Grouse, Wildfire on Meier's List of Priorities

TWIN FALLS • Mel Meier may be an Oklahoma Sooner but she's ready to talk sage grouse in a Bronco Nation.

Meier is the newest manager for the U.S. Bureau of Land Management's Twin Falls District. She replaces former manager Bill Baker, who retired last December.

The Twin Falls District covers all of south-central Idaho.

Meier comes from a fourth-generation ranching family in Oklahoma. She began working out of the BLM's national office in also worked as the associate district manager for the BLM's Southern Nevada District.

Now that she's one month into the job, Meier said she's looking forward to living in Idaho. But she's not taking down her bobblehead of Bob Stoops — head coach of the Sooner football team — bobble head anytime soon in her office.

Otter Delays Health Exchange Decision

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The fate of Idaho's health insurance exchange remains unknown for yet another month.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter has delayed making a final decision on whether Idaho will build its own exchange or rely on one that's federally facilitated.

Otter

Health insurance exchanges are one of the critical elements of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act. Exchanges will serve as online marketplaces for consumers to shop and compare health insurance options.

Originally, the health care reform law required all states to make a final decision by Nov. 16. However, late Thursday evening, federal officials extended the deadline to Dec. 14.

The extension was part of a request from the Republican Governors Association. Otter had just returned from the RGA's annual conference in Las Vegas when he made his decision Friday.

If Idaho chooses to build its own exchange, the state must also submit its plans for meeting the federal mandates on the exchange's design and operation by Dec. 14.

In late October, Otter's 13-member exchange advisory group

TWIN FALLS CELEBRATES ADOPTION DAY

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A courtroom that can at times be host to anger, fear and sadness was full of joy and new beginnings Friday as Twin Falls County celebrated National Adoption Day.

Teddy bears, balloons and juice boxes replaced stacks of court cases as Linda and Bob Hampton finalized their adoption of 9-year-old Juliana in front of several other families who recently or will soon finalize their own adoptions.

Twin Falls County Magistrate Judge Thomas

Kershaw presided over the hearing.

Kershaw asked the Hamptons if they understood what the proceedings meant.

"This is a permanent and irrevocable decision," he said. "That's the way you want it?"

"Very much so," the two answered.

Kershaw also made sure Juliana understood. The fourth-grader said she knew what adoption meant and that she was excited.

After the necessary paperwork was approved by Kershaw, Bob and Juliana high-fived.

"It's a done deal," Bob said as the three took their seats with the other families.

HOLIDAY HELP TIPS

What are some ways I can enjoy the holidays more and have a less stressful holiday season?

– Amy, St. Luke’s Magic Valley

Answered by Amy Movius, St. Luke’s Employee Health, RN, BSN:

One of the best things you can do to reduce stress is to exercise. The recommended amount is 30 minutes a day, six times a week. Not everyone will be able to fit that into their schedule, but there are little things you can do to get some exercise. If you are walking from a parking lot, park further away and take those extra steps. While you’re watching holiday specials on television, walk in place during the commercials. Just marching in place can burn off a lot of calories, especially since this is the season of extra snacking.

Find a buddy you can exercise or go walking with, someone who will make you accountable this holiday season. Another benefit of exercising with a friend is the bonus of social time that you get to spend with that person – spending time with people we care about during the holidays is also a stress reliever. Or exercise with your pet; they will enjoy the exercise and pets also are great at relieving the day-to-day stresses of life.

When we have sunny days, go outside and get some sun and fresh air – it’s a great way to improve your attitude.

Take the time to do something for yourself. Maybe it’s time to read a book, get a massage, haircut, or go to coffee with a good friend.

Even if you are in the middle of all the hustle and bustle of the holiday season, listening to some music you enjoy can help relieve some of the extra tension we feel during this time.

Getting enough sleep, 7 to 8 hours a night, is even more important this time of year. With the extra activity it is easy to get less sleep, but when we are stressed, it is even more important to get good, quality sleep.

Enjoying holiday goodies will happen, but paying attention to healthy eating habits is especially important during the holidays. All of the extra sugar we consume can cause highs and lows in our moods, making us more stressed out. Drinking enough water continues to be important through the winter months, 6 to 8 glasses a day is best.

Be gracious to yourself. You can only do so much – so be realistic. Remember, laughter is a wonderful stress reliever. Think of something that makes you smile very day, whether it’s your family, a pet or a friend. Take a deep breath and promise yourself to slow down the holidays and remember the reason for the season.

Weekend Rain, Best Chance Is Sunday

Last weekend before Thanksgiving and a lot of us will be out and about getting ready for the holiday. Some of us will be staying home and many of us will be traveling to see family and friends. With all those travel plans, weather becomes a concern.

For today, we start the weekend with a mix of clouds and some sunshine. Temperatures will be a few degrees warmer than average reaching the mid-50s by the afternoon. Another storm system coming in off the Pacific will spread rain showers across southern Idaho by later tonight and into Sunday. Expect the first half of the day Sunday to be grey and wet with off and on showers. A weak area of high pressure begins to move in late in the day Sunday into Sunday evening. This will help bring showers to an end as early as mid to late afternoon Sunday. With cloud cover and rain Sunday’s temperatures will be around the upper 40s to right around 50 degrees.

Through the Thanksgiving week, the pattern remains unsettled and even uncertain. Some of our forecast models are beginning to show drier weather Monday through Thanksgiving. For now, I am going to keep the mention of showers in the forecast for early next week but I expect most of the time to be dry.

MONTANA'S DECKER COAL MINE TO LAY OFF 75 WORKERS

BY MATTHEW BROWN
Associated Press

BILLINGS, Mont. • Up To 75 employees of Montana's Decker Coal Mine will be laid off from the surface mine near the Wyoming border in mid-January, managers said Friday.

A spokesman for mine operator Ambre Energy North America attributed the layoffs to "ongoing expense management activities," but offered no details. It is co-owned by Ambre subsidiary KCP Inc. and Western Minerals LLC, a subsidiary of Cloud Peak Energy.

About 160 people work at the mine located in the coal-rich Powder River Basin, an area along the Montana-Wyoming border that produces more coal than any other region in the U.S. The mine is located in Big Horn County, although many of its workers come from the Sheridan, Wyo. area.

Ambre spokesman Brian Gard said in a statement that the layoffs were unrelated to a legal dispute between the owners over whether to expand production.

Coal production at Decker dropped sharply over the last few years, from 7 million tons in 2006 to 3 million tons last year, federal mining records show. The mine reported a net loss of $21.1 million last year and had projected a $11.9 million loss for 2012.

Western Minerals alleged Ambre wanted to mine more coal with an eye toward exporting the fuel to overseas markets, particularly in Asia. The legal dispute emerged in July, when Western Minerals filed a lawsuit that said the mine's plan called for an end to all production when its last customer contract ends in 2013.

Coal was once the dominant fuel for electricity generation in the U.S. But domestic demand has been flagging over the past several years due to cheap natural gas, tighter rules on pollution from coal-burning power plants and an aggressive legal campaign against the industry by environmentalists. Coal companies see exports as a way to turn around that decline.

Ambre is headquartered in Australia but manages its U.S. coal business from Salt Lake City.

The company describes itself as "a coal marketing, mining and infrastructure company that aspires to become the largest supplier of United States thermal coal to the Asia-Pacific market."

The lawsuit over the Decker mine claimed Ambre knew about plans to end production when it bought its 50 percent stake and took over management of Decker Coal Co. last year. The suit said the company and its subsidiaries have been acting outside of its joint-venture agreement to position itself for an expansion of Decker coal production.

Ambre is seeking to dismiss the case, which is before U.S. District Judge Richard Cebull.

The company's attorneys stated in court filings that it is not the direct owner of the Decker mine, and has reached no agreements with prospective customers to ship the coal overseas. As a result, the company said the court lacks jurisdiction.

Western Minerals filed motions this week urging the court to not dismiss the case.

environmental analyses of oil and gas projects but I saw that all the fun was out in the West and that's where I wanted to be. This way my boots are on the ground, not in an office.

Times-News: What are some of the goals you have for the district?

Meier: Continuing our fire management in this area will continue to be huge for this district. We (BLM) are already actively engaged in preparing for next year and trying to get as much done before the snow gets here. That's important. We need to get as many hazardous fuels out of the way by adding more fuel breaks and green strips.

In Nevada, sage grouse was a major issue when it came to resource management and the same is true in Idaho. It has to be a priority. We're at a point where the spotlight is on us and we need to be doing all the steps to preventing the bird from being listed.

Times-News: How do you plan on connecting with the public?

Meier: I think it's important to realize that what the BLM does has an effect on the community. This could be on the ranching community or on the conservation community. We don't operate in a vacuum. I'm hoping, coming from a rural background, I'll be able to connect to folks in this area. I'm committed to giving all folks a platform from all backgrounds.

