Attorney Charged in Alleged Gun Incident

BY ALISON GENE SMITH alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Twin Falls attorney has been charged for allegedly involving a gun in a July confrontation.

Joseph Rockstahl was charged Nov. 23 with three misdemeanors: weapon exhibition or use of a deadly weapon, aiming a weapon at others and disturbing the peace.

He pleaded not guilty to all three charges on Nov. 26. On July 2, Twin Falls police responded to the 2200 block of Nisqually Street in Twin Falls for a call about a man with a gun. According to a police report, officers arrived on the scene and spoke with Rockstahl, the person alleged to have the gun, and his wife about the incident.

According to the report, Rockstahl said he and his wife were having a couple of drinks outside and were upset about the noise coming from a construction site two houses down the road. At about 9 p.m., the report states, Rockstahl said his wife walked down to complain about the noise

HighCourt Hears Appeal of Murder Plea

Both men pleaded guilty the following year. But Johnson now contends he was never told that Petersen gave a recorded confession to police, and during the confession Petersen took full responsibility for the murders and said Johnson didn't voluntarily participate in the crimes. Johnson maintains that if he'd known about that evidence, he would have taken his chances at trial instead of pleading guilty.

But attorneys for the state – and judges in a lower court - say Johnson waited too long to make those claims.

Johnson's attorney, Erik Lehtinen with the state appellate public defender's office, told the Idaho Supreme Court justices Monday that defendants should be given a vear to file successive post-conviction relief petitions like Johnson's.

Once they're in prison, most defendants don't have access to attorneys and are essentially left to their own devices if they want to file a petition or appeal, Lehtinen noted, and so it makes sense to give them a longer period of time to get that done.

The evidence itself should also be given due consideration by the court, Lehtinen said.

"We've got a situation where not only was he not told that there was certain evidence being withheld, but he was led to believe that all the information had been disclosed," Lehtinen said. "Mr. Johnson based his plea on that false understanding presented by the state."

According to court documents, Johnson said he didn't know about Petersen's interview with police until sometime in early 2009, when he obtained a handwritten statement from Petersen. The exact date he got the statement isn't clear, but he filed his petition with the court on July 29 of that year. Assuming that "early 2009" means Jan. 1, that means Johnson would have waited more than 200 days to file the petition, said Idaho Deputy Attorney General Kenneth Jorgensen. "Successive petitions have to be filed in a reasonable time," Jorgensen said. "This court has reaffirmed multiple times the reasonable time standard." Jorgensen also took issue with the new evidence Johnson contends he has, saying the state doesn't believe it would meet the legal standard to justify overturning a conviction anyway. The high court took the matter under advisement. The justices didn't say when they would issue a written ruling in the case.

CHARITY

Providing for the East End

BY MELISSA DAVLIN

mdavlin@magicvalley.com

KIMBERLY • The need isn't only in the cities.

Poverty can hide in small towns and rural agricultural areas. Cecille Griffith of East End Providers is trying to reduce the hunger and want in eastern Twin Falls County: Kimberly, Hansen and Murtaugh.

East End Providers provides food, gifts and coats for low income families. This year, the group has an especially big need for gifts for teenagers.

"They're rough," Griffith said. She suggested clothes, watches for boys, and makeup kits for girls, or money so volunteers can buy the gifts themselves.

Also welcome: Clothes or toys for children ages 2-7, and coats (especially boys coats size 8 and coats for teenage boys).

The charity could also use warm blankets.

"Some of those houses do not have very good heat," Griffith said.

Stocks Edge Higher; Dow Boosted by McDonald's

NEW YORK (AP) • Stocks edged higher Monday on Wall Street after a strong sales report from McDonald's offset concerns about the surprise resignation of Italy's prime minister. Investors also waited for developments in crucial U.S. budget talks.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 14.75 points to 13,169.88. The index traded within a narrow range of just 56 points throughout the day. The Standard and Poor's 500 finished 0.48 point higher at 1,418.55. The Nasdaq composite ended up 8.92 points at 2,986.96.

McDonald's rose 93 cents to $89.41. A key sales figure rose in November as U.S. customers bought more breakfast offerings and limited-time Cheddar Bacon Onion sandwiches.

Robert Pavlik, chief market strategist at Palm Beach, Fla.-based Banyan Partners, said the company's strength was encouraging. McDonald's, one of the 30 stocks in the Dow, was trading as high as $100 at the beginning of 2012.

Police: Resident Fought off Home Invasion in T.F.

BY ALISON GENE SMITH alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Police say a Twin Falls man broke into another man's home and hit him repeatedly with a ratchet until the alleged victim began to fight back with a screwdriver.

Christopher Donovan Jones, 20, was arraigned Friday on a charge of aggravat ed battery causing great bodily harm or disability in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

At about 2:45 a.m. Sept. 7, Twin Falls police responded to the 1000 block of Caswell Avenue West for a call about a home invasion.

According to the police report, two men were transported to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center with head lacerations.

Police wrote that the alleged victim had three large lacerations on the left side of his head. Jones had lacerations to his face and neck, the report states.

Curious Mind

According to the report, the front door of the home appeared to have been kicked in and there was a large amount of blood on the floor, walls and bed.

In an interview with police, the alleged victim said he was sleeping when he heard his bedroom door kicked in and believed two people came in the room. He then jumped up and ran at the intruders before being struck in the head with something, he said. The man told investigators he fell back, grabbed at one of the people and started fighting with them while the other person ran away.

At one point during the fight, the alleged victim said he found a screwdriver and started stabbing at the intruder. Eventually, the intruder ran away, he told police.

Police also interviewed Jones, who allegedly told police he was walking down Caswell when a man approached him and started "stomping" on him, the report states.

Police reported finding a 10inch-long ratchet, two sets of flex-style handcuffs and a left shoe in the bedroom.

According to the report, the shoe matched a right shoe that Jones was wearing when he arrived at the St. Luke's emergency room.

The report states Jones could not explain why he only had one shoe or why his other shoe was found inside the home.

Police also reported following a trail of blood to the 900 block of Caswell, where the alleged victim went for help, and finding a Phillips screwdriver on the sidewalk.

In a second interview with police, the alleged victim said he used to ride motorcycles with Jones and he still owed Jones $2,000, but had no idea Jones was allegedly part of the home invasion.

Jones is being held at the Twin Falls County Jail on $100,000 bond. A preliminary hearing is set for Friday.

Times of Unsettled Weather All Week

here is a lot of uncertainty this week with the overall weather forecast across Southern Idaho. As we get closer to Christmas, the demand for snow keeps getting higher and higher. The one thing I like to remind people when it comes to my weather forecasts, "I can only forecast the weather I see, not the weather I want?' I love all weather and this time of year, like many, I want to see snow on the ground. There are a few chances by the middle of the week and maybe some by the weekend.

Sunshine and clouds will be around again today with less winds and slightly warmer temperatures. We are once again above average as our highs this afternoon will reach the mid- to upper 40s. Average high temperature for mid-December in Twin Falls is 38 degrees. The next storm system starts to affect our region on Wednesday with a chance of scattered to isolated rain and snow showers during the day. Snow levels will start off around 5,000 feet and drop to the valley floor Wednesday night into Thursday. A cold front looks to stall on Thursday and could put down some accumulating snow, still some uncertainty on all the models here and going into the weekend.

According to the Hollister Herald in June 1911, Goat Springs has for a long time served as the bathing resort for citizens of Hollister.

Sometime between 1926 and 1930, the Hot Wells Development Company was formed to develop a natatorium and camping resort.

The artesian spring comes through a layer of iron pyrite "fools gold," which gives the water in the swimming pool a greenish color. Mineral content includes iron, aluminum, sodium chloride, from 99 F to 106 F. "Ultimately, all hot springs in the area owe their existence to the regional volcanic activity of the Snake River Plain during the past 10 million years," Willsey said. While there is no evidence that magma still exists beneath the Magic Valley, rocks at shallow depths still retain residual heat from the volcanism and therefore are able to heat up groundwater. The heated groundwater is less dense and rises to the surface. Faults, fractures, and other pathways allow the heated water to make it to the surface more quickly ..

by building the big outside pools followed shortly with nine private baths.

Miracle Hot Springs continuous flow of natural hot spring water is soft to the touch and odorless with a sensational alkaline pH of 9.6 allowing swimmers to rejuvenate.

Miracle Hot Springs' remodel has been complete nearly a year now with 15 private hot pools, six VIP pools, and four outdoor public pools open yearround, including holidays.

"Miracle Hot Springs is fed by thermal groundwater in volcanic rocks," said Shawn Willsey, College of Southern Idaho Professor of Geology. "The source of the water is likely to the south in the higher terrain of Brown's Bench along the Idaho-Nevada border."

Nat-Soo-Pah, located in Hollister, comes from a Shoshone word that roughly translates as "magic mineral water." In the late 1890s, native Shoshone used the hot springs as a wintering area. The Shoshone lived in the nearby foothills and used this spring for baths before magnesium, bicarbonate calcium, bicarbonate sodium and sulphate.

"The thermal water comes from rain and snow that falls in the South Hills and moves into the subsurface passing through fractures in the volcanic rocks and ultimately into the 280 million-year-old marine sedimentary rocks below," Willsey said.

"Here the water moves along fractures, bedding planes, and perhaps small cave systems, dissolving some of the calcium and other elements from the rocks and ultimately discharging as hot, mineralized water at Nat-Soo-Pah. Studies done in this area estimate that the water takes as long as 5,000 years to move through the aquifer in the subsurface. Nat-Soo-Pah appears to lie along a fault zone, which likely contributes to the movement of groundwater in this area."

