to provide that the rights set forth do not create a right to trespass on private property, shall not affect rights to divert, appropriate and use water, or establish any minimum amount of water in any water body, shall not lead to a diminution of other private rights, and shall not prevent the suspension or revocation, pursuant to statute enacted by the Legislature, of an individual's hunting, fishing or trapping license?"

Legislative Council's Statement of Meaning, Purpose and Result to be Accomplished H.J.R. 2aa

This proposed amendment would provide that the rights to hunt, fish and trap are a valued part of Idaho's heritage and would preserve these rights for the people of Idaho and manage these rights through the laws of the state. This amendment specifies that hunting, fishing and trapping shall be a preferred means of managing wildlife. This amendment does not create a right to trespass or affect rights to divert or appropriate water. This amendment also will not prevent the suspension or revocation of licenses issued by the state for hunting, fishing or trapping.

Legislative Council's Statements FOR the Proposed Amendment

1. Hunting, fishing and trapping have long been practiced by the people of Idaho, and this amendment preserves Idaho's great sporting heritage.
2. Hunters, fishers and trappers help sustain a healthy ecosystem, and this amendment provides sportsmen meaningful and permanent protection to hunt, fish and trap.
3. Without constitutional protection, bans on certain types of hunting and trapping have been successful in other states and have incrementally eroded sportsmen's rights.

Statements AGAINST the Proposed Amendment

1. Future legislation to address public concerns regarding inhumane and unsportsmanlike practices could be affected by this amendment.
2. This amendment is unnecessary because the rights to hunt, fish and trap are not threatened and are already protected by law.
3. The Idaho Department of Fish and Game's wildlife management decisions could be constitutionally challenged as a result of this amendment.

A Tale of Remediation

State officials have been monitoring the Super Quik site since 1985. However, it wasn't until Dabestani was hired in 2009 to clean up the site that the former fuel station began to show signs of remediation.

Dabestani is an environmental scientist and owner of Enviro-Mont in Twin Falls. When he was hired to work on the Super Quik site, he inherited more than 20 years worth of assessments and paperwork dedicated to figuring out how to clean up the site.

"I knew I had to find the source," he said. "If I couldn't find the source then any remediation I would do, would be useless."

Unlike most other former gasoline stations, the source of the contamination wasn't found near the underground tank. Instead, when Dabestani drilled 70 feet underground near a pipeline close to the pump stations, he discovered more than 320 gallons of leaded gasoline sitting on top of groundwater.

"We drilled there and bingo," he said. "You leave that and anything else you do will be ineffective."

The cleanup project soon became a community effort. Dabestani said he was calling on local and state experts for best remediation practices in such a unique geographic area.

"Twin Falls is different because it doesn't sit on a valley like most other cities," said Shawn Willsey, a geology professor at the College of Southern Idaho, who offered Dabestani information on the area's geology.

"Most cities sit on sand and loose sediment so the water pathways are fairly simple. Here in Twin, we have fractured basalt," he said. "This means water doesn't just move in one direction, it can go in any number of directions and you don't really know how deep or how far it will travel."

The complicated underground landscape forced Dabestani to set up nine different wells at various distances away from the site. He monitored contamination levels as he removed and cleaned 400,000 gallons of groundwater.

The water was treated by pumping contaminated groundwater out of the ground and into an air stripper. The water fell into a pipe while the contaminants, which are lighter than water, were blown to the top. The water was then treated with a chemical and eventually pumped into the city's wastewater system.

Throughout the cleanup process, Dabestani relied on the help of several engineers but also got several high school students to come out to the site to help maintain the work.

Isaac Laris, 18, is a senior at Twin Falls High School. He came out to the site to help Dabestani with some of the physical labor the project demanded. Eventually, he based his senior project on the cleanup efforts.

"We removed buckets after buckets of gasoline," he said. "It was pretty cool to learn the chemistry of it all. I'm thinking about studying chemistry after I graduate."

Three years later, Dabestani has finally reached the end of his project.

