

Police Searched for Man across 3 Counties

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A suicidal man had police in three counties on alert Thursday evening after he allegedly threatened to be holding a hostage.

Gooding police were dispatched to find a suicidal subject at about 4 p.m. Thursday. The man stated he was holding his brother-in-law hostage, said Gooding Police Sgt. S juni Bunderson. The search for the man's vehicle briefly closed U.S. Highway 30 west of Burley after he was reported to be in the area. Cassia County Undersheriff George Warrell said the highway was closed for public safety while deputies attempted to locate the vehicle.

The man was located and taken into protective custody after a traffic stop shortly before 6 p.m. in Twin Falls, on Blue Lakes Boulevard just south of Kimberly Road. It wasn't clear Thursday night if the man actually had a hostage. Bunderson said the brother-in-law was accounted for. Twin Falls city dispatchers said the report of a hostage was untrue, as was a report that the man had a bomb in his vehicle.

Vice Principal Accused of Abuse Waives Hearing

BURLEY • A suspended Burley High School vice principal waived her preliminary hearing in magistrate court Thursday.

Tara Leigh Bagley, 41, is accused of having sexual contact with two female students. Her case will now advance to a trial in district court; at her preliminary hearing, a magistrate judge would have weighed if prosecutors had enough evidence to take the case to trial.

Bagley faces seven counts of sexual battery committed by lewd acts on a minor child 16 to 17 years old. Her next hearing date has not been set.

Bagley was arrested Dec. 21 near St. George, Utah, and extradited to Cassia County to face the charges. She was released from jail on a $125,000 bond and a no-contact order was issued prohibiting contact with the alleged victims until Dec. 24, 2013.

According to court records, the alleged abuse occurred from July 2011 to Dec. 12, 2012. The students involved are now 17 and 18 years old. The incidents allegedly occurred at various locations around Burley, including church parking lots, and during out-of-town trips.

Bagley was hired by the Cassia County School District in 2004. Prior to that, she worked in the Minidoka County School District from 1996 to 2004.

WASTEWATER AT CAPACITY

Thirty-seven member citizen wastewater advisory committee begins work to determine next step for Twin Falls.

“There isn't a lot of land left to expand. Depending on what is needed, there may be a need to find a new location.”

TWIN FALLS • With most of the city of Twin Falls' wastewater facility reaching capacity, a citizen advisory committee is in the process of learning what options are available for expansion.

Currently, the city's wastewater plant is nearing 90 percent capacity, said Shawn Moffitt, project manager for CH2MHill, the company the city hires to operate the facility.

Without room for growth, the city is unable to accept new businesses or new subdivisions or allow existing businesses to expand because it does not have the wastewater capacity, Moffitt said.

To help address how the city should approach an expansion, a citizen advisory committee was created to come up with possible funding solutions to expand the facility.

The 37-member committee is compiled of local engineers, mechanics, and various other members of the community, said Joshua Palmer, the city's spokesman.

“It's a pretty diverse group of people,” he said. “Hopefully, they'll come up with a suggestion.”

To familiarize the group with wastewater facility's current operating condition, the committee was invited to take a tour of the plant.

On Thursday, engineers and planning experts mixed with bankers and developers to take a peak at the facility and learn about the possible expansion options.

“There isn't a lot of land left to expand,” said Steve Tonks, a committee member, with a background in engineering. “Depending on what is needed, there may be a need to find a new location.”

Not all expansion options will require large amounts of space for new buildings, Moffitt said.

“There are options like membranes that take up a very small footprint,” he said. “But they are very expensive to install and they're maintenance costs are also expensive.”

But how will the city pay for it? One possible funding option would be to go for a bond that would be put up for a vote. If the committee chooses to ask voters for a bond, city staff could no longer be involved in the committee, Palmer said.

Beginning last summer, members of the Twin Falls city staff and council began alerting residents that Twin Falls' wastewater capacity is nearly maxed out, and the plant needs to expand before taking on another Chobani-sized business. Depending on what improvements the city decides to pursue, that expansion could take five or more years, staff said in July.

The city's plant has been at more than 90 percent capacity for a year or two, Twin Falls City Engineer Jackie Fields told the Times-News this summer. When Chobani came in, they made improvements to the existing infrastructure to keep that percentage at status-quo.

But there are no more minor improvements to make and no more capacity for a similar company, Fields said. At the time, she stressed that the city has no problem accommodating existing companies that are heavy water users, like Glanbia and Con-Agra, and that the current plant is in good repair.

It's unclear how much a possible expansion would cost. The final number will depend on recommendations from the citizen advisory committee.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Dow Logs Best January in Nearly Two Decades

NEW YORK (AP) • The Dow logged its best start to the year in almost two decades. Stocks rallied in the first week of the year after U.S. lawmakers reached a deal to avoid the “fiscal cliff,” and then pushed higher toward record levels as optimism about the housing market recovery grew. Decent company earnings for the fourth quarter and an improving job market also helped lift markets. The Dow Jones industrial average ended the month up 5.8 percent, its strongest January since 1994, according to S&P Capital IQ data. The Standard & Poor’s 500 finished the month 5 percent higher, its best start to the year since 1997. “There’s not a whole lot of bears left here,” said Jeff Hirsch, the editor of the Stock Trader’s Almanac, adding that the market may struggle to gain further in February.

Get Involved: Nominations Needed for BLM Resource Advisory

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The Bureau of Land Management is seeking nominees for an advisory council in the Twin Falls District.

The BLM’s Resource Advisory Council is composed of citizens chosen on their natural resource expertise and ability to help the agency manage public lands.

Each RAC consists of 10 to 15 members with individuals varying from conservationists, ranchers, outdoor recreationists, state and local officials, Tribal officials and academics.

“Each of the RACs lend their unique combination of geographic and resource expertise to inform the BLM’s decisions,” said acting BLM Director Mike Pool in a statement. “The members of our RACs help our field offices by acting as sounding boards in all types of resource management issues. They are a tremendous resource for field managers across the West.”

Individuals are allowed to nominate themselves or others to serve on the advisory council. However, all nominations must be accompanied by letters of reference from any represented interests or organizations. Nominees must be residents of the state in the RAC’s jurisdiction. They will be judged on their training, education and knowledge of the council’s geographical area.

The Twin Falls District has five vacancies for several categories.

Category 1 members represent public land ranchers, energy and mineral development, the timber industry transportation, off-highway vehicle use and commercial recreation. The Twin Falls RAC has one vacancy for this category.

Category 2 members represent national or regional environmental organizations, archaeological and historical organizations, dispersed recreation activities, and wild horses and burro organizations. There are two open seats for this category.

Category 3 members represent government elected offices, state agencies responsible for natural resource management, Indian Tribes within or adjacent to the RAC area, academic institutions involved in natural science and the public-at-large. The RAC also has two openings in this category.

Nominations must be received by April 1 and should be mailed to: Twin Falls District Office, Bureau of Land Management, 2536 Kimberly Road, Twin Falls, ID 83301. Attention: Heather Tiel-Nelson, RAC Coordinator. They can also be emailed to hnelson@blm.gov.

For more information about Idaho RACs, visit the BLM’s website at http://www.blm.gov/id/st/en/get_involved/resource_advisory.html.

Accused Continues Questioning His Alleged Victim in Sexual Battery Case

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The trial for a 44-year-old man representing himself against sexual battery charges continued Thursday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

Robert Brackett is charged with having a sexual relationship and taking exploitative pictures of a then-16 year old girl two years ago.

In court Thursday, Brackett continued his questioning of his alleged victim, and Twin Falls County Deputy Prosecutor Julie Sturgill questioned her about burns on her arm that Brackett allegedly made with a lighter.

A friend of the woman also testified that she and the alleged victim both told Brackett how old the alleged victim was the first time they met.

Brackett is charged with eight counts of using a child in or possessing sexually exploitative material, six counts of sexual battery committed by lewd or lascivious acts on a minor child aged 16 or 17, and one count of sexual battery by making photographs of a minor child. His trial is expected to last through the week.

Weiser Man Denies Charges in Monkey’s Death

BOISE (AP) • A 22-year-old Weiser man charged with breaking in to Zoo Boise and killing a Patas monkey has denied several charges.

Michael Jacob Watkins pleaded not guilty Thursday to felony burglary and grand theft and misdemeanor giving false information.

A jury trial is scheduled to begin on May 13 before 4th District Judge Lynn Norton.

Court records say Watkins told Boise police the monkey attacked him while he was trying to set it free early on Nov. 17 and he beat it in the head with a tree branch in self-defense. Ada County prosecutors say a friend told investigators he was with Watkins and that Watkins was trying to steal the animal when he broke into the zoo.

Goodbye Cold January, Hello February

Twin Falls were nearly three quarters of an inch or more below average on monthly precipitation. As we go into February, it looks like we will be warmer and less stormy than we were for January.

As we close out the week, temperatures will be seasonal, ranging from the mid 30s to near 40 during the day and near 20 at night. High pressure builds over southern Idaho for the weekend and most of next week, giving us plenty of sunshine. This high pressure allows another inversion to set up across the valley locations of southern Idaho, but unlike the past inversions that kept us in the deep freeze, this inversion won’t keep us that cold. What makes this inversion different is the lack of snow cover on the ground. With sunny skies and bare ground, more energy is absorbed and radiated to keep our temperatures more typical for this time of year.

Senator Invokes Holocaust in Health Care Email

BOISE (AP) • A Republican state senator has compared the role of insurance companies in the federal health care overhaul to the plight of Jews during the Holocaust, a newspaper reported.

Sen. Sheryl Nuxoll, R-Cottonwood, made the analogy this week on Twitter and in more than 100 emails sent from her Senate account, the Spokesman-Review said Wednesday.

Nuxoll has been a staunch opponent of President Barack Obama’s Affordable Care Act. Two years ago, she compared the law to Nazi Germany, claiming it would allow the federal government to take away children by setting up programs involving families.

The second-rhether senator continued her rhetoric this week as state lawmakers began debating the merits of approving a state-built health insurance exchange.

In an email obtained by the newspaper, Nuxoll accused the federal government of using private insurance companies to enact a new system of health care with a future that doesn’t include those companies.

“The insurance companies are creating their own tombs,” Nuxoll wrote. “Much like the Jews boarding the trains to concentration camps, private insurers are used by the feds to put the system in place because the federal government has no way to set up the exchange. Several years from now, the federal government will want nothing to do with private insurance companies.”

Nuxoll said her message should not be interpreted as disrespectful to the Jewish community. Instead, it was intended to depict what she considers the consequences of the new health care law, she said.

“My thing was, (Jews) didn’t know what was going on” during the Holocaust, she told the newspaper. “The insurance companies are not realizing what’s going to end up in their demise.”

T.F. Officials, Teachers Reach Agreement

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • After re-opening negotiations last month, the Twin Falls School District and teacher's union have reached a tentative agreement.

As a result of voters overturning the Students Come First laws this fall, changes were made to the collective bargaining agreement.

Two of the main changes in the agreement: adding back a reduction-in-force policy and a grievance procedure for certified employees.

One of the reform laws included a provision that eliminated the "last-hired, first-fired" system.

The layoff policy was last used in the 2009-10 agreement. That was before the Students Come First laws took effect.

Now, the old policy for layoffs is back — ranking employees based on seniority.

Superintendent Wiley Dobbs said during a December negotiations session that layoffs are a "real possibility" if the supplemental levy ballot measure doesn't pass in March.

In recent years, there haven't been any layoffs in the Twin Falls School District.

Another change made during negotiations involves teacher evaluations. Under Students Come First, at least 50 percent of an evaluation was tied to student achievement.

Twin Falls Education Association president Dave Gibson said teachers can now choose another measure to use instead.

Once approved, the changes will be in effect until June 30.

School district officials and the TFEA will meet again as usual in the spring. That's when they'll negotiate over next year's teacher contracts.

TFEA members were scheduled to possibly approve changes to the agreement Wednesday, Jan. 30. Then, the school board will take action Feb. 11.

