Sees Profit Margin Rise

About the Data

What is this? St. Luke's operates as a non-profit corporation. At the end of every fiscal year, St. Luke's Health System, and each of its hospitals, must file Form 990 to the IRS. This form helps justify tax exemptions like property taxes.

What it shows: The IRS tweaks the disclosure requirements each year. However, information includes highest-paid salaries, expenses, costs of charity care and board members with conflicts of interest.

What it doesn't show: In October 2011, St. Luke's Magic Valley merged with St. Benedict's Family Medical Center of Jerome. This increased the operating size of the facility but that information won't show up until the following year's tax forms.

TWIN FALLS • With more than $250.5 million coming in by the end of the 2011 fiscal year, St. Luke's Magic Valley's profit margin saw a boost from previous years.

The Twin Falls medical center had close to $227.9 million in expenses in 2011, leaving it with 9 percent profit earnings. It was the first increase the hospital saw in close to three years. In 2010, the hospital ended the fiscal year with a 4 percent profit margin.

These numbers — and many more — are all disclosed in a mandatory 100-plus-page tax document all operating nonprofits must file with the Internal Revenue Service.

“St. Luke's usually ends with a 5-9 (percent) profit margin,” said Ken Day,

Finding Nonlethal Deterrents to Reduce Number of Sheep Killed by Wolves

BY BECKY KRAMER
The Spokesman-Review

NEAR SUN VALLEY (AP) • Patrick Graham cupped his hands around his mouth and howled into a moonless night. A wolf answered from a distant ridge. Soon, the Pioneer Pack was howling in chorus.

Three miles away, Adrian Alvarado Baldeon, a Peruvian herder, unrolled his sleeping bag on a sagebrush-covered hillside in the Sawtooth National Forest. Fifteen hundred sheep clustered below him, bells tinkling in the darkness.

Graham, who'd tracked the wolves for six weeks for the Defenders of Wildlife, saw potential disaster ahead. The sheep would soon be moved to a watering hole near the Pioneer Pack's nightly rendezvous spot. His challenge: keep the sheep safe from the wolves, and in doing so, protect the wolves from the fate of Northeast Washington's Wedge Pack. Government officials killed all seven members of the pack in September for repeatedly attacking a Stevens County rancher's cattle.

The task would mean sleepless nights for both him and Baldeon, with tense standoffs between the Great Pyrenees guard dogs that formed a perimeter around the sheep and the wolves howling from the

TREASURE VALLEY HIGH SCHOOLERS GET TASTE OF CSI

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • After a long bus ride from New Plymouth, high school senior Juanita Mena got a chance to learn more about one of her college options.

She spent Friday on campus at the College of Southern Idaho.

“It's one of the most appealing options I have right now,” she said, noting she could get a full-ride scholarship.

Mena was among about 85 high school seniors who were on campus Friday for CSI's

Treasure Valley Day.

“We're trying our best to show them what it's like to be a student here,” said Samra Culum, new student services coordinator.

Students came from 13 different high schools, covering a geographic area from Weiser to Mountain Home.

The event included sessions about the application process, financial aid, scholarships and housing options.

Students attended a mock classroom session, met with faculty advisers, ate in the cafeteria, took a campus tour and went to a basketball game.

The Darker Corners of Human Experience

Depression describes the emptiness we experience when we lose the energy to engage in life. We become conscious of the horror of the situation and feel helpless to do anything about it. Something foreboding in the darkness of the unknown overwhelms us.

We all need community. There are a number of caring groups in the Magic Valley to turn to for help. We don't have to fight our battles alone.

Even in our darkest moment, God is there. Here's what happened to me while swimming off Balboa Beach in California when the tide carried me out into the ocean. I had no way to resist the tide. Using my head, I climbed back on my boogie board and caught the next wave back to the beach. Until I recognized the tide's strength and stopped fighting it, I had no chance of survival. Then, I relaxed and trusted God to carry me back safely.

We handle life in the darkest hour with a genuine surrender that requires faith, humility, trust and courage. Patience teaches us that trust is a process we must be willing to learn. We not only "let go and let God" today, but we will have to do it every day for the rest of our lives.

How do we get our minds to stop running after meaningless desires and come back to what actually serves our ultimate happiness? Abstain from the all the sensuous things that are counterproductive to our real overall meaning and purpose of life in relationship to God and others.

We must wholeheartedly engage with truth. This should lead to a more loving, compassionate and realistic engagement with the world. Faith gets us through hard times when nothing else can.

If we go deep enough into the unknowing of the dark night, we will find union with God and his guidance out of it. Only

He can take us beyond the experience of nothingness. It's important to recognize what we can and cannot do as a human being. Acceptance is true surrender.

It's difficult to spend our whole life trying to get somewhere only to find we haven't, and wonder where to go from here. It's depressing to not be able to do anything to make our situation better.

Our ingrained patterns of thinking and feeling don't go away because we decide to be happy. Those patterns change only through the disciplined cultivation of other patterns of thinking and feeling. Aristotle said, "We find happiness only in devotion to the highest ideals."

It isn't easy to get through hard times. It will take perseverance and courage, but God will make a way for us, and we have each other.

We learn humility and patience from dealing with depression, and gratitude comes when the darkness lifts. The clouds part to reveal the light. When we get out of the little hole of ourselves we are more sensitized to others' sufferings and more aware of the complex causes of suffering. That enhances our capacity for compassion.

Lawsuit Filed in Eastern Idaho Hazing Case

IDAHO FALLS (AP) • Three former Blackfoot High School students who faced felony charges in a reported hazing incident have filed a lawsuit against Blackfoot School District 55, Bingham County and the city of Blackfoot.

The Post Register reports that the three former students filed the complaint Friday in 7th District Court.

Logan Chidester, Nathan Walker and Tyson Katseanes were initially charged with felonies after reports of hazing incidents during the 2009-2010 basketball season. But the charges were later dropped when one witness refused to participate in the case.

Chidester and Walker eventually pleaded guilty to misdemeanor counts of disturbing the peace, while Katseanes pleaded guilty to misdemeanor battery.

Another former high school athlete caught up in the hazing allegations, Anthony Clarke, pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of disturbing the peace in October 2011. He was not part of the lawsuit filed Friday.

A juvenile who police said was involved in the hazing was cleared of two misdemeanor battery charges.

The hazing case divided the small town of Blackfoot and garnered widespread media attention after the four adults and the one juvenile were charged in 2010 with various misdemeanors and felony counts of forcible sexual penetration using a foreign object.

In the lawsuit, the three former players contend officials with the county, police, school and city engaged in intentional infliction of emotional distress, malicious prosecution, made false public statements, concealed evidence and intimidated witnesses.

The lawsuit also contends that the actions of those named in the lawsuit "had the direct and foreseeable consequence of marking (the three men) and other members of the Blackfoot High School basketball team as violent criminals and as violent sexual offenders in the minds of hundreds of millions of people."

BOISE (AP) • A possible change in Japanese import policy concerning beef has the potential to create more income for Idaho beef producers, officials in Idaho said.

Since 2005, Japan has allowed into the country only beef from animals that were less than 20 months old when slaughtered to protect against bovine spongiform encephalopathy, or Mad Cow Disease. But in October a Japanese government subcommittee forwarded recommendations altering the restrictions to allow beef from cattle younger than 30 months old.

Jay Theiler, executive director of Boise-based Agri Beef Co., said the additional 10 months for growing beef would create more opportunities for selling high-quality cuts as well as the cuts that have greater value in Japan.

Cevin Jones, chairman of the Idaho Beef Council, said if Japan does switch to a 30-month limit, which could allow more exports of beef undervalued in the U.S., such as cow tongues and livers that are considered high-quality meats in Japan.

Police: Hero Fought Son in Wyoming Arrow Attack • A9

White House Waits on Republican Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) • Republicans have to stop using “political math” and say how much they are willing to raise tax rates on the wealthiest 2 percent of Americans and then specify the spending cuts they want, Treasury Secretary Tim Geithner said in an interview that aired Sunday.

Just four weeks from the proverbial “fiscal cliff,” House Speaker John Boehner countered that Republicans have a plan for providing as much as $800 billion in new government revenue over the next decade and would consider the elimination of tax deductions on high-income earners. But when pressed on “Fox News Sunday” for precise details, the Ohio Republican declined to say.

There are “a lot of options in terms of how to get there,” Boehner said.

Both Boehner’s and Geithner’s latest remarks indicate it could be some time before serious negotiations begin between the White House and Republicans on how to avert economic calamity expected in less than a month when President George W. Bush-era tax cuts expire and automatic, across-the-board spending cuts kick in.