"I've worked on brownfields in other states but this has been the most challenging task I've ever done," he said. "But this was a win-win for everyone. The property can now be used for anything, DEQ is happy that it's cleaned and I get the pleasure of completing a complicated project."

One Down, Many to Go

Dabestani's successful cleanup project marks one less brownfield in the Magic Valley. However, many more remain.

Dabestani was able to lead the cleanup only after the site was selected to be part of a state pilot program geared to cleaning up brownfields in the state. The program agreed to reimburse 70 percent of the project costs of up to $150,000. Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter approved the $1.5 million pilot program in 2006. Today, almost half of the cleanup projects are complete but the program has yet to be renewed.

Programs that offer financial assistance help incentivize property owners and local officials to lead cleanup projects of contaminated sites. Without incentives, it can be difficult to get cleanup efforts started.

Knowing what sites are brownfields can also be difficult. DEQ doesn't list a public inventory of brownfield sites not enrolled in some sort of cleanup effort.

That, said DEQ brownfields program manager, Aaron Scheff, is because it can potentially lower property values and give some individuals reason to sue the state.

However, some officials at DEQ believe such economic ramifications should be part of the incentive to clean up a contaminated piece of property.

"Having a contaminated site should lower your property value but it doesn't always work like that," said Bruce Wicherski, volunteer cleanup program manager at DEQ. "But it should."

On a national level, close to 23 states have some sort of tax incentive program to support cleanup projects, according to a report from ICF International, a consulting firm that partners with the government on environmental cleanup issues.

Various state programs include deferral of increased property taxes, remediation tax credits, cancellation of back taxes, rebates of sale taxes to offset cleanup costs and business tax offsets, the report listed.

In other states like Missouri and Connecticut, lawmakers have dedicated state funds to address cleanup and redevelopment of abandoned dry cleaning sites. Regardless of the source of support, those involved in brownfields work say the sites must be addressed.

"Financial incentive can help to cleanup a brownfield," Wicherski said, "but all these sites need to get cleaned up eventually."

Mistrial

jurors are not to consider possible punishment in their decision would prevent them from being prejudiced.

Judge Michael Crabtree, who was assigned to preside over the trial, called Brackett's action a "deliberate and flagrant" violation of the instructions.

"Why did you mention it, if not to appeal to the sentiments of or to inflame the jury?" Crabtree asked Brackett.

Brackett responded he wanted to show the jury that he was serious about his side of the story.

After a short recess, Crabtree returned to the courtroom with a new written jury instruction he said he hoped could move the trial forward.

"I want to proceed with this trial," he said. "I think it's curable with this instruction."

Stugrill argued that the mention of Brackett's possible sentence was just one of many things in Brackett's opening statement that was against prior rulings in the case.

Brackett was told not to imply misbehavior on the part of the alleged victim, or accuse the state of telling witnesses what to do, Stugrill said. She also said Brackett went against several other rulings by Judge Richard Bevan in his opening statement.

"He's been ordered and we've discussed what he's not to say and yet he went ahead and did it," Stugrill said.

After more discussion, Crabtree declared the mistrial, saying that while he was interested in getting the case tried soon, fairness for each side was also important. Crabtree noted the state was not at fault in the mistrial.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loeb said his office will wait for a new trial date to be set and continue with the case as originally planned.

Luna

the education reforms.

Luna said he has thick skin, but it's difficult when there's a perception that education reform is needed due to bad schools or teachers.

"We don't have bad schools in Idaho, folks," he said.

Luna said the question is whether "good schools are good enough."

The state's graduation rate is higher than 90 percent. But Luna also noted that only 47 percent of those graduates go on to pursue education past high school.

The bulk of Monday's meeting was spent on questions from attendees.

Those ranged from specifics about how pay-for-performance works to why school districts don't consolidate to save money.

Defending His Work

Luna said Propositions 1 and 2 ensure that students have a quality teacher every year.

When talking about Proposition 1, he said the law ends the practice of firing the last teacher hired if layoffs are necessary.

