High Loads, Cold Weather Cause Power Outage

BY JULIE WOOTTON AND KIMBERLEE KRUESI jwootton@magicvalley.com, kkruesi@magicvalley.com

GOODING • High energy loads, exasperated by the cold weather, in the area caused a morning power outage on Tuesday.

Almost 5,400 Idaho Power Co. customers were without power around 7 a.m., said Brad Bowlin, spokesman for the utility company.

Crews restored the power slowly so not to overload the system all at once, but most customers had power by 12:30 p.m., Bowlin said.

The outage closed several schools, including those in Gooding. Superintendent Heather Williams said the power went out at 7:20 a.m. at all the district's buildings.

She said the decision was made to cancel school as a safety precaution. Gooding High School, for instance, doesn't have any windows.

Williams said school safety is on the forefront of parents' minds right now, so district officials "erred on the side of caution."

The district office notified its bus drivers, and employees stood in front of school buildings letting parents know about the closure as they arrived.

School starts at 7:45 a.m. for the Gooding School District's three schools. The district also used a computer - ized calling system to put out an automated call to parents.

New Report Highlights Glanbia's Achievements and Challenges

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Glanbia Foods is going green.

The largest producer of American-style cheese recently released its first ever sustainability report. Included in the report is information detailing the company's economic impact and environmental sustainability goals for the future. The report is important because it makes the company's goals and challenges transparent to Glanbia's customers, employees and other industry leaders, said Jeff Williams, CEO of Glanbia Foods.

3,500 percent: Increase in volume growth since 1991 $1.7 billion: Collected revenue $70 million: Amount spent on wages and benefits to more than 1,100 employees in Idaho and New Mexico 830 million: Total pounds of American-style cheese produced 150: Glanbia improvement projects implemented Source: Glanbia's 2012 Sustainabili-

Hagerman Superintendent Ty Jones said his district held off on sending students home until about 9 a.m., hoping the power would be restored.

He said all parents were contacted and just about every student had been picked up by 11 a.m.

Home Invasion Participant Makes Progress on Probation

BY ALISON GENE SMITH alismith@magicvalley.com

SHOSHONE • One of four people who were convicted in a March 2011 home invasion in Dietrich was in court Tuesday for a probation status hearing.

Jamie Taylor, 31, was sentenced in October 2011 to six to 10 years in prison, with the court retaining jurisdiction for one year. The purpose of the retained jurisdiction program, often called a "rider," is to see if those convicted are ready to serve probation after one year or should serve their full sentence.

At Taylor's hearing, Lincoln County 5th District Judge John Butler found Taylor was making good progress on her probation.

Stocks Gain on Optimism that a Budget Deal is Near

NEW YORK (AP) • Stocks climbed on Wall Street Tuesday, pushing the Standard and Poor's 500 to its highest level in two months, on optimism that lawmakers are closing in on a budget deal that will stop the U.S. from going over the "fiscal cliff" at the beginning of next year.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 115.57 points to 13,350.96, its biggest one-day gain in almost a month. The Standard & Poor's 500 rose 16.43 points to 1,446.79, its highest close since Oct. 18. The Nasdaq composite rose 43.93 points to 3,054.53.

Swallowing Heartache

Hours after hearing about the Newtown shooting on Friday,

I found myself in a Paul Elementary School kindergarten classroom covering an pilot iPad project. Davlin As I hi-fived one student who showed me her number matching game, I had to swallow my heartache. These bubbly, chatty kids had no idea of the horror that had unfolded in a classroom much like their own more than 2,000 miles away. They would return home to their parents that night, open presents on Christmas morning, go on to see spring break and kindergarten graduation and summer vacation.

Their 20 peers in Connecticut don't have that chance.

While the students played the learning games, I said a silent "thank you" that sounding out words and counting were the biggest concerns on their minds. I pray they can hold onto that innocence a little while longer.

- Melissa Davlin

Can We Do Better?

As a news junkie and social media addict, my first instinct to learn more about the Newtown school shooting was to go to Twitter. I was immediately overwhelmed by the reactions and details from tweets following the story. Unfortunately, many of the details that were being reported as fact have now

Here's what Twitter got wrong in just a few hours: the name of the shooter, the shooter's mother's job at the school, location of weapons, identifying the shooter's Facebook profile, the possible missing girlfriend, and the Further, most of these errors were originally tweeted from reporters. I'm conflicted by this situation. Mainly, because I understand how many ing and the same headlines unfolded time and time again. "Sheer Terror," "Horrifying," Nash "Senseless,"

"Innocents Lost," "Evil Visited this Community," and "Our Hearts are Broken." While I may not have any children of my own, I spend time with yours here in the Magic Valley. I capture their triumphs on the field, their acting chops on the stage, the music they make and the tests they take. While the gun debate will again rage on and the ethics of journalists interviewing young children will be questioned, let us never forget those we lost, and loved ones we still have.

to be on the uptick lately. Several ownership. New owner of The Book Store and Office Supply, Becky Gomez, said the old building that once housed JC Penneys has revealed hidden treasures. They found an old cash register stashed in a back room and all the old clothing rods are still behind pegboard on the wall, mixing a smidgen of intrigue and history into the store's updated offerings. Two of the new business owners are fulfilling childhood dreams of owning a café and flower shop. Sofie Dunahoo and her husband Mark Dunahoo, purchased Cathy's Kitchen, now called Sofie's Chatterbox. Korena Redder and her partner, Leslie Garner, are fulfilling a dream Redder had at age 9 to own a floral shop with the purchase of Nancy's Rupert Floral. All three new owners are infusing new life in the long-term Rupert businesses.

Meeting the Valley's Ag and my part about leaving. Something that makes me happy: Meeting the people in my new beat as the paper's Agriculture and Business reporter.

I've already met a few of you, and I can honestly say the experience has been a happy one. "Stop by anytime," Nora Olsen, potato specialist at the University of Idaho Extension office in Kimberly, told me after our first meeting last week. We sat down to talk about issues confronting Magic Valley farmers. "I'll do that," I said. "I'm sure you'll be seeing a lot of me." Lance Phillips, executive director of the Twin Falls County Farm Service Agency, shared a hearty handshake with me when we met in his office to chat about dairy issues.

He invited me back when we both had more time to discuss some issues that, he said, I might want to look into. I look forward to our next meeting.

There are others, of course. I've talked with folks at the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce, area business owners, and am trying to meet up with some of the Magic Valley's dairy producers.

I look forward to learning my new beat - the agriculture and business issues, which, in another way, make this a magical place to live and report.

I can already see it's going to be a fun and fulfilling ride.

Quiet Weather until the Weekend

old and quiet weather will remain across southern Idaho through Thursday. Temperatures will range 5 to 10 degrees below average but we will lack any moisture for snow. Highs today and Thursday will range from 30 to 35 degrees, with highs in the upper 20s to low 30s in the Wood River region.

The next storm system could bring some snow to the Wood River region late Friday into Saturday, with a couple of inches of snow possible. This has been a much better start to the snow season for area ski resorts compared to the snow drought we saw last year. Across Mini-Cassia and the Magic Valley, the next potential snowmaking storm could arrive Sunday and last into Christmas Eve. There is still some uncertainty on timing and just how strong this next system could be. As of today, there is potential for a couple of inches of snow on the ground before Christmas. Initially this precipitation would come in as rain and snow, but become all snow late Sunday into Monday morning. This could also be a potential travel hazard for parts of southern Idaho from Sunday into Monday. We still have a lot of ground to cover between now and then, but we will keep you updated here and on KMVT and FOX 14.

Maybe they weren't. It's a fine line between adding to the noise and spreading vital information to the public. But it's our job as truth seekers to challenge ourselves to be able to discern between the two.

Idaho PUC Sets New Rules for Alt Energy Projects

BOISE (AP) • New rules governing small renewable energy projects in Idaho will likely make it tougher for wind and solar developers to succeed but will be helpful for new dairy digesters and small, canal-based hydroelectric projects.

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission's 69-page decision establishes new ground rules for renewable power projects and regulated utilities under the Public Utility Regulatory Policy Act, or PURPA, a 34-year-old federal law meant to promote alternative resources.

Under the decision, solar and wind projects must generate less than 100 kilowatts, on average, to qualify for federally mandated contracts. That limit makes it more difficult for new projects to get off the ground but is a victory for utilities like Idaho Power Co. which complained they've been overloaded with unwanted wind power.

By contrast, the threemember panel stuck with 20-year power contracts utilities wanted just fiveyear pacts - and awarded valuable environmental credits to small developers, over utilities' insistence they were the rightful owners. This will help developers including those seeking to produce power from dairy manure by making it easier for them to win financing.

"If I'm wind or solar, I don't like it," said Peter Richardson, a Boise-based lawyer for renewable energy developers, of Tuesday's ruling. "If I'm any other kind of resource, I'm in heaven."

PUC Chairman Paul Kjellander and commissioners Marsha Smith and Mack Redford said their ruling's rationale was two-fold: to continue Idaho's support of renewable energy, while shielding utility ratepayers from undue price hikes.

For instance, they said the reason they preserved the 100-kilowatt limit for PUR-PA-eligible wind and solar projects was to prevent developers for breaking large projects up into smaller ones. That's something Idaho Power has said was done prior to 2010 by wind developers, gaming the system to qualify for attractive, federally mandated prices while driving ratepayer costs up.

"With the changes ... we believe that PURPA development can continue to thrive in a way that holds ratepayers harmless," the PUC said in a statement.

Idaho Power spokesman Brad Bowlin said the Boisebased utility was still reviewing the decision.

Timeline Uncertain for CSI Extension Road Proposal has a goal: to put in an extension road that would connect the area with the rest of campus.

President Jerry Beck discussed the topic Monday night at the college's board of trustees meeting. Beck told the Times-News he met with a rural fire district that bought land from CSI a few years ago and has plans to build a station. But that can't happen until the road is finished.

Originally, construction on the extension road was slated to start this coming summer.

But that hinges on completing engineering plans for the project, Beck said. That process is being handled through the city of Twin Falls since federal funding for the project is funneled through the city.

Beck said a road is needed that allows people to get around the college campus. When Walmart opened in 2009, one of the requirements was to have a traffic light at the intersection of North College Road and Cheney Drive, Beck said.

Student Athlete Survey Results

Vice President of Student Services Edit Szanto presented the results of a survey to gauge what CSI students think about athletic programs and which sports should be added.

In total, 524 people completed the survey and 80 percent think there should be more sports — such as men's soccer, women's soccer and football.

Twin Falls Updates Fireworks Ordinance

BY MELISSA DAVLIN mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Months after illegal fireworks prompted Twin Falls City Councilman Chris Talkington to ask the city about tighter fireworks laws, the city council passed an updated ordinance.

The ordinance, passed Monday, addresses dangerous fireworks, times at which residents may set off safe fireworks, permit fees for firework vendors and proper short-term storage for fireworks.

Under the new ordinance, residents may discharge legal fireworks, like ground spinnings and sparklers, between 8 a.m. and midnight, June 23 through July 5 and Dec. 26 through Jan. 1, as well as between midnight and 1 a.m. on Jan. 1.

The new ordinance adds a $100 fine for people who discharge legal fireworks outside permitted times.

Councilors Don Hall and Jim Munn praised the ordinance. Hall cited his own experience with neighbors setting off illegal fireworks.

"I mean, it's dangerous out there," Hall said.

Jerome Man to Go to Trial for Assault on Officer

BY ALISON GENE SMITH alismith@magicvalley.com

JEROME • A Hazelton man was in court for a pretrial conference Monday and will now face a trial for aggravated assault and assault on an officer.

Todd R. Christensen was also charged with resisting or obstructing arrest and possession of drug paraphernalia in the same September incident.

On Sept. 12 at about 1:37 a.m., a Jerome County sheriff's deputy was dispatched to make a welfare check on a woman. The person who called 911 said the woman, whom he knew for just a few weeks, called him to say she was with a man she was afraid of.

When the deputy arrived outside the Jerome County home, he saw a man, later identified as Christensen, "acting extremely aggressive and yelling profanities at me," a police report states.

According to the report, Christensen had a black handgun in his right hand and was walking toward the deputy's patrol car.

The deputy wrote that he backed up and radioed for more units as Christensen continued to walk toward him. The report states the deputy unholstered his gun and told Christensen to relax. Christensen allegedly continued to tell the deputy he was trespassing on Christensen's property and needed to leave, the report states. According to the report, a "huge Mastiff type dog," circled the two during the standoff, and the deputy was concerned the dog might attack him.

At one point, the report states, Christensen turned his back, and the deputy grabbed Christensen's gun from his back pocket.

