DNA Results on Remains Could Take Months

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Police, family and a community continue to wait as a university laboratory processes DNA samples to find out if skeletal remains found at the City of Rocks National Reserve in October are those of Norine Boyd.

The mother of three boys, Boyd went missing from her Rupert home in December 1988. Her car was found in March 1989 near the Twin Sisters rock formation.

The DNA samples found last fall were sent to the University of Texas at El Paso, and results could take several more months.

“We still haven’t heard anything back,” George Warrell, Cassia County undersheriff, said Tuesday, Feb. 12. “They told us at the beginning we wouldn’t be at the front of the line and there would be other samples in front of us.”

Rupert police continued to work on the cold case over the years with the hopes of one day solving it.

Rupert Det. Jeff McEwen and Diane Gines, a reserve officer and retired criminal analyst, found the bones in a rugged section of the reserve. The police department is hopeful.

“By the luck of the draw we found her. I guess it was just time. We feel confident that it’s her (Boyd),” said Police Chief James Wardle. “Hopefully, we’ll have some DNA results soon.”

When the DNA results come back, detectives will first sit down

2 BONDS OR 1?

Before Jerome voters can consider a new jail or an improved wastewater plant, the bond issues supporting both have to make it on the ballot.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

JEROME • It’s still unclear what will be on the May 21 ballot for Jerome city residents.

In theory, voters will choose if they want to fund a new county jail and, separately, upgrades to the city wastewater treatment facility. Yet, concern over presenting multimillion-dollar bond issues to a reluctant public has delayed some final decisions.

Currently, Jerome County and city officials are under increased pressure to make those facilities compliant with federal and state regulators. Both entities have spent months trying to find a bond issue amount they can convince voters to support.

For example, Jerome City Council members have discussed using a bond issue to improve the city’s wastewater treatment plant ever since an overflow incident in 2010. While the incident was eventually blamed on operational error, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has demanded that the city bring the facility up to code. The facility is running over capacity and violating federal and state permits.

Multiple studies and discussions with environmental agencies have been brought before the What’s Next?

Jerome County commissioners and City Council members have yet to settle on bond issue amounts for the county jail and city wastewater treatment facility. Council members are scheduled to make a final decision on the wastewater bond at their next meeting, Tuesday, Feb. 19, at 100 East Ave. A, Jerome.

It’s not too late to learn more about the wastewater issue. The council will hold a second public workshop at noon Friday, Feb. 15, at the same location.

Teen Pleads Guilty to Aiding Home Invasion

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • After lengthy questioning by a Twin Falls judge, a Filer teen pleaded guilty Tuesday, Feb. 12, to aiding and abetting to robbery and kidnapping in connection with the Aug. 6, 2012 home invasion robbery of Leo and Judy Ray in Buhl. The Rays own Fish Processors of Idaho.

The 16-year-old old boy faces up to life in prison for the robbery charge and 25 years for each of two second degree kidnapping charges. No plea bargain has been made in the case, which means prosecutors and the defense can argue for whatever sentence they believe is appropriate but the decision is ultimately left up to a judge.

During the plea hearing, on the day a trial was scheduled to begin, Twin Falls County 5th District Judge Richard Bevan asked the teen what made him guilty of the charges. (The Times-News does not publish names of minors involved in criminal cases).

In his testimony, the teen explained that he knew he had a warrant out for his arrest for skipping a court-mandated drug test and he decided to leave home. Occasionally, he’d live with his sister, but for the most part he was on his own, the boy said.

“I was in the streets doing whatever I wanted,” he said.

The night of the home invasion, the teen was approached by a young woman who told him she knew Dylan Contreras, who the boy knew from the Idaho Department of Juvenile Corrections.

The teen told the judge he met up with Contreras and John Valenciano and Luis Sotelo that night. (Contreras was sentenced to 15 years to life in prison for the home invasion. Valenciano was sentenced to 15 to 30 years and Sotelo received four to 22 years.)

The teen described the night of the home invasion as a meth-fueled drive through Jerome and Twin Falls counties that included another shooting and ended at the Rays’ home.

The 16-year-old said he woke up with just him and the woman in the car. He said Valenciano told them he was taking them to someone’s house that he knew, but the boy said he didn’t want to go inside because he believed a drug deal might be happening.

He told the judge that Valenciano came out with a bag of weapons and instructed him to put it in their vehicle. After Valenciano came out of the house again, the boy said he figured out that something bad was happening. Eventually, the other men let him know that there were people inside the house, he testified. When the group finally left, the boy said they confirmed that an older couple was tied up inside the home.

After leaving the Buhl area, the boy said he and the young woman were angry at Contreras and Valenciano.

“They put us in a situation I didn’t want to be in,” he said.

The teen told the judge that eventually Sotelo and Valenciano got dropped off while the boy and Contreras got a hotel room, but when other people at the hotel spotted the stolen guns the two fled to the boy’s sister’s home.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Dow Closes at Highest Level of Year, Nears Record

NEW YORK (AP) • The Dow rose to its highest close of the year, putting it within 1 percent of its record. Stocks gained after impressive results from two big consumer brands.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed up 47.46 to 14,018.70 Tuesday. That is 146 points from its record close of 14,164.53 set in October 2007. The Standard & Poor's 500 gained 2.42 points to 1,519.43, also close to its record.

In a quiet day of trade, stocks were driven higher by beauty products maker Avon and luxury clothing and accessories company Michael Kors, whose results impressed investors. Consumer spending accounts for 70 percent of economic activity in the U.S.

Financial and home building stocks also lifted stocks, led by Bank of America and Masco Corp, which notched some of the day's biggest gains.

New Blog for Mini-Cassia

Last week my first blog entry “The Mountain Man of Boulder City” appeared on a staff blog called Trails and Tales at Magicvalley.com. My own blog “Mini-Cassia City Watch” is set to launch sometime this week. I hope you’ll watch for it. It will include commentary on issues, events and happenings in Mini-Cassia.

I have to confess, the whole concept of blogging throws me a little off balance. But, as painful as the idea was when it was first introduced to me, I am warming up to it. In fact, I enjoyed the different type of writing it required last week, and I’m counting on Times-News readers to continue to inspire me with their ideas and suggestions. Here’s to a new chapter.

