POLITICIANS CONSIDER IMMIGRATION REFORM

TWIN FALLS • They came to the United States as children, their parents bringing them into the country illegally through no fault of their own.

For some, it's the only home they've ever known. Though they're undocumented, they hope to build their lives here.

And their future lies in the hands of elected officials for whom they can't vote.

As many as two million undocumented immigrants whose parents brought them to the United States as children could qualify to stay under the proposed DREAM Act, according to the Center for Immigration Studies. While Congress has unsuccessfully worked on immigration reform for years, one of Idaho's congressmen is optimistic that gridlock will soon dissolve.

But with different proposals on the table, no one knows what that reform might look like.

DREAM Act vs. Deferred Action

There are plenty of immigration reform options for Congress to consider.

The widely cited DREAM Act gives legal permanent residency to qualifying undocumented students. First introduced in 2001, the bill has been reintroduced in various forms frequently since then.

Despite Democrats controlling both House and Senate in 2010, Senate Republicans

Few School Boards Take Stance on Propositions

Minidoka and Castleford are among the exceptions.

BY JULIE WOOTTON

RUPERT • As Election Day draws closer, most area school boards are choosing not to take a stance on the Students Come First propositions.

But there are a few exceptions, including the Minidoka County and Castleford school boards.

Earlier this month, the Minidoka County school board voted in support of Proposition 1, the law that deals with teacher contracts and negotiations.

School board chairman Brian Duncan said the board discussed all three propositions and took a stance on Proposition 1 because members felt strongly about the benefits.

"I think a lot of it was mostly because our school board felt that it was important to get that position out there," he said.

Minidoka County's school board has no official stance on Propositions 2 or 3. That's partly because only three trustees attended a special board meeting last week, and they didn't want to take positions on the

Last Day for Absentee Ballot

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Today is the last day to request an absentee ballot in Idaho.

As long as you're a registered voter, you can still request a mail-in ballot from your county clerk.

Not a registered voter? You can still vote early in person and register there. Early voting runs until Friday.

The general election will be held on Nov. 6.

Visit idahovotes.gov for polling place and county clerk information. And, visit Magicvalley.com for pre-views of contested races across south-central Idaho.

Jerome Council Denies Developer Request

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

JEROME • After hearing testimony for more than an hour, the Jerome City Council denied a zoning change Tuesday night for a subdivision project.

Developers of the Maple Ridge Subdivision asked for a change for phase II of the project from single-family residential to multi-family residential.

All three council members at the meeting voted "no." Councilman Chris Barber wasn't at the meeting and didn't vote.

Councilman Dale Ross said a rezone would benefit Jerome and multi-family housing units are needed, but "it's not about me."

He said his decision is based on the testimony presented, and he represents everyone in the community.

"The people have spoken," he said.

Councilwoman Dawn Soto also said her decision was based on the testimony and facts presented.

Keystone Construction manages the subdivision, located off Tiger Drive.

At the beginning of the public hearing, subdivision owner Aaron Robertson said the rezone request is an "effort to take a struggling development and make it successful."

Robertson said developers aren't looking to pad their pockets.

He said he wants to create a partnership with the city to bring an asset to the community.

Robertson said he wants to maintain the same feel he started with the subdivision.

The goal is to have lower price points for units — around $100,000 — to reach a larger

New York Stock Exchange Will Reopen Wednesday

NEW YORK (AP) • The New York Stock Exchange will reopen for regular trading Wednesday after being shut down for two days because of Hurricane Sandy.

The exchange said in a statement Tuesday that its building and trading floor are fully operational and that normal trading will resume at the usual starting time of 9:30 a.m.

There had been erroneous reports Monday that the exchange floor had flooded. Exchange spokesman Ray Pellecchia said the exchange's building did not have any flooding or damage.

Tuesday marks the first time since 1888 that the NYSE remained closed for two consecutive days because of weather. The earlier shutdown was caused by a massive snow storm.

From the Notebook

Hunter-in-Training

I waved down a pickup of hunters in the South Hills on Friday evening and asked if I could follow the three of them back to their camp. But as soon as I mentioned “three,” a fourth head poked into view in the truck’s back seat.

Shaynee Walker, 9, wanted to be sure I saw her. And later, as I watched her 12-year-old cousin go after a deer, Shaynee made sure I knew that she’ll be a deer hunter soon, too.

“It’ll be my first year in 3 1/2 years,” the Hagerman girl said.

Long before she’s legal to hunt, Shaynee has absorbed her extended family’s hunting lore, and she narrated the big-game harvests as we flipped through the photos on her dad’s cell phone.

As I lingered in the family’s camp trailer, Shaynee pulled up a pant leg to show off the pink bucks and does on her wool socks. She praised her dad’s trailer meal of hamburger in fettuccine alfredo – from a box, he pointed out apologetically – and gave thanks for a safe return to camp in her prayer before the meal.

“I sleep up here, so I bonk my head a lot,” Shaynee told me, pointing to the tiny loft a few inches above our heads.

It would take more than a few bonks to subdue this girl’s enthusiasm for hunting season.

Poaching Affects Everybody

While talking with Gary Hompland, regional conservation officer for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, about illegal hunting, we discussed why many people in the business don’t use the word “poaching.” “It sort of refers back to a European old-world term that means stealing from the king or stealing from the crown,” Hompland said.

In old-world Europe, poaching could mean taking a deer from the king’s forest or taking grain from any landowner. It wasn’t limited to natural resources either.

Fish and Game violations can include taking animals out of season, wasting animals, taking more than allowed, trespassing, unlawful means of take and a number of other things.

“They may not, in the traditional context, mean poaching,” Hompland said.

Rather than just being a crime against one person, Hompland said modern-day poaching in Idaho is a crime against all Idahoans.

The Fun of a Corn Maze

For CSI students, the horticulture club is the “activity arm” of the academic program.

“They do things besides sit in the classroom in the lab,” horticulture professor David Kiesig told me.

There are about 40 students in CSI’s horticulture program, although not all of them are majors.

I was impressed that students designed a message in the maze, “Thanks Tree Man,” without using GPS. When I talked with two student leaders in the horticulture club Friday, they both hadn’t seen an aerial picture of their work.

I’m fascinated with the concept of corn mazes. Growing up in California, I remember going to pumpkin patches, but never a corn maze.

I guess when it’s 70 degrees and sunny year-round, there isn’t exactly a noticeable difference in seasons.

Now, I’m trying to make up for it by enjoying each season as it arrives.

Want to check out the CSI corn maze? There are only a couple more days to get out there. The maze is open from 5-10 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday.

Joy of Holiday Giving

Last week, I visited with Linda Short, 25-year volunteer and president of the non-profit Mini-Cassia Christmas Council to prepare for a story about the organization, which gives away about 600 boxes of gifts and food to families each December. The visit started out cheery as we talked about what kinds of donations the group needs and her expectations for the next couple of months.

At the end of the interview I asked her what drove her to return year after year as a volunteer, a commitment that lasts the whole year rather than just through the holiday season. She explained that her joy comes from knowing that others are watching their children open gifts on Christmas they wouldn’t receive without the council’s assistance, and knowing that an elderly person received a holiday dinner or blanket when that was the only item on their wish list.

She’s paid back for her efforts by the look in the eyes of the single mother or the grandmother raising her grandchildren as she hands them a box filled with presents and goodies. Short said she’s instilled that knowledge in her own children and now her grandchildren, who regularly volunteer at the Christmas Council. So as you’re browsing the store aisles this season looking for the perfect gifts to buy that will elicit joy in both the giver and receiver, remember how Short finds her joy.

Record-setting Halloween

Our unseasonably warm temperatures will continue for your Halloween. Last week when we were talking about the cold and possibility of snow, many were concerned and asking me, “Will we have a white Halloween?” With highs getting into the mid- to upper 70s, the answer is no.

An area of high pressure will be in control for one more day. Lots of sunshine and a southerly flow will help boost our temperatures later this afternoon to near record levels. The record high for Twin Falls is 75, set back in 2008. In Jerome, the record high is 73 – set back in 1990. It is possible we could tie or even break these records later this afternoon. The high today in Twin Falls should be right around the record of 75, while the high for Jerome should reach 74.

The trick-or-treat forecast for later this evening will be nice and mild with mostly clear skies and temperatures ranging from the upper 60s around 6 p.m. to the mid-50s by 10 p.m.

A cold front moves through southern Idaho during the day on Thursday. With it comes a chance of a shower or two and much cooler temperatures. We will go from the mid-70s to the upper 50s for the day Thursday and start the month of November with more seasonal air in place.

CLARIFICATION

A Tuesday story about a woman accused of fabricating a story that she was pregnant and needed financial assistance left out the specific charge against her.

Twin Falls County prosecutors filed a charge of grand theft by deception against Lisa Holley on Oct. 23.

Also in the story, Holley said she was scheduled to go to court today following a summons issued in the case. On Tuesday, she told the Times-News that date was incorrect. According to court clerks, a person has five days to appear in court following a summons being returned; Holley’s has not yet been returned.

TWIN FALLS AREA HOME BUILDER PLEADS GUILTY TO TAX EVASION

TIMES-NEWS

BOISE • A Twin Falls County-based home builder pleaded guilty to tax evasion in U.S. District Court in Boise Tuesday.

Justin D. Shoenauer, 41, also known as Corey J. Schoenauer, pleaded guilty to one count of income tax evasion for tax year 2007, according to an announcement by the U.S. Attorney's Office, the U.S. Justice Department and the Internal Revenue Service-Criminal Investigation.

Schoenauer was indicted by a federal grand jury in Boise on Feb. 14, 2012.

According to the announcement, Schoenauer operated Patagonia Construction and admitted that during tax years 2005 through 2008, he concealed the business' receipts.

He also admitted that he told some customers to make checks payable to him personally, rather than to the business, and did not deposit those checks into the business' bank account, the announcement stated.

"When having tax returns prepared, Schoenauer falsely told his return preparer that all of his business receipts were deposited into the main Patagonia bank account, thereby concealing Patagonia's gross receipts and causing the preparation and filing of false tax returns," the announcement states.

According to the announcement, the government is seeking $429,436 in restitution and Schoenauer will pay the IRS $35,000 at his sentencing.

The charge of income tax evasion is punishable by up to five years in prison, a maximum fine of $250,000 or twice the gross gain or the gross loss caused by the offense, and up to three years of supervised release.

Schoenauer is scheduled to be sentenced on Jan. 23, 2013, by Chief U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winnmill at the federal courthouse in Boise.

The case was investigated by IRS-Criminal Investigation and is being prosecuted by the Justice Department's Tax Division.

Kimberly Council To Decide Water Issue

BY DAVE WILKINS
For the Times-News

KIMBERLY • The Kimberly City Council is expected to make a decision on water rates at its next regular meeting Nov. 13.

The council is considering a new base rate of $34.43 per month, which would include $16.84 for a bond payment associated with the city's new water system. Residents would pay an additional $1 per 1,000 gallons of water used.

Currently, residents pay $16.84 per month to cover the bond payment, plus $2 per 1,000 gallons used.

Some big water users could see a break on their monthly bills under the proposed rate change, while some smaller users could see an increase.

A household using 3,000 gallons of water per month would see their bill increase from $22.84 to $37.43 per month under the proposal.

A customer using 75,000 gallons per month would see their monthly bill shrink from $166.84 to $109.43.

Elected officials say the proposed rate change is intended to keep the city within budget and to ensure that costs are shared equitably among all users. Heavy water users have paid a disproportionate share of total water system costs over the past year or so, Mayor Tracy Armstrong said.

The Idaho Rural Water Users Association recommended the change after conducting a review of the city's rate structure at the council's request.

to begin Jan. 28 and last through Feb. 4 in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

Judge Richard Bevan was handling the case, but Judge Michael Crabtree from Minidoka County took it over starting Monday. An order reassigning the case cites "judicial economy" as the reason for the switch. The documents state Bevan has not recused himself from the case.

Brackett, 44, is representing himself in the case. He faces eight counts of using a child in or possessing sexually exploitative material and seven counts of sexual battery committed by lewd or lascivious acts on a minor child aged 16 or 17.

Another Arrest Connected to Child Abuse Case

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

HANSEN • Another man has been arrested in connection with a case where a Hansen couple was accused of sexually exploiting a young girl for several years.

Bruce Lowell Wilson, 57, of Twin Falls, was arrested on four counts of sexual exploitation of a child. He's being held at the Twin Falls County Jail on $250,000 bond.

In September, Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies alleged David Michael Meyers and Kandi Gay Mohr, both 45, of Hansen, repeatedly molested a young child for several years, starting when she was about 2 years old. The child is now 11.

legedly found pictures sent by Mohr.

"...We know Kandi has sent pornographic images of juvenile children, to include but not limited to the victim in this case, to friends of hers via cellphone and/or other electronic devices," the records state.

Investigators sent electronic items seized from the home to a computer forensic laboratory. Several explicit pictures of juvenile girls were allegedly found on the items.

Mohr was arraigned in Twin Falls County 5th District Court on Monday. She waived a preliminary hearing, and a jury trial is set in her case for Feb. 26, 2013.

Mohr is charged with two counts of sexual abuse of a minor under 16, two counts of lewd conduct with a minor under 16, and one count of injury to a child. She pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Meyers is charged with one count of sexual abuse of a minor under 16, two counts of lewd conduct with a minor under 16 and nine counts of sexual exploitation of a child. A preliminary hearing in his case is scheduled for Nov. 9.