School boards need the ability to make their own decisions, he said.

He also noted that parents now have input in teacher evaluations.

It's up to school boards to decide how much weight that input is given in evaluations, Luna said.

He said Proposition 2's merit pay represents a change in the way teachers are compensated.

The current system doesn't motivate teachers or thank them for going the extra mile, he argued. The pay-for-performance bonuses now augment that system, he said.

Luna said that as of Monday, the state has identified the school districts where teachers will receive merit pay on last school year's work.

The average award, he said, is $2,000 per teacher.

Luna called Proposition 3 — classroom technology, particularly for high schools — "transformational."

State officials announced last week that Hewlett-Packard was awarded an eight-year, $180 million contract to supply laptops to every public high school teacher and student.

Luna said thousands of schools around the country are doing similar things with mobile computing devices and Idaho is "not plowing new ground here."

Luna said the laptops will represent about 1.5 percent of what the state spends on K-12 education.

He argued digital textbooks loaded onto the laptops could save $13 million that's spent each year on hard-copy textbooks.

One-to-one devices also eliminate the need for computer labs, he said.

Say 'NO' to abusing the Constitution Vote NO on HJR 2!

HJR 2 is a misguided solution looking for a problem:

- There are no threats to Idahoans' rights to hunt or fish. The claim that the Legislature or Idaho citizens might vote to ban fishing or deer hunting or elk hunting is preposterous.
- The Idaho Constitution should be reserved for protecting basic democratic rights. Passage of this proposed amendment would set a bad precedent for changing the Constitution to benefit particular groups.
- If HJR 2 is passed, new laws pertaining to wildlife would be challenged as unconstitutional. Idaho taxpayers would spend money litigating these issues.
- By making hunting, fishing and trapping a "preferred means of managing wildlife," HJR 2 would hinder the Department of Fish and Game in its use of other management tools.
- HJR 2 includes a perpetual guarantee of a right to trap wildlife. Unlike hunting and fishing, trapping is a cruel and prolonged way to kill animals, as well as a threat to pets and hunting dogs. Passage of HJR 2 would interfere with future regulations regarding trapping.
- If HJR 2 is defeated, existing rights to hunt, fish and trap will remain in effect.

Please vote NO on HJR 2!

MINICO, TWIN FALLS SURVIVE

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Three conference champions. Two playoff spots.

One school was leaving Canyon Ridge High School disappointed Monday night. Minico and Twin Falls made sure it wasn't them.

The Spartans rolled through the three-way Kansas City playoff, while the Bruins had to hit an extra point to punch their playoff ticket at Jerome's expense.

Minico beat Jerome 8-7 on the first possession, then beat Twin Falls 8-0, also on the first possession, to clinch the Great Basin Conference's top playoff seed and a home date with Skyview on Friday.

"Just how we wanted it," said Minico running back Jordan Browning, who scored all eight points against Jerome, including the two-point conversion to win it. "That was the coaches' decision, but we really wanted to go for two. I've got to thank the offensive line, because with them we think (getting three yards) is almost automatic."

It was automatic on Monday, as the Spartans spurned the chance to kick extra points on both touchdowns. Quarterback Shay Chandler rescued a broken play against Twin Falls, shedding two tacklers in the backfield to slam across the goal line for two points after Skye Dansie knifed in on the previous play.

Giants Win with Similar Formula

ASSOCIATED PRESS
SAN FRANCISCO • The Giants' championship formula is a familiar one, just with new faces all over the diamond two years later: stellar starting pitching backed by a shut-down bullpen, a late-season surge and a manager making all the right moves.

and won by a pair of pitchers not even on the World Series roster in 2010, and in Ryan Vogelsong's case he wasn't even in the majors back then. The only regular still around from that team is Posey, and the catcher had to rebound from devastating ankle and leg injuries sustained in a home-plate collision in late May 2011 to put together an MVP-caliber season and become the NL batting champ. He played far more than anybody envisioned his body would allow.

you want to play on a team that wins the World Series. And to go out there and contribute, there's nothing like that," Zito said. "We were very adamant that we have to step on their throats. We saw what they did to New York."
Marco Scutaro and Hunter Pence were this year's mid-season additions, with Scutaro following up Cody Ross in 2010 to earn NL championship series MVP honors.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"You gotta have a swine to show you where the truffles are."
— Edward Albee

Regular partnerships have firm agreements about leading honors against no-trump. One of the more sensible agreements is that from ace-king combinations, you lead the king if you want your partner to unblock the queen or jack, while the ace asks for attitude. Under the king, third hand drops an honor if he has one, or signals count.