Eventually, the deputy got Christensen in handcuffs and put him in the patrol car.

Once the deputy found the woman he was trying to check on, she allegedly told him she was at a bar with Christensen when he became upset and made her drive them home. Once at home, he became abusive, the woman allegedly told deputies. The report states the woman had scrapes that looked like road rash. The woman said she went inside and when she came back outside a short while later, Christensen had the gun out, the report states. According to the report, the woman said Christensen displayed the gun but did not point it at her.

Once at the Jerome County Jail, deputies allegedly found a metal pipe that smelled like marijuana after it allegedly fell from Christensen's lap, the report states.

A final status hearing is scheduled for Dec. 31 and a jury trial in the case is scheduled for Jan. 2.

Trial Today for Jerome Man Accused of Pointing Gun

BY ALISON GENE SMITH alismith@magicvalley.com

JEROME • A Jerome man faces a jury trial today for charges of aggravated assault and discharging a firearm in the city limits.

On Aug. 17, police were dispatched to the 300 block of Nez Perce for a report about a man who discharged a gun and then pointed it at another man.

The alleged victim called police and said James Donovan Cook II fired several rounds from a .22 revolver into the air, then pointed the gun at the victim's face, a police report states.

According to the report, police found Cook, patted him down and found the gun in a camouflage bag along with two boxes of .22 ammo. Police allegedly found five spent rounds and one live round in the next position in the gun. The gun also allegedly had fresh gunpowder on it.

According to the police report, the victim said he became scared when Cook fired the gun. When he tried to leave, Cook allegedly pointed the gun in his face and said he wasn't going anywhere.

If found guilty, Cook could face up to five years in prison for the aggravated assault charge, and a maximum of six months in jail for discharging the weapon. He could also be fined up to a total of $6,000.

College Students Deliver Books to Lincoln Elementary School

BY JULIE WOOTTON jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Students at Lincoln Elementary School pounded their hands against the gym floor, acting out the storyline of a book about Santa Claus.

About 10 local college students donned Santa hats and reindeer antlers Tuesday afternoon as they led students in making hand motions to go along with a book titled, "Must be Santa."

"Who's got a big red cherry nose?" one college student read, as her classmates touched the tip of their nose.

"Santa's got a big red cherry nose," the elementary schoolers responded.

Once the story was over, first- and second-graders waited anxiously for principal Beth Olmstead to call their class up to get book bags filled containing two books and snacks.

Education majors at the College of Southern Idaho and Idaho State University's Twin Falls program worked together to put on the second annual "Read and Feed" project.

Kristi Johnson, an ISU elementary education major, said some of the Lincoln Elementary students who are underprivileged may not have access to many books at home.

"I think it's great for the kids," she said about Tuesday's event.

Over the past couple of weeks, CSI and ISU education majors collected donations of gently used children's books and healthy snacks.

Barnes & Noble also sponsored the Read and Feed project this year. Shoppers at the Twin Falls store had the option to buy a book to donate to the students.

Chris Vaage, director of ISU's Twin Falls programs, said that meant every firstand second-grader got one

For ISU, Lincoln Elementary is a partner school. When it comes time for college students to do their first major field experience, it's at Lincoln.

Vaage said many ISU alumni have been hired at the school.

John Hughes, CSI educa-

For young elementary schoolers, Hughes said, the event encourages them to read over the holiday break and get their parents involved.

WASH. GROUP CHALLENGES CARIBOU'S ENDANGERED STATUS

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) • The federal government plans a new study to determine if the woodland caribou found in Idaho and Washington should continue to be protected as an endangered species, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service said Tuesday.

The agency will conduct a new review of the Selkirk population of caribou, after deciding that removing them from protection "may be warranted." The animals were given endangered species protection in 1984.

The agency made that decision in response to a petition from the Pacific Legal Foundation and its clients, Bonner County in Idaho and the Idaho State Snowmobile Association.

"This petition questions whether the southern Selkirk Mountains population of woodland caribou warrants listing under ESA," said Brian T. Kelly, Idaho supervisor for the Fish and Wildlife Service.

Opponents of protection have long contended that the handful of caribou in Washington and Idaho are just a subset of the massive herds in British Columbia.

"The restrictions have infringed on the local economy and the freedom of our clients," Daniel Himebaugh, foundation spokesman, said.

But the Center for Biological Diversity said this is the last population of woodland caribou in the lower 48 states and should be protected.

"If it were up to the Pacific Legal Foundation, caribou, Puget Sound orcas and many other species would be allowed to go extinct in the contiguous United States simply because they also live in Canada," said Noah Greenwald, endangered species director.

School Trustees Want to Resurrect Luna Overhaul

BOISE (AP) • A month after voters rejected disputed laws that cut into teacher's collective bargaining rights, Idaho school board trustees are pushing to have some of the same provisions reinstated by the 2013 Legislature.

The Idaho School Boards Association wants to revive several pieces of Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna's "Students Come First" overhaul, including a June 10 deadline for contract negotiations to end. If no pact is reached, under the provision, the district simply could impose its own contract.

The Spokesman-Review reported that at least 16 school districts unilaterally imposed their own plans this year after failing to reach an agreement.

The association's lobbyist, Karen Echeverria, said her group wants to resurrect elements that school board trustees feel strongly about. The group voted last month to pursue the plan.

"We hoped that the union would support at least parts of this - we know they won't be able to support all of it," said Echeverria, the association's executive director.

But foes of Luna's overhaul who succeeded in killing all three propositions at the Nov. 6 ballot box immediately panned her group's plan.

"It's Proposition 1 right back up there again," said Maria Greeley, a Boise school trustee and cochair of the statewide campaign to reject Luna's overhaul. "I'm not saying that everything in it is bad. The one piece that concerns me the most is that deadline, because it gives districts the opportunity to abuse the negotiation process. It doesn't make them come in and do the tough work of working through it."

In addition to the limits on collective bargaining rights, voters last month rejected Luna's plan to pay teachers bonuses based on a merit system, as well as online-class graduation requirements and a $180 million contract with Hewlett-Packard to provide high school students and teachers with laptop computers.

Greeley opposed the resolution at last month's state school boards association conference where a package of reforms won 75 percent support.

Among other provisions Echeverria's group wants revived are striking a law that prevents teacher salaries from dropping from one year to the next; reviving a requirement to hold teacher negotiations in public; requiring all contract terms to expire annually; and reinstating a requirement that unions prove they represent more than half of teachers before they're allowed to negotiate.

The trustees' plan doesn't include a disputed portion of Luna's overhaul that limited contract negotiations to salaries and benefits.

Even so, union leaders also panned the trustee's plan to resurrect elements of the failed overhaul - especially before groups with a stake in the outcome have had an opportunity to meet and vet ideas that have broad support.

"The voters have already spoken overwhelmingly," said Penni Cyr, president of the Idaho Education Association. "Evidently ISBA didn't hear that."

Sen. John Goedde, R-Coeur d'Alene and chairman of the Senate Education Committee, said he expects legislation that includes the trustees' wishes will receive lawmakers' attention early in the session that starts Jan. 7.

Rapid-fire Falsehoods

66 R alsehood flies, and truth comes limping after it," wrote Jonathan Swift, "so that when men come to be undeceived, it is too late; the jest is over, and the tale hath had its effect?

Surely Ryan Lanza, the brother of Adam Lanza, who committed a massacre on Dec. 14 in Newtown, Conn., would agree with Swift. Ryan was miles away, minding his own business, when the media, including The Post, named him as the author of the bloodbath — and for the next few hours he was no longer an anonymous office toiler but a notorious mass murderer. Yes, the truth finally limped along later. Still, the false accusation compounded Ryan's agony at learning that his younger brother used his mother's gun to kill her, 20 children, six additional adults and, finally, himself.

Many say we need a post-Newtown "national conversation" about gun violence. We do. While we're at it, let's soul-search about the fact that the instantaneous spread of misinformation after mass killings is becoming almost as frequent as the massacres. And some of our leading media institutions are culpable.

On Jan. 8, 2011, NPR and others mistakenly reported that Rep. Gabrielle Giffords had been killed in a shooting rampage that did claim six lives. On July 20, 2012, Brian Ross of ABC suggested that the shooter in the Aurora movie theater massacre belonged to the Colorado tea party; Ross had confused the actual killer, James Holmes, with another person of that name who popped up on an Internet search.

Initial reporting on the Dec. 11 shooting at a Portland, Ore., shopping mall included inflated body counts, inaccurate descriptions of the suspect and bogus rumors of multiple gummen. Something has to be done about this problem, too. Calling for restraint on the flow of information — even, perhaps, self-restraint — might make me as popular with my media brethren as a gun control advocate in the National Rifle Association. Like gun enthusiasts, we journalists have our very own section in the Bill of Rights, the First Amendment. And, not unlike the Second Amendment crowd, we tend to view complaints about misuse and abuse of our favorite freedom as a threat to it.

Reporters can also claim, quite legitimately, that we rush to correct our errors, which are often the errors of our sources, passed on by us in good faith. Certainly those defenses are available to media that named Ryan Lanza as the Newtown shooter; the story was corrected later, and it did indeed originate with law enforcement. If you can't trust the cops, who can you trust?

Fair enough. But that just makes me question the judgment of the law enforcement officials who provided Ryan Lanza's name to reporters so soon after the Newtown crime. What purpose did that serve? There was no manhunt; for all the police knew, the perpetrator was dead. And by the way, I don't trust the cops - at least not blindly. In 2006, law enforcement told us that Duke lacrosse players raped an exotic dancer; the accuser had fabricated her story. In 1989, New York City detectives said a group of black teenagers had confessed to raping and beating "the Central Park Jogger." The kids went to prison, until DNA tests exonerated them and proved another man's guilt. Like the freedom to own a gun, the latitude to publish a defendant's full name, prior to conviction, is less sacrosanct in Europe than in the United States. In 2008, German media initially referred to notorious Austrian child abuser and rapist Josef Fritzl as "Josef F." well after the press in other countries had fully identified him. Such norms are no more readily imported than European gun laws. I would certainly rather have our nearlimitless media freedom, defects and all. But I don't think it's asking too much of the U.S. media, and the law enforcement agencies that feed us information, to learn from recent experience and to act on those lessons. Perhaps the media should not identify alleged shooters absent on-the-record confirmation, as opposed to citing unnamed sources as CNN, for one, did in Newtown. Just as the revolver has given way to the rapid-fire Glock pistol, modern technology enables the media, our sources and our audience to communicate, accurately and inaccurately, with breathtakingly sudden impact. Journalism doesn't need new laws to adapt - just a genuine rededication to the values of accuracy, skepticism and prudence with which we already claim to operate. No more excuses. Among the reputations we save may be our own.

Celebrate Bill of Rights Day

The United States of America might never have existed without one thing: the Bill of Rights.

The Bill of Rights limits the power of the government and protects the rights of the people. It was so important that several of the original 13 states would not ratify the Constitution without it.

Nearly everything that makes an American proud to be one comes from the Bill of Rights. Freedoms to speak, print, read, assemble, pray, petition the government, keep and bear arms. Protection from unreasonable arrests and searches, excessive bail, double jeopardy, coerced confessions, cruel and unusual punishment. Rights to due process, jury trials, counsel, and to present defense witnesses. These are the freedoms and America's commitment to civil and human rights to the world. The special day would annually remind politicians, bureaucrats, prosecutors and judges that their authority and power are limited – that the government serves us Americans, it does not rule us.

Dec. 15, Bill of Rights Day, reminds us of the liberty we have and what it costs to keep it. By celebrating Bill of Rights Day every year, perhaps we shall never forget.

Arm School Staff with Guns

I am a teacher. I would live in guilt and horror if a shooting were to occur in my school and I was powerless to prevent it. Here in Idaho, we have a great opportunity to be proactive and do something to prevent a school shooting.

For years, we have had fire drills in our schools, and the result has been that no child has died from a school fire. Preparations include fire extinguishers in every room, training for the teachers and monthly training for the students and teachers. In 1974, Israel suffered a tragic massacre in Ma'alot. They changed their policies to include school drills to respond properly to a school shooting. Preparations included training for teachers and staff willing to volunteer to carry arms. Monthly training was provided. Since then there has been no successful shooting; some were prevented by the armed volunteers. Idaho has a rich tradition of gun ownership. We should follow suit. rights that define America.

Surprisingly, Americans do not celebrate the foundation of our political freedom, the Bill of Rights – but we should. After all, the Bill of Rights is part of our Constitution, it is what our military people pledge to serve and die for. It is uniquely American. People on the political left, center and right can all rally around the Bill of Rights because it expresses our shared basic values.

