YOUTH OF THE YEAR

A Canyon Ridge High School student says a visit to the Boys & Girls Club changed her life.

TWIN FALLS • When her high school career began, Merissa Garcia was already thinking about quitting.

“Education wasn’t a big thing in my life,” she said.

As a freshman at Canyon Ridge High School, Garcia said she considered dropping out and just didn’t care.

Then Garcia accompanied a friend to an evening of the Boys & Girls Clubs of Magic Valley’s Elev8 program for teens.

Motivated and inspired, she became more involved with the club. Now, she will represent the Magic Valley and compete against other Boys & Girls Club members from across the state to be named Idaho State Youth of the Year.

Garcia was chosen by a panel of judges for the award last week.

“Merissa’s been somebody who’s been on our radar through the past couple years,” said Stephanie Hudson, co-director of resource development at the Magic Valley chapter of the club. “She just exuded a lot of the qualities Youth of the Year portray.”

Garcia’s visits to the club eventually led her to apply to be a volunteer junior staff member. Soon, she started working with other club members. The work paid off in the rest of her life: Having more responsibilities helped her begin to straighten herself out, she said.

“They made me think I can do it, and not be a ‘D’ student forever,” she said.

In her newfound leadership role, Garcia said she was inspired to do better in school and also help other students change for the better.

Currently, she works as an aide for the club’s art program, a paid staff position.

“She helps facilitate art projects and acts in a mentoring role,” Hudson said. “It seems to be a really great fit.”

She’s pursuing art of her own at the same time, acting in Canyon Ridge High School’s production of “Wit” — a one-act play that opens Wednesday.

At the end of February, Garcia will head to Boise to compete against members of other Idaho Boys & Girls Club chapters for the state title and a $1,000 scholarship.

For her speech in Boise, Garcia said she’s practicing to be less nervous and more animated while she speaks.

The state winner will compete for the same title in the Pacific Northwest, which comes with a

Six School Districts Plan March Levies

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Six area school districts plan to go to voters in March to seek funding help.

It’s a common scenario around the state and a continuing trend. In south-central Idaho, voters in most school districts have been asked to weigh levy issues in the past couple of years.

“Everyone is in the same situation: more expenses, less money,” Hansen Superintendent Susan Scherz said.

The Twin Falls, Jerome, Cassia County, Gooding, Hansen and Camas County school districts will each have a ballot measure during the March 12 election.

Twin Falls

The Twin Falls School District will go to voters with a supplemental levy renewal measure for $9 million over two years.

It’s an increase from the $7.5 million voters approved in spring 2011.

So what would be the impact on Twin Falls homeowners? Those with a taxable home value of $100,000 would pay an extra $2.24 per month.

Ray Parrish, a member of the school district’s budget advisory committee, said during a December school board meeting that a $9 million levy wouldn’t cover all of the district’s needs, “but it will maintain where we’re at right now.”

The district’s carryover funds continue to shrink. There was $3.2 million in June 2009, but that’s estimated to drop to less than $1 million by June.

At the same time, student enrollment has gone up steadily over the past decade. There are about 350 more students just this year.

If voters reject the supplemental levy, it would mean a possible combination of cuts — such as more furlough days, larger class sizes, and

The following school districts will have levy issues on the March 12 ballot:

Twin Falls: Two-year, $4.5 million annual supplemental levy.

Jerome: Two-year, $850,000 annual supplemental levy.

Cassia County: 10-year plant facilities levy, totaling nearly $23 million. The lifespan of the levy would be from 2014-2023.

Gooding: Two-year, $510,000 annual supplemental levy.

Hansen: Two-year, $190,000 annual supplemental levy.

Camas County: Two-year, $250,000 annual supplemental levy.

5 Things to Look for in Idaho’s Insurance Exchange

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter’s office will introduce legislation today to set up a state-based health insurance exchange through the Affordable Care Act.

In December, Otter announced approval of the insurance exchange, pending the approval in turn from the Legislature. During his Jan. 7 State of the State address, Otter said he would soon introduce legislation to set up the exchange.

That day has come, with a bill revealed during today’s Senate Commerce and Human Resources Committee meeting. Here are five things to watch for in Otter’s bill:

Will it adhere to federal guidelines? A piece of legislation drafted last year — a bill that was never introduced — set up the bare bones for the online marketplace. Bill author Rep. Fred Wood, R-Burley, admitted the bill didn’t meet all of the federal rules, but hoped a basic exchange would satisfy both the Idaho Legislature and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. The governor’s bill could take the same approach, or may follow the federal guidelines more closely.

Who will be able to buy insurance through the exchange? Some state exchanges allow businesses with 50 employees or more to shop the exchange, while others require 100 employees or more. So far, there’s no indication of what the governor will propose.

What are the parameters for insurance companies to participate? By setting up its own exchange, Idaho has more control over the requirements for insurance plans offered through the marketplace.

Who will govern the exchange? States can also decide who governs the exchange’s board — and who makes those appointments. Some states split appointments between the governor and legislature or attorney general. Others, like Hawaii, take a different approach, leaving all appointments up to the governor.

Also to be determined: The number of people who serve on the board. Currently, states who have set up their own exchanges have boards ranging from five to 15 members.

How will the Senate committee and the rest of the Legislature react? Today’s meeting is a print hearing, meaning sponsors are merely introducing the bill and the committee won’t take public testimony. But if the bill passes the print hearing, the Commerce and Human Resources Committee will hold a full hearing, complete with public input, before voting. If it clears the committee, the bill has to pass both the House and Senate. Either body can add amendments to the bill. Individual lawmakers have already expressed concern with the idea of the state voluntarily participating in Obamacare, so the state-based exchange isn’t a guarantee.

IF YOU DO ONE THING TODAY ...

Participate in a Zumbathon: The event goes from 7-8:30 p.m. at Kimberly’s L.A. Thomas Gymnasium on Main Street, to benefit the Kimberly High School band and choir. $10 at the door. 423-5486.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

US Stocks Close Mixed on Uneven Economic Signals

NEW YORK • U.S. stocks meandered between small gains and losses Monday, cooling off after a rally that had pushed the Standard & Poor's 500 index above 1,500 for the first time since December 2007. Encouraging news about manufacturing provided an early boost, but stocks fell later after a report on the pace of home sales fell short of expectations.

The government said before trading began that orders for long-lasting goods rose in December by 4.6 percent, helped by a 10 percent gain in orders for new aircraft. The report was a sign of strength for the manufacturing sector, a crucial driver of economic growth.

Firearms Town Hall Canceled

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A Feb. 5 town hall meeting on gun violence has been canceled after one organizer had a scheduling conflict. The Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office and LMS

Defense, a defensive training firm based in Twin Falls, announced plans earlier this month for the town hall in the wake of the Newtown, Conn., school shooting. A scheduling conflict for LMS Defense, however, forced the cancellation of the

Feb. 5 event, according to a release from the sheriff's office. That doesn't mean the meeting won't eventually happen. The topic is important, the release stated, and a community meeting is still planned.

Man Sentenced on Drug Charges

POCATELLO • Jose Tapia-Lopez, 29, formerly of Heyburn, was sentenced Monday in U.S. District Court to 168 months in prison on drug charges.

Tapia-Lopez, a Mexican national, pleaded guilty in November 2012 to possession with intent to distribute 50 grams or more of methamphetamine, according to a press release issued by the U.S. Department of Justice.

Chief U.S. Judge B. Lynn Winnmill ordered Tapia-Lopez to serve five years of supervised release.

According to the news release, on April 11, 2012, Tapia-Lopez arranged to distribute half a pound of methamphetamine to an individual in Twin Falls. While on his way to the meeting, police officers attempted to stop his vehicle. Tapia-Lopez tried to elude the officers and threw the methamphetamine from the car's window. The officers recovered the substance, and forensic analysis determined there was in excess of fifty grams of methamphetamine.

On Nov. 5, 2012 Tapia-Lopez's co-defendant, Eulalio Loya, 56, of Rupert, pleaded guilty to possession with intent to distribute 50 grams or more of methamphetamine, the release says.

According to the February 2012 plea agreement, Loya arranged to distribute a quarter pound of methamphetamine in Fort Hall and subsequently met and sold an individual methamphetamine in an amount in excess of 50 grams. Loya is scheduled to be sentenced Feb. 11 at the federal courthouse in Pocatello. He faces a minimum sentence of 10 years up to life in prison. He faces a maximum fine of $10 million and at least five years of supervised release.

The case was investigated by the Drug Enforcement Administration and the Idaho State Police with assistance by the Minidoka County and the Cassia County Sheriff's offices.

Curious Mind

The Hub City of Magic Valley

Why is Wendell the "Hub City?"

Wendell has been the "Hub City" of Magic Valley since the town plat was dedicated to Lincoln County in 1908. It was surveyed in July 1907, and people began arriving by August 1907. The town was not incorporated until 1909," said Hub City News Editor Jan Gooding.

The Hub City was a central point where traffic routes were directed.

"This fruit and farm land is all tributary to the towns of Gooding, Wendell, Jerome, and Hillsdale, which will shortly be connected by electric railway," quoted by the Twin Falls Weekly News on Fri., Dec. 25, 1908. "They have the advantages of electric light and power, railway facilities and the secure backing of a large and productive area of irrigated horticultural and agricultural land."

Hillsdale was located 2.2 miles southwest of Eden. The site was eliminated with the construction of Interstate 84. According to Janene Johnson Buckway's book "Wendell, Hub City of Magic Valley: 75 years, 1909-1984," Fred R. Reed first coined the term "Hub City" in describing his home base.

