IDAHO POWER TO THE RESCUE

The utility's employees reflect on helping parts of New York recover from Hurricane Sandy.

TWIN FALLS • Most people are grateful when their power comes back on after an outage. But it doesn't necessarily bring them to tears.

Last week, two six-man crews from Idaho Power traveled to New York and witnessed that scene dozens of times as they helped restore power to areas of Long Island damaged by Hurricane Sandy.

Idaho Power is a member of the Western Mutual Assistance Group. When the Long Island Power Authority saw Sandy coming, it reached out to the group, said Bo Hanchey, regional operations manager for Idaho Power in Twin Falls.

The storm made landfall on Oct. 30 and Idaho Power began looking for workers throughout the state with the experience and skills needed to help. Hanchey said 30 employees from the Magic Valley volunteered to go.

On Friday night, Nov. 2, Brent Hammons, a lineman from Twin Falls, and Shad Scouten, a troubleman from Jerome, both got calls from Hanchey.

After a four-day, cross country trip, the Idaho Power crews reported to Bethpage State Park on Long Island, along with power companies from 45 states and Canada, Hanchey said.

From there, the crew got their assignment and finally got to bed at about midnight — some in emergency trailers and others in the cab of their trucks. Bright and early the next morning, they started work.

"We probably had the best end of the work," Hammons said. "You pull up to get people's lights on and they were out in tears."

District Files Complaint against Declo Teacher

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • A formal complaint regarding a Declo teacher's treatment of students who failed reading goals has been filed with an Idaho commission on educators' professional standards and ethics.

The Idaho State Department of Education's Professional Standards Commission examines complaints against certified teachers and has the power to suspend or revoke teaching licenses.

Cassia County School District Superintendent Galen Smyer said Monday his district filed the complaint after fourth-grade teacher Summer Larsen allowed students to scribble with permanent marker on the faces of classmates who failed to meet reading goals.

"I'm really limited on what I can say because it's a personnel issue," Smyer said. "The investigation on this is also ongoing in the district."

Smyer declined to name the teacher involved last week, citing personnel reasons, but parents of the students named Larsen.

Larsen did not return calls Monday from the Times-News.

Smyer said Larsen is still employed with the district, but would not confirm whether she was placed on

220 Turkeys: Burley Student Delivers on Promise

BY LAURIE WELCH

BURLEY • Ashlynn Carver's desire to help provide Thanksgiving turkeys to families less fortunate was fulfilled Monday as she and several dozen helpers took more than 220 turkeys to the Helping Hands Mission in Burley.

"I'm overwhelmed and I don't know what to say. This is amazing," said Judy Thornton, co-owner of the mission. "All of these people came to help and a 13-year-old girl did this."

Carver is a student at Burley Junior High School and took on the project after she visited the mission with a class.

"I'm pretty proud to be her dad," said David Carver, Ashlynn's father. "I'm proud to be a part of this."

Sandra Christensen, who was the recipient of some of Carver's goodwill, waited near a box she placed in line and watched the procession of turkeys as they passed from hand to hand from the street to the doors.

Jerome Man Sentenced for Robbery, Burglaries

TIMES-NEWS JEROME • A Jerome man accused of multiple crimes in Twin Falls and Jerome was sentenced Friday for his role in several burglaries and a robbery in Jerome County. In September, Jorge Banuelos, 19, pleaded guilty to five burglary charges and to being an accessory to robbing the Jerome Wendy's restaurant.

Banuelos was sentenced in Jerome County 5th District Court to spend two to 12 years in prison for the crimes, to be served at the same time as his identical Twin Falls County sentence for robbing the Twin Falls Applebee's. In May, Banuelos was one of five young men, including Nikolas Maria, Branden Galbreath and two juvenile males, whom Jerome County sheriff's deputies filed a total 50 charges against for a string of Jerome thefts. In addition, Banuelos, Maria, Galbreath, Taylor Crossen and Cesar Granados were all charged in relation to the Wendy's robbery while Banuelos and Galbreath were charged with the Applebee's robbery.

Holiday Week Starts Mild, Chance Of Rain

Brian Neudorff Meteorologist

We are just days from the Thanksgiving holiday and that means many of us are making our Thanksgiving travel plans and Black Friday shopping plans, many of which will be determined by the weather. It appears the main weather trouble spots the next few days will be to the north in the Wood River region and across the Pacific Northwest of Oregon and Washington, where a series of storms will move through the region by Wednesday.

Here in the Magic Valley weather will remain mild and mostly quiet. These passing storms could produce a passing shower or two Tuesday into Wednesday, but most of the time will be dry. Temperatures will remain about 10 degrees above average through Wednesday as highs are in the mid- to upper 50s. As a cold front works through the area Wednesday, winds will increase to 10 to 25 mph out of the west and it will turn cooler and more seasonal by Thanksgiving. Black Friday shoppers get the break of nice weather with lows not too cold, down to the low 30s and upper 20s, and afternoon temperatures near the low 50s. It will also be dry so no worries of fighting rain or snow as you fight for this year's best bargains.

Curious Mind

Pumpkins Are a Livestock Treat

What happens to all the extra pumpkins after the holidays end? At Tubbs Berry Farm, they become a treat for livestock. "Our family eats a lot of them, they store really well, so we can eat them until about February of next year," Heidi Tubbs said.

Kimberly Williams-Brackett Curious Mind

The family stores pumpkins on a shelf in the garage. "If we had a cellar or cold storage room that would be better," Tubbs said. "You can rub vegetable oil on bad spots when they first start and keep them from rotting the pumpkin," she said. "Pumpkins with stem still attached store longer." Miller Elk Farm LLC in Buhl hosted a Great Elk Pumpkin Feed after Halloween. Visitors took a ride out to the elk to feed their pumpkins, garden, and orchard goods to Aspen, Syringa, Babe and Tuesday.

"Elk enjoy this nutritious seasonal treat," said owner Erin Miller. Apples, pears, peaches, all vegetables and post-growing season garden goods are also considered "elk candy," said Miller. Proost Family Farms supplies pumpkins to stores like WinCo and Smith's Food and Drug. As for any extras, "we sell them as livestock feed for cattle or hogs," said owner Jay Proost. With 75 to 100 tons available, "not much goes to waste," Proost said. Have a question? Just ask and we'll find an answer for you. Board Repeals Online Class Requirement

BOISE • The Idaho State Board of Education repealed a pending rule change Monday that would have required students to take online classes. Under the Students Come First reforms, high school students graduating in 2016 were required to take two online classes. But now that voters overturned those laws, the board decided 7-1 that the requirement should be repealed and future requirements should be discussed. "The voters sent the education system a clear message that all stakeholders must be involved in developing and implementing reform," state board president Ken Edmunds said in a statement. However, being able to "learn effectively in an online environment is a critical skill," he said. As a result of the election, the board also repealed a rule about fractional average daily attendance and a pending rule to incorporate parent and principal input into teacher evaluations. According to the Associated Press, Idaho Education Association head Penni Cyr lauded the board's action, saying her group doesn't object to classroom technology but opposes requirements drafted without input from teachers. SBOE member Emma Atchley of Ashton, however, said she feared dumping the two-course online requirement would set back the ability of Idaho's educational system to prepare students for the digital post-graduation world.

Schools Closed for Thanksgiving

TWIN FALLS • Schools around the region will be closed later this week for the Thanksgiving holiday. College of Southern Idaho offices close at 1 p.m. Wednesday and will reopen Monday. Students won't have classes from Wednesday through Friday. Scheduled events at CSI — such as the Turkey Trot 5K on Thanksgiving — will continue as planned. The Herrett Center for Arts & Science will be closed just on Thursday. Students will be off Wednesday through Friday in many area school districts, including Twin Falls, Jerome, Filer, Buhl, Kimberly, Wendell and Minidoka County. Blaine County and Cassia County students will have an early-out day Wednesday. Schools will be closed Thursday and Friday. Students in the Gooding School District are off all week for fall break.

U.S. 30 Altered along Chobani Site

TWIN FALLS • Drivers passing the Chobani site just southeast of Twin Falls should watch for a new, temporary traffic pattern, the Idaho Transportation Department announced. ITD crews restriped the segment of U.S. Highway 30 on Monday to add a westbound center turn bay, eliminating the shoulder of the road in both directions as a result. The speed limit through the Chobani construction zone will also change to 45 mph, from Hankins Road to 3300 East.

The changes will remain until additional turn bays are added to the road, likely in spring 2013. The construction permit approved by ITD requires eastbound right turn bays to be built for both of Chobani's permanent entrances. The road must also be widened for a center turn bay for westbound traffic.

Gardner, Ball Appointed to Twin Falls URA

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency has appointed two people to fill vacancies on its board of directors.

Perri Gardner and Dexter Ball will replace Larry Hall and Bob Richards, who stepped down earlier this month. Gardner and Ball will serve the remainder of Hall and Richards' terms, which end in 2014.

Gardner is a grant writer for the College of Southern Idaho. Ball, who previously served on the URA's board of directors from 2002 through 2008, worked in the title business for about 36 years.

Many couldn't believe the crew came all the way from Idaho, he said.

At one house where the crew restored power, Hammons said a woman told them her 4-year-old son was on a ventilator.

"It was out for 14 days," Scouten said.

At another house, a woman said she had a daughter at home who was paralyzed and they badly needed electricity. Hammons said she told them she'd asked every company that came by to try to get her power back on.

"As soon as she told us, we asked her address," he said. "We got over there in 10 minutes."

"We took our work ethic with us," Hanchey said. "They were appreciative of it."

The three men said having support from people in Idaho while they were in New York helped keep them going.

"We shined," he said.

Seeing such a large disaster also made the crew think about ways to improve their own emergency preparedness and how Idaho Power would house out-of-state companies if disaster struck, Hanchey said.

Despite a few difficulties, Hanchey, Scouten and Hammons said they were proud to represent Idaho Power and the entire state with the work they did.

administrative leave — again citing personnel matters.

On Nov. 5, Larsen allowed her students to determine an incentive for an Accelerated Reading goal. The incentive the class chose was to allow students who made the goal to mark on the faces of the students who did not meet the benchmark. The students who did not meet the goal could choose to forgo recess until the goal was obtained or allow classmates to scribble on their faces. Nine students failed to meet the goal and six of those chose to have their faces marked.

The activity occurred in the morning and students were forced to wear the markings for the rest of the day, including lunch and recess.

Melissa McGrath, ISDE spokeswoman, said the Professional Standards Commission's 19 members are appointed by the State Board of Education to investigate complaints against teachers certified in the state.

McGrath said the commission meets five to six times a year.

"They investigate complaints and then take any necessary action if they find an individual has violated state ethics code," she said.

McGrath said action can include suspension or revocation of a license.

"It's a long process," she said.

McGrath said once the commission makes a decision in a case, the information becomes public record.

Smyer said his district's school board will be kept apprised of the investigation.

The board next meets at 7 p.m., Nov. 27. Smyer said Monday that the complaint will not be on the agenda.

"Even if it was discussed it would be a personnel issue and held in executive session (behind closed doors)," Smyer said.

The incident drew national attention and prompted an online petition to school board members to terminate Larsen's employment. On Monday, there were 10 supporters. Eight of the names appeared publicly on the website and all were from out of state.

people are struggling. It'll be great to get a turkey to cook," Christensen said. "I think it's just awesome. What 13-year-old has the courage to do that?"

Cody Thornton, mission co-owner, said another drive held by a local radio station brought in 96 turkeys.

"It's hard to know for sure but I think we'll have a turkey for every family who needs one," Thornton said.

Judy Thornton said last year during Thanksgiving week there were 150 people lined up on the sidewalk when they opened the mission doors.

Along with turkey, the food boxes contained potatoes, eggs, stuffing mix and cranberry sauce donated by businesses and people in the community.

"This is truly a community project," Judy Thornton said.

The mission will be giving out food boxes Tuesday at 1 p.m. at 1250 Miller Ave. in Burley.

We live in an area which is known for very cold winters. Our facility is nearly 7000 square feet in area. When we began to utilize the first unit we were amazed to see how even the heat was for the entire living room area. We ordered a second and a third unit which now warms the entire home. Much to our surprise we are saving over $250 a month and had the lowest expense for heating we have ever experienced here. I would heartily recommend your products to anybody who is interested in really nice, even heat in their home and also interested in saving on their utility expenses.

