GIVE ME SHELTER

Few options and varying requirements can pose a challenge to those seeking affordable housing in the Magic Valley.

Hope Coates and her husband, Lee, face possible eviction because they don't have enough money to pay their rent. But they say they've had problems finding low-income housing to move to.

A Choice in Health Care

Independent physicians in south-central Idaho are joining together to promote themselves.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • When Adrea Storey went to find a primary care physician, she had only one condition: The doctor had to be outside the network of St. Luke's Health System.

But when the Twin Falls resident began wading through physicians listed in the phone book, Storey ran into a problem. She couldn't tell which doctors worked for St. Luke's.

"I had to start sorting the physicians by their phone numbers," Storey said. "I knew St. Luke's physicians have the same first-three-digit number. If I hadn't of known about that, I wouldn't have been able to find an independent physician in this town."

Storey isn't alone in seeking an easier way to find a doctor outside of St. Luke's. Physicians independent of the health care system are the minority in the Magic Valley, but a new organization is looking to give them a greater

A Changed Landscape

St. Luke's has provided services to the Magic Valley since 2001, when it first began managing practices at the Physician Center of the former Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

But until recent years, the Twin Falls County-owned MVRMC and the downtown Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital were the city's main medical providers. While some doctors belonged to the Physician Center, the clinic also served as a place for independent physicians to work and find patients.

In 2002, the two hospitals merged. Then in 2006, the county sold MVRMC to St. Luke's.

By 2009, about 90 of Twin Falls' roughly 130 doctors - 70 percent were in some way affiliated with St.

This year, 18 independent physicians have now banded together to market their services and remind the public there is still a choice of who to seek care from.

The organization — the Independent Health Care Providers of Idaho - is based in Twin Falls with the hopes of expanding throughout south-central Idaho in the next year, said Dr. Cole Johnson, Twin Falls physician and IHCPI's president.

"The group formed because we needed to be able to give people a choice and to promote ourselves," Johnson said. "Our members are very broad-based."

Member physicians work in fields such as primary care, pediatric care and psychiatric services, according to their website.

'Some People Tell Me My Heart's Too Big'

Under new management, Minidoka animal control picks up steam.

BY LAURIE WELCH lwelch@magicvalley.com

PAUL • In its first 30 days under new management, the Minidoka County Animal Control Facility took in 70 dogs.

Of those, 30 were placed with rescue groups, retrieved by their owners or adopted. Only one puppy, which had canine parvovirus when it was brought in, was euthanized.

And a rescue organization from Oregon picked up an additional 19 dogs Wednesday, all of which will be spayed and neutered. Sixteen already have homes waiting for them, said Debbie Heinze, part-time employee

Stocks Slide as Impasse Over Budget Deficit Looms

NEW YORK (AP) • Investors drew little hope Wednesday for a quick compromise in U.S. budget talks after President Barack Obama insisted that higher tax payments from wealthy Americans would have to be part of any deal.

The Dow Jones industrial average was down 132 points at 12,624. The Standard & Poor's 500 index slipped 13 points to 1,362 and the Nasdaq composite was down 24 points at 2,860.

Hidden History APPEARANCE IS EVERYTHING

BY MYCHEL MATTHEWS

TWIN FALLS • A town without trees is not a pretty sight.

Knowing that, investors in Twin Falls poured their efforts into making the young town an attractive, civilized place to live.

Early in 1905, just months after the town was platted and surveyed, nurseryman James A. Waters began planting trees. A lot of trees. In less than a year, some 4,000 saplings lined the streets of Twin Falls.

Twin Falls Investment Co. donated two blocks on the east side of Shoshone Street for a city park, which was also filled with trees.

Many of the shade trees were planted before irrigation water from the new Twin Falls canal system had reached the town. Water was hauled in from Rock Creek, and saplings were watered by hand.

By 1910, the city's irrigation ditches were well developed and the trees were thriving.

At the base of the fiveyear-old tree stands Mayor Carl Hahn, a cashier at Twin Falls Bank and Trust, holding a sapling.

At the top of the tree are Waters, the owner of Twin Falls Nursery, and Loren Warner, a Twin Falls lawyer. Below Waters and Warner are Charles Hill and Stuart H. Taylor, owners of Hill and Taylor Real Estate.

The three men in the lower branches of the tree are George Sprague, Oren Stalk-

Nurseryman James A. Waters demonstrates the size and strength of this 5-year-old tree at the intersection of Shoshone Street East and Second Avenue East in Twin Falls in 1910. Also in the photo are Loren A. Warner, Charles Hill, Stuart Taylor, C.E. Potter, Stalker was the proprietor of Stalker's Clothing House on Eighth Avenue North, and Sprague owned Irrigated Lands Co. and operated out of the Hotel Perrine, which can be seen in the fter a foggy morning, the sun will prevail today as we go into the afternoon. High pressure will control our weather this afternoon and high temperatures will be seasonal in the low 50s.

Clouds will increase with the next system on Friday. There is a small chance of a shower passing through southern Idaho late Friday afternoon and evening, but most of the day should be dry. Temperatures will once again be typical for November in the low 50s.

The weekend into next week, the forecast becomes more unsettled with higher chances of precipitation Saturday night through Wednesday. Very little change in temperatures is expected over the next several days as highs will be in the low 50s each afternoon. The forecast also becomes more uncertain on timing of precipitation Monday through Wednesday.

Next week is the week of Thanksgiving and, of course, the busiest travel day of the year on Wednesday. The forecast as of now is looking fairly quiet. There is no big storm system wait ing to ruin your holiday plans at this point. Keep in mind when looking out 7 to 10 days the accuracy drops so things can change. We will keep you updated as we get closer.

CSI AND WASTE DISTRIC SEEK RECYCLING PLEDGES

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Pledge to step up your recycling efforts today at an event at the College of Southern Idaho.

CSI's Sustainability Council and the Southern Idaho Solid Waste District will take the pledges to mark America Recycles Day, a national program founded in 1997.

The groups will host a booth from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in the college's Taylor Building. People who stop by can receive information on ways to reduce waste through recycling and composting, and pledge to recycle more of one particular material over the next month.

America Recycles Day is organized each year by Keep America Beautiful, which bills itself as the nation's largest volunteerbased community action and education organization.

Options for affordable low-income housing in south-central Idaho are few and don't even begin to meet the area's demand, said Leanne Trappen, community service director for the nonprofit South Central Community Action Partnership.

Affordable housing should only cost individuals 30 percent of their income, Trappen said. However, for those who have a low income, finding housing that falls below that threshold is rare.

"You're not seeing a lot of options around here," Trappen said. "We need more of it."

Other obstacles to finding affordable housing include pulling together enough money to pay for application fees and having to pass a credit check. If there is a waiting list, it's easy for people to get discouraged, Trappen said.

Agencies like the Twin Falls Housing Authority offer 56 federally subsidized apartment units for low-income families, said Penny Earl, the organization's executive director. Rent is based on income, but the current wait time to secure a two-bedroom apartment is close to 12 months.

Shannon Malone says she's burned out waiting for a federally subsidized apartment. Malone currently lives in a studio apartment with her two kids at the labor camps on the south end of Twin Falls. She qualifies for low-income housing but says there are no options currently available to her.

Affordable housing apartment complexes like Fawnbrook Apartments turned her down because she failed the credit check.

"I'm running out of places I can apply to," Malone said. "I'm just gonna stay here for as long as I can to save up some money and then try in Twin Falls requires a background and credit check before accepting tenants. Attempts to confirm Fawnbrook's policies with area supervisor Colin MacDonald were not returned Wednesday, but back rent and past debt collections can harm an applicant's chances.

Hope and Lee also failed to pass Fawnbrook's credit check. The couple then applied to Washington Park Apartments and Carriage Lane Apartments without any luck. Hope said they can't afford to apply anywhere

"It's usually $25 per person just to apply," she said. "That's a good chunk of our monthly income if we keep applying all at

Twin Falls Garden Apartments doesn't require a credit check but it does charge a $15 fee per adult for a background check, Yvonne Sonday, the apartment's area super-

Rent is determined by an individual's income but it isn't subsidized, Sonday said.

For a family of four with an income less than $15,000, monthly rent is $270 for a two-bedroom apartment, she said. If the family makes somewhere between $15,000 and $25,600, rent jumps to $462, she said.

The situation is bleak but not hopeless, Trappen said. Drawing attention to the need to get more affordable housing in town is critical to providing more options in south-central Idaho. Education for low-income renters as to managing their finances can also help the situation.

"Incomes are not as high as they used to be," she said. "We need to continue working with people on their budgets but we encourage everyone to apply at (Idaho Housing and Finance) and Twin Falls Housing Authority. Two years goes by pretty quick."

The group is a relief to Kim-she said. "I've had some poor experiences with St. Luke's and I don't want to go back there but I don't who else I can go to."

The organization also hopes to level the playing field when it comes to negotiating with St. Luke's. For example, under the health care reform law, all physicians purchase electric medical records that are compatible with a hospital's EMRs.

"St. Luke's can purchase the most expensive EMR system and not know that the local physicians can't afford that system," Johnson said. "If it was just one of us raising that concern with St. Luke's, it might not go as well. However, hopefully that'll be different when we form as a group?"

Expansion Ouestioned

IHCPI's creation comes at a time when St. Luke's faces scrutiny for its recent expansion boom throughout southern Idaho.

Monday, Alphonsus filed a federal lawsuit to keep St. Luke's from buying Saltzer Medical Group, a large private practice in Nampa. On a state level, regulators have been scrutinizing St. Luke's Saltzer deal for several months.

Last year, St. Luke's Magic Valley merged with St. Benedicts Family Medical Center in Jerome. Soon after the merger was completed, medical centers in Mountain Home and Gooding announced they were examining possibly merging with the larger health system.

North Canyon Medical Center is currently waiting for a response from St. Luke's — which it already partners with for some services - said Shellie Amundson, spokeswoman for the Gooding hospital.

"We have sent out the letter that offered to discuss increasing our level of association," she said. "We're now waiting on St. Luke's to learn when we can further that discussion."

The Times-News requested to interview a St. Luke's Magic Valley representative a week ago, but officials said no one was available for comment.

Instead, the hospital provided the following statement from St. Luke's Magic Valley CEO Jim Angle: "The members of the (IHCPI) are respected physicians and medical providers in the Magic Valley. St. Luke's Magic Valley and St. Luke's Jerome remain committed to working with independent health care providers to achieve our mission of improving the health of people in our region and to deliver on the triple aim of better health, better care, and lower cost."