Reed and the city of Wendell had a lifelong and mutual appreciation pact. He was often the featured speaker on Memorial Day and Fourth of July programs. Reed called Wendell, "The most promising town in Southern Idaho," and in late 1908 said, "The town continues to grow like all things growable in Idaho soil."

"Gooding County, Idaho," by the Gooding County History Book Committee, said, "Mayor Fred R. Reed made his home in Wendell, first in a tent and then in a bungalow he built on Avenue B. He dreamed great things for his new town and was the first to give it the nickname of 'Hub City.'"

Reed came to Idaho in 1888. He started as a cowboy and rode the range for three years; he then became interested in railroad building and worked as foreman of a Chinese gang building the Northern Pacific Railroad and ended his career as assistant manager of construction.

In 1915, Reed was the commissioner of Immigration, Labor and Statistics, and the Executive Commissioner for Idaho to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition held in San Francisco, Calif. He aided in the upbuilding of Idaho with his irrigation enterprises and brought over 1,500 families into this state.

Another Week, Another Winter Storm

Another winter storm moves through Idaho today. Snow showers will continue this morning, with winds increasing and gusting to or even over 50 mph as we go into the late morning and through the afternoon and evening. This is going to make for messy travel all across southern Idaho, especially on U.S. Highway 93 between Twin Falls and Jackpot as near-blizzard conditions will be likely. There are numerous winter storm warnings and advisories all over southern Idaho.

Snow amounts across southern Idaho will vary greatly depending on where you live. For those in Jerome to Shoshone and up to Fairfield, you may only get a coating to maybe an inch of snow thanks to a phenomenon called "shadowing." Shadowing occurs as air goes down a mountain and dries out, creating a void or hole in the precipitation just downwind from the mountains. With this system the main winds driving this storm are out of the northwest.

The city of Twin Falls could see snow amounts range from an inch to three inches. In the South Hills and Albion Mountains, amounts could range from five inches to over a foot in some of the highest elevations. With winds at 20-30 mph and gusting to over 50 mph, blowing and drifting snow is the main concern with this storm.

BOISE • A Buhl man pleaded guilty Monday in U.S. District Court to one count of bankruptcy fraud-asset concealment, U.S. Attorney Wendy J. Olson announced Monday afternoon.

Brandon Craner, 32, was indicted by a federal grand jury on May 8, 2012.

According to the plea agreement, on March 24, 2009, Craner filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy. Simultaneously with the bankruptcy petition, Craner filed a schedule of assets.

According to the plea agreement, Craner admitted that between March 24 and May 4, 2009, he knowingly and fraudulently concealed from creditors and the bankruptcy trustee his interest in a Ranger boat certificate, which was awarded to him on March 14, 2009.

Senate to Debate 4 Teacher Union Bills

BOISE (AP) • A Senate committee has agreed to debate a series of bills intended to roll back the power the teacher unions have in brokering multi-year contracts and fighting salary cuts.

The Senate Education Committee voted along party lines Monday to introduce four new bills being pushed by the Idaho School Boards Association.

Some of the details may look familiar to the Students Come First laws that were repealed at the ballot box in November.

One bill would limit all terms and conditions in a teacher contract to one year, while another would require a local union to have support of more than 50 percent of teachers to bargain new contracts.

Another bill would repeal a state law that prevents teacher salaries from being reduced from one year to the next.

CSI Board Approves Tech Building Construction Bid

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho is taking the next step in getting an Applied Technology and Innovation Center project off the ground.

On Monday night, the board of trustees voted unanimously to award a $7.42 million construction bid to Ormond Builders Inc. Mike Mason, CSI's vice president of administration, said the company was the general contractor for past college projects.

Those include the library, an addition to the Eagle Hall dorm and the planetarium.

There were 11 bids for the ATIC project. The new building will bring the college's technical programs under one roof.

The total budget for the project is $8.52 million.

A federal Economic Development Administration grant will cover $4.4 million of the project costs. The rest of the money will come from CSI's plant facilities fund.

A start date hasn't been set, but will likely be within a month or two.

Man in Video Didn't Break Any Idaho Law

BOISE • Idaho State Police Capt. Sheldon Kelley says ISP is not seeking to question an unidentified man whose Jan. 10 appearance on an 11-minute security video alarmed lawmakers and prompted security changes.

A number of comments on the Statesman's Sunday story about tightened Capitol security asked about a law enforcement response.

"We weren't able to identify him because we haven't tried to," Kelley said. "It wasn't a crime at the time. That's part of the reason ... to get those changes instituted."

Kelley said discussions include more limits to public access inside the Capitol, which is not part of controversial rules for the building's exterior and the Capitol Mall, sparked by last year's Occupy Boise encampment.

The man was seen on a security video inspecting documents on representatives' desks, taking photos of documents and desktops with his cell phone and at one point reaching into a waste bin, removing a paper and returning it to the trash. The man was wearing a sidearm.

Senate Confirms Jones' Successor

The Senate unanimously confirmed Gov. Butch Otter's appointment of Brandon Woolf on Monday.

Woolf was appointed to the post in October after elected controller Donna Jones retired to focus on rehabilitating from injuries suffered in an auto accident. Jones is a former Republican lawmaker from Payette who was in her second term as controller.

Idaho's controller is the chief fiscal officer for state government, with duties ranging from keeping all accounting records to paying state bills and employees.

Woolf served as Jones'

chief deputy. He intends to seek election in 2014.

Rep. Hy Kloc, D-Boise, said Armstrong "enhances the image of Idaho as a state with a vibrant and active outdoor culture."

Barnes & Noble Exec Plans More Store Closings

NEW YORK (AP) • Barnes & Noble plans to continue to shrink its store base.

The head of Barnes & Noble's retail group, Mitchel Klipper, said in an interview published Monday in The Wall Street Journal that the company will have 450 to 500 stores in a decade. That's down from about 689 currently.

Klipper said the chain plans to close about 20 stores a year over the period.

The largest traditional U.S. bookstore has been facing tough competition from online retailers and discounters that sell books and has been focusing on its Nook tablet, ebook reader and ebook business for growth.

A spokeswoman for Barnes & Noble said Klipper's remarks don't mark any change in its store closing plan.

"We have historically closed approximately 15 stores per year for the past 10 years," said spokeswoman Mary Ellen Keating. Some closings are due to the fact that stores are unprofitable and others are stores moving to better locations.

Although Barnes & Noble has for the most part stopped opening new stores in the past several years, Keating said New York-based Barnes & Noble opened two new prototype stores in 2012 and plans to test other prototypes in 2013.

"The company's management is fully committed to the retail concept for the long term," Keating said.

In addition to its traditional bookstores, Barnes & Noble operates 674 college bookstores.

Tax Commission Redoubles Effort to Safeguard Taxpayers

TIMES-NEWS

BOISE • As part of its ongoing efforts to safeguard taxpayer information, the Idaho State Tax Commission has changed all preprinted tax returns and payment vouchers it mails that have a scan line (line of numbers) printed at the bottom of the forms.

Effective Jan. 1, all Social Security numbers and federal Employer Identification Numbers were replaced in the scan lines with a unique Tax Commission account number. Without affecting the accounts, the change ensures that SSNs or EINs aren't visible on returns or payment vouchers that are mailed from Tax Commission offices.

The scan line updates include all tax types and business correspondence.

Information: Tax Commission toll free at 800-972-7660 or 208-334-7660.

Tax Data for Unemployment Claimants Available Online

TIMES-NEWS

BOISE • Unemployment insurance claimants who need the federal 1099-G tax information forms to complete their 2012 tax returns can now download the forms.

Forms, available at labor.idaho.gov/iw, will be mailed by Jan. 31 to the current addresses on file for nearly 80,000 Idaho workers who received unemployment insurance benefits in 2012.

The Idaho Department of Labor processed $298.8 million in state and federal unemployment benefits during 2012 — less than half the totals processed at the height of the recession in 2009 and 2010.

Telephone calls to the department have intensified since the year began and are creating significant delays with reaching a consultant or claims specialist, according to a news release. On Jan. 22, the call volume was so heavy that it overloaded the department's telephone circuits, making it difficult for anyone to get through.

Customers and claimants are asked to be patient in attempting to reach the department and to use the Labor website, labor.idaho.gov, if possible, as an alternative to the telephone.

Twin Falls city amends code for businesses to purchase temporary permits for outside merchandise displays.

BY ANDREW WEEKS

aweeks@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Businesses that want to promote sales in their parking lots from time to time have been granted their wish.

The city of Twin Falls recently approved an amendment to its code, allowing businesses to secure a permit for temporary display of merchandise in their parking lots or several feet away from their buildings.

Previously, for aesthetic purposes, businesses could only display merchandise outside if it was up against their building, fenced or covered by a tent, said Mitch Humble, the city's community development director. The amendment allows businesses to now purchase a five-day permit for outside sales away from their stores or without a tent.

"Formerly you couldn't put product out for display in a parking lot without it being screened," Humble said. "It would have been in violation. ... Sometimes we've had to get on people for sticking stuff out there. They usually go away kind of quickly, but we've had a few businesses in town that would like to do that."

The restriction has been in place for aesthetic reasons, he said.

"We've been told that people don't want to drive down Blue Lakes and have it look like a garage sale," he said.

Last year, Humble said, the city had to visit a local business that was out of compliance with the code. Neighboring businesses complained about the way the business' presentation looked, but the owners said such sales help business by attracting customers who might not visit inside the store.

"Some of those folks said having products out like that helps them make a living," he said. "The City Council will go ahead and work on an amendment to allow some type of parking lot sales for businesses."

