Man Held on $1M Bond Accused of Abusing Baby

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

BUHL • A Buhl man who was arrested on charges of watching pornography in the presence of an infant has now been accused of sexually abusing the baby. Miguel Angel Medina-Mariscal, 37, now faces an additional charge of lewd and lascivious conduct with a child under 16. He was arrested after Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies responded to a home on 3700 North, south of Buhl. Deputies discovered he had two warrants out for his arrest from California, one on a lewd conduct charge and one connected with possession of a controlled substance. At the time of the arrest, a woman told police the baby was lying on the bed and Medina-Mariscal was masturbating close to the baby while pornography played on a television in the room, according to a police report. The report states the woman could not tell if Medina-Mariscal touched the baby. Later in a Jan. 31 interview with Children at Risk Evaluation Services, the woman said she did see Medina-Mariscal touch the baby with his genitals, the report states. Medina-Mariscal allegedly asked for forgiveness and said he would never do it again when he asked the woman not to call police, the report states. The report states Medina-Mariscal admitted to his family that he attempted to rape the infant, but he said he stopped and he was sorry. Medina-Mariscal is being held at the Twin Falls County Jail on a $1 million bond for his California warrants and a $300,000 bond for his new lewd conduct charge in Twin Falls County. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Feb. 11.

Jerome Council Delays Bond Vote

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesti@magicvalley.com

JEROME • The Jerome City Council delayed voting Tuesday, Feb. 5, on a set amount to ask residents for to improve the city's wastewater treatment facility. Instead, council members agreed to schedule wastewater workshops before the next council meeting to address concerns and questions before approving a bond amount. The delay is a further continuation of the city's attempt to bring a bond issue to voters to pay for the city's wastewater treatment plant.

So far, proposed improvements include improving sewage overflow issues and expanding the facility's capacity to attract further industry growth in Jerome. "Last year we had to turn away four companies because we didn't have the capacity," said Mayor John Shine. During the meeting, the council again listened to the different options the city has in choosing what types of upgrades and how to pay for the expansion.

The cost of facility upgrades varies from $11 million to $58 million, depending on what improvements the city chooses to do, said Larry Rupp, project manager with Keller Associates, an environmental engineering firm. However, because it is unknown how much the city will receive in grants and how much participation the city will receive from industrial users, it is unclear how much wastewater rates would go up under any of the scenarios, Rupp said. Even if the council can agree on a bond amount, some council members doubted that the bond issue would pass in a vote. "I disagree with $50 million," said Councilman Chris Barber. "I love economic growth but we have to be responsible. I will not support a $40 to $50 million bond and I doubt our residents will too." Councilman Dale Ross suggested that larger industrial users should help chip in to pay for the improvements because of the load demand

Foes of Idaho Exchange Still Favor Nullification

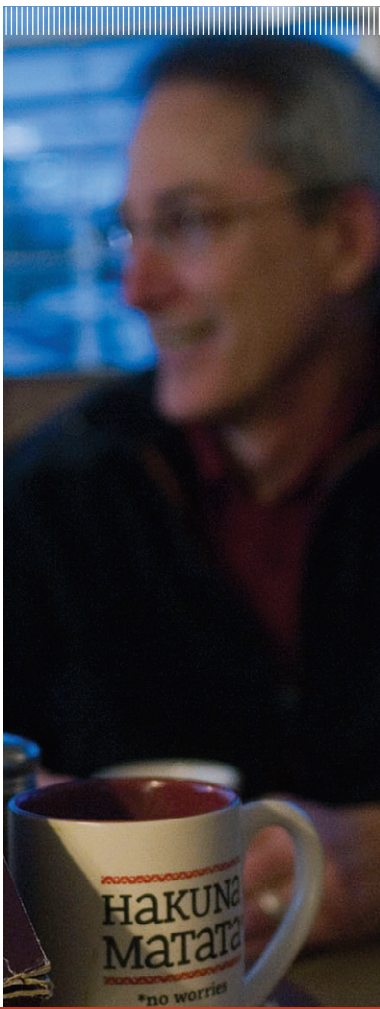

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • The 2011 Legislature rejected nullification as a means of halting President Barack Obama's health insurance overhaul, but the state's rights doctrine continued to echo through the halls of the Idaho Capitol on Tuesday among foes of establishing an insurance exchange. About 200 people attended the Senate Commerce and Human Resources Committee's first hearing on Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's proposal to create a state-based, privately-run online marketplace for individuals and small businesses to buy insurance. Such exchanges are mandated by President Obama's 2009 law. Otter's bill calls for creating a 16-member, governor-appointed board to oversee the marketplace, including consumer advocates, insurance officials, small business representatives and health care providers. Idaho's exchange itself would be run as a nonprofit organization outside government. Although Idaho would get a federally run exchange if it refuses to craft one of its own, opponents of the Affordable Care Act insisted at Tuesday's hearing that the state should simply refuse to do either, on grounds that it's the best way to tell Washington, D.C., to stop meddling in Idaho's affairs. "I'm against any form of health insurance exchange," Eric Pederson, a Boise resident, told the panel. "We have God-given rights, and the better strategy is just to stand up and say 'No! We need to stand up for our liberty, this is a gross violation of our liberty, and if we don't stand up, we'll lose it.'" Two years ago, the Idaho House passed a bill to nullify Obama's overhaul, though the Senate rejected that measure as unconstitutional. On Tuesday, David Hensley, Otter's chief of staff, said the governor doesn't like Obama's Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act any more than he did when he pushed Idaho to sue the federal government over the law in 2010. Even so, Hensley insists that a home-grown exchange will be less expensive for consumers than an exchange run by the federal government — and help ensure that regulation remains in Idaho, not thousands of miles away in the nation's capital. "We don't want to leave those individuals and small business at the mercy of the federal government," Hensley said. "Even with the restrictions of Obamacare, we know we can do a better job at this than the federal government." Hensley estimated that the $10 million annual cost of a state exchange would cost each of the roughly 177,000 Idaho residents expected to buy insurance through it about $58 annually. The cost of a federal

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stocks Rebound on Home Prices, Earnings; Dow Up 99

NEW YORK (AP) • The stock market bounced back Tuesday following a surge in U.S. home prices and signs of recovery in Europe's economy. Strong earnings reports also helped power the gains.

The Dow Jones industrial average ended the day 99.22 points higher at 13,979.30, erasing a large part of its loss from Monday. The index traded above 14,000 during the day before falling back in the last hour.

The Standard & Poor's 500 gained 15.59 points to 1,511.29. The Nasdaq composite was up 40.41 points to 3,171.58.

Federal Spice Trial Delayed Again

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

POCATELLO • The trial for a group of Twin Falls residents accused in a federal synthetic drug case has been delayed once again.

The trial for Allen, Gary and Stephanie Nagel and Joshua Cserepes, all of Twin Falls, and Joshua and Shyloh Becker, both of Oregon, was scheduled to begin Feb. 11. It is now scheduled for May 28 in the U.S. Courthouse in Pocatello.

The group is accused of distributing synthetic marijuana, known as “spice,” “Hayze” and other names. Their arrests were part of a national synthetic drug operation called “Operation Log Jam,” according to details provided by the U.S. Attorney’s Office for the District of Idaho.

A U.S. government filing states its attorneys need more time to do their investigation, review discovery and prepare for trial because the case is complex and involves extensive expert testimony. Defense attorneys did not object to the request.

“Under all these circumstances, the Court finds that a continuance is needed to give all counsel an opportunity for effective preparation,” U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winnill wrote in his order granting the delay.

A pretrial conference by phone is scheduled for May 16.

Each of the defendants is charged with a variety of offenses, including counts of possession with intent to distribute a controlled substance, conspiracy to sell, offer for sale and transport drug paraphernalia, conspiracy to distribute a controlled substance analogue, and money laundering.

If convicted, the punishment for conspiracy to launder money is not more than 20 years in prison and/or a $500,000 fine along with no more than five years of supervised release.

For the majority of the other charges, each count carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a

What Is Spice?

The term “spice” refers to a range of synthetic forms of marijuana, sprayed on plant matter and usually sold as incense. If misused, the substances can cause a range of health problems, and both state and federal authorities have worked to ban and regulate the substances for a couple of years.

$100,000 fine.

In a September interview with the Times-News, Nagel admitted to some mistakes but said he would continue to fight the charges against him.

Stories of War and Fish

The cliché “swapping war stories” couldn’t have been more accurate. Times-News chief photographer Ashley Smith and myself were privy to dozens of tales by veterans from World War II to Desert Storm this week during a photo shoot for an upcoming Salute to Veterans edition of the newspaper. It was amazing to see so many heroes all in one room sharing stories and reminiscing about a different time. It doesn’t matter how many books or movies you watch, there’s just nothing like hearing a first hand account about the horrors of war and the ways these men and women found to get through it.

It wasn’t all bad. Many of the stories were filled with humor. One story that stood out to me was from Merl Schmoie. He had done a little fishing during WWII – with percussion grenades. But that’s not where the story ends, for more visit Magicvalley.com on Feb. 17 or pick up the Sunday, Feb. 17, print edition.

New Crime Blog

Since I started working at the Times-News a little more than a year ago, I’ve been thinking about starting a crime blog. Now that thought has become a reality with my blog Scanner Traffic:

Cops, Courts and Crime in the Magic Valley. On Tuesday, Feb. 5, my first blog post went up. It’s a look at how we worked together as a news team to follow a breaking news story last week.

From the time police are called to a scene to the last court hearing, I try to keep readers informed with what’s happening in a case. Sometimes there’s just too much information to fit in.

With my blog, I hope to include some interesting tidbits that can’t fit in articles, the process of tracking down stories, describe the decision-making process for difficult to report on stories, look at trends and themes of stories, answer reader questions and much more.

Find my blog at Magicvalley.com/blogs and our new crime page at magicval-

A Fountain for Rupert Square

Last week, I attended a public meeting on the renovation of the Rupert Square’s fountain. A committee of business owners and residents is developing a plan to rebuild the current fountain at the center of the park into an interactive splash fountain. It was nice to see about three dozen people show up at the meeting to discuss their concerns and pass along ideas despite a bitter cold meeting night. The committee is willing to fundraise for the expected renovation costs, which will likely run $350,000 to $390,000. City officials are also contemplating a master plan for renovation of the rest of the city’s central park. Residents can pick up comment cards for the fountain at Rupert City Hall, 624 F. St.

day, according to announcements from the city of Jerome.

North Fillmore Street is closed for a water line repair and is expected to reopen around 4 p.m. today, the city projected on Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 5.

School Nurses

Last week, I learned that a lot of area schools don’t have a school nurse.

That came as a surprise to me. Some school districts – such as Twin Falls and Minidoka County – have a couple of nurses who split their time between many schools.

Others contract with the South Central Public Health District instead.

In Wendell, the school district pays for 75 hours of services each year.

Superintendent Greg Lowe said they use up all the hours and it isn’t enough.

There are situations that come up at schools, he said, when it “would be wonderful to have a nurse right there.”

Sometimes, if a student comes to the office saying they’re sick, it’s not always easy to know what to do.

“Those decisions can be tough without a medical background,” Lowe said, although staff members are trained in CPR and basic first aid.

He said parents are often called so they can make a decision together with school employees.

McCall Brewing Co.'s Wobbily Man Smoked Scotch Ale.

ONLINE: A Blend of Sweetness and Smoke

Times-News City Editor Nate Poppino blogs about all things beer at "Idaho On Tap." Here's what's on his mind this week:

"Not too much. Just right," proclaims the label of Wobbily Man Smoked Scotch Ale.

"It refers to the amount of smoked malt used in the recipe. But that statement applies just as well to the whole beer itself, which in its blend and restraint is easily one of the best brewed in Idaho."