Last week, the White House delivered to Capitol Hill its opening plan: $1.6 trillion in higher taxes over a decade, hundreds of billions of dollars in new spending, a possible extension of the temporary Social Security payroll tax cut and enhancing the president’s power to raise the national debt limit.

In exchange, the president would back $600 billion in spending cuts, including $350 billion from Medicare and other health programs. But he also wants $200 billion in new spending for jobless benefits, public works projects and aid for struggling homeowners.

Carbon Pollution Up to 2M Pounds a Second

WASHINGTON (AP) • The amount of heat-trapping pollution the world spewed rose again last year by 3 percent. So scientists say it’s now unlikely that global warming can be limited to a couple of degrees, which is an international goal.

The overwhelming majority of the increase was from China, the world’s biggest carbon dioxide polluter. Of the planet’s top 10 polluters, the United States and Germany were the only countries that reduced their carbon dioxide emissions.

Last year, all the world’s nations combined pumped nearly 38.2 billion tons of carbon dioxide into the air from the burning of fossil fuels such as coal and oil, according to new international calculations on global emissions published Sunday in the journal Nature Climate Change. That’s about a billion tons more than the previous year.

The total amounts to 2.4 million pounds of carbon dioxide released into the air every second.

Because emissions of the key greenhouse gas have been rising steadily and most carbon stays in the air for a century, it is not just unlikely but “rather optimistic” to think that the world can limit future temperature increases to 3.6 degrees Fahrenheit, said the study’s lead author, Glen Peters at the Center for International Climate and Environmental Research in Oslo, Norway.

Three years ago, nearly 200 nations set the 2-degree C temperature goal in a nonbinding agreement. Negotiators now at a conference under way in Doha, Qatar, are trying to find ways to reach that target.

The only way, Peters said, is to start reducing world emissions now and “throw everything we have at the problem.”

Andrew Weaver, a climate scientist at the University of Victoria in Canada who was not part of the study, said: “We are losing control of our ability to get a handle on the global warming problem.”

LONGER SCHOOL DAYS

WASHINGTON (AP) • Open your notebooks and sharpen your pencils. School for thousands of public school students is about to get quite a bit longer.

Five states were to announce today that they will add at least 300 hours of learning time to the calendar in some schools starting in 2013. Colorado, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York and Tennessee will take part in the initiative, which is intended to boost student achievement and make U.S. schools more competitive on a global level.

The three-year pilot program will affect almost 20,000 students in 40 schools, with long-term hopes of expanding the program to include additional schools — especially those that serve low-income communities. Schools, working in concert with districts, parents and teachers, will decide whether to make the school day longer, add more days to the school year or both.

A mix of federal, state and district funds will cover the costs of expanded learning time, with the Ford Foundation and the National Center on Time & Learning also chipping in resources.

Spending more time in the classroom, education officials said, will give students access to a more well-rounded curriculum that includes arts and music, individualized help for students who fall behind and opportunities to reinforce critical math and science skills.

“Whether educators have more time to enrich instruction or students have more time to learn how to play an instrument and write computer code, adding meaningful in-school hours is a critical investment that better prepares children to be successful in the 21st century,” Education Secretary Arne Duncan said.

The project comes as educators across the U.S. struggle to identify the best ways to strengthen a public education system that many fear has fallen behind other nations. Student testing, teacher evaluations, charter schools and voucher programs join longer school days on the list of reforms that have been put forward with varying degrees of success.

The report from the center cites research suggesting students who spend more hours learning perform better. One study argues that two factors are the best predictors of success: intensive tutoring and adding at least 300 hours to the standard school calendar.

Egypt’s High Court Goes on Strike

CAIRO (AP) • Egypt’s highest court joined a judicial rebellion against President Mohammed Morsi on Sunday by declaring an open-ended strike on the day it was supposed to rule on the legitimacy of two key assemblies controlled by allies of the Islamist leader.

The strike by the Supreme Constitutional Court and opposition plans to march on the presidential palace on Tuesday take the country’s latest political crisis to a level not seen in the nearly two years of turmoil since Hosni Mubarak’s ouster in a popular uprising.

Judges from the country’s highest appeals court and its sister lower court were already on an indefinite strike, joining colleagues from other tribunals who suspended work last week to protest what they saw as Morsi’s assault on the judiciary.

The last time Egypt had an all-out strike by the judiciary was in 1919, when judges joined an uprising against British colonial rule.

The standoff began when Morsi issued decrees on Nov. 22 giving him near-absolute powers that granted himself and the Islamist-dominated assembly drafting the new constitution immunity from the courts.

The constitutional panel then raced in a marathon session last week to vote on the charter’s 236 clauses without the participation of liberal and Christian members.

States Prepare Battle over Medicaid

WASHINGTON (AP) • As state legislatures prepare to meet in January, lawmakers across the country are girding for a battle over whether to sign on to the health-care law’s expansion of Medicaid.

“This is the number one issue,” said state Sen. Michael Lamoureux, R, incoming president of the Arkansas Senate. “And in 10 years this is by far the most difficult one we’ve ever dealt with.”

The national implications loom just as large. No provision is more central to achieving the health-care law’s aim of extending coverage to the uninsured than its expansion of Medicaid. Under the new rules, beginning in 2014 eligibility for the program would be opened to people with incomes up to 133 percent of the federal poverty level, or about $30,657 for a family of four.

The law calls for the federal government to foot the entire bill for covering the newly eligible for the first three years. After that the federal match phases down slightly, reaching 90 percent by 2020.

Arkansas state Sen. Cecile Bledsoe, R, questions whether the federal government can be counted on to maintain such a high match rate in perpetuity. With all the budget pressures facing Congress members, said Bledsoe, how can she be sure they won’t shift more of the burden to states down the road?

Last August White House officials sought to allay such concerns by clarifying that states are free to drop out of the Medicaid expansion at any time. But Bledsoe, a key leader in the Arkansas Senate on health issues, said that’s not a realistic option.

“We’re not going to put more than 250,000 people on our Medicaid rolls, then pull them off,” she said.

Coast Guard Member Dies in Crash

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) • Authorities say a U.S. Coast Guard member was killed and another was injured when their small boat was rammed by a smuggler’s vessel.

Ventura County chief deputy medical examiner James Baroni says 34-year-old Terrell Horne III of Redondo Beach was pronounced dead early Sunday at the Port of Hueneme.

The Coast Guard says the smuggler’s panga maneuvered at a high rate of speed directly at the small boat before fleeing.

COUNSELOR: MANNING MAY BE A SELF-HARM RISK

FORT MEADE, Md. (AP) • An Army private charged with sending U.S. secrets to the website WikiLeaks had a history of suicidal thoughts and aloof behavior that outweighed a psychiatrist’s opinion that he posed no risk to himself, two former counselors testified Sunday.

Army Staff Sgt. Ryan Jordan and Marine Master Sgt. Craig Blenis testified on the sixth day of a pretrial hearing for Pfc. Bradley Manning had fashioned in a bedsheet while confined in Kuwait, and a statement he made upon arrival at Quantico in July 2010 that he was “always planning and never acting” on suicidal impulses.

cide-risk status — conditions that kept him confined to his cell 23 hours a day, sometimes with no clothing.

Jordan said under cross-examination by defense attorney David Coombs that besides the mental-health report, he considered evidence that Manning contemplated suicide after his arrest in Iraq in May 2010. The evidence included a noose Manning had fashioned in a bedsheet while confined in Kuwait, and a statement he made upon arrival at Quantico in July 2010 that he was “always planning and never acting” on suicidal impulses.

OBITUARIES

Lola A. Wright

July 26, 1919-Nov. 29, 2012

GOODING • Lola Wright, 93, was reunited with her eternal companion, Forest Albert Wright, on Thursday, Nov. 29, 2012.

She was born July 26, 1919, in Cleveland, Idaho, to Alfred and Hannah Penina (Nina) Anderson. The Anderson family moved to Wendell, Idaho, where Lola went to school and met Forest. They were married Dec. 13, 1943, in Long Beach, Calif., and later sealed in the Idaho Falls Temple on Aug. 6, 1965.

After the war, Lola and Forest settled on a farm north of Gooding, Idaho. Later, Lola worked 24 years for the Gooding Elementary School as a secretary until she retired in 1980. She was known for her graciousness, generosity and gratitude for life. Many appreciated her compassion and unique ability to really listen. Lola fulfilled many callings as a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and was active in community organizations. She and Forest served a two-year mission as Boise Temple workers. Later in life, Lola continued her community service with the Gooding Hospital Auxiliary.