In the past, hospital executives and doctors have argued competition is not a concern, even as it approaches a near monopoly status. In 2009, former CEO Mark Schwartz said having everyone - from the doctors to the hospital on the same page is a better way to manage patients and take care of the community. As St. Luke's has brought more physicians into town, administrators have also said a coordinated health system improves patient choice because it gives access to a broader variety of doctors.

For Storey, she hopes to see provider choice remain in south-central Idaho.

"I would just hate to see this town lose patient choice," she said. "It's important to me and a lot of other people in this community."

AP Photographer Walt Zeboski Dies

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) • Walt Zeboski, who chronicled Ronald Reagan's 1980 presidential campaign and a succession of California governors as a photographer for The Associated Press, has died. He was 83.

Zeboski died Monday at his home in Sacramento after battling pneumonia. His death was confirmed Tuesday to the AP by his wife, Virginia Zeboski. She said the family brought her husband home Friday from Mercy General Hospital in Sacramento and provided hospice care for him over the weekend.

Colleagues remembered Zeboski for his journalistic integrity and dedication to the wire service. "He had a newsman's instinct," said Sacramento-based AP photographer Rich Pedroncelli, who described Zeboski as a "mentor." Zeboski was hired as a permanent AP employee in 1966 and that his photography career spanned more than three decades, mainly in Sacramento. He covered four California governors: Pat Brown, Ronald Reagan, Jerry Brown and George Deukmejian, as well as countless political power players in the state Legislature.

Darline A. Broderson Sept. 27, 1921-Nov. 14, 2012 TWIN FALLS • Darline A.

TWIN FALLS • Darline A. Broderson, 91, of Twin Falls, passed away Wednesday, Nov. 14, 2012, at the Heritage Retirement Center in Twin Falls.

She was born Sept. 27, 1921, in Coffeeville, Kan., the daughter of Elmer and Mary Bradberry Manis. Being raised during the Great Depression was not easy; she had a hard life. Darline helped raise her two younger brothers and assisted her grandmother who lived nearby. She suffered health problems at an early age but kept a great attitude, always keeping busy and doing for herself instead of depending on others.

Darline met the love of her life, Earle Broderson, in elementary school. They grew up together in the Los Angeles, Calif., area and were married in 1940. Together, they had shared 62 wonderful years when he passed away in 2002. To their loving union were born three children, Earlene, Brodine and Gail. The family will always be blessed with memories of her feisty energetic spirit and dry wit. She taught her family traditional values and always blessed them with her generosity.

Surviving are her daughters, Earline Mocerin and Gail (David) Foster, both of Twin Falls; six grandchildren, Todd, Kim, Sandy, Brodie, Cristi and Mike, along with 10 greatgrandchildren; and her brother, Elmer Manis of Seal Beach, Calif. She was preceded in death by her husband, Earle; and a son, Brodie. Darline will be deeply missed by all who knew and loved her.

The family would like to thank Dr. Sandison; Jon at Visions Hospice; and Stacy, Allysa, Christine, Chris and the many additional caregivers at Heritage Assisted Living for their exceptional care. She had a long life and was truly blessed.

A celebration of life will be held at 3 p.m. Friday, Nov. 16, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls.

Middle Schoolers to Learn CPR

The students will be responsible for teaching at least five family members and friends.

Associate principal Amy McBride said it's exciting for students to learn CPR and then teach others.

"This can really extend past our own walls," she said.

The American Heart Association started a project Monday to teach 3,200 Idaho middle schoolers at 19 schools how to perform hands-only CPR.

The project is funded through a $100,000 donafrom Regence BlueShield of Idaho.

Each year, the company decides on two community organizations to partner with in each state. This year, the American Heart Association was selected.

"We feel that their mission lines up closely with our mission as a health insurer," Regence BlueShield's media relations manager Scott Thompson said.

He said it's important to learn CPR in order to help before emergency responders arrive. And the more people who are trained, the

"We just think this is a great way to save lives around Idaho," Thompson said.

Nearly 400,000 cardiac arrests happen every year in the United States outside of hospitals, according to the American Heart Association. The chances of survival drops 10 percent for each minute that passes without defibrillation.

At Robert Stuart, half the seventh-graders will learn CPR today. Then, a second group will complete the training next semester. Students will be assisted by their teachers and first responders from the Twin Falls Fire Department.

Why choose middle schoolers for the program? "It's all science-based," said Maria Sweeten, community CPR manager for the American Heart Association.

The organization looked at research about the optimal time to teach children CPR, considering factors such as motor skills and willingness to teach others.

Sweeten said students will learn the steps to go through before administering CPR, such as asking the person if they're OK and then calling 911.

Students will learn to administer chest compressions using an inflatable manikin.

They'll learn how to "push hard and fast in the center of the chest," Sweeten said, and give 100 compressions per minute.

After students complete CPR training through their physical education class, their homework will be to teach five family members and friends.

"What we're doing is arming the community to improve the chain of survival," Sweeten said.

Hagerman Man Dies from Crash Injuries

BY ALISON GENE SMITH alismith@magicvalley.com

HAGERMAN • A Hagerman man died late Tuesday night from injuries he sustained when he was hit by a car Monday, said Gooding County Sheriff Shaun Gough.

Kenneth Pearce, 86, was crossing State Street in Hagerman near Bruneau Avenue when he was struck by a vehicle driven by Joseph March, 40.

Gough said Pearce was struck by the left side of the vehicle near the center of State Street while he was crossing the road. Emergency dispatchers got the call about the crash at about 4:13 p.m. Scanner traffic indicated Pearce was bleeding from his head at the scene.

Dispatchers said emergency personnel called for an air ambulance, but it was unable to fly because of weather conditions. Pearce was then transported by ground ambulance to the Twin Falls airport, Gough said, where he was flown to St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise.

Gough said deputies received a call at about 1 a.m. Wednesday that Pearce had Marsh told deputies that he did not see Pearce, Gough said. A witness driving behind Marsh also said they could not see Pearce, the sheriff said.

Once deputies finish writing up the case, Gough said any potential charges against Marsh will be turned over to the Gooding County prosecutor's office.

T.F. Considers Fueling Its Buses with Propane

BY JULIE WOOTTON iwootton@magicvallev.com

TWIN FALLS • Come next school year, Twin Falls students might ride to school in buses fueled by propane. Western States Bus Services is proposing 10 buses for the Twin Falls School District's fleet. Then, more propane buses would be phased in over the next two or three

Western States Bus Services' manager Michele Dameron told the school board Monday that buses fueled with liquid propane are cleaner-running. It's beneficial for children with asthma or other breathing challenges.

Dameron said propane-fueled buses are also quieter than traditional school buses.

"You wouldn't know that you're on a school bus with the noise reduction," she told the school board.

The bus company wouldn't charge the school district more under the new proposal, Dameron said.

The school board will take action on the proposal next month.

Dameron declined to comment further on the proposal until after a school board vote.

If the Twin Falls school

It isn't unusual to use propane to fuel vehicles. Propane has been used for more than 80 years in commercial vehicles, according to an information packet from Western States.

That's after its school board backed a similar proposal in May by Western States to upgrade its fleet.

The company planned to replace 10 diesel-fueled Filer buses with propane vehicles. Details on any cost savings to the district so far weren't available Wednesday.

In addition to the propane buses, the Twin Falls board is considering a five-year extension of its contract with Western States.

The current contract runs through the end of this school year. An extension would mean the company would continue to provide school busing services from 2013 to 2018.

Superintendent Wiley Dobbs told the school board that it's a big decision for the district.

SCCAP Thanksgiving Turkey Drive Kicks Off

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • With just a week before Thanksgiving, the annual 60 hours to the Fight Hunger event begins

The South Central Community Action Partnership has sponsored the event for 13 years. The goal is to allow low- or no-income families to celebrate a traditional Thanksgiving.

The event will begin today and continue throughout Saturday evening, said Leanne Trappen, SCCAP's community services director. This year's goal is to collect 2,500 turkeys, although monetary donations are also welcomed.

Last year, the event generated 1,800 turkeys.

Turkeys, or a monetary donation, can be made at the corner of the Con Paulos Volkswagon Mazda lot in Twin Falls. In the Burley area, donations can be dropped off at SCCAP's office at 314 East 5th Street, or by Stokes Food Center, 539 Overland in Burley.

Obama Responds Warily to Scandal

WASHINGTON (AP) • Responding warily to his administration's sudden sex scandal, President Barack Obama said Wednesday he's seen no evidence that national security was damaged by the revelations that ended his CIA director's career and imperil that of his Afghan war commander.

But the president said he is reserving judgment about how the FBI handled the investigation that began in the summer but didn't reach his desk until after last week's election.

"I have a lot of confidence, generally, in the FBI," Obama said, qualifying his words of support for the agency and its actions in the

As Obama spoke about the scandal from the White House, legislators on Capitol Hill were grilling FBI and CIA officials privately about the same issues: whether national security was jeopardized by the case and why they didn't know about the investigation sooner.

"I have no evidence at this point, from what I've seen, that classified information was disclosed that in any way would have had a negative impact on our national security," Obama said at his first postelection news conference. As for the FBI's handling of the matter, Obama said: "My expectation is that they follow the protocols that they've already established. One of the challenges here is that we're not supposed to meddle in criminal investigations, and that's been our practice."

Federal law enforcement officials have said the FBI didn't inform the White House and Congress sooner about the original investigation because of rules set up after the Watergate scandal to prevent interference in criminal investigations, and that lawmakers weren't given notice of potential national security problems because the bu-

CIA Director David Petraeus resigned Friday, two days after the White House was notified that he'd acknowledged having an affair with his biographer, Paula Broadwell.

The FBI's investigation of the matter began last summer, after Broadwell allegedly sent harassing, anonymous emails to a woman she apparently saw as a rival for Petraeus' affections. That woman, Florida socialite Jill Kelley, in turn had traded sometimes-flirtatious messages with the top U.S. commander in Afghanistan, Gen. John

Allen. Kelley's complaints about the threatening emails triggered the FBI investigation that led to the resignation of Petraeus and the inquiry into her communications with Officials who have seen the communications between Allen and Kelley on Wednesday described some of the emails as "suggestive," and said their release would be embarrassing for the general. The officials spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to discuss the situation publicly.