- Laurie Welch

Sporty Monks

It was just supposed to be a photo for the upcoming food section. What it turned into was laughter, smiles and motivation. Having the opportunity to share a cup of coffee with the Benedictine Monks at the Monastery of the Ascension in Jerome opened my eyes. With only a single copy to go around for the whole monastery, the monks take their sports section seriously. While name recognition is often reserved for our reporters, these gentle men were very aware of my name and the sports images I create. Humbled by their kind words, I vow to continue to push the limits of my sports photography for all the generous souls here in the Magic Valley.

Lives Touched by Jeremy Eldredge

As a reporter, one of the most difficult parts of the job is occasionally writing about people who have passed away.

Last week, I talked with people who knew 23-year-old Jeremy Eldredge, who died Feb. 3. He was a 2008 Lighthouse Christian School alumnus who played football and basketball during his time in high school.

Elementary school principal Allison Hamilton said Eldredge didn’t come to Lighthouse Christian as a natural athlete.

“It was incredible to see the transformation,” she said.

By his senior year, he had become a leader of his class and on the football field, Hamilton said.

Kevin Newbry, Lighthouse Christian superintendent, said Eldredge’s car accident had a major impact on students at the school.

“He impacted his classmates greater than ever through his tragedy,” he said.

It taught students that life is finite, Newbry said, and “you never know when everything is going to come to a screeching halt.”

Speaker Says Understanding Demographics Critical in Business

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • If businesses want to succeed in the future, they must change to meet the demands of a new generation’s demographics.

It’s a global trend that has an impact on local businesses even in the Magic Valley, said Ken Gronbach, a futurist and demographer expert, during Tuesday’s Economic Breakfast, an annual event sponsored by First Federal Bank.

“Generation Y does not see race, they tell time different, they speak cyber first,” he said. “This is going to change everything.”

The Connecticut native spoke to Magic Valley business and economic leaders on the importance of knowing not just the local demographic, but also the future generation’s changes and preferences.

To do this, business owners should look to population changes to make long-term decisions.

Companies like Johnson and Johnson spent almost $2.5 billion in marketing when executives saw sales beginning to drop soon after the baby boomer generation started having children, Gronbach said. Instead of looking at birth rates, the company wasted money on an aggressive ad campaign that ultimately failed, he said.

“They didn’t look at the numbers,” he said. “People didn’t stop buying their products, there were fewer babies being born.”

During his presentation, Gronbach explained that fewer babies are being born across the globe except in the West. This could lead to companies moving more manufacturing jobs to the United States because other countries won’t have the population to replace the current workforce.

According to Gronbach, Generation Y – individuals born between 1985 and 2004 – will demand better wages for women and put them in positions of leadership. That generation will not just accept more diversity in their workplace, they will expect it.

“You have an economic mandate to understand them and to get in front of their demand,” he said.

Nice Little Warm Up Ahead

Brian Neudorff
Meteorologist

We will remain in a moist northwest flow through most of the week. A few weak disturbances embedded in this flow will move across the region today into tonight. For the valleys, this will mean clouds and sunshine, with windy conditions during the day and the chance of rain or snow showers during the overnight hours.

Most, if not all, of the precipitation tonight and Thursday will fall to the east in the eastern Magic Valley and Mini-Cassia region. For the mountains, mostly cloudy skies, light snow showers or flurries are possible later today and tonight, continuing into Thursday.

As for temperatures over the next few days, we will see a nice little warm up. Temperatures today will be from the low to mid-40s across the Magic Valley, with mid to upper-30s in the mountains. That will continue as we go into Thursday and even the early part of the weekend.

High pressure clears out the clouds for Friday and Saturday giving us some nice weather to end the week and go into the weekend as afternoon highs once again reach the mid-40s for the Magic Valley and mid to upper 30s for the mountains. Another weak system could drop in across the region on Sunday, with some clouds and a slight chance of a snow and cooler temperatures to start next week.

OBITUARIES

Mike Thorpe
Oct. 10, 1949-Feb. 10, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Kerry Michael (Mike) Thorpe, Twin Falls, passed away at home Sunday, Feb. 10, 2013, following a brief struggle with lung cancer while enduring other physical disabilities.

Mike was born Oct. 10, 1949, in Twin Falls, Idaho, was a Cub Scout and attended Twin Falls High School. He played golf, clarinet in the pep band and occasionally hooky. He graduated in 1968. Mike worked for many years, mainly in the food and beverage industries, but was happiest working as the assistant manager at Candle Ridge Golf Course. He was an avid golfer, enjoyed fishing, skiing, bike riding, beer and watering his mother's flowers while relaxing in the sunshine with family and friends. Mike played Little League baseball, clarinet in the Twin Falls City Park Band and was a former member of the Elks and IOOB.

Mike was preceded in death by his father, George T. Thorpe; baby sister, Dena Annell Thorpe; grandparents, John G. (Jack) and Nell Thorpe, and W. Henry and Anna Gustafson; and aunts, uncles and cousins. Mike is survived by his mother, Shirley A. Thorpe; Uncle John D. and Aunt Jean Thorpe; Uncle Bill and Aunt Beverly Gustafson; Uncle Charles Gustafson; brother, Jon Thorpe; sister, Melissa Thorpe-McClellan; daughter, Felise Thorpe Moll (Jeff Moll); sons, Sean Thorpe and Jeremy (Jerry) Bostron (Kami Bostron); four grandchildren, Logan, Brett, Haylee and Tyer; and several cousins.

A graveside service will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Feb. 15, at the Twin Falls Cemetery under the direction of Lance Cox and the staff at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park."

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests donations be made to the American Cancer Society or other cancer charities.

OBITUARIES

Leah A. Skinner

Dec. 18, 1946-Feb. 10, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Leah A. Skinner returned to her heavenly home Sunday, Feb. 10, 2013, after a sudden illness.

She was born Dec. 18, 1946, in Norwich, Conn., the firstborn of Robert and Nettie Ratto. As an infant, she moved to Pocatello where she graduated from Highland High School. She married Roger Maschek on Aug. 17, 1965; they were later divorced. They made their home in San Diego, Calif., after he returned from Vietnam. Later they made their home in Twin Falls. She married Tom Skinner on Dec. 30, 1988. They made their home in Twin Falls and on a farm near Hollister.