Today, against three no-trump, West leads the heart king and East follows with the 10, suggesting a four-card suit. Now West knows a heart continuation would set up South's queen, so he shifts to a club. Declarer wins dummy's king and has to find a way to a ninth trick.

While declarer could hope to develop a spade trick, diamonds offer far more hope. At trick three, declarer must lead the diamond eight from the board as a sort of avoidance play. He is trying to set up a diamond trick while keeping East off lead. This approach will produce two tricks when East has only one of the diamond 10, queen or king.

Here West wins the diamond and plays a spade. South wins in hand, leads a club to the board, then plays the diamond jack, intending to let that card run if East plays low. When East covers, declarer wins the ace and plays a third diamond, thus setting up the long diamond for his ninth winner.

ANSWER: On this auction your partner's two-spade call suggests a weak hand with no game interest and approximately a five-card suit. In just the same way that you complete the transfer when partner asks you to, so here you must pass two spades. If your partner was interested in another strain or a higher level, he would not have signed off, as he did here.

DEAR ABBY: "Chaplin, Conn., Reader" (Aug. 16) suggested that teachers should be sharing life lessons with children. Unfortunately, many people in our society believe it — including parents. Students come to us with ever-increasing deficits in many non-curricular areas. But it is NOT the job of public educators to teach them the importance of families, helping grandparents, caring for household pets, etc.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

If these things come up in the course of the day and there is a need to address them, we try to clarify any misconceptions. But taking time to prepare and teach a lesson on any of these small but important subjects is no longer an option. The demands placed on teachers today are vast and complex. Just getting parents to follow through at home on school responsibilities is a job in itself. Many of them don't seem to think they need to help their kids be successful in school.

— SEEN IT ALL IN MICHIGAN

DEAR SEEN IT ALL: Thank you for your comments. The letter from "Chaplin, Conn. Reader" brought a HUGE number of responses on this issue, primarily from teachers:

DEAR ABBY: I have worked in an elementary school for nine years. A teacher is a counselor, doctor, social worker and behavioral specialist all in one. Kids come to class dirty, hungry, tired, with no manners or clue about the alphabet or counting. Teachers have halted lessons because a child is in a meltdown. Some kids have never held a pencil or scissors, and don't know how to share or take directions from an adult. It's sad to hear them say they have no crayons at home or books to read. As for testing, unless the parents do THEIR job, we will see little improvement in scores. And no, I don't work in a big-city school district — this is a nice suburban area.

— STILL LOVE MY JOB

DEAR ABBY: I spend half my teaching time on behavioral issues, social skills, bullying, how to work in a group and just trying to hold kids' attention. Many children today are so used to constant stimulation from TV, video games, texting, etc., that their attention spans max out at 30 seconds. I practically have to sing and dance to reach them or they tune out. I suggest "Chaplin" go to a school, volunteer, and try to become a part of the solution instead of adding to the burden of already overworked teachers.

— TEACHING INTACOMA

DEAR ABBY: You said parents should be the ones teaching the kinds of things the Connecticut reader wrote about. Then you asked where the parents are. Let me tell you! They're too busy on their smartphones talking to or fighting with their latest boy- or girlfriend, playing electronic games, out drinking and partying so much they don't know or care where their kids are. Parents who actually spend time with their children and give them undivided attention are sadly in the minority. Those who help to teach them are even fewer in number.

