THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stocks Rise as Investors Wait for a Winner

NEW YORK (AP) • Major stock-market indexes climbed Tuesday as investors waited for the finish of a closely fought U.S. presidential election.

“We’re on pins and needles,” said Phil Orlando, chief equity strategist at Federated Investors, a money management firm. Orlando who backs Republican Mitt Romney, said he thought the stock-market’s gains reflected optimism that Romney could win.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 133.24 points to close at 13,245.68.

Ribbon-cutting Today for Jerome Intersection

TIMES-NEWS

JEROME • Jerome agencies will host a ribbon cutting ceremony today for the newly reopened South Lincoln Street and Nez Perce Avenue intersection.

The ceremony is scheduled for 2 p.m. on the east side of the intersection.

The intersection reopened Monday, the conclusion to a road reconstruction project that started in August.

City engineer Rick Wuori told the Times-News this summer that heavy truck traffic through the intersection led to rutted pavement.

Crews reconstructed the intersection with concrete, which Wuori said will have a longer lifespan.

It was a joint project between the city of Jerome and Jerome Urban Renewal Agency. It’s the first concrete intersection in Jerome.

The decision to install a concrete intersection was made based on the types of vehicles that use the intersection, as well as size and location.

Concrete is more durable, according to the city of Jerome, and has a lower maintenance cost.

One More Warm Day

Looks like our run of nice and warm weather will be coming to an end for the second half of the week. We will get one more unseasonably warm day today with highs in the mid-60s. We will see more in the way of cloud cover as a cold front slowly works through the region during the day. Once the cold front pushes through, a big swing in our temperatures is expected for the end of the week and the weekend.

The weather pattern turns more active for Thursday and Friday. Rain showers and cooler temperatures are likely during the day Thursday, with mountains above 7000 feet seeing some snow. Highs by Thursday will be in the mid-50s. It turns colder for Friday and the snow level will fall to the valley floor. We could see scattered rain and snow showers and highs then will be even colder, in the low 40s. By the weekend, we will feel more like early winter than mid-autumn as high temperatures will continue to be 10 to 15 degrees colder than average; in the upper 30s Saturday and near 40 on Sunday. Snow chances are minimal for Friday and Saturday but a few scattered snow showers are possible and accumulation is possible in some spots. We will have more in tomorrow’s column.

Community Roots

Last week, members of the Jerome Fire Department stood in the back of the City Council Chambers as they watched a new firefighter being sworn in.

Wootton

Kevin Wilcox, who was a paid on-call officer for 1 1/2 years, was promoted to fill a vacancy in the fire department.

During a City Council meeting, Wilcox’s parents stood next to him as Mayor John Shine gave him the oath of office. Wilcox’s mother pinned a badge on her son’s uniform. It wasn’t the first time Shine had a chance to meet the newest city employee. He told the audience that he has known Wilcox since the firefighter was an 11-year-old Boy Scout.

Takes Photos Like a Spider Can

I usually don’t dress up, not much of a holiday guy. Well, that changed a little bit this year. I went with the obvious – Spider-Man. After all these years I was ready to spoof my famous counterpart.

Nash

Being a complete stranger as well as a grown-up, I wasn’t really expecting to be noticed much as I strolled into Morningside Elementary School with my informal costume on (it was basically a hooded sweatshirt). As I often tell others, my job is to blend in. I felt I was doing my due diligence by dressing accordingly.

My eyes were soon met by smiling little faces looking up at me. Children started doing their best Spider-Man impressions as they cheerfully yelled, “Hi Spider-Man!” Some proudly pointed to their Spider-Man T-shirts and I really felt like I was connecting with the kids for those brief moments. It made creating images just that much more enjoyable. Thanks, Peter Parker.

Woman Arrested after Walking in Street with Baby

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismsmith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A 27-year-old woman was arrested on drug and child injury charges after she was allegedly found walking in the middle of the street with her baby.

At about 2:20 p.m. Sunday, police heard from a caller worried about a woman and her son who were walking down the road near Blue Lakes Boulevard and Shoshone Street North.

The caller said she stopped to give the woman a ride when the woman then jumped out of the car at the intersection of Blue Lakes and Shoshone, and began walking down the center of Shoshone with the 1-year-old boy. According to the police report, the caller said the boy was covered in feces.

According to the report, vehicles had to go around the woman, later identified as Theresa Elaine Rivera, to avoid hitting her.

An officer responded to the area and saw Rivera walking in the northbound lane of travel in the 600 block of Shoshone Street East, the report states.

"Rivera was walking head on towards traffic," the report states. "Rivera was holding her son around his waist, he was facing away from her and his legs dangled past her waist."

The report states the officer got Rivera to walk to the First Christian Church parking lot and the two began to talk. When the officer pointed out the boy's dirty diaper, Rivera said she could not find a place to change him, the report states. During the conversation, the baby allegedly slipped from Rivera's arms and he fell to the curb, the report states. The officer then took the baby and later turned him over to his father with assistance from the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

Rivera was arrested for child endangerment. When officers searched her backpack, they allegedly found a glass pipe with burnt residue on it, the report states. According to the report, the residue tested positive for methamphetamine.

Rivera was held in the Twin Falls County Jail on a $10,000 bond. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Nov. 16.

Buhl Crews Quash Brief Fire

TIMES-NEWS

BUHL • The Buhl Fire Department quickly put out a fire reportedly near a junkyard Tuesday afternoon.

The fire was reported at about 3:30 p.m. at 1400 E. 4300 N., north of Buhl, according to a fire department employee.

Details on the size of the fire or how it started weren't available Tuesday evening, but emergency dispatchers said the flames were apparently brief — fire crews cleared the scene at 4 p.m.

Northern Idaho Election Proceeds after Bomb Scare

SANDPOINT (AP) • A bomb threat Monday in northern Idaho during a training session for election workers forced them to evacuate a building with 22,000 ballots, but it isn't adversely affecting Tuesday's voting, the Bonner County clerk said.

Clerk Marie Scott said the ballots were never out of sight of election workers, and she received the OK from the Idaho secretary of state's office to proceed with the election after reporting what happened.

"The integrity of the ballots was never jeopardized," Scott said.

Police told the Bonner County Daily Bee that Robin Ann Eby, 45, called in the bomb threat to avoid her sentencing hearing in a felony drug possession case Monday afternoon at the Bonner County Administration Building.

Eby tried to call the newspaper with the threat, police said, but she misdialed and called an assisted living facility at about 1 p.m. Workers there called authorities, who immediately ordered the evacuation of the building.

Scott said she was conducting a training session for 66 election workers when the order to evacuate came in. Workers evacuated — making sure to bring the ballots with them.

Pointing Dog Club to Meet

TIMES-NEWS

BUHL • The High Desert Pointing Dog Club will hold its regular monthly meeting at 7 p.m. today in Buhl.

The meeting will be held at Garibaldi's Restaurant on the corner of Main and Broadway. The agenda includes upland game hunting reports and a review of the club's participation in the Idaho Department of Fish and Game's annual youth pheasant hunt, among other items.

The club promotes the responsible training and uses of pointing dogs in the sport of upland game hunting in order to enjoy the sport to its highest potential. Anyone owning a pointing dog or is interested in owning one is welcome and encouraged to attend.

No Surprise: Idaho Voters Pick Romney over Obama

BY TODD DVORAK
Associated Press

BOISE • Voters in the Republican stronghold of Idaho have picked Republican Mitt Romney by a large margin over Democrat Barack Obama in the race for U.S. President.

With 15 percent of precincts reporting, Romney had collected 64.2 percent of the vote.

The result is hardly a surprise in a state that hasn't approved of putting a Democrat in the White House since 1964, the popularity of Romney and the backing he received from top Idaho GOP officials. His candidacy has been championed by some of the state's GOP stalwarts, including Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter, who served as Romney's state campaign chairman.

But his sweeping victory in the Gem State is bitter-sweet to Idaho Republicans hoping for a change in leadership in the White House.

"I think with Idaho and our conservative values, our worry about the national debt and jobs all fits with what Romney has been pushing nationally on the campaign trail," said Josh Whitworth, executive director of the Idaho Republican Party.

"With Romney losing the national election, there is definitely some hurt and it's resonating badly with many people," he said. "I think there is a lot of worry with what will come with these next four years. The national debt being what it is, last four budget deficits and not having a balanced budget ... are all things that worries a lot of Idahoans."

Romney's support in Idaho was forged earlier this year when he emerged as the winner in Idaho's first-ever Republican caucus held on Super Tuesday on March 6. Romney won big in the caucuses held in southern and eastern Idaho counties and a strong outpouring of support beat back a threat from former Texas Congressman Ron Paul in the southwestern corner. By the end of the big night of caucuses, Romney had won 31 of the state's 44 counties.

Romney is also member of The Church of Jesus Christ Latter-day Saints, a religion shared by a quarter of Idaho's population.

OBAMA WINS RE-ELECTION

BY DAVID ESPO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • President Barack Obama rolled to re-election Tuesday night, vanquishing former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney despite a weak economy that plagued his first term and put a crimp in the middle class dreams of millions. In victory, he confidently promised better days ahead.

Obama spoke to thousands of cheering supporters in his hometown of Chicago, praising Romney and declaring his optimism for the next four years. "While our road has been hard, though our journey has been long, we have picked ourselves up, we have fought our way back and we know in our hearts that for the United States of America, the best is yet to come," he said.

Romney made his own graceful concession speech before a disappointed crowd in Boston. He summoned all Americans to pray for Obama and urged the night's political winners to put partisan bickering aside and "reach across the aisle" to tackle the nation's problems.

Still, after the costliest — and one of the nastiest — campaigns in history, divided government was alive and well.

Democrats retained control of the Senate with surprising ease.

Republicans did the same in the House, ensuring that Speaker John Boehner of Ohio, Obama's partner in unsuccessful deficit talks, would reclaim his seat at the bargaining table.

At Obama headquarters in Chicago, a huge crowd gathered waving small American flags and cheering. Supporters hugged each other, danced and pumped their fists in the air. Excited crowds also gathered in New York's Times Square, at Faneuil Hall in Boston and near the White House in Washington, drivers joyfully honking as they passed by.

With returns from 84 percent of the nation's precincts, Obama had 53.7 million, 49.6 percent of the popular vote. Romney had 53 million, or 48.9 percent.

The president's laserlike focus on the battleground states allowed him to run up a 303-206 margin in the competition for the 270 electoral votes needed to win the White House, the count that mattered most. Remarkably, given the sour economy, he lost only two states that he captured in 2008, Indiana and North Carolina.

Florida, another Obama state four years ago, remained too close to call.

The election emerged as a choice between two very different visions of government — whether it occupies a major, front-row place in American lives or is in the background as a less-obtrusive facilitator for private enterprise and entrepreneurship.

The economy was rated the top issue by about 60 percent of voters surveyed as they left their polling places. But more said former President George W. Bush bore responsibility for current circumstances than Obama did after nearly four years in office.

That boded well for the president, who had worked to turn the election into a choice between his proposals and Romney's, rather than a simple referendum on the economy during his time in the White House.

Unemployment stood at 7.9 percent on Election Day, higher than when he took office. And despite signs of progress, the economy is still struggling after the worst recession in history.

Obama captured Ohio, Wisconsin, Iowa, Virginia, New Hampshire, Colorado and Nevada, seven of the nine states where the rivals and their allies poured nearly $1 billion into dueling television commercials.

Romney won North Carolina among the battleground states.

Florida was too close to call, Obama leading narrowly in a state where there were still long lines of voters at some polling places long after the appointed closing time.

Education Reforms, Presidential Race Drive Voter Turnout

In some places, anxious voters showed up before the polling sites were open.

"We had 20-25 people waiting in the lobby before we opened at 8," said Sam Sites, poll worker at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints across from the Harrison Elementary in Twin Falls.

"One woman had been waiting since 7 to vote," Sites said. "I've never seen that before and I've been working elections for the past five years."

While the presidential race between President Barack Obama and former Gov. Mitt Romney was expected to bring out large crowds, the state's education reforms also drew people to the polls Tuesday.

Idahoans had the choice to determine the future of three reform measures affecting teacher contract negotiations, teacher merit pay and giving each student a laptop for school use.

"I voted no on all three propositions," said Jessica Schmidt, a Kimberly resident and second-time voter. "Education comes best from a classroom, not a computer. These are big issues for our state, that's why I'm not surprised there are a lot of people out here today."

Mini-Cassia election workers also reported steady crowds and a number of new voter registrations. At Burley Precinct 6, Cassia County's largest precinct, precinct judge Linda Esplin spoke of crowds waiting before the polls opened.

More Online

VIEW a free gallery of election photos at Magicvalley.com/gallery.

"We only had one or two little lulls during the day and at times we had lines zig-zagging across the room," Esplin said.

Poll workers at the Jerome Public Library found themselves answering plenty of questions for first-time voters while struggling to find people's correct voting precinct with outdated maps.

"We are getting a lot of questions on precincts because things have changed a lot since the last time people voted four years ago," said Judi Fredrickson, poll worker. "It's good to see new voters though, that's encouraging."

In Elmore County — now tied to part of Twin Falls County in legislative District 23 — poll workers were reporting record numbers of voters, said Vivian Garcia, elections specialist for the county.

"It's definitely more than usual," she said.

Oletta Hopkins of Twin Falls was hoping to miss the long lines at the polls but didn't get that lucky. Despite showing up at 11 a.m., she waited in line to vote for close to 30 minutes.

Hopkins, a Republican, said she voted for Romney. However, as of Tuesday morning, she wasn't confident he was going to win.

"I know if Obama out but I don't know if that's going to happen," she said.

Laurie Welch also contributed to this report.

ANALYSIS: OBAMA WINS BUT WASHINGTON UNCHANGED

BY BEN FELLER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • President Barack Obama's victory means his economic vision is still alive and about to drive the political conversation with his adversaries. The legacy of Obama's first term is safe and enshrined to history.

Obama will push for higher taxes on the wealthy as a way to shrinking a choking debt and to steer money toward the programs he wants. He will try to land a massive financial deficit-cutting deal with Congress in the coming months and then move on to an immigration overhaul, tax reform and other bipartisan dreams.

He will not have to worry that his health care law will be repealed, or that his Wall Street reforms will be gutted, or that his name will be consigned to the list of one-term presidents who got fired before they could finish.

Yet big honeymoons don't come twice and Republicans won't swoon.

And if Obama cannot end gridlock, his second term will be reduced to veto threats, empty promises, end runs around Congress and legacy-sealing forays into foreign lands.

Voters decided to put back in place all the political players who have made Washington dysfunctional to the point of nearly sending the United States of America into default for the first time ever.

The president likely will be dealing again with a Republican-run House, whose leader, Speaker John Boehner, declared on election night that his party is the one with the mandate: no higher taxes.

Obama will still have his firewall in the Senate, with Democrats likely to hang onto their narrow majority. But they don't have enough to keep Republicans from bottling up any major legislation with delaying tactics.

So the burden falls on the president to find compromise, not just demand it from the other side.

For now, he can revel in knowing what he pulled off.

Obama won despite an economy that sucked away much of the nation's spirit.

He won with the highest unemployment rate for any incumbent since the Great Depression. He won even though voters said they thought Romney would be the better choice to end stalemate in Washington.

He won even though a huge majority of voters said they were not better off than they were four years ago — a huge test of survival for a president.

The suspense was over early because Obama won all over the battleground map, and most crucially in Ohio. That's where he rode his bailout support for the auto industry to a victory that crushed Romney's chances.

The reason is that voters wanted the president they knew. They believed convincingly that Obama, not Romney, understood their woes of college costs and insurance bills and sleepless nights. Exit polls shows that voters thought far more of them viewed Obama as the voice of the poor and the middle class, and Romney the guy tilting toward the rich.

The voice of the voter came through from 42-year-old Bernadette Hatcher in Indianapolis, who voted after finishing an overnight shift at a warehouse.

"It's all about what he's doing," she said. "No one can correct everything in four years. Especially the economy."

Republican candidates and their constituents wait for election results Tuesday night in Twin Falls.

District 23 Incumbents Pull Ahead

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Sen. Bert Brackett, R-Three Creek, appeared set to still represent District 23 in the Idaho Senate Tuesday.

Brackett, R-Three Creek, led late in the evening over challenger Bill Chisholm, an independent from Buhl. At about 10:45 p.m. Tuesday, Brackett said he was gratified and pleased with the numbers he saw coming in.

"We worked hard, so we're pleased with the outcome," he said.

It will be Brackett's third term in the Senate. Chisholm has run for various offices over the past three decades without success.

In his campaign, Brackett pointed to his experience on the Joint Finance-Appropriations, Natural Resources, and Transportation committees as reasons to be re-elected.

Brackett said he'll continue to make tough decisions that will maintain responsible, limited government while balancing Idaho's budget.

Tuesday night, Chisholm said he'd continue to make his voice heard and put new ideas on the table.

"Idaho suffers from a one-party system with not enough ideas," he said.

Two other District 23 incumbents from Elmore County led late Tuesday in their races. Republican Reps. Rich Wills and Pete Nielsen had early leads on Democratic challengers Jody Bickle and Pam Chiarella.

Scholes, Mittleider, Stone in Lead for CSI Seats

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • With departing board members and a couple of new faces, change is a given for the College of Southern Idaho's board of trustees.

Late Tuesday night, longtime College of Southern Idaho board president Thad Scholes was poised to keep his seat.

Unofficial results also showed Jan Mittleider leading for seat one and Laird Stone leading for seat three.

Final election results weren't available by deadline Tuesday night.

Scholes — a dermatologist — has been on the board since 1981. His opponents for seat two were E. Kay Cramer and Armand Eckert.

Scholes wasn't available to comment late Tuesday night.

For seat one, Mittleider was in the lead against Scott Tverdy.

She's a wellness consultant who retired from CSI in the spring after teaching for 42 years.

Her goals include helping students become ready for the workforce and increasing college completion rates.

She wasn't available to comment Tuesday night.

Stone was in the lead of a four-way race for seat three, but by a smaller margin than the other CSI races.

Stone — a Twin Falls attorney — said he's waiting to see what the final results bring.

"I'm feeling good at this point," he said at 11 p.m.

He said he did what he wanted to do during the campaign — visit with a lot of people through different community groups and have "a lot of face-to-face conversations."

Stone said he wants to thank people for voting and showing interest in CSI.

Stone's closest opponent, Jack Nelsen, said late Tuesday the campaign went well and he was "waiting for a few more numbers."

During his campaign, Nelsen — a Jerome dairy farmer — said the CSI board needs someone who represents the north side of the Magic Valley.

Other opponents in the seat three race were J. Pat Branch and Mike Tylka.

The election marks a major shift for the board of trustees, which until recent years was made up of members who'd served for decades.

Out of the nine candidates in Tuesday's races, Scholes was the only incumbent.

After nearly 25 years on the board, Donna Brizee announced that she wouldn't seek reelection. And Alan Frost — who was appointed in 2006 — also decided not to run for the position again.

Board members elected Tuesday will serve four-year terms on the CSI board.

Heider, Hartgen Winning Dist. 24

BY MELISSA DAVLIN

TWIN FALLS • Incumbents Rep. Stephen Hartgen, R-Twin Falls, and Sen. Lee Heider, R-Twin Falls, were on track to win reelection to the Legislature late Tuesday.

With more than two-thirds of precincts reporting, both candidates had received at least 60 percent of the vote over their respective opponents — Rosemary Fornshell and Pat Marcantonio, both Democrats.

This is the third term for Hartgen, a business consultant and former publisher of the Times-News. Fornshell is a former College of Southern Idaho human resources director, professor, president of Habitat for Humanity and founder of Home Health and Hospice.

"I look forward to going to Boise and serving a third term," Hartgen said Tuesday night.

Currently, Fornshell is traveling in Africa and wasn't available for comment.

Heider is a contractor and business owner. Marcantonio is a former Times-News reporter and an author.

This will be Heider's second term.

"I'm very happy to have won the election and hope that I represent my constituents well again," Heider said.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loeb, right, talks with state Sen. Lee Heider as they wait for election results Tuesday night in Twin Falls.

"I feel like I'm a winner because of all the support I received."