Both Miracle Hot Springs and Nat-Soo-Pah are naturally heated by thermal water bubbling up from the high-desert terrain. The water's temperature ranges

340. Ninety percent of Idaho's 340 hot springs are the result of leftover energy heating water near fault lines. This energy is essentially leftover from a 17million-year-old meteorite collision, which occurred in southeast Oregon. The other 10 percent of Idaho's hot springs are from water being heated by active volcanoes, typically at or around fault lines.

The impact of the meteorite was so deep it remains stationary while the North American tectonic plate shifts above it. As the plate slowly moves, the hot spot periodically erupts volcanic lava – leaving a traceable path of volcanic activity behind. This path of volcanic activity is not only responsible for Yellowstone National Park, but for almost all of the hot springs activity in Idaho.

Four Injured in Monday Crash

TIMES-NEWS

FILER • Four people were injured Monday afternoon in a two-vehicle crash on Pole Line Road northeast of Filer.

None of the injuries were life-threatening, said Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office spokeswoman Lori Stewart.

The crash happened at about 4:15 p.m. at 2300 East and 4100 North, also Pole Line Road, Stewart said.

Two small- to mediumsized passenger cars were involved, she said, one carrying three people and the other carrying one person.

One of the vehicles was traveling west on 4100 North and T-boned the other vehicle, which was driving on 2300 East, she said.

One person was transported to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center by air ambulance. The other three were taken there by ground ambulance.

Traffic was closed into Monday evening between 2250 East and 2400 East.

Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies, St. Luke's medics, the Filer Fire Department and Filer Quick Response Unit were all on the scene. Idaho State Police assisted with measurements during the reconstruction.

The cause of the crash is still under investigation, Stewart said.

Councilwoman Suggests Adding Sexual Orientation to T.F. Policy

BY MELISSA DAVLIN mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls city staff will study the issue of adding sexual orientation to the anti-harassment and discrimination policy for city employees, at the suggestion of a councilwoman.

Councilwoman Rebecca Mills-Sojka's comment came during a presentation of the new city employee personnel policy.

"I certainly would encourage it," Mills-Sojka said.

The City Council adopted the handbook without making the change, but City Manager Travis Rothweiler said city staff would study the issue and present findings to the council at a later date.

Protecting sexual orientation under government antidiscrimination policies has made headlines in Idaho over the last year after a failed attempt to add the category on a state level at the Idaho Legislature. The cities of Sandpoint and Boise have added the phrase so far, and Pocatello's city council has considered doing the same.

Weekend Sees Rash of Vandalism

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls police investigated several reports of vandalism over the weekend.

Cars and homes were spray-painted, tires were slashed and a windshield was damaged, according to a press release from the city of Twin Falls.

Emergency dispatchers received 11 reports of vandalism in Twin Falls including nine reports of spraypainted vehicles in the area of Fiesta Way, El Camino Avenue, Cortez Loop and Valencia Street. The broken windshield occurred on Harrison Street and the slashed tires on Falls Avenue West.

Twin Falls police are investigating the incidents and will release more information when it becomes available.

Chick-fil-A to Open in January

BY ALISON GENE SMITH alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • If all goes according to plan, Magic Valley residents will be getting their fill of chicken sandwiches, waffle fries and milkshakes by early January.

Bill Ystueta, the owner of the Twin Falls Chick-fil-A, said he's aiming for a Jan. 10 opening date.

"I should have a date nailed down by the end of this week," he said.

Ystueta said he expects his construction crew will hand the building over to him on Friday.

Then he'll be able to start organizing the building and preparing to serve customers, he said.

"We'll start getting deliveries of non-construction materials," he said.

Everything used to prepare food will be delivered and must be sanitized before it is set up.

So far, Ystueta said he's hired about 40 employees and is looking for about 35 more.

"We'll have positions all the way up from entry level," he said. "Everyone will join at entry level and then we'll select people who do well and have management-level people chosen from there." Please see CHICK-FIL-A, A5

FTC Probes Makers of Cellphone Applications

The Federal Trade Commission is investigating software companies that make cellphone apps to determine whether they have violated the privacy rights of children.

BY RICHARD LARDNER Associated Press

 $\textbf{WASHINGTON} \bullet \textbf{The government is}$ investigating whether software companies that make cellphone apps violated the privacy rights of children by quietly collecting personal information from mobile devices and sharing it with advertisers and data brokers, the Federal Trade Commission said Monday. Such apps can capture a child's physical location, phone numbers of their friends and more.

The FTC described the marketplace for mobile applications dominated by online stores operated by Apple and Google – as a digital danger zone with inadequate oversight. In a report by the FTC's own experts, it said the industry has Please see FTC, A5

BLM Hiring Seasonal Firefighters, Support Staff

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The U.S. Bureau of Land Management's Twin Falls District is accepting applications for temporary seasonal firefighters and support staff for next summer's fire season.

The agency will accept applications through Jan. 29, 2013, for most jobs. Read job announcements closely for any early submission requirements.

Applicants should be interested in rigorous outdoor work and have excellent character and work ethic, according to a notice from the BLM. They must be at least age 18 by their first day of hire, be U.S. citizens and have a high school diploma or GED. Positions open include those in the suppression, prevention, fuels, aviation and dispatch programs.

The agency's fire jobs include possible continuous summer employment based on performance, annual and sick leave benefits, and travel to other districts or states.

Applications must be submitted online. The BLM plans four local sessions to help applicants with the online submission process: Wednesday at the Burley Fire Yard, 3630 Overland Ave.; Thursday at the Shoshone Fire Yard, 400 West F St.; and Jan. 7 and 8 at Room 103 of the College of Southern Idaho's Shields Building in Twin Falls.

For more on how to apply, visit www.idahofireinfo.blm.gov/south/ or call 208-732-7299.

Local Gas Prices

AAA Idaho cited the following average prices for regular gasoline as of Monday:

Burley:	$3.49
Fairfield	$3.41
Gooding:	$3.49
Hailey:
Jerome:
Rupert:	$3.54
Shoshone:	$3.48

For more information: http://aaa.opisnet.com/index.aspx was filled with Christmas tree lots. Now there are only a few.

But for those that remain, this holiday season seems to be business as usual.

"We're doing about the same as last year," said Logan Lloyd, co-owner of Lloyd's Family Christmas Trees, which has two locations in Twin Falls - one near Kmart on Addison Avenue East, the other on property owned by Randy Hansen Automotive on Pole Line Road.

This is the first year for the lot on Pole Line, Lloyd said, having moved from its former location at Five Points because of growing congestion and increasing rent fees.

"This is our new permanent location," he said.

Maria Deschane, who's bought her Christmas trees from Lloyd's for the past five years, didn't have any trouble finding the new location. Other customers found the lot's new location through its Facebook page, Lloyd said.

"We have a very loyal following," he said.

Deschane, of Twin Falls, usually prefers a Douglas fir. But this year she was looking for something a little taller and thicker. She won't even consider an artificial tree.

"I love the smell of natural trees," she said. "I really enjoy how they look and feel."

The lot has been in business since 1953, opening every year the day after Thanksgiving. It sells seven different species of tree. Lloyd said the business has always started with between 4,500 and 5,000 trees - five semitrailer loads, he said. And while it's been an average year for sales, he expects to at least reach close to that figure again this year.

Renay Skov finds the tree she and her kids want at Lloyd's Family Christmas Trees, Saturday in Twin Falls.

The trees are a mix of wild and cultivated, Lloyd said, and come from Washington, Oregon and Montana.

Is there much competition with artificial trees?

"We always say that artificial trees take up about 50 percent of the market," Lloyd said.

Sales of artificial trees have jumped by double-digits this season, based on federal and Nielsen data by BalsamHill.com. Annual sales of artificial trees are expected to hit a record $1.07 billion this year, up more than 6 percent, with a record 13.4 million trees sold. It's estimated, however, that about 33 million real Christmas trees are sold across the U.S. each year.

In south-central Idaho, another small segment heads to the backcountry to cut their own Christmas trees, armed with permits from the U.S. Forest Service.

"We've been doing pretty well this year with permits," said Karl Fuelling, a forester with the Sawtooth National Forest's Minidoka Ranger District.

So far this season the district alone has sold about 2,100 permits, Fuelling said.

"We've had less snow this year, so that's probably part of it," he said. "It's made for easier access into some of the areas."

Permits are $5 for a tree up to 10 feet tall, or $10 for a tree 11 to 20 feet.

Searching the backcountry for the perfect tree is something Emily Johnson remembers doing as a child with her family.

"We used to go out in the snow, taking turns cutting down a tree," she said.

For the past five years, Johnson and her husband, Chad Johnson, have used a 3-foot artificial tree in their home rather than a real Please see TREES, A5

IRS Offers Tax Tips for Season of Giving

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • For many, the season of giving is also the season for tracking future tax deductions.

If you plan to deduct your charitable donations this year, the Internal Revenue Service offers the following tips:

Contribute to qualified charities: How do you know if a charity meets IRS requirements for a tax deduction? Ask its representatives about their tax-exempt status. Or, search for it using the Exempt Organizations Select Check tool on IRS.gov. For your 2012 tax return, donations must be made by Dec. 31. Those charged to a credit card by that date still count, as do checks mailed by then.

Know what you can deduct: Largely, that's cash contributions and the fair market value of donated propery. But the rules are different for some donations, including clothing, household items, cars and boats. You can't deduct a gift to an individual person, regardless of whom that person is.

Keep records: No matter how much you donate, if you want to include it on your taxes you'll need a written record. Cancelled checks, bank or credit card statements, or payroll deduction records all suffice. Or, get a receipt from the charity featuring its name, the amount you gave and the date. Keep all these in a safe place throughout the year where you'll be able to find them when you need them.

Shop smart: As long as you're thinking taxes this Christmas, don't plan to pay for purchases now using a tax refund later. Many factors can affect the timing of a tax refund, the IRS notes. Though most are issued in less than 21 days after the agency receives a tax return, that's not always the case. Thus, don't plan big purchases now solely because of your expected refund.