On Sept. 14, deputies and Twin Falls police investigators met with FBI agents to discuss the case.

According to court records, FBI agents chatted online with Meyers, who was using a screen name to talk about his girlfriend, Mohr, and a child the two were sexually active with. The court records allege Meyers eventually sent pictures of the 11-year-old child to FBI agents and admitted to abusing the girl from the time she was 3 years old.

Through interviews while investigating the case, detectives discovered Wilson also allegedly sexually abused the girl.

Investigators went to Wilson's home and seized his cellphone where they al-

Court Date Set for Gooding Water Debt

TIMES-NEWS

GOODING • A 5th District judge will hear the city of Gooding's request to take on debt for a water project in December.

The court hearing will take place at 1:30 p.m. Dec. 11 at the Gooding County Courthouse. Judge John Butler will oversee the hearing. Gooding City Council members seek to finance a water system improvement project without a public vote.

The proposed water system improvement project is estimated to cost the city close to $9.45 million, though grants could help with some of that total. Water users would have to repay the loan for the project with a 1 percent interest rate; Mayor Duke Morton has said water rates could double.

Some residents have criticized the project, but council members say improvements are needed for the health and safety of citizens.

In Idaho, local government entities, like the city of Gooding, can ask a judge to review long-term debt to deem it an ordinary and necessary expense for the city. The other option is to hold a public vote on the debt.

Red Cross Seeks Emergency Blood Donations

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The American Red Cross is facing a blood and platelet shortage due to hundreds of canceled blood drives in states hit by Hurricane Sandy.

The canceled blood drives have already caused a shortage of 9,000 blood and platelet donations, according to a news release.

The organization is now requesting all eligible donors in unaffected parts of the country to give blood and platelets.

The American Red Cross is in need of all blood types, especially type O positive, O negative, A negative or B negative blood. Interested donors must bring a blood donor card or driver's license, or two other forms of identification at the time of donation. For those under the age of 17, individuals must weigh at least 110 pounds and be in generally good health to donate blood.

Call 1-800-RED-CROSS or visit redcross-blood.org for more information or to make an appointment.

Re-elect Hartgen to District 24 Seat

It's been a long time since a Democrat campaigned as hard in a Magic Valley election, but Rosemary Fornshell is giving Republican incumbent Stephen Hartgen a run for his money. This is her first run for an elected office. "I saw the opening and I believe the incumbent needs an opponent," she said. "Democracy is best when both sides are active." We couldn't agree more.

She said she has been thinking about a run for public office for more than a decade. It was a combination of her recent retirement and redistricting that sparked her interest in the seat.

Before redistricting, Fornshell and Hartgen lived in District 23, which was a portion of the city of Twin Falls, much of western Twin Falls County and all of Owyhee County.

With redistricting, they now live in District 24, which encompasses the city of Twin Falls, turning it into a more urban legislative district.

Fornshell said, "(District 23) was real rural and that doesn't interest me as much."

Her heart, she said, lies in city issues, such as urban economic development.

Fornshell would be a good representative for the city of Twin Falls. She is a long-time community volunteer. She's smart and understands the issues facing the city and we would whole-heartedly endorse her if she were running for a city council seat.

However, she is running for a statewide office and her statement about not being that interested in rural issues ignores that she is running for a state office, not a city council seat. Whoever is elected for District 24 will be asked to vote and form opinions on issues that are very rural such as liens on feed and livestock, water issues and spending on agriculture-related research projects.

Twin Falls might be urban, but our main economic driver is agriculture. Not having an interest in rural issues ignores that fact.

By contrast, Hartgen has proven himself to be immensely curious and well-informed about issues in all corners of the state. In fact, the amount of time he spends researching makes him a formidable opponent or a strong advocate, depending on what side of the issue you are on.

Hartgen is a staunch conservative who believes in privatization where possible and deep tax breaks for business. He is deeply and openly loyal to the Republican Party — which is both his strength and his weakness as a legislator.

During his visit with the Times-News editorial board he admitted that he was personally against the closed primary, but voted for it. When we asked him why he would do that, he said, "It was not a vote of conscience. It was a vote of politics."

Party politics aside, Hartgen works hard for his constituents — during the session and the months between. As a long-time newspaper man (former publisher of the Times-News), he works hard to keep his ear to the ground and to share what he's learned with those he represents. He is a strong voice for the Magic Valley in Boise and we endorse his re-election to District 24.

Jerome County Needs Jack Nelsen's Support at CSI

Although there are two great candidates for the College of Southern Idaho trustee position, I believe Jack Nelsen will fit better with the mission statement for CSI.

We need representation from the north side of the taxing support, i.e., Jerome County. Jack has been involved with CSI directly for many years; he has been involved with the community (planning and zoning in Jerome County with all the controversy there) and has handled it in a professional manner! There are many legal resources available to the "board," so being an attorney is not an advantage to being elected as a trustee! I do think the input from a community leader, without ties to the state is better for CSI. Open eyes are better than closed!

Idahoans Want Accountability Not Tenure

Vote yes on Proposition 1.

The education reform propositions on the ballot aren't really about laptops or technology. The teacher's union would like you to believe they are. That's why they are scaring voters about technology.

The teacher's union knows that if the public really knew the truth about labor policies in this state, there would be a revolution. This election is really about Prop 1: Tenure.

Currently in Idaho, it's nearly impossible to fire an ineffective teacher. And when a district tries to, it usually costs $75,000 in legal fees to do it. We all know these teachers exist and yet the union protects them.

Tenure doesn't exist in the real world. In the real world, you have to prove your worth and have to be on your A game every day. And you are financially rewarded for it. There are no lifetime contracts. Prior to education reform, teachers got tenure and kept it for life. Now because of education reform, new teachers are on a one- or two-year contract. Teachers who have tenure keep it.

Do the citizens of Idaho really want to wake up on Nov. 7 and have tenure back in our schools? No. Idahoans want accountability. They want the best teachers teaching our children. Tenure isn't good for students. Those trying to get your vote know this. Vote to keep tenure out of our schools: Vote yes on Prop 1.

Lee Heider's Kindness, Generosity Is Remembered

My wife and I, on a visit from Los Angeles to see my son in Boise, had the pleasure of a happenstance meeting with Sen. Lee Heider in the Boise State Capitol building in late September. He was kind enough to take time to visit with us and provide us with some of the building's architectural design points as well as background on state finances. Impressive all around! To highlight our visit all the more, he graciously gifted us with his Idaho State lapel pin. We are enjoying the pin as it provides yet another story to share with friends and family of our visit to your great state. His kind generosity and grace touched each of us. We wish you good fortune in your campaign, Senator. Thanks again!

Vote for Sen. Lee Heider and the right to hunt, fish and trap amendment, H.J.R. 2.

Sen. Heider deserves another term. He does his homework to make sure he understands the issues and the wishes of his constituents. He did a great job of putting together an amendment that will preserve our hunting, fishing and trapping heritage. He has the near unanimous support of his legislative colleagues, Gov. Otter and the Fish and Game Commission on this constitutional amendment.

Time for Idaho To Control Forests BLM Lands

I used to enjoy hunting deer, not because I liked to kill one but because it got me out into our wonderful Idaho. I do not hunt anymore — I can't even hike very far, but I go rock hunting whenever I have the chance, partly because I love the outdoors and partly because I am in such awe that a plain little rock can be transformed into an intricate piece of beautiful jewelry. Kind of like people, if you take the time to get acquainted.

Now for the soap box. It is time for Idaho to have control of Idaho forests and Bureau of Land Management lands. We do not need a senator from New Jersey or New York or California to tell us how to take care of our lands. We also do not need all the environmentalists out there closing all the trails and introducing animals that are not indigenous to this state.

I am usually pretty easy going, but this really gets me angry. If we live here in Idaho and pay our taxes and take care of the land when we go out instead of tearing it up, we need to be able to use our land. We don't need some citified rich person who does not even love Idaho and who has never lived here telling us what to do. There is no reason we cannot work together to make this a better state and manage our public lands "together." End of soap box.

Thank you for letting me spout.

Donna Pence Is a Practicing Conservationist

During the past several weeks, this paper has published several letters in support of Rep. Donna Pence. These letters list a number of her accomplishments and reasons to vote for her to continue representing District 26. The reasons listed are all good reasons for you to vote for Donna.

However, I would like to add another reason for voting for Donna Pence. If you live or work in Lincoln, Gooding, Camas or Blaine County, your livelihood directly or indirectly depends on our natural resources. Agriculture, tourism and recreation in the four-county district all rely on the wise use of our water, soil, air, wildlife, plant resources and natural beauty.

Donna Pence is a practicing conservationist. I have known Donna for well over 30 years. Joyce and I have hunted, fished, fenced riparian test areas and camped with Donna, Lew and their family. All three of Lew and Donna's three daughters are college graduates in natural resources and currently work in that area.

I urge the voters in the four-county area to join Joyce and me in marking our ballots for Donna Pence.

Thank you.

Vote Yes on HJR2 for Idaho's Future

Have you ever had a rainbow trout break the surface of Silver Creek to take the fly you tied last night or trolled in Henry's Lake with your grandchildren as they excitedly reeled in a 5- or 6-pounder? Have you heard the chill of autumn air re-sound with the bugle of a big bull elk on a frosty morning? Or have you helped a child or grandchild dress a nice mule deer in the South Hills after a successful hunt?

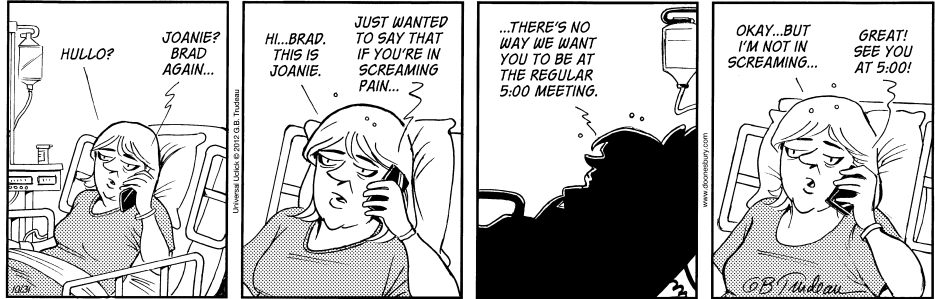

These are the memories the Idaho State Legislature is trying to preserve for future generations of Idahoans with the passage of HJR2: The right to hunt, fish and trap in Idaho.

There are no hidden agendas, no secret governmental controls, no less involvement by the Idaho Fish and Game department, no attempt to exclude anyone's rights to view wildlife, birds or foliage on public lands, no liberal nor conservative agendas. We simply wish to preserve for future generations the rights to hunt, fish and trap on the beautiful lakes, streams and hills of Idaho.

This amendment preserves for our children and grandchildren the blessings we as Idahoans have enjoyed in our lifetime. Please vote "yes" on HJR2 on Nov. 6 for Idaho's future.

Hunters Halfway to Wyo. Wolf Quota

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) • Hunters are easily on track to max out their kill limit for the first wolf season in Wyoming since the animals were reintroduced to the Yellowstone region in the 1990s.

That contrasts with Montana, which fell well short of its statewide limit last year and in a couple months is about to supplement hunting with trapping to help achieve its wolf population goals.

A trophy game season for wolves in the northwest corner of Wyoming outside Yellowstone and Grand Teton national parks began Oct. 1 and ends Dec. 31. As of Tuesday, hunters had killed at least 27 wolves in that area toward the season limit of 52 animals.

Three wolf hunt areas in northwest Wyoming were closed to further hunting after kill limits in those local areas were reached. Might the limit for all 12 areas be reached by year's end?

"It's definitely possible. It's really hard to predict that kind of thing, especially since this is the first time we've had a regulated wolf hunt in Wyoming," Wyoming Game and Fish Department spokesman Eric Keszler said Tuesday.

Neither Idaho nor Montana has statewide wolf limits this year. In 2009, both states' inaugural wolf seasons were cut short by a judge who suspended them. Montana and Idaho initiated their first full wolf hunting seasons in 2011.

In Wyoming, wolves were removed from endangered species protection for the first time in August. Of the three states, Wyoming is the only one with "dual classification" for wolves. In most of Wyoming, wolves can be killed on sight, without a license, any time of year.

In northwest Wyoming, wolves are classified as trophy game subject to licensed hunting during the new hunting season. Wildlife managers intentionally set a low limit for the first hunt in part because Wyoming has fewer wolves than Montana or Idaho.

"Also, this being our first season, we wanted to approach it fairly conservatively and be able to adaptively manage in the future based on how this first season goes," Keszler said.

In Montana, hunters killed 166 wolves in 2011, far short of that year's limit of 220. Montana ranchers and others eager to control the state's wolf population looked to Idaho, where trappers helped reduce that state's total estimated wolf population by at least one-third over a 10-month hunting season.

Albion Valley Historical Society members Tressa Toner, right, and Don Danner look over some of the valley's historical documents, photos and artifacts that will be housed at the new Albion Valley Historical Center.

Albion's History Gets Permanent Home

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

ALBION • Some of the Albion Valley's most precious historical treasures will finally find a permanent home more than 140 years after the first settlers arrived.

Some of the valley's assets include documents and artifacts like the tables and jury chairs from the 1897 Diamondfield Jack trial — held at the courthouse in Albion, which was then the county seat.

Other items are an organ from the Masonic Lodge and a marble sundial and bell once located at the Albion State Normal School Campus.

"There is a rich, rich history here that we have to preserve," said Don Danner, president of the Albion Valley

Historical Society.