— KANSAS READER

DEAR ABBY: You are correct that teachers are overwhelmed by many curricular, legislative and administrative demands. However, educators can continually instill many of these life lessons into students by acting as positive role models who consistently demonstrate core values such as integrity, respect and determination. Students tend to do and learn what they see even more than what they are told — by parents AND teachers.

— ANNE IN NEVADA

DEAR ABBY: I am a retired physical education teacher, One day during a health class, a mother of one of my students came to school and told me I should teach "morals and manners" to her daughter. My response: "Ma'am, if you couldn't do that in 14 years, I can't do it in 40 minutes a day!"

IF OCTOBER 30 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You may feel you are on a roller-coaster ride during the year ahead, as both Saturn and Jupiter contact your area of the cosmic pie several times as force crucial decisions for better or for worse. Between now and mid-December, hold off on major decisions or changes and just buckle down to fulfilling existing obligations. Opportunities may arrive in January for true love or to enhance your reputation, so that is a great month to interview for a new job, ask for a raise or make major changes. Think for yourself and unflinchingly take care of responsibilities for the most success in the coming year.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The path of true love is not without bumps, but some days it is smooth as silk. Whatever barred your way is in the past and headway is possible. Apologies will be accepted and peace can be restored.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Passion can make a perfect playmate. You will do extremely well in whatever area obsesses you because you will not let go or quit until you have conquered the problem or attained your goals.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Volunteer some time, if not some money. Community events might offer a good time to make a public appearance at the local church, pitch in at the community center or participate in neighborhood festivities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You can't fight city hall. Find ways to cooperate with others and achieve compromise - even if you don't agree with policies. Sometimes, you simply must yield to the majority.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Ask for favors or cooperation. Make the best of the day by concentrating on what other people want and need. Good taste is shown in choice purchases, especially of clothing and decorative items.

VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A promise is only as good as the person making it. A guarantee is only as good as the power backing it up. Use your wisdom and intuitions to accept assurances only from the most trusted parties.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Shake hands with the winner and be a good sport. There is no reason to dwell on past misunderstandings. Be sure to frankly discuss your long-term goals and wishes with a significant other.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The proof is in the pudding. Work as hard as you can and ignore the lure of distracting daydreams. You have set the bar high with ambitious goals; if you play by the rules, you will achieve them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Concentrate on the strengths of others, rather than on their weaknesses. Small misunderstandings or a minor rift with a beloved companion can be cleared up. Accept gifts and gratuities graciously.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Even when bound by conventions, hearts can roam free. Mend fences that need attention. You can become a powerhouse of determined industry; put finishing touches on important tasks.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You appreciate others for their fine ideals and like to have the best of everything. Go ahead and spend cash on that tasteful item you have been yearning to own. Don't be stingy or cut corners.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your leadership skills can shine like a beacon. Tact and diplomacy are much appreciated by the folks in charge. Your whimsical sense of humor may win extra appreciation from friends and coworkers.

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 30, the 304th day of 2012. There are 62 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
 On Oct. 30, 1912, Vice President James S. Sherman, running for a second term of office with President William Howard Taft, died six days before Election Day. (Sherman was replaced with Nicholas Murray Butler, but Taft, the Republican candidate, ended up losing in an Electoral College landslide to Democrat Woodrow Wilson.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
 In 1735, the second president of the United States, John Adams, was born in Braintree, Mass.
 In 1893, the U.S. Senate gave final congressional approval to repealing the Sherman Silver Purchase Act of 1890.

In 1921, the silent film classic "The Sheik," starring Rudolph Valentino, premiered in Los Angeles.

In 1938, the radio play "The War of the Worlds," starring Orson Welles, aired on CBS.

In 1944, the Martha Graham ballet "Appalachian Spring," with music by Aaron Copland, premiered at the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., with Graham in a leading role.

In 1945, the U.S. government announced the end of shoe rationing, effective at midnight.

In 1953, Gen. George C. Marshall was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. Dr. Albert Schweitzer received the Peace Prize for 1952.