Read more: The IRS publishes a booklet on contributions: Publication 536, Charitable Contributions. You'll find it on IRS.gov or can request a printed copy by calling 800-829-3676.

Ystueta said having character is the most important thing he looks for in employees. As long as a person has character, other skills can be taught, he said. Twin Falls' Chick-fil-A has been an idea three years in the making, Ystueta said. He's never owned a franchise before, and said Chick-fil-A was his first and only choice.

"We're really excited to be in Twin," he said. "We were really set on a Chickfil-A in Idaho. We were just waiting for the opportunity and it came through."

The restaurant is at 1631 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. on a .91-acre site adjacent to Target and Key Bank. It will be the second Chickfil-A in Idaho, with the other in Boise.

tree. The Dietrich couple, while on a date in Twin Falls Saturday night, decided this year they'd buy real.

"I like the smell of real trees," Emily Johnson said. "It makes it seem more like Christmas."

Though sales at lots are up to par with last year, Lloyd said the local market is not what it used to be.

"I grew up here and remember when Christmas tree lots were all over the place," said Leland Boekweg, a sales associate at Santa's Forest Christmas Trees, which receives its stock of Turkish firs and noble firs from a grower in Banks, Ore.

The small lot on Addison Avenue East, where the Johnsons were shopping Saturday, had an initial stock of around 300 trees, said owner Bill Manker. He's sold about half that so far, but expects another shipment of 300 to 400 trees this week.

Much of his clientele are those who say they only buy their trees from Santa's. "We get a lot of return-

grown rapidly but failed to ensure the privacy of young consumers is adequately protected. The FTC did not say which or how many companies it was investigating.

Among 400 apps designed for kids examined by the FTC, most failed to inform parents about the types of data the app could gather and who could access it, the report said. Others apps contained advertising that most parents would find objectionable or included links to Facebook, Twitter and other social media services where kids post information about themselves.

The report said mobile apps can siphon data to "invisible and unknown" third parties that could be used to develop a detailed profile of a child without a parent's knowledge or consent.

"It's not hypothetical that information was this shared," said Jessica Rich, associate director of the FTC's financial practices division.

The FTC also said it was investigating whether any of the apps developers engaged in unfair or deceptive trade practices, which would be illegal.

A trade group representing apps developers said the industry's growth has been fueled largely by small businesses, first-time developers and even high school students who do not have legal departments or privacy experts on staff. The FTC's report is a reminder of the importance of educating developers on best practices for privacy, the Washington-based Association for Competitive Technology said in a statement.

In one case mentioned in the FTC report, an app that allows children to paint pictures and save them in an online photo gallery didn't indicate that it included advertising. But investigators said the app ran an ad across the bottom of the screen for an online dating service that said, "See 1000+ Singles."

The FTC would not identify any companies it was investigating until a complaint is filed, Rich said. She said the agency expects the report will "light a fire" under the industry.

"We're not naming names, in part because we think this is a systematic problem, and we don't want people to think that if they avoid certain apps that they're home free," Rich said.

OBITUARIES

John Robert Arano

Aug. 2, 1929-Dec. 6, 2012

WENDELL • John Robert Arano, 83, passed away peacefully at his home in Wendell, Idaho, on Thursday, Dec. 6, 2012.

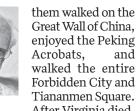

John was born

Aug. 2, 1929 in Hollister, Calif., the only child of Joaquin and Hazel Arano (nee Berry). He grew up on a cattle ranch near Monterey, Calif., and graduated from Pacific Grove High School in 1948. From 1951 to 1955, he served in the U.S. Navy during the Korean conflict and then attended Cal Poly University in San Luis Obispo, Calif., on the G.I. Bill. John married Virginia Potts on April 21, 1953, and they had 55 exciting, happy years together before she passed away in September 2008.

In 1970, John and Virginia left California to relocate to their beloved Idaho, settling in Twin Falls. Two years later, they had outgrown their "city" ranch and moved out to West Point. Here they raised cattle, potatoes, corn, grain and alfalfa. John and Virginia loved all kinds of animals, which meant there was always a large assort ment of dogs, cats, horses and rock chucks in their lives. Over the years, hundreds of strays and foundlings managed to work their way into the Aranos' loving hearts. In 1998, John and Virginia made the decision to sell their ranch and move into Wendell.

John worked for Burroughs Machine Corporation for more than 25 years, the last 15 traveling the roads of southern and central Idaho, troubleshooting and fixing the early computer systems of the area's banks. He retired from Burroughs in 1985 and then went on to spend 10 years at Ambrose Farms, where he spent much of his time fixing their computer-driven pivot irrigation systems.

Always interested in the welfare of his community, John served for many years on the West Point Highway District Board, finding himself in the hot seat occasionally but always standing up for what he believed in and voting consistently for the greater good. Many a local politician was on the receiving end of John's opinions and ideas, both inside and outside of local council meetings! After retirement, and inspired by his globe-trotting son, John (accompanied by Virginia before her passing) became a passionate traveler. Together, they enjoyed train trips in Mexico, cruises to Europe, long stays in London, and once John even chartered a plane to fly over the beaches of Normandy. John took his children to Beijing and with

and

After Virginia died, John continued his passion for travel with a wonderful new travel partner. Paz and he had many great adventures, journeying to Dubai to view the world's tallest building, visiting with the Long Neck Karen Tribes of Northern Thailand, cruising the harbors of Sydney, Australia, with its wonderful Opera House, walking the open-air markets of Singapore, and traveling through the islands of the Pacific, visiting the Philippines and Saipan. Their last trip together was in March when they sailed throughout the Caribbean.

John leaves behind his two children, Darlene (Paul) Dunham and Cliff McFelter; his three grandchildren, Troy (Miriam) Dunham, Denyse (Scot) Traeder and Gypsy McFelter (Matthew) Burks; and great-grandchildren, Emma and Truman Traeder, along with soon-to-be-born twin girls Dunham who will join the family in April 2013. Additionally, he is survived by his sisters-in-law, Sharon (Jim) Eckhart, Betty Gardner, Karen (Les) Sawyer and Sally Solomon, all of California, and Paula (Ennodio) Ramos of Stamford, England. John also leaves behind his kind and caring friend, Paz Younis of Saipan, who has been his constant and loving companion for the past three years. His beloved dogs, Bubba, Tinkerbelle and Whiskers; and his two cats, Callie and Sobber, survive him as well.

A celebration of John's life will be held at a later date as John relished the warm seasons and his last wish was to have his friends and family celebrate on a lovely summer day. In lieu of flowers, the family requests that donations in John's memory be made to a local animal shelter of the donor's choice or to the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (ASPCA). John Arano was a unique and loving man. He will be dearly missed and will be remembered by all who knew him for his good-natured spirit, his generosity, his passionate political discourse, the soft spot in his heart for animals, and the great love he had for his family, his friends and his community. Cremation arrangements are under the care and direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Wendell Chapel. Condolences may be sent to the family by visiting the obituary link at www.demarayfuneralservice.com.

Violet Wilson Anderson

April 28, 1915-Dec. 5, 2012

JEROME • Violet Wilson Anderson, 97, of Jerome, passed away peacefully Wednesday, Dec. 5, 2012, at Creekside Care Center in Jerome.

She was born April 28, 1915, to George and Maude Pearl Wilson in Wendell, Idaho. After high school, she attended seminary school for a while and then returned home. She eloped with Evan Anderson in 1937 and became a homemaker, wife, mother, business owner, seamstress and friend to all. They lived in Nevada and southern Idaho and raised two children, Elaine and Fred. They ran a restaurant in Wendell for a time and had farms off and on as Evan worked on the railroad. In Reno, she was a drapery maker and helped Evan raise ponies. She loved to garden and read. She had a strong faith in God and was active in church. In retirement, she was a home aide to seniors, some younger than she was. At age 75, she bought a home in Jerome, where she lived independently until age 91, when she moved to Creekside. She touched every life around her, always for the better.

Stanley Francis Seidel

March 29, 1930-Dec. 8, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Stanley Francis Seidel, 82, of Twin Falls, passed away Saturday, Dec. 8, 2012, at his home with his loving family by his side.

He was born March 29, 1930, in Mason City, Iowa, the son of Charles and Verneal Walters Seidel. Stanley graduated high school in 1948. Following graduation, he assisted his father in the local creamery. He then went on to become a certified sheet metal welder. He continued to work in the sheet metal industry until his retirement from Arizona Sheet Metal due his shoulder disability.

Stanley enjoyed traveling in his motor home, hunting, fishing and, most of all, spending time with his family. They are blessed with keepsakes from his talent as a silver and turquoise jewelry maker. He had a passion for softball and enjoyed playing it throughout his life. Surviving are his wife, Lea Mae Hansen Roberts Seidel of Twin Falls; children, Debi Jacobsen of San Antonio, Texas, Brad Seidel of Mesa City, Ariz., Bruce Seidel of Mesa City, Ariz., Withers of Kimberly Canyon City, Colo., Dawn Seidel of Mesa City, Ariz.; five stepchildren, Linda Hunt of Buhl, Idaho, Dale Roberts of Paisley, Ore., Mike Roberts of Hagerman, Idaho, Rick Roberts of Rochester, Wash., and Evonne McCormick of Twin Falls; along with numerous grandchildren and step-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his parents, along with three brothers and one sister. He will be deeply missed by all who knew and loved him. The family would like to express their thanks and gratitude to his loving companion, Lea, for her love and caring for Dad in this difficult time, along with thanks to Guardian Hospice for its tender care and compassion.

Violet was preceded in death by her husband, Evan; daughter, Elaine Brown; sister, Tess Graffi; and brother, Jack Wilson. She is survived by son, Fred Anderson; sister, Evelyn Byrne (John); eight grandchildren; 20 great-grandchildren; and four greatgreat-grandchildren. She is dearly missed by all family and friends.