Lola lived in the Gooding, Idaho, until 2011, when she moved to Utah to be closer to her children. Together, Forest and Lola enjoyed a marriage that lasted 58 years until Forest passed away in 2001. Her posterity includes her children, Dennis (Kaye) Wright of Springville, Utah, and Patricia (Robert) Morse of St. George, Utah; 10 grandchildren; and 27 great-grandchildren.

Grandma Lola loved to make the things around her beautiful. The ever-changing decor of her home and verdant flowerbeds and gardens were evidence of this desire. She also loved to serve those around her, whether it was with warm donuts, sewing lessons, pickles, homemade noodles or whitewashing fences. Lola lived her entire life in a small town, but her influence has truly extended much farther. Her testimony of the Savior and love for her family lives on in her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held at 4 p.m. Monday, Dec. 3, at the LDS chapel, 901 E. Village Way in Alpine, Utah. A graveside service will be held at 1 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 5, at the Wendell Cemetery in Wendell, Idaho.

Third Storm in Less Than a Week Drenches N. California

BY JOHN S. MARSHALL

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO • Residents of Northern California endured the brunt of another powerful storm that drenched the area with yet another round of pounding rain and strong winds, but damage from the storm was less than expected, officials said.

The latest storm system — the third to hit the area in less than a week — moved across the region late Saturday and early Sunday dropping as much as an inch of rain per hour in some areas, toppling trees and knocking out electrical service to tens of thousands of people, officials said.

cials said.

Rivers across Northern California swelled from the deluge, but did not flood as extensively as had been expected, officials said.

Forecasters had issued flood warnings for the Napa and Russian rivers, two rivers north of San Francisco with a history of flooding, as well as the Truckee River, near Lake Tahoe, but by Sunday afternoon had canceled the warning for the Russian River.

“It (the storm) moved through a lit bit faster than it was looking like it would, so it didn’t plant on top of us and keeping raining,” said Austin Cross, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service. “The period of heavy rain didn’t last as long.”

In Napa, where officials had handed out more than 8,000 sandbags and about 150 tons of sand before the storm hit, officials breathed a sigh of relief Sunday afternoon after the heaviest rain moved out of the area and the city appeared to avoid any major damage from the storm.

“We’ve had some minor street flooding and some of the intersections were flooded,” Napa city spokesman Barry Martin said.

Flood construction projects were credited with keeping the river within its banks through the city, while most of anticipated flooding, expected around 6 p.m. Sunday, was expected to hit a mostly agricultural area outside of the city, officials said.

In Truckee, 30 miles west of Reno, city officials were focusing on snow removal Sunday afternoon instead of flood control after the town received 4 to 5 inches of snow in the morning, said Assistant City Manager Alex Terrazas.

“We continue to keep an eye on the river, but things are certainly better than they could have been,” he said. “We’ll transition back to flood management if we need to.”

Church Affiliation of Mont. Kids’ Ranch Questioned

BY MATT VOLZ

Associated Press

HELENA, Mont. • The dispute between a ranch for troubled children adopted abroad and the Montana officials who want it either regulated or closed may come down to how a judge defines what a church is.

On one side, Ranch For Kids owner Joyce Sterkel says her boarding school in Eureka near the Canadian border should be free from state oversight because of an exemption in the law for ministries of local churches. She and the head of the Epicenter International Missions Ministry signed a memorandum of understanding in October 2011 making the ranch an “adjunct ministry” of Epicenter.

On the other side, a state Department of Labor and Industry board charges that Sterkel is hiding behind the religious exemption to skirt its fees and regulations. The regulators say Sterkel only entered into the adjunct ministry agreement after the board sent her a cease-and-desist letter for operating without a license.

In the middle are the students, who number between 25 and 30. All were born in other countries and adopted by parents living in the U.S. Many have troubles that make it difficult for them to live at home because of fetal alcohol spectrum disorder or behavior issues that stem from trauma or difficult conditions in orphanages.

A Libby judge will be asked Tuesday to decide who is right. Both sides will make arguments asking the court to rule in their favor without going to trial — the one side arguing for religious freedom, the other saying it’s all a sham.

A central point in the state’s argument is whether the religious organization Sterkel teamed up with is actually a church. Epicenter International Missions Ministry was founded in 2004 by Jeremy Evjene, a ranch employee, and it has no building, no congregation and no ordained clergy.

“The ‘local church’ is not a church but the evangelical philosophy of a young man with no degree or formal theological training,” said Labor and Industry attorney Mary Tapper in a court briefing. “The legislature contemplated the exemption would apply to a program having a bona fide relationship with a church, not a program seeking a loophole to circumvent the board’s licensing requirements.”

Evjene was first hired at the ranch in 2009 as a construction worker and is now a counselor and youth pastor for the at-risk children who live there. He founded Epicenter International Missions Ministry to work with orphans in India, and he acknowledged in a Sept. 18 court deposition that, “It is not a real church. It is just a ministry.”

A particularly disturbing aspect of the case, Tapper said, is that Evjene has baptized students at the ranch and is counseling them when he has no background to do so.

“Evjene, a self-professed pastor with no formal theological, clinical or psychological training, is performing baptisms, conducting Bible studies and church services and counseling the children who have severe emotional and psychological problems,” Tapper wrote.

White House to Appoint Montana State President

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) •

President Barack Obama has announced his intent to appoint the president of Montana State University to the Board for International Food and Agricultural Development.

The president on Tuesday announced that Waded Cruzado was among seven individuals appointed to various administrative posts.

“The extraordinary dedication these individuals bring to their new roles will greatly serve the American people,” Obama said in a White House statement. “I am grateful they have agreed to serve in this administration and I look forward to working with them in the months and years to come.”

The board advises the U.S. Agency for International Development on matters involving agriculture and higher education having to do with producing enough food in developing countries.

“I am honored to have the opportunity to serve on the Board for International Food and Agricultural Development,” Cruzado said.

“Through this appointment, I look forward to helping advise the U.S. Agency for International Development on nutrition and global agricultural issues and projects.”

Montana Democratic Sens. Max Baucus and Jon Tester congratulated Cruzado and say she will help in the fight against global hunger.

“Waded is a tremendous educator and a talented leader,” Tester said. “During her tenure, Montana State has grown as a leader in agriculture research and strengthened our number one industry. Her talent and hard work will help solve one of the world’s greatest problems — global hunger. I know she will make all Montanans proud.”

“Waded has the kind of vision and work ethic needed to tackle one of our greatest humanitarian struggles — ensuring families around the world are fed,” Baucus said. “She is an excellent choice for this important post and has a proven track record of serving, educating and leading.”

Idaho's Fungible Lands

Ar logical subject for hearings, and maybe legislation, when Idaho lawmakers convene in January: Deciding what Idaho's endowment property policy should be. Question: Should it be fungible?

Randy Stapilus

Ridenbaugh.com

When Idaho gained statehood in 1890, it got 3.6 million acres to be used for support of certain public institutions, mainly schools. The restriction was that they be managed "in such manner as will secure the maximum longer term financial return." The job of directly managing the property was given to the State Land Board, which includes the governor and four other statewide electeds.

For many years, governing these lands, widely scattered and often timber lands, was straightforward. Many were managed as timber properties, sometimes as leasable live-stock grazing territory.

But what if the highest long-range return isn't managing the lands this way? What if, as Idaho moves beyond a resource-based economy, other ways of generating income are more profitable? Should the lands be considered fungible — translatable into money, or into other sorts of money-making property?

The question is not entirely new. About a third of the endowment lands were sold in Idaho's first half-century as a state, the money placed in an endowment fund. (Those sales have diminished, though exchanges have continued.) But more recently another development has caught interest: Acquiring private property as a money-making venture.

There are gray areas. Private companies have, since before statehood, managed their lands as timber property around Idaho, and some still do, so there's no bright line between public and private in that field either. Still, when news broke a couple of years back that the state owned and operated a rental storage building — in effect, private-type business — attention was paid. Should the state be so overtly in competition with private businesses? Is that what the endowment lands were intended to do?

David Frazier, a blogger who has written extensively about this, told me that in his contacts with the Department of Lands, "They make no bones about being in the real estate game for the money and in my past personal conversations with the deputy director she said 'nothing is off the table.' If they can make a good return on running a hotel or resort, they would consider acquiring a property." He said that he has checked into how much profit the state has made, "and the return is minimal at best and often times a loss."