Adoption Day

Juliana is the couple's step-granddaughter. Her biological father died and her mother agreed to terminate her parental rights in July, but Juliana has lived with Bob and Linda for three years.

Adoption finalizations are normally not open to the public, but Linda said the court asked the family if theirs could be public for Idaho Adoption Day and the family agreed.

"(Juliana's) been wanting this to happen so we're excited," Linda said after the ceremony. "It's a very happy day for us."

Twin Falls County 5th District Judge Richard Bevan read a proclamation issued by Idaho Supreme Court Chief Justice Roger Burdick that made Nov. 16, 2012, Idaho Adoption Day. National Adoption Day follows today.

"This statewide effort, along with similar ceremonies in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico will celebrate the powerful difference adoption makes in the lives of children and encourages others to assist wherever and however they can," the proclamation states.

According to the proclamation, more than 100,000 children in the United States foster care system and 39 foster children in Idaho are waiting to be adopted.

In a place where happy days are sometimes in short supply, Kershaw said he and other judges look forward to days when they preside over adoption ceremonies.

"We make it a special day because it is so important," he said.

group's recommendation, and I have been listening carefully to stakeholders and citizens about this important choice. This extension gives us more time to get answers from HHS about what the federal requirements will be," a statement from Otter explained. "I don't want us buying a pig in a poke, so with this extension I'm hoping we'll get answers to the questions and concerns we're hearing from legislators and the public."

Trump Steakhouse in Las Vegas Fails Health Inspection

LAS VEGAS (AP) • A Las Vegas Strip hotel restaurant bearing the initials of celebrity financier Donald Trump is open again after health inspectors found expired caviar and other violations and shut the place down.

DJT is the signature steakhouse at the Trump International Hotel. It reopened Nov. 2 with a restored "A" grade, hours after Southern Nevada Health District inspectors logged 51 violations. Thirty violations would get a "C" grade. Inspectors reported finding outdated, exppired, unlabeled, mishandled and improperly stored food.

KTNV-TV reports (<http://bit.ly/RyBdaN>) that inspectors found caviar that was more than a month old and duck that dated back to June.

A hotel marketing manager says adjustments were made immediately, and that delivering an exceptional experience to guests is a top priority.

US, Mexico to Sign Agreement for Colorado River Water

BY KEN RITTER

Associated Press

LAS VEGAS • Government officials from United States and Mexico have made a Tuesday date in San Diego to sign a landmark agreement to share Colorado River water during times of drought and surplus.

The time and place were confirmed Friday by International Boundary and Water Commission official Gustavo Ramirez.

The commission's U.S. section secretary, Sally Spener, said this week from El Paso, Texas, that there were still a number of reviews and approvals needed north and south of the border before the addendum to a 1944 U.S.-Mexico water treaty is signed.

The Southern Nevada Water Authority and Colorado River Commission of Nevada unanimously approved the pact Thursday, authority spokesman Scott Huntley said.

The two entities, along with the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California and the Central Arizona Project, are among the largest of the 15 agencies and state officials in Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming whose approvals are needed, along with representatives of Mexico and the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation.

New Mexico's Interstate Stream Commission unanimously approved the agreement Wednesday.

The Bureau of Reclamation manages Colorado River reservoirs in the U.S. including Lake Mead behind Hoover Dam and Lake Powell behind Glen Canyon Dam near Page, Ariz. Lake Mead is the primary drinking water supply for Las Vegas.

The five-year agreement developed from talks begun before the seven Colorado River states signed a landmark agreement in 2007 to share the pain of shortages during drought and surpluses during wet years. The river runs some 1,450 miles from the Rocky Mountains of Colorado to the Gulf of California.

Texas Parade Honoring Veterans Ends in Tragedy

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) • Cheered on by a flag-waving crowd, a parade float filled with wounded veterans and their spouses was inching across a railroad track when the crossing gates began to lower and a freight train that seemed to come out of nowhere was suddenly bearing down on them, its horn blaring.

Some of those seated on the float jumped off in wide-eyed terror just moments before the train crashed into the flatbed truck with a low whoosh and a thunderous crack.

Four veterans of Iraq and Afghanistan — including an Army sergeant who apparently sacrificed his life to save his wife — were killed Thursday afternoon and 16 people were injured in a scene of both tragedy and heroism.

For some of the veterans who managed to jump clear of the wreck, training and battlefield instinct instantly kicked in, and they rushed to help the injured, applying tourniquets and putting pressure on wounds.

“They are trained for tragedy,” said Pam Shoemaker of Monroe, La., who was with her husband, a special operations veteran, on a float ahead of the one that was hit.

A day after the crash, federal investigators were trying to determine how fast the train was going and whether the two-float parade had been given enough warning to clear the tracks.

And locals were struggling to cope with a tragedy at the start of what was supposed to be a three-day weekend of banquets, deer hunting and shopping in appreciation of the veterans’ sacrifice.

“It’s just a very tragic and sad thing,” said Michael McKinney of Show of Support, the local charity that organizes the annual event and invited the two dozen veterans. “It’s difficult when you’re trying to do something really good and something tragic occurs.”

Petraeus: C.I.A. Blamed Terrorists for Libyan Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) • Testifying out of sight, ex-CIA Director David Petraeus told Congress Friday that classified intelligence showed the deadly raid on the U.S. Consulate in Libya was a terrorist attack, but the administration withheld the suspected role of al-Qaida affiliates to avoid tipping them off.

The recently resigned spy chief explained that references to terrorist groups suspected of carrying out the violence were removed from the public explanation of what caused the attack so as not to alert them that U.S. intelligence was on their trail, according to lawmakers who attended Petraeus’ private briefings. He also said it initially was unclear whether the militants had infiltrated a demonstration to cover their attack.

The retired four-star general addressed the House and Senate intelligence committees in back-to-back, closed-door hearings as questions persist over what the Obama administration knew in the immediate aftermath of the Sept. 11 attacks and why its public description did not match intelligence agencies’ assessments.

Petraeus said he testified that the CIA’s draft talking points in response to the assault on the diplomatic post in Benghazi that killed four Americans referred to it as a terrorist attack. Petraeus said that reference was removed from the final version, although he wasn’t sure which federal agency deleted it.

Adding to the explanation, a senior U.S. official familiar with the drafting of the points said later that a reason the references to al-Qaida were deleted was that the information came from classified sources and the links were, and still are, tenuous. The administration also did not want to prejudice a criminal investigation in its early stages, that official said, speaking on condition of anonymity because the official was not authorized to discuss the process publicly.

Democrats said Petraeus made it clear the change was not done for political reasons during President Barack Obama’s re-election campaign. “The general was adamant there was no politicization of the process, no White House interference or political agenda,” said Rep. Adam Schiff, D-Calif. “He completely debunked that idea.”

A supply vessel moves near an oil rig damaged by an explosion and fire on Friday in the Gulf of Mexico.

2 Missing, 4 Injured in Gulf Platform Fire

NEW ORLEANS (AP) • The Coast Guard was searching Friday for two missing workers after a fire erupted on an oil platform in the Gulf of Mexico, sending an ominous black plume of smoke into the air reminiscent of the 2010 Deepwater Horizon explosion that transformed the oil industry and life along the coast.

The fire, begun while workers were using a torch to cut an oil line, critically injured at least four workers who had burns over much of their bodies.

The accident was a vivid reminder of the dangerous business of offshore drilling and the risk it poses to the Gulf of Mexico’s ecosystem and shoreline.

A sheen of oil about a half-mile long and 200 yards wide was reported on the Gulf surface, but officials believe it came from residual oil on the platform.

“It’s not going to be an uncontrolled discharge from everything we’re getting right now,” Coast Guard Capt. Ed Cubanski said.

Coast Guard Chief Petty Officer Bobby Nash said late Friday that monitoring continues to show no oil is coming from the well.

Eleven people were taken by helicopter to area hospitals or for treatment on shore by emergency medical workers.

Taslin Alfonzo, spokeswoman for West Jefferson Medical Center in suburban New Orleans, said four injured workers arrived in critical condition with second- and third-degree burns over much of their bodies.

Twinkie Maker Hostess Reaches the End of the Line

BY CANDICE CHOI AND TOM MURPHY
Associated Press

NEW YORK • Twinkies may not last forever after all. Hostess Brands Inc., the maker of the spongy snack with a mysterious cream filling, said Friday it would shutter after years of struggling with management turmoil, rising labor costs and the ever-changing tastes of Americans even as its pantry of sugary cakes seemed suspended in time.

Some of Hostess’ beloved brands such as Ding Dongs and Ho Ho’s likely will be snapped up by buyers and find a second life, but for now the company says its snack cakes should be on shelves for another week or so. The news stoked an outpouring of nostalgia around kitchen tables, water coolers and online as people relived childhood memories of their favorite Hostess goodies.