Let "Drink Idaho" introduce you to a Gem State beer finally available in south-central Idaho.

Exchange

exchange could be more than $150 annually, or three times the state rate, Hensley said.

Another day of Senate hearings on one of the 2013 session's marquee issues is slated for Thursday. But if Tuesday's hearing is any indication, foes will be out in force.

As has often been the case in the debate over Obama's overhaul, those who spoke in the Capitol's auditorium during the 1½ hour hearing invoked the language of revolutionary America to underscore their fear that an exchange is tantamount to tyranny.

"Since when has the federal government been able to force us to do anything, since King George himself?" said Domenic Gelsomino, a Boise State University student active with the group Federation of Idaho College Republicans. "Your constituents have wanted it to be brought down."

Others, however, said the prospect of an exchange, whether run by Idaho or the federal government, was a virtual certainty now that the federal health care overhaul had been upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court and because President Obama was re-elected in November.

Given that, Idaho should create its own, said Fernando Veloz, who heads up the Employer Health Coalition of Idaho, whose members include insurance companies that favor a state-designed exchange.

"Creation of the exchange is inevitable," Veloz said. "The state will come out better with a state exchange."

Sexual Battery Trial Enters Second Week

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The trial for a Twin Falls man who is representing himself against charges of child sexual battery has continued into its second week, with several police detectives testifying.

Robert Brackett, 44, is accused of having a sexual relationship and taking exploitative pictures of a, then 16-year-old girl, two years ago. He faces 14 total charges.

Before the jury entered the courtroom the morning of Monday, Feb. 4, District Judge Michael Crabtree asked that prosecutors identify specific evidence the jury should consider for each charge.

Also Monday, a police detective testified to differences between Brackett's description of his relationship with the alleged victim when he was interviewed by detectives and his statements when he spoke with his daughter over the phone. Detectives also testified about their interviews with the alleged victim.

Other detectives testified about the day of the search of Brackett's home, Jan. 14, 2011.

In his cross-examination, Brackett asked about the chain of custody for cameras and a memory card where the sexually explicit pictures of the then 16-year-old girl were allegedly found.

Brackett and Twin Falls County Deputy Prosecutor Julie Sturgill also argued over mistaking the alleged victim's age can be used as a legal defense to his charges.

Brackett continued his cross-examination of a detective Tuesday, Feb. 5.

Prosecutors called the man who lived in the home where the sexually explicit photos were allegedly taken as a witness.

The man said he'd known the alleged victim for a short while and also knew Brackett for a few years.

The man testified that Brackett would occasionally come to the house to borrow things. The man also testified that he saw Brackett take photos of the alleged victim in his home.

During his cross-examination, Brackett asked that the witness be tested for narcotics, but the request was denied by Crabtree.

Today, testimony will continue from an employee with the Ada County Sheriff's Office who works for the Intermountain West Regional Computer Forensics Laboratory.

The trial is expected to last through this week.

Brackett faces eight counts of using a child in or possessing sexually exploitative material, and six counts of sexual battery committed by lewd or lascivious acts on a minor child aged 16 or 17.

cylinders. Two troopers who specialize in commercial vehicles also responded.

The crash is still under investigation by the Idaho State Police.

Driver Injured When Truck Crashes in Canal

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

HAZELTON • A truck driver was injured early Tuesday, Feb. 5, after his semitrailer crashed into an empty canal ditch, according to Idaho State Police.

Crews were working to clean up diesel fuel and other hazardous materials after the semitrailer crashed Interstate 84 at exit 194 near Hazelton.

Trooper Joe Chandler with the Idaho State Police said the first call about the crash came in at about 3:30 a.m. Chandler said the driver, Ronald Morris, 64, of Bountiful, Utah, was driving west on the highway when he drove off the road and came to a stop in the ditch. It's not certain what caused the driver to leave the road, but Chandler said alcohol and weather were not factors.

Morris was transported by ground ambulance to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls. Morris was wearing his seatbelt.

He was driving a 2012 Freightliner pulling a 1999 Great Dane trailer, hauling empty anhydrous ammonia cylinders. He was listed in good condition Tuesday at the hospital.

Chandler said a hazardous materials team was on scene Tuesday to help clean up about 150 gallons of diesel fuel that spilled, as well as taking care of the ammonia

Reuben Nab

March 14, 1930-
Feb. 3, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Reuben Nab, 82, of Twin Falls, passed away Sunday, Feb. 3, 2013, at his home surrounded by his family.

Reuben was born March 14, 1930, in Montrose, Colo., to Conrad and Molly (Brethauer) Nab. At the age of 6, his family moved to the family farm in Dietrich, Idaho. He grew up in Dietrich and attended schools there. In 1951, he married the love of his life, Grace McCray. To this union, they had three children. Reuben served in the U.S. Army and worked on farms around Dietrich for several years. In 1952, he moved to Gooding where he worked for Rice Motors cleaning and selling cars. Rueben moved his family to Twin Falls in 1962 and started the business that he loved, Aluma Sales Co., selling home improvements. After a couple of years, Reuben combined his business with Mary Carter Paints and sold paints and unfinished furniture. On week-ends, Reuben liked to go boating, water skiing, fishing, dune bugging and snowmobiling. He was very mechanical and loved to work on cars and eventually built his own dune buggy.

Reuben is survived by his wife of 62 years, Grace Nab; his three children, Connie (Ron) Maughan, Pamela (Daniel) Lindauer and Michael Nab. He is also survived by seven grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

A visitation for family and friends will be held at 10 a.m., with a funeral to follow at 11 a.m. Friday, Feb. 8, at Rosenau Funeral Home, 2826 Addison Ave E. in Twin Falls. Entombment will follow the service at Sunset Memorial Park.

Memorial contributions may be made in Reuben's honor to the Welcome to the Alzheimer's Association, Greater Idaho, 6126 W. State St., Suite 305, Boise, ID 83703. Arrangements are under the direction of Dustin Godfrey and the staff at Rosenau Funeral Home.

Rex Andrus Ottley

Aug. 22, 1920-Feb. 3, 2013

BURLEY • Rex Andrus Ottley, 92-year-old former Burley resident, passed away Sunday, Feb. 3, 2013, at the Osmond Senior Living Center in Cedar Hills, Utah.

He was born Aug. 22, 1920, in Elba, Idaho. Rex is the son of Lewis and Margaret Andrus Ottley. In his youth, Rex was involved in 4-H, showing beef cattle. In 1938, he won the Thomas E. Wilson Award for being the best 4-H beef member in the state of Idaho. He also exhibited a steer at the world's fair in San Francisco, where he won fourth place in a class of 180 contestants. Rex graduated from the University of Idaho. He served a mission for the LDS Church in Canada. Rex was a veteran of World War II in the U.S. Army Air Corps.

Rex married Bernell

Jensen in 1949 in the Idaho Falls Temple. They had four children, Bruce, Alan, Susan and Sandra. The two youngest were born in Iran.

For 20 years, Rex and his family lived in Africa, Asia, Vietnam and South America, where Rex worked for the United States Department of Agriculture. He was the chief of agriculture with 280 employees during the Vietnam War.

The funeral will be held at 11:30 a.m. Thursday, Feb. 7, at the Morrison-Payne Funeral Home, 321 E. Main St. in Burley, with military rites by the Mini-Cassia Veterans. Burial will follow in the Gem Memorial Gardens in Burley. Friends may call one hour prior to the service Thursday at the funeral home. Arrangements are under the direction of Morrison-Payne Funeral Home in Burley.

Gerald K. Leis

April 2, 1930-Feb. 4, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Gerald K. Leis was born in Nebraska on April 2, 1930, but spent many years in California. His first wife, Francis, died and four years later, he met his second wife, Joan. They were married 15 years and spent them in the Twin Falls area. He enjoyed fishing, and he and Joan liked traveling in the RV on fishing trips. Gerald was recognized and admired for his bowling skills in the Senior Leagues, usually with a 200-plus average. He got his 300 perfect game when he was 77.

He spent four years in the Navy and was a Korean War veteran.

Gerald is survived by his daughter, Teri; and son, Jerry; his wife, Joan; one granddaughter; one great-granddaughter; his sisters, Norma, Janis and Carol; and sister-in-law, Nancy. He was preceded in death by his parents; and a brother, Curtis.

No service plans are being made until spring.

The family would like to thank the girls at Desert Rose Assisted Living and the men of Vision Hospice for making his last months the best they could be.

Cremation is under the direction of Rosenau Funeral Home and Crematory in Twin Falls.

Gardner Morton ‘Bud’ Keyt

Sept. 27, 1923-Feb. 3, 2013

MERIDIAN • Beloved husband, father, grandfather, great-grandfather, friend and colleague, Gardner Morton “Bud” Keyt, 89, passed away Sunday, Feb. 3, 2013, at his home in Meridian, Idaho.

He was born Sept. 27, 1923, in Glendale, Calif., to Tom Grubbs Keyt and Hazel Mae Freeman-Keyt. The family moved several times during Bud’s youth and resided in Glendale, Santa Barbara and Pasadena, Calif. He graduated from Herbert Hoover High School in 1942. After high school, he attended Service Representative Apprentice School for National Cash Register. He joined the Navy in 1942 and served for four years during World War II, earning the rank of AOM (T) 2c (aviation ordinance, turret specialist second class). He was discharged in 1946 at the naval discharge center in Long Beach, Calif. Following military service, Bud returned to National Cash Register, where he worked for 47 years in service and management capacities until retiring in 1989.

Bud married Joanne Stromwell in 1946 in Glendale, Calif. They were married for 21 years until Joanne’s death in 1967. In February 1969, Bud married Esther McBride (Robbins) in Twin Falls, Idaho. Bud was an active member of the Elks, Civitan, Optimist and Good Sam’s clubs and the Presbyterian Church and held multiple positions within each.

He cherished his family and enjoyed automobiles, airplanes, the outdoors, traveling, RVing, gardening and working crossword puzzles. He volunteered at the Boise VA Medical Center until the age of 88 and received numerous awards and accolades for his service. Bud is survived by his wife, Esther; his sister, Barbara Fox; daughter, Denise Chambers; sons, David Keyt, Kevin Keyt and Tom Keyt; stepdaughters, Jackie Schack and Nellie Anacabe; stepson, Dan Robbins; grandchildren, Doug Chambers, Noell Bautista, Holly Keyt-Son, Eleni Keyt, Carina Keyt, Gabriel Keyt, Dylan Keyt, John Schack, Jake Schack and Nik Anacabe; great-grandchildren, Emily Chambers, Alex Chambers, Libby Bautista, Hylee Bautista, Nolan Schack, Marley Schack and Mickey Schack.

A memorial service will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 9, at Southminster Presbyterian Church, 6500 W. Overland Road, Boise, ID 83709. In lieu of flowers, the family requests memorial donations be made to either the Boise VA Medical Center, Attention: Voluntary Services, 500 W. Fort St. Boise, ID 83702 or to the Southminster Presbyterian Church, 6500 W. Overland Road, Boise, ID 83709.

To share memories with the family, please visit Bud’s memorial webpage online at www.CloverdaleFuneral-Home.com.

Barbara Zimmerman

March 3, 1947-Jan. 29, 2013

JEROME • Barbara Zimmerman, 65, died Tuesday, Jan. 29, 2013, in a Hollywood, Calif., hospital. She had a heart attack and severe stroke.

