'I Told God I Didn't Want to Die'

Couple Getting Peace of Mind Back Six Months after Gun-point Home Invasion.

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

BUHL • At about 6 a.m. Aug. 7, Leo Ray was reading and snoozing in an armchair in his living room. Then — a loud knock on the front door.

Employees for his company, Fish Processors of Idaho, regularly start work near his home at 6:30 a.m., so the early knock wasn't too unusual, he said.

But, as he opened the door, Leo was met with three gun barrels in his face. After 30 dangerous seconds of thinking it was a prank, Leo said he was shoved inside the house.

"One said, 'Listen, we're here to rob you and we want your money,'" Leo said.

One of the men held a gun to his left temple with a hand on his right shoulder, while another man held a gun to Leo's right temple, resting a hand on his left shoulder. Those two men were later identified as Dylan Contreras, 20, and John Valenciano Jr., also now 20. Another person, later identified as a 16-year-old boy accused of helping the other two, stood across the room with a rope and a gun in his hands.

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

After the home invasion of the Ray home last August, they installed a camera to see who's at the door.

All three wore bandanas over their faces, Leo said.

Leo said he repeatedly told the three the only money in the house was in his wallet.

"I said, 'There's no money here; that's what banks are for,'" he said.

After a few minutes, Leo said one of the men asked if anyone else was home, then took Leo into the bedroom where his wife, Judy, was still in bed.

"I was just waking up," Judy said. "I heard murmuring."

As the quiet conversation continued, Judy said she knew something was wrong. Then, the three masked men and Leo entered the room. Almost immediately one of the men was at her side, threatening to shoot her. Soon, Judy and Leo were both tied up, face-down, on their bed.

Dairies Invest in Training after Animal Abuse

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesti@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Idaho dairy employers are working to improve their application and hiring process following an incident of alleged animal abuse last fall.

The improved vetting process stems from the lingering backlash over hidden camera footage reportedly of animal cruelty at Dry Creek Dairy, just southwest of Murtaugh.

The footage showed a cow being dragged out of a barn with a chain wrapped around its neck, workers beating cows with a cane as the animals slipped on a wet concrete floor, and workers punching and jumping on cows between metal bars in the milking stalls.

Dairy operators from across the state were quick to condemn the actions seen in the video. And three months later, they're working to improve hiring processes and employee training to prevent animal cruelty at their operations.

"We've done some training with the vetting process in the past, but we're seeing stronger background checks since then," said Bob Naerebout, executive director of the Idaho Dairymen's Association. "Part of that was designing employee contracts that outline what practices were not going to be tolerated."

Luis Bettencourt, owner of Dry Creek Dairy, installed video cameras in his dairies as an added precaution to prevent future animal cruelty cases. He also made his 500 employees sign a contract stating that the incidents seen in the footage were unacceptable.

Naerebout expects to see more dairies install security cameras. But for now, the focus is on creating a better class of dairy employee.

The association has partnered with the University of Idaho's extension office to launch an animal care practices certification program for potential dairy employees, Naerebout said.

"This is the way of the future," he said.

It's a program that was in the works before the Bettencourt

Stocks Edge Higher as Retailers Rally

NEW YORK (AP) • Stocks edged higher on Wall Street after a rally in retail stocks offset concerns about flaring tensions in Washington over increasing the country's borrowing limit. The Dow Jones industrial average ended the day up 27.57 points at 13,534.89. The Dow moved higher in the late afternoon after being down as much as 62 points in the early going. The Standard and Poor's 500 rose 1.66 points to 1,472.34, a five-year high.

DREW NASH • TIMES-NEWS

After breaking through the cloud coverage, the sun's rays reflect off the snowfall while Times-News staffers cover a story on trapping Saturday at the Lloyd Wetlands near Rupert.

Trapping in a Winter Wonderland

The snow sparkled like diamonds as the sun peeked out from under the cloudy sky. Nearby, Jared Boley and his Father Russell Boley went about their work, setting snare traps. Times-News reporter Paul Dunn patiently shot video using an iPad. I took a deep breath and watched as my breath froze in the frigid air. My fingers were going numb as Paul wrapped up his video clip.

Nash

“Time to get back to learning how to trap,” I thought as I heaved my camera to my eye. I received a wealth of knowledge from the Boleys that day. From learning the different types of traps to the thoughts behind where to place them. Whether you're for or against trapping, be sure to have an educated opinion. I know I didn't before my assignment, which you can read all about Thursday in the Outdoors section.

Out of Ink

Three strikes, and I was out. Of ink. Colleague Drew Nash and I were out with a couple of Rupert animal trappers Saturday, following several days of nasty weather. But this day was snow packed, sunny and gorgeous - and around 10 degrees I figured (but I'm always cold, so don't trust me ...).

Adding the Words

During Monday's Twin Falls City Council meeting, members voted to include sexual orientation to the city's anti-discrimination policy. The vote passed 5-2, with Don Hall and Suzanne Hawkins voting “no.” During the meeting,

Munn Voted Yes to Add the Words

Twin Falls Vice Mayor Don Hall and Councilwoman Suzanne Hawkins were the two votes against a proposal Monday to add sexual orientation to the city's anti-ha-

Hawkins argued against adding sexual orientation because the city was already following the law. She pointed to St. Luke's Health System as a major employer that doesn't include sexual orientation in its policy. She went on to say that our local St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center includes sexual orientation but only because it inherited a policy that was used when hospital was owned by the county. She ended by saying that St. Luke's Magic Valley was currently working to remove sexual orientation to reduce the chance of a lawsuit.

I asked for a copy of St. Luke's Health System for its anti-discrimination policy and saw that it does include sexual orientation throughout the entire system. However, it's somewhat of a recent addition. The health system added sexual orientation close to a year ago. And while St. Luke's Magic Valley was the only hospital in the system to include sexual orientation since 2006, this is no longer true nor are hospital administrators working on removing it from the anti-discrimination policy.

When I contacted Hawkins on Tuesday, she said that she talked to St. Luke's Magic Valley human resource representative on Friday but couldn't remember who she talked to. However, she repeated that she was told the hospital was the only St. Luke's medical center to have sexual orientation in its discrimination policy.

Below is St. Luke's Health System current discrimination policy implemented throughout the entire system, including Magic Valley Medical Center:

“St. Luke's is an equal opportunity employer and does not discriminate against employees or job applicants on the basis of race, religion, color, sex, sexual orientation, age, national origin, disability, veteran status, or any other status or condition protected by applicable state or federal laws, except where an occupational qualification applies.”

Staying On Track

Just weeks after I moved here, I had the opportunity to talk with Anna Scholes for the first time. She and other parents involved with Vera C. O'Leary Middle School's Parent Teacher Student Organization had just started a project to raise money to renovate the school's track. They kicked off the project in fall 2011. When I checked in last week, they had raised $55,000.

Some small repairs have been made to the track over the past 10 years, but now it's in a state of disrepair. O'Leary middle schoolers use the track for physical education class. The school also has a large track team that can't host their own meets due to the condition of the track, principal John Hyatt told me last week.

While a final fundraising goal hasn't been set, Hyatt estimates they'll need about $120,000 for a new track.

To help out, donations can be made online via the Twin Falls Education Foundation: www.ed.tfsd.org. Donations can also be dropped off at O'Leary or mailed to the Twin Falls Education Foundation at P.O. Box 1182, Twin Falls, ID 83303.

Cold and Flurries to Continue

The temperature inversion across the Magic Valley and Mini-Cassia will continue into the weekend. This will keep skies mostly cloudy and temperatures well below the average high of 37 degrees. Along with the clouds will be occasional light snow showers and flurries, as well as areas of foggy, dense, freezing fog during the early morning hours.

The reason this temperature inversion has set up across the region is thanks to a large, upper-level high pressure off the Pacific Coast and a surface high pressure right over southern Idaho and northern Utah. Skies will once again be a bright grey with occasional breaks for sunshine. Occasional flurries and light snow showers will continue, but accumulations will be limited to just a dusting and a coating. Temperatures through the afternoon will struggle to get to near 20. Clouds will continue through the evening and overnight. We still expect scattered light snow and flurries with minimal accumulation and areas of patchy, dense, freezing fog. Temperatures will drop into the single digits and a few locations could see lows near zero or below zero. By Thursday, we should start to see more sunshine and even slightly warmer temperatures as highs get into the mid-20s.

OBITUARIES

Ed 'Papa Eddie' Howa

1923-2013

TWIN FALLS • Ed Howa, a special husband, father, grandfather and friend left us last week, Jan. 11, 2013. Ed loved his family passionately and his friends nearly as much. We will all miss him!

Ed was born in Provo, Utah, in 1923 to the first two Lebanese immigrants to arrive in Utah. He spent his early years in Helper and Price, Utah. During World War II, he joined the Marine Corps. Later, he married Bernice Johnson and had his first two children, Geneal and Allan. He and his young family moved to Twin Falls, Idaho, in 1950 and started the first three of his eventual 13 Arctic Circle restaurants. The Arctic Circle was one of Ed's greatest loves, and he continued to work with his son and then granddaughter and husband until he could no longer work. Ed also partnered early on in a business called "Speck's Cafe" with Speck Leazer. It was located where "Kelly's" restaurant operates now in downtown Twin Falls. The couple had two more children, Carla and Kelly, as they settled into a great life in Twin Falls. Ed was always known as a hard worker and a person that would give anyone anything that they needed. He was known as "Papa Eddie" affectionately to those who knew him.

Ed was a huge CSI fan. He sponsored the "Arctic Circle Classic" basketball tournament for 12 years at CSI. You could always spot him court-side, middle seat! He often accompanied CSI teams to sports events on their buses. He gave his heart and time to many different college activities and was known to take CSI students under his wing, especially those who were struggling. He started "Papa Eddie's" concession stand at CSI's baseball field and ran it voluntarily for years. He was proudly inducted into the CSI Hall of Fame several years ago. Ed loved all sports. He followed his son, Allan's, sports activities early on and then his grandchildren's later. In his later years, he was still attending youth and college sports events. He had special friends that took him everywhere when he could no longer drive. Thank you Gary Chapel, Fred Trenkle, Skip Walker, Ben Stroud and others! He was once given the honor of being "Grand Marshall" for a Twin Falls High School homecoming parade.

Ed's last days at Ashley

Manor were tough as his Alzheimer's progressed, but Ed tried hard to find the humor in each situation. Many thanks to Linda and crew at Ashley Manor and to Hospice Visions; both organizations showed much love and care. We couldn't have done it without you!

Ed loved new cars and enjoyed making a "good deal" on a car at Theisen Motors ... he loved to dance, especially with Bernice, his wife ... he loved playing cards ... he loved a good time, loved to party, and did it without alcohol ... he loved "bummin' around!" ... he loved his friends, his "pals," and wanted to make them feel special ... he loved hats and shoes, he always said that you "knew a man by his shoes" ... he had a special energy and an unequaled zest for life, always with plenty of humor ... he didn't want to leave, and he fought it hard ... but, he has left us, "see you pal!"

Ed is preceded in death by his parents; three brothers, John, Joseph and James Howa; and sister, Mary Louise Howa Ghirardelli. Surviving Ed is his loving wife of 63 years, Bernice J. Howa; his son, Allan (Cindy) Howa; three daughters, Geneal Howa Thompson, Carla Howa Robertson and Kelly Howa; grandchildren, Nathan Robertson, Jacob Robertson, Cy Robertson, Jason Thompson, Carly Howa Hunzeker, Joshua E. Howa, Amy Howa, Eddiann Thompson and Nathan Salmans; and by his great-grandchildren, Niklaus, Alexander and Zachary Hunzeker, Cooper and Addison Howa, Jillian, Mazzie and Lux Thompson, and Jordan Robertson.

Visitation for Ed will be held from 5 to 7 Friday, Jan. 18, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. At 7 p.m. at the funeral home, a vigil service will be held. The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 19, at St. Jerome's Catholic Church, 216 Second Ave. E., Jerome, ID 83338.

In lieu of flowers, the family is asking that donations be made to the Multiple Sclerosis Society, P.O. Box 4527, New York, NY 10163. All services and arrangements are under the direction of the Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls, Idaho.

Those wishing to share memories and condolences may do so at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

Nancy Earle Benjamin

May 4, 1942-Jan. 13, 2013

NAMPA • Nancy Benjamin was born in Burley, Idaho, on May 4, 1942, to Bert and Pearl Ingram. She entered Heaven's gates on Sunday, Jan. 13, 2013, with her family by her side at age 70.

Nancy was born into a large family, having three brothers and seven sisters. She was a sweet, loving child, and she loved all her brothers and sisters and her mother and dad. She was kind and unselfish. Nancy married Leighton Benjamin 52 years ago, and they did everything together: worked, played, traveled and created a family consisting of three sons, 14 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. Her family was her whole life and she gave her whole heart to it. She also had many friends and will be sorely missed by everyone. In addition to being a devoted wife, mother and friend, Nancy was a hard worker. She worked in the fields, waited tables at Honker's in Nampa and was a nurse's aide at Mercy Hospital. She worked side-by-side with her husband in their family business, Benjamin's Rural Disposal, for 38 years. After retirement a few years back, she and Leighton spent quality time with their grandchildren attending their sporting events. They went on vacation to Lake Powell with family and loved going to their cabin in Cascade.

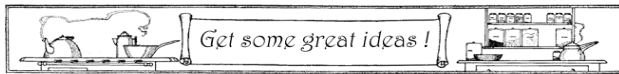

Nancy is survived and lovingly remembered by her husband, Leighton Benjamin; their three sons, Larry (Beverly), Earle (Theresa) and Stan (Kathie); 14 grandchildren; and nine great-grandchildren. She is also survived by two brothers and four sisters, Russell, Anne, Mary Celia, Sherman, LaNeva and Cristene. She was preceded in death by her mother, father, three sisters and a brother.

Nancy treated everyone like family. She had such a generous heart, always had a smile on her face and never complained. She has left us with many wonderful memories. "WE LOVE YOU, MOM!"

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Jan. 18, at the Nampa LDS 7th Ward Chapel, 3015 Sunnyridge Road. A viewing will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 17, at Zeyer Funeral Chapel, 83 N. Midland Blvd. in Nampa, and from 1 to 1:45 p.m. prior to the service Friday at the church. Interment will be at Kohlerlawn Cemetery in Nampa.