In the Magic Valley, the company’s closure will affect Hostess outlets in Twin Falls and Heyburn. An employee of the Twin Falls store said between customers Friday that she wasn’t sure when her store would close. No one picked up the phone at the Heyburn store midafternoon.

Customers streamed into the Wonder Hostess Bakery Outlet in a strip mall in Indianapolis Friday afternoon after they heard about the company’s demise. Charles Selke, 42, pulled a pack of Zingers raspberry-flavored dessert cakes out of a plastic bag stuffed with treats as he left the store. “How do these just disappear from your life?” he asked. “That’s just not right, man. I’m loyal. I love these things, and I’m diabetic.”

It’s a sober end for a storied name. Hostess, whose roster of brands dates as far back as 1888, hadn’t invested heavily in marketing or innovation in recent years as it struggled with debt and management changes. As larger competitors inundated supermarket shelves with an array of new snacks and variations on popular brands, Hostess cakes seemed caught in a bygone time. The company took small stabs at keeping up with Americans’ movement toward healthier foods, such as the introduction of its 100-calorie packs of cupcakes.

Hostess’ problems ran far deeper than changing tastes, however. In January, the company filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection for the second time in less than a decade. Its predecessor company, Interstate Bakeries, filed for bankruptcy protection in 2004 and changed its name to Hostess after emerging in 2009.

Hostess, based in Irving, Texas, said it was saddled with costs related to its unionized workforce. The company had been contributing $100 million a year in pension costs for workers; the new contract offer would’ve slashed that to $25 million a year, in addition to wage cuts and a 17 percent reduction in health benefits.

Management missteps were another problem. Hostess came under fire this spring after it was revealed that nearly a dozen executives received pay hikes of up to 80 percent last year even as the company was struggling.

The company filed a motion to liquidate Friday with U.S. Bankruptcy Court. The shuttering means the loss of about 18,500 jobs. Hostess said employees at its 33 factories were sent home and operations suspended. Its roughly 500 bakery outlet stores will stay open for several days to sell remaining products.

Croatians Rejoice for Overturned Convictions

ZAGREB, Croatia (AP) • Chanting “Victory! Victory!” waving red-and-white checkered flags and dancing in the streets, tens of thousands of jubilant supporters gave two Croatian generals a hero’s welcome Friday after a U.N. war crimes tribunal overturned their convictions for murdering and expelling Serb civilians during a 1995 military blitz.

Croatians viewed the decision to release Ante Gotovina and Mladen Markac as vindication that they were the victims in the Balkan wars in the 1990s, but neighboring Serbia denounced the ruling as a scandalous injustice toward tens of thousands of its compatriots who were expelled from Croatia after an offensive led by the two.

The deep division over the generals could set back efforts to reconcile the two wartime enemies — the most bitter rivals in the Balkans.

A red carpet was laid out as a Croatian government plane carrying Gotovina and Markac from the Hague, Netherlands, touched down in Zagreb, Croatia’s capital, and the two were welcomed by Prime Minister Zoran Milanovic and other top officials. The generals later attended a packed Mass held in Zagreb’s large gothic cathedral “to thank God” for their release.

Yet the ruling produced fury in Serbia, where it was seen as further evidence of anti-Serb bias at the U.N. tribunal. Even liberal Serbs warned the ruling created a sense of injustice and could stir nationalist sentiments. Serbia’s nationalist President Tomislav Nikolic declared that the “scandalous” decision by the Hague court was clearly “political and not legal” and “will not contribute to stabilization of the situation in the region but will reopen all wounds.” Gotovina’s and Markac’s convictions were one of the few at the tribunal to punish perpetrators of atrocities against Serb civilians. The majority of criminals convicted have been Serbs.

"I don't like it; I would not vote for it; I think it needs to be repealed. But it is the law. If you default to the federal government, you forever give the keys to the state's health insurance market to the federal government."

Mississippi Insurance Commissioner Mike Chaney the day before many states are expected to tell the federal government if they're willing to carry out a key part of Pres. Obama's health care overhaul.

CHEERS AND JEERS

CHEERS to the CSI volleyball team. Though we won't know the College of Southern Idaho's final standing at the national tournament until today, the Golden Eagles earned the No. 1 overall seed for the tournament and appeared in back-to-back tournaments for the first time in almost 10 years. Back then, CSI was the juggernaut of junior college volleyball, and today the road has gotten much tougher to make perennial nationals appearances. Win or lose, it's a program those back home can be proud of.

CHEERS AND JEERS to the city of Rupert. We remain surprised and disappointed that Rupert did not retain former animal control officer Steve Mani when it assumed oversight of animal control for Minidoka County. Letting someone go who spent 10 years doing a good job for the community still seems short-sighted.

We agreed with Rupert resident Debbie Bailey who told the Times-News last month she feels Mani and his wife, Mary Jane — a volunteer at the animal control facility — played key roles in the facility's 18-month turnaround from the brink of financial disaster. Bailey said she is concerned that if Mani is not rehired by the city, all of the hard work of the past 18 months by volunteers and donors will slip away.

But 30 days under new management, the Minidoka Animal Control Facility is not only recovering but thriving, and we couldn't be happier to see it.

CHEERS to Jo Dodds of Twin Falls High School. Dodds is one of 26 U.S. teachers selected to participate in research flights over the coming year aboard NASA's Stratospheric Observatory for Infrared Astronomy. As part of the Airborne Astronomy Ambassadors program, she'll work alongside professional astronomers and participate in public outreach efforts. After 27 years in the classroom, she'll get to spend the next year deepening her knowledge of astronomy, which will translate into new ideas for her lessons at Twin Falls High School.

Beth Pendergrass, spokeswoman for the Twin Falls School District, said she thinks it's a first for the district to have a teacher participate in a NASA program.

ONLINE COMMENTS

A lively debate is going on at Magicvalley.com in response to the article, "Declo Teacher Allows Students to Draw on Faces as Reading Incentive?:"

concerned USA: "I could not believe what I was reading today, that such a thing could be done by a teacher to a class of 10-year-olds in this USA. I emailed the article to all my friends reminding them of all the fun we had during election battling back and forth between Democrats and Republicans ... I not only suggested that in the future we pick our battles and choose those deserving of our time, but that we also write and let Idaho know what we believe the school should do with this teacher and with the parents who are backing her. The teacher has been there six years, time enough to learn the do's and don'ts with children's lives. A few days out of school is not enough. It should be a couple months without pay and an experienced teacher being with her in class for the rest of the year, preferably one that loves and understands children. Cindy Hurst, this was your son. You must not take this sitting down."

Mike Tolman: "I am astounded that this has happened in today's times. Any way you look at this situation, it is still wrong. During my years at Declo, I had friends who had dif-faculty reading and never had a teacher use these types of tactics. They spent extra time working with them on reading but we would never have dreamed of painting their faces. Rather, if they were what was considered slow learners, we made sure they didn't get teased as did the teachers. I live far away now but am shamed to hear of this. My heart goes out to Leroy and Karla's grandchildren. Hopefully Supt. Smyers, will have the support to ensure this never happens again. Great teacher or not, that is a serious lapse in judgement, that is further compounded by hiding it from parents and making the children feel doubly shamed."

DetroitTiggerFan: "There is a lot of talk in education these days to make students more responsible for their own learning. So I understand the teacher's motivations for allowing her class to choose their own consequences for meeting or not meeting their AR reading goals. Obviously, she didn't think through all the consequences FOR the consequences the kids chose. Since she's receiving support from some parents she must be doing some things right. People make mistakes, that's why pencils have erasers. Teaching is often a thankless job, but next time...think things through more, Miss."

15 Senators Urge Action on Mississippi Waterway

BY JIM SALTER
Associated Press

ST. LOUIS • Fifteen senators from eight Mississippi River states are urging the Army Corps of Engineers to take steps to keep barges moving on the Mississippi.

Sens. Roy Blunt, a Missouri Republican, and Tom Harkin, an Iowa Democrat, penned the letter to Army Assistant Secretary JoEllen Darcy on Friday with 13 co-signers.

It urges the corps to delay plans to reduce the flow from a Missouri River reservoir starting around Nov. 23, which would reduce the level of the Mississippi. The letter also asks the corps to undertake work as soon as possible to remove rock pinnacles in the Mississippi River that impede barge traffic in periods of low water.

"The Mississippi River is vital to commerce for agriculture and many other goods, including our ability to export our goods," the letter stated. "If the river channel is not maintained, there will be a loss of jobs, income to many businesses and farmers, and an adverse impact to the economy of the region as a whole."

The lengthy drought has parched the nation's two largest rivers, leaving water levels dangerously low. And long-range forecasts call for the drought to extend into spring.

With that in mind, Major Gen. John Peabody, commander of the Mississippi Valley Division of the corps, announced Friday that he ordered the release of water from an upper Mississippi reservoir. Peabody said at a news conference in St. Louis the release from a reservoir in Minnesota will eventually add 3-6 inches to the river at St. Louis.

