Hundreds Remember Jerome Teenager's Life

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

JEROME • Hundreds of people gathered Thursday to celebrate 17-year-old Hannah Lock's life, remembering her as a joyful person who lived with purpose.

Family, friends, teachers and community members shared memories through tears and laughter during a memorial service at Jerome High School.

Lock, who was a senior at Jerome High, died in a car accident Saturday in Eden.

Jerome High teacher David Quinley read a piece called "Father to Fathers," written by Hannah's father, Aaron Lock.

"All fathers must face the sobering reality that there are just some things even Daddy can't fix," he wrote. "I so want to fix this. I so want to fix this. You have no idea. Holy Father in Heaven, fix my heart."

Aaron Lock's piece was full of memories of his daughter, such as her unique relationship with her grandfather, Chet Clark, whom she called "Poppy."

Jerome High School's select choir, DeVici, sang a song about Hannah Lock.

Attendees at the life celebration wore colorful lei, as framed pictures of Lock were displayed inside the auditorium.

Declo Teacher's Reading 'Incentive' Questioned

One grandparent says allowing other students to draw on slow readers is bullying.

DECLO • Fourth-graders who failed to achieve reading goals had their faces scribbled on with permanent markers by other students last week at Declo Elementary School — under the supervision of their teacher.

Some parents and Cassia County School District leadership are now decrying the consequences for the nine students, some of whom have learning problems.

When Cindy Hurst's 10-year-old son arrived home from school Nov. 5, his entire face, hairline to chin, was scribbled on in red marker — including "Really, there are opportunities for everyone out there," he said.

On Thursday, Bowen spoke to students at Twin Falls and Canyon Ridge high schools. That night, he gave a free presentation for community members.

'Driving and Facebooking is not Safe'

The family of a woman who died while texting and driving now works to spread her message.

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Brad Ward was on his way to a family gathering when he decided someone needed to be with his niece.

Ward helped wipe the blood off his niece's face and tucked her hair behind her ear. He then made a quick call — "She's OK now" — before replacing the plastic that covered her and placing her body back in the funeral home's cooler.

It was the night of Jan. 14. Earlier that evening, Ward's niece, Taylor Sauer, had died instantly when her vehicle slammed into the back of a tanker truck on Interstate 84 near Mountain Home. Her mother, Shauna Sauer, said Taylor was carrying on several text message conversations and a Facebook conversation on her phone, with messages going out every few minutes.

Now, her family has taken on a mission to spread her last message: "Driving and facebooking is not safe!"

Taylor's parents, two of her brothers and Ward spoke to a crowd at the College of Southern Idaho Thursday as part of a weeklong campaign to remind students not to text and drive.

Ward, a captain with the Nampa Fire Department, shared his story of the night Taylor died for the first time in front of a crowd.

Shauna Sauer wears an wristband with her daughter's nickname on it while she talks about why it's important not to text and drive Thursday at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls.

"Most of you are still going to play with it and have that close call and feel it in your gut," Ward said. "I'll keep going to calls and cutting kids out of cars, but it doesn't have to be you guys."

Ethan Sauer, who said he'd never spoken in front of a group about his sister's death, told the crowd he often used his phone while he drove.

"I was one of those people who would drive," he said. "I'd say 'Oh, I'm looking at the road. I know where the buttons are.' That one word, that LOL isn't worth the pain."

"She was bigger than herself," Ethan, 23, said. "Her life continues through our message."

That message, Shauna Sauer said, is to do more than sign a pledge not to text and drive or feel sympathetic toward her family.

Anyone can sign that pledge, she said. She asked the people present to truly commit to putting their phones down while driving. "It's not a question of if," she said. "It's a question of when. You will cause some sort of accident!"

Shauna Sauer said her family feels blessed that no one else died in the crash that killed her daughter.

For people who choose to continue to text while they drive, Shauna asked people to think of their family planning their funeral.

She described choosing songs to play at her daughter's funeral and wondering if they really would have meant anything to Taylor.

Now that texting while driving is illegal in Idaho, Shauna said she hopes that ban will become as automatic as wearing a seatbelt. The law might not have saved her daughter, she said, but it can save children who grow up with the law in place.

"Someone will have a broken heart if you're gone," she said. "If you're not going to do it for you, do it for your friends and family!"

Unsettled Weather into the Weekend

The weather pattern going into the weekend and into the Thanksgiving holiday week is a little unsettled and stormy. There appears to be a chance of rain almost every day from now into Wednesday. The biggest challenge into next week will be the timing of any showers and precipitation across southern Idaho. More clouds are expected today with a slight chance of a scattered shower across the region. Most of you will remain dry but I'd keep the umbrella handy just in case. Temperatures will once again be typical for mid-November with highs in the upper 40s to low 50s. Saturday looks mostly cloudy too, but drier. It should see highs into the low 50s once again, but another disturbance coming off the Pacific coast will bring a chance of showers late Saturday into Sunday. Sunday is looking like our best chance for some rain over the next several days. Snow levels will be above 6,000 feet to 6,500 feet so most of us in southern Idaho will see rain.

Going into Thanksgiving week, the weather will remain mostly cloudy with chances of rain each day into Thanksgiving. Temperatures will remain consistent with highs in the low 50s and lows in the low to mid-30s. Although gloomy at times, there do not appear to be any major weather events to keep you from traveling this holiday week.

Investigators Examining Fatal Rollover

HOLLISTER • Investigators say they're still piecing together what led to the death of a Twin Falls man.

Justin Sanderson, 39, died Sunday in a single-vehicle rollover crash on U.S. Highway 93 north of Hollister.

According to Idaho State Police, Sanderson was ejected from his 1999 Chevrolet Monte Carlo. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

ISP Lt. Kevin Haight said troopers believe Sanderson was not wearing a seatbelt since he was ejected from the vehicle. "We had an autopsy done to ascertain if it was a medical condition that caused death and the crash was a subsequent event," Haight said.

Haight said the autopsy showed it was the crash that killed Sanderson and not a medical problem.

It could take several months for toxicology reports and other crash information to come out, Haight said. And it's still unclear why the vehicle rolled, he said. —TIMES-NEWS

Voter Turnout Strong, but Didn't Beat 2008

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Though south-central Idaho voters cast tens of thousands of ballots for the general election last week, voter turnout was down in some counties from the last presidential election in 2008.

Cindi Sievers, elections clerk for Lincoln County, said 73.11 percent of registered voters voted last week, compared to 76.85 percent in 2008.

The numbers surprised her, Sievers said, though she didn't know why turnout was down.

Twin Falls County saw 72.4 percent voter turnout, said County Clerk Kristina Glascock. That's down from 77.56 percent in 2008.

Glascock said she wasn't sure what was behind the decline.

"It wasn't an incumbent in '08," she speculated. A competitive sheriff's race four years ago may have also lured out more voters.

"We could guess all day long," she said.

Glascock did note her county had 6,386 same-day voter registrations for this election, and absentee ballots were the same.

Gooding and Blaine counties also had a lower percentage of voters this year.

Elsewhere in south-central Idaho, voter turnout was stronger than in 2008. Cassia County had an 88 percent turnout, and Minidoka County had a 90 percent turnout, according to reports available on the counties' websites. That's up from Cassia's 76.83 percent and Minidoka's 75.65 percent in 2008. Jerome County also had more voters this year than four years ago.

Survey Reveals Split Opinions on Dual Immersion's Future

TIMES-NEWS

HAILEY • A majority of respondents to a survey on the future of a Blaine County dual immersion education program supported both options proposed.

But a closer look at the survey results reveals significant differences between where parents and some staff feel the program should head.

Through the dual immersion program, some Blaine County School District students are taught in both English and Spanish.

The district's school board is weighing two proposals for the program: creating a magnet school at Woodside Elementary School in Hailey for dual immersion, or spreading one dual immersion class per grade level across four elementary schools. Each proposal would include one dual immersion class per grade level at Ernest Hemingway Elementary School in Ketchum.

On Tuesday night, the board heard results of the survey of staff members, parents and community members conducted in October. Survey respondents could choose to support both options.

About 53 percent of respondents said they'd either "strongly support" or "support" creating a magnet school at Woodside.

About 61 percent of respondents said they'd either "strongly support" or "support" one dual immersion class per grade level at each of the four elementary schools.

Parents more greatly favored spreading the classes throughout the elementary schools, with 50 percent supporting the magnet school and 64 percent favoring classes at each elementary. In comments, some shared concerns about displacing other students from Woodside if the magnet school goes forward.

District staff, meanwhile, were evenly split — except for those currently involved with the dual immersion program. The latter significantly favored the magnet school with 87 percent support, compared to 25 percent for the other option.

The school board will make a decision on the program sometime after Jan. 1.

A total of 266 staff members, 485 parents and 12 community members completed the survey. That covered about half of the district's staff and 22 percent of its parents, according to the results breakdown.

Staff, parents and patrons are invited to fill out the board of trustees comment form if they'd like to comment on the survey.

Fight to Save Indigenous Languages Topic of Summit

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) • The founder of a nonprofit organization dedicated to promoting the Lakota language says the alcoholism, high suicide rates and rampant drug use plaguing young people on South Dakota's Pine Ridge Indian Reservation stem from a lack of identity and a loss of culture.

Those troubling issues are what inspired Mike Carlow to create Tusweca Tiospaye, which hosts an annual summit focused on revitalizing tribal languages. This year's event is to run from Thursday to Saturday in Rapid City.

"I associate a lot of the social problems today, especially with our youth — the gangs, alcohol and drug abuse, drop-out rates, suicide rates — I associate those things with a lack of identity, a loss of culture, loss of language, loss of traditions," Carlow said. "And so I created this organization to kind of combat all of those things — to bring our language and culture back to our youth and hopefully create better lives for them as well."

Soon after forming the group, he started traveling to different reservations around the country learning about and promoting language revitalization as a way to help young people. When he realized there were several small groups working to fight the loss of the language, he decided to bring them together as one organization.

Carlow and his group's annual Lakota, Dakota, Nakota Language Summit brings together hundreds of tribal members and tribal educators from all over the U.S. to share best practices and techniques for improving language fluency. The summit is expected to draw as many as 800 people this year.

An undated image provided by Yellowstone National Park shows a wolf walking through the snow in Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming.

COLLARED WOLVES FROM YELLOWSTONE KILLED

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) • Seven gray wolves originally from Yellowstone National Park and wearing collars for research purposes have been shot by hunters in Montana, Idaho and Wyoming in recent weeks, a park scientist said Thursday.

There has been no indication any of the wolves were taken illegally, said state officials and Dave Hallac, chief of Yellowstone's Center for Resources. Two of the animals were from packs that no longer spend most of their time in the park, but the remainder lived and denned primarily in Yellowstone, Hallac said. Four of the seven were shot in Montana, two in Wyoming and one in Idaho.

Wildlife advocates said Thursday the killings underscore the need for a buffer zone around Yellowstone, with strict limits on wolf hunting and trapping. They warned the number of dead park wolves could quickly climb once Montana's trapping season begins next month.

Gray wolves were removed from the endangered species list last year by Congress under pressure from hunting and livestock groups.

Hallac said the number of park wolves killed so far does not threaten Yellowstone's population of 85-100 wolves.

A more immediate worry, he said, is retrieving the research collars used to track the animals' movements. Several of the hunters who shot collared wolves already have offered to return the devices, Hallac said.

"Which is great for us because we have a lot of data on those collars," he said. "We've been able to get some of the collars back and we hope to get all the collars back."

Four collared wolves were killed during prior hunts: two in 2009, when the animals were off the endangered list only temporarily, and two last year, Hallac said.

Montana this year joined Idaho in lifting its quotas on wolves across most of the state, meaning there is no longer any limit on how many can be harvested except in certain areas.

One of those areas abuts the park's northern boundary; the other is around Glacier National Park.

Feds Call for Changes in Vegas Police Tactics

LAS VEGAS (AP) • Las Vegas police officers need better training to resolve crisis situations without firearms if the department is to cut down on officer-involved slayings, according to findings made public Thursday.

The department failed to meet current best practices and requires an "organizational transformation," said Bernard Melekian, the director of the federal Community Oriented Policing Services program.

Melekian credited the department with already implementing about half the 75 recommendations aimed at cutting down on the number of people shot and killed.

The seven-month review looked into 87 cases of police use of deadly force from 2007 to this year. Of those, 10 involved unarmed people, including seven who were African-American.

The 154-page report included a key finding that officer-initiated stops were more likely to result in a shooting of an unarmed person than any other type of contact.

The department needs better training for situations involving multiple officers because "tactical errors and fatalities are more prevalent when multiple officers are on the scene," the report said.