In 1961, the Soviet Union tested a hydrogen bomb, the "Tsar Bomba," with a force estimated at about 50 megatons. The Soviet Party Congress unanimously approved a resolution ordering the removal of Josef Stalin's body from Lenin's tomb.

In 1972, 45 people were killed when an Illinois Central Gulf commuter train was struck from behind by another train in Chicago's South Side.

In 1974, Muhammad Ali knocked out George Foreman in the eighth round of a 15-round bout in Kinshasa, Zaire, known as the "Rumble in the Jungle," to regain his world heavyweight title.

In 1985, schoolteacher-astronaut Christa McAuliffe witnessed the launch of the space shuttle Challenger, the same craft that carried her and six other crew members to their deaths in January 1986.

In 1997, a jury in Cambridge, Mass., convicted British au pair Louise Woodward of second-degree murder in the death of eight-month-old Matthew Eapen. (The judge, Hiller B. Zobel, later reduced the verdict to manslaughter and set Woodward free.)

Ten years ago: Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's broad-based coalition collapsed when Cabinet ministers from the moderate Labor Party resigned in a dispute over funding for Jewish settlements. Walter Mondale returned to politics as Minnesota Democrats approved the former vice president as a fill-in for the late Sen. Paul Wellstone less than a week before the election. (However, Mondale ended up losing to Republican Norm Coleman.) Jam Master Jay (Jason Mizell), a rapper with the Run-D.M.C. hip-hop group, was killed in a shooting in New York; was 37.

Five years ago: Democrats Barack Obama and John Edwards sharply challenged Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton's candor, consistency and judgment in a televised debate in Philadelphia. Singer-actor Robert Goulet died at a Los Angeles hospital at age 73.

One year ago: Britain's Sunday Telegraph published an interview with Syrian President Bashar Assad, who warned that a western intervention in Syria would lead to an "earthquake" that "would burn the whole region." Republican presidential candidate Herman Cain's campaign denied a Politico report that he'd been twice accused of sexual harassment while he was the head of the National Restaurant Association in the 1990s.

A Tale of Remediation

State officials have been monitoring the Super Quik site since 1985. However, it wasn't until Dabestani was hired in 2009 to clean up the site that the former fuel station began to show signs of remediation.

Dabestani is an environmental scientist and owner of Enviro-Mont in Twin Falls. When he was hired to work on the Super Quik site, he inherited more than 20 years worth of assessments and paperwork dedicated to figuring out how to clean up the site.

"I knew I had to find the source," he said. "If I couldn't find the source then any remediation I would do would be useless."

Unlike most former gasoline stations, the source of the contamination wasn't found near the underground tank. Instead, when Dabestani drilled 70 feet underground near a pipeline close to the pump stations, he discovered more than 320 gallons of leaded gasoline sitting on top of groundwater.

"We drilled there and bingo," he said. "You leave that and anything else you do will be ineffective."

The cleanup project soon became a community effort. Dabestani said he was calling on local and state experts for best remediation practices in such a unique geographic area.

"Twin Falls is different because it doesn't sit on a valley like most other cities," said Shawn Willsey, a geology professor at the College of Southern Idaho, who offered Dabestani information on the area's geology.

"Most cities sit on sand and loose sediment so the water pathways are fairly simple. Here in Twin, we have fractured basalt," he said. "This means water doesn't just move in one direction, it can go in any number of directions and you don't really know how deep or how far it will travel."

The complicated underground landscape forced Dabestani to set up nine different wells at various distances away from the site. He monitored contamination levels as he removed and cleaned 400,000 gallons of groundwater.

The water was treated by pumping contaminated groundwater out of the ground and into an air stripper. The water fell into a pipe while the contaminants, which are lighter than water, were blown to the top. The water was then treated with a chemical and eventually pumped into the city's wastewater system.

Throughout the cleanup process, Dabestani relied on the help of several engineers but also got several high school students to come out to the site to help maintain the work.

Isaac Laris, 18, is a senior at Twin Falls High School. He came out to the site to help Dabestani with some of the physical labor the project demanded. Eventually, he based his senior project on the cleanup efforts.

