Odds are good you’ll still find cursive handwriting taught in many south-central Idaho schools.

BY JULIE WOOTTON

TWIN FALLS • When students turn in a handwritten assignment at Xavier Charter School, they know it has to be in cursive. In an era when some schools don’t teach this style of handwriting anymore, it’s still part of the curriculum at the Twin Falls public charter school. “We actively teach it in third and fourth grade as a subject,” said Xavier co-founder and lead teacher Becky Baird. Xavier — which has students in kindergarten through 12th grades — uses a European, classical model of education. Baird said the school keeps cursive in the curriculum because “it is truly an art form” and a valuable discipline for students. State Rep. Linden Bateman, R-Idaho Falls, wants all Idaho elementary schools to follow suit. He introduced a measure Tuesday in the

5 Things to Watch During Today’s School Budget Presentation

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • What can we expect for public schools in the next year? Today, Superintendent Tom Luna will present his budget request for Idaho’s public schools to the Idaho Legislature, marking the first time he will appear in front of the Legislature since voters turned down the Students Come First education reform laws in November. For full coverage of the presentation, visit magicvalley.com and read Friday’s

Safe Harbor President Steps Down

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • After serving as Safe Harbor’s president for more than 10 years, Phyllis Berg will resign from her position on Jan. 31. Berg was critical in starting the Twin Falls nonprofit back in 2003. Originally known as the Twin Falls Hunger Task Force, Safe Harbor is now known for offering free meals on weekends and providing emergency clothing. Berg led the nonprofit in a 10-year quest to secure it a permanent home. Her dream of finding a building came true after Safe Harbor received a generous donation of $250,000 in 2011.

Berg

The donation was enough to cover the expenses of finding a building located just next to the Twin Falls Senior Center. Berg also provided a multitude of services to the homeless population while both on and off the clock. Now it’s time to step in another direction, Berg said. “I’m not retiring, I’m regrouping,” she said. “I’m going to be doing other things.”

IBM's Results Lift Dow Average to a 5-year High

NEW YORK (AP) • Strong earnings from tech giants nudged the stock market to a five-year high Wednesday. Investors drew encouragement from a vote by the House of Representatives to let the government keep paying all of its bills for another four months.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 67.12 points to close at 13,779.33. Other indexes made slight gains. The Standard & Poor's 500 index inched up 2.25 points to 1,494.81, while the tech-heavy Nasdaq composite rose 10.49 points to 3,153.67.

Was Dowdle Bill Really a Scoundrel?

BY MYCHEL MATTHEWS

Twin Falls County Historic Preservation Commission

ROCK CREEK • William F. Dowdle has always been portrayed as a no-good, thievin' drunk.

Dowdle was caught trying to sell a stolen horse at Rock Creek Stage Stop in 1875 and was jailed for days underground in a cellar behind Stricker Store. Passersby mocked him, chanting "Dowdle Bill" outside his cell. He was convicted of theft and sentenced to several years in the territorial prison.

The whole time he was in prison, he plotted revenge against the men who captured him. Blood would run in the streets, Dowdle promised.

Or so the story goes.

Dowdle did return to the stage stop after his release from prison — supposedly to kill stage stop operator Charles Trotter and cowboy E.D. Wilson. But, when Dowdle got there, one of the men was sick in bed and the other was out of town.

Disappointed, Dowdle spent the rest of the day drinking in the saloon.

After some time, Dowdle stepped out of the saloon and started shooting at people. He narrowly missed hitting Charlie Walgamott, Trotter's brother-in-law and clerk at the general store.

Walgamott returned fire, killing Dowdle.

Dowdle's body was paraded around town as people rejoiced and sang. Travelers waiting in a stagecoach were appalled at the barbaric nature displayed by Rock Creek locals.

This is what legends are made of, said Ted Dunaski, who is married to Dowdle's great-great niece Lori.

Dunaski has a hard time reconciling the story with what he knows about Dowdle.

Dowdle once risked his own life to save an Indian boy during a massacre, proving that Dowdle was not a "complete scoundrel," Dunaski said.

Dunaski says he is looking for clues to who Dowdle was and how he ended up at Rock Creek.

Dowdle was born in Alabama in 1938. His family converted to Mormonism, and was one of the first Mormon families to move west. Dowdle was a cook by trade and worked for a freight company.

Dowdle, or at least part of him, is buried at a small cemetery just west of Stricker Ranch, south of Hansen. A grave-robbing incident decades ago may have resulted in a separate interment for part of his remains.

BILL CLARIFIES BORDERS OF LINCOLN, GOODING, JEROME, MINIDOKA COUNTIES

TIMES-NEWS

BOISE • On Wednesday, the House State Affairs Committee introduced a bill that clarifies the borders of Lincoln, Gooding, Jerome and Minidoka counties.

Committee Chairman Tom Loertscher, R-Iona, said when the boundaries were changed in 1913 and 1919, the changes weren't actually put into state code.

If passed, the law won't change any boundaries, taxing districts or legislative districts.

"It's just to clean it up," Loertscher said.

Slightly Warmer toward End of the Week

A weak disturbance will bring moisture and slightly warmer temperatures to southern Idaho today and for the end of the week. This system will weaken the inversion that has kept us so cold but won't completely destroy it. We could also see some light snow and even a few locations getting a wintery mix of sleet or pockets of freezing drizzle for the first half of today. The precipitation is not expected to amount to much. Most will see just a slight coating of snow if they see any at all. The main area of concern with this system will be in southern Twin Falls County and northern Nevada around Jackpot. If you have to travel south today on 93, be aware of possible slick roads.

Temperatures won't be as cold as they have been. In fact, temperatures will be about 10 to 15 degrees warmer than they have been with highs today in the low 30s. Overnight temperatures will also be warmer. Instead of the teens and single digits in the morning, lows will be near 20.

A cold front will swing through Idaho this weekend, perhaps Saturday night and into Sunday. This will bring another round of snow and even a possible wintery mix. Temperatures will get colder again but not as cold as it has been the past two weeks.

Crapo Part of Effort to Extend Anti-violence Bill

TIMES-NEWS AND ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON • U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo, R-Idaho, pushed this week to restore the key federal program that protects women against domestic violence, stating at a press conference Wednesday and on Twitter that “We will get this done.”

With Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt. — chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee — Crapo is a co-sponsor of the Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act, introduced Tuesday in the Senate.

The original act became law in 1994 and was extended in 2000 and 2005. But it expired in 2011 and, although both the House and Senate passed VAWA bills last year, the two chambers were unable to settle their differences. Congressional Democrats have now sought to diminish Republican objections by removing a provision that would increase visas for immigrant victims of domestic abuse.

The Senate bill was joined Wednesday by an identical measure in the U.S. House. In a press release following his comments that day, Crapo stated incidents of abuse in Idaho drive his support for the law.

“This month alone, there have been four deaths in Idaho as a result of domestic violence,” Crapo said in the release. “These tragic events serve as a reminder that we are far from ending abuse, though we have made great progress and will continue to make great progress.”

The main points of contention last year were provisions in the Senate-passed bill that increased protections for American Indians, gays and immigrants.

The new bills retain those protections but remove one provision that would increase what are called U visas available to immigrant victims.

House Republicans last year said that step was unconstitutional because the Senate imposed a fee to pay for the visa expansion and all revenue-raising measures must be initiated by the House.

Leahy said he still supported the visa increase but “we introduce the bill today without that provision in order to remove any excuse for House inaction.”

Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid said Tuesday that the bill in his chamber will be a legislative priority this year.

SPEAKER BEDKE HEADS TO TEXAS FOR TRAINING

BY DAN POPKEY
Idaho Statesman

BOISE • House Speaker Scott Bedke will leave his gavel with Majority Leader Mike Moyle today and Friday to attend orientation for more than 20 new speakers at the LBJ School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas.

The training is sponsored by the Massachusetts-based State Legislative Leaders Foundation and runs today through Saturday in Austin, hosted by Texas Speaker Joe Straus. The group also holds annual meetings for speakers.

“Previous speakers have told me that it’s very good training, will broaden my perspective and at least one of them said I needed that,” said Bedke, R-Oakley, after announcing his absence to the House on Wednesday.

His predecessor, Rep. Lawrence Denney, R-Midvale, went to the orientation six years ago.

“Let’s put it this way: The whole time he is at this training he will be outside his comfort zone,” Denney said. “One of the things I remember is role playing. I was the union boss, which was totally out of my category. But it’s fun and it’s a learning experience.”

The three days of training is paid for by the foundation, which is funded by Who’s Who of Corporate America.

Among the sectors on the foundation’s Advisory Council are agriculture, communications, energy, entertainment, finance, insurance, media, retail, technology, telecom and transportation. Manufacturers of automobiles, beer, cigarettes, computers, drugs, liquor, software, textiles and wine, among others, help fund the group.

The group was founded in 1972, with a grant from the Ford Foundation.

Plumbing Issue Closes Castleford School Today

TIMES-NEWS

CASTLEFORD • The school in Castleford will be closed today.

Superintendent Andy Wiseman said there’s a plumbing issue in the cafeteria and food service workers won’t be able to prepare meals.

He said it could have been an issue for children who rely on school meals.

The plumbing issue should take about four to six hours to fix, Wiseman said. He expects school will resume Friday.

House Education Committee that would ask the State Board of Education to adopt a rule requiring the teaching of cursive handwriting.

Right now, it's up to each school district to decide whether to teach cursive.

In south-central Idaho, many districts — including Twin Falls, Kimberly, Jerome and Wendell — continue to teach it to students starting in third grade.

Cursive isn't included in the new national curriculum guidelines called "Common Core Standards," but students are expected to receive keyboarding instruction by the time they leave elementary school.

Idaho is among 45 states slated to adopt the more rigorous standards during the 2014 school year.

At Kimberly Elementary, Principal Craig Maki said it's a school philosophy that students still need to know how to write in cursive and be able to read documents in that style of handwriting.

Teresa Jones, principal at Horizon Elementary in Jerome, said cursive is still taught. But there's much less emphasis on it than in past years.

That's because so many things have been added to the curriculum over the last few years, she said.

Wendell Elementary Principal Kevin Rogers said it's hard to fit in cursive lessons since teachers are focusing on core subject areas such as English and math.

"One of the difficulties we have is to find the time to continually practice a lot," he said.

That's something Buhl teachers don't have to worry about. Cursive isn't taught anymore at Buhl Elementary.

Superintendent Byron Stutzman said students learn handwriting skills, but instruction focuses on printing.

At Xavier, Baird said some students find it easier and faster to take notes in class using cursive.

"Even when it's not required, some of them choose to," she said.

Baird said students are going to type papers as they advance to higher grade levels, but there's still a need for legible handwriting.

In the Twin Falls School District, elementary schoolers use cursive for some creative writing assignments.

By the time students get to high school, they use it occasionally for assignments turned in during the day, said Elementary Programs Director Ted Popplewell.

However, virtually all larger projects in high school are completed using a computer.

Popplewell described himself as an "old-school person" who likes cursive and understands its importance.

He recalls teaching cursive as a classroom teacher and is interested to see what will happen to the form of handwriting over the next 10 years.

SISTER OF CONVICTED KILLER TELLS JUDGE ABOUT ABUSE

BY REBECCA BOONE

Associated Press

BOISE • The sister of a convicted killer who waived his right to appeal his death sentence says they both endured horrific childhood abuse at the hands of their mother.

Cheri Cox was in Boise's U.S. District Court Wednesday to testify in the competency hearing of Joseph Edward Duncan III, who was sentenced to death in 2008 after admitting he kidnapped and tortured two northern Idaho children before killing one of them in Montana.

Duncan gave up his appeals, but his attorneys fought on his behalf and last year the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals ordered U.S. District Judge Edward Lodge to hold a retrospective competency hearing to determine if Duncan was mentally competent back in 2008 when he gave up his right to appeal.

Cox testified about what it was like growing up with Duncan in their childhood home. Cox said she and her four siblings were frequently beaten by their mother while she ranted that men were worthless, and described her mother as a crazy woman who attended church obsessively, every day.

Prosecutors did not question testimony Wednesday that Duncan's mother was abusive, and The Associated Press could not immediately find contact information to reach her for comment.

Duncan, who was the second-youngest of the five children, was passive in the face of the beatings, Cox said.

"When she was beating on you, if you fought back, it was worse," Cox said. "In his case, he just took what she gave and kind of whimpered off into his bedroom."

Their father, who was in the military and often deployed, was frequently the subject of their mother's derision.

Cox said she left home at 17 and saw Duncan only once after that, several years later when he was a patient at a Washington state psychiatric hospital.

Years later, her sister called to see if she'd heard or seen from Duncan because no one had talked to him in some time.

Cox responded that she hadn't. She was boating just a week or so later when she heard Duncan's name during a radio news story.

"And then I heard my brother had been arrested for the," she said, pausing, "thing in Idaho."

Duncan's defense team also called Duncan's former attorney, John Adams, to the stand.

Adams represented Duncan during his state court trial for the murders of Brenda and Slade Groene and Mark McKenzie, crimes that Duncan ultimately pleaded guilty to as part of a plea deal that left him with six consecutive life sentences.