"Every inch counts and we're trying to squeeze out every inch of capacity that we have," Peabody said.

But inches fall well short of offsetting the projected drop of up to 3 feet when the corps drastically reduces the flow of the Missouri River at Gavins Point Dam in South Dakota on or around Nov. 23. Plans call for the current amount of release — 36,500 cubic feet per second — to eventually decline to 12,000 cubic feet per second over the course of several days.

Jody Farhat, chief of the Water Management Division for the Northwestern Division of the corps, said Thursday the move is necessary because of drought conditions on the upper Missouri River.

But the decision will have a huge impact on the Mississippi, south of where the two rivers merge. Corps officials have said that if the river drops another 5 feet or so at St. Louis, barge traffic may be halted.

Barges carry 20 percent of the country's coal and more than 60 percent of its grain exports. Other cargo — such as petroleum products, lumber, sand, industrial chemicals and fertilizer — also gets shipped along the Mississippi River.

Craig Philip, CEO of Ingram Barge Co., of Nashville, Tenn., said a river shutdown would hit consumers directly, creating a "ripple effect of economic loss that would be felt most heavily in the Midwest but would endanger our national prosperity as well."

Philip said businesses represented by the trade groups American Waterway Operators and the Waterways Council are seeking a presidential declaration that would take two steps to help keep the Mississippi open: Order the corps to maintain the existing flow on the Missouri; and expedite efforts to remove rock formations on the Mississippi River bottom at two locations in southern Illinois.

Current plans call for the rocks to be removed in February. Philip said they need to be taken out much sooner to keep the channel clear for barge traffic.

"This is not mere rhetoric," Philip said. "The situation is urgent. The consequences could be dire."

In addition to Blunt and Harkin, senators who signed the letter on Friday included Claire McCaskill of Missouri, Chuck Grassley of Iowa, David Vitter and Mary Landrieu of Louisiana, Richard Durbin and Mark Kirk of Illinois, Lamar Alexander of Tennessee, Thad Cochran and Roger Wicker of Mississippi, Amy Klobuchar and Al Franken of Minnesota, and Mark Pryor and John Boozman of Arkansas.

Missouri Gov. Jay Nixon and Illinois Gov. Pat Quinn have also urged the corps to reconsider the reduced flow on the Missouri. But corps officials in Omaha, Neb., say they are bound by the Missouri River Master Manual to act in the best interest of the Missouri River basin.

Corps officials in St. Louis say they've taken extraordinary measures to keep the Mississippi open as long as possible.

"It's a critical reality that we need more rain," Peabody said.

EPA Turns Down States' Request for Ethanol Waiver

BY MARY CLARE JALONICK
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Environmental Protection Agency on Friday denied requests from several governors to waive production requirements for corn-based ethanol.

A renewable fuels law requires that 13.2 billion gallons of ethanol be produced by this year and 15 billion gallons be produced by 2015. That's good for corn farmers, but it's angered poultry, hog and cattle farmers. They say they've seen big jumps in corn-based feed costs as corn is diverted to make ethanol vehicle fuel.

States requesting the waiver say reduced corn production due to this year's drought has made the problem even worse.

Gov. Mike Beebe, D-Ark., said in a letter to the EPA in August that ethanol production was taking a "terrible toll" on animal agriculture in his state and that consumers would pay more for food as a result.

Governors of North Carolina, New Mexico, Georgia, Texas, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Utah, and Wyoming also asked for the waiver, along with members of Congress and a coalition of farm groups and other industries that have opposed increased ethanol production.

The EPA said Friday that the agency has studied the effects of waiving the requirement and officials believe it would have had little impact on corn prices.

"We recognize that this year's drought has created hardship in some sectors of the economy, particularly for livestock producers," said Gina McCarthy, assistant administrator of the EPA's Office of Air and Radiation. "But our extensive analysis makes clear that congressional requirements for a waiver have not been met and that waiving the Renewable Fuel Standard will have little, if any, impact."

Under the EPA's interpretation of the renewable fuels law, first passed in 2005 and then significantly expanded in 2007, it is not easy to qualify for a waiver. The EPA can grant a waiver if the agency determines that the set ethanol production would "severely harm" the economy of a state, region or the entire country. It's not enough that the standard just contributes to the harm, the EPA said, noting the agency also has a high threshold for the degree of harm done.

A coalition of livestock, poultry and dairy organizations reacted angrily to the decision.

"We are extremely frustrated and discouraged that EPA chose to ignore the clear economic argument from tens of thousands of family farmers and livestock and poultry producers that the food-to-fuel policy is causing and will cause severe harm to regions in which those farmers and producers operate," the coalition said in a statement.

Environmental groups also have opposed increased ethanol production, saying the excess corn planting is tearing up the land.

Scott Faber, a lobbyist for the Environmental Working Group, said this most recent waiver denial may further energize ethanol opponents to lobby Congress to repeal the entire renewable fuels law and not "tinker with a safety valve that is too tight for either a Democratic or Republican administration to turn."

The Bush administration turned down a request by Texas Gov. Rick Perry in 2008 to waive the mandate because of drought in his state.

A spokesman for Perry said Friday's decision is "another punch in the gut" for states' agricultural economies.

"Congress provided relief from the Renewable Fuels Standard in the form of emergency waivers, yet the EPA continually refuses to accept requests from the states whose economies are being harmed the most," said Josh Havens.

Deputies ID Man Killed in Utah Plane Crash

MORGAN, Utah (AP) • Authorities have identified a Utah pilot dead after the single-engine plane he was piloting crashed in a rural area of Morgan County.

The Morgan County Sheriff's Office says 50-year-old Darren Tidwell of Huntsville was the sole occupant of a plane that took off from the Morgan County Airport at 6:30 a.m. Thursday en route to Logan.

Deputy Tyler Grose says the man's family began searching when his plane didn't arrive and spotted his craft in a remote area about five miles north of the airport.

Grose says Tidwell was an experienced pilot who flew in the military and as a civilian.

The FAA and the NTSB will investigate the crash.

Man Held, Uncle Sought in Nevada Highway Shooting

LAS VEGAS (AP) • A southern Nevada freeway shooting that at first appeared to be a random drive-by actually stemmed from a divorce-fueled murder plot involving a stepson recently discharged from the Army and his uncle who was recently released from prison, Las Vegas police said Friday.

Robert Bessey, 49, was shot once in the back of the neck before dawn Wednesday by someone in a gold-colored SUV that pulled alongside his car on Interstate 15, according to police reports.

Police said Bessey reported hearing a "pop" and then the rear passenger window of his car shattered before he realized he was bleeding.

He was able to drive to a nearby exit about 30 miles north of downtown Las Vegas and summon help. Police said Bessey underwent surgery and was recovering with physical therapy.

Bessey told police that he and his wife, Amy Bessey, 32, are in the process of getting a divorce, and that she referred several times recently to a life insurance policy making him worth more dead than alive. Amy Bessey has not been arrested or charged in the case.

Police traced the SUV with a distinctive rear window sticker to an acquaintance of her son, 21-year-old Michael Bessey, and found surveillance video footage of the vehicle with two men in it at a service station in Logandale not far from where the shooting occurred.

Records show that Michael Bessey, who was dishonorably discharged from the Army in May, was arrested Thursday on attempted murder and battery charges. He was being held at the Clark County jail in Las Vegas pending an initial court appearance. The name of his lawyer was not immediately available.

Michael Bessey told police that he and his uncle, Richard William Pearson, were the men in the vehicle at the service station.

Police said Pearson, who is Amy Bessey's brother, is sought on similar charges.

Records show Pearson, 39, was paroled several weeks ago from Nevada state prison. He had pleaded guilty in February to felony auto theft.

Pearson also has convictions dating to 1997 in Clark County on stolen vehicle, weapon and drug charges.

Officer Marcus Martin, a department spokesman, said investigators don't know where Pearson is.

Michael Bessey alleged during a police interview that Robert Bessey abused him and his mother, according to a police report.

Board Won't Change Assisted-suicide Policy

BY MATT GOURAS
Associated Press

HELENA, Mont. • The Montana Board of Medical Examiners rejected a request Friday to strike its policy on physician-assisted suicide that opponents criticize as too permissive.

The board earlier this year tried to provide some guidance to doctors on that issue, which remains unclear to many. The board's position was that it would consider, on an individual basis, any complaints filed against a doctor for providing "aid-in-dying."

Montanans Against Assisted Suicide asked the board to revoke that policy, saying it appears to condone a procedure they argue is illegal. The board's rejection of that request potentially paves the way for the opponents to sue.

The procedure has been surrounded by various interpretations since the Supreme Court ruled in 2009 that nothing in state law prohibits physician-assisted suicide — but it did not rule on whether the practice is a constitutionally protected right. The decision said nothing in state law, or precedent, makes the procedure illegal.