Twin Falls negotiation

teams met twice, with the last meeting on Dec. 20.

Deciding to reopen negotiations this early in the school year is rare around south-central Idaho.

Last month, 11 school district superintendents who responded to an inquiry from the Times-News said negotiations hadn't been reopened in their district.

Students Come First limited the scope of negotiations. Teacher salaries and benefits were the main items included in collective bargaining agreements.

This spring, teachers unions will be able to bargain over working conditions again.

CSI Apartments on Track for Completion by July

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Construction is on track for the College of Southern Idaho's new student apartment complex.

Mike Mason, vice president of administration, said the project should be finished in early July.

There won't be much of a marketing campaign to attract tenants for next school year, he said, unless the apartments aren't filling up.

That's unlikely. Mason said there have always been more students who want housing than what's available.

CSI apartment manager Wanda Luna said the college-owned Northview Apartments stay "pretty much full all the time" and there's a waiting list.

"We're hoping the new apartments will be about the same way," she said.

By about spring break, the housing section on CSI's website will be updated with information and an application for students who want to live in the new apartment complex.

Luna said most students start applying for housing in March. Inquiries usually continue until the fall semester begins.

She has already heard from people who are interested in living in the new complex, such as students currently living in the Northview Apartments and high school seniors.

The four-building apartment complex will include 40 two-bedroom units.

CSI plans to charge about $750 per month for an apartment. That includes utilities, cable and Internet.

For those who don't have a roommate, CSI housing employees will help students find someone.

The two-story complex is located between Falls Avenue West and Robbins Avenue West in Twin Falls.

Work began over the summer after CSI trustees awarded a $6.18 million construction contract to Starr Corp. in May.

Jason Derricott, project manager for Starr Corp., said the project is on schedule.

In the northeast building, crews are installing cabinets and countertops. They're also getting ready to start on flooring. Crews are wrapping up the electrical and plumbing in the southeast building and are getting ready to hang sheet rock. In the northwest and southwest buildings, crews are working on tasks such as painting.

Probation Revoked for Filer Man

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Filer man told a judge Tuesday, Jan. 29, that he didn't want to be in jail anymore.

But the judge disagreed, saying he thought Adrian Will, 24, needs more time to think about why he's behind bars.

Twin Falls County 5th District Judge G. Richard Bevan then revoked probation for Will, who was originally sentenced in April 2012 to several years in prison for burglary and possessing marijuana with intent to deliver.

That sentence was originally suspended in favor of a term in the state's retained-jurisdiction program, which Will completed before being released on probation in August. But by December, he was arrested again and admitted that month to violating his probation.

Prosecutors told the court Tuesday that Will admitted to using several kinds of drugs, associating with known felons and using methamphetamine three to five times a day for several weeks in November.

Rather than the full prison time, Bevan sentenced Will to one more year of retained jurisdiction in a therapeutic community, saying he believed Will would benefit from the structure of the program and the time to think about why he didn't want to be in jail anymore.

Defense attorney George Essma asked that his client be allowed to remain on probation, saying Will and his family showed the desire to move forward by getting Will accepted to the Walker Center.

Will said he'd made bad choices, but believed he'd be able to succeed with the help of his family.

"I don't want to be in or-ange anymore," he said.

Will was originally charged with burglary, drug trafficking and an additional drug possession charge in connection with a complicated case involving drugs police say were stolen from a Twin Falls man's home.

The trafficking charge was amended to possession with intent to manufacture or deliver, while the possession charge was dropped.

Proposed Law Requires Studies for City Speed Limit Changes

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • It could soon get more difficult for cities to change speed limits within city limits.

Sen. Chuck Winder, R-Boise, introduced legislation that would require cities to do traffic studies before setting or changing speed limits.

The idea, Winder said, is to open up what he called a "closed circuit" of city-controlled traffic, where city councils set limits and city police enforce those laws. Sometimes those speed limits can be arbitrary, Winder said, and he's heard from constituents that they want a more uniform standard.

Others on the Senate

Transportation Committee expressed concern over the burden the proposed law would place on small cities.

"I'm looking forward to the hearing," said Sen. Shawn Keough, R-Sandpoint. "I'm really worried about the impact on the good cities and good city mayors and councils we have."

It's not the first time the Legislature has fiddled with local speed limits.

Last session, lawmakers voted to return speed limit-setting authority on state highways that run through cities to the Idaho Transportation Department. Previously, cities were allowed to set speed limits on state highways within city limits.

Idaho School Boards Association Announces 2013 Legislative Agenda

BY LISA KNUDSON

As the elected leaders of each individual school district, school board members have a statutory, legal and fiduciary duty to oversee the finances and management of the school district. The Idaho School Boards Association, at the direction of the local trustees, will be pursuing and/or supporting several pieces of legislation during the 2013 legislative session that will enhance their ability to be good stewards of the scarce taxpayer dollars.

First and foremost, we will pursue and/or support legislation that will replace funding that has been removed because of the budget reductions of the past few years as well as the funding lost because of the failure of the students come first legislation. Our economy is making a slow turn for the better, and it is important that K-12 public schools and the personnel they employ begin to regain some of the lost ground from the last few years.

Secondly, we will pursue legislation that codifies good public policies for open and orderly negotiations. That includes items like holding all negotiations in open session, requiring that the local education organization provide proof that they represent 50 percent plus one of the professional employees in the district and proving that the membership of the local education organization has ratified any agreement. If approved, this will allow local patrons to view all negotiations and to be assured that ratification will only occur when properly acted upon.

Lastly, we will pursue legislation that will allow for the long-term, prudent fiscal management of each school district. Those items include the local school board's ability to operate under the terms of the district's final offer to the local education organization should no agreement be reached; to provide for one year negotiated agreements in order to adequately budget for each fiscal year, to have the ability to manage salaries of all personnel depending upon the district's funding; and to increase the maximum length of term for a supplemental levy from two to three years. Other items that will give school board members the tools they need to adequately and sufficiently manage their districts are to allow for other measures beyond seniority when considering reductions in force; to provide that if an employee appeals a decision to the district court, that the district court can only affirm, set aside or remand the matter back to the school board; and to allow the school board to place an employee on unpaid administrative leave if the employee is incarcerated or if there is a court order that does not allow the employee to be in the presence of minors and/or any other adult employed by the district.

It is also important to note what ISBA will not be pursuing. We heard the complaints and concerns of the Idaho Education Association and the members of their association. They consistently stated they wanted to have the ability to negotiate items beyond salaries and benefits — items like class size and student safety. They were also concerned with the loss of continuing contracts. The trustees heard those concerns and they listened. The trustees understand and appreciate the employees in their districts. As such, the ISBA will not be pursuing any legislation on either of those topics.

These legislative measures are items the ISBA, on behalf of the locally elected trustees, has long pursued. The ISBA has consistently held that local governance closest to the student is what is best. We believe the legislation we will pursue this session will do just that.

Lisa Knudson is the vice chairman for Region 4 of the Idaho School Boards Association and a member of Castleford Joint School District 417.

Funding Mental Health Care a Matter of Public Safety

BY ROB AND NANCY MITCHELL

Re: Otter backs secure mental health facility

We were pleased to hear during Governor Otter's 2012 State of the State Address his mention of mental health. However, we remain very disappointed in the disjointed manner in which both the governor and legislature are willing to shift pre-emptive mental health care from preventive work by the Health and Welfare Department to our Correctional Department. Is this the governor's long term strategy for mental health care for Idaho? Governor Otter referenced the Newtown tragedy as the catalyst for more state action. We share his emotion, however the Governor also had a recent tragic event occur in his own state in which he, nor the Legislature, chose to take action.

Our son was tragically shot by a mentally disturbed individual while leaving a Pocatello coffee shop on Sept. 27, 2010. Our son was shot in the back, the bullet piercing his lung and lodging next to his heart. He never saw the individual. He had a less than 10 percent chance of survival had it not been for the quick response by Pocatello first responders and the cardiothoracic team at Portneuf hospital.

Our son is recovering. However, the scars left from this tragic incident will be felt his entire life. The individual was quickly identified and arrested by the Pocatello police. We were initially pleased to hear of his arrest and reassured this individual would not be able to harm others in society. We were also told that this individual had been under the care and supervision of the State of Idaho's Health and Welfare Department for most of his life, most recently with the Assertive Community Treatment (ACT) program.

According to the Department of Health and Welfare, the individual had been dropped from its care three months prior to him shooting our son.

The state blamed budget cuts for its decision to stop providing care to the individual. According to press reports, the state did not make any attempt to make contact with this individual's family of their decision, nor did the state apparently make any effort to make sure that he stayed on his medication, or did not become a threat to the public. He was on his own with his three guns!

The tragedy continues; less than two years after his arrest, the state, working with Bannock County, allowed the criminal charges to be dismissed because they did not believe that he was mentally fit to stand trial. It now appears that this individual has been released from custody. At the same time, the state will not tell our son or his family whether this individual is receiving, or is required to receive, care and treatment, whether he has access to firearms, or if he is in a position to harm others again.

From the very beginning of this tragic event, our son and his family have felt that care was needed for this individual, and equally, he must be kept in an environment where he could not inflict harm to others. We are pleased to see the governor willing to address the latter, but disappointed that he, and the Legislature, are unwilling to address the root cause, which is to fund the preventative programs that provide care before innocent victims are hurt or killed.

It's a matter of legislative and budgetary priorities.

Rob and Nancy Mitchell are Boise residents.

Times-News Should Not Have Published Letter Attacking CRHS Coach

Shame on you, Times-News, for allowing a disgruntled parent take out their wrath on a coach who has poured her heart and soul into her team! I was appalled that a newspaper would allow such an assassination of character into print!

As a parent of two former players for coach Boer over the past decade, nothing in the letter from Ms. Brann is truth! Whether coach Boer was my girl's school coach or club coach, she has always been a woman of integrity and character. Her reputation is without blemish and will remain so, even in light of you

CellPhone Drivers More Dangerous than Gun Owners

Re: AR-15 vs. cellphones
Cellphone distracted driving kills 10 times more people in the United States than mass shootings (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention), but you won't find pundits and politicians enraged by this because it doesn't do much for them in the polls. It's not as sensational as a mass shooting, so basically it's ignored.

If they really want to protect innocent people, why not use their national exposure to lobby for increased fines for distracted driving? Today, if you're caught texting and driving, your wrist is slapped.

Why isn't Joe Biden having meetings with the chief executive officers of Motorola and Apple? Can you imagine the outrage if the mass shooting rate increased by 10 times (to match the body count of cellphone distracted driving)?

This kills innocent people who happen to be at the wrong place at the wrong time and, sadly, this includes kids. If the goal is to protect the innocent, it seems reasonable to address the issues that kill the highest number of innocent people (if you're worried your boat is sinking, I suggest plugging the biggest leak first).

Anyone capable of simple math can see that Dianne Feinstein and Piers Morgan have far bigger fish to fry than assault rifles. In the United States, about 100 people die every year in mass shootings. About 1,000 people die every year because of cellphone distracted driving (and 24,000 others are injured).

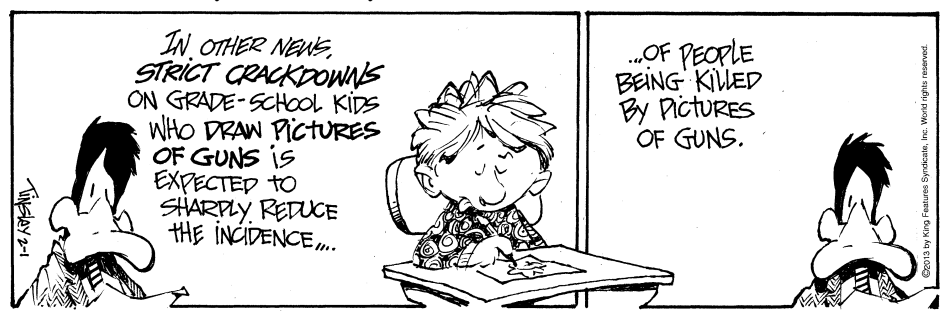

If you're concerned about protecting innocent people, maybe this should be your cause. But on the other hand, if protecting the innocent is not really your primary motivation (maybe you hate guns, or you just like to argue) then stick to mass shootings and push to ban assault rifles. It's a great way to get attention.