"He was a broken man," Adams said about his first impression of Duncan. "He was frightened and desperate and confused ... It was often hard to follow what he was talking about because he was talking about things that weren't relevant."

are overturned, will Luna propose raises for Idaho's educators?

2. How will the request compare to the 2013 budget? The 2013 budget included millions for Students Come First provisions, including pay for performance and technology in the classrooms. Without those provisions next fiscal year, will Luna reduce his request from last year? Or will he ask for the same amount of money to redistribute?

3. How will Luna's budget differ from the governor's? Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter presented his budget recommendations to the Legislature after the Jan. 7 State of the State address. The governor recommended $1.6 billion for public schools, but Luna and his department may have different ideas of how much money schools need, and how that money should be divided. The Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee will take Otter's recommendation and Luna's presentation into consideration when setting the budget.

4. How will the budget committee respond? This year, the 20-member joint budget committee has 12 new faces, a handful of whom are freshmen who didn't have a front row seat to the education debate over the past two years. They may have a different idea of how schools should use the money.

5. What about the rest of the Legislature? Budget and policy are inextricably intertwined. The House and Senate Education Committees may propose post-Students Come First reforms with a fiscal impact. As lawmakers negotiate with the governor, educators, superintendents, parents and other stakeholders on reforms, we may see them come out with proposals that have an impact on the 2014 budget.

Safe Harbor

When Safe Harbor was without its own building, Berg stored most of the organization's supplies in her own home. It wasn't uncommon to have rooms full of sleeping bags, coats and slow cookers, she said.

Now that the nonprofit has a permanent location, a new board of directors has been selected to take over Safe Harbor's leadership, said Dale Metzger, a retired pastor and Safe Harbor volunteer.

The board will meet on Jan. 31 to pick Berg's successor and nominate the rest of the board's positions.

"When you think of Safe Harbor, you think of Phyllis," Metzger said. "She was the president, secretary, treasurer for years. It was just her."

Metzger said the core services of Safe Harbor will remain but the organization can't compete with the same services Berg provided 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"We are forming a structure," he said. "We're going to start off slow."

Berg said she enjoyed her time as Safe Harbor's president but wants to explore other volunteer opportunities.

"I've got some other projects lined up," she said. "I grew up as a volunteer; I'm not going to stop now."

Idaho's Rare Earth Abundance Could Prove Advantage

BY ALEX STUCKEY
Post Register

IDAHO FALLS • When Emma Edwards Green designed Idaho's state seal in 1890, she gave emphasis to the mining industry by depicting a miner with a shovel and pick along the right side of her painting.

She later wrote, "...as mining was the chief industry, and the mining man the largest financial factor of the state at that time, I made the figure of the man the most prominent in the design."

Today, 123 years later, past is prologue as the world's hunger for rare earth minerals has again put the spotlight on the state's mining industry.

Many industry experts believe Lemhi County could hold the key to unlocking the answer to the world's rare earth minerals shortage. The minerals — sporting names such as neodymium, lanthanum and cerium — are used in everything from cellphones to military

Rare Earth Deposits in Idaho

Vein/lode rare earth element deposits • Found as veins in the monazite in the rock. Mainly neodymium (used for magnets) and thorium (used like uranium).
Placer rare earth element deposits • Ore deposits formed in water (like gold). Mainly lanthanum (used for studio lighting/projector lights) and cerium (used in televisions).
Phosphate deposits • Trace elements found in the shale, but nearly impossible to remove.

weapons, as well as green energy technology.

It's likely that only California, Alaska and Wyoming top the Gem State in the amount of rare earth minerals within their borders, said Virginia Gillerman, an economic geologist for the Idaho Geological Survey.

Those resources continue to become more valuable as China, which produces more than 90 percent of the world's rare earth minerals, has warned it will curb its exports.

An Arkansas-based mining company, U.S. Rare

Earths, is searching for the buried treasure within the rock near the Idaho-Montana border.

U.S. Rare Earths did not respond to repeated requests for comment.

"We know from geology that there are rare earths out there ... (but) no one has ever really started looking out there (before U.S. Rare Earths) because it costs a heck of a lot of money to get (rare earths out of the ground)," said Russ Bjorklund, Salmon-Challis National Forest minerals program manager.

History in Idaho

The nation's hunt for uranium began in 1945 after the end of World War II.

That exploration turned up an interesting discovery in Lemhi Pass: thorium — considered a safer, more abundant alternative to uranium in nuclear fuel, Gillerman said.

At that time, the need for thorium was minimal and extraction was stopped. But prospectors didn't realize that spidered through the rock, alongside the thorium, were rare earth minerals that decades later would be some of the world's most coveted resources.

"Early studies by the U.S. Geological Survey concluded that this district had the largest thorium resource in the nation and also hosted an equal amount of rare earths," according to a January 2011 Idaho Geological Survey journal article.

Also discovered throughout Idaho were large deposits of neodymium, lanthanum and cerium — used in magnets, studio lighting and projector lights and televisions, respectively, Gillerman said.

But mining those minerals remains difficult and expensive, preventing it from happening any time soon.

"Like any mining project, a company has to prove there is enough in the ground to make it economically worthwhile to extract — and that they can extract it cost-efficiently," Gillerman said.

Exploring Lemhi County

"A couple of years ago, prices (for rare earths) spiked up and everybody got excited, talking about shortages," Gillerman said. "(The necessity of mining in Idaho) depends on whether China sells them to us."

The minerals are accessible, but the price has to be right. All 15 rare earth elements are mixed together in the rock near the Idaho-Montana border. To separate them requires an expensive chemical process.

"You need a high price for the elements to even justify (separating them)," Gillerman said.

Until that tipping point is reached, U.S. Rare Earths continues exploring the area. It submitted three plan-of-operations (proposals) to the Salmon-Challis National Forest, two of which have been approved.

The company has started drilling core samples, which are used to pinpoint the mineral veins, in one area, Bjorklund said.

Neither Gillerman nor Bjorklund knew if the company found what it was looking for.

The next step in the company's quest for rare earths is to apply to mine, Bjorklund said. But Gillerman said rare earth mineral mining in Lemhi County is a ways off.

"We're still far out from any actual production," she said. "We don't even have a good estimate of the volumes of minerals yet."

GROUPS OFFER ENDORSEMENT OF MEDICAID EXPANSION

BY MIKE BUTTS
Idaho Press-Tribune

BOISE • Several Idaho health care organizations support optional Medicaid expansion in the state because they say it will save money, grow the economy and improve the health of state residents.

But many Canyon County lawmakers have expressed skepticism about offering Medicaid, the federal low-income health care program, to more Idahoans. They're not sure the federal government will be able to make good on its promise to fund the expansion, which would begin in 2014. Gov. Butch Otter said he wants the state to study the option for another year before taking action.

The Idaho Hospital Association says the expansion would save the state $620 million over 10 years. An Idaho Hospital Association analysis also concludes the optional expansion would add 16,000 jobs and bring in $615 million in sales, property and income tax over 10 years.

The IHA wants to work with other medical associations that support the plan so they can convince lawmakers and residents that the optional expansion would be good for Idaho's residents and economy.

"For the majority of legislators, their gut reaction to Medicaid expansion is that that wouldn't be a good idea," IHA Vice President of Government Relations Toni Lawson said, "but we think if they look at the data they might reconsider.

"We'll certainly be looking for ways to move this forward this year instead of waiting."

Other groups that support the optional Medicaid expansion are:

- The Idaho Medical Association
- The Idaho Primary Care Association
- The Idaho Academy of Family Physicians
- The Boise Metro Chamber of Commerce

With the Affordable Care Act, commonly known as "Obamacare," states have the option of expanding Medicaid with federal dollars beyond the expansion required by the law.

With the required expansion, also set to start in 2014, 70,000 low-income Idaho residents would be added to Medicaid, according to the state Department of Health and Welfare. With the optional expansion 80,000 more Idahoans would be eligible for the government health insurance program, for a total of 150,000 more residents on Medicaid.

OBITUARIES

Michael Dean Johnson

March 2, 1960-Jan. 21, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Our beloved brother and son went home Monday, Jan. 21, 2013. He is worshipping now at the feet of the Father along with his mother who passed away on Christmas Day 2012.

Mike was born March 2, 1960, to Leona and Wallace Johnson in Santa Ana, Calif. Mike was born with Down syndrome, and though in those days doctors recommended institutionalization, his parents refused and chose to raise him at home with his loving family. Mike brought joy and unconditional love to all who had the fortune of knowing him. He lived in California and Nevada, where he attended school during a time when those with special needs were not often allowed in schools. He moved to Idaho in 1998 with his parents, where he attended the Center for Independent Living. He later became a resident of Desert View Rehabilitation Center when his health began to decline. Mike loved music and could often be seen listening to his records, rocking back and forth to the beat. He also liked silly movies and just spending time with his family.

Mike is survived by his father, Wallace Johnson of Filer, Idaho; his sister, Lori Robb of Spring Creek, Nev.; his brother, Timothy Johnson of Bremerton, Wash.; brother-in-law, Larry Robb; nephews, Zach and Caleb Robb of Spring Creek, Nev.; and niece, Airman Hannah Robb stationed at Beale Air Force Base.

His broad smile and infectious laughter is what we will miss the most.

A small service for family and friends will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Jan. 25, at Rosenau Funeral Home in Twin Falls, Idaho.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made in Michael's name to the National Association for Down Syndrome, P.O. Box 206, Wilmette, IL 60091.

Martin Rodriguez

Dec. 16, 1959-Jan. 20, 2013

BURLEY • Martin Rodriguez, a 53-year-old former Burley resident, passed away Sunday, Jan. 20, 2013, in Idaho Falls, Idaho.

Martin was born Dec. 16, 1959, in El Compo, Texas, the son of Lorraine Rodriguez and Maria Monserrate Coto. His favorite past times were camping, fishing and working on cars. He enjoyed spending time with his children. He adored and loved his dog, Ivory; she was his trusted traveling companion. He will be greatly missed.

He is survived by his son, Nick Rodriguez (Olivia) of Utah; grandson, Trey Rodriguez of Utah; daughter, Shasta Rodriguez of Idaho; mother, Monse Rodriguez of Burley; ex-wife, Candace Hudson of Idaho; brothers and sisters, Santos (Carmen) Rodriguez of Nevada, David (Daria) Rodriguez of Texas, Julia (Tony) Pena of Boise, Maria Rodriguez of Idaho, Leroy Rodriguez of Nevada, Mary Ann (Jesse Jr.) Nevarez of Idaho, Rafael Rodriguez of Colorado and Orlando (Dawn) Rodriguez of Idaho. He was preceded in death by his father, Lorraine Rodriguez Sr.; two brothers, Lorraine Rodriguez and Adeberto Rodriguez; and sister, Victoria Rodriguez.

The funeral will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 26, at the Mountain View Christian Center, 317 Mountain View Lane in Burley, with Pastor Jim Powell officiating. Burial will follow in the Heyburn Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 to 8 Friday evening, Jan. 25, at the Morrison-Payne Funeral Home, 321 E. Main St. in Burley, and one hour prior to the service Saturday at the church. Arrangements are under the direction of Morrison-Payne Funeral Home in Burley.

Beverly Katheran Hanson Huddleston

June 20, 1938-Jan. 21, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Beverly Katheran Hanson Huddleston passed from this world to the next Monday, Jan. 21, 2013.

She was born June 20, 1938, in Miles City, Mont., to Edd C. and Iva K. Hanson. In 1951, the family moved to Kimberly, Idaho, and she graduated from Kimberly High School in 1956. Bev was the pianist for the Kimberly Christian Church and attended and graduated from the Twin Falls Business College. She married Bud Huddleston on Aug. 23, 1957. She and Bud had four children, Libby (Brian) Efaw, Joyce (Dub) Huddleston-Shawhan, Jerry Huddleston and Janet (Harold) Stone. Bev has four grandsons and one granddaughter. Her family was the light of her life.

Bev is survived by Bud, her husband of 55 years; three daughters, Libby Efaw, Joyce Huddleston-Shawhan and Janet Stone; sister, Sandy (Bill) Hacking; sister-in-law, Carolyn Hanson; and many nieces and nephews and great-nieces and nephews. Beverly was preceded in death by her parents, Edd and Iva Hanson; brother, Duane Hanson; son, Jerry Huddleston; and grandparents, Arthur and Nellie Sharrah and John and Anna Hanson.

Bev was a member of the Community Christian Church in Twin Falls.

In lieu of flowers, please make your contribution to the Human Society, St. Jude's Children's Hospital or your favorite charity.

A celebration of life will be held from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 26, at the home of Sandy Hacking, 1076 Parkway Drive in Twin Falls.

Arrangements are under the direction of Dustin Godfrey and the staff at Rosenau Funeral Home.

Ache Indians in Paraguay Hold Bow and Arrow Festival

KUETUVY, Paraguay (AP) • Enjoying a menu of tapir, armadillo and chicken's feet, a community of Ache Indians in Paraguay's jungle is celebrating the recovery of a small piece of their tribal land and honoring its archers — the best in the country.