An example, Humble said: Lowe's could purchase a permit to set lawnmowers by the street so potential customers could better see the sale.

Various provisions are drafted into the amendment regarding the length of each promotional sale, areas where merchandise cannot be displayed, and the number of sales each business can have per calendar year and quarter based on lots or parcels, both shared or individually owned.

The permits are for private property owners, Humble said, not for merchandise to be set on public space such as sidewalks. Allowances have been made for some events such as annual downtown music events, he said.

Businesses must submit requests to the Planning Department not less than two weeks before their proposed event. Those are subject to review based on compliance with city code standards, according to information from the city.

Humble said the city hasn't received a lot of requests for the permits, but that likely is because of the weather.

"We know there are a handful of businesses that have some interest in this," he said. "But I honestly don't see us having a rush of permits. I think there'll be a few once the weather warms up."

Report: States Force Jobless to Pay Needless Fees

BY DANIEL WAGNER

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Jobless Americans are paying millions in unnecessary fees to collect unemployment benefits because of state policies encouraging them to get the money through bank-issued payment cards, according to a new report from a consumer group.

People are using the fee-heavy cards instead of getting their payments deposited directly to their bank accounts. That's because states issue bank cards automatically, require complicated paperwork or phone calls to set up direct deposit and fail to explain the card fees, according to a report issued Tuesday by the National Consumer Law Center, a nonprofit group that seeks to protect low-income Americans from unfair financial-services products. An early copy of the report was obtained by The Associated Press.

Until the past decade, states distributed unemployment compensation by mailing out paper checks. Some also allowed direct deposit. The system worked well for people who had bank accounts and could deposit the check without paying a fee.

It also cost states millions of dollars each year to print and mail the checks.

Banks including JPMorgan Chase & Co., U.S. Bancorp and Bank of America Corp. seized on government payments as a business opportunity. They pitched card programs to states as a win-win: States would save millions in overhead costs because the cards would be issued for free. And people without bank accounts would avoid the big fees charged by storefront check cashers.

However, most of the people being hit with fees already have bank accounts. The bank-state partnerships effectively shifted the cost of distributing payments from governments to individuals. The money needed to cover those costs is deducted from people's unemployment benefits in the form of fees.

Consumer advocates like NCLC are focused on ensuring access to the direct-deposit option so that people can avoid the card fees.

The trouble, the new report says, is that many states make it difficult for people to sign up for direct deposit. The rate of people using direct deposit ranges from a national high of 82 percent in Minnesota to a low of 16 percent in Arizona, the report says.

Minnesota offers direct deposit to people when they apply for benefits, and allows them to change their payment method online or over the phone, the report says.

In Arizona, by contrast, people are automatically enrolled in the card program. After they receive the card, they must find a paper form, fill it out, and submit it by mail. There is no way to change payment methods online or over the phone.

"The difference in direct-deposit rates among states seems primarily due to how hard or easy the state makes it for workers to choose direct deposit," the report says.

In five states — California, Indiana, Kansas, Maryland and Nevada — unemployed people aren't offered direct deposit at all. The report says that setup is illegal under a federal law that bars states from requiring benefits recipients to open an account at a particular bank.

Edwards, Kerbs Retire from Hospital

RUPERT • Ruth Edwards and Juanita Kerbs left Minidoka Memorial Hospital to enjoy retirement years with friends and family doing what has been put off for so long.

Edwards retired Nov. 16 after serving the Mini-Cassia community for 29 years. She completed her years at Minidoka Memorial Hospital in the occupational health department working with local companies like McCain's and Amalgamated Sugar with new hire physicals and drug screening. She enjoyed the connection and excitement of new hires and helping others with work-related injuries. She was one of those employees that did not seek the limelight but fulfilled her responsibilities with dedication and professionalism. She will be missed by many beyond the walls of Minidoka Memorial Hospital.

Juanita Kerbs retired twice. After years as the business office manager, she was unable to leave her friends and responsibilities and simply moved her office down the hall to become the billing agent for Countryside Care and Rehabilitation Center, helping families navigate the minefield of funding sources for their long-term needs. She took great pride and satisfaction in helping others with seemingly insurmountable challenges in admitting and caring for their loved ones. She served Minidoka Memorial Hospital and the Mini-Cassia community for more than 23 years.

Good luck to both of these fine examples of selfless love for those that live in the Mini-Cassia community.

Donna Mae Anglesey Andersen

Sept. 16, 1924-Jan. 25, 2013

RUPERT • Donna Mae Anglesey Andersen, age 88, of Rupert, Idaho, passed from this life Friday, Jan. 25, 2013, while her dear husband held her hand at Valley Vista Assisted Living. She had a long, courageous struggle with Alzheimer's.

Donna was born Sept. 16, 1924, in LaBelle, Idaho, to Walter James and Alice Luel-la (Hall) Anglesey. She married Calvin L. Andersen on June 6, 1944, in the Salt Lake Temple. Just five weeks later, he was shipped overseas to fight in World War II for 2½ years. When Calvin returned, they farmed in Rigby, Idaho. In June of 1955, they drew a homestead on the north side near Rupert, Idaho. They lived there 55 years until they moved to Valley Vista Assisted Living in 2011 to facilitate her care.

As a teenager, Donna worked as a telephone operator. During the war, she worked at Aircraft X-ray in California and later at Rogers Brothers seed house in Rigby, Idaho. As children came along, she was a full-time homemaker and mother. She worked beside her husband as they farmed, particularly on the homestead. She helped wherever extra hands were needed, especially in the spring, and driving truck in the harvest.

Donna was a faithful member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. She held many teaching positions and also served as Primary president and as counselor in Young Women and Relief Society. She served in Cub Scouts, Blazers, nursery, library and as Relief Society president. Donna and Calvin served for several years as temple workers in the Logan Temple.

She loved to go swimming. Donna loved to cook and learned how at a young age. She made delicious bread and pies and was expert at "good old home-style cooking," making everything from scratch. She loved to crochet and embroider. Seldom were her hands idle. She loved to read and always had a book close by. She read countless books aloud to her own children and the grandchildren that followed. Donna loved to sing. She would often start singing a song whenever the lyrics fit a particular situation. She had an amazing ability to comfort babies. Hours were spent rocking them and singing a long list of songs she had memorized. She loved to attend games, concerts and other events that her children and grandchildren participated in.

In their later years, Donna and Calvin traveled to Europe, Mexico, Hawaii and the Caribbean. They went on several trips across the United States, enjoying the sights and building new friendships. She would say, "It was a lovely trip but there is no place like home."

Donna is survived by her eternal companion, Calvin; their eight children, Theron (Kay Dawn) Andersen, Vicki (Arnold) Hansen, Dwight (Rita) Andersen, Wade (Jerry) Andersen and Lance (Elizabeth) Andersen, all of Rupert; Wayne (Ronda) Andersen and Roxie Kin-cade of Burley, and Thayne (Rebecca) Andersen of Bluffdale, Utah; 48 grandchildren; 80 great-grandchildren; five great-great-grandchildren; a brother, David Anglesey; and a sister, Marva Murdoch. She was preceded in death by her parents; 10 siblings; and a great-grandson, Tate.

The family would like to thank Valley Vista Assisted Living for the kind care extended to Donna the last two years. They would also like to thank Minidoka Home Health and Hospice for their loving care these last few years and particularly during the final days.

Her funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Wednesday, Jan. 30, at the Rupert LDS Stake Center, 348 E. 18th St. in Rupert, Idaho, with Bishop Rick Larson officiating. A viewing will be held for friends and family from 6 to 8 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 29, and one hour prior to the service Wednesday, both at the Rupert Stake Center. Burial will be in the Rupert Cemetery. Services are under the direction of SereniCare Funeral Home in Draper, Utah, directors Larry and Arvin Hansen.

Debbie was born in Streator, Ill., on Jan. 16, 1957, to Dan and Nila Burash. Her family moved to Saugus, Calif., in 1964. Her smile would light up any room she entered and making friends came naturally to her. She loved the water and any sport that would bring her closer to it. She lived in Providence, R.I., and Phoenix, Ariz., for short periods of time before eventually settling in Idaho. Once here, she developed a love of crafts and baking. She entered many county fairs and became known for her wonderful cinnamon rolls. She spent summers camping, fishing and boating. Her love of animals was apparent, as one could not go to her house without being greeted by anything from a hamster to a fox and most anything in between. Her jobs included resort manager to grocery cashier. Debbie had a heart of gold and would be the first to offer help to anyone in need. She was a wonderful daughter, mother, grandma, sister, aunt and friend to all those who knew her. She will be greatly missed and our lives will have a little less laughter and sparkle. But our hearts will be full of memories and knowing that her spirit will soar with the eagles she so loved.

Debra is lovingly remembered by her four children, Daniel Ray of Boulder City, Nev., Brandy (Phil) Wert of Wendell, Idaho, Richard (Katie) Ray of Henderson, Nev., and Jonathan Stone of Wendell, Idaho; her parents, Dan and Nila Burash of Jerome, Idaho; her sisters, Linda Hays of Santa Clarita, Calif., Diane (Fred) Lawrence of Jerome, Idaho, and Dawn (Kevin) Higley of Jerome, Idaho; seven grandchildren; her beloved dogs, Shaggy, Maggie and Sadie; as well as several nieces, nephews, extended family members and friends.

A memorial service will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 31, at Farnsworth Mortuary, 1343 S. Lincoln in Jerome, Idaho.