The report also recommended that every officer and sergeant undergo de-escalation training in the use of non-lethal verbal commands, pepper spray, "beanbag" shotgun rounds and Tasers, which could be used before officers resort to handguns, shotguns or military-style assault rifles.

Supreme Court Overturns Ruling on Shooting Range

BOISE (AP) • The Idaho Supreme Court on Thursday overturned a lower court ruling that declared the 2008 Outdoor Sport Shooting Act unconstitutional as part of a lawsuit dealing with the expansion of a north Idaho public shooting range.

The unanimous decision kicked back to the 1st District Court a case pitting the Idaho Department of Fish and Game and a citizens group that protested the agency's plans for the Farragut Shooting Range near Bayview.

The World War II-era range was shut down in 2007 after District Judge John Mitchell agreed with Citizens Against Range Expansion, which complained that bullets were striking homes. He also ordered the agency to improve safety for an annual range capacity of 500 shooters or less, make separate improvements, and take steps to reduce noise for more than 500 users.

But Mitchell later ruled to keep the range closed even after the agency made improvements. In March, he declared the state's 2008 law and its built-in limits on noise levels unconstitutional.

Declo

his eyelids. He also had green, red and purple scribble marks over the red, and his face was scratched by a marker that had a rough edge.

"He was humiliated. He hung his head and wanted to go wash his face," said Hurst. "He knows he's a slow reader. Now he thinks he should be punished for it."

Hurst said her son is a quiet, tender-hearted boy who is always "extremely worried about pleasing his teacher."

"I want to see positive changes made at the school and I'm not after anyone's job," she said.

Teacher Summer Larsen, who has taught at the school for six years, did not respond to a request by the Times-News for an interview.

But District Superintendent Gaylen Smyer confirmed what took place in her classroom — though he declined to name Larsen.

The 21 students in the class have Accelerated Reading goals where they read a set number of books in a given time frame, Smyer said.

Larsen allowed the students to choose their own incentive to meet the reading goal. The class chose to have students who did not meet the goal either stay inside at recess until the goal was met, or have their faces written on by their classmates who met their goals.

Nine of the students in the class did not meet their goals. Of those, six chose to have their faces marked on and three chose to forgo recess.

"Although all the students in the class agreed to the incentive, once it occurred it was not so well received. Nor should it have been," Smyer said.

Administrators believe the students' incentives may have been inspired by a recent PTO activity at which Declo Elementary Principal Rebecca Hunsaker allowed staff to paint her face and students to paint her hair, Smyer said.

Hunsaker did not respond to phone calls from the Times-News Thursday.

"What occurred with a principal is not the same when it occurs with a child," Smyer said. "This is a serious concern."

Parents' Opinions Split

Not every parent agrees with Smyer. Karla Christensen's daughter, who made her reading goal, is in Larsen's fourth-grade class.

Christensen sometimes helps out in Larsen's classroom and she said Larsen puts in extra effort — playing classical music and wearing a microphone so she doesn't have to raise her voice to the children.

"I don't feel like this was bullying. Bullying has a malicious intent. This was someone trying to get them motivated," Christensen said. "I think it upset the parents more than the students."

Christensen said if her daughter had come home with similar marks, she would have felt it was a reflection on her own parenting for not making sure her daughter reached her goal.

"I think (Larsen) is just a very creative teacher who was trying to do something to motivate the students and it went astray," Christensen said.

LeRoy Robinson, a grandfather of two of the marked-up students, said Larsen made a "poor choice and basically, it was bullying."

"I think children should feel safe at school and know the adults there will protect them," he said.

LeRoy Robinson said the children had their faces marked on in the morning. They had to leave it on all day, but were told to wash it off before they went home.

"It was a humiliation because they had to wear it all day and other kids were asking them about it and laughing at them," he said.

And, the marker was hard to wash off, LeRoy's wife Karla said. Both their grandchildren involved in the incident suffer from self-esteem issues and one child has learning problems, she said.

"Most of these kids were totally embarrassed and wanted to hide it from their parents, but the marker didn't wash off," Karla Robinson said.

Children who rode a bus home with junior high and high school students then suffered further humiliation, she said.

As a reward a child should never be allowed to belittle, make fun of or hurt someone else, she said.

Smyer said he could not confirm if the teacher faced disciplinary action, but parents reported she was absent from the classroom Nov. 7-9 and back in the classroom on Nov. 12.

Smyer said the district received some complaints from parents, while others were supportive.

Although teachers are allowed some latitude in class, he said, this incident comes down to an issue of safety in the classroom and school environment.

"There are things there that we questioned," Smyer said.

Hurst said she has since removed her child from the situation.

"I am really saddened that the teacher didn't use better judgment as well as the principal when she learned about it," Hurst said. "They marked the children as being less."

NASA

Today, he'll visit two more schools — Vera C. O'Leary Middle School and Oregon Trail Elementary School.

Bowen told the Times-News he'd never met an astronaut before he became one.

He said the presentations will "hopefully give someone that extra push" and excite them.

Bowen is in Twin Falls this week thanks to science teacher Jo Dodds.

The Twin Falls High teacher asked nearly a year ago to have a NASA astronaut come to Twin Falls.

Bowen began his presentation with a video showing life in space during one mission, from takeoff to landing.

Students laughed as they watched the astronauts floating around, doing somersaults and eating food out of a can.

Even though the video was an entertaining look at life in zero gravity, Bowen told students that astronauts "don't spend a third of time in space goofing around."

One student asked Bowen about the best and worst parts about being away from civilization.

The best part? "The perspective," Bowen said.

And "floating is actually the part that never gets old," he said.

The worst part? Missing his family.

When it comes to daily life in space, Bowen said astronauts don't change clothes every day and rely on sponge baths.

"It's a different sort of living," he said, comparing it to camping.

Twin Falls High Principal Ben Allen told the Times-News there's a push for more science, technology, engineering and math education. Bowen's presentation meshed well with that.

"I think it was a good opportunity (for students)," he said.

The Astronaut's Path

After graduating from high school, Bowen earned a bachelor's degree from the United States Naval Academy and then a degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Then, he served as a U.S. Navy submariner.

When he applied to become an astronaut, the chances of being selected were slim.

Bowen said only about 0.7 percent of applicants were selected. He told student it's even more competitive now.

He said when he entered training in 2000, his class was told they may never go to space.

"The flight opportunities are limited for astronauts," he said.

But he eventually made it. Bowen's first mission — STS-126 Endeavour — was in 2008.

He told students that it included bringing 10,000 pounds of equipment to expand the International Space Station to accommodate six people, up from three.

The second mission in 2010 — STS-132 Atlantis — was the first time in more than a decade that all crew members had been in space before.

For his third mission — STS-133 Discovery — he was scheduled to leave in 2010. But problems were discovered with the external tank and the mission was delayed.

Finally, the launch happened in 2011. It was the final mission for space shuttle Discovery.

The Future

When astronauts aren't flying or training, they're working other jobs, Bowen told students.

He heads NASA's Astronaut Office Extravehicular Activity branch.

Bowen told the Times-News that he anticipates re-entering the astronaut training pool and relearning Russian language skills.

As for NASA, Bowen talked with students about the Commercial Crew Program. It involves partnerships with companies working to develop the United States' next space transportation systems.

Bowen said the program will hopefully provide the U.S. with access to space again. NASA ended its 30-year space shuttle program in 2011, but Bowen is optimistic about the future of space exploration.

"The opportunities will be fabulous," he said.

Josh Jensen, youth pastor at Amazing Grace Christian Fellowship, described Lock as a young woman committed in her faith and values.

Jensen knew her for four years through the church's youth group.

He recalled Lock coming up to him after sermons and talking about what she didn't agree with, as well as which scripture passages needed more context.

He said for many in attendance, her death feels surreal and it probably hasn't sunk in yet.

Remember Lock with a "breath of hope," he said, because everyone knows where she is now and they'll see her again someday.

For her senior project, Lock was scheduled to leave in December for a two-week mission trip in Belize,

"My roles in Belize would include working in an orphanage, volunteering in a juvenile detention center, doing street ministry in Belize City, teaching in a village school, and reaching the country for Christ," she wrote in a September letter to friends and family.

Originally, Lock wanted to do something simple for her senior project, but "realized that simply doing the bare minimum would not glorify God," she wrote.

She described herself in a senior quote as: "I'm just an ordinary girl serving an extraordinary God."

Lock's friends put together a video with pictures from their high school years, including times in marching band, concert band, choir and Health Occupations Students of America Club.

A list of memories in the video ranged from her favorite color "sparkle" to performing in marching band while on crutches.

Dozens of friends shared memories of Lock and how she affected their lives. Her strong faith, joyful personality and compassion for others were common themes.

Jenny Brower, who was one of Lock's elementary school teachers, described her as a "delightful young lady who loved to learn" and was excited to try new things.

Lock had the desire to do something meaningful in her life, she said. She was taking steps toward becoming a nurse.

Brower said Lock found joy in whatever she was doing.

A funeral service is scheduled for 3 p.m. today at Amazing Grace Fellowship in Twin Falls. Internment will follow at the Jerome Cemetery.

Involving Citizens Early Is a Good First Step

At Monday's council meeting, Twin Falls Mayor Greg Lanting announced his interest in starting a citizens advisory committee to address wastewater and water infrastructure needs for the city.

Twin Falls is at 90 percent of its capacity for wastewater, according to city manager Travis Rothweiler and city engineer Jackie Fields. In October, Twin Falls approved an agreement with CH2M Hill to update the wastewater facility plan at a cost of $187,093.

For its advisory committee, Twin Falls isn't looking for experts — the city has plenty of those on staff. They are looking for ordinary residents to offer their thoughts and insights on what will no doubt be a costly project.

City manager Travis Rothweiler said a lot of factors are still up in the air and he's not ready to release an estimated amount on the cost of a wastewater project.

To give you an idea of the kind of money we're talking about, look across the bridge.

Jerome is facing the same issues — limited potential for growth and the inability to attract new businesses without expanded wastewater capacity. When Jerome put pen to paper, it was going to ask voters for a $35 million bond for wastewater improvements.

Instead of taking that amount straight to the voters through a bond request, Jerome announced earlier this month that it was forming a citizen advisory committee to look at its options. The committee already started meeting, and voters may see a bond on the May ballot, Mayor John Shine said

To Get Involved

Send a letter of interest to City of Twin Falls, P.O. Box 1907, Twin Falls, ID 83303, email lsanchez@tffd.org or deliver letters to Twin Falls City Hall, 321 2nd Ave. East. Address the letters to: Citizen Advisory Committee on Infrastructure.

earlier this month.

The Jerome committee is part citizen participation, but also part campaign to get voters on board with the idea.

Most likely Twin Falls' Citizens Advisory Committee will be some of the same — formed to involve residents while also building buy-in for the day a multimillion dollar bond reaches voters.

Jerome's citizen committee is open to anyone who wants to participate. The Twin Falls approach is a little different.

Twin Falls residents have been asked to send a letter of interest to the city and members will be appointed.

We applaud both cities for taking this collaborative approach.

But there's always a danger, no matter the good intentions, that this approach can become little more than political theater as officials push citizen participants to rubber stamp something they have already decided upon.

Wastewater isn't an exciting issue, but it's an important one.

We encourage the citizens of Twin Falls to take the city up on its offer to get involved in the process by sending in a letter of interest. And we encourage the residents of Jerome to do the same by attending the next meeting, which will take place Nov. 29 from 5-7 p.m.

Booster Club's Meal Appreciated

Last Friday (Nov. 9), I accompanied the Shelley High School football team to Gooding for a semi-final football game.

After the game, the Gooding Booster Club arranged for a meal in the cafeteria for the Shelley team and coaches. We all thought that was a really neat thing for them to do.

On behalf of the Shelley players, coaches and myself, I want to thank you for your sportsmanship and generosity.

Luna Hasn't Learned Lesson

The "Luna laws" were massively rejected in all 44 Idaho counties, yet Team Luna and its allies so far give every sign of remaining as tone deaf and contemptuous of the people as they were during the legislative hearings.

Luna and his corporate and legislative backers as yet reveal themselves to be un-democratic: They seem neither to grasp nor to accept the voters' verdict. Do we really want Luna and his like to remain in charge of Idaho public education? They lost their attempt to hijack the system and have destroyed any legitimate claim to pursue the defeated policies.

The 2012 vote was a resounding repudiation by Idaho voters of Luna's stewardship as well as that of his corporate and Statehouse backers. Luna now cannot credibly push ahead with the rejected policies based on any claim that he was elected in 2010 to do these things.