Leah loved boys and Scouting. Throughout her life, she served as a Cub Scout and Scout leader. She completed Wood Badge in 1980, going to camp with her Uncle Norman and grandfather, Nephi Carlsen. She loved arts and crafts, operating her own business on Main Street for more than 20 years. She was an active supporter of civic and religious-based youth groups as well as providing a home away from home for anyone that wanted to work on crafts.

She was an active member of the LDS Church, serving in all auxiliaries as a Scout leader, Relief Society worker, Primary teacher and, most recently, as a Young Women's leader. She loved going to the temple, and her excitement at the building of the Twin Falls Temple was hard to contain. She was proud of her "boys" and taught them to serve their community, their nation and their God. She delighted in spending time with her grandchildren; telling stories, playing games, hiking, painting and visiting them in all parts of the country and world. She loved living on the farm and working in her flower beds and garden and being around the animals.

She is survived by her husband, E. Thomas Skinner of Twin Falls; her sisters and brothers, Phyliss (Bruce) Weaver of Twin Falls, Robert (Norma) Ratto of Gooding, Cheri (Mike) Powell of Boise, Joseph (Julie) Ratto of Hansen and Steven (Barbara) Ratto of Portland, Ore.; also her children, CW4 (ret) R. Alan (Susan) Maschek of St. George, Utah, Pastor Kyle (Bobbie) Maschek of Nam-pa, Spencer Maschek and Steven (Emily) Maschek of Twin Falls, ISG Scott (Mary) Maschek of Killeen, Texas, Jared (Au) Maschek of Tague, South Korea, SSG (ret) Anthony (Angela) Maschek of New York, N.Y., Stuart (Cindy) Skinner of Twin Falls, Jeff (Charlene) Skinner of Twin Falls, Cheri Skinner of Salt Lake City, Utah, Julie (SSG Leland) Be-lin of Twin Falls and James Skinner of Los Angeles, Calif. She had enjoyed 29 grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and innumerable nieces, nephews and cousins. She was preceded in death by two nieces and, appropriately, her parents.

A viewing for family and friends will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 14, at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park." The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Feb. 15, at the LDS Church, 680 Hankins Road N. in Twin Falls, and is under the direction of Lance Cox and staff.

Delmer ‘Del’ Wayne Romberg

March 22, 1946-Feb. 5, 2013

HEYBURN • Delmer “Del” Wayne Romberg, 66, of Heyburn, Idaho, passed away Tuesday, Feb. 5, 2013, in Post Falls, Idaho.

He was born March 22, 1946, in Artisia, Calif., to Nelson and Johanna Romberg. He had the love of his life, Alice Leno Romberg, by his side along with his daughter, Nancy Clark, and his grandchildren as he took his last breaths. He was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer Dec. 26 and his final wishes were to spend his remaining time with his grandchildren who he adored so much. They were his life and he looked forward to every opportunity to tease them and then barbecue ribs and hot wings for them. He was the best cook! Del loved to fish and remembered all the times he would go on the half-day boat fishing trips with his parents. He passed that love down to his children and his grandchildren. He was a very hard worker and put that value to the test by operating his own dairy. After he got out of the dairy business, he hauled sheep, worked in the pit mines and finished his career long-haul trucking. He was quite the collector and didn't like any of us touching all of his “treasures” that we all knew he would never use.

Del is survived by his wife of 28 years, Alice Faye; his two sons, Jason Romberg and Ben Leno; his two daughters, Julie Romberg and Nancy Clark; grandchildren, Radley, Renden, Rhogen, Raeff, Alicen, Abigail, Hannah and Gage; and one great-grandson, Ezra Stone.

The memories will live on forever, good times and trying times, but the one thing that we will never question is the love he had for each of us. He had so many friends he loved to be with and was a very generous person with a huge heart.

A memorial service will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 17, at the Bell Tower Funeral Home, 3398 E. Jenalan Ave. in Post Falls.

In lieu of flowers, Alice would like plants for a remembrance garden. Please leave a message/memory on Del's online memorial page at www.belltowerfuneralhome.com.

Carol Ann Reynolds

Feb. 4, 2013-Nov. 13, 1942

BURLEY • Carol Ann Reynolds passed away Feb. 4, 2013, surrounded by loved ones.

She was born Nov. 13, 1942, in Salmon, Idaho. She was kind, caring, had a great sense of humor and will be deeply missed by her friends and family. Carol loved her work as a lifelong waitress and was particularly fond of her customers at Price's Cafe in Burley. She loved roses and irises and was known as the “Rose Lady” and “Christmas Carol” for her love of all things Christmas. She loved her church family at Calvary Chapel who showed her tremendous support, love and fellowship when she needed it most.

She is survived by Mattie, her precious dog; her daughters, Penny Chaffin, DeAnne Chaffin and LaVonne Chaffin; her son, Michael Chaffin; her sister, Marie Spanbauer (Dennis); and brother, Michael Whiting (Kristie) and their families. Imagine the glad welcome Grandma Dorothy gave to her Carol Ann. Night crawlers were dug and a big fishing trip taken.

Carol requested there be no service or memorial.

Fredrick William Broderick Jr.

Nov. 14, 1930-Feb. 8, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Fred Broderick Jr. passed away in his home Friday, Feb. 8, 2013.

Fred was born Nov. 14, 1930, in Oakland, Calif. He went to school at San Francisco State and coached for the Community Recreation Department. He then served in the Air Force. After the service, he worked for Prudential Insurance in California from 1963 to 1977.

In July of 1973, he married Mary and blended their families together. Fred and Mary moved to Filer, Idaho, in October of 1977 and started a small sheep farm.

In Idaho, he worked as an insurance agent for Modern Woodmen. His favorite pastimes were playing Pinochle, listening to music, studying history, philosophy and space. His greatest joy was working in his beautiful flower and vegetable garden.

Surviving Fred are his wife, Mary; his four daughters, Alice Sadeghi of Morgan Hill, Calif., Laura Broderick of Boise, Shari Cammack (Quinton) of Buhl and Lori Baker (Karl) of Filer; his two sons, Fred Broderick III (Paulita) of Vallejo, Calif., and John Broderick of Fremont, Calif.. Also surviving are his 11 grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; and his sister, Darryl Bulkley of Port Townsend, Wash.

A private family service will be held when all the family arrives in Idaho.