Montana effectively became the third state to allow assisted suicide along with Oregon and Washington, but left it up to the state Legislature to create laws to regulate it. Without procedures, there have been no formal updates on whether doctors are indeed offering assisted suicide or any tallies on how many times it has been done.

The Montana Legislature has been unable to reach consensus on providing clarity to the issue one way or the other.

The Montana Board of Medical Examiners said it wrote its position paper based on a request from a member. The board said its position does not pass judgment on the procedure one way or another.

"In all matters of medical practice, including end-of-life matters, physicians are held to professional standards," the position paper reads.

The board rejected the request to reconsider its decision without public comment. The board noted that the position paper was neither an administrative rule or a law, but merely informative guidance to its regulated members.

Bradley Williams, the Hamilton-based coordinator of Montanans Against Assisted Suicide, said his group formally requested the board to revoke that policy. He said the group will next ask the courts to strike the paper.

Williams said his group believes the Supreme Court decision did not legalize physician-assisted suicide, but rather gave doctors a defense they could use if charged with a crime.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church Celebrates 75 Years in Jerome

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

JEROME • St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Jerome will celebrate generations past, present and future with events Nov. 18 after turning 75 years old Nov. 15.

The church was formed Nov. 15, 1937, with 23 people who used to meet at the Jerome library.

Four years later a church was built on First Avenue and dedicated on March 15, 1942. This building served the congregation for 35 years until its numbers required a bigger building. The current church building at 1301 N. Davis was dedicated Jan. 27, 1980.

"We are currently exploring the possibility of adding onto our building to accommodate future growth," said the Rev. Lance Jennings. "There will always be room for someone else."

At St. Paul's, 12 pastors have led the congregation over the past 75 years.

Jennings was installed full-time pastor Aug. 13.

On Nov. 18, there will be a 10:30 a.m. service in word and sacrament. Following the service will be a "rocking chair time" when some of the church's long-time members share memories and stories.

Jennings said a mosaic cross made with a pew from the original church will represent the theme of the day: generations past, present and future.

Everyone will take a colored or natural-finish block and will write their name on it with a permanent marker, to be later added to the cross.

That day's 3 p.m. service will be led by Pastor

At the end a noisy offering using a tin can will be collected to give to the ministry of the Rev. Alan Ludwig of Boise, who is in Siberia.

"As it is the 75th, we're suggesting 75 cents, $7.50, $75, $750 and $75,000 (donations)," Jennings said.

The celebration will close with a reception in the Fellowship Hall where many items from the past 75 years will be on display, including newspaper clippings, photos and documents.

Catholic Charities Group Honors Twin Falls Woman

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Deb Miciak won this year's Marie D. Hoff Social Justice Achievement Award from Catholic Charities of Idaho.

The award is named for CCI's founding executive director and recognizes an individual, group or organization that seeks to engage people and promote social justice. Miciak was honored for her work as the trip coordinator for Capstone Missions, a nonprofit organization established in Jerome in 1997.

She was nominated by Capstone Missions board member Francis "Rusty" Gideon and board president Colleen Crozier.

"She's articulate and a real go-getter when it comes to social concerns," Gideon said.

Miciak, of Twin Falls, has served as the trip coordinator for Capstone Missions — which helps support orphanages in Tijuana, Mexico — for the past eight years.

Being the trip coordinator, Crozier said, means dedicating a lot of time to each mission. The missions often take weeks to plan, and then Miciak is gone for a week when traveling with the group.

In 2012, Miciak organized six trips to Tijuana, and for 2013 she has five planned. For each trip, Capstone Missions takes an average of 15 to 20 volunteers. All volunteers pay $400 to attend, which covers fuel, food and building materials for projects they construct for the orphanages while there.

One of primary goals of Capstone Missions is to provide financial security, housing and other assistance for work done in Mexico through projects such as St. Joseph Home, Hacienda de la Inmaculada and Verdad y Vida.

"Obviously I love it and have watched a number of these kids grow up," Miciak said.

Locally, Miciak has also been a member of the allocation committee of the area's United Way and a director for Valley House Homeless Shelter in Twin Falls.

Miciak first learned of Capstone Missions when her daughter went on a trip her senior year of high school.

In addition to assisting other relief ministries in Tijuana, Capstone Missions provides cross-cultural service opportunities for donors, volunteers and especially young adults and college students.

"She has a great way of engaging others, she has boundless energy and because of who she is people want to help her," Crozier said.

But Miciak is quick to point out the work she does isn't possible without the help of others.

"I'm pretty humbled. I don't do anything of this alone," Miciak said. "This takes a lot of people; this is an award for Capstone Missions."

So What Are You Thankful For?

I just love this time of year. The weather is changing, the leaves are falling and Thanksgiving is just around the corner.

Thanksgiving has to be my favorite holiday. Besides all the food and family time, Thanksgiving for me takes on the essence of my faith. As a born-again believer in the only Savior and Lord, Jesus Christ, I am just flat out thankful.

I am thankful for Jesus. I am thankful for His work on the Cross that eliminated the penalty due me for my sins. I am thankful for His power over death and His resurrection, which guarantees that one day I too will resurrect to eternal life. I am thankful for Heaven, for God's sovereignty, for God's love, for God's grace and for God's provision.

I can't help but be thankful. No matter what the circumstances in my life, as a believer in Christ, I look to God and rejoice. And what pours out of my heart is thankfulness.

Bear Morton
Pastor's Corner

Beloved, rejoicing is a command. Yes, a command. Philippians 4:4 clearly points to this truth when it says, "Rejoice in the Lord always; again I will say, rejoice!" Paul says that we must rejoice. Rejoice is an active present imperative, which means that we as believers are commanded to rejoice, always. Rejoice here means to have joy, to be glad.

And notice Paul is not saying rejoice according to our circumstances. No, rejoicing has a context. Look at the verse again; it has a small preposition attached to it. Our rejoicing springs from and aligns with the realm and character of our God. Paul says, "Rejoice in the Lord..." This has great implications for our heart. Our joy is not in our circumstances. Our joy is in the great character of our God.

Think through the setting of the book of Philippians. Paul was in prison, awaiting the outcome of his trial. Men had taken the gospel and were using it for their own purposes.

Paul, in my mind, had every reason to be filled with anxiety, but this was not the case. Paul had a deep love and conviction for the Lord. He had a living and vital relationship with Christ. He didn't let his circumstances or their possible outcome dictate his emotions. He focused in on truth. He focused in on the character of God. Paul had joy in the Lord because he knew that today's issues are for this life only. He knew this wasn't his final resting place. Paul looked to the glory of God and internally lived in light of that truth.

At the time, his circumstances were pending, yet in his heart, eternity and glory had been secured. Is it any wonder Paul commanded, "Rejoice in the Lord always; again I will say, rejoice!"

Beloved, we don't have to be shocked by today's circumstances. They shouldn't surprise us. This world will continue to have problems and they will even affect you and me, yet the focus of our hearts is the Lord. And because of who He is, we rejoice. We rejoice always, because God is in control. He is still on His throne. He will reign forever!

So what are you thankful for?

Let me help you get started. Think about the character of God. Think about His attributes. Think about His sovereignty and His promises. Is your heart rejoicing? Are you expressing your joy to Him? How about to others? In light of all that is happening in you and around you, Christian, rejoice! Again I say, rejoice! Have a great heart-filled Thanksgiving.

Praising Jesus,
Pastor Bear

Lawsuits Possible over 10 Commandments Monument

BY JUSTIN JUOZAPAVICIUS
Associated Press

TULSA, Okla. • When Oklahoma decided to place a monument of the Ten Commandments on the state Capitol grounds, officials should have considered that in many cases federal courts have ordered "Thou Shalt Not," civil rights activists said.

Republican Rep. Mike Ritz and his family paid nearly $10,000 to build and erect the 6-foot-tall granite monument authorized by the GOP-controlled Legislature in 2009 and signed into law by Democratic Gov. Brad Henry. Now that it's up, activists say they may ask that it be taken down.

"Bible edicts do not belong at the seat of state government," said Annie Laurie Gaylor, co-president of the Wisconsin-based Freedom From Religion Foundation. "The state of Oklahoma has no business telling citizens what god to believe in or what gods to believe in or to worship no god."

Courts have ruled against many similar monuments, saying they could imply that the government is endorsing religion.

Ritze said Friday the monument was a historical document — not a religious symbol — that 90 percent of state lawmakers voted to approve. "The Ten Commandments is a proper foundation of the laws we have today," Ritze said. "Like thou shalt not steal, thou shalt not kill. Part of our heritage was being lost, and we wanted to regain that."

Ryan Kiesel, the director of Oklahoma's chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, said case law would be on his group's side if it decided to sue.