The election results clearly and powerfully overwhelm such a ploy. But I fear Team Luna's arrogance and self-serving ambitions likely mean that Idaho public schools will now be targeted aggressively with punitive regulations and administration rules pointed at forcing "Luna law" content through the back door, largely out of immediate sight from the public.

It's time for Luna to acknowledge that Idaho doesn't want what he's selling and to use the remainder of his term in open, constructive, good faith dialogue with our teachers, local school boards and other legitimate Idaho stakeholders to achieve true consensus on common-sense policies that help build Idaho public education.

Hospice Workers Deserve Recognition

As many of us approach this holiday season, we are filled with the excitement of family and friends gathered and looking forward to creating memories that will last a lifetime. For those of us in the hospice field, nothing is more important than celebrating life and recognizing our unique roles in the lives of our patients.

November is national Hospice and Palliative Care Month and yet so many don't know or understand what hospice is all about. The South Central Quality of Life Coalition will be in the community trying to raise awareness of the precious service that hospice companies provide and the importance of advanced directives.

The South Central Quality of Life Coalition is made up of different hospice agencies in the area. This unique group of people have come together to put patients first.

Egos are pushed aside, the competitive edge is dropped and amazing people come together to educate and promote a service that is so important and so underutilized. All of these people understand that hospice is about celebrating, respecting and enjoying life and providing dignity and love at a time when it is needed the most. Services are provided for patients and loved ones as a whole ensuring the patient feels at peace knowing they are being listened to and respected.

Every hospice agency provides this type of care, and the Quality of Life Coalition is determined to make sure the public is aware of this.

The Quality of Life Coalition would like to recognize all the hospice workers that tirelessly and unselfishly give more of themselves than they have to give every day to make sure the most precious time of someone's life is recognized and honored. If you have questions concerning the Quality of Life Coalition or hospice, contact a local hospice agency.

Praising Praise for Veterans

I want to personally thank Mel Genaro for his praise of Vietnam veterans in the Nov. 11 edition of the Times-News.

As a former Marine, I spent 30 months in Vietnam, was wounded three times and spent many months in military and Veterans Administration hospitals. It is true that we did not get parades or respect, nor were we considered heroes. I also found that to be true with his generation, the Korean veterans.

Heroes is a term used quite frequently in the last decade. Most heroes are on war memorials. While it is true that hateful things were said and objects were thrown at us in airports, the story does not stop there.

Upon returning home, I was escorted out of more than one local veteran's establishment as it was concluded by the members that I did not fight in a war. I found this to be true across the United States, based on letters from Marine friends.

Society forced us to lie about our service as most thought of us as crazy, insane killers. We lied to get jobs; only family and close friends knew of our service. Many times at parties, we bit our tongues as misinformation was spread about the Vietnam Conflict. We were not exempt from friends. Many asked, "Did you kill anyone?" Our friends were trying to live vicariously through our experiences.

Mel, we were not unsung heroes of the 20th century. We appreciate you thinking so. We were just the next-door neighbor and school friend trying to survive in a climate and time in history that most people will never experience. That is a good thing. Most of us have tried to get through life unnoticed because that is what society wanted at the time.

Thanking us for our service is nice. Sometimes it feels like it was 40 years to late.

GOP-led States Warm Up to Health Care

WASHINGTON (AP) • From the South to the heartland, cracks are appearing in the once-solid wall of Republican resistance to President Barack Obama's health care law.

The law that Republicans have derided as "Obamacare" was devised in Washington, but it's in the states that Americans will find out if it works, delivering promised coverage to more than 30 million uninsured people.

States have a major role to play in two of the overhaul's main components: new online insurance markets for individuals and small businesses to shop for subsidized private coverage, and an expanded Medicaid program for low-income people.

Friday is the day states must declare if they'll build the new insurance markets, called exchanges, or let Washington do it for them. States can opt for a partnership with the feds to run their exchanges, and they have until February to decide on that option.

Some glimpses of grudging acceptance across a shifting scene:

- One of the more visible opponents of Obama's overhaul, Florida Republican Gov. Rick Scott, now says "if I can get to 'yes,' I want to get to 'yes.'"

Florida was a leader in the failed effort to overturn the law in the Supreme Court, and a group formed by Scott ran TV ads opposing it before it passed Congress. But the governor told the AP this week he wants to negotiate with the federal government to try to help the nearly 4 million uninsured people in his state.

Florida Gov. Rick Scott speaks May 16 in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. One of the more visible opponents of Obama's overhaul, he now says, 'If I can get to yes, I want to get to yes.'

- In Iowa, GOP Gov. Terry Branstad says he is postponing a decision because Washington has not provided enough information about key details. But his spokesman, Tim Albrecht, said Iowa is exploring a partnership exchange that could include several states. Albrecht said they're confident they can get to a state option if needed.

Ohio is leaning toward a partnership with the federal government despite GOP officials' continued misgivings about the law.

- In Mississippi, Republican insurance commissioner Mike Chaney notified Washington on Wednesday that his agency will proceed with a state-run exchange, disappointing GOP Gov. Phil Bryant, who remains opposed to Obama's law.

Chaney says he wishes the law could be repealed, but he worries that "if you default to the federal government, you forever give the keys to the state's health insurance market to the federal government."

As for trying to fight the feds, Chaney observed: "We tried that 150 years ago in the South, and it doesn't work."

- In New Mexico, the administration of Republican

Gov. Susana Martinez had been quietly working to put the law into place as the political storm swirled. With a fifth of its population uninsured, the state is planning to run its own exchange.

"The party is over. The opposition is over," New Mexico Human Services Secretary Sidonie Squier told the AP. "Whatever states didn't think they were going to do it, I think they're going to have to do it whether they like it or not. It's a done deal now."

Auditor: Problems at State Parole Commission

BOISE (AP) • An inability to manage data by administrators at the Commission of Pardons and Parole is creating inefficiency and delays in paroling Idaho inmates that have cost more than $7.2 million since 2009, according to a report by legislative auditors.

The report presented Wednesday by the Office of Performance Evaluation shows the commission and its staff continue to have problems managing inmate-tracking data and avoiding inefficiencies that have plagued the agency for more than a decade.

The study is a follow-up to a 2010 report by OPE auditors that criticized the commission's process for paroling inmates. That report determined delays in paroling eligible offenders — and the state paying daily rates to keep inmates longer — had cost the state nearly $7 million between January 2007 and September 2009.

The bipartisan Joint Legislative Oversight Committee members requested the follow-up report last year.

This time, OPE auditors found only slight improvements.

Auditors say 57 percent of the offenders examined in the study were released after their tentative parole date, an improvement from the 69 percent released late in the 2010 survey, the report shows.

Ada County Wants $2 Million from Dynamis

BOISE (AP) • Ada County commissioners are seeking the return of $2 million from a company it hired to design a waste-to-energy plant that's now the subject of a lawsuit, an investigation by a former FBI agent and opposition from some of the region's residents.

The Idaho Statesman reports the three commissioners voted unanimously Wednesday to trigger a contract clause requiring Dynamis Energy LLC to return the money given the company in 2010 to design a 22-megawatt garbage gasifier. The money comes from tipping fees at the local dump.

Dynamis plans to build, own and operate the plant, which county officials hope will turn garbage to energy and eliminate the need for costly expansion of the Ada County landfill. Once the plant's design was complete, it was supposed to buy back its design plans from the county for $2 million.

Last week, however, a citizens group sued the county, claiming the $2 million amounts to a loan and the county is forbidden to loan money to businesses. What's more, a retired FBI agent, Verna Kessler, is investigating a complaint over alleged irregularities in a contract between local government officials and Dynamis.

No Dynamis representatives were present at the commission meeting where the three county leaders — commissioners David Case, Sharon Ullman and Rick Yzaguirre — voted to ask for the county's money to be returned.

Lloyd Mahaffey, Dynamis' owner, didn't return a phone call Thursday from The Associated Press.

Yzaguirre and Ullman have been proponents of the project, while Case has raised objections.

Meanwhile, the company is still trying to win an emissions permit from Idaho environmental regulators.

The Idaho Department of Environmental Quality officials say they don't know when the agency will issue a draft permit for public review because the agency still needs additional technical information.

Bison Hunt Opens in Mont.

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) • Montana's eighth bison season is opening with a judge's decision pending on the animals' movements outside Yellowstone National Park.

The hunt opened Thursday as hunters wait to see whether winter weather will force portions of the 4,200-strong herd to leave the park for food.

BLM's Inventory IDs Sage Grouse Habitat

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) • A federal land inventory along the Hi-Line has identified 386,000 acres with wilderness characteristics and 1.6 million acres of sage grouse habitat that will be up for debate when a draft management plan is released in January.

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management analysis of 2.4 million acres in Hill, Blaine, Phillips, Valley and part of Liberty County is the first such inventory of the area since the early 1980s. Some of land identified is part of that earlier inventory, while other areas are new, said BLM planning and environmental coordinator Brian Hockett.

The Great Falls Tribune reports the BLM is not recommending any wilderness study areas or protected wilderness designations.

The agency is nearing completion of a new management plan for the 2.4-million-acre Hi-Line district. The plan, which will include management options for the inventoried land, is expected to be out for a 90-day public comment period in January.

"It will look at the trade-offs and the opportunities of managing for these characteristics as opposed to managing for other multiple uses out there," Hockett said. The agency could choose to protect the wilderness characteristics above all other uses, oil and gas development for example, he said. Or, if an area is already leased for development, oil and gas might be promoted at the expense of wilderness, he said.

The BLM has released a general map of the 26 areas identified and plans to post more specific maps this week on its website, said Kristen Lenhardt, a spokeswoman in Billings. Much of the inventoried wilderness lands are rolling prairie, shrub steppe, breaks and badlands.

The management plan also will address sage grouse, as BLM officials look to preserve the birds' habitat now to prevent them from being protected under the Endangered Species Act.

Various levels of protections will be proposed for the areas of emphasis ranging from "some pretty strong protections to limited protections," Hockett said.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is considering listing the bird as endangered or threatened. About 52 percent of sage grouse habitat falls on BLM managed land nationally.

DIABETES RATE SKYROCKETS

NEW YORK (AP) • The nation's diabetes problem is getting worse, and the biggest jump over 15 years was in Oklahoma, according to a new federal report issued Thursday.

The diabetes rate in Oklahoma more than tripled, and Kentucky, Georgia and Alabama also saw dramatic increases since 1995, the study showed.

Idaho's rate doubled.

The South's growing weight problem is the main explanation, said Linda Geiss, lead author of the report by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention study.

"The rise in diabetes has really gone hand in hand with the rise in obesity," she said.

Bolstering the numbers is the fact that more people with diabetes are living longer because better treatments are available.

The disease exploded in the United States in the last 50 years, with the vast majority from obesity-related Type 2 diabetes. In 1958, fewer than 1 in 100 Americans had been diagnosed with diabetes.

In 2010, it was about 1 in 14. Most of the increase has happened since 1990.

Diabetes is a disease in which the body has trouble processing sugar.

The Declo and Lighthouse Christian football teams will attempt to win state championships on Friday. It would be the second consecutive championship for the Lions, but the first for the Hornets under head coach Kelly Kidd.

HORNETS CHASE TITLE

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

DECLO • Since Kelly Kidd took over the Declo High football program 17 years ago, the Hornets have won 139 games and lost 39.

They won 11 conference championships and made 14 state playoff appearances.

Despite all the success, Kidd and the Hornets are still chasing that elusive state title.

"Declo is really proud of its football, and the players are passionate," senior running back and linebacker Jason Gillette said. "I'm not sure why we didn't win one before, but it's going to happen."

Today, No. 1 Firth (11-0) and No. 2 Declo (11-0) will battle for the Class 2A state championship. Kickoff is at 3 p.m. at Holt Arena in Pocatello.

It's a rematch of last year's quarterfinal, in which visiting Firth invaded Declo for an 18-15 win. Declo led 15-12 heading into the fourth quarter, but Mitch Orme caught a touchdown pass with 1:30 remaining and then intercepted Declo quarterback Kai Garner in the end zone to secure the victory. Firth went on to play in the state title game, losing to Grangeville. "We don't want to end our season the way it happened last year," Garner said. "We weren't happy with the way we played."

Orme could cause havoc for the Hornets again today. The do-everything senior will be the best athlete on the field. This season he rushed for 1,319 yards and 15 touchdowns, and caught 37 passes for 974 yards and 15 more TDs. He has another handful of touchdowns via passing, kick returns and interceptions to go along with his 11 picks.

"It doesn't matter where he is, or who is playing quarterback. The story of the game will be, can we tackle Mitch Orme in space. If we can, we win. If we can't, we lose," Kidd said.