American Labor, American Quality

With over 3 million portable heaters sold EdenPURE® is the best selling portable infrared heating system in North America. However, like any classic, EdenPURE® has dozens of would-be competitors who create Asian copies at low prices using cheap, foreign labor. Don't be fooled by these imitations. Look for the EdenPURE® logo and the Made in North Canton, Ohio stamp. Save like millions of others on your heating bills and say "NO" to cheap foreign imitations.

I spoke with Neil Tyburk the Chief Designer and President of EdenPURE®'s North Canton plant who is very direct in his beliefs. "We have better designs, better materials and a better work force. We can kick their butts in production and quality. The only advantage they have is cheap labor."

Save up to 49% on 2013 EdenPURE®s

Now readers can save up to 49% ($229 the largest savings ever on new EdenPURE®s). EdenPURE® is not just the best-selling portable heating system in North America. As an EdenPURE® owner I rank EdenPURE® #1 for quality, safety and efficiency. And now is the perfect time to save like never before on our expanded 2013 EdenPURE® line made in our brand new North Canton, Ohio facility.

With two models EdenPURE® can meet all of your heating requirements 365 days a year. We receive thousands of letters from satisfied customers who share their heating testimonials many of which you can view at our website edenpure.com. This Summer we even followed up with EdenPURE® customers from 5 years ago like Gloria Smith (see her original testimony above) who are still just as enthusiastic and in some instances saved thousands of dollars versus costly propane.

Gloria Smith Interview May 20, 2012

"My name is Gloria Smith and I am a retired principal from Boydton, Virginia. I've been using EdenPURE® Heaters for 5 years. I think I saved at least $15,000 over a period of 5 years. And that's proven with my bank statements because it's documented. And I feel really great about using the EdenPURE® Heaters."

"Many people have called me from all over the country when they have seen the in-

Never be cold again

As Al Borland on Home Improvement I was the man with all the answers. However, as Richard Karn I still look for money saving and efficient heating in my home. I have an EdenPURE® Infrared Portable Heater in my California home and like millions of others found it to be a super-safe, reliable source of portable heat all year long.

fomercials on TV. I've enjoyed talking to them and I want everybody to save money in these hard economic times. I believe in paying it forward, so when you experience something good, you want to share it."

Stay Comfortable 365 Days a Year

"Never be cold again" is the EdenPURE® promise. EdenPURE® provides you insurance against the cold all year long. Stay comfortable on those unseasonably chilly evenings no matter the season. I live in California but believe me it gets cold at night. Keep your expensive furnace turned down until it's absolutely necessary. And if we are fortunate enough to experience a mild winter as many of us did in the Midwest last year, you keep your furnace off all season and save even bigger.

New, More Efficient Models

The engineers at EdenPURE® listened to their millions of customers and somehow managed to improve the #1 portable heater in North America. Through old fashioned American ingenuity the new EdenPURE® line is more efficient to save you even more money.

The EdenPURE® Personal Heater now heats a larger area, an increase from 350 square feet to 500 square feet. That's a 30% increase in efficiency!

And EdenPURE® is proud to introduce the 2013 Model 750. The new Model 750 is perfect for larger areas and heats up to 750 square feet. But the best thing about the Model 750 is the price. We priced the Model 750 at only $50 above the Personal Heater. This means you receive a 33% increase in performance for only $50. That's American engineering at its best!

We all know heating costs are expected to remain at record levels. The cost of heating our homes and apartments will continue to be a significant burden on the family budget. The EdenPURE® can cut your heating bills and pay for itself in a matter of weeks, and then start putting a great deal of extra money in your pocket after that.

Super Safe Infrared Heat

Now remember, a major cause of residential fires in the United States is carelessness and faulty portable heaters. The choice of fire and safety professional, Captain Mike Hornby, the EdenPURE® has no exposed heating elements that can cause a fire. And a redundant home protection system that simply shuts the EdenPURE® down if it senses danger. That's why grandparents and parents love the EdenPURE®.

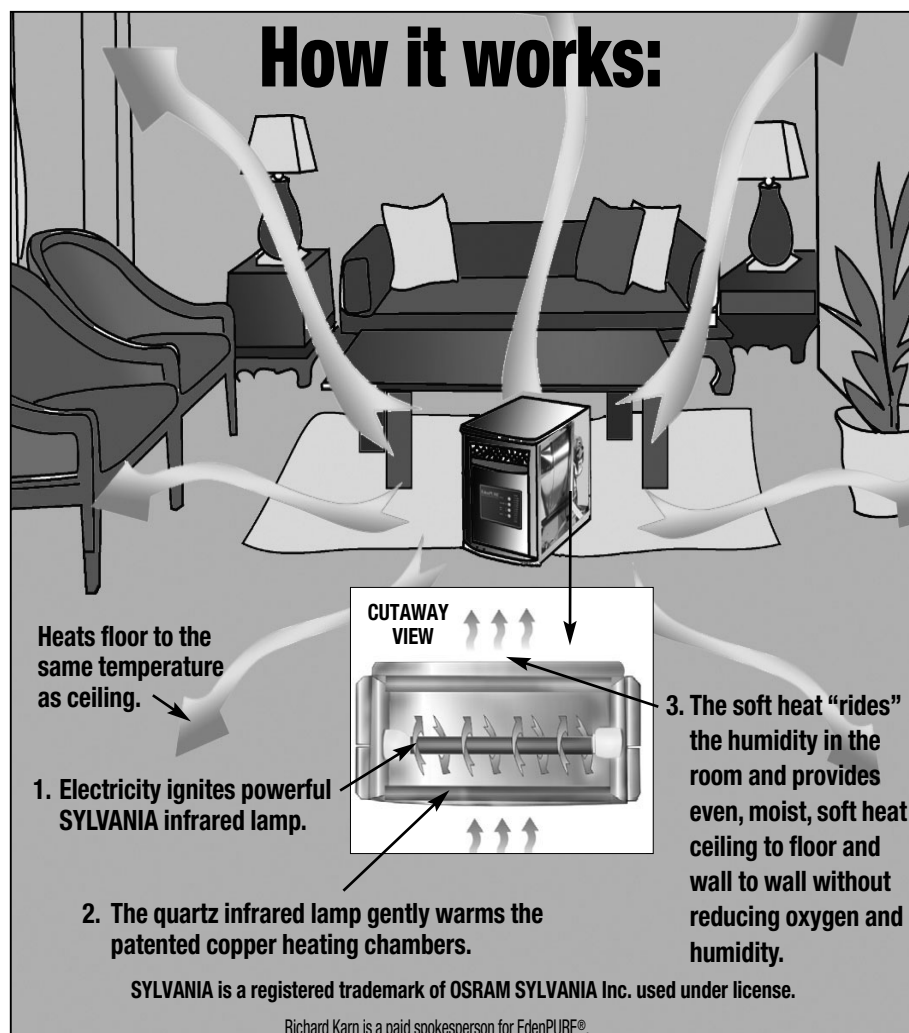

The outside of the EdenPURE® only gets warm to the touch so that it will not burn children or pets. And your pet may be just like my dog who has reserved a favorite spot near the EdenPURE®. You see the EdenPURE® uses infrared heat. And just as pets enjoy basking in a beam of sunlight they try to stay close to EdenPURE®'s "bone-warming" infrared heat.

The Origin of EdenPURE® a Missouri Rancher's Discovery

American's love to tinker. We are a nation of inventors from Benjamin Franklin to Thomas Edison. A Missouri horse breeder named John Jones was no exception.

Jones lived in a large drafty old farmhouse with his family of five. They stayed warm on cold Missouri nights with an old coal furnace and plenty of blankets.

Now Jones was always collecting scrap to use in his latest inventions and somewhere along the line he had picked up a large sheet of cured copper. Jones stored the large copper sheet in his basement near the coal furnace he labored to fill every chilly morning.

Jones noticed something peculiar. The coal furnace warmed the copper sheet and as the furnace cooled down the copper sheet stayed warm. In fact, the copper sheet stayed warm for many hours and heated much of the large basement.

As Jones continued to develop a portable infrared heater he knew the copper was the secret ingredient that would make his heater different from all the rest. His copper heating chambers combined with the far infrared bulbs provided an efficient wave of "soft" heat over large areas. The breakthrough EdenPURE® infrared heating chamber was born.

The Health Secret is in the Copper

EdenPURE®'s engineers have taken Jones' original concept through revolutionary changes. EdenFLOW™ technology uses copper heating chambers to take the energy provided by our special SYLVANIA infrared bulbs and distribute our famous soft heat evenly throughout the room.

Now our copper isn't ordinary. It's 99.9% pure antimicrobial copper from an over 150 year old American owned company in Pennsylvania. Researchers have discovered copper as an antimicrobial is far more effective than stainless steel or even silver. That's why our special antimicrobial copper is marked Cu+ and used in hospitals on touch surfaces. So your EdenPURE® heater is continuously pushing soft, healthy, infrared heat throughout your room.

New Trustees Join CSI Board

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Monday night marked the first meeting for two new College of Southern Idaho board members.

New trustees Jan Mittleider and Laird Stone, elected earlier this month, were sworn in.

They stood as Vice President of Administration Mike Mason led them in taking an oath of office.

For longtime board member Thad Scholes — who was reelected this month — it was business as usual Monday. He has been on the board since 1981.

Fellow board members voted to keep Scholes in the position of board chairman.

Mittleider, Stone and Scholes will serve four-year terms on the board.

They join trustees Karl Kleinkopf and Bob Keegan, who were both elected in 2010.

As Monday's meeting got underway, Scholes clarified a few points — that a second isn't needed on a motion and that board members make a motion on items up for a vote before further discussing them.

The election this month was a major shift for the board of trustees.

Until recent years, the board was made up of members who'd served for decades.

Out of the nine candidates for three seats, Scholes was the only incumbent.

After 24 years on the board, Donna Brizee announced that she wouldn't seek reelection. And Alan Frost — who was appointed in 2006 — also decided not to run again.

Frost attended the first part of Monday's meeting.

He said he was making a cameo appearance and thanked trustees and employees.

"It's been a great 6 1/2 years," he said.

It had been a gift, Frost said, to get to know everyone better. And he said CSI is a success story.

He also said it was important to recognize Brizee — who wasn't able to be at the meeting — for her years of service.

Meeting attendees stood and clapped as Frost shook hands.

Rollover Injures 1

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • One person was injured in a rollover Monday evening, Twin Falls police say.

Dispatchers were called shortly after 5 p.m. about a one-vehicle rollover along Addison Avenue East at D&B Supply.

According to police, an adult female was taken to the emergency room at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center. Scanner traffic indicated the vehicle ended up on its side at D&B.

Investigators were still working out Monday evening how the rollover occurred.

Plane and Pilot Missing in Western Wyoming

PINEDALE, Wyo. (AP) • Crews in western Wyoming have failed to find any sign of a small plane that's been missing since Saturday with only the pilot aboard.

The Cessna 182 left Stevensville, Mont., Saturday and had been due in Pinedale that afternoon but didn't arrive.

Sublette County Public Information Officer Steve Smith says officials aren't releasing the pilot's name.

Smith says radar lost track of the plane over upper Hoback Canyon, between Jackson and Boundurant.

Smith says dozens of searchers were out on the ground Sunday and Monday near the Sublette and Lincoln county line. He says aircraft searched for the plane on Sunday but says bad weather conditions prevented aircraft from joining the search on Monday.

Crews plan to continue looking on Tuesday.

OBITUARIES

Elvira Spaziano

April 23, 1934-Nov. 18, 2012

BURLEY • Elvira Spaziano, age 78, passed away Sunday, Nov. 18, 2012, surrounded by her family at Oak Creek Rehabilitation Center in Kimberly, Idaho.

Elvira was born April 23, 1934, in Rome, Italy, to Mauro and Antonietta Ingvalli Cosmai. She was the youngest of four children and raised in Rome. Elvira married Agostino Spaziano on April 25, 1959, after a seven-year courtship. They shared 23 wonderful years together. David, their first born son, was born in Italy on Nov. 7, 1961. They joined Agostino in America in April of 1964. Their second son, Angelo, was born in Burley on Feb. 25, 1967.

Elvira's greatest joy in life was her family. She was a loving wife, mother, grandmother and great-grandmother. She was dearly loved by her five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. She was a wonderful homemaker and cook. Elvira loved music and loved to dance. Every Saturday, you would find her at George K's, dancing to her heart's content.

