'Medicaid Health Home' Program To Launch

The project has already selected 24 providers to participate in the pilot project. Family Health Services was the only provider selected to participate in south-central Idaho.

TWIN FALLS • As Idaho waits to see if it will expand its Medicaid eligibility requirements, state officials are working to improve the program's participants' access to care.

By January 2013, Idaho's Medicaid officials will launch the Medicaid Health Home program intended to improve the system's 230,000 participants' quality of care.

Under the health care reform law, states have the option of expanding their Medicaid eligibility enrollment to people under 65 who make 133 percent of the federal poverty level ($23,050 for a family of four is considered poverty level and $11,031 for a one-person household).

However, a lesser known piece of the law encourages states to use Medicaid health homes to enhance efficiency of care while reducing the overall health care costs.

How? The success of the program relies heavily on the patient's primary care physician. Each participating physician will work with a clinical care team that works with medical specialists, nurses, and pharmacy services to meet the needs of the patient.

The new program also requires implementing quality measurements to be set in place to track the improvement of care for the patient.

"We're hoping to see cost saving," said Matt Wimmer, bureau chief with medical care with the Department of Health and Welfare. "For example, a patient could see a decrease in nursing admissions and that's one less cost!"

Tips for Giving this Season

TWIN FALLS • As the holiday season quickly approaches so does the season of giving.

Many local nonprofit organizations are hosting Thanksgiving dinners while others are distributing turkey dinners to needy families.

With a community still feeling the effects of an economic downturn, nonprofits are also struggling to meet the growing need in south-central Idaho. Most organizations need your help.

However, before you go digging through the food pantry, consider these points.

You Can Help

Contact for organizations mentioned in this story:

Mary and Marth Food Pantry: 539-7285

SCCAP: 733-9351

Salvation Army: 733-8720

Helping Hands and Hearts: 934-5101

gling to meet the growing need in south-central Idaho. Most organizations need your help. However, before you go digging through the food pantry, consider these points.

Call Ahead

Most charitable organizations are keeping the same business hours throughout the week. Calling ahead to get exact addresses and food drop-off times might save you an unnecessary trip to a site that might be closed.

For example, Jerome's Mary and Martha Food Pantry is open on Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Sundays but the time varies each day. Gooding's Helping Hands and Hearts distributes Monday through Friday but the hours also vary throughout the week.

This leads us to our next point ...

On a chilly Friday morning, the college's dormitory housing commission took a tour of the construction site.

The project — which includes 40 two-bedroom units — is scheduled to be complete in June. Students will move into the new apartments next school year.

The two-story complex is located between Falls Avenue West and Robbins Avenue West in Twin Falls.

Work began over the summer after CSI trustees awarded a $6.18 million construction contract to Starr Corp. in May.

The project includes four buildings, each with 10 apartments. On Site superintendent Mike Chupa, front, has a hearty laugh while on a tour with the Dormitory Housing Commission Friday at the site of the College of Southern Idaho's new student apartment complex in Twin Falls.

Friday, crews were doing external work on the structures.

"We're moving in a U shape," site supervisor Mike Chupa said, describing how crews complete a project for one building and then move to the next one.

He said roofing on the buildings is complete.

In about two weeks, temperature heaters will be brought in to allow crews to do interior building work.

During the Friday tour, the dormitory housing commission looked around inside one of the apartments.

Vice president of administration Mike Mason told the group that each apartment is about 950 square feet.

Walls are up and there's a distinctive space set aside for each bedroom, bathroom, living room and kitchen.

Outside, the apartment complex will feature two bridges connecting the buildings, as well as a courtyard.

Become a Living Thanksgiving

One's greatest achievement in life is not measured by the greatness of the event. It's measured by how far you had to climb, and what little support and resources you had to reach the achievement.

- Elmer L. Towns

Most of us have some beautiful people who helped us get where we are in life. Friends and family stood by us even when we stumbled and fell. We learned the importance of healthy connections.

Mom's faith inspired our family after the divorce. Every night, she knelt beside her bed and prayed aloud for God to guide each one of us. Her faith held us together when my brother, Jerry, was stabbed in Vancouver, British Columbia. He lay in a coma for a week, required 56 pints of blood, and the doctors gave him little hope of recovery.

Mom told the press, "He's in God's hands; he'll be OK."

Jerry fully recovered, married his beautiful bride, raised a family and became a successful businessman. He lived his life as a thank you for a second chance. He built a legacy of hope and faith for his family and community.

Albert Pine said, "What we do for ourselves dies with us. What we do for others and the world remains, and is immortal."

A teenage boy saw a film about the AIDS epidemic in Africa that orphaned more than 15 million children. He decided to do something about it. In 2004, Austin Gutwein started a charity called Hoops of Hope. He shot 2,057 foul shoots that day

Loyd Bakewell
Words of Encouragement to raise almost $3,000.

People he had never met wanted to donate. Once he got started, others realized that they also could do something significant. This organization with its multiple supporters has now raised over $2.5 million for the construction of two medical clinics, a computer laboratory and multiple water projects, as well as the funding of a dormitory at an orphanage in Kenya and a school in India.

Ordinary people who are motivated to do something for someone else can achieve wonderful results when they undertake a project of caring. We all have something to give, no matter how small it may seem to us. That's how we become a living thanksgiving.

Friends have brought about important turning points in my life that continue to help me find my way. I appreciate Raymond for his acceptance in a new school. I couldn't play basketball like him, but he helped me find my own strengths and use them to serve others.

I know what abuse and neglect do to children. That's why my wife and I became foster parents to 42 boys. It provided a way to say "thank you" for the life experiences that gave me understanding to become a caring foster parent.

Thanks to all the beautiful people who dream and still include others. This Thanksgiving, let's take down the walls that divide us and build some bridges of understanding to better serve each other.

College Road, Twin Falls.

The services are provided by CSI dental hygiene students, under supervision of a dentist. Sealants are plastic coatings applied to molars to prevent tooth decay and reduce the chance of cavities.

Cost is $5 to $20 per child, depending on number of sealants applied.

Schedule an appointment: Andie Dayley, 732-6751.

"To do for you" is a listing of health-related activities, events and education. Submit information by noon Wednesday for publication in the following Monday's edition: rramona@magicvalley.com.

Food

What to Give?

Sometimes an organization needs that the extra can of tomato soup taking up space in your pantry. Other organizations may need a cash donation because volunteers will purchase the items needed for a Thanksgiving food box.

It's always wise to call ahead to learn what the organization needs before making a trip, said Leanne Trappen, community services director for South Central Community Action Partnership.

"A lot of organizations accept money," Trappen said. "SCCAP is accepting turkeys along with cash donations this year."

Giving early is also helpful, said Rose Gremmer, social services director for the Salvation Army in Twin Falls.

The Salvation Army isn't passing out Thanksgiving food boxes but they are currently collecting turkeys for their Christmas dinners.

"We accept at all times but when we get them early we get a better idea of how many people we can serve," she said.

Is it Staying Local?

With traumatic events like Hurricane Sandy impacting thousands along the East Coast, the demand for food assistance across the nation is high.

Giving food out of state should never be discouraged, but people need to keep in mind that there is still a need in their local community, Trappen said.

"Our community is extremely generous," she said. "But with everything going on, we are coming up short on our food donations. We have felt the impact. We need people to give locally, too."

Apartments

Mason said students will pay about $750 per month for an apartment. That includes utilities, cable and Internet.

If students who want to live in the complex don't have a roommate, CSI housing employees will make an assignment.

Originally, the apartment complex was slated for construction east of the CSI Expo Center near the Green Acres Subdivision, but more than 300 residents signed a petition opposing the project. Dozens testified during Twin Falls City Council meetings last year. In response, city council members rejected a zoning change that would have allowed apartments at that location.

After college administrators chose a new location, the council approved a zoning change in October 2011.

That allowed the project to move forward.

Northern Idaho Officials Wary of Invasive Mussels

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (AP) • Failing to prevent invasive zebra and quagga mussels from clogging northern Idaho waterways could end up costing the state $100 million, officials in northern Idaho say.

Officials at a Pacific Northwest Economic Region meeting Thursday in Coeur d'Alene predicted an infestation of Idaho would damage fisheries, hydropower production, tourism and agriculture.

"The impact of these mussels is beyond anybody's wildest thought process," said Rep. Eric Anderson, R-Priest Lake. "These species out-compete all other things in the ecology when they're introduced."

Amy Ferriter, invasive species coordinator at the Idaho Department of Agriculture, said if the mussels enter Idaho there are no real control options. She said testing has determined mussels currently aren't in Inland Northwest Waters.

Idaho has 15 mandatory boat inspection stations at its borders. Ferriter said it would be too expensive to have inspection stations at the state's 240 public boat launches, the Coeur d'Alene Press reported.

"Our budget is only $850,000 per year," she said. Ferriter noted that in the past four years, boats from every state but Delaware have entered Idaho.

"This was really staggering to us how far people will bring their boats," she said.

In 2012, workers intercepted 57 boats that had mussels attached. That's up from three boats found with mussels in 2009. Ferriter said boats should be cleaned before heading for Idaho. At stations, they're cleaned before being allowed to continue. She said most of the boats carrying mussels are coming from Lake Mead, on the Arizona-Nevada border.

"The economic impacts are really critical to our province," said Gail Wallin, executive director of the nonprofit Invasive Species Council of British Columbia.

The Northwest Power and Conservation Council, represented by Phil Rockefeller at Thursday's economic leadership forum, works to balance fish protection with economical and reliable hydropower production.

"It makes more sense to prevent for as long as we can, and as successfully as we can, the onset or arrival of this type of infestation," Rockefeller said. "Once imbedded, we won't be getting rid of it, and we will be obliged to pay for this."

2 Duck Hunters Found Dead

MAGNA, Utah (AP) • Two 25-year-old duck hunters died after their boat capsized on the Great Salt Lake while they were heading back to shore, authorities said.

Logan Hardman of West Jordan and Chad Tohinaka of Salt Lake City died Saturday night, while a 24-year-old friend managed to swim safely to shore, said Unified Police Department Lt. Justin Hoyal.

The trio began hunting early Saturday afternoon and their boat overturned a few hours later after the weather suddenly turned bad, Hoyal said. Waves swamped the boat, causing it to capsize and plunge all three men into the 47-degree water.

The third man swam about a half-mile to shore for help, while the bodies of the other two were found floating in the lake late Saturday night.