OBITUARIES

David Peter O'Brien

Aug. 8, 1949-Jan. 14, 2013

POCATELLO • David Peter O'Brien, 63, Pocatello, passed away Monday morning, Jan. 14, 2013, at a Pocatello medical center with his loving family at his side.

Dave O'Brien was born in Butte, Mont., on Aug. 8, 1949, to Dan and Helen O'Brien. Dave grew up in Pocatello with his parents and two sisters, Danielle and Maureen. In 1966, they all moved to Twin Falls, Idaho. That's where Dave met Jean Marie Johnstone; they married in December of 1968 and moved back to Pocatello, where Dave attended Idaho State University. Dave and Jean had two kids, Dawn and Mike. Dave served his country during the Vietnam War and was stationed in Germany for two years.

After the military, Dave returned to Pocatello where he worked for Bill Meyers Auto Parts as the manager. Dave and Jean were later divorced. Dave then met Toni Marie Burnside, and they married in 1986. Dave and Toni had two kids, Dan and Jake. Dave purchased Advanced Auto Parts, which he owned and operated for many years with his family. Dave then went to work for Geff's Manufacturing, where he worked as the purchasing manager.

Dave enjoyed traveling, camping, boating, four-wheeling, working on cars and, most of all, spending time with his family and friends. Dave will forever be remembered for his sense of humor and his laid-back attitude.

Dave is survived by his wife, Toni O'Brien; daughter, Dawn O'Brien of Salt Lake City, Utah; three sons, Mike (Laura) O'Brien of Tracy, Calif., Dan O'Brien of Boise, Idaho, and Jake O'Brien of Twin Falls, Idaho; and two sisters, Danielle (Dave) Frazier of Twin Falls, Idaho, and Maureen Walker of Twin Falls, Idaho. Dave is preceded in death by his parents, Dan and Helen O'Brien.

A memorial service will be held at 4 p.m. Friday, Jan. 18, at Wilks Funeral Home, 211 W. Chubbuck Road in Chubbuck, Idaho. Family and friends are invited to gather an hour prior to the service. A dinner and Irish wake will immediately follow the service at the funeral home.

Arrangements are under the care and direction of Wilks Funeral Home (238-8000). Condolences may be sent to the family online at www.wilksfuneralhome.com.

John Jacob Heck

April 4, 1939-Jan. 12, 2013

TWIN FALLS • John Jacob Heck joined his Father in Heaven on Saturday, Jan. 12, 2013.

He was born April 4, 1939, to James Hayes and Martha Leona (Roszell) Heck in Twin Falls, Idaho. He was the youngest of seven children, having five brothers and one sister. John grew up in the Twin Falls area, attending school in Hollister, Twin Falls and Richfield. One of his first jobs was as a busboy at the old Rogerson Hotel. There, as he liked to tell his children, he met many famous movie stars, including Gene Autry and Jimmy Stewart, and earned very good tips. After serving in the U.S. Army, he returned to Twin Falls and married the love of his life, Cloreen Ann Schendel, on April 30, 1960.

After apprenticing with his father, he became a busy and successful masonry contractor, laying brick, block and stone on hundreds of Magic Valley homes, churches and businesses in the '60s, '70s and '80s. John became unexpectedly ill in 1984 and was forced to retire from the masonry business in 1985. He became his sons' biggest fan, always at practices and games and volunteering countless hours with the Twin Falls Bruin Boosters.

John enjoyed the outdoors, spending many years fishing for salmon on the Salmon and Columbia rivers, trout fishing at Magic and Salmon Falls reservoirs, and stream fishing along the Big Wood River. He liked hunting sage grouse, pheasants and deer, and camping, fishing and hiking all over south-central Idaho. He also loved deep sea fishing and crabbing along the Oregon Coast. He was an avid and adept card player, enjoying pinochle right up until the day he was hospitalized. John loved to travel, often visiting relatives and places in Washington, Arizona, Texas, Las Vegas and along the Oregon coast. He loved to travel with friends and family and took great delight in sharing his time and adventures with them.

He is preceded in death by all five brothers, James, Rick, Lester,

Lawrence and Ralph; and by both parents. He was greeted by the brother of his heart, Buddy L. DeWeese. He is survived by Cloreen, his wife of nearly 53 years; sons, Johnny, Alan and Joey; daughter-in-law, Brandie; and grandchildren, Autumn, Tavia, Liane and Brian. He is also survived by his sister, Mary (LaRae) Brown of Richfield; sisters-in-law, Janet (Lawrence), June (Ralph), Marlene (Buddy) DeWeese, Barbara (Jim) Kelly, Doris (Harvey) Hendrix and Lillian Clayton, all of the Magic Valley, and Donna (Richard) Meyer and Deloris (Raymond) Meyer of Kennewick, Wash. He is also survived by three great-grandchildren, many nieces, nephews, cousins, great-nieces and great-nephews.

A memorial service is planned for 3 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 19, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls.

Those who wish may share memorials and condolences at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

Terry Ray Whitlock

Nov. 17, 1950-Jan. 11, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Terry Ray Whitlock, 62, of Twin Falls passed away Friday, Jan. 11, 2013, at his home in Twin Falls.

Terry was born Nov. 17, 1950, in Boise, Idaho, the son of Violet and Monroe Whitlock. He grew up in and attended grade school at Edwards Air Force Base in California, after which he moved with his family to Evreux, France, for two years. Terry's father was then transferred to Lakenheath AFB, England, where Terry graduated from high school. He returned to the United States and joined the U.S. Army, serving his duty in Germany, after which time he returned to New Jersey to be with his family. It was in New Jersey that Terry met and married Susan Cannon in 1974, and the couple lived on the Jersey Shore.

Terry had a great passion for music, especially singing and playing the guitar, and this love led him to form the band, Tahoka Freeway. The band performed for a number of years and went on to record and play for many venues throughout the eastern United States. Following the band's disbursement, Terry and a friend built their own fishing boat and spent many hours on the open sea. He also worked for a commercial fishing company for several years. Terry liked to travel and spent time in St. Croix and Puerto Rico. He returned to the United States and worked for a pool and spa company and, in 1993, moved to Idaho to be near his family.

In Idaho, Terry worked for Basterrechea Trucking, Star Construction and Volco Building Supply. His final employment was with Ferguson Water Works. Terry liked to serve his community and was an active member of the Twin Falls Masonic Lodge and also the Magic Valley Wishing Star Foundation. All through his time in Idaho, he played and sang for events throughout southern Idaho.

Terry is survived by his mother, Violet Whitlock of Twin Falls; and his brother, Monroe Jr., also of Twin Falls. He was preceded in death by his father, Monroe Sr.

The funeral for Terry will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 19, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls, with Pastor Dale Metzger officiating and military honors by the Magic Valley Honor Guard and Idaho National Guard and Masonic rites by the Twin Falls Masonic Lodge No. 45 AF and AM. At Terry's request, there will be no public viewing. Burial will follow at Wendell Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests memorials be given in Terry's name to the Magic Valley Wishing Star Foundation. Contributions may be given to funeral chapel staff or mailed to Reynolds Funeral Chapel, P.O. Box 1142, Twin Falls, ID 83303.

Services are under the direction of Trent Stimpson and staff at Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls. Condolences may be left for the family by visiting www.reynoldschapel.com.

Q. It seems like every winter I hear about someone who has a heart attack while shoveling snow. Why is shoveling so dangerous?

A. This is a very good question! It lets us remind everyone just how dangerous shoveling snow really is—especially for the person who doesn't exercise much, smokes, has elevated blood pressure, is overweight and/or has a heart condition. But even if this doesn't sound like you—if you are over 50 (some say 40), shoveling snow is still risky. Exercise experts tell us that shoveling heavy snow requires as much energy as running 9 miles per hour! And, breathing all that cold, crisp winter air makes your heart work harder. Of course, snow on your driveway and sidewalk can cause falls and so it must be removed. Play it smart this winter and hire a younger, healthier person to shovel it for you safely.

‘Independent’ Key to Idaho Ethics Commission

On the Friday before the Legislature’s session began, Senate Minority Leader Michelle Stennett and House Speaker Scott Bedke sat side by side and seemed to espouse the same idea — that it’s time for Idaho to join 41 other states in the formation of an ethics commission. Stennett reminded the press and lawmakers present that day that Idaho Democrats have been pushing for an independent ethics commission for six years, with a stress on the word “independent.”

Bedke responded by saying that house lawmakers are looking at details of what an ethics commission would look like. He did not elaborate, and he did not use the word “independent.”

We have two things to say. First, it’s about time. Second, if an ethics commission is not independent, it is not worth the time, money or effort. It will only be a wasteful charade. As we have learned again and again, lawmakers protect their own. They have an incredible capacity for forgiveness of the wrongdoings of their colleagues. That is, until it’s politically expedient to do otherwise.

To further illustrate our point, when Gov. “Butch” Otter addressed the question of ethics that same day, he said it was a matter of “optics” and that most legislators merely needed to be trained to avoid the appearance of impropriety. He said that most ethical issues are nothing more than perception problems created by the media. Ironically, U.S. Senator Mike Crapo was pleading guilty to a DUI charge in Virginia that very same morning.

On Monday’s Times-News Opinion page, columnist Randy Stapilus said that many lawmakers are offended by the idea that they need an ethics commission. They take it personally, he said.

Are our lawmakers perfect? Are any of us?

No matter how good their intentions, our lawmakers are exposed to daily temptation in myriad ad forms. Spend an afternoon with any of our area lawmakers and you will see them approached and reproach, fawned over, prodded. Drinks are free. Dinners are free. Doors are open. It’s easy to feel like the center of the universe, even as a freshman. It’s easy to lose perspective. It’s easy for the line between right and wrong to blurred.

If anything good came of last year’s cautionary tale that ended the career of Senate Majority Caucus Chairman John McGee, it could be the establishment of this much needed commission.

Already, the legislature — with its seats full of fresh faces — began the session with ethics training: In December, when then-House Speaker Lawrence Denney greeted 44 new Idaho lawmakers at a luncheon, he welcomed them to the “goldfish bowl,” according to an Idaho Statesman blog.

“Everything you do is going to be observed,” he told them. “You’re going to have to be very, very careful what you do, when you do it and how you do it because it may be the headline the next day.” With very few exceptions those headlines are the result of real ethical lapses. Those lapses are not matters of perception or “optics”, they’re stories of someone doing something they shouldn’t have done – and getting caught. Instituting an independent ethics commission is an important first step toward admitting that these ethical violations are real.

“They will not collect a ransom in exchange for not crashing the American economy. What I will not do is to have that negotiation with a gun at the head of the American people.”

President Barack Obama on congressional Republicans’ attempts to tie deficit reduction talks to a decision whether to increase the government’s borrowing authority.

ONLINE COMMENTS

The conversation continues 24/7 at Magicvalley.com.

Several online readers responded to the letter to the editor, “Right to Bear Arms About Right to Protect Self, Family, Property:”
blondie: All the gun laws in the world will not prohibit criminal acts by those who chose to do so. Those laws only deprive law abiding citizens of their rights and freedoms as set forth in our Constitution.

BABY SNOOKS: Eric, your letter was well done. We need to remember everything you said! Our Founding Fathers gave their fortunes, lives and sacred honor for what we have and we have slept at the wheel. America needs to stand up and be counted now and speak up! We do not need any more gun laws! We need common sense.

Online readers had a variety of responses to the editorial, “Correction Costs: Marijuana and Despair:”
idwindstar: This country has a per capita incarceration rate that exceeds Russia and China. We could cut our corrections costs considerably if we would simply reserve prisons for only the truly dangerous and violent criminals. There are far cheaper (both fiscally and socially) methods of punishing non-violent criminals. As far as private prisons lobbying for tougher sentences, public sector prison unions are just as guilty, if not more so. Do some research on California’s prison nightmare. The solution is to lock up fewer people in fewer prisons — public or private.

An online readers had a different take on the story, “Investing in Waste Boosts Economies of Mini-Cassia Cities:”
Pebbles61: Drive across the Heyburn - Burley Bridge some evening with your windows down...Welcome to Burley! Didn’t they just spend More of the taxpayers money for a Big shiny sewer plant? Didn’t smell at all when they had the old one, but then the City can’t plow snow either, so what did you expect?

The article “1940s Football Players Reminisce About the 6-man Game,” brought back memories for some online readers:
elcty: I know several of the people that played. The Lincoln County Chronicle talked about Dietrich playing Acequia under the lights in 1948. Nice if some of the above mentioned schools still existed. Gooding and Lincoln County kept all there schools even with low enrollment. Besselen shut down in the ‘40s. However, many people moved out of that area a long time ago. Dietrich and Carey can survive 8 man football and even 11 right now. In the ‘70s Dietrich and Bliss lost there football program and introduced soccer. There is co ops now for schools that don’t play football. Difficult for towns like Leadore and Fairfield though that are some distance from any neighbors. 90 Football came back to Dietrich after co oping with Shoshone. Good people have the opportunity to play football though I prefer the 8 man game over 6 man game and hope teams are not forced to play 6 man if they don’t have too.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Apologies for Leaving CellPhone On During Performance

This letter is an apology to the cast of “One Flew Over the Cuckoo’s Nest” and to the audience who attended on Jan. 10.

The gentleman taking tickets reminded people to turn off their cellphones as they went in, and I thought I did. I was appalled when it started to ring during the performance. Instinct kicked in, brain turned off and I fled the theater while trying to make the darn thing quiet. I then continued to flee because I was too embarrassed to go back into the theater.

So to the cast members, audience and the friends I was sitting with, I’m very sorry for the disruption of a wonderful live performance.

Is Sheriff Carter Ready to Mobilize the People?

The sheriff is the last line of defense! The sheriff is the ultimate law enforcement with the power to form militias, posses and volunteers for the county; no higher law enforcement exists within the county and even the governor cannot supersede the sheriff’s lawful elected authority. The power to possessize is an intrinsic power of the people given to the sheriff and is recognized by the people as the lawful leader to organize and mobilize the people. This old tradition comes from the book of Leviticus when Moses set up government by tens, hundreds and thousands, giving true representation from the people up. This form of government was carried down from the Israelites, Anglo-Saxons and Celts to protect against tyrannical foreign or domestic enemies and laid out by our founding fathers.

The Posse Comitatus Act of 1878 and updated in 1981 outlines the statutory powers of federal government in using federal military for law enforcement and assures that statutory law does not abrogate common law and/or the sheriff’s authority and shall coexist for the peace and dignity and security of the community.