She was born Feb. 16, 1940, to Selvestri and Fortunata Baccolad in Paia, Maui, Hawaii. She grew up in Hawaii and, on Jan. 28, 1961, she married the love of her life, Robert L. Jeannie loved Idaho; she enjoyed ceramics, camping with the Good Sam's Club, snowmobiling, Sunday Bingo at the Moose Lodge and was a member of the Ladies Red Hat Society. Jeannie was an incredible wife, aunt, sister and sister-in-law.

IRAN PUTS MONKEY INTO SPACE

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) • A monkey strapped in a pod resembling an infant's car seat rode an Iranian rocket into space and returned safely, officials said Monday in what was described as a step toward Tehran's goal of a manned space flight.

The mission also touched on concerns that advances in Iran's rocket expertise could be channeled into military use for long-range weapons that might one day carry nuclear warheads. Iran says it does not seek atomic weapons.

Launching a live animal into space — as the U.S. and the Soviet Union did more than a half-century ago in the infancy of their programs — may boost a country's stature. But John Logsdon, a space policy professor emeritus at George Washington University, said Iran's achievement should draw no concern.

"A slight monkey on a sub-orbital flight is nothing to get too excited about," he said. "They already had the capability to launch warheads in their region."

U.S. State Department spokeswoman Victoria Nuland said the U.S. had no way to confirm the monkey's voyage, but that it was concerned by the reports because "any space launch vehicle capable of placing an object in orbit is directly relevant to the development of long-range ballistic missiles."

The U.N. Security Council has expressly forbidden Iran from such ballistic missile activity, Nuland added.

In June 2010, the Security Council banned Iran from pursuing "any activity related to ballistic missiles capable of delivering nuclear weapons."

With its ambitious aerospace program, Iran has said it wants to become a technological leader for the Islamic world.

Neglect, Errors to Blame in Brazil Fire

SANTA MARIA, Brazil (AP) • There was no fire alarm. There were no sprinklers or fire escapes. And when a band member tried to put out a fire that had been started by pyrotechnics, the extinguisher didn't work.

All the elements were in place for the tragedy at the Kiss nightclub early Sunday. The result was the world's worst fire of its kind in more than a decade, with 231 people dead and this southern Brazilian college town in shock and mourning.

Funerals began on Monday, as reports continued to emerge about the accumulation of neglect and errors at the packed night spot.

According to state safety codes here, clubs should have one fire extinguisher every 1,500 square feet as well as multiple emergency exits. Limits on the number of people admitted are to be strictly respected. None of that appears to have happened at the Santa Maria nightclub.

"A problem in Brazil is that there is no control of how many people are admitted in a building," said Joao Daniel Nunes, a civil engineer in nearby Porto Alegre. "They never are clearly stated, and nobody controls how many people enter these night clubs."

Santa Maria's mayor, Jose Fortunati, told Radio Gaucha that dozens of night spots were closed last year for failing to meet norms.

"At that time, we had lots of protest from those who frequented them, but I think that today people understand it better and that at times hard stands must be taken so that steps are taken to not put people's lives at risk," Fortunati said.

Scouts Rethink No-gays Policy

NEW YORK (AP) • The Boy Scouts of America may soon give sponsors of troops the authority to decide whether to accept gays as scouts and leaders — a potentially dramatic retreat from an exclusionary nationwide policy that has provoked relentless protests.

Under the change now being discussed, the different religious and civic groups that sponsor Scout units would be able to decide for themselves how to address the issue — either maintaining an exclusion of gays, as is now required of all units, or opening up their membership.

Monday's announcement of the possible change comes after years of protests over the no-gays policy — including petition campaigns that have prompted some corporations to suspend donations to the Boy Scouts.

Under the proposed change, said BSA spokesman Deron Smith, "the Boy Scouts would not, under any circumstances, dictate a position to units, members or parents."

Smith said the change could be announced as early as next week, after BSA's national board concludes a regularly scheduled meeting on Feb. 6. The meeting will be closed to the public.

The BSA, which celebrated its 100th anniversary in 2010, has long excluded both gays and atheists. Smith said a change in the policy toward atheists was not being considered, and that the BSA continued to view "Duty to God" as one of its basic principles.

Protests over the no-gays policy gained momentum in 2000, when the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the BSA's right to exclude gays. Scout units lost sponsorships by public schools and other entities that adhered to nondiscrimination policies, and several local Scout councils made public their displeasure with the policy.

More recently, amid petition campaigns, shipping giant UPS Inc. and drug-manufacturer Merck announced that they were halting donations from their charitable foundations to the Boy Scouts as long as the no-gays policy was in force.

Jennifer Tyrrell hugs her son Cruz Burns, 7, on July 18 outside Boy Scouts national offices in Irving, Texas, after a meeting with representatives of the 102-year-old organization. The Ohio woman was ousted as a den mother because she is a lesbian.

Also, local Scout officials drew widespread criticism in recent months for ousting Jennifer Tyrrell, a lesbian mom, as a den leader of her son's Cub Scout pack in Ohio and for refusing to approve an Eagle Scout application by Ryan Andresen, a California teen who came out as gay last fall.

Tyrrell said she's thrilled for parents and their children who've been excluded from scouting.

Barge Hits Miss. River Bridge, Spills Oil

VICKSBURG, Miss. (AP) • Experts say the stretch of Mississippi River where vessel traffic was halted after a barge hit a railroad bridge on Sunday is one of the most dangerous along the 2,500-mile-long river.

Late Monday, cleanup crews were skimming oily water near Vicksburg, a day after a barge struck a bridge, rupturing a compartment holding 80,000 gallons of oil.

Authorities said that the spill was light and that only a sheen had been spotted. Orange boom was stretched across part of the river downstream from the barge, and small boats patrolled the area as oil was pumped from the ruptured tank into another tank on the same barge.

Officials hope to eventually transfer all the oil to another barge.

Tugs were holding the barge at the bank on the Louisiana side of the river, directly across from Vicksburg's Riverwalk and Lady Luck casinos.

Coast Guard spokesman

The towboat Natures Way Endeavor banks a barge Monday against the western bank of the Mississippi River.

Lt. Ryan Gomez said a tug was pushing two tank barges when the collision occurred about 1:30 a.m. Sunday.

Both barges were damaged, but only one leaked. Authorities declared the bridge safe after an inspection.

Gomez said United States Environmental Services, an oil spill response company, was collecting oily water.

Congress Passes $50.5B Superstorm Sandy Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) • Three months after Superstorm Sandy ravaged coastal areas in much of the Northeast, Congress on Monday sent a $50.5 billion emergency relief measure for storm victims to President Barack Obama for his signature.

"I commend Congress for giving families and businesses the help they deserve, and I will sign this bill into law as soon as it hits my desk," Obama said in a statement late Monday.

Despite opposition from conservatives concerned about adding billions of dollars more to the nation's debt, the Senate cleared the long-delayed bill, 62-36, after House Republicans had stripped it earlier this month of spending unrelated to disasters. All 36 votes against the bill were from Republican senators.

"This is a huge relief," said Sen. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., noting the vote came 91 days after Sandy struck.

The House passed the bill two weeks ago. Lawmakers say the money is urgently needed to start rebuilding homes, businesses, public transportation facilities and other infrastructure damaged by the Oct. 29 storm, one of the worst to strike the Northeast.

Sandy roared up the East Coast and is blamed for more than 130 deaths and tens of billions of dollars in property damage, particularly in New York and New Jersey. The measure is aimed primarily at helping residents and businesses as well as state and local governments rebuild.

The biggest chunk of money is $16 billion for Housing and Urban Development Department community development grants. Of that, about $12.1 billion will be shared among Sandy victims as well as those from other federally declared disasters in 2011-2013.

Revolution Hits the Universities

Lord knows there's a lot of bad news in the world today to get you down, but there is one big thing happening that leaves me incredibly hopeful about the future, and that is the budding revolution in global online higher education. Nothing has more potential to lift more people out of poverty — by providing them an affordable education to get a job or improve in the job they have. Nothing has more potential to unlock a billion more brains to solve the world's biggest problems. And nothing has more potential to enable us to reimagine higher education than the massive open online course, or MOOC, platforms that are being developed by the likes of Stanford and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and companies like Coursera and Udacity.

Last May I wrote about Coursera just after it opened. Two weeks ago, I went back out to Palo Alto to check in on them. When I visited last May, about 300,000 people were taking 38 courses taught by Stanford professors and a few other elite universities. Today, they have 2.4 million students, taking 214 courses from 33 universities.

Anant Agarwal is now president of edX, a nonprofit MOOC that MIT and Harvard are jointly building. Agarwal told me that since May, some 155,000 students from around the world have taken edX's first course. “That is greater than the total number of MIT alumni in its 150-year history,” he said.

Yes, only a small percentage complete all the work, and even they still tend to be from the middle and upper classes of their societies, but I am convinced that within five years these platforms will reach a much broader demographic. Imagine how this might change U.S. foreign aid. For relatively little money, the U.S. could rent space in an Egyptian village, install two dozen computers and high-speed satellite Internet access, hire a local teacher as a facilitator, and invite in any Egyptian who wanted to take online courses with the best professors in the world.

You just have to hear the stories told by the pioneers in this industry to appreciate its revolutionary potential. One of Koller's favorites is about “Daniel,” a 17-year-old with autism who communicates mainly by computer. He took an online modern poetry class from Penn. He and his parents wrote that the combination of rigorous academic curriculum, which requires Daniel to stay on task, and the online learning system that does not strain his social skills, attention deficits or force him to look anyone in the eye, enable him to better manage his autism. Koller shared a letter from Daniel, in which he wrote: “Please tell Coursera and Penn my story. I am a 17-year-old boy emerging from autism. I can't yet sit still in a classroom so your course was my first real course ever. During the course, I had to keep pace with the class, which is unheard-of in special ed. Now I know I can benefit from having to work hard and enjoy being in sync with the world.”