"We are the champions at shooting the bow and arrow; this is what the representatives of other aboriginal peoples say," Ache teacher Sinfiorano Chevugi told The Associated Press in Kuetuvy, a former plantation that about 45 Ache families occupied 12 years ago. In 2010, Paraguay's Congress gave them formal title to the land.

In 2011, for the country's bicentennial, Paraguay held a national bow-and-arrow shooting contest that was won by the Ache team, a source of pride among the tribe's members and a motive for the weekend celebration.

The Ache are hunter-gatherers whose population of roughly 1,200 is distributed in five villages in eastern Paraguay. Ache de Kuetuvy, the second-largest village, is located in virgin jungle in Canindeyu province.

The Ache's Asiatic features and light eye color have drawn the interest of U.S. and European anthropologists.

Villagers celebrated the anniversary of their arrival in Kuetuvy by slaughtering a cow as well as collecting fruit, hunting wild animals and by cooking up dishes of tapir, armadillo and chicken feet. For dessert, a sweet dish was made from the juice of palm tree trunks.

They also celebrated the recent success of their exports to the United States of shade-grown, organic yerba mate, a drink brewed from the leaves of the rainforest holly tree.

Emiliano Mbejyvagi, president of the national federation of Ache communities, said the money earned from the exports will be invested in improving Kuetuvy.

Symbol of Argentina's Decaying Navy Sinks in Port

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) • Argentina's defense chief expressed shame Wednesday after a Navy destroyer sank at its moorings, putting on display the declining fortunes of a once-proud fleet.

The ARA Trinidad led Argentina's 1982 sea war against Britain, but has long been mothballed and used for spare parts to sustain what's left of Argentina's Navy.

A Navy statement said that a pipe burst, flooding the ship below decks. Defense Minister Arturo Puricelli denied that cuts to the fleet's maintenance budget were to blame. He said negligence or "sabotage" were possible and demanded a complete investigation.

"When the president asks me, I'll be ashamed, frankly, to tell her that a boat sank while tied to the dock," Puricelli told Radio 10. "There has to be a well-founded reason for this."

Opposition congressmen blamed a decade of disinvestment in Argentina's military, and said the country is ill-equipped to defend its seas.

"That a boat sinks in port due to a lack of maintenance reveals the deterioration and abandonment of our fleet, vital to the defense of a sovereignty that our president never loses an opportunity to proclaim to the world, but which we are very far from being able to defend,"

Argentine destroyer ARA Santissima Trinidad lies on its side at the naval base in Puerto Belgrano, Argentina, on Tuesday.

Congressman Gustavo Ferrari said.

Ferrari presented a study last year concluding that Argentina's army, air force, coast guard and navy were all badly underfunded.

Several Navy ships have had trouble operating: the warship Espora was stuck in South Africa last year for lengthy repairs, and breakdowns kept the destroyer Argentina from completing a mission in Brazil. The icebreaker Almirante Irizar is still in repairs after a 2007 fire.

Puricelli acknowledged the delays, but said nearly $100 million has been spent on repairs.

Meanwhile, Argentina's 3,100-mile coastline is being protected by a fleet that has been reduced to three destroyers, two other warships, several patrol boats, two scientific vessels, an ice-breaker and the Libertad, the tall ship used to train cadets that was detained for months in Africa last year as collateral for unpaid debts.

SENIOR Lifestyles. Q. Many adult children have returned from holiday visits to parents realizing that it is time to begin helping their aging parents manage their health, finances and future. Work closely with your parents to start collecting and organizing helpful information. Why and how? A. Accurate and readily available information will help in many ways. You will better understand issues your parents face. Everyone will be more prepared to respond to routine or crisis situations. During the process you can bring up topics and issues that have you concerned. Your parents may recognize areas where they need help and may feel more comfortable talking about them. Develop a master binder or file box (divided into sections) to keep lists and important papers. Begin with a medical section. Include the names and contact information of doctors, dentists, pharmacists and other professionals; add health care proxies/living wills; a health history for both parents; current medications, including dosages, purpose, prescribing doctor, pharmacy; identify hospitals and home care agencies of choice; and list Medicare and Medicaid numbers. Clinton Takes on Lawmakers on Benghazi Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) • Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton delivered fiery rejoinders Wednesday to Republican critics of the Obama administration’s handling of the deadly attack on a U.S. mission in Benghazi, facing off with lawmakers who included potential 2016 presidential rivals.

At times emotional and frequently combative, Clinton rejected GOP suggestions in two congressional hearings that the administration tried to mislead the country about the Sept. 11 attack that killed Chris Stevens, the U.S. ambassador to Libya, and three other Americans. She insisted the State Department is moving swiftly and aggressively to strengthen security at diplomatic posts worldwide.

In her last formal testimony before Congress as America’s top diplomat — but perhaps not her last time on the political stage — Clinton once again took responsibility for the department’s missteps and failures leading up to the assault. But she also said that requests for more security at the diplomatic mission in Benghazi didn’t reach her desk, and reminded lawmakers that they have a responsibility to fund security-related budget requests.

Three weeks after her release from a New York hospital — admitted for complications after a concussion — Clinton was at times defiant, complimentary and willing to chastise lawmakers. She tangled with some who could be rivals in 2016 if she decides to seek the presidency again.

Her voice cracking at one point, Clinton said the attack and the aftermath were highly personal tragedies for the families of the victims who died — Stevens, Sean Smith, Tyrone Woods and Glen Doherty — as well as herself.

Clearly annoyed with Republican complaints about the initial explanation for the attack, she rose to the defense of U.N. Ambassador Susan Rice, who was vilified for widely debunked claims five days after the attack that protests precipitated the raid rather than terrorism.

Clinton said, “People were trying in real time to get to the best information.” And she said her own focus was on looking ahead on how to improve security rather than revisiting the talking points and Rice’s comments.

Sen. Ron Johnson, R-Wis., pressed her on why “we were misled that there were supposedly protests and something sprang out of that, an assault sprang out of that.”

“With all due respect, the fact is we had four dead Americans,” she said, her voice rising and quivering with anger as she and Johnson spoke over each other.

“Was it because of a protest? Or was it because of guys out for a walk one night decided they would go kill some Americans? What difference, at this point, does it make? It is our job to figure out what happened and do everything we can to prevent it from ever happening again, Senator?”

If Johnson’s comments drew an irritated response from Clinton, she notably ignored Sen. Rand Paul, R-Ky., when he said he would have fired her if he had been in charge and found that she had not read cables from her team in Libya asking for more security.

AT A GLANCE

Government Employees Lead Drop in U.S. Union Rate to Record Low

Labor unions lost ground among government workers in 2012 as Republican-led efforts curtailed collective bargaining rights in several U.S. cities and states, and total union membership fell to a record low.

Labor unions represented 35.9 percent of government employees, down from 37 percent in 2011, according to data released today by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. A record low 11.3 percent of all U.S. workers were union members, down from 11.8 percent in 2011, the government said.

“Public employment has become the heart of the American labor movement,” Gary Chaison, a labor professor at Clark University in Worcester, Mass., said Wednesday in an interview. Still, “in two or three years, most cities in the U.S. with over a million population will be considering bankruptcy just to escape pension obligations. Every large city will be a Detroit, every smaller city will be Stockton, California.”

Public workers are fighting political leaders in states such as Wisconsin, where Gov. Scott Walker, R, supported legislation in 2011 curbing the bargaining rights of some government unions. The law sparked protests at the state Capitol and a 2012 recall election, in which Walker turned back a challenge from Milwaukee Mayor Tom Barrett, D.

Immigration Fallout from Saying No to ‘Obamacare’

WASHINGTON (AP) • Governors who reject health insurance for the poor under the federal health care overhaul could wind up in a politically awkward position on immigration: A quirk in the law means some U.S. citizens would be forced to go without coverage, while legal immigrants residing in the same state could still get it.

It’s an unintended consequence of how last year’s Supreme Court decision changed the Medicaid provisions of President Barack Obama’s health care law. The overhaul expanded the federal-state program for low-income and disabled people. The Supreme Court made the Medicaid expansion optional for states, which complicated things.

Arizona officials called attention to the problem last week, when Republican Gov. Jan Brewer opted to accept the Medicaid expansion. Brewer had been a leading opponent of the overhaul, and her decision got widespread attention. State budget documents cited the immigration glitch as one of her reasons.

“If Arizona does not expand, for poor Arizonans below (the federal poverty line), only legal immigrants, but not citizens, would be eligible for subsidies,” the documents said.

That’s because the immigrants would be eligible for government-subsidized private insurance, while low-income citizens would not. The Obama administration confirmed Arizona’s interpretation.

The gist of what Brewer was saying is that “by rejecting the expansion, you are essentially rewarding the immigrant population at the expense of full citizens,” said Matt Salo, executive director of the National Association of Medicaid Directors, a nonpartisan group that represents the states in Washington. “The political optics of that could be crushing,” he added.

Deputy Defense Undersecretary for Military Personnel Policy Vee Penrod, left, and Principal Director for Military Personnel Policy Maj. Gen. Gary Patton, speak in February at the Pentagon on the results of the department’s Women in Service Review.

Pentagon Opens Combat Roles to Women

WASHINGTON (AP) • The Pentagon is lifting its ban on women serving in combat, opening hundreds of thousands of front-line positions and potentially elite commando jobs after generations of limits on their service, defense officials said Wednesday.

The changes, set to be announced Thursday by Defense Secretary Leon Panetta, will not happen overnight. The services must now develop plans for allowing women to seek the combat positions, a senior military official said. Some jobs may open as soon as this year, while assessments for others, such as special operations forces, including Navy SEALs and the Army’s Delta Force, may take longer. The services also will have until January 2016 to make a case to that some positions should remain closed to women.

The groundbreaking move recommended by the Joint Chiefs of Staff overturns a 1994 rule prohibiting women from being assigned to smaller ground combat units.

Officials briefed The Associated Press on condition of anonymity so they could speak ahead of the official announcement.

There long has been opposition to putting women in combat, based on questions of whether they have the necessary strength and stamina for certain jobs, or whether their presence might hurt unit cohesion.

But as news of Panetta’s expected order got out, members of Congress, including the Senate Armed Services Committee chairman, Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., announced their support.

“It reflects the reality of 21st century military operations,” Levin said.

Panetta’s move comes in his final weeks as Pentagon chief and just days after President Barack Obama’s inaugural speech in which he spoke passionately about equal rights for all. The new order expands the department’s action of nearly a year ago to open about 14,500 combat positions to women, nearly all of them in the Army. Panetta’s decision could open more than 230,000 jobs, many in Army and Marine infantry units, to women.

In addition to questions of strength and performance, there also have been suggestions that the American public would not tolerate large numbers of women being killed in war.

Under the 1994 Pentagon policy, women were prohibited from being assigned to ground combat units below the brigade level. A brigade is roughly 3,500 troops split into several battalions of about 800 soldiers each. Historically, brigades were based farther from the front lines and they often included top command and support staff.

The necessities of combat in Iraq and Afghanistan, however, propelled women into jobs as medics, military police and intelligence officers that were sometimes attached — but not formally assigned — to battalions. So while a woman couldn’t be assigned as an infantryman in a battalion going out on patrol, she could fly the helicopter supporting the unit, or move in to provide medical aid if troops were injured.

And these conflicts, where battlefield lines are blurred and insurgents can lurk around every corner, have made it almost impossible to keep women clear of combat.

Still, as recent surveys and experiences have shown, it will not be an easy transition. When the Marine Corps sought women to go through its tough infantry course last year, two volunteered and both failed to complete the course. And there may not be a wide clamoring from women for the more intense, dangerous and difficult jobs — including some infantry and commando positions.

In the Navy, however, women have begun moving into the submarine force, with several officers already beginning to serve.

Jordanians Vote for Newly Empowered Parliament

Jordanians voted Wednesday for a parliament with wider authority, as the king cedes some of his powers to try to prevent simmering dissent from boiling over into a full blown Arab Spring uprising.

The new legislature will choose the prime minister and run day-to-day affairs, powers that used to reside with King Abdullah II. Foreign policy and security matters remain in the hands of the king. Abdullah has introduced the reforms in a measured manner, trying to manage the pace of change.

Critics charge that the reforms are too mild and the election is not enough of a change. The main opposition group, the Muslim Brotherhood, boycotted the voting.

The 2011 Arab Spring uprisings in the region set off a wave of demonstrations in this usually placid U.S. ally. They have included unprecedented calls for the king to step down, raising alarms about the depth of the unrest. The protests in Jordan have not been on the scale of the uprisings that toppled leaders in Egypt, Libya, Yemen and Tunisia, or the bloody civil war in neighboring Syria.

Nearly 300,000 Syrian refugees have fled to Jordan, some suspected of links to the Syrian regime. Some in Jordan worry that they could be a destabilizing element.

Sign Code as a Weapon

A drearily familiar dialectic is on display here: Government is behaving badly in order to silence protests of other bad behavior. It is violating the Constitution’s First Amendment, stifling speech about its violation of the Fifth Amendment, as it was properly construed until 2005.