Israel Assassinates Hamas Military Chief

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip (AP) • Israel carried out a blistering offensive of more than 20 airstrikes in the Gaza Strip on Wednesday, assassinating Hamas' military commander and targeting the armed group's training facilities and rocket launchers in the territory.

Israel said the airstrikes, launched in response to days of rocket fire out of Hamasruled Gaza, were the beginning of a broader operation against the Islamic militants codenamed "Pillar of Defense." Israeli defense officials said a ground operation was a strong possibility in the coming days though they stressed no decisions had been made and much would depend on Hamas' reaction. There were no immediate signs of extraordinary troop deployments along the border.

The attack came at a time when Israel seems to be under fire from all directions. Relations have been deteriorating with Egypt's government, the lawless Sinai desert has become a staging ground for militant attacks on Israel, and the Syrian civil war has begun to spill over Israel's northern border. Earlier this week, Israel fired back at Syria - for the first time in nearly 40 years - after stray mortar fire landed in the Israeli-controlled Golan Heights.

California Debuts Landmark Program to Cap Emissions

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) • California began auctioning

permits Wednesday for greenhouse gas emissions, launching one of the world's most ambitious efforts to cut heat-trapping gases from industrial sources.

The California Air Resources Board said it began selling the pollution "allowances" in a closed, online auction expected to create the world's second-largest marketplace for carbon emissions.

Under the program, the state sets a limit, or cap, on emissions from individual polluters. Businesses are required to either cut emissions to cap levels or buy allowances through the auction from other companies for each extra ton of pollution discharged annually.

The board said the results of the auction — what price is paid for a ton of carbon, and how many companies participated - would be released Nov. 19. The cap-and-trade plan is a central piece of AB32, the state's landmark 2006 global warming regulations.

Only the European Union has implemented a similar plan in terms of scope, and it currently operates the world's largest carbon marketplace. A much less inclusive cap-andtrade scheme covers only electricity producers in the northeastern United States.

Failure of the California program would be a devastatin increased emissions by businesses in neighboring states that boost production to grab business.

The California Chamber of Commerce has filed a lawsuit challenging the air board's authority to sell the allowances to generate revenue for the state. It claims the sale of allowances is an illegal tax because taxes need a two-thirds vote by the Legislature.

The board estimates that about $1 billion could be raised from the sale of allowances in fiscal year 2012-13. About 23 million allowances will be sold for 2013 emissions, and 39.5 million allowances were being presold Wednesday for 2015

BORDER PATROL UNDER SCRUTINY FOR DEADLY FORCE

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP) • A pair of Mexican drug smugglers in camouflage pants, bundles of marijuana strapped to their backs, scaled a 25 foot-high fence in the middle of the night, slipped quietly into the United States and dashed into the darkness.

U.S. Border Patrol agents and local police gave chase on foot – from bushes to behind homes, then back to the fence. The conflict escalated. Authorities say they were being pelted with rocks. One agent responded by aiming a gun into Mexico and firing multiple shots at the assailant, killing a 16-year-old boy whose family says was just in the wrong place at the wrong time. The Oct. 10 shooting has prompted renewed outcry over the Border Patrol's useof-force policies and angered human rights activists and Mexican officials who believe the incident has become part of a disturbing trend along the border. The Department of Homeland Security Office of the Inspector General launched a probe of the agency's policies, the first such broad look at the tactics of an organization with 18,500 agents deployed to the Southwest region alone. The Mexican government pleaded with the U.S. to change its ways. And the U.N. High Commissioner for Human Rights questioned the excessive use of force by Border Patrol. At least 16 people have been killed by agents along the Mexico border since 2010, eight in cases where federal authorities said they were being attacked with rocks, said Vicki Gaubeca, director of the ACLU's Regional Center for Border Rights in Las Cruces, N.M. The Border Patrol says sometimes lethal force is necessary: Its agents were assaulted with rocks 249 times in the 2012 fiscal year, causing injuries ranging from minor abrasions to major head contusions.

It is a common occurrence along the border for rocks to be thrown from Mexico at agents in the U.S. by people trying to distract them from making arrests or merely to harass them — particularly in areas that are heavily trafficked by drug smugglers and illegal immigrants.

In this Aug. 2012 photo, vehicles are parked along the border fence as pedestrians cross the street in Nogales, Mexico. The location is near the site where a U.S. Border Patrol agent, being pelted with rocks, opened fire toward Mexico, killing a 16-year-old boy.

A Casket Cartel's Comeuppance?

hortly before 123 million voters picked a president, 38 Louisiana monks moved the judiciary toward a decision that could change American governance more than most presidents do. The monks' cypress caskets could catalyze a rebirth of judicial respect for Americans' unenumerated rights, aka privileges or immunities.

In 2005, Hurricane Katrina damaged the trees that the monks of Saint Joseph Abbey near Covington, La., harvested to support their religious life. So they decided to market the sort of simple caskets in which the abbey has long buried its dead. Monasteries in other states sell caskets, but these Louisiana Benedictines were embarking on a career in crime.

In 1914, Louisiana created the State Board of Embalmers and Funeral Directors. Its supposed purpose is to combat "infectious or communicable diseases," but it has become yet another example of "regulatory capture," controlled by the funeral industry it ostensibly regulates. Nine of its 10 current members are funeral directors.

In the 1960s, Louisiana made it a crime to sell "funeral merchandise" without a funeral director's license. To get one, the monks would have to stop being monks: They would have to earn 30 hours of college credit and apprentice for a year at a licensed funeral home to acquire skills they have no intention of using. And their abbey would have to become a "funeral establishment" with a parlor accommodating 30 people, and an embalming facility even though they just want to make rectangular boxes, not handle cadavers.

This law is unadulterated rent-seeking by the funeral directors' casket-selling cartel. The law serves no sanitary purpose: Louisiana does not stipulate casket standards or even require burials to be in caskets. And Louisianans can buy caskets from out of state — from, for example, Amazon.com (it sells everything). A complaint filed against the monks by a funeral director said: "Illegal third-party casket sales place funeral homes in an unfavorable position with families." That is, the bereaved become angry when forced to buy caskets from the funeral homes' cartel.

In a sense, the monks' troubles began 16 years before their monastery was founded in 1889, across Lake Pontchartrain in New Orleans. In the 1873 Slaughter-House Cases, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld, 5-4, New Orleans' government-created butchers cartel. This effectively expunged this clause from the 14th Amendment: "No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States." The court effectively expunged the phrase "privileges or immunities," construing it so narrowly it disappeared from constitutional law.

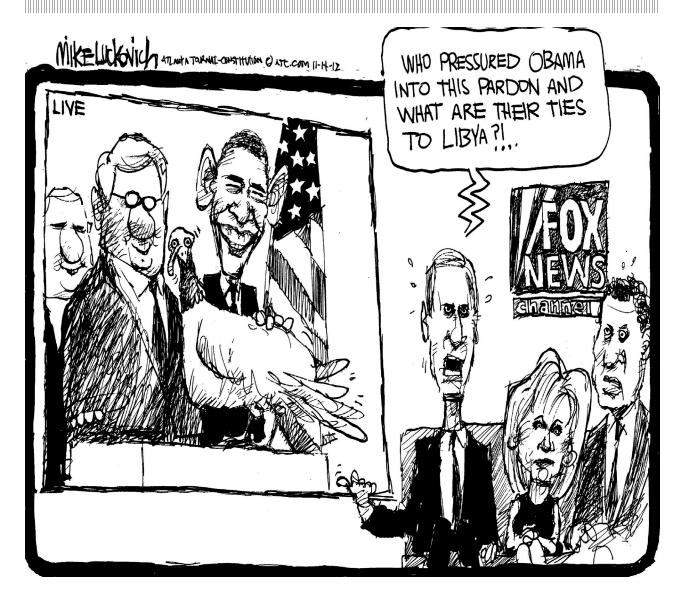

Since then, courts have retreated from protection of economic rights — the right to earn a living without arbitrary and irrational government hindrances. Courts have complacently allowed any infringements of those rights for which governments offer any "rational basis" — such as, the supposed good done by conferring economic benefits on favored factions.

In 2002, the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, overturning a Tennessee law requiring a license to sell caskets, said the law did not protect the public from harm but protected licensed funeral directors from competition. But in 2004, the 10th Circuit upheld an Oklahoma law forcing online casket retailers to have funeral director's licenses, which in Oklahoma, too, involve expensive and time-consuming requirements. The court acknowledged that the law is protection for funeral directors but said "dishing out special economic benefits" to favored interests is equivalent to "the national pastime" of — and a prerogative of — state and local governments. The 10th Circuit believes this should continue undisturbed by judicial supervision, although it injures the public and abridges individuals' rights.

When circuit courts disagree, the Supreme Court should referee. The monks' lawyers — libertarians from the Institute for Justice — want the court to confront the consequences of its 1873 mistake. So, the monks' problem is much more than just another example of dumb bullying by government in cahoots with powerful interests. Last month, the 5th Circuit rejected Louisiana's casket nonsense, saying "neither precedent nor broader principles suggest that mere economic protection of a pet industry is a legitimate governmental purpose." And: "The great deference due state economic regulation does not demand judicial blindness to the history of a challenged rule or the context of its adoption nor does it require courts to accept nonsensical explanations for naked transfers of wealth."

If courts once again become properly impatient with nonsensical explanations, much of what government does will become untenable. It is lovely that revitalized protection of the individual rights of property and striving may owe much to an abbey where all property is communal.

On Wednesday, we published the first in a series of articles about urban homesteading. The article, "Area Urban Homesteaders Grow Their Own Rabbit Meat," sparked a lively debate on magicvalley.com.

CAndrews: Since when do we eat animals that are considered pets in the US? There are upward to 2 million to 4 million (depending upon the source) rabbits kept as pets in this country. House rabbits are becoming common pets in urban areas and the rabbits are housed just like a cat or dog with a family in their Domesticated rabbits can be litter box trained like a cat, learn their names and other words just like any dog or cat, learn tricks like dogs (clicker training), are affectionate, and bond for life with people, other pets and of course other rabbits. Of course, you can eat them. People will eat anything.

Rabbits are established as pets in the U.S. so why do we objectify them as food and not dogs or cats.