She was raised in Manhattan Beach, Calif., where she graduated from high school. She married Wayne Zimmerman in 1968. Wayne and Barbara moved to Jerome in 1972 and bought a farm east of town. She owned the Rainbow Bar in Kimberly, Idaho, for five years. She leaves behind her daughter, Sjaan Zimmerman (Robin) Trowbridge; her granddaughter, Ellee Trowbridge; ex-husband, Wayne Zimmerman; and aunts, uncles, nephews, nieces and many friends in Idaho and California. She was preceded in death by her parents, Jack and Laura Fellows. A celebration of life will be held at a later date at her daughter’s home in Lakewood, Calif. We will all miss her. Goodbye, Babs. Have a good journey.

Thomas Jerald (Tom) Johnson

Nov. 10, 1958- Jan. 30, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Thomas Jerald (Tom) Johnson, of Idaho Falls and formerly of Hailey, Idaho, found eternal peace on Wednesday, Jan. 30, 2013, in Idaho Falls, Idaho.

Tom was born Nov. 10, 1958, to Jerry and Ellen Johnson in Twin Falls, Idaho, and attended schools in Jerome, Hailey and Idaho Falls. He graduated from Idaho Falls High School in 1977 and married his high school sweetheart, Wendy Garner. They were blessed with two children, Christopher Thomas and Rachael Diane, who they jointly raised in Hailey and Idaho Falls. Tom learned the trade of cooking from his father working side-by-side at their family restaurant, “Jerry’s Place” in Hailey. He was a licensed technician and partner in Town Refrigeration, where he serviced local businesses and residences throughout the Wood River Valley for many years.

He was a member of the St. Charles Catholic Church and, while he valued his many friends and memorable life in Hailey, he greatly missed Christopher and Rachael, so his journey led him back to Idaho Falls last year to spend more time with them and his grandchildren. He dearly loved his family and was so proud to be a grandpa. Tom was kind, thoughtful and hardworking. His genuine smile, charming personality, love for life and special gift to look beyond and see the best in others were precious. He was an excellent skier and avid outdoor sportsman; he enjoyed family gatherings, sports cars, barbecues, chess and antique shopping. Tom, we hope you knew how profoundly you touched our lives, and we sure do miss you.

Tom is survived by his daughter, Rachael (Forrest) Payne; and grandchildren, Collyn, Maycee, Kaden, Brinlee and Karli of Idaho Falls; his mother, Ellen Johnson of Twin Falls; sisters, Sheryl (Keith) Hanson of Twin Falls, Terry (Doug) Sanders of Oakley, Utah, and Diane (Bob) Sparks Salmon of Hansen; brothers, Bill (Sharon) Johnson of Jerome, Kevin (Lisa) Johnson of Sioux Falls, S.D., and Kent (Lupe) Johnson of Rupert; and many aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews and cousins. Tom is preceded in death by his grandparents; his father, R. Jerry Johnson; and his son, Christopher. Family and friends are invited to a celebration of Tom’s Life at 11 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 9, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls. Inurnment will follow at Sunset Memorial Park, 2296 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. Services are under the direction of Trent Stimpson and staff at Reynolds Funeral Chapel.

Donations may be made in memory of Tom to the St. Charles Catholic Church in Hailey, the Monastery of the Ascension in Jerome or to your favorite charity. Donations may be left with funeral chapel staff or mailed to Reynolds Funeral Chapel, P.O. Box 1142, Twin Falls, ID 83303. Messages of condolence and support can be left at www.reynoldschapel.com.

Pearl M. Vanskike

Aug. 2, 1916-Feb. 3, 2013

FAIRFIELD • Pearl M. Vanskike, age 96, a resident of Fairfield, passed away at her home Sunday, Feb. 3, 2013.

Pearl was born to Earl J. and Effie Pearson on Aug. 2, 1916, at the family home in Camas County, Idaho. She attended Crighton School with her brothers, Walter and Dale, through eight grades. While attending Camas County High School, she boarded at the home of William and Ruby Vanskike, where she became acquainted with her future husband, Loy Vanskike. After graduation, Pearl spent summers cooking for farm crews on several Camas County farms.

On Jan. 17, 1937, she was married to Loy Vanskike at the home of her cousin, Ina and Eddie Krahn in Gooding, Idaho. They returned to the prairie, where they worked for farmers, Loy driving tractor and Pearl cooking for the hired hands. In 1941, they purchased 40 acres west of Fairfield and began building their current home. Pearl was a constant helpmate in the construction and did most of the painting and papering of the home.

In 1945, they purchased the local Charlie Graham Dairy. Washing the milking machines, cream separator and milk bottles were now added to her housekeeping, gardening and mothering duties. They delivered milk to Fairfield homes until Loy’s crippling accident in 1956. Pearl continued to milk the cows, no longer bottling or delivering milk but now shipping milk and cream to nearby processors. When the cows became too hard to handle, they sold the cows and started raising sheep. Once again Pearl learned new skills, now feeding and helping with spring lambing. Due to Loy’s paralysis, Pearl was his “right hand,” holding nails, carrying tools and anything else that required a second hand.

Pearl was a charter member of the Fairfield Community Church. She was one of the original members of the “Ruth and Naomi Society”; she taught children’s Sunday school, Bible memory verses to AWANA kids and served on many committees and the Missions Board.

She loved gardening, raising most of her own vegetables in a weed-free garden. Her flower gardens were always well thought out and arranged. Trees did not always grow when and where she wanted them, but she continued planting new trees until they grew. Cooking and baking also occupied many of her days. She always had desserts prepared for Loy’s sweet tooth. Her evenings were filled with knitting and crocheting. She enjoyed sewing, attending classes to learn clothes fitting and upholstery.

Pearl is survived by her children, Dorothy, Margie and Gordie; nine grandchildren; 14 great-grandchildren; and four great-great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband, parents, two brothers, one sister-in-law and numerous cousins.

Visitation for family and friends will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 7, at Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. A funeral service will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Feb. 8, at the Fairfield Community Church in Fairfield. Burial will follow at the Mountain View Cemetery in Fairfield.

In lieu of flowers and plants, the family requests memorial donations in Pearl’s name be made to either The Boise Rescue Mission, P.O. Box 1494, Boise, ID 83701, or to Nursing Home Ministries, P.O. Box 22246, Portland, OR 97269-2246.

Arrangements are under the care and direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. Condolences may be sent to the family by visiting the obituary link at www.demarayfuneralservice.com.

OUR VIEW

Hurlock Block: What Is It Really About?

If anyone doubted that the world surrounding Idaho Fish and Game is a political snake pit or that it is a good ol' boys club, all doubt should have been erased on Monday as the crowd brought out its pitchforks and torches for the confirmation hearing of Joan Hurlock in Boise.

The line of questioning and testimony was vaguely reminiscent of John McCain's performance during the Chuck Hagel confirmation hearing last week — lots of grandstanding and personal attacks but very little dialogue that could help us answer the core question, "Is she qualified?"

At one point, the scene got so bad that Senate Minority Leader Michelle Stennett, D-Ketchum, felt she needed to apologize to Hurlock. She pointed out that this type of questioning wasn't normal for gubernatorial appointees.

"We don't do this with all the people in front of us," Stennett said. "I appreciate your time and patience with this."

It has been said the opposition to Hurlock's confirmation is because she is a woman. They say it's because she's from California. They say it's because she isn't in the inner circle of Idaho's sportsmen. They say the opposition is aimed at sending a message to Gov. Otter — embarrassing him by rejecting his appointee.

We aren't going to assign motives. We simply want to point out that behavior at Monday's hearing was abysmal. If Hurlock wants to stay in Idaho at all after this week, let alone be a public servant to Idaho sportsmen's interests, she's a pretty big person.

- The argument for Hurlock:
- Hurlock says she's an avid outdoorsmen, hunting and fishing her whole life.
  - Hurlock says she's familiar with the culture of Fish and Game since her father was a California Fish and Game commissioner when she was growing up.
  - Hurlock says she's a big supporter of youth hunting opportunities.
  - She's a lifetime member of the National Rifle Association and former member of Ducks Unlimited and the Audubon Society.
- The arguments against Hurlock's confirmation:
- She's from California and only moved to Buhl 10 years ago.
  - She did not get a hunting license every year she has lived in Idaho. Opponents say she's not an avid or experienced enough hunter and fisherman.
  - Opponents say she doesn't understand the issues.
  - Opponents said the process was politically weighted in Hurlock's favor, with qualified candidates being left off the list.

Frankly, given the political hot potato that Hurlock's appointment has become this session, it will be a miracle if she is confirmed.

We'll be curious to see who opponents support as the "qualified" appointee. Perhaps then, and only then, will we come to understand what this embarrassing piece of political theater has really been about.

Free Dental Care for Uninsured Idaho Children

Jack Klure, DDS

Idaho State Dental Association

couraged to call 211 to get their child registered. With the economic downturn, we've seen a growing need among children in our state over the past few years. Therefore, we are very pleased to help organize this large and growing volunteer effort so dentists can focus on delivering quality care to Idaho's underserved children - free of charge.

Charity care has always been an important part of dentistry. The Give Kids A Smile program is just one example of how the profession is committed to ensuring that Idaho's children have access to dental care. Last year, the Idaho State Dental Association set a goal to provide 10,000 smiles throughout the year. The goal was exceeded by its members, and continues to be part of ongoing efforts to ensure children have access to much needed oral care.

At a time when our economy has struggled and recovery is sluggish, we know there is great need for affordable and accessible care. At the same time, we recognize that volunteer safety net programs are not a sustainable oral health care system. Give Kids A Smile is meant to accomplish two things — help children get the dental care they need and raise awareness that our children deserve a better health care system that addresses their oral health needs.

Oral health should be a priority for all children and their families in Idaho, but education and prevention are only part of the equation. We also would urge commonsense, market-based solutions and reforms that allow more dentists to participate in our public health insurance programs. Economic circumstances shouldn't be a barrier to a child's bright, healthy smile. If you know a child who is in need of care, encourage their parent or guardian to call 211 today to get scheduled in February for an appointment.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thank You to Parents Who Inspired Us with Their Kindness

I'd like to share a wonderful experience we had recently in your city on Jan. 27.

My boyfriend and I had stopped to eat dinner at Johnny Carino's on my 34th birthday. We are not from Twin Falls; in fact, it was my first time there.

After finishing our meal, our waitress informed us that another guest had paid for our meal and four or five other guests' meals. She explained the guest who had paid for our meal had a son who had died several months ago and it was his birthday and they were honoring his memory.

No words can explain how touched we were, and I am hoping this letter will make it into the hands of the family who lost their son. I want them to know they have inspired me and many of my friends and family who I've shared this experience with. I am honored to share a birthday with their son and want to do something good each year on "our" birthday to honor his memory. Thank you for reaching out and touching our hearts and may God bless you and your family.

Revisiting 'Luna Laws' So Soon Disrespectful to Constituents

The "Luna" laws that were passed by the Legislature and then repealed by voters last year are being revisited by our current lawmakers. I would ask that those concerned with the future of education in Idaho join me by e-mailing or writing to your state legislators asking for a "no" vote on the education bills currently in committee.

I believe that putting these bills before the Legislature so soon after voters rejected them is disrespectful to their constituents. It's like saying that the voting public is not smart enough to choose the best course for the state.

I realize that the bills have been modified; however, they still serve the same purpose. It seems like the Legislature is declaring a war on education. Teachers are being told that they are "failing," the Legislature keeps trying to reduce salaries (or make it possible for districts to reduce salaries) and fewer programs are available to our students.

As a parent, I know that my children will rise to the occasion when they are given earned praise. Positive reinforcement is proven to be an effective motivator.

In the same vein, what if Idaho was an appealing place to teach? What if the salary was competitive, teachers were respected and class sizes were manageable? I would guess that many people would want to teach in Idaho. Wouldn't it be great if we had our pick of the best teachers in the country? Instead of constantly trying to "fix" something that isn't really broken, we should be exploring ways to attract the best in the business for our children's future.