There will be a visitation Friday evening, Dec. 14, at Farnsworth Mortuary, 1343 S. Lincoln in Jerome, beginning at 5 p.m., followed by a service at 7 p.m. A graveside committal service will be conducted at 1 pm, Saturday, Dec. 15, in the Wendell Cemetery on West Main Street in Wendell, Idaho.

Robert J. 'Ollie' O'Toole

July 24, 1931-Dec. 7, 2012

THE VILLAGES, Fla. • Robert J. "Ollie" O'Toole, 81, died Friday, Dec. 7, 2012.

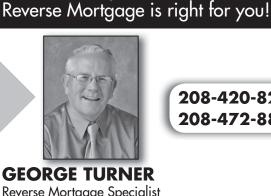

Born July 24, 1931, in Kansas City, Kan., he moved to Lincoln, Neb., in 1954. A plumber, he retired from the retail, wholesale and installation plumbing business after 46 years. He moved from Lincoln, Neb., to The Villages, Fla., in 2000. He was of the Episcopal faith and was a member of St. George Episcopal Church in The Villages, Fla. Ollie was an avid golfer, a first-rate handyman, enjoyed fishing and playing with his best four-legged pal, Paddy.

He was predeceased by his first wife, Barbara; his parents, a sister and brother. Survivors include his wife, Joyce; sons, Michael J., Patrick D., Timothy M. and Thomas R., all of Lincoln, Neb., and Shawn P. of Twin Falls, Idaho; daughters, Christine M. Plouzek and Peggy O'Toole of Lincoln, Neb.; stepdaughter, Debra Paulk of Brunswick, Ga.; brother, Patrick O'Toole of Oxford, Fla.; sister, Mary Ann Majewski of Kansas City, Kan.; 22 grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

A funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 18, at the St. George Episcopal Church in The Villages, Fla. A celebration of life will be held Jan. 11, 2013, in Lincoln, Neb.

special to do with the grandkids when they visit this Christmas. Any ideas?

A. Why not use your time together to make family photo albums with your grandchildren? All those photos stuffed in shoe boxes or plastic tubs are perfect conversation starters for grandparents and grandchildren to talk about family and their place in it. Show pictures of the grandkids' parents when they were children and tell stories about what it was like when their parents were young. Each grandchild or set of grandchildren can work on an album. There are many ways to approach this. You might choose old-fashioned, scrapbook style photo albums. Or you might prefer albums with pages of pockets. There are many new options for the computer savvy grandparent (or grandchild). Sharing photos with the younger generation is much more | than making photo albums. It is making lasting memories and passing on family history. Merry Christmas and Happy Holidays!

New Insurance Fee in Health Overhaul Law

WASHINGTON (AP) • Your medical plan is facing an unexpected expense, so you probably are, too. It's a new, $63per-head fee to cushion the cost of covering people with pre-existing conditions under President Barack Obama's health care overhaul.

The charge, buried in a recent regulation, works out to tens of millions of dollars for the largest companies, employers say. Most of that is likely to be passed on to workers.

Employee benefits lawyer Chantel Sheaks calls it a "sleeper issue" with significant financial consequences, particularly for large employers. "Especially at a time when we are facing economic uncertainty, (companies will) be hit with a multi-million dollar assessment without getting anything back for it," said Sheaks, a principal at Buck Consultants, a Xerox subsidiary.

Based on figures provided in the regulation, employer and individual health plans covering an estimated 190 million Americans could owe the per-person fee.

The Obama administration says it is a temporary assessment levied for three years starting in 2014, designed to raise $25 billion. It starts at $63 and then declines.

Most of the money will go into a fund administered by the Health and Human Services Department. It will be used to cushion health insurance companies from the initial hard-to-predict costs of covering uninsured people with medical problems. Under the law, insurers will be forbidden from turning away the sick as of Jan. 1, 2014.

The program "is intended to help millions of Americans purchase affordable health insurance, reduce unreimbursed usage of hospital and other medical facilities by the uninsured and thereby lower medical expenses and premiums for all," the Obama administration says in the regulation.

No One Retreating; Cliff Talks Seem at Standstill

"We continue to wait for the president to identify the spending cuts he's willing to make as part of the 'balanced' approach he promised the American people," Many Republicans agree that Obama and the Democrats hold most of the political leverage, given the president's re-election more than a month ago after a campaign in which he said the wealthy should pay more in taxes. House Dems, GOP Embrace Cuts in Defense Spending

BY DONNA CASSATA

WASHINGTON • Substantial reductions in military spending should be part of any budget deal that President Barack Obama negotiates with Congress to avert the so-called "fiscal cliff" of automatic tax hikes and spending cuts, a group of House Republicans and Democrats said Monday.

With just three weeks to the double economic hit, 22 lawmakers endorsed further cuts in projected military spending to address the nation's debt, arguing that long-term, strategic reductions were possible with the end of the war in Iraq and the drawdown in Afghanistan.

"As we transition from wartime to peacetime, and as we confront our nation's fiscal challenges, future defense budgets should reflect the conclusion of these wars and acknowledge that our modern military is able to approach conflicts utilizing fewer but more advanced resources," the lawmakers wrote in a letter to Obama and congressional leaders.

The lawmakers said "substantial defense savings" could be achieved without undermining national security, and they urged Obama, House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio, and other congressional leaders to include such savings in any agreement.

Signing the letter were Reps. Barney Frank, D-Mass., and Mick Mulvaney, R-S.C., who earlier this year led a coalition of liberal Democrats and conservative Republicans in persuading the House to cut $1.1 billion from a $608 billion defense bill. It was the clearest signal yet that defense dollars would no longer be spared from budget cuts in a time of astronomical deficits. Also signing the letter were Reps. Chris Gibson, R-N.Y., a member of the House Armed Services Committee, and Keith Ellison, D-Minn. The latest Republican proposal in the negotiations with Obama calls for $300 billion in cuts in discretionary spending over 10 years, but it does not specify how much would be cut from defense and domestic programs.

At a campaign-style event in Michigan, Obama warned his listeners their taxes will rise on Jan. 1 without action by the Congress. "That's a hit you can't afford to take," he declared.

He spoke one day after meeting privately at the White House with House Speaker John Boehner, whose office expressed frustration with the talks to date.

"We continue to wait for the president to identify the spending cuts he's willing to make as part of the 'balanced' approach he promised the American people," said a written statement Statement from the House Speaker John Boehner's Ohio office from the Ohio Republican's office.

The negotiations are designed to prevent across-the-board tax increases and spending cuts scheduled to begin at the turn of the year, a combination that economists say poses the threat of a new recession.

While leaders in both parties say they are eager to avoid that "cliff," negotiations on a plan to cut deficits by other measures have turned into a major postelection showdown between opposing sides in a divided government. conversation and thus spoke on condition of anonymity.

If anything, the president has toughened his demands in recent days, insisting not only that tax rates must rise, but also that Congress give him and future presidents the authority to raise the government's borrowing limit without prior approval by lawmakers.

Boehner, while claiming his own election mandate for the Republican majority in the House, said within a few days of the voting he was prepared to buck many in his party and support additional tax revenue as part of a fiscal cliff agreement.

U.S. Intelligence Agencies Predict a Transformed World

BY NICOLE GAOUETTE Bloomberg News

WASHINGTON • New technologies, dwindling resources and explosive population growth in the next 18 years will alter the global balance of power and trigger radical economic and political changes at a speed unprecedented in modern history, says a new report by the U.S. intelligence community.

The 140-page report released Monday by the National Intelligence Council lays out dangers and opportunities for nations, economies, investors, political systems and leaders due to four "megatrends" that government intelligence analysts say are transforming the world.

Those major trends are the end of U.S. global dominance, the rising power of individuals against states, a rising middle class whose demands challenge governments, and a Gordian knot of water, food and energy shortages, according to the analysts. "We are at a critical juncture in human history, which could lead to widely contrasting futures," Council Chairman Christopher Kojm writes in the report.

Leading the list of the "game-changers" – factors the report says will shape the impact of the mega-trends – is the "crisis-prone" global economy, which is vulnerable to international shocks and to disparities among national economies moving at significantly different speeds.

The future is "malleable," according to Kojm. "Our effort is to encourage decision-makers, whether in government or outside, to think and plan for the long term so that negative futures do not occur and positive ones have a better chance of unfolding."

The report reflects the consensus judgments of all 16 U.S. intelligence agencies, who consulted or contracted with academics, research institutes, political leaders and corporations in 14 countries and the European Union.

Egypt's Military Takes Over Security Ahead of Vote

The Egyptian military on Monday assumed joint responsibility with the police for security and protecting state institutions until the results of a Dec. 15 constitutional referendum are announced.

BY MAGGIE MICHAEL Associated Press

CAIRO • Egypt's military assumed responsibility Monday for protecting state institutions and maintaining security ahead of a Dec. 15 constitutional referendum, as the country braced for another round of mass demonstrations by the supporters of the country's Islamist president and the liberal opposition over the disputed charter.

The referendum on a contentious new constitution lies at the heart of a bitter political battle that has deeply polarized Egypt and triggered some of the worst street violence between backers and opponents of President Mohammed Morsi since he took power in June as the country's first democratically elected leader.

So far, Morsi has stood firm on the referendum, refusing to yield to opposition demands that he scrap the vote scheduled for Saturday. The opposition, meanwhile, was still trying to decide late Monday whether to boycott the referendum or rally Egyptians to vote "no" to the draft constitution, and hoping that a massive turnout for a rally Tuesday would force the president to cancel the balloting.

"We still have a chance, with popular rejection, to stop the referendum," said Basil Adel, a former lawmaker and liberal activist.