Pat Marcantonio, District 24 Senate Democratic candidate

"I feel like I'm a winner because of all the support I received," Marcantonio said.

Legislative newcomer Lance Clow was unchallenged in the race for the other House seat in District 24.

Twin Falls, Jerome Sheriffs Ahead in Races

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Incumbent sheriffs in Twin Falls and Jerome counties appeared set to keep their positions Tuesday.

Twin Falls County Sheriff Tom Carter and Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall built strong early leads over challengers Kelly Hassani and Ken Rushing.

"I'm fortunate once again," Carter said Tuesday night. "It looks like I'm going to keep my job for another four years."

In his second term, Carter said he'd increase programming and classes in jail, improve wellness and fitness among county employees and work to make the punishment for elder abuse tougher.

During his campaign, Hassani said he would utilize more technology for the sheriff's office, improve morale among deputies and eventually wanted to have inmates grow their own food and work on chain gangs.

Hassani, a former sheriff's deputy, is still pursuing a lawsuit against Twin Falls County for wrongful termination. He was injured in an on-duty car crash. In May, Carter said the accommodations Hassani needed were not practical for a patrolman.

During his campaign, Rushing raised allegations that McFall has been under the influence of alcohol while on the job, based upon incidents he claimed to have personally witnessed. McFall called the accusations "bogus" and "disheartening" and said he rarely drinks at all.

Tuesday night, McFall said serving the community makes up for the tough campaign.

In the next four years, McFall said his main goal is keeping the county's jail open by meeting all of its insurer's core standards for jails. Rushing promised to increase the number of solved crimes and put away long-term criminals.

Patrick, Kauffman on Track to Win 25

BY MELISSA DAVLIN

TWIN FALLS • Rep. Jim Patrick, R-Twin Falls, and newcomer Clark Kauffman were on track to win the Senate and House seats in the new District 25.

As of press time, seven of 28 precincts in District 25 had reported, with both Republicans leading.

Patrick served three terms in the House. This is his first Senate run. Opponent Scott McClure, a Democrat and engineer from Jerome, has run for both the House and Senate in the past.

"I feel real good," Patrick said Tuesday night as results were coming in.

"We always hate to lose," McClure said. "You think there's some things that you could have maybe tweaked... but anyway, it's a good process."

Kauffman, a Filer farmer, faced Democratic challenger Cindy Shotswell, a social worker who lives in Jerome.

Kauffman would be a newcomer to the Legislature.

"We always hate to lose. You think there's some things that you could have maybe tweaked... but anyway, it's a good process."

Scott McClure, Democrat and engineer from Jerome

"We had a lot of good forums, a lot of good discussion," he said Tuesday evening. Shotswell couldn't be reached for comment.

The other House seat in District 25 is held by incumbent Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome. Bell's Democratic challenger, Curtis Asay, dropped out of the race this summer.

After redistricting, District 25 consists of Jerome County and much of rural Twin Falls County.

District 26 Too Close to Call

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • As of press time, the state House seats in District 26 were too close to call.

While Republicans Lee Barron and Steve Miller led in Gooding, Lincoln and Camas counties, Blaine County hadn't reported as of midnight.

Blaine County is traditionally a Democratic stronghold and has the largest population in District 26. Incumbent Rep. Donna Pence, D-Gooding, and newcomer John Remington were expected to see strong numbers there.

Pence, a retired teacher, was first elected in 2004.

Barron, a farmer and rancher, served one term in the Idaho Legislature starting in 1972.

Remington is an athletic director in Ketchum. Miller is a former Camas County commissioner. Both ran for the Idaho Legislature for the first time this year.

The District 26 Senate seat, currently held by Sen. Michelle Stennett, D-Ketchum, was unchallenged this year.

District 26 is made of Lincoln, Gooding, Camas and Blaine counties, and remained one of the only unchanged legislative districts in Idaho after redistricting.

OPINION

"It's not going to be a simple task. It's going to be one of the most complicated and long-term recovery efforts in U.S. history."

Mark Merritt, President of Witt Associates, a Washington crisis management consulting firm in a statement as Government leaders turn their attention to the next crisis unfolding in the aftermath of Superstorm Sandy.

OUR VIEW

This Time, Please Ask

Now that Idaho voters have rejected all three pieces of legislation known by the colloquial title Students Come First, we hope Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna and Republican state legislators have gotten the message — and that they're ready to take a different approach. We hope they will now ask all stakeholders — including teachers — what real education "reform" should look like.

Yesterday's results will have the Department of Education, state legislators, local school boards, teachers and parents asking, "What's next?" But while they're all trying to unravel portions of the Luna laws already enacted, we urge a slower, more educationally sound and less politically expedient discussion ensue before future laws affecting state students are proposed.

Proposition One

We congratulate Idaho voters for recognizing that teachers deserve the right to sit across the table from their school district employers and negotiate on a broad range of issues until they reach an agreement.

Contrary to comments made by proponents of Proposition 1, teachers are well aware that school districts have less money than they did five years ago.

Teachers have been willing to make the sacrifices needed in these tough times: greatly increased class sizes and furlough days among them.

Instead of being given the gratitude they deserved, teachers became political footballs in a way that should never be acceptable. Teachers are not a group that we need to protect ourselves against, and voters stemmed the tide in the recent assault on public employees.

Proposition Two

It also turns out that Idaho voters didn't like the concept of merit pay for teachers any more than state teachers did. That's good. The multiple criteria used for determining which districts and which teachers qualified for the "incentive pay" were just too convoluted to ensure a direct correlation would exist between merit pay and either the behavior or the results that it was supposed to reward.

The bigger issue of making state teacher compensation competitive enough to retain good teachers went completely unaddressed by Luna's merit pay plan, and the reliance on standardized test results as a measuring stick was just too much like the federal No Child Left Behind legislation that we just recently escaped. When the new Legislature is seated in January, addressing teacher pay needs to be a priority.

Proposition Three

Technology is good. Larger class sizes, four-day school weeks and leased laptops for all students, not so much. Idaho voters rightly determined there wasn't enough to like about mandating laptops and online courses. Or maybe it just came down to not wanting the state telling local school districts what to do and how to do it. Idahoans rightly value local autonomy, and voters' rejection of Proposition Three is solid evidence that we don't want the State Department of Education usurping the authority of locally-elected boards of education.

Tuesday was a good day for public education in the state of Idaho, a day in which voters decided to put students — and their teachers — first.

Online readers responded to the article, "Twin Falls School District Wants To Curtail Dipping Into Fund Balance:"

agfishman: A decrease in funding/income and an increase in expenses. That is the bottom line here. In order to keep the budget balanced, they have to lay off employees and cut programs. What gets me is that people will bellyache about companies laying employees off but when it comes to the school districts laying off employees, no one complains about it. Same thing with programs. How is it that the property tax revenue is dropping? People stop paying their taxes or what? I don't get that. School districts are relying more on the community than the state for funding.

When people make a statement about the schools asking for handouts, maybe they should go to the school board meeting and learn something.

What happened could very well be your dairy or another type of business with another type of group from outside of the area. I would just like to point out some things that I read between the lines:

What is their motive?

The person from the animal rights groups was planted on Mr. Bettencourt's dairy; why? How much did he put people up too after gaining their confidence and coercing them? Did they act for the video, running and jumping on cows and hitting and kicking and using a pink cane?

Did Mr. Bettencourt even know what was going on? Did his managers know? I know that Mr. Bettencourt is well respected in our valley and the dairy business, and he cares for his animals and his business very much. Mr. Bettencourt is now charged with a crime; he will be able to defend himself and have due process, and he will be able to have his day in court as it should be. He is cooperating with authorities. Keep in mind we are talking about a misdemeanor first offense in Idaho.

What Mr. Bettencourt will not be able to defend against is the use of domestic terrorist tactics used by this group, i.e., going after his milk buyers to try to bankrupt his operation. He won't have due process or his day in court because he is being tried in the papers and popular court of opinion. This group is pressuring his milk buyers, trying to get the public to side for animal rights over human rights. Keep in mind the milk produced is still good.

God placed animals and livestock on this earth for us to manage (I reference Genesis 1:25, 26-30). We should not condone animal cruelty, nor should we condone abuse of human rights by groups who use domestic terrorism.

I do not want to see another dent put in our local economy by possibly losing jobs and income from a 500-employee dairy operation or lose a good agricultural partner that we have in Mr. Bettencourt. We have an ag base here and need good ag businesses in our valley.

The ag industry carries this valley economically when other businesses come and go. As citizens and partners of our Magic Valley, we should be watching this case and see that all issues are resolved without destroying a business, a person, a family while being vigilant of outside groups with a statement to make and preserve the way of life in our Magic Valley.

Kimberly Water Rate Schedule Is Upside-down Thinking

Re: Kimberly water rates — this is addressed to the people of Kimberly.

Our city council wants to change the water rate schedule so the heavy users will pay much less and those of us who don't waste it will pay much more! Instead of my paying $16.84 per month, plus $2 per 1,000 gallons, the proposed rate would be a flat rate of $34.43, plus $1 per 1,000 gallons. Last month, we in our house only used 4,000 gallons. Based on that, our monthly rate would go from $24.84 to $38.43, an increase of 55 percent. However, their example of someone who uses 75,000 gallons per month would get a bill reduction from $166.84 to $109.43!

This seems to me to be upside-down thinking — those who don't use much will pay a lot more, but those who are water-wasters will get a substantial reduction. Whatever happened to encouraging conservation? It seems this will only encourage wasting water.

The news article said this change was because the charges had been disproportionate. How is this change not disproportionate, giving a much better deal to those who use most of our water supply?

If you are concerned about this, you should attend the council meeting in Kimberly on Tuesday, Nov. 13.

Harlem Ambassadors Thank Twin Falls for Hospitality

On Friday, Oct. 26, the Optimist Club of Twin Falls hosted the Harlem Ambassadors professional show basketball team for a night of high-flying slam dunks, hilarious comedy and feel-good family entertainment.

The Harlem Ambassadors would like to extend a special thank you to event organizers, Laura Davis and Jason Vickery, who planned and promoted the game. The Hometown Heroes proved to be an energetic, enthusiastic and challenging team, and we thank all of the players for their good sportsmanship. The event would not have been possible without the support and generosity of local community sponsors, the Optimist Club of Twin Falls members and the event volunteers.

The Harlem Ambassadors thank the community of Twin Falls for its warm hospitality and look forward to returning to Twin Falls in the future!

Best regards,
DALE MOSS

With Count Underway, Ed Reforms at Risk

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The future of Students Come First was still up in the air late Tuesday night, as election results continued to trickle in.

About one-third of precincts statewide had reported by deadline. Percentages for each ballot measure remained fairly consistent throughout the night — largely against the measures.

Unofficial election results showed strong voter opposition to Proposition 3.

The margin between “yes” and “no” votes was tighter for Propositions 1 and 2.

Idaho State Department of Education spokeswoman Melissa McGrath and public schools chief Tom Luna weren’t immediately available to comment late Tuesday night.

Mike Lanza, chairman of the “Vote No on Propositions 1, 2, 3” campaign, said the numbers were “very positive” so far.

He said voters don’t trust the laws.

“It affirms what we’ve all felt and believed for more than a year and a half now,” he said.

Lanza said he wants everyone to come to the table to talk about how to reform Idaho schools.

And representatives from the “Vote No” group, he said, would help facilitate that process.

Lanza said school board members, school employees and administrators would be at the table.

Proposition 3 is about technology changes.

The most controversial aspect among Idaho residents has been providing a laptop computer to every public high school student and teacher.

Earlier this month, the state announced an eight-year, $180 million contract with Hewlett-Packard.

If voters overturn the Students Come First law, the state’s contract with HP is void.

The law also includes $9 million in technology funding per year to school districts and public charter schools for classroom technology.

Other components are an online class graduation requirement and a program that allows high-schoolers to take dual credit classes at no cost if they meet graduation requirements early.

In spring 2011, Idaho legislators passed Students Come First — a package of three education reform laws.

Opponents gathered enough signatures to place the laws on Tuesday’s ballots. Voters decided whether to approve or reject each law.

It’s just the second school year the laws have been in place.

Luna told the Times-News last month that if the laws are repealed, it will “unravel everything done in schools over the past two years.”

“We recognize that it will be very disruptive if the laws are overturned,” he said.

Luna said last month that the election wouldn’t be the last word on the reforms, though.

“Even if we win these measures, I’m confident that the next step is that the union will go to court,” he said.

Voters to Decide on Hunt, Fish and Trap Measure

BY TODD DVORAK
Associated Press

BOISE • A constitutional amendment to protect the right to hunt, fish and trap in Idaho is getting wide support from voters.

With just 29 percent of precincts reporting Tuesday night, support for HJR2 is at 74.3 percent.

If the amendment is approved, Idaho would join 13 other states that have similar language in their constitutions.

Supporters of the measure say protecting the right to hunt, fish and trap is critical to ensuring future generations can take part in those popular outdoor activities.

During the 2012 Legislature, lawmakers from both parties approved putting the question to voters. The amendment also has the backing of the Idaho Fish and Game Commission.

Simpson Paves Way To Return to Congress

Simpson, a Republican, has served in Congress since 1998.

At about 11 p.m. Tuesday, Simpson said he liked the numbers he was seeing.

“I like the results that are coming in and I’m very pleased with it. It appears the voters of the 2nd District are going to send me back again,” he said.

In a solidly Republican district, LeFavour, a popular Democrat from Boise’s North End, said she hoped to bypass party lines and put policy above politics.

Simpson is a member of the House Appropriations Committee and the House Budget Committee. Simpson also serves as the chairman of the Subcommittee on Interior, Environment, and Related Agencies.

Through his appropriations subcommittee, Simpson has worked to limit the scope of the Environmental Protection Agency, which he says overreaches in its authority. He’s also pursued other budget reforms for federal lands agencies.

In her campaign, LeFavour criticized Simpson for voting against the Lily Ledbetter Fair Pay Act, and challenged him to give an opinion on Idaho’s Students Come First education reform laws.

Tuesday night, Simpson said he knew the campaign would focus on his votes but that he stands by them.

“If you can’t defend them don’t make them,” he said.

Halverson Gets 3rd Term as Sheriff

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • Incumbent Minidoka County Sheriff Kevin Halverson was easily re-elected to a third term in office Tuesday, beating out challenger Jeff McEwen.

“I’m excited and happy that the people in the county have entrusted me to another four years as sheriff in the county,” said Halverson. “I will continue to be their sheriff.”

Halverson was first elected as sheriff in 2004.

Previously, he was a police officer for more than 21 years. He holds a master’s degree in human resource training and development from Idaho State University and executive and advanced Idaho Peace Officer and Standards Training certificates.

Prior to serving as sheriff he worked for the Idaho State Police and Heyburn Police Department.

Halverson said he intends to fine-tune the programs he’s already put in place and expand crime prevention programs focusing on identity theft and crimes against the elderly.

He also said he intends to continue to be accessible as sheriff of the county.

“We had great voter turnout and there were a lot of friends and family and people in the community who helped me and supported me during this race.”

Quiet Media Night Explodes Suddenly, Rove Protests

BY DAVID BAUDER
Associated Press

NEW YORK • Careful media coverage of a close presidential election Tuesday exploded so suddenly Tuesday that it left the bizarre spectacle of Fox News Channel analyst Karl Rove, a major fundraiser for Republican Mitt Romney, publicly questioning his network’s declaration that President Barack Obama had been re-elected.

ABC News was also frantically trying to repair a power outage that left much of its set inoperable precisely at the time the election was being decided.

For several hours, election coverage resembled the run-up to a Super Bowl, with plenty of talk signifying little. Then NBC News, at 11:12 p.m. ET, was the first to declare Obama had won by virtue of winning the battleground state of Ohio. “He remains president of the United States for a second term,” said anchor Brian Williams.

Other networks followed suit, including Fox five minutes later. But Rove, the former top political aide to President George W. Bush whose on-air presence on Fox this campaign raised some eyebrows because of his prominent role supporting Romney, suggested the call was premature.

“We’ve got to be careful about calling things when we have like 991 votes separating the candidates and a quarter of the vote left to count ... I’d be very cautious about intruding in this process,” said Rove, a behind-the-scenes player in the wild 2000 election between Bush and Al Gore that took weeks to decide.

(Gore was on TV Tuesday, too, as anchor of Current TV’s election coverage).

It left Rove’s colleagues struggling for words.

“That’s awkward,” said co-anchor Megyn Kelly. She then went backstage to interview on camera two women who were part of Fox’s team in charge of making election calls. They had concluded that based on the precincts where votes were left to be counted, Romney couldn’t beat Obama.

Later, Rove tried to make light of the encounter. “This is not a cage match,” he said. “This is a light intellectual discussion.”

As the evening had progressed for Fox and it became clear that Romney, the clear favorite of most of its audience, would find it hard to win, commentators like Sarah Palin and Peggy Noonan looked stricken.

“This was the referendum that Mitt Romney wanted on Barack Obama,” said Huffington Post’s Howard Fineman on MSNBC. “And guess what? Barack Obama won the referendum. And that’s pretty darned emphatic.”

Much of ABC’s New York election studio was left powerless for about 20 minutes at the height of Tuesday’s coverage. The network didn’t inform viewers, and tried to compensate by taking anchors Diane Sawyer and George Stephanopoulos away from their desks, and cutting away to crowd shots at Times Square.

Sawyer’s relaxed, folksy delivery in her first presidential election night as anchor drew considerable social media attention. The rock group They Might Be Giants tweeted: “and Diane Sawyer declares tonight’s winner is ... chardonnay!”

Voters Choose Heward in Cassia Co.

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Jay Heward was set to prevail over challenger Clifford Gowen Tuesday night to become Cassia County’s newest sheriff.

“I’m happy and I appreciate the support I received in the community,” said Heward. “That’s what I wanted and that is what I believe I got.”

A detective for the Cassia County Sheriff’s Office, Heward beat incumbent Sheriff Randy Kidd in this spring’s Republican primary. Heward has been a police officer for 32 years and holds a law enforcement degree from Idaho State University. He also holds a Peace Officer Standards and Training master’s certificate with 2,700 hours of training.

Heward plans to implement a community policing system for officers assigning them to specific neighborhoods in Burley.

He said the system has worked well in other cities and it increases communication and trust between the officers and the people residing in their assigned areas.

Heward said he also plans to increase the sheriff’s accessibility while maintaining building security.

“I’m really thankful for everybody who voted for me,” said Heward.

Court Allows Hearings in Nevada Abortion Case

BY MARTIN GRIFFITH
Associated Press

RENO, Nev. • The Nevada Supreme Court on Tuesday denied a request to block a judge's hearings into the health risks of a mentally impaired woman's pregnancy.

The court's unanimous ruling allowed Washoe County District Judge Egan Walker to resume the evidentiary hearings Tuesday morning in a case that has drawn the attention of national anti-abortion groups. The 32-year-old woman's parental guardians asked the court on Friday to halt the hearings, saying Walker lacks the authority to terminate the pregnancy of their daughter, who has the mental capacity of a 6-year-old. They claim they have exclusive authority over her health care decisions, and they want their daughter to carry the baby to term in line with their Catholic religious beliefs. But the high court sided with Walker, saying he has the authority to monitor the woman's welfare and hold the hearings. Justices noted the guardians failed to file an annual report regarding their daughter's condition and their performance of duties as required by state law. They also said the court obtained information about concerns over the woman's medical condition. "The purpose of the evidentiary hearings at this time is merely to obtain information in order to make well-reasoned and informed decisions regarding the ward's medical care," justices wrote. "Under these circumstances, we conclude that the district court has not exceeded its jurisdiction or arbitrarily or capriciously exercised its discretion." Attorney Jason Guinasso, who represents the guardians, was tied up in Tuesday's hearing and unavailable for immediate comment, according to his secretary.

Bad News for Salmon: Streams Warmer and Lower

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) • A study of mountain streams in the West over the past 60 years finds the hottest temperatures of summer and the lowest water levels of fall are converging — which is bad news for salmon. The authors say the convergence gives salmon less time to recover from the stress of warm water before the stress of low water hits — 20 to 30 days less time. The study was based on stream flow records between 1950 and 2010 from 22 sites in Oregon, Washington, California, Nevada, Montana and Idaho. Researchers from Oregon

State University, the U.S. Forest Service, and the U.S. Geological Survey cited other research indicating climate change is behind the convergence, producing lower snowpacks in winter and earlier snowmelt in spring. The study appears in the journal Hydrobiologia.