Founded in 1934, Central Radio maintains communication, sonar and camera equipment on vessels at Norfolk Naval Station. The business is located in a building designed for its needs near the waterfront. Company Vice President Kelly Dickinson says, “We can drive five minutes and be on board a ship.” But Old Dominion University is nearby and covetous. It wants the land on which Central Radio sits, and through ODU’s Real Estate Foundation is well along toward seizing it by inciting the city government to wield the power of eminent domain. Condemnation proceedings against Central Radio have moved to the compensation phase. Dickinson says the compensation will be insufficient to enable the business to construct a comparable building, let alone buy land for it. ODU, whose plans for the neighborhood remain interestingly vague and may include a shopping center, is exploiting the judicial evisceration of the Fifth Amendment’s takings clause, the history of which is this:

The Constitution’s authors, who did not scatter adjectives carelessly, said property may be taken for “public” uses, meaning things — roads, bridges, buildings, etc. — directly owned by government and used by the general public. In 1954, however, in a case arising from what was then complacently called “urban renewal,” the Supreme Court expanded the category of “public use” to include the “public purpose” of curing “blight,” a concept of enormous elasticity when wielded by rapacious city governments. In 2005, in the Kelo case from New London, Conn., the court radically attenuated the “public use” restriction on takings. The court held, 5-4, that a city government can seize an unblighted neighborhood for the supposed “public” purpose of turning it over to a private business that, being wealthier than the previous owners, would be a richer source of tax revenues for the taking government.

In this appalling decision, the majority serenely said governments could be restrained by public opinion aroused against abuses of eminent domain. Now, however, Norfolk’s government is suppressing Central Radio’s speech protesting what the city is doing.

In their desperation, the company’s executives hung from their building, facing busy Hampton Boulevard, a 375-square-foot banner proclaiming:

50 YEARS ON THIS STREET
78 YEARS IN NORFOLK
100 WORKERS
THREATENED BY EMINENT DOMAIN!
In the banner’s lower right-hand corner is a circle with a red slash through the words “Eminent Domain Abuse.”

Today that circle is all that is visible. The city, acting on a complaint by ODU’s Real Estate Foundation — the entity trying to seize the company’s property — says the size of the full sign violates Norfolk’s sign code. Norfolk’s behavior is unconstitutional because:

The city’s sign code, which is of rabbinical complexity, has been capriciously enforced — some banners on city and private buildings violate the code’s size restrictions. The code is more permissive regarding signs with particular content (e.g., government messages or religious symbols), which violates First Amendment jurisprudence prohibiting content discrimination. The sign code is suddenly being more evenhandedly enforced but only because, a city official has admitted, since Central Radio began protesting, “people are watching.” Furthermore, any content-based speech restriction must pass judicial “strict scrutiny” by establishing that it is necessary to achieve a compelling governmental interest, but the government’s only interest in restricting Central Radio’s speech is to make it easier for the government to throw its weight around.

We have seen this before. A few years ago, a St. Louis man whose property was being seized under Kelo’s permission for government theft adorned his building with a sign similar in size and message to that of Central Radio’s. The city government tried to silence him with sign restrictions as flawed and capriciously enforced as Norfolk’s are. An alderwoman explained with ruinous candor: “If this sign is allowed to remain, then anyone with property along any thoroughfare can paint signs ... to influence passersby and with no control by any city agency!”

The St. Louis man trounced the city in his sign dispute, helped by the Institute for Justice, a little platoon of libertarian litigators who roam the country putting leashes on misbehaving governments. Because IJ is representing Central Radio’s First Amendment rights, Norfolk may have to content itself with traducing only one rather than two provisions of the Bill of Rights.

How Much Does Hollywood Contribute to Violence?

What killed those children?

We understand that a gun, on its own, cannot cause injury or death. It has to be manipulated by a human in a manner that causes injury or death. The actions that resulted in those deaths in Newtown and other random shootings were behavioral rather than mechanical.

What spawns such behavior? Every few weeks, Hollywood offers us another brutal, blood-splattering movie, and we enthusiastically take them in. A segment of the music industry produces songs that call our daughters vile names and suggest it’s cool to shoot cops, and we purchase the hate lyrics and dance to the music. The video game industry produces violent games that reward good shooting and more killing, and we allow our children to practice with them every day for hours.

Together, Hollywood, the music industry and the video game industry have created the most potent and compelling public killing-field training in the world, and we buy it and serve it to our families. And it is from these home-based boot camps that capable mass murderers increasingly emerge.

Unfortunately, we won’t address the bad behavior that caused those deaths and will cause future deaths. Whenever we experience a tragedy such as Newtown, we don’t consider our poor parenting as a contributing cause. And Hollywood, the music industry and the video game industry skulk away and hide behind the skirts and coattails of their purchased politicians and an adoring news media who shields and protects the true villains by pointing their crooked fingers at only the inanimate gun.

Trapping is Sanctioned Animal Cruelty

It’s ironic that your Jan. 17 front-page teaser, “Rupert Trapper Beats Cabin Fever,” was directly beneath a list of activities prohibited by Idaho’s animal cruelty law.

Anyone who did to domestic animals what trappers do regularly to wild animals would be subject to prosecution. Numerous studies have shown that animals caught in leg-hold traps suffer serious injuries as they struggle to escape.

I’m glad that Jared Boley checks his traps within the legally required 72-hour maximum, but even three days is a long time to leave an animal terrified and struggling in a trap.

Your story states that Mr. Boley uses snares “designed to quickly strangle” the animals caught in them. They may be “designed” to kill quickly but, in fact, they do not. In a study done in Newfoundland in 1994, snowshoe hares caught in snares (of a size intended for them) took an average of 18 minutes to be strangled to death. It is reasonable to conclude that larger animals take even longer.

Mr. Boley’s claim that trapping boosts populations of game birds is an often-repeated myth. About 20 years ago, the Department of Fish and Game tried to increase pheasant populations in southeastern Idaho by trapping all the predators it could in a large area there. The result was virtually no increase in pheasants. The department later concluded that it was a change in farming practices, not predators — that had caused a decline in pheasant numbers. A former Fish and Game officer who was working in the field at that time told me that the department “can’t show you any studies that show any benefit to wildlife from trapping.”

Coach Fox Teaching Valuable Life Lessons at CRHS

Class is in session at Canyon Ridge High School. I am not only referring to the all the students who are receiving a high-quality education from caring teachers, staff members and administrators, but additionally I am referring to the varsity boys basketball coach, Jacoby Fox, who is a class act.

I have observed Coach Fox first-hand behind the scenes and on game day. I have seen up close how hard Coach Fox works and how well he interacts with people, especially student athletes, coaches and parents. In the things that really matter in life, he is everything you want in a teacher and a coach. He is knowledgeable, positive, caring, organized, hardworking, honest, fair and inspiring. In short, he is one of classiest young coaches I have ever met. As a young coach, he is obviously not the most experienced in the conference, but he knows the sports he coaches as a high school athlete who has played and as a diligent coach who has studied the game. He outworks his opponents to prepare his football and basketball teams for success and to give them every opportunity to win. I don’t think he can do much more to help his basketball team win outside of shooting free throws for them or making game-winning layups.

I would like to see any other experienced coach get more out of his team this year than he has. Why does he sacrifice so much personal time for his student athletes? I’ll let you decide, but one thing is for sure it is not for the money. In terms of pay, coaching at the high school level is more like a hobby. If you do the math per hour, you would learn that coaching a high school sport works out to be something like 25 cents an hour, especially with how many hours Coach Fox puts in for his basketball program.

In the arena of competitive athletics, the in-your-face goal of winning drives all the hype around the games we enjoy and sometimes the ugliness that makes you wonder what people are thinking. More importantly, however, the goal of winning pursued with an honorable coach drives life lessons that mold young athletes into productive, upright adults.

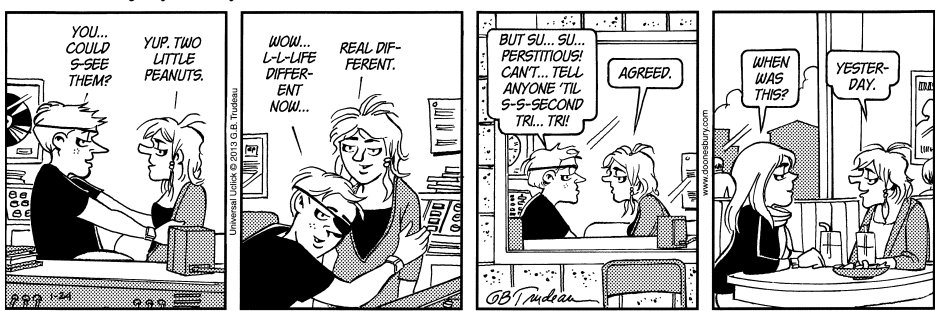

The varsity football, basketball and track teams on which I participated at Twin Falls High School never made the state finals, but I did learn critical life lessons with the help of some classy coaches — lessons of dedication, hard work, cooperation, enthusiasm, tenacity, optimism, and to always do my best and never give up.

My son is learning those same life lessons even more so by playing for Coach Fox. I wonder how many other teams could face each game with such determination to do their best and never give up under the current situation.

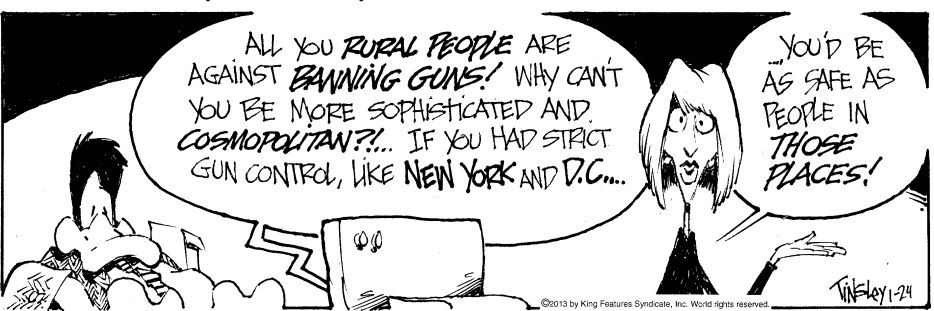

Let’s all remember: what you get by pursuing your goals is not as important as what you become.

Women Catch up to Men on Lung Cancer Risk

BY MARILYNN MARCHIONE
Associated Press

U.S. women who smoke today have a much greater risk of dying from lung cancer than they did decades ago, partly because they are starting younger and smoking more — that is, they are lighting up like men, new research shows. Women also have caught up with men in their risk of dying from smoking-related illnesses. Lung cancer risk leveled off in the 1980s for men but is still rising for women.

“It’s a massive failure in prevention,” said one study leader, Dr. Michael Thun of the American Cancer Society. And it’s likely to repeat itself in places like China and Indonesia where smoking is growing, he said. About 1.3 billion people worldwide smoke.

The U.S. has more than 35 million smokers — about 20 percent of men and 18 percent of women. A study, led by Thun, tracked smoking-related deaths through three periods — 1959-65, 1982-88 and 2000-10 — using seven large population health surveys covering more than 2.2 million people.

Among the findings:
— The risk of dying of lung cancer was more than 25 times higher for female smokers in recent years than for women who never smoked. In the 1960s, it was only three times higher. One reason: After World War II, women started taking up the habit at a younger age and began smoking more.

—A person who never smoked was about twice as likely as a current smoker to live to age 80. For women, the chances of surviving that long were 70 percent for those who never smoked and 38 percent for smokers. In men, the numbers were 61 percent and 26 percent.

—Smokers in the U.S. are three times more likely to die between ages 25 and 79 than nonsmokers are. About 60 percent of those deaths are attributable to smoking.

—Women are far less likely to quit smoking than men are. Among people 65 to 69, the ratio of former to current smokers is 4-to-1 for men and 2-to-1 for women.

—Smoking shaves more than 10 years off the average life span, but quitting at any age buys time. Quitting by age 40 avoids nearly all the excess risk of death from smoking. Men and women who quit when they were 25 to 34 years old gained 10 years; stopping at ages 35 to 44 gained 9 years; at ages 45 to 54, six years; at ages 55 to 64, four years.

—The risk of dying from other lung diseases such as emphysema and chronic bronchitis is rising in men and women, and the rise in men is a surprise because their lung cancer risk leveled off in 1980s.

After Shootings, States Rethink Mental Health Cuts

DES MOINES (AP) • Dozens of states have slashed spending on mental health care over the past four years, driven by the recession’s toll on revenue and, in some cases, a new zeal to shrink government.

But that trend may be heading for a U-turn in 2013 after last year’s shooting rampages by two mentally disturbed gunmen.

The reversal is especially jarring in statehouses dominated by conservative Republicans, who aggressively cut welfare programs but now find themselves caught in a crosscurrent of pressures involving gun control, public safety and health care for millions of disadvantaged Americans.

In many states, lawmakers have begun to recognize that their cuts “may have gone too deep,” said Shelley Chandler, executive director of the Iowa Alliance of Community Providers. “People start talking when there’s a crisis.”

About 30 states have reduced mental health spending since 2008, when revenues were in steep decline, according to the National Alliance on Mental Illness. In a third of those states, the cuts surpassed 10 percent.