Egypt's political crisis began on

Nov. 22 when Morsi issued a decree granting himself — and the Islamistdominated panel writing the constitution — immunity from judicial oversight or challenge. Those decrees sparked mass demonstrations, with opponents saying they were issued initially to protect the draft charter from the judiciary.

Iron Empires, Iron Fists, Iron Domes

TEL AVIV, Israel • went to synagogue Saturday not far from the Syrian border in Antakya, Turkey. It's been on my mind ever since.

Antakya is home to a tiny Jewish community, which still gathers for holidays at the little Sephardic synagogue. It is also famous for its mosaic of mosques and Orthodox, Catholic, Armenian and Protestant churches. How could it be that I could go to synagogue in Turkey on Saturday while on Friday, just across the Orontes River in Syria, I had visited with Sunni Free Syrian Army rebels embroiled in a civil war in which Syrian Alawites and Sunnis are killing each other on the basis of their ID cards, Kurds are creating their own enclave, Christians are hiding and the Jews are long gone?

What is this telling us? For me, it raises the question of whether there are just three governing options in the Middle East today: Iron Empires, Iron Fists or Iron Domes? The reason that majorities and minorities coexisted relatively harmoniously for some 400 years when the Arab world was ruled by the Turkish Ottomans from Istanbul was because the Sunni Ottomans, with their Iron Empire, monopolized politics. While there were exceptions, generally speaking the Ottomans and their local representatives were in charge in cities like Damascus, Antakya and Baghdad. Minorities, like Alawites, Shiites, Christians and Jews, though second-class citizens, did not have to worry that they'd be harmed if they not did not rule. The Ottomans had a live-and-let-live mentality toward their subjects.When Britain and France carved up the Ottoman Empire in the Arab East, they forged the various Ottoman provinces into states - with names like Iraq, Jordan and Syria - that did not correspond to the ethnographic map. So Sunnis, Shiites, Alawites, Christians, Druze, Turkmen, Kurds and Jews found themselves trapped together inside national boundaries that were drawn to suit the interests of the British and French. Those colonial powers kept everyone in check. But once they withdrew, and these countries became independent, the contests for power began, and minorities were exposed. Finally, in the late 1960s and 1970s, we saw the emergence of a class of Arab dictators and monarchs who perfected Iron Fists (and multiple intelligence agencies) to decisively seize power for their sect or tribe - and they ruled over all the other communities by force. In Syria, under the Assad family's iron fist, the Alawite minority came to rule over a Sunni majority, and in Iraq, under Saddam's iron fist, a Sunni minority came to rule over a Shiite majority. But these countries never tried to build real "citizens" who could share and peacefully rotate in power. So what you are seeing today in the Arab awakening countries - Syria, Iraq, Tunisia, Libya, Egypt and Yemen - is what happens when there is no Iron Empire and the people rise up against the iron-fisted dictators. You are seeing ongoing contests for power - until and unless someone can forge a social contract for how communities can share power. Israelis have responded to the collapse of Arab iron fists around them - including the rise of militias with missiles in Lebanon and Gaza with a third model. It is the wall Israel built around itself to seal off the West Bank coupled with its Iron Dome anti-missile system. The two have been phenomenally successful - but at a price. The wall plus the dome are enabling Israel's leaders to abdicate their responsibility for thinking creatively about a resolution of their own majority-minority problem with the Palestinians in the West Bank and East Jerusalem. I am stunned at what I see here politically. On the right, in the Likud Party, the old leadership that was at least connected with the world, spoke English and respected Israel's Supreme Court, is being swept aside in the latest primary by a rising group of far-right settleractivists who are convinced - thanks, in part, to the wall and dome – that Palestinians are no threat anymore and that no one can roll back the 350,000 Jews living in the West Bank. The far-right group running Israel today is so arrogant, and so indifferent to U.S. concerns, that it announced plans to build a huge block of settlements in the heart of the West Bank – in retaliation for the U.N. vote giving Palestinians observer status - even though the U.S. did everything possible to block that vote and the settlements would sever any possibility of a contiguous Palestinian state. Meanwhile, with a few exceptions, the dome and wall have so insulated the Israeli left and center from the effects of the Israeli occupation that their main candidates for the Jan. 22 elections – including those from Yitzhak Rabin's old Labor Party – are not even offering peace ideas but simply conceding the right's dominance on that issue and focusing on bringing down housing prices and school class sizes. One settler leader told me the biggest problem in the West Bank today is "traffic jams." I am glad that the wall and the Iron Dome are sheltering Israelis from enemies who wish to do them ill, but I fear the wall and the Iron Dome are also blinding them from truths they still badly need to face.

"Will I accept a tax increase as a part of a deal to actually solve our problems? Yes. But the president's negotiating with the wrong people. He needs to be negotiating with our bondholders in China, because if we don't put a credible plan on the discussion, ultimately, we all lose." Sen. Tom Coburn, R-Okla., discussing 'fiscal cliff' negotiations written on the faces. For the most part, the girls had hearts, flowers and stars and the boys had random lines like war paint. One child did have considerably more on his face than the others.

Third, the teacher apologized to the students and parents the next day. She also had her class draw up a students had done it in fun. It is possibly because of the way the students were acting that the staff did not feel it necessary to intervene and have them wash their faces sooner.

Sixth, in the Weekly Mailer, one writer stated that these students' parents are being threatened and bullied by others. One of the student's mother had received a couple of letters expressing disagreement in how the mother was handling the situation. I would like to state that the PTO had no knowledge of these letters and was not involved with them in any way. The mother provided copies for us to read, and while I will admit that the writers used some harsh words expressing their feelings, there was never any insinuation of violence. However, there have been continual physical threats and harassments against the teacher online. I don't understand how people that complain of bullying can justify threats of violence to make their point. I and several members of the PTO board volunteer at the school at least an hour a week. I volunteered in this teacher's classroom weekly for two years doing math, reading and spelling tutor ing. Several parents on the board are volunteering in her class this year. I have served on the PTO board where, on two separate years, this teacher was the staff representative. None of these other parents nor myself have ever observed this teacher in any way degrade or humiliate a student. On the contrary, she is continually rewarding for effort, teamwork and good behavior. She has several systems in place for this: a marble jar where good behavior earns a class party;

Smarty Pants where 100 percent on a spelling test means your name goes on them in the hallway for all to see; ice cream sandwiches for meeting AM goals; a classroom store that she stocks where the kids earn money by various means such as good behavior, teamwork, good scores, etc. She has "centers" that the kids are grouped in, and at the end of the day, the center with the most points wins a treat. They earn points by individual and group accountability, cooperation and teamwork. At the end of the day, I've watched her stand at the door when they leave school and acknowledge each student with a high five and a positive affirmation.

At one point, one of the parents of a student who had been drawn on stated that they were not after anyone's job. I truly believe they meant this. I think they were looking for an apology and assurance that it would not happen again, and those goals have been met. Please understand that I can understand their anger, and my heart goes out to the students who may have suffered embarrassment. I do not condone bullying in any way. However, I feel this teacher's actions did not have malicious intent, are not repeated and do not fit the definition of bullying. She immediately apologized and tried to remedy the problem. I wish the reader could sit in the classroom and observe this teacher as I have, but the best I can do for you is to present the facts and give some insight to this teacher's character. Everyone makes mistakes. This teacher is an excellent teacher regardless of the situation, and my child was fortunate to have had her as a teacher and to attend Declo schools. We ask for the public's assistance in letting the matter work through the proper channels and letting our students and staff get back to the business of learning.

School.

Two weeks ago, I visited with several key people involved in the face-marking incident to try to make sense of the issue. After doing so, I honestly feel that there was never any intention of humiliation or malice in drawing on the students' faces.

Just weeks before the incident, the PTO, at my suggestion, had painted our principal as a reward for meeting our goal in raising money. The students who brought in the most money were allowed to spray paint her hair school colors, while her face was painted to look like a pig's in honor of the Kiss the Pig event coming in two days. Kiss the Pig was the reward for individual classes and grades for meeting the AR goals. The entire student body watched the principal and another teacher get painted, and loved it. It was shortly after this that the teacher and students discussed and decided on the consequences for those not meeting the minimum goal. Dare I say that what we did obviously influenced their decision?

I would also like to clarify a few facts.

First, permanent markers were not used.

Second, no words were list of pros and cons and discussed the situation in detail.

Fourth, this entire grade at Declo has struggled since kindergarten with educational and behavioral issues, in a large part due to the size of the grade. The teacher was simply trying to motivate her class after all other efforts of rewarding and encouraging them to meet the goal had failed. The actual goal for the fourth and fifth grade is 25, but because so many students in her class were not even meeting this goal, the teacher got permission to lower the goal to 10. Students do have the freedom of setting their own goals; this goal of 10 was just the minimum goal to try to motivate them. Half the class did not meet the goal. The class suggested and the entire class voted on what to do as a consequence for not meeting that goal, including these students.

Fifth, while I cannot vouch for the emotional state the parents saw their children in at the end of the day, other parents present that day observed some of these students and had no idea the painted faces were a negative consequence. From the way the kids were acting throughout the school day, they thought the TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls School District will ask voters in March to not just renew a supplemental levy, but also increase it to $9 million over two years.

The school board unanimously approved a resolution to put the levy issue on the ballot Monday night.

It's an increase from a $7.5 million measure voters approved in spring 2011. That two-year measure is set to expire in 2013.

Two members of the district's budget advisory committee - Times-NewsPublisher John Pfeifer and Ray Parrish from D.L. Evans Bank – made a presentation to the board prior to its vote.

Parrish said the $9 million levy amount wouldn't cover all of the district's needs, "but it will maintain where we're at right now."

Twin Falls residents with a taxable home value of $50,000 would pay $1.12 more per month.