On Dec. 15, 1791, the Bill of Rights was ratified and has since protected American citizens for 206 years. We should celebrate Dec. 15 every year. By officially designating Dec. 15 as Bill of Rights Day, we would be reminding our fellow citizens and younger generations of our heritage. Bill of Rights Day would declare same sunny ridge where your iconic ancestors stood proud for millennia. It's refreshing to see you back, basking in the brightness, quietly observing us bipeds.

When we corralled your statuesque cousins 40 moons ago, one cow leapt over the moonlit fence and landed with a soft powder flop before bolting up the ridge like dark crimson lightning. High plains drifters occasionally whisper about her legendary feat and wonder if you honor her in a secret language we cannot yet penetrate.

Your tracks wisp in the brilliant sky, swirling like haiku in horse latitude mists. Tread lightly around the wooded upland avalanche menace. When you secrete into town under cover of dark to engage in in schools in the hopes that we can start a dialogue on making our schools a safer environment for our children.

I have been a licensed social worker for the last eight years and worked as a school PSR for two of the last three. My letter is directed primarily toward the administrators of all Magic Valley schools and the agencies with whom they contract.

I know there are many third-party professionals contracted to work at all levels of education here in the Magic Valley. These professional include PSRs, developmental technicians, speech therapists, psychologists, etc. I wonder how many of them have been trained on the emergency protocols that are in place at your school.

Benghazi Review Finds Systematic Security Faults

WASHINGTON (AP) • An independent panel charged with investigating the deadly Sept. 11 attack in Libya that killed a U.S. ambassador and three other Americans has concluded that systematic management and leadership failures at the State Department led to "grossly" inadequate security at the mission in Benghazi.

"Systematic failures and leadership and management deficiencies at senior levels within two bureaus of the State Department resulted in a Special Mission security posture that was inadequate for Benghazi and grossly inadequate to deal with the attack that took place," the panel said.

The report singled out the Bureau of Diplomatic Security and the Bureau of Near East Affairs for criticism, saying there appeared to be a lack of cooperation and confusion over protection at the mission in Benghazi, a city in eastern Libya that was relatively lawless after the revolution that toppled Libyan strongman Moammar Gadhafi.

Despite those failures, the Accountability Review Board determined that no individual officials ignored or viowhich Libyan Ambassador Chris Stevens, information specialist Sean Smith and former Navy SEALs Glen Doherty and Tyrone Woods – who were contractors working for the CIA – were killed. Stevens' slaying was the first of a U.S. ambassador since 1988.

But it confirmed that contrary to initial accounts, there was no protest outside the consulate and said responsibility for the incident rested entirely with the terrorists who attacked the mission.

In the immediate aftermath of the attack, administration officials linked the attack to the spreading protests over an Americanmade, anti-Islamic film that had begun in Cairo earlier that day. Those comments came after evidence already pointed to a distinct militant attack. U.N. Ambassador Susan Rice appeared on numerous TV talk shows the Sunday after the attack and used the administration talking points linking it to the film.

The review board determined that there had been no immediate, specific tactical warning of a potential attack on the 11th anniversary of Sept. 11, 2001. However, the report said there

The report appeared to break little new ground about the timeline of the Benghazi attack during had been several worrisome incidents in the run-up to the attack that should have set off warning bells.

The report said U.S. personnel on the ground in Benghazi "performed with courage and readiness to risk their lives to protect their colleagues in a nearimpossible situation."

NBC's Engel, TV Crew Escape Abduction in Syria

BEIRUT (AP) • NBC's chief foreign correspondent Richard Engel said Tuesday he and members of his network crew escaped unharmed after five days of captivity in Syria, where more than a dozen proregime gunmen dragged them from their car, killed one of their rebel escorts and subjected them to mock executions.

Appearing on NBC's "Today" show, an unshaven Engel said he and his team escaped during a firefight Monday night between their captors and rebels at a checkpoint. They crossed into Turkey on Tuesday.

NBC did not say how many people were kidnapped with Engel, although two other men, producer Ghazi Balkiz and photographer John Kooistra, appeared with him on the "Today" show.

It was not confirmed whether everyone was accounted for. and faced the agonizing task of laying others to rest, as this grieving town wrestled with the same issues gripping the country: violence, gun control and finding a way forward.

Funerals were held for two more of the tiny fallen, a 6year-old boy and a 6-yearold girl, the latest in a long, almost unbearable procession of grief. A total of 26 people were gunned down at Sandy Hook Elementary School in one of the worst mass shootings in U.S history. The gunman also killed his mother in her home, before committing suicide.

The resumption of classes at all Newtown's schools except Sandy Hook brought a return of familiar routines, something students seemed to welcome as they arrived aboard buses festooned with large green-and-white ribbons — the colors of the stricken elementary school.

"We're going to be able to comfort each other and try and help each other get through this, because that's the only way we're going to do it," said 17-year-old P.J. Hickey, a senior at Newtown High School. "Nobody can ASSOCIATED PRESS do this alone."

Still, he noted: "There's going to be no joy in school. It really doesn't feel like Christmas anymore."

At St. Rose of Lima Catholic Church in Newtown, back-to-back funerals were held for firstgraders James Mattioli and Jessica Rekos, the first of eight to be held in the coming days at the church.

As mourners gathered outside, a motorcade led by police motorcycles arrived for the funeral of little James, who especially loved recess and math, and who was described by his family as a "numbers guy" who couldn't wait until he was old enough to order a footlong Subway sandwich.

Traffic in front of the church slowed to a crawl as police directed vehicles into the church parking lot. At one point, a school bus carrying elementary students got stuck in traffic, and the children, pressing their faces into the windows, sadly watched as the mourners assembled.

Inside the church, James' mother stood and remembered her son.

"It was very somber, it was very sad, it was very moving," said Clare Savarese, who taught the boy in preschool and recalled him as "a lovely little boy. A sweet little angel."

NRA Promises to Help Prevent School Shootings

WASHINGTON (AP) • After four days of self-imposed silence on the shooting that killed 26 people inside a Newtown, Conn., elementary school, the nation's largest gun rights lobby emerged Tuesday and promised "to offer meaningful contributions to help make sure this never happens again."

The National Rifle Association explained its unusual absence "out of respect for the families and as a matter of common decency" after Friday's shooting that left dead 20 children, all ages 6 or 7.

The group – typically outspoken about its positions even after shooting deaths – went all but silent since the rampage. As it faced public scrutiny online and in person, the group left many wondering how – if at all – it would respond to one of the most shocking slayings in the nation's history.

"The National Rifle Association of America is made up of 4 million moms and dads, sons and daughters, and we were shocked, saddened and heartbroken by the news of the horrific and senseless murders in Newtown," the organization said in a statement. "The NRA is prepared to offer meaningful contributions to help make sure this never happens again."

The group said it would have a news conference to answer questions Friday.

Almost immediately after it became clear the extent of carnage, the group's Facebook page disappeared. It posted no tweets. It made no mention of the shooting on its website. None of its leaders hit the media circuit Sunday to promote its support of the Second Amendment.

Gunmen Kill 5 Polio Workers

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) • Gunmen shot dead five women working on U.N.backed polio vaccination efforts in two different Pakistani cities on Tuesday, officials said, a major setback for a campaign that international health officials consider vital to contain the crippling disease but which Taliban insurgents say is a cover for espionage.

Pakistan is one of only three countries where polio is endemic. Militants accuse health workers of acting as spies for the U.S. and claim the vaccine makes children sterile. Taliban commanders in the troubled northwest tribal region have also said vaccinations can't go forward until the U.S. stops drone strikes in the country.

Insurgent opposition to the campaign grew last year after it was revealed that a Pakistani doctor ran a fake vaccination program to help the CIA track down al-Qaida chief Osama bin Laden, who was hiding in the town of Abbottabad in the country's northwest.

The Taliban targeted previous anti-polio campaigns, but this has been a particularly deadly week. The government is in the middle of a three-day vaccination drive targeting high risk areas of the country as part of an effort to immunize millions of children under the age of five.

"Such attacks deprive Pakistan's most vulnerable populations – especially children – of basic life-saving health interventions," said a statement jointly released by the government and the U.N. "We call on the leaders of the affected communities and everyone concerned to do their utmost to protect health workers and create a secure environment so that we can meet the health needs of the children of Pakistan."

The women who were killed Tuesday — three of whom were teenagers — were all shot in the head at close range. Four of them were gunned down in the southern port city of Karachi, and the fifth in a village outside the northwest city of Peshawar. Two men who were working alongside the women were also critically wounded in Karachi.

The attacks in Karachi were well-coordinated and occurred within 15 minutes in three different areas of the city that are far apart, said police spokesman Imran Shoukat. In each case, the gunmen used 9 millimeter pistols. Two of the women were teenagers, aged 18 and 19, and the other two were in their 40s, he said.

Two of the women were killed while they were in a house giving children polio drops, said Shoukat. The other two were traveling between houses when they were attacked, he said.

On Monday another person working on the anti-polio campaign, a male volunteer, was gunned down in Karachi. Taliban militants also killed three soldiers in an ambush of an army convoy escorting a vaccination team in the northwest.

Officials in Karachi responded to the attacks by suspending the vaccination campaign in the city, said Sagheer Ahmed, the health minister for surrounding Sindh province. The campaign started on Monday and was supposed to run through Wednesday, he said.

Immunization was suspended in Karachi in July as well after a local volunteer was shot to death and two U.N. staff were wounded.

Gun Regulator ATF Struggles for Resources

THE WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON • Amid an intense debate over gun control in the wake of the mass shooting in Connecticut, the federal agency at the heart of firearms regulation in America is so beleaguered and under-resourced that it has not had a confirmed director in six years.

The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives, a division of the Justice Department, is supposed to regulate the nation's gun industry. But many within ATF say it is the industry that dominates the agency.

The gun lobby, concerned about government regulation of firearms ownership, has taken steps to limit the resources available to ATF and to prevent the agency from having a strong leader, according to former and current ATF officials.

For decades, the National Rifle Association has lobbied successfully to block all attempts to computerize records of gun sales, arguing against any kind of national registry of firearms ownership. And despite the growth of the gun industry and the nation's population, ATF has fewer agents today than it did nearly four decades ago: fewer than 2,500.

"If the administration and Congress are serious about addressing this problem, they need to fund the gun police, the agency charged with administering the firearms regulations," said Michael Bouchard, a former ATF assistant director. "Unless they are going to do this completely, simply passing some form of gun legislation is only part of the solution."

The man currently at the helm of ATF is B. Todd

Jones, an interim acting director who works part time at the agency, juggling his position there with his job as U.S. attorney in Minnesota.

TIMES-NEWS

"ATF has struggled to competently enforce the firearms laws already on the books," said Rep. Darrell Issa, R-Calif., who has spearheaded a congressional investigation into the agency's botched gun investigation along the Mexican border. "Posing a challenge to an agency needing consistent leadership, the acting director is currently working part time and out of Minneapolis."

An ATF spokesman declined to comment.

President Obama's nominee to be ATF's permanent director is Andrew Traver, who oversees the bureau's Chicago office. But his nomination has been stalled in the Senate for two years because Traver raised the ire of the gun lobby with comments it has characterized as anti-firearm. The NRA, which immediately opposed his nomination, has said Traver is linked to gun-control advocates and anti-gun activities in Chicago.

No permanent ATF director has been on the job in the six years since Congress required that the position be confirmed by the Senate. That action allowed the gun lobby to have a say on Capitol Hill about the agency's leadership, according to ATF officials.

Even Michael J. Sullivan, a former U.S. attorney in Boston nominated by President George W. Bush, could not get confirmed. He was blocked by three senators who accused him of being hostile to gun dealers. One of the senators was a member of the NRA's board of directors.

Substitute Teacher Inherits Gold Fortune

ly heir to a fortune of gold coins discovered by a cleaning crew in the home of a reclusive cousin who stashed away a treasure of more than $7 million before he died this year.

A court hearing in Carson City is scheduled Tuesday, when a judge is expected to certify first cousin Arlene Magdanz as the lone heir to the treasure valued at $7.4 million found in the home of Walter Samaszko Jr., Carson City Clerk-Recorder Alan Glover told the Nevada Appeal.

Samaszko, 69, lived a quiet life in Nevada's capital city since the late 1960s and no one apparently knew of his wealth. Records show he withdrew just $500 a month from his stock accounts to pay modest bills, Samaszko apparently had no living family in Carson City, so genealogical researchers went to work to find relatives elsewhere. They found Arlene Magdanz is the only living heir.