Hardman's brother, Matt, told The Salt Lake Tribune that the two victims had been friends since first grade.

"They did everything together," he said. "And they both ended up going together."

Matt Hardman said all three men in the boat were very experienced hunters.

"It's something they did all the time and loved," he said, adding his brother leaves behind a wife and two children, 3 and 1.

The third man, whose name wasn't released, was treated at the scene for minor injuries.

He was walking on a frontage road when Great Salt Lake Marina State Park harbormaster Dave Shearer picked him up in a truck.

"He was cold but with it (mentally)," Shearer told The Tribune. "He said they had capsized and they stayed with the boat for 15 minutes before he told them he was going to swim in for help and the other two were going to stay with the boat. As soon as he told me the boat had capsized, we went back out to look for them."

Hoyal said at least one personal flotation device was in the boat, but he didn't know if anyone was wearing it.

IDAHO HUNTERS KILL 96 WOLVES

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (AP) • Idaho officials say hunters have killed 96 wolves so far in the 2012-2013 hunting season.

Idaho Fish and Game officials tell the Coeur d'Alene Press that through Thursday 16 wolves have been killed in Idaho's Panhandle wolf zones since the season opened Aug. 30.

Also on Thursday the 2012-2013 wolf trapping season opened and runs through March 31 in the Panhandle zone.

Phil Cooper of Idaho Fish and Game says it's difficult to determine how the pace of this season's wolf harvest season compares to last season. The statewide total for the 2011-2012 wolf season was 255 killed by hunters and 124 killed by trappers.

Cooper says trappers are learning how to be successful, while hunters who kill a wolf are often out for elk or deer.

Logging a Possibility for Asbestos-laden Forest

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) • A report on how to deal with 35,000 acres of asbestos-laden forest on a mix of private and public land in northwestern Montana suggests harvesting trees could be profitable if debarking can safely remove the asbestos.

The 45-page study identifies a variety of ways to reclaim the contaminated forest in the mountainous region surrounding the town of Libby, the Missoulian reported in a story published Sunday.

Lethal dust from the W.R. Grace & Co. plant and the company's nearby mine once blanketed the town and surrounding forest, and asbestos illnesses are still being diagnosed more than two decades after the mine was shuttered.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has spent $370 million removing soil and construction materials contaminated with asbestos in the town of about 3,000 people near the Canadian border, where an estimated 400 people to date have been killed by asbestos exposure. More than 1,700 have been sickened.

Officials have long known that the surrounding forest also is contaminated, though residents in the area routinely cut trees for firewood. A previous study found that while bark is contaminated, the wood inside the trees is not.

The recent report titled "Asbestos Remediation Plan for Forested Areas near Libby, Montana," gives some guidelines as well as challenges in how to deal with the contaminated forest.

"It's a pretty big deal," said Craig Rawlings, president and CEO of the Forest Business Network. "We're talking about 35,000 acres, and the EPA is probably going to expand that area significantly."

The 35,000 acres, called Operational Unit 3, includes the mine site. Scientists with the EPA say the acreage likely is surrounded by more forest contaminated with asbestos.

"Recently we have started investigating areas outside of OU3, and we do know that it exists in the forested areas outside of that unit," said Christina Progress, the EPA's Superfund project manager in Libby. "There are so many unknowns about the level of contamination in the forests of Libby. We don't know what levels are out there or what activities would be below a level of concern."

Of the forest surrounding Libby, experts estimate there are 600 harvestable trees per acre that would produce about 425 million board feet. Logging slash and bark would be treated with water and sent to a permanent storage site or used as boiler fuel. But questions remain about that process.

Remedial logging, which would take 10 years, is just one possible way to deal with the contaminated forest.

"We will develop a whole slew of options for cleaning up OU3, not just logging," Progress said. "Logging may end up being one of the options, and therefore the report could be helpful."

Utah Police Force Considers Eyecams Over Dashcams

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • Salt Lake City police are considering a switch from dashboard cameras in police vehicles to new, lightweight cameras that officers wear at eye level.

Police Chief Chris Burbank said the cameras will lead to more transparency and enable better monitoring of activities that do not involve traffic stops. But he said the department is still in the early stages of the transition.

"I think this is the way of the future," Burbank said during a presentation about the cameras last week. "It really improves our ability to be professional and document events as they occur."

The Taser AXON Flex on-officer system is a small, light-weight camera with 14 hours of a battery life that an officer clips to an item, such as a headband or pair of sunglasses, to record what the officer is seeing and his or her actions.

Nationally, only about 2,000 units of the on-officer system are in the field, and Salt Lake City would be the first department in Utah to use the technology, said Rick Smith, Taser founder and CEO.

Because the use of force by officers is inherently risky and controversial, equipping them with cameras aids investigations and retroactive reviews of decisions that were made in those situations, he said.

"It holds everybody accountable," Smith said.

The cameras run continuously, but an officer is responsible for activating and deactivating the device. That means the department will have to set strict guidelines about camera use and making sure the cameras aren't being shut off, Burbank acknowledged.

The cameras cost between $1,000 and $1,200 each. The department is still determining how to pay for the cameras, as well as policies and procedures for when they should be used, privacy considerations for officers and citizens alike, and public access to video footage.

Burbank said he eventually hopes to purchase up to 250 of the cameras so that every officer who interacts with the public has access to one.

"It certainly has the potential to make our officers more effective," he said.

TF Council Considers Zoning Change on Addison East

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Tonight, the Twin Falls City Council will consider awarding a bid to Peterson Brothers for construction of a snow removal equipment building at the Twin Falls airport.

At 6 p.m., the council will hold a public hearing on a request for a zoning change on a piece of property located at 3236 Addison Avenue East. The request would split the land into six parcels while limiting the types of housing developments allowed on the property in the future.

The council meets at 5:30 p.m. tonight at the Twin Falls City Council Chambers, 305 3rd Avenue East.

Flashpoints in 'Fiscal Cliff' Negotiations • A9

Congress to Investigate Benghazi 'Talking Points'

BY ANNE FLAHERTY

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Lawmakers said Sunday they want to know who had a hand in creating the Obama administration's now-discredited "talking points" about the Sept. 11 attack on a U.S. diplomatic post in Benghazi, Libya, and why a final draft omitted the CIA's early conclusion that terrorists were involved.

The answers could explain why President Barack Obama and top aides, including U.N. Ambassador Susan Rice, described the attack for days afterward as a protest against an anti-Islam video that spontaneously turned violent and why they played down any potential link to al-Qaida, despite evidence to the contrary.

Administration officials have defended the portrayal of the attack as relying on the best information available at the time that didn't compromise classified intelligence. Democrats say CIA and other intelligence officials signed off on the final talking points.

Republicans have alleged a Watergate-like cover up, accusing White House aides of hiding the terrorism link in the run-up to the Nov. 6 presidential election so voters wouldn't question Obama's claim that al-Qaida's power had diminished.

"I know the narrative was wrong and the intelligence was right. ... We're going to get to the bottom of how that happened," said Rep. Mike Rogers, R-Mich., chairman of the House Intelligence Committee.

Sen. Dianne Feinstein, who heads the Senate Intelligence Committee, said she doesn't believe the White House altered the document for political reasons. But she said she has lingering concerns about how the talking points were created when it was clear early on that the military-style assault wasn't a simple protest gone awry.

She said Congress has asked the administration to provide a detailed explanation.

"We gave the direction yesterday that this whole process is going to be checked out," said Feinstein, D-Calif. "We're going to find out who made changes in the original statement. Until we do, I really think it's unwarranted to make accusations."

The inquiry comes on the heels of closed testimony to the committees last week by former CIA Director David Petraeus. According to lawmakers who attended the meetings, Petraeus said the reference to al-Qaida was removed from the final version of talking points, although he wasn't sure who or which federal agency deleted it.

A senior U.S. official familiar with the document, who spoke on condition of anonymity because the official was not authorized to discuss the process publicly, said the al-Qaida reference was deleted because the information came from classified sources and the links were tenuous. The administration also did not want to prejudice a criminal investigation in its early stages, that official said.

Women in Petraeus Scandal had Visited White House

BY JIM KUHNHENN

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Their close ties to the military community gave them unusual access to top generals. And Paula Broadwell and Jill Kelley even visited the White House on separate and apparently unrelated occasions before a sex scandal brought down former CIA Director David Petraeus.

A White House official says neither woman met with President Barack Obama during their visits.

Broadwell, who had an affair with Petraeus, attended meetings on Afghanistan-Pakistan policy at the White House complex in June 2009 and June 2011.

The Tampa, Fla., socialite who initiated the investigation that revealed the affair, Kelley and her twin sister had two "courtesy" meals at the White House mess as guests of a midlevel aide in September and October. Kelley and her family received a White House tour the weekend before the election.

Israel Strike Kills 11 Civilians in Gaza

BY KARIN LAUB AND IBRAHIM BARZAK

Associated Press

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip • An Israeli missile flattened a two-story house in a residential neighborhood of Gaza City on Sunday, killing at least 11 civilians, mostly women and children, Palestinian medical officials said, as Israel expanded a military offensive to target homes of wanted militants.

The attack, which Israel said targeted a militant, was the single deadliest incident of the 5-day-old Israeli operation and hiked a toll Sunday that was already the highest number of civilians killed in one day, according to Gaza medics. The bloodshed is likely to raise international pressure for a cease-fire, with Egypt taking the leading role in mediating between Israel and Hamas.

President Barack Obama said he had been in touch with the leaders of Israel, Egypt, and Turkey in an effort to halt the fighting. "We're going to have to see what kind of progress we can make in the next 24, 36, 48 hours," he said.

Obama cautioned against a potential Israeli ground invasion into Gaza, warning it could only deepen its death toll. At the same time, he blamed Palestinian militants for starting the round of fighting by raining rockets onto Israel, and he defended Israel's right to defend itself.

"Israel has every right to expect that it does not have missiles fired into its territory," Obama said in Thailand at the start of a three-nation tour in Asia.

An Israeli envoy arrived in Cairo on Sunday and held talks with Egyptian officials on a ceasefire, according to Egyptian security officials and Nabil Shaath, a top aide of Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas who was in the Egyptian capital.

But Israel and Gaza's militant Hamas rulers remain far apart on any terms for a halt in the bloodshed, which has killed 70 Palestinians — including 36 civilians, according to Gaza health officials — and three Israeli civilians.