Fate threw Firth a curveball last week when senior quarterback Jake Orme — Mitch's cousin — broke his collarbone on the final play of the first half in the Cougars' semifinal game against West Side. But in the second half, Mitch Orme took over at QB and led Firth to a come-from-behind 22-14 win.

LIONS LOOK TO REPEAT

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • With dinner calling, the sun falling and fog steaming from the mouths of Lighthouse Christian senior football players Phillip DeMello and Eli Berndt after their last high school practice, there wasn't much time to chat and reminiscence about their careers.

On the night before their state championship game against Salmon River, the Lions are trying their best to stay in their normal routine, one that's helped them steamroll opponents since starting play in Class 1A Division II football. The Lions last made the playoffs in 2011 — the first appearance in school history. Since their surprising run (to outsiders) last season, Lighthouse Christian has proven its top-dog status: They outscored playoff opponents 112-28 after winning by an average of 30 points in the regular season.

"Arrogance is not what we're about," Lions head coach John van Vliet said.

But neither is surprise — at least no longer — and with the mission proven possible, this championship game carries different meaning. "We're doing the best we can to prepare like it's a normal week, but we know it's a big deal," van Vliet said. "They need to have confidence in what brought them here."

For the nine Lions seniors, who played on the 3-6 team three years ago, Friday's championship is a chance to cement their legacies and, perhaps, fully transition the school into a dynasty era.

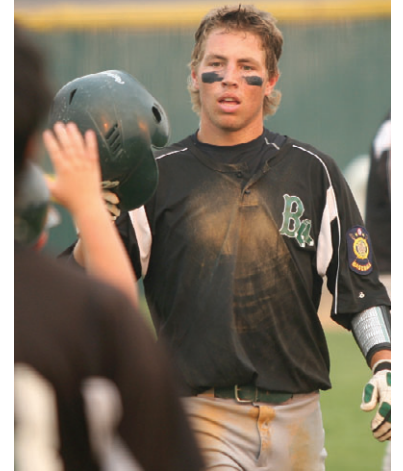

"This means a lot," Berndt said. "We have a group of guys that have had each others backs and we're a family."

Salmon River was the team the Lions faced in the first round of last year's playoffs that started the run. Lighthouse Christian knows what it's up against.

"They have a lot of the same kids," van Vliet said. "They are still pretty young from last year. We know they want to throw the ball, and they do it better than last year. They have a quarterback who is not afraid to run."

Salmon River, whose loss to the Lions last year was one of the worst in school history, will try to pay back with its own set of surprises.

Burley senior shortstop Jackson Kunz signed a National Letter of Intent Thursday to play baseball at Utah Valley University.

Burley's Kunz Signs with Utah Valley University

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Burley High senior Jackson Kunz signed a National Letter of Intent on Thursday to play baseball at Utah Valley University, an NCAA Division I program located in Orem, Utah.

"Playing as a little kid, this is just something you dream of. Right now it feels like I'm dreaming," Kunz said. "Baseball has been my life."

Kunz, who carries a 3.8 GPA, was a first-team, all-Great Basin Conference selection at shortstop as a sophomore and junior. He was an integral part of Burley's run to the American Legion Baseball Class A Northwest Regional tournament championship game, and 42-8 record, last summer.

"First of all, he's a great kid and comes from a great family," UVU head coach Eric Madsen said. "Baseball-wise, he's extremely athletic and versatile. He's going to have an opportunity with his versatility and the way he swings the bat as a left-handed hitter to come in and help us out right away."

Kunz verbally committed to UVU last July. But while playing football this fall, he suffered a knee injury that required surgery. UVU coaches didn't flinch in their scholarship offer, which solidified Kunz's decision.

"We were a little scared about them taking away that scholarship, but they stuck with it and said, 'No, we want you,'" Kunz said. "That really made me stick with them, showing how loyal they were with me."

Said Madsen: "We deal with injuries all the time, and a guy like him who is committed to get after it and work, that's what's made him successful. He's going to bounce back from that real easily."

Kunz is currently in physical therapy three times a week. He'll miss the first part of the baseball season this spring, but is scheduled to return in April.

Utah Valley finished last season 47-12 with its third straight Great

Gridlocks: Final Friday: Declo and Lighthouse Christian Primed to Win Championships

DECLLO (11-0) VS. FIRTH (11-0)

Although Mitch Orme should be the runaway 2A Idaho Player of the Year, Firth is much more than the Orme Show. Connor Montgomery, Nick Andersen and Braden Boyer are also quality weapons. Sure, Firth will miss injured starting quarterback Jake Orme (73.5 percent completions, 1,736 yards and 22 touchdowns), but the injury might end up working to the Cougars' advantage as extra inspiration.

When these teams met in the quarterfinals last year, it was a battle down to the final minute. Both teams returned most their rosters, and both are much improved. This one should be another nail-biter.

While Firth will have the best single athlete on the field, Declo appears to have the better overall team, with Kai Garner, Jason Gillette, Drexton Thrall, Josh Phillips and Jackson Duncan running behind the best line in the state.

Declo 28, Firth 27

SALMON RIVER (10-2) VS LIGHTHOUSE CHRISTIAN (9-2)

After upsetting Dietrich 35-12 last week in the semifinals, Salmon River and its high-powered passing attack led by dual-threat quarterback Leighton Vander Esch is poised to avenge last season's shocking shellacking to Lighthouse Christian in the first round of the playoffs. One of the Savages' main weapons, receiver Charlie Shepherd, hauled in ten receptions for 186 yards last week and should pose problems for the Lions secondary.

The Lions, having breezed through the first two rounds of the playoffs, simply hope to keep its offense locked in. Quarterback Logan Bosma shares a connection with receivers Phillip DeMello and Eli Berndt that borders on telepathy. The two have combined for 110 receptions and over 1700 yards on the year. With bruising running back Adam Taylor making opponents pay for trying to cover the deeper two thirds of the field, the Lions seem an impossible match-up.

Expect Salmon River to unleash a variety of trick plays, which could keep them in the game early. It may not be as severe as last year, but it's hard to think of scenarios in which the Lions don't blow out the Savages for a second consecutive year to take home their second consecutive state championship.

CSI Men to Play in Casper Challenge

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Almost a week after its last game, a 90-49 blowout of Monroe College, the No. 12 College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team (4-1) will play a two game set in the Casper Challenge in Casper, Wyo., starting with Western Nebraska Community College at 3:30 on Friday.

Through five games, the Golden Eagles are led in scoring by Jaysean Paige with 13.2 points per game, which has him shooting over 51.8 percent from the field. Big man Billy Reader is averaging 12.2 points per game with eight rebounds in just 21 minutes per contest. Point guard Montigo Alford is averaging a team-high five assists per game. CSI defeated Western Nebraska Community College 72-67 in the same tournament last season.

Women Lose Big

The College of Southern Idaho women's basketball team (1-3) lost 79-49 to Trinity Valley Community College in the Midland NIT Tournament Thursday afternoon. Jessy Saint-Felix led the Golden Eagles with 10 points and five rebounds, while Patrice Toston had eight and Sarah Viehweg had six points and six rebounds.

"Their quickness was really difficult to deal with all night," head coach Randy Rogers said. "We really did not make shots early and had a tough time executing our offense."

CSI will play either Odessa or Northern Oklahoma Friday at 1 p.m.

didn't make the most of their first opportunity, but they found a way to win despite finding themselves on the ropes against lowly Faulkner State.

The second-place team out of Alabama breezed in the first set, while CSI staggered through the second before finding an extra gear for the 20-25, 25-22, 25-16, 25-19 victory.

"Honestly, I'm glad for that match, because it showed us that every team is here for a reason," said middle blocker Eseta Maka. "We can get arrogant sometimes, and we need to remember that you never treat a team according their rankings. We played at an entirely different level tonight, and that's what we know we can do."

Keani Passi totaled 22 kills on her 19th birthday, carrying the attacking torch for the Golden Eagles as she had all season.

Marie Fujii had 13 digs and 19 assists for a double-double against Faulkner State.

CSI's last obstacle before the final is San Jacinto-Central, which was ranked No. 1 for most of the season and put the Golden Eagles out of the championship bracket at the quarterfinal stage last season.

"It's going to be a difficult match, but if we play the way we can, we can come out on top," Bierma said.

and more interesting team ... It's a greater challenge," Kidd said. "They're 11-0 for a reason. They played in the state championship game last year for a reason. They're really good."

If Declo can't contain Mitch Orme — the Hornets' starting defense has allowed only six touchdowns in 11 games — then it will have to match him.

Declo averages more than 500 yards of offense per game and gained 536 yards in its 36-0 semifinal win over Marsing.

"It's just controlling the line of scrimmage with us big boys and give a big hole for Jason (Gillette) and Drexton (Thrall) to run through," center Hunter Breshears said.

Gillette, who broke the school record for touchdowns in a season with 29, hopes to add a football state championship trophy to the Hornets' two state wrestling team titles he contributed to the past two years.

He said this group has played football together since fifth grade and hopes to be remembered as the team that finally delivered Declo its first-ever state football championship.

"We've grown really, really tight," said Gillette. "No one is going to break us. It's a brotherhood."

"They will pull all the stuff out," van Vliet said. "They will pitch it back to quarterback who will throw it back to another kid. You can't really prepare for that stuff, but you have to be aware. We don't want to overreact to it."

Lighthouse Christian players hadn't watched film on Salmon River, but it might only serve to further confuse. The Lions have to be ready for everything.

"It's a lot of backyard football," DeMello said.

Kunz will be the fifth Burley baseball player to make a college roster in the last three years and will join former Bobcat Kody Moon from UVU after Moon returns from an LDS Church mission.

Devin Kunz, Burley's head

"I'm more proud as a dad than I am as a coach," Devin Kunz said. "I didn't want to be the dad who is the ex-player who forced his kid to play. I always just wanted him to do what he wanted to do. He grew up playing baseball, basketball, football, skiing. He always loved baseball more than anything."

made the tiebreaking basket with 3:03 left, Deron Williams and Brook Lopez each scored 24 points, and Brooklyn won its fourth straight.

Williams had eight assists and made all nine free throws on a night Paul Pierce had two huge misses in the final minute for the Celtics, who played without injured point guard Rajon Rondo.

Johnson finished with 19 points and eight rebounds for the Nets in front of a sold-out crowd of 17,732.

Pierce scored 22 points and Leandro Barbosa had 17 in place of Rondo, who was out with a sprained right ankle. Kevin Garnett added 14 points but Boston had its three-game win streak snapped and lost to the Nets for just the third time in 21 meetings.

Vettel-Alonso Duel Rolls Onto New Track in U.S.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN, Texas • The Formula One season comes down to this: Red Bull's Sebastian Vettel leads Ferrari's Fernando Alonso by 10 points with two races left, the first on a track neither has driven before.

The first U.S. Grand Prix since 2007 will be run Sunday on the new $400 million Circuit of the Americas as built a few miles outside of Austin. With so few points separating Vettel and Alonso from winning a third world title for either driver, learning every nuance in elevation, the straightaways and the 20 turns in practice and qualifying could make the difference.

"If you do everything perfectly, you will have a chance," Alonso said Thursday. "If you make a mistake, you will lose the chance."

If the title chase isn't decided Sunday, it will head to the season finale next week in Sao Paulo, Brazil. Vettel and Alonso have spent hours practicing the race in course simulators. Alonso did two laps on a bicycle on Wednesday and Vettel planned to walk the course Thursday afternoon.

"By the looks of it, it looks quite interesting, but it's always the feel you get inside the car that's most important," Vettel said. Alonso said he first studied the course on a simulator after the Singapore Grand Prix in September.

"The track seems spectacular," Alonso said. "Very, very nice. It will be challenging for us drivers and for the engineers as well. I think it will be a good show for everybody and hopefully some good overtakings as well."

The Circuit of the Americas is the first track in the U.S. built expressly for Formula One. From 1961-1980, the U.S. Grand Prix was held in Watkins Glen, N.Y. before starting a run of street courses in cities such as Long Beach, Calif., Las Vegas, Detroit, Dallas and Phoenix. The race moved to Indianapolis Motor Speedway where it was run on a road course built inside the oval track from 2000 to 2007.

The Circuit of the Americas was designed by German firm Tilke GmbH, which has built tracks in Abu Dhabi, Bahrain and Shanghai. The designers tried to mimic several notable characteristics of other courses, such as the quick succession of turns 3-6, similar to Silverstone in England.

The course is also notable for a 133-foot elevation heading into first turn, which means the cars will be immediately descend from that height into the second turn. And because it's a new track, the surface is expected to be slippery. Racing a new track would seem to cancel out any advantage Vettel and Alonso might have had enjoyed on a course where they had won in the past.