WESTERN WASTE RESPONDS TO DISCRIMINATION LAWSUIT

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Western Waste Services has denied wrongfully terminating an employee and that the employee is entitled to recover unpaid overtime in a response to a lawsuit.

Ricky Garcia filed the suit in December. Garcia, who won a jury trial in a racial discrimination lawsuit against PSI Environmental Systems and Waste Connections Inc., said his employer, Western Waste Services, Inc., fired him shortly after the June 29 verdict.

According to the suit, Garcia began working at Western Waste in December 2007, and was promoted to lead mechanic/maintenance manager. Soon after Garcia won the PSI lawsuit, Garcia's employers at Western Waste began to ask Garcia if he was planning to sue them too, the new lawsuit states.

Garcia claimed that although he was a salaried employee, his salary was reduced when he worked fewer than 40 hours a week, but it was never increased when he worked more than 40 hours a week.

In their response, Western Waste states that Garcia was hired as a salaried employee and was repeatedly told that he was not required to record the hours he worked each day on a timecard.

"Mr. Garcia insisted on filling out a time card but did so inaccurately," the response states.

The response also denies that Garcia's salary was routinely reduced.

"Mr. Garcia's salary was reduced when he took off of work in excess of his allowed vacation or sick time and for unexcused absences," the response states.

The response also states that Garcia was given numerous verbal warnings about his work performance.

In its response, Western Waste states that various employees told the company owners on numerous occasions that Garcia was talking about suing the company.

The response states that Garcia was fired for not performing his job in a prompt and satisfactory way. And states that the owners did take into account that "disruption at the work place was caused by Mr. Garcia telling other employees that he intended to sue Western Waste."

"Mr. Garcia was an employee at will and his conduct was disruptive at work and he was not productive," the response states.

In their response, Western Waste asks that the complaint be dismissed and that they be granted attorney fees and costs.

On June 29, a federal jury of seven people in Boise unanimously found in Garcia's favor in a discrimination case against his former employers, PSI. The jury awarded Garcia $887,621 in punitive damages, lost wages and emotional distress damages.

Expert: Burden Will Shift with Property Tax Repeal

BOISE (AP) • A policy expert with the Idaho Tax Commission says a repeal of the state's personal property tax on business equipment would force residential and commercial property owners to make up for lost revenue dedicated to public schools.

Republican lawmakers are considering repealing the tax that businesses and companies pay on desks, chairs and heavier items such as transmission lines and factory machinery. Business leaders and lobbyists have been pushing the repeal for several years, calling the tax a drag on business development and economic growth.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter supports getting rid of the tax, which generates about $141 million annually and is distributed to cities, counties and public schools.

On Tuesday, Alan Dornfest, the Tax Commission's property tax policy supervisor, explained the consequences of doing so.

He said the result of repealing the tax is simple: an automatic tax shift to residential and commercial property owners to make up the more than $38 million a year that goes to schools from the tax on business equipment. With the exception of school districts in Lewiston and Boise, every district in the state would be affected by the shift.

Lawmakers have options to avoid putting a new burden on home and commercial property owners. Dornfest said the Legislature could appropriate general fund revenue to make up the difference for schools.

House and Senate leaders consider elimination of the property tax on business priority for the 2013 Legislature.

Of the $141 million, cities get about $33 million and Idaho's 44 counties' share about $39 million. Counties have decried repeal, saying it would cut too deeply into budgets, especially for small counties that depend heavily on the tax to make ends meet. In Caribou County, the property tax accounts for more than 40 percent of the cash the county needs to fix roads, pay public defenders and pay indigent health care bills.

Otter has also said he would favor giving cities and counties local-option sales tax authority to offset the revenue loss from the business tax.

Magazine Not Backing Down

BY ZACH KYLE
zkyle@postregister.com

Mother Jones magazine is standing behind the article that spawned a defamation lawsuit filed Tuesday by Melaleuca CEO Frank VanderSloot.

VanderSloot is seeking $74,999 in damages for portions of the article portraying him as anti-gay and a Twitter post calling him "(Mitt) Romney's gay-bashing friend."

Mother Jones Co-Editor in Chief Monika Bauerlein was named as a defendant along with reporter Stephanie Mencimer and the magazine itself.

Though Bauerlein hadn't had a chance Thursday to review the 86-page lawsuit, she said to expect the magazine to fight the suit in court instead of settling.

"We're really confident about our reporting," Bauerlein said.

The lawsuit focuses on two terms with which VanderSloot and his lawyers have taken exception. The first is "gay-bashing," which occurs in Bauerlein and Mencimer's Twitter feeds, but not the article.

Culinary union members hold signs and chant in protest in front of The Cosmopolitan Hotel and Casino Thursday in Las Vegas.

Pickers Seen on Las Vegas Strip for First Time in 10 Years

LAS VEGAS (AP) • Sin City's largest, most powerful union began picketing the Las Vegas Strip on Thursday for the first time in a decade. Culinary Union spokeswoman Yvanna Cancela said labor leaders have stalled on major issues with Cosmopolitan of Las Vegas owner Deutsche Bank after 18 months of negotiations to establish a contract. At issue are wages, health care and job security.

The 2-year-old Cosmopolitan, which was built by the German investment bank after its original developer defaulted, is one of just a handful of non-unionized casinos on the Strip. A majority of Cosmopolitan service workers signed cards in 2010 saying they wanted representation. The union is calling the one-day protest an informational picket.

Culinary Union members enjoy free health care and a living wage. Housekeepers in most Strip hotels start at $16 an hour and receive a pension.

Cosmopolitan service employees have proposed a wage freeze in negotiations, but neither party has agreed to it. If a contract were approved, they would be the largest group of organized Deutsche Bank employees outside of Germany, according to a union press release.

Cosmopolitan spokeswoman Amy Rossetti said the company understands that workers have a right to picket.

"The Cosmopolitan has been negotiating in good faith and will continue to do so," she said in a statement.

The 54,000 member union has not picketed the Strip since 2003, when it was seeking to represent workers at the Aladdin, which is now the Planet Hollywood Resort & Casino.

Christopher Eck, who works as a server at one of the Cosmopolitan's 24-hour restaurants, said Deutsche Bank is loath to give workers a contract because the bank is planning its exit strategy from the Las Vegas investment it never planned to make.

If workers remain non-unionized, a new owner could fire them at will or slash wages.

"With our contract, they would have to buy not only Cosmopolitan, but they'd buy its employees as well," said Eck, who has worked at Strip casinos for nine years.

MORMON CHURCH TO EXPAND MEXICAN TRAINING CENTER

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • The Mormon church is turning a church-owned school in Mexico City into what will become its second-largest missionary training center in the world.

The move is to address an unprecedented influx of new missionaries. The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints announced in October that it was lowering the minimum age for missionaries: from 21 to 19 for women; and from 19 to 18 for men.

Applications for new missions are up two-fold since the announcement, with older missionaries and new, younger missionaries planning to go out at the same time.

The new missionary training center in Mexico will be able to hold 1,500 missionaries when it opens in June at the end of the current school year, said Mormon church spokesman Michael Purdy. The old training center had capacity for 150. Missionaries preparing to serve in Mexico and North, Central and South America will be sent there.

The missionary training center in Provo is the largest of the 15 centers worldwide with a capacity of 5,000.

"Church leaders made the decision after considering every immediate alternative that could alleviate the demand at the Church's other missionary training centers around the world, including the MTC in Provo," Purdy said in a statement.

Men serve two years while women go for 18 months.

The closure of the LDS-owned high school — Benemerito de las Americas near Mexico City — brings the total of church-owned schools to less than 20, church officials said.

The change in the minimum age, the first since 1960, has sent ripples across Mormon culture, affecting college enrollments, how university athletic coaches recruit and likely how young people date, marry and start families. The effects are most pronounced in Utah, home to 1.9 million members and the church's worldwide headquarters.

There are currently 58,600 missionaries worldwide for a church that reported having 14.4 million members worldwide as of January 2012.

MAN IN SPONGEBOB MASK ROBS COFFEE STAND

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) • Police in northern Idaho say they're searching for a man who robbed a drive-up coffee stand while wearing a SpongeBob SquarePants mask.

Coeur d'Alene Police Sgt. Brett Walton says the man displayed a handgun during the Wednesday night robbery, and though police set up a 15-block perimeter and called in a K-9 tracking team, they didn't manage to trap the suspect.

Walton says nearby surveillance cameras caught images of the suspect, who was wearing a dark-colored hooded sweat shirt as well as the mask depicting popular children's cartoon character SpongeBob SquarePants.

T.F. Girls Move On to District Semifinals

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Trailing after the first quarter and struggling to score against Minico, it looked as though the Twin Falls girls basketball team could have been thinking about its presumed Great Basin Conference semifinal matchup with Burley on Saturday. But then Regan Harr and Madeline Watkins came in off the bench and seemed to shift the energy of the contest in the Bruins favor against a scrappy Spartan team that was a few lucky bounces from making it a nail-biter. Instead, Twin Falls won 56-41, scoring 50 points in the final three quarters. “Tonight was about team chemistry,” Harr said. “Watkins stepped up and made some shots. We all take responsibility for these games. Minico is a good team to play early in the tournament. They have great ball pressure, so it’s definitely good practice for us.” While Harr only scored four points, her ability to beat pressure defense and make crisp passes to the middle of the floor to find the Bruins’ running post players seemed to get Twin Falls’ offense going.

Class 4A

Twin Falls and Burley are clearly a cut above the other three teams remaining. For most, it’s just a question of the order in which they enter the state tournament. Both teams will want to win the district tournament, and not just for the trophy. The District IV runner-up gets the District III champ. For those not in the know, that’s more than likely to be Middleton — the three-time reigning state champ and winner of 69 straight games. Even if Middleton were to lose, Bishop Kelly and Skyview — two of the four best teams in the division not named Middleton — would be a handful. In addition to being on the opposite side of the bracket from Middleton, the District IV champ gets the second-place team from the combined District V-VI Tournament. That district, like District IV, seems to be a two-horse race between Century and Pocatello. But don’t discount Blackfoot or Bonneville in the tournament. Our projection: Burley vs. Pocatello, Twin Falls vs. Middleton.

Class 3A

Filer has one foot in the state tournament by virtue of its convincing win Wednesday over Kimberly in the district tournament. With a win next Wednesday over either Kimberly or Gooding, the Wildcats will clinch the district’s automatic berth in the tournament. The loser (Kimberly or Gooding would have to beat Filer twice) faces a play-in game in McCall the following Saturday, against the runner up from District I in the panhandle. Bonners Ferry led the league most of the way, but Priest River has come on of late. The winner of that squares off with the District V champion (read on to see why that’s a big challenge) at state. Staring opposite the District IV champion at state is the winner of a play-in between the second-place teams from Districts V and VI. District V has two state title contenders in Marsh Valley and Snake River, so one of them is practically assured of playing in that game. District VI is led by Shelley, with Sugar-Salem and Teton likely competing for that half-seed.

Either way, District IV will have a difficult trek to navigate in the tournament. Our projection: Filer vs. Snake River-Teton winner; Kimberly vs. Bonners Ferry, winner to face Marsh Valley.