Hamas is linking a truce deal to a complete lifting of the border blockade on Gaza imposed since Islamists seized the territory by force. Hamas also seeks Israeli guarantees to halt targeted killings of its leaders and military commanders. Israeli officials reject such demands. They say they are not interested in a "timeout," and want firm guarantees that militant rocket fire into Israel will finally end. Past ceasefires have been short lived.

As the offensive moved forward, Israel found itself at a crossroads — on the cusp of launching a ground offensive into Gaza to strike an even tougher blow against Hamas, or pursuing Egyptian-led truce efforts.

"The Israeli military is prepared to significantly expand the operation," Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu declared at the start of the weekly Cabinet meeting.

At the same time, Gaza militants continued their barrage of rocket fire at Israel, firing more than 100, including two at Tel Aviv. More than 10 Israelis were injured by shrapnel, two moderately, according to police spokesman Mickey Rosenfeld. Israel's "Iron Dome" rocket-defense system shot down at least 30 rockets, including the ones aimed at Tel Aviv.

PUBLIC NUDITY BAN EYED IN FED-UP SAN FRANCISCO

BY LISA LEFF

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO • San Francisco may be getting ready to shed its image as a city where anything goes, including clothing.

City lawmakers are scheduled to vote Tuesday on an ordinance that would prohibit nudity in most public places, a blanket ban that represents an escalation of a two-year tiff between a devoted group of men who strut their stuff through the city's famously gay Castro District and the supervisor who represents the area.

Supervisor Scott Wiener's proposal would make it illegal for a person over the age of 5 to "expose his or her genitals, perineum or anal region on any public street, sidewalk, street median, parklet or plaza" or while using public transit.

A first offense would carry a maximum penalty of a $100 fine, but prosecutors would have authority to charge a third violation as a misdemeanor punishable by up to a $500 fine and a year in jail.

Demonstrators gather outside of City Hall in San Francisco for a protest against a proposed citywide nudity ban, Wednesday. San Francisco appears poised to shed part of its image as a city where anything goes, including clothing.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Exemptions would be made for participants at permitted street fairs and parades, such as the city's annual gay pride event and the Folsom Street Fair, which celebrates sadomasochism and other sexual subcultures.

Wiener said he resisted introducing the ordinance, but felt compelled to act after constituents complained about the naked men who gather in a small Castro plaza most days and sometimes walk the streets au naturel. He persuaded his colleagues last year to pass a law requiring a cloth to be placed between public seating and bare rears, yet the complaints have continued.

"I don't think having some guys taking their clothes off and hanging out seven days a week at Castro and Market Street is really what San Francisco is about. I think it's a caricature of what San Francisco is about," Wiener said.

The proposed ban predictably has produced outrage, as well as a lawsuit. Last week, about two dozen people disobeyed in front of City Hall and marched around the block to the amusement of gawking tourists and high school students on a field trip.

Stripped down to his sunglasses and hiking boots, McCray Wimpsett, 37, said he understands the disgust of residents who would prefer not to see the body modifications and sex enhancement devices sported by some of the Castro nudists. But he thinks Wiener's prohibition goes too far in undermining a tradition "that keeps San Francisco weird."

"A few lewd exhibitionists are really ruining it for the rest of us," he said. "It's my time to come out now to present myself in a light and show what true nudity is all about so people can separate the difference between what a nudist is and an exhibitionist is."

Because clothes are required to enter City Hall itself, demonstrators who try to disrobe at the Board of Supervisors meeting will be escorted out by sheriff's deputies. That is what happened last Monday when Gypsy Taub removed her dress at a committee hearing where the ban had its first public hearing. Taub, a mother of two, said she got her start as a nudist while hosting a local cable program devoted to the theory that the government was behind the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks.

"I thought if I take my clothes off, I bet they are going to listen," she said.

New Mexico Coyote Hunting Contest Sparks Protests

BY RUSSELL CONTRERAS
Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. • The terms of the competition are simple: Hunters in New Mexico have two days this weekend to shoot and kill as many coyotes as they can, and the winners get their choice of a free shotgun or a pair of semi-automatic rifles.

But the planned two-day coyote hunting contest has sparked an online petition that has generated tens of thousands of signatures worldwide. The FBI is investigating a death threat to the gun shop owner who is sponsoring the hunt. And one protester has even vowed to dress like a coyote to trick hunters into accidentally killing a human.

But none of these episodes will likely stop the owner of Gunhawk Firearms from holding the scheduled two-day coyote hunting race this weekend, despite the international attention the idea has garnered.

"I'm not going to back down," said Mark Chavez, 50, who has faced two weeks of angry phone calls and protests — and even a threat to his life. "This is my right to hunt and we're not breaking any laws."

Under the rules of the contest, the winning team will get its choice of a Browning Maxus 12-gauge shotgun or two AR-15 semi-automatic rifles from the Los Lunas shop, and a hired taxidermist will salvage any pelts and hides from the dead coyotes for clothing.

"I'll even give the furs to the homeless if they need it," Chavez said.

The competition — which opponents are calling a "coyote killing contest" — has sparked thousands of angry emails, social media postings and a petition signed by activists from as far as Europe who have demanded that the hunt be called off. Last week, a small group of protesters held a rally outside of Gunhawk Firearms and waved signs denouncing the event as cruel and "bloodthirsty."

People are upset over the idea of making a contest out of killing an animal that usually lives peacefully alongside residents, said Susan Weiss, 74, who leads the Coexist with Coyotes group in Corrales, N.M.

"There's a tremendous amount of arrogance in conducting this hunt," Weiss said. "(Chavez) is damaging the reputation of ranchers. He is damaging the reputation of legitimate hunters."

But some New Mexico ranchers have complained about the large population of coyotes, estimated to be around 300,000 in the state. Coyotes are blamed for thousands of death to calves annually, and aren't protected under federal or state laws, ranchers say.

"People are trying to portray these animals as something they're not. Coyotes are predators. They survive in the wild by killing what they can, including livestock and pets," said Rex Wilson, president of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association. "The people protesting this contest have obviously never seen a calf chewed up by a coyote, or watched a mama sheep try to revive a dead lamb."

The controversy began last month when the Albuquerque-based Calibers Shooters Sports Center announced plans for a similar contest. Calibers canceled the event after pressure from Weiss and other activists and attention from national media outlets.

That's when Chavez, a former rancher and construction worker, took up the cause and decided to hold his own coyote hunt, scheduled to begin on private land on Saturday.

"I felt that Calibers backed down to the pressure," he said. "We can't let that happen, especially since it's our right to hunt."

$500M Animal Abuse Settlement Reached

BY TRACIE CONE
Associated Press

FRESNO, Calif. • A California slaughterhouse where videotaped mistreatment of cows prompted the largest meat recall in U.S. history has reached a symbolic $500 million settlement with an animal welfare group and the federal government.

The record penalty for the animal abuse case is not expected to be paid because Riverside County-based Hallmark Meat Co. is bankrupt.

The tentative settlement of the civil lawsuit was announced Friday by the Humane Society of the United States, which filed the case and later was joined by the U.S. Department of Justice.

"It's a deterrence judgment," HSUS attorney Jonathan R. Lovvorn said. "It informs other federal government contractors that when your contract says you provide humane handling, if you don't do that you're likely to end up bankrupt as well."

The case marked the first time federal fraud statutes were used in an animal abuse case, the HSUS said. As a supplier of meats for the national school lunch program, the company had signed federal contracts certifying that it would provide humane treatment of animals sent to the company for slaughter.

The widely circulated video shot by an undercover operative in 2007 showed "downer cows" — those too weak or sick to walk — being dragged by chains, rammed by forklifts and sprayed with high-pressure water by employees who wanted them to stand and walk to slaughter.

The video sparked the largest beef recall in U.S. history in 2008. Nearly 37 million pounds of the 143 million pounds recalled had gone to school lunch programs, and most had been eaten by the time of the recall. The recall cost taxpayers $150 million.

NY Prosecutor Admits He Acted in 1970s Porn Films

CORTLAND, N.Y. (AP) • A district attorney in upstate New York has admitted that he acted in pornographic movies in the 1970s, then lied when questioned about it during his second campaign.

Mark Suben, the DA in Cortland County near Syracuse since 2008, held a news conference Friday to say he had lied about his past in the days before this year's election.

"Recently materials have been circulated alleging that I was involved in the adult film industry about 40 years ago in New York. Those allegations are true," he said. "I was an actor in adult films for a short period in the early '70s. I was also an actor in other venues including off-Broadway, soap operas and commercial advertisements."

He apologized for his actions and said he used "bad judgment" by acting in porn and by lying about it. He wouldn't take questions, including whether he should resign. On his way out of the news conference, several people said, "You lied to me, Mark."

Suben's spokeswoman, Aimee Milks, said Suben will not resign.

"This was nearly 40 years ago. It was not illegal. Mark Suben was not yet married. He was not practicing law and he was not a law student," Milks said. "It has nothing to do with his law practice or his current position as the district attorney of Cortland County."

"I think the situation is really irrelevant to the campaign," she said. "His record as the DA for the last four years speaks for itself."

WSTM-TV in Syracuse published a story Friday that said Suben had acted under his name and the pseudonym Gus Thomas. That news story followed a posting on YouTube that compared images of Suben with Thomas.

"A few weeks ago, when asked, I denied this to members of the press," Suben said. "I regret that and I apologize for it. I was shocked and embarrassed to be confronted with this so many years later. I was embarrassed for my family and friends who have stood by me. I also denied my actions to my family, my friends and my staff."

The IMDB online database says Suben and Thomas are linked and classified as alternate names. The name Gus Thomas appears in films such as "Lecher" and "The Love Witch." Mark Suben appears in the credits for the non-pornographic 1976 movie "Angels."

His opponent in the Nov. 6 election, Cortland lawyer Keith Dayton, did not return a call from The Associated Press seeking comment, but he told the Syracuse Post-Standard he wasn't concerned about Suben's acting history.

Ecuador Officials Reject Donkey as Candidate

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) • The demand of dozens of citizens has been denied in the Ecuadorian city of Guayaquil: There will be no jackass running for the legislature.

At least 40 people paraded their candidate through the city's streets to the electoral council offices. Mr. Burro even wore a tie. But officials refused to even let them in the door on Thursday, even though backers had dummiied up a mock voter registration card showing the candidate's photo superimposed on a man wearing a business suit.