That increases to $2.24 per month for more $100,000 in assessed value, and $3.35 more for $150,000 in assessed value.

Parrish and Pfeifer showed a few graphs detailing declines in reserve funds, per-student spending and state funding.

The district had $3.2 million in carryover funds in June 2009. That's estimated to drop to less than $1 million by June 2013.

At the same time, student enrollment has gone up steadily over the past decade.

If voters reject the supplemental levy, it would mean a possible combination of cuts possibly more furlough days, larger class sizes, and cutting jobs and elective classes.

Board members also decided they want to be able to pursue an emergency levy if enrollment rises next fall.

Even though they could have pursued an emergency levy this year, school trustees decided against it.

That's because they promised patrons that if they supported a supplemental levy in 2011, the district wouldn't seek an emergency levy.

In 2011, voters passed the current supplemental levy with about 56 percent of the vote.

It was the first time in recent years the district went to voters with an ongoing levy measure.

Board chairman Dan King said it will be a challenge to get the $9 million levy passed.

Trustee Bryan Matsuoka said he wonders if it's enough. But the other side of it, he said, is what would happen if the levy doesn't pass.

Trustee Bernie Jansen said the district can't maintain its operations without help.

He and trustee Mary Barron both said they don't want to take drastic measures, such as cutting jobs and programs.

Barron said they'll have to commit to a lot of campaigning and hard work.

District officials and budget advisory committee members will make presentations at schools and to

Other Districts

The Twin Falls School District isn't the only one seeking a ballot measure during the March election. A few other school districts will make a decision soon.

The Camas County School Board was scheduled to make a decision Monday night about whether to renew a supplemental levy.

In Hansen, the school district is already moving forward with a supplemental levy renewal request. But an amount hasn't been set.

Ballot measures will also be discussed at these meetings:

• Jerome: 6 p.m. Dec. 18 at the school district's board room, 125 Fourth Avenue West.

• Cassia County: 7 p.m. Dec. 19 at the school district's board room, 3650 Overland Ave. in Burley.

once was the local leader of a national group dedicated to conserving ducks is being punished for using illegal methods to hunt them.

Charles D. Steele of Hagerman was sentenced Monday to a year of supervised probation, a $2,000 fine and 25 hours of community service in U.S. District Court. While on probation, Steele is also forbidden to hunt in the United States.

The 48-year-old Steele is the former volunteer president of the Hagerman chapter of Ducks Unlimited, whose motto is "filling the skies with waterfowl today, tomorrow and forever."

But on Sept. 25, he pleaded guilty to violating federal bird-protection laws by baiting ducks by placing corn on private farmland near Gooding to attract waterfowl - and enhance hunting opportunities.

Efforts to reach Steele on Monday were unsuccessful; his phone number in Hagerman was disconnected.

However, Idaho Ducks Unlimited leaders said their group condemns Steele's hunting tactics, not only as a violation of the federal Migratory Bird Treaty Act but also the ethics of fairchase that govern hunting.

Mond Warren, group's regional director in Nampa, called corn baiting akin to using salt to lure big game such as elk nearer to hunters' scopes.

"We have a zero tolerance for any type of game violation," Warren said. "It's a very stringent policy, there's no wavering on it. Our job is waterfowl conservation and wetland conservation."

Warren said Steele resigned from Ducks Unlimit ed about a year ago, but wasn't sure if it was before or after he was cited on Jan. 12.

On that date, Steele and two companions were hunting from a duck blind near where he'd strewn large quantities of whole corn, prosecutors said.

"The defendant knowingly spread whole corn that he knew would attract ducks and geese to the area in anticipation of enhancing hunting opportunities for himself and others," according to federal court documents. "Law enforcement personnel observed the defendant shoot at several ducks over the baited area."

The two people who were with Steele at the time so far haven't been charged, said Pamela Bearg, a spokeswoman for the U.S. attorney's office in Boise. She declined to say if the agency planned to eventually charge them.

including "Children of God," a controverial, historical novel on the Mormon movement under Joseph Smith and Brigham Young.

Due to a structure fire, only the burnt skeleton of the property remains today. His writing desk sits covered in rust, the chimney crumbles in the corner and discarded shoes are buried under rubble.

In March, the Idaho Legislature approved a measure that would allow the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation to prepare to sell the home and the fish hatcheries on the property. Since then, the department has decided it would sell the property but it hasn't started the process, said Jennifer Okerlund, Parks and Recreation's spokeswoman.

The agency took over the Fisher property in 2002 but a lack of funding has prevented potential renovation, she said.

There are no signs to help guide first-time visitors to the Fisher cabin or even a hint that the lake is hidden beyond the multiple fish raceways.

"We, as an agency, always try to maximize the use of any property we're given," she said. "We've had staff gone out for ideas on how to improve the property but the funding has never been available."

The property also doesn't have as many recreational opportunities that the department's other parks typically have, Okerlund said. The Fisher cabin is experiencing an increasing amount of damage from extreme weather and vandalism. Litter and debris from visitors are scattered across the property. The door to Fisher's tool shed has been ripped from its hinges - by wind or other forces - and now lies on the ground.

The Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation is aware of the dire state of the Fisher property. However, budget constraints continue to prevent further improvements, Okerlund said.

"We were asked to purchase the property but it really doesn't fit with the rest of our parks," she said. "So we're still trying to figure out the best option."

MOSCOW • The Idaho football team hired former Vandals secondary coach Ronnie Lee to be its defensive coordinator. Lee was on the 1992 staff with new head coach Paul Petrino, when the two roomed together as assistants on a squad that won a share of the Big Sky Conference championship. "(Ronnie Lee) had all kinds of experience," Petrino said. "He's definitely a great teacher. He's a motivator. He's a disciplinarian. Any time you can get disciplinarians at your coordinator positions, that's good because they're speaking the same language I am." Petrino said he was not sure who would be on his staff in his introductory press conference. Apparently, he had someone in mind. "Ronnie was the first guy I called; the first guy I asked to be defensive coordinator," Petrino said. "For me, I hit the jackpot and got the guy I wanted. It's great."

coordinator at Minnesota in 2009-10.

Idaho also announced that it had hired former Vandals' linebacker and defensive end Mike Anderson, who played from 2002 to '05.

"He's a Vandal," Petrino said. "He was a great player here. He has a lot of pride. He wants to see this program where it needs to be. He'll be a great teacher. That's the biggest thing I was looking for – guys who will be great teachers and motivators. And he has a lot of connections in the Northwest."

Anderson graduated from Idaho in 2006, and was a student assistant at Washington State. He was on the Vandals staff in 2008 before handling multiple roles for Washington the last three seasons.

Utah State Coach Enjoying Simple Life in Logan

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOGAN, Utah • Gary Andersen probably could be settling into a new job right now at a more prominent Division I program, making bigger bucks with more highly touted recruits

Instead, the coach of the 18th-ranked Utah State Aggies is gearing up to play Toledo in the Famous Idaho Potato Bowl while continuing to enjoy the view from his balcony overlooking Cache Valley in rural northern Utah.

Right beside him are his prized Great Danes, appropriately named Aggie and Big Blue. And don't forget the Utah State flag flying outside his home and the Aggies logo tattooed on his right shoulder.

"I hear people say, 'You're nuts,"' Andersen said of his recent announcement that he had pulled his name out of the tempting coaching merrygo-round despite being a hot prospect. "There's a lot more to life than money."

A quick glance at Andersen's office in Logan shows where his priorities are - on his family and his kids, both his own and those who play for him at the school 90 minutes north of Salt Lake City, where Andersen was born.

His favorite item in the room is the military case containing the flag that was draped over his father's casket, front and center next to his computer.

It was his father who supported him as a walkon at Ricks College when no one else wanted him. It was his father who helped him follow a crazy dream to coach even after he drove cross-country in 1988 for a $10,000-a-year job as an assistant at Southeastern Louisiana only to see the program cut after six months.

"He was the driving force and he (still) helps me big-time when I make the same about Andersen, who was hired Dec. 4, 2008, to take over just as the Utah Utes were gearing up for the 2009 Sugar Bowl. Andersen was Utah's defensive coordinator under longtime friend Kyle Whittingham, and would go back and forth for a month between Logan and Salt Lake and eventually on to New Orleans as the BCS-busting Utes trampled Alabama to cap a perfect season.

Afterward, Andersen settled in at Utah State, intent on rebuilding the Aggies after they had gone a combined 9-38 the previous four seasons.

He did it his way, battling through a pair of 4-8 records until turning the corner with a come-frombehind win over Hawaii in 2011 and closing the season with five straight victories before a berth in the Potato Bowl.

Now the Aggies, who join the Mountain West next year, are headed back to Boise - with Andersen under contract through 2018.

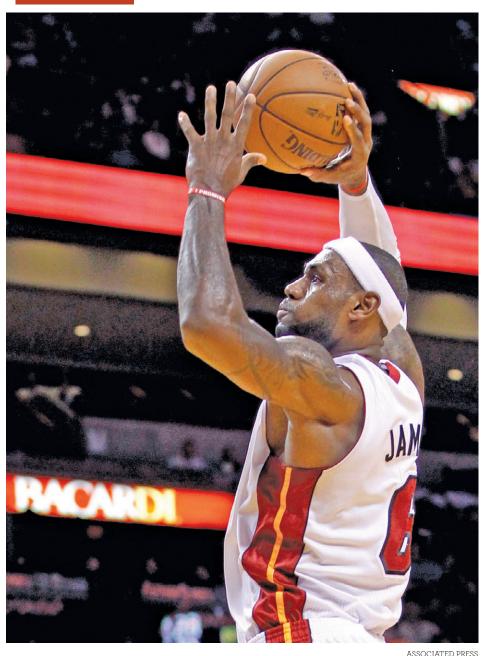

He said it's not unrealistic that he could stay at Utah State forever.