Stolen Mojave Desert Cross Turns Up in N. Calif.

HALF MOON BAY, Calif. (AP) • Authorities say a controversial cross honoring war dead that was stolen from its Mojave Desert perch two years ago has turned up hundreds of miles away in the San Francisco Bay area. The San Mateo County Sheriff's Department was notified Monday that a large cross was tied to a fence post in Half Moon Bay. An attached note asked finders to contact authorities. KGO-TV says the National Park Service confirmed it's the same cross that vanished from Sunrise Rock in the Mojave Desert. The Sheriff's Department plans to return it. The cross honoring war dead was taken in 2010 after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled it didn't violate separation of church and state because the public land it stood on was being transferred to a veterans group. A replacement will be dedicated there on Sunday for Veterans Day.

The News from St. Luke's

At St. Luke's Magic Valley and St. Luke's Jerome, we're doing great work every day to improve the health of people in our region and enhance communication with our community. I'd like to fill you in on the latest at St. Luke's:

St. Luke's Magic Valley

Join us for a free seminar on aortic valve stenosis, the most common valve problem in people over age 65. If left untreated, aortic valve stenosis can lead to serious heart problems. Dr. Scott Huerd, a St. Luke's board certified thoracic surgeon, will cover the latest in diagnosis and treatment for this condition. This free seminar is Wednesday, November 7, at 6 p.m., at St. Luke's Magic Valley in Oaks Rooms 2, 3 and 4. Light refreshments will be served. Call today to RSVP at (208) 814-0095.

St. Luke's Magic Valley is marking the first full year of our innovative program, the "Breakfast Club." Two team members greet early morning arrivals in our front lobby and escort them to their appointment. The Breakfast Club is designed to reduce anxiety by providing one-on-one communication with our patients and families.

St. Luke's Jerome

At St. Luke's Jerome, we are celebrating our one-year anniversary with St. Luke's Health System.

We continue to enhance our hospital rooms to improve the overall patient experience. The latest addition is a new custom white board in each patient room for communication updates between caregivers, patients, and families. We've also updated the waiting room at our Jerome Family Medicine Clinic with new furniture.

Please feel free to contact me at (208) 814-0000 if you have any questions about St. Luke's, or if you have suggestions about how we can best serve our patients, their families, and our communities.

Here's to your best health,

FEAR OF LOOTING GRIPS NYC AS NEW STORM THREATENS

NEW YORK (AP) • Richard Chan prowled around his cold, dark Staten Island home with knives and a sword to protect it from thieves, standing his ground as another East Coast storm threatened and police went through neighborhoods with loudspeakers warning people to get out.

"I still have some valuables. I just can't leave it," he said Tuesday. "I just don't want to lose my stuff to some dirtbag."

While city officials strongly encouraged storm-ravaged communities to seek higher ground before Wednesday's nor'easter, Chan was among a group who adamantly refused to leave, choosing to stick close to the belongings they have left.

Since the superstorm made landfall more than a week ago, killing 40 people in the city, more than 100 in 10 states and leaving millions without power, police said overall crime has actually gone down, not up. There are few reports of looting storm-damaged homes.

But Alex Ocasio wasn't convinced. The nursing home worker planned to ride out the latest storm in his first-floor Rockaway apartment — even after seeing cars float by his front door during Sandy.

As the water receded, men dressed in dark clothes broke down the door and were surprised to find him and other residents inside. "They tried to say they were rescue workers, then took off," he said.

He put up a handmade sign — "Have gun. Will shoot U" — outside his apartment and started using a bed frame to barricade the door. He has gas, so he keeps on the oven and boils water to stay warm at night. "It gets a little humid, but it's not bad," he said. "I'm staying. Nothing can be worse than what happened last week."

In the Rockaways, one of the worst-hit areas, nightfall brings with it fears of looting, burglaries — even armed robberies. The idyllic seaside boardwalk was in ruins, streets were covered with sand and cars scattered like trash.

"You can't go there after dark anymore," said 57-year-old construction worker William Gavin, pointing to a battered, lower-income section of his beachfront community. "It's a good way to get a gun pulled on you."

Earlier this week, a retired police officer fired warning shots at someone trying to break into her home in the middle of the night, said Sean Kavanagh.

"I don't blame her," said Kavanagh, also a retired officer. "I would have done the same." Kavanagh says he's staying home, in part to protect it. "I leave and anything can happen," he said. "It's open season."

Burglaries were up 6 percent citywide compared to the same period last year, but overall crime was down 27 percent, police said. More than 1 million people remained without power on Tuesday, and forecasters said the nor'easter could still bring 50 mph winds gusts to New York and New Jersey, an inch of rain and a storm surge of 3 feet.

Hu Jintao's Legacy: A Strong But Strained China

BEIJING (AP) • As Hu Jintao steps down as head of China's Communist Party after 10 years in power, he's hearing something unusual for a Chinese leader: sharp criticism.

In media commentaries, think-tank position papers and the less censored blogosphere, Hu's reign is being portrayed as a missed opportunity to tackle long-standing problems grown more deep-seated, from a yawning rich-poor gulf and worsening environmental degradation to stiffly authoritarian politics. One commentary has referred to the period as a "lost decade."

"We didn't realize Hu would turn out to be so conservative," said Wu Jiaxiang, a former party researcher-turned-businessman and avid blogger, summing up the disappointment of many in China's chattering classes. He dates his own disappointment with Hu to the closing of liberal-minded websites in 2005. Some of the criticisms are designed to influence Xi Jinping, who will begin taking over from the technocratic, ultra-reserved 69-year-old Hu at a party congress that opens Thursday.

It's not complete hype. Hu has presided over a run-up in domestic prosperity and global clout unseen by Chinese for centuries. When he took office, China's economy was a bit larger than Italy's; now it's No. 2 in the world. It boasts the largest numbers of Internet and mobile phone users worldwide and is the strongest magnet for foreign direct investment. Per capita income has quintupled to $5,400.

Thousands Mourn N.Ireland Prison Guard Slain by IRA

COOKSTOWN, Northern Ireland (AP) • Thousands of mourners lined the main street of a central Northern Ireland town Tuesday to bid farewell to a prison officer slain by Irish Republican Army militants, the first killing of a guard in nearly two decades — and a reminder that the British territory's peace is not yet complete.

David Black, 52, was shot several times from a passing car as he drove to work at Northern Ireland's main prison. His car went off the road and landed in a ravine.

No group claimed responsibility, but police and politicians have pinned it to an IRA splinter group based in the nearby town of Lurgan. That faction has been blamed for dozens of shootings and bombings since the 2007 formation of Northern Ireland's unity government — the central achievement of a two-decade peace process.

Although that coalition of British Protestants and Irish Catholics has thrived, Northern Ireland at grass-roots level remains a bitterly divided land.

Black's family asked politicians from the major Catholic-backed party, Sinn Fein, to stay away from Tuesday's Protestant service. Sinn Fein for decades was the public face of the Provisional IRA, the major anti-British paramilitary group that killed nearly 1,800 people, many of them from the province's Protestant majority, before renouncing violence and disarming in 2005.

forms carried Black's coffin down the broad main street of Cookstown. Family members then carried it into a small Presbyterian church, accompanied by a bagpiper's lament. The casket was covered in a Union Jack flag and topped by Black's service cap and a single white rose.

Car Bomb Near Iraqi Military Base Kills 33

BAGHDAD (AP) • A suicide bomber driving a car packed with explosives detonated the vehicle near an Iraqi military base as soldiers changed shifts north of Baghdad on Tuesday, killing at least 33 people and wounding 56, according to authorities.

The blast struck around midday as troops were leaving the base in Taji, 20 kilometers (12 miles) north of the capital, police said. Twenty-two soldiers were among the dead, and several vehicles were damaged, they said.

The casualty toll was high because the attacker blew up the car while large numbers of soldiers were walking to and from a parking area for waiting minibuses that take them to work, officials said.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility, though suicide car bombings are a favorite tactic of Sunni militant groups such as al-Qaida.

Insurgents frequently target members of the country's security forces in an effort to undermine confidence in the Shiite-led government. Although violence has ebbed in Iraq since the height of the insurgency, attacks still occur frequently.

Officials said many of the wounded were soldiers. They warned the death toll could rise further because several of the injuries were serious.

Tensions at the scene remained high hours after the blast. Police and soldiers cordoned off the area and prevented journalists from approaching. Two cameras were damaged when a scuffle broke out between security forces and journalists who were trying to reach the attack site, a police official said.

Hospital officials confirmed the casualties. All officials spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to talk to the media.

The attack was the deadliest in Iraq in more than a week. On Oct. 27, insurgents unleashed a string of bombings and other attacks around the country that left at least 40 people dead.

It was the second bombing in Taji in less than 24 hours. On Monday, police said a car bomb struck an army patrol not far from the site of Tuesday's blast, wounding eight people. Another bombing Monday near an outdoor market in a Shiite neighborhood on Baghdad's outskirts killed four.

Also Tuesday, Iraq's Cabinet voted to do away with a major social safety net program and instead provide cash payments directly to citizens, government spokesman Ali al-Dabbagh said.

The reform would bring an end to food ration cards that many Iraqis use to buy basic, highly subsidized foodstuffs such as flour and rice. Instead, the government plans to begin paying out 15,000 dinars ($12.50) monthly and will set the price of flour starting in March.

In Iraq's north, the president of the country's self-ruled Kurdish region urged Kurds in neighboring Syria to stay united and not let political differences deteriorate into violence.

The comments by Massoud Barzani, posted Monday evening on the regional government's website, point to growing concern in Iraq that fighting among Syrian Kurds could complicate that country's civil war and risk destabilizing Iraq's Kurdish region. Syria's Kurds have been solidifying control over territory where they live during the tumult of the conflict.

Over the summer, Barzani brokered an agreement between the rival Kurdish Democratic Union Party and the Kurdish National Council, the main Kurdish umbrella group, to jointly control Kurd-populated areas in Syria.

France to Give Businesses $25 Billion Tax Break

BY SARAH DILORENZO
Associated Press

PARIS • France's government has promised $25 billion in tax credits to businesses as part of a "competitiveness pact" that it hopes will spark innovation and lower unemployment — but falls short of calls in a recent report for a "shock" to the economy.

The announcement of the plan Tuesday came a day after a government-commissioned report — by Louis Gallois, former head of Airbus parent EADS — said the country's ailing economy needed a big kick to stay globally competitive.

Prime Minister Jean-Marc Ayrault said the government's plan, which includes a (euro) 500 million fund to help struggling small businesses, would put the country "back at the heart of the world economy."

"This new French model will consist of finding a way back to creating jobs and will no longer be financed by permanent deficits," he said.

However, the government plan has fallen short of some of the recommendations in the Gallois report and raises fears that the Socialist administration of President Francois Hollande is not doing enough to revitalize the French economy.

Police: California Shooting Suspect Was 'Methodical'

BY GOSIA WOZNIACKA
Associated Press

FRESNO, Calif. • Clattering machinery at a chicken-processing plant provided all the cover Lawrence Jones needed to kill two co-workers execution style and wound two others Tuesday, police said.

Armed with a handgun, the 42-year-old ex-convict moved methodically from victim to victim, placing his handgun against their head or neck and then pulling the trigger, authorities said.

The unsuspecting victims worked just feet apart in the deboning room and the grinding room at Valley Protein, but they wore ear protectors and the gunshots were drowned out by the machinery.

Jones tried to fire at a fifth person, police said, but ran out of bullets.

Following the shootings, Jones walked out of the building and unloaded the empty casings. He then reloaded, placed the gun against his head and fired. He was pronounced dead at a hospital a few hours later.

Jones' motive was unknown, but it was clear he had targeted his victims, Fresno Police Chief Jerry Dyer said. About 30 employees were working at the plant during the shooting.

"He had opportunity to shoot other co-workers that were in the business at this time, but he chose not to," Dyer said. "He walked around them in order to get very close to the intended targets, place the gun very close and fire a round."

Some workers told police Jones did not appear to be himself when he arrived for his shift.

"We are still trying to follow up on some rumors regarding a dispute between Jones and one of the other co-workers, but we have not been able to verify it at this point," Dyer said.

Jones, who had worked at the plant for 14 months, had an extensive criminal history, authorities said. In 1994, he was sentenced to 13 years in prison for robbery, then released on parole in 2001, according to the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation.

Jones also served time for robbery and later for vehicle theft and other convictions, and was paroled from prison on June 1, 2011, department spokesman Luis Patino said. Jones was discharged from parole on May 1, 2012, Patino said.

"He was reviewed and he had not had any violations and so he was discharged from parole," Patino said.

Dyer said Jones arrived at work on a bike just before 5 a.m. About three-and-a-half hours into his shift, he pulled out the handgun.

First, Jones silently walked up to 32-year-old Salvador Diaz in the grinding room, put the handgun to the side of his head and pulled the trigger, police said. Diaz was pronounced dead at the scene.

Jones then went next door to the deboning room, put the gun up against the head of the second victim, 34-year-old Manuel Verdin, and pulled the trigger. Verdin was pronounced dead at a hospital.

Jones shot the third victim, Arnulfo Conrriguez, 28, in the neck at close range, police said. Conrriguez was in serious condition at Fresno's Community Regional Medical Center, hospital spokeswoman Mary Lisa Russell said.

A fourth victim, 32-year-old Fatima Lopez, witnessed the slayings and started to run. Jones shot at her, striking her in the buttocks. Lopez was treated at Community Regional Medical Center and released, Russell said.

Attempts by The Associated Press to reach Lopez for comment were not immediately successful.

Plant worker Estevan Catano, 21, escaped injury when the gun Jones placed against his head did not discharge because it was out of ammunition, police said. The gun only held four rounds.

Gaza Police Catch Crocodile After 2 Years on the Lam

BEIT LAHIYA, Gaza Strip (AP) • It took an Internet search, shark nets and two weeks of floating in a sewage pond, but Gaza policemen said Tuesday that they have finally captured a crocodile that was terrifying residents.

The 5-foot-9-inch crocodile fled his zoo enclosure two years ago and crawled about a kilometer (half a mile) to a large sewage pit near the northern Gaza Strip town of Umm al-Naser, said Lt. Col. Samih al-Sultan, who led the hunt. "He had a lot of spirit in him. He wanted to be free," al-Sultan said, watching the crocodile in its new home in a pond with four other crocodiles in a zoo under construction in nearby Beit Lahiya. "We hope he lives a good life here with his wives," he said.

Residents said they didn't leave their houses in the evenings, fearing the scary reptile they say ate their ducks and goats. "We were afraid he would eat us," said farmer Hassan Mohammed of Umm al-Nasser.

Wastewater workers discovered the crocodile in the pit about two months ago, al-Sultan said. After several failed attempts, they drained the pond, leaving the crocodile with nowhere to hide. Then they used tougher shark nets to snare him.

Al-Sultan said he grew to like and respect the reptile. He named him "sakher," Arabic for "rock," in praise of his stubborn attempt to remain free. The crocodile was brought drugged into blockaded Gaza through a smuggling tunnel under the Egypt-Gaza border four years ago, said zoo worker Emad al-Qanoua. It wasn't clear how it managed to escape from the zoo in the first place.

CHINA HAULS AWAY ACTIVISTS IN CONGRESS CRACKDOWN

BEIJING (AP) • During her 30-hour train journey to Beijing, Wang Xiulan ducked into bathrooms whenever the conductors checked IDs. Later, as she lay low in the outskirts of the capital, unidentified men caught her in a nighttime raid and hauled her to a police station. She assumed a fake identity to get away, and is now in hiding again.

Wang's not a criminal. She's a petitioner.

She's among many people attempting to bring local complaints directly to the central government in an age-old Chinese tradition that has continued during the Communist Party era. But police never make that easy, and this week, as an all-important leadership transition begins, a dragnet is aimed at keeping anyone perceived as a threat or a troublemaker out of Beijing.

"There is no law in China, especially for us petitioners and ordinary folk," Wang, 50, said in an interview with The Associated Press. "Even common gangsters and hoodlums get to leave after they serve time for crimes, but for us, if we get locked up, we never know when we might be freed."

Authorities want no surprises as the handover of power begins in the capital Thursday. The transition already has been rocked by the party's messiest scandal in decades, involving a former high-flying politician now accused of engaging in graft and obstructing the investigation into his wife's murder of a British businessman.

Rights groups say the wide-ranging crackdown on critics bodes poorly for those who hope the incoming generation of leaders will loosen restrictions on activists.

Lawyers have been held under illegal house arrest, dissidents sent back to their hometowns and activists questioned. Internet users report difficulties accessing many websites and the failure of software meant to bypass Internet filters.

Veteran activist Huang Qi, who runs a website on petitioners like Wang, said nearly 1,000 people have contacted him over the past few weeks to complain that authorities have hired thugs to harass and beat them.

"I hope that the Chinese authorities will face up to the social problems," Huang said in an interview. "Using violence will only escalate the resistance."

The crackdown reflects the leadership's nervousness as slowing economic growth exacerbates public outrage over corruption, social injustice, pollution and favoritism toward state-run agencies and the elite at the expense of ordinary people.

Bolivia Returns Baby Mummy to Peruvians

LIMA, Peru (AP) • The mummified toddler seized from antiquities traffickers is at least 700 years old and sits, spine curved forward, only about a foot tall.

It was welcomed back to Peru on Tuesday as a sort of celebrity, a symbol of the nation's effort to protect its cultural heritage.

"This small package," Culture Minister Luis Peirano told reporters, "is just a sample of the sacking, of the violation of our patrimony and all our inheritance."

Police in neighboring Bolivia seized it two years ago as a Bolivian citizen tried to ship it to an address in Compiegne, France, in a cardboard box.

Bolivia's culture minister, Pablo Groux, formally handed it over to Peru at a news conference on Tuesday. It was wrapped in white linen because of its precarious condition, with underlying cloth made of cotton and wool from some sort of cameloid, which include llamas and alpacas.

Only two of the five pieces of cloth in which it was wrapped are original, and its left leg belonged to another child.

"To raise its commercial value, they added the other material and the leg," said Blanca Alva, the Peruvian Culture Ministry official in charge of protecting the country's patrimony. The mummy's sex is uncertain. Archaeologists believe it comes from a pre-Inca culture of coastal Peru and is of a child of about two years.

Peru, the seat of the Incas, was also home to dozens of pre-Inca cultures and its archaeological relics are constantly plundered, including ceramics, silver and gold craftwork, pre-Columbian textiles and colonial paintings.

Trafficking in mummies is much less common, though "lately, there has been an increase in this, the trafficking of human remains," said Alva.

The former director of Peru's National Institute of Culture, Cecilia Bakula, said that not until 2009 did Peru include skeletal remains and mummies in its "red list" of endangered goods whose export is restricted.

Syria Envoy Warns Country Could Turn Into Somalia

BEIRUT (AP) • The U.N.-Arab League envoy for Syria warned Tuesday that the country could become another Somalia — where al-Qaida-linked militants and warlords battled for decades after the ouster of a dictator — if the civil war is not ended soon.

Violence aroused new concern about the faltering diplomatic efforts to try to end the conflict, with the U.N. political chief warning that the Syria crisis risks "exploding outward" into Lebanon, Turkey and Israel. But there has been no sign the embattled Syrian leader is willing to step down as part of a peaceful transition to save the country. Assad has vowed to militarily crush the nearly 20-month old rebellion against his rule.

"The situation in Syria is very dangerous," Brahimi said in remarks published Tuesday in the pan-Arab daily Al Hayat. "I believe that if the crisis is not solved... there will be the danger of Somalization."

Somalia has been mired in conflict for more than two decades after warlords overthrew the east African nation's longtime dictator in 1991 and then turned on each other. The government, backed by African Union troops, is currently battling Islamist extremist rebels linked to al-Qaida.

Syria, by comparison, has always had a strong central government, and despite losing large swaths of territory, the regime still maintains a grip on many parts of the country, including Damascus, the seat of Assad's power, where basic government services still function.