Elvira was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, Agostino; and two brothers. She is survived by her children, David Spaziano and Angelo (Tami) Spaziano; one sister, Pena Guzano; five grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

The funeral Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 21, at the St. Therese Little Flower Catholic Church, 1601 Oakley Ave. in Burley, with the Rev. Father Julio Vicente as celebrant. Burial will be in the Pleasant View Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 to 8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 20, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 9 to 9:45 a.m. Wednesday at the church.

The family wishes to express their sincere appreciation to the loving staff at Oak Creek Rehabilitation Center in Kimberly for the loving care they gave to grandma.

Former United Player Kenny Morgans Dies at 73

MANCHESTER, England (AP) • Manchester United says Kenny Morgans, who survived the Munich air disaster in 1958, has died. He was 73.

The club said on its website that Morgans became ill Saturday evening and died in a hospital.

A total of 23 people died when the plane carrying United's young team, nicknamed the "Busby Babes," crashed on the runway at Munich-Riem Airport while trying to take off.

Morgans made a full recovery and resumed his playing career. The Welsh winger made 23 first-team appearances for United before joining Swansea in 1961 and Newport County in 1964. He retired three years later.

Morgans returned to United for its 50th anniversary of the Munich tragedy four years ago and was guest of honor at an Association of Former Manchester United Players dinner.

R&B Singer Billy Scott Dies in N.C.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) • Rhythm and blues singer Billy Scott has died in North Carolina at age 70.

Bill Kopald with the North Carolina Music Hall of Fame said Scott died from pancreatic and liver cancer Saturday at his home in Charlotte.

Born Peter Pendleton in

Huntington, W. Va., he sang with various groups while in the Army. After he was discharged in 1964, he changed his name and with his wife, Barbara, in 1966 began recording as The Prophets. Their first gold record was 1968's "I Got the Fever." Other hits included

"California" and "Seaside Love" as the Georgia Prophets.

The group recorded a number of hits in the 1970s in the beach music genre, a regional variant of R&B. Scott was inducted into the North Carolina Music Hall of Fame in 1999.

Seth P. Tillman, a Key Fulbright Aide on Foreign Policy, Dies

BY EMILY LANGER
The Washington Post

Seth P. Tillman, a key aide to late Sen. J. William Fulbright who helped write many of the lawmaker's most noted speeches and helped shape his powerfully influential opposition to the Vietnam War, died Nov. 16 at the Washington Home hospice in the District of Columbia.

He was 82 and had Parkinson's disease, said his son Andrew Tillman.

As the longtime chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Fulbright became known for his role in turning the United States against its involvement in Southeast Asia. But few know of the extent to which Tillman helped alter history by working in private on the stands Fulbright took in public.

Tillman was a Capitol Hill intern fresh from a doctoral program in foreign affairs when he went to work in 1961 for Fulbright's committee. He quickly became a principal aide in the Arkansas Democrat's Senate office as well as on the committee.

"There was nobody . . . more important to the formation of Bill Fulbright's thought on foreign affairs" than Tillman, Fulbright biographer Randall Bennett Woods said in an interview.

Much of Tillman's influence derived from his philosophical kinship with his boss. Woods described him as Fulbright's "intellectual alter-ego." Both were internationalists, he said, and both were "staunchly anti-Communist."

On Vietnam, Woods said, the "elements of dissent were present in Fulbright's mind." But it was Tillman, he said, who "helped Fulbright . . . understand how the Cold War was going off the rails"

Janine Paule Montupet

Feb. 16, 1919, to Nov. 18, 2012

HAILEY • Janine Montupet, a much-celebrated French novelist, died Sunday morning at her Hailey, Idaho, home of natural causes.

Janine Montupet was born in Oran, French Algeria, of Provençal, Corsican, Italian and Irish ancestry. Her parents, Louise and Paul Poggi, moved to Paris when she was 15. Janine married aluminum foundry industrialist, the late Jean Montupet in Paris in 1947, and shortly thereafter wrote her first novel, "The Red Fountain," about the French colonists in Algeria, the first in her successful series of historical novels set in Algeria and published by Robert Laffont.

Later, while living in Normandy, she was inspired to write "La Dentellière d' Alençon" ("The Laccemaker"), a successful historical novel detailing the lives of the 17th and 18th century lacemakers of Alençon, who produced the finest lace to adorn European nobility.

Then Janine returned to her favorite subject, Algeria, and soon published "Couleurs de Paradis" ("Colors of Paradise"), a novel about the cohabitation of the French colonists and the Arabs in Algeria. Intrigued by the French perfume dynasties, she then penned a saga about the perfume families surrounding Grasse, Haute Provence, and another historical novel dealing with a family of great chefs, "Un Gout de Bonheur et de Miel sauvage" ("A Taste of Happiness and Wild Honey"), and yet another novel on France's women's shoe industry, "Bal au Palais Darelli" ("The Ball at the Palace of Darelli"). Passionate about writing and story telling, Janine finished a total of 20 novels published by Robert Laffont, Albin Michel and Flammarion publishing houses in Paris. Continuously writing, she followed her children to the United States 30 years ago to spend more time with her growing family.

Janine is survived by her son, Jean-Paul Montupet and his wife, Isabelle Montupet, their children, James Colin Montupet, and Pauline and Peter Thomas Shanley; as well as her daughter, Martine Montupet Drackett, Martine's husband, Dan Drackett, and their children, Clementine Drackett Philbrick, Hunter Philbrick and Aurelia Isabelle Drackett.

A private family memorial will be held when Janine's family convenes in Sun Valley for the Christmas holidays. In lieu of flowers, please consider a donation to Hospice and Palliative Care of the Wood River Valley, P.O. Box 4320, 501 First Ave. N. A BARRIER TO BUSINESS

Water, wastewater capacity stunting growth in Twin Falls.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A few weeks ago, AmeriPride approached the city of Twin Falls to request permission to expand its operations.

But the city had to turn the company down because they don't have the water capacity to take on the growth.

AmeriPride isn't alone. For years, Twin Falls has turned down inquiries from manufacturing businesses that would have used a lot of water, said Economic Development Director Melinda Anderson.

"So we've lost out on some amazing potential projects because of that ... manufacturing projects where they would be employing anywhere from 50 to 250 people," Anderson said.

It's been several years since the city could comfortably court wet industry businesses, Anderson said.

"The city's had a focus on dry industry strategy for quite a while," Anderson said, listing RV manufacturing and offices as an example of dry industry.

Chobani was an exception for a few reasons. The yogurt company approached Twin Falls shortly after the city acquired new water rights, and paid for the wastewater plant improvements it will use.

But there are no more easy improvements to make to the city's wastewater system, said City Manager Travis Rothweiler in October.

At the Nov. 13 Twin Falls City Council meeting, Mayor Greg Lanting said AmeriPride said it might move its operation to Boise if it can't expand here.

The Idaho Department of Labor is not allowed to release employment numbers of specific firms, but Lanting said AmeriPride employs about 130 people at its Twin Falls operation.

AmeriPride didn't return a request for comment.

Twin Falls city staff are looking for ways to fix the wastewater capacity problem. Infrastructure is a big focus in the city's strategic planning, which focuses on how Twin Falls will grow in coming years.

Solutions may include a public-private partnership to pay for future improvements or asking the public to pass a bond.

Last week, Lanting requested permission to form a citizens' committee for water and wastewater recommendations. Those interested can send a letter of intent and resume to lsanchez@tffd.org.

MELISSA DAVLIN • TIMES-NEWS

A lack of water and wastewater capacity in Twin Falls is preventing some businesses from growing in the Magic Valley, including AmeriPride.

Unemployment Down a Notch, but Not Due to Hiring

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Idaho's unemployment rate fell another 10th of a percent between September and October, but only because another 1,100 workers left the state's labor force.

That's according to preliminary figures and analysis from the Idaho Department of Labor.

Idaho unemployment now stands at 7.0 percent, the lowest rate in 3 1/2 years, according to Labor. But with the seasonal decline in jobs, total employment was essentially unchanged from September with fewer than 721,000 workers on the books. Nationally, Idaho remains almost a full percent below the U.S. unemployment rate of 7.9 percent.

October was the fifth straight month that Idaho's labor force has declined, according to Labor. More than 7,000 workers have stopped looking for jobs since May. And the only other year in the department's records that the labor force was smaller in October than May was 1980, between the 1980 and 1981 recessions.

Locally, south-central Idaho counties continued their mixed trends, with Jerome, Gooding and Camas counties seeing declines in unemployment but the rate rising in Twin Falls, Minidoka, Lincoln, Cassia and Blaine counties. Preliminary unemployment ranged from just 6.0 percent in Minidoka County to 10.9 percent in Camas County. Of the eight counties, only Camas and Lincoln had unemployment figures above the state average.

Statewide, food manufacturers boosted employment by more than 3 percent from September, while good weather kept construction layoffs to a minimum. Payrolls fell more than usual in food services, other leisure enterprises and in professional and business services. More than 17,000 new workers were hired in October, but almost all of them were in response to retirements, firings and other changes rather than new jobs created, according to Labor.

Less than 20 percent of Idaho nonfarm jobs lost during the recent recession have been recovered at this point. Labor analysts don't expect pre-recession job levels to return until at least early 2015.

The number of people receiving unemployment benefits continues to shrink. Just more than 14,500 unemployed workers split $14.2 million in state and federal benefits in October, down from 23,300 workers who were paid $22.6 million the year before. All federal extended benefits expire at the end of this year; this October, they accounted for $6.3 million given to 6,400 people.

Local Unemployment

Here's how preliminary unemployment data for October compares to past figures:

	% Oct. '12	% Sept. '12	% Oct. '11
Blaine Co.	6.7	6.5	8.8
Camas Co.	10.9	11.8	10.5
Cassia Co.	5.7	5.3	7.2
Gooding Co.	5.3	5.4	6.6
Jerome Co.	6.1	6.8	7.7
Lincoln Co.	10.1	9.6	12.7
Minidoka Co.	6.0	5.9	7.1
Twin Falls Co.	6.6	6.4	8.1
Idaho	7.0	7.1	8.6
U.S.	7.9	7.8	8.9

Local Gas Prices

AAA Idaho cited the following average prices for regular gasoline as of Monday:

Twin Falls:	$3.74

Event Center to Open in Downtown Twin Falls

BY VIRGINIA HUTCHINS
vhutchins@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Twin Falls woman intends to open a party and event center next month in one of Main Avenue's historical buildings.

Plaster removal has already uncovered the brick walls, and workers are stripping the oak floors of a space inside downtown's former Paris department store. Its new tenant: Lisa Douda, who hopes to open Soiree 12 in mid-December.

"I think it's a beautiful location. I think it enhances downtown," Douda said.

Still dubbed the Paris Building, the century-old structure is divided into four spaces on the street level. One houses the new Twin Falls Sandwich Co., two are vacant, and the space on the building's northwest end is where Douda and building owner Ken Fitzgerald are preparing for Soiree 12.

Douda expects to have seating capacity for 125 people at round tables in the street-level event center, plus space for 40 people seated classroom-style in a basement meeting room.

Clients who rent the center (136 Main Ave. W.; 404-9812) for weddings or private parties may choose their own caterers, Douda said. And when the center isn't rented, she intends to hold community events of her own to draw people to downtown — perhaps art shows, New Year's Eve parties or mystery theater dinners.

Why the name Soiree 12?

Douda chose a French word to honor the Paris store's legacy, and the 12 is a nod to both the building's construction and the birth of its newest tenant. Douda's library research shows the building was probably built in 1912, she said.

Douda has a background in events and catering and, in recent years, worked in hospice and related fields. She opened Savannah House Grill in late 2005 in an Addison Avenue building that has since housed other restaurants, most recently Saucy. She intends to keep her part-time hospice job as long as she can while launching Soiree 12.

On the Paris Building's southeast end, Fitzgerald has a potential tenant preparing to sign a lease to open a women's clothing boutique in the street-level space; "She wants to be open by spring," he said Friday.

In the space between Twin Falls Sandwich Co. and the future Soiree 12, Fitzgerald had pushed the entrance back from the sidewalk — as he did with the sandwich shop's space — in hopes of attracting a restaurant. Now he's in talks with a potential tenant who is developing a business plan for a brick-oven pizza restaurant, Fitzgerald said.

"If it does happen, it would be probably end of spring," he said.