He loves the type of player he gets to recruit, and living in a town known for its blue-collar work ethic.

"It's how I was raised and what I believe ... how you can develop a kid and push him to become a hard worker and tough-minded," Andersen said. "That's what the Cache Valley is, a small community where you're accountable for your actions daily. I get to coach the kind of kids I like to coach and for me the Cache Valley is what I grew up in. It is what Salt Lake City was when I was 8 to 18 years old. A part of me likes that?

He enjoys living the simple life, with Sunday night family dinners, and a new tradition started last year of a one-week vacation. After last season it was San Diego and the

After Loss, Pacquiao Faces Tough Choices

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MANILA, Philippines • Manny Pacquiao has already achieved what most of his countrymen can only dream of: lifting himself out of wrenching poverty, securing a future for his children and becoming a hero to Filipinos the world over.

Not content with just winning in the ring, Pacquiao also set about making his mark in politics.

But after his stunning loss to Juan Manuel Marquez in Las Vegas on Saturday, the 34-year-old is facing some of the toughest questions of his remarkable 17-year career: does his future lay in boxing, politics, show business, religion, or perhaps there's even a new challenge on the horizon?

"Being the king of boxing, being the highest paid athlete in boxing ... it goes with the territory," boxing analyst Ed Tolentino said. "For Pacquiao, the fame was too much to handle. There was just too many things on his plate other than boxing.

The distraction was costly for Pacquiao, who trained for two months, compared to 41/2 for Marquez.

During that time the Mexican bulked up and became more muscular to withstand the blows from Pacquiao that proved so damaging in their three previous encounters.

Pacquiao grew up a survivor and fighter, overcoming poverty and cut-throat competition in a country where half of the population lives on $2 a day and 3,000 leave for jobs overseas every day.

He left high school to work as a baker and a construction worker to earn money for his mother and siblings after his father left them. As a scrawny teenager, he was a stowaway on a ship that took him from his southern hometown of Gener-decisions I've got to make," said Andersen, 48.

A close second are photos of twin sons Chasen and Hagen in Logan High School football uniforms, making plays during a 14-0 season that culminated with a 4A state championship.

Both are headed to Utah State in January and will be freshmen in 2013, joining older brother Keegan, a tight end who will be a junior next season.

Jars filled with candy sit atop Andersen's desk, and the cupboards are full of crackers, cookies and that college staple, Top Ramen.

"The kids filter through here all day long," Andersen said. "It's a family atmosphere and I want that for my assistant coaches, too."

It's why players know where Andersen lives, and are welcome at his home anytime.

Over Thanksgiving, he and wife Stacey had about four dozen players over for dinner, catering not cooking, but making sure there was even soul food for members of his culturally diverse team.

"You're going to have a hard time pulling her out of this place," Andersen said of his wife. "She always wanted to be around the kids and can do that here and feel like she's making a difference."

Most would say the Wild Animal Park and Sea World.

He's not sure yet about this year.

"They want to go on a cruise, but I know I'll get seasick," Andersen said.

It's an honest answer from a coach the players trust.

Star defensive back Will Davis recalled the recruiting trip he took to Logan about two years ago.

He still planned to visit Hawaii, but Andersen convinced him to commit right then and there.

"He said, 'I'll take you to Hawaii and we'll go down there, get the win and beat them up a little,"' Davis said of a game on the Aggies' 2011 schedule. "He just sold me. I put my trust in a man who's very trustworthy. Sure enough, we went to Hawaii and we beat them.

"He didn't guarantee me championship," said Davis, a senior on a team that won the Western Athletic Conference title this year with a 10-2 record. "He just guaranteed me I'd be part of a change. He knew we were going to turn it around. His vision is beyond this year. I can't even fathom to think what he's thinking in that head. He has something huge in mind for Utah State. But if he does go on (eventually) I don't think anyone would be mad because we want the best for him."

SEATTLE • Jason Bay took a glance at the Seattle Mariners' 40-man roster and suddenly realized how unique he will be.

He's one of only two players on that current roster who was born in the 1970s.

"I don't feel like I'm that old, but I guess I am around here," the 34-year-old Bay said Monday.

While he may not exactly fit the Mariners' model of relying on young prospects to rebuild the franchise, Bay could fill a significant need for Seattle in the 2013 season. He was introduced on Monday after his one-year contract with the Mariners was finalized over the weekend.

Bay said he hopes a fresh start with the Mariners can apiece. Rodney Stuckey scored 19 for Detroit, and Tayshaun Prince finished with 16. Jason Richardson scored 13 points for Philadelphia.

MAVERICKS 119, KINGS 96

DALLAS • O.J. Mayo scored 19 points and the Dallas Mavericks took control with 31-3 run in the first half to win their 17th straight regular-season home game against Sacramento with a 119-96 victory over the Kings on Monday night.

Chris Kaman, playing on a sprained left ankle he suffered last week, scored 16 of his 18 points in the first half for Dallas.

Francisco Garcia, who was 7 of 12 from 3point range, and DeMarcus Cousins scored 25 points apiece for the Kings, who haven't won in Dallas during the regular season since Feb. 27, 2003. Mayo hit a jumper late in the first quarter to kick off the game-turning run for the Mavs, who led by as many as 28 in the first half and were up 65-43 at halftime.

> Sidelined by concussions and rib injuries, he played just 288 games for the Mets.

> Bay's contract with the Mets was terminated last month. Bay was owed $16 million for next season and a $3 million buyout of a 2014 option, plus the final $2 million installment of his $8.5 million signing bonus was payable by next June. The agreement to terminate his deal allowed the Mets to spread out the payments.

> It also made Bay a lowrisk, potential high-reward deal for whoever he signed with. An All-Star in 2005, 2006 and 2009, Bay signed with the Mets after hitting .267 in his final season for Boston with career bests of 36 homers and 119 RBIs

"I got banged up a little bit. Not an excuse, just the reality and that didn't help. I don't think that was the No. 1 reason," Bay said. "I just think I couldn't really get on track. I couldn't just move forward. I was always stuck in one gear and I couldn't get going."

After finding success in local bouts, Pacquiao began his international career in the late 1990s. In the next decade, he became a household name by clinching eight world titles in eight weight categories. At home, he was declared a hero, "the people's champ" - an inspiration to the legions of the poor, and the man the rich and powerful wanted to rub shoulders with.

As the titles, honors and money started pouring in, so did distractions.

Politicians, minor actors and an assortment of hangers-on formed his huge entourage.

"You only need a Ferris wheel and his training camp would have been a circus," Tolentino said.

In a nation where celebrities, money and politics equal a winning formula, Pacquiao played his card by running for Congress in 2007, but lost.

The most popular face in town, he turned to crooning his own songs. His picture endorsed countless products. He's a regular on TV, and hosts his own show. He's made a movie. Another passion is cock fighting, a traditional past time in the Philippines.

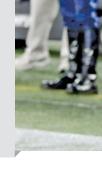

He was Pacquiao Inc.

Showbiz "takes a lot of time, a lot of energy. You have to prepare for these shows," said boxing commentator Ronnie Nathanielsz. "(Pacquiao) loses focus because he has so many things to worry about and attend to."

Cowboys Player Death Raises Question of Safety Net

ASSOCIATED PRESS

IRVING, Texas • San Francisco 49ers defensive end Demarcus Dobbs walked away from a one-vehicle accident on his 25th birthday last month and was arrested on suspicion of driving under the influence.

Less than two weeks later, with the NFL rocked by the car crash that killed Dallas Cowboys player Jerry Brown and left his teammate, Josh Brent, facing a manslaughter charge, Dobbs swears he'll find another way home whenever he does too much partying.

"I'm never going to put

"Guys are going to go out and have fun. We're just like the regular guy that works a 9-to-5 job. On a Friday night, he goes out and has some beer. It's not the bestcase scenario, but it happens in life."

To use the program, players can either work in advance to set up a full night with a driver or make a call for a ride home. The brochure says most response times are less than an hour. The program is available all year, and Glavin said his company also serves the NBA and NHL.

In Major League Baseball, designated drivers are avail-

Brown's death, Kansas City Chiefs linebacker Jovan Belcher fatally shot his girlfriend before driving to the team's stadium and shooting himself in front of his coach and general manager.

"I am sure the events of the past two weeks will be discussed at the league meeting," league spokesman Greg Aiello said. "We are always looking to do more."

Several coaches said Monday they were talking again about issues of safety and good decisions after Brown's death. They also acknowledged there was only so much they could do, as did myself in that situation ever again," he said.

This is, of course, exactly what the NFL, its teams and the players' union wants to hear amid fresh questions about whether all the warnings and safety nets — because players in most of the major sports leagues arguably have more than the general public — will ever be enough to prevent accidents and deaths.

"There's a lot of pressure being in the NFL ... but it's no excuse for bad decisions," Detroit coach Jim Schwartz said. "Players have a lot of options, tools at their disposal, that they need to take advantage of, but it comes down to individuals making good decisions."

Brown's death on Saturday and the arrest of defensive tackle Josh Brent after police say he caused the fatal wreck by speeding and driving drunk put the NFL Players Association's safe ride program back in the spotlight. It was revamped three years ago after concerns that enough players weren't using it.

Union spokesman Carl Francis said the program is a strong point of emphasis, and every player's membership card includes the contact information. And CEO John Glavin of Florida-based Corporate Security Solutions Inc., which runs the program, said he is happy with how the union gets the word out on the program.

He also stressed the confidentiality of the program, saying the company doesn't even tell the union when players call for rides.

Jacksonville cornerback CB Rashean Mathis, the team's union representative, said players rarely, if ever, use the program.

"Confidentiality is the problem," Mathis said.

able to players and fans through the teams, and the players have access to a confidential program that will take them wherever they need to go.