Magdanz could not immediately be reached for comment.

A crew hired by Glover to clean up the man's house discovered the eye-popping stash: boxes of gold coins and bullion in the garage. More boxes were later found, and Glover said the gold coins, some neatly wrapped in foil and plastic cases, were enough to fill two wheelbarrows. "You name it, (he) had it," Glover said. Since Samaszko was found in his home, Glover said, he and experts brought in to the other property, including the house, which sold for $112,500.

He said he is taking Samaszko's 1968 Ford Mustang California Special in for servicing this week or next to get it ready for sale. The classic is appraised at about $17,000.

Samaszko also had money market, stock and bank accounts totaling $165,570 and $5,330 in other property in the home. But the vast majority of the fortune was in gold coins. Appraiser Howard Herz filedhis report several weeks ago listing a total of 2,695 coins appraised at more than $7.4 million.

"What some individuals have called a hoard of gold is, in fact, a quite well-thought-out investment in gold," he wrote.

Kent Womack

March 5, 1949-Dec. 16, 2012

BUHL • Kent Womack, 63, of Buhl, beloved husband, father, grandfather, veterinarian and friend, passed away Sunday, Dec. 16, 2012, after a yearlong battle with cancer.

Kent was born March 5, 1949, to Frances and Darol Womack of Buhl. He attended school in Buhl and graduated from both the University of Idaho and Colorado State University, where he received his Doctor of Veterinary Medicine in 1974. After working in Shoshone for two years, he returned to Buhl and started West End Veterinary Clinic, where he worked for 35 years before retiring in the fall of 2011. On Sept. 7, 1970, Kent and Deloris Dana were married. Together they raised two sons, Bert and 2 Lenard.

In 1984, Kent became a registered representative in the investment field, working for Interpacific Investment Services and later Symetra Investment Services, where he continued to work until his death. Kent had many interests but especially enjoyed hunting, fishing and the outdoors. He also had great affection for his bird dogs, black Labs and German shorthaired pointers who were always considered members of the family. Always wanting to give back, Kent was associated with Ducks Unlimited and the Boy Scouts and was a longstanding member of the Buhl Rotary Club. He took great pride in helping both of his boys to achieve the rank of Eagle Scout. Kent also enjoyed remodeling houses and entrepreneurship and taught his sons the value and benefits of hard work.

He is survived by his wife of 42 years, Deloris; son, Bert (Karen); granddaughter, Ellis Ann of Anchorage, Alaska; son, Lenard (Andrea); granddaughters, Lillian McKinzie and Megahn Bohling of Buhl; mother-in-law, Lillian Dana; sister-in-law, Diane (Evan) Cox of Buhl; brother-in-law, Don (Dorothy) Dana of Sandy, Utah; brother-in-law, Duane (Dianne) Dana of Papillion, Neb. A funeral service will be at 2 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 20, at the Buhl United Methodist Church. 908 Maple St. Interment will follow the service at Buhl's West End Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, the family is suggesting donations be made to a local charity of your choosing. Arrangements are under the direction of Farmer Funeral Chapel in Buhl.

Claude Earl Rasmussen

Oct. 13, 1949-Dec. 16, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Claude Earl Rassmussen, 63, of Twin Falls, passed away Sunday, Dec. 16, 2012.

Claude was born in Rupert, Idaho, on Oct. 13, 1949, to Rex and Edna Rasmussen. He was raised in Heyburn, Idaho, attended Heyburn Elementary and graduated from Minico High School. While in high school, Claude played basketball. He received a basketball and academic scholarship to the College of Southern Idaho. He played on the basketball team and graduated from CSI with an Associate of Arts degree. He later attended Boise State University, majoring in history and minoring in psychology and sociology. He graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree.

In 1973, Claude started working for J.R. Simplot Company as a truck driver. In 1980, he began working as a crop consultant, which he did for 10 years before becoming the unit manager for Simplot Soilbuilders in Buhl. Claude retired from Simplot in 2001. In 2001, he began selling insurance for Farm Bureau until 2009, when he was forced to retire due to health problems.

Claude married Julie Rodriguez on Nov. 12, 1977, in the Little Flower Catholic Church. They have two sons, Paul and Eric. Claude was very active with the youth, coaching baseball and refereeing basketball. He coached baseball in Burley from Little League all the way to Babe Ruth. He was president of the Burley High School Booster club. When the Rasmussens moved to Twin Falls in 1991, Claude was the president of the American Legion Baseball Club. Claude enjoyed golfing, camping and, most of all, his yearly trips to Mexico. While in Mexico, his favorite thing to do was to volunteer at the local orphanage. He was an excellent cook, his specialty being prime rib and chili, and entertaining family and friends. He had a great sense of humor and loved to tease. In the last few months, Claude was comforted by his new yet unexpected friend, Spooky the cat. He is preceded in death by his parents, Rex and Edna Rasmussen; and his fatherin-law, Deacon Pete Rodriguez. He is survived by his wife of 35 years, Julie Rasmussen; his two sons, Paul Rasmussen and fiancee, Katy Simon of Meridian, Idaho, and Eric and his wife, Lindsay Rasmussen of Salt Lake City, Utah; grandchildren, Alexander, Anthony and Sophia Rasmussen, and Alexis Beck; sisters, Karen Kay (J.C.) Bryan of Lewiston, Idaho, Marilyn (Jerry) Hess of Rupert, Idaho, and Carolyn Bevan of Bellevue, Wash., sister-in-law, Diana Carillo of Kaysville, Utah; brothersin-law, Victor (Delsie) Rodriguez of Nampa, Idaho, Rudy (Nina) Rodriguez of Caldwell, Idaho, Peter Rodriguez of Salt Lake City, Utah, Andrew Carillo of La Grande, Ore., and Steve Bevan of Pocatello, Idaho; mother-in-law, Amelia Rodriguez of Nampa, Idaho; daughter-in-law, Meghan Kitley of Meridian, Idaho; and many nieces, nephews and good friends.

A rosary will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 20, at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park," with a funeral Mass to be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Dec. 21, at St. Edward the Confessor Catholic Church. Arrangements are under the direction of Dustin Godfrey and the staff at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park." Donations may be made to Hospice Visions.

March 9, 1923-Nov. 28, 2012

CALDWELL Thomas M. (Maurice) Wilkins was born March 9, 1923, the first son to Dorothy Gladys Nitchman and James Marona Wilkins, in Caldwell, Idaho, and died of natural causes Wednesday, Nov. 28, 2012, in his home at Grace Assisted Living in Boise, Idaho.

He was raised in Caldwell, where he attended Lincoln Elementary School and graduated from Caldwell High School in 1941. He attended the University of Idaho, was a member of Phi Delta Theta and graduated with a bachelor of science in business in 1949. He was drafted Jan. 15, 1943, into the Army Signal Corps, was trained as a radio operator in a radar outfit and obtained the rank of corporal until discharged July 15, 1945. He was stationed from Florida to California and everywhere in between. He met and married Melba LouEllen (Hall, Price) Buchanan, whose darling 2year-old daughter, Judy, stole his heart. They were married March 10, 1951, and moved to Boise, Idaho, in 1952 where he worked at CC Anderson's as a buyer. The second addition to the family, Janine Lynette, was born in Boise, Idaho, in December 1952. In 1953, he became employed by Idaho Power Co. in Twin Falls, Idaho, where the third edition, Bradley Vaughn, was born in October 1955. He was an active member of Elks BPOE No. 1183, and went through the chairs to become the exalted ruler in 1966 to 1967.

The family returned to Boise in 1972, where he served as the manager of SRVEA (Snake River Valley Electrical Association); he retired from there in March 1985. After retirement, they spent several years snowbirding to Arizona and eventually moved to Chateau DeBoise in 2005. His wife, Melba, passed away after 56 years and 11 months of marriage in 2008. After that, he moved to Bonaventure Place and then finally to Grace Assisted Living, where he spent the remaining days of his life. He was loving and stern and had a great sense of pride, patriotism, wisdom, integrity, resourcefulness, honesty and, most of all, love for his family. He was the family backbone and will be missed deeply. He shared his love of the outdoors with his family, and we hope he is camping, fishing, hunting and building his wooden trucks up there in heaven. There were many things he taught us to enjoy and value.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Melba LouEllen (Hall, Price, Buchanan); parents, James Marona and Dorothy Wilkins Gladys (Nitchman); and brother, Donald James Wilkins. He is survived by daughter, Judith R. (Buchanan) Trout and husband, Ronald V. Trout of Boise; daughter, Janine L. (Wilkins, Wilson) Smith and husband, Randy L. Smith of Ontario, Ore.; son, Bradley V. Wilkins and wife, Christine (Wilkinson) of Fruita, Colo.; four grandchildren, Melanie R. (Trout, Breinholt) Davis, Phillip R. Trout, Roger E. Trout and Nicole L. Wilson; and 15 great-grandchildren, Nikolas and Kaden Breinholt, Aleksa, Cortnee, Brooklynn, Derryk, Ryan, Cameron, Benjamin and Ellayna Davis, Kyle Kron, Austin and Aiden Trout, and Kyren and Skyla Trout.

Many thanks to the wonderful care given him in his final days by Legacy Hospice of Boise and ABC Home Health Services as well as the unforgettable staff at Grace Assisted Living in Boise. We really appreciated everything that was done for him by all parties. A service will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Dec. 28, at Flahiff Funeral Chapel, 624 Cleveland Blvd, Caldwell, ID 83605. Donations may be made in his name to the charity of your choice.

HANSEN • Jack Marshall Nuckols, 91, a resident of Hansen, Idaho, passed away peacefully Saturday morning, Dec. 15, 2012, in his home. Jack was born in Akron, Ohio, in 1921.

He was the first born son of William and Jean Nuckols. Growing up in the Depression was hard, and the Nuckols family traveled throughout the south wherever his father could find work. Jack graduated from high school and attended Cape Gerodo's Teacher's College, but with World War II looming on the horizon, Jack joined the U.S. Air Force where he became mechanic crew chief and kept a variety of airplanes running good for our pilots in the air.

After the war, Jack was stationed in China for two years. Upon returning to the states, Jack was stationed at Selfridge Air Force Base and that is where he met and married the love of his life, Rae Weech, who was also serving in the military in the WAFS. It was a military wedding and everyone in attendance was in full military dress. After a whirlwind three-day Niagara Falls honeymoon, Jack was assigned to Skullthorpe Air Force Base in England.

The first home of Jack and his new bride, Rae, was off base in Brancaster, England. After being honorably discharged, Jack entered the University of Alabama, where he graduated in 1955 with an ABA in mechanical engineering. Right after graduation, Jack and Rae had their now three children, Rob, John and Jackie. They drove from Tuscaloosa, Ala., to his new job with Boeing Aircraft in Seattle, Wash., all in their Hudson Hornet. While working in Boeing's air conditioning department, Jack took up square dancing and then calling and became one of the top square dance callers in the Northwest - "Silver Throat Nuckols"!

In 1969, Jack decided he had had enough of working for a big corporation and the family moved to the Rock Creek area south of Hansen, where his wife, Rae, was originally from. It wasn't long before they started their own business and named it Rock Creek Metal Craft.

Jack has now passed on, but after 43 years their business is still going strong and being run by their daughterin-law, Teresa Adair. Jack leaves behind his wife, Rae; their son, Rob; and Jack's brother, a doctor and author, Joe Nuckols. Jack and Rae have hundreds of friends all across the United States and in several other countries.

In lieu of flowers, donations should be made to Idaho Home Health and Hospice, whose wonderful people, especially Paul, Ramey and Brandy, helped Jack live out his final days at home.

In accordance with Jack's wishes, no service will be held. Jack Nuckols – You will surely be missed!

Howard B. 'Hap' Nelson

Aug. 3, 1919-Dec. 17, 2012

GOODING • Howard B. "Hap" Nelson, 93, a resident of Gooding, died, Monday, Dec. 17, 2012, at the Bennett Hills Care Center in Gooding. Howard was born Aug. 3, 1919, in Modesto, Calif., the son of George and Ina Nelson. He was raised and educated in Modesto, where he later worked as a beekeeper and farmer. In 1971, Howard and his brother, Clyde, and their mother, Ina, moved north of Gooding to farm and operate a Jersey dairy. Hap and Clyde retired and moved to Buhl in 1999 and then moved back to Gooding in 2006.

Howard enjoyed fishing, hunting, trapping and maintaining a few hives of bees. He liked to share the honey with friends and lend a hand to other people and spinning yarns. He was a member of the First Christian Church in Turlock, Calif. His family thanks Hap's new friends at Bennett Hills for the care they gave him.