Jimmie Johnson Turns Up Heat on Brad Keselowski

ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOMESTEAD, Fla. • Jimmie Johnson is the king of mind games — he doesn't fall victim to them — and he's got five trophies as proof.

He doesn't let the pressure rattle him, and as a veteran of seven championship finales he knows how hard it can be to tune out the noise surrounding the title-deciding race. So Johnson was more than willing to poke, prod and remind Brad Keselowski just what's at stake at Homestead-Miami Speedway this weekend.

Keselowski takes a 20-point lead over Johnson in today's Sunday finale, and needs only to finish 15th or better to win his first Sprint Cup title. It would give team owner Roger Penske his first championship at NASCAR's top level in 29 years of competition.

So Johnson opened Thursday's championship contenders' news conference by referencing this season's IndyCar championship, where Penske driver Will Power took a 17-point lead into the finale but crashed early and coughed away the title.

"It seemed like it was a lay-up race, and things can happen," Johnson said.

Then he talked about the foolishness in assuming Keselowski will roll to a 15th-place finish Sunday and clinch the title.

"This garage area is tough, the weight of the race, I don't care who you are, it'll show up at some point in time and thoughts will run through your head and with all that being said, a 15th-place finish is not a lay-up for these guys," Johnson said. "I have a little bit of stock in that. We'll see how they respond."

Keselowski sat square-jawed looking straight ahead, seemingly tuning out the attempt to get inside his head. The 28-year-old knows drivers have fallen victim to these games before, and has insisted during the entire 10-race Chase for the Sprint Cup championship he wouldn't repeat their mistakes.

A nervous Denny Hamlin sat between Johnson and Kevin Harvick two years ago, his legs shaking under the stage as his rivals lobbed barbs at him for almost an hour. Hamlin completed his collapse three days later, when Johnson rallied to win his fifth title.

Last season, Tony Stewart charmed his way through the news conference at an un-amused Carl Edwards' expense. Stewart then snatched the championship away on a tie-breaker by winning the finale.

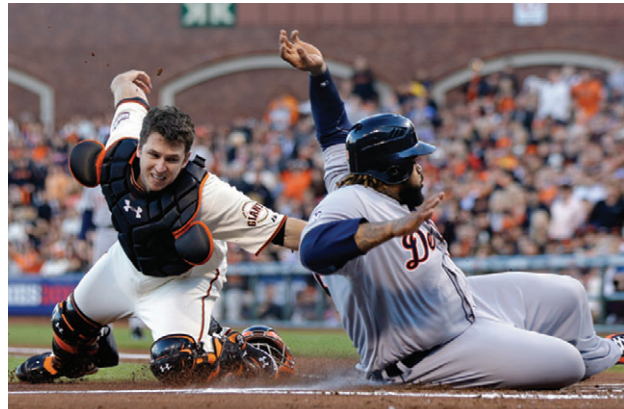

So Keselowski knew exactly what Johnson was up to on Thursday.

"Certainly, he's trying to apply pressure," Keselowski said with a smirk. "Certainly, I don't feel any?"

Keselowski has talked at length of late about the pressure he's felt in his life. He came to Homestead in the Truck Series in 2004 and failed to make the race. In 2006, his family's race team went broke trying to get him to the track. When he finally got his big break, at Chicagoland in the Nationwide Series with JR Motorsports in 2007, team owner Dale Earnhardt Jr. sent him out on a track he'd never seen before, telling him if he wrecked the car he wouldn't get a chance to drive it next week.

"Now that was pressure," Keselowski said. "Moments like that make this seem not so bad, and they also build up a level of confidence where I feel like this is quite a bit easier than those moments."

Keselowski won six races for Earnhardt before moving on to Penske Racing and a Sprint Cup Series ride, and with a month to go in the season, Earnhardt predicted Keselowski would hang with Johnson all the way until the end.

Miguel Cabrera, Buster Posey Win MVP Awards

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Detroit's Miguel Cabrera won the American League's Most Valuable Player award on Thursday after becoming baseball's first Triple Crown winner in 45 years, and San Francisco's Buster Posey was voted the National League honor.

Cabrera received 22 of 28 first-place votes and 362 points from the AL panel of Baseball Writers' Association of America to easily beat out Los Angeles Angels center fielder Mike Trout, who had six firsts and 281 points. Trout was voted AL Rookie of the Year earlier in the week.

Posey recovered from a devastating leg injury that cut short his 2011 season, became the first catcher in 70 years to win the NL batting title and helped San Francisco win its second World Series title in three seasons. He got 27 of 32 firsts and 422 points from the NL panel, outdistancing 2011 winner Ryan Braun of Milwaukee, who was second with 285 points.

Cabrera hit .330 with 44 homers and 139 RBIs to become the first Triple Crown winner since Boston's Carl Yastrzemski in 1967. The last four Triple Crown winners have been voted MVP, including Mickey Mantle in 1956 and Frank Robinson in 1966.

Cabrera also led the league with a .606 slugging percentage for the AL champion Tigers. He became the second straight Detroit player voted MVP, following Justin Verlander in 2011, and was the first Venezuelan to earn the honor.

Before the season, he switched from first base to third to make way for Prince Fielder, signing as a free agent.

The 2010 NL Rookie of the Year, Posey set career highs with a .336 average, 24 homers and 103 RBIs for the World Series champion Giants. His 2011 season was cut short by a collision with the Marlins' Scott Cousins on May 25 that resulted in a fractured bone in Posey's lower left leg and three torn ankle ligaments.

Brazil Aims to Clone Wild Animal Species

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) • Brazilian researchers are turning to cloning to help fight the perilous decline of several animal species.

The scientists at Brazil's Embrapa agriculture research agency said this week they have spent two years building a gene library with hundreds of samples from eight native species, including the collared anteater, the bush dog, the black lion tamarin, the coati, and deer and bison varieties, as well as the jaguar and the maned wolf.

While still in its early stages, with the birth of a clone likely years away, the project represents Brazilian scientists' first foray into the cloning of wild animals, said team leader Carlos Frederico Martins.

Scientists in other parts of the world have been cloning threatened species for more than a decade, though with a low rate of success, and sometimes with the criticism of conservationists who say more should instead be done to save endangered animals in the wild by protecting their natural habitats.

Martins said that any clones that eventually emerge from the Brazilian project would go to zoos, not into the wild.

"The idea is not to use cloning as a primary conservation tool," Martins said in a phone interview from a farm outside the national capital, Brasilia. He stressed that clones don't resolve one of the main problems facing species with dwindling populations, which is maintaining a sufficiently varied gene pool.

"Let's be clear that cloning can't be a substitute for protecting endangered animals' habitats," Martins said. "It's a way to aid zoos beef up their collections, particularly for animals that don't easily breed in captivity."

The Embrapa project's top candidate for initial cloning is the maned wolf, a towering canine 3-foot tall at the shoulder, with long legs and a thick red pelt. With an estimated total population of 23,600, the vast majority of them in Brazil, the maned wolf is classified as "near threatened" on the ICNU Red List of Threatened Species, which is widely considered the definitive source on threatened species.

The wolf could prove easier to clone than the other species in the library because it's a good candidate for interspecies cloning. A skin cell from the wolf would be inserted into the egg of a common dog from which the nucleus had been removed, and then implanted into the uterus of a dog, which would serve as the cloned wolf pup's surrogate mother.

Nearly all the samples in the Embrapa team's gene library were culled from the bodies of dead animals, generally road kill brought in from the Cerrado, the vast tropical Savannah that surrounds Brasilia. Sperm, eggs and skin cells are collected from the cadavers and stored in liquid nitrogen at -321 degrees Fahrenheit, Martins said.

If officials approve a pending partnership with the city's zoo, staff there will be trained to take samples from live animals from its collection, Martins said.

"The idea is to be able to expand the gene library to include more samples and also more species under pressure," said Martins.

The cloning of animals became a reality in 1996 with the birth of the Dolly the sheep. Dolly developed a virus-induced lung disease and was euthanized at age 6 — about half the life expectancy of her breed — but she gave birth to four lambs.

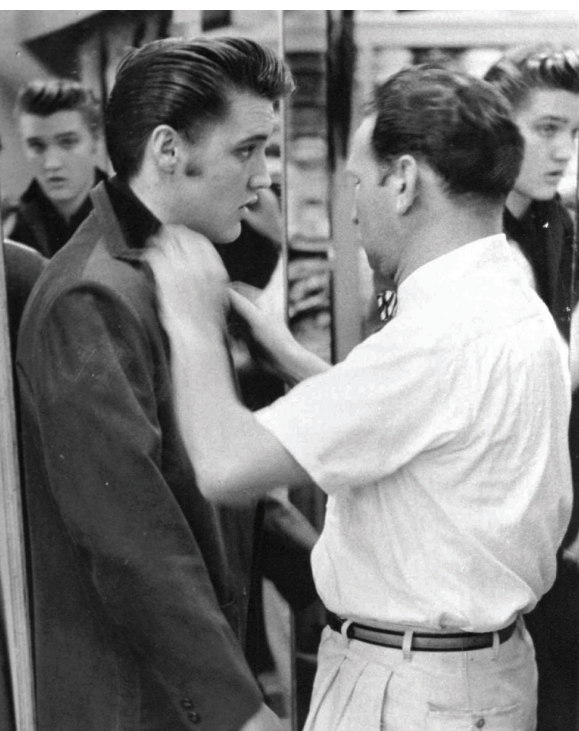

Cloning remains a difficult enterprise with a success rate of about 5 percent to 7 percent. The first reported cross-species clone, a wild ox called a gaur which was born to a cow in 2001, died of dysentery two days later. Martins said new techniques might boost the Brazilian team's success rate to about 12 percent.

Martha Gomez, a senior scientist at the Audubon Center for Research of Endangered Species in New Orleans, applauded the Brazilian effort but cautioned that any actual clones could be a long time off.

"I like the idea because I feel that it's important, but it's a really big challenge," said Gomez, who has used house cats and interspecies cloning to produce African wildcats.

"When you talk about cloning, you not only need the people, you need the infrastructure, the resources and the animals," she said. "The cloning between species can be very different. It's not going to be the same to clone a jaguar or a wolf, and cloning a tamarin is going to be even harder," Gomez said.

"I think they can do it, but it's a very long term project, that's for sure."

Clothier Who Dressed Elvis Presley Dies in Tenn.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) • Bernard Lansky, the Memphis retailer who helped a young Elvis Presley establish his signature clothing style of pegged pants, two-toned shoes and other flashy duds in the 1950s, has died. He was 85. Julie Lansky, the clothier's granddaughter, said he died Thursday at his Memphis home.

Bernard Lansky and his brother Guy started a retail business in Memphis in 1946, with help from a $125 loan from their father, Samuel.

After World War II, the store started selling Army surplus goods on Beale Street. When the supply dried up, they opened a high-fashion men's store, where Bernard Lansky established his reputation as a natural salesman and storyteller.

Lansky Bros. ended up supplying Presley with the pink and black shirts and other outfits.

"It's a statement to say that he dressed one of the most influential entertainers of all time," Julie Lansky said in a telephone interview. "He knew that for any entertainer, they had to look different."

Even though his style of dress changed over the years — including sparkling jumpsuits — Presley shopped at Lansky Bros. the rest of his life. Presley died at his Memphis residence, Graceland, in 1977.

Lansky picked out the white suit and blue tie that Presley wore when he was buried.

Eventually, Lansky became a favorite of the Elvis faithful who flocked to Memphis by the thousands for annual gatherings in Presley's honor.

"I put his first suit on him and his last suit on him," Lansky was fond of saying,

ISRAEL MOVES TROOPS TOWARD GAZA STRIP

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip (AP) • Palestinian militants barraged Israel with more than 200 rockets on Thursday, killing three people as Israel pressed a punishing campaign of airstrikes on militant targets across the Gaza Strip. Three rockets targeted the densely populated Tel Aviv area, setting off air raid sirens in brazen attacks that threatened to trigger an Israeli ground invasion of Gaza.

Late in the day, Israel signaled a ground operation may be imminent as forces moved toward the border area with Gaza. At least 12 trucks were seen transporting tanks and armored personnel carriers, and a number of buses carrying soldiers arrived. Israeli Defense Minister Ehud Barak said he had authorized the army to call up additional reservists for possible action. The army said it was prepared to draft up to 30,000 additional troops.

The fighting, the heaviest in four years, has also killed 15 Palestinians in two days and brought life to a standstill on both sides of the border. School has been canceled and many were huddling indoors.

Israel and Hamas have largely observed an informal truce for the past four years. But in recent weeks, the calm unraveled in a bout of rocket attacks on Israel from Gaza and retaliatory Israeli airstrikes.