Class 2A

Second might as well be third or fourth in District IV. That’s because the runner-up in this district tournament not only will have to beat a capable District V team next Thursday in a play-in game, the winner of that one has to play a better District VI squad two days after that just to make the tournament. Four, possibly all five, of the District VI teams could do some damage at the state tournament. I have had the top four — Ririe, West Jefferson, Firth and North Fremont — ranked 2-5 on my media poll ballot for weeks, behind District V leader Soda Springs. Malad, West Side and Aberdeen are lagging behind the top-ranked Cardinals. If the District IV runner-up can overcome that gauntlet and make it to state, the District III champion awaits. Cole Valley Christian led that league most of the way, but lost to New Plymouth recently. Suffice it to say, the road is far less complicated for the District IV champ. Valley has one foot in the door after beating Declo on Wednesday, with the Vikings now needing to avoid defeat twice by Declo or Wendell next week to clinch the automatic berth against the best from the panhandle. That’s likely to be perennial championship contender Grangeville. But at least you’re guaranteed a berth. Our projection: Declo vs. Malad, winner to face West Jefferson, winner to face Cole Valley Christian; Valley vs. Coeur d’Alene Charter.

Class 1A-I

We don’t need to worry about the district champion, as that will be either Butte County or Challis. There’s 1.5 spots up for grabs among the remaining three District IV teams standing in the tournament — Hansen and Shoshone were eliminated on Wednesday. At least one more between Glenns Ferry and Hagerman will be ousted today, while Raft River also visits Grace. It’s a trickier path but it might be a more favorable path to finish third at the district tournament. That means a play-in against the District III third-place team, followed by a matchup with the District III champ in the first round if the District IV-V-VI squad gets that far. The second-place team has to play the runner-up from the notoriously difficult District II. I’d take my chances going through two of Liberty Charter, Notus and Rimrock as opposed to facing a team like Kamiah, Prairie, or Lapwai out of District II. Our projection: Butte County vs. Lakeside/Prairie winner; Challis vs. Lapwai; Glenns Ferry vs. Rimrock, winner to face Liberty Charter.

Class 1A-II

Three teams will survive this tournament, two of them qualifying automatically to state, the third facing a play-in. Dietrich is a prohibitive favorite to win the district tournament, with Richfield and Carey seeming best positioned to unseat the Blue Devils and end their streak of 48 wins (and counting). Castleford, Lighthouse Christian and Camas County were well behind the other three in league play. The District IV champ gets the winner of a play-in between second-place teams from District II and III. Nezperce and Kendrick are vying to chase down Deary to win District II’s automatic bid, while everyone is chasing Tri-Valley in District III. Cascade and Council appear the best positioned to do so. Second place gets the District I champ. In recent years that berth had been a fait accompli for Clark Fork, but the Wampus Cats are struggling with resurgent Mullan leading the way. The third-place team has a play-in against the runner-up from the combined District V-VI. Rockland, North Gem and Leadore are chasing Mackay in the race for district glory. No matter how it shakes out, District IV should be happy with its representation at state, as well as the results once there. Our projection: Dietrich vs. Nezperce-Cascade winner; Richfield vs. Mullan; Carey vs. Rockland, winner to face Deary.

CSI Baseball Takes Win Streak to Four

TIMES-NEWS

HENDERSON, Nev. • The College of Southern Idaho baseball team could be on to something. The Golden Eagles scored a pair of victories Thursday at the Coyote Classic, moving them to 4-3 on the season after starting with three losses. CSI beat Northeastern (Colo.) 2-1 in the early game before run-ruling Pima (Ariz.) 9-0 in seven innings later in the afternoon. Dillon Dove picked up the win in the early game, tossing three innings of one-hit ball in relief of Kyle Olason. Carter Yagi’s RBI single in the seventh inning broke a 1-1 deadlock against Northeastern, which CSI pummeled the night before, 12-5. “That 2-1 game, we would have lost last year. There’s no question. We would have found a way to lose it, and Kyle kept his composure and limited them to one run in the first inning when they had a lot of stuff going on. After that, he gritted it out and we found a way to scratch across a couple runs. We haven’t won a game like that in a long time. “It’s just a solid, early-season team win. Those are the games you’re rolling into on Friday in conference, when you’re facing a good guy and you have to find a way to win 1-0, 2-1, 3-2. It gives you confidence for down the road that you can win those kinds of games.” Against Pima, Wendell High graduate Nolan Stouder threw six shutout innings, scattering three hits to pick up his first win as a Golden Eagle. Run support was no issue this time, unlike his last start, as CSI staked him to a 3-0 lead after three innings and scored six in the sixth to break it open. “I know it’s only two starts into it, but our guys have a lot of confidence when Nolan’s on the mound. There’s just a different feel when they know that guy’s throwing,” Walker said. “There wasn’t any panic and we felt like we were going to be able to generate some runs because he doesn’t give up very many. He didn’t get a whole bunch of help the other night, but that guy never changes his demeanor, whether you’re up big or down big, and whether he’s throwing well or throwing poorly. Nothing gets too big for him.” Nathan Ackerman doubled, tripled and drove in three runs against Pima, which CSI plays again today.

Ravens-49ers: Which Brother Wins?

BY BARRY WILNER

Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS • The San Francisco 49ers never have tasted defeat in a Super Bowl, going 5-0. It's the most impressive mark for any franchise in the big game.

Baltimore also is undefeated, with the Ravens winning their only appearance, in 2001.

Someone will have the Super Bowl blahs for the first time after Sunday's title game in the Superdome.

The Ravens (13-6), who are 3 1/2 -point underdogs, are on one of those runs reminiscent of recent NFL champions. Indeed, the New York Giants reached the Super Bowl a year ago in a similar manner, winning a wild-card game at home, then two playoffs on the road, including an overtime thriller.

The Giants got healthy down the stretch, something the Ravens have replicated, particularly on defense where star linebackers Ray Lewis and Terrell Suggs are giving vintage performances following injury-shortened seasons.

"I believe we have found a way to believe in each other, and nothing else matters," said Lewis, who will retire after the game. "That is one thing about our sideline. When we are on our sideline, there is only one thing that matters, when this game ends, we will be victorious, and everybody believes the same thing. That's what's been our road, no matter who's been up, who's been down, who's been hurt, who's been injured. We found a way to pick each other up."

Baltimore's path to New Orleans led through New England, where the Ravens fell to the Patriots in last year's AFC title game. But they outscored the Patriots 21-0 in the second half to earn their spot in the Super Bowl.

San Francisco (13-4-1) also came up one win short a year ago, losing to the Giants for the NFC championship. That defeat has driven the 49ers just as much as the Ravens' failure in 2011 lifted them.

These Niners are built around a physical, stingy defense — that also has been the Ravens' persona for years, although not as much in 2012 as in Lewis' other 17 pro seasons. Linebacker Patrick Willis, who like Lewis wears No. 52 and is a perennial All-Pro, is the anchor.

"As a kid, you grew up watching," Willis said. "Just to have the opportunity to be able to play in this game

"I believe we have found a way to believe in each other, and nothing else matters."

Baltimore LB Ray Lewis

given my first four years (out of the playoffs), we were at home at this time watching other teams play. Last year we were one game away. To be able to be here, is truly special."

To make it extra special, San Francisco's offense will need to outdo Baltimore's. The Ravens have scored 90 points in three games, and the Niners have 73 in two.

Baltimore's defense has made big plays against Andrew Luck, Peyton Manning and Tom Brady. Now it gets an entirely different type of quarterback, Colin Kaepernick. His combination of running skill, powerful arm and surprising cool for a second-year pro makes him particularly dangerous against the Ravens. Baltimore does not have the fastest defense in the league.

Then again, the 49ers must deal with Joe Flacco, the only QB to win a post-season game in each of his first five seasons. Flacco also has six road playoff victories, a league record. He's also outplayed Brady, the most successful quarterback of the last dozen seasons, in two straight AFC title games.

But he has his critics because this is his first Super Bowl trip in five tries.

"I think there is definitely a part of all of us that hear things and when somebody doubts what you want to do, you definitely go show them that they may be wrong," he said. "I think for the most part we play for each other and that stuff is kind of a secondary issue."

While the Ravens and 49ers play for each other, the Harbaugh brothers, John of the Ravens and Jim of the 49ers, will go against each other in the first Super Bowl featuring sibling head coaches. They've had fun with the topic this week, but it will be as serious as football can get on Sunday.

With older brother John coming out on top.

YUMA, Ariz. • The College of Southern Idaho softball team put in extra effort on Thursday, in the form of extra innings.

Both games the 13th-ranked Golden Eagles played went eight innings, as they beat Mesa (Ariz.) 1-0 and lost to No. 8 Eastern Arizona 4-3 on the first day of the Arizona Western Shootout.

Mikayla Harris and Haley Hutchinson were the primary beneficiaries of the fast-break attack, scoring a combined 23 points. Their rim-runs also opened up penetration opportunities to trailers in transition.

"We were really focused on Harris running down so we would miss (Kaitlyn Merritt) or the Hutchinson girl running down the lane," Minico's Hannah Bailey said. "They did a great job of cutting to the basket."

Both players chipped in with offensive rebounds and cuts. Harris timed one of her dives perfectly, waiting for just the right moment for her teammate to clear the lane to sneak into the paint.

"Mikayla goes right to the rim like she is supposed to do," coach Nancy Jones said. "She started slow and picked it up at the end of the second quarter. We try to get them to counter the defense, and they are getting much better at reading that."

Merritt also had a better second half than first, combining with Watkins to score 18 points, most of them coming on perimeter shots to complement the work of Harris and Hutchinson. Hannah Meyerhoeffer added hustle plays and scored six. Megan Lounsbury and Kaiya Moffit provided strong defense both inside and at times extended near the 3-point line.

Bailey led the Spartans with 13 points, scoring inside and out, snaring rebounds and starting fast breaks. Teammates Rebecca Child and Chloe Bradford added 14 hard-earned points, which could have been much more had some of their shots rolled in.

"We are very competitive," Bailey said. "We fumbled the ball a little bit had some unforced turnovers, and our chip shots didn't drop."

Despite being undersized, the Spartans tallied more than 12 offensive rebounds by an unofficial count.

"They are scrappy and their ball pressure was really good for us," Jones said. "To be honest, we don't have a lot of teams in our conference that don't have at least one person that can't cause problems defensively. They have a few."

Edgar Drops Down to Meet Champion Aldo at UFC 156

BY GREG BEACHAM
AP Sports Writer

BURBANK, Calif. • Jose Aldo was born deep in Brazil's Amazon rain forest, while Frankie Edgar is from the Jersey Shore. Both learned how to fight on the streets long before they ever stepped in a cage, and both UFC stars quickly picked up an important survival lesson.

"It's always better to fight somebody your own size," Aldo said with a grin.

As the first featherweight champion the UFC has ever recognized, Aldo occupies a unique niche in mixed martial arts history. Edgar is one fight away from earning a rare distinction of his own when they meet at UFC 156 on Saturday night in Las Vegas.

After several years of being an undersized lightweight who improbably rose to the top of his division with relentless conditioning and pure will, Edgar is finally picking on guys closer to his own size.

With an upset win over Aldo, Edgar could add the 145-pound title to the 155-pound belt he once held, putting him alongside Randy Couture and B.J. Penn as the only fighters to win championships in two weight classes.

"I don't know if I'll be the biggest at 145 pounds, but I won't be as out-sized as I was at 155," Edgar said. "I'm definitely looking forward to it. This is something I've been thinking about for a while, and it's great to start right at the top with Jose."

The undercard of the UFC's annual Super Bowl-adjacent show features Rashad Evans' comeback fight against Antonio Rogerio Nogueira and heavyweight Alistair Overeem's return from a nine-month suspension for a failed drug test to meet Antonio "Bigfoot" Silva.

The main event matches two of the UFC's most prominent smaller fighters. Edgar (14-3-1) is an underdog yet again in his seventh consecutive UFC title fight, while the dominant Aldo (21-1) faces arguably his toughest test as a champion after fighting just once in 2012.

"He'll fight all five rounds the same way," Aldo said. "He doesn't give up. He's a champion of a higher division, and that's motivation for me. He has a great reputation. This was a fight I really wanted."

One day shy of exactly six years since his UFC debut, Edgar will take on another daunting challenge after narrowly losing his last two fights to lightweight champion Benson Henderson.