If, God forbid, a tyrannical usurper comes to power and uses the office to attempt to enslave the people by disarming and/or registering individuals aided by the political aspirations of treacherous politicians. It is the duty and obligation of the sheriff to meet any such threat at the county’s border to protect the citizens from tyrannical subjugation.

It seems it would behoove the county’s best interest to find out if Sheriff Carter could be accessible to the public and reassure us that he is willing to keep his oath and have a plan in place for any such event. A deceleration of martial law as pretense to disarm does not and shall not override the sheriff’s authority in the county!

It’s Time to Recall Tom Luna

I invite everyone to “The Total Luna Eclipse Party” on Nov. 5, 2013, when we celebrate the successful recall of Mr. Tom Luna, Idaho’s superintendent of education.

The voters spoke clearly and loudly on Nov. 6, 2012, with a landslide of “no” votes to reject the three Luna Laws. Mr. Tom Luna seems to be deaf to the voice of the people. While the “no” votes towered nearly as high as Mount Everest in a conservative state like Idaho, Luna dismissed the vote as “a bump in the road.”

Butch has “flip-flopped” more than Mitt Romney about the direction of Idaho education after the drubbing that he and Luna suffered on Nov. 6, 2012.

Even if none of the three Luna Laws ever rears its ugly head again, Mr. Luna should be recalled for three reasons: 1) He is incompetent. 2) Since he pushed through his three “reforms,” teachers have left the state and the profession in droves. 3) The morale of Idaho teachers is “lower than a snake’s belly.”

If you like, please join me on Nov. 5, 2013, and we will party like it’s 1999. I guarantee it. Best wishes.

Invasion

“I started praying and I told God I didn’t want to die,” Judy said. “I didn’t want Leo to die either.”

Now, almost six months after the home invasion took place, the two have seen one of the men, Valenciano, sentenced to 15 to 30 years in prison. Contreras and the group’s look-out Luis Sotelo, 20, have pleaded guilty and are scheduled to be sentenced Feb. 4. The 16-year-old is scheduled to go to a jury trial on Feb. 12 on two counts of kidnapping and one count of robbery.

Getting Through It

Despite the fear caused by the invasion of their home, the two are determined not to let it take over their lives.

Two days after the break-in, the Rays, both 75, went to Michigan for Judy’s class reunion. While she couldn’t discuss the case at home due to the ongoing investigation, she was able to talk freely to her friends across the country about it.

Just talking about her experience reduced her stress, she said.

When the couple returned to Idaho, they did an interview with the Investigation Discovery television channel about the 1999 murder of their daughter Kacy Kay Ray. Soon after, Judy said she began to feel stress of the home invasion coming back. Her heartbeat became irregular and she needed a heart monitor for several weeks in the fall.

While the heart trouble went away, Judy said she still gets stressed and tense about three days before each court date she attends. Despite the stress it causes, the two said they’ll be at every hearing for everyone involved.

“We have an obligation to the police to help them,” Leo said. “Being there helps them get the conviction.”

Putting the people who robbed them in prison not only gives the couple peace of mind and protects society, but also protects the criminals themselves,

Leo Ray stands in his doorway at his home in Buhl. In August, he and his wife, Judy, were victims of a home invasion.

Leo said.

“It was only a matter of time before this bunch killed someone or got killed,” he said.

Why Them?

Several years ago, the Rays hired Valenciano’s father, John Valenciano Sr., to work at the farm. He was a hard, responsible worker, Leo said.

Judy said she remembered Valenciano’s mother bringing him and his sister to the house to swim in their pool.

Since then, Leo said he heard rumors that Valenciano was repeatedly in trouble.

When the detectives confirmed their suspicions and said Valenciano was charged in connection to the break-in, Leo said they weren’t surprised.

While Leo said he hasn’t made major changes to his lifestyle, the couple has made some changes so Judy feels safer in the home.

“I enjoy life. I don’t want to be running around scared of everything,” he said.

The two had a buzzer installed that lets them know when someone drives up their long driveway and Judy ensures the doors are locked every night. They also have a video peephole and are considering a security system in their home.

One thing they won’t do – install video monitors throughout the house.

“Life is too short to be wasting it looking at one little monitor,” Leo said.

these funds? At this point last year, we started to see our claims system stabilize,” Leary said.

Additionally, Leary said the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare experienced up to 10 percent annual increases in caseloads during the recession. He predicted those increases would decrease to 2 percent next year.

Idaho Falls Republican Sen. Dean Mortimer, a JFAC member, said controlling costs was encouraging.

“The fact that they have developed efficiencies in their system and reduced costs is a very positive sign,” Mortimer said after the hearing.

Along with education and corrections, the Department of Health and Welfare is one of Idaho’s three biggest expenses in the budget.

Next year’s total budget request for Medicaid is $2.06 billion, of which 67 percent, or $1.38 billion, would come in federal funding. The request for state general fund money is $476.7 million or 23.2 percent of that budget request.

Compared to this year’s $474.2 million general fund Medicaid budget, program officials are asking for a .5 percent increase in state spending at $476.7 million.

In conjunction with mandates from President Obama’s health care reform plan, the state expects about 60,000 new people to enroll in Medicaid next year, Leary said.

There are about 298,000 Idahoans enrolled in Medicaid today, and Leary said federal funding will cover 100 percent of newly eligible enrollees for the next three years.

The apparent stabilizations come two years after lawmakers approved dramatic cuts to Medicaid programs.

In 2010, legislators cut state spending on Medicaid by $33.4 million. With federal matches taken into account, that cut reduced overall Medicaid spending by about $111 million, Leary said.

Leary and Division of Welfare Administrator Russ Barron spent nearly three hours Tuesday walking budget writers through the Welfare and Medicaid budgets. That was good news to Mortimer, who said the budget demands intense scrutiny.

“This budget is absolutely huge, so it takes some time to get your arms wrapped around it,” Mortimer said. “It’s a budget we are going to spend a lot of time on, and one in which I will try to get more personally involved in.”

Members of the budget committee didn’t actually vote on the budget recommendation Tuesday.

Instead, they are scheduled to spend every day through Feb. 15 reviewing budget requests from all state agencies. Once that work is complete, they will transition into budget setting mode, which is expected to continue into March.

footage was released but has since seen greater pressure to launch, said Tony Vanderhulst, a local dairy producer.

“It’s our livelihood, it’s our life on the line,” Vanderhulst said. “We can’t be out there 24 hours a day. We have to trust our own employees.”

Vanderhulst’s dairies had cameras installed before the Bettencourt footage was released. He is now working with attorneys to improve employee contracts on his own dairy, along with his peers’ operations.

“It was an eye-opener that they’re (animal abusers) out there and it’s real,” he said. “It’s not tolerated though.”

Abuse Trial Begins

The animal cruelty trial of Jesus Garza, a former employee of Dry Creek Dairy, starts today in Twin Falls County 5th District Court. Garza was charged with one count of committing cruelty to animals after the release of hidden camera footage from the dairy.

Follow live coverage of the trial today at Magicvalley.com. Jury selection starts at 8:30 a.m.; the trial itself, and our live coverage, will start once selection has finished.

Still at large are Jose Acensio and Javier Victor Rojas Loayza, who were also charged with animal cruelty after the video was released and have warrants out for their arrest. If convicted, the men face fines of up to $5,000 each and six months of jail time on a first offense.

Idaho Mulls Paying Wolf Trappers

BOISE (AP) • Idaho wildlife officials are considering paying private trappers to kill wolves roaming in specific hunting zones where wolves have had a significant impact on elk populations.

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game is mulling several different ideas for using fewer than a dozen proven trappers as a way to more affordably and effectively manage and reduce wolf numbers in three northern hunting zones.

“There are certain individuals who have built up some pretty good skills,” Jeff Gould, a wildlife bureau manager for the agency, told the Idaho Statesman.

The agency is looking for ways to reduce Idaho’s wolf population, estimated at more than 500 at the end of the season last year. Hunters and trappers have had some success statewide killing wolves, but Gould says the agency wants to minimize wolf impacts in the Lolo, Selway and St. Joe hunting zones.

The agency is also considering partnering with select trappers on an initiative to fit more wolves with radio collars. Working with trappers is likely to be less expensive than collaring trips using helicopters and staff. Gould said the agency recently spent about $40,000 over three days to fit collars on 14 wolves near Lowman in central Idaho.

Gould said agency officials are considering incentives such as paying trappers mileage or other means of reducing expenses.

“We have not firmed up any kind of specific arrangements yet,” Gould said. “We’re just starting the discussion. Essentially, we’re just starting to explore options with trappers who are now going back into the backcountry for a second year ... to see if we can’t offset some of their costs.”

On Thursday, the Fish and Game Commission will also consider at its meeting in Boise a separate proposal that would pay for wolf removal in six other sensitive elk hunting zones. The proposal would divert $50,000 now used to pay Wildlife Services to kill coyotes in southeastern Idaho to protect mule deer to efforts to kill wolves in areas where elk population numbers are falling short of goals.

Both proposals are drawing criticism from wolf advocates.

“How can anyone defend this as responsible wildlife management?” said Suzanne Asha Stone, Boise representative of the Defenders of Wildlife.

Gould says using the trappers and wildlife services to manage wolves is similar to other measures taken by the agency in the past to target predators in the name of protecting wildlife.

“We’ve involved sportsmen in the past on depredation hunts on deer and elk,” Gould said. “This is just facilitating an activity that is already allowed ... and is very specific in its nature and location.”

Private Prison Says Lawsuit Must Be Tossed

BY REBECCA BOONE
 Associated Press

BOISE • Attorneys for the nation’s largest private prison company have asked a federal judge in Idaho to throw out a lawsuit from inmates who say the company uses gangs to run a Boise-area prison.

In a motion filed in Boise’s U.S. District Court on Monday, attorneys for Corrections Corporation of America say that a lawsuit brought by eight inmates at the Idaho Correctional Center fails to meet legal standards and so should be tossed out of court.

The inmates sued in November, contending that the company is working with a few powerful prison gangs to control the facility south of Boise. The inmates say that CCA is able to save money on staffing by essentially allowing the gangs to run the prison, and that as a result, some inmates are forced to join gangs or risk being attacked.

CCA officials have said the company’s top priority is the safety and security of its prisons, employees and inmates and that the company is always held to the highest standards of accountability and transparency by its contracts with government partners like the Idaho Department of Correction.

“Once the hyperbole is removed from Plaintiff’s complaint, two fundamental defects come into sharp focus,” CCA’s attorneys wrote in the motion.

First, CCA contends that several of the inmates failed to fully use the prison’s grievance system — a step that is generally required before a prisoner may be allowed to file a lawsuit. Secondly, the company argues that the inmates didn’t meet legal standards for specificity in their complaint, and that they failed to include enough factual statements to show that their claims were even plausible.

It’s not the first time CCA has been sued in federal court over conditions at the Idaho Correctional Center.

The American Civil Liberties Union-Idaho represented inmates in a lawsuit that claimed the prison was so violent that inmates called it “Gladiator School” and that guards used inmate-on-inmate violence to control prisoners. That case resulted in a settlement agreement requiring management and organizational changes at the prison. Attorneys for the ACLU and CCA have recently been in talks over whether the terms of that settlement are being met.

DEATH BY CHOCOLATE

The eighth annual Death by Chocolate is a rich tradition that serves local charities and chocolate lovers.

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • You may have survived the Mayan apocalypse, but death comes in the form of 25,000 pieces of chocolate at the eighth annual Death by Chocolate event Jan. 31.

If you are a chocoholic, come get your fix as 21 local chefs, businesses and schools compete to see who can capture the top spots in five cocoa categories —

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

Rob Arno and his wife, Cyndi, make pretzel toffee bark on Thursday in Twin Falls. The couple sells chocolates around the country and will participate in this year's Death by Chocolate tasting and competition.

best chocolate brownie, unique dessert.
cake, cookie, candy and Attendees not only taste these treats but vote for their favorites. A panel of judges will also decide on top three picks in each category. So there will be winners for People's Choice and Judges' Choice.

Jill Skeem, committee chairwoman of Death by Chocolate, said though participating high schools compete against all participants, the event has a separate award just for the schools. It adds an element of fun rivalry as the overall winner is awarded a trophy: a large sifter with the school's name engraved on the side. Last year Twin Falls High School took home the kitchen utensil.

Nonagenarian Knee-deep in Dough

This Filer man can't sit still; baking bread is his bag.

BY PAUL DUNN
pdunn@magicvalley.com

FILER • Like yeast in a warm oven, Mrs. Lippincot had to rise above her pre-conceived notions.

But she hadn't anticipated anything quite like this: A boy in her high school cooking class? With 15 girls?

The year was 1938, and William "Doc" Eversole wanted in. The then 17-year-old senior at South High School in Columbus, Ohio, had tried to register for the all-girls cooking class but was denied. Lippincot, the home economics teacher, just didn't know what to do with him.

"So, I had to talk to the principal to get into the class, and he said he'd never heard of anything like it," Eversole said. "But he let me and one other boy in."

Good thing, too. Lippincot didn't know it, but Eversole was a cooking fool. He'd grown up in a family of seven kids, and they all cooked.

"If we hadn't learned, Mom would have had a hell of a time feeding all of us," he said last week from his home in Filer where he has lived for 20 years.

Eversole, 91, who retired two decades ago after 30 years as a veterinarian, doesn't cook much anymore.

He's way too busy baking, a skill he learned first in Lippincot's class.

And bread is this baker's bonanza — specifically challah, or "braided" bread. He makes a loaf of the 18-inch-long, intricately woven puffy bread almost every day — and gives away most of it. Challah is traditionally eaten by Jews on Shabbat — the Jewish day of rest and seventh day of the week — on ceremonial occasions and during festival holidays.

Ironically, though, Eversole rarely tastes his own creations.

Take Your Raw Menu beyond Salad

TWIN FALLS • Eating plant-based meals doesn't have to be all about salad — especially in winter.

Chef Melissa Mango will teach an "Indian Food in the Raw" cooking class, 5-7 p.m. Jan. 26 at Rudy's — A Cook's Paradise, 147 Main Ave. W. in Twin Falls. Cost is $35.

She'll teach how to make raw, vegan, gluten-free Indian food with no refined sugar. The menu: Mango Lassie, Creamy Paneer (warm spinach salad), Warm Vegetable Curry, Samosa (non-fried); and Mango-Goji Chutney.