Arrangements are under the direction of the Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home and Crematory of Twin Falls. Those who wish to share condolences and memories may do so at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

Dale Eugene Webster

July 7, 1924-Feb. 7, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Dale Eugene Webster passed away Thursday, Feb. 7, 2013, in Mesa, Ariz.

The oldest son of Richard and Martha Sierer Webster, Dale was born in Twin Falls, Idaho, on July 7, 1924. He was raised in Filer and went to Maroa School and graduated from Filer High School. In 1943, Dale joined the Navy and served four years in the South Pacific. As a young man, he served with the CCC and helped build campgrounds in the South Hills. He also worked on the Anderson Dam in Elmore County. After his return from the Navy, he met and married Ferma Russell, and they were married for 66 years, living mostly in the Twin Falls area. Dale was a member of the First Baptist Church and lifetime member of the VFW. Dale retired from the state after 27 years.

He and Ferma were blessed with three children, whom he enjoyed greatly. They are Eldora (Gene) Walker, Emery (Marylin) Webster and Gerald (Diana) Webster. He has six grandchildren, 15 great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild. He is also survived by his brother, Wayne Webster of Filer, Idaho. He was preceded in death by his sister, Betty; and three brothers Jack, Bill and James.

The funeral for Dale will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 14, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls, with Pastor Jeff Cooper officiating. Interment will be held following the service at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls, Idaho.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made in memory of Dale to the Twin Falls Animal Shelter, P.O. Box 1163, Twin Falls, ID 83303.

SENIOR

Q. I told my family at dinner last Sunday that I am going back to school! It's never too late, right?

A. Learning new things keeps us young, and there are endless opportunities and lots of social support to be a “lifelong learner.” It isn't too late, and you won't be alone. Finishing a college degree, or starting one, is the goal of many older adults. Being an older student has some advantages. You have more experience to draw from. You have more focus. You know what you want. Making friends, while nice, is not central to your college experience. You will be less easily distracted or influenced. As long as you keep your brain active, it will keep up with the twenty-somethings! And, while everyone's situation is different, you may not have to work and can concentrate more of your time on your studies. Good luck!

Proposed Bill Would Ruin Lives, Create Criminals

Lee Heider introduced a bill this session that has the potential to destroy the lives of countless young people. It has the potential to grow our prison population like a farmer watering a field. If Heider gets his way, young people who are convicted of felonies or violent misdemeanors or who spent a year or more in prison will not be allowed back in school. Ever. To hear him talk, the decision was based on a couple of bad seeds who returned to school after time in the correction system, trafficked drugs and got two girls pregnant.

The bill ignores that Idaho's public school system already has an entire network of alternative programs designed to help these troubled students turn their life around. Visit Magic Valley High School in Twin Falls or Cassia High School in Burley and you'll hear heart wrenching success stories that far outweigh the story of the two bad boys that Heider has so often repeated while pedaling this law.

Already, schools evaluate students who have been convicted of felonies, spent time in jail or committed violent crimes. It's at that moment, that someone trained to do so gives a recommendation to the school board whether or not that individual would be a danger to teachers or other students.

Twin Falls School District Superintendent Wiley Dobbs said there is a program in place for area youth to earn their way back into school. It's called the WISE program. The program starts with community service. The students load on a bus every morning and head to various community service projects.

"It teaches them they need to give back," Dobbs said. "It's a way for them to atone for what they did and they also get a look at what their life's work could be. It's respectable work, but it's very, very hard."

Like any system, there are failures and students who are given a second chance who don't deserve it as Heider's anecdote tells us.

But what about the countless others who could turn their lives around? Why doesn't Heider trust school boards and principals and counselors to do their jobs? Why tie their hands? Why turn our backs on young people who could become productive members of society with the proper guidance?

Heider's bill offers no alternative to students after the door is slammed in their face. Idaho Department of Correction Director Brent Reinke told the Idaho Education News last week that between 40 and 45 percent of dropouts wind up in the correction system.

In response, Heider told Idaho Education News that he hadn't discussed the bill with Department of Correction officials. "The view of the correctional institution is really the least of our concern," he said.

It should be his concern. It should be the concern of every taxpayer. According to the Idaho Department of Correction website, the average cost per day to house an inmate in Idaho prisons was $52.22 for fiscal year 2010. The average offender cost per day for someone on probation or parole is $4.

Ensuring that young people, who have already been introduced to a life of crime, are left out in the cold without an education or the job opportunities that education is a warm petri dish for recidivism.

"What we know intuitively is education goes a long way with saving troubled kids," said Monty Prow of the Idaho Department of Juvenile Corrections.

Heider said he's less concerned about saving troubled kids than he is with protecting the other students in schools.

"I know that sounds harsh," he said. But, he added, "I'd rather protect the thousand in every school than the one that comes out of prison."