Aldo is in the UFC's top handful of pound-for-pound fighters despite a 13-month absence from the cage caused by a series of injuries. His kicks are among the most vicious in MMA, and his overall agility in the cage can be stunning to opponents and fans alike.

But ever since Edgar broke an orbital bone in his face during his MMA debut in an unsanctioned bout in the Bronx, he has been willing to do just about anything to win a fight. He claims it's part of his upbringing — not in his loving childhood home, but in simply growing up in New Jersey.

"That's kind of the culture of the East Coast," he said with a laugh. "To fight on the boardwalk is part of what we do."

Edgar hasn't had to do any ridiculous weight-cutting, given that he normally walks around under 160 pounds, and he doesn't anticipate any problems making the 145-pound limit with all of his power intact. Edgar likely would be favored against any other featherweight fighter, but the good-natured former Rutgers wrestler couldn't turn down an immediate title shot.

"If I win, it's going to take care of everything else," Edgar said. "The championship, the legacy, everything will be there. When I started out, I just wanted to make sure I was a person that could stick around and be a part of this sport, so to accomplish everything that I have is everything I ever imagined."

Aldo acknowledges it's more difficult for him to make 145 pounds for each fight, and he could be headed to lightweight in the near future. It's tough to argue, given his dominance at featherweight while rising from small-time promotions to the defunct WEC and the UFC, winning 14 straight bouts since November 2005.

In fact, Aldo has taken more damage from the Rio de Janeiro pavement than any opponent in the past year. While riding a motorcycle, Aldo was cut off by a car in the Copacabana neighborhood near the beach, leading to a crash in which he injured his right foot and leg.

The injury forced the postponement of this fight, originally scheduled for last October. Aldo got back to training after a few weeks off, determined to face the only serious threat to his featherweight supremacy.

"I was upset, because I really wanted that fight right then," said Aldo, who isn't eager to get back on a motorcycle. "I'm going to buy a car with my check from this fight. I've already got it picked out."

High school students participate in a floor hockey game between the Humboldt High School Hawks (in black) and the Rochester Raiders in St. Paul, Minn.

A Map for Including Disabled Students in Sports

BY KYLE POTTER
Associated Press

ST. PAUL, Minn. • After a tough 5-1 loss, Jordan Anderson was sweaty, short of breath and sorry he hadn't played stronger defense during the floor hockey game at Humboldt High. He resolved to improve next time.

"I can get the puck out of my team's end better," he said.

The junior with epilepsy and a developmental disability spends a lot of time in the gym. He plays soccer in the fall, floor hockey in the winter and softball and bowling in the spring.

As the federal government pushes schools to include more students like Anderson in sports, Minnesota offers a map for how to do it and a look at the challenges that come along the way.

What started 40 years ago as a game of wheelchair floor hockey among friends has grown into a thriving statewide league that offers four sports. Disabled students can earn letters and win state championships.

"I would say we're the model state," said Jim Muckenhirn, who runs the Minnesota Adapted Athletics Association. "It's a matter of taking what we've already done" and creating similar programs in other states.

The Education Department last week declared that schools should make "reasonable modifications" for disabled students who want to play on traditional sports teams or in their own leagues. It's not clear exactly how the order will be implemented. Officials said they didn't intend to guarantee students with disabilities a spot on competitive teams.

Minnesota's program traces its roots to the early 1970s, when Jim Christy, a student with cerebral palsy, asked his gym teacher at Marshall University High School in Minneapolis why he and his friends couldn't play hockey against other schools, like their classmates.

Christy and his friends started changing floor hockey rules so "kids with wheelchairs and walkers would be able to play." Soon they had a three-team league. Then more teams joined. Indoor soccer and softball were eventually added.

Parents, coaches and administrators pushed for years to get the state to recognize adapted athletics. In 1992, the Minnesota State High School League took charge. It has separate divisions for athletes with physical and cognitive disabilities.

Participation in the state's adapted sports has more than doubled since 1994 — up to 1,700 registrations last season.

Over the past two decades, Minnesota officials have learned how to modify sports for disabled athletes to keep games fair yet competitive, like moving all games indoors (so students on wheels can play) and instituting a no-running rule (to minimize the advantage of more mobile athletes).

They've also confronted big challenges, mostly involving cost. In St. Paul public schools, for example, about 3 percent of students played an adapted sport last year, but the adapted sports budget consumed more than 10 percent of the overall athletics budget.

Teams with players in wheelchairs have to hire buses with lifts. And because many schools have to combine to field enough players for a team, they need several buses to get players to and from practices and games.

Those transportation costs are far higher in rural areas, where having fewer disabled students means traveling longer distances. It's why almost all of Minnesota's adapted sports teams are in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area.

To cut costs, some schools play sharply limited schedules. In Brainerd, in central Minnesota, the Warriors' adapted floor hockey team has no opponent nearer than 100 miles. Athletics Director Charlie Campbell said the team plays just 10 games — five home, five away — to save money. Even so, the expense would daunt many schools, Campbell said.

"How do you add a pretty good line-item to the budget when most of what you're doing is trying to figure out how to do more with less?" Campbell asked.

In St. Paul, Jordan Anderson's game against the Rochester Raiders this week didn't attract a big crowd — perhaps 20 people, mainly parents and family members. But the game was competitive, and the fans loved it.

OBITUARIES

Ralph L. Young

Aug. 15, 1928- Jan. 29, 2013

BURLEY • Ralph LeRoy Young, age 84, of Burley, died Tuesday evening, Jan. 29, 2013, at Portneuf Medical Center in Pocatello.

Ralph was born Aug. 15, 1928, in Lakin, Kan., the son of Earl Anderson and Emalena Agusta (Hoss) Young. He received his education in Lakin and graduated from Lakin High School. He married Gaye Rose of Murtaugh on May 27, 1949. Together, they resided in Murtaugh until 1963, when they moved to Burley and where they have since resided.

While living in Murtaugh, Ralph worked for Thorne's Grocery Store. After relocating to Burley, he worked for two years at Jay's Fine Foods and then was employed at McCaslin Lumber Company for more than 25 years. Ralph thoroughly enjoyed his association with the McCaslin family and especially treasured the lifelong friendships made with the devoted customers he had the privilege of serving.

No matter where Ralph lived, he was actively involved in the community. He was a former member of the Murtaugh Grange and the Elks Lodge and was an active member of the Burley United Methodist Church. He enjoyed the outdoors and enjoyed fishing. Additionally, he was an avid bowler, an expert in wood working and was known for his handyman's skills. However, most important to Ralph was his family. He was a devoted and loving husband, father and grandfather.

Ralph is survived by his wife of nearly 64 years, Gaye Young of Burley; his son and his wife, Richard (Kim Errecart) Young of Burley; two grandchildren, Robert "Tx-otx" Young and Brooke Beach; three great-grandchildren, Tristen, Jamie and Heather; two great-grandsons, Joshua and Alex Nuova; and his siblings, Joseph (Freida) Young of Twin Falls, Laura Anderson (Gary Bowles) of Richland, Wash., and Donald Young and Betty (Richard) Carrier, all of Twin Falls. He was preceded in death by his parents; and his son, David Allen Young.

Ralph's life will be celebrated at a memorial service to be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Feb. 5, at the United Methodist Church, 450 E. 27th St. in Burley, with the Rev. Kathy Abend officiating. Burial will follow at the Pleasant View Cemetery. Arrangements have been entrusted to the care of the Rasmussen Funeral Home of Burley.

ACTIVISTS TRY TO SAVE OLD WARSAW GHETTO BUILDING

WARSAW, Poland (AP) • It was the place where Jewish women did their ritual bathing. It was a tuberculosis clinic. It survived the German onslaught and became a gathering point for Holocaust survivors. Now "the white building," the headquarters of the Jewish community and one of the few surviving remnants of the infamous Warsaw Ghetto, could be torn down to make way for a multistory tower that would fit seamlessly into a modern city skyline.

The building's fate will soon be determined by the Culture Ministry, which has been asked by advocates of historic preservation to declare it a historical monument, a classification that would ban its destruction. It's not yet clear how officials will decide, though previous rulings by other state offices had declared the building not worth saving. Now those for and against destroying the old building are anxiously awaiting a verdict.

What is perhaps unexpected in this case is who is fighting for what: Warsaw's Jewish community, which owns the dilapidated three-story building, is making the case for its destruction. The community leaders argue that a bigger building is needed to accommodate a Jewish community that is re-emerging in the young Polish democracy after the Holocaust and decades of communist repression.

The white building, in the heart of the city's business district, is the place where the Jewish community gathers for lectures, Shabbat dinners, holidays, even sports.

SENIOR

Q. My grandma gambles occasionally. She is a responsible person but I want to give her some thoughtful words of advice. Can you help?

A. More and more seniors spend time at casinos. Many consider a casino outing an enjoyable break from their regular routine. However, gambling activity can cause problems for people of any age, and especially lonely, and perhaps bored, older adults. Share these tips with loved ones who gamble: PLAN AHEAD: SET A DOLLAR LIMIT AND STICK TO IT. Decide before you go not only what you can "afford" to lose, but how much you want to spend. SET A TIME LIMIT AND STICK TO IT: Leave when you reach the time limit whether you are winning or losing. BE PREPARED TO LOSE: The odds are that you will lose. DO NOT GAMBLE ON CREDIT, and do not borrow to gamble. CREATE BALANCE IN YOUR LIFE: Gambling is a poor substitute for friends, family, work and other worthwhile activities.

Mexico Oil Blast: 14 Dead, 100 Injured

MEXICO CITY (AP) • An explosion at the main headquarters of Mexico's state-owned oil company in the capital killed 14 people and injured 100 on Thursday as it heavily damaged three floors of a building, sending hundreds into the streets and a large plume of smoke over the skyline.

Another 30 people remained trapped in the debris late Thursday, according to the Interior Ministry, as teams of military with rescue dogs showed up to extract the victims. The blast occurred in the basement of an administrative building next to the iconic, 51-story tower of Petroleos Mexicanos, or Pemex, one of the tallest buildings in Mexico City.

"It was an explosion, a shock, the lights went out and suddenly there was a lot of debris," employee Cristian Obele told Milenio television, adding that he had been injured in the leg. "Coworkers helped us get out of the building."

Ana Vargas Palacio was distraught as she searched for her missing husband, Daniel Garcia Garcia, 36, who works where the explosion occurred at about 3:45 p.m. local time, when many workers were just returning from lunch. She said she last talked to him a couple hours earlier. "I called his phone many times, but a young man answered and told me he found the phone in the debris," Vargas said. The two have an 11-year-old daughter.

His mother, Gloria Garcia Castaneda, collapsed on a friend's arm, crying, "My son. My son."

There was no immediate cause given for the explosion in a busy commercial and residential area. Pemex first said it had evacuated the building because of a problem with the electrical system. The company later tweeted that experts from the Attorney General's Office were analyzing the explosion and any reports of a cause were speculation.

The tower, where several thousand people work, was evacuated following the blast but not damaged, according to Gabriela Espinoza, 50, a Pemex secretary for 29 years who was on the second floor when the explosion next door occurred. "There was a very loud roar. It was very ugly," she said.

The explosion occurred in the basement of a 13-story building across from the tower in five-building the Pemex complex, according to Emporis, which collects construction data worldwide. Espinoza's co-worker, Tomas Rivera, 32, worked on the ground floor and was knocked to floor, fracturing his wrist and jaw.

A reporter at the scene saw rescue workers trying to free several workers trapped. Television images showed people being evacuated by office chairs, and gurneys. Most of them had injuries likely caused by falling debris.

Rescue workers and firefighters search for survivors at the site on an explosion in a building of the state-owned oil company PEMEX complex, in Mexico City on Thursday.

AT A GLANCE

US Looking at Action Against China Cyberattacks

The Obama administration is considering more assertive action against Beijing to combat a persistent cyber-espionage campaign it believes Chinese hackers are waging against U.S. companies and government agencies.