Right now, those artifacts and more are housed by historical society members and individual families in the community until the museum is opened.

Danner purchased the old Sage Mountain Grill on Idaho Highway 77 in Albion for $160,000 and plans to lease the building to the historical society to use as the new Albion Valley Historical Center.

The cedar shake building has multiple rooms, high ceilings and two large decks.

"We want to do something here that is more than just a museum," said Tressa Toner, member of the historical society. "We want to have displays that rotate and items that are on loan and things that really make people want to come back."

CITIZEN BOARD RECOMMENDS BLM STERILIZE WILD HORSES

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • The federal agency charged with managing wild horses and burros that roam freely across 11 Western states should consider sterilizing some mares to control booming mustang populations and protect rangelands, a citizen advisory panel recommended Tuesday.

The Bureau of Land Management has long struggled with how to manage growing horse herds on public lands, which can double naturally within five years if left unchecked. Horses have been injected with drugs and vaccines to slow reproduction and rounded up for adoption, but the agency currently has more horses in captivity than are left roaming the range, forcing the emphasis to shift to population control rather than roundups.

Nearly 60 percent of the agency's entire budget for the wild horse program is spent on housing horses.

Drugs currently used to slow reproduction in wild horse herds must be re-administered regularly because they only work for about a year, and drugs that work longer have not yet been approved for use on wild horses, said Dr. Boyd Spratling, a veterinarian from Deeth, Nev. and chairman of the bureau's Wild Horse and Burro Advisory Board.

Wild horses run to the Bernalillo County Sheriff's Posse Arena in 2006 in Albuquerque, N.M.

Instead, spaying horses — or surgically removing the ovaries of older mares — eliminates the need for frequent roundups for adoption or to administer drugs, he said. Younger mares could still foal.

It's not a permanent solution, Spratling said, but a tool the BLM should have available for use in its effort to control herd sizes.

"Surgery is never 100 percent safe, but this is considered to be effective and relatively safe and has long been used in the racehorse industry," he said.

The BLM estimates there are 37,000 horses on public lands in the West.

An additional 47,000

horses have been removed from the range and are being cared for in short-term or long-term holding areas.

The agency faces a complicated task of trying to balance the needs of the federally protected herds against competing interests of other wildlife species, livestock, ranchers and hunters amid an ongoing drought and shrinking budgets.

Jerome

market.

The plan for phase II was to construct 93 units, including single-family homes, twin homes and four-plexes.

In August, the Jerome Planning and Zoning Commission recommended approval of the zoning change.

Discussion and project changes for phase II of the subdivision have lasted nearly two years.

In March 2011, the city council voted 3-1 to reject a zoning change for the project.

Testimony

Seven people testified in opposition to the zoning change and two testified in favor during the public hearing.

Numerous letters and emails on both sides of the issue were also read into the record.

Some were in response to an email from developer Colby Walter asking for residents' opinions of the proposal.

Julie Edwards said her largest concern with the phase II proposal is the high density of units.

"It's just way too many people crammed into a living situation like that," she said.

Paul Dickinson said he had concerns about traffic and that the additional units would be so close to schools. Approving a zoning change, he said, "opens a giant can of worms for every developer."

Jo Lynn Dickinson presented a petition signed by residents opposing the zoning change.

Chelsey and Josh Clixby both spoke in favor of the zoning change.

"I strongly believe in growing this community," Chelsey Clixby said.

Phase II of the subdivision project, she said, would be a "brilliant opportunity" for the community.

She said with the more affordable price point, it would allow more people to have the opportunity to own a home.

She said she doesn't believe the additional units would downgrade the neighborhood or the value of her home.

In a rebuttal to concerns, Robertson said some residents are worried about things that wouldn't be an option under the project proposal.

The proposal doesn't call for apartments or high-density housing, he said.

He said traffic on Tiger Drive will increase no matter where in Jerome the 93 units were built.

That's because people will be going to church and school in the area, he said.

Robertson said phase II seeks to grow the community.

Without the zoning change, he said, developers will look at subsidized housing in the subdivision.

"I'm trying to avoid that," he said.

Animal Activists Want Sign Honoring Dead Fish

IRVINE (AP) • Animal activists want a California roadside memorial sign to honor fish killed during a container truck crash.

People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals volunteer Dina Kourda told Irvine's street maintenance chief the sign would remind drivers that fish value their lives and feel pain.

About 1,600 pounds of saltwater bass died on Oct. 11 when the truck hauling them to market got into a three-way crash.

Kourda's letter acknowledges roadside memorials traditionally honor humans, but she hopes an exception will be made.

Irvine spokesman Craig Reem said there won't be a fish memorial.

But PETA spokeswoman Asheley Byrne said they will go back and ask again.

It's not the first time PETA has asked to post a memorial for animals killed on their way to slaughter.

They've tried to honor pigs killed in Virginia and cows killed in crashes in Illinois, Kansas, and Manitoba, Canada, Byrne said.

None have been approved.

Idaho's $182M Laptop Contract Is for Rental

BY BETSY Z. RUSSELL
Spokesman-Review

BOISE • Idaho's newly inked $182 million, eight-year contract with Hewlett-Packard Co. for laptop computers for its high school students contains a surprising feature: The state won't actually own the computers, and if they're lost, damaged or stolen, it'll have to pay H-P for them.

The contract price is $292.77 per year per laptop, with each unit on a four-year replacement schedule. That means over the four years, the state will pay $1,171 per unit.

H-P, in the contract, agrees to provide a full manufacturer's warranty on the laptops for four years. An example: If the hard drive went out in the third year, they'd replace it. But they wouldn't cover accidental loss, damage or theft.

State Department of Education spokeswoman Melissa McGrath said the state doesn't expect much in the way of such losses. "In speaking with other schools and the state of Maine that have fully implemented one-to-one programs, they estimate just about 1 percent of devices a year, if even that, must be replaced or repaired outside the warranty," she said. "We do not believe Idaho will be any different."

Supplying every Idaho high school student with a laptop com-

Idaho Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna, center, along with Gov. Butch Otter, right, and executives from Hewlett-Packard Co., announced that HP was awarded a multi-year contract to provide laptops and technology support to Idaho students on Oct. 23 in Boise.

puter is a centerpiece of Idaho state schools Superintendent Tom Luna's "Students Come First" school reform plan, which goes before voters next week in three ballot measures. If voters reject Proposition 3, the laptop contract would be canceled.

Luna has touted the contract as a bargain for the state; a copy was obtained by The Spokesman-Review on Tuesday under the Idaho Public Records Law.

"This is a very comprehensive, full-service agreement," Luna said last week when he announced the newly signed contract. "On an annual basis that works out to less than 2 percent of what we spend every year on our K-12 education system."

However, the costs are higher than Luna originally estimated. In 2011, when he first proposed the plan to bring the state to a "1-to-1 ratio" of computers to high school students, Luna and his staff estimated the cost at $60.8 million for five years; when costs for improving the wireless infrastructure were added in, the figure rose to $70.8 million. If that five-year figure had held on a per-year average basis, the eight-year contract would only be $113 million, 40 percent less.

Former Idaho state schools superintendent Jerry Evans, who is opposing Luna's reform plan, said, "What it amounts to is a continuous eight-year appropriation from the Legislature to Hewlett-Packard, for funds that might otherwise be better used by the school district for other purposes."

Under the contract, the company will retain title to the computers, and the state will be liable for all risk of loss, including damage or theft.

If a laptop is damaged, the state must have it repaired at state expense within 60 days. If one is lost or stolen, the state would have to pay H-P for it. H-P wrote in its proposal that it "strongly recommends" an optional one-year accidental damage protection service that it provides for laptops at a cost of $17 apiece. That's not covered by the contract, however.

Boards

two with the other members absent.

"We don't currently have any plans to have a board meeting ahead of the election," Duncan said.

As the county's school district superintendent, Scott Rogers said he keeps his political views to himself and works with many groups.

"I try to stay neutral on political issues in my role as superintendent," he said.

The school board, however, is already involved in the political landscape, Rogers said.

"As an elected body, the board has a right to take a stance," he said.

Duncan said Proposition 1 has allowed teachers a greater voice in negotiations between teacher unions and school districts.

As part of the negotiations, he said, the school board also set up a special work session for teachers to air concerns.

Board members also went through old bargaining agreements and put many items into board policy.

Duncan is a past president of the Idaho School Boards Association. He was also a member of the state's Students Come First technology task force.

Like the Minidoka County School District, the ISBA is also publicly supporting Proposition 1.

Executive Director Karen Echeverria said she heard of a few school districts around the state that have taken a stance on one or more of the propositions.

Not all supported the laws. In September, the Boise School District's board took a "no" position on all three propositions.

In Castleford, the school board decided just the opposite — to support all three laws.

Superintendent Andy Wiseman said every school district may be affected differently by the laws.

"We are certainly just representing our own district with that statement," he said.

The school board had an open meeting earlier this month to talk about the propositions. No school employees or community members attended, Wiseman said.

After the decision was made, a letter from the school board went out Oct. 9 to school employees.

"While we do not support the development, presentation, and all components of the Students Come First legislation, we feel that it is more worthwhile to invest our efforts in the development and change of the current statute, rather than completely repealing the laws," the letter reads.

Other Views

Among south-central Idaho school boards, only Minidoka County and Castleford have taken a stance on Propositions 1, 2 or 3. Here's what other school officials have to say.

Twin Falls: Spokeswoman Beth Pendergrass said the board of trustees' stance has been to encourage voters to research the issues and make informed decisions.

Dietrich: Superintendent Neal Hollingshead said the school board hasn't taken a stance on the propositions.

But unofficially, he said, teachers and school board members aren't in favor of any of them.

Buhl: Superintendent Byron Stutzman said voters should become educated on school employees, local governance and flexibility being returned to the school district, pay-for-performance each proposition because they're separate issues.

And it's possible to vote "yes" on one proposition and "no" on another, he noted.

"I feel the misconception that it is an all-or-none issue when it is not," he wrote in an email to the Times-News. "Each proposition has its own items of which the voting public needs to be aware."

Reform

blocked passage of the bill through filibuster.

In June 2012, President Barack Obama issued an executive order deferring deportation cases for undocumented immigrants who meet certain criteria, such as graduating school and having no significant criminal record.

Deferred action isn't DREAM — it offers no path to citizenship, for one — but it's a step in the right direction, said immigration attorney Jeremy Pittard in an interview last week.

"I'd like to see it become legislation," said Pittard, who practices in Twin Falls and Jerome. "It's going to take an act of Congress to make this permanent."

The STEM Act

The DREAM Act and deferred action aren't the only immigration proposals, and not all deal with undocumented immigrants.

U.S. Rep. Raul Labrador, R-Idaho, proposed the STEM Act in September. STEM, which stands for science, technology, engineering and mathematics, aimed to make it easier for foreign-born graduate students to stay in the United States by eliminating bureaucratic barriers in the visa program.

That would help not only those graduate students, but the United States economy, Labrador said.

"Right now, foreign born students are benefitting from our education system, and then going home to compete with us," Labrador said in a September speech on the U.S. House Floor.

The bill, which needed a two-thirds majority to pass, died in the House despite bipartisan support.

In a Tuesday interview with the Times-News, Labrador said he's optimistic Congress will reconsider the bill.

An Ambitious Reform Plan

Labrador, who has 15 years of experience as an immigration attorney, said the STEM Act is only one piece of the complex immigration reform puzzle. He also hopes to strengthen border security and expand the guest worker program to dairy workers.

Labrador doesn't support the DREAM Act, Deferred Action or any form of amnesty for undocumented immigrants. That doesn't mean he's ignoring the plight of people who would qualify for deferred action.

"We have to find a solution for these kids who are here through no fault of their own," he said.

But to solve the problem, Congress needs to look at immigration as a whole, he said. It's too easy for people to enter the country illegally, and too difficult for them to enter legally, he said. But, he said, most of those individuals should go back to their home countries and reapply to come into the country legally.

His office is researching previously introduced proposals. If Labrador wins his re-election campaign — he faces Democratic challenger Jimmy Farris in the general election — he plans to tackle immigration reform and work with both Senate and House membership in both parties to reach a consensus.

"We're really close, I think," Labrador said.

The Other Players

Getting Congress to agree on the details of reform is tricky.

Most Congressional Democrats support the DREAM Act, while most Republicans tend to focus on tighter border security and guest worker programs.

U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo, R-Idaho, supported the DREAM Act in 2005, but now opposes amnesty.

"Crapo's initial support for provisions of the DREAM Act came because he feels children should not be held accountable for the actions of their parents who may have broken U.S. law to come here. He still feels a visa situation should be studied to avoid breaking up families," said Lindsay Nothern, Crapo's spokesman, in an email to the Times-News.

Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney has said he wouldn't continue deferred action if he wins, but wouldn't revoke the status for those already approved, according to an interview with the Denver Post.

"Before those visas have expired, we will have the full immigration reform plan that I've proposed," Romney told the Post.

Though another president could do away with Deferred Action, Pittard doesn't think that's going to happen.

"I think the political backlash of that could be tremendous," Pittard said.

DISARRAY IN SANDY'S WAKE

PITTSBURGH (AP) • The most devastating storm in decades to hit the country's most densely populated region upended man and nature as it rolled back the clock on 21st-century lives, cutting off modern communication and leaving millions without power Tuesday as thousands who fled their water-menaced homes wondered when — if — life would return to normal.