Mango was raised in Idaho and has been part of the "live foods" movement since 2001, a Rudy's announcement said. She paired up with an Iowa Community College chef and the American Culinary Federation for professional demos and later taught The Chef De Cuisine, Idaho chapter. She was one of the chefs during filming of "RawFor30Days-Healing Diabetes Naturally." She was a volunteer instructor at The Tree of Life Rejuvenation Center and at The Raw Spirit Fest in 2006-08. Mango opened a California raw-vegan cafe in 2006, and now the author and mother is a mind body wellness practitioner in Boise.

LEARN ABOUT GARDENING AT KETCHUM WORKSHOP

KETCHUM • The Sawtooth Botanical Garden and Wood River Sustainability Center will hold a hands-on vegetable gardening series, "Grow Your Own Food," starting Jan. 22.

All classes will be 6-8 p.m. at the Sawtooth Botanical Garden, 11 Gimlet Road. After the first session, classes will be on the first and third Tuesdays, Feb. 5 to May 21. Refreshments will be served.

The classes are led by Dick Springs, master gardener and proprietor of the Sustainability Center, and Merrily Eckel, farmer and friend of the Sawtooth Botanical Garden. The class schedule:

Jan. 22: Planning your garden (Part 1) and ordering seeds.

Feb. 5: Planning your garden (Part 2) and building a raised bed and cold frame.

Feb. 19: Soil blocking — starting your cold-season seeds.

March 5: Prepping your beds and soil improvement.

March 19: Growing tomatoes.

April 2: Soil blocking — starting your warm-season plants.

April 16: Weeding, watering and fertilizing.

May 7: Building a root cellar and your own chicken coop.

May 21: Direct seeding and transplanting, no-till gardening.

Those who sign up for the series will have access to the instructors throughout the summer with any vegetable gardening questions and will receive discounts on manures, fertilizers and compost from the Sustainability Center.

Cost is $180 for the series of nine classes or $30 per class; preregister: 726-9358.

Eversole looks at the challah recipe he has used for years.

Eversole

"I don't eat bread hardly at all," he said. "It's just something to do, it's fun and easy and it just feels good to make bread."

Martha Ellinger

But why challah? "People just like the braided bread more than the other kind," he said. "I haven't baked a loaf of other bread in at least a year."

Martha Ellinger, Eversole's girlfriend of 13 years, loves her man's bread and the free time it allows her.

"I never have to bake," said the 93-year-old Kimberly resident. "He keeps me supplied with bread. It's beautiful, and it tastes good, too."

Others also get bread: Doctors, nurses, lab technicians, neighbors, newspaper reporters — just about anyone Eversole runs into.

"If anyone does Doc a favor, they get a loaf of bread," Ellinger said.

And they're usually surprised by its size and appearance, said Ellinger's daughter Beverly Stone, who lives in Kimberly.

"They grab it and say it's beautiful and that they never expected that type of bread," she said. "Every time we get some bread, we're thrilled because it tastes so good."

In Eversole's world, goodness equals old-fashioned tradition.

"A bread machine? What would I do with a bread machine?" he asked.

Instead, Eversole parades through a painstakingly precise process for every loaf of challah he makes.

Here's how he did it last week:

First, he mixed yeast, water, salt and sugar in a container. Then he stirred in two eggs, added flour and oil and mixed the whole shebang in a royal blue KitchenAid mixer.

The fun part came next: kneading. And it's important, Eversole stressed.

"The kneading is a necessity," he said, demonstrating on his kitchen counter. "You really have to do it hard to make sure it's nice and smooth and remove the bubbles."

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

Eversole adds flour to made-from-scratch challah dough.

Challah

Recipe is from "Sunset Cook Book of Breads," by Sunset Books, published by Lane Publishing Co. Eversole keeps his copy of the challah recipe within easy reach on his kitchen counter. The thick single sheet is now yellowed with age and not particularly easy to read, but it serves the baker's purpose.

2 packages active dry yeast
1 1/4 cups warm water (about 110 degrees)
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup canola oil
2 eggs, slightly beaten
5 to 5 1/2 cups all-purpose flour, unsifted
1 egg yolk beaten with 1 tablespoon water
Optional: 2 or 3 drops yellow food coloring or pinch of saffron
Optional: 1 tablespoon sesame seed or poppy seed.

In a large bowl, dissolve yeast in water. Stir in salt, sugar, oil, eggs and food coloring. Gradually beat in about 4 1/2 cups of flour to make a stiff dough.

Turn dough out onto a floured board and knead until smooth and satiny (5 to 20 minutes), adding flour as needed to prevent sticking. Turn dough over in a greased bowl; cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled (about an hour). Punch down dough; knead briefly on a lightly floured board to release air. Set aside and cover.

Divide dough into four equal portions; roll each between hands to form a strand about 20 inches long. Place the four strips lengthwise on a greased baking sheet, pinch tops together, and braid as follows: Pick up strand on right, bring it over next one, under the third, and over the fourth. Repeat, always starting with strand on right until braid is complete. Pinch ends together.

Optional (William Eversole skips this part): Reserve 3/4 cup dough and roll into a strip about 15 inches long; cut into 3 strips and make a small three-strand braid. Lay on top center of large braid. Cover and let rise in a warm place until almost doubled.

Using a soft brush or fingers, spread egg yolk mixture evenly over braids; sprinkle with seed. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 30-35 minutes until loaf is golden brown and sounds hollow when tapped.

Serve warm, or let cool on rack. Makes one loaf.

After man-handling the dough for five minutes or so, Eversole threw it into a plastic bowl, covered it with plastic and placed it in a warm oven.

At this point, the energetic senior usually sets his timer for about an hour while the dough's rising and either drifts to his living room to pump dumbbell weights or heads to his garage to work on a wood project. This particular day, he chose the weights.

Eversole, who had open heart surgery in 1943, disdains laziness.

"I'll do 50 like this and 50 like this and more this way," he said, his breathing unlabeled as he simultaneously pumped the dumbbells. "Too many people stop when they have something like heart trouble. I'm always active, and I never take naps."

Soon the timer dinged, so he tossed the weights back on the couch and returned to the kitchen. He took the now-risen dough from the oven and dropped the bowl with a thud onto his kitchen-island work table. That released built-up air, he explained. After kneading one last time, Eversole cut the dough into four pieces and rolled each into an 18-inch-long cylinder.

"You have to lay into it pretty good for the dough to lay out," he said.

Then the tricky part began.

Eversole lined up the four cylinders and folded them over each other as if he were braiding a fair maiden's thick blond hair.

"The braids have to be tight, or they will spring loose," he said.

When finished, he pinched the ends of the bread and placed it into a 350-degree oven.

More Babies Squeezing Organic Food from Pouches

BY MICHAEL HILL

Associated Press

ALBANY, N.Y. • Baby food used to have an image as stable — and bland — as a jar of strained peas. And its target market was limited to, well ... babies.

No more. Old-school glass jars of applesauce are still around, but these days they share shelf space in the baby food aisle with curious (and often organic) combinations like zucchini, banana and amaranth (it's a grain) packed in brightly colored pouches intended to be squished and slurped by consumers with little — and not so little — hands.

"What we try to do is engage them, stimulate all of their senses," says Paul Lindley, founder of Ella's Kitchen baby food, a pioneer in the use of pouch-style packaging. "Not just their taste sense, not just putting a spoon in their mouth or a pouch into their mouth ... but to try to stimulate all their other senses."

Welcome to the world of premium baby foods, part of a $1.5 billion industry that's no longer just about babies. Babies don't generally care much about food packaging. But toddlers, older children and convenience-driven parents do.

Pouches have allowed baby food makers to broaden the appeal of their products beyond the traditional baby food years. Maureen Putman, chief marketing officer for the Hain Celestial Group, maker of organic brand Earth's Best, says pouches have helped fuel 11 percent growth at Earth's Best even as the U.S. birth rate declines.

"It's allowing us to age up. Where moms may have stopped baby food at 9 to 12 months, the pouches have really helped extend the shelf life of baby food," she says. "We see growth for a long time to come."

Parents like Lindsey Carl, of Clarksville, Tenn., make the case, saying pouches are a less messy way to feed her 22-month-old daughter and 10-month-old son simultaneously. "They don't require a spoon, which makes on-the-go easy," she says. "You don't have to worry about bringing a spoon: 'Where do I wash the spoon? Where do I put the spoon?'"

And the premium baby food world is an increasingly crowded one, with other major players including Plum Organics, Sprout, the organic baby food company founded by Food Network star Tyler Florence, and even long established baby food maker Gerber.

"We're excited about pouches and we're the No. 1 in the segment and we want to continue to grow it," said Aileen Stocks, Gerber's head of integrated marketing.

Obviously, the premium trend also is about what's in the pouches. And increasingly it's organic. While organic accounts for only about 4 percent of total U.S. food sales, organic baby food represents a more impressive 21 percent of that category, says Putman.

Gerber, with more than half the market, also is No. 1 in pouch sales, with about a 30 percent share, Stocks said. She said while organic pouches are driving growth in premium products, Gerber's product line runs from infants to preschool and they are focusing on growth and innovation in all the segments.

"Pouches obviously, it's an exciting story because you're seeing a lot of it in the aisles right now," she said. "But it's really just one part of the whole story as far as the child's nutrition."

Putman says the popularity of organics is a sign that parents are concerned about what they're feeding their babies. But there could be other reasons, too. The creative new mixes available — such as Plum's sweet potato, mango and millet, and Sprout's pasta with lentil Bolognese — might speak to Mom and Dad's inner foodie.

Premium baby foods also bridge the gap between the parents who feed out of jars and those who prefer a make-it-from-scratch approach, creating a middle ground both sides of that parent-ing debate are more comfortable with.

Organic pouches can run $1.69 for 4 ounces, compared to 99 cents for some jarred food.

Drinking on a Diet? Those Calories Can Add Up Fast

BY MICHELLE LOCKE
Associated Press

The first rule of drinking on a diet is: Don't. Surely you've heard that Americans get way too many calories — and nutritionally empty calories at that — from alcohol.

But the second rule of drinking on a diet is that since you probably will ignore Rule No. 1, find a way to enjoy alcohol without letting it swamp your healthy intentions. Here are a few suggestions on how to go about that.

Think before You Drink

You don't have to give up alcohol entirely for weight control, says Andrea Giancoli, registered dietitian and spokeswoman for the American Dietetic Association. But you do have to fit it into your calorie limit. Making that work means knowing the calorie counts of what you drink.

For women, federal health guidelines recommend no more than one drink a day (5 ounces of wine, 1.5 ounces of liquor or a 12-ounce beer). For men the limit is two drinks. Though the numbers can vary, most wines sport about 120 calories per serving. Most hard liquors, such as gin and vodka, have about 100 calories per serving. A regular beer has a bit more than 150 calories, while a light beer has about 100.

Those numbers make the hard stuff seem like a good choice when you're watching your calories. Except that most people aren't going to just sip a jigger of vodka and call it a night. And once you start adding mixers and sweeteners and juices, the calories can add up fast.

Just 4 ounces of strawberry daiquiri mixer can add 260 calories to your rum, for a total of 360 calories, roughly the same as a Sausage McMuffin from McDonald's. Even a simple rum and Coke can have 200 calories or more. A vodka and cranberry juice has about the same.

"Mixers can really add up," says Giancoli. "If you like to use liquor vs. having beer or wine, go for the low-calorie mixer. If you're somebody who likes rum and cola, do rum and diet cola. If you're somebody who likes vodka cranberry, you can do vodka with diet cranberry."

It can take some of the spontaneity out of an evening, but if you're planning to drink it's best to plan ahead, tally the calories and budget accordingly.

Ice Is Nice

Lisa McRee, a former "Good Morning America" co-anchor who now publishes the popular recipe and diet tip site The Skinny, remembers being on a "no white foods" diet and being miserable since that included "no white wine." These days she eschews fad diets for a sensible regime of good food cooked well, heavy on the vegetables.

"The philosophy really comes down to eat more things that grow and fewer things that walk," she says.

Cutting carbs and other empty calories leaves a little room for alcohol. And when she wants to enjoy her favorite chardonnay she slips an ice cube or two into the glass. That makes the drink last longer and also dilutes the alcohol, an important point since alcohol is a notorious sapper of willpower.

In summer, she'll do the same with a light red wine. While you probably wouldn't want to do this with a heavy red wine such as cabernet sauvignon — or in front of your vinophile friends — serving wine over ice is not without precedent. McRee first came across it while traveling in Italy in 100-degree weather and seeing the locals chill their wine with a few cubes.

Get on the Fresh Express

Jacques Bezuidenhout, the master mixologist for Kimpton Hotels & Restaurants, has an easy tip for trimming calories from drinks: Keep it simple.

"When I approach healthy drinking, I focus on what goes in the glass," he says. "Is the juice fresh squeezed? Are we using quality spirits? When you look at those key factors then really look at what kind of sugar you add to the drink! Sugar is the first thing that will start to tag on the calories or assist in a poor feeling in the morning."

Using better ingredients and fresh juice means you need to add less sugar or liqueurs to balance out the cocktail. He recommends using sweeteners such as agave nectar or honey. His diet cocktail? A gin martini, no mixers required.

Alcohol isn't necessarily the best thing to do when you're watching your weight, "but if you're going to do it, we encourage that kind of wellness factor in our bar. Look at what you're putting in your cocktail, balance that sugar," he says.

And one more tip — buy smaller glassware for your home. If you are constantly trying to fill a 12-ounce martini glass or 14-ounce highball with a cocktail of any kind, your sugar levels and spirit levels will go up, says Bezuidenhout.

Flavor without Fear

Look for no- and low-calorie ways to add flavor to your cocktails. Diet sodas (including diet tonic water) are an obvious choice. But many companies also offer low-sugar varieties of juices, such as cranberry.

Lemon and lime juice add tons of flavor, but pack just 4 calories per tablespoon. Flavor a serving of white rum with a bit of fresh mint (5 calories for 2 tablespoons), some lime juice, a caloriefree sweetener such as stevia, then pour the whole thing over crushed ice and top with seltzer water and you have a mojito for 110 calories.

Or opt for juices with big flavor so you don't have to use as much. Pomegranate juice — which has just 18 calories per ounce (2 tablespoons) — can do wonders for a shot of vodka and a splash of seltzer.