As The New York Times and Wall Street Journal reported Thursday that their computer systems had been infiltrated by China-based hackers, cybersecurity experts said the U.S. government is eyeing more pointed diplomatic and trade measures. Two former U.S. officials said the administration is preparing a new National Intelligence Estimate that, when complete, is expected to detail the cyberthreat, particularly from China, as a growing economic problem. One official said it also will cite more directly a role by the Chinese government in such espionage.

The official said the NIE, an assessment prepared by the National Intelligence Council, will underscore the administration's concerns about the threat, and will put greater weight on plans for more aggressive action against the Chinese government. The official was not authorized to discuss the classified report and spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Egypt's Police Regain Mubarak-era Notoriety

With near impunity and the backing of the Islam ist president, Egyptian police have been accused of firing wildly at protesters, beating them and lashing out with deadly force in clashes across much of the country the past week, regaining their Hosni Mubarak-era notoriety as a tool of repression.

In the process, nearly 60 people have been killed and hundreds injured, and the security forces have re-emerged as a significant political player after spending the two years since Mubarak's ouster on the sidelines, sulking or unwilling to fully take back the streets.

Moreover, President Mohammed Morsi, whose Muslim Brotherhood was long oppressed by the security forces, has made it clear that he needs the police on his side to protect his still shaky grip on power. On state TV Sunday, he thanked the police for their response to the protests, a day after dozens had been killed in the Mediterranean city of Port Said. Riot police continued on Thursday to battle rock-throwing protesters in an area near Tahrir Square in central Cairo, the seventh day of clashes in the wave of political violence that has engulfed Egypt — though battles elsewhere have eased somewhat.

The police's furious response to the protests and riots — some of which targeted their stations and left two police officers dead — uncovered the depth of discontent in the once all-powerful security forces. Since Mubarak's fall, they have been demoralized and in disarray. But now they are signaling that they want back the status they held under his rule.

Iran Says It Will Speed Up Nuclear Program

VIENNA (AP) • In a defiant move ahead of nuclear talks, Iran has announced plans to vastly increase its pace of uranium enrichment, which can make both reactor fuel and the fissile core of warheads. Eager to avoid scuttling those negotiations, world powers are keeping their response low-key.

Iran told the International Atomic Energy Agency of its intentions last week, and the IAEA informed member nations in an internal note seen by The Associated Press on Thursday.

The brief note quoted Iran as saying new-generation IR2m "centrifuge machines ...will be used" to populate a new "unit" — a technical term for an assembly that can consist of as many as 3,132 centrifuges. It gave no timeframe. A senior diplomat familiar with the issue said work had not started, adding that it would take weeks, if not months, to have the new machines running once technicians started putting them in.

A 2011 file photo shows Iran's heavy water nuclear facilities near the central city of Arak 150 miles southwest of Tehran.

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., right, asks a question of former Nebraska Sen. Chuck Hagel, center, President Barack Obama's choice for defense secretary, on Capitol Hill in Washington on Thursday.

Republican Senators Hammer Defense Nominee Chuck Hagel

WASHINGTON (AP) • Republican senators hammered former GOP Sen. Chuck Hagel at his confirmation hearing Thursday on issues ranging from Israel and Iran to his support for a group that advocates the elimination of nuclear weapons. But with most Democrats in his corner, an unflustered Hagel seems headed for approval as defense secretary.

Hagel, a former two-term senator from Nebraska, described his views as mainstream and closely aligned with those of President Barack Obama, the Democrat who nominated him. But several GOP members of the Armed Services Committee sought to portray him as radical and unsteady. Sen. Deb Fischer, R-Neb., called his ideas "extreme" and "far to the left" of Obama.

Hagel said he believes America "must engage — not retreat — in the world," and insisted that his record is consistent on that point.

He pointed to Iran and its nuclear ambitions as an example of an urgent national security threat that should be addressed first by attempting to establish dialogue with Iranian rulers, although he said he would not rule out using military force.

"I think we're always on higher ground in every way — international law, domestic law, people of the world, people of the region to be with us on this — if we have ... gone through every possibility to resolve this in a responsible, peaceful way, rather than going to war," he said.

He pushed back on the notion — first raised by one of his harshest Republican critics, Sen. James Inhofe of Oklahoma — that he favors a policy of appeasement.

"I think engagement is clearly in our interest," Hagel told Sen. Saxby Chambliss, R-Ga., who denounced the idea of negotiating with a "terrorist state."

"That's not negotiation," Hagel said. "Engagement is not appeasement. Engagement is not surrender."

After the daylong hearing, committee Chairman Carl Levin, D-Mich., said the panel could vote as early as next Thursday if Hagel quickly provides additional material requested by some members.

The nominee's fiercest exchange came with Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., a fellow Vietnam veteran, onetime close friend and a vote that could carry considerable sway. Politics and Hagel's evolving opposition to the Iraq war caused a split between the two men that was on full display. McCain suggested that Hagel and his critics were not quibbling over small matters.

"They are not reasonable people disagreeing; they are fundamental disagreements. Our concerns pertain to the quality of your professional judgment and your world-view on critical areas of national security," he said.

McCain pressed Hagel on whether he was right or wrong about his opposition to President George W. Bush's decision to send an extra 30,000 troops to Iraq in 2007 at a point when the war seemed in danger of being lost. Hagel, who voted to authorize military force in Iraq, later opposed the conflict, comparing it to Vietnam and arguing that it shifted the focus from Afghanistan.

"Were you right? Were you correct in your assessment?" McCain asked.

"I would defer to the judgment of history to sort that out," Hagel said as the two men talked over each other.

"The committee deserves your judgment as to whether you were right or wrong about the surge," McCain insisted.

Unable to elicit a simple response, McCain said the record should show that Hagel refused to answer. And he made it clear that he would have the final word — with his vote, which he said would be influenced by Hagel's refusal to answer yes or no.

County Prosecutor Killed Near N. Texas Courthouse

An assistant district attorney was shot and killed Thursday morning near the North Texas courthouse where he worked, and authorities said they were searching through his cases to try to find clues about why he may have been targeted.

Mark Hasse, 57, had exited his vehicle in the parking lot behind the Kaufman County Courthouse annex and was walking toward the building when a masked gunman shot him multiple times just before 9 a.m., Kaufman County authorities said. Hasse was taken away in an ambulance, but it's unclear if he died at the hospital or en route.

Investigators were talking to witnesses and had some leads but had not arrested anyone as of Thursday afternoon, Kaufman Police Chief Chris Aulbaugh said. The suspect or suspects were believed to have fled in a brown or silver older model Ford Taurus. Officials didn't immediately indicate any motive for the shooting in Kaufman, located about 33 miles southeast of Dallas.

Freedom Returns to the Storied City of Timbuktu

TIMBUKTU, Mali (AP) • On the day the French came and the Islamists left, Hawi Traore folded up her veil and tied on a vibrantly-colored wrap-around dress. On the next day, she wore heels. On the day after, she got her hair braided and slipped on sparkly earrings.

And finally, on Thursday, the 12-year-old girl turned the music on her cellphone back on and danced triumphantly in the streets, celebrating freedom from the draconian rules imposed by al-Qaida-linked militants on this desert capital for much of the past year.

Four days since French commandos parachuted onto the sand just north of Timbuktu and liberated the storied city from the Islamists, there is a growing sense of freedom — particularly among women. Their jubilation emphasizes one aspect of the confrontation with Islamists here that is favorable toward the West: Extreme Islam is foreign to the people of this land, whose variety of religion is much milder and more liberal toward women.

The difference is even starker in Timbuktu, despite its reputation as an ancient city at the end of the earth. Until recently, the women of Timbuktu have led a relatively modern existence, where they were not required to be covered and could socialize with men.

That changed last year, when Islamic extremists seized control of the northern half of Mali after a military coup destabilized the country. When they first arrived, Hawi, a tall, fast-talking, sassy preteen girl, was just learning how to put on makeup. She learned the hard way to wear the toungou, the word for veil in the Songhai language. Her slender arm still bears the scar left by the whip of the Islamic police, her punishment for not properly covering up.

Her once-free life became increasingly restricted, as did that of her sisters and friends. The Islamists showed no mercy, beating everyone from pregnant women to grandmothers to 9-year-old girls who weren't fully covered. Even talking to a brother on the front stoop of a woman's own home could get her in trouble.

Smoking, drinking and music were banned. So was playing soccer. The worst punishment was reserved for love outside the rules, and an unmarried couple who had two children out of wedlock were stoned to death in one northern Malian town.

Fatouma Traore lives on Street No. 415 in Timbuktu, the road that runs directly in front of the building where the Islamic Tribunal operated in what was once a luxury, boutique hotel. A leaflet left in the dirt in the courtyard set out eight rules for how women should wear the veil.

Rule No. 1 is that the fabric should cover the entire body. Rule No. 2 is that it can't be transparent. Rule No. 3 is that it needs to be colorless. And finally, Rule No. 8 states that a woman should not perfume herself after putting it on.

"We even bought a veil for this baby," said the 21-year-old Traore, picking up her 1-year-old niece and hoisting her on one hip. "Even if you are wearing the veil and it happens to slip off and you are trying to put it back on, they hit you."

The French military launched an intervention to oust the Islamists from power in northern Mali on Jan. 11, and rapidly forced their retreat from the major cities in less than three weeks.

The French arrived here before midnight on Monday in a platoon of 600 soldiers, accompanied by 200 Malian troops. They included paratroopers flown in from a base in Corsica, who landed in the north under the cover of darkness, as well as a convoy of 150 armored vehicles which simultaneously reached the town's western perimeter, according to a French military spokeswoman.

The Islamists were nowhere to be found. They had vanished into the desert, leaving behind a terrorized population and obstacles for the French.

A plane was parked sideways in the middle of the runway at the airport to prevent other aircrafts from landing. Satellite photos showed the runway was also covered with evenly spaced mounds of dirt, said France's Defense Ministry on Thursday. Fearing hidden mines, the French called in specialists with heavy equipment to clear the 1.8-mile-long landing strip after the damage by the Islamists.

"They destroyed parts of the runway. They removed sections of the asphalt. They destroyed the control tower. We had to control it to make sure that it was not mined," said Capt. Frederic, in charge of communication in Mali for France's 3rd Mechanized Brigade, who could only be identified by his first name in keeping with French military protocol.

Once the airport was secure, the troops rolled into this city of earthen, dun-colored homes in a massive convoy.

They drew crowds so thick that at times, the armored personnel carriers came to a standstill. People waved homemade French flags sewn together from bolts of red, white and blue fabric. Hawi and her mother stood on the side of the road, screaming, "Vive la France!"

The ecstatic women greeting the French were still covered in the all-enveloping veils imposed on them by the former Taliban-inspired occupiers. But hours after watching the French arrival, Hawi went home, folded up her veil and stuffed it away in her closet.

That same day, she pulled out the traditional pagne worn by women in much of sub-Saharan Africa. The Islamists considered it indecent because it was colorful and revealed the shoulders, arms and upper back.

By Tuesday, she dared to wear a pair of heels — also haram, or "forbidden" by the Islamic regime. By Wednesday, she had found a newly opened women's hair salon, where she had her hair braided for the first time in months.

French soldiers are watched by locals, as they drive through the city streets of Timbuktu on Thursday.

Boy Scout Benefit Concert Features LDS Vocalist

BY KIMBERLY WILLIAMS-BRACKETT
For the Times-News

BURLEY • The Snake River Council of Boy Scouts of America is bringing Alex Boye — a faith-based vocalist whose music is described as pop with an African twist — to the Magic Valley for benefit concerts on Friday, Feb. 8, and Saturday, Feb. 9.

Scout executive Dave Kirk said the annual concerts' proceeds go into the operating fund to support Scout programs for boys in the community.

Boy Scouts of America is one of the nation's largest and most prominent values-based youth development or-ganizations.