More homes in forests increase firefighting costs

BY SCOTT SANDBERRY
Yakima Herald-Republic

YAKIMA, Wash. • The reddish-orange stain on the boulders lining their long rural driveway reminds Susan and Al Maza just how close they came to losing their home to wildfire.

The stain is from fire retardant dropped by air tankers during 2010's Cowiche Mill Fire, which scorched much of the Mazas' 40-acre spread and roared to within 20 feet of their West Valley house. That the home still stands is a testament to the fire crews whose efforts Susan Maza describes as "like watching a choreography of a ballet ... everything according to plan."

That firefighters were able to execute that plan, though, is also a testament to the Mazas.

Because they built so far out in the country, the Mazas took seriously their responsibility to make their home as fire-safe as possible. They wrapped their driveway around the house so emergency vehicles could get through, and maintained a tree-and-fuels-free buffer which allowed firefighters to halt the fire's progress.

Not all residents of what land managers and fire experts call the "wildland-urban interface," though, will be so fortunate. The Mazas have close friends who own a stately cabin in the forested hills near Cliffdell.

"I just hope they're well-insured," Susan Maza says. "If they had the winds like we had and they had a fire, it would just blow right through there. They wouldn't be able to save it."

Fire crews would almost certainly try. And they would probably spend many times the cabin's value to defend it, while tying up firefighting resources that might be put to better use elsewhere.

In an era of increasingly large wildfires, the wildland-urban interface — where the forest meets development — has become the front line of a financial battlefield.

"Politically, no one wants to hear it — but the reality is there are places we should not be putting people," says Jakki McLean, Yakima County's fire marshal. "You own property and you want to build on it ... but for your own protection, maybe you shouldn't be building there."

Yet people continue to do so. Some 45 million homes are already in fire-prone forests across the country, a number federal officials expect to rise another 40 percent by the year 2030. It's a trend that chaffs at Neil Sampson, a former Senior Fellow with American Forests who consults on federal forest practices.

"God almighty, I started writing about that in 1970, and it has not gotten anything but worse ever since," Sampson says. "It's the sort of thing local government can't grapple with very well."

And Washington state has more wildland-urban interface than most states.

A 2009 study found the state has nearly 200,000 residences in its wildlandurban interface — defined by the study's author, Montana-based Headwaters Economics, as private forestlands within 500 meters of public forestlands. Washington's level of development in wildland-urban areas, according to the study, is the second-highest (21 percent) among the 11 Western states.

"The threat is real," says The Nature Conservancy's Reese Lolley. "You go up (State Route) 410 and see houses up on the hillside and you think, 'Really? Really?'"

Defending homes in the wildland-urban interface is by far the priciest part of fighting large wildfires, accounting for 50 percent to 95 percent of total suppression costs, according to a 2006 federal audit. The mere presence of those homes also drives wildland firefighting policy, turning many a naturally-caused fire that might otherwise be allowed to run its course — often to the long-term benefit of the forest — into one that must be suppressed to protect the houses.

"Only about 2 percent of these (naturally-ignited) fires are allowed to burn now, and the main reason is there are homes in the way," says Ray Rasker, executive director of Headwaters Economics. "So we can't even implement the policies we have, our fuel build-up situation is getting worse, and we're getting more and more homes in harm's way."

Progress has been made in educating those homeowners — through fire-preparedness programs such as Firewise and Ready, Set, Go! — to make their property as "ignition-resistant" as possible.

But those programs are after-the-fact; states and counties remain reluctant to adopt restrictive codes for building within the wildland-urban interface. The International Code Council's International Wildland-Urban Interface

Code has been adopted statewide by only two states, Nevada and Pennsylvania, and by some municipalities and counties in 10 other states.

In Washington, Yakima County adopted the ICC's code in 2001 and remained the state's only local government to do so until the last two years, when three other counties and a half-dozen municipalities adopted all or part of the standards. But each of the five or six times legislation has been introduced requiring statewide adoption — most recently last spring — it became mired in committees.

"Yakima County showed real leadership," says Kraig Stevenson, ICC's senior regional manager, "because it takes a little bit to implement that code."

The biggest pieces of that "little bit": the funding to do the extensive mapping necessary to determine what areas constitute wildland-urban interface, and the commitment of local authorities to demand strict adherence to the code standards on all future development.

"Well-written codes, properly enforced, do more to protect the public than anything we do," says McLean, the fire marshal.

Then why is it so difficult to convince states and communities to adopt the international codes? Money.

"Prevention produces both less cost and less damage," says Sampson, the forest policy expert. "But prevention requires intentional cost, whereas the big wildfire event can be written off as accidental, emergency damage. And, politically, we'd rather pay 100 times emergency cost than one time intentional, preventative cost."

"Anything that adds cost always becomes a political issue, because we're typical human beings," McLean says. "Everybody believes it will never happen to us: 'I'm really careful!'"

"You may be, but the three most common causes of fire are men, women and children."

Idaho’s Political Battleground Shifted A Little This Election

For all that nothing has changed in the numbers of Republicans and Democrats in the Idaho congressional and legislative delegations, the state’s battleground picture may have shifted a little. Not a lot. But in some notable places.

Randy Stapilus

Ridenbaugh.com

Of the 105 seats, 21 were unopposed (one of those a Democrat, Michelle Stennett of Ketchum), and 58 more were decided in true landslides of 60 percent or more of the vote, so 79 of the 105 seats were generally not competitive at all. If we scale back a little further and look at races won only by realistically close margins — under 55 percent — then just 14 races, out of the 105, remain.

When you look at where in the state they were, the geography of the races makes sense.

Two of those close races were in the new District 5, which meshes Democratic-leaning Latah and Republican-leaning Benewah counties. Democrats won two of the three races there, but the closest legislative contest in Idaho this year resulted in the Republican win of Cindy Agidius (helped by strong connections in Moscow) by 123 votes over Democrat Paulette Jordan. The third-closest was the win of Democratic incumbent Senator Dan Schmidt over the man he beat more easily two years ago, Republican Gresham Bouma. This will be a hotly contested district in 2014.

The second most competitive race was in District 26, the big Magic Valley district where the largest population base is in Democratic Blaine County. In House A, there was just enough Republican support in Gooding County to deliver a win for Republican Steve Miller. This may be a more competitive district now than it has been. Races in Lewiston and Pocatello ran close too, reinforcing that these are truly competitive areas, not the Democratic-leaning cities of yore.

Another district represented twice in this group may augur more for the future. Democrats made a strong bid for the seats in District 15, which is on the west side of Boise and historically has been solidly Republican, though electing relatively moderate Republicans. Did redistricting create a district more open to Democrats than the area had been in the past?

The top line in 15 is that Republicans Fred Martin won the Senate seat (52.1 percent) and Mark Patterson won the House B seat (53.1 percent). But these contrasted sharply with Republican wins in the old, differently mapped District 15, where Republicans often won landslides and in the last decade never got closer than the 53.2 percent (in 2002). Precinct results show the two Democrats there, Betty Richardson and Steve Berch (respectively), won a batch of precincts in the middle of the district that could form a clear base for Democrats in future races. District 15 has emerged as a true battleground.

In 2010, the foremost battleground in Idaho was District 18, on the southeast side of Boise: Republican Mitch Toryanski won the Senate seat there by just 103 votes over Democrat Branden Durst, and in House A the Republican Julie Ellsworth beat Janie Ward-Engelking by just nine votes. It was hard-fought this time too, but not quite as close — and running in the other direction. Democrats Durst won with a margin of 1,496 votes, and Ward-Engelking by more than that, 2,259 votes. The trend line suggests 18 may be following the rest of Boise in a Democratic direction.

These are of course changes at the edges. As a while, the Gem State is as Republican as it ever was.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thank You, Idaho, for Supporting Pro-Life Candidates

After the election, we have needed time to grieve for our beloved America. We are deeply saddened that this election portends the horrendous potential loss of life of millions of unborn children. And we are grieving the loss of the ability to gain legal protection for the unborn and the elderly for yet another four years. One commentator put it well when he said he was grieving because “millions of Americans looked evil in the eye and adopted it. Abortion, same-sex marriage and immorality carried the day ... The America we love is sick and in need of renewal and healing. Under these circumstances ... it is OK to grieve.”

We are comforted by the fact that Idaho was one of the states whose solid majority voted for a strong pro-life America. We are comforted that most pro-life incumbents who sponsored, voted for and debated for strong pro-life laws here in Idaho won their elections. These include pro-life champions, Sen. Steve Vick, Sen. Sheryl Nuxoll, Sen. Chuck Winder, Rep. Brent Crane and Rep. Paul Shepherd. We take comfort that the culture of life was successful in Massachusetts in defeating the assisted suicide measure that was on the ballot there. And we take comfort in the fact that we are joined by thousands of you in Idaho and across America who will continue to join us to fight for the sanctity of human life.

May God bless Idaho and the United States of America!

State Should Do the Job Feds Refusing to Do

Idaho legislators:

Since our federal government has failed to address issues of our border, the economy, drugs and other items mandated by law, I feel it is time the state acted in enforcing federal policies.

First, we should control our state border and actively seek out and deport illegal aliens. Through welfare programs, indigent health care and schooling illegal aliens are causing a tremendous drain on our economy. Why do we need English as a second language in our schools? We should do away with programs such as this. We are in America and we speak English.

Second, federal law states that marijuana is illegal. Let’s crack down on this and other illegal substances and those that sell or distribute them. This is another drain on our economy. Let’s have tougher laws.

Third, if someone wants to enroll for any state assistance, they must first be required to take a drug test. If they fail, then no aid. Almost all companies require drug testing before they will hire someone, so why not the state before handing out my tax money?

The rights set forth in the U.S. Constitution belong to United States citizens. You state legislators have taken an oath to uphold our state Constitution, and that extends to our federal Constitution.

I am tired of being told “it’s the law.” Well, if that is so, then get on the ball and start enforcing them.

I earnestly feel that you should consider these propositions and then enact laws that would protect the taxpaying citizens of Idaho. It is time that you live by the oath you took to become our legislators.

Our federal government is not going to support this state, so I urge you to do your job and protect the taxpayers of Idaho first.

Hospice Honors Veterans with Comfort, Care, Love

Every day is Veterans Day!

As Americans, we honor our nation’s heroes on Veterans Day, Nov. 11, and pay tribute to the men and women who have served our country. Hospice Visions Inc. is proud to honor veterans with specialized care.