But if the regime collapses, the country could fast shatter along multiple fault lines, leading to protracted bloodshed.

OBITUARIES

Cody Wayne Ottersberg

Oct. 12, 1990-Oct. 31, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Cody Wayne Ottersberg, 22, of Twin Falls, Idaho, lost his valiant six-year battle against leukemia (ALL). Cody's fight against leukemia ended Wednesday, Oct. 31, 2012, at Primary Children's Hospital in Salt Lake City, Utah, following a Sept. 13 bone marrow transplant.

Cody was born Oct. 12, 1990, in Twin Falls, to David and Laurie Ottersberg. Cody attended school in Twin Falls and, despite having treatments during high school, he still graduated with his 2009 class from TFHS. Cody was first diagnosed June 5, 2007, and was chemo-free for two years before he relapsed Feb. 26, 2012.

Cody had many passions in his life, and most of his passions were accompanied by people he loved and people who cared about him. Cody enjoyed playing basketball, golf and soccer. His enjoyment for golf started while finding golf balls with his father at Municipal Golf Course near his home. Cody grew up playing club soccer for the Rapids and continued into high school playing for varsity his sophomore and senior years. When he was done with his playing career, Cody found a way to still be a part of the game and, when his health allowed, Cody enjoyed coaching the JV Boys soccer team at Canyon Ridge High School for three years.

Cody was privileged to go to Los Angeles for his Make-A-Wish to meet the members of the LA Galaxy. There he met David Beckham, Tom Cruise and his favorite player, Landon Donovan. Since that time, Cody and Landon have remained friends. Soccer was more of a livelihood than a passion for Cody, and it was one that he cherished dearly with his friends. On any given night, he could be found with them playing XBOX online playing FIFA Soccer or Call of Duty. Whether they were right beside each other or miles away, his friends always found time to keep their friendship close through XBOX.

Cody and his dad shared many moments together and, if they weren't on the golf course, they were probably outdoors or hunting. They enjoyed their time spent together bow-shooting, finding different guns to buy and target shooting, but they especially loved to hunt ducks with their black Lab, Coy. Cody's outdoor fun was not limited to golf, soccer and hunting as he enjoyed spending time with his family at Alturas Lake camping, boating, hiking and riding four-wheelers. Cody also loved all the family fun during holiday dinners and get-togethers where he would "get lost in the fun" while playing with his cousins. Family meant a lot to Cody, and he was very excited about being an uncle, to which his response in finding out the news was, "Thank you — Finally!" He had a very special bond with his nephew, Kesh.

Cody loved and appreciated Dr. Chang and all of the staff at the MSTI Clinic in Boise, Idaho. Although in pain, he felt the care and compassion by several of his favorite nurses: Dave, Sam, Pam, Nick and Mary. Cody grew up playing club soccer for the Rapids and continued into high school playing for varsity his sophomore and senior years. When he was done with his playing career, Cody found a way to still be a part of the game and, when his health allowed, Cody enjoyed coaching the JV Boys soccer team at Canyon Ridge High School for three years.

Cody is survived by his parents, David and Laurie Ottersberg of Twin Falls; brother-in-law and sister, Shaun and Megan Pohlman and nephews, Kesh and Kasen Pohlman, all of Powell, Wyo.; grandparents, Wayne and Shirley Ottersberg of Twin Falls and Greta Sharp of Filer; and many special aunts, uncles, cousins and friends. Cody was preceded in death by his grandfather, Lee Sharp; and his great-grandparents.

A visitation for family and friends will be held from 5 to 9 p.m. Friday, Nov. 9, at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park," and one hour prior to the service Saturday at the church. The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 10, at the Twin Falls LDS South Stake Center, 851 Harrison St. S. (corner of Harrison Street South and Orchard Drive), with interment to follow at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. Arrangements are under the direction of Dustin Godfrey and the staff at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park." Cody, stay strong. We'll love you always! In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to "Cody's Cancer Donation Account" at any First Federal Bank.

Larene Helen Slatter

Nov. 27, 1928-Nov. 2, 2012

FILER • Larene Helen Slatter, age 83, passed away Friday, Nov. 2, 2012, at home after a stroke.

She was born Nov. 27, 1928, to Martha (Lohr) and Joda "Joe" Taylor. She married the love of her life, Leslie "John" Slatter on Sept. 30, 1945, in Filer, Idaho. Mom loved the Lord Jesus because Jesus made it possible for her to go to heaven where she will see her Savior and her loved ones. To see Jesus in Heaven was her greatest joy. She was also excited to see our dad again. Mom loved being a stay-at-home mom. She always had after-school snacks for us and enjoyed fixing our favorite chicken and noodles. Her favorite thing to do was going to yard sales. She always felt guilty if she didn't buy something. When dad was alive, they spent many wonderful camping trips with all the family whom she loved very much.

Larene is survived by her children, Christine (Jim) Curry of Shoshone, Galen Slatter of Twin Falls and Steven Slatter of Filer; eight grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren; one brother, Verlon (Boyd) Taylor of Filer; and one sister, Juanita Cox of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. She was preceded in death by her husband; her parents; three brothers, Carroll, Keith and Paul Taylor; and two sisters, Jeanne Troxell and Elsie Ruiz.

Her family is deeply grateful for the wonderful, loving care from the staff of River Ridge Care and Rehabilitation Center and, most recently, from Hospice Visions.

A celebration of Larene's life will be held at 1 p.m. Friday, Nov. 9, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls, with Pastor Bruce Carlson officiating. Burial will follow at the Filer Cemetery. A viewing for family and friends will take place from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 8, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel.

Services are under the direction of Trent Stimpson and staff at Reynolds Funeral Chapel. Condolences may be left for the family by visiting www.reynoldschapel.com.

John Paul 'Jack' Warberg

Nov. 21, 1931-Nov. 1, 2012

TWIN FALLS • John Paul "Jack" Warberg finished his journey on earth as a result of cancer Thursday, Nov. 1, 2012.

Jack was born Nov. 21, 1931, to parents Bertha Church Warberg and Paul Albert Warberg in Twin Falls. He attended schools in Twin Falls and in Ogden, Utah, graduating from Ogden High School in 1949. His first career after graduation was that of a diesel mechanic, and he was employed by Pacific Northwest Pipe Line. When Jack was visiting his brother, Carl, in Twin Falls, he met June Turner, and they were married in 1952. They had a son, John Paul Warberg II. They were later divorced. Jack continued working for Pacific Northwest and met Pat Richardson, whom he married. They were then relocated to Boise. They adopted two children, Wade Sterling and Mary Lisa.

The family moved to Twin Falls, and Jack became a certified hearing aid specialist. He and Pat were divorced. Jack was a member of the Masonic Lodge and the Rotary Club. Jack met Jean Burrows, and they were married June 23, 1983. He was an active member of the Tri-State Hearing Association and held several positions in the National Hearing Association. Jack played golf, skied and loved to dance to all types of music. His favorite place to be was fishing at Magic Dam, where he enjoyed his cabin on the west side.

Jack is survived by his brother, Carl A. Warberg of Draper, Utah; and his stepbrother, Glen Sandau of Twin Falls. They remained his best friends throughout his life. Also surviving is his son, John Paul Warberg of Boise, Idaho; daughter, Mary Lisa (Douglas) Hooker, and grandson, Jake of Spring Branch, Texas; son, Wade (Diane) Warberg and two grandchildren, Wyatt and Kaylie of Fort Collins, Colo.; two nieces; one nephew; and several cousins. He was preceded in death by his parents.

No service is planned. Cremation was under the direction of Rosenau Funeral Home and Crematory in Twin Falls.

Jerry Diehl

March 2, 1927-Nov. 6, 2012

JEROME — Jerry Diehl, 85, of Idaho Falls and formerly of Jerome, passed away Tuesday, Nov. 6, 2012, in Idaho Falls.

He was born March 2, 1927, in Jerome, Idaho, the son of William T. and Beulah Haines Diehl. He attended Jerome schools and graduated in 1945. Jerry served his country in the Navy during World War II, then attended the University of Idaho and graduated in 1950. He married Rosamary Wilson on Nov. 15, 1951. They farmed, dairied and were in the school business until 1990 in Jerome.

Jerry is survived by his wife, Rosamary of Idaho Falls; their children, Mike (Cyndi) Diehl of Eagle, Idaho, Brad (Heidi) Diehl of Twin Falls, Idaho, and Kari (Mark) Frisbey of Idaho Falls, Idaho; five grandchildren, two great-grandchildren; his brother, Ted (Bev) Diehl of Jerome; and many extended family members and friends. He is preceded in death by his son, Curt; one brother, Lester; and one sister, Dorothy.

An open house "celebration of life" will be held for Jerry on Friday, Nov. 9, at the Jerome High School Jerry Diehl Auditorium, 26 N. Tiger Drive in Jerome, where family and friends may call from 6 to 8 p.m. Come and share your memories of Jerry. Remember how he loved to joke and play pranks on people. Remember that wonderful laugh!

In lieu of flowers, Jerry's family suggests that memorials be made in his name to the Alzheimer's Association, 6126 W. State St., Suite 305, Boise, ID 83703, or Hands of Hope Hospice, 1379 E. 17th St., Idaho Falls, ID 83404.

A private interment with military honors will take place in the Jerome Cemetery. Arrangements are under the care of Farnsworth Mortuary of Jerome.

David Gran Rigel

Dec. 2, 1949-Nov. 5, 2012

HAGERMAN • David Gran Rigel, 62, of Hagerman, died Nov. 5, 2012, at his home surrounded by his family after a short battle with cancer.

He was born Dec. 2, 1949, at Grants Pass, Ore., to Jesse and Enid Rigel, the fifth of seven children. In 1980 in Nevada, he married Loniene Sanders. They shortly moved to Idaho to farm. He raised calves for many years and also drove milk truck for the past 10 years for the Giltner family.

He is survived by his wife, Loniene Rigel; son, Jesse (Erin) Rigel of Twin Falls; stepdaughters, Johnna Bailey of Jerome and Yvonne Sanders of Flaming Gorge, Utah; stepson, Wayne (Sherry) Sanders of Wells, Nev.; brothers, Claude Rigel of Eugene, Ore., Fred (Carla) Rigel of Cottage Grove, Ore., and Ted (Kathy) Rigel of Lakeside, Ore.; sister, Maxine (Doug) Stout of Creswell, Ore.; sisters-in-law, Colleen and Ruth; seven grandchildren; and numerous nieces and nephews. He will be deeply missed by all who knew and loved him.

Dave served honorably in the Navy in Guam and South Carolina as a young man. He cherished his family, yearly family trips to Oregon and fall hunting trips with his son. Dave loved the outdoors and had a great sense of humor. Dave will be missed by all his loved ones.

A service of remembrance will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 10, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home Wendell-Gooding Chapel, 380 First Ave. E. in Wendell.

Those wishing to share memories with the family may log onto Dave's memorial page at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com. Arrangements are under the direction of Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home Wendell-Gooding Chapel.

Art Collection Seized by Nazis To Be Sold

BERLIN (AP) • An American Jewish man whose father's extensive collection of unique posters was seized by the Nazis and only returned after years of legal battles is looking for a buyer.

Attorney Gary Osen, who represented Peter Sachs in his fight to get back the collection of some 4,000 posters from the German Historical Museum, said Tuesday his client hopes to find a buyer for the majority of the collection. He also plans to donate some 800 to museums and universities. Osen says if a single buyer cannot be found, the posters will be sold at auction. A German court awarded the collection of posters, which include advertisement and propaganda dating back to the late 19th century and worth $5.75 million to $20.44 million, in March.

Ex-Nebraska Attorney General Douglas Dies

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) • Former Nebraska Attorney General Paul Douglas, who had resigned in the wake of the Commonwealth Savings scandal, has died.

Liz Howerter, of Roper & Sons funeral home, said Tuesday that Douglas died Sunday in Lincoln. He was 85.

Commonwealth Savings failed in November 1983, while Douglas was attorney general. The Legislature later voted to impeach Douglas, saying he misrepresented payments he got from a Commonwealth executive.

The Lincoln Journal Star reports (<http://bit.ly/Pu0WWf>) that in May 1984 the Nebraska Supreme Court acquitted Douglas of impeachment charges, but seven months later he was convicted of lying to a legislative committee. That conviction was overturned.

The Nebraska Supreme Court then suspended Douglas' law license, so he resigned a day after Christmas 1984.

He eventually regained his license and practiced law in Lincoln.

Paul Malone

March 26, 1920-Nov. 5, 2012

JEROME • Paul Malone of Jerome passed away Monday, Nov. 5, 2012, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls from complications of cancer.

Paul Charles Malone was born the fifth of six children to Christina Glenn Malone and James Luther (Pat) Malone on March 26, 1920, in Buhl, Idaho. He was raised in the Buhl and Wendell areas and graduated from high school in Wendell in 1938. He went to Albion Normal School for one year. Paul joined the Army in 1941 and shortly changed to the Army Air Force. He was attached to the 390th Bombardier group and was stationed in England, where he was a mechanic on the B-17.

He met LaDene Lowe in Jerome at Bing's Ice Cream Parlor while home on leave. They were later married on April 26, 1943. Their son, Patrick, was born in 1946 and then their daughter, Paula, came along in 1948. Paul worked at many jobs from vacuum salesman to driving a propane truck. He began his career as a grocer at the Baby Beef Market on Main Street in Jerome, then the Sawtooth Market on North Lincoln, also in Jerome. In 1956, he and LaDene purchased their own grocery store and named it Paul's Drive-In Market. It was later known as Paul's Foodtown. They owned and operated this business side-by-side for 41 years. They built their business on quality food and friendliness. There was hardly a person who came in the door that was not greeted with a smile and many times a hug! After he retired from the grocery business, they bought a farm in Wendell, where they farmed and raised cattle for several years. He loved living on the farm and taking his dog, Abe, for drives.

The same year they purchased the store, they bought a cabin with Jean and Glenn Malone on the Yankee Fork of the Salmon River. Our families enjoyed many wonderful times there. Paul was an avid sportsman. He played baseball, bowled, golfed, hunted and, above all, he fished! If you couldn't find him, he was usually fishing somewhere. He and LaDene volunteered in the activities that their children were involved in. He was a Boy Scout leader and the associate guardian for Bethel 14 of Job's Daughters. Paul was a member of the Jerome Elks Lodge, the Jerome Masonic Lodge, the Jerome Country Club, the Queen Valley Golf Course and the Queen Valley Community Church.

They retired in the early 1970s and started wintering in Queen Valley, Ariz. They enjoyed many years and made great friends while they were there. After LaDene passed away in 2002, Paul continued to go to Arizona in the winter. One winter, his friends asked him to drive a lady who also had lost her spouse to the bowling alley for their league play. This is when Betty Mairs came into his life. Paul and Betty enjoyed several years together traveling, bowling, golfing and even dancing! Dad enjoyed Betty's love for music. They went to concerts, the Ice Escapades in Sun Valley and many other musical shows.

He is preceded in death by his parents; his wife of 59 years; three sisters; two brothers; and a great-granddaughter, Connie Anneli Tolman. Paul is survived by his children, Pat (Priscilla) Malone and Paula (Mike) Brown of Jerome; his grandchildren, Steven (Stacy) Malone, Wendi (Spencer) Tolman, Ryan (Heather) Miller, Sean (Mindy) Brown, Kayla (Craig) Kelly and Cassie Brown; his great-grandchildren, Mikayla and Brooklyn Malone, Payton Tolman, Ryne and Kyler Kelly, Liam Brown, Maggie Brown, Brayden McDowell, Myrian Lopez and soon to be born Baby Boy Miller. He is also survived by a sister-in-law, Norma Lowe; a brother-in-law, Denny (Sara) Lowe; many nieces and nephews; and his special friend, Betty Mairs.

The funeral will be conducted at 11 a.m. Friday, Nov. 9, at Demaray-Robertson Funeral Chapel in Jerome, with Pastor Nate Dreesman officiating. Family will greet friends and family from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 8, at the funeral chapel.

Services are under the care and direction of Jason Robertson and Angela Demaray Schneider of the Demaray-Robertson Funeral Chapel in Jerome.

Rex 'Bob' Blamires

Jan. 17, 1923-Nov. 4, 2012

JEROME • Rex 'Bob' Blamires left this earth Sunday, Nov. 4, 2012, due to complications of a blood clot.

Bob was born Jan. 17, 1923, in Burley, Idaho, to Lawrence and Cruella Blamires. He was the youngest of seven children. After graduation from Jerome High School in 1941, he worked construction for three years. He returned to Jerome in 1943 and went to work for his brother-in-law in the plumbing and heating business. In 1944, he married Beth Kendrick, and to that union came Linda, Jan and Jim.

He played for and managed the Jerome City baseball team for several years and, when his boys were eligible, he managed Pony and American Legion teams. He was an avid hunter and fisherman and loved baseball and the Boise State Broncos. In 1958, he started his own plumbing and blasting business. He later incorporated with his sons doing plumbing, blasting and excavation.

Bob is survived by his son, Jim (Jane) Blamires of Jerome; grandson, Shane (Kim) and their children, Kaitlyn and Bianna of Lewiston, Idaho; grandson, Travis (Amy) and their children, Ellie and Ayden of Palm Desert, Calif.; grandson, Brent (Tara) and their children, Wyatt and Eli of Jerome; daughter, Linda (Dick) Goeckner of Wendell and granddaughter, Rhonda and her children, Lacey and Brandy of Arizona; and grandson, Alan (Sarah) Goeckner and their children, Tyler and Jordan; along with three great-great-grandchildren.

Bob was preceded in death by his parents; four brothers; two sisters; wife, Beth; and son, Jan.

He will be deeply missed by all who knew and loved him. Cremation was under the direction of Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls. A memorial service will be held at a later date.

The family would like to offer a special thank you to Dr. David Johnson and the medical staff at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls for the exceptional care of Bob. The family requests memorial contributions in Bob's name to the Rock Creek Fire District, P.O. Box 365, Kimberly, ID 83341, Attention: Jason Keller.

Deborah Hollinger

Nov. 9, 1945-Oct. 27, 2012

She was born Nov. 9, 1945, in Hutchinson, Kan., the daughter of Wilbur and Nola Lavielle Hollinger. In 1962, Deborah married Tony F. Martinez at the county courthouse. They only had $25 to their name; it cost $5 for the marriage license, and they rented a house the same day for $10. Two years later, a daughter arrived, Tabitha; and a year after, a son, Tyrone; and then five years following, a son, Tigre. Deborah lovingly cared for her husband and children until her last breath.

Deborah worked at the old veteran's hospital on Sugar Factory Road taking care of the elderly. She then worked at the Bowladrome, Electrolux and Alumax, and she then hauled spuds. Following that, she moved to Oregon and went back to school, obtaining her license as a hair designer. She then owned and operated her own shop, "Deb's Hair Design." She later moved back to Twin Falls, where she went to work for Macy's and operated her shop from her home where she would cut and design hair for her family and the elderly. Family was important to her; she helped raise her grandchildren, Little T and Toban in her home. She also loved to go to Jackpot, Nev., with her daughter and best friend, Tony, and completely and totally enjoyed being with her son, Tigre.

Deb is survived by her children, Tabitha Clifford and Tigre Martinez of Twin Falls and Jamie King of Nampa; siblings, Darlene Joy Hamm of Oklahama, Melvin Eugene Hollinger of Missouri, Francis Lavielle Hollinger of Missouri, Carol Gene Serafin of Oklahama, David John Hollinger of Oregon and Mark James Hollinger of California; her best friend, Tony Martinez of Twin Falls; grandchildren, Taryn Prestin, George Pullin, Adam Pullin, Tygh Martinez, Toban Cornilles and Tigre Martinez Jr.; along with nine great-grandchildren.

Friends may call from 5 to 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 7, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 8, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, with interment to follow at Sunset Memorial Park Cemetery in Twin Falls. Those who wish may share memories and condolences at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

Patriarch Maxim of Bulgaria Dies at 98

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) • Patriarch Maxim of Bulgaria, who weathered a revolt over his communist-era ties to lead the Balkan country's Orthodox Christians for more than 40 years, has died. He was 98.