The fighting showed no signs of slowing after dark. Israeli aircraft carried out dozens of attacks on militant targets in Gaza, while militants fired barrages of rockets throughout the day. The fighting began on Wednesday after Israel killed Hamas military chief Ahmed Jabari in an airstrike, then attacked dozens of rocket launchers. The offensive follows weeks of rocket fire out of Gaza.

Thursday's attacks on Tel Aviv, some of the deepest rocket strikes from Gaza on record, set air raid sirens blaring and sparked panic in the streets of the normally laid-back commercial and cultural capital. Israeli Channel 2 TV showed panicked Tel Aviv residents running for cover and lying down on the ground after the sirens began wailing. Diners hid under tables in a restaurant, and traffic snarled on the city's main north-south highway. There were no injuries.

Defense officials say Israel is prepared to launch a ground invasion into Gaza if necessary. And Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said the army was prepared for a "significant widening" of its Gaza offensive.

Smoke rises following an Israeli attack on Gaza City, Thursday.

Suspect in Patz Case Will Plead 'Not Guilty'

NEW YORK (AP) • The man charged with killing a 6-year-old boy in 1979 made a false confession and will plead not guilty in a case that catalyzed the missing-children's movement, his lawyer said Thursday.

Pedro Hernandez's admission in May to suffocating Etan Patz was a stunning turn in one of the most notorious and vexing cases in New York City history, prompting the first arrest ever in the case. But he is mentally ill, and his statements "are not reliable," his lawyer, Harvey Fishbein, said after Hernandez made a brief court appearance Thursday.

An ashen-looking Hernandez stood in handcuffs during the hearing and never spoke. His wife and daughter were in the courtroom but left without talking to reporters. Hernandez has been held without bail since his arrest.

While Fishbein has said Hernandez is schizophrenic and prone to hallucinations, the attorney said the New Jersey man is fit to stand trial. Legally, competence for trial doesn't mean a defendant's mental state can't be part of his defense. But prosecutors say an exhaustive post-arrest investigation found enough evidence to seek an indictment and proceed to trial.

Etan's disappearance is legend. It led to an intensive search and spawned a movement to publicize cases of missing children. His photo was among the first put on milk cartons, and his case turned May 25 into National Missing Children's Day.

Hernandez, 51, was a teenage stock clerk at a convenience store when Etan disappeared on his way to school on May 25, 1979. Hernandez was a married father with no criminal record and living in Maple Shade, N.J. when police approached him based on a tip earlier this year.

B.P. Agrees to Pay $4.5 Billion; Three Employees Charged

NEW ORLEANS (AP) • A day of reckoning arrived for BP on Thursday as the oil giant agreed to plead guilty to a raft of criminal charges and pay a record $4.5 billion in a settlement with the government over the deadly 2010 disaster in the Gulf of Mexico. Three BP employees were also charged, two of them with manslaughter.

The settlement and the indictments came 2½ years after the fiery drilling-rig explosion that killed 11 workers and set off the biggest offshore oil spill in U.S. history.

The settlement includes nearly $1.3 billion in fines, the largest criminal penalty in the nation's history. As part of the deal, BP will plead guilty to charges involving the 11 deaths and lying to Congress about how much oil was spewing from the blown-out well.

"We believe this resolution is in the best interest of BP and its shareholders," said Carl-Henric Svanberg, BP chairman. "It removes two significant legal risks and allows us to vigorously defend the company against the remaining civil claims."

Assistant Attorney General Lanny Breuer said the deaths and the oil spill "resulted from BP's culture of privileging profit over prudence."

Separately, BP rig workers Robert Kaluza and Donald Vidrine were indicted on federal charges of manslaughter and involuntary manslaughter, accused of repeatedly disregarding abnormal high-pressure readings that should have been glaring indications of trouble just before the blowout. In addition, David Rainey, BP's former vice president of exploration for the Gulf of Mexico, was charged with obstruction of Congress and making false statements. Prosecutors said he withheld information that more oil was gushing from the well than he let on.

Rainey's lawyers said he did "absolutely nothing wrong." And attorneys for the two rig workers accused the Justice Department of making scapegoats out of them. Both men are still with BP.

"Bob was not an executive or high-level BP official. He was a dedicated rig worker who mourns his fallen co-workers every day," Kaluza attorneys Shaun Clarke and David Gerger said in a statement. "No one should take any satisfaction in this indictment of an innocent man. This is not justice."

The settlement, which is subject to approval by a federal judge, includes payments of nearly $2.4 billion to the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation, $350 million to the National Academy of Sciences and about $500 million to the Securities and Exchange Commission. The SEC accused BP of misleading investors by lowballing the amount of crude that was spilling.

"This marks the largest single criminal fine and the largest total criminal resolution in the history of the United States," Attorney General Eric Holder said at a news conference in New Orleans. He said much of the money will be used to restore the Gulf.

Holder said the criminal investigation is still going on. Before Thursday, the only person charged in the disaster was a former BP engineer who was arrested in April on obstruction of justice charges, accused of deleting text messages about the company's handling of the spill. The settlement appears to be well within BP's means, considering the oil giant made a record $25.8 billion in profits last year. And it will be given five years to pay. But the company still faces huge additional claims.

For one thing, the U.S. government and the Gulf states are still seeking billions of dollars in civil penalties against BP over the environmental damage.

Also, a federal judge in New Orleans is deciding whether to approve an estimated $7.8 billion settlement between BP and more than 100,000 businesses and individuals who say they were harmed by the spill. They include fishermen, charter boat captains, restaurants, hotels and property owners.

Under the settlement with the U.S. government, BP will plead guilty to 11 felony counts of misconduct or neglect of a vessel's officers, one felony count of obstruction of Congress and one misdemeanor count each under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act and the Clean Water Act. The workers' deaths were prosecuted under a federal law that protects seamen.

Post Office Reports Record Loss of $15.9 Billion for Fiscal Year

WASHINGTON (AP) • The struggling U.S. Postal Service on Thursday reported an annual loss of a record $15.9 billion and forecast more red ink in 2013, capping a tumultuous year in which it was forced to default on billions in payments to avert bankruptcy.

The financial losses for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30 were more than triple the $5.1 billion loss in the previous year. Having reached its borrowing limit, the mail agency is operating with little cash on hand, putting it at risk in the event of an unexpectedly large downturn in the economy.

"It's critical that Congress do its part and pass comprehensive legislation before they adjourn this year to move the Postal Service further down the path toward financial health," said Postmaster General Patrick Donahoe.

Much of the red ink in 2012 was due to mounting mandatory costs for future retiree health benefits, which made up $11.1 billion of the losses. Without that and other related labor expenses, the mail agency sustained an operating loss of $2.4 billion, lower than the previous year.

Donahoe said the post office has been able to reduce costs significantly by boosting worker productivity. But he said the mail agency has been hampered by congressional inaction on a postal overhaul bill that would allow it to eliminate Saturday mail delivery and reduce its $5 billion annual payment for future health benefits.

Earlier this year, the post office defaulted on two of the health prepayments for the first time in its history.

The Postal Service, an independent agency, does not receive tax money for its day-to-day operations but is subject to congressional control.

The Senate passed a postal bill in April that would have provided financial relief in part by reducing the annual health payments and providing a multibillion-dollar cash infusion, basically a refund of overpayments the Postal Service made to a federal pension fund. The House, however, remains stalled over its own legislation that would allow for aggressive cuts, including an immediate end to Saturday delivery. It remained unclear whether House leadership would take up the postal bill in its current lame-duck session. Rural lawmakers are resisting action, worried about closures of postal facilities in their communities.

"The U.S. Postal Service is clearly marching toward a financial collapse of its own," said Sen. Tom Carper, D-Del., a sponsor of the Senate bill. "I am hopeful that now that the elections are over, my colleagues and I can come together and pass postal reform legislation so that a final bill can be signed into law by the end of the year."

Xi Takes China's Helm with Many Tough Challenges

BEIJING (AP) • Long-anointed successor Xi Jinping assumes the leadership of China at a time when the ruling Communist Party is confronting slower economic growth, a public clamor to end corruption and demands for change that threaten its hold on power.

The country's political elite named Xi to the top party post on Thursday, and unexpectedly put him in charge of the military too, after a weeklong party congress and months of divisive bargaining.

The appointments give him broad authority, but not the luxury of time. After decades of juggernaut growth, China sits on the cusp of global pre-eminence as the second largest economy and newest power, but it also has urgent domestic troubles that could frustrate its rise.

Problems that have long festered — from the sputtering economy to friction with the U.S. and territorial spats with Japan and other neighbors — have worsened in recent months as the leadership focused on the power transfer. Impatience has grown among entrepreneurs, others in the new middle class and migrant workers — all wired by social media and conditioned by two decades of rising living standards to expect better government, if not democracy.

All along, police have continued to harass and jail a lengthening list of political foes, dissidents, civil rights lawyers and labor activists. A 14-year-old Tibetan set himself on fire in western China on Thursday, in the latest of more than 70 self-immolations Tibetans have staged over the past 20 months in desperate protests against Chinese rule.

In his first address to the nation, Xi, a 59-year-old son of a revolutionary hero, acknowledged the lengthy agenda for what should be the first of two five-year terms in office. He promised to deliver better social services while making sure China stands tall in the world and the party continues to rule.

"Our responsibility now is to rally and lead the entire party and the people of all ethnic groups in China in taking over the historic baton and in making continued efforts to achieve the great renewal of the Chinese nation," a confident Xi said in nationally televised remarks in the Great Hall of the People.

He later said "we are not complacent, and we will never rest on our laurels" in confronting challenges — corruption chief among them.

By his side stood the six other newly appointed members of the Politburo Standing Committee: Li Keqiang, the presumptive premier and chief economic official; Vice Premier Zhang Dejiang; Shanghai party secretary Yu Zhengsheng; propaganda chief Liu Yunshan; Tianjin party secretary Zhang Gaoli; and Vice Premier Wang Qishan, once the leadership's top troubleshooter who will head the party's internal watchdog panel.

Xi gave no hint of new thinking to address the problems. The lack of specifics and the new leadership heavy with conservative technocrats deflated expectations for change in some quarters.

"We should be expecting more of the same, not some fundamental break from the past," said Dali Yang of the University of Chicago.

Fundamental for the leadership is to maintain the party's rule, he said. "They are not interested in introducing China's Gorbachev" — the Soviet leader whose reforms hastened the end of the Soviet Union — Yang said.

Many of the challenges Xi confronts are legacies of his predecessor, Hu Jintao. In addition to relinquishing his role as party chief, having reached the two-term maximum, Hu also stepped down from the party commission that oversees the military. The move is a break from the past in which exiting party leaders kept hold of the military portfolio for several years.

During Hu's 10 years in office, policies to open up China to trade and foreign investment begun by his predecessors gathered momentum, turning China into a manufacturing powerhouse and drawing tens of millions of rural migrants into cities. Easy credit fueled a building boom, the Beijing Olympics and the world's longest high-speed rail network. At the same time, Hu relied on an ever-larger security apparatus to suppress protests, even as demonstrations continued to rise.

C.I.A. Deputy: Rice Got Initial Assessment on Libyan Attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) • Five days after the attack on the U.S. Consulate in Libya, U.N. Ambassador Susan Rice described what precipitated the deadly incident based on initial intelligence that later proved incorrect, the deputy CIA director told Congress on Thursday.

In a closed-door session with the House Intelligence committee, Mike Morell said Rice was provided with an unclassified version of events at the U.S. mission in Benghazi that left American Ambassador Chris Stevens and three others dead, according to Rep. Adam Schiff, D-Calif., a member of the panel.

The assessment concluded that a spontaneous protest over an anti-Muslim video had evolved into an attack on the American consulate, a description that Rice presented in television interviews the Sunday morning after the attack.

Rice's comments on national television have drawn fierce criticism, with some Senate Republicans promising to block her nomination if President Barack Obama taps her to replace Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton. Obama angrily defended Rice on Wednesday at a White House news conference and called the complaints outrageous attempts to besmirch her reputation. Rep. C.A. Dutch Ruppersberger of Maryland, the top Democrat on the Intelligence panel, said Rice "was given that same information we received from the administration through the intelligence community. And that's the information she testified to, end of story?"

Obama aides say the president's vigorous defense of Rice during the news conference should not be seen as a sign that he plans to nominate her for the top job at the State Department. Instead, they said it reflects a frustration within the administration that Rice, a longtime Obama adviser, is being unfairly targeted by Republican lawmakers.

Rice continues to have strong support within the White House as a candidate for the top post at the State Department. Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., and chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, remains a leading contender as well.

SKATE 'EM UP

Magic Valley Derby Girls aim to add more players, coaches and refs to their roster.