He is survived by four brothers, Clyde of Gooding, Harvey and Norman of California, and Morris of Virginia; and a sister, Dorothy of California. He was preceded in death by his parents, one brother and one sister. A funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 20, at Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel, with the Rev. Andy Morris officiat ing. Services will conclude at the chapel. A private interment will take place at the Elmwood Cemetery in Gooding.

OBITUARIES

James Carlos Poulton

June 26, 1930-Dec. 16, 2012

OAKLEY • Our dearest, loving husband, father, grandfather, great-grandfather and friend, James Carlos Poulton, passed away Sunday, Dec. 16, 2012. He passed in his home in Oakley, Idaho, after a lengthy illness.

Jim was born June 26, 1930, in the "Cottonwood" area of Oakley, Idaho. Jim was the son of William Hyrum Poulton and Lulu Pearl Gerrard Poulton. He graduated from Oakley High School in 1948. Following high school, he served a two-year mission for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in the Northern States Mission (1950 to 1952).

He served two years in the U.S. Army during the Korean War, where he was stationed in Albuquerque, N.M., on the Sandia Nuclear base and worked as a military policeman (1953 to 1955). He graduated from Brigham Young University in 1958, where he met and married Mary Lou Hunt; together they had two daughters. Mary Lou passed away in 1966 after a prolonged illness. Jim married Reita Lynne Pollard in 1969. Lynne had two daughters and a son, and together they had three more daughters.

Jim worked for the U.S. Post Office for 28 years in Sacramento, Calif. He retired in 1992 and then returned to Oakley, where they owned and operated Poulton's Bed and Breakfast (three years) and Rockhaven Retirement Home (10 years). Jim has always been an active member of the LDS Church, serving in the Sunday school, Primary and Young Men's programs. He was also called as a stake and ward missionary and was a faithful home teacher.

He loved playing sports, especially softball and basketball, though his passion was for basketball. His high school team nicknamed him "Jump" and, throughout his life, he played on his church's basketball team and participated until the age of 74. In 2002, he played basketball at the St. George

Jim is survived by his wife, Lynne; three sisters, Ora Gene Poulton Port (Russell), Rachel Poulton Hale Bartholomew (Lee) and Elaine Poulton Hinds (Larry); eight children, Tara Lynne Ombach (Jay), Scott Robert Keller (Helena), Jamie Sue Poulton, Leslie Ann Peterson (Barry), Tamra Layne Torero (Paco), Shari Ann Poulton, Penny Lee Pack (Keith) and Nicole

JEROME • William Phillip Olson passed away Monday, Dec. 10, 2012. He was 87 years old.

William "Bill" was born Nov. 22, 1925, in San Diego, Calif. At the age of 5, he was adopted by Violette and Reynold Olson who lived in Los Angeles, Calif. On Dec. 9, 1942, at the age of 17, he enlisted in the Navy and served on the USS Pybus and the USS Wake Island. During his service on the Wake Island as a fire control man 3rd Class, he was injured during a battle and was sent to the naval hospital in Portsmouth, Va., to recover. He was honorably discharged from the Navy due to his wounds, and he returned to L.A. He became a motorcycle mechanic for the police de-dinner. We have been planning for this and have put aside some money to help with the costs. What are your ideas for entertaining on a budget?

Pillsbury has excellent tips on making a holiday celebration affordable: Shop early. Use coupons even if you don't usually do so. Invite people to bring a side dish or dessert they love. Set the time of your dinner a little later in the day; you will only feed your group once! Involve the grandkids in creating colorful table placecards. Forget the tablecloth, or use inexpensive craft paper as a substitute. Add touches to the table that are cost-free: use nature to help create a pretty table (pine needles, berries, pine cones). Focus on the food. How? A dish of plain green beans gets extra points when you sprinkle it with a few slivered almonds. Add honey and a sprinkle of nutmeg to cooked baby carrots. Add honey and to mashed sweet potatoes, or dried cranberries to spinach salad. Add candlelight. Other suggestions: borrow, don't buy, whenever you can; make a budget and stick to it; don't forget the holidaý music; be flexible; have fun.

Raise Chickens? You Have a New ButcheringOption

BY TETONA DUNLAP tdunlap@magicvalley.com

WENDELL • Do you raise chickens but not want to butcher them yourself?

A Wendell business will do it for you.

Alfred Kuhn opened Al's Poultry Processing in Wendell last year, but he's been processing his own chickens for years.

He learned how to butcher chickens while growing up.

"As a child I always had birds. I guess you could call me a 'bird enthusiast,'" he said.

Kuhn started the business after he took his chickens to a local man to be butchered and was unsatisfied with the results. Thus the idea for Al's Poul-Processing trv was hatched.

Kuhn uses two key pieces of equipment: a barrel-style plucker and a scalder, which keeps the water temperature at 150 degrees. The water is used to remove the feathers

SUN VALLEY • Sun Valley Resort will re-open The Konditorei, a restored German-Austrian-style patisserie, on Dec. 20.

Sun Valley's new director of culinary operations, John Murcko, re-invented the 50-year-old restaurant's cocoas and coffees, and breakfast and lunch menus will feature crepes, souffles, soups, salads, open-faced sandwiches and spaetzle.

Breakfast will be served from 7 to 11 a.m. and the lunch menu from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily. Expect a 20foot pastry display, servers dressed in custom-made Austrian uniforms and Kerry Christensen's 4-8 p.m. fireside zither performances during the holiday season.

"The grand re-opening of the Konditorei has been long awaited," Sun Valley spokesman Jack Sibbach said. "With the expertise of chef Murcko on hand, Sun Valley is reinforcing its reputation for world-class cuisine as well as world-class skiing and snowboarding." Murcko is transforming the resort's 14 restaurants. "I wanted to create a restaurant unique from others on the mountain," Murcko said. "The Konditorei offers visitors an authentic approach to Austrian dining that they won't find anywhere else."

GET TWO VEGETABLES ON THE TABLE AT ONCE

Small Steps toward a Local Foodshed

BY PAUL DUNN pdunn@magicvalley.com

HAILEY • Foodsheds are much on the minds these days of Hailey resident Cynthia Luck Carr and others in the Wood River Valley.

A foodshed is not a small, rough building for storing food, as the name implies, but rather in its ideal form a sustainable system for producing food in a particular area.

Carr calls it "soil-to-soil." "It's a beautiful cycle with minimal by-product if done with best practices," said Carr, 47, a holistic health counselor and educator who has lived in Hailey since 1990 and was volunteering last week at the Wood River Sustainability Center.

Here's how it works: The food – whatever it may be - begins life growing in soil.

tem," she said.

That system, Carr explained, wastes resources because much of the world's food is produced on a mass scale and distributed over long distances.

"Food may be cheap because the yields are higher, but that's through technology and machinery, not sustainable soil-to-soil farming."

According to Steve Hogan, 48, a Bellevue chef who now makes his living cooking on commercial boats, food produced in the valley using foodshed concepts comprises a small percentage of the area's overall food production.

"Most of the food coming into the valley is from elsewhere," said Hogan, who was visiting the Sustainability Center last week. "The food for people in the valley needs to be produced at least regionally if not locally. We have a very nutrientdepleted food source now, and it doesn't have to be that way."

Hogan doesn't expect that to change anytime soon.

"The timeline (for a developed foodshed in the valley) right now is unfathomable," he said.

It doesn't take much to upgrade a simple dish. Pair potatoes with string beans and add a mustard drizzle for a result that looks and tastes far from ordinary. And the preparation gets two vegetables on the table.

When you're working with only a few ingredients, it's important that they shine. Use a good-quality white wine vinegar, and make sure the string beans are tender. Woody beans get even worse when roasted.

Roasted Potatoes and Green Beans With Mustard Drizzle

6 to 8 servings.

- 3 pounds baking potatoes, peeled and cut into approximately 1-inch chunks (2 1/4 pounds after peeling) 4 tablespoons olive oil Salt Freshly ground black pepper 8 ounces string beans, trimmed and cut into 1- to 1 1/2-inch lengths
- 1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard 1 tablespoon white wine vinegar 1/2 teaspoon sugar 2 tablespoons chopped chives

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees. Have a large nonstick roasting pan at hand.

Combine the potatoes and 2 tablespoons of the oil in the pan, tossing to coat evenly. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Roast for 15 minutes, then turn the potatoes over. Roast for another 15 minutes.

Add the beans and toss to combine. Roast for 15 to 20 minutes, until the potatoes are tender and the beans are just starting to wrinkle.

Meanwhile, whisk together the mustard, vinegar, the remaining 2 tablespoons of oil, the sugar and chives in a medium bowl to form an emulsified dressing. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Transfer the roasted vegetables to a platter and drizzle with the dressing.

Cynthia Luck Carr fills a food container in her chicken coop.

"They are all so funny," said Carr, 47. "Arlene, for instance, is named after grandmy mother be-causing trouble and snatching food from the other hens."

Carr said she always wanted chickens but until recently circumstances prevented it.

"I didn't want to raise them alone, but now I have the space and support from Shawn," she said. "It's definitely a commitment. You can't just take off on vacation for two weeks without making provisions for them."

But despite her affection for the girls, another factor played heavily into Carr's decision to adopt the creatures: "The main reason is to have real eggs."

By real, she means eggs produced from naturally fed hens.

"The chickens are on pasture, and we know what they are eating," Davis said.

In addition to eating protein-rich layer pellets and "scratch" grains – Carr calls the ground corn and wheat "chicken candy" – the hens spend about five hours a day outside their fenced-in coop area scratching for bugs and eating grass and leaves.

they will peck until they can actually kill each other."

The Rewards

Besides eggs, amusement is high on Carr's list of chicken-related joys.

"I like to just sit out there and watch their silly, little antics and how they scratch," Carr said. "It's also fun to look out of my window and see them running around."

Davis takes a more pragmatic line: "It's probably the simplicity of them and the nutritional benefits of the eggs," he said.

Etelu suggest food and pets as the reasons some people will love the birds.

"The rewards are having fresh eggs every day and a couple home-grown chicken meals per year," she said, stressing the advantages of knowing the hens' diets and that they were raised in a stress-free environment. "They also make good pets if you handle them regularly, pick them up, carry them around, etc."

wire at least 48 inches tall. The supplies can be purchased at farm-supply stores.

Despite the high fencing, some smaller breeds of birds are clever escape artists and require a bit more persuasion to stay put.

"Sometimes it's necessary to clip their wings," Etelu said. "Smaller breeds can often fly right out of their enclosure. Clipping half of their wing feathers off will normally keep this from happening."

Coops are a more complicated matter.

Etelu stresses fully enclosing coops to protect hens from predators and weather.

PHOTOS BY PAUL DUNN • TIMES-NEWS

Most coops are made from wood and should have at least one nesting box for every three hens. In addition, the hens must be able to move freely in and out of the coop via a doorway about 1.5 feet wide by 2 feet high. It's critical the door be closed after the hens are in for the night.

"Unless you have a very good outside farm dog, you will need to have a way to close that doorway at night," she said. "In this area, skunks, weasels and foxes can get into your coop, especially at night, and can literally kill your entire flock in a matter of a few minutes."

Carr and Davis' coop cost about $400 to build with new materials.

The Expenses

Chicks cost $1.50 to $2 apiece, Carr said, and mature egg layers from $15 to $20 per hen in the Wood River Valley. Around Twin Falls, prices for younger laying hens run about $10, hens older than a year are about $5, and chicks are about $2 apiece, Etelu said.

Expenses for layer hen flocks are minimal, Etelu said. A 50-pound bag of feed, for instance, costs from $12 to $18, though prices are gradually increasing. Other expenses include worming medication every six months, de-lousing powder or injections every three to six months and straw or shaving to bed the coops.

The results, they said, are more nutritious eggs with less cholesterol. Last winter, the couple sold an average of six dozen eggs a week at $4 a dozen. The money, Carr said, paid for feed and coop expenses. At the time, the hens were laying about 14 eggs each a day; they're laying about eight eggs a day now, though the rate is gradually increasing.

The couple don't intend to eat Aretha and the others; they're content with the eggs and fertilizer they produce though Davis adds this caveat: "The girls are really good for chicken broth once they stop laying."

Plug your ears, Aretha ...

The Challenges

Keeping the coop clean and dealing with predators head Carr's list of chicken-raising difficulties.

"The coop is in a dark, muddy spot, so it's especially important to keep it clean," she said.

Predators such as skunks, raccoons and neighborhood dogs have so far snatched four of the couple's hens.

The birds get sick, too, and sometimes there's nothing owners can do about it, said Mona Etelu, poultry superintendent with Twin Falls County Cooperative Extension 4-H.