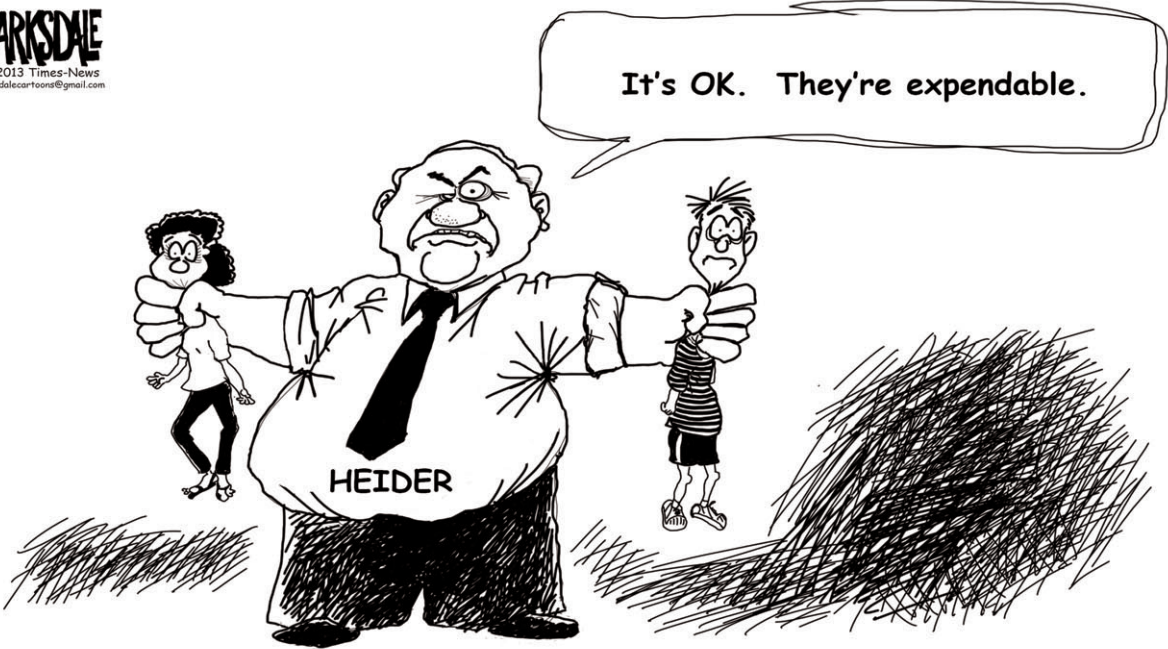

Yes, it sounds harsh. It also sounds naïve and expensive. Heider's bill is scheduled for consideration by the Senate Education Committee at 3 p.m. today. We encourage lawmakers to vote against it.

Hurlock Snub Reveals Urban-Rural Divide

BY DAN POPKEY
Idaho Statesman

It's no surprise that Monday's rejection of GOP Gov. Butch Otter's Fish & Game Commissioner Joan Hurlock included a hint of the urban-rural divisions that have long defined Idaho politics.

Of the nine Senate Republicans who supported Hurlock in a losing 19-16 vote, seven represent significant urban constituencies: Dan Johnson of Lewiston, Shawn Keough of Sandpoint, Todd Lakey of Nampa, Patti Anne Lodge of Huston, Fred Martin of Boise, Jim Patrick of Twin Falls and Jim Rice of Caldwell. Keough represents a largely rural district, but Sandpoint is a fashionable resort and retirement town.

They backed the leader of their party's appointee, despite her casual relationship with hunting and fishing. Nineteen Republicans opposed Hurlock. All seven Democrats, who represent city-dominated districts, voted for her.

The two Republicans who supported Hurlock and represent largely rural districts were her floor manager, Bert Brackett of Rogerson, who ranches in Southern Idaho and Nevada, and John Tippetts of Montpelier in the far Southeast corner of Idaho.

The Hurlock nomination became a proxy for a cultural shift that can seem threatening to rural interests that have long held sway.

"They're not a hunting family," said Sen. Lee Heider, R-Twin Falls, capsulizing the us-vs.-them sentiment on Hurlock, who moved to Buhl a decade ago from California, where her father was a game warden. Though Hurlock lost, Otter's decision to fight for her nomination is yet another sign of change in a state where cities are growing far faster than rural precincts and folks born outside Idaho outnumber the native-born.

Perhaps the best example in the Senate is Lodge, a seven-term lawmaker who moved to Idaho at age 4 from Pennsylvania, when her father won a football scholarship at the College of Idaho.

Lodge is deeply connected to the GOP establishment. Her husband, Edward, also played at C of I and was a state court judge for 26 years. In 1989, President George H.W. Bush nominated him as a federal judge, a post he continues to hold. Their son, Ed, is a lobbyist for CenturyLink.

Sen. Lodge grew up in one of those hunting families. "There was a shotgun in every corner," she said during debate. "My brother had a gun in his hands from the time he could just barely walk."

But Lodge then made what might seem a dangerous admission: She's given up hunting. She likes to see deer, quail, pheasants, ducks and geese roaming her land on Sunnyslope near the Snake River — without wanting to shoot them.

Lodge's brother, former Liquor Dispensary Director Dyke Nally, chaired Otter's 8-member committee that interviewed seven commissioner candidates. The panel ranked Hurlock in a tie for first. Nally, Lodge told the Senate, raised 150 chukar chicks last year, releasing them in an orchard owned by the siblings. Lodge had a reminder for those she called the "great white hunters:" many citizens see critters as more than meat on the run.

"Remember, that wildlife belongs to all of Idaho," she said.

Others objected to disqualifying Hurlock for non-membership in the Hook-and-Bullet Club.

Said Patrick: "I think of her as a breath of fresh air in being a little different."

Rice responded to Sen. Jeff Siddoway, a Republican rancher from Terreton and leader of the anti-Hurlock faction. Siddoway had said Hurlock was intelligent, well-informed and a quick study, but lacked the "passion" for hunting necessary for the seven-member commission. Rice described an acquaintance so passionate about hunting that a judge imposed a lifetime hunting ban because of the man's repeated offenses. "That (passion) is not the basis upon which we appoint commissioners," Rice said.

READER COMMENT

Jerome Ignores Wastewater Discussion

The saga that is the city of Jerome's management of the Waste Water Treatment Plant (WWTP) took another bizarre turn this week, when the mayor informed those of us who attended the standing room only wastewater workshop (a workshop in which no one in the crowd was allowed to ask questions), that the city would be asking for a bond in excess of $30 million.

In order to bring some perspective, I must first summarize the past two plus years of WWTP management by the city of Jerome. In the fall of 2010, the city had an "upset" that caused the city to discharge mostly untreated sewage for over two months which resulted in EPA's notice of violation of the city's permit. The first reports that the mayor relayed to both KMVT and the Times-News was that industry had a spill that caused the upset, and that the city would get to the bottom of the issue.

Industry, trying to find out what happened, commissioned and paid for a study to find out the reasons behind the "upset." The study, by an independent third party, and supported by a consultant to the city, found that the director of the city's WWTP had taken some of the treatment equipment off line, and this, and not anything from industry, caused the "upset." The mayor reluctantly issued a press release retracting his initial statements, and placing the responsibility on the city and its employees. This is a fact that would have never been known if the industry hadn't paid for the study to be conducted.

Bill Riebesell

Fast forward to the fall of 2011. In order to deal with EPA's notice and the problems with the WWTP, the mayor commissioned a Waste Water Steering Committee. As a member of the committee, I attended many meetings to address the situation. The Committee finally recommended that there needed to be a change of management at the WWTP, and that the WWTP needed some treatment redundancy with back-up plans put into place.

The Committee members suggested that they would be willing to help select an engineering firm to assist the City in creating a master plan for the facility. At that point, we had initial cost estimates of $3 million to $8 million to accomplish the upgrades. It was also recommended that future expansion of the WWTP should be paid for by those who needed the additional treatment services, and not by the current taxpayers in the city.