As a result, nine state-run psychiatric hospitals were closed and another 3,200 beds for mental health patients were eliminated, dramatically reducing treatment options for the poor and people in the criminal-justice system. Thousands of patients were turned onto the streets.

Making matters worse, the cuts came as unemployment was rising, causing more people to lose private insurance and forcing them to shift to public assistance.

The steepest drop by percentage was in South Carolina, where spending fell by nearly 40 percent over four years — an amount that Republican Gov. Nikki Haley has called “absolutely immoral.”

Now Haley, who took office in 2011, has pledged to bolster a mental health system that dropped case workers, closed treatment centers and extended waiting lists. She also wants to expand remote access to psychiatrists through video conferencing.

Both Pennsylvania and Utah have put aside plans to scale back their mental health systems.

And Kansas, which cut mental health spending by 12 percent from 2008 to 2011, announced this month a new $10 million program aimed at identifying mental health dangers.

“I don’t think we’re well set as a state at all to be able to deal with these intensive cases” of mental illness, acknowledged Kansas Gov. Sam Brownback, usually an avid proponent of downsizing social programs.

The sudden pause reflects anxiety from last year’s shootings in a Colorado movie theater and a Connecticut elementary school. Although little is known about the mental health of either gunman, the attacks have shaken state legislatures that until recently didn’t intend to consider more social spending. In some cases, gun-rights advocates are seeking mental health reforms as an alternative to more gun laws. Jon Thompson, spokesman for the Republican Governors Association, said many budget-cutting governors are having second thoughts, including whether to reform mental health policies “to further invest in the safety of their citizens.”

Memory Pill Helps the Brain Like Prescription Glasses Help the Eyes, Claims US Surgeon General Candidate

Remarkable changes observed, helps users match the memory power of others 15 years younger in as little as 30 days!

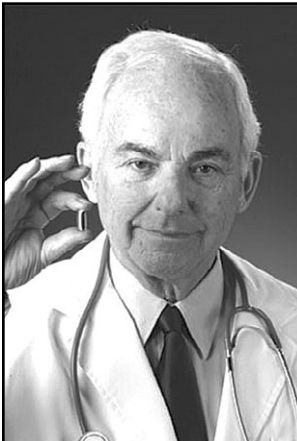

SPOKANE, WASHINGTON — Help is on the way for those who routinely lose their car keys, get lost while driving, forget to call people back, or misplace their TV remote control.

Just like a good pair of glasses can make blurry vision, sharp and crystal-clear, there’s a new, doctor-recommended memory pill that may help your brain, sharpening your memory and mental powers, and making that slow-thinking, sluggish brain as sharp as a tack.

In controlled research studies, the prescription-free formula, known as Procera AVH® has been shown to increase memory, mood, and mental clarity, but it does much more than that.

Time Travel for Your Brain?

If you have ever dreamed of traveling back in time, this drug-free compound may be the next best thing.

UCLA Geffen School of Medicine Assistant Clinical Professor and Internist, Robert Heller, MD uses and recommends a drug-free method to increase memory, mental focus and concentration.

During research trials at the prestigious Brain Sciences Institute, clinical researchers witnessed a remarkable transformation in study participants’ brains.

Over a period of a few weeks, scientists observed the formula “biochemically coaxing” aging brains to function more youthfully, helping match the speed, memory abilities and mental powers enjoyed by others who were up to 15 birthdays younger.

Younger-Functioning Brain in 30 Days?

If the results of this randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study, published in JANA, a leading peer-reviewed scientific journal, are to be believed, it may be entirely possible that you can get your new, younger-functioning brain in as little as 30 days.

This is old news for Robert Heller, MD, who uses and recommends the formula. “It’s not a drug,” says Dr. Heller, “it’s a nutritional supplement that can help a foggy, sluggish brain become a sharper, quicker, and healthier brain.”

Wake Up Call for Tired Brains

For years, Dr. Heller looked for an effective solution to patients’ complaints about mind and memory.

“I searched for a remedy or treatment that could help my patients, even friends and family, regain the memory and mental sharpness we all seem to lose with age. I am quite happy to now recommend Procera AVH as it gives the brain much needed support against free radicals and improve the decline in neurotransmitters, and blood flow and oxygen.”

“For me, it’s like reading an eye chart with the right pair of glasses instead of an old pair of lenses. Everything comes into focus, my brain is more crisp, more focused, clearer, and sharper.”

Dr. Con Stough at the Brain Sciences Institute concurs, “It’s a fairly unique process that pumps the brain full of more energy (oxygen), improves blood circulation to the brain and increases the key neurotransmitters that are responsible for cognitive functioning.”

Elizabeth K. of Rochester, New York experienced a night-and-day

A randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study on what may be the world’s first truly effective memory pill was conducted at this university research facility.

difference in her mind and memory. At the age of 54, her memory was declining at an “alarming rate.”

She searched high and low for a solution, before she heard about Procera AVH. She decided to give it a try.

“It took about a month for the memory benefit to kick in. Six months later, even my husband was impressed with my improved memory. And I am very happy with my renewed mental clarity and focus!”

A ‘Bonus’ Effect?

Elizabeth was pleasantly surprised with one of the formula’s ‘bonus effects.’

“Within a week I felt a wonderful change in my mood. It was such an unexpected bonus,” smiles Elizabeth.

Pharmacist Gene Steiner, Pharm.D, was relocating to another state and was apprehensive about taking the state board of pharmacy jurisprudence examination, a daunting examination that tests a candidate’s mastery of pharmacy law.

Dr. Steiner took Procera AVH daily for two weeks prior to the test, and passed with flying colors.

“The recall I experienced was near fantastic,” says Steiner.

Curiosity piqued, Dr. Steiner did his own research to learn more about the formula

He read about a US cognitive researcher who had taken a new approach to treating memory loss, addressing the “energy crisis” that occurs naturally in human brains around the age of 40-50.

Author, researcher, preeminent brain expert, and lead formulator for Procera AVH, Joshua Reynolds, explains, “One-third of your brainpower may be lost by the age of 40, and up to 50 percent may be lost by the age of 50!”

Half-Blind... and Can’t See It

“If you were to lose half your vision, essentially go half-blind, you would surely notice it,” says Reynolds. “But the gradual loss of mental acuity and brainpower over many years may be too subtle for people to notice.” This explains why many Procera AVH users seem surprised at the effects.

Frustrated and concerned about her “alarming rate” of memory loss, 54-year-old Elizabeth K., Rochester, New York, discovered a natural memory pill that changed her life.

Mark S. in Alego, Texas, was worried about being at his best during sales calls.

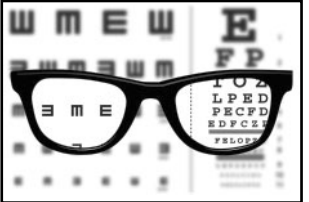

“I really needed something to help with mental clarity, focus and memory. I have to be at my best when I meet with clients.” Shortly after he started taking Procera AVH, Mark was amazed at how sharp and mentally focused he was during his appointments.

“It was definitely a noticeable difference. I was very pleased with Procera AVH and happy to know it will help me stay at my best.”

Neural Pathways, Revitalized!

Three clinically validated brain boosting nutrients in Reynolds’ formula have been shown to “light up aging brains like a Christmas tree.”

Age-related vision loss is easily corrected with glasses. A novel drug-free compound has been found to help fight age-related memory loss and poor mental clarity in as little as 30 days.

Procera revitalizes tired sluggish brains cells with a fresh supply of oxygen and key vital nutrients. Plus, it helps restore depleted neurotransmitters, which may help increase and enhance alertness, concentration, and memory.

“We included acetyl-L-carnitine, a natural modified amino acid with a proven record of memory enhancement,” says Reynolds.

“It’s the same brain nutrient found in cold-water fish, but you’d have to eat over 20 servings of fish to get what’s in one daily dose of Procera AVH.”

The formula also contains vinpocetine, a substance that helps deliver increased oxygen and glucose to your brain. “Vinpocetine helps increase circulation in the brain, so your brain feels more alive, like a breath of fresh air,” says Reynolds.

The third ingredient is huperzine, a potent plant chemical shown to improve learning and memory at all ages. “Students may do better in school when they take it,” adds Reynolds.

“And the US government has been studying huperzine’s neuro-protective powers against the brain-damaging effects of pesticides in food.”

Selwyn Howell credits Reynolds’ memory pill with bolstering his confidence. “It helped me speak out more than I used to. I am growing more confident every day.”

Carey S. reports, “I feel so much more focused and with the new energy I’m now ready to tackle the things I’ve been putting off for years!”

GAY RIGHTS MEASURE TO RETURN

BY MIKE BUTTS
Idaho Press-Tribune

BOISE • An annual effort to include gay and transgender people in Idaho’s laws that ban discrimination in employment, housing, education and public services will return to the Statehouse this session.

Add the Words, Idaho is an advocacy group for the new law. The group’s co-chair, Mistie Tolman of Meridian, said she is “testing the water” to see what new lawmakers will think about the legislation. Thirty of the House’s 70 members are freshmen this year. Tolman said she doesn’t know if an effort to introduce the legislation will come in the House or the Senate.

If You Go Human Rights Discussion

Add the Words, Idaho and other groups will host an Idaho Human Rights Act Education Panel at noon Feb. 6 in the Idaho Statehouse Auditorium in Boise.

“It could be there’s a little more willingness to stand up and vote their conscience,” Tolman said about lawmakers this year. “We do have a lot of hope. It does seem a lot of the legislators think people shouldn’t be fired for being gay.”

The proposed legislation has previously failed to get a hearing in the Senate State Affairs Committee. It adds the words “sexual orientation” and “gender identity” to the Idaho Human Rights Act.

Recently, Sandpoint and Boise adopted city laws that ban discrimination against lesbians, gays, bisexual and transgender people. But Add the Words advocates say 1 million state residents still don’t have those protections.

Sen. Cherie Buckner-Webb, D-Boise, wants to sponsor an Add the Words bill this year. She said the legislation would be good for the economy because it opens doors for all workers.

“It makes good business sense to have a community that’s welcome to the best and the brightest,” Buckner-Webb said.

The Add the Words campaign this year will point to a survey commissioned by the American Civil Liberties Union of Idaho in December 2011. Conducted by Moore Information, it shows most Idahoans support bans on discrimination against gays and lesbians. According to the survey, 81 percent of Idaho voters “believe that it should be illegal to fire someone just because they are gay (or) transgender” and 76 percent say it should be illegal to deny housing for people just because they are LGBT.

Proposal Would Limit Who Can Vote for County Commissioners

mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • You may see fewer names on the ballot the next time your county commissioners are up for election.

Sen. Branden Durst, D-Boise, introduced legislation to limit the election of county commissioners to the districts in which they reside. On Wednesday, the Senate State Affairs committee voted to print his bill, and will hold a public hearing on the proposal.

Currently, commissioners must live in different districts within the county, but voters within the county have a say on all three commissioners, regardless of where voters live.

Durst wants to change that so the only people who can vote for a district’s commissioner are the people who live within that district.

The reason, he said, is to prevent small town residents’ voices from being overshadowed by residents in urban communities. He cited the example of people who live in Hansen or Kimberly being out-shouted by people who live in Twin Falls.

This way, people can pick the commissioner who will represent their community, and not be beholden to any other communities in the county, Durst said.

Twin Falls County Commissioner Leon Mills said he understood where Durst was coming from, but disagrees with the idea. Commissioners represent the whole county, Mills said, who lives in Twin Falls.

“Are we going to limit the prospective area that I’m the county commissioner of?” Mills said.

He also pointed out that each district within the county has an equal number of residents.

Twin Falls County Commissioner Terry Kramer lives in Castleford, and Commissioner George Urie lives in Hansen.

Jerome County Commissioner Charlie Howell agreed.

“I think the system the way it is is fine,” he said.

Regional representation within a voting area isn’t a new struggle to Idaho.

Last year, a proposal to regionalize community college trustees failed in the House Education Committee. And while Idaho counties must have a commissioner from each of three districts, cities have the option of creating districts for city council members. Twin Falls doesn’t have that requirement.

AAA: Ban Cellphones for Idaho’s 18-under Drivers

BOISE (AP) • An automobile group says Idaho should consider banning cellphone use by drivers 18 and under, on grounds it will make the state’s roads safer.

AAA of Idaho’s Dave Carlson made the pitch Wednesday after his group surveyed Idaho residents.

Carlson argues that protections for teens are necessary because they are overrepresented in fatal and injury crash statistics.

It’s been not quite a year since the 2012 Legislature banned texting while driving for everyone.

But Carlson says most people would support adding a restriction for talking for drivers who are 18 and under.

EXTREME WINTER FUN

Southern Idaho’s horsemen and competitive skiers team up for skijoring races.

BY VIRGINIA HUTCHINS

BELLEVUE • A ranch hand leans low in the saddle as his galloping horse tows a skier, who executes a rapid series of turns and jumps behind the flying hooves.

This is skijoring, an extreme winter sport that’s particularly suited to south-central Idaho’s mixture of cowboys and competitive skiers.