In previous years the local benefit was held in November; it was post-poned this year due to staff shortage, Kirk said. Past performers have includ-ed pianist Jon Schmidt, cellist Steven Sharp Nelson and the Osmond Broth-ers, to name a few.

TWIN FALLS • When it comes to drag, it's a lot easier to make boobs than to take them away.

At least it seemed that way to Christina McFarling, 21, as she stood in the hallway outside the bathroom Jan. 28, wearing jeans and a black sports bra. With the help of roommate Gary Hopkins, she started the first step in the transformation from female to male.

She needed to tape down her chest to look like pecs instead of breasts so McFarling could go from quiet and shy Christina to her bold and confident drag king persona, "Dante Pistol."

Drag kings are females imper-sonating males by dressing in men's clothing and donning fac-ial hair. Drag queens are men

Men of Las Vegas Return to Sold-out Crowd

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

JEROME • For one night, Las Vegas is in Idaho and it's rain-ing men in the desert.

Diamondz Bar and Grill in Jerome on Feb. 6 will present Men of Las Vegas, a troupe that has appeared on HBO, daytime soap operas, MTV, E Entertainment and in Men's Fitness magazine.

Diamondz Bar and Grill manager Julie Dodson said this is the third time the group has performed at the bar and the first time to a sold-out crowd.

If you have tickets, plan to be cozy.

On Jan. 30 a limited number of tickets were released after organizers rearranged some things to allow more specta-tors. And blame it on the pop-ularity of the movie "Magic Mike," but on Wednesday morning Dodson predicted that with the way those tickets were selling the event would be sold out again in a matter of hours.

"They're real hot guys; they've always been real pro-fessional ... five or six guys come in and put on a dance for the women," Dodson said.

Often the men dress up as characters such as cowboys or knights, Dodson said.

Show for Women

Men of Las Vegas will per-form 7-9 p.m. Feb. 6 at Dia-mondz Bar and Grill, 220 W. Main St. in Jerome. Organiz-ers expected the show to be sold out before today.

Details: The show is for 21 and older, and DJ music will follow. Free rides to and from the bar are available.

Information: 644-1111.

According to the Men of Las Vegas website, the show is de-signed for women and is a a safe gathering for people who are lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender or questioning, as well as their straight allies.

Spectrum's president, Tia Welch, said the club has around 15 members and another 15 or so who are friends of club members and often attend meetings. This is the first fundraising event the club has organized, with a silent auction to benefit the Twin Falls School District to establish or support anti-bullying programs.

Welch said it's not often that one gets to see a drag show in Twin Falls, especially one for all ages.

"I have a 12-year-old daughter, and the only time she gets to see her queens and kings is at gay prom," Welch said.

Proceeds from the drag show will help six Spectrum officers attend the Power of One conference in Boise in April.

But Welch also said the show was a way for people who are questioning or in the closet to have an outlet, if even for one day.

"We want the community to come in with an open mind and be open to the experience. We want this to benefit not just CSI but the entire community," said Spectrum's vice president, Kaitlin Garofano.

Dudes and Darlings will include not only amateur performers but also professionals — from the Imperial Sovereign Gem Court of Idaho based in Boise. Also known as "The Court," the nonprofit organization was established in 1980.

Saturday night won't be the first time McFarling — a Spectrum member and a CSI student studying law enforcement and criminal justice — has stepped on stage as Dante Pistol. She has performed in Des Moines, Iowa, and Pocatello, but this will be her first performance in Twin Falls. McFarling plans to lip sync and dance to "The Evolution of Dance," which is a sampling of moves and music from different artists, such as Michael Jackson's "Thriller" and Sir Mix-a-Lot's "Baby Got Back."

"It's fun being somebody else, but still being yourself," McFarling said as she applied a patch of hair to her chin with glue.

Whenever she gets a haircut, McFarling said, she saves the clippings because they look better than fake hair. Hopkins stood in the hallway watching McFarling apply the hair in front of the bathroom mirror.

Hopkins has never attended a drag show, but McFarling showed him clips on the Internet.

"It was kind of weird seeing a bunch of guys dressed like girls," he said.

And though prior plans will keep Hopkins from seeing his roommate perform, he still offered her advice: "Men don't match," Hopkins said.

"What you have to remember is that drag kings are still girls, and girls like to match," McFarling said, as she applied her sideburns with mascara.

"I wake up and just put on some clothes and leave," Hopkins said.

McFarling was born and raised in Jerome, but when she lived in Iowa she dressed like Dante Pistol more often — about three times a week — because there were bars holding benefit drag shows.

As McFarling fixed the details — getting the black-and-gray camouflage bandanna just right — she sprayed herself with a little Ed Hardy cologne. The final touch to the transformation.

Hopkins admitted he has used some of Dante Pistol's cologne.

"It smells better than the stuff I got," he said.

And now that Dante Pistol was dressed to impress and the drag show was six days away, where was he going to go?

"I might go see one of my friends," McFarling said.

Boye has entertained audiences around the world for more than 15 years. Although he was born and raised in London, he moved to Salt Lake City in 2000. Boye has had hits in more than 15 countries, selling more than half a million CDs.

In 2011 he performed on Glenn Beck's "Restoring Courage" rally in Jerusalem where he received a standing ovation for his spiritually charged rendition of "Make Them Hear You," promoters say.

Boye wants to touch many more souls with his music.

"I don't want to do music to just entertain, even though I love to do that, but I want to use it to strengthen broken hearts and most importantly help people feel the Spirit," the vocalist says on his website.

As well as working as a recording artist, he is a member of the Mormon Tabernacle Choir.

A year ago Boye released a video titled "Peponi," a cover of Coldplay's hit song "Paradise" with the Piano Guys. The video has been viewed by millions on YouTube. The huge response from the video and hundreds of requests prompted Boye to produce an album of eclectic pop music laced with triumphant African sounds; he is of Nigerian descent.

"I am a big fan because of his life story," said Gina Jensen from Wendell.

While Boye's mother returned to London, his father remained in Nigeria. Although Boye lived with his father in Nigeria for the first few years of his life, he was abandoned, Jensen said. Boye spent much of his youth in foster homes.

"When he was 16, he was working at McDonald's in London when he was introduced to The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints by the manager," Jensen said.

Boye served as an LDS missionary for two years in England.

Jensen said she took an interest in him because he has a good message and a fun personality. And she likes his music.

Boye will perform Friday evening, Feb. 8, at the King Fine Arts Center in Burley; a cabaret dinner is at 6 p.m. followed by a 7:30 p.m. concert.

The Saturday, Feb. 9, performance is at 7:30 p.m. at the College of Southern's Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium in Twin Falls.

The Burley cabaret dinner and concert is $150 per couple. Tickets for 7:30 p.m. performances only are $12 for general admission if purchased before Feb. 2, and $15 after Feb. 2.

Buy tickets in Twin Falls at Deseret Book, Welch Music, Bell's Family Books or the CSI Ticket Office; in Burley at Book Plaza or Welch Music; or online at www.srcouncil.org/alexboye.

Indie Band with Mexo Sound Makes Idaho Debut

SUN VALLEY • Named Boston's Americana Artist of the Year, the self-proclaimed "Mexo-Americana" indie band David Wax Museum will make its Idaho debut on Friday, Feb. 8.

It may be the only time anybody has rattled a donkey jawbone at the Sun Valley Opera House.

Anchored by David Wax and Suz Slezak, the folk and roots band has been featured on NPR's "Mountain Stage," "World Cafe" and "All Things Considered."

David Wax Museum's fourth album, "Knock Knock Get Up," was just added to the lineup of the 2013 Wakarusa Festival.

"This band is on a lineup with Widespread Panic, Black Crowes, Calexico and Galactic, to give you an idea of who they rub shoulders with. It's everyone's chance to see a band whose star is rising quickly," said Kristine Bretall, director of performing arts at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts.

With the familiar sounds of Americana roots and folk music, David Wax also blends in Mexican Son music. While spending summers in rural Mexico, Wax got interested in the instruments and beats of Mexican folk music. And in 2007, Wax teamed up with violinist and singer Slezak, whom he encouraged to track down a quijada, a traditional Mexican percussion instrument made from a donkey's jawbone.

What began as an innovative duo is now a four-piece band that plays fiddle, accordion, drums, cajon, bass, guitars and keyboards and sings.

The concert begins at 6:30 p.m. Feb. 8 at the Sun Valley Opera House. Tickets at www.sunvalleycenter.org or 208-726-9491, ext. 10, are $20 for Sun Valley Center members and $30 for others; $10 for students 18 and younger.

Thriller Is Fictional Commentary on Vietnam, Drug War

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls author Mark Schuckert's first action thriller puts its characters in the middle of two controversial issues.

In "Blood for Blood," the legacies of the Vietnam War and the drug war collide in a remote mountain valley. It's a story of betrayal and people who work the law to their own advantage. And it's a tale that aims to make readers reconsider their positions on both wars.

Schuckert said it's a fictional indictment of what he calls the "Criminal Justice Industrial Complex."

Schuckert said he grew up in the mountains of northern California, became a wildland firefighter before joining the U.S. Navy and served on-board the USS Valley Forge, LPH-8. He and his shipmates made raids up and down the coast of Vietnam, he said.

Later, he said, he taught ship's engineering to naval reservists, graduated from Humboldt State University, joined the California National Guard commissioned infantry, transferred to the Army Corp of Engineers and finished his career as a company commander. Now in Idaho, he has worked for Amalgamated Sugar Co. since 1991.

"Blood for Blood" is $29.99 for hardcover, $19.99 for softcover and $3.99 for e-book.

Schuckert plans two February book signings in Twin Falls: 1-3 p.m. Feb. 16 at Barnes & Noble; and 5-8 p.m. Feb. 19 at Hastings.

"Also, 'Blood for Blood' will be shown at the London Book Fair 8-9 March, that's London, England, and will also go to the UCLA campus, 20-21 April, for another book fair," Schuckert wrote in an email.

combination of choreographed production numbers, individual acts, live vocal performances and comedy.

Patricia Hermann of Twin Falls went to Men of Las Vegas when the troupe was in the area two years ago. Hermann is especially excited for the Wednesday-night show because she is having her bachelorette party there — a gift from her mother and sister-in-law.

Sharlena Combs, Hermann's mother, said she has seen Chippendales but prefers Men of Las Vegas. She said it's because the men are good looking and are more interactive with the crowd.

"They have better ... bedside manners," Combs said. "The girls have lots of fun."

Kim Bitt of Buhl has tickets to Wednesday's sold-out show.

"I went last time they were here. I was shocked and impressed and wanted to go again. I was definitely happy when Diamondz invited them back," she said.

Last time, Bitt was recovering from cancer surgery. "A friend told me, 'You need to get out of the house,'" Bitt said.

And how were the Men of Las Vegas?

"They were very polite and respectful, and when they found out why I was there they signed a T-shirt for me and the trunk of my car," Bitt said.

She had to sell the car, but when she did she asked if she could take the trunk. Of course she couldn't, so somewhere out there is a Dodge with the signatures of male dancers.

PROFESSIONAL Copy Editor

Times-News/Twin Falls, Idaho
Wanted: One Copy Editor who can whip up graphics and maps, read copy, write headlines and design pages on a universal desk. But you'll need to do more than that. You'll need to create visual stories that can be read in two seconds. You'll need to understand people are attracted to small things, like the closing of a theater curtain, the pause in a musical score, the darkness between the fireflies. You'll need to create a masterpiece.

If you're up for it, we have your canvas. The Times-News is searching for a creative copy editor who can do it all.

The Times-News is a 17,500-circulation daily newspaper (21,500 on Sundays) owned by Lee Enterprises. It offers a competitive salary, medical, dental, vision, and life insurance benefits, vacation, sick, holiday pay and 401K-retirement plan.

To apply, log on to www.magicvalley.com/workhere. Portfolios of all shapes, sizes and sounds can be sent to News Editor Robert Monteith at rmonteith@magicvalley.com. Show us you're a human being, rather than an "applicant," and you'll be on the right track.
We are a drug-free workplace, and all applicants considered for employment must pass a post-offer drug screen prior to commencing employment.