Apparently, the ideas generated from the Waste Water Steering Committee fell on deaf ears at the city of Jerome. The mayor formed another committee, not including anyone from industry, called the Blue Ribbon Committee. The BR Committee recommended spending up to $56 million dollars to improve and expand the WWTP, all of which would be paid for by current taxpayers.

Prior to this activity, Jerome Cheese approached the Mayor and presented a plan in which Jerome Cheese would pay for and build a treatment plant to treat 100 percent of its industrial waste, which would in turn create 40 percent capacity at the City of Jerome's WWTP. Apparently, this proposal never made it to the Blue Ribbon Committee, nor was it mentioned at this week's meeting.

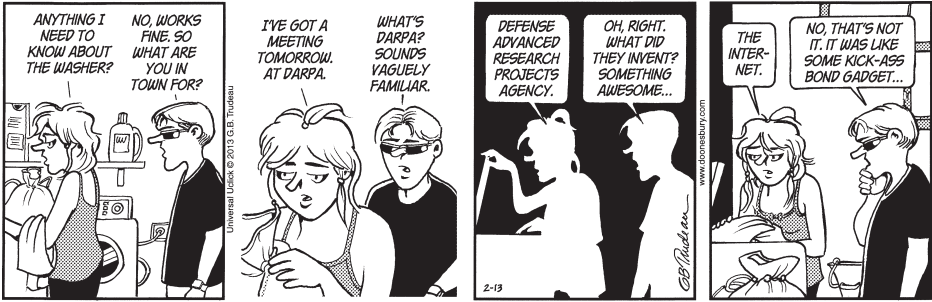

In addition to this lack of full disclosure to the citizens of Jerome, during Monday's meeting it was clearly stated by the city's third party engineering firm, Keller and Associates, that only $10 million was needed to upgrade the city's treatment plant to accommodate what is presently needed in terms of redundancy. The mayor announced his plan to ask for a bond in excess of $30 million dollars, with a contingency of 30-50 percent. This bond amount contemplates expanding the WWTP to handle an additional 2 million gallons of water and 10,000 pounds of BOD a day. Can you imagine — the mayor is asking us as citizens of Jerome to accept a bond of $30 million dollars when its own engineer states that $10 million is what is currently needed? You really can't make this stuff up.

The city of Jerome's failure to properly manage and account for its WWTP has continued for virtually all 20 years we've done business here, and I have the say the latest incident tops all prior activities. The citizens and businesses of Jerome deserve to have full disclosure as to all the options around what the mayor is currently planning, including the option Jerome Cheese has presented to the mayor about building its own treatment facility. Anything less than full disclosure is clearly unacceptable.

Animal Torture Bill Passes House Ag Committee

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • Twin Falls Animal Shelter director Debbie Blackwood has seen dogs beaten with iron rods. She's seen dogs with their bellies sliced open, and dogs whipped with hoses.

"Animal abuse has and does occur in our little ol' Twin Falls County," Blackwood said. "No doubt in my mind."

Repeat abusers may soon be charged with felonies, under a bill that passed the House Agriculture Committee on Tuesday.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Ken Andrus, R-Lava Hot Springs, would make those convicted three times of animal torture eligible for felony prosecution. The bill specifies torture to companion animals like dogs and cats, and doesn't apply to agriculture practices, Andrus emphasized.

A large part of the reason Andrus brought up the bill: To stave off voter referendum efforts to add stiffer animal cruelty laws that might include agriculture practices or production animals.

Lisa Kauffman, Idaho state director for the Humane Society of the United States, gave multiple disturbing examples of animal cruelty throughout Idaho and the United States, including a 2012 case where Michael Dobler of Coeur d'Alene was sentenced for animal cruelty and a January 2013 case where a Boise pug was shot.

Kauffman reiterated that the bill wouldn't apply to production animals, but others had their doubts.

Brent Olmstead, executive director of Milk Producers of Idaho, said his organization had no position on the bill, but is concerned that it will lead to future laws that affect agriculture practices. While none of his members support torture to companion animals, Olmstead likened the animal welfare movement to "death by a thousand cuts."

"We're looking at this (bill) as possibly one of those cuts," Olmstead said.

The bill passed on a voice vote, with three members opposing the legislation. Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, was one of the no votes.

Bell said while she is adamantly against animal torture, she's concerned that the bill is an empty gesture, as most repeat abuse affected by this legislation occurs in private.

"No matter what we do, there are ... animals hurt, and it seems like we're doing all we can and the madness is still with us," she said. "Did it make me feel better to put something more on the books? No, it didn't."

But on Tuesday, Blackwood said she still supports the Legislature's efforts.

"I'm honestly here to tell you having been in animal control for ten years ... that people do beat their animals, and beat them severely," she said.

The bill now advances to the House.

ONLINE: Crapo, Risch Sponsor Grazing Improvement Act

Times-News environment reporter Kimberlee Kruesi blogs about Idaho environmental news at "Untamed Idaho." Here's an excerpt from a Tuesday blog post:

"The reintroduction of the Grazing Improvement Act has once again attracted the support of Idaho's U.S. Senators Mike Crapo and Jim Risch.

"Both the Senate and House debated the bill during the last Congressional session. It passed the House but didn't get passed the Senate. However, it was reintroduced by Senator John Barrasso (R-WY) last Thursday.

"The bill, for those needing a reminder, would extend grazing permits from 10 to 20 years..."

Fundraising Ball to Benefit Wilson Theatre

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • The Renaissance Arts Center Inc. will hold its 11th annual fundraising ball, banquet and auction on Saturday, Feb. 23.

The theme this year is "Thanks for the Memories" in honor of the Minidoka County Centennial.

The event will start with a social hour at 6 p.m., dinner 7 p.m. and live auction at 8 p.m. It will be held at the Burley Inn Convention Center, 800 N. Overland Ave. There will also be a silent auction, raffles and balloon sale.

Tickets are $40 per person and available by calling 436-2787.

Chris Jackson, executive director of the Renaissance Arts Center Inc., said last year the ball netted $30,000 and cleared $22,000 after expenses. The money is used for operation and restoration of the theater.

Jackson said dress for the event can be either casual or formal.

"It's pretty much whatever you want to wear," Jackson said.