Patricia Joanne ‘Patty’ Riehle

Aug. 18, 1948-Jan. 31, 2013

JEROME • Patricia Joanne “Patty” Riehle, 64, of Jerome, passed away Thursday, Jan. 31, 2013, in Twin Falls.

She was born Aug. 18, 1948, in Grand Junction, Colo., the daughter of Lynn Rich Thayn and Mildred Delanore Doris Owens. She was raised in Wellington, Utah, and Wichita, Kan. Patty married the love of her life, Robert L. Riehle, on Sept. 19, 1998. They moved to Spokane, Wash., and eventually settled in Jerome. Patty spent time working as a waitress and driving truck, but her favorite “work” was being a wife, mother and grandmother. She enjoyed the Internet, crafts and her dogs. Mostly she loved spending time with her family, especially the grandkids. She will be remembered as a wonderful wife, mother, grandmother, sister and friend who loved unconditionally.

Patty is survived by her husband, Rob Riehle of Jerome; her children, Crista Roseboom, Allen (LeAnn Wilmeth) Stahlman and Ray (Angie) Stahlman; 11 grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; five sisters; four brothers; and many extended family members and friends. She is preceded in death by her parents and one granddaughter.

A memorial service will be conducted at 1 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 9, at the Jerome LDS 2nd Ward Chapel, 50 E. 100 S. in Jerome. Arrangements are under the care of Farnsworth Mortuary of Jerome.

Kimberly Hires New City Administrator

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

KIMBERLY • The city of Kimberly has hired a new city administrator/treasurer, filling several of the city’s staff openings.

Larry Hall, former coordinator of Southern Idaho Rural Development, will now serve as the city administrator and treasurer, confirmed Councilman Jim Eisenhower.

“We feel like he can bring a lot of organization and working with our team,” Eisenhower said. “This is a real positive step in our community.”

The Kimberly City Council is scheduled to confirm the hiring during its Tuesday night, Feb. 12, meeting.

While Hall doesn’t have experience working as a city administrator, he has worked extensively with small towns while at Southern Idaho Rural Development, a creation of the Region IV Development Association that encourages economic development and diversification, Eisenhower said.

The city’s administrator position saw two turnovers last year. The first was in April with the resignation of Polly Hulsey. Then, Nick Fillington resigned on Dec. 20 just short of the end of his probationary period. “It just came out of wanting to be of more service to the town,” Hall said. “During their time of transition, one thing led to another. It wasn’t planned but I expect this to be a long-term move.”

Hall said he is looking forward to working with the city council and staff but

Ag Tax Credit Bill Dies
a Year after It Passed
Same Committee

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • What looked good last year has lost its shine.

On Tuesday, the House Revenue and Taxation Committee voted to hold a agriculture tax credit bill. The same bill passed the House last year, but didn’t make it out of the Senate.

If passed, the bill would have given a tax credit of up to 30 percent of a business’ investment to build a processing plant for Idaho agriculture commodities. The credit would have a $500,000 cap. The credit would benefit new or expanding businesses that add value to raw ag products, like turning milk into cheese or wheat berries into flour.

Some committee members pressed sponsors Sen. Roy Lacey, D-Pocatello, and Rep. Donna Pence, D-Gooding, on why they limited the credits to agriculture commodities only, and not other industries like mining. Others questioned the numbers Lacey and Pence presented on the bill’s economic impact. Ultimately, the committee voted not to pass the bill to the House floor.

During the 2012 session, the exact same bill passed the committee. The House also passed the bill with a 62-6 vote. Many of those who voted “no” on the bill on Tuesday voted “yes” last year when it was on the House floor, including Rep. Lawrence Denney, R-Midvale, Rep. Mike Moyle, R-Star, and Rep. Stephen Hartgen, R-Twin Falls.

So why the change of heart? Denney said one reason he voted “no” this year was because he hadn’t heard much debate the last time the bill was under consideration.

“When you hear the arguments against it that were made, I think it was convincing that it needs to be a broader credit to include everyone,” Denney said. “And a lot of times, we do, in our tax policy, pick winners and losers, and I think that’s a bad way to do tax policy.”

Though no one from the group testified, the Idaho Freedom Foundation claimed credit online with a tweet from its official account: “Idaho Freedom Foundation’s latest victory: defeat of an anti-free market tax credit proposal in House committee this a.m.”

Later, Rep. Mat Erpelding, D-Boise, said the foundation had placed a flier on the committee members’ desks, giving the bill a negative 2 rating on its “Freedom Index.”

After the meeting, Pence said she and Lacey were disappointed. When asked if the two would consider expanding it, she said they might not have time this session. But, she added, “We’ll look at it.”

Camberlango resigned on Dec. 20 just short of the end of his probationary period.

“It just came out of wanting to be of more service to the town,” Hall said. “During their time of transition, one thing led to another. It wasn’t planned but I expect this to be a long-term move.”

Hall said he is looking forward to working with the city council and staff but recognizes that there might be challenges to taking on the new position.

Now that the city has hired a city administrator, council and staff are debating hiring a new planning and zoning director.

“They’ve been without an admin for nearly a month. When you have a hole like that, it needs to be filled,” Hall said. “I can help.”

Idaho Investigates Private Prison

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • The Idaho State Police has launched an investigation into staffing levels at the state’s largest private prison after state officials said they found discrepancies in the prison’s monthly reports.

The Nashville, Tenn.-based Corrections Corporation of America has run the Idaho Correctional Center under a contract with the state for a decade. The contract details the way CCA must run the prison. The minimum staffing requirements have also been spelled out in a legal settlement that CCA reached with the American Civil Liberties Union-Idaho after inmates sued in federal court.

Correction Director Brent Reinke told the Idaho Board of Correction Tuesday morning he asked the state police to investigate because the department found “potential anomalies” during an audit.

The department didn’t begin taking a deeper look until recently, around the time The Associated Press filed public records requests for shift logs at the prison.

CCA’s spokesman Steve Owen said in an email that his company is also investigating the issue and working with state officials as the department takes a closer look at the staffing records. He said the safety of staff, inmates and the community is CCA’s top priority.

“It is premature and speculative to draw conclusions before all of the facts have been gathered, and to do so at this point would undermine the investigation that is taking place. If our efforts uncover inconsistencies, we will take swift action to rectify any issues,” Owen wrote.

CCA’s monthly staffing reports to the state obtained by the AP through a public records request appeared to show guards who were listed as working 24, 36 and 48 hours straight without time off. Though CCA’s contract with Idaho doesn’t limit the number of hours a guard can work in a row, correction officials said that it would be unwise for a guard to work a 36- or 48-hour shift.

Another Survivalist Development in Idaho?

BY NICHOLAS K. GERANIOS
Associated Press

ST. MARIES • A group of survivalists wants to build a giant walled fortress in the woods of the Idaho Panhandle, a medieval-style city where residents would be required to own weapons and stand ready to defend the compound if society collapses.

The proposal is called the Citadel and has created a buzz among folks in this remote logging town 70 miles southeast of Spokane, Wash. The project would more than double the population of Benewah County, home to 9,000 souls.

Locals have many questions, but organizers so far are pointing only to a website billing the Citadel as “A Community of Liberty.”

“There is no leader,” Christian Kerodin, a convicted felon who is a promoter of the project, wrote in a brief email to The Associated Press. “There is a significant group of equals involved ... each bringing their own professional skills and life experiences to the group.

“It is very much a ‘grass-roots’ endeavor,” Kerodin wrote, declining to provide any additional details.

Such communities are hardly new, especially in northern Idaho, which has long been a magnet for those looking to shun mainstream society.

Idaho Correction Board Looks at Health Providers

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • The Idaho Board of Correction is considering whether to extend a contract with a company that’s been blasted by a court expert for the medical care it provides to Idaho’s inmates.

Corizon’s contract expires this summer. The company has a troubled past in Idaho: The Department of Correction has previously fined Corizon more than $300,000 for failing to meet basic contract requirements, and an expert appointed by the federal courts reported last year that Corizon’s poor medical care amounted to cruel and unusual punishment.

Corizon officials say if the contract is extended, the company will continue to comply with federal court orders and exceed the department’s expectations for care. Four other companies are also vying for the contract — NaphCare, Wexford Health, MTC Medical and MHM Correctional Services.

The contract covers the medical and mental health care of inmates at all of Idaho’s prisons except for the largest, which is operated by the private prison company Corrections Corporation of America.

The quality of that medical care has become an ongoing issue for one of the state’s prisons, the Idaho State Correctional Institution south of Boise.

Inmates at ISCI brought a class-action lawsuit against the state in federal court more than three decades ago, alleging a variety of problems including poor medical care. The case, which is still in the federal courts, became known as the Balla case after one of the original inmates who filed it, Walter Balla.

Vegan Soups Join T.F. Sandwich Co. Menu

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls Sandwich Co. will add vegan soups to its menu this week.

Owner Shane Cook said his restaurant will soon feature vegan soups found in “Comfort Food gets a vegan makeover,” a cookbook written by Jill Skeem, a Kimberly-based health counselor, educator and chef.

Twin Falls Sandwich Co., 128 Main Ave. N. in Twin Falls, prepares from-scratch soups that rotate daily. With the addition of recipes from Skeem’s book, Cook said the restaurant will now have more than 40 varieties of soups.

The first of Skeem’s soups — Carrot Ginger — will be available today.

“Comfort Food gets a vegan makeover” a 149-page, full-color book containing 62 vegan recipes, is available at the restaurant for $18.

Friends, Family and Fried Eggs

Many Magic Valley residents say good company and good food keep them stopping in at local diners.

BY PAUL DUNN

TWIN FALLS • “Sugar Britches” and Orval were shuckin’ and jivin’ like a couple of teenagers, their back and forth trashtalking interrupted only by slurps of coffee.

It’s a common occurrence at the Rooster & The Redneck Country Cafe in Buhl, where breakfast is served all day, and the diner’s traditional omelettes combine food, friends and banter.

“Yeah, they (friends) can get kind of brutal sometimes, but in a friendly way,” said Rooster McReynolds, who with his wife Tammala runs the small cafe. “Everyone here is family. They’re certified rednecks.”

On a recent morning off of Buhl’s main drag, Orval Rice, 62, and “Sugar Britches” (who declined to offer his real name), were seated at the Rooster with four other friends shooting the breeze, warming their hands on mugs of coffee and beginning their days the best way they know how ...

By eating breakfast out.

“We solve all of the world’s problems in here,” Rice said. “We get to meet with all of our buddies, and we also do a lot of business in the coffee shop.”

The scene unfolds every morning around the Magic Valley, patrons’ taste buds primed for eggs, sausage, bacon, hash browns and other delicious stuff that revs up their frigid-morning engines. It’s a special time of the day to eat out, many breakfast patrons say.

Over at Norm’s Family Dining in Twin Falls, Kimberly resident Jean-nie Johnson, 61, is waiting on a recent Saturday morning for her sister and brother-in-law to join her for breakfast.

“I’ve been coming to Norm’s forever,” she said. “We can start the day talking about what’s going on

Planting the Seed of Health

Magic Valley residents who use seeds in their daily diets say they’ve watched the benefits grow.

Gillian Funk holds her recipe called Gilly’s Seed Bar at her home in Kimberly. ‘These bars taste so clean and are so nutritious,’ she said.

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Do you feel the need to add a little seed?

Gillian Funk of Kimberly started adding more seeds to her daily diet three years ago. Funk said the benefits for her weren’t so much at her waistline, but how she felt inside.

“I’ve always been healthy and into fitness,” Funk said. “In changing my diet to ‘clean eating’ with the seeds I have less digestive issues and more energy.”