Bob Forrey, a former state representative, told the Idaho Reporter site that the Land Board's own asset management plan appears to call for more such property buys.

It may, however, be part of a larger trend. Idaho isn't the only state with lands managed to generate revenue for schools. Oregon, where the source of the lands is a little different, has done something similar. "In the past two and a half years, DSL [Department of State Lands] has acquired two commercial properties and is actively seeking more," a spokesman said. One is a property being leased to a Eugene retailer, another a light industrial property at Hillsboro being leased to four companies.

You can reasonably argue that money-making of this sort is outside the scope of the original endowment intent, and that it puts the state into competition with private businesses. You can also argue that if the goal is to make money to help schools, this is the forward-looking way to do it. But this sounds increasingly like the kind of value judgment that ought to be made out in the bright light, be debated fully, and maybe by the legislature.

Check Out ISU Twin Falls to Further Your Education

Hi, Dave. What is new?

Well, I am just finishing a semester at Idaho State University Twin Falls extensions, which is located at the College of Southern Idaho. Idaho State Twin Falls extension allows students who have completed their programs at CSI to continue in pursuit of their bachelor's programs or advanced degrees with Idaho State University.

I have been taking classes at ISU Twin Falls extension for the past three years and will graduate perhaps in May or in the summer session with my degree in psychology. Because of the girls in the front office at ISU Twin Falls, I have received much help in my studies. The ISU offices are located in the Evergreen building at CSI. The main office is staffed by Chris, Lisa and Maggie. They help you get registered, direct you to an academic advisor and follow your way in your program studies.

They do much more than that. Chris lets you know what classes are being presented the following semester through the long-distance learning center. Classes from the campus at Pocatello are beamed into classrooms located in the Evergreen building. Some classes are online and may be taken in the ISU computer room in the Evergreen building. If some classes are still needed but not available, independent study classes from the University of Idaho are offered to fill the gap.

Curtis, who operates the computer center and the classrooms for long-distance learning is a computer geek who offered me tremendous help in my classroom and computer room work.

Maggie is the lady I come to most as she helps me with day-to-day help and advice. She is my mini-advisor and confidante.

Lisa is the one who directs me in ways to purchase the needed books at very low prices.

If you want to go further, check out ISU Twin Falls.

System Is to Blame for Face-marking Incident

Hate is a destructive, obsessive emotion. The hatred that is being demonstrated by Declo citizens, as well as those nationwide, as a reaction to a fourth-grade teacher's lapse in good judgment is without conscience. Geri Lilienquist's concern about the safety of Declo's children is well founded (Times-News, Nov. 29).

Perhaps the venom being demonstrated is misdirected — a Scarlet Letter scenario, so to speak. Summer Larsen is being singled out as the perpetrator of bad judgment when, in reality, it's the system which prompted this teacher to have students make a choice to punish those who did not test up to "standards" that is at fault.

Teachers and students alike are being punished by phony standards set up in a testing program that does not address the reality of individual learning styles and by the imposition of too many students in the crowded classrooms to which they are being subjected.

This is particularly true at the fourth-grade level where the learning process becomes dependent upon the skills learned up to that point. If students have not learned to read satisfactorily at that juncture, they will be unable to read to learn from that point on.

Summer Larsen was reacting to that dilemma which, in her thinking, could lead to desperate measures to resolve the situation with which she was faced. The blame game involves all concerned, not just the fourth-grade teacher.

Perhaps it's time for all of us to step back from the "hate game" and start using our heads instead of our adrenal systems. We also need to listen to our heart's. Compassion for teachers, parents and, most of all, the children is more effective than the destruction this mindless hatred will wreak.

It's Time for Politicians to Pay Back 'We the People'

I always get a big chuckle when I mention conspiracies in the American government, but the facts are: conspiracies happen all the time. It could be the little local land grabs, state political maneuvering, federal lying, cheating and thieving and on to what happens overseas where political interference happens so often, we can't possibly be Americans, we must be members of British Empire.

A friend sent me an article indicating from The New American magazine detailing where a Judge, one Honorable Robert C. Jones, condemned the U.S. Forest Service, the Bureau of Land Management and others of racketeering under the RICO (Racketeer Influenced and Corruption Organizations) statute, plus extortion, mail fraud and fraud. Interesting!

RICO: doesn't that mean "we the people" can confiscate all property and monies these agencies have so they can't mount a legal defense. Works for me! Sounds like a way to balance the budget. But even if the money fairy showed up tomorrow and absolved the American government — not we the people — of all debt, our politicians would just go on another spending boom and, in a couple of years from now, we would all be back in the same leaky boat.

With that preface, we need to understand Social Security and Medicare are not entitlements; they are trust funds set aside for those members who paid into them for a lifetime. Don't buy the they are entitlements argument. The politicians have lied, cheated stolen from the American people and now they want "we the people" to kick down with the cash, again. No, I say. If anybody is loaded down with excessive entitlements, it's our politicians. Politicos, it's your turn to kick down.

Crime scene tape surrounds the home of Casper College professors Jim Krumm and Heidi Arnold on Saturday in Casper, Wyo.

Police: Hero Fought Son in Arrow Attack

CASPER, Wyo. (AP) • A Wyoming community college instructor killed in a grisly classroom murder-suicide was hailed as a hero Saturday, with police saying he gave his students time to flee by distracting and fighting off his son after the younger man barged into his computer science class and shot him in the head with a high-powered bow and arrow.

The arrow severely wounded James Krumm, 56, but he managed to wrestle with son Christopher Krumm, 25, of Vernon, Conn., on Friday while the handful of students in the Casper College classroom escaped.

Christopher Krumm had just stabbed to death his father's live-in girlfriend at the couple's home two miles away.

When police arrived at the classroom after the bow-and-arrow attack, they found Christopher Krumm bleeding from self-inflicted knife wounds and taking his last breaths.

James Krumm was dead, Casper Police Chief Chris Walsh said.

"I can tell you the courage that was demonstrated by Mr. Krumm was absolutely without equal," he said, adding that the instructor's actions could offer some measure of comfort to those affected by the killings.

Authorities believe around six students were in the classroom when Christopher Krumm entered, Casper police spokesman Justin Smith said. No students were hurt.

Walsh said police still were trying to figure out what motivated Christopher Krumm to attack his father and girlfriend, Heidi Arnold, a math instructor at the college.

Man Charged in Barista Death Linked to 7 Killings

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) • A man charged in the death of an Alaska barista has killed himself, and authorities said Sunday they had linked him to at least seven other possible slayings in three other states.

Israel Keyes was found dead in his Anchorage jail cell Sunday morning. He died of an apparent suicide, U.S. Attorney Karen Loeffler told reporters.

Keyes was facing a March trial in federal court for the murder of 18-year-old Samantha Koenig, who was abducted from an Anchorage coffee kiosk last February. He was later arrested in Texas after using the victim's debit card.

Keyes confessed to killing Koenig, as well as killing Bill and Lorraine Currier of Essex, Vt., Anchorage police chief Mark Mew said.

The bodies of the Carriers have never been found. They were last seen leaving their jobs on June 8, 2011. Co-workers reported them missing the next day.

Keyes also indicated he killed four others in Washington state and one person in New York state, but did not give the victims' names, authorities said.

The FBI contends Keyes killed Koenig less than a day after she was kidnapped. Her body was recovered April 2 from an ice-covered lake north of Anchorage.

Koenig's disappearance had gripped the city for weeks.

A surveillance camera showed an apparently armed man in a hooded sweat shirt leading Koenig away from the coffee stand. Koenig's friends and relatives established a reward fund and plastered the city with flyers with her photo in hopes of finding the young woman alive.

Prosecutors said Keyes stole the debit card from a vehicle Koenig shared that was parked near her home, obtained the personal identification number and scratched the number into the card.

After killing Koenig, Keyes used her phone to send text messages to conceal the abduction, according to prosecutors. He flew to Texas and returned Feb. 17 to Anchorage, where he sent another text message demanding ransom and directing it to the account connected to the stolen debit card, according to prosecutors.

Keyes made withdrawals from automated teller machines in Alaska, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas before his arrest in Texas, according to prosecutors. He was charged with kidnapping resulting in Koenig's death.

Letterman, Zeppelin Honored by Obama

WASHINGTON (AP) • David Letterman's "stupid human tricks" and Top 10 lists are being vaulted into the ranks of cultural acclaim as the late-night comedian receives this year's Kennedy Center Honors with rock band Led Zeppelin and three other artists.