Lturning: Anyone that wants a rabbit for a pet should know they need to be neutered or spayed. Once they become adults at 4 to 6 months their hormones kick in and they become territorial and aggressive creatures. That's why most are turned into shelters or abandoned after Easter. Neuter or Spay — please. BTW Rabbits routinely live to be 10 to 12 years old when they live in a house as a pet. I have a 12 year old right now. Killing them at 8 to 12 weeks to eat is crazy when they can live so long and bring a lot of joy to people when the rabbits arent' confined to little cages 24/7. Aren't we better than that? Guess some people aren't.

sickofhypocrites: Enough with the self righteous dribble. Rabbits are a MULTIUSE livestock. Get over it already. They can be kept as pets or kept for fur or fiber or meat. Are you people all vegetarians? Do you know how long cows and pigs and chickens can live? A VERY LONG TIME. Yet we still eat them. Are their lives somehow less valuable because they are a different species? Because they are less "cute"? ...

Get REAL people. Just because an animal is raised for food doesn't mean it is gonna be treated cruelly or have a horrible life. I raise rabbits for pets and for meat and I treat them all the same, with Love respect and compassion until the day they leave my care and I can tell you after 17 years of farming/homesteading/hobbying whatever you want to "label" it, some of the most CRUEL situations I have found rabbits in have been at the hands of "pet" owners. ... Animal USE is NOT animal ABUSE and neither is animal WELFARE the same thing as animal RIGHTS.

Stop Making Excuses and Take Control of Your Life

Americans are afforded the luxury of a free education paid for by tax dollars.

I, like most people, received a public education. However, so many people in America are uneducat ed, not because they weren't given the chance but because they did not pay attention in class, did not study and, in general, did not care. Too many of these uneducated people say they did not have the same opportunities as people in better neighborhoods. Having the most fashionable clothes does not make one smarter. Also bemoaning the fact that one had a bad childhood or has ADHD for being the reason for bad grades is, in most cases, an excuse.

I did not grow up in the ideal neighborhood setting, had an extremely horrid childhood, have ADHD and went to 11 different schools around the country. I graduated 26 years ago. If one is persistent, dedicated and determined to be successful in life, it does not matter the circumstances they came from. Stop making excuses and take control of your own lives.

Do Not Leave Your Drink Unattended

I would like to make the public aware that now that it's a holiday season, things are once again getting weird.

I'm a 60-year-old woman, and I was given a mickey or whatever you call it this past weekend, and I was drinking coffee and had had only one shot of booze. I have totally no recall of that afternoon; just thankful friends were around.

Just please let the public know such things happen even here in Twin. I would have never thought in a million years it could happen to me. And by the way, money came up missing from my purse. Losing the money wasn't near as bad a feeling as losing all time.

Thank You for Providing 'The Secret Garden' to Area Youth

We would like to thank the Magic Valley Arts Council and the Missoula Children's Theatre for bringing "The Secret Garden" to Twin Falls.

Our son participated in the performance, and we couldn't have been more impressed with the hard work, friendliness and professionalism of everyone involved. Auditions and rehearsals were a wonderful learning experience, and the performance was fun and engaging. It was truly amazing to see such a complex and entertaining production come together in just five days, and that alone is a testament to the dedication of all those involved.

Thanks for providing such a unique, creative experience for families in the Magic Valley.

Michelle Obama Ruined School Lunch with Reduced Portions

I am 13 years old and in eighth grade. My life is pretty good, but the biggest problem in my life at this point in time is my school lunch.

We used to get a pretty decent amount, but now we get less than half of what we got last year. My friends tell me it's because Michelle Obama passed a law that kids' school lunches have a fixed number of calories to stop obesity. Every kid in the lunch room that I've talked to hates how small our lunches are and despises the fact that they won't let us get seconds.

The lack of food makes it harder to learn and study.

INTERIOR SECRETARY APOLOGIZES FOR THREATENING A REPORTER

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) • U.S. Interior Secretary Ken Salazar apologized Wednesday for threatening to punch a Colorado reporter who asked him about problems with the government's wild horse program at a campaign event.

Salazar called Dave Philipps, a reporter with The Gazette of Colorado Springs, to apologize and offer him an interview, and also sent him a letter of apology.

Salazar told Philipps by phone Wednesday that "I want you to hear me loud and clear," The Gazette reported. "I shouldn't have said that."

Philipps asked Salazar what he knew about Tom Davis, a Colorado horse slaughter proponents.

Salazar answered briefly, saying the BLM has made a "major effort" to address long-standing problems with wild horses on public

Salazar noted he was appearing at the campaign event, about 80 miles south of Denver, in a "personal capacity," and said his office could arrange to talk about Davis "at an appropriate time."

After the interview, Salazar accused Philipps of setting him up.

U.S. Sen. Michael Bennet, left, Gov. John Hickenlooper and U.S. Interior Secretary Ken Salazar celebrate after President Barack Obama was predicted the winner over Mitt Romney on Nov. 6 in Denver.

He then posed the threat, saying: "If you do that to me again, I'll punch you

Also on the audio, Philipps is heard telling Salazar that he previously got no response after trying multiple times to arrange an interview through Salazar's press secretary.

The Gazette reported that it initially held off on posting the audio in hopes of getting an interview with Salazar. But a Colorado Springs-based wild horse advocacy group, The Cloud Foundation, publicized the exchange Monday and The Gazette published story Tuesday.

Philipps, a Pulitzer Prize finalist in 2010, and Gazette Editor Carmen Boles declined to comment on the matter Wednesday to The Associated Press, but the newspaper did editorialize in favor of Salazar issuing an apology and granting an interview.

ACLU Says Prison May Be Violating Settlement

BOISE (AP) • The ACLU of Idaho says Corrections Corporation of America appears to be violating a settlement reached with inmates in a socalled "Gladiator School" lawsuit over violence at an Idaho prison run by the company.

The organization sent CCA a letter last week detailing its concerns about safety at the Idaho Correctional Center south of Boise, executive director Monica Hopkins said. The letter was sent just a day before by a group of inmates filed a separate lawsuit in Boise's U.S. District Court alleging continued mismanagement and gang violence at the prison.

The settlement with the American Civil Liberties Union stemmed from a 2010 lawsuit the organization filed on behalf of inmates at the prison, contending the CCA-run facility was so violent that inmates called it "Gladiator School." CCA firmly denied the allegations, but the two sides reached a deal requiring staffing and safety changes at the prison.

The settlement requires that both sides try to resolve any disputes together before going back to court. Hopkins said the ACLU's letter outlined "a number of concerns we have about CCA's compliance with the September 2011 court agreement."

"We trust that we will receive a response soon, and we hope that further litigation will be avoided," she said.

CCA spokesman Steve Owen says the Nashville, Tenn.-based company continues to work in good faith to reach an amicable resolution through the settlement process.

Judge Won't Order Abortion for Mentally Impaired Woman

RENO, Nev. (AP) • A Washoe County district judge has decided against forcing a mentally impaired Nevada woman to have an abortion after all parties involved reached a tentative agreement to help her through her high-risk pregnancy.

The 32-year-old woman's legal guardian told KRNV-TV on Wednesday that Judge Egan Walker had agreed that the woman wants to carry the pregnancy to term and that the evidence doesn't show it's medically necessary to abort the baby.

After taking the abortion option off the table, Walker said he plans to hold additional medical evidentiary hearings in the weeks ahead to determine the safest way to proceed.

The woman, who has the mental capacity of a 6year-old, wandered from a Reno group home that she was living in and became pregnant 13 weeks ago. The child's father has not been identified, and it's unknown whether the pregnancy resulted from rape or consensual sex, according to court documents.

The court became involved in late September, when officials with Social Services voiced concerns about the effects that her medication could have on the fetus. The case drew attention from anti-abortion advocates nationally.

Water Rate Debate Continues in Kimberly

BY DAVE WILKINS

For the Times-News

KIMBERLY • The Kimberly City Council will continue a discussion about water rates at its next regular meeting Nov. 27.

The council has been mulling a proposal to revise the city's water rate structure in order to generate more revenue and keep the department within budget.

The issue was discussed at length during a council meeting Tuesday, but no decision was made, city officials said Wednesday.

Ireland Probes Death of Ill Abortion-seeker

DUBLIN (AP) • The debate over legalizing abortion in Ireland flared Wednesday after the government confirmed that a woman in the midst of a miscarriage was refused an abortion and died in an Irish hospital after suffering from blood poisoning.

Prime Minister Enda Kenny said he was awaiting findings from three investigations into the death of Savita Halappanavar, a 31-year-old Indian woman who was 17 weeks pregnant. Her case highlighted the legal limbo in which pregnant women facing severe health problems can find themselves in predominantly Catholic Ireland.

Ireland's constitution officially bans abortion, but a 1992 Supreme Court ruling found the procedure should be legalized for situations when the woman's life is at risk from continuing the pregnancy. Five governments since have refused to pass a law resolving the confusion, leaving Irish hospitals reluctant to terminate pregnancies except in the most obviously life-threatening circumstances.

The vast bulk of Irish women wanting abortions, an estimated 4,000 per year, simply travel next door to England, where abortion has been legal on demand since 1967. But that option is difficult, if not impossible, for women in failing health.

Halappanavar's husband, Praveen, said doctors at University Hospital Galway in western Ireland determined she was miscarrying within hours of her hospitalization for severe pain on Sunday, Oct. 21. He said over the next three days, doctors refused their requests for an abortion to combat her surging pain and fading health.

The hospital declined to say whether doctors believed Halappanavar's blood poisoning could have been reversed had she received an abortion rather than waiting for the fetus to die on its own. In a statement, it described its own investigation into the death, and a parallel probe by the government's Health Service Executive, as "standard practice" whenever a pregnant woman dies in a hospital. The Galway coroner also planned a public inquest.

"Savita was really in agony. She was very upset, but she accepted she was losing the baby," he told The Irish Times in a telephone interview from Belgaum, southwest India. "When the consultant came on the ward rounds on Monday morning, Savita asked if they could not save the baby, could they induce to end the pregnancy? The consultant said: 'As long as there is a fetal heartbeat, we can't do anything.'

Praveen Halappanavar said his wife vomited repeatedly and collapsed in a restroom that night, but doctors wouldn't terminate the fetus because its heart was still beating. The fetus died the following day and its remains were surgically removed. Within hours, Savita was placed under sedation in intensive care with blood poisoning and he was never able to speak with her again, her husband said. By Saturday, her heart, kidneys and liver had stopped working. She was pronounced dead early Sunday, Oct. 28.