She is so convinced that people need more seeds in their diet that her pantry is stocked with them.

And Funk isn’t the only one who has unshelled the appeal of seeds.

At the Winter Fancy Food Show in San Francisco, seeds were among the top five food trend categories for 2013 according to a panel of food writers and journalists.

The Fancy Food Shows are held twice each year with the Winter Show in San Francisco and the Summer Show in New York City. Put on by the National Association for the Specialty Food Trade, the events bring in more than 40,000 attendees from more than 80 countries and regions to see 260,000 innovative specialty food products.

Because seeds have improved her health, Funk, a personal trainer at the YMCA of Twin Falls, tells her clients about the benefits of eating them.

“Chia seeds are so good with weight loss. When you add them to salads they help you stay full longer,” Funk said. “They (seeds) are such a good source for protein. More people are becoming aware of their benefits.”

Interested in learning more about the benefits of seeds?

Here are some of the seeds Funk and others in the Magic Valley carry in their pantry and why.

Flax Seeds

“Thanks to my mother I found out that you get the most out of your flax when it is ground up,” Funk said. “That way your body can absorb the nutrients easier, makes sense. But I still throw the whole seeds in oatmeal and salads, you still get that good fiber.”

Funk said flax is high in omega-3, a fatty acid, which she said means it’s great for bone health and protecting against heart disease, cancer and diabetes.

Seeds

Emily Hosman of Buhl uses flax daily. Hosman is a student at Brigham Young University studying exercise science with an emphasis in wellness and science. She also represents Twin Falls in the Miss America Organization as Miss Canyon Rim. Hosman said she started to use flax seed after learning she had Candidiasis, a fungal infection caused by yeasts that she said had made it difficult for her to lose weight.

“It’s really common and there’s a lot of women who have it, but don’t know it,” Hosman said.

Since incorporating flax into her diet, Hosman said she has lost weight.

She said flax seed is a low carb, high protein, nutrient dense food that she incorporates into her meals all the time now.

“It has a fairly neutral taste,” Hosman said.

She likes to mix flax seed in her peanut butter and vanilla shakes.

Hosman also uses flax meal because she often craves bread. Instead of milk she uses flax milk, which Hosman said tastes like watered-down milk.

Eric Snow, fitness director at the YMCA, uses flax gel as an egg substitute. Snow will take two or three teaspoons of ground flax and add a couple of teaspoons of water to make a gel. Snow said this can be used as a binder or emulsifier in recipes like pancakes or waffles.

Sesame Seeds

Funk said just a quarter-cup of sesame seeds supplies 74 percent of the daily value for copper, which is known for reducing inflammation and pain in joints and for soothing rheumatoid arthritis.

Sesame seeds also supply 31.6 percent of the daily value of magnesium, which supports vascular and respiratory health, and 35.1 percent of calcium.

“Wow, who knew that little seed would back that sort of punch?” Funk said.

Pumpkin and Sunflower Seeds

Eric Snow said he eats

Gillian Funk uses different seeds to make nutritious foods like her own seed bar.

pumpkin seeds daily, in addition to hemp and chia seeds.

“I will eat a handful of almonds, the nuts and seeds are high in protein,” Snow said.

For a vegan like Snow, finding alternative sources of protein is essential.

Funk said when she eats pumpkin and sunflower seeds she buys them raw and unsalted with no oils.

She makes them into what she calls Gilly’s Seed Bar, a seed bar recipe she created that combines pumpkin, sunflower, sesame, flax and chia seeds.

Chia Seeds

Marsha Low of Twin Falls was introduced to the benefits of seeds through the YMCA and one of Funk’s classes.

“She showed us in her weekly ‘Lose It’ class how great they can be when added to your daily diet. I believe they have been beneficial in helping me lose weight,” Low said.

Low puts flax and chia seeds in things like oatmeal, homemade smoothies and yogurt.

“All the omega-3’s and other benefits to using seeds are great,” she said.

Funk said chia seeds are her new favorite seed.

“They take on the taste of whatever you put them in and they have a unique ‘gelling’ action once wet so they expand and keep you full for a long time,” Funk said.

Chia gel can substitute for half the butter in most recipes, according to Funk. She said the food will bake and taste the same.

omega-3,” Funk said. “It’s actually a complete protein. The seed is full of antioxidants.”

Gilly’s Seed Bar

- 1 cup sunflower seeds
- 1/2 cup pumpkin seeds raw
- 1/2 cup unsweetened coconut
- 1/3 cup raisins
- 1/4 cup sesame seeds
- 1/4 cup slivered almonds
- 1 tablespoon flax seed
- 2 tablespoon chia seeds
- 3/4 tsp cinnamon
- 1/4 cup honey

The Beef Dish that Leaves a Tingle on Your Tongue

BY ALISON LADMAN
Associated Press

You can call it a peppercorn all you like, but the peppery ingredient that puts the buzz in Sichuan-style cooking actually isn't one.

Though it resembles and is used similar to black peppercorns, Sichuan pepper isn't a peppercorn at all. Rather, it is the dried rind of the berry-like fruit of the prickly ash tree. And you don't need to be a heat fiend to love it. Because while it does have a peppery bite, its real power is in the tingling, zingly feeling it leaves on your tongue, rather than a true heat.

In Chinese cooking, the Sichuan pepper often is used with meats and is a basic component of five-spice powder. In this weeknight-friendly beef recipe, we combine the Sichuan pepper with spicy chili garlic paste for a dish that will jumpstart your mouth. Serve it over rice or noodles.

Sichuan Beef

Start to finish: 30 minutes (plus marinating). Servings: 4.

- 1 pound flank steak, thinly sliced across the grain
- 3 tablespoons chili garlic paste
- 1 tablespoon grated fresh ginger
- 1 teaspoon Sichuan pepper, crushed
- 1/4 cup vegetable or canola oil
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons mirin or rice wine
- 3 stalks celery, thinly sliced on the diagonal
- 2 carrots, thinly sliced on the diagonal
- 3 scallions, cut into 1/2 inch pieces
- Rice or noodles, to serve

Place the flank steak slices in a zip-close plastic bag.

MATTHEW MEAD • ASSOCIATED PRESS

Add the chili garlic paste, ginger and Sichuan pepper. Seal the bag, then massage the seasonings into the meat. Refrigerate and allow to marinate at least 2 hours, and up to overnight.

When ready to cook, in a large, deep skillet or a wok over high, heat the oil until it shimmers. Add the beef and saute for 8 minutes, or until the beef is browned and starting to dry. Add the soy sauce, mirin, celery, carrots and scallions. Cook for another 4 minutes, or until the vegetables are crisp tender.

Serve over noodles or rice.

Scallops Remain Plump in this 35-Minute Dish

BONNIE S. BENWICK
The Washington Post

If you're partial to foods cooked in a flavorful tomato sauce — eggs come to mind, shakshuka style — then you'll like this riff on an Israeli recipe. The scallops remain especially plump and moist.

You can add a cup of clams, which we omitted from the original recipe. Instead of using 3/4 cup of white wine, we used sparkling cider here instead.

Serve with rice, couscous or bread. Adapted from "Jerusalem: A Cookbook," by Yotam Ottolenghi and Sami Tamimi (Ten Speed Press, 2012).

Shrimp and Scallops With Tomato and Feta

2 generous servings.

- 3 scallions
- Leaves from 6 to 8 stems oregano
- 3 cloves garlic
- 1 lemon
- 3 tablespoons olive oil, plus more as needed
- 3 1/2 cups canned, no-salt-added, fire-roasted diced tomatoes, plus any collected juices
- 1/2 cup bottled clam juice
- 3/4 cup sparkling apple cider (may substitute white wine)
- 1 teaspoon sugar, preferably superfine
- Kosher salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 8 ounces peeled and deveined raw shrimp (26-30 count)
- 8 ounces large, dry-packed scallops
- 3-ounce block feta cheese

DEB LINDSEY • FOR THE WASHINGTON POST

Cut the white and light-green parts of the scallions on the diagonal into thin slices. Mince the oregano to yield 2 tablespoons. Thinly slice the garlic. Use a vegetable peeler or knife to cut three wide strips of lemon peel (without pith).

Heat the oil in a large non-stick skillet over medium-high heat. Once the oil is shimmering, add the garlic and cook for 1 minute, stirring to keep the garlic from burning. Add the tomatoes, clam juice, cider, sugar, oregano and strips of lemon zest. Season lightly with salt and pepper. Cook for about 20 minutes, stirring once or twice; the mixture should thicken. Taste, and adjust the seasoning as needed. Discard the lemon zest.

Preheat the oven to 475 degrees. Have a baking dish at hand that's large enough to hold the skillet mixture.

Add the shrimp and scallops to the skillet; stir and cook for a minute or two, then transfer the mixture to the baking dish. Break off chunks of the feta and sink them into the liquid of the mixture. Scatter the scallions on top. Roast for 3 to 5 minutes or until the seafood is just cooked through.

Cut the lemon in half and squeeze juice (to taste) over the top of the dish. Divide between individual wide, shallow bowls. Drizzle each portion with a little oil. Serve right away.

Per serving: 710 calories, 53 g protein, 45 g carbohydrates, 32 g fat, 10 g saturated fat, 250 mg cholesterol, 1,400 mg sodium, 6 g dietary fiber, 27 g sugar.

Diners

That's certainly true at the Double A Cafe in Jerome, where owner Alvin Abbott serves breakfast from 5:30 a.m. until 4 p.m.

"We get a lot of coffee drinkers in here, and if they want to drink coffee, talk and BS here all day I don't care," Abbott said. "I'm not going to shove them out the door."

Abbott figures the Double A serves about 35 breakfast meals per day during the week and 90 to 100 a day on weekends.

"On the weekends, we are pretty well loaded, and during the week people start arriving about 5 in the morning. We shoot to be open at 5:30 a.m., but most of them beat us here."

Though lunch and dinner are more crowded than breakfast at Smith's Cafe in Oakley, longtime employee Buffy Cooper said customers rave about the morning meals.

"We want you full when you leave here," Cooper said. "When people come in for breakfast, it's a special meal for them because they can sit and visit and begin their day by bonding."

Back at Norm's on a recent morning — where breakfast is served weekdays from 6-11:30 a.m. and again from 1-8 p.m., then all day on weekends — owner Tom Collins' daughter Kena Collins has served a slew of breakfast customers, most of them she knew by first name.

"We definitely have regular breakfast customers," she said. "People feel like it's home here, and they don't have to get up and make breakfast. They can come here and then leave."

Twin Falls resident Sam Day, 55, agreed. He and wife Cindy Day, 54, were at Norm's on a recent Saturday to meet friends for breakfast.

"I think it's just kind of a comfort thing," he said. "It's relaxing, and instead of going into the kitchen, making something and having to clean up, we can come here."

At Jackson's Kountry Korner in Buhl, owner Linda Jackson serves breakfast from 5-11:30 a.m. weekdays and 5 a.m. to noon on weekends. Jackson serves breakfast to 75 to 100 people on weekdays and another couple of hundred on weekends.

"We generally have a good crowd for breakfast," she said. "We see people in here a couple of times a day. It's kind of a stopping off place and get-together place for all the locals."

Buhl resident Randall Self, 66, is quickly becoming a Jackson's local, even though he's only been in town since 2003 — a fledgling compared to some of the town's old-timers. Self has a distinction, though: the "Randall Omelet."

"That's right. I eat here so often, they named an Omelet after me," he said. "I feel honored to have an omelet named after me."

Self, who operates an Internet-based business, enjoys beginning his day surrounded by friends.

"It gives me a good feeling inside to eat breakfast out," he said. "A lot of times, there are guys here to chat with. I'm the newbie here, and I'm trying to blend in with the group."