Stars joined President Barack Obama at the White House on Sunday night to salute the comedian, the band, and their fellow recipients: Actor Dustin Hoffman, Chicago bluesman Buddy Guy and ballerina Natalia Makarova.

The honors are the nation's highest award for those who influenced American culture.

Obama elicited laughs from his guests when he described the honorees as "some extraordinary people who have no business being on the same stage together."

Noting that Guy made his first guitar strings using the wire from a window screen, he quipped, "That worked until his parents started wondering how all the mosquitoes were getting in."

The president thanked the members of Led Zeppelin for behaving themselves at the White House given their history of "hotel rooms trashed and mayhem all around."

"It's fitting that we're doing this in a room with windows that are about three inches thick and Secret Service all around," he said to laughter from the diverse group of artists.

New Mexican President Signs Accord

MEXICO CITY (AP) • Newly inaugurated President Enrique Pena Nieto and top opposition leaders signed an agreement Sunday to increase Mexico's economic growth, employment and competitiveness.

The leaders of the conservative National Action Party and the leftist Democratic Revolution Party joined Pena Nieto in signing the "Pact for Mexico." It includes measures Pena Nieto announced during his inauguration, including education reform, pensions for people 65 and older, and concessions for two new national television stations.

The 46-year-old Pena Nieto, who took office on Saturday, called the pact "historic."

"The country must be transformed without delay," he said.

Pena Nieto's Institutional Revolutionary Party ruled Mexico for 71 years before being voted out 12 years ago.

Pena Nieto has presented himself as the new face of the PRI, which ruled before with handouts, graft and rigged elections, promising clean government.

But some opponents say the party's ways haven't change and accuse it of using overspending and vote buying to win the latest election.

At times violent protests marred his inauguration, with protesters throwing stones, bottle rockets and firecrackers at police who responded with tear gas.

Mexico City Mayor Marcelo Ebrard said eight people were injured, one gravely, and 92 detained during inauguration violence.

He blamed anarchist groups for vandalism and other "barbaric acts."

Vandals smashed windows of stores, banks and a hotel and made bonfires of furniture dragged into the streets.

One downtown bank office where all the windows were broken had the words "Welcome Pena" painted across the facade in green.

Palestinian President Returns Triumphantly from United Nations

RAMALLAH, West Bank (AP) • The Palestinian president returned triumphantly to the West Bank on Sunday, receiving a boisterous welcome from thousands of cheering supporters at a rally celebrating his people's new acceptance to the United Nations.

An Israeli decision to cut off a cash transfer to the financially troubled Palestinian Authority, following an earlier decision to build thousands of new homes in Jewish settlements, failed to put a damper on the celebrations.

But Palestinian officials acknowledged they were undecided on what to do with their newfound status, and were waiting for upcoming Israeli elections and new ideas from President Barack Obama before deciding how to proceed.

Outside the headquarters of President Mahmoud Abbas in the West Bank city of Ramallah, some 5,000 people thronged a square, hoisted Palestinian flags and cheered their leader's return from New York. Large posters of the Palestinian leader, whose popularity had plummeted in recent months, adorned nearby buildings.

"We now have a state," Abbas said to wild applause. "The world has said loudly, 'Yes to the state of Palestine!'"

The United Nations General Assembly last week overwhelmingly endorsed an independent Palestinian state in the West Bank, east Jerusalem and the Gaza Strip, territories Israel captured in the 1967 war.

The move to upgrade the Palestinians to a nonmember observer state does not change much on the ground, but it carries deep potential significance.

The vote amounted to an international endorsement of the Palestinian position on future border arrangements with Israel and an overwhelming condemnation of Israeli settlements in the areas claimed by the Palestinians.

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu rejects a return to Israel's 1967 lines. Israel remains in control in parts of the West Bank and considers east Jerusalem, the Palestinians' hoped-for capital, an integral part of its capital.

Israel also continues to restrict access to Gaza. Israel withdrew seven years ago from the coastal strip, and it is now ruled by Hamas Islamic militants who regularly fire rockets at Israel.

Israel, backed by the U.S., campaigned against the statehood measure, accusing the Palestinians of trying to bypass direct peace negotiations, which it said were the only viable path to a Palestinian state.

Amid GOP Leadership Fight, Campaign Cash Flowed

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • As Election Day approached, Moscow Republican House candidate Cindy Agidius noticed her campaign account filling with money from prominent GOP lawmakers, from districts hundreds of miles from hers in northcentral Idaho.

House Speaker Lawrence Denney of Midvale chipped in $1,000 from an internal GOP account, while Majority Leader Mike Moyle of Star gave $500. Cash from Assistant Majority Leader Scott Bedke of Oakley and Rep. Christy Perry of Nampa also went into her coffers.

“It was always interesting to see where the money came from, especially since I didn’t ask for it,” said Agidius, who won Nov. 6 by just 123 votes.

More than a show of support for a partisan colleague in a tight race, however, this election cash infusion for Agidius and dozens of other Republican candidates across Idaho underscores the tense internal House GOP fight now being waged for leadership posts.

Denny and Bedke are facing off for House speaker, Moyle has a challenge from Rep. Rich Wills of Glenns Ferry, and Perry has two rivals, Reps. Steve Hartgen of Twin Falls and John Vander Woude of Meridian, for the open House majority caucus chair post.

There’s also a three-way competition for Bedke’s old job, with Reps. Brent Crane of Nampa, Jeff Thompson of Idaho Falls and Lynn Luker of Boise aiming for assistant majority leader.

Money isn’t everything, but Idaho politicians aren’t neglecting it as they seek power — or, in Denney’s and Moyle’s case, to preserve it — at next Wednesday’s closed-door, GOP-only dinner at a Boise country club. There, a secret ballot will determine the personalities who will control the chamber when the 2013 session starts Jan. 7.

The Denney-Bedke matchup has garnered the most scrutiny.

Denney, a western Idaho alfalfa farmer, has been speaker for three terms, long enough to win the loyalties of representatives who rallied with him around issues including opposition to President Obama’s health insurance overhaul, but also bitter enemies who feel he runs the chamber with a partisan fist.

In six years, he’s booted Republicans from committee chairmanships on loyalty grounds and punished lobbyists who supported his rivals. This spring, he contributed $10,000 from a House account he controls, the Victory Fund, to political action committees working to unseat GOP incumbents in May 15’s primary.

Though Denney denies he intended the cash be used to beat sitting Republicans, Bedke contends the situation laid bare a management style that favors creating divisions, not good public policy.

“This is about pragmatic problem solving,” said Bedke, a rancher. “It’s also about being inclusive. And we can be inclusive without compromising our principals.”

Denney expects their fight to be decided by 23 Republican House freshmen.

“It’s going to come down to new people who really have not built a relationship with either one of us,” he said. “I’ve been talking to the returning people, as well, but the new folks are the ones that don’t know us.”

Wills didn’t return a phone call Friday.

But Moyle, now Denney’s right-hand man in the chamber, expects leaders who survive Wednesday night will have a variety of motives to thank.

Some conservative lawmakers will pick leaders most likely to stand up to federal initiatives. Others will choose based on who they believe will reward them with prime committee assignments. Still others may have simple political grudges to settle.

And then, of course, there’s money.

Amid the speaker’s race, Bedke gave more than $26,000 to 37 House GOP candidates. Thirty won and will vote Wednesday.

Denney, meanwhile, chipped in about $28,000 to 36 candidates via the Victory Fund he controls. Twenty-three were victorious.

Like Agidius, some received money from both Denney and Bedke — and will have to decide between them.

Politically savvy, Agidius knows not to tip her hand.

“I’m going to go to Boise with an open mind, and I’m going to listen some more,” she said, adding campaign contributions will hardly be decisive.

There’s some precedent for that.

In 2006, state Rep. Bill Deal, from Nampa, gave $11,000 to 22 GOP candidates, ahead of his bid for House speaker against Denney.

Denney gave only $3,400 to 13 candidates — but still won.

Conservation Easements Sought for Bear River

LOGAN, Utah (AP) • Federal wildlife officials will hold public meetings in Utah, Idaho and Wyoming on their proposal to buy conservation easements along the Bear River.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service seeks to acquire up to 920,000 acres from willing sellers at an estimated cost of $745 million, the Deseret News reported (<http://bit.ly/SFaGQi>).

From its headwaters in Utah’s Uinta Mountains, the river flows north through Wyoming and Idaho before reaching its confluence at the Great Salt Lake.

The watershed conservation plan is designed to spare wildlife habitat as well as farm and ranch lands from urban sprawl and residential development, agency officials said.