"As long as you keep them wormed and keep them deloused (free of mites or lice), they will generally stay healthy, but that isn't always the case," Etelu cautioned.

Harassment may also cause problems.

"Also, you may have a hen that is picked on by the other hens until they literally have to be removed from the flock in order to save their life," Etelu said. "Chickens are cannibalistic, and if they see red or pink skin or blood,

Space Needed

The industry standard, Carr said, is 2 square feet per bird in the pen, "though I think they need a lot more."

Etelu concurs with the industry standard, though with reservations.

"If you're going to keep them penned up, you need at least that much space per bird in the pen outside the coop, but more space is always better," she advised.

The Housing

Etelu suggested that pens enclosing hens adjacent to their coops should be constructed from T-posts and

A 'Recooked' Cheese that Tastes Anything But

OFF THE BEATEN AISLE

BY J.M. HIRSCH Associated Press

When it comes to food, "recooked" isn't generally a term met with much affection. The dairy world, however, gives us a fine exception in ricotta cheese.

Ricotta - Italian for recooked - isn't exactly a stranger to most Americans, who tend to love it in their lasagna and stuffed pasta shells. But as cheeses go, its versatility is vastly underappreciated, mostly because few people realize how it's made, or why that matters for how they use it.

So let's start there. Ricotta got its name because it is made literally by recooking the liquid left over from making other cheese, often mozzarella. This is possible because when the mozzarella or other cheeses are made, most but not all of the protein is removed from the liquid, usually cow's milk.

That leftover protein can be recooked and coagulated using a different, acid-based process (a rennet-based method is used to make the first batch of cheese). The result is a soft, granular cheese with a texture somewhere between yogurt and cottage cheese. The taste is mild, milky, salty and slightly acidic.

And that acid is key. When cheese is formed using acid, the proteins become heat resistant. In other words, the cheese doesn't melt. So ricotta falls in the same category as paneer, halloumi, queso blanco and other cheese that can be heated without melting. This is why ricotta is such a fine choice for lasagna, stuffed shells, ravioli and cheesecake. It heats wonderfully, but doesn't reduce to a pool of g00.

In Italy, there are many varieties of ricotta, including smoked and baked. In the U.S., most grocers carry only the more perishable soft, moist variety sold in tubs.

So now that you know what it is and why it won't melt, what should you do with it?

• You know it's great with pasta, but it also pairs wonderfully with that other Italian import - pizza! Top a red or white pizza with mounds of ricotta and bake as you normally would.

• Fill overturned portobello mushroom caps with ricotta mixed with chopped fresh herbs and garlic, then grill over medium heat until the bottoms are browned and the cheese is hot.

• Spike ricotta with honey and cinnamon, then layer in wide glasses with fresh berries for a parfait.

• Cut slits into boneless, skinless chicken breasts, then spoon herbed ricotta into the center. Dredge the stuffed chicken breasts through egg, flour and panko breadcrumbs, then bake.

Ricotta-Crab Quiche Bites

Start to finish: 30 minutes. Makes 30 bites.

Two 1.9-ounce packages frozen mini filo dough cups (15 cups per package) 1/2 cup part-skim ricotta cheese

2 eqqs

1/4 teaspoon garlic powder 1/4 teaspoon salt 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper 1/2 cup crab meat, finely chopped Grated Parmesan cheese Heat the oven to 400 degrees. Arrange the filo cups on a rimmed baking sheet. In a blender, combine the ricotta, eggs, garlic powder, salt and pepper. Blend until very smooth. Stir the crab meat into the egg mixture. Carefully spoon a bit of the mixture into each filo cup, filling each about threequarters full.

Sprinkle a bit of Parmesan over each cup, then bake for 15 to 20 minutes, or until the filling is set and starting to brown.

DINNER IN 30 MINUTES: LENTIL SALAD

BONNIE S. BENWICK The Washington Post

This meatless dish can serve as a main or side. It contains ingredients that might appeal to more sophisticated palates, such as halloumi cheese, the firm and salty curd usually made of goat's milk and sheep's milk. It is available at most large grocery stores and has a high melting point, which means it's great for grilling and even a quick pan saute.

Here it serves as the center of the action, surrounded by beautiful lentils (spring for the green Puy variety for best results), pomegranate seeds, green chili pepper, thin ribbons of zucchini and threads of red onion.

Serve with warm crusty bread.

Adapted from "Garlic: The Mighty Bulb," by Natasha Edwards (Firefly Books, 2012).

Warm Lentil and Halloumi Salad 4 servings.

1 cup green lentils, preferably Puy 2 cups cool water vegetable bouillon cube (may substitute 1 teaspoon powdered vegetable bouillon) small zucchini (about 5 ounces total) medium red onion
 small green chili pepper
 medium cloves garlic

Handful cilantro leaves, with tender stems

1/4 cup pomegranate arils (seeds) 3 tablespoons olive oil

Sea or kosher salt Freshly ground black pepper

About 8 ounces halloumi cheese (see headnote)

Pick over the lentils and rinse to remove any foreign matter. Drain and place in a large saucepan. Add the water, making sure the lentils are covered by about an inch. Add the bouillon cube and bring to a boil over high heat, stirring to make sure the bouillon cube has dissolved, then reduce the heat to medium, cover and cook for 15 to 20 minutes; the lentils should be just tender. Drain, transfer to a mixing bowl and cover to keep warm.

Meanwhile, use a vegetable peeler to cut the zucchini lengthwise into thin ribbons. Cut the onion into very thin slices. Stem, seed and mince the green chili pepper. Crush, then mince the garlic. Add the zucchini slices, onion, chili pepper, garlic, cilantro, pomegranate seeds and 2 tablespoons of the oil to the warm lentils; toss gently to incorporate. Season with salt and pepper to taste.

Heat the remaining tablespoon of oil in a large nonstick skillet over medium heat. Cut the cheese into 1/2-inch-thick rectangular slices. Lightly season on both sides with salt and black pepper. Add to the skillet and cook for 2 to 4 minutes on each side until the surface of the cheese is golden brown. Remove from the heat.

Re-stir the lentil salad and season with salt and/or black pepper as needed. Divide among individual plates. Place equal portions of the warm halloumi slices on top of each portion. Serve right away.

Our Famous Salad Bar

ERIC RISBERG · ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bartender Nico Reynders makes three different drinks from vodka at the Bistro Boudin in San Francisco. Booze with multiple personalities, like the best kind of party guests, can adapt to the situation.

Raise the Cocktail Bar with Versatile Liquors

BY MICHELLE LOCKE Associated Press

What you want: A festive bar that will add panache to your next holiday party. What you don't want: Having to spend oodles of cash on a confusing array of bottles you're not sure how to use.

The solution? Pick booze that – like the best kind of guest – is flexible, able to take on different roles as party dynamics dictate.

So we asked three bartenders to come up with one liquor and three ways to serve it and got the following suggestions.

Versatile Vodka

At Bistro Boudin in San Francisco's historic Fisherman's Wharf, bartender Nicholas Reynders goes for the classic clear spirit, vodka

He'd first serve it as a blueberry-tini, mixing a shot of vodka with 1/2 ounce of simple syrup (equal parts sugar and water heated until the sugar is melted, then cooled) and 12 fresh blueberand serve over ice with a splash of soda water.

For the simplest treatment, he recommends a shot of vodka, an equal amount simple syrup, and a squeeze of lime and lemon juice all shaken over ice and strained into a martini glass.

A cocktail party doesn't have to be elaborate, says Reynders. Shaker, jigger, mixing glass and you're halfway there. "A little extra shake doesn't hurt for the perfect chilled martini?

Mezcal Mixology

Sombra Mezcal founder Richard Betts recommends this smoky spirit for holiday get-togethers because "it mixes well in drinks from margaritas to Manhattans. It can be great neat and, if it's that kind of party, it's a great shot, too?

Plus it fits into his party philosophy. "Have a point of view. You cannot be everything to everyone, so pick something and geek out on it. Mezcal is a great example because you're exploring the real agave spirit of Mexico there's quality mezcal to be found.

For his triple-play approach, Betts suggests making a batch of a modified version of the saint's eve cocktail on the Sombra website devised by Jim Meehan, author of "The PDT Cocktail Book: The Complete Bartender's Guide from the Celebrated Speakeasy" - 2 ounces mezcal, 3/4 ounce lime juice, 3/4 ounce pineapple juice, 1 bar spoon of agave nectar and a sprig of tarragon to garnish.

As a counterpunch to that citrusy concoction he'd mix up a mezcal Manhattan with 2 1/2 ounces mezcal, 3/4 ounce sweet vermouth, a dash of Angostura bitters, 1 maraschino cherry and an orange peel garnish.

And, finally, he'd serve mezcal neat. "It is the best way for people to really appreciate how special it is?"

Blendable Bourbon

Growing up in Kentucky, bourbon was a holiday staple on the bar and the kitchen,

A uniquely American spirit, bourbon is versatile and complex. Zoeller doesn't recommend masking the flavor in a cocktail, but instead finding ingredients that complement the vanilla and caramel flavors of the whiskey.

He'd make an old fashioned, which "screams holiday season with its warmth and balance?' Mix 1 3/4 ounces bourbon with a dash of water and a dash or two of Angostura bitters, mixing all in an old fashioned glass and adding ice cubes.

He's also come up with something he calls seasons greetings from Kentucky -2ounces Jefferson's Very Small Batch Bourbon, 1 ounce Carpano Antica sweet vermouth, 1 ounce applejack, stirred over ice and strained into a coupe glass.

His third approach is bourbon spice cider, made of 2 quarts of spiced cider, 2 cinnamon sticks, 1 teaspoon whole cloves, a pinch each of nutmeg and allspice and 1 tablespoon orange peel. The cider makes enough for about eight cocktails. Simmer the cider with spices for 15 to 20 minutes. Pour 2 ounces of bourbon in each mug, pour 8 ounces of strained spiced hot cider over the bourbon and garnish with a cinnamon stick.

Corner of Blue Lakes & 2nd Ave. E

ries. Combine all with ice in a shaker, then shake, strain and serve in a martini glass.

For a second treatment he starts by muddling a bit of cantaloupe in a shaker. (Muddling is a bartenders' term for mushing fruit, veggies or herbs in the bottom of a glass or shaker. You can do this with a special tool called, logically, a muddler, or just use a wooden spoon.) Add 1 1/2 ounces vodka plus an equal amount of simple syrup, shake with ice, strain and this is cool?"

A quick primer on mezcal, a distilled spirit made from the maguev plant, a type of agave. When the spirit is made from the blue agave and comes from certain designated areas, it's tequila. So while all tequila is mezcal, not all mezcal is tequila. In the past, mezcal outside Mexico has often been of poor quality and contained a worm in the bottle, a marketing gimmick dreamed up in the 1940s. These days, playing an integral role in seasonal dishes, says Trey Zoeller, founder of Jefferson's Bourbon.

His grandma's bourbon pecan pie capped off the night and when people visited she "didn't ask what you wanted to drink; rather, she asked, 'how do you take your bourbon?""

A Double-whipped Eggnog to Set the Holiday Mood

BY ELIZABETH KARMEL Associated Press

For me, eggnog season can't come soon enough. I drink it little by little, spiked and not. I make eggnog cappuccinos in the morning and eggnog milkshakes at night. On the weekends, there is nothing like French toast made with eggnog.

But the best eggnog of the season is the frothy cloud-like homemade eggnog I make for Christmas cocktails. Before I go any further, I should mention that while I use raw eggs in my recipe, you should feel free to use pasteurized eggs if that concerns you. The results will be just as good.

My love of homemade eggnog started at a young age. I was a pre-teen when my best friend and I discovered our love for making festive libations – way before we really knew what a cocktail was. We made "Jack Frost" lemonade in the summer and one fall and winter we went through a homemade eggnog stage. Meaning we made it from scratch and drank it every day for several months. My first attempt at making eggnog was very simple - whipped eggs, cold milk and sugar with fresh grated nutmeg. If you are an eggnog lover, you know that the nutmeg is key! Soon, I graduated to Level 2 eggnog, which involves folding in whipped egg whites. You can make it without separating the eggs and whipping them individually, but it is nothing like the ethereal eggnog with the whipped egg whites. Because there are so few ingredients, it is essential that the eggs and milk be as fresh and as high quality as you can find. As an adult, I have graduated to a Level 3 eggnog, which includes whipped egg whites and whipped cream folded into the sweetened egg and milk base. I sweeten all three components with superfine sugar – the yolks, the egg whites and the cream - for a more balanced and silkier eggnog. Superfine sugar dissolves more easily than traditional white sugar, producing a smoother, creamier texture. If you don't have it on hand, you can make your own by pulsing regular granulated white sugar in a food processor. I like making the eggnog without alcohol, then spiking individual servings with bourbon. That way, you can serve everyone from the same bowl.