In all four street-level spaces, Fitzgerald said, he and his tenants intend to strip plaster off the brick walls, remove carpet and vinyl from atop the oak floors and take out the '70s ceilings to uncover the original — in some cases stamped — ceilings. Each potential tenant "wants the look and feel of the sandwich shop, where we went back to the original materials," he said.

The building's second-story spaces are already home to a yoga and belly dancing studio, a hair salon, a tattoo parlor and a day spa.

Fitzgerald hopes to attract new businesses to the basement, such as a wine and martini bar and a jazz club.

Buhl Opens RV Parking Facility

TIMES-NEWS

BUHL • The Buhl Chamber of Commerce has opened an RV parking facility on property adjacent to the Chamber offices.

The facility has four spaces for overnight travelers. The funding came from a grant from the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation. The spaces aren't meant to host people long-term, said Larry Hall, coordinator for Southern Idaho Rural Development. Rather, organizers hope the spaces will attract people who are passing through. The idea, Hall said, is to get people to stop and buy things while they're in Buhl overnight.

"It's a good thing, we think," he said.

PMT Finalizes Member Dividends

TIMES-NEWS

RUPERT • Project Mutual Telephone customers will get a share of $274,593 in patronage dividends this year, depending on their use of the co-op's services.

PMT's board of directors recently approved the dividend amount.

Each customer's share will be based on the amount of business they have done with PMT. The payments will be mailed on Dec. 1, and represent a portion of patronage earned in 1993 and 2011, according to a PMT announcement.

Members receiving $10 or less will have the credit applied to their bills rather than checks mailed to them.

"Paying customers patronage is a tangible way to say, 'Thanks for doing business locally,' because without our members, we don't exist," PMT board chairman Dennis Dickson said in the announcement.

KETCHUM • Sheila Plowman, CEO and founder of It Takes a Village Foods, won the recent Entrepreneurs Just Do It! Business Plan competition in Ketchum. The company is known for its Ketchum Kale Chips and innovative "Veggie Evolution" vegetable chips.

The competition had 24 innovative local entrepreneurs honing their business plans and public speaking skills in hopes of winning the $1,500 prize.

Judge and guest speaker Mark Solon of Highway 12 Ventures noted it is vitally important for startups to support one another and have leadership from other proven entrepreneurs. Currently, he said, new entrepreneurs in Idaho lack the support and guidance they need.

Committee Donates $20,000 for Mammograms

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls Tough Enough to Wear Pink Committee has donated $20,000 to the St. Luke's Magic Valley Health Foundation. The money will help women older than 40 who don't have insurance, who have high deductibles or may not be able to afford a screening mammogram to get an annual mammogram.

The committee's signature event, Ladies Night Out, accounted for $16,000 of the donation.

One in 8 women will be diagnosed with breast cancer in their lifetime, and Idaho was ranked 50 out of 50 states by the National Cancer Institute for the rate of breast cancer screening among women over the age of 40, according to information provided with the donation announcement.

Primary Therapy Source Announces Award, Hires, Trainings

TWIN FALLS • Jan Yingst, MPT, PCS, has been awarded a J Perry Silver Award.

The J Perry Silver Award was established in 1981 to recognize excellence in clinical practice, dedication to patients, to the profession and to sharing knowledge with others. It is awarded every year to acknowledge the achievements and contributions of Idaho's outstanding physical therapists.

Yingst

Yingst is the founder of Primary Therapy Source in Twin Falls. She has spent 14 years providing quality service to adults and children in the Magic Valley. She has served on the Idaho Physical Therapy Association Board of Directors and is on the affiliate faculty at Idaho State University.

In other career news from Primary Therapy Source:

- New staff members include Nash Johnson, DPT, and Sara Rosen, PTA.

Rosen recently graduated from the physical therapy assistant program at ISU and joined the staff in August. She grew up in Twin Falls and is excited to return to the area. She enjoys providing physical therapy services to children.

Johnson graduated from ISU earlier this year and is starting his therapy career in Twin Falls. He was a licensed physical therapy assistant before returning to school to get his doctorate in physical therapy. His area of interest is running education and injury prevention.

- Tara Parsons, COTA/L, an occupational therapy assistant, attended the 2012 PATH International Conference for Hippotherapy.

Parsons and Ivan Hardcastle, OTR/L, also an occupational therapist, will soon attend a course titled "Visual Processing Therapy: Strategies for Helping Children with Learning Disabilities, SPD, ADHD, Autism and Acquired Brain Injury."

- Jessica Martin, COTA/L, and Jennifer Claire, COTA/L, occupational therapy assistants, recently attended a class titled "Effective Ways to Manage Behavior and Increase Functional Outcomes in Autism and Sensory Processing Disorders." They learned about calming strategies for children with autism, including pressure points and ways to decrease anxiety. They also discussed anger management, moving breaks at school and home, and body awareness.

- Tara Toone, MS, CCC-SLP, speech therapist, attended several classes during a recent continuing education course: "Managing Dysphagia: essential assessment, diagnosis and treatment strategies," "Cognitive Communication Disorders: assessment and treatment of neurological impairments," and "Cognitive Rehabilitation Therapy."

- Kerry Bowman and Julie Gibbons, speech pathologists, attended a training conference in Houston, Texas, where they learned implementation of the Lidcombe Program of Early Stuttering Intervention. They will offer treatment with this program to the Twin Falls community as two of very few SLPs trained in this program in Idaho.

Union Plans Walmart Protests for Black Friday

BY RENEE DUDLEY
Bloomberg News

NEW YORK • Wal-Mart Stores workers demanding better pay and benefits vow to mount 1,000 protests online and outside stores up to and including Black Friday. The strategy risks showing the company's strength, not vulnerability.

To work, the approach will require protest leaders to turn out significant numbers of strikers and persuade deal-chasing shoppers to go elsewhere. Similar protests in recent weeks have had little perceptible impact on the world's largest retailer.

The Black Friday protests are unlikely to be any different, said Zev J. Eigen, an associate professor at Northwestern University School of Law who specializes in labor relations.

"Shoppers in the parking lot will say 'Oh, that's terrible — OK, where do I get my discounted electronics,'" said Eigen, who is based in Chicago. "That's one of the big challenges for the labor movement. We'll sign online petitions, but we won't vote with our wallets."

For years, the United Food & Commercial Workers union has tried and failed to organize Wal-Mart workers. In recent months, the union has adopted a new tactic: backing two groups, OUR Walmart and Making Change at Walmart, and waging a media campaign and mounting protests comprised of activists and Wal-Mart workers at stores and warehouses around the U.S.

The protest organizers have declined to say how many Wal-Mart associates they expect to be involved in the latest round of actions. About 30 workers from six Seattle-area stores went on strike Nov. 15, and others plan to do so, the groups' members have said. Wal-Mart has more than 4,500 stores and clubs and 1.4 million employees in the U.S.

While Eigen compared the movement to "a few drops of food coloring in a giant vat of water," he added a caveat: "It is significant because Wal-Mart has such a strong reputation of shutting down even the tiniest, tiniest labor actions."

On an earnings call Nov. 15, Wal-Mart Chief Financial Officer Charles Holley said he was "not aware of any major disruptions that are going to happen Black Friday."

Still, later that day Wal-Mart fired a warning shot, filing a complaint against the union with the National Labor Relations Board. Wal-Mart accused the group of violating federal labor laws by inappropriately picketing, demonstrating, trespassing on company property and intimidating customers and employees — or making threats to do those things.

The union has tried to force Wal-Mart to the bargaining table even though it does not officially represent employees, according to the complaint. Wal-Mart asked the board for an investigation and immediate injunction.

"We are taking this action now because we cannot allow the UFCW to continue to intentionally seek to create an environment that could directly and adversely impact our customers and associates," David Tovar, a Wal-Mart spokesman, said in an emailed statement. "If they do, they will be held accountable."

The protesters are demanding more-predictable schedules, less-expensive health-care plans and minimum hourly pay of $13 with the option of working full-time. The average hourly full-time wage at Wal-Mart is $12.57, Kory Lundberg, a company spokesman, said in an email.

Wal-Mart's refusal to improve working conditions ultimately will be self-defeating, Lynsey Kryzwick, a spokeswoman for the non-profit Making Change at Walmart, said in a Nov. 16 telephone interview.

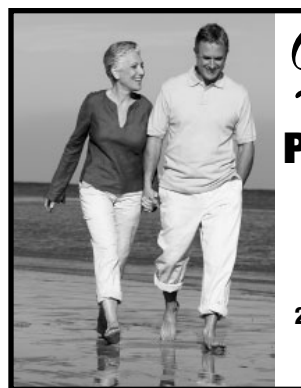

"Under-staffing going on in stores leads to low customer service leads to lower sales," she said.

Powerful Supermajorities Elected to Statehouses

BY DAVID A. LIEB
Associated Press

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. • There's a new superpower growing in the Great Plains and the South, where bulging Republican majorities in state capitols could dramatically cut taxes and change public education with barely a whimper of resistance from Democrats.

Contrast that with California, where voters have given Democrats a new dominance that could allow them to raise taxes and embrace same-sex marriage without regard to Republican objections.

If you thought the presidential election revealed the nation's political rifts, consider the outcomes in state legislatures. The vote also created a broader tier of powerful one-party governments that can act with no need for compromise. Half of state legislatures now have veto-proof majorities, up from 13 only four years ago, according to figures compiled for The Associated Press by the National Conference of State Legislatures.

All but three states — Iowa, Kentucky and New Hampshire — have one-party control of their legislatures, the highest mark since 1928.

The result could lead to stark differences in how people live and work.

"Usually, a partisan tide helps the same party across the country, but what we saw in this past election was the opposite of that — some states getting bluer and some states getting redder," said Thad Kousser, an associate political science professor at the University of California-San Diego who focuses on state politics. As a result,

"we'll see increasing policy divergence across the states."

Democrats in California gained their first supermajorities since 1883 in both the Assembly and Senate. Republicans captured total control of the North Carolina Capitol for the first time in more than a century. The GOP set a 147-year high mark in the Tennessee statehouse and won two-thirds majorities in the Missouri Legislature for the first time since the Civil War.

Republicans also gained or expanded supermajorities in places such as Indiana, Oklahoma and — if one independent caucuses with the GOP — Georgia. Democrats gained a supermajority in Illinois and built upon their dominance in places such as Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

If the parties make full use of their enlarged majorities, residents of similar-sized cities in different parts of the country could soon experience a virtual continental divide in their way of life.

In one state, businesses could pay little to no taxes, the result of policies intended to spur hiring. Public schools might function at a basics-only level, with parents free to use public money to send their children to private schools. Only the poorest of the poor adults could expect medical care from the government.

In another state, residents would pay higher taxes, and the government would inject billions of dollars into public education with the goal of creating a highly skilled

Suspect Arrested In Beating Death of Monkey

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • Police in Idaho say a 22-year-old man is facing felony burglary and grand theft charges after the death of a monkey at the Boise Zoo.

Boise police say Michael J. Watkins of Weiser, Idaho, was arrested in the case Monday afternoon.

More details are expected at a news conference taking place Monday night.

The patas monkey was found dead of blunt force trauma to the head and neck early Saturday morning, shortly after a zoo security guard frightened away two male intruders.

Police are still seeking at least one other man suspected in the case, but his identity and details about his relationship to Watkins have not been released.

School Lunches Are Stunting Our Children's Growth

It doesn't matter if Ethan Hodges is 13 years old and that he wrote because of his quest to be an Eagle Scout. He has spoken the truth and the truth is that no one that I know of is in agreement with the current school lunch program.

Surely everyone knows that children of school age are still developing. They need certain nutrients for proper growth and well-being. They need to feel nourished to fulfill their schoolwork and not worry about being hungry.

Does it make sense to force them to take five carrot sticks instead of just two? Or have potato nuggets and give them four pieces? Or run out of food at the high school and give the last students a baked potato with nothing to put on it, even salt? This is really shameful!

We are stunting our children's growth and keeping them from their full potential by following the guidelines of someone who gets to eat all they want all the time. Express your concerns to our congressmen. If the government persists, then our state should be responsible.

For goodness sake, our taxes pay for the lunch program, not our president's wife!