The river system passes through three national wildlife refuges and provides critical wetland and upland habitat for a variety of species, including grizzly, elk and deer.

The river also is critical habitat for the Bonneville cutthroat trout, and the entire watershed supports more than 270 species of migratory birds on the Central and Pacific flyways.

The wildlife service notes various groups have mounted efforts to preserve key areas within the Bear watershed, including The Nature Conservancy.

The group purchased a 6,700 easement for the protection of Columbian sharp-tailed grouse and other species along the Bear’s east fork.

Joan Degiorgio, regional director of the conservancy, said the federal proposal would help protect an often overlooked but critical watershed.

“I call the Bear River the Rodney Dangerfield of rivers, versus the Colorado and Green, which have a lot more sex appeal than the Bear does,” she told the Deseret News. “The Bear has always been important for supply of agricultural water and as a hydropower source, but it has been behind as a conservation priority.”

Because most of the land along the river is privately held for use for farming and ranching, Degiorgio said, it’s important for the federal government and others to work with landowners on a willing basis to preserve critical watershed areas.

The Utah Farm Bureau has been involved in providing input on the plan and is supportive of conservation easements, said spokesman Matt Hargreaves.

Such easements allow for land to remain private property, but impose restrictions on development. Under the contracts, grazing would not be restricted.

Funding for the easements would come from the Land and Water Conservation Fund, which is supported primarily by offshore oil and gas leases.

Meetings are set for Tuesday in Logan, Wednesday in Randolph, Thursday in Montpelier, Idaho, Friday in Preston, Idaho, Dec. 10 in Cokeville, Wyo., and Dec. 11 in Evanston, Wyo.

NTSB: Conrail Studied Problems Day Before Crash

BY MARYCLAIRE DALE
Associated Press

PAULSBORO, N.J. • Conrail crews had reports of signal problems at a New Jersey railroad bridge weeks before a train derailment Friday, and were studying the problem the day before the crash and resulting chemical leak, federal investigators said Sunday.

Seventy people went to a hospital following the derailment. More than 100 people are expected to remain out of their homes this week while crews try to remove the hazardous material, vinyl chloride, from a ruptured tanker.

The National Transportation Safety Board cannot examine the scene until the chemicals are removed. But the agency this weekend began reviewing records with a focus on both the signal problems reported recently and a 2009 train derailment on the same bridge.

Conrail regularly moves tons of hazardous material over the low bridge, which was originally built in 1873. The bridge straddles Mantua Creek, a tributary near the Delaware River in the industrial town of Paulsboro. The bridge operates like a garden fence, with a section that swings sideways to open for boat traffic, then closes and locks into place to accommodate freight trains.

Boise State and Washington to Meet in Las Vegas Bowl

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOISE • The Las Vegas Bowl will have a Northwest flavor as Washington and No. 20 Boise State square off for just the second time in the history of the two schools.

The Broncos (10-2) and Huskies (7-5) accepted invitations to the Dec. 22 bowl Sunday.

It's a familiar postseason scenario for the Broncos, who have played their bowl games in Las Vegas each of the past two years. Boise State earned a third trip Saturday by knocking off Nevada to grab a share of the Mountain West Conference title with Fresno State and San

MOSCOW • Paul Petrino has tasted success as a player and assistant coach at various levels and locales, from tiny Carroll College in Helena, Mont., to the Southeastern Conference at Arkansas.

Next on his list is to attempt a major reclamation project at Idaho, another school out of the national spotlight — but one he's familiar with.

Petrino, the offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach at Arkansas and former Vandals assistant, has accepted an offer to become the next Idaho football coach. The hiring will be announced at 1:30 p.m. today at a news conference at the Litehouse Center in the Kibbie Dome.

In Case You Missed It...

Lost in all the hullabaloo of Boise State's quest to crack the BCS, Idaho's coaching search and the early stages of the prep basketball season, there were a handful of storylines worth noting.

In future Monday columns, called "In Case You Missed It" (or ICYMI for short) we'll hit some of the things from the last week that flew under the radar, either from the local sports world or regional/national sports with a local angle, as well as some commentary on the subjects.

Unveiled:
A hurting Twin Falls family gets encouragement from a national star.

Los Angeles Galaxy midfielder Landon Donovan dedicated his match-winning goal and his performance in Saturday's MLS Cup to the memory of Twin Falls resident Cody Ottersberg and his family.

Donovan and Ottersberg met through the Make a Wish Foundation and struck up a friendship. Ottersberg died in October at age 22, following a long battle with leukemia.

"I kind of wanted to play for him today. We get some special moments with these kids, and to the Ottersberg family, that was for you guys," Donovan told ESPN in an on-field interview right after the Galaxy's 3-1 win over the Houston Dynamo.

Donovan had plenty of other things on his mind, like winning a championship, his last game with world superstar teammate David Beckham, and dealing with persistent questions about his own future in soccer. The first thing he chose to mention in his post-match comments was a fallen friend.

It won't bring Cody back, but hopefully it put some smiles on the faces of his friends and family, if only for a little while. After all, in the end that's what the athlete-fan relationship is all about.

Boise State's basketball program bags a program-defining victory.

It was perhaps a week delayed, but Boise State got its signature road win over a top 15 team, drumming No. 11 Creighton in Omaha. The Broncos had Michigan State on the ropes in East Lansing a week prior, before eventually succumbing to the Spartans.

If an unheralded team has a top 20 team down on the road once, it's a nice story. Twice in the space of a week, and it's not an accident. That shows how well Leon Rice has done in his third season at Boise State, and it's even prompted some local media guys to joke that maybe it's not Chris Petersen the Broncos need to worry most about losing.

Seriously, though, Rice is making serious headway on his goal to make Boise State more than a one-trick Bronco, and wins like this will go a long way to making the athletic program look like more than a football school.

It might not necessarily result in a NCAA Tournament bid this season, but the Broncos have positioned themselves to make some noise in the Mountain West. And with just one senior, former College of Southern Idaho player Kenny Buckner, Boise State should be poised to challenge San Diego State when they both move to the Big West next season.

Notre Dame vs. Alabama: Star Power, Power Football

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • On one side, a blossoming dynasty from the college football capital of the Deep South. On the other, the sport's most famous team, trying to reclaim its place among the elite.

Notre Dame and Alabama bring star power and power football to the BCS championship.

The matchup became official Sunday night when the final standings were released and, to no one's surprise, the Fighting Irish were first and the Crimson Tide was second.

The one bit of drama on college football's selection Sunday was whether Northern Illinois could be this year's BCS buster. The Huskies got in, getting a spot in the Orange Bowl against Florida State, taking a bid away from Oklahoma and sparking heated debate about a system that never fails to tick off fans in some way.

The other BCS matchups:

- Oregon and Kansas State will play in the Fiesta Bowl.
- Wisconsin and Stanford will meet in the Rose Bowl.

- Florida and Louisville are set for the Sugar Bowl.

As for the main event in the penultimate Bowl Championship Series, there was little controversy about No. 1 Notre Dame against No. 2 Alabama in Miami.

"The tradition of Alabama and Notre Dame brings special attention to it, but we're just trying to the best team on Monday, Jan. 7,"

Notre Dame coach Brian Kelly said Sunday night. "All of that tradition, what's happened in the past, is not going to help us Jan. 7, but we do respect the traditions."

The Irish clinched their spot a week ago in Los Angeles by completing a perfect season against rival Southern California.

Alabama earned its spot Saturday, beating Georgia

32-28 in a thrilling South-eastern Conference title game.

The program that coach Paul Bryant turned into an SEC behemoth in the 1960s and 70s, winning five national championships and sharing another during his tenure, is again dominating college football with a modern-day version of the Bear leading the way in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Coach Nick Saban and the Crimson Tide are on the verge of one of the great runs in history. Alabama would become the first team to repeat as champs since the BCS was implemented in 1998, and it would be the 11th time a team has won consecutive AP titles since the poll started in 1936. Alabama is already one of seven programs to repeat. The Tide has done it twice. Notre Dame is another.

Alabama also won the 2009 BCS championship under Saban. The last team to win three major national titles in four seasons was Nebraska, which went back-to-back in 1994 and '95 and finished No. 1 in the final coaches' poll in 1997.

Knicks Beat Suns, Stay Unbeaten at Home

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Rasheed Wallace delivered a hard whack to Luis Scola, then some hard words to the referees.

These New York Knicks won't let anybody have it easy at Madison Square Garden, not even the officials.