Jackson's regular Mel Bernier, 70, knows the importance of a fortifying breakfast and rarely misses a morning at his favorite restaurant.

"I've been raised that way that you always ate a good breakfast in the morning," he said. "The food is good here, and I can visit with people."

And even though he's sitting across from the stillwisecracking Orval and Sugar Britches back at the Rooster in Buhl, Corky Walklin mimics Bernier's sentiment.

"The most special thing to me is getting together with friends," said Walklin, 65, who eats at the restaurant three to four times a week. "It's a great, relaxing way to start the day."

Congress Considers Putting Limits on Drone Strikes

WASHINGTON (AP) • Uncomfortable with the Obama administration’s use of deadly drones, a growing number in Congress is looking to limit America’s authority to kill suspected terrorists, even U.S. citizens. The Democratic-led outcry was emboldened by the revelation in a newly surfaced Justice Department memo that shows drones can strike against a wider range of threats, with less evidence, than previously believed.

The drone program, which has been used from Pakistan across the Middle East and into North Africa to find and kill an unknown number of suspected terrorists, is expected to be a top topic of debate when the Senate Intelligence Committee grills John Brennan, the White House’s pick for CIA chief, at a hearing Thursday. The White House on Tuesday defended its lethal drone program by citing the very laws that some in Congress once believed were appropriate in the years immediately after the Sept. 11 attacks but now think may be too broad.

“It has to be in the agenda of this Congress to reconsider the scope of action of drones and use of deadly force by the United States around the world because the original authorization of use of force, I think, is being strained to its limits,” Sen. Chris Coons, D-Del., said in a recent interview.

Rep. Steny Hoyer of Maryland, the No. 2 Democrat in the House, said Tuesday that “it deserves a serious look at how we make the decisions in government to take out, kill, eliminate, whatever word you want to use, not just American citizens but other citizens as well.”

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee likely will hold hearings on U.S. drone policy, an aide said Tuesday, and Chairman Robert Menendez, D-N.J., and the panel’s top Republican, Sen. Bob Corker, both have quietly expressed concerns about the deadly operations. And earlier this week, a group of 11 Democratic and Republican senators urged President Barack Obama to release a classified Justice Department legal opinion justifying when U.S. counterterror missions, including drone strikes, can be used to kill American citizens abroad.

It was a repeated request after receiving last June an unclassified Justice Department memo, which fell short of giving the senators all the information they requested.

First detailed publicly by NBC News late Monday, the memo for the first time outlines the Obama administration’s decision to kill al-Qaida terror suspects without any evidence that specific and imminent plots are being planned against the United States.

Hagel to Be 5th Pentagon Chief with Enlisted Time

WASHINGTON (AP) • When President Barack Obama declared that his defense secretary nominee, Chuck Hagel, would be the first former enlisted man to lead the Pentagon, he seemed to overlook four previous defense chiefs who served part of their military years as enlisted men.

William J. Perry, who served as defense secretary from 1994-97, was in the Army’s enlisted ranks from 1946-47 and served in Japan as a member of the American occupation force, according to a biography on the website of Stanford University, where he is affiliated with the Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies.

Perry was given an honorable discharge from the Army, then was commissioned through the Reserve Officer Training Corps at Stanford and served in the Army Reserve from 1950-55 as a second lieutenant. According to a Pentagon historical office’s biographical sketches of all 23 men who have served as defense secretary since the position was created in 1947, three others served in the enlisted ranks and later became commissioned officers — Melvin Laird in the Navy and Elliot Richardson and Caspar Weinberger in the Army.

So Hagel would be the only defense secretary who ended his military career in the enlisted ranks — he served in Vietnam as a sergeant in 1967-68 and was wounded twice — but one of several who spent time at those ranks. When Obama announced his selection of Hagel at the White House on Jan. 7, he said Hagel’s selection as defense secretary would be “historic.”

Asked about Obama’s statement, the White House spokeswoman for Hagel’s confirmation process, Marie Harf, said Obama was correct because Perry and the other three who initially served in the enlisted ranks later became officers.

“There’s a huge difference between servicemen who start off enlisted and become officers, and those who are always only enlisted,” Harf said, noting that Hagel is in the latter category. “You’re defined by how you end in the military.”

Two Scouting Families; Opposite Views on Gay Ban

BY DAVID CRARY
 AP National Writer

Despite a shared affection for Scouting, the Tessier family in Maryland and the Comers in Tennessee hope for opposite outcomes this week as leaders of the Boy Scouts of America ponder whether to move away from a national no-gays membership policy.

Wes Comer, his wife and children belong to an Apostolic Pentecostal church near their Knoxville home that considers homosexuality sinful. Comer says he will pull his eldest son out of the Scouts, despite a positive experience with them, if the BSA modifies the policy to allow some troops to accept gays.

The Tessiers, who live in the Washington, D.C., suburb of Kensington, have two sons who enjoyed Cub Scouts, progressed to Boy Scouts, and continued to thrive there even as many in their troop became aware that each boy was gay. The family is grateful for that, but fervently hopes the BSA’s top leaders officially scrap the ban so that open acceptance becomes the norm for Scout units nationwide.

Each family’s sentiments are shared by many others, and the BSA — whose governing board is deliberating behind closed doors this week at a Texas hotel — now finds itself in a situation where any decision it makes is likely to rouse anger and disappointment. On the agenda is a proposal to ease the ban on gays by allowing local troop sponsors to decide the matter for themselves.

THE COMERS

Wes Comer, as a boy, never tried Scouting and had few opportunities to learn knot-tying, fire-building and outdoor survival skills. He was delighted that eldest of his five children, 11-year-old Isaiah, seized the chance to do so last year as a first-time Cub Scout.

The family looked forward Tuesday, describing a sophisticated bombing carried out by a terrorist cell that included Canadian and Australian citizens.

The announcement brought renewed pressure on the European Union from the U.S., Israel and Canada to designate the group a terrorist organization and to crack down on its fundraising operations across Europe. The EU, which regards Hezbollah as a legitimate political organization, has resisted such a move.

Merck & Co. — which have suspended donations to the BSA as long as the ban on gays is in effect. And he believes such financial pressure has taken a toll.

“The idea that the Scouts are compromising their moral position in exchange for funds kind of sickens me,” he said. “We’d rather have a morally rich organization than a financially rich one... Who, at this point, is defining what it means to be ‘morally straight’?”

THE TESSIERS

Now a consultant to Washington-area nonprofit groups, Oliver Tessier was an avid Scout growing up in Louisiana, and he and his wife, Tracie Felker, have been active for 13 years as adult volunteers while their two boys made their way through Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts.

Lucien, 20, became an Eagle Scout in 2010 and now studies business administration at Northern Virginia Community College while planning the shift to a four-year university. His brother, Pascal, 16, is on track toward Eagle Scout with the same unit — Troop 52 in Chevy Chase, Md.

“I never had a single bad experience in Scouting,” said Lucien, who came out as gay to family and friends while a sophomore in high school.

Yet for all his gratitude toward Troop 52 for supporting him and Pascal, Lucien is frustrated by the official national policy excluding gays as both Scouts and adult leaders. Giving troop sponsors leeway to set their own policies would be a positive step, Lucien said, but he would prefer a nationwide nondiscrimination policy.

AT A GLANCE

Heating System Suspected in Mexico Oil Company Blast

A water-heating system may have leaked gas into a tunnel beneath the headquarters of Mexico’s national oil company for more than seven months before it was accidentally detonated by a maintenance crew’s improvised lighting system, officials said Tuesday, adding fresh detail to the narrative of the petroleum giant’s worst disaster in a decade. Attorney General Jesus Murillo Karam told Radio Formula Tuesday afternoon that the gas may have come through a pipe that connected to what he called a room containing machinery.

Bulgaria Links Hezbollah to Attack on Israelis

Hezbollah was behind a bus attack that killed five Israeli tourists in Bulgaria last year, investigators said

Tuesday, describing a sophisticated bombing carried out by a terrorist cell that included Canadian and Australian citizens.

The announcement brought renewed pressure on the European Union from the U.S., Israel and Canada to designate the group a terrorist organization and to crack down on its fundraising operations across Europe. The EU, which regards Hezbollah as a legitimate political organization, has resisted such a move.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"The proper study of mankind is man."

— Alexander Pope

How should you play six clubs on a heart lead? Does this deal require card-play technique or elements of psychology?

The best mathematical chance of success is to win the heart ace. Next play the diamond ace and ruff a diamond high. You can cash the club ace, lead the club 10 to the jack, then ruff another diamond. If the diamond king has fallen, you will have created a home for your heart loser. If not, you can always fall back on the spade finesse. This line allows you to take your chances in echelon; but the extra chance that you have built for yourself is less than 10 percent.

Contrast this approach with winning the heart ace at trick one and looking for a more psychological line. Simply call for the spade queen, and then use your bridge judgment to gauge East's reaction to this play.

Even if East is a real expert, he would have to be truly inspired not to cover this card, or at least to consider doing so. If East ducks the spade queen without thought, then you should assume that West has the spade king. If so, you should rise with the spade ace, draw trump, and try to take the diamond finesse to discard your heart loser. Against any but the very best defenders (and there are precious few of them!), this line has a 75 percent chance of success.

ANSWER: It would be extremely dangerous to pass for penalties here. And to jump to three no-trump could prove extremely embarrassing if your partner has a singleton or void in clubs. Start by cue-bidding two clubs and you will always be able to follow up with a three-no-trump call at your next turn, suggesting a little more doubt about the final contract.

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 6, the 37th day of 2013. There are 328 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Feb. 6, 1788, Massachusetts became the sixth state to ratify the U.S. Constitution.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1778, the United States won official recognition from France with the signing of a Treaty of Alliance in Paris.

In 1899, a peace treaty between the United States and Spain was ratified by the U.S. Senate.

In 1911, Ronald Wilson Reagan, the 40th president of the United States, was born in Tampico, Ill.

In 1922, Cardinal Archille Ratti was elected pope; he took the name Pius XI.

In 1933, the 20th Amendment to the Constitution, the so-called "lame duck" amendment, was proclaimed in effect by Secretary of State Henry Stimson.

In 1943, a Los Angeles jury acquitted actor Errol Flynn of three counts of statutory rape.

In 1952, Britain's King George VI died at Sandringham House in Norfolk, England; he was succeeded as monarch by his daughter, who became Queen Elizabeth II.

In 1959, the United States successfully test-fired for the first time a Titan intercontinental ballistic missile from Cape Canaveral.

In 1973, Dixy Lee Ray was appointed by President Richard Nixon to be the first woman to head the Atomic Energy Commission.

In 1992, 16 people were killed when a C-130 military transport plane crashed in Evansville, Ind.

In 1993, tennis Hall-of-Famer and human rights advocate Arthur Ashe died in New York at age 49.

In 1998, President Bill Clinton signed a bill changing the name of Washington National Airport to Ronald Reagan Washington National Airport. Pop music star Falco, who'd had a 1986 hit with "Rock Me Amadeus," died in a traffic accident in the Dominican Republic; he was 40.

Ten years ago: Edging closer to war, President George W. Bush declared "the game is over" for Saddam Hussein and urged skeptical allies to join in disarming Iraq. ABC's "20/20" aired a British documentary, "Living With Michael Jackson," in which the King of Pop revealed he sometimes let children sleep in his bed.

Five years ago: At least 57 deaths were reported after two days of tornadoes that plowed across Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky and Alabama. The White House defended the use of the interrogation technique known as waterboarding, saying it was legal — not torture as critics argued — and had saved American lives. The Phoenix Suns acquired Shaquille O'Neal in a stunning blockbuster deal that sent four-time All-Star Shawn Marion and Marcus Banks to the Miami Heat.