In the NFL, some teams rely solely on the NFLPA's program, while others have an additional system. In Cincinnati, the Bengals pay a company to make two drivers available when an employee calls. One drives the caller home, and the other follows in the employee's vehicle.

Glavin said some players hesitate to use that kind of program because they don't want others driving their expensive vehicles. Either way, the program hinges on a player making the first move.

"We can't make them make the phone call," Glavin said.

Last summer, the NFL held its 15th annual rookie orientation, which includes a number of life skills sessions. For the first time, separate sessions were held for the AFC and NFC to make the groups smaller, and current and former players were brought in as speakers, including Philadelphia quarterback Michael Vick and Cincinnati cornerback Adam Jones. Both have had high-profile legal problems, with Vick spending time in prison in a dogfighting case.

The NFL has sessions on issues ranging from guns to alcohol and drug use at other times of the years, and all teams have counselors who work with players, league spokesman Dan Masonson said.

League owners are gathering in the Dallas area Wednesday. The agenda was set to focus in part on player safety through the addition of leg padding, but it's likely to change. A week before Mathis.

"We're not immune from life because we're athletes," Mathis said. "We're not, but there are smarter choices."

Times News

IF DECEMBER 11 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Enjoy community activities and group events during the next four to six weeks. A burning ambition to be a success will evolve and you may feel pressured to perform at your best in January. All this drive and hard work will pay off, but is not a good time to make permanent changes in career or your job, or a good time to make financial decisions. Wait until the first half of March to put your ideas into motion or to make crucial changes in your life. Lady Luck will watch over you and prevent you from making errors of judgment, and support will arrive from those who have your best interests at heart.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are building something important with your current dedicated determination and should keep plugging away until everything is completed. Leave the overview and opinions alone, stick with details.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Diplomacy and tact will help you make headway today against difficult trends. Old and trusted friends are likely to be on your mind, and can be helpful. The last half of the day will be better than the beginning.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The last one to speak wins. Write down your ideas and brainstorms and you may be able to use them at a later time. Don't be persuaded to start anything new until cosmic conditions are more auspicious.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may feel blocked and unable to achieve your aims, but that is a cosmic signpost indicating you should wait until the time is right. Common sense will help you avoid being embroiled in controversies.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Think carefully before speaking or agreeing to anything that involves finances. You could set off a chain of events by signing an agreement or discussing something that is none of your business.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Charm them and disarm them. Although you may only be on the fringes of the crosscurrents, frequent miscommunications going on around you warn that this is not a good time to begin anything important. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your calm, pleasant demeanor will be a happy sight for friends who are seeking a safe oasis. Although you have the ability to analyze situations and think you have all the facts, it is best to delay decisions. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Sometimes you think you are right when you are very wrong. Defer decisions about people and situations until later in the week. You may find a diplomatic solution to roadblocks in your path. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Keep your wits about you. You have penetrating insights into the powerful ambitions of others close to you, but it is not the time to speak of your own intentions or make business decisions. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Exude calmness and caution. You will win more points by being diplomatic and tactful than by fighting. It is not a good time to begin new projects - or to challenge the viewpoints of those in charge. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't allow friends to advise you about financial matters. Conversations could have deeper purpose, but you should avoid arguments or revealing too much. Don't let the proverbial cat out of the bag. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Put it on the back burner. Enjoy long-lasting inspiration to guide you as far as career and the outer world, misunderstandings but could spoil your sense of peace and tranquility. Don't be unvielding.

wears a hairpiece. Unfortunately, it doesn't look very real. Nearly every time we are in a public place, I notice somebody staring or laughing at it. I have talked to him about it only a couple of times, but each time he tells me how attached he is to it and how good it feels on his head. I want him to be happy, but I do not want him to be publicly ridiculed. Should

> – WIFE OF A MAN WITH A "SECRET"

DEAR WIFE: Absolutely not. If you want to help your husband, start talking with some hairstylists. There may be a product on the market that is more convincing than what your husband is wearing. (Depending upon how much hair he has on the back of his head, a transplant of some follicles may also be possible.) This isn't just about him having something on his head that "feels good." If it was only that, he'd be

DEAR ABBY: I am recently married, and my husband and I have not consummated our marriage. I made it very clear that this would not be a part of our life together, and he agreed long before we took our vows. We sleep sep-

Recently, my husband has become sullen and passiveaggressive. He tries to push the issue, to the point of making unwanted physical contact. He knew going in that I am extremely uncomfortable with this form of intimacy and that my views would not change.

We love each other, but his behavior is starting to take a toll on me and the stress is straining our relationship.

- ASEXUAL IN LOVE DEAR ASEXUAL: You and your husband are obviously not on the same page as far as what your expectations are about your marriage. How uncomfortable for you and how frustrating for him. He may have thought that after your wedding, with time, he could change your mind – or he may regard your lack of interest in sex as personal rejection.

For the kind of marriage you envisioned, BOTH parties must feel the same way about sex. Because he agreed to something he can't live with, it might be better for both of you if you separated.

DEAR ABBY: Would you please settle a disagreement I'm having with my mother's boyfriend?

The three of us go out to eat together often. Most times we "go Dutch" and pay for our own meals. The problem arises when he pays for my meal. He'll request the senior price for all of us because he's paying.

I believe the senior discount should apply to the seniors in the group only, and mine should be the regular price. I don't think it's wrong to ask for the senior discount for theirs when I'm paying, but do not feel right claiming it for mine. (I'm more than 20 years away from qualifying.)

It embarrasses me when he does it. I'd much rather pay the full adult price. Even if it's only 50 cents, I still feel like it's cheating.

Shouldn't a senior discount apply to items being purchased for the senior, or should the senior be able to apply their discount for everyone at the table, even if the person is underage?

- KIM IN IOWA CITY DEAR KIM: Senior discounts are intended to accommodate people who are presumably retired and living on a fixed income. That said, various restaurants make their own rules. If they are willing to comply when your mother's boyfriend asks that everyone be included in the discount, it's no reflection on you if he's the one doing the asking and

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1792, France's King Louis XVI went before the Convention to face charges of treason. (Louis was convicted, and executed the following month.)

In 1816, Indiana became the 19th state.

In 1912, movie producer Carlo Ponti was born in Magenta, Italy.

In 1928, police in Buenos Aires announced they had thwarted an attempt on the life of President-elect Herbert Hoover.

In 1936, Britain's King Edward VIII abdicated the throne so he could marry American divorcee Wallis Warfield Simpson; his brother, Prince Albert, became King George VI.

In 1937, Italy announced it was withdrawing from the League of Nations.

In 1941, Germany and Italy declared war on the United States; the U.S. responded in kind.

In 1946, the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF) was established.

In 1961, a U.S. aircraft carrier carrying Army helicopters arrived in Saigon - the first direct American military support for South Vietnam's battle against Communist guerrillas.

In 1981, the El Mozote massacre in El Salvador claimed the lives of hundreds of civilians at the hands of army troops. The U.N. Security Council chose Javier Perez de Cuellar of Peru to be the fifth secretarygeneral. Muhammad Ali, 39, fought his final fight, losing by unanimous decision to Trevor Berbick in Nassau, Bahamas.

In 1997, more than 150 countries agreed at a global warming conference in Kyoto, Japan, to control the Earth's greenhouse gases.

In 2008, Bernie Madoff was arrested, accused of running a multibillion-dollar Ponzi scheme. (Madoff is

When South discovered that his side had all the key-cards, his mind turned optimistically for a second to thoughts of a spade grand slam. One of the merits of Key-card Blackwood is that it also allows you to identify the trump queen and specific kings. When	WEST ♠ 6 3 ♥ J 9 8 6 4 3 ♦ 2 ♣ Q J 10 8	EAST serving a 150-year federal prison sentence.)

Ten years ago: The United States let an intercepted shipment of North Korean missiles proceed to the Persian Gulf country of Yemen a day after the vessel was detained. A congressional report found that intelligence agencies that were supposed to protect Americans from the Sept. 11 hijackers failed to do so because they were poorly organized, poorly equipped and slow to pursue clues that might have prevented the attacks.

Five years ago: Two car bombs in Algeria, including one targeting the U.N. refugee agency's offices, killed 37 people, 17 of them U.N. employees; Al-Qaida's self-styled North African branch claimed responsibility. The Senate Intelligence Committee took closeddoor testimony from CIA Director Michael Hayden on how videotapes of terror suspect interrogations were made, then destroyed.

One year ago: Former military strongman Manuel Antonio Noriega was flown from France to Panama to face additional punishment in his home country after spending more than 20 years in U.S. and French prisons for drug trafficking and money laundering. A U.N. climate conference in Johannesburg, South Africa, reached a hard-fought agreement on a far-reaching program meant to set a new course for the global fight against climate change.

North showed the spade queen but denied any kings, South knew he was high enough.

Against the small slam the lead was the club queen to South's king. The two top spades draw all the trump; now how should you advance?

The 100 percent play is to cash the diamond ace, then cross to hand with the heart king and lead the diamond 10. If West follows low, play the queen. Should it score, declarer is home with an overtrick. If East wins, declarer has three entries to table (in the form of a spade, heart and club) to enable him to set up and enjoy the long diamond.

As the cards lie, though, when West shows out on the second diamond, dummy plays low and East can win the jack. But declarer has plenty of entries to take the ruffing finesse against the diamond king and nine, and eventually discard his club on the established diamond.

Paradoxically, if West had led his singleton diamond, this would have been an extremely easy play to find because the risk of the 5-1 diamond break would have been foremost in declarer's mind.

acceptance of the invitation but no idea which slam is best. The easiest way to get partner to choose between diamonds, spades and no-trump is to bid five no-trump here. This is not a buck-passing, nonforcing action. It asks partner to offer his ideas of a suitable slam up the line, and you will then offer yours or pass his suggestion if it meets with your approval.