In response to a column, "Idaho's Political Battleground Shifted A Little This Election," an online reader wrote: garyedgington: "Your assessment is certainly right on. I can see the Democratic vote begin to coalesce more in the urban areas in southwestern Idaho. Urban, if you can call it that anyway. Boise has heavy out-of-state influence. This is only a part of why we see a more liberal influence on Idaho in general. Eventually, as we see an increase in economic depression the populace looks for assistance. I certainly cannot fault anyone looking for help. ..."

Online readers have been responding for days to the article, "Declt Teacher Allows Students to Draw on Faces as Reading 'Incentive':"

Lorna: "I have three children, now adults. Two of them found it easy to learn to read, and the other struggled for a long time. Their school careers stretched over a time period before and after the introduction of the Accelerated Reading (AR) program. Based on my own observations, I really believe the problem lies with AR. Children are "tested" for their reading ability (with a quick test that really just tests vocabulary level) and told which books they are allowed to read. The reading level of the book is determined by computer analysis of word and sentence length. This completely misses the point of reading for pleasure or interest, which is the best way to motivate students. The struggling reader is not going to want to read "baby books," no matter what kinds of incentives are offered. The third-grader who "tests" at a 12th grade level (I had one) is not ready for "War and Peace." ... The teacher in this case used poor judgement, but the real fault lies with the AR program."

readingteacher: "... why did so many students have problems with meeting the goal? In my years of professional experience, it is usually because the teacher has no idea how to teach. To say that the CHILDREN are always to blame — lazy, unmotivated, just need to try HARDER — is to reveal your own ignorance about cognitive processes. I guarantee you, from across the country, that at least several of these children have specific learning needs that aren't being met in the classroom."

If You've Got the Skills, She's Got the Job

Traci Tapani is not your usual CEO. For the last 19 years, she and her sister have been co-presidents of Wyoming Machine, a sheet metal company they inherited from their father in Stacy, Minn.

I met Tapani at a meeting convened by the Minnesota Department of Employment and Economic Development to discuss one of its biggest challenges today: finding the skilled workers that employers need to run local businesses. I'll let Tapani take it from here:

"About 2009," she explained, "when the economy was collapsing and there was a lot of unemployment, we were working with a company that got a contract to armor Humvees," so her 55-person company "had to hire a lot of people. I was in the market looking for 10 welders. I had lots and lots of applicants, but they did not have enough skill to meet the standard for armoring Humvees. Many years ago, people learned to weld in a high school shop class or in a family business or farm, and they came up through the ranks and capped out at a certain skill level. They did not know the science behind welding," so could not meet the new standards of the U.S. military and aerospace industry.

"They could make beautiful welds," she said, "but they did not understand metallurgy, modern cleaning and brushing techniques" and how different metals and gases, pressures and temperatures had to be combined. Moreover, in small manufacturing businesses like hers, explained Tapani, "unlike a Chinese firm that does high-volume, low-tech jobs, we do a lot of low-volume, high-tech jobs, and each one has its own design drawings. So a welder has to be able to read and understand five different design drawings in a single day."

Tapani eventually found a welder from another firm who had passed the American Welding Society Certified Welding Inspector exam, the industry's gold standard, and he trained her welders — some of whom took several tries to pass the exam — so she could finish the job. Since then, Tapani trained a woman from Stacy, who had originally learned welding to make ends meet as a single mom. She took on the challenge of becoming a certified welding inspector, passed the exam and Tapani made her the company's own in-house instructor, no longer relying on the local schools.

"... Every decent-paying job today takes more skill and more education, but too many Americans aren't ready. This problem awaits us after the 'fiscal cliff.'"

"She knows how to read a weld code. She can write work instructions and make sure that the people on the floor can weld to that instruction," so "we solved the problem by training our own people," said Tapani, adding that while schools are trying hard, training your own workers is often the only way for many employers to adapt to "the quick response time" demanded for "changing skills." But even getting the right raw recruits is not easy. Welding "is a $20-an-hour job with health care, paid vacations and full benefits," said Tapani, but "you have to have science and math. I can't think of any job in my sheet metal fabrication company where math is not important. If you work in a manufacturing facility, you use math every day; you need to compute angles and understand what happens to a piece of metal when it's bent to a certain angle."

Who knew? Welding is now a STEM job — that is, a job that requires knowledge of science, technology, engineering and math.

Employers across the U.S. will tell you similar stories. It's one reason we have 3 million open jobs around the country but 8 percent unemployment. We're in the midst of a perfect storm: a Great Recession that has caused a sharp increase in unemployment and a Great Inflection — a merger of the information technology revolution and globalization that is simultaneously wiping out many decent-wage, middle-skilled jobs, which were the foundation of our middle class, and replacing them with decent-wage, high-skilled jobs. Every decent-paying job today takes more skill and more education, but too many Americans aren't ready. This problem awaits us after the "fiscal cliff."

college wage premium from 1980 to 2007 — that is, the extra income you earn from getting a two- or four-year degree. This was because there was a surge in demand for higher skills, as globalization and the IT revolution intensified, combined with a slowdown in the growth of supply of higher skills.

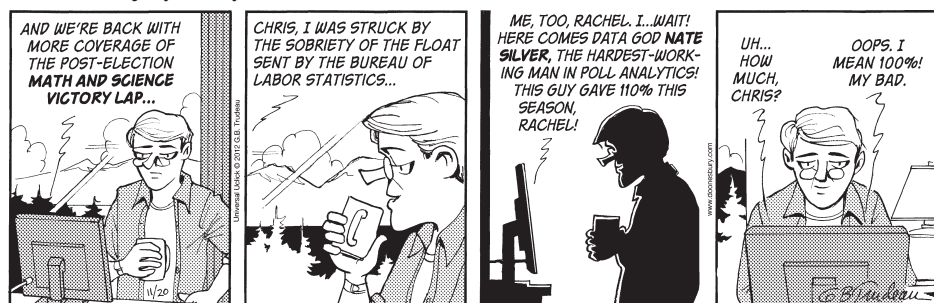

Many community colleges and universities simply can't keep pace and teach to the new skill requirements, especially with their budgets being cut. We need a new "Race to the Top" that will hugely incentivize businesses to embed workers in universities to teach — and universities to embed professors inside businesses to learn — so we get a much better match between schooling and the job markets.

"The world no longer cares about what you know; the world only cares about what you can do with what you know," explains Tony Wagner of Harvard, the author of "Creating Innovators: The Making of Young People Who Will Change the World."

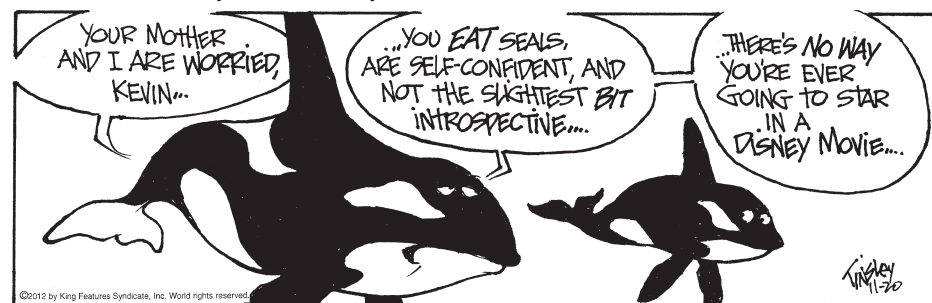

Eduardo Padron, the president of Miami Dade College, the acclaimed pioneer in education-for-work, put it this way: "The skill shortage is real. Years ago, we started working with over 100 companies to meet their needs. Every program that we offer has an industry advisory committee that helps us with curriculum, mentorship, internships and scholarships. Spanish-speaking immigrants used to be able to come here and get a decent job doing repetitive tasks in an office or factory and earn enough to buy a home and car and put their kids through school and enjoy middle-class status. That is no longer possible. The big issue in America is not the fiscal deficit, but the deficit in understanding about education and the role it plays in the knowledge economy."

The time when education — particularly the right kind of education — "could be a luxury for the few is long gone," Padron added.

Raymond Andrews, tribal historic preservation officer of the Bishop Paiute Tribe visits the North Bishop area that features petroglyphs etched by ancient people into the volcanic cliff faces. At least four ancient petroglyphs were cut from cliffs at the Volcanic Tableland and dozens of others were damaged in 'the worst act of vandalism ever seen' on federal lands in the area.

Ancient Rock Carvings Stolen in Sierra Nevada

BISHOP, Calif. (AP) • Rock carvings that graced a sacred American Indian site in California's Sierra Nevada for thousands of years have fallen prey to modern thieves armed with power saws.

At least four petroglyphs — some 2 feet wide and located 15 feet above the ground — were hacked from lava cliffs in the Eastern Sierra, the Los Angeles Times reported Sunday.

Visitors to the area, known as Volcanic Tableland, discovered the theft and reported it to the federal Bureau of Land Management on Oct. 31.

"This was the worst act of vandalism ever seen" on the 750,000 acres of public land administered by the BLM field office in Bishop, BLM archaeologist Greg Haverstock told the newspaper.

The thieves must have used ladders, electric generators and power saws. In addition to the four carvings that were stolen, one was defaced with deep saw cuts on three sides, and another was removed but apparently broke during the theft and was left propped against a boulder near a visitor parking lot.

More than 3,500 years ago, Native Americans carved pictures of hunters, deer and other animals, and geometric and other designs into a half-mile-long volcanic escarpment. The images adorn hundreds of lava boulders.

The petroglyphs are probably worth only about $500 to $1,500 on the illegal art market but are priceless to American Indians, authorities said.

"We still use this sacred place as a kind of church to educate tribal members and children about our historical and spiritual connections," Paiute tribal historic preservation officer Raymond Andrews said. "So, our tribal elders are appalled by what happened here."

Volunteers have stepped up surveillance at the site, which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. The BLM is offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to arrests. A first-time felony conviction for damaging or removing petroglyphs can carry a one-year prison sentence and a $20,000 fine.

Meanwhile, federal officials and American Indian leaders plan to mark the damage with signs noting that it was done by, as Haverstock put it, "malicious, selfish individuals."

Idaho Company Takes Radioactive Air Force Waste

BOISE (AP) • Radioactive waste the U.S. Air Force couldn't get permission to bury at a California dump site has found a new home in southwestern Idaho.

The material from the McClellan Air Force Base in Sacramento County, Calif., has been buried instead at the U.S. Ecology hazardous waste site east of Boise.

The Spokesman-Review reports the waste is radium dust left over from glow-in-the-dark aircraft instruments. Air Force officials told California regulators the dust was naturally occurring, but officials rejected efforts to bury the waste in that state.

After learning the material was dumped at the U.S. Ecology site, Idaho regulators inspected the site and determined radium concentrations fell below threshold levels for Idaho regulations.

Turkey Causes Power Outage in Sheboygan County

SHEBOYGAN, Wis. (AP) • Maybe this turkey was trying to launch a pre-emptive strike before Thanksgiving. Utility officials say a turkey flew into a power line in Sheboygan County on Saturday morning. A Sheboygan Press report says the contact knocked out power for about 1,500 people.

We Energies spokeswoman Cathy Schulze says the outage was reported just before 8 a.m. She says power was restored to all but a handful of homes and businesses within an hour.

UI Gets OK to Buy McCall Campus after Rent Rises

BOISE (AP) • The University of Idaho won unanimous approval for its plan to buy the school's campus in McCall after the state Land Board boosted its annual rent five-fold.

The Idaho Board of Education voted on Monday morning to approve the Moscow-based school's acquisition.

The land on the shore of Payette Lake is currently part of Idaho's endowment but has been leased by the University of Idaho for the last six decades.

The lease was boosted earlier this year to $250,000, from just $50,000, as the Land Board seeks to maximize returns from endowment land for beneficiaries including Idaho public schools.

UI plans to buy the land for its appraised value, about $6.1 million.

It anticipates that bond payments to help finance the acquisition will be less than $250,000 annually.

Ind. Home Explosion Now Homicide Investigation

BY CHARLES WILSON
Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS • Authorities launched a homicide investigation Monday into the house explosion that killed a young couple and left numerous homes uninhabitable in an Indianapolis neighborhood.

Indianapolis Homeland Security Director Gary Coons made the announcement after meeting with residents of the subdivision where the Nov. 10 blast occurred and shortly after funerals were held for the two victims, who lived next door to the house where investigators believe the explosion originated.

"We are turning this into a criminal homicide investigation," Coons said, marking the first time investigators have called the case criminal.