One member of the Coursera team told me that it was so much more interesting than a similar course he had taken as an undergrad. The online course included students from all over the world, from different climates, incomes levels and geographies, and, as a result, “the discussions that happened in that course were so much more valuable and interesting than with people of similar geography and income level” in a typical American college.

Mitch Duneier, a Princeton sociology professor, wrote an essay in The Chronicle of Higher Education in the fall about his experience teaching a class through Coursera: “A few months ago, just as the campus of Princeton University had grown nearly silent after commencement, 40,000 students from 113 countries arrived here via the Internet to take a free course in introductory sociology. ... My opening discussion of C. Wright Mills's classic 1959 book, ‘The Sociological Imagination,’ was a close reading of the text, in which I reviewed a key chapter line by line. I asked students to follow along in their own copies, as I do in the lecture hall. When I give this lecture on the Princeton campus, I usually receive a few penetrating questions. In this case, however, within a few hours of posting the online version, the course forums came alive with hundreds of comments and questions. Several days later there were thousands. ... Within three weeks I had received more feedback on my sociological ideas than I had in a career of teaching, which significantly influenced each of my subsequent lectures and seminars.”

As we look to the future of higher education, said the MIT president, L. Rafael Reif, something that we now call a “degree” will be a concept “connected with bricks and mortar” — and traditional on-campus experiences that will increasingly leverage technology and the Internet to enhance classroom and laboratory work. Alongside that, though, said Reif, many universities will offer online courses to students anywhere in the world, in which they will earn “credentials” — certificates that testify that they have done the work and passed all the exams.

I can see a day soon where you'll create your own college degree by taking the best online courses from the best professors from around the world — some computing from Stanford, some entrepreneurship from Wharton, some ethics from Brandeis, some literature from Edinburgh — paying only the nominal fee for the certificates of completion. It will change teaching, learning and the pathway to employment. “There is a new world unfolding,” said Reif, “and everyone will have to adapt.”

Encourage Renewable Energy

According to case No. IPC-E-12-27, Idaho Power wants to increase charges on residents who have renewable energy installations (i.e., solar power) for their homes.

A monthly service charge increase from $5 to $20.92 and a basic load charge increase of $1.48 per kWh for residents with renewable energy installations is being proposed. And Idaho Power does not want a public hearing to boot on its modified procedure!

These high increases on top of the already high up-front cost to install renewable energy sources will discourage citizens from supporting renewable energy. America needs to encourage, not discourage, renewable energy. Hydro dams have limited life spans and fracked natural gas for power generation is a limited resource.

We need long-term thinking on this issue — not short-term thinking! I am making a strong request to the Public Utilities Commission to deny this rate charge increase.

Early Childhood Education Needs to Be Considered

Idaho's current debate over education reform has covered a variety of topics considered essential for quality education, except early childhood education. Including early childhood education in this dialogue is necessary to give every child equal footing when they start school, improve third-grade reading scores, increase graduation rates and reduce public spending on grade repetition and special education. The early years are a time of remarkable brain growth in children and lay the foundation for subsequent learning, behavior and health.

According to a recent Idaho KIDS Count report, 44 percent of Idaho's children are not academically prepared to enter kindergarten and 37 percent are not academically ready to enter first grade. The gaps that are present as children enter schools will only become more severe with time if we do not provide programs to create equal learning opportunities for all children.

Working together to ensure that young children are prepared to transition smoothly into kindergarten or first grade will drastically reduce many challenges we currently face in our K-12 education system. Early education serves as a critical tool to balance the developmental and educational playing field so that all children, regardless of their backgrounds, enter school healthy and ready to learn.

Reform that incorporates early learning is about making a long-term, not short-term, investment. It is about looking at our current education system from a holistic perspective to find the places where we can improve so Idaho's children enter our educational institutions ready to learn and exit our schools ready to conquer their dreams and ambitions.

By recognizing the powerful impact quality learning experiences and environments have on young children, we will prepare children for learning long before they step through the school doors on their first day of class.

Push to Tilt Elections Will Backfire

Albert R. Hunt

Bloomberg News

current system, by most accounts, has worked well. Three times the Electoral College victor lost the popular vote.

Now, Republican state legislators in as many as a half-dozen states want to change the system and tilt it decidedly in their party's favor. They would do this by scrapping the winner-take-all rule and awarding electors by districts.

Republican legislators, with tacit support from their governors, in Pennsylvania, Michigan and Wisconsin are advocating this. The party's national chairman, Reince Priebus, is keeping a low profile and signaling encouragement.

Two examples: Obama won Pennsylvania by five points and Michigan by nine points, clear cut by any standard. Yet Romney carried 13 of the 18 congressional districts in Pennsylvania and 10 of the 14 in Michigan, and would have won the lion's share of delegates in both states that he lost decisively.

Allotting presidential electors by congressional district would increase the incentives for partisan gerrymandering, already a factor in congressional dysfunction.

There is a longstanding and substantive debate over whether presidents should be decided by the Electoral College or the popular vote. That flared anew when George W. Bush won the presidency 12 years ago even though Al Gore won the popular vote.

Supporters of a change say it would create a genuine national election. Last autumn, Obama and Romney focused almost all their resources and time in eight states, all carried by the president. In a general election, voters in Buffalo, San Diego, Houston or New Orleans only lay eyes on a candidate if they're in town for a quick-hit fundraiser.

Defenders of the Electoral College dismiss this argument, claiming the present system strikes a political balance between states and regions that the Founding Fathers envisioned.

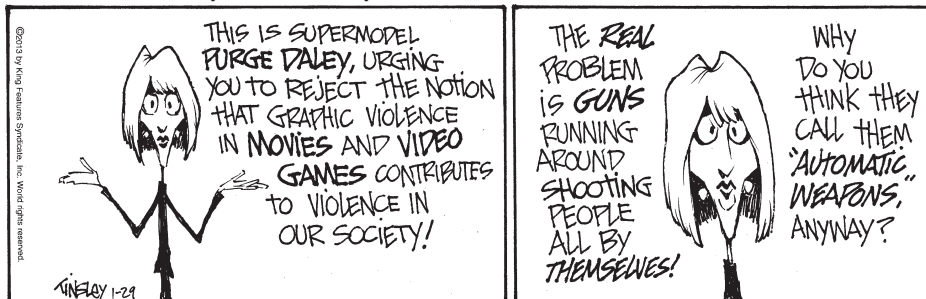

What might stop these attempts at rigging is if smart Republicans realize how manipulative it looks, and that it could come back to bite them; that's the view of the former party chairman and ex-Mississippi governor Haley Barbour. And such a system would dilute the clout of the states that adopt it, which is why Gov. Bob McDonnell of Virginia is opposing any change.

If this sort of political coup had been pulled off earlier, instead of celebrations on the streets of Washington during last week's presidential inauguration, there would have been violent protests.

GOP, Dems Vow Action on Immigration

WASHINGTON (AP) • Side by side, leading Democratic and Republican senators pledged Monday to propel far-reaching immigration legislation through the Senate by summer providing a possible path to citizenship for an estimated 11 million people now in the U.S. illegally.

The senators acknowledged pitfalls that have doomed such efforts in the past, but they suggested that November's elections — with Hispanics voting heavily for President Barack Obama and other Democrats — could make this time different.

Passage of the emotionally charged legislation by the Democratic-controlled Senate is far from assured, and a taller hurdle could come later in the House, which is dominated by conservative Republicans who've shown little interest in immigration overhaul. Obama will lay out his own proposals today, most of which mirror the Senate plans.

Besides the citizenship provision, including new qualifications, the Senate measure would increase border security, allow more temporary workers to stay and crack down on employers who would hire illegal immigrants. The plans are still short on detail, and all the senators conceded that months of tedious and politically treacherous negotiations lie ahead.

But with a re-elected Obama pledging his commitment, the lawmakers argued chances for approval this year are much better.

"Other bipartisan groups of senators have stood in the same spot before, trumpeting similar proposals," said Sen. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y. "But we believe this will be the year Congress finally gets it done. The politics on this issue have been turned upside down," Schumer said, arguing that polls show more support than ever for immigration changes.

MONT. WON'T LIMIT YELLOWSTONE-AREA HUNTS

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) • Montana wildlife officials said Monday they were abandoning their efforts to shut down gray wolf hunting and trapping just outside the gates of Yellowstone National Park, citing a recent court ruling that threatened to drag out the issue until the season was almost over.

Hunting and trapping were briefly suspended last month on about 60 square miles north of Yellowstone over concerns that too many wolves wandering out of the park were dying. That included the shooting of several wolves collared for scientific research and management purposes.

A 130-pound gray wolf watches biologists in 2003 in Yellowstone National Park, Wyo.

But after a judge issued an injunction saying not enough notice was given before the closures were enacted, wildlife officials said they would no longer seek to reinstate the closure. A Tuesday meeting in which commissioners had planned to take action on the issue was canceled.

Fish, Wildlife and Parks Commission Chairman Bob Ream said agency personnel decided it would take several weeks at a minimum to get an order from state District Judge Brenda Gilbert dissolving her injunction. Montana's wolf season ends on Feb. 28.

"To try and lift the order, at most, there would have been a week left in the season, so there wasn't any sense in doing it," Ream said.