Carmelo Anthony scored 34 points and the Knicks ran their best home start in 20 years to 7-0, withstanding Wallace's ejection after a mere 1:25 of playing time to beat the Phoenix Suns 106-99 on Sunday.

Phoenix had won its last two at MSG but the Knicks have finally figured out under coach Mike Woodson that home-court games are not to be wasted. They are 18-1 in the regular season here since he took over last March, jumping on their last few opponents from the start.

"His whole thing when he came in is we're going to protect our home floor. We're going to win every game at home, or we're going to try to win every game at home, and we're going to go out on the road and compete," center Tyson Chandler said. "So his whole thing is we've got to protect our house. Teams coming in got to feel like they've got to go somewhere else to get a win."

MAGIC 113, LAKERS 103 LOS ANGELES • Arron Afflalo scored 30 points, Glen Davis added 23 points and 12 rebounds, and the Orlando Magic beat Dwight Howard in their first game against their longtime center, stunning the Los Angeles Lakers 113-103 on Sunday night.

Howard had 21 points and 15 rebounds against his former team, but the rebuilding Magic rallied impressively for a 40-point fourth quarter for just their fourth win in 14 games, snapping a three-game skid.

Orlando did it partly by intentionally fouling Howard, who went 9 for 21 at the line — including 7 for 14 in the fourth quarter.

NFL ROUNDUP

Chiefs Beat Panthers at Somber Arrowhead Stadium

ASSOCIATED PRESS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. • Against the backdrop of an unthinkable tragedy, the Kansas City Chiefs gave themselves a reason to be proud Sunday — and perhaps the impetus to let the healing begin.

Brady Quinn threw for 201 yards and two touchdowns, and Jamaal Charles ran for 127 yards in the Chiefs' 27-21 victory over their Carolina Panthers. The win snapped an eight-game losing streak during one of the most difficult seasons the franchise has ever experienced.

The win came just one day after Chiefs linebacker Jovan Belcher shot his girlfriend multiple times at a residence near Arrowhead Stadium, then drove to the team's practice facility and turned the gun on himself as general manager Scott Pioli and coach Romeo Crennel looked on.

Pioli walked through the press box before the game and said he was doing "OK," though he didn't stop to talk. Crennel was on the sideline coaching his team to an uplifting victory.

COWBOYS 38, EAGLES 33 ARLINGTON, Texas • Tony Romo threw three touchdown passes to break Troy Aikman's career franchise record, and the Dallas Cowboys beat the Philadelphia Eagles 38-33 on Sunday night.

The Cowboys (6-6) trailed 27-24 when Romo led an 86-yard drive that was sparked by a 35-yard pass to Dez Bryant on third down. Bryant gave Dallas the lead when took a screen pass from the 6 and got inside the pylon with 5:40 remaining.

The Eagles (3-9) lost their eighth straight game despite 169 yards rushing and two touchdowns from rookie Bryce Brown a week after he set an Eagles rookie record with 178 yards.

Dallas went ahead by 11 when Morris Claiborne returned a fumble by Brown 50 yards for a touchdown.

PATRIOTS 23, DOLPHINS 16 MIAMI • Tom Brady had his least efficient game of the year and even threw an interception, but New England took advantage of Miami's mistakes and clinched their fourth consecutive AFC East title.

A botched punt, roughing-the-punter penalty and fumble by Miami led to 17 New England points, and another penalty negated a Dolphins touchdown.

Brady finished 24 for 40 for 238 yards and was sacked four times. But with the Patriots nursing a 20-13 lead midway through the fourth quarter, he led a 16-play drive that took more than seven minutes and led to a field goal.

The Patriots (9-3) have won six games in a row and are assured of their 12th consecutive winning season. Miami (5-7) lost to New England for the fifth consecutive time.

TEXANS 24, TITANS 10 NASHVILLE, Tenn. • The Houston Texans clinched their second straight playoff berth and set a franchise record for wins in a season.

Rookie linebacker Whitney Mercilus recovered a fumble and had two sacks, and the Texans (11-1) remain tied with Atlanta for the best record in the NFL with their sixth straight win. After needing overtime the past two games, the Texans forced six turnovers and had six sacks of Jake Locker when they weren't batting down a handful of other passes.

The Texans swept Tennessee (4-8), the team they replaced in Houston, for only the second time. Matt Schaub threw for 207 yards and two touchdowns, and Arian Foster ran for a TD.

BRONCOS 31, BUCCANEERS 23 DENVER • Peyton Manning threw three touchdowns, including one to defensive tackle Mitch Unrein, to help Denver wrap up the AFC West.

The Broncos (9-3) won their seventh straight and the Tampa Bay (6-6) loss clinched the NFC South for Atlanta, which won on Thursday.

Manning threw for 242 yards. He now has 29 touchdown passes on the season, moving past Jake Plummer and John Elway for the most by a Denver quarterback in a single year.

Manning threw two of the scores to Demaryius Thomas, who finished with eight catches for 99 yards.

Broncos linebacker Von Miller returned an interception for his first NFL score.

The Broncos held Tampa running back Doug Martin to 56 yards on 18 carries.

RAMS 16, 49ERS 13, OT ST. LOUIS • Rookie Greg Zuerlein kicked a 54-yard field goal with 26 seconds left in overtime after booting a 53-yarder as time expired in regulation.

The winning kick allowed the Rams to avoid a second tie in three weeks against the NFC West leaders.

The Rams (5-6-1) scored twice in the final 3:04 of regulation, getting their lone touchdown when rookie Janoris Jenkins returned an errant pitchout by Colin Kaepernick 2 yards for a score. They've won two straight after an 0-4-1 skid.

The 49ers (8-3-1) failed to take advantage of a 14-yard punt by rookie punter Johnny Hekker to midfield when David Akers was barely wide right on a 51-yard attempt with 4:11 to go in overtime. Akers is just 7 for 15 from 40 yards and beyond.

SEAHAWKS 23, BEARS 17, OT CHICAGO • Russell Wilson connected with Sidney Rice on a 13-yard touchdown with 7:33 left in overtime to lift Seattle.

Unbeaten in five home games, the Seahawks finally figured a way to win on the road after dropping five of their first six, and knocked off the NFC North leaders in the process.

Seattle took a short-lived lead late in regulation on Wilson's 14-yard pass to Golden Tate, only to watch the Bears' Robbie Gould boot a 46-yard field goal as time expired to send it into OT.

The Seahawks (7-5) got their only other road win at Carolina.

COLTS 35, LIONS 33 DETROIT • Andrew Luck threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to Donnie Avery with no time left to lift Indianapolis.

With the final seconds ticking away, the rookie quarterback moved up in the pocket, flipped a short pass to Avery, and the receiver ran untouched into the end zone to complete a rally that started with Lions up 12 points midway through the fourth quarter.

The Colts (8-4) stayed in control of the AFC wild-card race with the win. Detroit (4-8) lost for the fourth straight time, including three in a row at home after leading in the final quarter.

PACKERS 23, VIKINGS 14 GREEN BAY, Wis. • James Starks had Green Bay's first rushing touchdown in almost two months, Morgan Burnett picked off Christian Ponder twice and the Packers overcame a monster day by Adrian Peterson.

Peterson finished with 210 yards, the most he's had since blowing out his ACL and MCL last December. But the Vikings (6-6) clearly felt the absence of Percy Harvin, who missed his third straight game with a sprained ankle.

Ponder didn't help matters with his interceptions, one in the end zone and the other around the Green Bay 10. The Packers turned both miscues into field goals, giving them their 10th straight victory against an NFC North opponent.

The win also keeps the Packers' hopes for the (8-4) division title alive.

STEELERS 23, RAVENS 20 BALTIMORE • Shaun Suisham kicked a 42-yard field goal as time expired.

Playing without injured quarterback Ben Roethlisberger for a third straight week, the Steelers turned to the 37-year-old Batch for the second game in a row. He went 25 for 36 for 276 yards, threw a touchdown and moved the Steelers 61 yards before Suisham's game-winning kick.

Pittsburgh trailed 13-3 in the first half and 20-13 in the fourth quarter before coming back.

Pittsburgh (7-5) snapped a two-game losing streak and kept alive its slim hopes of overtaking Baltimore (9-3) in the AFC North. The teams have split their games this season.

The Ravens could have clinched a playoff berth with a victory. Instead, Baltimore had its 15-game home winning streak snapped and also lost for the first time in 13 games against division foes.