Search warrants are being executed and officials are looking for a white van that was seen in the subdivision on the day of the blast, Marion County Prosecutor Terry Curry said. Authorities are offering at least a $10,000 reward.

Curry said the investigation is aimed at "determining if there are individuals who may be responsible for this explosion and fire."

Neither he nor Coons took questions or indicated if they had any suspects. No arrests have been made.

Officials have said they believe natural gas was involved in the explosion, which destroyed five homes and left dozens damaged, some heavily. Investigators have been focusing on appliances as they search for a cause.

Hundreds of people attended the funerals earlier Monday for the couple killed in the explosion, 34-year-old John Dion Longworth and 36-year-old Jennifer Longworth. She was a teacher remembered for knitting gifts for her students, while her husband, an electronics expert, was known as a gardener and nature lover.

Indianapolis Mayor Greg

Ballard spoke at the news conference and said he went to the Longworths' funeral and had a hard time coming to peace with what had happened.

"There is a search for truth and there is a search for justice," Ballard said.

The couple lived next door to the house where investigators are focusing. The co-owner of that house, John Shirley, told The Associated Press he had received a text message from his daughter recently saying the furnace in the home, which she shares with her mother and her mother's boyfriend, had gone out.

Shirley's ex-wife, Monserrate Shirley, said her boyfriend, Mark Leonard, had replaced the thermostat recently and the furnace had resumed working.

The couple was away at a casino at the time of the blast. The daughter was staying with a friend, and the family's cat was being boarded.

3 Deer Use Automatic Doors to Enter Iowa Store

CORALVILLE, Iowa (AP) • Shoppers in Iowa got an unusual glimpse of wildlife Monday morning when a doe and two fawns wandered into a department store.

Barry Bedford says the deer used doors that open automatically to get into a Kohl's store. He says the fawns stayed in the store's vestibule, but their mother made it into the store and headed toward the back.

Police say employees opened up some back doors and the doe exited. The two fawns turned around and used the automatic exit doors to leave the store. No injuries or damage was reported.

Times-News Boys Soccer Player of the Year

GOODING • Thirty-seven goals. So many assists the coaching staff lost count. The only goal in the 3A state championship match.

One player has all of that. Yet it's the little things that made Gooding senior Federico Mendez the Times-News 2012 boys soccer player of the year.

"Teams have a lot of attention on me because they know I score a lot of goals, but then I can get the ball to someone else for the goal and beat them that way. That's the thing ... it's not about me. I'm happy helping the team win, however that is."

Federico Mendez, Times-News boys soccer player of the year

Mendez loves scoring goals, that's no secret. But he didn't make a boatload of goals his primary aim this season.

There'd be nights he'd score four or five, in little more than half of a half. His coach, Roger Johnson, plays nearly 30 players during the regular season to both develop the program and show respect to the opposition by not piling up the scores. If not for that, who knows how many Mendez would have. But on the nights where he worked hard for just one, he was equally happy as long as the Senators kept winning.

"Teams have a lot of attention on me because they know I score a lot of goals, but then I can get the ball to someone else for the goal and beat them that way," Mendez said. "That's the thing ... it's not about

Merritt Signs with MSU-Billings

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Whether it's stealing bases, chasing down fly balls or Merritt tearing down the first-base line, Casey Merritt is always doing things in a hurry.

So it wasn't a surprise when the speedy Twin Falls outfielder committed his future in the early signing period, signing a National Letter of Intent on Monday to play college ball at Montana State University-Billings.

Merritt looked at junior colleges and NCAA Division I schools, but ultimately settled on a Division II program where his academic and athletic goals could mesh.

"It's the right school for me. I really wanted to go to a four-year school," Merritt said. "Talking with the coaches, my role as a freshman would be to come in and be an impact player right away."

As a junior, the 2012 Times-News baseball player of the year batted .551 and had 21 extra-base hits. He only had five stolen bases, but that was largely because he took extra bases on his own hits.

He'll try to lead the Bruins to their second title in three years in the spring.

"A lot of guys you worry about them signing and then slacking off, but Casey is such a great competitor and he just wants to win," said Twin Falls coach Tim Stadelmeir. "This is a great day for him and I think he's made a great decision for his future."

me. I'm happy helping the team win, however that is."

In a team full of standouts — freshman Ramon Bernal's breakout performance in the district championship game, Angel Garcia's tireless orchestrating in the midfield, Ivan Sarabia's 15 seconds on SportsCenter, the list goes on — Mendez was the unquestioned leader, heart and soul of the Gooding boys soccer team.

His leadership was demonstrated even beyond goals or assists.

Johnson runs a fairly loose program, with the chief requirement that the players have fun. But as athletic as Mendez is, he applied himself as a student of the game as well, observing opponents and looking for weaknesses to exploit.

"We didn't really have to do film or break down the other team. 'Rico did all that,'" Johnson said. "He's really smart, and a great player, but he's a good kid too."

Beckham Says MLS Cup Is His Final Game with Galaxy

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES • David Beckham says the MLS Cup next month will be his final game with the Los Angeles Galaxy.

Beckham and the Galaxy announced the superstar

English midfielder's decision Monday, a day after the defending MLS champions advanced to the league final.

Beckham has played six years in Los Angeles since his groundbreaking move from Europe, winning the MLS title last year during his best season stateside.

Beckham agreed to a two-year contract extension with the Galaxy in January after playing out his initial five-year deal, turning down deals with Paris St. Germain and other clubs.

Beckham didn't announce his retirement in the statement issued by the Galaxy, which could heat up worldwide speculation over his next destination. Last week, Beckham pointedly denied rumors linking him to a short-term stint in Australia.

Golfer Miley Inks with Colorado School of Mines

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls senior golfer Kyle Miley signed a National Letter of Intent at the Division II Colorado School of Mines in Golden, Col., Monday at Twin Falls Golf Club.

"I like engineering and I like golf, so it's a good fit," Miley said. "But I'm also ready to get out of (Twin Falls)."

The School of Mines is perennially ranked as one of the top engineer schools in the country. Miley, a self-admitted "math guy," liked a lot about the Denver suburb on his last unofficial visit — namely, how much further the ball travels at a mile above sea level.

"Well, he was hitting my 7-iron 200 yards when I normally hit it 170 to 175," Miley said. "And let's see, my driver, if I'm hitting it 300 yards normally, it should go roughly 330 yards."

Miley wants to be involved with golf as profession. If he can't make it as a pro golfer, the School of Mines' coach Tyler Kimball has relationships with golf equipment manufacturers across the country, which could lead to a job out of school.

"They hook people up," Miley said. "Some have worked for Titleist, a few have graduated and worked at Ping and Callaway. I'd like to do something with golf."

Right now, however, that means pursuing a 4A individual state championship, one he barely missed out on in 2012. Miley doesn't expect to improve three strokes as he did his sophomore and junior years, but he wants to continue to develop his mental game like he did last year under coach Steve Meyerhoffer.

"We worked a lot on Kyle's mental aspect and his behavior," said Meyerhoffer, a 22-year golf pro. "He's improved a lot with handling adversity and his work ethic has improved a lot. He doesn't let the anger of a bad shot or a bad hole get him down. He's been a great teammate."

Miley was also recruited by Chico State (Calif.).

Ex-BSU Star Young Benched by Lions

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ALLEN PARK, Mich. • The Detroit Lions are benching wide receiver Titus Young this week after what coach Jim Schwartz called "unacceptable" behavior during Sunday's loss to Green Bay.

Schwartz did not characterize the move as a suspension, but he said Young was sent home from the team's practice facility Monday and will be inactive for Detroit's game against Houston on Thanksgiving. The coach did not say what Young specifically did wrong.

"When you play a team sport, you need to put team before yourself," Schwartz said. "There's no room for selfish behavior?"

"That is ground that we've already covered, and I thought that we would be past this, but we haven't been. His (Young's) behavior on Sunday was unacceptable, and it hurt the team, particularly on offense."

Young, a second-year receiver out of Boise State, has 33 catches for 383 yards and four touchdowns this season. He caught one pass for 24 yards Sunday.

Young was involved in an altercation with teammate Louis Delmas last offseason. When he was in college, he missed most of the 2008 season for disciplinary reasons.

"That is ground that we've already covered, and I thought that we would be past this, but we haven't been," Schwartz said. "His behavior on Sunday was unacceptable, and it hurt the team, particularly on offense."

The Lions lost 24-20 to Green Bay, falling to 4-6.

With their playoff hopes dwindling, they face Houston (9-1) on Thursday. The Texans enter the game tied for the NFL's best record.

At times, Young has looked like an ideal complement to star receiver Calvin Johnson. Young caught nine passes for 100 yards against Seattle last month, including the winning touchdown in the final minute. But now he's facing another setback.

"Coach felt it necessary, and I obviously support our head coach," quarterback Matthew Stafford said. "I support our players too. I want the best for everybody out here."

Schwartz said he doubts Young will practice today.

NBA ROUNDUP

Denver Nuggets guard Ty Lawson goes to the basket over Memphis Grizzlies guard Mike Conley (11) during the first half of Monday's basketball game in Memphis, Tenn.

NUGGETS SNAP GRIZZLIES' EIGHT-GAME WIN STREAK

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. • Danilo Gallinari scored 26 points, including a 3-pointer with 13 seconds left, and the Denver Nuggets ended the Memphis Grizzlies' win streak at eight games with a 97-92 victory Monday night.

JaVale McGee provided a second-half lift for Memphis and finished with 15 points and eight rebounds. Kenneth Faried added 13 points and grabbed 13 rebounds to help Denver outbound Memphis 47-33.

Denver also won the battle in the paint 50-44 and outscored the Grizzlies in second-chance points 21-16.

The victory snapped a three-game skid for the Nuggets, who handed the Grizzlies their first loss since dropping their season opener against the Los Angeles Clippers. Rudy Gay scored 22 points, Marc Gasol added 16, and Zach Randolph had 12 points and 13 rebounds for Memphis.

PACERS 96, WIZARDS 89

WASHINGTON • There were boos early and at the end for the winless Washington Wizards, who dropped to a franchise-worst 0-9.

Indiana's David West scored 13 of his season-best 30 points in the fourth quarter, and Roy Hibbert broke out of a slump with 20 points and 12 rebounds.

BOBCATS 102, BUCKS 98

CHARLOTTE, N.C. • Ramon Sessions scored nine of his 23 points in the fourth quarter, including two free throws with 4.2 seconds left to seal Charlotte's win over Milwaukee.

The Bobcats trailed by 11 in the fourth but battled back, going 16 of 16 from the free throw line down the stretch. Sessions' two free throws after Monta Ellis missed a 3-point attempt sent the Bucks to their first road loss and lifted the surprising Bobcats (5-4) back above .500.

HAWKS 81, MAGIC 72

ATLANTA • Al Horford scored 15 points and Lou Williams added 14 to lead Atlanta to a win over struggling Orlando. Zaza Pachulia pulled down 10 rebounds in a reserve role for the Hawks, who have won two straight and three of four.

More Conference Changes: Maryland to Big Ten in 2014

ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLLEGE PARK, Md. • Choosing to look toward the future rather than honor the past, Maryland joined the Big Ten on Monday, bolting from the Atlantic Coast Conference in a move driven by the school's budget woes.

Maryland was a charter member of the ACC, which was founded in 1953. Tradition and history, however, were not as important to school President Wallace D. Loh as the opportunity to be linked with the prosperous Big Ten.

"By being a member of the Big Ten Conference, we are able to ensure financial stability for Maryland athletics for decades to come," Loh said, speaking at a news conference with Big Ten Commissioner Jim Delany and Athletic Director Kevin Anderson.

Loh and other school officials involved in the decision decided that the potential money to be made in the Big Ten was more significant than the $50 million exit fee and the tradition associated with belonging to the same conference for 59 years.

"I am very aware that for many of our Terps fans and alumni, their reaction is stunned and disappointed. But we will always cherish the memories, the rivalries, the tradition of the ACC," Loh said. "For those alumni and Terp fans, I will now say this: I made this decision as best as I could ... to do what is best for the University of Maryland for the long haul."

Maryland eliminated seven sports programs earlier this year, and Loh said the shift to the Big Ten could provide enough of a windfall to restore some of those sports.

Delany said Maryland's entry was approved unanimously by the conference's 12 presidents.

"Quite honestly, they were giddy," Delany said. "Maybe some people Fear the Turtle. We embrace the Turtle."