Orthodox Christianity is Bulgaria's dominant religion, followed by more than 80 percent of the country's 7.4 million people. Maxim was the church's leader for more than four decades, bridging the country's transition from communism.

Born on Oct. 29, 1914 as Marin Naidenov Minkov, he graduated from the Sofia Seminary in 1935 and entered Sofia University's theology department in 1938, before rising through the church ranks to be named Patriarch on July 4, 1971.

The church leader largely kept away from political life, though he remained an influential figure throughout his career.

He was hailed for meeting with Pope John Paul II during the pontiff's visit to Sofia in 2002, a trip seen as warming the frosty relationship between the Orthodox Church and the Vatican. Pope Benedict XVI sent his condolences in a telegram, expressing thanks "for the good relations that the patriarch developed with the Roman Catholic Church" along with hope that they would continue. Benedict recalled "the cordial hospitality" reserved for his predecessor during the historic visit, and said Maxim "served God and his people with devotion."

It's Back! Compete for the Holiday Cookie Champ Title

This December, someone will earn the title of southern Idaho's Cookie Champ.

It could be you.

That is, if you can bake the cookie that most impresses the Times-News' features department and our panel of cookie connoisseurs.

In 2011, our cookie contest drew 25 contestants, with Twin Falls' Virginia Reynolds narrowly beating out the other goody gladiators to claim top honors. Melanie Halsell's entry tied Reynolds' for best taste, and Vickie Stone's cookies took the honors for best appearance.

To compete for the 2012 title, sign up by calling Tetona Dunlap at 735-3243 or emailing her at tdunlap@magicvalley.com. She'll give you the instructions and location for our Nov. 26 cookie-tasting panel.

We'll ask contestants to bring a half-dozen homemade cookies — from a single recipe of their choice — to wow our judges that day.

THE TAMALES THAT UNITE

Tamale tradition brings Magic Valley families together during the holidays.

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Lidia Carranza kneads the masa in a bowl with both hands.

The masa, or corn dough, needs to be smooth so when Lidia spreads it over the corn husk it does not stick to the spoon.

Lidia's daughter-in-law, Sandra Carranza, watches her from the kitchen table Oct. 29, interpreting what Lidia says in Spanish about the tamale-making process.

"You need to have strong arms to make sure the tamales are smoother and softer," Sandra says.

Often Lidia drops a ball of masa into a glass of water. If it floats it is ready, but if it drops she needs to keep mixing.

Today only Lidia and Sandra are in the kitchen, but in a few months the sounds of laughter and conversations in Spanish and English will mark the celebration of Christmas and the New Year. Just like many families who serve turkey or ham as the centerpiece of their holiday dinners, many Hispanic families work all day preparing tamales as the main dish.

As far back as Lidia, 63, can remember, her family has always gathered during the holidays to make tamales.

"It was just a tradition right after midnight Mass on Dec. 24 for people to make tamales, eat and break the pinata," Lidia said.

Often, Sandra said, families start the four- or five-hour tamale process and leave them to cook while they go to Mass.

Lidia Carranza adds chicken as she makes tamales.

Lidia was 16 when her mother taught her the recipe. Since then, Lidia has added her own spices — cumin, garlic, pepper — and made the recipe her own. She also prefers her tamales with more meat, she said as she spread masa over a husk.

Sandra learned how to make tamales from her mother as well, along with her sisters and cousins. But first she started out with a job she hated: washing the husks.

"That was a job for the little kids. You had to wash it so no little hairs were left," Sandra said. "I hated it."

Eventually Sandra's mother gave her more adult tasks in the process when she turned 15.

"I was happy when I finally graduated," Sandra said with a laugh.

Though tamales are traditional at the holidays, this doesn't mean they're a once-a-year treat.

When Sandra's children visit their grandmother Lidia, they often request she makes tamales. And of course she obliges.

"She makes them like that," Sandra said, snapping her fingers.

Rosa Paiz of Jerome has been making tamales for years. During the holidays the process is part of a big party with families coming together.

"It's a good four-hour process. We get together and laugh and the husbands wait," Paiz said. "We do ours on Christmas Eve."

Paiz — who has been making tamales daily as the owner of El Sombrero in Jerome for the past 30 years — said

Use Instant Coffee to Add Java Jolt to Steak Tips

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

Most of us have to be suffering from a pretty mind-blowing caffeine withdrawal migraine before we'll reach for instant coffee. That doesn't mean you shouldn't buy some, because while instant coffee makes a generally lousy cup of java, it can do astounding things for your cooking.

First, an instant coffee primer. Coffee hounds have been tinkering with versions of instant coffee since at least the late 1700s, but it wasn't until just before World War II that it became widely available. Those early varieties were made by spraying brewed coffee into heated towers and drying it into granules. By 1964, a freeze-drying method had been perfected, which boasted superior aroma and body.

Better, perhaps, but most of us still don't consider it good.

But that's OK, because while instant coffee may not do wonders in your morning mug, it can effortlessly add tons of depth and flavor at the dinner table. That's because coffee — even the instant variety — packs one of the most complex flavor profiles of any food, an amazing balance of acidity, bitterness, sweetness and earthy notes.

While tasty on their own — or with cream and sugar — those flavors also can heighten the impact of other ingredients in a dish (much the way salt does). So what should you do with it? Start by not making a cup of coffee and using it as a dry ingredient.

- Add a tablespoon or two of instant coffee to your favorite chili. You will get a depth of flavor you didn't think possible.

- For the same reason, add some to a tomato- or red wine-based beef stew. Coffee plays so well with the savory meat and acidic-sweet tomatoes.

- Combine instant coffee with salt, cumin, ground black pepper and whatever else gets you going. Grind it up and use as a rub on steaks or beef roasts.

- Can you say mocha cookies? Add some instant coffee to a chocolate-chocolate chip cookie recipe. Ditto for chocolate cake.

- Make the best hot cocoa. In a saucepan, combine equal parts cocoa powder and instant coffee with milk. Bring to a gentle simmer and whisk in sugar (to taste). Or be totally decadent and use chocolate chips instead of sugar.

Bourbon Java Steak Tips

Start to finish: 30 minutes active (plus marinating).
Servings: 4.

1 cup bourbon
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1/4 cup instant coffee granules
1/4 cup soy sauce
4 cloves garlic
1-inch chunk fresh ginger
2 pounds sirloin steak tips
3 large yellow onions, chopped

In a blender, combine the bourbon, brown sugar, coffee granules, soy sauce, garlic and ginger. Puree until smooth, then transfer to a large zip-close plastic bag. Add the steak tips to the bag, close the bag, then turn to coat the meat with the marinade. Refrigerate at least 1 hour and up to overnight.

When ready, heat the broiler with an oven rack 6 inches from the heat.

Remove the steaks tips from the bag. Add the onions to the bag, close, then turn to coat. Transfer the onions and the marinade to a large roasting pan.

Set the onions under the broiler and cook for 3 to 4 minutes. Remove the pan from the heat, set the steak tips over the onions, then return to the broiler. Broil for 5 to 6 minutes, then turn the tips and broil for another 5 to 6 minutes. Let the meat rest for several minutes, then serve with onions spooned over them. Per serving: 730 calories; 200 calories from fat (27 percent of total calories); 22 g fat (8 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 165 mg cholesterol; 42 g carbohydrate; 50 g protein; 2 g fiber; 1,450 mg sodium.

Grilled Mushrooms Update Grandma's Barley Pilaf

STEPHANIE WITT
SEDGWICK

Special to The Washington Post

One easy way to get more grains on the dinner table is to ask, "How did Grandma do it?" You don't need to invent everything yourself. In my family, Grandma served pilafs of kasha and barley flavored with onions and mushrooms that she had sauteed in chicken fat. They were good, but a little heavy and a tad bland. I've updated her idea to make it lighter and brighter.

Instead of using chicken fat, I brush three varieties of mushrooms with garlic oil and grill them until golden and soft. (You can also use a nonstick grill pan or griddle.) I toss the cooked barley with the mushrooms, more garlic oil and flavorful herbs.

The pilaf can stand on its own for lunch, or pair it with sliced steak, roast chicken, grilled salmon or grilled tofu for dinner. It is best served warm or at room temperature the day it is made.

Grilled Mushroom and Barley Pilaf

Makes a scant 6 cups (7 or 8 side-dish servings).

1 cup dried pearled barley
2 tablespoons finely chopped garlic
4 tablespoons olive oil
1 pound large mushrooms (a combination of portobello mushroom caps cut into 1/2-inch strips, oyster mushrooms separated into individual petals or small clusters of petals, and white mushrooms stemmed and cut into 1/2-inch slices)
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
2 tablespoons finely chopped chives

TRACY A. WOODWARD • THE WASHINGTON POST

Salt
Freshly ground black pepper

Cook the barley according to the package directions. Meanwhile, combine the garlic and oil in a small nonstick saute pan or skillet and heat on medium-high. Once the garlic starts to sizzle, reduce the heat to low or medium-low, adjusting it as needed so the garlic cooks slowly but does not brown. Cook for 10 minutes, then remove from the heat.

Prepare the grill for direct heat, or heat a nonstick griddle or grill pan over medium-high heat. If using a gas grill, preheat to medium-high (450 degrees). If using a charcoal grill, light the charcoal or wood briquettes; when the briquettes are ready, distribute them evenly under the cooking area. For a medium-hot fire, you should be able to hold your hand about 6 inches above the coals for 4 to 5 seconds.

Brush the mushroom slices with some of the garlic oil. Transfer them to the grill grate, or use a grill basket to prevent smaller pieces from falling through the grate. Cover the grill and cook, checking every minute or so and turning them to cook evenly, until the mushrooms are cooked through and nicely browned. (If using a grill pan or griddle indoors, place the slices on the preheated pan and cook uncovered.) Watch the mushrooms carefully: They will cook quickly, especially the oyster mushrooms. Cut the cooked mushrooms into 1/2-inch pieces.

Pour the cooked barley into a colander to drain off any excess water; transfer the barley to a large bowl. Add the mushrooms, the remaining garlic oil, the parsley and chives. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Stir to thoroughly incorporate. Taste, and adjust the seasoning as needed. Serve warm or at room temperature.

Tamales

there are many types of tamales besides ones made with pork or chicken. There are pineapple tamales and potato tamales, and instead of corn husks, banana leaves can be used.

Paiz said the tamales are as varied as the places people are from — Colorado to Texas, all the way down to Mexico and Nicaragua.

Lidia also makes tamales that include other ingredients besides meat. She is known for jalapeno and cheese tamales.

“They are really good. I like them spicy,” Sandra said.

Noelia Garza of Twin Falls makes only pork tamales. Garza, 61, learned when she was 13 and has been making them for her family during the holidays and year-round since. Sometimes she even makes them to sell in Twin Falls and Filer.

When Garza makes tamales she always makes sure the masa is really gooey, because if it is dry, you will have dry tamales. Another tip: Use the juice from the pork to moisten the masa and add more flavor. Garza said the tamales take less time if she has help, which she often receives from her daughter and husband.

Candy Tellez of Jerome gets help from her son.

“He loves making food,” Tellez said. Most of the time the Tellezes don’t go by a recipe, and you can often find tamales right next to the turkey during Christmas dinner in the Tellez home.

Salvador Carranza of Twin Falls said that in Michoacan, Mexico, where his family is originally from, during Christmas dinner there would be no turkey, just tamales.

“It wasn’t something that was made all the time,” Salvador said. “Traditionally it was made for special occasions.”

Lidia is Salvador’s mother and often helps him make tamales as a fundraiser for youth activities at St. Edward’s Catholic Church in Twin Falls. Salvador is the youth coordinator at the church.

Lidia, Sandra and other women have made as many as 70 dozen for the children in the church to sell to attend conferences. The tamale fundraiser is popular and usually very successful.

Salvador said the wonderful thing about the tamale-making process — whether for Christmas dinner or as a fundraiser — is that they create a sense of community and family.

Rosa Paiz’s Pork Tamales

For the pork filling:

- 3 cups diced pork
  - 1 tablespoon salt
  - 1 tablespoon pepper
  - 1 tablespoon cumin
  - 1 tablespoon garlic
  - Crisco or lard, for sauteing
- Boil diced pork until cooked thoroughly and tender. Drain pork and reserve liquid. Mix dry ingredients together and toss with pre-cooked pork meat. Saute seasoned pork in Crisco or lard.

For the masa mixture:

- 1 (4.4-pound) package Quaker Masa Harina
- 12 cups warm water
- 1 cup Crisco or lard
- 1 tablespoon Red California chili powder
- 2 tablespoons salt
- 2 teaspoons baking powder

Blend together all masa ingredients except the water. After ingredients are well mixed, add reserved pork broth and water and re-mix, adding more water as necessary to form a spongy dough.

For assembly using corn husks:

Soak in warm water until soft and pliable. Spread out the dough over the corn husks to 1/4- to 1/2-inch thickness. Place 1 tablespoon of the meat filling into the center. Fold the sides of the husks in toward the center and place in a steamer. Steam for one hour.

For assembly using banana leaves:

Cut leaves into 9-inch squares and steam until soft and pliable. Spread about 1 to 2 tablespoons of masa dough into 2- or 3-inch squares on center of 9-inch banana leaf piece. Top with 1 or 2 tablespoons of pork mixture. Fold in sides, then the ends to enclose. Steam for one hour.

The Cooked and the Raw — Can They Be Together?

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS
The Charlotte Observer

Question: I am a professionally trained chef. I saw a newspaper recipe for a chicken roulade with raw chicken rolled around deli meats and cooked. I was taught that this is a public health hazard. One should never cook raw and cooked animal proteins together!

Answer: That rule seemed a little extreme to me. What about the classic dish Chicken Cordon Bleu, in which a slice of ham is placed between two chicken cutlets before cooking? So I asked Benjamin Chapman, the food safety expert for N.C. State University and the N.C. Cooperative Extension.

The chef isn't correct, he said. It isn't dangerous to place cooked and raw meat together as long as you then cook the raw meat correctly.

A cook might fear overcooking the cooked meat and could undercook the raw meat, he said. But as long as you use a thermometer to ensure the raw chicken reaches the correct temperature — in this case, 165 degrees — there is no reason you can't combine the two.

Certainly, you have to handle the raw meat correctly, making sure to use clean tools and cooking surfaces and keeping the assembled dish cold until you cook it. But the raw meat won't contaminate the cooked meat as long as both are then cooked.

The Secret to Getting Cranberry Sauce Just Right

BY ELIZABETH KARMEL
Associated Press

One of the many things I love about Thanksgiving is the continuity of the menu across generations and regions.

Sure, every family and region has its own interpretation of the staples. But it is simply amazing to me that on one day so many Americans regardless of background sit down to roughly the same meal — turkey, gravy, cranberry sauce, dressing (if you're in the South, stuffing if you're in the North), some sort of potato and a healthy dose of pie.

One of my favorite parts of Thanksgiving is the cranberry sauce. It is one of the very first recipes I developed many years ago when I was supervising the public relations side of the Butterball Turkey Talk-Line. I called it a cranberry chutney instead of a sauce because it is so thick with fruit, spices and a touch of vinegar. It is good enough to eat off a spoon!

Just be aware — the flavors are intensely American and have no resemblance to Indian chutneys.

Even though most Americans serve cranberry sauce from a can, I urge you to make this the year you try making it yourself. It's so easy and so delicious, there's no reason not to. Even if you don't use my recipe, making cranberry sauce from scratch is well worth it.

And here's one tip regardless of which recipe you use. Getting the sauce to thicken and take on the right consistency requires that the cranberries simmer for at least 10 minutes. That is how long it takes to release the pectin — the natural jelling ingredient — from the fruit. As long as you cook it for long enough for the cranberries to pop, you should be good.

I wanted my new cranberry sauce to be heavy with fruit, like jam; but also tart and sweet, and with a depth of flavor you can't get with white sugar alone. I achieved this by adding dried apricots and dried cherries for their sweetness and texture. As a result, I was able to reduce the recommended amount of white sugar.

I used a combination of fresh squeezed orange juice, port wine and balsamic vinegar instead of water, creating layers of flavor and complexity that cook down and infuse into each of the sour berries. Once the berries start to pop — my favorite stage of the recipe — I add a pinch of salt and warm autumn spices, including cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg.

This fruit-filled cranberry chutney is good hot, room temperature or cold and will brighten any holiday table. You also can make it up to a week ahead.

Cranberry Chutney with Port

Start to finish: 15 minutes.
Servings: 16.

Two 12-ounce bags fresh cranberries, washed and picked through Zest and Juice of 1 large orange (about 1/2 cup of juice)
1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar
1 cup port wine

1 cup sugar
1 cup dried Turkish apricots, cut into strips
1 cup dried cherries
Pinch salt
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
1 teaspoon cinnamon

In a large, heavy pot, combine the cranberries, orange zest and juice, balsamic vinegar, port and sugar. Bring to low boil, then reduce heat to simmer. Add the apricots, cherries and salt.

Making sure the cranberries don't burn, continue cooking over a low-medium heat, stirring occasionally, for about 10 minutes, or until the cranberries start to pop. Add the nutmeg, cloves and cinnamon, then stir well to combine. Continue cooking on low until thick, about another 5 to 7 minutes. Taste and adjust seasonings, if necessary.

being canned: "Who knows at that point?" But the biggest advantage would be bringing together brewing activities at three sites: the main taproom and pilot system along Sixth Street in Ketchum, rental space at a former grocery store for cold storage and grain storage, and further brewing being done at Portneuf Valley Brewing in Pocatello. (The partners are looking at working out another agreement to brew at a fourth site as well.)

In the overall plan, Holle said he'd hoped Sawtooth would have found a larger location by now. But the growth and variety the brewery has achieved are just what he'd intended.

That doesn't mean he's quite gotten used to seeing his goal become reality.

"It's kind of strange to actually see it," he said of the brewery's success. But, he added, it's also exciting to see people enjoying his beer. "It's one of the best feelings you could ever have."

Available now at taps ranging from Stanley to Twin Falls and Boise to Idaho Falls, Sawtooth has offered a remarkable array of beer styles in its first year. For Saturday's anniversary party, Holle and Jones will pull together a range of old favorites and a few new beers.

In all, at least 23 beers will be available, including barrel-aged versions of its rye IPA and imperial stout, a spiced pumpkin cream ale served using nitrogen, and a gluten-free honey ale.

The celebration starts at 3 p.m. both in the taproom and out on Sixth Street, which will be blocked off from Main Street to Leadville Avenue. Mark Mueller, Army of Pines and Hillfolk Noir will offer live music, and food trucks will ensure attendees can get a meal to go with their drinks.

An afterparty is planned at Whiskey Jacques. For those traveling from out of town, the Clarion Inn of Sun Valley is offering room specials; "just ask for the beer rate, basically," Holle said.

The brewery has been preparing for this weekend since about July. Holle described tweaking the brewing schedule to allow enough for distribution, the taproom and squirreling away for this event.

"It's been challenging," he said.

But the variety and limited quantities of some of the beers will also serve as a draw.

"That's just kind of the nature of the beast," he said. "It makes it exciting knowing that we will run out of it."

A Classic Casserole, Updated

THE WASHINGTON POST

Most Southerners will remember this make-ahead casserole from their childhood. David Hagedorn makes the dish richer by adding croissant cubes; pork or lamb sausage also works well. Using a mixture of cheese gives the dish more depth.

Adapted from chef and former restaurateur David Hagedorn.

Chicken Sausage and Three-Cheese Egg Casserole

8 to 10 servings.

- 1 1/2 pounds chicken sausage
- 2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
- 1 clove chopped garlic
- 4 cups day-old French bread, with crusts, cut into 2-inch cubes
- 2 stale croissants, cubed
- 12 large eggs
- 2 cups low-fat milk
- 2 cups heavy cream
- 1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard or 1 teaspoon dried mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1 pound shredded cheese of choice (Monterey Jack, cheddar, Gruyere, Swiss, mozzarella)

Have ready a large, rectangular baking dish (or other 3-quart ovenproof baking dish) sprayed with nonstick spray oil. Remove the sausage from its casings and break into chunks. In a large pan over medium-high heat, add the olive oil, then the sausage and chopped garlic and cook, stirring, until sausage is browned and cooked through, 3 to 4 minutes. Strain in a colander and then drain on paper towels. Transfer the mixture to prepared dish.