"We've already seen comments from around the state, both Christians and non-Christians, who are very upset about the placement of the monument," said Kiesel, who was in the Legislature in 2009 and opposed the monument. "It's disingenuous for supporters to cast this as a purely historical document."

Three years ago, the U.S. 10th Circuit Court of Appeals ruled a similar Ten Commandments monument erected on the Haskell County Courthouse lawn in Stigler was unconstitutional.

Officials in LeFlore County floated a plan earlier this month put a Ten Commandments monument on courthouse property there. Kiesel said it was too soon to determine if the ACLU would take legal action in that matter, but advised officials there to look at the Haskell County case before taking any votes.

Ritze said Friday the monument could withstand a legal challenge and no taxpayer funds would be used to defend it because the Liberty Legal Foundation would cover all costs.

Shortly after the monument was erected Thursday, people began noticing that two spelling errors had been carved into the granite. The creators of the display misspelled Sabbath as "Sabbeth" and maidservant as "maidseruant."

Rhonda was active in voluntary community service projects including Paint Magic and the Boys and Girls Club fundraisers and ice cream socials. Rhonda has touched all the hearts of people she interacted with — causing many to love her for her outgoing personality. Rhonda loved spending her time with family going on road trips and just sitting home enjoying days with her family.

Rhonda was diagnosed in October 2010 with breast cancer and was treated at St. Luke's for a year and half. She was later diagnosed in June 2012 with late-stage cancer. She furthered her treatment at the Cancer

Centers of America in Tulsa, Okla.

She was preceded in death by her nephew, Skylar Waddoups; and her mother, Chrystal Urrutia. Rhonda is survived by her husband and their four children.

Rhonda will be loved and missed by her family, friends, and all those who knew her.

Our Heavenly Father has received an Angel!

A celebration of Rhonda's life will be held at 2 p.m. Monday, Nov. 19, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls, with Pastor Paul Springer officiating. Ford Rotunda
Evokes Memories
50 Years after Fire

DETROIT (AP) • A classmate listening to a transistor radio broke the news — the Ford Rotunda was on fire.

Michael Birrell, then 12, pedaled his bike about 3 miles from Dearborn's St. Alphonsus school to Schaefer and Rotunda Drive, and watched a piece of his childhood burn. "When I got there, the place was pretty much done," recalled Birrell, now 62. "It was overwhelming."

The Nov. 9, 1962, Ford Rotunda fire remains etched in the memories of many metro Detroiters, even 50 years later. The Art Deco structure was a major tourist destination, especially around Christmas, when families came from all over to see its dazzling holiday displays.

Built to resemble a stack of gears for the 1933-34 Chicago World's Fair, the Rotunda was dismantled and reconstructed with stronger materials, then placed across from what was then Ford's world headquarters in Dearborn in 1936.

It closed during World War II. When the Rotunda reopened in 1953, it was topped with candles to resemble a giant birthday cake as part of Ford Motor's 50th anniversary celebration. The open-air center courtyard had been capped with a plastic-paneled geodesic dome.

The Rotunda was used as an exhibition space, visitors center for people coming for tours of Ford's Rouge complex and as a showcase for the latest Ford products. Outside, a road with stretches of cobblestone and other materials represented roadways of the world.

Birrell said on the day of the fire, workers were applying a weather-proofing resin, similar to roofing tar, to the dome. The resin had to be pumped up through a hose from the ground and reheated once it reached the roof. A fire broke out on the roof. Soon, flames and melting plastic were dripping down into the Rotunda, where preparations were well under way for that year's holiday display.

While the fire destroyed the Rotunda in less than an hour, firefighters succeeded in saving the archives that were in one wing of the building.

Today, the site is home to Henry Ford Community College buildings. But Birrell said he still thinks of the Rotunda when he drives by.

"It was a great loss," he said, "especially at Christmastime."

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"Be careful what you wish for; you may receive it."
— W.W. Jacobs

Bidding is all about exchanging information with partner, but in bridge, all this information is also available to the opponents. So, a good bidder is selective, telling partner what he needs to know, but keeping quiet when the information is more likely to be of use to the opponents.

East's double of two diamonds was really foolish. If his partner couldn't lead the fourth suit without the double, then it would probably not be right anyway. Look at what actually happened.

West's natural choice of lead against four spades, with such a good holding in declarer's first suit, might well have been a trump, but East's double deflected him. Instead, he chose the diamond 10, which ran to declarer's ace. Declarer played the heart queen, won by East, who switched to a trump rather than cash the diamond king and set up dummy's queen. Declarer won the trump shift in dummy, played a heart to his jack, a spade to dummy, cashed the heart king while discarding a diamond, ruffed a heart, and ruffed a club.

Declarer now played the winning heart from dummy. East had to ruff this, and declarer discarded a club. East then played the club ace, and declarer found a very nice maneuver when he discarded a diamond from dummy rather than ruff and endplay himself. East now had no option but to play a diamond, which declarer ran to dummy's queen. That let him crossruff the last two tricks.

ANSWER: Be careful! You would like to cuebid to set up a gameforce here, but many people would play a bid of two hearts as natural. A cuebid of two diamonds is unambiguously forcing and should get partner to bid a four-card spade suit if he has one. If he doesn't, you can head for three no-trump.

Bil and Jeff Keane

“Ham is easy to carve up ’cause it doesn’t come with drumsticks or wings.”

Today is Saturday, Nov. 17, the 322nd day of 2012. There are 44 days left in the year.

Today’s Highlight:
On Nov. 17, 1962, Washington Dulles International Airport was dedicated by President John F. Kennedy.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1558, Elizabeth I acceded to the English throne upon the death of Queen Mary.
In 1800, Congress held its first session in Washington in the partially completed Capitol building.
In 1869, the Suez Canal opened in Egypt.
In 1911, the African-American fraternity Omega Psi Phi was founded at Howard University in Washington, D.C.
In 1917, French sculptor Auguste Rodin died in Meudon at age 77.
In 1934, Lyndon Baines Johnson married Claudia Alta Taylor, better known as Lady Bird, in San Antonio, Texas.
In 1962, the musical comedy “Little Me,” starring Sid Caesar in seven roles, opened on Broadway.
In 1969, the first round of Strategic Arms Limitation Talks between the United States and the Soviet Union opened in Helsinki, Finland.
In 1973, President Richard Nixon told Associated Press managing editors in Orlando, Fla.: “People have got to know whether or not their president is a crook. Well, I’m not a crook.”
In 1979, Iran’s Ayatollah Khomeini ordered the release of 13 black and/or female American hostages being held at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.
In 1987, a federal jury in Denver convicted two white supremacists of civil rights violations in the 1984 slaying of radio talk show host Alan Berg. (Both men later died in prison.)
In 1997, 62 people, most of them foreign tourists, were killed when militants opened fire at the Temple of Hatshepsut in Luxor, Egypt; the attackers were killed by police.

Ten years ago: Abba Eban, the statesman who helped persuade the world to approve creation of Israel and dominated Israeli diplomacy for decades, died near Tel Aviv; he was 87.

Five years ago: U.S. Deputy Secretary of State John Negroponte delivered a blunt message to Pakistan’s military ruler, President Gen. Pervez Musharraf, telling him emergency rule had to be lifted and his opponents freed ahead of elections. A Nobel-winning U.N. scientific panel said in a landmark report released in Valencia, Spain, that the Earth was hurtling toward a warmer climate at a quickening pace.

One year ago: Occupy Wall Street protesters clogged streets and tied up traffic around the U.S. to mark two months since the movement’s birth and signal they weren’t ready to quit, despite the breakup of many of their encampments by police. Clayton Kershaw of the Los Angeles Dodgers won the NL Cy Young Award. Baseball owners unanimously approved the sale of the Houston Astros from Drayton McLane to Jim Crane, which will lead to the team moving from the NL Central to the AL West for the 2013 season. Demi

IF NOVEMBER 17 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your potential has a chance to shine brightly in the year ahead. Take good care of your health and don't overdo exercise during the next four to six weeks by taking on activities that you aren't in condition to attempt. Get a personal trainer, join a health club or otherwise find a support group to guide you. In April love might come along, tapping on your chamber door. That relationship might enter a new stage of commitment if it's meant to be in May and June. A permanent improvement may brighten your life during that time period, for instance a job offer or a special opportunity, or the answer to one of your prayers.