A weakening Sandy, the hurricane turned fearsome superstorm, killed at least 50 people, many hit by falling trees, and still wasn't finished. It inched inland across Pennsylvania, ready to bank toward western New York to dump more of its water and likely cause more havoc Tuesday night. Behind it: a dazed, inundated New York City, a waterlogged Atlantic Coast and a moonscape of disarray and debris — from unmoored shore-town boardwalks to submerged mass-transit systems to delicate presidential politics.

"Nature," said New York City Mayor Michael Bloomberg, assessing the damage to his city, "is an awful lot more powerful than we are."

More than 8.2 million households were without power in 17 states as far west as Michigan. Nearly 2 million of those were in New York, where large swaths of lower Manhattan lost electricity and entire streets ended up under water — as did seven subway tunnels between Manhattan and Brooklyn at one point, the Metropolitan Transportation Authority said. The New York Stock Exchange was closed for a second day from weather, the first time that has happened since a blizzard in 1888. The city's subway system, the lifeblood of more than 5 million residents, was damaged like never before and closed indefinitely, and Consolidated Edison said electricity in and around New York could take a week to restore.

"Everybody knew it was coming. Unfortunately, it was everything they said it was," said Sal Novello, a construction executive who rode out the storm with his wife, Lori, in the Long Island town of Lindenhurst, and ended up with 7 feet of water in the basement.

The scope of the storm's damage wasn't known yet. Though early predictions of river flooding in Sandy's inland path were petering out, colder temperatures made snow the main product of Sandy's slow march from the sea. Parts of the West Virginia mountains were blanketed with 2 feet of snow by Tuesday afternoon, and drifts 4 feet deep were reported at Great Smoky

Q & A: Could Sandy Postpone the Election?

WASHINGTON (AP) • One week before a close election, superstorm Sandy has confounded the presidential race, halted early voting in many areas and led some to ponder whether the election might even be postponed.

It could take days to restore electricity to more than 8 million homes and businesses that lost power when the storm pummeled the East Coast. That means it's possible power could still be out in parts of some states on Election Day next Tuesday — a major problem for precincts that rely on electronic voting machines.

But as the storm breached the coast, even some of those intimately involved in the election seemed in the dark about what options are available to cope with the storm. Asked Monday whether President Barack Obama had the power to reschedule the election, White House press secretary Jay Carney said he wasn't sure.

Some questions and answers about what's possible and not when it comes to reworking Election Day.

Q. Could the Nov. 6 election be changed?

A. Yes, but it's highly unlikely, and it's not up to the president. Congress sets the date for the presidential election — the Tuesday after the first Monday in November, every fourth year. Congress could act within the next week to change the date, but that would be tough because lawmakers are on recess and back home in their districts campaigning for re-election. Plus, it's likely that would mean changing the date for the entire country, not just those affected by the storm. What's more, Congress only selects the date for federal races, so changing the date would wreak havoc for state and local elections also scheduled for Nov. 6. States might have to hold two separate days of voting, which could bust state budgets.

Q. What about pushing back the election just in some states?

A. It's possible, but the legal issues get tricky. States, by and large, are in charge of their own elections. Each state has its own laws dealing with what to do if an emergency jeopardizes voting and who can make the call. Federal law says that if a state fails to conduct an election for federal races on the day Congress chooses, the state legislature can pick a later date. But state and federal laws don't always jive perfectly. Virginia Gov. Bob McDonnell has said his state's laws don't grant him authority to reschedule the presidential election.

Q. Have elections ever been postponed before?

A. Yes, but not on the presidential level. New York City was holding its mayoral primary when terrorists struck on Sept. 11, 2001, and the city rescheduled the election. After Hurricane Katrina in 2005, Louisiana's governor postponed municipal elections in New Orleans after elections officials said polling places wouldn't be ready.

Q. Other than rescheduling the election, can anything else be done?

A. Voting hours could be extended at various locations. In places where electronic voting machines are in use, paper ballots could be used instead. Some areas also might choose to move polling locations if existing ones are damaged, inaccessible or won't have power on Election Day.

Q. Would those options create any other problems?

A. Lots. If poll hours are extended, under a 2002 law passed by Congress in response to the disputed 2000 presidential election, any voters who show up outside of regular hours must use provisional ballots, which are counted later and could be challenged. Sandy's impact was felt in some of the most competitive states in the presidential race, including Virginia and Ohio. The more provisional ballots that are cast, the greater the chances are that the winner won't be known until days or even weeks after the election.

There's another issue if poll hours are extended in some areas — such as counties with the worst storm damage — and not in others. That could prompt lawsuits under the Constitution's Equal Protection Clause, said Edward Foley, an election law expert at The Ohio State University.

Relocating polling places is also risky because it could drive down turnout, said Neil Malhotra, a political economist at Stanford University's Graduate School of Business. "If you disrupt their routine and the polling place they've always been going to, even if you don't move it very far, they vote less," he said.

Q. What is the federal government doing to help?

A. The Federal Emergency Management Agency's administrator, Craig Fugate, said Monday he anticipated the storm's impact could linger into next week and affect the election. He said FEMA would look at what support it could provide to states before the election. "This will be led by the states," he said.

Japan's Rebuilding Money Spent on Unrelated Jobs

BY ELAINE KURTENBACH
Associated Press

SENDAI, Japan • About a quarter of the $148 billion budget for reconstruction after Japan's March 2011 tsunami and nuclear disaster has been spent on unrelated projects, including subsidies for a contact lens factory and research whaling.

The findings of a government audit buttress complaints over shortcomings and delays in the reconstruction effort. More than half the budget is yet to be disbursed, stalled by indecision and bureaucracy, while nearly all of the 340,000 people evacuated from the disaster zone remain uncertain whether, when and how they will ever resettle.

Many of the non-reconstruction-related projects loaded into the $148 billion budget were included on the pretext they might contribute to Japan's economic revival, a strategy that the government now acknowledges was a mistake.

"It is true that the government has not done enough and has not done it adequately. We must listen to those who say the reconstruction should be the first priority," Prime Minister Yoshihiko Noda said in a speech to parliament on Monday.

He vowed that unrelated projects will be "strictly wrung out of the budget."

But ensuring that funds go to their intended purpose might require an explicit change in the reconstruction spending law, which authorizes spending on such ambiguous purposes as creating eco-towns and supporting "employment measures."

Among the unrelated projects benefiting from the reconstruction budgets are: road building in distant Okinawa; prison vocational training in other parts of Japan; subsidies for a contact lens factory in central Japan; renovations of government offices in Tokyo; aircraft and fighter pilot training, research and production of rare earths minerals, a semiconductor research project and even funding to support whaling, ostensibly for research, according to data from the government audit released last week.

A list of budget items and spending shows some $380,000 went to promoting the Tokyo Sky Tree, a transmission tower that is the world's tallest freestanding broadcast structure. Another $35 million was requested by the Justice Ministry for a publicity campaign to "reassure the public" about the risks of big disasters.

Iran Orchestra Finale Rings of Hard-line Pressure

BY BRIAN MURPHY
AND NASSER KARIMI
Associated Press

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates (AP) • It was a VIP audience for what was likely the last performance of the venerable Tehran Symphony Orchestra. Watching from the front row in late August was Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei in what was seen as an endorsement from the ruling theocracy, which once tried to stamp out all music as a violation of Islamic values.

Just two months later, the musicians are out of work, funding has run dry and a nearly 80-year-old institution that survived wars, coups and the 1979 Islamic Revolution was declared Tuesday in an apparently irreversible "coma" by media.

The apparent tipping point was financial. It could be counted as collateral damage from Western sanctions that have left Iran's economy so stressed that authorities are considering banning exports of staples such as rice and wheat in order to boost emergency stockpiles.

"We are currently facing a financial drought," Parliament speaker Ali Larijani told a group of officials Monday. "We will have a more difficult year ahead."

The full story of the orchestra's demise likely runs deeper. In a time of escalating showdowns with the West over Iran's suspect nuclear program, the opposition of Iran's clerical leadership toward anything deemed as too Western is gaining strength.

"Musicians have had no support in recent years," said Saba Radman, a music journalist and critic. "They feel very disillusioned."

China Powerless to Prevent Rise in Tibetan Self-Immolation

The Washington Post

NEW DELHI • As China's Communist Party prepares for its leadership transition, a wave of self-immolations has spread and accelerated across Tibet, in the most sustained protests against Beijing's rule there in five decades.

Most of those who set themselves afire are in their late teens or early 20s, activists said. Exiled Tibetan political leaders and scholars described the actions as an emphatic rejection of the economic development and material gains that China is offering the Tibetan people and an anguished call for independence and the return of the region's religious leader, the Dalai Lama.

"Almost all of them were born after the Chinese occupation of Tibet and the Cultural Revolution," Lobsang Sangay, the political leader of the refugee community's India-based government-in-exile said of the perpetrators. "They have grown up in the Chinese system, received Chinese education. They are the primary beneficiaries of whatever the Chinese government gave them. They are saying 'this is not what we want.'"

Sandy

Mountains National Park on the Tennessee-North Carolina border.

With Election Day a week away, the storm also threatened to affect the presidential campaign. Federal disaster response, always a dicey political issue, has become even thornier since government mismanagement of Hurricane Katrina in 2005. And poll access and voter turnout, both of which hinge upon how people are impacted by the storm, could help shift the outcome in an extremely close race.

As organized civilization came roaring back Tuesday in the form of emergency response, recharged cell phones and the reassurance of daylight, harrowing stories and pastiches emerged from Maryland north to Rhode Island in the hours after Sandy's howling winds and tidal surges shoved water over seaside barriers, into low-lying streets and up from coastal storm drains.

Images from around the storm-affected areas depicted scenes reminiscent of big-budget disaster movies. In Atlantic City, N.J., a gaping hole remained where once a stretch of boardwalk sat by the sea. In Queens, N.Y., rubble from a fire that destroyed as many as 100 houses in an evacuated beachfront neighborhood jutted into the air at ugly angles against a gray sky. In heavily flooded Hoboken, N.J., across the Hudson River from Manhattan, dozens of yellow cabs sat parked in rows, submerged in murky water to their windshields. At the ground zero construction site in lower Manhattan, sea water rushed into a gaping hole under harsh floodlights.

One of the most dramatic tales came from lower Manhattan, where a failed backup generator forced New York University's Tisch Hospital to relocate more than 200 patients, including 20 babies from neonatal intensive care. Dozens of ambulances lined up in the rainy night and the tiny patients were gingerly moved out, some attached to battery-powered respirators as gusts of wind blew their blankets.

In Moonachie, N.J., water rose to 5 feet within 45 minutes and trapped residents who thought the worst of the storm had passed. Mobile-home park resident Juan Allen said water overflowed a 2-foot wall along a nearby creek, filling the area with 2 to 3 feet of water within 15 minutes. "I saw trees not just knocked down but ripped right out of the ground," he said. "I watched a tree crush a guy's house like a wet sponge."

In a measure of its massive size, waves on southern Lake Michigan rose to a record-tying 20.3 feet. High winds spinning off Sandy's edges clobbered the Cleveland area early Tuesday, uprooting trees, closing schools and flooding major roads along Lake Erie.

Most along the East Coast, though, grappled with an experience like Bertha Weismann of Bridgeport, Conn. — frightening, inconvenient and financially problematic but, overall, endurable. Her garage was flooded and she lost power, but she was grateful. "I feel like we are blessed," she said. "It could have been worse."

The presidential candidates' campaign maneuverings Tuesday revealed the delicacy of the need to look presidential in a crisis without appearing to capitalize on a disaster. President Barack Obama canceled a third straight day of campaigning, scratching events scheduled for Wednesday in swing-state Ohio, in Sandy's path. Republican Mitt Romney resumed his campaign with plans for an Ohio rally billed as a "storm relief event."

And the weather posed challenges a week out for how to get everyone out to vote. On the hard-hit New Jersey coastline, a county elections chief said some polling places on barrier islands will be unusable and have to be moved.

"This is the biggest challenge we've ever had," said George R. Gilmore, chairman of the Ocean County Board of Elections.

By Tuesday afternoon, there were still only hints of the economic impact of the storm. Airports remained closed across the East Coast and far beyond as tens of thousands of travelers found they couldn't get where they were going.

Mark Duane Saxton

Dec. 22, 1922-Oct. 28, 2012

BURLEY • Mark Duane Saxton of Burley passed away Sunday, Oct. 28, 2012, of natural causes at the Cassia Regional Medical Center in Burley at the age of 89.

Mark was born Dec. 22, 1922, to Elmer Charles and Cora Lillian (Kidd) Saxton on his Grandfather Kidd's farm in Rupert, Idaho. He was the fourth of nine children. He attended schools in Declo, growing up during the Great Depression when times were very difficult for everyone. After high school graduation, he entered the United States Navy during World War II. Mark served in the Navy for 40 years and retired as a Top Chief Petty Officer. He was indeed one of the last of the "Greatest Generation." He also served during the Korean Conflict and the Vietnam War. He was very proud to be an American; he loved his home and freedom and was proud that he was able to preserve it.

Mark married Betty Jean Hoggan in the Idaho Falls LDS Temple on March 7, 1947. Together, they had three sons, Michael Duane (Beverly) of Sheridan, Wyo., James H. (Deborah, deceased) of Sandy, Ore., and Steven Mark (deceased). He has four grandchildren, Jennifer, Jacqueline, Brian and Elizabeth. Mark has a very special niece, Kara Steinberg, whom he loved very much and considered her the daughter he never had. He was preceded in death by his parents; two sisters, Fern Jensen and Cora Weaver; and three brothers, Paul, Carl and Grant Saxton. He is survived by his sisters, Fay Ward of Connor Creek, Idaho, and Rhea Smith of Burley, Idaho; and one brother, Dean Saxton of Declo, Idaho. His wife, Betty Jean, died in a tragic automobile accident on June 14, 1983. Mark called her his "Goddess." He loved her dearly.