Maryland will become the southernmost member of the Big Ten member starting in July 2014. Rutgers is expected follow suit by today, splitting from the Big East and making it an even 14 schools in the Big Ten, though Delany would not confirm that.

But he had no problem explaining why the Big Ten would be interested in stretching its boundaries from the Midwest.

"We realize that all of the major conferences are slightly outside of their footprint," Delany said. "We believe that the association is one that will benefit both of us."

For Maryland, the move was not entirely based on athletics. Maryland will join the Committee on Institutional Cooperation, a consortium of world-class research institutions.

"For me and for the board and for the faculty and for the students, the academic component is very, very important," Loh said. "I would not have made this kind of deal if it was a conference that did not have this consortium."

But money was really the driving force.

"Somebody has to pay the bills," Loh said. "I want to leave a legacy for decade to come, long after I'm gone, that no president is going to wonder if Maryland athletics as we know it is going to survive."

Waking Up Echoes? Or Knees Knocking?

That sound emanating from South Bend this week isn't the echoes of past greatness waking up. It's the knees of everyone with a stake in Notre Dame football knocking together. It's been a long time since they had anything to be nervous about.

The 19 years between appearances at the top of the college football heap says as much about the state of the game as it does about the Irish. Notre Dame had a seat at the table alongside the major conferences a year earlier, when the postseason system was first set up by a cartel that called itself the Bowl Coalition. And because it had the best tradition in the sport and an exclusive network TV deal to boot, Notre Dame kept both its status as an independent and that seat at the table when the cartel reformed and renamed itself the Bowl Alliance in 1995, then shed its skin one more time in 1998 and became what we know today as the Bowl Championship Series.

So you'd think the Irish might have figured out a way to game the system by now. Or at the very least, gotten in on the cash grab in the early years of the BCS, as schools from all those other conferences did at least once, before the SEC began stacking the odds and took home the last six national championships.

But that's not the way they do things at Notre Dame. And that's the reason for the nerves.

This team doesn't inspire confidence the way Irish teams used to; those squads were loaded and rarely more than a few players short — sometimes just a play or two short — of competing for a title every season. These days, it's Alabama, LSU and Florida that fit that bill and Notre Dame that's burned through a long list of coaching hires trying to find its way back. Since Lou Holtz tried to hand off the program, there's been nothing but fumbles, from Bob Davie to George O'Leary to Tyrone Willingham to Charlie Weis.

When Brian Kelly took over in 2010, only so much changed at first. The Irish went to back-to-back bowls, but the Sun and Champs Sports Bowls hardly woke up the fan base, let alone the echoes. There were some disciplinary problems along the way, and Kelly's almost-callous reaction when tragedy touched the program with the death of a student videographer. He berated his quarterbacks on the sideline and was told to tone it down. And even as this season began, it was still in question whether a chastened Kelly would ever be able to replicate the success at Notre Dame that he had during previous stops at Cincinnati, Central Michigan and Grand Valley State.

Notre Dame started outside the preseason Top 25 and opened against Navy in Dublin, Ireland, still committed to a schedule that brings in plenty of bucks but isn't smart by BCS standards. There wasn't an FCS school on the card, or even a soft landing spot. Yet there's only one marker left to pick up Saturday at Southern California and even there, the luck that's carried the Irish through the season appears to be holding up. USC coach Lane Kiffin said starting quarterback Matt Barkley is a scratch and his backup, Max Wittek, has thrown exactly nine passes this season.

That should be a mismatch against Notre Dame's No. 1-in-the-nation defense, but Kelly isn't taking any chances. He said Monday that his team will prepare for both quarterbacks, which suggests he doesn't trust Kiffin any more than the rest of us. Or maybe he just knows better than the rest of us how tenuous Notre Dame's foothold is. If so, he's not letting on. Both of the teams that were in front of the Irish on the BCS dance card — Oregon and Kansas State — stumbled over the weekend and he wasn't shy about Notre Dame being ready to step up.

"Now we don't have to answer questions about style points or politics," he said. "Now we have a chance to play for the national championship this week."

A lack of political clout wasn't what kept the Irish out of the championship mix this long, and the questions about style points seemed reasonable, since the same demands would have been made on any outlier — and after nearly two decades, that's where Notre Dame found itself.

Right now, the Irish are a great story about a coach whose maturity has dovetailed with that of a team. On the defensive side of the ball, senior Manti Te'o has become both the physical and spiritual leader. On the other side, Kelly has handled young quarterback Everett Golson with admirable restraint, giving him just enough leeway to grow into the job week by week.

If it all holds together for just one more week, there will be plenty of time and more attention lavished on Notre Dame's glory days than even the most committed subway alumni can endure. And if so, there will be plenty of time spent waiting for Alabama, or Georgia or Florida to emerge from the other side of the bracket and plenty of time to get used to the sound of all those knees knocking together again.

Keselowski Ain't Your Daddy's NASCAR Champ

CHARLOTTE, N.C.

Brad Keselowski chugged his cold Miller Lite, the beer splashing down the side of his face as NASCAR chairman Brian France watched with amusement as his newest ambassador celebrated the crowning moment of his career.

Dehydrated after 400 miles of racing at Homestead-Miami Speedway, it didn't take long for his sponsor's product to take effect. Keselowski beamed a mischievous grin, wiped away his foam mustache, and tried to figure out how to accept the Sprint Cup trophy from France without dropping his oversized beer glass.

He's fresh, he's fearless and he's certainly not your daddy's NASCAR champion.

What Keselowski might be is just the guy NASCAR needs to appeal to the younger crowd as it closes a season that will likely be remembered for a jet fuel explosion, Twitter, and a garage-area fight. If the season-ending image that stays with the public is of a slightly drunk Keselowski being, well, Keselowski, that's OK.

After all, the racing itself was largely forgettable this season, a huge problem for NASCAR, and France reiterated last weekend that work is ongoing on the 2013 cars "to improve" the quality of racing.

So Keselowski's championship reign is critical for NASCAR. He's the face of the sport, the spokesman, the guy who will bang the drum for all things NASCAR over the next few months.

Keselowski proved he was different from the veteran drivers when he tweeted from inside his car during the season-opening Daytona 500, and his addiction to social media and his cellphone was a season-long theme. He's 28, tech savvy and unafraid to test his limits.

"I think because of that, he'll do great," said four-time champion Jeff Gordon, who helped broaden NASCAR's mainstream appeal when he emerged in the early '90s. "His ability to reach out through social media and the younger crowd, he's somebody that takes it, wants to take it, and because of that, he'll put a lot of effort into it. He's entertaining. You never know what you're going to get with Brad."

Jenna Fryer

In the Pits

That's part of Keselowski's charm, and while he is indeed authentic, he very much enjoys being anti-establishment.

A year ago, Keselowski participated in the season-ending celebration in Las Vegas for the first time in his career. Although the awards banquet is the only actual black-tie affair, the week is packed with appearances, events, cocktail parties, receptions and one sponsor-heavy luncheon.

When he boarded the bus that took all 12 drivers to the luncheon, Keselowski was wearing an old pair of jeans and an untucked shirt. The other 11 drivers were all in suits. Someone on the bus suggested they stop on the way so Keselowski could pick up something else to wear.

Keselowski, who had announced a multiyear contract extension with Penske Racing just hours earlier, refused.

"I'm a race car driver!" he declared. "Why do I need to dress like that?"

Perhaps he had a point. But it wasn't a fight he was going to win driving for Roger Penske, and Keselowski was upgrading his wardrobe a few weeks later.

Keselowski has changed on the track, as well.

He was rough and raw in the Nationwide Series, and he didn't care who he wrecked when he was trying to get noticed. He wanted a job, wanted to survive in NASCAR and thought it was every man for himself. When he feuded with Denny Hamlin and Carl Edwards, and they tried to explain etiquette, he didn't want to listen.

It was maddening to more experienced drivers, who quickly ran out of patience with Keselowski. Because he was in a developmental deal with Hendrick Motorsports, he got to drive a handful of races for them and sit in on some competition meetings with the big boys.

He was opinionated and outspoken, and the Hendrick group found him wildly entertaining.

"Brad, he rubbed a lot of people the wrong way. He was very aggressive," Rick Hendrick said. "But he learned how to control that and how to race, and he did it in a hurry."

And it happened at Penske, where he was paired in the Nationwide Series with Paul Wolfe, who didn't want the job when first approached. He ultimately changed his mind, and the duo won the championship in their first year together.

Wolfe said he wasn't deterred by Keselowski's reputation, and looked only at the talent level and potential.

"I'm kind of the guy that takes it one day at a time, try to be better each and every day at what I do, and never really looked at it from the standpoint of 'I want to go win a championship with him,'" Wolfe said. "It was, 'I want to go win races and continue to grow as a team. We've done that each and every week and every year.'"

While things were clicking in the Nationwide Series, Keselowski was struggling in Cup races. So Penske moved Wolfe up in 2011 to Cup, and Keselowski took off, winning three races to make the Sprint Cup championship.

It set the pace for this season, the breakthrough year for Roger Penske's first Cup title 40 years after first entering NASCAR.

Hostess Lives Another Day To Mediate with Union

BY CANDICE CHOI

Associated Press

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. • Twinkies will live to see another day.

Hostess Brands Inc. and its second largest union agreed on Monday to go into mediation to try to resolve their differences after a bankruptcy court judge concluded that the parties hadn't gone through the critical step. That means the maker of the spongy cake with the mysterious cream in the middle won't go out of business yet.

The news comes after the maker of Ho Ho's, Ding Dongs and Wonder Bread last week moved to liquidate and sell off its assets in bankruptcy court. The company cited a crippling strike started on Nov. 9 by the Bakery, Confectionery, Tobacco Workers and Grain Millers International Union that started, which represents about 30 percent of Hostess workers.

"Many people, myself included, have serious questions as to the logic behind this strike," said Judge Robert Drain, who heard the case in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in the Southern District of New York in White Plains, N.Y. "Not to have gone through that step leaves a huge question mark in this case."

The mediation talks are expected to begin today, with the liquidation hearing set to resume on Wednesday. After Monday's hearing, Jeff Freund, an attorney for the bakers union, said any guess as to how the talks will go would be "purely speculative."

In an interview following the hearing, CEO Gregory Rayburn said that there is enormous financial pressure to come to an agreement with the union by the end of the day Tuesday. He noted that it's costing Hostess about $1 million a day in payroll costs alone to keep the company alive.

Obama Makes History with Myanmar, Cambodia Visits

BY JULIE PACE

Associated Press

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia • On a history-making trip, President Barack Obama on Monday paid the first visit by an American leader to Myanmar and Cambodia, two Asian countries with troubled histories, one on the mend and the other still a cause of concern.

Obama's fast-paced, pre-Thanksgiving trip vividly illustrated the different paths the regional neighbors are taking to overcome legacies of violence, poverty and repression.

Cheered by massive flag-waving crowds, Obama offered long-isolated Myanmar a "hand of friendship" as it rapidly embraces democratic reforms. Hours later, he arrived in Cambodia to little fanfare, then pointedly criticized the country's strongman leader on the issue of human rights during a tense meeting.

Obama was an early champion of Myanmar's sudden transformation to civilian rule following a half-century of military dictatorship. He's rewarded the country, also known as Burma, with eased economic penalties, increased U.S. investment and now a presidential visit, in part to show other nations the benefits of pursuing similar reforms.

"You're taking a journey that has the potential to inspire so many people," Obama said during a speech at Myanmar's University of Yangon.

The Cambodians are among those Obama is hoping will be motivated. White House officials said he held up Myanmar, a once-pariah state, as a benchmark during his private meeting Monday evening with Prime Minister Hun Sen, the autocratic Cambodian leader who has held power for nearly 30 years. Hun Sen's rivals have sometimes ended up in jail or in exile.

Smoke and fire are seen from an explosion near a high rise housing media organizations in Gaza City on Monday. It's the Israeli military's second strike on the building in two days.

Israel, Hamas Trade Fire and Tough Truce Proposals

BY KARIN LAUB AND IBRAHIM BARZAK

Associated Press

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip • Israel and Gaza's Hamas rulers traded fire and tough cease-fire proposals Monday, and threatened to escalate their border conflict if diplomacy fails. No deal appeared near.

An Israeli airstrike targeting a Gaza media center killed a senior militant and engulfed the building in flames, while Gaza fighters fired 95 rockets at Israel, nearly one-third of them intercepted by an Israeli missile shield.