"We removed buckets after buckets of gasoline," he said. "It was pretty cool to learn the chemistry of it all. I'm thinking about studying chemistry after I graduate."

Three years later, Dabestani has finally reached the end of his project.

"I've worked on brownfields in other states but this has been the most challenging task I've ever done," he said. "But this was a win-win for everyone. The property can now be used for anything, DEQ is happy that it's cleaned and I get the pleasure of completing a complicated project."

One Down, Many to Go

Dabestani's successful cleanup project marks one less brownfield in the Magic Valley. However, many more remain.

Dabestani was able to lead the cleanup only after the site was selected to be part of a state pilot program geared to cleaning up brownfields in the state. The program agreed to reimburse 70 percent of the project costs of up to $150,000. Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter approved the $1.5 million pilot program in 2006. Today, almost half of the cleanup projects are complete but the program has yet to be renewed.

Programs that offer financial assistance help incentivize property owners and local officials to lead cleanup projects of contaminated sites. Without incentives, it can be difficult to get cleanup efforts started.

Knowing what sites are brownfields can also be difficult. DEQ doesn't list a public inventory of brownfield sites not enrolled in some sort of cleanup effort.

That, said DEQ brownfields program manager, Aaron Scheff, is because it can potentially lower property values and give some individuals reason to sue the state.

However, some officials at DEQ believe such economic ramifications should be part of the incentive to clean up a contaminated piece of property.

"Having a contaminated site should lower your property value but it doesn't always work like that," said Bruce Wicherski, volunteer cleanup program manager at DEQ. "But it should."

On a national level, close to 23 states have some sort of tax incentive program to support cleanup projects, according to a report from ICF International, a consulting firm that partners with the government on environmental cleanup issues.

Various state programs include deferral of increased property taxes, remediation tax credits, cancellation of back taxes, rebates of sale taxes to offset cleanup costs and business tax offsets, the report listed.

In other states like Missouri and Connecticut, lawmakers have dedicated state funds to address cleanup and redevelopment of abandoned dry cleaning sites.

Regardless of the source of support, those involved in brownfields work say the sites must be addressed.

"Financial incentive can help to cleanup a brownfield," Wicherski said, "but all these sites need to get cleaned up eventually."

the card to purchase inventory.

Parton said he received a percentage of the music sales from the business and was allowed to spend 30 percent of sales on inventory.

When interviewed by detectives, Parton allegedly said the owner of the store told him to get the card that was in a desk drawer to use because the person who signed the company's checks was not there.

According to court documents, Parton allegedly admitted to detectives that he purchased one or two dinners that he shouldn't have with the debit card.

Parton told detectives he did not check with the owner to see if he was allowed to purchase food or gas with the card.

Parton said his name was not on the card, but he signed his own name on the receipts.

Say 'NO' to abusing the Constitution
Vote NO on HJR 2!

HJR 2 is a misguided solution looking for a problem:

- There are no threats to Idahoans' rights to hunt or fish. The claim that the Legislature or Idaho citizens might vote to ban fishing or deer hunting or elk hunting is preposterous.
- The Idaho Constitution should be reserved for protecting basic democratic rights. Passage of this proposed amendment would set a bad precedent for changing the Constitution to benefit particular groups.
- If HJR 2 is passed, new laws pertaining to wildlife would be challenged as unconstitutional. Idaho taxpayers would spend money litigating these issues.
- By making hunting, fishing and trapping a "preferred means of managing wildlife," HJR 2 would hinder the Department of Fish and Game in its use of other management tools.
- HJR 2 includes a perpetual guarantee of a right to trap wildlife. Unlike hunting and fishing, trapping is a cruel and prolonged way to kill animals, as well as a threat to pets and hunting dogs. Passage of HJR 2 would interfere with future regulations regarding trapping.
- If HJR 2 is defeated, existing rights to hunt, fish and trap will remain in effect.

Please vote NO on HJR 2!