And if you're playing bartender at home, there's always the infusion technique. Get a bottle of tequila or vodka and dump it in a large glass jar. Use a vegetable peeler to strip the zest off a whole bunch of citrus (for example, 8 or so lemons for a 750-milliliter bottle), then add the zest to the liquor. Cover and set aside for four or five days, shaking every once in a while. Strain out and discard the zest. To drink, spike a serving of it with calorie-free sweetener and a splash of seltzer.

A Lighter Take on French Onion Soup, via Italy

BY SARA MOULTON
Associated Press

Everybody loves French onion soup, and with good reason. Caramelized onions swimming in a rich beef broth flavored with a splash of red wine or brandy and topped with broiled Gruyere cheese? Every warm, gooey mouthful lights up your taste buds like a pinball machine. It's exactly what you want on a cold winter's night.

But it is not light. In my quest to slim down this French classic I turned to Italy. I caramelized the onions in olive oil, rather than butter, swapped out the Gruyere in favor of Parmigiano-Reggiano (less fat and bigger flavor, so you can use less of it), and moved the croutons and cheese off the top to make room for a poached egg. Finally, I added some pancetta for flavor, because we have to have at least a little fun.

I took much of my inspiration for this recipe from Cesare Casella, a brilliant Tuscan chef who used to hold court at Beppe, a wonderful restaurant within walking distance of my home in New York years ago, now long gone. I thought Casella's soup really improved the French original. I especially like the addition of the egg. The yolk makes up for at least some of the richness lost when the Gruyere goes bye-bye.

But unlike Casella, I don't have home-made beef stock just hanging around my kitchen, so I used chicken broth as the base. Once upon a time I couldn't find store-bought beef broth that made the grade. Now Rachael Ray has come out with a good one. I recommend it.

If you'd like, you even can get a jump on this recipe by poaching the eggs ahead of time. Just cool them off after you're done by transferring them with a slotted spoon to a bowl of ice water. Then store them in the refrigerator on a plate covered with plastic wrap until you're ready to reheat them. All you need to do is submerge them in a pan of barely simmering water for a minute or two.

Traditional French Onion Soup is a rich first course. This Italian-style onion soup is a full meal in a bowl.

Italian-style Onion Soup Topped with a Poached Egg

Start to finish: 1 1/2 hours (20 minutes active). Servings: 4.

2 ounces chopped pancetta
3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil

3 pounds yellow onions, thinly-sliced
1 cup red wine
5 cups low-sodium beef or chicken broth
Kosher salt
1 tablespoon white or cider vinegar
4 large eggs
1 1/2 ounces Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese, finely grated (about 1/2 cup)
Ground black pepper
Eight 1/2-inch-thick baguette slices, toasted

In a large saucepan over medium heat, cook the pancetta until it is golden. Transfer it to a plate using a slotted spoon.

Return the saucepan to medium heat. Add the olive oil and onions, then cook, covered but stirring occasionally, until very soft, about 20 minutes. Remove the cover and cook, stirring frequently, for another 35 to 45 minutes, or until the onions are golden brown and caramelized. Add the wine and boil until it is reduced by half. Add the broth and simmer for another 20 minutes.

Bring a large saucepan of salted water to a low simmer. Add the vinegar.

Crack each egg into a small glass. One at a time, gently and slowly pour each egg into the simmering water, bringing the lip of the glass right down to the water so that the egg slides in. Depending on the size of your pan, you may need to cook them in 2 batches. Cook for 4 minutes, then use a slotted spoon to lift each egg out (letting excess water drip away).

To serve, ladle the soup into 4 bowls. Top each with a poached egg, sprinkle with some of the cheese, some of the pancetta and pepper to taste. Serve each portion with 2 toasts on the side.

Dinner in 40 Minutes: Pasta with Yogurt

BONNIE S. BENWICK
The Washington Post

The Greek islands of Kas-sos and Karpathos both have versions of this simple, rich dish. Unfortunately, it's not the most appealing plate you'll ever set on a weeknight table. But it tastes great.

We used an aged manchego cheese instead of the original recipe's Greek kefalotyri cheese.

Serve with a salad of chopped greens, olives and almonds, tossed with a dried-oregano vinaigrette.

Adapted from "The Country Cooking of Greece," by Diane Kochilas (Chronicle, 2012).

Pasta with Yogurt and Onions

4 servings.

- Water
- 3 large (about 1 1/3 pounds total) red onions
- Salt
- 8 ounces dried spinach tagliatelle or spinach penne
- 5 tablespoons unsalted butter
- 2 cups low-fat plain Greek-style yogurt
- 1/2 to 1 cup coarsely grated hard, sharp-tasting cheese, such as an aged manchego

Bring a large pot of water to a boil over high heat. Heat a large, wide, heavy-bottomed pot or skillet over medium-high heat. Add enough water to come up about 1/4 inch on the sides. Peel the onions and cut them in half, then into very thin slices, adding them to the pot or skillet as you work. Once they're all in, stir until they've started to pick up a bit of golden color. Sprinkle lightly with salt, then cook the onions for about 30 minutes, stirring a few times, until they are soft and browned. Transfer to a bowl; there should be about 2 1/4 cups. Add a generous pinch of salt to the pot of water, then add the pasta. Cook according to the package directions. Drain, reserving 1/2 cup of the pasta cooking water. Return the pasta to the pot (off the heat). While the pasta and onions are cooking, melt the butter in a small skillet over medium heat just until it browns; this should take 5 to 7 minutes. Pour into the pasta and stir to coat, then stir in the yogurt. If the mixture seems too thick, add some or all of the reserved pasta cooking water. Cover to keep warm. Divide the pasta among individual plates. Sprinkle with equal amounts of the grated cheese, then top with equal amounts of the browned onions and their juices. Serve hot.

Pasta with No Carbs and Almost No Calories? No Way

BY JIM ROMANOFF
Associated Press

The conventional wisdom of cutting carbs and calories generally has meant that pasta is a no-go.

But recently, a new noodle has challenged that thinking, giving dieters a fresh — albeit slightly different — way to have their pasta and their New Year's resolutions. We're not talking spaghetti squash which, while delicious in its own right, has never made a satisfying substitute for the real deal.

It's so-called shirataki noodles that have attracted the attention of so many dieters of late. Their appeal? No carbs, no fat and almost no calories.

No kidding?

It's true. These slightly chewy noodles — which usually are found alongside the tofu and other refrigerated Asian foods in grocers' produce sections — are made from a water-soluble fiber that comes from a type of sweet potato (some are made with tofu as well, which contains a tiny bit of fat). Though they once were found only in Asian markets, they have begun showing up in most large supermarkets.

And it's not just a desire to cut carbs that is fueling the growth of this product (which has gone from just one or two varieties to many in a span of a couple years). Food and shopping expert Phil Lempert, founder and editor of SupermarketGuru.com, says the growth of the gluten-free (which shirataki happen to be) category also is driving the popularity of this product.

Shaped like spaghetti, fettuccine and even "rice," shirataki noodles come packed in water and require nothing more than draining, rinsing and briefly boiling.

And while these noodles can replace your favorite pasta in many dishes, you'll need to keep in mind two things. First, don't skip the rinsing step. This washes away a slight bitterness and funky smell. Fear not, both disappear entirely once you've rinsed and boiled.

Second, while they certainly are filling, in keeping with their lack of carbs and calories the noodles have virtually zero flavor. But Grace Young, author of "Stir-Frying to the Sky's Edge," considers that an advantage. She says a lack of flavor makes shirataki the perfect ingredient for dishes where the other ingredients or the sauce define the dish.

Young was first introduced to shirataki by a home cook in the Philippines, who used the carb-free noodles all the time because she was diabetic, but still wanted pasta. Young says she adds them to homemade broth with fresh vegetables, or simply prepares them with a good quality soy sauce and toasted sesame oil.

Because of their bland flavor and chewy texture, Young advises picking companion ingredients for shirataki carefully. Salty and bright, tangy flavors work well, along with crisp textures and even the toothsome quality of cooked mushrooms and meats. This way, she says, every bite will have that perfect blend of taste and consistency.

To give shirataki a more pasta-like consistency, also try dry roasting them in a well-oiled or nonstick skillet over high heat for about a minute (be careful not to burn them) before adding them to your favorite dish.

Chicken and Shirataki Noodle Soup

Start to finish: 30 minutes. Servings: 6.

- 10 cups reduced-sodium chicken broth
- 2 cups shredded carrots
- 1 large stalk celery, coarsely chopped
- 3 tablespoons minced fresh ginger
- 2 tablespoons minced garlic
- Three 8-ounce packages fettucine-style shirataki noodles, drained and well rinsed
- 4 cups shredded cooked

skinless chicken breast (about 1 pound)
3 tablespoons chopped fresh dill
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Salt and ground black pepper, to taste

In a Dutch oven over medium heat, bring the broth to a boil. Add the carrots, celery, ginger and garlic. Cook, uncovered, until the vegetables are tender, about 8 to 10 minutes. Add the shirataki and chicken, then simmer until the noodles are just hot, 2 to 3 minutes. Stir in the dill and lemon juice, then season with salt and pepper.

Per serving: 150 calories; 15 calories from fat (10 percent of total calories); 1.5 g fat (0 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 45 mg cholesterol; 10 g carbohydrate; 3 g fiber; 3 g sugar; 24 g protein; 1020 mg sodium.

TWIN FALLS • Joyce Bay, 81, loving mother, wife, grandma and great-grandma, passed away Sunday, Jan. 13, 2013.

Joyce was born Jan. 24, 1931 in Oklahoma City, Okla., to Daniel Wilson and Bertha Baker Wilson Young. She lived in various parts of the world, including Brazil for two years with her husband, Thomas, and her three young children. Then later in their lives, a move took them to Alaska for more than 20 years, where their daughter (Brenda) and her family were able to live, too. Their last move brought them all to Twin Falls, where she and Tom lived their final years. Joyce was married to her best friend, Tom, for 54 years. Joyce was always with loved ones; she was lucky to have the help of her grandsons (Louis and Joe), daughter (Brenda) and son-in-law (Paul) to take care of her in her time of need.

Joyce always had a love and unbelievable talent for the art of painting; her paintings are just breathtaking. She entered some of her paintings in the fair with the push of her husband, Tom. She was very humble about her paintings, but she wasn't one to just sit and watch TV so she painted. Joyce also had a skill with crocheting and was a great seamstress. She couldn't help but keep herself busy.

Joyce is survived by her sons, Rick and Larry Manning; and her daughter, Brenda Upchurch (Paul). She will be missed by 10 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren. She is also survived her younger brother, Kenneth Wilson. She was preceded in death by her parents; husband, Thomas Bay; brother, Eugene; and her daughter, Donna.

The funeral for Joyce will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday, Jan. 17, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. Visitation will be held one hour prior to the service from 9 to 10 a.m. Thursday at the funeral home. Interment will be held following the service at the Twin Falls Cemetery in Twin Falls.

James Dale Assendrup

July 5, 1941-Jan. 5, 2013

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. • James Dale Assendrup, 71, died Saturday, Jan. 5, 2013. He passed away peacefully at the hospital due to pneumonia/infection following a hard, five-month battle from a back surgery.

Jim was the son of Ray and Lillian (Nelson) Assendrup of Jerome, Idaho, and was born July 5, 1941.

He is survived by his wife, Patricia Assendrup; and his three children, Teri Flores of Sacramento, Calif., Brian Assendrup of Glens Ferry, Idaho, and Julie Karp of Westminster, Colo.; as well as sister, Marjorie Balmer of Idaho Falls, Idaho. Jim has four grandchildren, Brandon

Mesa, Heather Mesa, Sierra (Assendrup) Wickham and Nicole Guarnera. He also has three great-grandchildren, Taylor Wickham and new twin boys, Korbin and Kaleb Wickham. He had three stepdaughters as well.

Jim graduated from University of Idaho with a master's degree in physics. He moved to Southern California in the 1960s to begin his long and important career in Aerospace Physics, starting with Autonetics/Rockwell doing nuclear classified work, then later moving to Thousand Oaks, Calif., to work the remainder of his career as a research physicist with Litton/Northrup Grumman. While at Northrup Grumman, he created a Ring Laser Gyroscope that was used to stabilize space satellites and was also used in deep space probes.

Jim had a love for motorcycles, camping, jazz music and good times. He had hummingbird feeders in his backyard and a huge bird feeder as well. He loved to sit on his deck with his favorite drink and watch all the birds come and go. He knew each one by look and would tell stories about them. He had been working on a model ship for 30 years, the USS Endeavor; he finished it six months ago. All the pieces got spilled in an earthquake, thousands of them, yet he managed to figure it all out. He was a kind and good man with a brilliant mind.

Jim's family was very proud of him and all of his accomplishments. He was an amazing and highly intelligent man. He is already so deeply missed by his family. James Assendrup will forever be in the hearts of all who knew and loved him, especially his children. A service was held Jan. 10 in Thousand Oaks, Calif.

OBITUARIES

Ruth Eileen Stone

May 16, 1923-Jan. 13, 2013

HAZELTON • Ruth Eileen Stone of Hazelton, Idaho, departed this life Sunday morning, Jan. 13, 2013, for her eternal home in Heaven, there to join other family and friends and await the coming of her husband, Alva "Al" Stone, and be forever with her Lord and Savior Jesus Christ and the Father of all the saved forever and ever.

Ruth was born May 16, 1923, to Washington Ray and Lilly Davidson of Gamaliel, Ark., the third of six children, and is survived by one sister, Marvene Cargill of Porterville, Calif. Also surviving are her son, Robert and wife of Big Piney, Wyo.; three grandchildren, Jeremy of Boise, Idaho, Andie of Twin Falls and Jamie Stone of Eden, Idaho; and one great-grandchild, Emma. Her parents and four siblings preceded her in death.

Thanks to the doctors, hospice and Twin Falls Care Center for their loving care of Ruth.

At Ruth's request, no service was held. Cremation was under the direction of the Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls, Idaho. Those wishing to share memories or condolences may do so at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

Georgia Lee (Exon) Zollinger

Aug. 16, 1929-Jan. 13, 2013

GOODING • Georgia Lee (Exon) Zollinger, 83, a resident of Twin Falls and formerly of Gooding, passed away on Sunday, Jan. 13, 2013, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls.

Georgia was born Aug. 16, 1929, in Hominy, Okla., the daughter of James H. Exon and Hazel Marie Cox Exon. She was raised and educated in southern Idaho at the schools in Hazelton. She moved from Oklahoma to Idaho in her young life, where she met and married Jacob R. Zollinger.