The “We Honor Veterans” program, associated with the National Hospice and Palliative Care Organization, offers new tools, resources and initiatives which help us provide the best care for our nation’s veterans. Currently, we are at a three-star level in the four-star program.

By recognizing the unique needs of our veterans who are facing a life-limiting illness, Hospice Visions is better able to accompany and guide veterans and their families in receiving peaceful, compassionate, quality end-of-life care.

Many Americans are surprised to learn that 25 percent of all deaths in the United States are veterans — that is 1,800 people per day, more than 680,000 veterans every year. These heroic Americans deserve recognition for their military service particularly at the end of life’s journey. Hospice Visions is the only free-standing, non-profit 501(c)(3) hospice in the Magic Valley honoring our local veterans with comfort, care and love.

We make your wishes our priority.

What’s Needed Now: Reining In Entitlements

The following editorial appeared in Thursday’s Washington Post:

As bipartisan negotiations over avoiding the “fiscal cliff” draw nearer, many of President Obama’s core Democratic supporters are urging him to fix the debt through defense cuts and tax increases rather than by tackling Social Security, Medicare and other federal entitlement programs. It’s a reprise of progressive resistance to the entitlement trims Mr. Obama contemplated during the abortive debt-reduction negotiations with House Speaker John A. Boehner, R-Ohio, last year. This time, though, the Democratic base is claiming vindication in the just-completed election.

Fair enough. Mr. Obama won on a pledge to raise more revenue from the wealthy, and labor unions and like-minded groups provided much of the funding and many of the foot soldiers for his campaign. Nevertheless, on this he must tell his political base no. Any serious debt-reduction plan has to include revenue and defense cuts. But no serious one can exclude entitlements.

With Republicans in control of the House and holding 45 votes in the Senate, this is basic political realism. It’s also fiscal realism, as the most recent Congressional Budget Office review of the long-term budget outlook, published in June, explained. Spending on retirement income and health care is headed inexorably higher as the population ages. In 2012, Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid accounted for 10.4 percent of gross domestic product (GDP). All other non-interest federal outlays, defense included, totaled 11.6 percent of GDP. If present policies and population trends continue, the three entitlement programs would grow to 12.9 percent of GDP by 2022, while all other spending would shrink by 4 percentage points as a share of GDP.

It’s eminently possible to rein in entitlements without imposing hardship on the neediest. A reform Mr. Obama considered during the 2011 talks — gradually raising the Medicare eligibility age from 65 to 67 — would save roughly $150 billion over 10 years, according to the Congressional Budget Office, while aligning the program with modern life expectancy. With health-care reform now entrenched, those younger than 67 need not fear going uninsured.

Social Security’s retirement age is already headed to 67, which is one reason that program is no longer a major cause of government insolvency. Still, it can and should be rendered more sustainable. The disability component’s explosive recent growth, at a time when the nation’s general health is stable, suggests that reform would not harm those who truly need help.

Using a more realistic measurement of annual inflation, another option discussed last year, would trim $112 billion from Social Security over 10 years. These savings come not from cuts in benefits but reductions in their planned growth. Workers for the most part would still get more from Social Security than they contributed. Applying more accurate inflation measures to other programs could save an additional $187 billion.

At his news conference Wednesday, President Obama called for “a serious look at how we reform our entitlements,” advocated “compromise” and pronounced himself “ready and willing to make big commitments” on debt reduction. Sounds like a man who understands what is needed.

'Fiscal Cliff' Flash-points

ASSOCIATED PRESS

There are numerous hurdles, big and small, in front of President Barack Obama and lawmakers on Capitol Hill as they seek a budget and tax agreement to avoid economy-rattling tax increases and automatic spending cuts known as the "fiscal cliff." They include:

- Taxes. Obama insists on increasing taxes on upper-income earners and he's proposed raising the rates paid on family income over $250,000, with a boost in the top rate from 35 percent to 39.6 percent. GOP leaders vow to block any increase in tax rates but say they could support revenue increases as part of a tax reform plan that curbs tax breaks and uses the resulting revenue to both lower rates and defray the deficit. That approach, however, is opposed by many tea party GOP conservatives who have signed a pledge to oppose any tax increase.

- Entitlements. Big benefit programs like Medicare, Social Security and the Medicaid health program for the poor — called entitlements because participation is based on eligibility criteria — are major flash points. As a condition of voting for higher revenues, Republicans are demanding fundamental entitlement reforms such as increasing the Medicare eligibility age from 65 to 67, making wealthier seniors pay more for Medicare, and a less generous inflation adjustment for Social Security. Those ideas were discussed in negotiations in the summer of 2011 but Democrats seem to be signaling a harder line now.

- War spending. Obama and Capitol Hill Democrats want to claim $1 trillion or so in savings from the drawdown of troops in Iraq and Afghanistan as budget cuts. Many Republicans see the attempt as a gimmick since the savings are occurring anyway.

- Defense budget. Some Democrats want further cuts to the Pentagon on top of a 10-year $487 billion cut taken as part of last summer's budget and debt pact. Obama, however, has not proposed further cuts and GOP budget hawks swear they would hold the line against any further attempt to squeeze the military budget.

BATTLE OVER COASTAL CHRISTMAS DISPLAY GOES TO LOS ANGELES COURT

BY GILLIAN FLACCUS
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES • Damon Vix didn't have to go to court to push Christmas out of the city of Santa Monica. He just joined the festivities.

The atheist's anti-God message alongside a life-sized nativity display in a park overlooking the beach ignited a debate that burned brighter than any Christmas candle.

Santa Monica officials snuffed the city's holiday tradition this year rather than referee the religious rumble, prompting churches that have set up a 14-scene Christian diorama for decades to sue over freedom of speech violations. Their attorney will ask a federal judge Monday to resurrect the depiction of Jesus' birth, while the city aims to eject the case.

"It's a sad, sad commentary on the attitudes of the day that a nearly 60-year-old Christmas tradition is now having to hunt for a home, something like our savior had to hunt for a place to be born because the world was not interested," said Hunter Jameson, head of the nonprofit Santa Monica Nativity Scene Committee that is suing.

Missing from the courtroom drama will be Vix and his fellow atheists, who are not parties to the case. Their role outside court highlights a tactical shift as atheists evolve into a vocal minority eager to get their non-beliefs into the public square as never before.

National atheist groups earlier this year took out full-page newspaper ads and hundreds of TV spots in response to the Catholic bishops' activism around women's health care issues and are gearing up to battle for their own space alongside public Christmas displays in small towns across America this season.

"In recent years, the tactic of many in the atheist community has been, if you can't beat them, join them," said Charles Haynes, a senior scholar at the First Amendment Center and director of the Newseum's Religious Freedom Education Project in Washington. "If these church groups insist that these public spaces are going to be dominated by a Christian message, we'll just get in the game — and that changes everything."

In the past, atheists primarily fought to uphold the separation of church and state through the courts. The change underscores the conviction held by many nonbelievers that their views are gaining a foothold, especially among young adults.

The Pew Forum on Religion & Public Life released a study last month that found 20 percent of Americans say they have no religious affiliation, an increase from 15 percent in the last five years. Atheists took heart from the report, although Pew researchers stressed that the category also encompassed majorities of people who said they believed in God but had no ties with organized religion and people who consider themselves "spiritual" but not "religious."

"We're at the bottom of the totem pole socially, but we have muscle and we're flexing it," said Annie Laurie Gaylor, co-president of the Wisconsin-based Freedom from Religion

Foundation. "Ignore our numbers at your peril."

The trouble in Santa Monica began three years ago, when Vix applied for and was granted a booth in Palisades Park alongside the story of Jesus Christ's birth, from Mary's visit from the Angel Gabriel to the traditional cr0x232che.

Vix hung a simple sign that quoted Thomas Jefferson: "Religions are all alike — founded on fables and mythologies." The other side read "Happy Solstice." He repeated the display the following year but then upped the stakes significantly.

In 2011, Vix recruited 10 others to inundate the city with applications for tongue-in-cheek displays such as an homage to the "Pastafarian religion," which would include an artistic representation of the great Flying Spaghetti Monster.

The secular coalition won 18 of 21 spaces. The two others went to the traditional Christmas displays and one to a Hanukkah display.

The atheists used half their spaces, displaying signs such as one that showed pictures of Poseidon, Jesus, Santa Claus and the devil and said: "37 million Americans know myths when they see them. What myths do you see?"

Most of the signs were vandalized and in the ensuing uproar, the city effectively ended a tradition that began in 1953 and earned Santa Monica one of its nicknames, the City of the Christmas Story.

The Santa Monica Nativity Scenes Committee argues in its lawsuit that atheists have the right to protest, but that freedom doesn't trump the Christians' right to free speech.

Egypt's New Coptic Pope Enthroned

CAIRO (AP) • The new pope of Egypt's Orthodox Coptic church was enthroned on Sunday in an elaborate ceremony lasting nearly four hours, attended by the nation's Muslim prime minister and a host of Cabinet ministers and politicians.

Pope Tawadros II, 60, was elected Nov. 4, but the official enthronement ceremony was held Sunday at the Coptic cathedral in Cairo. He replaced Shenouda III, who died in March after leading the ancient church for 40 years.

The packed cathedral repeatedly erupted into applause as the ceremony progressed. The ceremony's climax came when the papal crown was placed on Tawadros' head before he sat on the throne of St. Mark, the Coptic church's founding saint.

Tawadros did not address the televised ceremony, but had a brief speech read on his behalf by one of the church's leaders in which he pledged to work for the good of Egypt, with its Muslims and Christians alike.

Egypt's Christians make up about 10 percent of the nation's estimated 83 million people, making them the largest single Christian community in the Middle East.

Christians have long complained of discrimination, particularly in the last four decades as the country's Muslim majority moved toward religious conservatism. The rise to power of Islamists after the ouster nearly two years ago of authoritarian leader Hosni Mubarak has deepened their concerns, amid increasing attacks tar-getting their churches and businesses.

Catholic Pope Benedict XVI sent a message of congratulations to Tawadros. Vatican Radio said he expressed hope that relations between the Catholic Church and the Coptic Orthodox Church will continue to grow both "in a fraternal spirit of collaboration" as well as "through a deepening of the theological dialogue."

Wedding Trade Expects Boost from Gay-marriage Laws

BY CLARKE CANFIELD
Associated Press

PORTLAND, Maine • New same-sex marriage laws in Maine, Maryland and Washington are expected to boost wedding spending in those states.