In a large bowl, mix the French bread and croissant cubes on the sausage mixture.

In a large bowl, using a whisk or a hand-held mixer, combine eggs, milk, cream, mustard, salt and pepper until well blended. Add cheeses and mix until combined. Pour the custard mix over the casserole. Spray a sheet of aluminum foil with a nonstick spray oil and place it, sprayed side down, over the casserole. Refrigerate overnight.

When ready to bake, remove the casserole from refrigerator and bring to room temperature (at least 15 minutes) while preheating the oven to 325 degrees. Bake, covered, for 40 minutes. Remove foil and continue baking until casserole is golden brown and puffed, 15 to 20 minutes. The casserole is done when a knife inserted into the center yields no liquid. Allow it to rest for 10 minutes before serving.

Cranberry-Pancetta Stuffing that's Truly Stovetop

BY ALISON LADMAN
Associated Press

And you thought there were only two ways to cook stuffing — roasted in the bird or baked in a casserole dish.

The problem with both of those methods is that only some of the stuffing gets deliciously crisp; the rest tends to be mushy. Our solution? Don't cook it in the oven at all.

Instead, we mix together a basic brioche, cranberry and pancetta stuffing. But instead of cooking it right away, we refrigerate it until it is firm and is easily cut. We then fry those cut pieces of stuffing on the stovetop with a bit of butter. The result is that every serving of stuffing is crisp outside and tender inside.

Pan-Fried Cranberry Pancetta Stuffing

Start to finish: 2 1/2 hours
(30 minutes active).

Servings: 8.

- 6 ounces pancetta, chopped
- 1 1/2 tablespoons chopped capers
- 1 1/2 tablespoons chopped fresh sage
- 8 cups cubed brioche
- 1 3/4 cups low-sodium chicken or turkey broth
- 3 eggs
- 3/4 cup chopped dried cranberries
- 3 tablespoons butter, divided

Coat a 9-by-13-inch baking pan with cooking spray. Line the pan with parchment or waxed paper, leaving an overhang on the edges of the pan. In a large saute pan over medium heat, cook the pancetta until crispy, about 8 minutes. Add the capers and sage and continue to cook until crispy and lightly browned, about 3 to 4 minutes. Add the brioche and cook until lightly toasted. Remove the pan from the heat. In a small bowl, whisk together the broth and the eggs. Stir the broth mixture and the cranberries into the brioche mixture. Spoon into the prepared pan. Press the brioche mixture to create an even layer. Refrigerate for at least 2 hours.

Using the overhanging paper as handles, lift the stuffing in a single block from the pan and set on a cutting board. Cut the stuffing into 16 pieces. In a large skillet over medium-high, melt half of the butter. Set 8 of the stuffing pieces into the pan and fry for 3 minutes per side, or until golden and crispy. Transfer to a plate, then repeat with remaining butter and stuffing. Finished stuffing can be kept warm in a 200-degree oven.

Thank You to the Magic Valley

Clover Christian School is now another year older and has passed the 97 year mark educating children in a Christian environment. The school has just completed having their annual Oktoberfest dinner and fund raising auction which was so generously attended by approximately 650 people. Clover Christian was very happy for the large turn-out. The auction was a good success and the school would like to thank everyone that gave donations to help the school operate. Special thanks can be given to many volunteers but we especially want to give thanks to Lyle Masters and crew for the terrific job that they have done. Lyle Masters, over the last 25 years, has donated his time and services to many charitable organizations, including the 4-H clubs and the FFA groups. It is estimated that over the years Lyle masters and crew have raised more than $300,000 which makes him and his crew one of the larger donors in the "thank you" to Lyle Masters and company. Again, we thank all of the buyers and donors of many different items that helped support the school.

Hope to see all of you at the outdoor Christmas pageant on December 14.

Vegetables Boost the Taste of Stuffed Squash

STEPHANIE WITT
SEDGWICK

Special to The Washington Post

I'm always looking for ways to make dishes meatless without sacrificing flavor or substance. With that in mind, the beautiful variety of winter squashes at a local market inspired this dish. In the past I used sausage to flavor the filling, but here, baked vegetables boost the taste.

There's some prep work involved, but the good news is that these stuffed squash halves are best if baked early in the day and reheated at dinnertime, so there's no last-minute rush. The rest period gives the filling time to set perfectly. You can make this with acorn squash, but I prefer Carnival, a yellow- and green-skinned variety shaped like the acorn but with denser, less watery and more flavorful flesh. Another nice choice is the Dumpling, slightly smaller and much sweeter.

The baked squashes need to rest for at least 30 minutes and up to 8 hours before serving.

Baked Ricotta- and-Vegetable-Stuffed Squash

6 servings.

3 Carnival, Dumpling or acorn squashes, cut in half lengthwise and seeded (each 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 pounds)
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 small onions, cut into approximately 1/4-inch dice (8 ounces)
1 small red bell pepper, stemmed, seeded and cut into approximately 1/4-inch dice (5 ounces)
Salt
Freshly ground black pepper
2 medium zucchini, cut into approximately 1/4-inch dice (8 ounces)
8 ounces white or cremini mushrooms, cut into approximately 1/4-inch dice
1 large egg, lightly beaten
1 1/2 cups part-skim ricotta cheese
6 tablespoons grated Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
Freshly grated nutmeg

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Arrange the squash halves, cut sides down, in one layer in a deep roasting pan. Add water to the pan to a depth of 1/2 inch. Cover tightly with aluminum foil and bake until the flesh is just tender, 45 to 60 minutes.

Carefully transfer the squash halves to a work surface and turn them cut side up. Allow them to cool for 10 minutes, then scoop out a total of about 2 cups of flesh from the halves, making sure to leave a layer of flesh so the halves hold their shape. Mash or chop the squash meat to break up any clumps.

While the squash is cooling, line a large rimmed baking sheet or a roasting pan with aluminum foil and spray with nonstick cooking oil spray.

Heat the oil in a large nonstick saute pan or skillet over medium-high heat. Add the onion and bell pepper, and season with salt and pepper to taste. Cook for 5 to 6 minutes, stirring occasionally, until the onion is soft. Add the zucchini and mushrooms; cook for about 8 minutes, stirring occasionally, until the vegetables are soft and just starting to brown a little. Add the squash flesh, and stir to combine well. Cook for 3 to 4 minutes, stirring, to allow the excess moisture from the squash to evaporate. Remove from the heat.

Mix the egg, ricotta, 4 tablespoons of the Parmigiano-Reggiano and the parsley in a large bowl. Season with salt, pepper and nutmeg to taste. Add the cooked vegetable mixture and stir to combine.

Place the cooked squash halves, skin sides down, in the prepared pan. Fill each half with an equal portion of the ricotta-vegetable mixture. Sprinkle each with an equal portion of the remaining 2 tablespoons of Parmigiano-Reggiano. Bake for 30 to 35 minutes, until the filling is set and the edges are just starting to brown. Let the squashes rest for at least 30 minutes before serving. Reheat in a 350-degree oven if they have cooled too much. If the squashes have been refrigerated, cover with foil while reheating.

Make a Weeknight Impression with Puff Pastry Tart

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

Weeknight cooking generally is pretty utilitarian. It may not be very pretty or impressive, but it usually is tasty and gets the job done.

Which tends to throw everything for a loop on those rare weeknights when something special is needed. Just because you need to feed last minute company on a Wednesday evening doesn't mean you magically have extra time to pull it off. Those are the nights when we need something that is impressive and delicious, as well as easy and speedy.

Easier said than done. But hardly impossible.

It's for nights such as this that I keep a couple packages of puff pastry in the freezer. This versatile dough is delicious, inexpensive and cooks up in minutes. It can be used for desserts or savory dishes, and is pretty much agreeable to any shape you care to fold, mold or cut it into.

Puff pastry is just what the name implies — a pastry-style dough that, because of the layers of fat worked into it, puffs up when baked. The result is a light and delicately crunchy pastry (think croissant).

Most grocers sell puff pastry in the freezer section alongside the phyllo dough, fruits and other pastry items. The most common brand is Pepperidge Farm, which comes as a 17.3-ounce package that contains two sheets of pastry. Each sheet is packed folded into thirds and must be thawed before unfolding.

While there are innumerable ways of transforming puff pastry into wonderful desserts, I prefer to use it as the base of savory tarts. To do this, simply thaw and unfold a sheet of pastry, set it on a lightly oiled baking sheet, then top it with thinly sliced vegetables or meat and bake until puffed and lightly browned.

I recently topped a tart with chopped canned artichoke hearts, fresh thyme, minced garlic and a whole mess of grated Parmesan cheese. I've also done pizza-like versions, topping the pastry with sliced tomatoes, garlic, basil and fresh mozzarella.

As a general rule, it's best to choose toppings that either cook quickly or already are cooked. Puff pastry cooks quickly, so you want to make certain your toppings don't take longer than the pastry.

Puff Pastry Pissaladiere

Start to finish: 25 minutes (10 active). Servings: 6.

1 sheet frozen puff pastry (each 17.3-ounce package contains 2 sheets), thawed according to package directions
2 roasted red peppers, drained
2-ounce tin oil-packed anchovy fillets, well drained
Ground black pepper
1/4 cup chopped Kalamata olives
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Heat the oven to 425 degrees. Lightly coat a baking sheet with cooking spray.

Unfold the thawed sheet of puff pastry and set it on the prepared baking sheet.

Use paper towels to pat dry the roasted red peppers removing as much moisture as possible without mashing the peppers. Cut the peppers into thin strips, then arrange them evenly over the pastry.

Spacing them evenly so as to have enough to cover the tart, arrange the anchovies over the red peppers. Season the tart with black pepper, then sprinkle the chopped olives evenly over the tart. Sprinkle Parmesan cheese evenly over everything.

Bake for 15 minutes, or until the pastry is puffed and browned at the edges and the cheese is melted and lightly browned. Cut into squares and serve warm or room temperature.

Per serving: 110 calories; 60 calories from fat (55 percent of total calories); 7 g fat (2.5 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 15 mg cholesterol; 5 g carbohydrate; 0 g fiber; 1 g sugar; 7 g protein; 710 mg sodium.

A Chili to Showcase Pumpkin

THE WASHINGTON POST

Adapted from Elaine Gordon, creator of the healthful-eating site www.EatingbyElaine.com.

Pumpkin Chicken Chili

8 to 10 servings.

2 tablespoons canola oil
1 large Vidalia onion, chopped (1 1/4 cups)
1 large red onion, chopped (1 1/4 cups)
2 poblano chili peppers, diced (3/4 cup)
1 medium orange bell pepper, diced (1 cup)
16 ounces ground white chicken meat, preferably organic
1 cup pumpkin puree
28 ounces canned diced tomatoes
1 tablespoon tomato paste
4 cups low-sodium chicken broth
1 bay leaf
One 15-ounce can white beans, such as navy beans
2 cloves garlic, minced (2 teaspoons)
1 tablespoon cumin
1 tablespoon freshly ground black pepper
1 teaspoon sweet smoked paprika
Dash cinnamon
Dash allspice

Fresh cilantro, chopped, for garnish
Avocado, diced, for garnish

Heat the oil in a large pot over medium-high heat. When the oil shimmers, add the onions, chili peppers and bell pepper and cook, stirring frequently, until tender, about 5 minutes. Add the chicken and cook, stirring occasionally, until it has browned, about 10 minutes.

Stir in the pumpkin puree, tomatoes, tomato paste, chicken broth, bay leaf and beans. Bring to a boil, then reduce the heat to medium-low and add the garlic, cumin, chili powder, black pepper, paprika, cinnamon and allspice. Cover and simmer, stirring occasionally, for 30 minutes.

To serve, divide the chili into individual bowls and garnish each portion with cilantro, scallions and/or avocado, as desired.

Moist, Rich Egg Bread Studded with Seeds for Fall

BY ALISON LADMAN

For The Associated Press

When baking season brings thoughts of savory loaves of bread hot from the oven, we often overlook egg breads. But these rich, moist — and yes, eggy — loaves deserve serious consideration. They are satisfying in a way we typically associate with quick sweet breads, yet are versatile enough to accompany dinner and make delicious sandwiches.

For this recipe, we studded a basic egg bread with four varieties of seeds — sesame, sunflower, poppy and pumpkin. The seeds add a satisfying crunch without detracting from the moist crumb of the bread. But if you'd rather leave out the seeds, feel free.

Four-Seed Egg Bread

Start to finish: 3 hours. Servings: 16.

1 tablespoon toasted sunflower seeds
1 tablespoon poppy seeds
2 tablespoons toasted pumpkin seeds (also called pepitas)
1/4-ounce packet instant yeast
1/2 cup warm milk
1/2 cup warm water
4 egg yolks
4 cups all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons toasted sesame oil
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1/4 cup honey
1 tablespoon salt

In a large bowl, combine the sesame seeds, sunflower seeds, poppy seeds, pumpkin seeds and yeast. Stir in the milk and water, then mix in the egg yolks. When well mixed, add the flour, sesame oil, vegetable oil, honey and salt.

Knead, either by hand or with a dough hook on an electric mixer on low speed, for 8 to 10 minutes. Cover with plastic wrap and allow to rise in a warm place for 1 to 1 1/2 hours, or until doubled in bulk. Meanwhile, coat a baking sheet with cooking spray.

Transfer the dough to a lightly floured counter. Fold the dough over itself, then work into a ball. Transfer the dough to the prepared baking sheet. Cover the bread with plastic wrap and allow to rise again for 1 hour, or until risen and puffy.

Toward the end of the rising time, heat the oven to 325 degrees.

Using a paring knife, cut 2 deep slashes in the top of the loaf. Bake for 40 to 50 minutes, or until deep golden and cooked through. Transfer to a rack to cool.

Peanut Spice Mix Revitalizes Dull Thanksgiving Day Side

BY J.M. HIRSCH

Associated Press

The trouble with butternut squash at the Thanksgiving table is that we tend to be pretty unimaginative in how we prepare it. As such, the results often are fairly lackluster.

It's understandable how it happens. With all the attention given to buttery mashed potatoes, savory stuffing, doughy dinner rolls, tartly sweet cranberry sauce, and of course the all-important turkey and gravy, butternut (and other winter squashes) tends to suffer from after-thought syndrome.

Most people just steam and mash it, giving it the appearance — but little of the appeal — of mashed potatoes. Others go for roasting, a method I generally favor. But roasting can be hit or miss depending on the quality of the squash and how well it caramelizes in the oven. And that last part requires reasonably high heat, something hard to deliver when so many other foods are competing for oven time.

So I decided to devise a recipe that effortlessly delivers tons of flavor. The effortless part is key. Because while it's nice to talk about wanting to up the butternut ante, it's another to find the time to deliver it in the midst of making one of the year's most anticipated meals.

To get those results, I turned to a relatively new ingredient — powdered peanut butter. It came on the market several years ago, but only now is getting any attention. It is exactly as it sounds — peanut butter that has had nearly all of the fat extracted. The resulting fine powder has deep, rich peanut flavor, but can be used in ways conventional peanut butter cannot, such as in dry spice rubs.

The most common brand of powdered peanut butter is PB2. It's available in a variety of flavors (including chocolate!), but for most savory recipes you'll obviously want to stick with plain.

Mixed with a handful of seasonings, the powdered peanut butter creates a rich flavoring that works well not only with the natural sweetness of the squash, but also with the many other flavors and ingredients on the typical Thanksgiving table. The good news is that it's still as simple as chopping the squash, tossing it with the dry seasonings, then roasting. And since this recipe doesn't rely on caramelizing for its flavor, it can be done at 350 degrees, a temperature that will be agreeable to the many other dishes that need to get into the oven.

To find powdered peanut butter, check the natural foods aisle at the grocer. If you strike out, get online; it's widely available from web retailers.

Spicy Peanut Roasted Butternut Squash

Start to finish: 1 hour (15 minutes active). Servings: 8.

5-pound butternut squash, peeled and seeded
1/4 cup olive oil
1/2 cup powdered peanut butter
1 tablespoon garlic powder
2 teaspoons smoked paprika
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 teaspoon ground cumin
1 teaspoon kosher salt
1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper

cooking spray.

Cut the peeled and seeded squash into bite-size pieces, then place them in a large bowl. Drizzle the squash with the olive oil, then toss to coat evenly. Set aside.

In a small bowl, mix together the powdered peanut butter, garlic powder, smoked paprika, chili powder, cumin, salt and pepper. While using a silicone spatula to toss the squash, sprinkle the seasoning mixture over it, continuing to toss until all of the squash is well coated.

Transfer the squash to the prepared baking sheets, using the spatula to scrape the oil and seasonings from the bowl. Arrange the squash in an even layer, then roast for 25 minutes. Use a spatula to flip the squash, then roast for another 20 minutes, or until lightly browned and tender.

A Zucchini Muffin Fit for Breakfast or Dinner

BY ALISON LADMAN

For The Associated Press

This savory muffin studded with zucchini and cheddar cheese pairs as wonderfully with dinner as it does breakfast. And consider taking advantage of all that extra zucchini by baking a double batch. The moisture from the zucchini means these muffins freeze well.

Want to make a whole-grain version? Substitute regular whole-wheat flour for half of the all-purpose flour. Or go all the way and use white whole-wheat flour in place of all of the all-purpose. White whole-wheat flour has the same nutrition as regular whole wheat, but is made from a lighter grain that produces a flour that tastes and looks similar to white.

Zucchini Cheddar Muffins

Start to finish: 45 minutes. Servings: 12.

2 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 1/4 cups buttermilk
1/2 cup (1 stick) unsalted butter, melted
1 cup packed shredded zucchini
3/4 cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese

Heat the oven to 400 degrees. Line a 12-cup muffin pan with paper liners or coat with baking spray.

In a large bowl, whisk together the flour, baking powder, baking soda, sugar and salt.

In another bowl, whisk together the eggs and buttermilk, then whisk in the melted butter. Gently fold the liquid mixture into the dry mixture, then fold in the zucchini and cheddar just enough to incorporate.

Scoop the batter into the prepared muffin pan and bake for 25 to 30 minutes, or until a toothpick inserted at the center comes out clean. Allow to cool for 10 minutes in the pan before turning out on a rack to cool completely. Per serving: 220 calories; 100 calories from fat (45 percent of total calories); 11 g fat (7 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 60 mg cholesterol; 23 g carbohydrate; 1 g fiber; 5 g sugar; 6 g protein; 360 mg sodium.

25-Minute Stir-fry Offers Texture, Flavor Mix

BONNIE S. BENWICK
The Washington Post

When it comes to stir-frying, there's no reason to restrict the range of ingredients. This particular grouping offers a great mix of texture and flavor contrast — plus, the dish looks and tastes like fall.

It doubles easily. Serve with couscous and a dollop of harissa (a red pepper paste), or over some fresh sprouts. Adapted from "Lydia Lunch: The Need to Feed, a Hedonist's Guide," created with Marcy Blaustein (Universe, 2012).

Stir-Fry of Eggplant, Sweet Potato and Cashew Nuts With Tofu

3 to 4 servings (makes about 7 cups).

- 2 medium (14 ounces total) sweet potatoes
- 2 medium cloves garlic
- 1-inch piece ginger root
- 1 small green or red chili pepper
- 2 small (about 15 ounces total) eggplants
- 1 cup firm cubed tofu
- 1/2 cup lightly packed basil leaves
- 3 tablespoons peanut oil
- 1/3 cup low-sodium soy sauce
- 1/2 cup roasted unsalted cashews
- 1 tablespoon toasted sesame oil

As you prep the following ingredients, keep them separate: Peel the sweet potatoes and cut them into small dice to yield about 3 cups. Mince the garlic. Peel the ginger and mince or grate it finely. Stem and seed the chili pepper, then mince. Cut the eggplants into medium dice to yield about 2 1/2 cups. Drain the tofu and blot it dry with paper towels. Stack and roll the basil leaves, then cut them cross-wise into very thin strips. Heat a well-seasoned wok or large skillet over high heat. Add the oil and swirl to coat; once you see a wisp of smoke, add the sweet potato and stir-fry for about 8 minutes, until tender and lightly caramelized. Add the garlic, ginger and chili pepper; stir-fry for about 20 seconds until fragrant, then add the soy sauce and eggplant. Stir-fry for about 2 minutes, until the eggplant begins to get tender. Add the tofu and cashews; stir-fry for 1 or 2 minutes, then remove from the heat. Stir in the toasted sesame oil and the basil. Divide among individual plates. Serve hot.