Ream added that his concerns over collared wolves being shot or trapped had not gone away, but he said there was unlikely to be harm to the park's overall wolf population even if some of the animals were killed.

Wildlife advocates had pressed the state to give special protections to Yellowstone's wolves, which draw throngs of tourists from all over the world.

Several of the predators that were well-known among wolf watchers were killed in recent months, prompting advocacy groups to lobby state wildlife commissioners to create a no-kill buffer zone east and west of the town of Gardiner.

Wolf killing was prohibited in those areas in early December, although commissioners rejected the idea of making the buffer permanent. A lawsuit from hunting groups blocked the closures just a few weeks after they went into effect.

State lawmakers have since stepped in with a proposal to prohibit commissioners from creating such buffers around either Yellowstone or Glacier National Parks.

Commissioners only would be able to close down hunting and trapping in such areas if a wolf harvest quota that had been previously established was met.

The legislative measure also would let hunters and trappers buy multiple tags and use electronic wolf calls, reduce the price of a non-resident tag from $350 to $50 and eliminate the requirement that hunters wear fluorescent orange.

Parks and Rec Want 10 Percent Budget Increase

BOISE (AP) • The director of the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation is seeking a budget increase of nearly 10 percent for next year and praised a legion of volunteers for helping keep all 30 state parks open last year.

Director Nancy Merrill said the agency, which has had its general fund contribution sliced significantly in recent years, got help from hundreds of people last year who volunteered an estimated 86,000 hours of service to help keep state parks open and operating.

"We are very proud to say we've been able to keep all 30 of our state parks open," Merrill told legislative budget writers Monday during her annual appearance before the committee. "Much of this is due to our great volunteers."

In 2012, overnight occupancy at state parks increased by 2.6 percent and revenue from all funding sources was up by 7.45 percent, Merrill said. The agency's total budget for fiscal 2013 is $32.4 million, with the vast majority of that coming from dedicated funds, entry and camping fees, RV registrations and $5 million in federal funds.

"It has been a cumulative agency effort to do the best with what we have," Merrill said in a Spokesman-Review story.

For next year, however, Merrill is asking for a little extra from the state's general fund. Her 2014 budget request is for $2.8 million, up 9.7 percent from a year ago. In his budget proposal, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter approved $1.35 million, or a 2.7 percent hike. The difference is due largely to a request of $1.4 million in replacement items Otter doesn't support.

Merrill also told lawmakers the agency's sales of park "Passports" are off to a good start. Since October, the agency has sold 18,400 passports, the $10 annual pass for access to all state parks that can be purchased when motorists renew vehicle registrations. The agency is counting on sales of the passes to provide critical revenue in the future.

Construction Project Set to Begin

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • A construction project to widen and rebuild A Street from Ninth Street to north of Rupert Elementary School is set to begin in the next few months after plans are finalized.

City officials have discussed what to do with deteriorating roads since the mid-1990s.

The project is expected to cost $4.3 million. The city was awarded a federal grant that will pay approximately 93 percent of the project.

“This is a very expensive project,” said Kelly Anthon, city administrator. “The real upside to this is that the city was successful in securing a federal grant that will pay for most of it.”

The project required about 60 right-of-way land purchases.

Anthon said the actual project will not encroach onto property as far as some markers have been placed. The project also required some construction easements, which will be temporary.

The federal government was responsible for nego-

“We were pleased that there wasn’t any litigation. It’s hard to turn over something like that to someone else because we wanted to make sure the residents were taken care of.”

tiating the land purchases.

“We were pleased that there wasn’t any litigation,” Anthon said. “It’s hard to turn over something like that to someone else because we wanted to make sure the residents were taken care of.”

Anthon said the city has never been in favor of exercising eminent domain options.

“Because we are using federal money, a lot of the project is outside the city’s control,” Anthon said.

Crews will be standing by to assist construction crews in order to help keep costs down.

A traffic plan that reroutes traffic to H Street will be put in place during construction.

City officials and members of the Local Highway Technical Assistance Council will review the plans on Feb. 14.

Anthon said although the city received the grant award, it had to wait for Congress to appropriate the funding.

“If we would have received the money when the grant was awarded it would have went further,” Anthon said.

The city did an overlay on the road last year, but the base of the road is in disrepair.

“Even with the overlay, it’s just a matter of years before the whole thing crumbles,” Anthon said.

The project will completely rebuild the road, which is a designated farm-to-market road, widening it to two 12-foot lanes, said Alan Brady, head of Rupert’s streets department.

Twelve feet of parking will be added to each side of the road from Ninth Street to 16th Street, and 12 feet of parking will be added on the west side of the road from 16th Street to 18th Street. Curb, gutter and sidewalks will be added to both sides of the road.

Anthon said the replacement of the 12th Street Canal Bridge will wait until there is no water in the canal.

“Construction could begin in May or June if all goes well,” Anthon said. If construction begins in the spring, the bridge will be delayed until October or November.

A second option is to start work on the project in October, with completion of the canal bridge before water is turned into the canal in the spring.

Anthon said the work is expected to be complete within one year.

“One thing I’ve noticed about this current city council is they are very focused on road improvements,” Anthon said.

Probation Renewed for Man in 2010 Assault

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • David J. Prano won another shot at probation Monday after a Cassia County 5th District judge reviewed his progress at the state’s retained-jurisdiction program.

Prano was sentenced in 2010 to up to 15 years in prison for shooting at a vehicle during an alleged robbery in eastern Cassia County. But after one round of the retained-jurisdiction program, he was released on 15 years of supervised probation. In June 2012, he admitted to four probation violations related to the use of drugs and was sent to the retained-jurisdiction program for a second time.

On Monday, Judge Michael Crabtree sentenced Prano to an indeterminate length of time on probation, not to exceed his original probation sentence. He was granted 522 days of credit for time he’s already served in jail.

That followed a recommendation for probation from the Idaho Department of Correction, Crabtree said. “It is my intention to follow that recommendation,” said Crabtree.

Prano told the judge the program was different this time and gave him more “tools and resources” to help him get off drugs.

“Hopefully this will do the trick, sir,” Crabtree said.

Prano’s 2010 conviction was the result of an Alford plea, in which the defendant does not admit guilt but concedes the court has sufficient evidence to convict. He pleaded to charges of felony assault with intent to commit a serious felony and unlawful discharge of a firearm at an occupied vehicle. In turn, prosecutors dropped felony counts of attempted murder, robbery, grand theft and aggravated assault with enhancement charges.

AT THE LEGISLATURE

Fire Expenses Make 1/4 of Lands Budget

BOISE • After a devastating fire year, the Idaho Department of Lands is requesting money to help with fire prevention, suppression and response costs.

Though fires burned 1.75 million acres statewide, only 4,755 of those acres were controlled by the Idaho Department of Lands burned last year, said department Director Tom Schultz. Most of the rest was federal.

Still, those costs added up. The state spent $11.15 million on suppressing those fires, or about $2,346 per acre.

The department asked for monetary help for suppressing and controlling future fires, including $385,500 to extend operating costs and wages for longer fire seasons. In addition, Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter is asking the Legislature to give $400,000 to the department to set up four Rangeland Fire Protection Districts to help fire suppression regionally.

The department’s request for all of fiscal year 2014 totals $46 million. The request includes all areas of operation.

Water Board Posts Clear Committee

BOISE • Two Magic Valley men received the Senate

Resources and Environment Committee’s approval for four-year appointments to the Idaho Water Resource Board.

The committee approved the gubernatorial appointments of Vince Alberdi of Kimberly and former Rep. Bert Stevenson of Rupert. Also approved: Albert P.

Barker of Boise and Roger Chase of Pocatello, and the appointment of Gary Spackman as full director of the Idaho Department of Water Resources.

The appointments now go to the full Senate for consideration.

Gooding

The Gooding School District is seeking renewal of a two-year supplemental levy, but will ask for more money.

The ballot measure will be for a two-year, $510,000 annual levy. That’s up from the $325,000 each year that voters approved in 2011.

Superintendent Heather Williams said state revenue has continued to decline since 2009. Supplemental revenue is needed to cover basic operational costs, she said.

Supplemental levy money goes toward areas such as elective programs at the middle and high school, as well as music and physical education teachers at the elementary school.

“Without a levy, we’re stuck offering a basic program,” Williams said.

The school district has already gone to a four-day school week and has cut back on just about every aspect of operations possible, she said.

Jerome

The Jerome School District is seeking renewal of its supplemental levy. The amount — $650,000 per year — won’t change.

But the district is pursuing a two-year ballot measure instead of returning to voters each year like in the past.

Camas County

The Camas County School District will ask voters for a two-year, $250,000 annual measure.

Superintendent Jim Cobble said last month that it’s a renewal and the amount isn’t changing. He described the ballot measure as a “survival levy” for the school district.

Hansen

The Hansen School District seeks renewal of a $190,000 annual supplemental levy. It’s the same amount as last year.

But the district is planning a two-year measure instead of returning to voters each year.

Scherz said the levy “will be critical for our operations.”

Cassia County

In Cassia County, the school district seeks renewal of a 10-year plant facilities levy. The $23 million — double the previous levy — would be used for school building and maintenance projects.

Superintendent Gaylen Smyer said the impact to taxpayers should be “negligible” and they should actually see a decrease in what they’re paying now, due to the end of another set of bond payments in 2016.

Rupert to Hold Town Meeting

TIMES-NEWS

RUPERT • The city of Rupert will hold a town hall meeting at 7 p.m., Jan. 30, at the Wilson Theater in the upstairs conference room to discuss ideas on renovations for Rupert Square and rebuilding the square’s center fountain.