After his retirement from the U.S. Navy, Mark worked in many businesses. He was a chain store manager and owner of a retail/wholesale manufacturing company. He belonged to the chamber of commerce, the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, the Fleet Reserve and the International Association of Personnel Employment Security. Mark was a lifetime learner. He attended Montana College of Mineral Science and Technology and was a published author and poet extraordinaire. Mark was a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He served as a branch president, a stake clerk and in many other callings that he enjoyed.

He married Lois Rosalie Gunderson (Mortensen) on Nov. 27, 2009, in Burley. They truly loved each other and cherished every minute they had together. They built a beautiful home where they could sit on the deck and watch the Snake River go by. This would entertain them for hours, just talking and laughing together. They were truly meant for each other. With this union, he became the loving and beloved stepfather/grandfather to Linda Turney of Layton, Utah, Bruce and Kathy Mortensen of South Jordan, Utah, Denny and Mindy Mortensen of Holladay, Utah, Loren and Paula Mortensen of Richfield, Utah, Monty and Teresa Mortensen of Idaho Falls, Idaho, June Hodge of Burley, Idaho, Mark and Brenda Mortensen of Rupert, Idaho, Risa and Reed Stoddard of Boise, Idaho, Brent Mortensen (deceased), Jeanie and Blake Parkinson of Sandy, Utah, and Trina and Ray Kissel of Amherst, N.Y.; and step-grandfather to 42 grandchildren.

Mark was a man of great determination, ambition, confidence and creativity. He was very loving, kind and generous to all who needed his love and means. He was good to the core! He had a very colorful personality. One never knew what would come out of his mouth.

The family wishes to thank those at Cassia Regional Medical Center for the loving care the angel nurses, doctors, and staff gave to Mark during his last days. Mark loved them too.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 3, at the Burley LDS 2nd and 4th Ward Church, 515 E. 16th St. in Burley, with Bishop Kenneth Turner officiating. Military rites will be provided by the Mini-Cassia Veterans Organization. Burial will be in the Declo Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 2, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Saturday at the church.

Donald Neilson

June 13, 1929-Oct. 12, 2012

LONGVIEW, Wash. • Donald Neilson, 83, died Friday, Oct. 12, 2012, at the Community Home Health Hospice Center in Longview, Wash.

Donald Neilson was born June 13, 1929, in Rupert, Idaho, to Henry and Merab (Lee) Neilson. He graduated from Rupert High School in 1947.

His wife, Ruth, survives him at home. He is also survived by children, Monica Hackenberg, Marcia Lowder, Corrine Martin, Charles Sanderson, Glenda Hermen, Donald Neilson, Henry Neilson, Tennis Neilson, Charles Neilson and Angela Neilson. He is survived by many grandchildren and great-grandchildren, cousins, nieces and nephews. Also surviving are his sister, Kathryn Adamson of Paul; and a brother, Glenn Neilson of Rupert. He was preceded in death by his parents; and sisters, Joy Roemer, Christine Palmer and Ruth Neilson; as well as a brother, Ernest Neilson. He was also preceded in death by sons, Donald Jr., Shane and Dee. Cremation has taken place and no service will be held.

Vivian Iris Cantrell

Nov. 24, 1912-Oct. 29, 2012

BUHL • Vivian Iris Cantrell, of Buhl, passed away Monday, Oct. 29, 2012, at the Mountain View Hospital in Kimberly, just 26 days short of her 100th birthday.

Vivian was born in Manes, Mo., on Nov. 24, 1912, to Marion and Minta Prock. She was the third of nine children with only Lottie Faulkner of Salt Lake City, Utah, and Smith Prock of Washington State remaining.

Vivian married Charley Cantrell in Missouri in 1931, and they soon left for Idaho. They farmed in the Buhl and Twin Falls area for years until finally buying a farm in Buhl. A daughter, Mescal, and son, Derek, joined their family. Vivian was known as a great cook, and any visitor was welcome in their home. They loved to travel and, after retiring, had a winter home in Yuma, Ariz. She belonged to Northview Ladies Club for many years. Her husband, Charley, passed away in 1991.

Survivors include son, Derek (Georgia) Cantrell; grandchildren, Shannon Cantrell, Rick Cantrell, Kurt (Lisa) Cantrell, Tara (Mike) Tandrow of Eagle, Idaho, Lori Schwallier of Erie, Colo., Rhonda Johnson and Dennis (Denice) Wilson; great-grandchildren, Leah (Alex) Reed of Filer, Charley (Mackensie) Cantrell, Cody (Lori) Cantrell, Chase (Amanda) Cantrell, Shayla (Alex) Diaz, Shenell Cantrell, Ashleigh Schwallier, Sarah Schwallier, and Jack, Samie, Ava and Kennedy Tandrow; and three great-great-grandchildren, Kamdyn and Jacob Cantrell, and Cash Bess. She was preceded in death by her husband, Charley; daughter, Mescal Sisco; her parents; and seven brothers and sisters.

We want to thank Evergreen Assisted Living and especially Tracy Hulse, Mountain View Hospital and staff in Kimberly for their excellent care in mom's last days, her good friend and helpers. Sylvia Wybinge has been so helpful and caring.

Donations can be made to the Buhl Quick Response Unit.

A graveside service will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday,

MAGIC VALLEY'S FAVORITE PUMPKIN RECIPES

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • 'Tis the season for pumpkin.

And Halloween is the night when the pumpkin takes center stage, its glowing grin luring costumed children to doorsteps.

But you may think about moving that pumpkin from the porch to the dinner table after learning about these pumpkin recipes.

Pumpkins are loaded with beta-carotene, which is converted to vitamin A in the body, and also contain potassium, according to the University of Illinois. So adding a little pumpkin to everyday recipes is a healthy choice.

Soup and spaghetti: "I try different pumpkin recipes all the time," said Heidi Tubbs of Twin Falls. "I've made muffins, soup, pumpkin cake."

Tubbs said friends will give her a pumpkin recipe and she will change it up. With the pumpkin cake she adds nuts and ginger.

Sometime she even pours a little pumpkin into pancake or waffle batter — a favorite of her children.

Remembered for Her Recipes

The granddaughters of a Buhl woman who died this year prepare a cookbook in her honor.

BY ANDREW WEEKS

BUHL • When Charlotte Stouder died of stomach cancer earlier this year, her five granddaughters found a fitting way to memorialize her.

For months they collected Charlotte's recipes, putting them in book form with the title "Favorite Recipes from the Kitchen of Charlotte Stouder."

As in so many other families, food was a focal point at gatherings and occasions, uniting the children and cousins as they talked over munchies. Charlotte's recipes always stood out. Some of the family would go home to try their own hands at making her desserts. It was a good effort, but they never turned out like Grandma's.

The book is available for purchase to the many people who knew Charlotte and to anyone else who likes to cook. The family is taking pre-orders and plans to have the book distributed before Christmas.

Money from the sales will go toward a scholarship fund in Bill and Charlotte Stouder's name. Bill also died this year of cancer, a few months before Charlotte.

Putting together the book has been a labor of love for the granddaughters, said Shayna Wilks, who scoured through their grandmoth-

The result: 212 recipes, divided into eight sections.

Tubbs also puts it into spaghetti sauce, without her children realizing it.

“It gets a fuller flavor and thickens it,” Tubbs said. “I even cut it up pieces and saute it with onions and peppers.”

She prefers the canned variety over the fresh one in her backyard. But that’s only because it takes so much time to peel, boil and mash. But that shell can be handy.

Tubbs said she often cleans out the seeds from the inside of a pumpkin like she is going to carve it, but instead loads it full of soup ingredients such as hamburger, onion and canned cream of chicken soup and bakes it. She said you can make any soup you like and when you scoop it out, pieces of warm pumpkin will also be part of the mix.

Baking and snacking: For Sharon Hildreth of Buhl, using canned pumpkin is not only easier but means you can utilize the fruit all year long. Her favorites are pumpkin pie and pumpkin cake.

“It’s really moist and it’s simple,” Hildreth said. “The cream cheese frosting is so yummy!”

Cathy Wilson of Buhl said she has a recipe for pumpkin cake that is simple and delicious but without all the fuss that comes with making a pumpkin roll.

Don’t know what to do with all those seeds after carving? Don’t throw them away. Wilson said they are a nutritious snack when roasted.

Middle Eastern taste: Liyah Babayan of Twin Falls remembers her late grandmother cooking up a storm during what she called “the month of the pumpkin.” Babayan’s family is Armenian, and she didn’t grow up eating American casseroles, hamburgers or hot dogs.

But she does remember eating pumpkin, especially during this time of year when it’s prevalent in grocery stores and at pumpkin patches.

One of Babayan’s favorites was cubed pumpkin cooked with butter, onion, jasmine rice, saffron, dill and a little curry.

“It’s a fall-appropriate dish ... a Middle Eastern pilaf,” Babayan said. “Pumpkin has a way of absorbing flavor.”

Though her grandmother’s recipes are not written, Babayan said she plans to write down as much as she remembers.

“We are very seasonal in our way of eating,” Babayan said. “She also cooked seasonal and she cooked according to the universe and the season and was in harmony with nature.”

And a ready-made option: Rena Davidson, a baker at From Seed to Store, said the Buhl store’s pumpkin muffins are a favorite with customers. On Oct. 19, the bakers were training new hires on how to make those pumpkin muffins. Another option at From Seed to Store: pumpkin sweet bread.

roll without all the fuss.

For the cake:

- 4 eggs
  - 1 2/3 cups sugar
  - 1 cup oil
  - 1 (16-ounce) can pumpkin
  - 2 cups flour
  - 2 teaspoons baking powder
  - 2 teaspoons cinnamon
  - 1/2 teaspoon ginger
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - 1 teaspoon baking soda
  - 1/2 cup walnuts (optional)
- ### For the frosting:
- 3 ounces cream cheese, softened
  - 1/2 cup butter, softened
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla
  - 2 cups powdered sugar

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.
In a mixing bowl, beat together eggs, sugar, oil, and pumpkin until light and fluffy. In another bowl, stir together flour, baking powder, cinnamon, ginger, salt and soda. Add to pumpkin mixture and stir thoroughly, adding walnuts if desired. Spread batter in a greased and floured 9-by-13-inch pan. Bake for 40 minutes. Remove from oven and allow to cool.

For the frosting, cream together cream cheese and butter. Stir in vanilla. Add powdered sugar, a little at a time, beating until smooth. Spread on cooled cake.

Roasted Pumpkin Seeds

Recipe courtesy of Cathy Wilson of Buhl.

- 1 1/2 cups raw pumpkin seeds
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine (melted)
- Salt

Preheat oven to 300 degrees. Toss seeds in a bowl with melted butter and salt. Spread seeds in a single layer on a baking sheet.

Bake 45 minutes or until golden brown. Stir occasionally.

Yin and Yang on Your Plate with Five-spice Powder

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

It's all about harmony and yin-yang. And while that sounds tritely New Age, it really is the key to Chinese cuisine.

Because as with so much of Asian cooking, the blend of seasonings known as five-spice powder is intended to trigger a sense of balance in the mouth and nose. How? A careful selection of spices that simultaneously hit notes of warm and cool, sweet and bitter, savory and searing.

And that's what you get with five-spice powder, a mix of fennel seeds, cinnamon, cloves, star anise and Sichuan peppercorns. Like spice blends around the world, the proportions of those ingredients vary by region in China, but some variant of it is used throughout the country.

That robust profile of flavors makes it a natural for roasted and grilled meats. In fact, some argue five-spice powder was the original dry barbecue rub. Five-spice especially likes fatty meat, and often is used with duck (and is combined with soy sauce to give Peking duck its characteristic flavor and color).

Likewise, the sweet-and-spicy notes play well with pork (fried, braised and otherwise), and even is sprinkled on fried peanuts as a snack. But that diversity of flavor also makes this a versatile seasoning. It is equally at home on roasted vegetables and tofu dishes.

So what should you do with it?

- Um, best steak rub ever? Rub it on steak tips, then refrigerate them for a day or so. Toss them on the grill and pair with beer.

- Blend it with kosher salt, then sprinkle it on hot buttered popcorn. Even better

MATTHEW MEAD • ASSOCIATED PRESS

— use ghee instead of butter.

- Substitute it for the seasonings in your favorite meat-based chili.

- Blend five-spice powder with salt, then rub the mixture both under and over the skin of a whole chicken for roasting.

- Speaking of chicken, mix five-spice powder into the batter of fried (or even baked “fried”) chicken.

- Blend five-spice powder with olive oil, then toss shrimp in it for grilling.

Five-Spice Roast Beef Tenderloin

The beef should be rubbed with the spice blend at least an hour before cooking. If you want to get a jump on things (and really let the flavors sink in), do it up to two days in advance, then loosely cover and refrigerate. Start to finish: 3 hours (15 minutes active). Servings: 8.

2 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon five-spice powder
1 tablespoon kosher salt
1/2 tablespoon ground black pepper
Two 2-pound beef tenderloins
2 large yellow onions, chopped

2 large carrots, chopped
4 cloves garlic, chopped
2 cups beef stock
1 cup red wine
1 tablespoon Wondra instant flour

In a small bowl, mix together the oil, five-spice powder, salt and pepper. Use paper towels to pat dry the tenderloins, then rub them all over with the spice blend. Set on a plate, cover loosely with plastic and refrigerate for at least 1 hour, or up to 2 days. An hour before you are ready to roast, remove the tenderloins from the refrigerator and let warm slightly at room temperature.