The couple had settled in 2008 in Galway, where Praveen Halappanavar works as an engineer at the medical devices manufacturer Boston Scientific. His wife was qualified as a dentist but had taken time off for her pregnancy. Her parents in India had just visited them in Galway and left the day before her hospitalization.

Opposition politicians appealed Wednesday for Kenny's government to introduce legislation immediately to make the 1992 Supreme Court judgment part of statutory law. Barring any such bill, the only legislation defining the illegality of abortion in Ireland dates to 1861, when the entire island was part of the United Kingdom. That British law, still valid here due to Irish inaction on the matter, states it is a crime punishable by life imprisonment to "procure a miscarriage."

An abortions right group, Choice Ireland, said Halappanavar might not have died had any previous government legislated in line with the X judgment. Earlier this year, the government rejected an opposition bill to do this.

The World Health Organization, meanwhile, identifies Ireland as an unusually safe place to be pregnant. Its most recent report on global maternal death rates found that only three out of every 100,000 women die in childbirth in Ireland, compared with an average of 14 in Europe and North America, 190 in Asia and 590 in Africa.

Argus fetches a chukar after pointing it out to owner Paul Biagiotti, not shown, who shot it Nov. 3 on public land north of Bliss. Argus, a pointer, is a specialist and doesn't fetch as much as some other hunting breeds.

BLISS • On a chilly, overcast morning in the Bennett Hills, two bird dogs dart through the sagebrush, wagging vigorously when they catch a scent trail.

The beeping collars on Argus, an English pointer, and Greta, a German shorthaired pointer, tell their owners that the dogs are still on the move — until the beeps

Then Paul Biagiotti hustles.

Bodies rigid, Argus and Greta are pointing to a covey of chukars moving silently through the brush. Suddenly the chukars take to the air, silhouetted against a gray-and-pink sky. Biagiotti fires his shotgun, and one flapping shape falls.

"Chukars! We got into chukars. Success!" cries Biagiotti, a bovine veterinarian and upland bird hunter from Jerome.

His dog, Argus, takes a lot of encouragement to fetch — English pointers are specialists, Biagiotti explains — but within moments the chukar is in Biagiotti's bag and Biagiotti is discussing the covey's movement with his hunting partner.

"Typical. They went off the edge of the canyon," says Mike Scott of Hagerman, Greta's owner and a retired heavy equipment

Even among the ranks of the High Desert Pointing Dog Club where these two men met hunters don't share how many chukars they found at what GPS coordinates, Biagiotti said.

All electronic devices will be peppered with shotgun pellets, he joked as he approached that morning's hunting spot over rough dirt roads.

"The appeal of hunting out here is you can hunt all day and not see another person," said Biagiotti, who's been visiting this spot for seven or eight years. "Some years it's good, and sometimes it's not."

"The log rails are inspired by some we saw at Jackson Hole," Miller said. "They are made with actual pine logs and blend into the forest look. Some have flat tops, others are round."

As the resort hopes to attract school ski programs, it has expanded the number of instructors on site as well.

"We've really worked hard on getting lessons and will have 15 to 20 instructors here throughout the season," Miller said.

Another change people may notice will be inside the lodge.

rims for grass and sun, and fly back down the steep slopes when they need a quick escape route. After the fall rains, Biagiotti said, cheatgrass seeds germinate and the green shoots are a major food source for chukars.

On Nov. 3, he intended to hunt the relatively flat rim of a canyon, because of Scott's difficulty with steep walking.

"I've learned not to go to the bottom of a canyon, because then I've got to climb back out," Scott

As the two men walked into the breeze following their dogs, Biagiotti stopped to point out green cheatgrass among the dry, brown

"That's good for us," he said. "Maybe it'll bring the chukars up top."

Today, Scott is watching Greta for any return of the limping that followed their last hunt. She has a pin in her right front shoulder from surgery, but her instincts would drive her to hunt until she couldn't stand, Scott says. And this early in the upland bird season, lava rocks might abrade the dogs' pads, Biagiotti says.

They'll call it quits early if they spot a limp.

Other bird dog owners might be competitive, but Scott praises Biagiotti's Argus as a great chukar dog: He has watched Argus move a covey of chukars like he's herding cattle.

Some dogs should hunt only alone, he adds, but Greta and Argus get along fine.

The two men walk a gunshot apart, with Scott stopping frequently to rest and Biagiotti following the dogs more closely. Argus often hunts ahead of Greta, farther from the men.

"Sometimes he loses track of quires a brisk walk to keep up, ing back and forth across a wide sagebrush studded with lichencovered lava rocks.

Easier said than done.

"More of a breeze would be better. They could be walking by coveys," Biagiotti says, gesturing to the dogs. A colder, more damp day would improve their scenting.

Paul Biagiotti of Jerome puts a beeper collar on his English pointer, Argus, before bird hunting Nov. 3. The collar's beeps don't seem to spook the chukars, Biagiotti says, but human voices do.

But then Argus is on the move again, and neither man takes a shot. "They went up. They went up wild," Biagiotti says. That means Argus couldn't pin down the birds. Shoot a bird that goes up wild, and the dog will feel cheated, he adds. "I only shoot birds that he's pointed."

Later — after a flock of sage hens in the distance, a wide turn toward the trucks, a couple of Scott's jokes and a few points that yield nothing — suddenly wings appear again against the sky, flying low.

"That was a huge covey of chukars -," Biagiotti says. "And they went right over the edge," Scott finishes.

Moments later: another point, another hustle, another false

When he and Biagiotti were both new to Idaho, Scott recalls, Biagiotti and another hunter invited him to join them. Biagiotti, who had pen-raised quail, also helped with Greta's training.

So many other hunters, Scott says, are afraid to share their secret spots for fear the newcomer will shoot all the birds.

"You see how easy it is to shoot birds?" Scott says.

But he seems sanguine. Perhaps the dog and the desert and the company of another hunter are enough.

In two hours of walking, one shot is fired and one bird falls.

"Well, we didn't get skunked," Biagiotti says back at the trucks. "It could have been worse."

If nobody's counting the harvest, it's hard to say how it could have been better.

depending mostly on weather during nesting and during winter, he said. If the winter is nasty and the spring is cold and wet, southern Idaho has poorer hatches and fewer birds. Magic Valley's last really good chukar years were 2005 and 2006, Smith said. "When bird numbers are good, the word gets out." This year, indicators suggest the population had a good hatch, Smith said in early November, and Fish and Game forecasted that chukar numbers would be up from the past couple of years.

Idaho's chukar hunter numbers fluctuate with the bird population; otherwise, Smith saw no up or down trend over time. Over the past decade in the state, an average 12,900 chukar hunters ventured out each year, killing an average of 96,500 chukars, spending 64,100 days afield, and killing an average of 7.6 birds per hunter per year. Chukars have high annual turnover - that is, a high percentage of the population dies every year regardless of whether they're hunted — so hunting seasons are long and liberal,

Smith said. This time, Fish and Game extended the season from mid-September to Jan. 31. But if a severe storm puts the birds into poor condition, Fish and Game can do an emergency early closure. "It doesn't happen very often, but that option's there," Smith said.

To go after chukars, all you need is an Idaho hunting license - and a persistent bird dog, of course. Among Magic Valley's chukar hunters, the Bennett Hills north of Gooding, Bliss and Glenns Ferry are most popular, Smith said. There's lots of public land in the Bennett Hills, and in good years plenty of chukars. Bruneau Canyon and the rest of Owyhee County also offer strong chukar hunting. Rock Creek Canyon and other creeks on the north side of the South Hills have chukars, but in lower densities than the Bennett Hills.

TWIN FALLS • The Idaho Department of Fish and Game is encouraging youth hunters to hunt pheasants on 432 acres of Access Yes! property just south of Twin Falls.

"We are putting a few more birds out on this property and thought it might be good to push it a little for youth hunting," said Jerome Hansen, Fish and Game's regional supervisor in Jerome.

Landowner permission is required, so call 208-733-7302 in advance. Once you have secured permission, travel south on Washington Street to 3500 North, then west on 3500 North about 0.5 miles. This pheasant hunting opportunity is for youth only. Pheasant season is open until Dec. 31 with a daily bag limit of three male birds.

Access Yes! is a Fish and Game program that compensates landowners for allowing hunters and anglers access to private land.

Some Upland Game Seasons Are Still Open

JEROME • Though many of Idaho's biggame seasons are winding up, many upland game seasons are still open — including several upland birds as well as cottontail rabbits and snowshoe hares.

Find upland hunting rules and shooting times in the rules brochure at license vendors, at Idaho Department of Fish and Game offices and on the department website, fishandgame.idaho.gov.

Fish and Game said the seasons still open include:

• California and bobwhite quail through Jan. 31 in northern and southwestern Idaho. Closed in eastern Idaho.

• Chukar and gray partridge through Jan. 31.

 Pheasants through Dec. 31 in Area 1 in northern Idaho and Area 3 in southwestern Idaho; through Nov. 30 in Area 2 in eastern Idaho.

• Forest grouse, which includes ruffed, spruce and dusky (blue) grouse, through Dec. 31 in most of Idaho; and through Jan. 31 in the Panhandle region.

 Cottontail rabbits through Feb. 28 and snowshoe hares through March 31. The daily bag limit for both is eight, with 16 in possession after the first day.

There is no season on pygmy rabbits. Need help distinguishing them? Cottontail tails are dark above and white underneath, and the pygmy's tail is buffy gray with no white. The cottontail is more than a foot long, and the pygmy is less than one foot. The fall general turkey season runs through Dec. 15 in game management units 1, 2 (except Farragut State Park and Farragut WMA), 3,4,4A,5 and 6 in northern Idaho, and through Dec. 31 in units 8, 8A, 10A, 11, 11A, 13, 14, 15, 16 and 18 on private lands only.

All hunters need a valid 2012 Idaho hunting license, and a turkey tag if pursuing a turkey.

Hiding in Plain Sight: A Key to Successful Waterfowling find it interesting that consistently successful waterfowl hunters are masters of a great paradox: They are skilled at enhancing the attractiveness of their decoy spreads by offering the birds everything their avian hearts desire (food, shelter, company), while at the same time cleverly concealing from them the greatest threat to their enjoying a long life and a winter respite in a warm southern marsh a load of No. 2 steel shot.