4 large eggs, yolks and whites separated 1/4 cup, plus 2 tablespoons superfine sugar Pinch sea salt 2 cups whole milk 1 teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg, divided 1 cup heavy cream 1 teaspoon vanilla extract Bourbon, to serve (optional)

In a large bowl, whisk the egg yolks until they are a light golden color, about 1 to 2 minutes. Gradually add the 1/4 cup of sugar and the salt, beating until the sugar is completely dissolved. Add the milk and half of the nutmeg, then beat until slightly frothy.

In a large bowl, use an electric mixer to beat the egg whites until they hold soft peaks. With the mixer running, sprinkle in 1 tablespoon of the remaining sugar and whip until the egg whites form stiff peaks. Folk the egg whites into the yolk mixture until light and airy with no lumps. Cover and refrigerate for at least 2 hours. Just before serving, place the cold cream in a large chilled bowl. Use an electric mixer to beat until the cream forms soft peaks. With the mixer still running, gradually add the remaining 1 tablespoon of sugar and the vanilla. Beat until firm peaks form and there is no liquid left. Fold the whipped cream into the eggnog, sprinkle with the remaining nutmeg, and serve.

French Toast as Stuffed and Jolly as Santa Himself

BY ALISON LADMAN Associated Press

If you can make a peanut butter and jelly sandwich and fry an egg, you already have all the skills needed to make this incredible Christmas morning stuffed French toast.

We start with cinnamon swirl bread and make sandwiches using cream cheese spiked with dried cranberries and crystalized ginger. Dunk the sandwiches in eggs blended with cinnamon and a bit more ginger, then toss them in the pan. But don't forget the maple syrup!

Want to get a jump on this the night before? Prepare the sandwiches up to the step of soaking them in the egg mixture. Refrigerate them until morning, then proceed as directed. You'll have delicious French toast on the table in less time than it takes for the kids to empty their stockings.

STEPHANIE WITT SEDGWICK

Special to The Washington Post

A dish from Morocco, a spicy blend of chicken and fruit, inspired this one. Far from authentic, it's my interpretation using ingredients I already had in my pantry. It's full of flavor, sweet and savory at the same time, and pretty easy to throw together.

It's also excellent reheated, so it's a perfect candidate for making a day ahead.

An Easy, Hearty Dinner for When You Deck the Halls

BY J.M. HIRSCH Associated Press

Here's the thing about decorating for Christmas. It should be fun. It should be an occasion. It should involve delicious food.

But since your attention really should be on the decorating – and getting all those (expletive deleted) lights untangled – the food you serve needs to be fast, easy and mostly hands off.

When I was a kid, the night we put up and decorated the tree was a shrimp feast. We bought many - too many pounds of cooked shrimp, then paired them with a bunch of sauces for dipping, some sparkling cider and a purchased dessert. Done. It was special, but also effortless and allowed easy grazing while hanging ornaments.

These days, I like to put a little more effort into it. But not much. That's why I came up with this medley of roasted vegetables and sausage. You basically season a bunch of produce and arrange it on baking sheets. Toss on some sausage, then pop the whole thing in the oven while you sweep up the glass decorations your child just smashed.

Keeping the vegetables separate on the baking sheets not only makes for an attractive presentation (it resembles a Cobb salad, from which the dish takes its name), it also lets you easily add faster cooking items toward the end of the cooking time.

Roasted Cobb Salad

Start to finish: 1 hour (10 minutes active). Servings: 8.

- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1 teaspoon smoked paprika
- 1 teaspoon garlic powder
- Kosher salt
- 1 pound butternut squash, peeled, seeded and cubed
- 1 head cauliflower, cored and cut into small florets
- 4 tablespoons olive oil, divided
- Ground black pepper
- 1 pound carrots, cut into 1-inch chunks
- 1 tablespoon fennel seeds
- 1 pound Brussels sprouts, bottoms trimmed
- 2 tablespoons molasses
- 2 pounds sweet or spicy Italian sausages

Heat the oven to 425 degrees. Coat 2 rimmed baking sheets with cooking spray.

In a large bowl, mix the cornstarch, cumin, smoked paprika, garlic powder and 1 teaspoon of salt. Add the squash and toss until well coated. Arrange the squash in an even layer at one end of one of the baking sheets; it should take up about half of the sheet. Spritz the squash liberally with cooking spray. Wipe out the bowl, the add the cauliflower and drizzle with 2 tablespoons of the oil. Toss, then add 1 teaspoon of black pepper and toss again. Arrange next to the squash on the baking sheet. Bake for 35 to 45 minutes. Meanwhile, add the carrots to the bowl (no need to wipe it out). Drizzle with 1 tablespoon of the remaining oil, the fennel seeds and 1/2 teaspoon each of salt and pepper. Toss well, then arrange on one half of the second baking sheet. Add the Brussels sprouts to the bowl (no need to wipe it out), drizzle with the molasses and the remaining oil. Toss well, then arrange next to the carrots.

Arrange the sausages over the Brussels sprouts and carrots. After the squash and cauliflower have roasted for 15 minutes, add the second baking sheet and roast both for another 20 to 30 minutes, or until the vegetables and sausages are browned and tender. Serve directly from the baking sheets.

Per serving: 340 calories; 150 calories from fat (44 percent of total calories); 17 g fat (4.5 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 35 mg cholesterol; 29 g carbohydrate; 7 g fiber; 10 g sugar; 23 g protein; 1090 mg sodium.

How Four Teams Are Coping with Injuries to Star Players.

LATE GAME

BY RYAN HOWE

rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Star players from girls basketball teams seem to be dropping like flies.

Four all-conference-caliber athletes in the Mini-Cassia area alone have lost time due to injuries this season: Minico's Chloe Bradford, Declo's Chancey Knopp, Oakley's Mallory Critchfield and Raft River's Wynter Holtman.

First, it was Bradford. At a tournament last summer, the junior forward tore the ACL and meniscus in her knee. She underwent surgery the end of July.

Rehab wasn't something she necessarily looked forward to, but she says it wasn't that bad, either.

"As long as I kept motivated and kept my goal in mind to get back, then it was a piece of cake," Bradford said.

The hardest part was the anticipation, waiting to get back on the court with her teammates. Bradford's target return date was Jan. 4, but her doctor signed her off three weeks early and she made her debut last Thursday in the Spartans' 54-40 win over Canyon Ridge. Bradford scored seven points in about five minutes of playing time as coach Terry Merrill gradually works her back into the rotation.

"It feels so good to play again," Bradford said.

Since Minico graduated its top two scorers from last year (Marlee Chandler and Micaela Merrill averaged 25 points combined), this was supposed to be Bradford's breakout season. It still could be, but how will her return affect the team's chemistry? Despite a 5-6 record, the Spartans had a three-game winning streak going into Tuesday's game at Century.

"That's been my biggest concern because it's halfway through the season and the girls have a set thing," said Bradford.

Declo's Knopp can relate.

"I don't know how it's going to work," the senior captain says about returning in a couple weeks from an ankle injury.

During Declo's Dec. 4 home game against Buhl, Knopp landed wrong and, despite wearing a brace, her ankle buckled. Since then, she has been wearing a boot, Please see WOUNDED, S2 sidelined with a grade II ankle sprain.

Knopp, was the only returning starter from the 2011-12 team that finished third at state in Class 2A. She averaged seven points and 2.6 assists per game last year and was expected to carry the scoring load this season. Since her injury, the Hornets are 1-4.

Declo coach Dennie Smyer said a silver lining to Knopp's injury is other players have been given the chance to step up. Knopp has filled her role as leader from the bench, trying to support and cheer her teammates.

"It's been pretty tough, I'm not going to lie," Knopp said. "But the girls have stepped up pretty well. It's hard where it's my senior year, just to sit back and watch them have fun and try to be successful and I can't be a part of it."

Similar to Declo, Raft River has struggled without its top player.

A three-year starter, Holtman averaged 12 points and 12.7 rebounds per game last year for Raft River. However, the Trojans are currently on a fivegame losing streak after the basketball season and probably the track season, according to her father and Hornets assistant coach Dave Critchfield.

It was a devastating blow to a team that was sure to be centered around its star senior, who had shown promise by scoring 19 points in Oakley's season opener.

The Hornets are doing their best to move on without her, hovering around .500. The injury has forced younger players into a bigger varsity role perhaps before they were ready, but Oakley coach Matt Payton refuses to play the injury card.

"You can use excuses all you want, but at the end of the day somehow you've got to get it done," Payton said after his team's loss at Declo on Dec. 10.

Players and coaches understand injuries are inherent in sports, and they try to make the best of the situation.

"The great thing about (Bradford's) injury, if there was one, is that the other girls have learned to step up and have gotten a lot of game experience. We're now that much deeper," said Merrill.

Bradford said her injury has helped her become less selfish and a better leader.

New York Jets quarterback Mark Sanchez (6) scrambles away from Tennessee Titans defensive end Kamerion Wimbley (95) in the second quarter of an NFL game on Monday in Nashville, Tenn.

Jets Bench Sanchez, Will Start McElroy vs Chargers

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Mark Sanchez is no longer the New York Jets' franchise quarterback.

He might not even be the backup.

Rex Ryan decided to bench Sanchez on Tuesday in favor of Greg McElroy after the fourth-year quarterback had another miserable performance in a 14-10 loss at Tennessee on Monday night that eliminated New York from playoff contention.

"I think it's best for our team, and for this game," Ryan said during a conference call.

So, it'll be McElroy under center for his first NFL start when the Jets (6-8) play the San Diego Chargers at home Sunday. Ryan hasn't decided whether Sanchez or Tim Tebow — listed as the No. 2 quarterback — will be the backup.

While Sanchez blew the second chance Ryan gave him a few weeks ago, Tebow was leapfrogged by a thirdstringer, fueling speculation that the team has little confidence in him as a quarterback.

"I have to look at what I think is the best for the team and not necessarily the individual," Ryan said. "I'll say this about Tim and I've always said it: I know he wants to help this team be successful in the worst way and there's no doubt about that."

Sanchez threw four interceptions Monday night and wasn't able to handle a low snap with the game on the line, ending the Jets' hopes to get back into the postseason.

Things got worse after the game for Sanchez, who received a series of death threats from one disgruntled fan on Twitter. League spokesman Greg Aiello said the NFL's security staff was aware of the man's threats and was working with the Jets to assist on the matter. The team declined comment through a spokesman.

Ryan said after the loss that he wasn't ready to decide who would start against the Chargers, but told Sanchez he would be making a change at quarterback by going with either McElroy or Tebow.

"He respected my decision," Ryan said. "That's not easy, that's for sure."

After talking to his staff

Coach Saban, Alabama Going

and members of the organization Tuesday, Ryan chose McElroy.

"This is my opinion, and I do believe that it's best for our team that Greg is our quarterback," Ryan insisted. "I'm the guy that's making this decision. Every decision I make is based on what I believe is the best decision for the team."

But Ryan was vague in his answers to why he selected McElroy above Tebow, choosing after being asked several times to not go into detail about what specifically factored into the decision.

"I can answer this question a million ways, frontward, backward, sideways, anything else," Ryan said. "It's my decision and I based it on a gut feeling or whatever."

McElroy, a seventh-round pick last year out of Alabama, helped lead the Jets to a 7-6 win over Arizona on Dec. 2 when Ryan pulled Sanchez from that game late in the third quarter. McElroy had modest numbers – 5 of 7 for 29 yards – but threw for the only touchdown of the game, and nearly led another scoring drive as the Jets ran out the clock.

A&M's Johnny Football Is AP's Player of the Year

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Johnny Manziel ran for almost 1,700 yards and 30 touchdowns as a dualthreat quarterback his senior year of high school at Kerrville Tivy.

Who would have thought he'd be even more impressive at Texas A&M when pitted against the defenses of the Southeastern Conference?

On Tuesday, Manziel picked up another major award for his spectacular debut season. He was voted The Associated Press Player of the Year. As with the Heisman Trophy and Davey O'Brien Award that Manziel already won, the QB nicknamed Johnny Football is the first freshman to collect the AP award.

Manziel's 31 votes were more than twice that of second place finisher Manti Te'o, Notre Dame's start linebacker. He is the third straight Heismanwinning quarterback to receive the honor, following Robert Griffin III and Cam Newton.

losing Holtman to a shoulder injury sustained during a practice.