THERE'S NEVER BEEN A BETTER TIME TO BUY! UNLIMITED CHOICES! INTEREST RATES ARE LOWER THAN EVER!

Today is Friday, Feb. 1, the 32nd day of 2013. There are 333 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Feb. 1, 2003, the space shuttle Columbia broke up during re-entry, killing all seven of its crew members.

On this date:
In 1790, the U.S. Supreme Court convened for the first time in New York. (However, since only three of the six justices were present, the court recessed until the next day.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

In 1861, Texas voted to leave the Union at a Secession Convention in Austin.

In 1862, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," a poem by Julia Ward Howe, was published in the Atlantic Monthly.

In 1922, in one of Hollywood's most enduring mysteries, movie director William Desmond Taylor was shot to death in his Los Angeles home; the killing has never been solved.

In 1942, the Voice of America broadcast its first program to Europe, relaying it through the facilities of the British Broadcasting Corp. in London.

In 1943, one of America's most highly decorated military units, the 442nd Central Postal Directory, made up almost exclusively of Japanese-Americans, was authorized.

In 1946, Norwegian statesman Trygve Lie was chosen to be the first secretary-general of the United Nations.

In 1960, four black college students began a sit-in protest at a Woolworth's lunch counter in Greensboro, N.C., where they'd been refused service.

In 1968, during the Vietnam War, South Vietnam's police chief (Nguyen Ngoc Loan) executed a Viet Cong officer with a pistol shot to the head. Richard M. Nixon announced his bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

In 1979, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini received a tumultuous welcome in Tehran as he ended nearly 15 years of exile.

In 1991, 34 people were killed when an arriving US-Air jetliner crashed atop a commuter plane on a runway at Los Angeles International Airport.

In 1993, Gary Bettman took office as the NHL's first commissioner.

Ten years ago: At least 50 people were killed in a Zimbabwe train collision. Former Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng died in Modesto, Calif., at age 84.

Five years ago: Exxon Mobil posted the largest annual profit by a U.S. company — $40.6 billion — and the biggest quarterly profit to that time, breaking its own records. Microsoft announced an unsolicited bid for Yahoo, which later rejected it. Remote-controlled explosives strapped to two women killed at least 100 people in Baghdad.

One year ago: Facebook announced plans to go public with a stock offering. (The social network priced its IPO at $38 per share, but the stock started to fall soon after the first day of trading.) A Southern California woman who'd filed a small-claims action against Honda won her lawsuit when a judge ruled that the automaker had misled her about the potential fuel economy of her hybrid car. (However, another judge overturned the nearly $10,000 small claims judgment in May 2012.) In Port Said, Egypt, at least 74 people were killed after soccer fans rushed the field following an upset victory by the home team over Egypt's top club. Don Cornelius, 74, creator of "Soul Train," died in Los Angeles of a self-inflicted gunshot wound. Boxing trainer Angelo Dundee died in Tampa, Fla., at age 90.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Stare, stare in the basin And wonder what you've missed."
— W.H. Auden

West leads the heart king against your three-no-trump contract and persists with the suit. You win the heart ace on the third round, and with eight top tricks must aim to develop a ninth from one of the minor suits, without allowing West on lead. What is your plan?

Looking for a 3-3 break in the club suit can wait. The first priority is to seek an extra trick from the diamonds. If the suit breaks 3-3, two extra tricks will drop into your lap. Life will also be easy when East holds four diamonds, since you can concede a fourth round to the safe hand. The key situation occurs when West holds four diamonds; in that case you must aim to duck an early diamond trick to East.

At trick four, you lead the diamond nine, intending to run that card to East. Let's suppose that West thwarts you temporarily by covering with the jack. You win the trick in dummy and return to your hand with the club king. You then lead the diamond four toward dummy. West cannot afford to rise with the 10 or you will make all five diamond tricks. He plays low and you cover with dummy's seven, ducking the trick into the safe hand. East wins with the eight and you have ensured your contract when he follows suit. What is more, you will be spared the annoyance of finding that clubs were 3-3 all along!

ANSWER: There is no easy way to show your fifth spade and simultaneously invite game. The best you can do is to rebid two no-trump and hope that your partner will bid out his shape if he has three spades, or rebid his minors as appropriate. Facing a minimum opening bid, two no-trump may be as good a partscore as any.

DEAR ABBY: A great man once said, "A life without love is no life at all." So many people find love in so many ways, either through arranged marriages or at social events, school or college.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

I have always been a hopeless romantic, but since the end of my eight-year relationship, my heart no longer feels the same. I feel as though love will never find me.

I know people say when it happens you will know, but my question is: How do you really KNOW? And when that time does ever come, how do you prepare your heart for love after a tragic loss?

— TRYING TO GO ON

DEAR TRYING: I'm sorry for your loss and heartache. But unless your lover was wrenched from you by death, you should do what people of both sexes must when a romance ends — ask yourself why and what you have learned from it.

The failure of a romance doesn't mean that love will never happen again. You will know you have found love when you meet someone who makes you feel strong instead of dependent, who appreciates you for the person you are and isn't threatened by your successes, who supports you when you're down, takes pride in your accomplishments, and will hug you even after a difficult day. And it shouldn't take "preparation," just a willingness to risk putting yourself out there and a little good luck.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I live more than 1,000 miles away from our family. When our relatives fly out to visit us, should we feel obligated to let them use one of our cars to travel/tour while they are here? (Money is not an issue.) In most cases, they may be on the other side of the state for several days, leaving my husband and me to share a car. It is an inconvenience because my husband and I leave for work at different times.

However, this isn't my only concern. Will insurance cover our car if they have an accident in it? When we visit them, we drive their car within city limits only, and when it's convenient for them. Please reply ASAP because they're coming here soon.

— STRESSED OUT IN COLORADO

DEAR STRESSED OUT: Because money is not an issue, I assume that your relatives can afford to rent a car during their visit. The same rules should apply to them that apply to you in a similar situation. Your car should be for your own convenience, since you and your husband need transportation to work.

As to the insurance liability should someone have an accident while driving your vehicle, the person to ask is your insurance broker.

DEAR ABBY: I have a dear friend who recently remarried. He has always said that what he and his late wife worked for should go to their children. However, I have just learned that his prenup was n't signed until AFTER their marriage. Also, it was drawn up by an accountant, not a lawyer.

I always thought that a prenup was an agreement to specific conditions BEFORE a marriage. Am I right, and is a prenup valid if it is signed after the wedding?

— CURIOUS IN KANSAS CITY

DEAR CURIOUS: A document like the one you have described is called a POST-nuptial agreement. It should have been drafted by your friend's attorney, then reviewed by an attorney representing the wife to be sure she fully understood what she was signing. If she did not, then it may not be legal and enforceable.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

IF FEBRUARY 1 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Make your mark before the middle of April. Your health will be excellent, you will have access to trustworthy advice and you can set crucial plans into motion successfully, especially in late March. This is also a superior time to sign contracts, make major changes such as moving into a new home, or to meet significant people who will be a first-rate influence on your life. The same can't be said for September; during that month, you must work hard just to keep your head above water. People may be more critical of your work during the early fall, so get to work on time and fulfill all obligations to the letter without accepting any avoidable new responsibilities.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Hold your horses. Enlist the support of your friends and obtain valuable feedback about a new enterprise before you embark on strategic changes. You aren't aware of all the ramifications of a business plan.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Someone has a wandering eye trained on you. If you play your cards right, you may be invited out for a romantic evening built for two. Your intuitions and premonitions are on target with loved ones.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Become an avid student of human nature and learn everything you can. Friends may elect you as a mediator because of your boundless enthusiasm, cheerful outlook and right-on-the-money insights.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Remember, Dumbo didn't really need that "magic" feather to fly. Where business matters are concerned, you might be worried about things that don't exist and forget to remain alert for obvious scams. Put on your thinking cap.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Brush off the chip that has landed on your shoulder. Be seen in public places or at events where your amiable social instincts can take charge. You can explain your ideas with great charm.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Make the rounds. You have a knack for sparkling conversation and entertaining ideas. Use wisdom and tact to direct energies into constructive avenues and consider the needs of the common good.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't forget that there is more to life than material things. A special someone waiting patiently in the wings wants you make the first move. Romance may hit some new heights in the next few days.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be sure that new undertakings or projects are under control before you leave the office or your desk for the day. You can be guided by a trusted partner. Enjoy a romantic evening with a significant other.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Unleashing a great appetite can result in great obligations. Even a squirrel knows enough to store nuts for a rainy day. You have a taste for the best things. Remain balanced about finances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Relentless pressure forms diamonds. When your love life or a business deal is on the line, you must keep on pushing. The odds may seem slim, but they are much better than you think.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may be wired for wild times. A profusion of input from others, including TV and other media, could open up new interests. Friends and new contacts offer good advice and provide a safety net.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Rely on your own intuition and pay attention to fresh insights. Someone who seems stodgy and conservative is steady as a rock and might be the perfect person to balance your somewhat-flighty tendencies.

EXPERT: BURDEN WILL SHIFT WITH PROPERTY TAX REPEAL

BOISE (AP) • A policy expert with the Idaho Tax Commission says a repeal of the state's personal property tax on business equipment would force residential and commercial property owners to make up for lost revenue dedicated to public schools.

Republican lawmakers are considering repealing the tax that businesses and companies pay on desks, chairs and heavier items such as transmission lines and factory machinery. Business leaders and lobbyists have been pushing the repeal for several years, calling the tax a drag on business development and economic growth.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter supports getting rid of the tax, which generates about $141 million annually and is distributed to cities, counties and public schools.

On Tuesday, Alan Dornfest, the Tax Commission's property tax policy supervisor, explained the consequences of doing so.

He said the result of repealing the tax is simple: an automatic tax shift to residential and commercial property owners to make up the more than $38 million a year that goes to schools from the tax on business equipment. With the exception of school districts in Lewiston and Boise, every district in the state would be affected by the shift.

Lawmakers have options to avoid putting a new burden on home and commercial property owners. Dornfest said the Legislature could appropriate general fund revenue to make up the difference for schools.

House and Senate leaders consider elimination of the property tax on business a priority for the 2013 Legislature.

Of the $141 million, cities get about $33 million and Idaho's 44 counties' share about $39 million. Counties have decried repeal, saying it would cut too deeply into budgets, especially for small counties that depend heavily on the tax to make ends meet. In Caribou County, the property tax accounts for more than 40 percent of the cash the county needs to fix roads, pay public defenders and pay indigent health care bills.

Otter has also said he would favor giving cities and counties local-option sales tax authority to offset the revenue loss from the business tax.

that re-circulates the water with chlorination or a system that uses fresh water.

He said the industry is starting to lean toward the fresh water system after comparing the water use with re-circulating systems that have to be periodically flushed. The water use is about equal, he said.

The water can be disposed of several ways, he said, including putting it into the city's sanitary waste system, discharging it in a canal or reusing it in the city's low-pressure water system.

Other questions included concern that the contemporary design of the interactive fountain is not in keeping with the historical flair of the town's central square. The area's first well and many early businesses were located on and around the Square.

The design must use new surfaces such as non-slip stone for wet areas, Johnson said. But there is enough room in the design to allow them to "blend" the fountain with surrounding historic structures.

Businessman Charlie Creason, a member of the renovation committee, said if the correct materials are used they will reflect the surrounding buildings and become a unifying element.

City officials are considering other improvements, who say some of the park's trees need to be removed, its sidewalks need repair and other features could be updated.

One audience member said she'd like to see the city get rid of some of the features that have accumulated at the park.

Johnson said it would be wise for the city to develop a master plan for the park's entire development.

Adams said the city should also reach out to surrounding communities that have implemented successful fountains to see what kinds of difficulties they have encountered.

"That way you can avoid a lot of bumps in the road," he said.