To create the instant appeal that will have the birds setting their wings 500 yards out, veteran fowlers are mindful to "match the hatch." They carefully set out species-specific decoys to mimic the numbers and patterns being established by the birds migrating into their area at that particular time. Modifications are made as conditions change. As a general rule, large decoy spreads work best early in the season, while heavily hunted late-season birds seem less leery of smaller sets. Confidence decoys add additional appeal. Noted outdoor writer M.D. Johnson suggests that encircling your duck dekes around a single swan decoy creates a real duck magnet.

"Ducks are big on swans," he says, "and the visibility factor is also there - the big white swan provides a focal point for the ducks at a distance. And speaking of visibility, I'll typically run one to four snow geese in my Canada spread. The white really shows up, and their presence doesn't disturb the Canadians because it's not unusual to have a lost snow or two mixing in with their darker cousins."

Johnson has also learned that geese find comfort in seeing a small set of fullbody crow decoys perched along the shoreline. And as we all have witnessed, a raft of coots cruising peacefully outside your set is a proven confidence builder.

Adding a few spinningwing (Mojo-style) duck decoys - either wind driven or battery powered – to your spread rates a "thumbs up" from most accomplished hunters. Goose hunters have long appreciated the natural allure provided by the live action flapping of fabric

In addition to being highly sensitive to move-

ment, waterfowl are also able to distinguish unnatural outlines at great distances. A shrouding screen of camouflaging materials can mask both. I like to secure a sizeable length of Allen camouflaged burlap cover cloth to a framework of dead willow branches at my favorite gravel pit hideout and substitute a mat of Allen's handwoven marsh grass and reed material when I'm hunkering down in lake cattails and bulrush.

Insulated, waterproof camo outerwear, neoprene waders, glare-reducing face paint and a scarf or a suitably colored balaclava, tinted shooting glasses, ear protection, and warm flexible shooting gloves complete your kit. A Krylonpainted or camo-taped five-gallon bucket makes a comfortable, easily portable seat. As a bonus, it doubles as a waterproof container for dry clothes, lunch, a thermos of coffee, extra shotshells, camera, cell phone and other personal items.

Let's learn from the pros and make this our best season ever by perfecting the synergistic arts of concealment and visibility.

White Sturgeon Survey Shows Size Diversity

TWIN FALLS • Idaho Power Co. said its biologists completed the first of a three-year survey of white sturgeon and reported a diverse population of healthy fish in the Snake River between the Hells Canyon and Lower Granite dams.

From mid-June to mid-October, the company's biologists studied a 140mile stretch of the Snake River to capture, tag, weigh and measure white sturgeon. The crew recorded more than 630 live captures. The study yielded sturgeon as short as 1.8 feet, weighing 1.3 pounds, up to a 9.3-foot fish and one that tipped the scales at 344 pounds.

"We ended up with fish in all size classes, from abundant small juveniles to large maturing adults," Idaho Power biologist Brandon Bentz said in the release. "The wide range of weights and sizes indicates a diverse population. Overall fish condition also appears to be good and similar to other populations in the Snake River."

This is the second survey performed by Idaho Power in Hells Canyon and is part of the company's White Sturgeon Conservation Plan. Year two of the survey begins next June, and signs will again be placed at area boat docks to let the public know what's taking place.

"The public seems very interested and receptive to what we're doing," Bentz

ON TARGET: YOUR WEEKLY HUNTING REPORT

"The general season in southern Idaho left us with great numbers of game seen and taken, with trophy quality above average in mule deer, elk and antelope," said Jeff Frost of Intermountain Taxidermy & Worldwide Adventures in Twin Falls.

What's still happening: "The mule deer rut is prime right now for those with late-season permits," Frost said Tuesday. "Whitetail hunters are still reporting good numbers of deer in the Orofino and Moscow hunting areas up north, as well as eastern Idaho. There is still a December trophy hunt for elk in the southern units that hunters are preparing for, and those with cow elk tags are having a bit of a tough time this year filling those

"Ducks and pheasant numbers are also off to a good start this year."

Next year's tags: Anxious to buy an Idaho hunting license and tags for next year?

Nonresidents can buy licenses and deer and elk tags beginning Dec. 1, the Idaho Department of Fish and Game said. Residents also can buy 2013 hunting licenses starting that day, and they can buy a receipt for deer and elk tags, which don't go on sale until after deer, elk and pronghorn controlled hunt drawings.

"Hunters can redeem the receipt for a deer or elk tag after the controlled hunt drawings in July so those whose names are drawn don't have to exchange their general season tags for controlled hunt tags at a Fish and Game office," a department release said. "Instead the controlled hunt winners are simply issued a controlled hunt tag at any license vendor. The rest are issued general season

Cassia Hospital Offers Respiratory Center

BURLEY • Cassia Regional Medical Center has established a Respiratory Outpatient Clinic to address Magic Valley's need for an outpatient respiratory treatment center.

Bronchiolitis is a lung infection that affects children younger than 24-months

This is the ROC's third year in operation. The center is open 24 hours a day during the height of the respiratory illness season.

"I believe the huge benefits of the ROC clinic offers are the ability for us to monitor a patient for seven full days and the ease of the process," said Tyrell Searle, respiratory therapist at the ROC. "I also believe we can give our patients more personal attention due to the nature of the clinic being focused solely on respiratory treatment."

The length of the stay for a clinic patient is 20 to 30 minutes, depending on the required interventions. The average patient visits the clinic two to four visits during the seven-day prescription period and can be managed at home with bulb suctioning.

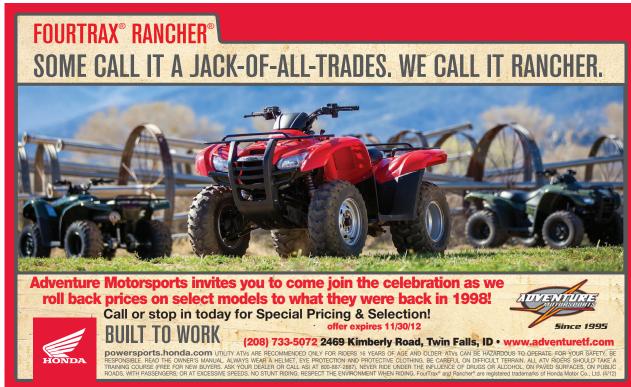

"Local doctors who have referred patients to the clinic are reporting that they are pleased wit the service as a cost benefit to their patients versus admission to a hospital," said Searle.

Order Your Holiday Pies Now

The Jerome Senior Center will be offering freshly baked 10-inch pumpkin or Dutch apple pies for $5 and one dozen homemade dinner rolls for $3. Orders must be placed by Nov. 17. To order, please contact Ada Carter at 324-5642 or stop by 520 North Lincoln.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

PUBLISH: November 15, 22, 29 and December 6, 2012

On Tuesday, the 19th day of February, 2013, at the hour of 10:00 o'clock a.m. of said day on the steps of the Jerome County Courthouse, 300 N. Lincoln, Jerome, in the County of Jerome, State of Idaho, Rvan M. Fawcett, as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property situated in the County of Jerome, State of Idaho, and described as follows, to wit: LOT 4 IN BLOCK 25 OF HAZELTON TOWNSITE, JEROME COUNTY, IDAHO ACCORDING TO THE PLAT THEREOF, RECORDS OF SAID COUNTY.

The Successor Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113, Idaho Code, the Successor Trustee has been informed that the street address of 434 Park St. S., Hazelton, Idaho, is sometimes associated with said real property.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by MARLIN SCOTT ROGERS and HEIDI LOU ROGERS, Husband and Wife, Grantor, to Ryan M. Fawcett, Successor Trustee, for the benefit and security of WEST ONE BANK, IDAHO, recorded January 28, 1994, as Instrument No. 940469, Mortgage records of Jerome County, Idaho; and assigned to the IDAHO HOUSING AGENCY by Assignment of Deed of Trust recorded on January 28, 1994, as Instrument No. 940470, Mortgage records of Jerome County, Idaho. THE ABOVE GRANTOR IS NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506 (4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay when due, monthly installment payments under the Deed of Trust Note dated January 28, 1994, in the amount of $550.00 each, for the months of May through October, 2012, inclusive; and for each and every month thereafter until date of sale or reimbursement. All delinquent payments are now due, plus accumulated late charges, plus any costs or expenses associated with this foreclosure. The accrued interest is at the rate of 6.39% per annum from April 1, 2012. The principal balance owing as of this date on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $27,852.45, plus accrued interest at the rate of 6.39% per annum from April 1, 2012. You are hereby directed to appear personally for a Review Hearing at the Twin Falls County Courthouse, 425 Shoshone Street, Twin Falls, Idaho on January 10, 2013 at 9:30 AM.

You are notified that service of the attached Petition upon you, as the parent(s), guardian, or custodian of these children, confers personal jurisdiction of the Court upon you and subjects you to the provisions of the Child Protective Act.

You are notified that if you fail to appear without reasonable cause, the Court may proceed in your absence or you may be proceeded against for contempt of Court. ou are notified that the parent(s), guardian, or a custodian may be financially liable for the support and/or treatment of the child. You are further notified that the child and parent(s), guardian, or custodian have the right to be represented by an attorney of your choosing, or if financially unable to pay, have the right to have an attorney appointed by the Court to represent the child or the parent(s), guardian, or custodian at county expense. If you request to have an attorney appointed at county expense, you must appear before the date of the hearing given above, at which time the Court shall consider appointment of an attorney for the child and inquire whether the parent(s), guardian, or custodian require the separate appointment of an attorney. You are further notified that there shall be a rebuttable presumption that if a child is placed in the custody of the IDHW and was also placed in care out of the home for a period not less than fifteen (15) out of the last twenty-two (22) months from the date of Adjudication, the IDHW shall initiate a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights. This presumption may be rebutted by a finding by the Court that the filing of a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights would not be in the best interest of the children and their family, or that the children are placed permanently with a relative.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"Destiny waits alike for the free man as well as him enslaved by another's might."

– Aeschylus

A brief but eventful auction ended with South in five hearts. against which West led the club king, ruffed in the dummy. Now a trump to the ace revealed the 3-0 break.

How would you continue to play the contract?

Suppose you ruff another club, cash dummy's bare trump queen, and play a diamond. To make the contract on that line, you will eventually need to find West with the spade ace, so you can reach dummy with the spade king.

A far safer way to play the contract is to lead the diamond 10 at trick three.

Let's say that West ducks the first round of diamonds and wins the second.

If the defenders play spades now, you will be able to draw trump, ending in the dummy, and enjoy the diamond suit.