A Maine man who's launched an online wedding directory connecting same-sex couples with gay-friendly businesses said the law should benefit businesses ranging from tuxedo rental shops, florists, photographers and wedding planners to jewelers, limousine services, and musicians and DJs who provide wedding reception entertainment.

A study from the Williams Institute, a think tank at the UCLA School of Law, says the new laws should generate at least $166 million in wedding spending in the three states over the next three years from in-state couples alone.

The numbers will go up even more when figuring in spending from out-of-state couples who travel to get married in those states.

Sex Offender Suspected in 1970 Child Murder

BY CARRIE ANTLFINGER
Associated Press

MILWAUKEE • Virginia Davis describes the pain left behind by her 9-year-old sister's 1970 rape and strangulation as being like "a million holes."

Only 4 years old at the time, Davis knew little about the crime. The subject remained off-limits for the next four decades for many in a family that hoped to forget the hurt. But Davis couldn't forget, and after years seeking help to solve her sister's killing, she's preparing to face the man police believe is responsible.

On Monday, prosecutors will argue that a childhood neighbor and convicted sex offender — who they say confessed to the killing but has since recanted — should go to trial in the death of Donna Willing. With physical evidence in the case lost or destroyed, prosecutors say they will argue under the state's sex offender law that Robert Hill, 73, is a sexually violent person and must remain in custody indefinitely.

Davis clearly remembers the afternoon of Feb. 26, 1970. Her big sister Donna was reading to her from a favorite book about animals as they sat on the couch. Her mother wanted Donna to go to the bakery for bread, but Virginia purposely delayed the trip, begging for one more story.

"I remember seeing out the window, it was getting dark and thinking 'Mom won't make her go if it gets dark. She'll send (my brother) or somebody else. She can't go,'" Davis recalls. "We were afraid of the boogeyman and stuff back then. The boogeyman will get her if she goes out after dark."

Donna walked out at 5:15 p.m. A witness later saw her get into a green car. Less than two hours later, a man discovered her bruised and bloodied body under a car in his garage about a mile away.

A cold case unit that formed in 2007 did, and soon focused on Hill. He had lived next door with his wife and five children and Davis said she remembered playing with his son. She also remembered his wife, who always yelled, but not him.

Prosecutors soon discovered physical evidence in Donna Willing's case had been lost during a flood or when detectives cleaned out the evidence room in the 1990s, according to police Lt. Keith Balash. So investigators in 2008 began interviewing Hill in prison — where he was serving a 10-year sentence for sexually assaulting four children under the age of 10 between 1995 and 2002.

Hill first told police he sexually assaulted Donna after she got into his car that night, according to court documents. She began to squirm and slapped him. He became angry, afraid she would tell on him. He strangled her and dumped her in a garage. It all took about 10 minutes, he said.

In another account outlined in court documents, Hill said he molested Donna for years, picked her up and had sex with her. After she screamed, he put his hand over her mouth and strangled her.

Hill, who is now being held a supervised facility, has since recanted both statements. Balash said Hill knew specifics of Donna's injuries that hadn't been released.

Sportsweek for Thanksgiving Week

Monday

It's a light schedule, with just one girls basketball game on the docket, the Wagon Wheel game between Hansen and Murtaugh. That game tips at 7:30 p.m. in Murtaugh.

Tuesday

There'll be plenty of talent on display when Highland (with the Gonzalez sisters, who have committed to Kansas), visit Great Basin Conference contender Twin Falls at 7:30 p.m.

Wednesday

The only local event is out of area, but for those willing to make the trip to Arimo, Filer travels to reigning 3A girls basketball champ Marsh Valley for an earlier tip-off of 5 p.m.

Thursday

No local events scheduled. Happy Thanksgiving!

Friday

The College of Southern Idaho women's basketball team opens a holiday tournament by hosting Glendale, Ariz., at 5:30 p.m. The men play Miles, Mont., immediately after.

Saturday

Guess who's back? Former College of Southern Idaho men's basketball coach Barret Peery brings top-five Indian Hills-Ottumwa (Iowa) to CSI for the showcase event of the weekend. Tip is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Magic Valley's Athletes of the Week

11-man football: Hayden Hanson, Declo. Normally a soft-handed wide receiver, Hanson found chemistry with Firth's quarterbacks, intercepting three passes as the Hornets won their first state football title on Friday, 22-12.

8-man football: Eli Berndt, Lighthouse Christian. Berndt caught 14 passes for 174 yards and two touchdowns in the Lions' state championship game defeat against Salmon River on Friday, 53-38.

Girls basketball: Hanna Glaze, Twin Falls Christian. Glaze averaged 20.5 points in two games this week, scoring 24 against Murtaugh and 17 against Dietrich's JV as the Warriors moved to 3-0.

BSU Ranked No. 22 in BCS

ASSOCIATED PRESS The Fighting Irish are No. 1 for the first time since Nov. 14, 1993. The Fighting Irish were a unanimous No. 1, getting all 60 first-place votes. They are a victory against rival Southern California away from completing a perfect regular season and playing in the BCS championship game Jan. 7 in Miami.

A week after being upset as the No. 1 team, Alabama is back to No. 2, taking advantage of the two big upsets. The Ducks had been No. 1 but fell in overtime to Stanford. Kansas State was No. 2 when it was beaten at Baylor.

Notre Dame is No. 1 and Alabama is No. 2 in The Associated Press college football poll, moving to the top of the rankings after Oregon and Kansas State were upset Saturday night.

Declo football coach Kelly Kidd raises the Class 2A state championship trophy after the Hornets defeated Firth 22-12 Friday at Holt Arena in Pocatello.

What We Learned, We Already Knew

DECLO • For the past 12 Mondays, this space has been reserved for sports editor David Bashore's column titled "What We Learned," drawing insights from the weekend's high school football games. So what did we learn from Championship Friday? Nada. Zilch.

In its 22-12 Class 2A state championship victory over Firth on Friday at Holt Arena, Declo stuck to the same script it had all season long. To steal a line from former NFL coach Dennis Green, the Declo Hornets are what we thought they were. Savvy. Intelligent. Level-headed.

Declo earned the state academic championship with a 3.45 team GPA. Their smarts showed on the field, where they could adapt quickly, digest schemes, problem solve and critically think in pressure situations. Even-keeled. Calm. Focused.

Perhaps too calm. The personality of this team sometimes drove Declo coaches nuts. These players aren't the fired-up, rah-rah type. They're as cool as an autumn southern Idaho breeze. No emotional highs or lows in their business-like demeanor.

"Sometimes I wondered, are they really ready to play? They just get it done," said offensive coordinator Winn Osterhout.

Consistent. Prepared. Conditioned. No fancy wristbands or eye black. Declo's game is about substance, not show.

Declo quarterback Kai Garner (8) follows blockers Drexton Thrall, left, and Jason Gillette during the Hornets' 22-12 win over Firth in the Class 2A state championship Friday at Holt Arena in Pocatello.

It's fundamentals, not flash. Sure, the Hornet offense had some spread, pistol and no-huddle schemes in its back pocket. But when the chips were down, Declo lined up in the good old-fashioned, hard-nosed Wing-T and double wing and pounded away.

ton, Osterhout, Webb, Matthews, Turner and every other Decloite who came before. "It means a whole lot to the community," said Osterhout, fighting back tears. "Football is just a game, but it symbolizes a whole lot more to us. It symbolizes what we are as a unit and how much we can accomplish together!"

"It means a whole lot to the community. Football is just a game, but it symbolizes a whole lot more to us. It symbolizes what we are as a unit and how much we can accomplish together."

Winn Osterhout, Declo's offensive coordinator

Gritty. Stout. Defensive. Yes, Declo scored a boatload of points, shattering the school record for points in a season (561). But the Hornets' defense won this championship. They set a school record for most shutouts in a season (five). Declo's starters allowed only eight touchdowns in 12 games. In the title bout, they held an explosive Firth back-to-back state wrestling championships, with a third expected this winter. Two others played on Burley's American Legion Baseball state title team last summer. Winning is in their DNA. And in winning the first football state championship in school history, the 2012 Hornets stand on the shoulders of every Darring-

Declo fans young and old filled the school's gymnasium Friday morning for a pep assembly, and then packed Holt Arena for the game. It was difficult telling to whom the championship meant more, the players or the alumni. But for one alumnus in particular, Friday's victory was equal parts inspiration and validation. It's been Kelly Kidd's boyhood dream to deliver a state championship to his hometown. He couldn't do it as a quarterback in the early 1980s. He returned to Declo as a teacher and coach in 1987.

Schaub Rallies Texans past Jaguars

ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON • Andre Johnson caught a screen pass from Matt Schaub and ran 48 yards for the winning touchdown in overtime as the Houston Texans rallied to beat Jacksonville 43-37 on Sunday.

Schaub threw a career-high five touchdown passes, completed a franchise-record 43 passes and finished with 527 yards passing, second most in NFL history. Warren Moon also threw for 527 yards for the Houston Oilers in December 1990 against Kansas City.

Norm Van Brocklin holds the record with 554 for the Rams in 1951.

Johnson caught 14 passes for 273 yards, both career highs. The Texans (9-1) won an overtime game for the first time at Reliant Stadium.

Chad Henne threw a career-high four touchdown passes in relief of injured Blaine Gabbert for the Jaguars (1-9). Rookie Justin Blackmon had 236 yards receiving.

FALCONS 23, CARDINALS 19

ATLANTA • Matt Ryan overcame a career-worst five interceptions, guiding Atlanta to its only offensive touchdown in the fourth quarter in a sloppy win.

The Falcons (9-1) turned it over a total of six times, but Michael Turner scored on a 1-yard run with 6:40 remaining to give Atlanta its first lead of the game. Ryan set up the score with four completions for 64 yards, including a 9-yarder to Tony Gonzalez on third-and-5 at the Arizona 10.

PACKERS 24, LIONS 20

DETROIT • Aaron Rodgers threw two touchdown passes, including a 22-yarder to Randall Cobb with 1:55 left to lift Green Bay.

Mason Crosby made a 39-yard field goal with 19 seconds to go after missing two field goals earlier in the game.

Matthew Stafford couldn't put the Lions ahead on either of their last two drives in a game he'd like to forget.

Stafford threw two interceptions — one of which was returned 72 yards by Green Bay safety M.D. Jennings for a go-ahead score in the third quarter — and lost a fumble.