One year ago: The U.S. closed its embassy in Syria and Britain recalled its ambassador to Damascus in a new Western push to get President Bashar Assad to leave power and halt the murderous grind in Syria. Jeremy Lin scored a career-high 28 points in his first career start as the New York Knicks beat the Utah Jazz 99-88.

IF FEBRUARY 6 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Self-confidence and self-assurance give you an edge over others throughout the next few months. You shine in group situations and may win the friendship and admiration of key people. In late April and early May, you will be wiser than usual and have a better grasp of the future, so that is an excellent time to launch your plans or initiate important commitments. Rewards for a job well done might be offered to you or you might be given a special opportunity that will make your life brighter. Plan ahead so that you will not need to make key decisions or changes in late July or August, when your judgment is briefly clouded.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You can change what you are, where you are heading and where you end up by changing the way you think. Cling to traditions that buoy you and prevent you from sinking when changes occur swiftly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Practice forgiveness without punishment. Forget the past and move to the future. Let bygones be bygones; make the first move toward reconciling a conflict. Love and romance may erupt.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Ambition rules. This is a good time to contemplate long-range plans and set goals. Group interactions might illuminate the ways in which you and a partner can work together to attain your desires.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your personal balancing act is on display. You must balance the demands of your family and needs of job or career. Don't make changes yet — even if you see problems.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Think things through like a thoroughbred. By acting like the consummate professional, you can avoid being caught short at the finish line. Make important financial decisions and sign crucial paperwork.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Quiet the mind so the soul can speak. This might be a good day to discuss your fondest dreams or wear your heart on your sleeve. You can take a chance and follow up on romantic or financial fantasies.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Chickens always come home to roost. If you have been feeding your dreams you will earn more than chicken feed by scratching deep past the surface. Excellent ideas may be offered by a close friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be conscientious about minor details. The more organized and efficient you are, the easier it will be to stay on top of unavoidable changes. Prove that you are trustworthy under difficult conditions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You can't bet on lucky numbers and expect to become a millionaire overnight. But you can work hard and work smart and fatten your piggy bank. Teamwork might bring good luck.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Bend the hard line. Your personal agenda may be evident when you try to force an issue. Others might be suspicious of your motives and could resist even perfectly acceptable offers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The future is now. Actions taken today will steer you toward achieving your goal. Focus brainpower on financial success and your efforts will have lasting and far-reaching effects.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): To score points, you must first find the goalposts. It is time to take inspiration and make it pay off. Consider replacing the alphabet soup of ideas that are vying for your attention with one solid objective.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Arms Race: CSI Softball Leaning on Pitching as SWAC Play Starts

dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Everything is a little compressed in the spring. The College of Southern Idaho softball team knows that well, as in the third week of the season it will start Scenic West Athletic Conference play in St. George, Utah.

The team has 10 games and two weekends under its belt to prep for the 48-game conference season.

“If we’re not ready to go by now, I don’t know what to say. We should be ready to go,” CSI coach Nick Baumert said Tuesday from somewhere along Interstate 15 south of Salt Lake City.

The 13th-ranked Golden Eagles (6-4) will play doubleheaders today and Thursday against Western Nevada, and Friday and Saturday against Southern Nevada. Play begins at noon all four days.

Because of the schedule rotation, all eight games will count as CSI home games, leaving just four true home series for the team.

CSI will be favored to win both series this week, and in order to do so will need to rely on its strong pitching.

Sierra Whitmer leads the staff with a 3-0 record and a 0.83 ERA. All three pitchers, including Brandi Hall and Nellie Makings, have an ERA of 3.00 or lower.

That’s been where the team has been good. Where it hasn’t has been at the plate, with five regulars batting .250 or worse. Lea Hopson leads the way, hitting all three of the team’s home runs, driving in 11 of the team’s 44 runs and sporting a batting average (.455) 100 points higher than anyone else thus far.

But the offense improved during Week 2, according to the skipper.

“Obviously we’re a lot better than two weeks ago. We swung it a lot better at the end of the weekend in Yuma (Ariz.), and our pitching has been very good,” Baumert said. “Our pitching is going to keep us in a lot of games. ... All three of them are throwing really well right now, so we have a luxury that we haven’t had in the last couple of years.”

Minico High school senior Brett Thompson will sign today with the University of Idaho to play football next season.

MOOSE’S MOMENT

Minico star to sign with Idaho, becomes first FBS scholarship player from District IV since 1996.

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

HEYBURN • Brett Thompson doesn’t like to be the center of attention.

But when you’re 6-foot-5 and 305 pounds with shoulder-length hair and like to wear a kilt and toss heavy objects in your spare time — it’s hard not to stand out.

The spotlight will fall on Thompson during today’s national signing day for college football. By 8 a.m., the Minico High senior will have signed his National Letter of Intent and faxed it to the University of Idaho.

Thompson becomes the first student-athlete in school history to sign a Football Bowl Subdivision scholarship offer, according to Minico football coach Tim Perrigot. He is also the first District IV player to receive a FBS scholarship directly out of high school since 1996, when Glens Ferry’s Ross Farris signed with Boise State for the Broncos’ first year of what was then called Division I-A football.

Wednesday’s signing day is a “celebration,” Perrigot said, and the culmination of years of hard work by the 18-year-old and the support group around him.

Foremost among them are Thompson’s close-knit family — mother Amber Thompson, father Lance Thompson, step-father Grant Ploss and older brother Blake Thompson — who have never missed a football game since he

On to State: Bruin Girls Eliminate Minico

nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls girls basketball team scored as many points in the third quarter Tuesday against Minico as it did in its semifinal loss to Burley on Saturday.

Whether or not its 60-44 win portends any success in the rematch — the District IV championship game at Burley on Thursday — was as much a consideration after the contest as the win itself.

The Bruins are back in the state tournament after missing out last season. But that never seemed to be in doubt, even though the Spartans once again pushed the Bruins for a half, as Minico (10-14) was down four points to the Bruins before getting outscored by 17 in the third quarter.

For Twin Falls, Tuesday night provided another opportunity to prepare for the Bobcats. Though it was the exact scenario the Bruins faced last time they played Burley, beating Minico just as soundly the first time in the tournament.

“Minico is still a fun team to play,” Twin Falls senior forward Mikayla Harris said. “Chloe Bradford is one of my best match-ups. We have to play Burley, and I think this game will help us. We are playing so well together, making good passes and finding one another down the court. Burley has a re-

Filer Boys Complete Perfect SCIC Run

TIMES-NEWS

KIMBERLY • Austin Tews scored 17 points to lead three Filer players in double figures as the Wildcats boys basketball team routed Kimberly 63-40 on Tuesday.

The Wildcats knocked down 10 3-pointers in the win, improving them to 17-2 overall and rounding out a perfect 6-0 SCIC record.

Jed Oyler scored 14 for Filer, while Kyle Ackerman had 12.

Riley Carlton scored a team-high 11 points and Jordan Cress added 10 for Kimberly (6-11, 1-5).

Filer hosts Minico and Kimberly hosts Jerome on Friday.

Superdome Power an Issue before Big Game, AP Finds

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW ORLEANS • Concerned the Superdome might not be able to handle the energy needed for its first Super Bowl since Hurricane Katrina, officials spent hundreds of thousands of dollars on upgrades to decayed utility lines, according to documents obtained by The Associated Press.

The improvements apparently weren't enough, however, to prevent an embarrassing and puzzling 34-minute power outage during the third quarter of the game between the Baltimore Ravens and San Francisco 49ers on Sunday.

Two days later, officials still had not pinpointed the cause of the outage. The Superdome's management company, SMG, and the utility that supplies the stadium, Entergy New Orleans, announced Tuesday that they would hire outside experts to investigate.

"We wanted to leave no stone unturned," Entergy spokesman Chanel Lagarde told the AP. He said the two companies had not been able to reach a conclusion on the cause and wanted a third-party analysis.

"We thought it was important to get another party looking at this to make sure we were looking at everything that we need to examine," Lagarde said.

"I have a lot of good memories (at Minico). Probably one of my favorites was two-a-days, just being miserable. And the one that sticks out is the Kansas City play-off (vs. Twin Falls and Jerome last October to decide the conference's top state playoff seed). Our team came together, we played amazing and it was almost like a magical moment. We tore it up."

Brett Thompson, Minico star to sign with Idaho, becomes first FBS scholarship player from District IV since 1996

Thompson

began playing in third grade.

"Even when he was little he always said that he was going to get a full ride scholarship and go to a D-I school. He had his mind set," said Amber Thompson.

Early on, Thompson earned the nickname "Moose" for his physical stature. He's always acted his age, which was sometimes awkward for strangers.

"When he was little he looked like he was older. He would act like a 5-year-old and people would think, what's wrong with that kid?" Amber Thompson said. "But Brett has always been comfortable in his own skin."

As he reached high school, Thompson received guidance from coaches to hone the fundamentals, and he says Minico offensive line coach Doug Gosnell deserves a lot of credit.

"He's always inspired me to work harder," Thompson said of Gosnell.

According to Perrigot, although Thompson has always been the biggest and strongest on the field, he didn't really flip the switch until his junior year.

"Something happened the summer of his junior year. He figured out that football is pretty fun because he really became a much more physical player," Perrigot said. "I don't know if he watched reruns of the movie 'The Blind Side' or what. We were at camp and he just started driving kids 10 yards down the field."

College recruiters took notice, especially when Thompson compiled his junior season highlight film.

"After the first two or three plays of his highlight film, (the recruiters) grab a seat and they start asking for transcripts and want to know all about him," Perrigot said.

To know all about Brett Thompson, you have to go to the gym, where he spends several hours every day. He's worked closely with Mitch Hodge, a former Mr. Idaho bodybuilder.

"He taught me to be super consistent, and just be there every day grinding," said Thompson. "I've put in more hours that I can count, trying to build my body up and get ready for the next level."

Before he turned 16, Thompson began competing at Scottish Highland Games, hurling heavy objects in the cultural athletic events.

"Brett throws things," Amber Thompson said. "People, rocks, pavers, shot put, discus. He's a thrower."

Combining his junior and senior seasons, Thompson was a two-time all-Idaho first team selection while leading Minico to a 15-5 record and a pair of Great Basin Conference championships. The Spartans averaged 405 yards and 33.9 points per game running behind Thompson.

"I have a lot of good memories (at Minico). Probably one of my favorites was two-a-days, just being miserable," Thompson said. "And the one that sticks out is the Kansas City playoff (vs. Twin Falls and Jerome last October to decide the conference's top state playoff seed). Our team came together, we played amazing and it was almost like a magical moment. We tore it up."

Robb Akey's coaching staff at the University of Idaho offered a scholarship early, but Thompson's path to Idaho clouded some when the university fired Akey last October.

However, when Idaho announced the hiring of Paul Petrino, the new head coach was sitting in the Thompsons' living room the next day.

"He wanted to make sure that we knew that he's going to make the program as great as he can, and they still want me," said Thompson. "(The coaches) are amazing. Petrino is so passionate."

Said Amber Thompson: "(Petrino) is one of those people, the minute you meet him you feel like you've known him forever." During his official visit, Thompson was impressed by Idaho's campus — especially the portion where he will be spending a big chunk of his time.

"They have the best weight room I've ever seen. I fell in love with it," Thompson said.

This summer, Thompson will leave Heyburn and the only house he's ever lived in and make a new home in Moscow, trading in his Minico red and gold for the Vandal black and gold. His family intends to continue their streak of never missing a game.

And for once, the one they call Moose will blend in with guys his size as he competes in the highest division of college football.

"That's been one of my only dreams, to be a D-I football player," he said.