The Rupert City Council was approached last fall by community members who wanted to raise money for a new interactive fountain on the square. The council decided to hold a town meeting so interested citizens could present ideas for the fountain and other improvements at the city’s central park.

Preliminary drawings have been made featuring the fountain project, which is expected to cost $350,000 to $390,000. Children would be able to play in the fountain, and it could be turned off to accommodate other events. The plaza-style design would feature seating areas and raised planters.

For more information, call city hall at 208-436-9600.

CSI Baseball Team Off to Optimistic Start

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Going 1-3 to start the season isn't supposed to be an encouraging sign.

It's nothing new for the College of Southern Idaho baseball team to venture south in search of warmer conditions to start the season, usually heading home with a sub-.500 record. But this feels like a different 1-3.

The Golden Eagles were in every game from start to finish. They had great pitching, but for an eight-run ninth inning against Yavapai, Ariz., which made a close game seem like a 13-5 laugh. The only other blowout of the four was a 12-2 win over Glendale, Ariz., on Sunday.

"I was encouraged, and I think the group as a whole was encouraged," CSI coach Boomer Walker said from Henderson, Nev., where the team has two off days before starting another tournament. "Leaving the park against Cochise (Ariz., in the season opener), I really thought we felt like we let that one get away. Then we finished the game at 5:17 at Southern Nevada, we jump on the bus, travel 15 minutes to the city field, get out, and we've got a game in another 15 minutes. By the time we got to the end of that, it had been a long couple of days for us with travel and all the scrambling. It was like a regional tournament experience."

Walker saluted the starting pitching quartet of Kyle Olason, Nolan Stouder, Eric Holdren and Ryan Johnson, each of whom gave the team a chance to win in his outing.

Though the run support dried up in the middle two games, the team used it as a learning experience to bring its youthful offensive players along.

"The great thing about it is the guys didn't get the freshman 'when things are going bad, kind of quit' attitude. They kept fighting, and it just didn't go well," Walker said. "... Guys got their eyes opened a little bit to what kind of pitching we're going to be seeing. The things you talk about from Day 1 at practice, now you get to see it first-hand. They probably handled it exactly how we thought they were going to, and this weekend should be better."

CSI remains in Henderson for a stretch of five games in four days. This week will have more of a conference feel, as CSI plays Northeastern, Colo., three times and Pima, Ariz., twice.

That starts with a game against Northeastern on Wednesday.

"It'll be good for our guys to see how they get pitched the second, third time through, because that's how it is in conference. Pitchers are making adjustments and trying to find weaknesses," Walker said. "And the same thing goes for our pitchers going against their hitters that are trying to make the adjustments. It'll be even better because we're playing great programs."

Who Are These Guys at QB in Super Bowl?

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW ORLEANS • No Tom Brady. No Aaron Rodgers. No Ben Roethlisberger. Not a Manning in sight.

Super Bowl has a pair of fresh faces at quarterback, bona fide nobodies as far as the NFL title game goes. One will leave New Orleans as football's newest star.

For Colin Kaepernick and Joe Flacco, this is new territory. And, of course, exactly where they want to be.

"To be AFC champs feels good," Flacco said Monday. "We move on now to this challenge."

Flacco, the only quarterback to win a playoff game in each of his first five NFL seasons, will lead the Baltimore Ravens into Sunday's matchup against the NFC-winning San Francisco 49ers and Kaepernick, a backup for most of his two seasons.

It's the first time in a decade that the big game doesn't feature one of the big five household names in the glamour position.

You can't get much fresher than quarterbacks who never have gotten this far before.

"At the start of the season, I was just hoping to get on the field some way, somehow," said Kaepernick, the backup for Alex Smith, who took the 49ers to the conference final last season.

He got that chance after Smith sustained a concussion on Nov. 11, and hasn't seen the bench since.

Win this one and he'll have a piece of history, joining a heady quarterback club that includes Hall of Famers

Joe Montana and Steve Young, who guided the 49ers to five NFL titles — a victory every time they played. No. 6 would tie the team with Roethlisberger's Pittsburgh Steelers — a record for most Super Bowl wins.

A second-round draft pick in 2011 out of Nevada — not exactly Alabama — Kaepernick has the shortest pro resume of any Super Bowl quarterback. It's impressive, nonetheless. His legs (181 yards rushing against Green Bay, a record for the position) and his arm (105.9 passer rating in the postseason) are the main reasons San Francisco is in its first NFL title game in 18 years.

"Anybody that is out there on the football field, you want to see them produce and get results," left tackle Joe Staley said. "With Colin, his first couple of starts, you did not know what to expect because we had not seen him out there as a starting quarterback. He did amazing and he has all season, as well as the playoffs. I think it was one of those things where we saw him in practice and we just wanted to see how he was going to handle the situation in the games. He has done that."

bodies," he added. "You read some of these stories about college players who undergo some of these same problems with concussions and so forth and then have nothing to fall back on. That's something that I'd like to see the NCAA think about."

Don't expect action from the NCAA anytime soon, but the NFL and its players' union may not have the luxury of time. A quick sampling of comments during media day showed many players still favor the status quo, risks and all.

"That's what we all know coming into the game," 49ers linebacker Aldon Smith said. "We all signed up for it. It's not like we signed up and thought we were going to play tennis, you know?"

His coach, one-time NFL quarterback Jim Harbaugh, took that cavalier attitude a step further, when asked to respond to the president's remarks.

"Well, I have a 4-month-old — almost, soon-to-be 5-month-old — son, Jack Harbaugh, and if President Obama feels that way, then (there will) be a little less competition for Jack Harbaugh when he gets older," Harbaugh chuckled. "That's the first thing that jumps in to my mind, if other parents are thinking that way."

Keep in mind that the NFL's nightmare scenario played out on a football field an hour from Boston into a few months ago. In a Pop Warner game between longtime rivals, five kids between the ages of 10 and 12 were concussed, all on the losing team, three in the first quarter and the last one on the final play. Not everyone is convinced there's enough time to wait for Goodell and the union to sort out the legal battles and work together to advance the safety issue.

"I think it's being taken seriously, but as far as young people starting to play, we need better and smarter instruction than ever before," said former Saints quarterback Archie Manning, who's enlisted his famous sons, Peyton and Eli, to help run his annual quarterbacking camp.

"We've got to bring some attention to bear right away, especially how we teach tackling and the rest of the physical components of the game."

"You only get so many chances and we've let a lot slip past. We can't afford too many more misses," he said finally. "We've got to get it right."

Woods Wins at Torrey Pines for 8th time

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN DIEGO • Tiger Woods was so good for so long at Torrey Pines that it didn't matter how bad it looked at the end.

In a finish that was fitting for such a long and exasperating week, Woods built an eight-shot lead with five holes to play on Monday until he lost patience with the slow play and started losing shots that only determined the margin of victory.

Despite two bogeys and a double bogey in the final hour, he closed with an even-par 72 for a four-shot victory in the Farmers Insurance Open.

"I'm excited the way I played all week," Woods said. "I hit the ball well — pretty much did everything well and built myself a nice little cushion. I had some mistakes at the end, but all my good play before that allowed me to afford those mistakes."

He won for the 75th time in his PGA Tour career, seven behind the record held by Sam Snead.

Woods won this tournament for the seventh time, and he set a PGA Tour record by winning at Torrey Pines for the eighth time, including his 2008 U.S. Open.

Nets Rout Magic 97-77 for 8th Straight Home Win

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Deron Williams had 20 points and nine assists, and the Brooklyn Nets beat the Orlando Magic 97-77 on Monday night for their eighth straight home victory.

The Nets rebounded from their first two-game losing streak under P.J. Carlesimo, finishing off a four-game sweep of the Magic, who dropped their sixth straight.

Brook Lopez scored 16 points and Joe Johnson had 13 for the Nets, who tied a franchise record with their 11th victory in January and can break it when they host the NBA champion Miami Heat on Wednesday. Nikola Vucevic had 18 points and nine rebounds for the Magic, who lost for the 17th time in 19 games. Their last two losses had each been by two points, but they were blown out of this one early.

KINGS 96, WIZARDS 94

WASHINGTON • Isaiah Thomas made a floater with a second to play, capping a see-saw finish as the Sacramento Kings broke a four-game losing streak with a 96-94 win over the Washington Wizards on Monday night.

WARRIORS 114, RAPTORS 102

TORONTO • David Lee had 21 points and 12 rebounds, Stephen Curry scored 17 points before leaving with a

Montero Ready for Challenge of Full-time Catching for Mariners

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEATTLE • Under the heading of "catchers" on the Seattle Mariners' 40-man roster, there is just one name.

That is the challenge being placed before Jesus Montero. Ultimately, he won't have to do it all by himself, but there is no question that Seattle is heading into spring training with the idea that Montero will be its primary catcher. Throw in that Montero is just 23 and headed into his second full season in the majors and the task becomes even more significant.

If there is a major position player concern for the Mariners as they head into spring training in about two weeks, it's their depth behind the plate, where Montero is currently the only sure thing Seattle has. There are a handful of spring training invitees who very well could make the final roster out of spring, and some additional roster moves general manager Jack Zduriencik could make.

But for now, Montero is preparing himself to be Seattle's everyday catcher. Is it a risk to rely so heavily on the youngster? Maybe, especially since he caught only 56 games last season for Seattle. But Montero has a pretty strong understanding of what is going to be asked of him.

"I'm preparing myself to catch every day if I can catch every day," Montero said during the Mariners' annual fan gathering last weekend. "Everybody knows that sometimes I get tired, everybody gets tired. I'm going to try to be behind home plate every single time."