Green Bay (7-3) has won five straight and Detroit (4-6) has dropped two in a row.

COWBOYS 23, BROWNS 20 OT ARLINGTON, Texas

Dan Bailey kicked a 38-yard field goal in overtime and Dallas overcame a critical fumble by Tony Romo that sparked a wild ending.

Bailey's winning kick with 6:07 remaining in OT came after both teams punted once in the first overtime game at Cowboys Stadium. Bailey hit a tying 32-yard field goal with 2 seconds left in regulation.

Dallas (5-5) rallied from a 13-0 halftime deficit and went ahead 17-13 on Romo's 28-yard pass to Dez Bryant.

A fumble by Browns rookie Brandon Weeden on a sack appeared to put the Cowboys in control, but Romo gave it right back with a fumble on another sack.

The Cowboys made one goal-line stand in the final minutes, but the Browns got another chance and went ahead 20-17 on Weeden's 17-yard pass to Benjamin Watson.

BUCCANEERS 27, PANTHERS 21 OT CHARLOTTE, N.C.

Josh Freeman threw a 15-yard touchdown pass to Dallas Clark in overtime to cap a comeback.

It was Freeman's third touchdown pass of the game for the Buccaneers (6-4).

Carolina appeared to have the game in hand after a 29-yard touchdown pass from Cam Newton to Brandon LaFell put the Panthers (2-8) up 21-10 with 4:34 left in the game. But after a 40-yard field goal by Connor Barth, the Panthers were forced to punt, and Freeman led the Bucs 80 yards on seven plays in 50 seconds with no timeouts.

PATRIOTS 59, COLTS 24 FOXBOROUGH, Mass.

The Patriots used three scoring passes from Tom Brady, two touchdowns on interception returns and another on a punt return to match a team single-game scoring record.

The first matchup between three-time Super Bowl winner Brady and star rookie Andrew Luck was no match.

The Patriots (7-3) won their fourth straight game and extended their lead in the AFC East to three games. The Colts (6-4) had their four-game winning streak stopped by the NFL's best offense and one of its worst defenses.

This win was the Patriots' most complete in a season in which they've averaged 35.8 points per game and lost their three games by a combined margin of four points.

The 59 points equals the team mark set in a 59-0 win over the Tennessee Titans on Oct. 18, 2009.

SAINTS 38, RAIDERS 17 OAKLAND, Calif.

Drew Brees threw three touchdown passes and Malcolm Jenkins returned an interception for another score to get the Saints back to 500.

Lance Moore caught two touchdown passes and Mark Ingram ran for a score as the Saints (5-5) won for the fifth time in six games and are in position to make a late-season playoff run despite the season-long distraction from the bounty scandal.

The Raiders (3-7) lost their third straight game under first-year coach Dennis Allen as their banged-up defense got picked apart by Brees' precision passing. Oakland has allowed 135 points in those defeats, the most in a three-game span for the franchise since allowing 141 in the first three games in 1961.

Brees finished 20 for 27 for 219 yards, extending his own records by throwing a touchdown in his 53rd straight game and completing 20 passes for the 46th straight game.

BRONCOS 30, CHARGERS 23 DENVER

Peyton Manning threw for three touchdowns and Von Miller had three sacks to take the league lead with 13. Denver took a three-game lead in the AFC West by sweeping the Chargers.

Manning threw for 270 yards. He got off to a slow start, throwing an interception that Eric Weddle returned for a score and an early 7-0 lead. But the Broncos (7-3) took a 10-7 lead early in the second quarter and never trailed again.

Manning won his 148th regular-season game as a starting quarterback, tying John Elway for second on the all-time list. Brett Favre has 186.

The Chargers (4-6) lost for the fifth time in six games.

REDSKINS 31, EAGLES 6 LANDOVER, Md.

Robert Griffin III threw four touchdown passes, and Washington broke a three-game losing streak.

Griffin completed 14 of 15 passes for 200 yards and also ran 11 times for 85 yards. He threw for scores of 6, 49, 61 and 17 yards — one in each quarter.

Philadelphia's Nick Foles was 21 for 46 for 204 yards in his first NFL start, and his first two series ended with interceptions. Foles was starting in place of Michael Vick, who suffered a concussion in last week's loss to the Dallas Cowboys.

JETS 27, RAMS 13 ST. LOUIS

Mark Sanchez directed a turnover-free offense and Bilal Powell ran for the first two touchdowns of his career as the Jets ended a three-game losing streak.

BENGALS 28, CHIEFS 6 KANSAS CITY, Mo.

Andy Dalton threw for 230 yards and accounted for three touchdowns and A.J. Green caught a touchdown pass in his ninth straight game.

Green finished with six catches for 91 yards in another dazzling performance, Mohamed Sanu had a scoring grab and BenJarvus Green-Ellis ran for 101 yards and a touchdown as the Bengals (5-5) won their second straight following a four-game losing streak.

RAVENS 13, STEELERS 10 PITTSBURGH

Jacoby Jones returned a punt for a touchdown, Justin Tucker kicked two field goals and the Baltimore Ravens took control of the AFC North with a 13-10 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers on Sunday night.

The Ravens (8-2) moved two games in front of the Steelers (6-4) by shutting down Pittsburgh's offense, which sputtered without injured quarterback Ben Roethlisberger.

Explanation Key
 The BCS Average is calculated by averaging the percent totals of the Harris Interactive, USA Today Coaches and Computer polls. Team percentages are derived by dividing a team's actual voting points by a maximum 2875 possible points in the Harris

Interactive Poll and 1475 possible points in the USA Today Coaches Poll. Six computer rankings are used to determine the overall computer component. The highest and lowest ranking for each team is dropped, and the remaining four are added and divided to produce a Computer Rankings Percentage. The six computer ranking providers are Anderson & Hester, Richard Billingsley, Colley Matrix, Kenneth Massey, Jeff Sagarin, and Peter Wolfe. Each computer ranking accounts for schedule strength in its formula.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"It is easier to resist at the beginning than at the end."
— Leonardo da Vinci

Today's problem is all about defensive bidding and the opening lead. Here, I'd advocate that West jump to three hearts at his second turn — a pre-emptive rather than a limit raise, since with a strong hand you can cue-bid instead of jumping.

When the opponents ignore you and bid to four spades, what should you lead?

Many regard the opening lead as the most difficult part of the game (because you have so little information to go on). There seems to be no reason to lead anything other than the partnership suit, but if you lead a low heart and either declarer or dummy has a singleton, you may never get the lead again — and that might be crucial for the defense.

Quite frequently, when you are the weaker defensive hand, it can work well to lead an unsupported honor from real length in your partnership's bid and supported suit, thus giving you flexibility on your play to trick two.

If you do lead the heart king, partner should play the queen under it, a clear suit-preference signal for a diamond. Now three rounds of diamonds guarantees the defeat of the contract. Note that if you started with a low heart, all declarer needs to do is guess trump to make his game.

This tactic is NOT a good idea when declarer is playing in no-trump. All too often, leading an unsupported honor allows declarer to capture a high card that would otherwise have been pulling its weight on defense.

This deal comes from Sally Brock's "Leading Questions in Bridge."

ANSWER: The options are to go passive with a low trump (a bad idea if dummy has no trumps or no entries, and partner has the trump king or ace), or to lead the diamond queen. Both a club and a spade seem to have a big downside and no real upside, so I'd pick a trump, my reason being that I have enough high cards to hope to set the hand on passive defense.

Wooden Puzzles

If you're handy with a jigsaw or scrollsaw, here are three easy puzzle projects to please any child. The puzzle pieces are traced from full-size patterns, so the projects require just five steps: trace the patterns onto wood, saw, sand, stain or paint and assemble.

The map of the U.S. is 28 inches by 19 inches. The T-Rex stands 11 inches tall, and the Pentaceratops measures 10 inches long by 5 inches tall.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

I have given up trying to get their support, but my gifted 14-year-old nephew has been asking questions about my diagnosis. I'm not sure how much to tell him, especially about the suicide attempts, one of which landed me in the hospital.

Any advice about what I should tell him and how to get family support?

— HEARING VOICES

IN ILLINOIS

DEAR HEARING VOICES: Tell your nephew the truth. If he is as intellectually gifted as you say, he will go online and start researching. Explain that your condition can be overwhelming at times, which caused you at one point to try to harm yourself, but that it is kept in check with medication.

Your relatives may be reluctant to admit that there is a mental illness in the family, which is why they refuse to allow your psychiatrist to confirm it. However, you may be able to find support from NAMI, the National Alliance on Mental Illness. With 1,200 affiliates, NAMI provides grassroots, self-help groups for people with mental illness and family members who are affected by it.

The website is www.nami.org and I hope you will check it out. The organization was established in 1979, and it may be able to help you get through to your family that your problems are not imaginary.

DEAR ABBY: I host a lot of gatherings at my home and sometimes when I am on vacation. I put a lot of thought and effort into them. Some are themed parties, such as Valentine's Day or a luau.

Do you think it's rude for guests to show up 10 or more minutes early? I enjoy hosting, but I need the last few minutes before party time for ME, so I can get dressed, light candles, put out the food or just plain relax for a few minutes. Your thoughts, please.

— WONDERING IN

WESLEY CHAPEL, FLA.

DEAR WONDERING: I agree with you. Guests with good manners show up at the appointed time. While arriving 15 minutes late is acceptable, to arrive early is an imposition on one's host.

DEAR ABBY: My young married daughter, "Megan," has a problem with a neighbor. This woman has a family of her own, but is in Megan's business so much she is now actually taking my grandbaby out to eat at restaurants and seems to want people to think the baby is hers.

I have spoken to Megan about this. She doesn't like what is going on, but feels powerless to stop it. This neighbor does a lot for my daughter, and Megan doesn't want to hurt her feelings. What can she say that will put this woman in her place and make her realize that my daughter's family is not up for grabs?

— OHIO MOM

DEAR MOM: Megan is NOT "powerless." As the mother of that child, all she has to do is start saying no. If the neighbor asks for an explanation, she should reply that what's going on is making her uncomfortable. Period. There is no need to be unkind about it — just firm.

Today is Monday, Nov. 19, the 324th day of 2012. There are 42 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Nov. 19, 1863, President Abraham Lincoln delivered the Gettysburg Address as he dedicated a national cemetery at the site of the Civil War battlefield in Pennsylvania.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1600, King Charles I of England was born in Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland.