Georgia worked in food service in the area for many years, retiring early at the age of 62. She loved life, enjoying her family and especially her grandkids. She loved to cook, and there was always a feast at dinner time with lots of homemade goodies in between. She was a very faithful person and never minded sharing her testimony with anyone. Georgia was a wonderful wife, mother, grandmother and friend. She will be greatly missed, but we know she is in a great place being reunited with loved ones.

Georgia is survived by her husband, Jacob R. Zollinger of Twin Falls, Idaho; three sons, David R. (Jan) Zollinger of Hagerman, Idaho, and Timothy G. (DeAnn) Zollinger and James N. Zollinger, all of Gooding, Idaho; one daughter, Sherry L. (Frank) Stone of Gooding, Idaho; two brothers, Jim (Kathy) Exon of Richfield, Idaho, and Jerry Exon of Moscow, Idaho; 10 grandchildren; and 10 great-grandchildren. She is preceded in death by her parents; two sisters, Berta Bauer and Barbara Geer; and two brothers, Jack Exon and Bill Exon.

Visitation for family and friends will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 16, at Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. A funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday, Jan. 17, at Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. Burial will follow at the Hagerman Cemetery in Hagerman. Arrangements are under the care and direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. Condolences may be sent to the family by visiting the obituary link at www.demarayfuneralservice.com.

Leila Faye West

Sept. 21, 1927-Jan. 13, 2013

RUPERT • Leila Faye West, age 85, of Rupert, Idaho, passed away Sunday, Jan. 13, 2013, at the Countryside Care and Rehabilitation Center in Rupert.

Faye was the daughter of Dave and Elsie Pfeifer. She was born Sept. 21, 1927, and was the second oldest of nine children. She married Alvin G. West, of Acequia, and they lived and raised their family mostly in southern Idaho.

Faye is survived by five brothers, Tilmus "Jack" (Twylla) Pfeifer, Gerald "Jerry" (Linda) Pfeifer, Melvin (Yosoon) Pfeifer, Merlyn (Debbie) Pfeifer and Lester "Butch" (Sue) Pfeifer; two sisters, JoAnn (Kent) Bryan and Sharon (Bob) Hissung; two sons, Jack (June) West and Malcolm West; eight grandchildren; and 16 great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her parents; husband; an older brother, Dale; and an infant son, Alvin Ray West. Faye was born in Zealand, N.D., and spent the first 12 years of her life in a small German community where she learned to speak only German. When the family moved to southwestern Idaho, she discovered that all of her classmates spoke English. This presented quite a challenge for the shy 12-year-old. Faye grew up helping her family work on the farm. In her late teens and early 20s, Faye worked as a waitress and later in the food processing industry. In addition to her work as a lab technician at Simplot in Heyburn, Faye also spent some time working as a camp host for the Forest Service. She was stationed at Brownlee Reservoir located near the Idaho and Oregon borders. This was an exciting experience for Grandma West, and she loved talking to campers and Forest Service workers. Faye loved camping with her family and also loved playing softball and bowling. She was also good at crafts, liked to do ceramics and knitted and crocheted many beautiful afghans and other items. Faye also loved to play softball and was a fast and accurate pitcher. She was also a good bowler and traveled many places with her team to play in games and tournaments. She has a wall full of awards and pins. She loved being with her kids and grandchildren and often let them talk her into rather dangerous activities — snow skiing, motorcycle and snowmobile riding, driving on unfamiliar roads, etc. Faye was greatly loved by her family and will be sorely missed. Say hi to Dad for us, Mom. The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Jan. 18, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, where friends and family may call one hour prior to the service. Burial will be in the Paul Cemetery.

James Dale Raby

May 2, 1928-Nov. 29, 2012

GOODING • James Dale "Jim" Raby, devoted husband and father, died Thursday, Nov. 29, 2012, at the age of 84.

He was born in Gooding, Idaho, on May 2, 1928, to Walter and Beulah Raby. After graduation from Gooding High School, he joined the Navy. Later, he trained at Idaho State University to be a television engineer, then moved to California where he worked as a cameraman enjoying the challenges of a career in the early days of TV. In 1958, he started work at KTVU where he worked until his retirement in 1988.

Jim enjoyed camping, backpacking, boating and photography, but his special love was cycling. He bicycled around Marin and Sonoma counties, exploring the back roads and even completed a century ride. After 37 years of living in Santa Rafael, he and his wife, Naomi, moved to Santa Rosa to enjoy retirement. They took many trips in their motor home and also with Elderhostel. His wife, Naomi Le (Copsey), and he had celebrated their 66th wedding anniversary last June. He was active in the First Congregational Church, serving as a deacon. He enjoyed singing in the First United Methodist Church choir and his Thursday breakfasts with the Methodist Men in Fellowship.

He is survived by his wife; his four children and spouses, Diane Preece (Tom Preece), Edith Raby (Paul Sheinfeld), Chuck Raby (Debbie Raby) and Jeff Raby (Ramon Silvestre); four grandchildren, Dana Wallace, Beth Raby, Ben Raby and Jake Raby; and one great-grandchild, Oscar Raby. Jim enjoyed the love of his immediate family and of Naomi's large Copsey family. Jim is predeceased by his parents; and his sister, Vila Ruth Consolini.

A memorial service will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 19, at Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. A private inurnment will take place at a later date at Elmwood Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to Sutter VNA and Hospice, 1110 Dutton Ave., Santa Rosa, CA 95401.

Local arrangements are under the care and direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. Condolences may be shared with the family by visiting the obituary link at www.demarayfuneralservice.com.

William R. Jones

Sept. 14, 1920-Jan. 12, 2013

BURLEY • William Reed "Bill" Jones of Burley, Idaho, passed away Saturday, Jan. 12, 2013, at the age of 92 at Parke View Rehabilitation and Care Center in Burley.

He was born in Burley, Idaho, on Sept. 14, 1920, to Percy and Larian (Johnson) Jones. He graduated from Burley High School in 1939. In 1942, Bill enlisted in the U.S. Army, proudly serving his country with the 17th Field Artillery Battalion in the European Theater. While in the service, Bill received the American Theater Operation Service Ribbon, European African Middle Eastern Ribbon, a Good Conduct medal and the AR600-68 Victory Medal; he was honorably discharged on Feb. 5, 1946.

He met Emma Kerbs in Burley, and they were married June 2, 1943, in Elko, Nev. In his younger years, he farmed south of Burley and then opened Bill Jones Automotive in 1949. In 1962, Bill opened Minico Auto Parts with Jay McBride. He later sold his interests in Minico Auto Parts and renamed his business Burley Auto Parts. While in the auto parts business, Bill was an active member of the Automotive Wholesalers of Idaho. Bill retired in 1992, selling the business to Schow's Auto Parts. He was an active member of Zion Lutheran Church in Burley, serving as a trustee and a member of the Zion Lutheran Layman League. He was instrumental in building the gymnasium, and the members could always count on Bill to lend a helping hand with anything at the church.

Bill was an avid hunter and fisherman, teaching his kids and grandkids his love of the outdoors. He loved his trips to the Big Wood River and never missed an opportunity to take his family. He was active in the VFW and loved to spend time in his garden at the shop. His last 2½ years were spent as a resident of the Warren House in Burley. Bill loved the people there and enjoyed the interaction with the other residents.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Emma; his parents; two sisters, Ione Jones and Doris Fullmer; two brothers, Louis Jones and W. John Jones; a son, Dennis Jones; and one great-grandson, Conner Reed Jones. He is survived by his sons, Larry R. Jones of Burley, W. Rick Jones (Cheri) of Ilwaco, Wash., Steven P. Jones (Shelley) and Jack J. Jones (Barb) of Burley; one daughter, Charlene Bartlome (Gary) of Burley; 10 grandchildren; 13 great-grandchildren; one brother, Ross V. Jones (Lor-raina) of Burley; and one sister, Myrth Kidd of Rexburg.

Bill will always be remembered for his big heart. If he ever saw someone in need, he was always the first one to help them out. He will always be remembered for his "moo cow" call, his love of children and his willingness to help his community. For many years, Bill and his sister, Myrth, gave Christmas presents to the kids at the Idaho Youth Ranch in Acequia.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 19, at the United Methodist Church, 450 E. 27th St. in Burley, with the Rev. Kathy Abend officiating. Burial will be in the Pleasant View Cemetery in Burley. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 18, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Saturday at the church.

Memorial contributions may be made in Bill's name to the Idaho Youth Ranch or to Zion Lutheran Church in care of the Rasmussen Funeral Home, P.O. Box 878, Burley, ID 83318.

Frances Elaine Steinmetz

Oct. 15, 1936-Jan. 5, 2013

KIMBERLY • Frances Elaine Steinmetz was born Oct. 15, 1936, in Pinedale, Wyo. She passed away at her home in Kimberly on Saturday, Jan. 5, 2013, with her Bob, Scott, and Denise at her side.

Francis was a loving mother to her family and companion to her husband, Chuck, for 42 years in Hansen, Idaho, and the later years in Eden, Idaho, until Chuck's passing in 2009. Francis spent the remainder of her life in Kimberly with her children.

Francis and Chuck spent many years doing activities with the Antique Tractor Club, the JRoam-ers RV Club and the Antique Car Club, of which they were active members. Family was very important to her; she was able to spend the holidays this year with her children and grandchildren at her side.

Our mother was the strongest, most determined person we have ever known, and she will be greatly missed by all.

Those wishing to pay their condolences on line may do so at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com. Arrangements were under the direction of Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls.

Chocolate

“It’s a real fun event. You walk in and the room smells like chocolate,” Skeem said. “It’s like a cocktail party with chocolate. Everyone’s real happy, probably because they are on a sugar high.”

The Rotary Club of Twin Falls sponsors the event, so don’t feel guilty when you experience sugar crash; all proceeds will benefit local charities and the Main Avenue Splash Park and Plaza.

“We love doing Death by Chocolate. It’s a fun event and we love to support it,” said Cyndi Arno, owner of Arno Confection Perfection in Twin Falls.

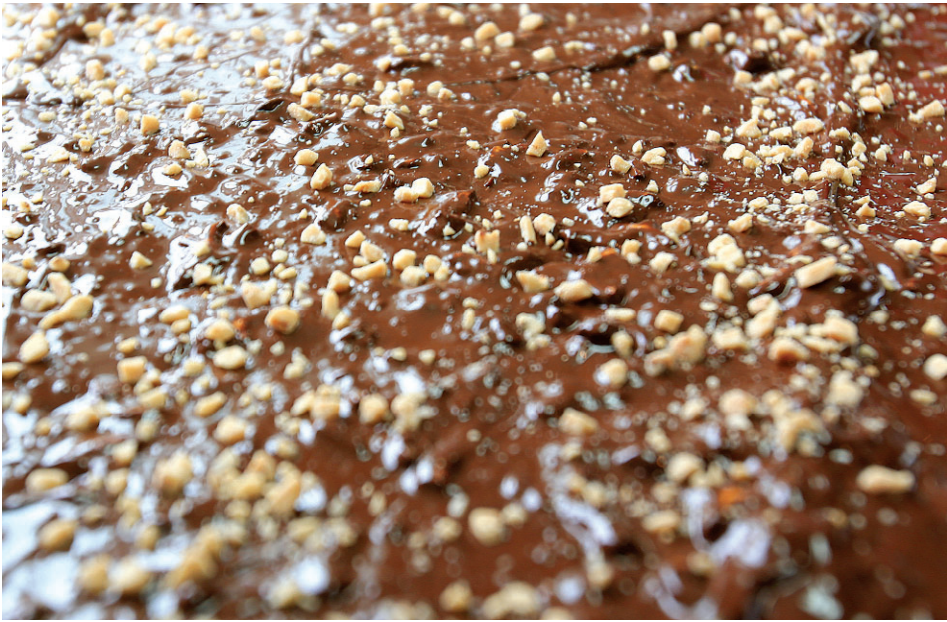

The first year Arno Confection Perfection competed in Death by Chocolate, in 2009, it took home second place in a People’s Choice category for Arno’s peppermint bark. Though Arno had made peppermint bark for years, she had just started to dabble in making it as a business. But the win at the chocolate competition solidified her plan.

“Oh, I do think we have a business here,” Arno said she thought at the time.

Today Arno’s business has taken off since its debut at Death by Chocolate. On Jan. 10, Arno was preparing a batch of peppermint bark for a company that supplies food products to Twitter. The company found Arno’s business online and has ordered more than 400 pounds of her bark. She said her products will also soon be sold at Whole Foods Market in Boise.

Arno said she isn’t quite sure what she will submit to this year’s contest — she currently makes flavors like toffee, sea salt and cranberry almond bark — but is considering coming up with a new flavor just for the event in the coming weeks.

Last year Krislyn Canary, owner of Pieces of Heaven Cupcakery, competed in the Arno Confection Perfection’s pretzel toffee bark.

Fill Your Plate

The Rotary Club of Twin Falls is sponsoring its eighth annual Death by Chocolate tasting event, a charity fundraiser, at 6-9 p.m. Jan. 31 at Canyon Crest Event Center, 330 Canyon Crest Drive in Twin Falls.

There will be a silent auction and raffle throughout the evening and live music by the Jason Lugo Band. There will also be a no-host bar, Zulu Bagels providing free coffee and Costco providing free water. Western States Bus Service will donate free shuttle service to overflow parking areas.

Admission: $15 in advance and $20 at the door. Advance tickets are sold at the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce, Kurt’s Pharmacy, The Mail Room and www.twinfallsrotary.org.

Information: Jill Skeem, committee chairwoman, at 208-320-2786 or jillasher-man@yahoo.com.

cupcake division. This year, she said, the store will be represented by a product that is already in its display case: the Blackout Cake.

If candy is more your speed, be on the prowl for whatever students from Canyon Ridge High School concoct.

Barbara Morales, a family and consumer science teacher at Canyon Ridge, said the team’s students are all volunteers and have taken at least one of her classes. This is the third time the school has competed. Last year, Morales said, students took third in three divisions with their salted caramel brownies.

“They like to compete, they love to go to the event and they want to make everything from scratch,” Morales said. “We’re competing against businesses like Cactus Petes and Daisy’s; if we get anything we feel good.”