But it’s a spectacle that the region sees just once a year, at the Wood River Extreme Skijoring Association’s two days of races. This year the event, sanctioned by the North American Ski Joring Association, is set for Feb. 9-10 off East Myrtle Street in Hailey.

“It is some serious wintertime fun,” said Tyler Peterson, president of the Wood River nonprofit.

But some preparation isn’t a bad idea.

A handful of riders and skiers — some new to skijoring — gathered Saturday south of Bellevue at a practice course that Dan Vandermeulen groomed and shaped with agricultural equipment: a straight, flat run for the horses, with a series of low ski gates along one side and mounded jumps along the other.

HAILEY • Once a year, south-central Idaho engages in the crazy winter sport of skijoring — and the sometimes crazier sport among spectators on the sidelines.

“We have had between 25 and 50 teams in past years. Spectators vary from 200 to 700,” said Tyler Peterson, president of the Wood River Extreme Skijoring Association.

This year’s nationally sanctioned races, set for Feb. 9-10 in Hailey, draw horsemen and skiers from several western states. But race organizers recruit the locals, too — especially the owners of ranch horses that won’t be spooked by dragging a skier at a run.

Even mules compete, association member Michelle Bobbitt said. And one year a Hagerman man brought camels.

Time and place: Both days’ races start at noon near the intersection of East Myrtle Street and Hiawatha Drive.

Falling in Love with Cross-country Skiing

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

HANSEN • If success is falling nine times and getting up 10, then my second time cross-country skiing was an achievement.

The first time I cross-country skied was two years ago on a groomed and relatively flat landscape. On a scale of 1 to 10, with 10 being the most difficult, my first experience was about a 3, while my South Hills outing this week with members of the High Desert Nordic Association was a solid 9, if not a 10.

I was told we skied the intermediate trail, which makes me wonder what an expert trail would be like. My guess is the expert trail might break my scale at a 15.

On Jan. 21 I went out with members of the High Desert Nordic Association to ski at Magic Mountain Resort. Club members often get together and ski some of the 20 miles of trails they maintain in the Magic Mountain area. During my visit we saw only three miles of these trails, Rogers Road and Thompson Creek Trail.

It was a chilly morning when I car-pooled with club president Valdon Hancock and two other High Desert Nordic

Free Ski Day

On Feb. 2, members of the High Desert Nordic Association will once again be on hand to introduce beginners to cross-country skiing at the annual Free Ski Day starting at 9 a.m. at Magic Mountain Resort.

The event is free and open to people of all ages and skill levels. About 13 members of the club will be available to help get people started in the sport.

skiers, Dave Lentz and Max Newling. Once we ascended the mountain, Hancock said, it would get at least 20 degrees warmer because of the inversion in the area. Sure enough, once we parked and snapped on our skis, I needed to peel off my coat and hat after going a few feet.

The High Desert Nordic Association, founded in 1987, has about 50 members, and Hancock, 69, said the group is comprised of couples, singles, women and men. The men I skied with that morning were retired.

But being retired is no joke. These guys were in great shape, and I often had a hard time keeping up with them.

An average of 50 to 100 people attend, said Valdon Hancock, club president.

Hancock, who was introduced to cross-country skiing by attending Free Ski Day, has been cross-country skiing for 20 years. He has been a member of the club for 15 years.

“I enjoyed the skiing experience. The real purpose of Free Ski Day is to try it, and if you like it, you can get your own skis and join us,” Hancock said.

“We’re all retired. You can sit in an easy chair or you can get active,” Hancock said.

As we glided along Rogers Road, we passed trees from last summer’s Thompson Creek fire. The burned trees looked like they were painted solid black against the snowy background.

“It’s nice to get out and enjoy the beauty and the silence,” Lentz said.

At one point Lentz stopped and turned to me. “Do you hear that? Silence.”

The only thing I could hear was my heart beating, but when it subsided I could hear the silence too. And every

The 19 Best Armchair Adventures: Banff Film Festival Comes to Idaho

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

KETCHUM • A few years ago two Australian friends who had never kayaked on the open ocean did the unthinkable: They paddled 3,300 kilometers across the Tasman Sea in an unsupported 62-day journey filled with 10-meter waves, massive storms and shark-infested waters.

They turned their adventure into an award-winning film, “Crossing the Ditch,” which went on tour with the 2010 Banff Film Festival.

Eager for another adventure, the two turned their sights to Antarctica where they attempted to be the first to ski unsupported to the South Pole and back.

“If we are going to succeed we should probably learn how to ski,” Justin Jones told his friend.

Now Jones and James Castrission have turned that adventure into a new film titled “Crossing the Ice.” It picked up multiple awards, including Banff’s Grand Prize and People’s Choice awards at the Banff Film Festival in November.

And local armchair adventurers will be able to see it on Feb. 1, when the Banff Mountain Film Festival World Tour 2013 comes to the nexStage Theater, 120 S. Main St. in Ketchum.

The film festival will serve up 19 films focusing on mountain culture, travel, human interest and a wide array of sports over two nights: Friday, Feb. 1, and Saturday, Feb. 2.

They range in length from minutes to an hour long.

“For me, the Banff Mountain Film Festival is the essence of why we enjoy living in Idaho so much — quality of life, great opportunities for a wide variety of outdoor sports, fresh water and clean air,” said Michael Boge, who has hosted the festival in Ketchum, Coeur d’Alene and Sandpoint for the past dozen years.

Tickets are $14, available in advance at Backwoods Mountain Sports, The Elephants Perch and Chapter One Bookstore. They’re $15 at the door.

Proceeds from tickets go to the Friends of the Sawtooth National Forest Avalanche Center and the Satipo Kids Project, which supplies 34 Peruvian children with the textbooks and other equipment they need to attend school. Doors open at 6 p.m., with pizza and other food on sale to benefit the avalanche center.

There will also be door prizes, giveaways of Kicking Horse Coffee and a chance to win more than $10,000 in prizes, including outdoor gear, a yurt stay and a trip with Sun Valley HeliSki in the 16th annual Best of Banff Raffle.

The raffle helps raise half of the center’s operating budget, said Laurie Trautman, the Friends’ new executive director. Raffle tickets can be purchased at Backwoods, The Perch and the film festival. Winners need not be present.

“We’re a public/private partnership. The government pays for one position; the community, two,” said Simon Trautman, the new director of the avalanche center who is in the office by 4:30 a.m. to prepare the daily report. “With what we get, we cover four zones from the Sawtooths to Soldier Mountain near Fairfield.”

Here’s a look at the film lineup:

- “Moonwalk” features a rope walker with the full moon as a backdrop.
- “Five Races, Five Continents” offers a look into the world of mountain running.
- “Strength in Numbers” focuses on the many communities of mountain biking.
- “Crossing the Ice” follows two Australians as they drag food and shelter across 1,140 kilometers of barren ice, only to find a more experienced Norwegian attempting the same feat.
- “Flow Hunters” features some of the world’s top paddlers exploring New Zealand’s whitewater.
- “Gone Curling” features curling fanatics squaring up against climate change as their outdoor rinks in the highlands of New Zealand begin to shrink.

- “Unicorn Sashimi” offers a schuss through powder set to the climax of Taiko drumming.
- “Reel Rock 7: Honnold 3.0” follows climbing soloist Alex Honnold on his biggest adventure yet — the Yosemite Triple.
- “On Thin Sea Ice 2” serves up the simple pleasures of life: skating, bathing and a little vodka.

Saturday, Feb. 2

- “Huck” features kayaker Evan Garcia on big waterfalls.
- “Last of the Great Unknown” examines climbing in the slot canyons of the Grand Canyon.
- “The Gimp Monkeys” follows three friends, each of whom are missing an arm or a leg, as they attempt the first all-disabled ascent of Yosemite’s El Capitan.
- “Wild Bill’s Run” is a humorous tale of misadventure as Wild Bill Cooper leads a ragtag crew of snowmobilers over the top of the world from Minnesota to Moscow in 1972.

- “1st Afghan Ski Challenge” follows gutsy first-time skiers learning to ski and take part in the first downhill racing competition in Afghanistan.
- “Lily Shreds Trailside” follows a four-footed pooch.
- “Petzl RocTrip China” takes viewers to a remarkable spot that offers climbers from all over the world 250 pitches on its limestone walls.
- “Ernest” features Ernest Wilkinson, one of the last of a vanishing breed of mountain men, pontificating on what the best survival tool is.
- “Mountains in Motion: the Canadian Rockies” uses time-lapse photography to offer a new perspective on the Canadian Rockies.
- “Industrial Revolutions” features world-renowned rider Danny MacAskill cycling in an abandoned ironworks.

New Space Missions Promise Exciting Year Ahead

Space hardware has become so integral to our technological civilization that most space launches go practically unnoticed. (Indeed, not a month will pass in the year ahead without someone, somewhere sending something beyond the stratosphere.) But there are some especially notable missions to keep an eye on in 2013.

The International Space Station will receive five cargo deliveries (including a second visit from private launch firm SpaceX’s Dragon), undergo four crew changes and grow substantially with the addition of its largest module to date (a new lab) and a robotic arm. China will begin to occupy its Tiangong 1 space station with the launch of three astronauts in June, including one woman.

Beyond low Earth orbit, the Lunar Atmosphere and Dust Experiment (LADEE) will, among other things, attempt to discover the cause of a faint glow witnessed above the moon’s surface by the Apollo astronauts more than 40 years ago.

China will attempt to land the Chang’e 3 rover on the moon at year’s end, the first lunar surface mission since Russia’s Luna 24 sample return lander in 1976.

The Mars Atmosphere

and Volatile Evolution orbiter (MAVEN) will begin its flight to the Red Planet in late November or early December, on a quest to discover why Mars has been losing its water and atmosphere for much of its existence.

Although unlikely to receive much fanfare, I’m eagerly anticipating the August launch of the European Space Agency’s Global Astrometric Interferometer for Astrophysics (GAIA) probe. This mission, orbiting in Earth’s shadow about a million miles anti-sunward, will accurately triangulate the distances and motions of around a billion of the nearest stars in the Milky Way, producing the most accurate 3-D map of our galaxy to date.

Lentz skied effortlessly along Rogers Road despite the snowmobile tracks left in the snow that seemed to make my kick-and-glide efforts bumpy. Now and then Lentz went over the edge of the road, cutting an “S” into the side of the hill.

There are four types of cross-country skiing: classic or trail, telemark, backcountry and skate skiing.

Lentz, 69, a telemark skier, has been skiing for 20 years.

“I bought some skis and when I retired I started skiing more,” Lentz said.

I found myself looking at the ground a majority of the time. Depending on the terrain — uphill, downhill, icy, snowy — I tried to decide how to keep going forward without falling. I soon discovered that falling into snow that was three feet high below my skis took more energy than actual skiing. My pride was least of my worries as I tried to heave myself up while being anchored to the slippery ground with skis.

Luckily for me, I was traveling with teachers who were there to help pick me up and offer advice. If I fell there was someone behind me and in front of me to get me to my feet.

Fly Fishers' Banquet Features Canadian Fishing Guide

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Canadian fishing guide April Vokey will be the featured speaker at the Magic Valley Fly Fishers' 44th annual Banquet and Membership Drive on Feb. 9.

Vokey lives in British Columbia and is an avid angler and steelhead, salmon and trout guide. As a girl she coaxed her father into going fishing, and by age 16 she was devoting all of her free time to her local rivers, a club announcement said. She is passionate about Spey casting to wild steelhead and tying salmon/steelhead flies, and she has made it her mission to introduce aspiring anglers to the sport.

In 2007, Vokey founded a British Columbia-based guide operation, Fly Gal Ventures (www.flygal.ca), where she guides and instructs anglers on some of British Columbia's best steelhead destinations.

Vokey is a Federation of Fly Fishers-certified casting instructor and fly-fishing columnist, the Canadian field editor for Chasing Silver magazine and the steelhead columnist for Fly Fusion magazine. VIRGINIA HUTCHINS • TIMES-NEWS

Their shadows falling on the canyon wall below, hikers stop for snacks beside the dry Big Wood River bed on Jan. 21.

ONLINE: Why this Failed Hike Was Absolutely Excellent

Times-News journalists blog on their outdoor adventures — and yours — at "Trails & Tales." A recent entry is from Virginia Hutchins:

"Eventually, we had to confess ourselves beaten.

"At this time a year ago, I hiked the most stunning stretch of sculpted basalt in the dry Big Wood River bed in the company of a Bureau of Land Management employee. ... All year I longed to go back with friends, to share what I'd seen.

"But the annual window of opportunity is pretty small. Any release of water from Magic Dam would make the deep canyon a death trap for hikers. And in late summer, when certain stretches are dry again, the riverbed's numerous rattlesnakes keep me away.

"But I was too eager this January and didn't wait for enough snow to melt before having a go at the best stretch, which is east and south-east of Kinzie Butte.

"On Monday, friends and I gingerly picked our way across canyon-bottom snow, breaking gorgeous ice sheets for safer footing among the boulders...."

Rotarun Ski Area Offers Friday-night Race Series

HAILEY • Night racing starts Friday, Feb. 1, at Rotarun Ski Area in Hailey. This flexible racing series is open for all ages, skill levels and equipment: alpine, telemark or snowboard.