Heat the oven to 375 degrees.

Lightly coat a roasting pan with cooking spray. Scatter the onions, carrots and garlic in the pan, then set a roasting rack above them. Set the tenderloins on the rack and roast for about 40 minutes, or until the beef reaches 120 degrees for rare. Remove the rack from the pan, cover the meat with foil, then set aside to rest for 10 minutes.

Meanwhile, set the roasting pan over medium-high heat on the stovetop

(you may need to use two burners). Add the stock and wine and bring to simmer, scraping the bottom of the pan. When the liquid has reduced by about half, strain it and discard the solids. Return it to the pan and sprinkle in the Wondra. Heat until thickened.

A Rich Lemon Doughnut, No Sticky Filling Required

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

Lemon doughnuts generally involve fried dough filled with sticky, tart-sweet yellow goo that tastes more of sugar than of serious lemon.

So we decided to reinvent the lemon doughnut as a baked treat that is at once lighter and more deliciously lemony. We started with a golden cake-style baked doughnut which we flecked with the potent flavor of real lemon zest. We then top the doughnuts with a simple powdered sugar-lemon juice glaze. The result is wonderful.

Baked Lemon Doughnuts

Start to finish: 45 minutes. Servings: 12.

1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter, room temperature
1/4 cup vegetable or canola oil
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1/3 cup granulated sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Zest of 1 lemon
2 eggs
2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1 cup buttermilk
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup powdered sugar

Heat the oven to 425 degrees. Coat 2 doughnut pans with baking spray; you can use pans designed for either large or small doughnuts. A mini doughnut pan will bake more quickly.

In a medium bowl, use an electric mixer to beat together the butter, oil, brown sugar, granulated sugar, baking powder, baking soda, salt, vanilla and lemon zest. Beat in the eggs, one at a time, scraping the bowl between additions.

Stir in half the flour followed by half the buttermilk, then the remaining flour and finally the remaining buttermilk. Spoon the batter into the prepared pans, filling the doughnut wells to about 1/4 inch from the top. If using a mini doughnut pan, you will need to bake in multiple batches. Bake for 10 to 12 minutes, or until golden and cooked through. Allow to cool in the pan for 10 minutes before turning out onto a rack.

To make the glaze, stir together the lemon juice and powdered sugar. Dip the tops of the doughnuts in the glaze and allow to set or enjoy immediately. Per serving (assumes large doughnuts): 280 calories; 90 calories from fat (32 percent of total calories); 10 g fat (3.5 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 40 mg cholesterol; 45 g carbohydrate; 1 g fiber; 24 g sugar; 5 g protein; 210 mg sodium.

“She always kept coffee cake in the freezer,” Wilks said. Sometimes when the grandkids needed to bring a treat to school or an event, they'd call grandma. “She always had something in her freezer.”

Granddaughter Courtney Mowery of Twin Falls also remembers her grandmother's coffee cake.

“It was her specialty,” she said. “Over the years we've all tried to make it ourselves, and all agreed that it never turned out the same way as hers did.”

Charlotte also made some terrific cookies, her granddaughters said, and one year won an award for her Goldie Cookies in the Idaho Dairymen's Association Cookie Contest.

They were a favorite of many, Wilks said.

Mowery said their grandmother knew of their plans to make a book in her honor and was excited about the endeavor. Charlotte even helped pick out some of the recipes, Mowery said.

“She was a such a great baker and cook,” she said.

“She made a name for herself. ... We all grew up eating her foods.”

Flummoxed by Thanksgiving Math? We Did It for You

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

If you start roasting a 14-pound turkey at 375 degrees at 7 a.m. and need to feed 15 people — including three vegetarians, a vegan and two gluten intolerants — by 1 p.m., how many pounds of cranberries do you need if the stuffing is baked outside the bird and the pumpkin pie is cut into 11.75 equal wedges?

Or am I the only cook who suffers flashbacks to grade school word problems every time I try to calculate the many mathematical angles of assembling Thanksgiving dinner?
Fear not. I took one for the turkey team and did the math for you, sorting out all the numbers you need, from how many people different size turkeys feed to how many pounds of carrots and cans of cranberry sauce you'll want for making sure your crowd leaves the table stuffed.

And because this is Thanksgiving, all serving estimates are generous to allow for plenty of seconds and leftovers.

How Big?

For turkeys less than 16 pounds, estimate 1 pound per serving (this accounts for bone weight). For larger birds, a bit less is fine; they have a higher meat-to-bone ratio. But if your goal is to have very ample leftovers, aim for 1 1/2 pounds per person no matter how big the turkey is.

- For 8 people, buy a 12-pound turkey
- For 10 people, buy a 15-pound turkey
- For 12 people, buy an 18-pound turkey
- For 14 people, buy a 20-pound turkey

The Baste

Basting the bird with its juices helps crisp the skin and flavor the meat. Do it every 30 minutes, but no more. Opening the oven door too frequently lets heat escape and can significantly slow the cooking.

The Rest

The turkey never should go directly from the oven to the table. Like most meat, it needs to rest before serving for the juices to redistribute. Cover the turkey with foil and a few bath towels layered over that (to keep it warm), then let it rest for 20 to 30 minutes.

The Sides

- Carrots: a 1-pound bag makes 4 to 5 servings.
- Cranberry sauce: a 12-ounce package of fresh cranberries makes about 2 1/4 cups of sauce; a 16-ounce can has 6 servings.
- Gravy: plan for 1/3 cup of gravy per person.
- Green beans: 1 1/2 pounds of beans makes 6 to 8 servings.
- Mashed potatoes: a 5-pound bag of potatoes makes 10 to 12 servings.
- Stuffing: a 14-ounce bag of stuffing makes about 11 servings.

The Leftovers

For food safety reasons, leftovers should be cleared from the table and refrigerated within two hours of being served. Once refrigerated, they should be consumed within three to four days. Leftovers can be frozen for three to four months. Though safe to consume after four months, they will start to taste off.

The Big Thaw

The safest way to thaw a frozen turkey is in the refrigerator. You'll need about 24 hours per 4 to 5 pounds of turkey. For speedier thawing, put the turkey in a sink of cold water. Change the water every 30 minutes, and plan for about 30 minutes per pound.

The Brine

A good brine uses kosher salt and sugar in a 1-to-1 ratio, and usually no more than 1 cup of each. Feel free to add any other seasonings. Brines typically are made by heating the salt, sugar and seasonings with a bit of water until dissolved. This mixture then is diluted with additional cold water (volume will vary depending on the size of your bird). Be certain the brine is completely cooled before adding the turkey.

Turkeys should be brined for at least 8 to 10 hours, but can go as long as 72 hours. A good rule of thumb is, the longer the brine, the weaker the brine. So for a 10-hour soak, use 1 cup each of salt and sugar. For a longer one, consider backing down to 3/4 cup each.

Always keep the bird refrigerated during brining. If the turkey is too big, an ice-filled cooler stored outside works, too.

The Roast

Roasting temperatures vary widely by recipe. Some go at a slow and steady 325 degrees. Others crank the heat to 400 degrees or 425 degrees for the first hour, then drop it down for the rest of the time.

However you roast, use an instant thermometer inserted at the innermost part of the thigh (without touching bone) to determine when your turkey is done. The meat needs to hit 165 degrees for safe eating, though some people say thigh meat tastes better at 170 degrees.

If the outside of the bird gets too dark before the center reaches the proper temperature, cover it with foil.

The following roasting time estimates are based on a stuffed turkey cooked at 325 degrees. Reduce cooking time by 20 to 40 minutes for turkeys that are not stuffed (estimate total roasting times at 15 minutes per pound for unstuffed birds). And remember, a crowded oven cooks more slowly, so plan ahead if your bird needs to share the space.

- 12-pound turkey: 3 to 4 hours at 325 degrees
- 15-pound turkey: 4 to 4 1/2 hours at 325 degrees
- 18-pound turkey: 4 1/2 to 5 hours at 325 degrees
- 20-pound turkey: 5 to 6 hours at 325 degrees

It Doesn't Have to be Hard to Open a Squash

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS
The Charlotte Observer

Question: What's the trick to peeling butternut and spaghetti squashes? They're so hard, I don't know how to use them.

Answer: After hiding all that flavor and those nutrients inside them, nature certainly didn't make hard-shell squashes easy to open. You could keep one of those pumpkin-carving kits around. The saw-tooth blade can help open a winter squash.

But an easier way to tackle hard but smooth-skinned winter squashes is to start with the microwave. Use a metal skewer, a strong fork or the tip of a small paring knife to poke several holes through the skin. Then put the squash in the microwave for about 3 minutes.

That will soften the skin a little, so it will be easier to cut it in half for roasting, or to use a vegetable peeler to remove the skin and dice the squash.

A spaghetti squash can be poked and microwaved the same way. Instead of peeling it, though, cut it in half, scrape out the seeds and either bake or steam the halves until it is soft enough to use a fork to release the long strands.

Baking Expert Says Let Them Eat Low-carb Cake

BY MICHELE KAYAL
For The Associated Press

After years building his career and credibility on carbs, award-winning baking instructor and bread cookbook author Peter Reinhart was an unlikely candidate to become an ambassador for low-carb, gluten-free living.

And yet his just-released "The Joy of Gluten-Free, Sugar-Free Baking" (Ten Speed Press, 2012) puts him squarely at the top of the heap of writers, bloggers, bakers and chefs clamoring to satiate America's hunger for a life — or at least a dinner or two — lived with fewer carbohydrates and less of that pesky, yet ubiquitous wheat protein known as gluten.

He has his carb-derived cred to thank for it.

Reinhart has long been considered one of the nation's premier bakers. His gorgeous, painstakingly researched books blend textbook-worthy detail with a gentle voice that masterfully leads readers through the science and romance of transforming carbs and gluten into deliciousness.

So why change? "I wanted to add something totally new that no one else was doing," he says of his book, which he co-authored with flour developer Denene Wallace.

That something new is a fresh approach to gluten-free baking.

Traditional gluten-free recipes turn on what Reinhart calls "the holy trinity" of starches — rice flour, tapioca and potato starch. Those starches work in place of gluten, but they also happen to be startlingly high in carbohydrates. He wanted recipes that blended low-carb and gluten-free.

His approach, developed in collaboration with Wallace, relies on finely ground flours of almonds or pecans.

Some recipes also call for flours made from seeds, such as sunflower or sesame.

"With the nut flours, you've got a lot of natural oils in there and no starches that will go stale," he says. The added benefit — and perhaps, he believes, the most important — is that nut flours reduce the carbohydrate load in the bread, making the products suitable for diabetics and others watching their carb intake.

"I'm always fascinated by new frontiers, by what's the next thing coming that nobody's tapped into," says Reinhart, a baking instructor at Johnson & Wales University's College of Culinary Arts in Charlotte, N.C. "The biggest concern for us was the growing diabetic community," which is particularly sensitive to the carbohydrates in food.

Gluten is a protein found in wheat, rye and barley. It gives bread its elasticity and allows it to be pulled into long loaves, such as baguettes. And it is the element that creates the air pockets that give breads much of their texture. But some people are sensitive to gluten. The most serious sensitivities lead to celiac disease, which causes abdominal pain, bloating and intermittent diarrhea.

Gluten-free breads tend to be more dense than traditional breads. To combat this, many of Reinhart and Wallace's recipes contain xanthan gum — which stabilizes and thickens — to help mimic the texture of traditional bread. To get around the need for high-carbohydrate sweeteners, they rely on stevia, a zero-calorie sweetener made from a plant extract.

Reinhart's next frontier? Breads made with flours created from sprouted grains.

Sprouted grains are more efficient nutritionally, Reinhart says, and produce a greater amount of food than unsprouted grains. When a grain is sprouted, he says, the vitamins it contains shoot up and it becomes more nutritionally dense. There are only a couple of mills in the U.S. producing sprouted grain flour, he says, but he believes it is the way of the future. Bread made from sprouted wheat flour also is sweeter and less bitter than bread made from traditional whole wheat, he says.

"It just makes sense that it's a great way to eat," Reinhart says. "And once you can improve the flavor it becomes intriguing for all of us. I need to go into that and see how far we can push it."

Cocoa-Nut Brownies

Start to finish: 1 hour (15 minutes active). Servings: 12. Recipe from "The Joy of Gluten-Free, Sugar-Free Baking."

- 2 cups (8 ounces) pecan flour
- 1 cup (4 ounces) almond flour
- 2 cups Splenda or Stevia Extract in the Raw, or 1/2 cup New Roots Stevia Sugar
- 1/2 cup (1 1/2 ounces) unsweetened natural cocoa powder (not Dutch-process)
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 3 eggs
- 1/2 cup unsweetened chocolate soy milk or chocolate almond milk
- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) salted butter or margarine, melted
- 1 tablespoon vanilla extract
- 1/2 teaspoon liquid stevia

Heat the oven to 350 degrees. Line an 8-inch square baking pan with parchment paper, then mist it with cooking spray.

In a medium bowl, combine the pecan flour, almond flour, Splenda or other sweetener, cocoa powder and baking powder. Whisk until well mixed.