The 2013 competitors: Arno Confection Perfection, Bakehouse, Black Cat Cupcakes, Cactus Petes Resort Casino, Canyon Crest Dining & Event Center, Canyon Ridge High School, Carla’s Creations, Cold Stone Creamery, College of Southern Idaho’s baking and pastry arts program, Daisy’s, From Seed to Store, Hilton

Garden Inn, JJ’s Cakes & Confections, Magic Valley High School, Pieces of Heaven Cupcakery, Simplicity Sweets, Sweet Hope, The Coffee Shop, Twin Falls High School, Heritage & Woodstone Assisted Living and Wynwood at Twin Falls.

Last year, the Rotary Club of Twin Falls estimated it netted around $31,000 for local charities at its seventh annual Death by Chocolate tasting event, Skeem said in 2012, estimating that year’s attendance at around 1,100 people.

DEARABBY: "Myles" and I have known each other for five years, but have grown really close over the past three. We tell each other everything, and I have fallen in love with him.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne
Phillips

A few months ago, Myles sent me a text saying he needed to tell me a "secret." He went on to say the guy he had told me was his brother, "Jeff," is really his lover. Needless to say, that bombshell floored me. We have discussed it in person, and I have never told him how I feel. I visit them a couple of times a month and always go home feeling hurt. I want Myles for myself, even though I know I can't have him. I don't want to lose him as my friend, but it hurts seeing him and Jeff together. How do I resolve this?

IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR LEFT BEHIND: Start by being as honest with Myles as he was with you. Tell him that over the course of your friendship you fell in love with him — and that you wish you had known he was gay before you became so emotionally involved. If you want romance, you will have to look for it elsewhere. In order for you to find it, I cannot stress strongly enough that you will need to feel good about yourself. Stop torturing yourself by visiting the two lovebirds and take a break for a while. A LONG while.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old woman who has never been married or had children. For the past two years I've been seeing a man I'll call Frank. I love him deeply, and I believe he feels the same about me.

Frank is still married but legally separated from his wife. They have one child who lives with his mom. Frank lives with me, and Frank's wife lives with another man and has a second child by yet another guy.

My problem is, Frank's wife calls ME whenever she has a fight with her boyfriend. She confides in me like I'm her best friend. I have never talked to Frank about divorcing her, but I'm at my wit's end over this whole circle. Sometimes I feel like I'm wasting my time with him. Abby, I'm a long-time reader who needs to find a solution to this soap opera. Please help me.

— GETTING DIZZY
IN EAST BOSTON

DEAR GETTING DIZZY: You need to talk to Frank about his degree of commitment to you. Two years is a long time to live with someone who's married to someone else — let alone be trying to solve his wife's love problems. Perhaps it's time to distance yourself from both of them and figure out what you want to do for YOU.

DEAR ABBY: My friend "Maggie" is getting a divorce. She has been living with my husband and me for four months. She pays one-third of our utility bill but pays no rent.

My husband feels that since Maggie is living with us, she should pay something — even if it's only $100 a month. She's a lifelong friend, and I don't know what to do. Maggie is very upset over her messy divorce. Should I ask her for rent money? (I don't want to fight over this with my husband.)

— ONLY FRIEND
IN KENTUCKY

DEAR ONLY FRIEND: It depends on Maggie's financial circumstances. If she has the money, it's certainly OK to ask. If she doesn't have the resources — or a job — she should consider finding one so she's not completely financially dependent on others.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

Good advice for everyone — teens to seniors — is in "The Anger in All of Us and How to Deal With It." To order, send your name and mailing address, plus check or money order for $7 (U.S. funds) to: Dear Abby, Anger Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447. (Shipping and handling are included in the price.)

Today is Wednesday, Jan. 16, the 16th day of 2013. There are 349 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Jan. 16, 2003, the space shuttle Columbia blasted off under extremely tight security for what turned out to be its last flight; on board was Israel's first astronaut, Ilan Ramon. (The mission ended in tragedy on Feb. 1, when the shuttle broke up during its return descent, killing all seven crew members.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1547, Ivan IV of Russia (popularly known as "Ivan the Terrible") was crowned Czar.

In 1883, the U.S. Civil Service Commission was established.

In 1912, a day before reaching the South Pole, British explorer Robert Scott and his expedition found evidence that Roald Amundsen of Norway and his team had gotten there ahead of them.

In 1920, Prohibition began in the United States as the 18th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution took effect, one year to the day after its ratification. (It was later repealed by the 21st Amendment.)

In 1935, fugitive gangster Fred Barker and his mother, Kate "Ma" Barker, were killed in a shootout with the FBI at Lake Weir, Fla.

In 1942, actress Carole Lombard, 33, her mother Elizabeth and 20 other people were killed when their plane crashed near Las Vegas, Nev., while en route to California from a war-bond promotion tour.

In 1944, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower took command of the Allied Expeditionary Forces in London.

In 1969, two manned Soviet Soyuz spaceships became the first vehicles to dock in space and transfer personnel.

In 1978, NASA named 35 candidates to fly on the space shuttle, including Sally K. Ride, who became America's first woman in space, and Guion S. Bluford Jr., who became America's first black astronaut in space.

In 1987, Hu Yaobang resigned as head of China's Communist Party, declaring he'd made mistakes in dealing with student turmoil and intellectual challenges to the system. Broadway columnist Earl Wilson died in Yonkers, N.Y., at age 79.

In 1991, the White House announced the start of Operation Desert Storm to drive Iraqi forces out of Kuwait.

In 2007, Sen. Barack Obama, D-Ill., launched his successful bid for the White House.

Ten years ago: AOL Time Warner chief executive Dick Parsons was tapped to be the media conglomerate's new chairman, succeeding Steve Case.

Five years ago: President George W. Bush closed out his Mideast trip with a brief visit to Egypt, where he was welcomed by President Hosni Mubarak. Archbishop Earl Paulk, the 80-year-old leader of a megachurch, pleaded guilty in Atlanta to lying under oath about his sexual affairs and was sentenced to 10 years' probation. (Paulk died in March 2009.)

One year ago: Republican presidential front-runner Mitt Romney fended off attacks from rivals during a debate in Myrtle Beach, S.C.; hours before the debate, former Utah Gov. Jon Huntsman withdrew from the race and announced his support for Romney despite their differences. Jimmy Castor, funk and soul saxophonist, singer and songwriter whose tune, "It's Just Begun," morphed into an anthem for generations of musical acts, died in Las Vegas at age 71.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"From childhood's hour I have not been As others were — I have not seen As others saw."
— Edgar Allan Poe

The field in a pairs game generally played four hearts here and the traveler showed a string of scores of plus 50 to East-West, and yet when West leads the diamond queen against your heart game, you should really find a way to make the contract.

The mistake most declarers made was to win the lead in dummy and play a spade to the 10. West won, led a low diamond to his partner, and a club shift scuttled declarer's chances.

Let's revisit the play. Since you are not keen for East to be able to obtain the lead cheaply to lead a club through your king, you should play low from dummy on the first trick. East is welcome to overtake with the diamond king. If he pays this high price to gain the lead, the defenders can take their clubs, but you will finesse the diamond 10 subsequently, setting up a discard for your spade loser.

If East plays low at trick one, you win the next diamond with dummy's ace and play a spade to the 10. If West wins with the king or queen, you will unblock the spade ace and later take a ruffing spade finesse through East after drawing trumps to set up a discard for one of your club losers. So long as the spade honors are split, the defenders cannot prevent this line of play. And if both spade honors are on your right, you still have the club finesse available.

ANSWER: Your partner has real extras and, in the first instance, is looking for no-trump if you can offer a heart stopper. Here, you have a decent hand for the bidding and a decent heart stopper — just enough to jump to three no-trump. Without the diamond 10 and heart jack, you would bid two no-trump.

IF JANUARY 16 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You might feel that you have the whole world at your beck and call in the year to come. If you aren't distracted by a passing fancy or casual fling during the next six to eight weeks, you can expect to make great headway by accomplishing your business goals in April. May is a great month in which to start key projects, make crucial decisions or put major changes into motion; you will be wiser than usual and will have the assistance of powerful or benevolent friends. An important new friendship or group could be a positive influence in August.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your best plans can be sidetracked by frivolous, time-wasting formalities. As playwright George Bernard Shaw observed: "People who say it cannot be done should not interrupt those who are doing it."

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Busy bees earn the most respect. Pay attention to the buzz of the hive and set your sights on getting as close as possible to the queen bee. Remain skeptical of casual assurances and promises that can't be met.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): It takes straight arrows to hit the mark. Make a bull's-eye in the social arena by showing you are true blue. It may be tempting to do something underhanded, but this will merely undermine respect.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The "good old days" are here and now. Don't let past experiences stop you from doing things you want to do when the time is right. Once you have made up your mind, nothing can block your path.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Change a stumbling block into a steppingstone. Live up to your good name and improve your reputation by being poised to handle minor emergencies or surprises. Don't let flattery go to your head.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Listen and learn. Ignore suppositions and propositions for the moment. The more knowledge you absorb, the better prepared you will be when push comes to shove — or when you are called upon to make key decisions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Relationships should be helpful, not hurtful. There may be times when you are too possessive or too intense about your feelings, especially if someone at home doesn't live up to your high expectations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Rise above the little things to reach the big things. Don't take criticism to heart or feel compelled to retaliate. Whatever your particular goal may be, you have the necessary stamina to achieve it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Peace at all costs proves costly. To appear cooperative, someone may exaggerate abilities or offer insincere assurances. Don't be misled by appearances where finances are concerned.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The problems presented for you to solve create an opportunity. Every small challenge helps you develop and improve your weak areas. A friend may show signs of a passionate attraction to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Wait for better timing to make changes in policy. This could be a good time to organize your finances and plan ahead. Someone special is willing to share possessions — and a lot more — with you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may feel you deserve to bask in luxury or give yourself a little treat. Warning: Ignore pressures and financial concerns to your detriment. Force yourself to work a bit harder and be more self-disciplined.

Slumbering Wildcats Wake Up, Thrash Kimberly, 62-32

nruland@magicvalley.com

FILER • The Filer girls presented head coach Kody Ketterling (now 37) with a birthday cake just minutes prior to Tuesday night's tilt against Kimberly. Minutes into the contest, he likely lost his appetite.

The Bulldogs jumped out to an eight-point lead, forcing the Wildcats to guzzle their own medicine. But they answered in a big way, eventually cruising to a 62-32 win.

"It took us a while to get into it," Filer guard Alyssa Case said.

Trapping and pressing ball-handlers, creating turnovers on in-bounds and in the back-court, and scoring from inside and out, Heidi Funk, Jensen Upton, Kelsey Wright, Mackenzie Watts and sophomore Maysie Rongen all got in on the action.

Baker's 21 Lifts Burley Over Jerome

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Bad news for Bobcat opponents: Chelsea Baker has found her rhythm.

One of the Burley's main scorers last year, Baker's performance the first half of this season fell slightly below expectations, partly due to a nagging injury.

But after back-to-back games with 20-plus points — including 21 in Burley's 44-23 home win against Jerome — the junior guard appears to be back.

"I've been trying to not rush myself. At the beginning of the season I would force things and now I've been letting the game come to me," said Baker, who also grabbed nine rebounds.

"(Baker) did the job tonight. She killed us on the glass," said Jerome

ANTI-DOPING OFFICIALS WANT LANCE ARMSTRONG UNDER OATH

ASSOCIATED PRESS

A televised confession by Lance Armstrong isn't enough.

Anti-doping officials want the disgraced cyclist to admit his guilt under oath before considering whether to lift a lifetime ban clouding his future as a competitive athlete. That was seconded by at least one former teammate whom Armstrong pushed aside on his way to the top of the Tour de France podium.

"Lance knows everything that happened," Frankie Andreu told The Associated Press on Tuesday. "He's the one who knows who did what because he was the ringleader. It's up to him how much he wants to expose."

Armstrong has been in conversations with U.S. Anti-

GEORGE BURNS, HARPO STUDIOS, INC. • ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cyclist Lance Armstrong listens to a question from Oprah Winfrey on Monday during taping for the show 'Oprah and Lance Armstrong: The Worldwide Exclusive' in Austin, Texas.

Doping Agency officials, touching off speculation that he may be willing to cooperate with authorities there and name names.

Interviewer Oprah Winfrey didn't say if the subject was broached during the taping Monday at a downtown Austin hotel. In an appearance on "CBS This Morning," she declined to give details of what Armstrong told her, but said she was "mesmerized and riveted by some of his answers."

Asked whether the disgraced cyclist appeared genuinely contrite after a decade of fierce denials, Winfrey replied, "I felt that he was thoughtful, I thought that he was serious, I thought that he certainly had prepared for this moment. I would say that he met the moment."

She was promoting what has become a two-part special, Thursday and Friday, on her OWN network.

Around the same time, World Anti-Doping Agency officials issued a statement saying nothing short of "a full confession under oath" would cause them to reconsider Armstrong's lifetime ban from sanctioned events.

Seattle Heads into Offseason with Core Intact

ASSOCIATED PRESS

RENTON, Wash. • As belongings were packed up, the phrase became a popular refrain coming from all corners of the Seattle Seahawks locker room.

“We have a really good core group here.”

Whether it was safety Earl Thomas or rookie quarterback Russell Wilson or veteran fullback Michael Robinson uttering those words, they resonated with substance because the Seahawks went from a young team with potential to a team on the cusp of being an NFL power this season with most of its key components returning next season.

The expectations will be different in 2013 and everyone already understands that fact. No longer will the Seahawks be a pleasant surprise, but instead hold the title of contender.

“There is nobody in our building that doesn’t think that this is going to be an extraordinary offseason for this club,” Seattle coach Pete Carroll said. “Knowing that all of the kids that made the team last year that get to come back, and played a lot and they come back. It’s such a big jump that happens from year one to year two.”

The biggest reason for

Seattle Seahawks quarterback Russell Wilson (3) runs past Atlanta Falcons defensive end Kroy Biermann (71) during the first half of an NFC divisional playoff NFL football game Sunday in Atlanta.

Seattle’s optimism going forward is that core group that has been solidly constructed in three seasons by Carroll and general manager John Schneider and is mostly locked up for the 2013 season. Among their starting 22 on offense and defense, the Seahawks have just two players who are unrestricted free agents — defensive tackle Alan Branch and outside linebacker Leroy Hill. They have only eight unrestricted free agents total and another three who are restricted and can have any offers from other teams matched by the Seahawks.