BY TETONA DUNLAP

TWIN FALLS • Women lace up black skates, some with blue or pink wheels, over striped socks that end at their knee pads.

Then they put on their helmets, straps tightened below their chins, mouthguards between their teeth.

When someone falls — skates clattering as they try to stay upright, followed by a dull thud on the ground — claps come from visitors near the stairs.

“We’re all new to derby, we’re all fresh meat,” says Magic Valley Derby Girls’ president, Danielle

“The Vegescarian” Migler, as wheels whirl on the tile court inside the Twin Falls Reformed Church.

“Feel those calf muscles burn, ladies,” someone shouts to the group, encouraging them to keep going.

The Magic Valley Roller Girls formed in 2010 but a few months later dissolved.

“It never really got past that initial excitement, a lot of people got caught up with life and stuff,” Migler said. “People are now ready to commit.”

In June, Jenna “Don’t-call-me Shirley” Sieker said, a couple of women started kicking around the idea of restarting the roller derby group. Sieker is its vice president.

In July, the Magic Valley Derby Girls was established with five showing up for that first practice. Now they have eight or nine active women but are looking for more. In addition to skaters, they are recruiting referees and coaches, enough to have a couple of teams.

And it doesn’t matter whether you are experienced.

“Before (July) I hadn’t been on skates for 20 years,” Sieker said.

Roller derby is played by two teams of five members roller skating in the same direction on a flat track. Both teams designate a scoring player, or jammer, who scores points by lapping members of the opposing team. The teams try to assist their own jammer while trying to keep the opposing jammer from scoring.

Magic Valley Derby Girls’ first mixed bout is scheduled for April 13 against the Portneuf Valley Bruisers from Pocatello, but the team is still looking for a facility to host the evening event. After that, if there are enough skaters, they will break into local teams and play against each other.

“Chances are for the first year it will be local girls, but once we get going we will play against who we can visit or get to come here,” Sieker said.

On Nov. 8, a new face showed up at conditioning practice.

Jennifer Bright, 38, moved to Jerome from Alabama three months ago. She sat on the steps watching the women weave through an obstacle course of a pink hula hoop and six shoes.

Instantly, Bright said, she felt welcomed even though she hadn’t skated with the group yet.

“I don’t feel like I’m being judged here,” Bright said. “It seems like they’re a really tight group.”

The mother of five said her children told her she was crazy for wanting to join a roller derby team.

“Just look around: They’re all women you see everyday, one’s a teacher,” Bright said.

Jenna “Don’t-call-me Shirley” Sieker is pushed by Chachi Ochoa during a Magic Valley Derby Girls drill.

Snow Gear

If you’re trying to outfit a rookie skier or snowboarder without spending a bundle, the annual CSI Ski Swap is the place to do it. Today and Saturday, you can snag used skis, snowboards, boots and winter clothing that other families have outgrown. And here’s a hot tip: early-bird admission this afternoon is well worth the extra $3 it will cost you.

Tragedy on the Moon

Paralyzed by a stroke 12 years ago, hiker Mike Medberry thought he would die in a place he loved, Craters of the Moon National Monument. Now the Idaho conservationist has turned that tragedy — and his long recovery — into a new memoir, “On the Dark Side of the Moon.” He’ll read from it in Twin Falls on Saturday. Expect some meditation on his connection with nature, too.

Stage Magic

Here, nothing is as it appears. The Magic Valley Magicians — a two-year-old club whose ranks include novice magic makers to longtime pros — will pull a second annual “Evening of Magic” out of its hat. Club members’ specialties include hypnotism, comedy, parlor magic, balloon tying, puppets, illusions and miming, and you can see it all on a Twin Falls stage on Saturday.

T.F. Comedian, Teacher Take Play to Ketchum

TIMES-NEWS

KETCHUM • Former Jackpot, Nev., comedian and singer Danny Marona and Twin Falls drama and speech teacher James Haycock will star in Mitch Albom’s “Tuesdays with Morrie,” Nov. 23-24 at the nexStage Theatre in Ketchum.

The shows start at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $25 at 208-726-9124.

The heart-warming play is the autobiographical story of Albom, a sports journalist who rethought what was important in his life during weekly visits to his former Brandeis University professor Morrie Schwartz as the latter battled Lou Gehrig’s disease.

“Morrie shaped not just Mitch’s lives but the lives of hundreds of kids who came through Brandeis University,” said Marona, who moved to Twin Falls from California after he

SUN VALLEY • Get your passport ready. Then, head to Sun Valley.

Sun Valley is going all out this holiday season with an inaugural Holiday Window Stroll, a gigantic gingerbread village display, a Christmas horns concert, breakfasts with Santa and more twinkling lights than ever before. It all starts Nov. 23, the day after Thanksgiving.

“We hope this new experience will become an annual Sun Valley family tradition,” said Tim Silva, general manager of Sun Valley Resort.

The idea for the window display originated with a similar 3-D display at the Grand America Hotel in Salt Lake City.

Stroll Ketchum Galleries Next Week

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

KETCHUM • Kimberly artist Dave LaMure Jr. has a new place to display his art. His bronze and clay vessels, famous for their depiction of wildlife, will be in a new pop-up gallery-studio established by Ketchum artist Jennifer Bellinger. And Magic Valley residents will get to see them beginning Nov. 23 when the new gallery joins others for the Thanksgiving Gallery Walk around Ketchum.

The gallery — at 511 Fourth St. across from Atkinsons' Market and next to Mason et Cadeaux — will be open 5-8 p.m. Nov. 23 for the free Gallery Walk. It will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays thereafter.

It will display the work of LaMure, Bellinger and sculptors Ken Newman, Russ Lamb and mountain climber Lou Whittaker, as well as hand-crafted furniture by Wes Wallsworth.

"I've had wonderful patrons in Sun Valley for 20 years, so it's wonderful to be represented in a high-end gallery," LaMure said. "This is an opportunity for people who have collected my work in the past to see my new work — it's always evolving. And it gives me a chance to show my work to a new audience, as well."

Bellinger, known for her oils of farm animals, Idaho landscapes and pets, said she decided to open the studio-gallery after spending the past two winters at the Celebration of Fine Art show in Scottsdale, Ariz. There she joined 99 other artists under a big tent painting and selling art seven days a week for 10 weeks.

She expects to give mini-art lessons on the spot as she works in her new gallery. "People love to see how you begin your paintings, and I love teaching," said Bellinger, who has taught for the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and other organizations. "I love taking people from the beginnings of mixing paint to the finished product."

Elsewhere around Town

The Nov. 23 Gallery Walk will also feature Judith Kindler's salon-style installations at Gail Severn Gallery

(400 First Ave. N.). The exhibition features imagery of horses and other objects presented in distressed frames and juxtaposed with notes as if they might have been part of incomplete journal entries, said gallery owner Gail Severn.

Gilman Contemporary (661 Sun Valley Road) will feature Jason Langer's black-and-white photographs depicting psychological visions of contemporary urban life. And Friesen Gallery (320 First Ave. N.) will feature a group exhibition highlighting colorful oil paintings by Ford Crull.

Wendy Jaquet will offer a free guided walk around the galleries, leaving from the Sun Valley Recreation Center near the Wells Fargo Bank on the Sun Valley Mall at 5 p.m.

LaMure, meanwhile, has spent part of the month in Austin, Texas, attending gallery walks there as he seeks inspiration for new work to feature in Bellinger's gallery.

"I've been soaking up the cultural art of the area," he said. "And the music — the music in Austin is so phenomenal it will definitely inspire my work."

14 windows depicting how various countries — Italy, Scotland, Norway, Austria, Russia, Germany, Kenya, Switzerland, Mexico, China, France and the U.S. — celebrate the holidays.

The display, themed "Celebrating the Language of the Holidays," opens Nov. 23 and concludes Jan. 4. Each artist brings his own style ranging from caricatures to something Sun Valley described as "absurd yet naive with a modern Slavic touch."

Window strollers will receive "passports" they can get stamped at each window, each bearing a holiday greeting in a different language. They can redeem the completed passports for a seasonal confection.

"The windows are supposed to be pretty spectacular. We always have a good Thanksgiving crowd and Christmas crowd. We want to attract families from Twin Falls, even Bellevue and Hailey, to come up and spend time in the village," said Jack Sibbach, Sun Valley's director of marketing.

On Dec. 1, Sun Valley will cut the ribbon at 1 p.m. on a 20-by-30-foot Gingerbread Village constructed by Sun Valley's pastry chefs.

The display in Sun Valley's Boiler Room will include the Sun Valley Lodge, Bald Mountain and the Snowball Express train, which ferried skiers from Los Angeles to Sun Valley in the resort's infancy.

The day's events — all free — will also include a Window Stroll Scavenger hunt between 1 and 4 p.m., A Taste of Sun Valley tapas from The Ram Restaurant and Bald Mountain Pizzeria between 3 and 5 p.m., wagon rides around the village from 2 to 4 p.m. and the arrival of Santa at 3:30 p.m. on The Ram deck.

On Dec. 8, Sun Valley and the Boise Philharmonic will present an hour-long concert of holiday and Christmas favorites at 5 p.m. at the Sun Valley Opera House. The concert will feature the Boise Philharmonic Quintet composed of two trumpeters, a trombone player, a tuba player and a horn player. Admission is free, but a donation of $5 or a new unopened toy is encouraged for southern Idaho's Toys for Tots program.

Sun Valley will also offer an 80th birthday salute to Bogner skiwear from 4 to 8 p.m. at the Brass Ranch. There'll be refreshments and giveaways, and 10 percent of all purchases will benefit the Sun Valley Ski Education Foundation.

Also on Dec. 8, Sun Valley holds the first of six Breakfasts with Santa. Santa will join children and their parents at a breakfast buffet Saturdays and Sundays through Dec. 23 in the Lodge Dining Room. Cost is $25 for adults and $15 for children 12 and younger; 3 and younger admitted free. Reservations: 208-622-2800.

On Dec. 15, Sun Valley will light the village Christmas tree. The fun starts at 5 p.m. with complimentary cookies, cocoa, cider and coffee on the sidewalks of Sun Valley Village. Ice carvers will carve sculptures, and the Sun Valley Carolers, decked out in their Dickens costumes, will sing a few numbers from the patio of the Sun Valley Inn. Santa will come rolling in on a sleigh pulled by a miniature pony after the tree lighting.

Noon to 4 p.m. that day has been dubbed "Fun Day" at Pete Lane's with free Smith helmet fittings for kids, fun with Lucky Bum toys, refreshments and music.

On Dec. 21, Sun Valley will hold its Fifth Annual Classical Christmas Concert at 7:30 p.m. in the Sun Valley Opera House. The concert will feature three former Jerome residents:

tenor John Mauldin, soprano Leslie Mauldin and baritone pianist Jud Moss, who performed for the rock band Air Supply as well as with the Los Angeles, New York and other philharmonic orchestras. Also appearing: the Hatvani Chamber Ensemble, the Sun Valley Carolers and other guest artists. Tickets at 888-622-2108 or 208-622-2135.

"It will include some familiar songs and some songs that are not as familiar but are favorites of ours," John Mauldin said.

On Dec. 22, Sun Valley will hold a gingerbread house building extravaganza for youngsters from 2 to 3 p.m. in the Boiler Room. Refreshments will be provided, as will all the M&Ms, candy canes and other house building supplies young builders could need. Admission is $30 at the door.

On Christmas Eve, Sun Valley will trot out its colorful "Nutcracker on Ice," which has long been its gift to the community. The free show on Sun Valley's outdoor ice rink features amateur and professional skaters; 2010 Olympic gold Medalist Evan Lysacek made an appearance the past two years.

The performance also features a cappella Christmas songs from the Sun Valley Carolers, a torchlight parade down Dollar Mountain, fireworks, a visit from Santa and free skating following the show. Complimentary cookies, cocoa, cider and coffee will be offered on the Sun Valley Lodge Terrace preceding the show at 5 p.m. The show begins about 5:30 p.m. Dress warmly, and bring a blanket.

In addition, the Lodge Dining Room will reopen for dinners on Dec. 1 after being on hiatus for the past few years.

John Murcko, Sun Valley's new head chef, plans to introduce several new dishes.

"He's going through all the restaurants in the resort and diversifying the menus," said Bruce Fery, president of The Grand America Hotel. "He's creating more reasons to come to Sun Valley."

fell in love with golf in the Snake River Canyon and the peacefulness of Twin Falls. "Kids were drawn to him like moths to a flame. They wanted to be like him. They wanted to feel what he felt."

The show is directed by Penni Aufderheide, a Twin Falls actress and teacher. Proceeds will go to the Danny Marona Performing Arts Scholarship Fund and the Twin Falls High School drama department.