In 1794, the United States and Britain signed Jay's Treaty, which resolved some issues left over from the Revolutionary War.

In 1831, the 20th president of the United States, James Garfield, was born in Orange Township, Ohio.

In 1887, American poet Emma Lazarus, who'd written "The New Colossus" to help raise money for the Statue of Liberty's pedestal, died in New York at age 38.

In 1919, the Senate rejected the Treaty of Versailles by a vote of 55 in favor, 39 against, short of the two-thirds majority needed for ratification.

In 1942, during World War II, Russian forces launched their winter offensive against the Germans along the Don front.

In 1959, Ford Motor Co. announced it was halting production of the unpopular Edsel.

In 1969, Apollo 12 astronauts Charles Conrad and Alan Bean made the second manned landing on the moon.

In 1977, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat became the first Arab leader to visit Israel.

In 1985, President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev met for the first time as they began their summit in Geneva.

In 1990, the pop duo Milli Vanilli were stripped of their Grammy Award because other singers had lent their voices to the "Girl You Know It's True" album.

In 1997, Iowa seamstress Bobbi McCaughey gave birth to septuplets, four boys and three girls. The space shuttle Columbia zoomed into orbit on a two-week science mission.

Ten years ago: An oil tanker carrying 20 million gallons of fuel oil broke in two and sank in the Atlantic Ocean off northwest Spain. U.N. weapons inspectors wrapped up a two-day visit to Iraq. The Senate voted 90-9 to approve creation of the Department of Homeland Security. In a moment that drew criticism, singer Michael Jackson briefly held his youngest child, Prince Michael II, over a fourth-floor balcony rail at a Berlin hotel in front of dozens of fans waiting below. (Jackson later said he'd made a "terrible mistake.")

Five years ago: In Pakistan, a Supreme Court hand-picked by President Gen. Pervez Musharraf dismissed legal challenges to his continued rule, opening the way for him to serve another five-year term — solely as a civilian president. The FBI reported hate crime incidents had risen nearly 8 percent in 2006. President George W. Bush announced that Fran Townsend, the leading White House-based terrorism adviser, was stepping down. Milo Radulovich, the Air Force Reserve lieutenant championed by CBS newsman Edward R. Murrow when the military threatened to decommission him during the anti-communist crack-down of the 1950s, died in Vallejo, Calif., at age 81. Actor Dick Wilson, who played the fussy, mustachioed grocer who told customers, "Please, don't squeeze the Charmin," died in Woodland Hills, Calif., at age 91.

One year ago: Moammar Gadhafi's former heir apparent, Seif al-Islam, was captured by revolutionary fighters in the southern desert just over a month after his father was killed, setting off joyous celebrations across Libya. British-born Canadian actor John Neville, who'd appeared in the TV series "The X-Files," died in Toronto at age 86.

NFL ROUNDUP

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jacksonville Jaguars' Jalen Parmele (34) runs through a gap during the third quarter of an NFL football game against the Houston Texans on Sunday in Houston.

Schaub Rallies Texans past Jaguars

ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON • Andre Johnson caught a screen pass from Matt Schaub and ran 48 yards for the winning touchdown in overtime as the Houston Texans rallied to beat Jacksonville 43-37 on Sunday.

Schaub threw a career-high five touchdown passes, completed a franchise-record 43 passes and finished with 527 yards passing, second most in NFL history. Warren Moon also threw for 527 yards for the Houston Oilers in December 1990 against Kansas City.

Norm Van Brocklin holds the record with 554 for the Rams in 1951.

Johnson caught 14 passes for 273 yards, both career highs. The Texans (9-1) won an overtime game for the first time at Reliant Stadium.

Chad Henne threw a career-high four touchdown passes in relief of injured Blaine Gabbert for the Jaguars (1-9). Rookie Justin Blackmon had 236 yards receiving.

FALCONS 23, CARDINALS 19

ATLANTA • Matt Ryan overcame a career-worst five interceptions, guiding Atlanta to its only offensive touchdown in the fourth quarter in a sloppy win.

The Falcons (9-1) turned it over a total of six times, but Michael Turner scored on a 1-yard run with 6:40 remaining to give Atlanta its first lead of the game. Ryan set up the score with four completions for 64 yards, including a 9-yarder to Tony Gonzalez on third-and-5 at the Arizona 10.

PACKERS 24, LIONS 20

DETROIT • Aaron Rodgers threw two touchdown passes, including a 22-yarder to Randall Cobb with 1:55 left to lift Green Bay.

Mason Crosby made a 39-yard field goal with 19 seconds to go after missing two field goals earlier in the game.

Matthew Stafford couldn't put the Lions ahead on either of their last two drives in a game he'd like to forget.

Stafford threw two interceptions — one of which was returned 72 yards by Green Bay safety M.D. Jennings for a go-ahead score in the third quarter — and lost a fumble.

Green Bay (7-3) has won five straight and Detroit (4-6) has dropped two in a row.

COWBOYS 23, BROWNS 20

ARLINGTON, Texas • Dan Bailey kicked a 38-yard field goal in overtime and Dallas overcame a critical fumble by Tony Romo that sparked a wild ending.

Bailey's winning kick with 6:07 remaining in OT came after both teams punted once in the first overtime game at Cowboys Stadium. Bailey hit a tying 32-yard field goal with 2 seconds left in regulation.

Dallas (5-5) rallied from a 13-0 halftime deficit and went ahead 17-13 on Romo's 28-yard pass to Dez Bryant.

A fumble by Browns rookie Brandon Weeden on a sack appeared to put the Cowboys in control, but Romo gave it right back with a fumble on another sack.

The Cowboys made one goal-line stand in the final minutes, but the Browns got another chance and went ahead 20-17 on Weeden's 17-yard pass to Benjamin Watson.

BUCCANEERS 27, PANTHERS 21

CHARLOTTE, N.C. • Josh Freeman threw a 15-yard touchdown pass to Dallas Clark in overtime to cap a comeback.

It was Freeman's third touchdown pass of the game for the Buccaneers (6-4).

Carolina appeared to have the game in hand after a 29-yard touchdown pass from Cam Newton to Brandon LaFell put the Panthers (2-8) up 21-10 with 4:34 left in the game. But after a 40-yard field goal by Connor Barth, the Panthers were forced to punt, and Freeman led the Bucs 80 yards on seven plays in 50 seconds with no timeouts.

PATRIOTS 59, COLTS 24

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. • The Patriots used three scoring passes from Tom Brady, two touchdowns on interception returns and another on a punt return to match a team single-game scoring record.

The first matchup between three-time Super Bowl winner Brady and star rookie Andrew Luck was no match.

The Patriots (7-3) won their fourth straight game and extended their lead in the AFC East to three games. The Colts (6-4) had their four-game winning streak stopped by the NFL's best offense and one of its worst defenses.

This win was the Patriots' most complete in a season in which they've averaged 35.8 points per game and lost their three games by a combined margin of four points.

The 59 points equals the team mark set in a 59-0 win over the Tennessee Titans on Oct. 18, 2009.

SAINTS 38, RAIDERS 17

OAKLAND, Calif. • Drew Brees threw three touchdown passes and Malcolm Jenkins returned an interception for another score to get the Saints back to .500.

Lance Moore caught two touchdown passes and Mark Ingram ran for a score as the Saints (5-5) won for the fifth time in six games and are in position to make a late-season playoff run despite the season-long distraction from the bounty scandal.

The Raiders (3-7) lost their third straight game under first-year coach Dennis Allen as their banged-up defense got picked apart by Brees' precision passing. Oakland has allowed 135 points in those defeats, the most in a three-game span for the franchise since allowing 141 in the first three games in 1961.

RAVENS 13, STEELERS 10

PITTSBURGH • Jacoby Jones returned a punt for a touchdown, Justin Tucker kicked two field goals and the Baltimore Ravens took control of the AFC North with a 13-10 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers on Sunday night.

The Ravens (8-2) moved two games in front of the Steelers (6-4) by shutting down Pittsburgh's offense, which sputtered without injured quarterback Ben Roethlisberger.

Brees finished 20 for 27 for 219 yards, extending his own records by throwing a touchdown in his 53rd straight game and completing 20 passes for the 46th straight game.

BRONCOS 30, CHARGERS 23

DENVER • Peyton Manning threw for three touchdowns and Von Miller had three sacks to take the league lead with 13. Denver took a three-game lead in the AFC West by sweeping the Chargers.

Manning threw for 270 yards. He got off to a slow start, throwing an interception that Eric Weddle returned for a score and an early 7-0 lead. But the Broncos (7-3) took a 10-7 lead early in the second quarter and never trailed again.

Manning won his 148th regular-season game as a starting quarterback, tying John Elway for second on the all-time list. Brett Favre has 186.

The Chargers (4-6) lost for the fifth time in six games.

REDSKINS 31, EAGLES 6

LANDOVER, Md. • Robert Griffin III threw four touchdown passes, and Washington broke a three-game losing streak.

Griffin completed 14 of 15 passes for 200 yards and also ran 11 times for 85 yards. He threw for scores of 6, 49, 61 and 17 yards — one in each quarter.

Philadelphia's Nick Foles was 21 for 46 for 204 yards in his first NFL start, and his first two series ended with interceptions. Foles was starting in place of Michael Vick, who suffered a concussion in last week's loss to the Dallas Cowboys.

JETS 27, RAMS 13

ST. LOUIS • Mark Sanchez directed a turnover-free offense and Bilal Powell ran for the first two touchdowns of his career as the Jets ended a three-game losing streak.

BENGALS 28, CHIEFS 6

KANSAS CITY, Mo. • Andy Dalton threw for 230 yards and accounted for three touchdowns and A.J. Green caught a touchdown pass in his ninth straight game.

Green finished with six catches for 91 yards in another dazzling performance, Mohamed Sanu had a scoring grab and BenJarvus Green-Ellis ran for 101 yards and a touchdown as the Bengals (5-5) won their second straight following a four-game losing streak.

RAVENS 13, STEELERS 10

PITTSBURGH • Jacoby Jones returned a punt for a touchdown, Justin Tucker kicked two field goals and the Baltimore Ravens took control of the AFC North with a 13-10 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers on Sunday night.

The Ravens (8-2) moved two games in front of the Steelers (6-4) by shutting down Pittsburgh's offense, which sputtered without injured quarterback Ben Roethlisberger.