In a large bowl, whisk the eggs, soy milk, butter, vanilla and liquid stevia until thoroughly blended. Add the flour mixture and whisk or stir with a large spoon until all of the ingredients are evenly incorporated to make a smooth, sticky batter. Pour the mixture into the prepared pan, spreading it in an even layer.

Bake for 15 minutes, then rotate and bake for another 10 minutes, or until the brownies are just slightly springy but still jiggle when pressed gently at the center. If you like fudgy brownies, remove them from the oven at this point. If you prefer them to be more cakelike, continue baking for a few more minutes, or until a toothpick inserted at the middle of the brownies comes out clean.

Let the brownies cool in the pan for at least 15 minutes. You can either cut the brownies in the pan, or transfer the whole piece to a cutting board before cutting. Cut them in a 3-by-4 grid to yield 12 brownies.

This Lemon Shrimp Fits a Busy Night

STEPHANIE WITT SEDGWICK
Special to The Washington Post

This pasta fits the bill for a busy evening: It can be prepared in 45 minutes. The recipe calls for only a few main ingredients that get a fresh and flavorful boost from a homemade lemon oil marinade. Roasting the zucchini and sweet onion lends another layer of flavor.

If you want a more substantial dish, increase the quantity of shrimp.

To make this vegetarian, omit the shrimp, use 1 1/2 pounds of zucchini and add the lemon oil during the last 10 minutes of roasting the vegetables.

Roasted Lemon Shrimp and Zucchini with Pasta
4 servings.

1 pound zucchini, preferably small to medium (3 medium, 4 or 5 five small), cut into 3/4- to 1-inch chunks

1 large sweet onion (12 ounces), cut into 1-inch chunks
3 tablespoons olive oil
Salt
Freshly ground black pepper
Finely grated zest and freshly squeezed juice of 1 lemon (1 or 2 teaspoons zest, 3 to 4 tablespoons juice)
8 ounces (31-40 count) raw shrimp, peeled and deveined (6 ounces after peeling)
8 ounces dried shaped pasta, such as shells or cut rigatoni

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Bring a medium pot of water to a boil over high heat (for the pasta).

Combine the zucchini, onion and 1 1/2 tablespoons of the oil in a large nonstick roasting pan, tossing to coat evenly. Season with salt and pepper to taste, then roast for 25 minutes or as needed, turning the vegetables over once or twice.

Meanwhile, stir together the remaining 1 1/2 tablespoons of oil, the lemon zest and juice in a medium bowl. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Add the shrimp and toss to coat them evenly. Let the mixture rest at room temperature for 15 minutes.

Salt the pasta cooking water, if desired. Add the pasta and cook according to the package directions. Drain.

Once the roasted vegetables are soft and nicely browned on one side, add the shrimp mixture, stirring to combine. Return to the oven and roast for 5 to 7 minutes until the shrimp are cooked through.

Place the drained pasta in a large bowl and add the roasted shrimp and vegetables, tossing them together. Taste for seasoning and add pepper as needed. Serve warm.

Start Your Own Sourdough

JANE TOUZALIN
The Washington Post

Question: I recently started baking and want to try to make sourdough bread, but I don't want to spend as much on shipping as the starter costs, and I'm nervous to make my own for my first time. Do you have suggestions for places that sell the starter?

Answer: Here's what I recommend: DIY. I did it, and that means anyone can do it.

A blogpost I wrote several years ago chronicled my sourdough starter adventure, in which I made my own, saw it fail and then made a second attempt that was a rousing success. My friend, it was easy. So easy that when I wiped out the first time, it was no problem to launch another try.

The hard part was worrying and watching to see if the starter would live and, later, if it would die. (It did; I turned out to be a neglectful parent.)

The major chain kitchen stores don't seem to carry starters. I've read that natural-food stores sometimes have it; you could try a few. But really, I think you should give DIY starter a shot. When that brew starts bubbling and foaming, I'm tellin' ya, it's a thrill!

A Small, but Still Sweet, Take on Caramel Apples

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

Have you seen the size of caramel apples lately?

No question, they are beautiful and I'm certain they are delicious. But how many people really are going to sit down and eat such mammoth sugar bombs, never mind feed one to their kid?

Which got me thinking about ways to capture that delicious blend of apples and caramel in a smaller, less guilt-inducing package. I've tried this before, actually. I once used a melon baller to scoop out perfect balls of apple, then stuck them on sticks and tried to coat them with caramel. It was a fine idea that didn't work. The caramel wouldn't adhere to the flesh of the apple (only the peel).

The problem was the moisture. The solution was simple — get rid of the moisture. This also resolved my size issue.

Instead of coating whole fresh apples, I decided to thinly slice them and turn them into chips. It's a painless process, especially if you have a mandoline. The slices get baked low and slow until dried and slightly crisp. Once they cool, they are easy to dunk or coat with all manner of sugary treats.

I opted for a trio of coatings — caramel, white chocolate and dark chocolate. But you could use whatever candy coatings you like. Candy melts (sold at craft and baking supply shops) are an easy choice. They also come in a wide variety of colors, so you can create seasonal treats. And while the coatings are still tacky, you also can decorate with candy sprinkles.

Caramel-Chocolate Apple Chips

Start to finish: 1 1/2 hours
(45 minutes active). Servings: 8.

- 1 large apple
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- Half of a 14-ounce package caramel candies, unwrapped
- 1 tablespoon water
- 1/2 cup white chocolate bits
- 1 teaspoon shortening
- 1/2 cup dark chocolate candy melts

Heat the oven to 250 degrees. Line 2 baking sheets with parchment paper. Using a mandoline, food processor or very sharp knife, cut the apple into very thin slices, about 1/8 inch thick. There are several ways to do this. If you have an apple corer, you can simply cut out the core, then lay the apple on its side and slice starting at one side and working your way to the other. If you don't have a corer, stand the apple upright, then begin on one side and cut slices until you reach the core. Rotate the apple and repeat until all 4 sides have been sliced.

Arrange the apple slices on the prepared baking sheet, being careful not to overlap. Sprinkle the apples with cinnamon, then bake for 45 minutes, or until dried and slightly crisp. Slide the parchment and apples off the baking sheet and onto a cooling rack. Let cool completely.

Once the apples have cooled, in a medium saucepan over medium heat, combine the caramels and water. Heat, stirring constantly, until melted and smooth. Dunk a fork into the caramel, then use it to drizzle the caramel over the apple chips. Set aside to let the caramel set.

When the caramel has set, place the white chocolate bits and shortening in a medium microwave-safe bowl. Microwave on high in 15-second bursts, stirring between, until melted and smooth. Using a clean fork, repeat the drizzling similar to the caramel. Set aside to let the white chocolate set.

Once the white chocolate has set, melt the dark chocolate candy melts in a clean bowl using the same method as the white chocolate. Once melted, dunk a clean fork in the melted chocolate and drizzle over the apple chips. Let cool until the chocolate is set. Store in an airtight container for up to a week.

Stars Shine at First Soccer Showcase

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

WENDELL • Ismael Martinez finally got his wish, albeit not in a way he expected.

The Wendell boys soccer goalkeeper wanted to play his final regular season home game at night, on the Trojans' football field. That dream was deferred but ultimately realized on Tuesday in the inaugural District IV senior all-star showcase games, when the boys kicked off with the stadium lights on as darkness descended upon south-central Idaho.

"I always bugged my coach that we wanted to play under the lights on senior night," Martinez said. "This was really an honor. I hope they keep doing this."

Martinez and his Class 3A High Desert Conference select team didn't win the match against their 4A

Great Basin Conference counterparts, but that hardly mattered.

It was a chance for high school seniors who battled against each other at least twice in the regular season to join forces against the other classification.

"It's humbling to play with a lot of guys who are better than you," said Burley's Angel Anguiano, who scored three goals in the 4A team's 7-3 victory in the boys game. "This is the best of the best, and it's almost like college soccer. The ball just flows so easily from one side to the other."

The girls game had fewer goals, but just as much entertainment, as Twin Falls' Haley Hutchinson scored both the 4A team's goals in a 2-1 win.

The players seemed grateful for the opportunity to showcase their talents one last time sporting their high school colors.

INSPIRATIONAL DARRINGTON DECLO'S SECRET WEAPON

RYAN HOWE • TIMES-NEWS

Sam Darrington, pushed in his wheelchair by Christian Kidd, retrieves the tee after a kickoff during a recent Declo High football game.

Declo freshman Sam Darrington suffers from a rare genetic disorder which results in damage to his nervous system, but he and his family are determined to 'live life' and 'have a good time everywhere' they can as Sam's inspirational life continues to touch lives in the Magic Valley.

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

DECLO • Number 6 on the Declo football roster is a 4-foot tall, 55-pound freshman.

He is the player opponents fear the most.

His name has never appeared in a box score, but Sam Darrington is the secret to Declo's undefeated season. The Hornets' game plan is to get him on the field as much as possible.

After every Declo kickoff, he's rolled out in his orange and black wheelchair to fetch the tee. When Sam has a busy night, it's a sign things aren't going well for the other team.

Like on Oct. 5, Declo's final regular season home game. The Hornets scored 10 touchdowns against Valley, meaning Sam saw the field more than some of the players.

"There have been so many cool things that have happened, and it's from people just taking an interest," said Sam's father, Fred Darrington, "and this football thing is one of them."

Sam Darrington is a freshman at Declo High School and participates with the football team despite a rare genetic disorder that affects his nervous system.

For head football coach Kelly Kidd, the decision to involve Sam was a no-brainer.

"Everybody in Declo loves Sam," Kidd said.

Sam has metachromatic leukodystrophy (MLD). It's a rare genetic disorder that is caused by the lack of an important enzyme, resulting in damage to the nervous system. Sam and his younger sister Rebekah, a seventh-grader who was also born with MLD, had bone marrow transplants as infants to replace the missing enzyme and hopefully slow down the progression of the disease.

Although Sam has normal mental function, his brain cannot send messages to the body to move or speak. He's cognizant of what's going on around him, he just can't respond.

As the old proverb suggests, the eyes are the window to Sam's soul.

"He can't speak to you; all he can do is look at you with those eyes. They're expressive eyes and they say it all," Fred Darrington said. "We've known him long enough that we can carry on a conversation!"

Sam's family tries to make his life as normal as possible.

DISTRICT IV ALL-STAR GAME

Talent Takes Over in All-star Game

NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • For most of the seniors at the District IV all-star game, Tuesday night was the last chance to play in a competitive match. For some it could mark the end of their athletic careers. And while the game lacked the format and implications of a regular season or playoff match, it made up for it with show and nostalgia. The mishmash of girls from four regions in the district developed enough overnight camaraderie to let their talent take over at Baun gymnasium.

"They are so accepting and warm," Glenns Ferry middle blocker Dei'Ja Martin said of her North West teammates. "We already feel like a team."

Despite just one practice together, onlookers were given a treat – not just clean volleyball, but good volleyball.

"It's kind of crazy," Raft River outside hitter Wynter Holtman said. "We have never played with each other. We are kind of running around, but we're good enough players that we figure it out."

blocker Sheala Owsley said. "Volleyball was my life; I've played since the fifth grade. It's definitely going to be hard." Some – unlike Kimberly's Katy Robinson who signed with the College of Idaho earlier in the day – hold out hope that they'll be playing somewhere competitively next season.

"Coach wants me to play college and I'm definitely thinking about it," Gooding middle hitter Tia Conrad said.

Others will be doing the coaxing. "I'll play wherever they let me play," Holtman said.

The meaning of the sport to the young ladies' high school career was not lost on those who reflected.

"I always struggled in volleyball, but it grew on me and I like it now," Conrad said. "It teaches you leadership."

Kimberly's Katy Robinson Signs with College of Idaho

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

KIMBERLY • Kimberly outside hitter Katy Robinson signed her letter of intent at the College of Idaho in front of friends and family on Tuesday.

Next year she'll join one of the top volleyball programs in the NAIA's Cascade Collegiate Conference.

"The process started last year towards the end of club (volleyball) when I was looking at colleges," Robinson said. "I went on trips this summer and then I went to College of Idaho expecting a fun camp, but I fell in love with the place!" Kimberly coach Lawrence Pfefferle has seen four of his seniors go on to play college volleyball. Like her predecessors, Robinson was a leader.

"She meant the difference between us contending for district and ultimately winning the district championship and going to state," Pfefferle said. "She organized things and made us a team. Everybody got along really well and a lot of that is her."

The Bulldogs failed to earn a trophy at state this year but won three district titles in Robinson's four years.

"It's been awesome," Robinson said. "I'm sad to see (my prep career is) over."

"We decided we're going to live life and we're going to have a good time everywhere we can," Fred Darrington said.

Sam is enrolled in classes that are auditory in nature, like choir, agriculture, foods and nutrition, and seminary. He's also in Coach Kidd's government class, where he sits beside football players Kage Osterhout and Jason Gillette.

"Sometimes I see Sam grinning and I wonder what those two are up to," Kidd said. "His character is there, his personality is there. Sometimes you just wish he could communicate and tell you what he's thinking, but the smile is worth a million words. It's priceless."

Sam enjoys hanging out with friends and watching his favorite teams: Boise State, the Dallas Cowboys and the Utah Jazz. He loves all the rides at Disneyland. And just like any 14-year-old, Sam fancies himself a ladies' man.

"During the Valley game it was cold and at halftime I asked Sam if he wanted to go down to the tent where it's warm. Instead, he wanted to stay and watch the dance team," Kidd said. "Ask him anything about girls and you'll get a big smile out of him."

But most of all, Sam is a fan of his older brother Jack, a senior lineman and team captain.