HOROSCOPE
 Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Pretty is as pretty does. A determination to do your own thing can seem exhilarating, but might create a barricade that excludes others. Go ahead and share some of your sizzling secrets.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your amorous antics should meet with positive reviews. You have no intention of being lonely tonight. When you passionately seek someone's exclusive company, that person will know your care.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Reach out and touch someone. Go out and meet new people and make new friends. A romantic interest could be at the top of the list. Follow a friend's lead when involved in group activities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Dreams aren't just for sleeping anymore. You may find that sharing some of your secret fantasies and flights of fancy with someone else will help you find ways to make at least one of them a reality.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Dust off your cape. You are certain to be someone's superhero this weekend. Keep the praise and compliments you receive in perspective; don't let it go to your head. A hot new romance could blossom.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You might be considered a force of nature. Your fearless nature will not allow you to back away from a challenge. A passing flirtation with a member of the opposite sex could heat up the room.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): There is no reason to do a job alone when a special someone would be thrilled to be by your side. Buy something to delight the senses. Turn up the music; it's easy to find a willing partner to share delights.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Search for quality rather than just pretty packaging. You may meet someone dressed in a plain brown wrapper who offers everything you have searched for romantically, so be observant.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Double your pleasure. Hook up, pair off or grab a partner for a few rounds of old fashioned do-si-do. There is nothing square about dancing with someone who is in complete harmony.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Friends are wonderful, but lovers may be better. You may wish to be more than just friends with a certain someone. Be persistent and remain true to what you feel and you may find success.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): New friends or a change of scenery will do much to improve your outlook and perspective. A change of pace could be just what the doctor ordered. Have an adventure with someone who's romantically inclined.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): It takes one to know one. Don't expect others to fulfill their commitments if you aren't willing to honor yours. Proof that someone is true blue and trustworthy comes to you from unexpected quarters.

THE KINGS OF DECLO

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

POCATELLO • In the sea of high-fives and hugs, someone handed Kelly Kidd the blue Idaho-shaped trophy.

A giant smile emerged between the old coach's tear-stained cheeks as he held the Class 2A state football championship hardware in his hands like it was a newborn baby. Then, like a scene from Disney's

The Lion King, Kidd hoisted it above his head to the delight of hundreds of Declo fans packed in Holt Arena.

The long-awaited first state football championship in the history of Declo High school was a product of gritty defense, a punishing run game, keen coaching and a little bit of luck.

Moments after second-ranked Declo put the finishing touches on an undefeated (12-0) season with a

22-12 victory over top-ranked Firth (11-1) on Friday, Kidd reflected on his 17 seasons as Declo's head coach, during which the Hornets have a 140-39 record, 11 conference championships, but, until Friday, no state titles.

"I'm very blessed to have such great kids," said Kidd.

Those kids took turns making great plays, as Declo scored 16 fourth-quarter points and held surefire 2A Player of the Year Mitch Orme and Firth's high-octane offense - which had averaged 43 points per game this season - in check.

"We knew we weren't going to beat them in the first half. They're too good of a team to do that," said senior captain Jack Darrington. "We knew it would take all four quarters to grind them down."

Orme rushed for 104 yards, but 62 of that came on one carry in the first half.

"We knew we had to contain Orme, he's a really good player. But not just him; their whole team is a CSI volleyball team beats back giant San Jacinto-Central team to reach NJCAA Division I Tournament final.

BY DAVID BASHORE

WEST PLAINS, Mo. • For a No. 1 seed, it still felt like David going up against Goliath.

Of course, the little guy won again. Faced with a taller, more athletic, better blocking team - three of the College of Southern Idaho volleyball team's hallmarks in its own right - CSI found a way to beat back San Jacinto-Central (Texas) 25-23, 27-25, 14-25, 25-20 on Friday night to reach its second NJCAA Division I Tournament championship round in four seasons.

"This is unbelievable," said right-sided hitter Keani Passi, who watched on last season as Blinn (Texas) beat Western Wyoming, thinking it should have been her team playing. "We've worked really hard for this, and had to do some things we really didn't want to. But we've made all the changes and pulled together, and now we're just a match away."

Passi and Liene Melleupe both had 15 kills, anchoring an attack that had 56 total put-aways.

CSI (32-1) had to do it the hard way, finding ways to win when its opponent dominated the stat categories. San Jacinto-Central had more blocks (13.5-3), digs (76-63) and fewer errors (30-40). The Golden Eagles won the service aces (9-2) and kills (56-49).

But they threw themselves around on defense and made the extra effort that got them over the top.

"We just want it so much. I don't want anything more than I want that championship," said Melleupe.

CSI benefited from a telling second set. Facing four set points, a tip went over and was clearly going out, but was inexplicably touched by a San Jacinto-Central player. The Golden Eagles capitalized on the mistake, tying the set at 24-all and benefiting from a couple of ball-handling errors to take the set and a 2-0 lead.

CSI Men Narrowly Win, CSI Women Fall

Friday afternoon against Western Nebraska Community College in the Casper Challenge, the College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team shot 32 percent from the field, was outrebounded 42-37, committed 21 turnovers and made just three out of 20 three pointers.

And of the two leads CSI held throughout the game, it kept the only one that mattered, winning 68-67 in Casper, Wyo.

Center Billy Reader banked a shot off the glass with nine seconds left and the Golden Eagles forced a turnover on WNCC's final possession to move its record to 5-1 on the season.

"The guys played hard, never gave up and kept believing they would find a way," head coach Steve Gosar said on 102.9 F.M. "That's why I love this team. There will be nights where we don't make shots."

The Golden Eagles were down by as many as 14 in the first half, but made an 18-5 run to close the gap to one by halftime. CSI let Western Nebraska pull away with a ten point lead in the second half, but took a brief lead in the final eight minutes. CSI was down 67-61 with just over two minutes left before Jaysean Paige hit

Last season, Lighthouse Christian qualified for the playoffs for the first time in school history. The Lions then shocked everyone by running through the playoffs to win the state title, including a 46-0 pasting of Salmon River in the opening round.

Rams' Hope To Build Success Faces Test in Boise State

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOISE • Colorado State is coming off its best win of the year, a blowout victory over UNLV that has given first-year coach Jim McElwain the chance to preach to his young team the importance of building on success.

Fueled by 24 first-half points and a flurry of turnovers, the Rams rolled over the Rebels 33-11 in Fort Collins, Colo., last Saturday.

McElwain says the challenge he's presenting to his players this week is bringing the focus, preparation and intensity level they brought into the UNLV game into Saturday's matchup with Boise State. Colorado State (3-7, 2-4 Mountain West) has won two of its last three games and one more win would be the most victories in a season since a 7-6 mark in 2008.

"In developing a foundation here, the important thing from here on out is understanding what got you there, the consistency and performance on a daily basis," McElwain said. "Boise State understands about consistency. For our guys, it's are they going to be one-hit wonders? This is where the learning curve for us is so important."

For the Rams, the road to posting back-to-back wins for the first time this season has one major road block: a Boise State defense that has been one of the best in the nation all season.

The Broncos (8-2, 5-1 Mountain West) are in a tie for first place with San Diego State and Fresno State, and for more than a dozen seniors, Saturday's home finale will be their last at Bronco Stadium.

"It's gone by quick," said defensive tackle Darren Koontz, one of a handful of seniors who finally got a chance to start on defense this season. "We've all wanted to lead the team, and now we get to go out there and be leaders of the team" one last time.

The defense has been dominant all season and is the biggest reason the Broncos are in position to win, or share the conference crown and are prime candidates to play in one of the top bowl games under contract with the Mountain West. Boise State held Hawaii to minus-14 yards rushing and 240 total yards on offense in a 49-14 rout last week. Coming into Saturday's game, the Broncos are allowing a paltry 14.4 points per game, eighth best nationally, and a pass defense that is ranked fifth nationally.

The defense will again be without starting safety Lee Hightower, who was suspended last month for violating team rules and has missed three games so far. But the outstanding play of senior cornerbacks Jamar Taylor and Jerrell Gavins has offset Hightower's absence in a secondary that has given up just two touchdowns through the air all season.

On paper, the Broncos appear to be heading into the game with a clear advantage over a Rams offense featuring youth at quarterback and tailback. Redshirt freshman Conner Smith will be making his fourth career start after taking over for M.J. McPeck, who was injured in the Oct. 13 game against San Diego State.

Smith has completed 64 percent of his passes for 715 yards and three TDs, but he's also thrown five interceptions. He was 16 of 27 for 109 yards in last week's win over UNLV, but the Rams didn't need him to do much more thanks to a pair of turnovers the defense turned into scores and a breakout game by freshman running back Donnell Alexander.

With the two teams trading punches, Salmon River held a 23-22 halftime lead.

Lighthouse Christian delivered the opening salvo in the third quarter. A blocked punt by Garrett Lee led to 12-yard TD pass from Bosma to Berndt and gave the Lions a 30-23 lead. Then Salmon River seized control.

After losing the lead, the Savages took it back on a gritty nine-play, 55-yard drive that included a fourth-and-10 conversion when Terrun Solman made an acrobatic toe-tap catch along the sideline.

Caleb Hackler's 2-yard TD reception and his ensuing 2-point conversion catch put Salmon River ahead 31-30 with 1:30 left in the third quarter.