A total of 38 Palestinians were killed Monday. Two more Palestinians were killed in airstrikes past midnight, bringing the death toll since the start of Israel's offensive to 111, including 56 civilians. Some 840 people have been wounded, including 225 children, Gaza health officials said. Three Israeli civilians have been killed and dozens have been wounded.

Over the weekend, civilian casualties in Gaza rose sharply after Israel began targeting the homes of what it said were suspected militants. Two such strikes late Monday killed five people — a father and his 4-year-old twin sons in northern Gaza and two people in the south, medics said.

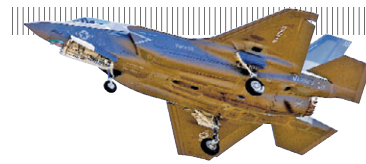

Jamal Daloo, who lost his wife, a son, four grandchildren and five other members of his family in an attack Sunday, sat in quiet mourning Monday next to the ruins of his home, his face streaked with tears.

"The international public opinion witnessed the facts," he said, speaking as his 16-year-old daughter, Yara, was still missing under the rubble being cleared away by bulldozers. "This does not require my words."

Egypt, the traditional mediator between Israel and the Arab world, was at the center of a flurry of diplomatic activity Monday. Egyptian intelligence officials met separately in Cairo with an Israeli envoy and with Khaled Mashaal, the top Hamas leader in exile.

Hamas wants Israel to halt all attacks on Gaza and lift tight restrictions on trade and movement in and out of the territory that have been in place since Hamas seized Gaza by force in 2007. Israel demands an end to rocket fire from Gaza and a halt to weapons smuggling into Gaza through tunnels under the border with Egypt.

CRAIG FRY, THE YUMA SUN - ASSOCIATED PRESS
The first F-35B fighter jet attached to Marine Fighter Attack Squadron 121 arrives at Marine Corps Air Station Yuma on Friday in Yuma, Ariz.

Marine Corps Forms New Fighter Jet Squadron

BY JULIE WATSON

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO • The Marine Corps is forming the first squadron of pilots to fly the next-generation strike fighter jet, months after lawmakers raised concern that there was a rush to end the testing of an aircraft hit with technical problems.

So far, two veteran pilots of the 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing have been trained to fly the F-35B. They are becoming the first members of the Marine Fighter Attack Squadron 121 that will debut Tuesday at a ceremony at the Marine Corps Air Station in Yuma, Ariz.

The first F-35B arrived Friday, and 15 more are slated to arrive over the next year. The Defense Department has pumped a half a billion dollars into upgrading the facilities, hangars and runways at the base to make way for the next-generation fighter jet, officials said.

The pilots of the new squadron are expected to fly the aircraft by year's end.

The Marines are the first in the military taking the steps toward putting the planes in operation. The F-35B would replace Cold War-era aircraft such as the F/A-18 Hornet and AV-8B Harrier.

"It's a pretty big milestone that a lot of people are looking at and judging," said Marine Capt. Staci Reidinger, a spokeswoman at the Yuma base.

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 20, the 325th day of 2012. There are 41 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Nov. 20, 1962, President John F. Kennedy held a news conference in which he announced the end of the naval quarantine of Cuba imposed during the missile crisis, and the signing of an executive order prohibiting discrimination in federal housing facilities.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1789, New Jersey became the first state to ratify the Bill of Rights.

In 1910, the Mexican Revolution of 1910 had its beginnings under the Plan of San Luis Potosi issued by Francisco I. Madero.

In 1929, the radio program "The Rise of the Goldbergs" debuted on the NBC Blue Network.

In 1947, Britain's future queen, Princess Elizabeth, married Philip Mountbatten, Duke of Edinburgh, at Westminster Abbey.

In 1952, President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower announced his selection of John Foster Dulles to be his secretary of state.

In 1959, the United Nations issued its Declaration of the Rights of the Child.

In 1967, the U.S. Census Bureau's Population Clock at the Commerce Department ticked past 200 million.

In 1969, the Nixon administration announced a halt to residential use of the pesticide DDT as part of a total phaseout. A group of American Indian activists began a 19-month occupation of Alcatraz Island in San Francisco Bay.

In 1975, after nearly four decades of absolute rule, Spain's General Francisco Franco died, two weeks before his 83rd birthday.

In 1982, in one of college football's oddest finales, the University of California used five laterals to score a disputed winning touchdown on the last play of a game against Stanford, 25-20.

In 1992, fire seriously damaged Windsor Castle, the favorite weekend home of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II.

Ten years ago: On the eve of a NATO summit in the Czech Republic, President George W. Bush, recalling Europe's grim history of "excusing aggression," challenged skeptical allies to stand firm against Saddam Hussein. A German doctor conducted Britain's first public autopsy in more than 170 years, an event denounced by the British Medical Association's Head of Ethics as "degrading and disrespectful." (Prof. Gunther von Hagens charged spectators 12 pounds ($19) each for the event at a London gallery.)

Five years ago: A judge in St. George, Utah, sentenced polygamous-sect leader Warren Jeffs to five years to life in prison for his role in the arranged marriage of an underage girl to her older cousin. (Jeffs' conviction was overturned by the Utah Supreme Court in 2010; prosecutors decided against a re-trial because Jeffs was already serving a life sentence in Texas in a separate case.) Scientists in Japan and the U.S. reported creating the equivalent of embryonic stem cells from ordinary skin cells. Ian Smith, the last white prime minister of Rhodesia (now Zimbabwe), died near Cape Town, South Africa, at age 88.

One year ago: Spain's opposition conservatives were swept into power as voters dumped the Socialists — the third time in as many weeks Europe's debt crisis had claimed a government. Tony Stewart held off Carl Edwards to win his third NASCAR championship in the season finale at Homestead-Miami Speedway. Landon Donovan scored in the 72nd minute on passes from Robbie Keane and David Beckham, and the Los Angeles Galaxy's three superstars won their first MLS Cup together with a 1-0 victory over the Houston Dynamo. The Americans won the Presidents Cup as a team, 19-15, in Melbourne, Australia.

DEAR ABBY: My wife, "Margie," recently lost her five-year battle with leukemia. I'm still grieving this huge loss. Something I found particularly upsetting was the apathetic attitude of her doctor and his staff.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

Margie was seeing a specialist in a city 300 miles from our home. It involved many trips to his office as well as extended hospital treatments. During this period, we considered the doctor and his staff more than health care providers. We thought of them as our friends. Margie would often bring them home-cooked meals or pastries from a bakery. In addition, because she did fine needlework, she made all the women a set of dishtowels.

After my wife passed away at home, I sent a note to the doctor and his staff, thanking them and expressing gratitude for all they had done for her. I never received one message in return. I understand they treat many patients, but don't you think SOMEONE could have given me a call or sent a sympathy card?

I attend a bereavement support group and was surprised that I am not the only one who has had the same experience. Is it normal for health care providers to stop all contact with spouses after a loved one dies?

— STILL GRIEVING IN ARKANSAS

DEAR STILL GRIEVING: I'm very sorry for your loss, and for your disappointment. However, everyone deals with death and dying differently and doctors are people, too. In the field of oncology, for every victory there are also many deaths. Emotional detachment is sometimes the way that these physicians and staff protect themselves from emotional pain. Please forgive them.

DEAR ABBY: My son-in-law "Ralph" is a good father, good husband and we have gotten along well for nearly 20 years. But an issue has come up that has me really upset.

Ralph was an exceptional wrestler in high school until a shoulder injury ended his career. Now he wants his 10-year-old son, "Carter," to wrestle. Carter went to a few practices in early elementary school, but showed no real interest in the sport. However, he does like basketball and shows potential to be a decent player.

Right now, my grandson's dream is to have a cellphone, and Ralph has promised to get him one — if he goes out for wrestling. I said I'd buy him a phone so he won't have to go out for wrestling just to get one.

I'm afraid Carter could get hurt while participating in a sport he has no real desire for, and could end up being unable to play the sport of his choice. I know there's danger of injury in any sport, but at least if an injury did occur, it would be while doing something he wants to do. And injuries aside, he should be able to pursue the sport of his choice, not his dad's. We need some guidance here.

— FRUSTRATED GRANDMA IN IOWA

DEAR GRANDMA: I agree with you, and for the sensible reasons you stated. However, I would add this: It appears your son-in-law may be attempting to relive a chapter of his life in which he failed to succeed because of his injury. To lure his son away from the sport he likes by bribing him to go into wrestling is unfair to the boy. I hope you and your daughter will talk to Ralph and tell him you think this is a bad idea, and that he will listen to you.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

Bobby Wolff

"Yet they, believe me, who await
No gift from Chance, have conquered Fate."

— Matthew Arnold

When this deal occurred in a team game, at the first of the two tables West made his natural lead of the club king against three no trump. Declarer allowed this to hold the trick, as he did the club queen continuation.

South won the third club perforce, and counting eight tricks, chose to combine his chances in the red suits to seek the ninth. He cashed the heart king, then the ace, but no queen appeared. His last chance was the diamond finesse, but when that also failed, so did the contract.

At the second table, and against the same lead, South won the second club and was pleased to see that East followed. Declarer then led three rounds of spades, and this time was happy to see West discarding on the third round. He was about to cash dummy's last spade when he paused to do a little arithmetic.

He intended to throw West in with a club, thereby effecting an endplay in the red suits. But for this he needed two discards for the clubs, so he had to retain the heart K-J-5 and the diamond A-Q in hand. Therefore, he could not cash the fourth spade until West had taken his club tricks.

So declarer left the spade winner in dummy and played a club at once. West took his tricks as South pitched one card from each red suit, but then had to concede the balance.

ANSWER: Although I've expressed my distaste for overcalling in a five-card suit at the two-level, there are exceptions. A very chunky suit in an overcall that takes up the maximum space is perfectly forgivable. Here you make both major suits more difficult for West to bid, and making the opponents' life hard is always laudable. Vulnerable, I'd think twice, though, if facing a passing partner.

Get In The Habit!

Read the Classifieds Every Day

IF NOVEMBER 20 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You should have all your ducks in a row and can make enormous headway with career aspirations or financial ambitions between now and the end of the year. You may have a romantic fling on your mind, as well, so make time in your busy schedule for amorous billing and cooing. Lady Luck is smiling in your direction during June, so take advantage of opportunities, accept offers and don't be afraid to ask for favors. The people who are rooting on your side will be close by to champion your cause. Any project or plan you launch then has very good odds of being a stunning success. Since you are willing to work hard to make ambitions a reality, you will achieve your goals.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your mind and heart may be as one. Creative ideas may materialize, especially if you team up with someone else. Others may be receptive now, so write down your thoughts and present them next week.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Warm and tender feelings may be developing between you and a special someone, but you may need to step carefully with the boss. Romantic daydreams might distract you from getting work completed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): An amorous mood prevails tonight. Fluff up the pillows and plan a candlelit dinner for a loved one, even if it's just takeout. You might be contented with a pleasant visit with family and friends.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Solutions to existing problems will become evident. Though you personally are on a lucky streak, the stars are not necessarily perfect for major purchases. Give lasting beauty and usefulness top priority.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Circumstances may conspire to place you in a questionable position. Be as honest and forthright as possible. The truth may be obscured by suspicious and negativity. Friends act as a buoyant lifesaver.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): People are full of fascinating information and may surprise you with friendly overtures. Friendships can move to a higher level through mutual interests. Capitalize on a pleasant social aura this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Apply yourself to the task at hand. Tender kisses must wait until the love of your life has finished a pressing project. Busy beavers build their dams — but when work is done, take time out to snuggle.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Socializing around the watering hole can provide enriching interchanges. Cling to those who have an optimistic outlook and a positive attitude might rub off on you. Someone's in the mood for love.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Romantic notions could be ready to blossom. This can be a fabulous time to reinforce the bonds of affection. Plan to spend extra quality time with the people you love.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You are empowered by new ideas and uplifted by a flow of encouraging information. This is a poor time to begin new projects, but networking and meeting new people still can open doors.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Let someone light your fire. A lack of confidence can undermine your progress. You can achieve perfect understanding with loved ones if you listen with your heart as well as your ears.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Romance and affection get a thumbs-up tonight. The difference between a mountain and a molehill might be your perspective. It is necessary to make a distinction and not confuse the two.

Difficulty Level ★★

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