BENGALS 20, CHARGERS 13 SAN DIEGO • Andy Dalton scrambled up the middle for a 6-yard touchdown with 4:11 left for the go-ahead score and Cincinnati won its fourth straight game.

On second-and-goal, Dalton pump-faked right and then ran up the middle, dived for the end zone and got the ball across.

The Bengals (7-5) remained tied with Pittsburgh in the race for the AFC's second wild-card berth.

The Chargers (4-8) lost their fourth straight game and for the seventh time in eight games, and remain only mathematically alive in the wild-card chase. Denver won the AFC West with a 31-23 victory against Tampa Bay.

BROWNS 20, RAIDERS 17 OAKLAND, Calif. • Brandon Weeden threw for a career-high 364 yards and a touchdown as Cleveland snapped a 12-game road losing streak.

Weeden hit fellow rookie Josh Gordon on a 44-yard score in the second quarter and Trent Richardson scored on a 3-yard run after Sheldon Brown made a key interception deep in Cleveland territory when the Raiders (3-9) were driving for the potential tying or go-ahead score in the fourth quarter.

It all added up to the first road win for the Browns (4-8) since beating Indianapolis 27-19 on Sept. 18, 2011.

JETS 7, CARDINALS 6 EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. • Third-stringer Greg McElroy stepped in for a struggling Mark Sanchez and led New York to its only score.

With Tim Tebow inactive as he heals from two broken ribs, coach Rex Ryan pulled Sanchez for McElroy — as the crowd at MetLife Stadium cheered wildly — late in the third quarter. McElroy led the (5-7) Jets to their only points of the day with an impressive drive, connecting with Jeff Cumberland on a 1-yard touchdown. That ended up being the winning score.

Fans chanted "Mc-Elroy!" throughout the first three quarters as Sanchez went 10 for 21 for 97 yards and three interceptions.

The sagging Cardinals (4-8) have their own troubles at quarterback. Ryan Lindley was ineffective in his second NFL start as Arizona lost its eighth straight game after a 4-0 start.

BILLS 34, JAGUARS 18 ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) • Ryan Fitzpatrick directed five straight scoring drives in helping Buffalo keep alive its slim playoff hopes.

Fitzpatrick threw two touchdown passes and scored on a 1-yard plunge in providing a spark to an injury-depleted offense that finished the game minus its top two receivers.

Fred Jackson had 101 yards rushing and C.J. Spiller scored on a 44-yard run that put Buffalo (5-7) up 34-10 early in the fourth quarter.

The Jaguars fell to 2-10.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

“He is free ... whose impulses are unimpeded, whose desires attain their purpose, who falls not into what he would avoid.”
— Epictetus

Against three no-trump, West leads the heart eight, and East wins the first trick with the queen and returns the heart five when you hold up the ace. You might as well duck this, just in case West has opened on a five-card suit. West wins with the jack and clears the heart suit, dummy and East each throwing spades.

You have eight top tricks, so an extra trick from the diamond suit will carry you to the finish line. You will need to duck a round of diamonds at some stage and it must be to East, the safe hand with no more hearts. At trick four you lead a low diamond from your hand. If West produces the diamond six or seven, you will cover with dummy's eight, forcing East to win the trick. Nine tricks will then be yours when the diamonds prove to be 3-2.

Suppose West holds diamond Q-10-7 and inserts the 10 on the first round. You win with dummy's ace and see that it would not be safe to continue by cashing the diamond king. West would win the third round of diamonds and cash too many hearts for your liking. Instead, you return to your hand with a spade and lead another diamond toward dummy. West has to produce the seven this time. You cover with the eight, and are now sure to make three diamond tricks without letting West on lead.

ANSWER: The reason why a heart lead is so much more attractive than a spade here is two-fold. The first factor is the heart 10, which argues that if you find partner with any high card in the suit, you probably won't be costing your side a trick. The second factor is that if hearts are right, you have a plausible entry to your suit, while the reverse does not apply to spades.

DEAR ABBY: I'm married to the girl of my dreams. She's the best thing that's ever happened to me. We both work in the medical field. She's an emergency room nurse, and I'm a paramedic/firefighter.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

For several years my wife worked the day shift at a hospital more than an hour away from home. I tried to convince her to find a job closer, so we could see each other more. Finally, she told me she had been offered a night shift position at the hospital here in town. She promised to switch to a day shift if one opened up. I thought that was great.

It has been almost a year now, and she is still working the night shift. There have been many daytime openings, but she hasn't requested any of them. On most of my days off, I watch her sleep.

At this point I'm not sure what to do. I am not happy and don't want to spend the rest of my life like this. I feel like I'm missing out on so much. I have the girl of my dreams, but most of the time she IS dreaming — literally. Can you please help?

— AWAKE AND ALONE IN FLORIDA

DEAR AWAKE AND ALONE: You ARE missing out, on the fun and companionship that you should be enjoying with your wife. It's time to have a frank conversation with her and find out why she has been stalling about changing shifts. There could be more wrong in your marriage than incompatible schedules, but the problems won't be resolved unless you can be honest with each other. The current situation is unfair to you, and you are right to be concerned.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have hosted a holiday party for our neighbors every year for the last 10 years. Over time, we have invited more and more people, and we enjoy almost everyone. However, one of our neighbors, "Jim," is very rude. For the past several years he has taken it upon himself to invite several people to our party who he feels should be on the list. These are people we purposely did not invite. Last year we decided not to invite Jim, but after he sent multiple emails demanding to know the date and time, we reluctantly invited him. He then had the nerve to send out an email to dozens of people he thought we had missed on the guest list, notifying them of the party. This really embarrassed my husband and me.

How can I tell him it's not his party, and how do we deal with the situation with the folks we did not initially invite but now know about the party?

— IT'S OUR PARTY

DEAR PARTY: There is more than one way to handle this. The most obvious would be to inform Jim that he won't be invited this year and tell him why. He is every host's nightmare, and his behavior is beyond nerdy. A host must know how many guests to prepare for in order to ensure there will be enough food and beverages for everyone.

Another way would be to forgo giving the party for a year or two and perhaps take a short vacation. Tell anyone who asks why that the gatherings became too large to manage. And then, when you resume entertaining, limit the guest list to something more intimate than a casting call for "American Idol."

One thing is certain: If you continue to tolerate what's been happening, your hospitality will continue to be abused.

IF DECEMBER 3 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Circle the next two weeks on your calendar as a good time to plan for the future or, set new plans in motion or find ways to make key improvements. Although you could experience an important change of heart in the spring and summer that might upset old habits and patterns, a new attitude is sure to release you from anything which has held you back. You have some exciting times to look forward to between now and the end of next year if you are willing to let go of ties that are no longer needed. Your popularity rises dramatically in April and May. Those are good months for career changes or to meet a new love interest who has commitment in his or her heart.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Pollyanna might make a great mentor. Find something good to say. Maintain an optimistic outlook even if your close companions abandon theirs. Soften harsh criticism by responding with kindness.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Invisible methods of support will keep you from falling down on the job. You might never know who provided helpful behind-the-scenes assistance but will see the results in the next few days.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Feet smell and noses run. An outbreak of good humor or even silliness may mean you are unable to take people seriously or count on them for wise advice. Take compliments and promises with a grain of salt.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Whittle out something worthwhile. String together timeless pearls of wisdom and you will have something valuable you can show off on any occasion. Inspirational thoughts should be written down.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Teamwork can overcome outstanding obstacles. If you have a business project to get off the ground, just ask for help and it will get finished much faster. Expect the unexpected from your closest companions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Touch base with the boss. This is a good time to ask for extra understanding and sympathy, or even favors, but you must be concise and to the point about your requests. If you need a break, ask for one.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22.): Shine sincerity. Although you would prefer peace and quiet, someone in your intimate circle might believe you are avoiding a confrontation. Remain sensitive to the feelings and hidden fears of others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Trust to your intuitions early in the day. Overconfidence in the validity of off-hand remarks or a lack of concrete facts may spoil your judgment. Count blessings and enjoy providential assistance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Offer applause and accolades. Sincere compliments and generous gestures will have others eating out of your hand. When others respond in kind, you receive support and encouragement, too.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Build a better mousetrap, but bait it with kindness and charity. You know the quotation about plans by mice and men — so don't expect anything to go smoothly unless you smooth the way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Teamwork requires sharing the harness. A surge of optimism and an upbeat atmosphere makes this a pleasant day, but you will not be able to count on getting much accomplished if pulled several ways.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Treat others the way you would like to be treated. You can be businesslike and act like the true professional without being unkind. A business acquaintance could turn into a true blue friend.