Running four weeks, the series promotes corporate team building, family fun and personal improvement, a Rotarun release said. Racers can participate individually and in as few as one night's race.

Each Friday in February, race sign-up begins at 5 p.m. with youth racing first at 6 p.m. Divisions are boys and girls by age group, adult men and women divisions and, new this year, a snowboard division. Also, on Feb. 8, Sun Valley Tele joins the action with its telemark racing event.

The price includes lift ticket, racing, raffle and awards party at Rotarun following the race. One night: 17 and younger, $15; adult, $20. Pre-pay for the four-race series: $50 for children; $70 for adults; $20 additional fee for forming a team. Pre-paid series team sponsorship is $55 for each youth member and $75 for each adult member.

In the team division, a four-person team should include at least one female. Teams without a female will receive a one-point handicap. Team scoring will reward those teams made up of members from diverse skill levels and divisions. The 2012 reining team is Sun Valley Brewing Co.

At the series finals, to be held Feb. 22, a "ski off" will confirm the King and Queen of the Hill. Last year the champs were Jimmy and Buey Grossman.

"Rotarun has been made by a lot of generous support by the trades in this community, and this is our way to give a little fun back to all those plumbers, electricians, carpenters and small-business men and women," said Jeff Smith, president of Rotarun Ski Club Inc., the non-profit organization that fosters the Rotarun Ski Area.

At 25 Rodeo Drive, Rotarun is three miles west of Hailey via Croy Creek Road.

Muzzleloaders Hold a Shoot, Potluck

JEROME • The Southern Idaho Muzzleloaders will hold its monthly shoot at 9 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 26, at the Jerome Gun Club, north of the junction of Interstate 84 and U.S. Highway 93 at mile marker 64.

The group will also have its annual meeting and a potluck at 4 p.m. Saturday.

Meat will be provided. Bring a salad or dessert, your table service and drink.

Membership renewal fees are $15 for a single, $25 for a family and $5 for the newsletter.

Information: Ray at 208-308-0779, Ron at 208-420-3086 or Leon at 208-423-4788.

Twin Falls Gun Club Hosts Fun Shoot

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls Gun Club will put on a Fun Shoot at 11 a.m. Sunday, Jan. 27, with a variety of prizes.

Fun Shoot cost is $6 per round or $30 for a guarantee card.

Also at the gun club,

Snake River Trap Association activity starts today, Jan. 24, and goes for 10 weeks, ending with a two-day shoot on April 13-14.

Information: Mike March at 208-420-4331, or the gun club at 208-734-0639.

Sportsmen, Show Your Stuff at Chili Cook-off

JEROME • The Idaho Department of Fish and Game will host its 4th annual Sportsmen's Chili Cook-Off at 6:30 p.m. today, Jan. 24, at the Jerome Regional Office, 324 S. 417 E. in the Highway 93 Business Park.

Bring your favorite chili, or just try the different flavors.

"Last year we had over 20 chili entries, and more than 60 sportsmen attended," Jerome Hansen, Fish and Game regional supervisor, said in a release. "Every year it just continues to get bigger and better."

Chef Kirt Martin of Snake River Grill in Hagerman will give a wild game cooking demonstration. Sportsman recipients of Fish and Game's new "Caught in the Act of Doing Good" program will be recognized.

Prizes will be awarded for the two best chilies: the People's Choice and the Chef's Choice.

Information: Fish and Game's regional office, 324-4359.

"I scrounged up just enough snow for this," Vandermeulen said.

Holding the rope attached to the saddle, the skier cuts from side to side behind the running horse. At the Feb. 9-10 races, each skier will attempt to spear rings on his arm, too, and each missed jump or gate or ring adds to the team's finish time.

On Saturday, the gates and jumps were challenge enough.

While Vandermeulen has "logged about a thousand miles behind a snowmobile," he said, he had never skied behind a horse. Neither had Sun Valley skier Michael Porter.

Don't choke up on the rope; stay on the end for maximum tension and a strong pendulum effect, advised Bellevue skier Chase Gouley, a man with some skijoring credibility.

"But I can't give you all my tricks," Gouley added, laughing.

Casey Meggers of Hansen, who hauled three ranch horses to Bellevue, would pull Vandermeulen on the first run of the day.

"If he gets going too fast, I'll just straight-line it," Vandermeulen said.

But he turned out an amazing first-time performance of tight, neat turns, sucking up his knees at the crest of every jump to stay on the ground.

A skier in the air — or one whose skies aren't turned toward the next gate by the top of the jump — will drop the rope. There's no negotiation with a gallop.

On his first run of the practice course, Gouley lost the rope on the second jump.

"She's running good!" he said, rejoining the riders, skiers and dogs gathered around a flat-bed truck. "I was late and in the backseat."

After a couple of starts and stops behind Meggers' horse, Porter had some skijoring technique figured out. When you come around a corner, expect a little jerk, he reported. "But if you can get through that, everything's great. It's pretty smooth sailing."

Infectious fun for a calm, sunny afternoon.

"What are you thinking, Danny? You hooked?" Bellevue horsewoman Michelle Bobbitt asked.

"Yeah," Vandermeulen said, later adding: "It's a good honest sport."

Skijoring first-timer Britney Snyder, a Sun Valley rider, sighed as she returned from a run. "I want to do this all day!"

But on each race day, each horse may run the course only twice, Bobbitt said. Skiers, on the other hand, may enter multiple events and ski the course as many times as they want.

So in most years, there aren't horses to spare. A skier is wise to line up a teammate instead of signing up alone.

"I've been Facebooking a lot of friends in Washington and Montana, trying to get them to bring horses," Bobbitt said.

In past years, competitors have traveled from Montana, Colorado and Oregon. Organizers expect some Utah cowboys and skiers this year.

On Saturday, riders cooled off Meggers' horses after each run. But the quarterhorse ridden by Becky Warner of Twin Falls seemed to share Snyder's do-it-all-day enthusiasm.

"She's mad that I'm making her walk," Warner said.

Skijoring

sign-ups will be 6-10 p.m. Feb. 8 at McClain's Pizzeria in Hailey. Or, sign up at the race site before 11 a.m. on Feb. 9.

About the course: The horse and rider pull the skier through a straight track, 700 to 1,000 feet long, with a series of jumps, gates and ring stands.

"The jumps range from 3 to 5 feet. The gates are just like ski racing gates," Peterson said. "The ring stands are specifically designed stands with 6-inch rings hanging about four feet off the ground off the side track. The skier must spear the rings and have them all on his arm when he reaches the finish line."

"We are the first and only race that incorporates a rider ring," he added. "Stretching high over the track, the rider must also spear a ring while riding."

The fastest combined time of both days wins in each division.

And this is fast. The horses reach speeds of 30 or 40 mph, Bobbitt said.

For spectators: Admission is $5; children 10 and younger get in free. Food and beverages will be for sale. Dogs must be on leashes at all times.

At 7 p.m. Feb. 9, a raffle, auction and dance will follow the racing. Organizers had not yet announced a location for the evening; check www.wooddriveresja.com for updates.

Entry fees: Entry ranges from $25 for juniors to $150 for open division, Peterson said.

The prize money: Teams compete for $5,000 in prize money, Bobbitt said; $3,800 is split between winning teams in the open division and $1,000 between winners in the sport division, and $100 goes to the team with the fastest time each day. Also, the winning teams receive 80 percent of all entry fees, she said.

Prepare to compete: Horses used for roping — and ones accustomed to pulling a calf to branding — shouldn't have trouble taking to skijoring.

But if your horse isn't used to a rope moving across its rump and hips, practice pulling things — say, a child on a sled — to introduce the feeling of a rope attached to the saddle and the noise of snow crunching behind the horse, advised Hansen horse owner Casey Meggers. Or, have someone walk behind the horse moving the rope back and forth.

Also, Bobbitt runs her mare to get it in shape for skijoring.

Expect to be the skiing half of a skijoring team instead? Get pulled behind a snowmobile to get the hang of it, several skijoring veterans advised.

"There's no pulling against it," skier Chase Gouley said.

Who benefits: Most of this year's concession proceeds will go to the Wild Riders 4-H club.

Learn more: Contact Peterson at 208-720-0329 or dallyup7@aol.com. Visit www.wooddriveresja.com. Or search for the Wood River Extreme Skijoring Association on Facebook.

RESOLUTION NUMBER 2013-1

WHEREAS, Article XII, section 2 of the Idaho Constitution authorizes counties to adopt "all such local police, sanitary and other regulations as are not in conflict with its charter or with the general laws"; and

WHEREAS, Idaho Code Section 67-6509(c) holds:

No [comprehensive] plan shall be effective unless adopted by resolution by the governing board. A resolution enacting or amending a plan or part of a plan may be adopted, amended, or repealed by definitive reference to the specific plan document. A copy of the adopted or amended plan shall accompany each adopting resolution and shall be kept on file with the city clerk or county clerk.

WHEREAS, the Planning and Zoning Commission gave notice; held a public hearing; and submitted recommendations to the Board of County Commissioners, all per the parameters of Idaho Code Section 67-6509; and

WHEREAS, the Board of County Commissioners have given notice and held public hearings per the parameters of Idaho Code Section 67-6509.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT HEREBY RESOLVED by the Board of Commissioners for Jerome County, Idaho, that the following policy and procedures is hereby adopted.

The first paragraph on page seventy-two (72) of the Jerome County Comprehensive Plan shall read as follows:

Urban land uses such as commercial, dense residential, and industrial are prevalent within the three incorporated areas of the county: Jerome, Eden, and Hazelton. In accordance with section 67-6526 of the Idaho code, areas of city impact have been established for lands bordering city boundaries. Most of the land in this area is presently agricultural land, with some commercial, industrial, and residential lands following main transportation corridors. Proposed zoning for the areas of impact would, however, accommodate greater diversity in land uses in certain locations. This is particularly the case in the Jerome area of city impact.

The second bullet-point paragraph entitled, "Areas of City Impact," on page seventy-six (76) of the Jerome County Comprehensive Plan shall read as follows:

Areas of City Impact: to provide for future growth areas of the cities of the county with development consistent to the cities' comprehensive plans and development standards. The areas of city impact will provide for the major development areas of the cities outside of the current city limits, leaving the majority of the county, outside areas of city impact, for agricultural uses. The specifics of these provisions will be outlined in the official area of city impact agreements.

BE IT SO RESOLVED this 15 day of January 2013.

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman in my early 20s and in my first serious relationship. I adore "Paul." We have a wonderful, respectful relationship. One day I hope we'll be married.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

I feel strongly that we should not live together before we are married. He disagrees. He feels couples need to know each other's habits fully before they make a life-long commitment.

I understand the financial and emotional convenience of sharing a home with your loved one. However, I believe that marriage changes a living dynamic whether you have lived together or not. Conflicts that arise post-marriage can be faced with a greater sense of resolve, knowing that a formal commitment has been made.

Abby, what's your take on this? Should couples live together before marriage? I don't want to be stubborn and say I'll never live with anyone before getting married, because I know it's a very common thing to do. What can I say to Paul and friends who disagree with me to defend my "old-fashioned" logic?

— TRADITIONALIST
IN CHICAGO

DEAR TRADITIONALIST:

I don't think you should argue with them on the subject at all. Just say that although many couples live together today without marriage, YOU aren't comfortable with it. You are not the only person who feels this way. Many people with strong religious convictions feel the way you do about it. In my opinion, this is something that couples should work out between themselves.

DEAR ABBY: My next-door neighbor "Rod" and I work at the same place, about 10 miles from our homes. He has a medical condition that prevents him from driving. Until recently, he took the bus, but that route was stopped, so he now relies on his wife for transportation every day. She works and also takes care of their three kids.

Last summer, I drove Rod for a while, but he was a terrible carpool companion. He was perpetually late, and I'd have to wait for him in the morning and after work. He would brag nonstop about how good he is at his job, and then want to stand around in our driveway chatting instead of just going inside.

He never offered to pay for gas or compensate me in any way, and seemed unable to find other arrangements when I had to work late or run errands after work, which made me feel trapped in his schedule. I finally got tired of the hassle and made an excuse to stop driving him.

There is no real reason I can't take him now except that he was such a pain in the you-know-what that I don't want to. But I feel guilty when I see his wife loading up all their kids to make the drive.

What's the right thing to do? We may be neighbors for a very long time.

— KIND COMMUTER
IN MADISON, WIS.

DEAR KIND COMMUTER: I recognize your generosity in extending yourself to your co-worker, who apparently never learned the basics of carpool etiquette. Because you got nothing positive out of driving him, I do not recommend you start again. However, if you would like to do his wife a favor, see if there are transportation services for people with disabilities in your city, and if there are, give that information to her.

Abby shares more than 100 of her favorite recipes in two booklets: "Abby's Favorite Recipes" and "More Favorite Recipes by Dear Abby." Send your name and mailing address, plus check or money order for $14 (U.S. funds) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet Set, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447. (Shipping and handling are included in the price.)

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

“It was, of course, a grand and impressive thing to do, to mistrust the obvious, and to pin one’s faith in things which could not be seen!”