Instead, West will probably force the dummy with a second round of clubs. You ruff with dummy's penultimate trump, leaving the dummy with the bare queen and East still holding jack-10 of

To neutralize East's trump, you then lead winning diamonds from dummy. Whenever East ruffs in, you will overruff with the king and return to dummy with the trump queen, drawing East's last trump. You can then play the remaining diamonds, throwing all of your spade losers, to claim an overtrick.

East could have taken his spade ace at the time West decided to force the dummy, but the contract would still have been impregnable.

ANSWER: Even though you seem to be right at the minimum end of your range for a response, you absolutely cannot afford to pass here. With the boss suit, you must introduce it into the auction right now, or else you may never find your side's best fit.

JOINT WHEEL LINES (4) A&M 32

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing about a letter you published Sept. 23 from "Friend in Arizona." She wrote that after her friend "Blanche" was diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease, Blanche had asked not to be "paraded around for others to gawk at" after she reached a certain point. You advised that continuing to take her friend to church every Sunday was going against her wishes. I disagree.

I'm an LPN and specialize in Alzheimer's. I have been doing this for more than 25 years, and have headed Alzheimer care units. One of the things we strive for is some sense of normalcy. These people lose their short-term memory at first. But many have strong, vivid memories of years ago.

Sunday is probably one of the few things Blanche actually remembers, and it most likely brings her a sense of comfort. Most of the parishioners probably have known her for vears. This isn't walking through a mall full of strangers; it is enjoying fellowship with old friends. I'm sure they are not "gawking."

Nursing homes are often frightening to Alzheimer's patients - full of strange sounds and people. Church, however, is full of beloved hymns and friends.

Unfortunately, there will friends in my later years.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have a disagreement. No matter what we are doing, she's constantly checking her cellphone for texts or emails. Then she'll get into text conversations and talk to herself while I sit there wondering what's so funny. It happens a lot anytime, anywhere. Her cellphone is a constant companion and usually the center of attention.

Am I too sensitive in thinking that the phone should be put away sometimes when we're together? Or is this the world in which we now live?

overly sensitive. Have you told your wife that you feel she's neglecting you because she pays more attention to her cellphone? If you haven't, you should. If she has any consideration for your feelings, she will turn it off for an agreed period of time so she can spend that time with you.

But until that time comes, I hope this dear friend continues to do such a wonderful thing for this woman. I only hope that I have such caring

- JENNIFER DEAR JENNIFER: I would like to thank you and the many readers who urged me to change my answer to that letter. Some pointed out that Blanche had elicited the promise when she was a ent from the woman she is today. However, I am torn. While I think it's brutal for older people who suffer from dementia to be treated as pariahs and isolated (and many are), and clearly this friend is well-meaning, I also feel strongly that a person's wishes stated in advance should be respected. Blanche membered as the person she was, and entrusted her friend to carry out her wish-tain point?" The writer of that letter asked me if I thought she was wrong to disregard her friend's wishes. I apologize if anyone was offended by my

IF NOVEMBER 15 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: During the next eight to 10 weeks, making key business contacts and networking can bring you success. This is a good time to make sound career, financial or work related decisions. You might be chasing elusive rainbows during April although in your heart you know there is no pot of gold. Your love life gets a definite "thumbs-up" during February and March - but don't let it go to your head in April. Wait until late May or early June to make a significant decision about a job, relationship, or investment. Anything worth having is worth waiting for and if things don't work out there may be a good reason.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take a breath and plunge into the deep end. You won't get in over your head now. Apprehension about beginning a project may have had you dragging your feet, but no one else can do exactly what you do.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Roll up your sleeves and dig in. Once you get the bit between your teeth, you will take off like Secretariat. Don't delay starting a worthy project, as there is no limit to what you can achieve through industry.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The bigger the gesture, the bigger the heart. You shine with generosity and this makes others want to be generous as well. You have a green light for making major decisions or purchases to-

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The pit and the pendulum present a conundrum. When faced by choices it might be your own overactive fantasies that cause you the greatest anguish during the decision making process. Sleep on it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Confidence levels are high and could rise higher by tomorrow. You could experience a lucky break or simply possesses the good judgment for major purchases or the stamina to take on crucial initiatives.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Rock on. Those you are in contact with on a daily basis may be gripped by an obsession and trigger your own passions. Your personal magnetism may attract those with more than business in mind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can't be too rich or too thin. Work on the money angle today. Stick with the regimen and scheduled tasks no matter how boring or unpleasant it may seem. Perseverance and dedication will vield benefits.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Keep the lines of communication open. Your secretive side hates to make disclosures or admissions. but frankness could open important doors. An invasion of privacy could be good for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make a pledge to keep all your promises without fail in the future. Others will appreciate your sincerity even if they are skeptical. Analyze and dissect your reasons for making this resolution.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take pride in pinball progress. You can go from one great bell-ringing score to another today. You may have the opportunity to make a great ambition a reality by sticking to your principles.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Consider the qualities of the obstacles in your way. There may be reserve or formality that keeps you and someone else at arm's length. There could be a past situation that affects your credit.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be practical as well as humble. Don't expect to receive rewards without putting in some effort. You may try to ingratiate yourself to others for your own gain but you may overestimate your charms.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Moon's Shot: Former Burley Star Gets His Chance

rhowe@magicvalley.com

SALT LAKE CITY • Colton Moon has his shot back.

It's been four and a half years since Moon owned the high school basketball scene in Idaho. The point guard was twice named Class 4A Idaho Player of the Year while leading Burley High in back-to-back state championships in 2007 and

He put his basketball career on hold to serve a twoyear mission for the LDS Church in Ukraine, hardly touching a basketball while he was there. When he returned in 2011, Moon earned a spot on the Westminster College (Salt Lake City) men's basketball team.

Last year, Moon saw limited playing time as a freshman with the Griffins while working to re-sharpen his basketball skills.

"It was different, getting back into shape. My shot would come off short until I got my legs back," Moon said.

Rediscovering his signature shooting stroke, which came so naturally in high school, was frustrating at times, but Moon says the encouragement of teammates, coaches and family helped him persevere.

Former Burley High standout Colton Moon is now the starting point guard at Westminster College in Salt Lake City and was named Frontier Player of the Week earlier this month.

"My coaches told me when an opportunity presents itself, take advantage of it. I've tried to do that," Moon said. "Over the summer, especially with a lot of seniors (graduating), I've tried to take advantage of the opportunity to play well and get into shape and show that I'm ready."

Turns out, for Moon, shooting a basketball is like riding a bike.

Golden Eagles Ready to Take on First Round

BY DAVID BASHORE dbashore@magicvalley.com

WEST PLAINS, Mo. ● If the College of Southern Idaho volleyball team had a rough road to get here for the NJ-CAA Division I tournament, they sure aren't showing it.

"It's just part of the journey. I'm glad we had a flight mixed in. Usually it's all on a bus," sophomore outside hitter Emily Ottinger said about the near-19-hour trip from Twin Falls.

Mostly rested and with just an hour of on-court practice before today's first round of the tournament, CSI came through Wednesday crisp and focused. That's the experience the Golden Eagles hope they can ride on to an unprecedented 10th championship. This is the first back-to-back nationals appearances for CSI in nearly 10 years, and eight holdovers from last year's squad are here this week. "I think it's not that difMore Online

ferent for all the sophomores, because we were here last year, Ottinger said. "We know everyone's got their eyes on us no matter where we are (in the bracket)."

Where CSI is, it hopes to finish: No. 1. The Golden Eagles are a household name in JUCO volleyball, owning more titles (9) than anyone else. Miami-Dade (Fla.), which isn't here, has eight. No other current Division I program has more than two.

The quest begins with 16thseeded Faulkner State (Ala.), a program with which the Golden Eagles aren't familiar.

"Honestly, I prefer playing teams we haven't seen before," said libero Heather

T.F. Softball Player Signs

BY NICK RULAND

nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls' first team-all conference softball player Megan Lounsbury signed a letter of intent at Northwest Nazarene University in Nampa on Tuesday. The senior, who'll finish up her Bruins softball career in the spring, will be asked to play outfield at NNU for head coach Rich Wagner next

"I always knew I wanted to play college softball," Lounsbury said. "It's something I have thought about for a long time."

Lounsbury wasn't on NNU's radar just a few weeks ago, and neither was NNU on Lounbury's. But when the coach who recruited her at Blue Mountain Community College in Pendelton, Ore., had a family issue that forced him to resign, he recommended Lounsbury to Wagner.

"It was kind of out of the blue," Lounsbury said. "But I had a great visit (to NNU). The girls were amazing; I enjoyed the presence of everyone."

Lounsbury has long wanted to go to college in a city bigger than Twin Falls.

Nampa fits that category - barely. "I think all seniors want to go away from home and then you realize how far that is," Lounsbury said. "Nampa is three hours away and my parents can watch me play, support me, and then I can be home for the holidays and it's not such a big hassle. It's a nice community, there is a lot of stuff to do, and it's definitely bigger than Twin Falls. Bigger cities have more option and opportunities?

Her new coach, Wagner, wants Lounsbury to improve her leg drive so she can hit with more power in college. According to beRecruited.com, Lounsbury hit .534 last year with 12 extra base hits. Lounsbury's position at NNU is not guaranteed, however.

"Coach told me that I have to be ready for the college level,"Lounsbury said. "He said all the hard working players will play. It's based on how hard you work in practice and how much effort you put into it. I'm excited, I will need to work hard to get the position I need to be in and deserve to be in."

WEST PLAINS, Mo. • The David

College of Southern Idaho volleyball team tried to squeeze as much as it could into its allotted one hour of pre-tournament practice time on Wednesday.

The Golden Eagles had plenty of company, as at least six of the 15 other schools were present. Only one of those other six was practicing alongside the Golden Eagles, and nobody was watching the College of Central Florida.

CSI was the main attraction. That comes with the territory of being labeled the team to beat going into the tournament.

The Golden Eagles had had only an hour to put on a show, but one that wouldn't give away everything they do. It was a crisp practice, and considering the 19-hour trip a day before, was actually pretty good in terms of quality.

CSI Hopes to Thrive in Spotlight

Maximizing that oncourt time, and giving your opponents something to think about, can go a long way toward getting one-up mentally on the field.