Some of the auction items will include a Robert Moore painting, dinners at restaurants and packaged ground beef.

Two-time Emmy-nominated musician and songwriter Steve Eaton will provide the entertainment. He is a former lead guitarist with Paul Revere & the Raiders and has written songs for the Carpenters, Art Garfunkel and Lee Greenwood. He's also performed opening acts for Blood, Sweat & Tears, Ray Charles and Carole King.

The Renaissance Arts Center was formed out of the Renaissance Arts Initiative in 2001. The organization headed by Jackson began renovation on the old Wilson Theatre, which is now in its final phase of restoration.

with Boyd's family to share the information with them.

"Depending on the results we'll then decide which direction we'll head with it," Warrell said.

Wardle said if the results show the remains are Boyd's, the department will officially close its missing person's case and the family will receive her remains.

Wardle said all the other case files from that time period were archived long ago and are now gone.

"We'll probably never really know what happened and whether she went up there alone or what. Too much time elapsed," Wardle said.

Boyd's mother, Necia McDonald, who lives in Shoshone, told the Times-News in October that she had no doubt the remains belonged to her daughter.

"She's at peace finally, but it's a bittersweet thing," McDonald said.

Teen

Nelson told the court that the boy's sister did not know what had happened, but knew her brother had a warrant and called police the next morning.

The teen's testimony differed from Leo Ray's who has repeatedly testified that three young men put guns in his face when he opened the door. He has also testified that two of the men held guns to his head while a third male stood across the room with a gun.

Contreras and Valenciano have admitted to entering the house while Sotelo admitted to being a lookout at the bottom of the Ray's driveway.

Twin Falls County Deputy Prosecutor Rosemary Emory said the young woman in the car was going to testify that she saw the boy go toward the Ray's house along with Contreras and Valenciano.

Nelson said he learned that Judy Ray was prepared to testify at trial that she recognized the 16-year-old boy's distinctive nose through the bandana he and the other robbers wore. That fact changed his defense, he said.

Nelson said he informed the boy and his family that a jury was much more likely to believe the Rays' testimony than the boy's.

As Bevan went through the proceedings, the teen asked to clarify several things and Bevan explained and simplified several legal terms for him. Bevan said he wanted to ensure that the boy's plea was voluntary.

"Even though you're young, it's your choice," he said.

The boy said he was sure he wanted to plead guilty.

Eventually, Bevan accepted the guilty plea to robbery, but said he considered the kidnapping pleas Alford pleas. Bevan said he didn't believe the facts as the boy explained them would make him guilty of second degree kidnapping, but that the state has sufficient evidence to prove the boy's guilt.

A sentencing is now scheduled for April 23. Nelson said he planned to have expert witnesses testify to the affect of a prison sentence on a juvenile's development during the sentencing.

Bonds

council to determine what it would take to improve the facility. But at a public workshop on the matter Monday, Feb. 11, the council still showed no sign of progress.

City officials are quickly running out of time to make the spring deadline for a vote. City staff and an advisory committee are urging council members to make a decision at the next council meeting, Tuesday, Feb. 19, in order to begin the public hearing process required to put the bond on the May ballot.

The council scheduled two wastewater workshops to address questions about the various bond amounts and upgrade options. The second is planned for noon Friday, Feb. 15, at the Jerome City Chambers at 100 East Ave. A.

"I think we need to start over and go over what's really needed," said Councilman

Chris Barber at Monday's workshop. "I have too many questions before I can make a decision."

Councilman Dale Ross also voiced that he felt certain questions weren't being addressed in the upgrade options presented to the council. However, Councilwoman Dawn Soto disagreed.

"We have been talking about this for two years, we should be able to make a decision," she said. "We have enough information. We have reams of paper on this."

Even if the council does settle on a bond amount, Jerome residents have recently shot down multiple attempts to pass bond issues that would fund city or county projects.

The bond issue for the Jerome County Jail has repeatedly failed to reach the supermajority 66.7 percent approval needed for the funding. County commissioners have brought the jail bond to voters four times since 2009, and four times it has been rejected.

County commissioners discussed holding off from a fifth attempt on the May ballot when they heard city officials might try to also add their wastewater bond issue, said Charlie Howell, county commission chairman. But the commissioners ultimately felt that putting off the vote was not the best solution, he said.

The amount of the county's May bond issue is still being determined. An advisory committee has been created to help come up with a jail design and price estimate to be submitted to the commissioners.

"Even though we think having the second bond does complicate the issue, putting things off doesn't get rid of either issue," he said. "We have talked about coordinating but decided not to hold off."

Passing a city bond at the same time as the jail bond is also a concern for the Jerome City Council, said Mayor John Shine.

Shine said he's not as worried about the city's bond issue passing because it only requires a simple majority approval — meaning it just needs more than half of the votes.

At the same time, Shine said, the council is trying to find a bond issue amount that voters will be willing to approve. Their current choices range from a $33 million bond issue to $58 million, recommendations that take into account the EPA compliance issues and future growth.

Monday, Barber said he also disagreed that $33.3 million is the lowest option.

"We have to cut this down," he said.

Shine admitted that the project will be expensive but it's a project the city must address.

"I understand for those who live on a fixed income. I live on a fixed income," he said. "The question is am I willing to invest in the future of Jerome? My answer is yes."

Plan to Love Your Garden

A chance to daydream about what your garden will look like this summer is why our founding fathers invented February.

In milder climates, you might be distracted by actually being able to garden in February, but in the Magic Valley we are free to let our imaginations wonder, unfettered by reality. If you prefer not to be accused of daydreaming, just put your ideas down on paper and call it planning.

Making plans for your garden is an often underappreciated step in creating a beautiful but manageable garden. Your outline may include a complete drawing and list of existing and new plants or be as simple as a list of seeds to buy. Planning can save time and reduce impulse purchases at the garden center. It will help you resist a New Guinea impatiens that will require as much water as a 20 year old sagebrush. (I just made that up, I have no idea the amount of water needed for each but they are at opposite sides of the irrigation scale.)

A few items to consider as you plan your garden-

A Culture within a Culture

Magic Valley residents share their favorite probiotic recipes and the benefits of eating "good bacteria."

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The world of probiotic foods is a culture all its own. For Richard Purin of Twin Falls, it's a lifestyle.