CSI Women Roll in Home Opener

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho women shattered last year's highest scoring game mark and turned some heads in the process — namely those of the East Idaho Select, who watched them race by in transition.

After scoring just 48 points last year against EIS, a conglomeration of former college basketball players, the Golden Eagles more than doubled their output against the same team Tuesday night with a 98-68 win.

Even the opponent could see the difference. According to EIS' Deena Bartu Garbett, a former CSI player who watched the Golden Eagles in Salt Lake City in October, CSI got good in a matter of weeks.

"From then to now, they have improved a lot," Garbett said. "And they shot the ball — but I'm not sure if you can count transition points against us old people — but they got up the court. It almost seemed like their second unit had a lot more synergy than their first."

The Golden Eagles looked like last year's 48-point version early, clanking a variety of open shots. But CSI began to do what Rogers preached them to do since their season started: crash the boards. On six possessions in the first 10 minutes, the Golden Eagles grabbed two or more offensive rebounds. They snatched 25 offensive boards in the game.

The early put-backs seemed to generate confidence in CSI's running game, sparked by point guards Zuleika Grinsell and Adriana Dent, and a plethora of wings and post up players who filled the lanes. Megan Tanner led the scoring barrage with 17, many of

"We just decided we were going to go hard tonight. We really want to be a transition team that can push it."

CSI point guard Zuleika Grinsell which came in semi-transition, some beautiful, change-of-direction underhanded scoop-shots, others more awkward runners.

"We just decided we were going to go hard tonight," Grinsell said. "We really want to be a transition team that can push it."

CSI used ball pressure on defense, especially from do-it-all wing Patrice Toston and back-up guard Elodie Roussas who played the final minutes. But it was the Golden Eagles' ability to seamlessly transition to the front-court with crisp advance passes — that at times led to no-dribble layups — that was most impressive.

"We were making the extra pass every time," Rogers said.

Once the Golden Eagles scored fast-break points, their shots started falling from the outside in the half-court. Darkened dots across the floor would fill coaches' shot charts. CSI shot 9-22 from 3-point range, including eight of 14 in the first half. Eight players scored seven points or more, as the team shot 46 percent from the field.

Dent and Grinsell combined for 13 assists, while Jessy Saint-Felix and Britany Wirth combined for 17 rebounds. Wirth, the walk-on from Gooding, was one of the best players on the court Tuesday, combing a deft touch from mid-range and beyond, soft hands inside and sturdy box-outs.

CSI moved to 1-2 on the year and will travel to Midland, Texas, for the Midland NIT Tournament against Trinity Community College.

BOBCATS POISED TO BREAK OUT IN 2012-13

rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • It was good, just not good enough.

At a preseason practice this week, the Burley High girls basketball team ran 3-on-2 drills satisfactory for a varsity team this early in the year.

But the Bobcats aren't aiming for satisfactorily.

"We set our goals high and if work toward our goals, we can achieve," said senior Brooke Bowers. "Some of our goals are just working hard every day and showing up to practice. Like today, we didn't show up at the beginning of practice."

Because they "didn't show up," the girls stopped practice, returned to the locker room for what Bowers called "a little chat," and then retook the floor.

This time, the team was more crisp and focused. With four starters returning, along with two more players who saw significant playing time last season, that's the expectation.

"The nice thing about this team, it just isn't one, two or three players ... this team has some depth," said Burley coach Roger Caresia. "That's going to be one of our strengths. We're going to

2012-13 GIRLS BASKETBALL PREVIEW CAPSULES

CLASS 4A GREAT BASIN CONFERENCE

Burley returns the big three of Aubrie Vale, Chelsea Baker and Brooke Bowers to go with a strong supporting cast. ... Twin Falls has to absorb the loss of Josie Jordan, but Kaitlyn Merritt and Mikayla Harris will go a long way to cushioning the blow. ... Jerome similarly graduated its best player in Haylee Burnham, but the Tigers will rely on experienced players like Kaitlyn Kelley and Savannah Lott. ... Minico will deal with injuries in the first part of the season, but if Chloe Bradford can bounce back from a knee injury the Spartans could be in the mix. ... Canyon Ridge lost two key players but will look to build behind seniors Brinley Miller and Hunter Sagers. ... Wood River has the most question marks, graduating NCAA Division I players Haylee Thompson and Kaitana Martinez, as well as losing coach duo Kevin Stilling and Mendy Benson. Cicley Peavey and Co. have some big shoes to fill.

CLASS 3A SAWTOOTH CENTRAL IDAHO CONFERENCE

Filer won the consolation trophy last year and returns a stable of talent, including Katie Hughes and Sierra Koyle. ... Kimberly is always in the mix but lacks some experience this year. Heidi Funk will have to stand out while the others come along. ... Gooding is back in the 3A ranks after a two-year absence and returns three starters, including Tia Conrad. ... Buhl lost its best player in Kendyl

Hamilton but has a handful of returnees poised to make an impact.

CLASS 2A CANYON CONFERENCE

Declo lost all-state player Sydney Webb and returns just one starter in Chancey Knopp, but the Hornets have nine players with varsity experience coming back. ... Valley threatened Declo's stranglehold on the conference last season, and the Vikings have several players, including Liz Henry and Marlee Mussmann, back. ... Oakley will try to do it with height, led by Paige Cooper and Mallory Critchfield. ... Wendell struggled last season, but has Hannah Lancaster back as the Trojans try to improve.

CLASS 1A-I SNAKE RIVER CONFERENCE

The playoff berths could be hard to come by for District IV, as Challis is always a favorite and 2012 2A champ Burte County drops in, returning the bulk of its squad. Glenns Ferry looks best poised to crack that top two, with conference player of the year Karli McHone and Deona Bauman among those trying to lead the Pilots to back-to-back state berths. ... Hagerman has several players back from last year's squad, including 6-4 forward Aly Sauer and fellow forward Jessica Regnier. ... Shoshone has two starters back in Jessie Simonson and Christy Race, but experience and consistent scoring could be an issue. ... Hansen returns three starters in Becca Valles, Kendra Urena and Isabel Urena, but this figures to be a building year for the Huskies under a new coach in Buhl graduate Brad Twiss.

CLASS 1A-II NORTHSIDE CONFERENCE

Dietrich is the two-time reigning state champion, but the Blue Devils lost point guard Ellie Dalton and player of the year Moriah Dill. Sharpshooter Charley Bingham and slasher Kendra McConnell will have to step up to fill the voids. ... Carey was a whisker from playing Dietrich for the title last year before losing in triple overtime and settling for third. In Jaide Parke, the Panthers have arguably the best player in the conference. ... Richfield graduated Sasha Kent but has experience returning in Samantha and Danielle Edwards, as well as Kailie Scott. ... Lighthouse Christian returns all five starters, including Anna Pridey and Brooklyn Vander Stelt, but the Lions have had trouble replicating their recent volleyball success on the basketball court. ... Camas County lost all-state athlete Katelyn Peterson, but the Musers can rely in Stephanie Moore to stand in the gap. ... Castleford, Murtaugh, Bliss, and the Community School did not submit information for this report.

CLASS 1A INDEPENDENT

Twin Falls Christian returns four starters from last season's 18-3 squad: Rachael Glaze, Hanna Glaze, Megan Fenderson and Annie Brown.

Sun Valley Named Olympic Training Site

TIMES-NEWS

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. • The Sun Valley Ski Education Foundation was announced Tuesday as an official U.S. Olympic and Paralympic Training Site for cross-country skiing by the United States Olympic Committee and the U.S. Ski and Snowboard Association.

It becomes the 15th such designated training site nationwide, across all sports.

"Sun Valley already had a strong reputation for its world-class training facilities," SVSEF executive director Don Wiseman said in a statement. "This designation confirmed our region's commitment to affording American athletes the ability to take advantage of the area's natural resources, as well as the community spirit, excitement and passion for cross-country skiing."

According to the USOC's website, the mission of the U.S. Olympic Training Sites is to access additional resources, services and facilities for athletes and National Governing Bodies (NGBs) while providing an elite athlete training environment that positively impacts performance. Many of the U.S. Olympic Training Sites will host U.S. Olympic Trials.

"This site designation will provide focus to Sun Valley's effort to continue to enhance their training venues and athlete support programs," said Luke Bodenstener, USSA executive vice president of athletics. "Sun Valley has been a strong part of the Olympic development pipeline, and this partnership will open up additional opportunities for athletes looking to train there."

BSU Out of BCS, Bowl Destination Unknown

BY DAVE SOUTHERN Idaho-Press Tribune

BOISE • So, Boise State won't be facing an SEC team in the Sugar Bowl or Florida State in the Orange Bowl.

Instead, the Broncos likely will find themselves in a familiar destination against a team much closer to home.

Saturday's 21-19 loss to San Diego State ended any shot of a BCS bowl berth, and means the Broncos will likely need to win out to at least clinch a share of the Mountain West crown. First up is a road game at Hawaii on Saturday, followed by Colorado State at home Nov. 17 and finally at Nevada on Dec. 1.

"That's always the goal, it's kind of a long range goal — we can't be thinking about that right now, we've got to be thinking about winning our next game and cleaning up the mistakes we made," Boise State coach Chris Petersen said. "... We need to be very, very shortsighted here."

Here is a look at where the Broncos could be going bowling:

Burley

be able to do some things that we haven't been able to do in the past because we are a lot deeper than we've been."

Because Burley returns so many talented and experienced players, the buzz around District IV is that the Bobcats are the team to beat — a notion Caresia both understands and balks at.

"It's way too early to be saying who's favored and who's the team to beat. Let's get some weeks and some games under our belt, then we'll see," said Caresia, who enters his third year as head coach.

Three of Burley's returners are three-year starters, including last year's leading scorer and rebounder, junior Chelsea Baker (13.7 ppg, 7 rpg), who was a Times-News first-team all-area selection.

The other two are the Bobcats' only seniors, Aubrie Vale (11.8 ppg, 4.1 rpg, 3.5 apg) and Bowers (8.7 ppg, 7 rpg).

But Burley's hype isn't just from returning experience. Moreover, it has to do with how the Bobcats finished their season last February.

After winning only three games the year before, Burley finished the 2011-12 campaign 14-13. As the district's fifth seed, it surged in the district tournament, upsetting the top three teams, all on the road, to reach the championship game.

"In districts we were showing everyone that we can compete with them and that we're not just going to be doormats, we're going to step it up," said Vale.

Although the Bobcats lost the title tilt to Wood River and the subsequent state play-in game to Bishop Kelly, the foundation of confidence had been set.

"Those kinds of experiences build confidence in the girls," Caresia said. "They know now that when we play the way we're supposed to, we're a pretty good team."

Caresia added that the late-season spark should carry over into this year, as his team is "two or three weeks ahead of where we've been in previous years."

However, "Last year was last year, and this year is this year. No one is going to give us anything," Caresia said. "We've got to go out and prove it again."

For a program that hasn't been back to the state tournament since winning it in 2007, Burley's ultimate goal is predicable.

The Bobcats have a jamboree at Highland tonight before starting the season Friday at home against Filer.

there, and the Cougars played Boise State on Sept. 20.

The Broncos played in Albuquerque on Sept. 29 in a 32-29 win over New Mexico. The bowl is the first one to kickoff the postseason this year.

Again, the foe would come from the Pac-12, the seventh available team in this bowl. That would almost certainly mean an opponent from the pool of teams that are 5-4 right now — Washington, Arizona and Arizona State — though Utah is 4-5 and nearing eligibility.

ARMED FORCES BOWL, DEC. 29

This bowl, located in Fort Worth, Texas, has the third pick from the Mountain West, but would certainly be a candidate to nab Air Force if the Falcons are available. If not, the Broncos could get a look. They played in 2003's inaugural edition of the game, beating TCU.

The opponent would be the third pick among Conference USA teams. Right now, only three C-USA teams have winning records. The third-best currently is East Carolina (6-4), while Marshall and future Big East teams Houston and SMU are 4-5.

NFL's Marquee Teams Find Support All Over

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PITTSBURGH • Casey Hampton can hear the chant. It never fails.

Regardless of the venue. Regardless of the weather. Regardless of the circumstances. Preseason or the Super Bowl. Heinz Field or Houston.

If the Pittsburgh Steelers are leading late in the fourth quarter, the sound of "Here We Go Steelers, Here We Go!" while thousands of Terrible Towels twirl will reverberate inside the veteran nose tackle's helmet.

"Our fans are going to stay until the end," said Hampton, who has watched the phenomenon since his rookie year in 2001. "They're going to ride with us. A lot of times, especially when you're winning at the end, when the home fans clear out they'll still be there doing their thing."

It happened Sunday in New York during Pittsburgh's 24-20 victory over the defending Super Bowl-champion Giants. At a stadium typically swathed in blue, the roar for the Steelers grew so loud at one point quarterback Ben Roethlisberger actually had to put his hands up to ask for quiet.

Coach Mike Tomlin wasn't joking when he said recently the self-appointed "Steeler Nation" is everywhere.

Whether it's folks traveling from Pittsburgh to watch the black-and-gold or western Pennsylvania transplants who fill their nearest NFL stadium when the black-and-gold visit is unclear.

What is clear is the backing the Steelers and other marquee NFL teams receive when they don their visiting uniforms is growing.

The explosion in the secondary ticket market combined with the league's ever expanding popularity and just plain old family ties means for teams like the Steelers, Green Bay Packers and Dallas Cowboys, home-field advantage isn't limited to gamedays where the players wake up in their own beds.

The ubiquitous Terrible Towels mean the support that greets the Steelers on the road is a little more visible than most, but Pittsburgh isn't the hardest road ticket in the league according to brokerage site Stubhub.

Even with the Cowboys stumbling to a 3-5 start, watching them on the road will cost about $196 a ticket if you go through Stubhub according to spokesperson Joellen Ferrer. The Steelers are the second-most expensive at $190.

It's simple supply and demand. The brighter the name, the more difficult the get. The Giants, Cowboys, Packers, Steelers and Bears are the five toughest road tickets in the NFL for Stubhub customers.

All five have a proud history littered with championships — 20 Super Bowls and counting — and dozens of Hall-of-Fame players, teams whose fandom is handed down generation to generation or in the case of Brad Stoller, from wife to husband.

The 48-year-old Stoller grew up in Indiana rooting for the Cowboys long before the Colts fled Baltimore for the Midwest. Dallas was at its "America's Team" zenith at the time, the franchise's mix of onfield success and steady stream of national television appearances making the Cowboys pretty easy to keep up with in a time when fans outside NFL markets were at the mercy of the local TV station to see what game would get beamed into their living rooms on a given week.

The combination of Jerry Jones' arrogance and his wife Amy's lifelong devotion to the Steelers led Stoller to switch allegiances. Now he runs a Steelers Fan Facebook page that features more than 98,000 likes from all over the globe.

There are over 1,500 Pittsburgh Steeler bars scattered across the country, with high concentrations in retirement destinations like Florida, Arizona and Southern California, as the fans who watched the Super Steelers win four Super Bowls in the 1970s gather to enjoy the latest renaissance that's seen two more Lombardi Trophies added in the last seven seasons thrust in by satellite.

"What I've found, there's a tremendous number of people, maybe they grew up in Pittsburgh, but somewhere there's a connection with Pittsburgh," Stoller said. "They may live in Florida today, but when their Steelers are around, they try to make it to the game."

Loomis Returns to Saints in Unsettled Times

ASSOCIATED PRESS

METAIRIE, La. • Now that New Orleans general manager Mickey Loomis has returned to work, the Saints need his crisis-management skills to be sharp.

The organization continues to be rife with unsettled issues, some of which have made its fan base uneasy.

So there was no time for Loomis to ease back into a routine Tuesday after serving his eight-game suspension in connection with the NFL's bounty probe of the Saints.

His immediate tasks include clearing up the status of Sean Payton's contract extension through 2015, which NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell has so far refused to approve since the coach signed it in 2011.

Recent revelations that Payton is still not officially under contract beyond this season have only pushed anxiety-ridden Saints fans closer to panic. New Orleans has struggled while Payton has served his season-long bounty suspension, which, in the minds of many, has only strengthened the fiery and innovative coach's value.

Loomis also will have to oversee contingency plans in the event that defensive end Will Smith and linebacker Jonathan Vilma have to serve their own bounty suspensions, which so far have been delayed by legal moves.

The GM kept a low profile on his first day back.

The Saints did not make him available to reporters and he did not immediately respond to requests for comments about his return to his Saints duties.

Assistant head coach Joe Vitt said even he did not have much time to chat with Loomis when they met Tuesday morning, but Vitt stressed that people throughout the organization were comforted by knowledge that the GM was back for the last half of what has already been an extraordinarily eventful season.

"Listen, Mickey and Sean are the leaders of this building. It's not only great for Mickey to be back for our players and our coaching staff, but every person in our building," Vitt said.

NHL, Union Back at Bargaining Table for New Talks

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • The locked-out NHL players' association returned to the bargaining table Tuesday, and this time brought Sidney Crosby along.

On Day 52 of the lockout that has delayed the start of the hockey season and threatened to wipe it out completely, the league and the players sat down for the second round of negotiations in four days at an undisclosed site.

Not only were NHL deputy commissioner Bill Daly and union special counsel Steve Fehr there, as they were for a marathon session by themselves Saturday. They were joined by Commissioner Gary Bettman, NHLPA executive director Donald Fehr, a handful of team owners, and 13 players including Crosby, who has been an active participant in the process.

"We're hopeful that we'll start bargaining and we'll continue bargaining until we find a way to make a deal," Donald Fehr said Tuesday before talks started. "Sometimes that goes in rather long sessions with short breaks and Though it's become old hat, Bronco fans will still likely show up in droves, especially since the team didn't play at UNLV this year.

What the Broncos need to do is win out — with only one conference loss, they'll have a share of the title and continue to be an attractive team. Losing to, say, Nevada, will likely make the bowl go for the likes of Fresno State or Air Force if they have only one Mountain West loss.

The opponent would be a Pac-12 team, the fifth available team from the conference. The pool of teams likely would include Washington, Arizona and Arizona State. A team on the level of UCLA, Oregon State or Stanford could be available if they stumble late in the season with tough games ahead.

NEW MEXICO, DEC. 18

If Boise State falls to Nevada (or Hawaii or Colorado State), it would have two conference losses for the first time since 2005, and would push them down the pecking order. Dec. 20's Poinsettia Bowl would be out, since BYU will play

"We certainly hope we'll be continuing to meet on a regular basis. I hope they do, too. I'm just not making any predictions."

Fehr's brother Steve met with Daly on Saturday in a secret location, and neither provided many details of what was discussed, but both agreed that the meeting was productive. That was proven when the sides agreed to quickly meet again Tuesday. There had been no negotiations since talks broke off on Oct. 18 until Saturday.

"The players' view has always been to keep negotiating until we find a way to get agreement and you sort of stay at it day by day, so it's very good to be getting back to the table," Donald Fehr said. "We hope that this time it produces more progress than we've seen in the past, and that we can find a way to make an agreement and to get the game back on the ice as soon as possible."

NBA ROUNDUP

Denver Nuggets Hold Off Pistons

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DENVER • Andre Iguodala scored six of his 17 points over the final three minutes to help the Denver Nuggets hold off the Detroit Pistons 109-97 and snap a three-game skid on Tuesday night.

The Nuggets broke out their new canary yellow uniforms for their home opener and played pretty snazzy, especially late in the third quarter when they began opening up a 17-point lead. The Pistons rallied late, before Iguodala closed the door with two baskets and a pair of free throws. Iguodala also finished with 10 rebounds. Greg Monroe scored 27 points for the Pistons, who dropped their fourth straight. Detroit and Washington (0-2) are the only winless teams left in the NBA this season.