Because nothing is normal at the national championships, everything comes down to an edge. CSI has one on paper, both being the No. 1 overall seed and having seen five of the other teams in the field - although four of those are on the other side of the bracket. CSI could face Missouri State-West Plains, which the Golden Eagles beat in Salt Lake City earlier in the second, in tonight's second round if both teams win their first-round matches.

One team the Golden Eagles haven't seen is their first-round opponent. Faulkner State (Ala.), the lowest-seeded team in the field, either couldn't or wouldn't swap film with CSI. Though the No. 1 team in the country shouldn't have much trouble, it's still sometimes better to know what you're up against than fly blind. The quick cram session came in about 20 minutes on Wednesday morning - while CSI took its team picture and prepped for its hour on court, Faulkner was practicing. In the end, this match is just like all the others, known opponent or unknown: start fast, put pressure on the other team, see how they respond.

CSI hopes this is the first of four tests passed. If that goes to plan, it means the Golden Eagles will hoist an unprecedented 10th championship trophy – nobody else has more than eight. Mission X is full steam

No. 1 Oregon Tries to Avoid Bama-like Upset

ASSOCIATED PRESS

No. 1 team in the nation, playing at home against a ranked divisional rival with two losses on its record and an elusive redshirt freshman quarterback directing its offense.

Sounds familiar.

Last week it was topranked Alabama losing to No. 15 Texas A&M to shake up the national championship race.

This week, new No. 1 Oregon hosts No. 14 Stanford, looking to avoid a repeat.

The Tide's loss has left the Ducks, second in the BCS, and No. 2 Kansas State, first in the BCS, on course to play for the national championship.

The Wildcats have what looks like an easier task this week - a game at Baylor (4-5).

No. 3 Notre Dame plays Wake Forest (5-5) on Saturday, hoping to stay unbeaten and take one of those spots if the Cardinal or Bears can pull an upset. No. 4 Alabama needs two upsets to get back into the front row.

The Ducks seem to be walking into a similar situation as the Tide last week. The Cardinal even have their own version of Johnny Football.

New starting quarterback Kevin Hogan has invigorated Stanford's offense, first in an easy victory against Colorado, and then in last week's huge win against Oregon State.

Hogan was 22 for 29 for 254 yards against the Beavers. He's not quite Johnny Manziel on the move, but he did run for 49 yards on 11 carries.

The Ducks have dominated the rivalry historically, but only recently with Stanford's rise to power has it become a huge game on the West Coast. A wild one, too.

Stanford beat the Ducks 51-42 in 2009. The last two seasons Oregon struck back with 52-31 and 53-30 victories in which the Ducks pulled away in the second half.

Oregon comes in with all sorts of injuries nagging its defense. The Ducks will likely be down to their third starting free safety, and they had five defensive linemen miss most or all of last week's game.

Stanford's defense - led Chase linebackers Thomas and Shayne Skov has been one of the best in the nation, ranking ninth in yards per play (4.48) and sacks (42).

"They're good against the run, they're good against the pass," Oregon Coach Chip Kelly said. "I think it's a huge challenge for us offensively getting matched up against what will be the best defense we've faced so far. Lot of veteran players on that side of the ball that play very hard."

But as the recent scores show, the Cardinal have yet to figure out a way slow Oregon's spread, which is operating better than ever behind another redshirt freshman quarterback, Marcus Mariota. The Ducks are the highest scoring team in the nation at 55 points per game, with at least 42 in every game.

Of course, Alabama hadn't allowed more than 17 point in a game before A&M came to town and put 29 on the Tide.

Grizzlies Beat Thunder

12 rebounds.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

OKLAHOMA CITY . Rudy Gay scored a season-high 28 points, Zach Randolph added 20 points and 11 rebounds before getting ejected along with Oklahoma City's Kendrick Perkins during a late-game altercation, and the Memphis Grizzlies beat the Thunder 107-97 on Wednesday night. Marc Gasol chipped in 14 points as the Grizzlies continued the best start in franchise history by winning their sixth straight game. They took control by outscoring Oklahoma City by 21 in the second quarter, and never gave it up. Kevin Durant scored a season-high 34 points and Russell Westbrook had 17 points and 13 assists as both Oklahoma City All-Stars logged more than 42 minutes for the second straight game while trying to lead a fourth-quarter comeback. This time it fell short as the Thunder had their five-game winning streak snapped. CELTICS 98, JAZZ 93 BOSTON • Paul Pierce hit two free throws with 19.5 seconds left and finished with 23 points, lifting Boston over Utah. Jeff Green and Leandro Barbosa each scored 16 points for the Celtics, who won for the fifth time in six games. Kevin Garnett added 11 points and eight rebounds. Boston guard Rajon Rondo had 10 assists before leaving the game for good in the third quarter with a right ankle injury. It was his 32nd straight game with 10 or more assists. He was on the bench for the final quar-

Paul Millsap led the Jazz with 20 points and 12 boards. Al Jefferson had 13 points and 14 rebounds. Mo Williams missed three shots in the closing minute for Utah, which fell to 1-5 on the road. The Jazz won a triple-overtime game in Toronto on Monday. The Celtics grabbed a 94-93 edge when Garnett hit the second of two free throws with 1:08 left.

PISTONS 94, 76ERS 76 PHILADELPHIA Greg Monroe had 19 points, 18 rebounds and six assists to help Detroit beat Philadelphia for its first win of the season.

Kyle Singler scored 16 points, and Tayshaun Prince and Brandon Knight each had 15 for a Detroit team off to the worst start in franchise history. Playing their seventh road game this season, the Pistons (1-8) controlled the lethargic Sixers from the opening tip.

ROCKETS 100, HORNETS 96 HOUSTON • James Harden scored 30 points and Omer Asik added 15 points and 12 rebounds as Houston held off New Orleans. Harden went 10 for 20 from the field but only 1 of 7 from 3-point range. He reached 30 points for the third time in seven games with the Rockets.

Greivis Vasquez scored a career-high 24 for the Hornets, despite hurting his left ankle in the third quarter and briefly leaving the game. Anthony Davis had only eight points on 2-for-7 shooting. The Rockets built a 21point lead in the first half. Chandler Parsons sank a pivotal 3-pointer and fadeaway jumper late to help Houston win for the second time in five home games. MAVERICKS 107,

WIZARDS 101 DALLAS • Chris Kaman had 23 points and eight rebounds in his second start for the Dallas Mavericks, who held on to beat winless Washington.

O.J. Mayo scored 25 as the Mavericks snapped a three-game losing streak since Kaman's only other start.

Washington (0-7)trailed by as many as 22 points before a 15-0 run in the fourth quarter. Cartier Martin capped that spurt with consecutive 3-pointers to pull the Wizards to 88-85. Kaman hit a short hook on the next Mavs possession.

Martin made another 3 in the closing seconds, but Kaman had another strong inside move and made the free throw.

BOBCATS 89, TIMBERWOLVES 87 MINNEAPOLIS • Kemba

Walker finished with 22 points, five assists and four rebounds, and his 19-footer over the outstretched arm of Alexey Shved helped the Bobcats to their first threegame winning streak since March 2011. Byron Mullens had 12 points and 15 rebounds and Ramon Sessions scored 18 for Charlotte. Andrei Kirilenko had 26 points and 12 rebounds for the depleted Timberwolves, who used a 16-2 run to tie the game with 12.3 seconds

BUCKS 99, PACERS 85 MILWAUKEE • Brandon Jennings and Monta Ellis scored 16 points apiece to help Milwaukee cruise past struggling Indiana.

Beno Udrih had nine points, 10 assists and six rebounds for the Bucks, who shot 42 percent from the field and improved to 2-2 at home.

NEW YORK • David Price of the Tampa Bay Rays and knuckleballer R.A. Dickey of the New York Mets won baseball's Cy Young awards on Wednesday.

Price barely beat out 2011 winner Justin Verlander for the American League prize in one of the closest votes ever. Dickey was an easy choice for the NL honor in balloting by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

The 38-year-old Dickey became the first knuckleball pitcher to win the Cy Young Award, an achievement mentors such as Hall of Famer Phil Niekro are quite proud of.

"I am not a self-made man by any stretch of the imagination," Dickey said on MLB Network. "This is a victory for all of us."

Runner-up two years ago, Price was the pick this time by the slimmest of margins. He received 14 of 28 first-place votes and finished with 153 points to 149 for Verlander, chosen first on 13 ballots.

Other than a 1969 tie between Mike Cuellar and Denny McLain, it was the tightest race in the history of ter and had a 2.81 ERA in his the AL award. first 20-win season but Rays closer Fernando missed time with injuries and

Rodney got the other first-place vote and came in fifth. "It means a lot," Price said. "It's something that I'll always have. It's something that they can't take away from me."

Price went 20-5 to tie Jered Weaver for the American League lead in victories and winning percentage. The 27year-old lefty had the lowest ERA at 2.56 and finished sixth in strikeouts with 205.

Verlander, also the league MVP a year ago, followed that up by going 17-8 with a 2.64 ERA and pitching the Detroit Tigers to the World Series. He led the majors in strikeouts (239), innings (238 1-3) and complete games (six).

Price tossed 211 innings in 31 starts, while Verlander made 33. One factor that might have swung some votes, however: Price faced stiffer competition in the rugged AL East than Verlan-der did in the AL Central. "I guess it's a blessing and a curse at the same time," Price said. "There's not an easy out in the lineups every game. It feels like a postseason game." Weaver came in third with 70 points, but was listed second on a pair of ballots. The right-hander threw a no-hittotaled only 188 2-3 innings for the Los Angeles Angels.

The top pick in the 2007 amateur draft out of Vanderbilt, Price reached the majors the following year and has made three straight All-Star

Despite going 19-6 with a 2.72 ERA in 2010, he finished a distant second in Cy Young voting to Felix Hernandez, who won only 13 games for last-place Seattle but dominated most other statistical categories that year.

Verlander was trying to become the first AL pitcher to win back-to-back Cy Youngs since Boston's Pedro Martinez in 1999 and 2000. San Francisco right-hander Tim Lincecum did it in the National League in 2008-09.

Dickey garnered 27 of 32 first-place votes and easily outdistanced 2011 winner Clayton Kershaw of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Gio Gonzalez of Washington finished Dickey joined Dwight Gooden (1985) and threetime winner Tom Seaver as the only Mets pitchers to win the award. The right-hander was the club's first 20-game winner since Frank Viola in 1990. And perhaps most impressive, Dickey did it during a season when the fourthplace Mets finished 74-88.