The Buzz in Golf Not All Good

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. •

These should be happy times for golf. Tiger Woods won for the 75th time on the PGA Tour and set a record with his eighth win at Torrey Pines. It was a command performance, the kind that made people think more about where he is going than where he went.

Doug Ferguson

Associated Press

The next week, Phil Mickelson had a chance at 59 until his 25-foot birdie putt on the last hole took a cruel spin around the cup. He thought he had golf's magic number and instead shot his tax rate in California. Lefty still sailed to a wire-to-wire win in the Phoenix Open.

It was the first time since 2009 that golf's two biggest stars won in consecutive weeks.

The trouble is, any discussion about golf these days goes beyond birdies and bogeys. Now it includes "bifurcation."

And the day after the buzz was about Tiger, the focus shifted to deer antlers.

PGA Tour commissioner Tim Finchem might have seen this coming when he said two weeks ago that while he views the professional game as being the strongest it has ever been, "I don't like to see distractions."

There are too many of them right now.

Vijay Singh was leaving the practice range at Pebble Beach on Tuesday when one of the few reporters that has a working relationship with the Fijian called out to him. Singh looked at him, said nothing, and kept walking.

"So that would be no comment?" the reporter said.

"Yes," Singh replied.

Sports Illustrated reported that Singh paid $9,000 to Sports With Alternative to Steroids in November for products that included deer-antler spray, which is said to have an insulin-like growth factor, which is on the PGA Tour's list of prohibited substances. Singh told the magazine he uses the spray "every couple of hours ... every day."

Singh might have been better off keeping quiet, as he often does. But he issued a statement confirming he used the spray, but was unaware it had a banned substance.

"I am absolutely shocked that deer-antler spray may contain a banned substance and am angry that I have put myself in this position," he said. "I have been in contact with the PGA Tour and am cooperating fully with their review of this matter."

The tour will not comment except to say it is looking into the matter, though it is backed into a corner.

Singh's admission alone constitutes an anti-doping violation. The first violation is up to a one-year suspension. The tour has a minimum requirement to publish the name of the player, his anti-doping violation and the sanction.

As long as Singh is in the field, that means the tour has not suspended him. He is playing this week. For now.

That's not the kind of distraction Finchem was talking about, but it's a big one. The only other player suspended under the anti-doping policy was Doug Barron, the consummate journeyman. Singh is a three-time major champion who was inducted into the World Golf Hall of Fame in 2006. He hasn't won in more than four years, and he had made it to the Tour Championship only once since 2008.

The distraction to which Finchem referred was about the proposed rule that would ban anchored strokes — the kind used with long putters and belly putters. It already was a mess because three of the last five major champions used a belly putter, and because the rule would not go into effect until 2016.

But it's the debate over this proposed rule that has given some corners reason to bring up bifurcation — two sets of rules.

PGA of America president Ted Bishop polled his 27,000 members on anchoring. Just over 15 percent of them responded, and he said 63 percent opposed the ban. The USGA and Royal & Ancient write the Rules of Golf. Bishop noted that the PGA Tour didn't exist when the USGA was founded in 1894, and that the tour has a "powerful impact" on the game. He suggested golf was at a point where two sets of rules should be considered as a potential solution.

The CEO of TaylorMade

suggested the USGA was "obsolete" and that the PGA of America, in conjunction with the PGA Tour, should be setting the rules. Maybe he forgot that the PGA Tour broke away from the PGA of America in 1968 because of the disconnect between tour pros and club pros.

Finchem said he thought there were certain parts of the rules that could be bifurcated "and it wouldn't hurt anything," though maybe not in the case of anchoring.

Where will it all lead?

Finchem said the tour's objective was to keep the rules together. Bishop said in an "ideal world," golf would be played under one set of rules.

Debate is healthy as long as it's about golf's best interest, and not financial interests. Don't get the idea that golf isn't growing because the game is too hard. That's one of its greatest appeals.

"The challenge was constant. And it never stopped being a challenge," Arnold Palmer once said. "That was one of the things that really excited me as a kid."

USGA president Glen Nagler got to the heart of the bifurcation bluster during his speech at the USGA's annual meeting over the weekend in San Diego.

"There certainly are important issues for the golf industry to address, including economic issues, but revenue concerns arising during a broad economic slowdown should not lead us fundamentally to alter our approach to writing the rules and defining the game," Nagler said. "It is our obligation as a governing body to keep our eye on the long-term good of the game and to hold firm to what we know to be true about the essence of golf."

In the meantime, Mickelson goes for his fifth win at Pebble Beach this week. All the stars get together for the first time in two weeks at the Match Play Championship.

And the Masters is only two months away.

Fans March with Ravens' Parade to Packed Stadium

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BALTIMORE • Baltimore celebrated with its Super Bowl champion Ravens on Tuesday, with thousands of fans in purple lining the streets and packing the team's stadium for a celebration.

Fans filled the square in front of City Hall and cheered when the team arrived and when players held the silver Lombardi trophy aloft. The Mayor's Office of Emergency Management estimated that 200,000 people took part in the celebration in Charm City, including at City Hall, along the parade route and at the stadium.

Coach John Harbaugh thanked the fans for their support, and safety Ed Reed sang the melody of Eddie Money's "Two Tickets to Paradise."

Retiring middle linebacker Ray Lewis, the only current player to have started with the team when it came to the city from Cleveland in 1996, told fans the team had fulfilled a promise to go to New Orleans and win.

"The city of Baltimore — I love you for ever and ever and ever," Lewis told fans in front of City Hall.

The players were about an hour late arriving, but fans waited to see them pile into military vehicles and set off on their drive to the stadium. The city shot off purple and white confetti as the parade started and the Queen song "We Are the Champions" played over a loudspeaker. Quarterback Joe Flacco and several other players rode in their own camouflage-colored military vehicles, while others stood on a float decorated like a football field with a yellow goal post.

they played with heart and they showed great leadership. (Senior) Breeann Bingham hurt her foot, but she would have helped us defensively; she is a monster on defense."

With Rebecca Child, Bradford, and Hannah Bailey returning next season, the Spartans could be formidable if they develop better perimeter ball handling.

"I'm so proud of them. They're heartbroken tonight, but we have a good foundation going into next year," Merrill said. "We lacked a true point guard and center. But I'm not sure anyone expected us to be here tonight, we played good basketball the last seven, eight games. And Twin, I don't know why they got beat so bad last time by Burley. It should be a great matchup and they should represent our conference well, it's the best conference in the state."

TODAY'S NATIONAL MAP

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Iceberg skating arena is pictured on Feb. 2 at the Russian Black Sea resort of Sochi, with just one year till the opening ceremony of the Winter Olympic 2014 Sochi Games. The Black Sea resort of Sochi is a vast construction site sprawling for nearly 25 miles along the coast and 30 miles up into the mountains, with no escape from the clang and clatter of the construction works, the drilling, jack-hammering and mixing of cement.

Sochi a Point of National Pride for Putin's Russia

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SOCHI, Russia • One year before Russia hosts its first Winter Olympics, this Black Sea resort is a vast construction site sprawling for nearly 25 miles along the coast and 30 miles up into the mountains. After arriving at Sochi's new airport, there's no escape from the clang and clatter of the drilling, jackhammering and mixing of cement that drowns out the hum of the sea and the birdsong.

For Russia and its leadership, the 2014 Sochi Games is not just a major sports event but a point of national pride. President Vladimir Putin has made the Olympics his personal project and, determined to use them to showcase a powerful and prosperous Russia, has spared no expense to make sure the games are a success.

On Thursday, Putin will be in Sochi to preside over a lavish celebration marking the one-year countdown to the opening ceremony on Feb. 7, 2014.

"The project is under his permanent control and we enjoy the full government support," Sochi organizing committee head Dmitry Chernyshenko said. "This really is his games because he recognizes the power of these games, the greatest ever catalyst to accelerate positive change."

The current overall price tag for the games is $51 billion, more than four times as much as Russia estimated when it was awarded the Olympics in 2007. This would make Sochi the most expensive Olympics in history, surpassing the $40 billion that China is believed to have splashed out for the 2008 Summer Games in Beijing. For Sochi, at least half the money is coming from state coffers, with most of the rest being put forward by state-controlled companies and Russian tycoons.

The costs are high because they include extensive infrastructure development in addition to construction of the Olympic venues, almost all of which had to be built from scratch. Most of the sports venues have already been completed or will be in the next few months, while armies of workers are busy building hotels and additional Olympic facilities, including two of the three athletes' villages and the media center.

Almost every major street and highway is affected by road works, further snarling the traffic that can make a 15-mile ride into town from the airport take more than two hours.

The sheer scale of the construction is staggering, but the head of the local organizing committee is confident that everything will be ready for the games.

"We're building all the infrastructure right on schedule and within the budget,"

Chernyshenko said.

The 2014 Games, which run through Feb. 23, will feature more than 3,000 athletes competing in seven sports and 15 disciplines for a total of 98 medal events. The sports program includes 12 new events, including women's ski jumping and slopestyle snowboarding and skiing.

This city in southern Russia once seemed an unusual choice for the Winter Games. With its lush subtropical climate, Sochi was previously known only as a summer sea resort where hotels with rude Soviet-style service catered to undemanding tourists from provincial Russia. The snow-capped peaks to the northeast saw little downhill skiing, an elitist and unpopular sport in Soviet times.

But in recent years, the mountains above the city have been transformed into a modern ski resort, with cable cars, cozy chalets and new hotels. Free Wi-Fi is ubiquitous, even at 7,600 feet. Russia hopes the games will put Sochi on the map as a year-round international resort.

"It's (a) once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for the country and for the entire region," Chernyshenko said. "Preparations for the games are like a magic wand. Once you've waved with it, you can really accelerate the changes and speed up all the processes."

Her Knee Shredded, Lindsey Vonn Done for the Season

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SCHLADMING, Austria • All it took was a moment. Lindsey Vonn landed hard and tumbled face first with a piercing shriek.

Just like that, the star American skier was on the ground with two torn ligaments in her right knee and a broken bone in her lower leg.

The cascading fall down the slope during the super-G at the world championships Tuesday knocked out the four-time World Cup champion for the rest of the season, the latest and most serious in a string of injuries for Vonn at skiing's biggest events.

The U.S. team said in a statement it expects her back for the next World Cup season and the 2014 Sochi Olympics, which start a year from this week.

The harrowing accident came after Vonn was lifted into the air off a jump in the opening race at the championships. As she hit the ground, her right leg gave way and she spun down face first, throwing an arm out to protect herself. She ended up on her back as she smashed through a gate.

On the television feed, Vonn was clearly heard screaming an expletive as she landed, then a despairing "Yes, yes," when someone asked, "Are you hurt?"

United States' Lindsey Vonn is airlifted after crashing during the women's super-G course, at the Alpine skiing world championships in Schladming, Austria, Tuesday. Lindsey Vonn has been helicoptered to hospital from the Alpine skiing world championships after crashing and apparently hurting her right knee in the super-G race.

Race leader and eventual champion Tina Maze watched with her mouth agape. The concern also was obvious on the face of Vonn's sister, Laura Kildow, who has been traveling with her full time this season.

For 12 minutes, Vonn lay on the snow getting medical treatment before being airlifted by helicopter to a hospital in Schladming.

Vonn tore her anterior cruciate ligament and medial collateral ligament in her right knee, U.S. ski team medical director Kyle Wilkens said in a statement. The broken bone was described as a "lateral tibial plateau fracture."

Christian Kaulfersch, the assistant medical director at the worlds, said Vonn left the Schladming hospital on Tuesday afternoon and will have surgery in another hospital. "She first wanted to go back to the team hotel to mentally deal with all what has happened," Kaulfersch said.