Marona and Haycock have already performed "Tuesdays with Morrie" at Twin Falls' Roper Auditorium and at Idaho State University in Pocatello.

Haycock called the script "powerful, funny and heart-warming" and Marona said he hadn't planned on doing another play, but after reading "Tuesdays with Morrie" he simply couldn't pass up the chance to do something that important.

derby team was starting, she jumped at the opportunity to join.

"I've skated all my life; all my kids skate," Williams said.

On Nov. 8, Williams brought her daughter, Wyster Moore, 10, with her to practice.

Moore sat by the door reading a book, next to her mother's bag, but now and then she tilted up her head to watch the women skating. If Moore were old enough to join she would be out there too.

Magic Valley Derby Girls members have to be 18 or older. Elsewhere, Williams said she has heard of junior leagues for girls 12 and older to get them started in the sport.

Williams' family was introduced to roller derby when they visited her brother in Seattle. There they saw the Rat City Rollergirls in action.

"Oh my gosh we had so much fun," Williams said.

Moore agreed: "It was rough and cool."

Williams said she and her 13-year-old son, who plays football, now compare bruises. She is the team's jammer, the one who tries to get past the pack to score. She said she has some pretty good blockers, but that doesn't mean she isn't prone to taking a hit or a fall.

"He told me, 'Mom, you can't do that, you're going to get hurt,'" Williams said.

When Williams skated off to run drill with her team, she effortlessly glided backward past the hula hoop and through the line of shoes.

Dominique DuCharme, also known as 'Bonnie Valentine,' center, practices drills with other Magic Valley Derby Girls.

"As soon as I saw it I was committed," said Kanysha Mace, 22, of Twin Falls. Mace sat on the stairs with Bright, watching and wishing she had skates, which she found cost between $200 and $600.

"I've got the knee guards, helmet and mouth guard," Mace said. "I'm pretty excited to get started."

She has even come up with a skate name: "Mace of Spades."

Winning Reads on the Outdoors

POCATELLO • Stunning underwater photography. A coming-of-age story of three women. Wonder and magic in a small patch of forest. Nail biting adventure.

These are some of the themes found among the winners of the 2012 National Outdoor Book Awards announced this week.

Winner David Hall's large-format book "Beneath the Cold Seas" is a collection of photographs taken in the underwater world of the Pacific Northwest.

"To get his photographs, Hall works under exceptionally difficult conditions," Ron Watters, chairman of the awards program, said in an Idaho State University release. "He dives in bitter cold waters and works without a tripod. Due to the turbidity of the water, he can't use telephoto lenses and has to get close to his subjects."

Fourteen other books were honored in this year's awards, sponsored by the National Outdoor Book Awards Foundation, ISU and the Association of Outdoor Recreation and Education.

- Among them is "Almost Somewhere: Twenty-Eight Days on the John Muir Trail" by Suzanne Roberts, one of two winners in the Outdoor Literature category. "Almost Somewhere" is about a backpacking trip that Roberts takes with two other women. Roberts obsesses with her weight and grapples with conflicted views of sex and relationships. One of the other women struggles with bulimia.

- The other winner in Outdoor Literature is "The Ledger" by Jim Davidson and Kevin Vaughan. It is the true story of Davidson's desperate attempt to escape from a crevasse on Mount Rainier. After he falls, he finds himself caught with his pack wedged between two walls of ice. Below him is an abyss.

- "The Forest Unseen" by David George Haskell won in the Natural History category. Haskell describes the natural processes occurring on one square meter of an old-growth forest.

- Two winners were awarded in the history/biography category. "Buried in the Sky: The Extraordinary Story of the Sherpa Climbers on K2's Deadliest Day," by Peter Zuckerman and Amanda Padoan, chronicles the 2008 climbing season on K2, the second highest mountain in the world. During a turn in the weather, 11 climbers died and three others were seriously injured. The authors tell the story of what happened from the Sherpas' point of view.

- The other winner in history/biography is "Anything Worth Doing" by Jo Deurbrouck of Idaho Falls. This book is about two men who launch a small wooden dory on Idaho's Salmon River during flood stage. Their plan is to float all night and all the next day in an attempt to set a 24-hour speed record.

Bobby Wolff

*"When ... all the world had swords and clubs of stone,
We drank our tea in China
beneath the sacred spice-trees,
And heard the curled waves of the harbor moan."*

— Vachel Lindsay

Today's deal sees an interesting and quite difficult variation of a safety play; give it a few seconds' thought before starting the play!

Against six hearts, the opening diamond lead goes to the jack and ace. Declarer follows up with the heart ace and queen, drawing all the trump. At this point, declarer has 11 tricks (two spades, six hearts, the diamond ace, a diamond ruff, and a sure club trick). East is marked with the club ace, and the best hope for a second club trick is to find the clubs 4-3.

However, an extra chance comes by ducking the first club altogether in case West has five or six clubs. Suppose East wins cheaply and plays the spade queen. Win the spade king and ruff a club low. When the ace falls, declarer has 12 tricks. But suppose, instead, that East had three or four clubs headed by the ace.

After the second club is ruffed, the diamond six is ruffed in dummy. Now the club king is played from North. East's ace is ruffed out, and the heart king is the entry to the two club winners in dummy.

In other words, by ducking the first club and ruffing the second club before playing out the top honors, you make the contract whenever East has the club ace and fewer than five clubs, instead of relying on the clubs to break 4-3.

ANSWER: Your hand may not be quite worth an overcall, but the advantage of bidding two clubs is that you get partner off to the right lead against either a heart or no-trump overcall. When you are in doubt, one thing to take into account with an overcall is whether you really want that suit led, and DON'T want any other suit led.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend, "Richard," and I are a mature couple who have been seeing each other for three years. I love him. My dog is the issue.

DEAR ABBY Jeanne Phillips

"Princess" is a 2-year-old rat terrier/mini-pinscher mix. She weighs 9 pounds and is spoiled. (I admit I'm a softy when it comes to discipline.) She barks at anyone and anything she sees. Her barks are shrill and can be annoying. But I live alone and feel she is protecting me.

Richard can no longer tolerate Princess' barking and has curbed his visits considerably. Except for this issue, he is my dream guy, and I feel lucky to have found him. I was married for more than 20 years to a controlling man, and I had to defer or compromise on everything. I will not compromise on this. I feel Richard should understand my attachment to Princess, especially when he's not around.

I miss him. Our dates are now only occasional. He thinks I prefer the dog over him, and that's not the case. Am I being selfish? Why can't I have them both? Is there a future for us, or have we reached an impasse?

- WON'T GIVE UP THE PUP, LAFAYETTE, LA.

DEAR WON'T GIVE UP: Loving one's dog is not being selfish. You COULD have them both if you would contact a dog trainer and start giving Princess a doggy education that includes boundaries. Incessant barking should not be allowed.

Perhaps once Richard sees that Princess no longer regards him as a hostile intruder, he will feel more welcome. But that could take some work on the part of all three of you, if he's still willing.

DEAR ABBY: My grandpa remarried when I was a child. He and Grandma "Ella" each have five children. She is a wonderful woman.

When the holidays roll around, especially Thanksgiving and Christmas, my grandparents always host at their home. They spend all day fixing up the house and preparing the food. When it's time to eat, Grandma Ella's children think they should be first in the line. If someone else tries (some of us on my grandfather's side of the family have small children), they grumble and complain.

When the dinner is over, it's always my mom, one of my two aunts and me doing the dishes and cleaning up. Grandma Ella's family never help. They just stroll back into the living room and watch TV or leave to go somewhere else. It would be nice to get some help once in a while so Mom, my aunts and I could also relax after the meal. Just leaving the mess is not an option. We tried it once, and Grandma and Grandpa ended up doing it. Any advice?

- STRESSED IN ADVANCE IN IOWA

DEAR STRESSED: Gladly! This Thanksgiving when everyone arrives, Grandma and Grandpa should cheerfully inform the happy revelers that small children will be fed first, regardless of whose side of the family they come from. At the same time, each of the adults should be ASSIGNED a cleanup chore so one side of the family isn't stuck with the entire burden. Unless your grandparents assert themselves, nothing will change, so please suggest this to them in advance.

DEAR ABBY: When a man is married, who is supposed to come first in his life - his wife or his mother?

- TIRED OF BEING SECOND STRING

DEAR TIRED: At the risk of sounding preachy, the Scripture says a man shall leave his father and his mother and hold fast to his wife. As much as a man may love his mother, in order to have a strong and healthy marriage, his wife should come first if he must make a choice.

Today is Friday, Nov. 16, the 321st day of 2012. There are 45 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Nov. 16, 1946, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) was founded at the conclusion of a conference in London.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1776, British troops captured Fort Washington in New York during the American Revolution.

In 1885, Canadian rebel leader Louis Riel was executed for high treason.

In 1907, Oklahoma became the 46th state of the union.

In 1917, Georges Clemenceau again became prime minister of France.

In 1933, the United States and the Soviet Union established diplomatic relations.

In 1959, the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical "The Sound of Music" opened on Broadway.

In 1960, Academy Award-winning actor Clark Gable died in Los Angeles at age 59.

In 1961, House Speaker Samuel T. Rayburn, 79, died at his home in Bonham, Texas, having served as speaker since 1940 except for two terms as minority leader of the Democrats.

In 1966, Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard was acquitted in his second trial of murdering his pregnant wife, Marilyn, in 1954.

In 1973, Skylab 4, carrying a crew of three astronauts, was launched from Cape Canaveral on an 84-day mission.

In 1997, China's most prominent pro-democracy campaigner, Wei Jingsheng, arrived in the United States after being released following nearly 18 years of imprisonment in his country.

Ten years ago: In an open letter to the Iraqi Parliament, President Saddam Hussein said he had no choice but to accept a tough, new U.N. weapons inspection resolution because the United States and Israel had shown their "claws and teeth" and declared unilateral war on the Iraqi people.

Five years ago: Senate Republicans blocked a $50 billion bill by Democrats that would have paid for several months of combat but also would have ordered troop withdrawals from Iraq to begin within 30 days. Marchers surrounded the Justice Department headquarters to demand federal intervention in the Jena Six case in Louisiana and stepped-up enforcement of hate crimes. Poland's new prime minister, Donald Tusk, formally took office along with a team of former anti-communist dissidents.

One year ago: President Barack Obama, visiting Canberra, said he would send military aircraft and up to 2,500 Marines to northern Australia for a training hub to help allies and protect American interests across Asia.

IF NOVEMBER 16 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: It is always good to work hard, but don't get too caught up in making every activity a competition during the next six weeks to eight weeks. You are at your best in group settings, so burn off steam or extra energy by joining a gym or walking club. April is a great month for romance, a vacation or inspiration. Wait until late May or early June to make significant changes, decisions or plans. That is when you will receive the most assistance and wisest advice from others. Expect to have more social interactions or to party more than usual next May. That could be a perfect time to break off an unhappy business or personal relationship.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be ready to take action when an opportunity presents itself. You may find that a lucrative financial situation comes your way. Exercise sensible restraint; you might resent outside interference from others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Passions can be a powerful fuel for productivity. Once you have set your course no one and nothing can stop you. Do your homework thoroughly and investigate what makes those around you tick.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be a good sport and accept a little gentle teasing. You will find that being good humored and tolerant will attract the kind of people who will root for your side. Start important projects and plans.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): All work and no play could make your weekend dull. You may feel the need to pour all your effort into finishing a job. Get out and have some fun with a very special someone who matches your ardor.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Capitalize on creative ideas. Something may be yours with the mere snap of your fingers. You might only be using fingers to maintain a beat when you could use them to invitingly beckon to what, or whom, you want.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Bring it on. You can play hardball with the best of them. Congenial companions flock to your side as your attractiveness peaks. The people you can't get in touch with probably aren't good for you anyway.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Polish a presentation. When choosing between accuracy and appeal, only accuracy matters. Make sure to have all the facts and information at your fingertips before making appearances before peers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Building blocks are used for constructive purposes. You'll make progress by building up others rather than tearing them down. Make plans for the future; set wheels in motion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Work now, play later. Focus on putting finishing touches on a project before going out and painting the town in shades of romantic red. Sizzling sensuality could be in the cards this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You can safely put all your eggs in one basket. Your judgment is better than usual, so you are likely to make wise financial decisions. A new heartthrob might have amorous plans for the weekend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Balance the emotional budget. You may be able to perceive how changes, and compromises, can ease transitory problems and offer a solution. Joining a new group can animate your social calendar.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Make your own waves and leave slowpokes behind in the wake. A friendship could turn into a love boat. Sail serenely on seas of romance, but keep an eye peeled for business necessities from the crow's nest.