Oakley is not so lucky. In just the second game of the season, Critchfield suffered a serious knee injury similar to Bradford's. Critchfield had surgery and will miss the remainder of "It's taught me to have a lot of patience and to forget about myself and focus on the team," she said. "When you focus on yourself, poor me, it makes it that much worse... I honestly can't say it's been a bad experience for me. Obviously I would have liked it better if my ACL wasn't torn, but I've learned so much. I'm really grateful for this opportunity."

through December Traditions

ASSOCIATED PRESS

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. • It must be December because Alabama is preparing for a national title game and Nick Saban's future is a popular topic.

The second-ranked Crimson Tide started practicing Tuesday for the BCS championship game Jan. 7 against No. 1 Notre Dame with All-America center Barrett Jones on the mend and Saban laughing off rumors about returning to the NFL.

"We're really, really pleased and happy to be here," the former Miami Dolphins coach said Tuesday after the first bowl practice. "We've been able to accomplish a lot. But like I've talked about before, this is a work in progress all the time. You've got to stay focused on the process to try to continue to make the next game the most important game, the next season the most important season, developing the team every year.

"We certainly look forward to those challenges. I'm not sure, regardless of what I say, that anybody believes what I say because I say it all the time. This is what we're happy doing. This is what we like to do. But nobody really believes that. So, you know, maybe it doesn't matter. I don't know what I have to say or do, but it's kind of funny to me," he said.

Saban and Alabama will try to capture their third national title in four years.

The Tide will practice five days before taking a threeday break for Christmas.

Jones won't practice until after the team returns after spraining his left foot in the first quarter of the Southeastern Conference championship game against Georgia, a 32-28 victory that ended with the Bulldogs on Alabama's 5-yard line.

"I will be playing in the game," said Jones, who won the Rimington Award as the nation's top center a year after claiming the Outland Trophy while playing left tackle.

Portland Trail Blazers guard Damian Lillard (0) reacts after hitting the game-winning shot during an NBA game against the New Orleans Hornets in Portland, Ore., Sunday.

Rookie Damian Lillard Blazes a Trail in Portland

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PORTLAND, Ore. • Damian Lillard usually sticks to the rookie script, rarely showing much excitement.

But when the Trail Blazers' guard sank the gamewinning 3-pointer against New Orleans last week, he celebrated by high-fiving a fan seated near the bench.

"I have no idea who it was," Lillard said, laughing. "He was the first guy that I saw."

Lillard, playing with a veteran's poise and a rookie's humility, is the early favorite for Rookie of the Year.

"I think he's a wonderful player," said San Antonio Spurs coach Gregg Popovich. "His skills are obvious but I like his demeanor as much as I like his skills. He really plays within himself, he's not afraid of contact and he understands how to take advantage of situations."

Popovich knows. Lillard dropped 29 points on his Spurs last Thursday in a 98-90 Portland win. Then he hit the game-winning 3 with 0.3 seconds left in a 95-84 victory over the Hornets on Sunday night.

Lillard was the sixth overall pick in the June draft out of Weber State, where he was a two-time Big Sky Conference player of the year. He averaged 24.5 points, five rebounds and four assists as a junior with the Wildcats before declaring early for the draft.

From the start, Trail Blazers general manager Neil Olshey called him the team's "franchise point guard." Lillard was the key component as Portland rebuilt around LaMarcus Aldridge, Nicolas Batum and Wesley Matthews after finishing 28-38 and out of the playoffs last season.

"You can break his game down and quantify the shooting, the ball handling, the assist to turnover ratio, the pick-and-roll efficiency. What can't be quantified is his leadership ability and the gravitas he carries himself with as a young player," Olshey said.

Are you eligible?

You may qualify based on your income or if you're currently eligible to receive public assistance such as Medicaid, Food Stamps (SNAP) or Supplemental Security Income (SSI). Your eligibility varies by state. If you're a resident of federally recognized Tribal Lands, you may qualify for additional discounts.

Residents of federally recognized Tribal Lands can apply by calling 1-800-937-8997. Idahoans who do not reside on Tribal Lands can visit www.idahocommunityaction.org and select programs to learn more and apply Discounted wireless service is provided under the Lifeline assistance program. Lifeline is a government assistance program that provides only eligible consumers with discounted service that is nontransferable and is available for only one line per household. A household is defined, for purposes of the Lifeline program, as any individual or group of individuals living at the same address that share income and expenses. T-Mobile offers Lifeline service only in areas where the company has Eligible Telecommunications Carrier status. You may find more information about Lifeline and other wireless services available from T-Mobile USA, Inc. at www.T-Mobile.com.

Limited time offer; subject to change. Taxes and fees additional; other fees may apply. Domestic only. Coverage Coverage not available everywhere. Nights and Weekends: Weekends are midnight Friday to midnight Sunday and nights are 9:00 p.m. to 6:59 a.m. Monday-Friday, based upon start time of call. Time of call usually based or location of equipment transmitting call; if location is not available, time of call based on time zone associated with your phone number. Network Management: Data traffic of Premium and Ultra plans will be prioritized over other currently offered plans during periods of congestion. Service may be slowed, suspended, terminated or restricted for misuse, abnormal use, interference with our network or ability to provide quality service to other users, or significant roaming. See brochures and Terms and Conditions (including arbitration provision) at www.T-Mobile.com for additional information regarding T-Mobile service and products, including important limitations on availability and reliability of 9-1-1 emergency service when using Wi-Fi Calling. © 2012 T-Mobile USA. Jazz Rally, Then Hold On to Beat Nets

NBA ROUNDUP

NEW YORK • Mo Williams scored 19 points, Al Jefferson had 16 points and 11 rebounds, and the Utah Jazz beat the Brooklyn Nets 92-90 Tuesday night despite nearly throwing away the victory.

Utah turned it over on two inbounds passes in the final 31 seconds, the last leading to a Nets steal. They pushed it up and got a potential goahead 3-pointer from Gerald Wallace that missed. The Jazz escaped when Reggie Evans' follow shot was no good as time expired.

Derrick Favors added 13 points against his former franchise for the Jazz, who

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"The trouble with people is not that they don't know but that they know so much that ain't so." Josh Billings (Henry Wheeler Shaw)

Against your four spades, reached after North's cue-bid of two diamonds, which was artificial and said nothing about diamonds (it merely showed a highcard limit raise in spades). West leads a diamond to his partner's jack. At trick two East returns the heart king. Plan the play.

This may look like a standard elimination-type hand (in which you eliminate hearts and try to duck a club to East to give you a trick in either hearts or clubs). However, with such small club spots in both your hands, that line is unlikely to work.

Instead, look at your diamonds. That is the suit where the good spot cards will come into play. Since the bidding and play thus far tell you that East must surely have the diamond ace, you can take ruffing finesses through him to establish discards for yourself.

Win the heart ace, play the trump ace and a trump to dummy, and advance the diamond king, ruffing out East's ace. At this point you can lead another spade to dummy and pass the diamond 10, discarding a club.

West can win with his queen and shift to a club, but you win the club switch with the ace and cash the diamond eight, discarding your last club loser. You then give up a heart and ruff the last heart in dummy. You end up losing two diamonds and one heart, but no clubs.

ANSWER: Though your club honors are well placed, you are not really worth a gametry. Partner could have jumped to three spades with anything approaching extras, so he rates to be balanced and minimum (with only three spades on a really bad day). I could understand moving on with the spade 10 in addition to your assets, but here discretion looks to be the better part of valor — so pass.

York threw out the convictions of five young men from Harlem in a 1989 attack on a Central Park jogger who'd been raped and left for dead. Roh Moo-hyun won South Korea's presidential election.

Five years ago: President George W. Bush signed legislation increasing fuel-efficiency standards for vehicles and requiring wider use of ethanol. An explosion and fire at a chemical plant in Jacksonville, Fla., killed four workers. An express train derailed in southern Pakistan, killing at least 40 people. Former Hyundai CEO Lee Myung-bak won South Korea's presidency. Rescuers found Frederick Dominguez and his three children, who had been lost in the mountains for three days during a snowstorm, alive in a northern California ravine.

One year ago: North Korea announced the death of leader Kim Jong Il, two days after he died; North Koreans marched by the thousands to mourn their "Dear Leader" while state media proclaimed his youngest son, Kim Jong Un, a "Great Successor." Paroled American Lori Berenson, who stirred international controversy after being convicted of aiding Peruvian guerrillas, left on a flight to the United States for her first visit back home since Peruvian authorities arrested her in 1995.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 31year-old, never-married mother of two. Last summer I started having an affair with "Jordan," the father of my first child. He left me when our daughter was a year old and has been engaged for three years in an on-again, off-again relationship. 704

Pets and Pet Supplies

OLD ENGLISH BULLDOGS 1 male.

2 females, 3 months old, all shots,

I could give you excuses about why the affair started up again, but the truth is we both knew it was wrong and continued to do it anyway. I never stopped loving him and I thought it would bring him back to me.

Today I found out from Jordan's fiancee that they have set their wedding date for next spring. She said they would like for me to come. As if it wouldn't be painful enough to go to the wedding, his fiancee has also asked me to do her hair for the occasion. (I'm a hairstylist.)

Abby, Jordan and I are still having an affair. I want to tell her, but I don't want him to hate me. I believe this wedding is a big mistake for many reasons, not just the obvious. Please give me some outside advice.

- CAN'T HELP MYSELF IN OHIO DEAR CAN'T HELP YOURSELF: OK, the first thing to do is wake up, smell the coffee and accept that resuming the sexual relationship with Jordan has not had the desired effect. He WILL be marrying someone else.

Next, concentrate on saving yourself and waste no more of your time on him that is, if you would like a permanent, monogamous relationship with someone. Jordan has given you ample proof that he is incapable of being faithful to one woman.

And last, tell his fiancee that you do not plan to attend the wedding or do her hair because you are in love with Jordan and have been sleeping with him since last summer.

DEAR ABBY: I have known my husband for seven years and I love him very much, but I am no longer "in love" with him. Somehow along the way the spark has fizzled.

We have a wonderful family and have been through so much together. I don't want a divorce. I want to make our marriage work, and so does he. So how do I get my spark back?

– SPARKLESS IN TEXAS DEAR SPARKLESS: That you and your husband want your marriage to work means it is capable of being resuscitated. While you didn't give any details, it is possible that you have been "through so much" that it didn't allow you to concentrate on each other. Exhaustion and distraction can cause a spark to fizzle.

A way to reignite it would be to spend more time alone together, participate in activities you both enjoy, and make time on a regular basis to talk, relax and touch each other. And if necessary, enlist the services of a licensed marriage counselor.

DEAR ABBY: My sister relinquished custody of her kids in a divorce 30 years ago. I recently made contact with them to re-establish lost ties. The contact I made with the daughter has been a wonderful success. The other resulted in complete – and understandable – rejection.

Now my sister, who didn't want to open the door, blames me for her heartache because her son rejected her. Was I wrong for bringing at least one of them back into the family?

- SISTER IN THE SOUTH

DEAR SISTER: Because you did it over your sister's objections, I think you were. While the daughter seems interested in establishing contact – at least for now – your sister has now "lost" her son TWICE. And if the daughter eventually backs off, your sister will be zero for two.

IF DECEMBER 19 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Relax and enjoy the year to come. You may wish to take up yoga or meditation to maintain your inner serenity, as you are more sensitive to the atmospheres around you than usual. During the next six to eight weeks, your ambitions may be tweaked and you may have a better idea of how to improve material security. Look for the silver lining or grab the brass ring in June when you are luckier than usual and your business judgment is better than average. Opportunities that come your way then may lead to improved conditions and boost your spirits.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Eager beavers have the edge. Let other people know you are enthused about a new project, an event or a study. If you do your best, this might be the time to get a bonus or reward for a job well done.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be a sharp cookie. Know when to speak and when to keep quiet. Levelheaded bargaining can help you come to a comfortable agreement, but there may be too many strings attached. Finish all projects.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Float like a butterfly, sting like a bee. You can knock out the competition by being knowledgeable about the subject of discussion. Take advantage of every opportunity to excel at your job or business.

CÁNCER (June 21-July 22): Follow your dreams and don't be limited by the past. Although you may need to work to earn your bread and butter, the things you create within may be the most valuable. Hold off on major purchases.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Help others succeed to help yourself succeed. Those in close association may feel the pressure of a tight schedule. You can offer assistance, lighten the load and earn gratitude and respect at the same time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Sometimes you try too hard. You may be set on winning the heart of a significant other or on reaching a career ambition and push for a commitment when you should remain footloose and fancy-free.