Then Salmon River forced Lion turnovers on consecutive possessions, scoring both times to take a 45-30 lead with 7:29 remaining. But it was an onside kick recovery by Salmon River on the next kickoff that all but ensured victory for the Savages. Desperate to get the ball and get back in the game, Lighthouse Christian didn't run its second offensive play from scrimmage until there was less than 3:30 remaining.

While van Vliet lamented the loss and the departure of a talented senior class, he remained upbeat about the Lions' future.

"Three years ago, many of these same kids were just finishing up a 3-6 season. But we've had two incredible runs through the playoffs, and you can see these guys starting to gain a lot of confidence," he said.

"You always hate to make it to this game and lose, but we had a great season, and we've got a lot of talented players returning at key positions that I think will put us in a good position going into next season."

Former CSI Championship Duo Reunites at CI

BY MIKE STETSON
Idaho Press-Tribune

CALDWELL • Best friends. National champions. A daunting duo at the net.

All are perfect descriptions of College of Idaho seniors Jessica Peacock and Torrey Hulsey, who along with the rest of the 14th-ranked Coyotes, host Menlo (Calif.) on Saturday at 4 p.m. in an opening-round NAIA National Tournament match.

"It Feels amazing," Hulsey said of Saturday's match, the winner of which advances to the field of 24 for pool play beginning Nov. 27 in Sioux City, Iowa. "At the beginning of the year I knew this was one of our goals and I'm glad we're finally reaching it, and now we just have to go out and win this game to actually get to Iowa."

"The fans mean a lot, so it'll be nice to play in front of them again, one last time," added Peacock.

Of course, the two seniors mean a lot to the Coyotes (21-6), as well.

The 6-foot-2 opposite hitter, Peacock, is the team's kill leader (294) and is third in digs (214) and blocks (59) after red-shirting last season while recovering from surgery for a torn labrum in her hitting shoulder.

"I'm lucky," Peacock said of overcoming the potential career-ending injury she suffered in practice. "I've had a lot of help from (coach) Liz (Mendiola), she's real understanding if I need to take a day [off] here or there."

Then there is 6-1 middle blocker, Hulsey, an honorably mention all-American last season who is second on the team in kills (250) and blocks (78), and was named Cascade Conference Player of the Year earlier this week.

"It was unexpected, I still can't believe it," Hulsey said. "It feels great. My senior year, getting that award feels really good."

Both are vital parts of a deep Coyote team that has five players with triple-digit kills and triple-digits digs.

"They're a huge part of our offense, both of them, offense and defense," Mendiola said, adding, "... they both have a lot of pressure riding on them to come in and perform well for us, but they both have the experience to handle that pressure well."

That experience comes from playing at the College of Southern Idaho, where the duo became best friends as freshmen in 2008, and led the Golden Eagles to the 2009 NJCAA National Championship.

The two parted ways after that season as Hulsey went to West Virginia and Peacock to San Diego State.

But Hulsey didn't get the chance to play for the Mountaineers and transferred to the C of I. That injury cut short Peacock's time at SDSU, and she transferred to the Caldwell college to recoup and play a final season.

"It's been a dream come true, she's one of my best friends and she's so amazing to play with," Hulsey said of the reunion.

Now they'll finish their collegiate careers together sometime in the coming weeks at the national tournament.

"Whatever happens, we just want to play our game and play our best, and if we do that we really can't come away with any regrets," Peacock said. "If we do that I think we can be very successful."

BURLEY • The Bobcats lost for the first time at the hands of the visiting Grizzlies. Burley rebounded Skyline, but cold shooting was a major factor in the first loss of the season by Burley.

"We shot 26 percent," said Burley coach Roger Caresia. "That kind of shooting isn't going to beat good teams."

Nicole Breidenbach and Brooklyn Anderson of Skyline were the high scorers for the game with 15 points. Aubrie Vale and Brooke Bowers led Burley with 12 points each.

PRESTON • Too many turnovers and a lack of good shooting was the story in the road loss by the Spartans to the Indians.

dence," Passi said of the difference between going up 2-0 and heading to the third set tied 1-1. "We just kept fighting, even when they got it to 24. (CSI coach Heidi Cartisser) said it didn't matter what the score was, to just keep going and we got (the set)."

Now CSI turns its full attention to the championship match. The Golden Eagles will go for an unprecedented 10th championship, against the 2010 champion Western Nebraska, the team responsible for the Golden Eagles' only loss this season.

That match is at 5:30 MST tonight.

Lighthouse

But this season, the Savages were more than ready to handle Lighthouse Christian.

Salmon River (10-2) used a dominating performance in the second half to take command of the game and sideline Lighthouse Christian (9-3) and its potent offense.

"We made a lot of mistakes tonight, and they were all very costly," Lighthouse Christian coach John van Vliet said. "We moved the ball well on offense and didn't have any problems scoring. But we couldn't get on the field in the fourth quarter because of all our turnovers. You just can't make mistakes like the kind we made tonight and expect to win."

After Lighthouse Christian's opening possession, it looked like the Lions might be on their way to another rout, marching 75 yards in seven plays in less than two minutes.

The drive culminated in a 11-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Logan Bosma to Eli Berndt. Adam Taylor added the two-point conversion to give the Lions an 8-0 lead.

But Salmon River stormed back to tie the game when quarterback Leighton VanderEsch lumbered into the end zone on a busted play from a yard out.

The Lions responded with a quick drive, retaking the lead on a 5-yard TD run by Bosma. But the two-point conversion attempt failed, leaving the Lions with a 14-8 advantage.

However, Salmon River returned the ensuing kickoff for a touchdown and added an extra point to take its first lead at 15-14 with 2:19 left in the first quarter.

RYAN HOWE • TIMES-NEWS

Declo quarterback Kai Garner (8) follows blockers Drexton Thrall, left, and Jason Gillette during the Hornets' 22-12 win over Firth in the Class 2A state championship Friday at Holt Arena in Pocatello.

hout. "On the line there were a lot of punches thrown. You just have to do your best every play to get that yardage."

Firth limited Declo to 258 total yards, half its season average. Defense, turnovers and field position would be the difference.

"We've since on our defense, even since we were kids," Garner said. "They say defense wins championships and it did tonight."

Early in the fourth quarter, Garner capped a nine-

Orme - now lined up at quarterback - to drive the Cougars. He tossed a 27-yard touchdown pass to Liem Lucas with 4:25 to go. However, Orme's two-point conversion pass fell incomplete, keeping it a two-score ballgame at 22-12.

Hanson's third interception with 1:29 left finally sealed the Declo victory.

"What I'll remember is we did it together," said Darrington. "We didn't have one player that burned them. We had so many guys who pitched in. Our team wasn't centered around one guy."

As the Hornets are fully aware, having narrowly lost state title games in 2008 and 2009, a little luck goes a long ways. On Friday, Declo fumbled twice, but recovered both.

"Because we've been so close and it didn't happen, you wonder if you're going to be here again," Kidd said. "You work so hard and so long to achieve the ultimate in high school football. You don't get a lot of opportunities, and these kids made the best of their opportunity"

GREEN MIDDLEKAUFF'S QUOTE OF THE DAY
"Let's choose today to quench our thirst for the 'good life' we think others lead by acknowledging the good that already exists in our lives. We can then offer the universe the gift of our grateful hearts."

a transition three and then dunked after a turnover to pull within one, eventually setting up the dramatic final shot.

While the Golden Eagles struggled to get shots to fall inside until late - 13 were blocked—their comeback started on the defensive end.

"We just didn't come out of gates ready to play," Gosar said. "I don't know why we have such slow starts. Guys have to shoot the ball and they have to be ready to compete. Thankfully we found the right combination; turned them over 28 times and Kareem (Storey) and Montigo Alford were big parts of those 28 turnovers, forcing their guards to make plays."

Alford has been the best CSI player so far, igniting the team on both ends of the floor. He had four assists, six rebounds and 16 points on Friday. But it was Storey, who did not play last week, that finally gave CSI the lineup advantage it sought - he was Gosar's player of the game. "It was kind of tough because I hadn't played in about a week," Storey said. "My teammates helped me get back in rhythm and helped me stay confident when I was out. They kept my spirits high. In this game my job was to get in and get the energy up because we came out kind of flat." Paige had 16 points, while Juwan Newman added seven points and six rebounds. Reader scored seven. The Golden Eagles will play Casper Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

CSI WOMEN FALL
The College of Southern Idaho women's basketball team lost its second consecutive game, 76-61 to Northern Oklahoma in the Midland NIT tournament in Midland, Texas. Patrice Toston led the Golden eagles in scoring for a second consecutive game. "They hit a halftime three to go up two," head coach Randy Rogers said. "They got to the free throw line and we weren't moving our feet on defense." Northern Oklahoma hit 57 percent of their shots from the three point line, and 24 of 28 from the free throw line. "We had lots and lots of hustle," Roger said. "We just were not making plays in crunch time."