"We communicate obvi-ously differently than most brothers do, but there's defi-nitely a connection there that's special," Jack said. "I can't begin to count the number of ball games, not only my parents, but Sam and Re-bekah have been to over my sports career. A whole lot. Probably more than any other kid's brother and sister."

The brothers shared a spe-cial moment prior to Declo's final regular season game Oct. 19 at Oakley. As co-cap-tains, Jack pushed Sam to midfield for the coin toss. With a grin, Sam indicated that he wanted to call tails.

It was heads.

However, Oakley deferred to the second half. Declo had wanted to receive the kickoff anyway, so ultimately the coin toss didn't matter.

As he rolled back to the sideline, his smile and eyes told the story. Sam knew all along that tails never fails.

NCAA Approves Tougher Sanctions for Rule-breakers

ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS • The NCAA passed a package of sweeping changes Tuesday intended to crack down hard on rule-breaking schools and coaches.

Under the new legislation, approved by the 13-member board of directors, programs that commit the most egregious infractions could face postseason bans of two to four years and fines stretching into the millions, while coaches could face suspensions of up to one year for violations committed by their staffs. The board also approved measures to expand the penalty structure from two tiers to four, create new penalty guidelines and speed up the litigation process.

The vote ends a movement that started in August 2011 during the midst of one of the most scandalous years in college sports history. NCAA President Mark Emmert was so concerned that he asked dozens of university leaders to join him at a presidential retreat in Indianapolis.

It was then that Emmert, along with school presidents and chancellors, said they were going to get tough on those who refused to play by the rules.

Now they have. "We have sought all along to remove the 'risk-reward' analysis that has tempted people — often because of the financial pressures to win at all costs — to break the rules in the hopes that either they won't be caught or that the consequences won't be very harsh if they do get caught," Emmert said. "The new system the board adopted today is the result of a lot of hard work and membership input devoted to protecting the collegiate model."

Under the plan, violators found in a "serious breach of conduct" with aggravating circumstances could get those postseason bans and be forced to return millions of dollars from specific events or gross revenue generated by the sport during those years in which rules were broken.

That's exactly what happened to Penn State in the wake of the Jerry Sandusky scandal. The NCAA banned the Nittany Lions' football program from postseason play until after the 2016 season and levied a $60 million fine on the school.

If a member of the coaching staff commits an egregious infraction, the head coach must prove he or she was unaware it occurred or face a suspension that ranges from 10 percent of the season to one full season.

"We expect head coaches to provide practices and training and written materials that instruct their assistant coaches how to act," said NCAA executive committee chairman Ed Ray, the Oregon State president. "If they've done that it can become mitigating evidence that they shouldn't be held accountable for what the assistant coach did. But head coaches have to have these things in place or the presumption will be that he or she didn't care enough to set standards. In that case, if the assistant goes rogue, then it's partly the head coach's fault and they need to be held accountable."

Another piece of the plan allows the NCAA to scrap its current system of major and secondary infractions for a four-level stepladder — severe breach of conduct, significant breach of conduct, breach of conduct and incidental issues. The board is hoping this allows the enforcement staff to focus primarily on the most serious cases.

What if the new policies don't stem the tide of cheating? The NCAA could make additional changes.

"We'll continue to evaluate it and if we recognize something is not working in the right area, that's a step we will rectify," NCAA director of enforcement Chris Strobel told The Associated Press on Monday.

PSU Acting AD Joyner Optimistic for Future

ASSOCIATED PRESS

STATE COLLEGE, Penn. • Dave Joyner's first hire as Penn State acting athletic director has worked out well so far.

Nearly a year after taking over athletics in the fallout from the Jerry Sandusky abuse scandal, Joyner expressed optimism about the direction of athletics and the football program saddled with strict NCAA sanctions.

"I would give him an A-plus," Joyner said this week when asked to grade first-year coach Bill O'Brien's performance. "In this environment, and with what he and his players have had to face, I give them all an A-plus."

Joyner spoke to The Associated Press during a break at a campus conference on child sex abuse impact and prevention. Sandusky's arrest last Nov. 5 sparked the scandal that plunged the school into turmoil and cost Hall of Fame coach Joe Paterno his job.

In any other season, a 5-3 record entering November would cause panic among the Nittany Lions fan base. Penn State plays at Purdue this weekend.

Of course, this is no normal year. "We've had some very positive things happen on and off the field, relative to the football program. I also think the university as a whole is regrouping and moving forward," Joyner said. "But you're always reverent ... I think this conference today is an example of the university moving forward, with reverence and respect for a lot of issues that go on outside athletics."

The NCAA sanctions for the scandal included a four-year postseason ban, significant scholarship cuts and a $60 million fine to be paid over five years.

Some fans wondered whether other sports would suffer because of the scandal. The NCAA agreement mandates that not be the case, and Joyner said Penn State remained committed to keeping all its sports.

On the field, other athletic teams beside football are enjoying success this fall. At one point, all five fall teams were in sole possession or tied for first in their respective sports. In the classroom, NCAA data released recently showed Penn State athletes with a Graduation Success Rate of 88 percent, 8 points higher than the Division I average.

YOU ARE NOTIFIED THAT:

A Petition, a copy of which is attached, has been filed in the above-entitled matter in the Magistrate's Division of the District Court of Twin Falls County, Idaho, by the Prosecuting Attorney, alleging the above-named children come within the Court's jurisdiction under the Child Protective Act.

You are hereby directed to appear personally for a Case Plan Hearing at the Twin Falls County Courthouse, 425 Shoshone Street, Twin Falls, Idaho on November 29, 2012 at 9:30 AM.

You are notified that service of the attached Petition upon you, as the parent(s), guardian, or custodian of these children, confers personal jurisdiction of the Court upon you and subjects you to the provisions of the Child Protective Act.

You are notified that if you fail to appear without reasonable cause, the Court may proceed in your absence or you may be proceeded against for contempt of Court.

You are notified that the parent(s), guardian, or a custodian may be financially liable for the support and/or treatment of the children.

You are further notified that the children and parent(s), guardian, or custodian have the right to be represented by an attorney of your choosing, or if financially unable to pay, have the right to have an attorney appointed by the Court to represent the children or the parent(s), guardian, or custodian at county expense. If you request to have an attorney appointed at county expense, you must appear before the date of the hearing given above, at which time the Court shall consider appointment of an attorney for the children and inquire whether the parent(s), guardian, or custodian require the separate appointment of an attorney.

You are further notified that there shall be a rebuttable presumption that if a child is placed in the custody of the IDHW and was also placed in care out of the home for a period not less than fifteen (15) out of the last twenty-two (22) months from the date of Adjudication, the IDHW shall initiate a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights. This presumption may be rebutted by a finding by the Court that the filing of a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights would not be in the best interest of the children and their family, or that the children are placed permanently with a relative.

WITNESS MY HAND AND SEAL of said Magistrate Court this 29th day of October, 2012.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

*"The thought behind I strove to join Unto the thought before,
But sequence ravelled out of reach
Like balls upon a floor."*
— Emily Dickinson

Four hearts appears to be a simple enough contract, but as always, you need to make the right plan at the start of the play. You should aim to score five trumps, four clubs and the spade ace.

You will need to ruff the clubs good if they divide 4-2, which is the most likely split.

After establishing the clubs, you will have to draw trumps, ending in the dummy.

It follows that you should not aim to take a spade ruff. (That would be so even if West had not bid, thereby alerting you to the risk of an overruff by East.)

How does the play go? Best is to win the spade lead (for fear of a diamond switch) and draw just two rounds of trumps with the ace and king. You then play the club queen and ace and ruff a club in the South hand. This line would cost you an overtrick if clubs happened to break 3-3. But it is for a good cause, though, because you give yourself an extra chance when clubs break 4-2. Here West is out of clubs, but cannot overruff.

You return to dummy with a trump to the queen and score two more club tricks.

The trap on the deal would be to start by drawing trumps. After that start you would make the contract only if clubs broke 3-3 or the diamond ace was with West.

Incidentally, if trumps broke 4-1, you would just run the clubs, pitching spades and hoping for the best.

ANSWER: Whenever you have three spades on this auction and your values are in the majors, you should consider raising spades rather than rebidding no-trump. Even if partner is relatively short in hearts, your hand offers the possibility for ruffs or useful discards when played at spades. So it looks right to raise to two spades here.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS By Bil Keane

“...I want to dress as Tactical Sergeant Tarkus from the Blood Ravens 4th Company in Warhammer 40,000.”

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 31, the 305th day of 2012. There are 61 days left in the year. This is Halloween.

Today's Highlight:
On Oct. 31, 1517, Martin Luther posted his 95 Theses on the door of the Wittenberg Palace church, marking the start of the Protestant Reformation in Germany.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1795, English poet John Keats was born in London.
In 1864, Nevada became the 36th state.
In 1887, Nationalist Chinese leader Chiang Kai-shek was born in Zhejiang Province.
In 1926, magician Harry Houdini died in Detroit of gangrene and peritonitis resulting from a ruptured appendix.
In 1941, the Navy destroyer USS Reuben James was torpedoed by a German U-boat off Iceland with the loss of some 100 lives, even though the United States had not yet entered World War II. Work was completed on the Mount Rushmore National Memorial in South Dakota, begun in 1927.
In 1959, a former U.S. Marine showed up at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow to declare he was renouncing his American citizenship so he could live in the Soviet Union. His name: Lee Harvey Oswald.
In 1961, the body of Josef Stalin was removed from Lenin's Tomb as part of the Soviet Union's "de-Stalinization" drive.
In 1968, President Lyndon B. Johnson ordered a halt to all U.S. bombing of North Vietnam, saying he hoped for fruitful peace negotiations.
In 1984, Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was assassinated by two Sikh (seek) security guards.
In 1992, Pope John Paul II formally proclaimed that the Roman Catholic Church had erred in condemning the astronomer Galileo for holding that the Earth was not the center of the universe.
In 1994, a Chicago-bound American Eagle ATR-72 crashed in northern Indiana, killing all 68 people aboard.
In 1999, EgyptAir Flight 990, bound from New York to Cairo, crashed off the Massachusetts coast, killing all 217 people aboard.
Ten years ago: Authorities charged the two Washington sniper suspects with murder in a Louisiana attack that came just two days after a similar slaying in Alabama. An earthquake toppled a school in San Giuliano Di Puglia, Italy, killing 27 children and a teacher.
Five years ago: Three lead defendants in the 2004 Madrid train bombings were found guilty of mass murder and other charges, but four other top suspects were convicted on lesser charges and an accused ringleader was completely acquitted in the attacks that killed 191 people. Gold traded above $800 an ounce for the first time since 1980.
One year ago: Palestinians won their greatest international endorsement yet with full membership in UNESCO, but the move prompted the U.S. to cut off payments to the Paris-based cultural agency. The United Nations marked the world's population surpassing 7 billion.

DEAR ABBY: There is a man at work I'm very attracted to. He seems to be equally attracted to me. The problem is, he has shown me two pictures of his privates that he has on his cellphone. When he did it, it wasn't completely out of context of our conversation and our interest in each other. We do not have a physical relationship (yet), but I'm considering it. How weird is it that he has these pictures on his phone?

— GOT AN EYEFUL IN ILLINOIS

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR GOT AN EYEFUL: That must have been some conversation! It's amazing either of you get any work done with so many pheromones floating in the air. From my perspective, what your co-worker did was "premature" considering you have no social relationship (yet). It could also be considered a form of flashing.

However, while I consider what he did to be overexposure and not a particularly impressive courtship technique, displaying pictures of his anatomy on his cellphone is not unheard of among men who think like adolescents.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a waitress at a 24-hour restaurant in a small town. Most of my customers are regulars, and for the most part we talk about current events and what is going on in each other's lives. Last night, two of my regulars came in and one tried to grab my hand after the other put his hand up the sleeve of my shirt. Both repeatedly asked me incredibly personal questions about my love life and finances, and I'll admit, I froze and then I walked away.

In any other kind of work environment what happened would be considered sexual harassment, but I'm not sure what to do about it, since they're customers and I'm the employee. At what point is the customer really wrong?

— MAY I TAKE YOUR ORDER?

DEAR MAY: The point at which the customer is really wrong is when he (or she) repeatedly asks personal questions about a server's love life and puts his (or her) hands on the server. The way to handle it is to report what happened to your supervisor or employer, and make certain that in the future you are not the person taking their order. What happened was inappropriate anywhere — and that includes in your restaurant.

DEAR ABBY: My 18-year-old son left for college over a month ago. While cleaning his room, I found all sorts of marijuana paraphernalia. I'm at a loss about how to handle this. I want to confront him because he knew the rules of the house (no drugs) and lied to me and broke them.

I do not want drugs in this house! I don't know what to do or say if he wants to come home for school breaks. I pray he is no longer doing them, but I think I would just be lied to if I brought it up.

— HEARTBROKEN MOM IN

FREDERICKSBURG, VA. DEAR HEARTBROKEN MOM: You have a right to set the rules in your house and expect that they will be respected. When your son comes home for his first school break, tell him what you found and how hurt you are to have been lied to. Then tell him that to make sure he doesn't abuse your trust in the future, you will be randomly drug-testing him. (Testing kits are sold over the counter at your pharmacy.) Explain what the penalty will be if he disregards your wishes. The threat of a drug test may ensure his compliance.

A NOTE TO PARENTS OF YOUNG CHILDREN: If your little ones will be trick-or-treating tonight, please be sure they are supervised to assure their safety.