BULLS 99, MAGIC 93
CHICAGO • Luol Deng scored 15 of his 23 points in the second half to help hand the Magic their first loss of the season.

Deng and Nate Robinson keyed a 15-2 second-half burst when Chicago turned a five-point deficit into an eight-point lead. Robinson hit two straight jumpers to put Chicago ahead 74-70 early in the fourth quarter.

Joakim Noah had 20 points, nine rebounds and five blocks for Chicago, while Robinson added 11 points and six assists off the bench. Robinson's layup with 2:35 to play put Chicago up 91-81, its biggest lead of the game.

ic with 28 points, 19 in the second half. E'Twaun Moore added a career-high 17 points.

Glen Davis, who entered the game fourth in the NBA with 25.5 points per game, scored 16 but shot just 7 of 22 from the floor and fouled out.

Nicola Vucevic had 16 points and 10 rebounds for the Magic, who had won three of their last four in Chicago.

Orlando had started the season 2-0, surprising many around the league after trading star center Dwight Howard to the Los Angeles Lakers over the summer.

THUNDER 108, RAPTORS 88
OKLAHOMA CITY • Russell Westbrook shrugged off a sore shoulder to score 19 points and Oklahoma City cruised past Toronto.

Wearing a black padded

sleeve to protect his bruised left shoulder, Westbrook held Toronto's leading scorer, Kyle Lowry, to two points on 1-of-4 shooting. Lowry exited with 1:29 left in the second quarter with a right ankle sprain and did not return.

Serge Ibaka added 17 points and a game-high nine rebounds for Oklahoma City. Kevin Durant and reserve Kevin Martin each scored 15.

The Thunder led by as many as 29 points and never trailed after Durant converted a pair of free throws with 7:44 remaining in the first quarter. Oklahoma City coach Scott Brooks was able to rest his starters in the fourth as the Thunder improved to 2-2 with their highest-scoring game of the season. Jonas Valanciunas led the Raptors with 18 points.

Ball State Upsets No. 23 Toledo 34-27

ASSOCIATED PRESS

TOLEDO, Ohio • Toledo waited 11 years to get back into the national rankings. In less than three days, the Rockets likely got knocked out.

Edwards' run capped an 86-yard drive after Ball State's beleaguered defense had stopped the Rockets (8-2, 5-1 Mid-American Conference) a yard short on David Fluellen's run on fourth-and-2 at the Cardinals 15.

Keith Wenning completed 29 of 42 passes for 280 yards and three touchdowns, but was intercepted three times for Ball State (7-3, 4-2).

Fluellen ran for at least 200 yards for the third game this season, carrying 34 times for 200 yards and a touchdown.

Toledo jumped into The Associated Press Top 25 this week for the first time since 2001.

Edwards finished with 105 yards on 16 carries.

The victory helps Ball State, which had already qualified for a bowl, get an even better postseason trip. The loss knocks Toledo out of a possible first-place tie with Northern Illinois in the MAC's West Division.

Ball State held the Rockets for a three-and-out to open the second half and then promptly marched downfield with Wenning completing 6 of 9 passes, capped by a 3-yard scoring pass to Jamill Smith for their second TD connection of the game.

The Cardinals clearly made some changes on defense at halftime. Toledo mustered just six yards on their first eight plays of the second half, punting the ball away twice without a first down.

But then Owens carried the Rockets out of their problems. He scrambled for 12 yards on third-and-nine at his own 21 and then led them to a first down at the Ball State 7. The drive stalled there, however, and Jeremiah Detmer kicked a 22-yard field goal to cut the lead to 24-20.

On the next offensive play, Wenning was picked off for the third time — throwing behind a receiver with linebacker Dan Molls grabbing the interception. A sack and two runs left the Rockets facing a fourth-and-1 at the Cardinals 16 on the first play of the fourth quarter. With the defense crowding the line, Fluellen took a handoff and burst off the left side untouched for Toledo's first lead of the game.

Ball State came right back with a time-consuming drive for Steven Schott's second field goal to knot things — again — at 27 with 9:41 left.

All the offense wasn't too surprising. After all, Ball State came in averaging 33.6 points and 473 yards a game, and the Rockets 34.3 points and 455 yards.

Toledo then drove to a fourth-and-2 at the Cardinals 15 with 6:02 left. First-year coach Matt Campbell passed up an almost certain 32-yard field goal with a good kicker. Instead, he went for it. Fluellen carried up the middle and was stacked up, running into the back of one of his own blockers before being snowed under by defenders. He came up a foot short.

With Edwards picking up good yardage on the ground and Wenning hitting timely passes, the Cardinals drove from their own 14. They converted a third-and-19 on Wenning's 19-yard completion to Connor Ryan and later Wenning hooked up with Zane Fakes on a 4-yard gain on third-and-3 at the Toledo 19.

Two plays later, Edwards took a handoff and outraced one tackler at the edge to score the pivotal TD.

Terrance Owens was 14 of 27 for 215 yards with no interceptions and one touchdown for the Rockets.

Both teams moved the ball at will — and also made critical mistakes — while playing to a 17-17 deadlock at halftime.

The Cardinals scored on their first two possessions as Wenning filled the air with footballs. He hit on seven of eight passes for 71 yards on the opening drive before a sparse crowd at the Glass Bowl, hitting Smith on the 6-yard scoring strike to cap the drive.

After a Toledo punt, Wenning was right back at it again. Helped by a Toledo pass-interference penalty, he hit on all four of his passes, including a 25-yarder to Ryan for the touchdown at the end of an 87-yard sprint down the field for a 14-0 lead.

Pac-12 South Race Still Clouded

ASSOCIATED PRESS
PHOENIX • Arizona State has gone into a small tailspin, losing three straight games, all in conference.
 Even that hasn't been enough to knock the Sun Devils out of what's become a muddled race in the Pac-12 South Division.
 "We're still competing for this," Arizona State coach Todd Graham said. "This thing is far from over. We're going to fight and scratch all the way down until the end."
 The North Division race appears to be Oregon's to lose.
 The second-ranked and undefeated Ducks (9-0, 6-0 Pac-12) have been nearly untouchable so far this season and are coming off a record-breaking performance against Southern California last week. They still need to play well with No. 13 Oregon State and No. 16 Stanford just a game back at 5-1 and still to come for the Ducks.
 The race for the South is not so clear cut.
 Arizona State was out in front when the conference season started, thanks to USC's opening loss to Stanford and the Sun Devils' wins over Utah, California and Colorado.
 After Arizona State lost to Oregon, it was USC's turn to be in control of the South. The Trojans didn't stay there long, falling back after losses to Arizona and the Ducks.
 Now UCLA has taken the wheel.
 Once 1-2 in the Pac-12, the 17th-ranked Bruins have surged to the South lead after beating Utah, Arizona State and Arizona.
 Heading into this weekend's games, UCLA leads the division at 4-2. No. 21 USC is a half-game back at 4-3 and Arizona State still has a chance at 3-3.

 The way things have gone so far in the South, the lead could change three more times over the final three weeks of the season, teams winning by 30 one week, losing by 40 the next.
 "College football is really interesting to me," UCLA coach Jim Mora said. "I'm used to where you get a 10-point lead on somebody, that's a pretty darn good lead. I'm used to games coming down the last two or three drives of a game in the pros, but in college it's just a totally different animal. Boy, it's exciting. It's wild, it's crazy, it's exciting, it's emotional. It's a lot of fun."
 This weekend could mark the end of one team's run to the division title.
 While UCLA is expected to roll past winless-in-conference Washington State, Arizona State and USC meet in the Coliseum at high noon on Saturday.
 Both are searching for ways to end losing streaks.
 Arizona State has fallen off after opening the season 5-1, blown out by Oregon and unable to come up with the big plays when it needed them in losses to UCLA and Oregon State.
 Once a national-title contender, USC is reeling after allowing 101 points and over 1,300 yards of offense in losses to Arizona and the Ducks.
 If the Trojans win, they'll be right there in the race for the South. If the Sun Devils win, they'll still be within at least a game of the division lead and tied with USC for second.

"We have in no way given up our focus on our goals on wanting to be a champion, but we just have got to win a game," Graham said. "That is our focus, to go win a game. Our guys are very motivated to have the opportunity play USC this week and obviously, it's a big challenge as well."
 While Arizona State and UCLA still have three conference games left, USC is down to two, closing the season with a nonconference game against Notre Dame.
 With little margin for error, USC has to beat Arizona State this weekend and faces a huge game against rival UCLA at the Rose Bowl on Nov. 17.
 But, should the Trojans win both of those, they would win the South and earn a spot in the Pac-12 title game on Nov. 20.
 "They can control the rest of their season," USC coach Lane Kiffin said. "There's a lot of teams in the country that can't after everything that's happened. After screwing games up, we're fortunate to be in that situation."
 UCLA is coming off a somewhat unexpected 66-10 rout over Arizona and is a two-touchdown favorite over Mike Leach's Cougars on Saturday.
 It gets a little tougher after that.
 Despite its two straight losses and problems on defense, USC still has one of the nation's most prolific offenses and it will be a rivalry game, where almost anything can and usually does happen.
 After that, the Bruins have to gather themselves for another difficult game, facing Stanford and its power running game in the season finale on Nov. 24.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

*"By viewing Nature, Nature's handmaid Art,
Makes mighty things from small beginnings grow."*

— John Dryden

Bridge strategies alter, depending on the form of scoring in use. Board-a-Match format makes overtricks vital — as witnessed by this deal, in which overtricks would be irrelevant at regular Teams scoring.

In one room, Sue Picus and Alex Ornstein as East-West held South's three no-trump to nine tricks on a spade lead. Declarer won the lead, cashed his club and heart winners, then exited with ace and another diamond, but Picus unblocked a diamond honor under the ace to avoid being endplayed into giving declarer a spade trick.

In the other room, four hearts looked as if it had 10 tricks — but Judi Radin did even better. She won the spade lead and ruffed a spade at once before crossing to hand in clubs and leading a third spade. Whether West ruffed did not matter. If he discarded, Radin would ruff low, unblock hearts, then cash the club ace and use the diamond ace as the re-entry to draw trump. West actually ruffed in with the heart nine, so Judi simply overruffed and drew trump.

Note that if Radin had cashed the club king at trick two, the entry position would have been compromised. Declarer can ruff two spades as before, but has to use the diamond ace as a re-entry to hand. Now when she leads the third club after ruffing two spades (not ruffed by West) and unblocking the trump ace, East trumps in with the heart 10 and promotes a heart trick for West.

ANSWER: Should you overcall one spade or two spades? This is partly a matter of the scoring and vulnerability. Nonvulnerable, my partners would expect a weaker hand for a jump overcall and we might undercompete, miss a game, or sacrifice unwisely. As against that, we DO make the opponents' life more unpleasant, so it is an issue that has no clear answer. Vulnerable, I think this is a two-spade call.

Today is Wednesday, Nov. 7, the 312th day of 2012. There are 54 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Nov. 7, 1972, President Richard Nixon was re-elected in a landslide over Democrat George McGovern.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1811, U.S. forces led by Indiana Territory Gov. William Henry Harrison defeated warriors from Tecumseh's Confederacy in the Battle of Tippecanoe.

In 1861, former U.S. President John Tyler was elected to the Confederate House of Representatives (however, Tyler died before he could take his seat).

In 1862, during the Civil War, President Abraham Lincoln replaced replace Maj. Gen. George B. McClellan as commander of the Army of the Potomac with Maj. Gen. Ambrose Burnside.

In 1912, black boxing champion Jack Johnson was indicted in Chicago for allegedly violating the Mann Act with a white woman, Belle Schreiber. (Johnson was convicted and sentenced to a year in prison; he fled the U.S., later returning to serve his term.)

In 1916, Republican Jeanette Rankin of Montana became the first woman elected to Congress.

In 1917, Russia's Bolshevik Revolution took place as forces led by Vladimir Ilyich Lenin overthrew the provisional government of Alexander Kerensky.

In 1940, Washington state's original Tacoma Narrows Bridge, nicknamed "Galloping Gertie," collapsed into Puget Sound during a windstorm.

In 1944, President Franklin D. Roosevelt won an unprecedented fourth term in office, defeating Thomas E. Dewey.

In 1962, Republican Richard Nixon, having lost California's gubernatorial race, held what he called his "last press conference," telling reporters, "You won't have Nixon to kick around anymore." Former first lady Eleanor Roosevelt, 78, died in New York City.

In 1973, Congress overrode President Richard Nixon's veto of the War Powers Act, which limits a chief executive's power to wage war without congressional approval.

In 1980, actor Steve McQueen died in Ciudad Juarez, Chihuahua, Mexico, at age 50.

In 1992, former Czechoslovak leader Alexander Dubcek, whose failed attempt to loosen the Communist grip on his country became known as the "Prague Spring," died at age 70.

Ten years ago: In his first news conference since the midterm elections, President George W. Bush, charting an agenda for the new Republican Congress, said that homeland security came first and that an economic-recovery plan with new tax cuts would wait until the next year. Dick Gephardt stepped down as House Democratic leader in the wake of his party's election losses.

Five years ago: An 18-year-old gunman opened fire at his high school in Tusula, Finland, killing seven other students and the principal before taking his own life. A cargo ship struck the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, causing the San Francisco Bay's worst oil spill in nearly two decades. Space shuttle Discovery and its crew returned to Earth, concluding a 15-day space station build-and-repair mission.

One year ago: A jury in Los Angeles convicted Michael Jackson's doctor, Conrad Murray, of involuntary manslaughter for supplying a powerful anesthetic implicated in the entertainer's 2009 death (he was sentenced to four years in jail). Former heavyweight champion boxer Joe Frazier died in Philadelphia at age 67.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend, "Rick," is in prison and has been there for two years. He is the father of my 2-year-old son. I got pregnant three months into our relationship.

Ten days after our son was born, Rick had to turn himself in for something that happened prior to my getting pregnant. He was sentenced to five years. He was supposed to serve only two years of it, but another charge caused that to change, and he won't be home for another year and a half.

I'm starting to get confused about our relationship because we barely have one anymore. We never get to see each other or talk.

Every time I have a night out I meet different people, but I feel too guilty to continue with anything. My girlfriends all tell me I need to move on, that I don't deserve this and that I'm the one "in prison." But I really want the perfect family.

What do you think I should do, Abby? Move on and be happy, or sit here playing the waiting game?

- LOST AND CONFUSED

DEARLOST: I'm glad you asked. Although Rick is the father of your little boy, you are not married to him. Therefore you are not morally obligated to put yourself into suspended animation until he is released from prison.

If you really want the "perfect family," you should do as your friends advise and move on, not because Rick made a mistake that got him into prison, but because there was a second offense that extended his sentence. It suggests a pattern.

DEAR ABBY: A few weeks ago I was given the news that a close friend had committed suicide. I wish I could say it's the first time I have been in this situation, but I can't. My issue is, I think suicide is more than a little selfish and I am unable to get beyond my anger. How do I support the family and friends of a loved one who has died by suicide when I can't get past the anger?

- OVERCOME IN GLEN BURNIE, MD.

DEAR OVERCOME: I'm sorry for the loss of your friend. While it is normal to feel angry about the suicide, you also need to find some compassion. Individuals who decide to end their lives do so for various reasons — to stop overwhelming emotional pain, because of mental illness, to punish someone, because of an incurable illness, and sometimes out of impulse.

Whatever your friend's reason was, please do not take it out on the grieving family and friends. They are dealing with enough of their own mixed emotions right now. If you feel you can't control your emotions, stay away until you can.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is in a nursing home for long-term care. The holidays will soon be here. How do I sign the holiday cards? Should I include my husband's name? My son is living with me. Do I include his name, too?

- GETTING READY IN NEW ENGLAND

DEAR GETTING READY: It is perfectly acceptable to include all three names on your holiday cards. (Send them out early, because the post office is sure to be especially busy in December.)

DEAR ABBY: I was wondering what families should do with old pictures if someone in their family is transgender.

- ANDY IN OHIO DEAR ANDY: They should ask their transgendered relative what he or she would like done with the pictures and take their lead from the person's wishes.

IF NOVEMBER 7 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Seek peace and tranquility in the next four weeks, but don't overestimate your abilities or take others for granted. You will have extra energy in December and January but should watch out for being too aggressive about obtaining your goals. Wait to take advantage of helpful opportunities that pop up in April and May, which can provide you with long lasting benefits. Those are times when people who have your best interests at heart will be happy to grant favors and give valuable advice and when your business judgment is at its best for career, finances and relationships.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your flag is flying high where career is concerned; you could earn extra Brownie points. Beneficial changes may occur that are not obvious. Don't give in to the urge to criticize the slowness of others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Say "pretty please." Good manners count. Clothing and decorative items bought today will be of good taste. Purse strings may be drawn tighter later this week, so keep a lid on self-indulgent spending.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Sincerity pays dividends. Subtle shifts may indicate a major improvement in a relationship or lead to a permanent source of income. Be open to new ideas since they may help you reach your objectives.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Networking can expand business contacts and help you travel further on the road to success. Apologies offered will be accepted. A credit card purchase that seems affordable today may be regretted later.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Take advantage of opportunities that pop into view. It is easy to be sidetracked by novel ideas, online games or political power plays. Don't escape or get sidetracked when there is so much work to do.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Dog may be man's best friend, but you know that your best friend walks on two legs. This is a perfect time to network and find ways to be gracious when traveling in social circles. Show good taste.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be pretty, witty and wise. This might be a good day for a haircut or to choose the most flattering clothing. Your good taste will be demonstrated in some fashion statement, perhaps a new desktop lamp.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The person who rows the boat is too busy to rock it. Keep focused on achieving worthy goals and lofty. You are likely to experience a stroke of good fortune even if it remains hidden from view.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The path is clear to make productive adjustments that are equitable to everyone. Don't let minor irritations shape your decisions. Others have a different picture of the emotional landscape.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Energy begets more energy. An exercise plan might be just what the doctor ordered to increase your vitality. Determination to succeed could keep you striving long after everyone else heads home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A generally cheerful mood and overall consideration makes this a good day to socialize. Brighten someone's day with an unexpected gift of appreciation, a compliment or a hearty pat on the back.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Enjoy your 15 minutes of fame, but watch the hands on the clock. You may receive attention due to creative endeavors or original ideas. Financial rewards could easily run through your fingers like water.

THE STATE OF IDAHO SENDS GREETINGS TO:

JUAN PEREZ

Twin Falls, Idaho 83301

YOU ARE NOTIFIED THAT:

A Petition, a copy of which is attached, has been filed in the above-entitled matter in the Magistrate's Division of the District Court of Twin Falls County, Idaho, by the Prosecuting Attorney, alleging the above-named children come within the Court's jurisdiction under the Child Protective Act.

You are hereby directed to appear personally for a Case Plan Hearing at the Twin Falls County Courthouse, 425 Shoshone Street, Twin Falls, Idaho on November 29, 2012 at 9:30 AM.

You are notified that service of the attached Petition upon you, as the parent(s), guardian, or custodian of these children, confers personal jurisdiction of the Court upon you and subjects you to the provisions of the Child Protective Act.

You are notified that if you fail to appear without reasonable cause, the Court may proceed in your absence or you may be proceeded against for contempt of Court.

You are notified that the parent(s), guardian, or a custodian may be financially liable for the support and/or treatment of the children.

You are further notified that the children and parent(s), guardian, or custodian have the right to be represented by an attorney of your choosing, or if financially unable to pay, have the right to have an attorney appointed by the Court to represent the children or the parent(s), guardian, or custodian at county expense. If you request to have an attorney appointed at county expense, you must appear before the date of the hearing given above, at which time the Court shall consider appointment of an attorney for the children and inquire whether the parent(s), guardian, or custodian require the separate appointment of an attorney.

You are further notified that there shall be a rebuttable presumption that if a child is placed in the custody of the IDHW and was also placed in care out of the home for a period not less than fifteen (15) out of the last twenty-two (22) months from the date of Adjudication, the IDHW shall initiate a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights. This presumption may be rebutted by a finding by the Court that the filing of a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights would not be in the best interest of the children and their family, or that the children are placed permanently with a relative.

WITNESS MY HAND AND SEAL of said Magistrate Court this 29th day of October, 2012.