PROFESSIONAL Copy Editor
Times-News/Twin Falls, Idaho
Wanted: One Copy Editor who can whip up graphics and maps, read copy, write headlines and design pages on a universal desk. But you'll need to do more than that. You'll need to create visual stories that can be read in two seconds. You'll need to understand people are attracted to small things, like the closing of a theater curtain, the pause in a musical score, the darkness between the fireflies. You'll need to create a masterpiece.

If you're up for it, we have your canvas. The Times-News is searching for a creative copy editor who can do it all.

The Times-News is a 17,500-circulation daily newspaper (21,500 on Sundays) owned by Lee Enterprises. It offers a competitive salary, medical, dental, vision, and life insurance benefits, vacation, sick, holiday pay and 401K-retirement plan.

To apply, log on to www.magicvalley.com/workhere. Portfolios of all shapes, sizes and sounds can be sent to News Editor Robert Monteith at rmonteith@magicvalley.com. Show us you're a human being, rather than an "applicant," and you'll be on the right track.

We are a drug-free workplace, and all applicants considered for employment must pass a post-offer drug screen prior to commencing employment. EOE

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 29, the 29th day of 2013. There are 336 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Jan. 29, 1963, poet Robert Frost died in Boston at age 88.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1820, Britain's King George III died at Windsor Castle.

In 1843, the 25th president of the United States, William McKinley, was born in Niles, Ohio.

In 1845, Edgar Allan Poe's poem "The Raven" was first published in the New York Evening Mirror.

In 1861, Kansas became the 34th state of the Union.

In 1863, the Bear River Massacre took place as the U.S. Army attacked Shoshone in present-day Idaho. The New York Stock & Exchange Board changed its name to the New York Stock Exchange.

In 1919, the ratification of the 18th Amendment to the Constitution, which launched Prohibition, was certified by Acting Secretary of State Frank L. Polk.

In 1929, The Seeing Eye, a New Jersey-based school which trains guide dogs to assist the blind, was incorporated by Dorothy Harrison Eustis and Morris Frank.

In 1936, the first inductees of baseball's Hall of Fame, including Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth, were named in Coopers-town, N.Y.

In 1958, actors Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward were married in Las Vegas.

In 1963, the first charter members of the Pro Football Hall of Fame were named in Canton, Ohio (they were enshrined when the Hall opened in September 1963).

In 1979, President Jimmy Carter formally welcomed Chinese Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping to the White House, following the establishment of diplomatic relations.

In 1998, a bomb rocked an abortion clinic in Birmingham, Ala., killing security guard Robert Sanderson and critically injuring nurse Emily Lyons. (The bomber, Eric Rudolph, was captured in May 2003 and is serving a life sentence.)

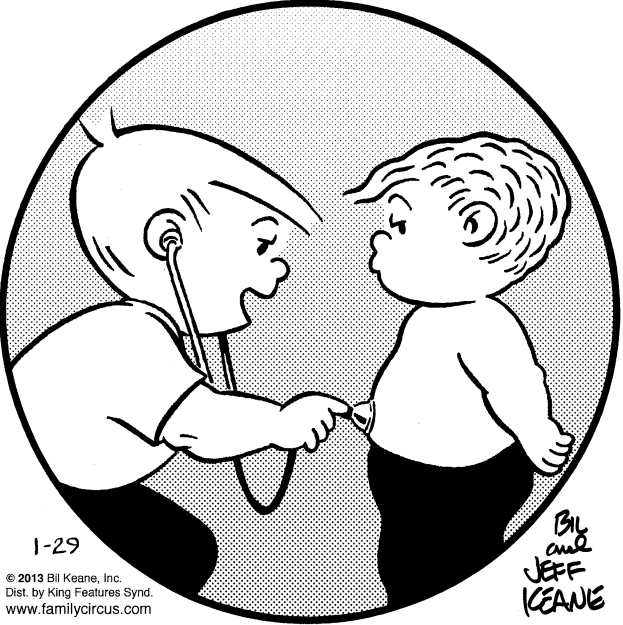

Ten years ago: The Congressional Budget Office predicted the federal deficit for fiscal 2003 would soar to $199 bil-lion even without President George W. Bush's new tax cut plan or a war against Iraq. A dust explosion at the West Pharmaceutical Services plant in Kinston, N.C., killed six people and injured dozens more.

Five years ago: John McCain won a breakthrough triumph in the Florida primary, easing past Mitt Romney for his first-ever triumph in a primary open only to Republicans. Democrat Hillary Rodham Clinton claimed victory in a campaign-free Florida presidential primary in which all the candidates had signed pledges not to compete. (The national Democratic Party had stripped the state of its delegates as punishment for moving its primary ahead of Feb. 5.) Margaret Truman, the only child of President Harry S. Truman, died in Chicago at age 83. Raymond Jacobs, believed to be the last surviving member of the group of Marines photographed during the first U.S. flag-raising on Iwo Jima, died in Redding, Calif., at age 82.

One year ago: Eleven people were killed when smoke and fog caused a series of fiery crashes on I-75 in Florida. Lydia Ko of New Zealand became the youngest person to win a professional golf tour event by winning the Bing Lee/Samsung Women's NSW Open on the ALPG Tour (she was 14 years and 8 months at the time). Novak Djokovic began defense of his Australian Open title with a 5-hour, 53-minute match against Rafael Nadal (Djokovic won 5-7, 6-4, 6-2, 6-7 (5), 7-5 at 1:37 a.m. Jan. 30). Team Chara won a 12-9 victory over Team Alfredsson in the NHL All-Star game. The AFC beat the NFC 59-41 in the Pro Bowl. Jeremy Abbott won his third title at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships in San Jose, Calif.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

“He that lives upon hope will die fasting.”
— Benjamin Franklin

Some ruffing-finesse deals offer you an extra-chance play in the same suit. When today’s deal arose, declarer looked no further than the ruffing finesse without trying to combine his chances, and duly tumbled to defeat.

Would you have done better? Cover the East and West cards, and plan how you would play the spade slam when West leads the heart king.

The original declarer saw that a successful ruffing finesse in clubs would allow him to dispose of his heart loser. He won the heart lead, crossed to the spade ace, and cashed the club ace. He then returned to dummy with a trump and ran the club queen, throwing the heart loser from his hand. West won with the club king, and rather than trying to cash a heart — which would have been fatal to the defense — returned a diamond to his partner’s ace, to put the slam one down.

Declarer had missed his extra chance — namely that West might hold a doubleton club king (which was a greater possibility than normal, with six hearts in his hand). After winning the heart lead, you should play a club to the ace. You return to dummy with the spade eight and ruff a club high, just in case West began with a doubleton club king. If the king does not appear, you cross to the spade 10 and take the ruffing finesse in clubs. (This is a far better chance than playing West for club K-x-x.)

ANSWER: Your partner’s cue-bid asks you to describe your hand. You have delayed heart support and should simply bid two hearts now. There is no need to look for no-trump or to feel you need to do more with your 11-count. Your partner should know you have values and heart tolerance.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 29-year-old man with a criminal record. I got involved in some fraud and embezzlement rings when I was in my early 20s, and served nine months before being released on parole.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

Since then I have moved in with my mother, found a job, and I'm trying to be the man I know I'm capable of being. I have reached the point where I'd like to begin dating again.

The problem is, I don't know when the time is right to bring up my past. If I wait too long, my name is mud for not saying anything sooner. I want to do the right thing so I can stay on the right path. Can you help me?

— A BETTER MAN
IN NEW YORK

DEAR BETTER MAN: I agree that the chapter of your life in which you were in prison is not something you should reveal on a first date. But do raise the subject around the fourth date, because by then the woman will have had a chance to get to know you.

When you bring it up, make it clear that you didn't go to jail for a violent crime and you're not on any of-fenders' list. If she likes you, she'll hear you out and understand that you don't plan to repeat your past mistakes. Men who have served their time can go on to lead successful lives, and tell her that you plan to be one of them.

DEAR ABBY: I am blessed with two beautiful daughters. One is 13; the other is 4 months old. For 11 years my 13-year-old, "Lily," was my life. I had dated, but they were all Mr. Wrongs.

Two years ago I finally met a wonderful man, "Kevin." He is good to me, and he and Lily get along to a point, but he's shy and doesn't talk much. Kevin moved in with us a few months after I found out I was pregnant.

I try to include Lily in our new family, but she feels left out. She stays in her room and doesn't have much to do with Kevin. She wouldn't go with me to the baby's doctor appointments and pretty much ignores her new baby sister. I have told myself she'll come around, but it hasn't happened.

What can I do to assure Lily that I love her as much as I always have? I want our family to be happy. I hope to eventually marry Kevin. Lily's dad isn't very involved in her life. Every time I try to include Lily, she gets mad and says she doesn't want to do the family functions. Help, please.

— WEST VIRGINIA MOM

DEAR MOM: Thirteen can be a difficult age and your work is cut out for you. You will have to be more proactive in order to make this arrangement function more like a family. Kevin may be shy, but he should be encouraged to make more of an effort to get to know Lily. As the adult, it is his job to break the ice and find something in common with her.

Also, Lily should not be allowed to hide out in her room and not participate in any activities. If you permit the status quo to continue, at some point she will start looking for a place where she feels she "belongs" in a situation beyond your control or supervision. If you are out of ideas on how to get your daughter to cooperate, then involve a family therapist to help you through the roadblocks.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

To order "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send your name and mailing address, plus check or money order for $7 (U.S. funds) to: Dear Abby - Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447. Shipping and handling are included in the price.