— Galen

The NEC tournament from Yokohama, held this time last year, featured a Swiss tournament followed by a knockout for the eight surviving teams. The quarterfinal matches started with a defensive problem on the very first deal that might look easy — but at the table these things are never as simple as you might think.

In one room, where the auction had petered out in two no-trump, declarer won the spade lead and cashed his other high spade to unblock the suit, before playing a club toward dummy — perhaps making the position easier to defend than was necessary. East made the critical play for the defense when he ducked this trick, won the next club, and cleared the diamonds by playing ace, king and a third round. When declarer won the diamond queen and played a heart, West climbed up with the heart ace and cashed out the diamonds for down one.

Ducking the club might look like an instinctive play, but it was not one that was found at many other tables. For example, when defending three no-trump after a spade lead and a club play at trick two, East in the other room fell from grace by winning the first club and returning a low diamond. Declarer won in dummy and unblocked spades, crossed to the club jack, and cashed out dummy’s spades, then ran the clubs with the aid of the finesse and had nine tricks.

ANSWER: Did you feel compelled to bid by doubling or by bidding one diamond because you had enough points for an opening bid? That is understandable, but when fixed, stay fixed — for the time being. If the opponents come to a stop in spades, you can balance with a double; otherwise, stay silent, and don’t make a bad situation worse. Overcalls should be five-card suits or much better four-carders than this.

Today is Thursday, Jan. 24, the 24th day of 2013. There are 341 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Jan. 24, 2003, the U.S. Department of Homeland Security officially opened as its head, Tom Ridge, was sworn in. (Creation of the new Cabinet agency was the largest government reorganization in more than 50 years, a response to the Sept. 11 attacks and the threat of further terror.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1813, the Royal Philharmonic Society was formed in London.

In 1848, James W. Marshall discovered a gold nugget at Sutter's Mill in northern California, a discovery that led to the gold rush of '49.

In 1908, the Boy Scouts movement began in England under the aegis of Robert Baden-Powell.

In 1942, the Roberts Commission placed much of the blame for America's lack of preparedness for Imperial Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor on Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel and Lt. Gen. Walter C. Short, the Navy and Army commanders.

In 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill concluded a wartime conference in Casablanca, Morocco.

In 1961, a U.S. Air Force B-52 crashed near Goldsboro, N.C., dropping its payload of two nuclear bombs, neither of which went off; three crew members were killed.

In 1963, a U.S. Air Force B-52 on a training mission crashed into Elephant Mountain in Maine after encountering turbulence and losing its vertical stabilizer; seven of the nine crew members were killed.

In 1965, Winston Churchill died in London at age 90.

In 1978, a nuclear-powered Soviet satellite, Cosmos 954, plunged through Earth's atmosphere and disintegrated, scattering radioactive debris over parts of northern Canada.

In 1987, gunmen in Lebanon kidnapped educators Alann Steen, Jesse Turner, Robert Polhill and Mitheleshwar Singh. (All were eventually released.)

In 1989, confessed serial killer Theodore Bundy was executed in Florida's electric chair.

In 1993, retired Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall died in Bethesda, Md., at age 84.

Ten years ago: Connecticut became the first state to take part in the U.S. government's plan to inoculate a half million health care workers against smallpox. (Only four doctors agreed to be vaccinated the first day.)

Five years ago: Congressional leaders announced a deal with the White House on an economic stimulus package that would give most tax filers refunds of $600 to $1,200. French bank Societe Generale announced it had uncovered a 4.9 billion euro ($7.14 billion) fraud by a single futures trader. Italian Premier Romano Prodi resigned after losing a Senate confidence motion.

One year ago: Declaring the American dream under siege, President Barack Obama used his State of the Union address to deliver a populist challenge to shrink the gap between rich and poor, promising to tax the wealthy more and help jobless Americans get work and hang onto their homes. Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney released his 2010 tax returns, showing that his annual income topped $20 million and that he paid about $3 million in federal income taxes.

IF JANUARY 24 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Ambition might be your middle name for a good part of this year. Work to the best of your ability during April and May and you will succeed. Don't begin anything new or make new commitments in late June or early July, as this might entail unforeseen obstacles or you could fall prey to get-rich-quick schemes. The second half of July is the best time to launch new initiatives or ask for favors. As a matter of fact, you might be offered some type of opportunity or job that will work to your advantage. In November, use your street smarts to take advantage of an opportunity to improve your career position or financial status.

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Inspiration is essential to your success. Repeat the personal mantras that keep your spirits up and your demeanor buoyant and optimistic. Your warmth is an asset, but don't overstep the bounds of propriety.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Learn from mistakes. It isn't logical to repeat the same steps and expect to have different results. Spur-of-the-moment financial decisions require excellent judgment and support from others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A penny saved is a penny earned. An effort to be friendly may inadvertently empty your pockets. Make sure bills are paid before you perform acts of generosity. You can't afford to spend money haphazardly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): People count on you to do your bit. Sometimes when you have too many responsibilities, it is tempting to evade them. Plan your day so that you don't let down someone who is relying upon you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Go waltzing, Matilda, even without a kangaroo. Fancy footwork will keep you on top of a hostile situation until aggravations subside. Call a friend, business contact or neighbor to get an answer immediately.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Get some feathers for your cap. Innovative ideas may impress admirers at the workplace. Your ability to communicate makes you a winner in any occupation, so don't be afraid to pick up the phone.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The horn of plenty might temporarily appear empty. It may be necessary to get out in the fields and bend your back to pick new fruits to replenish it. Tighten the purse strings and become resourceful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Snap decisions could be necessary, but don't snap at the hand that feeds you. To fix problems, you may need to use tough business tactics. Don't procrastinate about making a generous gesture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You can't rest on your laurels, as you may hit a thorn. Banish laziness and be firm about fulfilling obligations. Clip coupons and look for bargains. Don't take on more financial obligations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Find a happy medium. Good common sense makes you look like a star. Being hypercritical and controlling makes other people uncomfortable. You can rely on having support from your allies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Frowns are smiles turned upside down. Your upbeat ideas of how to have a good time or casual methods of dealing with coworkers or the boss could boomerang. Expect unexpected reactions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Shoot your arrows straight at the target. Make progress with a personal goal while still following the directives of others. Give the boss, clients or friends their due while maintaining your dignity.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

T.F. Boys Beat Jerome

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls boys basketball team used a furious 26-6 run in the final 12 minutes of the first half against Jerome, led by Damon Jones and Kade Meyerhoeffer, to cruise to a 60-27 victory.

It had the look of a close game early.

The Tigers showed the same defensive intensity that helped them stay competitive against the Bruins in Jerome earlier this season. They largely shut down Connor and Alec Meyerhoeffer, holding the twins to 10 points on three of 11 shooting, funneling them into the teeth of their zone defense.

But in what might have been the Bruins' most impressive display of interior force all year, power forward/center Jones showed what he can do. At his ambidextrous best, Jones turned multiple wayward possessions into points, using his teammates' errant shots — not their passes — to his advantage. The natural lefty was a step ahead of his defender, timing his forays to the rim so he'd snare the ball as it came off the rim. What he did with those four offensive rebounds was pure talent, deftly pushing shots, blindly, off just the right angle on the backboard. The conversions were a result of touch, coordination,

Spirited Fans: Canyon Ridge Riverhawks' Crimson Crowd

BY DREW NASH

TWIN FALLS • Being a superfan means going hard — every game.

After winning the Cowbell two years running, there's little doubting the spirit of the Canyon Ridge High School faithful.

Every year, Canyon Ridge and Twin Falls high schools compete for the annual spirit award, a cowbell, which is given out during the Service Bowl halftime show. Anonymous judges keep watch over how the fans, parents and faculty respond to community service and school spirit efforts leading up to the big crosstown rivalry game, according to Riverhawk athletic director Kim Wray.

"The school with the most spirit is awarded the bell, and it gives the students a reason to dress up," senior Jake Packham said.

During the last competition, the Riverhawks made spirit packs consisting of T-shirts, beaded necklaces, eye black, and foam hammers to be used at the games.

Established in 2009, Canyon Ridge's fledgling traditions are beginning to take shape.

"The student body supports each other," Wray said. "The fan spirit is at a very high level at all of Canyon Ridge's events, not just the games." And, she said, she believes the students are doing more of the spearheading when it comes to creating school spirit.

When Packham was a freshman, "It was pretty mellow. They (the student section) would wear

"Ever since we started dressing up in themes for every game, we've gotten better participation," senior Brinley Miller said.

Idaway Kids Steal Show at Wrestling Tri-match

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • Spencer Ferguson of Gooding and Zade Slotten of Canyon Ridge were locked in a tight match, but spectators in the Minico High School gym couldn't keep their eyes off a pair of plucky 9-year-olds.

While Gooding, Canyon Ridge and Minico dualed one another Wednesday evening, the adjacent mat featured 12 exhibition matches by kids, kindergarten through sixth grade, who participate in Idaway wrestling.

The youngsters from Gooding and Minico, who will someday grow into the next generation of varsity athletes, thrived in the big-time atmosphere and stole the show.

"The kids are just ecstatic," said Minico coach Justin Gardner. "They don't fully understand it yet, but once they are wrestling beside the varsity and they get to see that up-close and personal, I think it really changes their mindset."

Similar ideas have popped up before — like having a youth recreation league basketball game during halftime of a high school varsity game — but to have the matches running side-by-side added excitement for wrestlers and fans, according to Idaway president Rick Stimpson.

"The main reason we want to put these duals together is to bring more people into the gym. With the little kids, they don't get to see that until they get to high school," Stimpson

Super Bowl or Super Brrr?

Big Game Coming to NY

NEW YORK • Amy Freeze can talk football and forecasts.

So with the Super Bowl coming to New York next year, and with local temperatures stuck in the teens, the WABC-TV meteorologist was all set to look ahead.

“Football fans like a little winter weather,” she offered on a windy Wednesday.

OK, but exactly how wintry?

Try this long-range reckoning for the matchup at MetLife Stadium, from the soon-to-be printed Farmers’ Almanac: “An intense storm, heavy rain, snow and strong winds. This could seriously impact Super Bowl XLVIII.”

Predicts editor Pete Geiger: “This is going to be one for the ages.”

“Hey, it goes with the territory,” he said by phone from Lewiston, Maine.

Way too early to say for sure what awaits fans and players in the first outdoor Super Bowl at a cold-weather site. It’ll be held Feb. 2, 2014, at the building shared by the Giants and Jets in East Rutherford, N.J.

The record low for a Super Bowl kickoff is 39 degrees when Dallas beat Miami in January 1972 at Tulane Stadium in New Orleans. It will be a lot warmer back in the Big Easy when the Baltimore Ravens and San Francisco 49ers tangle in less than two weeks. They’ll be inside the Superdome.

The NFL was aware next year’s Super Bowl could be a super brrr.

“Creating a plan for staging a Super Bowl in winter weather is not reinventing the wheel,” NFL senior vice president for events Frank Supovitz said two years ago. “Super Bowls have often been played in cities that can experience winter storms, including Detroit, Minneapolis ...”

“Coordinated snow and ice removal plans for travel routes, major event facilities, the stadium campus, and parking have always been part of our planning protocol,” he said then.

Remember, no city is immune to rugged weather. Even though Green Bay and Pittsburgh played inside Cowboys Stadium two years, snow and ice blanketed the lead-up events.

Besides, a blizzard isn’t likely. The National Weather Service said the average high in nearby Newark, N.J., on Feb. 2 is 39.8 degrees and the low is 24.2. The average precipitation on that date going back to 1931 is about one-eighth of an inch.

The only significant precipitation during a Super Bowl came in February 2007 at Miami. Playing in a rain-storm, Indianapolis and Chicago committed four turnovers in the first quarter.

Expect ticket sales to be brisk next year, StubHub spokesman Glenn Lehrman said. Ticket prices are running about $3,100 for the Ravens-49ers game, and Lehrman predicted the 2014 Super Bowl would create the largest demand “we’ve ever had.”

“I think people want to be part of a first-time experience. Whatever it is,” he said.

Lehrman said because so many people live on the East Coast — within driving distance of the stadium, not needing pricey hotel rooms — cold weather wouldn’t have a chilling effect.

It certainly had an effect in New York on Wednesday. The radio hosts on WFAN began their noontime show talking about the weather; at De Witt Clinton Park in Manhattan, the artificial turf fields often occupied by pickup football games were empty.

But for a chance to see a Super Bowl, fans might sit for a few hours in a raw setting.

Frank Gore Fined $10,500 for Socks Violation

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) • Frank Gore will pay closer attention to his socks for the Super Bowl.

The San Francisco 49ers running back was fined $10,500 by the NFL on Wednesday after he wore his socks too low in Sunday’s NFC championship game at Atlanta, a uniform violation. It marked the second time he was fined this season.

“Yeah, I’ll be cool. It’s all good,” Gore said Wednesday. “I was wrong. Next time I’ll do better.”

Gore says he was so focused on winning the game and getting the 49ers back to a Super Bowl at last that he didn’t give his uniform all the attention he should have.

“When you’re playing, you don’t think about it,” Gore said. “You’re trying to win.”