Unlike last offseason when Seattle was tasked with trying to lock up running back Marshawn Lynch and find an answer to its quarterbacking situation, the Seahawks enter this offseason with the ability to supplement through free agency and the draft while also trying to solidify their roster long-term.

“It is unfinished business,” Robinson said. “We are a good team right now but we’ve got to go from good to being a championship football team. We need to take that next step. We thought we had it this year but hopefully we’ve got to take this offseason, use it to compete to keep our jobs, compete against other teams ... and draw on this experience next year if the opportunity presents itself.”

Suddenly Unwanted, Tebow Has Uncertain NFL Future

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • From nearly unstoppable to nearly invisible.

Tim Tebow was two wins from the Super Bowl a year ago. Now, he’s pretty much a player without a team — likely to be released by the New York Jets after one frustrating season and his hometown team in Jacksonville already pulling in the welcome mat.

Even Tebow doesn’t know how this will unfold. A backup role on another NFL team? A position change? The Canadian Football League?

“I don’t know what my future holds, but I know who holds my future,” the devout Christian said in a recent interview with Fox Business Network, his only public comments since his strange Jets season ended.

“And, in that,” he added, “there is a lot of peace and a lot of comfort.”

Tebow barely played for the Jets last season. “An absolute mess,” is the way recently retired special teams coordinator Mike Westhoff described it. Tebow has two years left on his contract, but New York is expected to trade or release him in the next few weeks. So far, destination unknown.

“I can’t imagine a scenario in which he’ll be a Jacksonville Jaguar,” new general manager David Caldwell declared last week. “Even if he’s released.”

While there’s an outside chance Tebow could remain a New Yorker, depending on the whims of the still-to-be-hired GM, it appears highly unlikely.

So, that’s two NFL teams down — the only ones, at that, who showed any interest last offseason when Denver shopped him — and the 25-year-old Tebow’s options appear to be dwindling.

“Tim Tebow is an extremely popular individual — or, he was,” said former Cowboys executive Gil Brandt, now an analyst for NFL.com. “I think his popularity has waned significantly the last three or four months.”

The buzz these days belongs to young quarterbacks like Washington’s Robert Griffin III, Seattle’s Russell Wilson, Indianapolis’ Andrew Luck and San Francisco’s Colin Kaepernick. It seems so long ago now that Tebowing — his signature dropping to a knee for a prayerful pose — was all the rage.

But even Tebow never Tebowed during the regular season for the Jets. Not once. Quite a fall for a Heisman Trophy winner and two-time national champion with the University of Florida, and whose No. 15 Broncos jersey ranked second in national sales to Green Bay’s Aaron Rodgers in 2011.

“I think it’s fair to say,” Tebow acknowledged last month, “that I’m a little disappointed.”

Ravens, 49ers Plan Different Endings

ASSOCIATED PRESS

This time, it will be different.

That’s the mantra the Ravens and 49ers must carry into Sunday’s conference championships.

One step from the Super Bowl once more, the Ravens and 49ers believe they’ve found that extra element for success. For San Francisco, it might be the versatility and big-play potential Colin Kaepernick brings to the offense. For Baltimore, it could be the ramped-up emotions from Ray Lewis’ pending retirement.

The odds makers believe the Niners have what they need to beat the Falcons one year after an overtime loss to the Giants in the NFC title game; San Francisco is favored by 3 1-2 points at Atlanta. That says a lot.

But the bookies don’t believe the Ravens will do any better than in last year’s AFC championship, when they fell at Foxborough 23-20. Baltimore is a 9 1-2-point underdog to the Patriots.

“There are challenges that get you to the point that you are at as a football team and make you who you are, even as a person,” said Ravens coach John Harbaugh, whose team needed a last-minute 70-yard touchdown pass to force overtime at Denver last Saturday before beating the top-seeded Broncos. “And, our guys have handled all those things extremely well. Individually, a lot of our guys — and collectively — have come out of it stronger and better men, and we’re a stronger and better team.”

His younger brother, Jim, head man of the 49ers — siblings have never met as head coaches in the Super Bowl — has guided San Francisco to the NFL’s final four in both of his seasons. This is John Harbaugh’s third conference title game in five years in charge.

The 49ers’ Harbaugh sees the togetherness and developing maturity of his team as a reason it could reach the franchise’s first Super Bowl since winning its fifth in 1995.

“We want to be about that,” he said. “But I don’t think it’s attributed to anything, I think it’s just who we are as a team, who our players are. It’s a talent and it’s character. I’ve always thought that about our team.

“Being a great teammate, doing the best to your God-given ability each and every time, is a great gift that you can give another man. To have his back. That’s a strong phrase, but I don’t think that’s just something our guys talk about, I think it’s who they are.”

Who the Niners are is quite different this time around. Last season, they used a shutdown defense, strong special teams and a conservative, avoid-mistakes offense to get this far. But quarterback Alex Smith and that offense bogged down too often against the Giants.

San Francisco added Randy

Moss and Mario Manningham at wideout and still had the superb Frank Gore at running back. But Moss has been a complementary player and Manningham is out with a torn knee.

Tight end Vernon Davis, Smith’s most reliable target a year ago, has had a lesser role.

The big changes? The emergence of receiver Michael Crabtree, the solidification of the offensive line, and, of course, Kaepernick.

As he showed in setting a playoff record for QBs with 181 yards rushing, and throwing for 243 in the divisional round against Green Bay — his playoff debut, no less — Kaepernick is a game-breaker.

“I think quarterbacks that have a talent for running the ball can be very effective,” Jim Harbaugh said, stating precisely what he felt when he left Smith on the bench after the incumbent recovered from a concussion late in the season and went the rest of the way with Kaepernick.

“That’s been long known in football, the National Football League as well. A quarterback that can get out of the pocket, run, pick up first downs, that’s a threat that the defense has to account for.”

It’s also what the 49ers didn’t have in their repertoire against New York. Now, they have inserted a whole section of plays in the game plan built around Kaepernick’s speed and intermediate hurdler strides.

“There are some quarterback-driven runs that have been added because our quarterbacks are very good at those, and Colin especially,” Jim Harbaugh said. “It’s already noted that he’s very fast. He’s very good at reading and executing that type of offense. So, that’s the reason.”

And a main reason the people in the Bay Area believe this is the 49ers’ year.

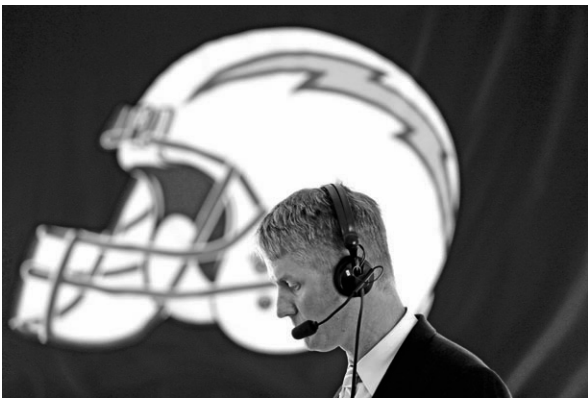

Across the country in the Chesapeake Bay area, the other Harbaugh’s stomping grounds, that conviction is just as strong.

Critics say the Ravens are too old, inconsistent and banged-up on defense. That they don’t pass protect well. The quarterback Joe Flacco has won a postseason game in each of his five pro seasons, yet has no Super Bowl appearances.

Plus, the Ravens had every chance to knock off the Patriots last year and failed.

But those detractors tend to ignore that Torrey Smith and Anquan Boldin have become extremely dangerous in the passing game. That the line has been effective in the playoffs and Flacco barely was bothered by Denver’s strong defense last weekend.

And that Lewis, Terrell Suggs, Haloti Ngata and Ed Reed have Baltimore’s D on the upswing. Remember, 14 of Denver’s points came on special teams, and the Ravens forced three turnovers by Peyton Manning.

Mike McCoy speaks during a news conference after being named the new head coach of the San Diego Chargers NFL football team on Tuesday in San Diego.

Broncos OC McCoy Agrees to Become Chargers Coach

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN DIEGO • Mike McCoy is the new head coach of the San Diego Chargers.

The team has scheduled a 2 p.m. PST news conference Tuesday to introduce McCoy, who had been the offensive coordinator for the Denver Broncos.

The 40-year-old McCoy replaces Norv Turner, who was fired along with general manager A.J. Smith after the Chargers finished 7-9 and missed the playoffs for the third straight season.

McCoy’s hiring comes three days after the top-seeded Broncos were eliminated from the playoffs in a home loss to the Baltimore Ravens.

The coaching search was led by Tom Telesco, who was hired as Chargers GM last week. Telesco also is 40.

The Broncos have won consecutive AFC West titles. McCoy tutored quarterbacks Kyle Orton and Tim Tebow in 2011, and Peyton Manning in 2012.

McCoy, who interviewed with the Miami Dolphins last year after retooling Denver’s offense to fit Tebow’s skill set, burnished his head coaching credentials this season while blending the power formations the Broncos used in leading the league in rushing last year with Tebow and some of the spread formations that Manning ran in Indianapolis.

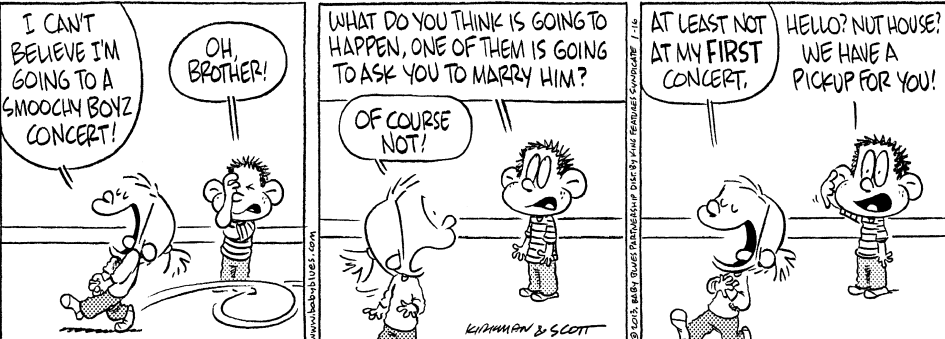

“I think he’s going to be a great head coach. Very detail-oriented, knows the game, relates with players very well,” Broncos wide receiver Brandon Stokley said. “So, I think he’ll be an excellent head coach.”

Study Highlights Spending Gaps in NCAA

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Annual spending on sports by public universities in six big-time conferences like the SEC and Big 12 has passed $100,000 per athlete — about six to 12 times the amount those universities are spending per student on academics, according to a study released Wednesday to greet college presidents arriving at the NCAA's annual meeting in Texas.

The study finds the largest gap by far in the Southeastern Conference, which combines relatively low academic spending and explosive coaching salaries. Median athletic spending there totaled nearly $164,000 per athlete in 2010. That is more than 12 times the $13,390 that SEC schools spent per student for academic expenses, including instructional costs and student services.

The schools of the Pac-10 (now the Pac 12), Atlantic Coast Conference, Big Ten and Big East also averaged six-figure spending per student athlete in 2010, the study finds. Across Division I, athletic spending — though still smaller in absolute terms — rose twice as fast as academic spending between 2005 and 2010. During that period, the schools competing in the top-level Football Bowl Subdivision (FBS) of the NCAA upped their athletic expenditures on average $6,200 per athlete each year, according to data compiled by the Delta Cost Project at American Institutes for Research as part of an ongoing project with the pro-reform Knight Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics.

The report does not provide information about ratios at individual institutions.

Overall, FBS schools spent on average $92,000 per athlete in 2010, or just under seven times what they were spending per student on academics at a time of falling state funding for higher education in much of the country, and tuition increases widely outpacing inflation. The report did find, however, the growth rate seemed to be slowing.

The figures likely won't shock college presidents arriving in Grapevine, Texas, for the NCAA convention, but they will highlight their rising concern over out-of-control spending on intercollegiate athletics that threatens their academic missions. Some want the NCAA to do more to address the issue even if it can't legally limit salaries.

"How many sport video analysts do you really need?" said John Dunn, president of Western Michigan University, who gave a talk Tuesday at a preliminary portion of the meeting on rising inequality in college athletics. "How many assistants for a coach — not assistant coaches, (but) assistant office personnel, to keep his life straight?"

"While the NCAA wants to avoid being overly intrusive, they have never had a problem saying there should be x number of coaches and x number of scholarships awarded," he said. "Why not also govern how many ancillary personnel you can have?"

NCAA spokesman Erik Christianson said in a brief emailed statement that colleges make their own spending decisions and "are reluctant to cede authority over their budgets to the NCAA." SEC spokesman Craig Pinkerton said he would have to refer questions to Commissioner Mike Slive, who wasn't available for comment.

The conceit of the study — comparing per capita spending on athletes versus academic spending — carries some caveats. Universities already "spend" widely varying amounts on different types of students; those in majors requiring special equipment, or offering small classes, already benefit from more spending, as might those signing up for extra-curriculars or special tutoring. Knight Commission Executive Director Amy Perko said her group realizes at many institutions athletic spending per athlete will inevitably be higher than academic spending per student.

Also, "academic spending" can be a confusing category, though the study uses federal data, universities must report under a precise methodology. While it includes athletic scholarships as athletic spending, for example, institutional financial aid available to other students doesn't count as "academic spending."

Still, the size of the ratios — and the fact that six conferences have broken six figures, up from four a year before — are eye-catching data points showing the extent to which Division I college athletics programs have come to inhabit separate financial universes from the academic institutions whose names they share.

Perko said it's the growing subsidies most universities kick in to cover athletic department budgets that are especially alarming. The Knight Commission has been pushing for the NCAA to incentivize institutions to stay within certain ratios of athletic-to-academic spending, to no avail. The BCS, which is organizing the new college football playoff system separately from the NCAA, has committed to tying 10 percent of the lucrative payout from the new BCS playoff system to academic benchmarks, Perko said, but she wants more done.

While new TV deals will produce more revenue, they will also likely exacerbate inequality. If adopted, recent proposals to pay athletes a stipend would also fuel spending by athletic departments, as could the increased travel required by recent conference realignments.

Many big spenders like the SEC schools also have the most revenue to cover those costs. A few dozen or so actually turn a profit on their athletic departments, and on average the top half of FBS programs get by on a modest university subsidy, averaging between $3 million and $6 million. But schools in the bottom half of FBS rely on much bigger subsidies from the academic side to fund athletics. That money often comes from student fees paid by non-athletes. At those schools, the subsidies now total $11 million to $14 million annually, the study found.