"When you start to realize that you are saving money, living healthier and happier than you have ever been before, that is when you will understand just how much of a 'culture' the world of probiotics is — no pun intended," Purin said.

So what exactly are probiotic foods?

The National Center for Complementary and Alternative Medicine (NCCAM) is the federal government's lead agency for scientific research on the diverse medical and health care systems, practices, and products not generally considered part of conventional medicine. It defines probiotics as live microorganisms (in most cases, bacteria) that are similar to beneficial microorganisms found in the human gut. They are also called "friendly bacteria" or "good bacteria."

Probiotics are available mainly in the form of dietary supplements and foods.

Two years ago, Brittnee Horting of Gooding wanted to learn more about the benefits of drinking kefir.

Kefir is a fermented drink made with kefir grains, which are live active cultures consisting of yeast and bacteria. The grains ferment the milk, incorporating "good bacteria" to create the cultured product. The grains often take on the appearance of pieces of coral or small clumps of cauliflower. Kefir can also be cultured in water.

Horting mentioned kefir on her Facebook page and ended up getting some grains from local people who have had their own for 30 years.

"It's like a sourdough starter," Horting said of the grains. "Kefir is a pure drink similar to yogurt, it has the consistency of milk, and it can be thicker depending on how long you culture it?"

Horting has heard of people who use kefir in place of buttermilk or yogurt when baking.

She likes to use kefir in her smoothies and freeze it into popsicles for her children.

According to the 2007 National Health Interview Survey, which included a comprehensive survey on the use of complementary health approaches by Americans, probiotics ranked fifth among natural products used for children.

Probiotics are used for a variety of gastrointestinal conditions, though the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has not approved any health claims for them.

FDA-approved or not, people in the Magic Valley are using and making their own probiotic foods.

Bees That Mean Business

The honey business isn't exactly liquid gold, but beekeepers find profit in pollination.

BUHL • As the matriarch and financial guru of VeeBee Honey and Pollination in Buhl, Norma Kofoed is clearly enamored with her product and proud of the company her son began in 2003.

But ask her if she really enjoys her end of the business, and the 76-year-old smiles wanly, sighs and rubs her forehead.

"No," she says, "because we never have enough money to pay all the bills."

Get past the financial challenges, though, and Kofoed waxes poetic about raw honey, honey bees and the thrill of learning.

"The study of honey bees is the most exciting and interesting science I've ever studied," she said. "The fun part for me was contacting people and talking to them about the benefits of raw honey."

Now marketing master Andrea Kokes, Kofoed's daughter, gets to do that: "Everything about bees is fascinating," said Kokes, 44.

Kofoed's family members first began experimenting with beekeeping in 1978, when her son John became interested in the sticky business in high school. He eventually sold his portion of the business in 1998 and evidently intrigued his younger brother Scott to follow the lead.

Scott VanDerwalker, 52, the actual beekeeper of the company, formed VeeBee

The College of Southern Idaho Sustainability Committee will show the documentary "Queen of the Sun: What Are the Bees Telling Us?" at 7 p.m. Feb. 22 in the Fine Arts Recital Hall. Admission is free of charge and the presentation is open to everyone of all ages.

The film traces the link between bees and man over the last 10,000 years, revealing bees as a barometer of the health of the earth. It also documents the efforts of Gunther Hawk, who is creating a 600-acre farm dedicated to helping support bees.

Tubbs' Berry Farm of Twin Falls will display a hive for film attendees to see up close.

sauerkraut and kimchi.

"In kefir there are a lot of cultures that live inside it that look like a little nest of little rocks," Purin said. "It has a slightly fermented taste."

Purin said he likes to add cranberry juice and a little sugar to his kefir.

"It makes a delicious drink," Purin said. "Once you start to like that taste you start to crave it."

Sauerkraut — finely cut cabbage that has been fermented — is another probiotic food that Purin incorporates into his daily meals. Purin said his family was originally from northern Italy, where sauerkraut was served often with meals while he was growing up.

"It's just fantastic, it has a lot of good cultures," he said.

Recently Purin has added kimchi — a traditional fermented Korean dish made of vegetables and seasonings like brine, scallions, spices, ginger, chopped radish and garlic — to his personal menu of probiotic foods.

"You can eat it (kimchi) fresh or you can let it go for longer," Purin said. "It really affects the flavor ... I like to eat my kimchi slightly warm to cold."

Rachel Bartlett, 27, of Twin Falls, has brewed her own kombucha tea every week since May. Bartlett came across information about the benefits of drinking kombucha and decided to give it a try. She received a "mother," which is a symbiotic colony of bacteria and yeast.

"It (the mother) looks like a jellyfish and has a creamy, white color," she said.

Bartlett described the taste of the tea as "vinegary" and said it can be brewed with molasses or sugar to add a hint of sweetness.

"It's a different taste for some people and it takes a while for them to get used to it," she said.

She said kombucha tea has helped curb her appetite. It gives her energy that coffee alone can't attain, she said, and without the crash later.

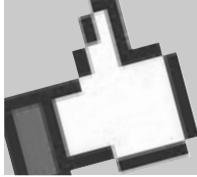

"For me, I just want to stay healthy. I eat a lot of fresh grown vegetables and I don't eat a lot of store-bought stuff," Bartlett said.

And though eating fermented foods can be sort of a culture shock at first, Purin said probiotic foods are not only delicious, but are also good medicine.

"Kombucha is a total medicine — you start to feel a little sick, you drink some and it's gone," Purin said.

Gene V. Sorensen

Dec. 8, 1928-Feb. 9, 2013

OREM, Utah • Gene V. Sorensen was born Dec. 8, 1928, in American Falls, Idaho, the 11th child of Lawrence and Effie Ellis Sorensen. He graduated from American Falls High School in 1946 and served in the Marine Corps. He married Mary Kay Roskelley, the most beautiful girl he'd ever seen, on June 27, 1949. They had nine sons and one daughter.

They lived in Burley, Idaho; Warren, Utah; and Orem, Utah. He worked as a banker for 25 years at Idaho Bank and Trust, Cassia National Bank and Citizen's National Bank and then as a public adjuster for an additional 25 years. He was a faithful member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He served as bishop in Burley, Idaho, and worked at the Mount Timpangas Temple for seven years. He also served two missions for the church with his wife in Tampa, Fla., and San Diego, Calif.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Kay; his brother, Bert Sorensen; as well as seven sons and one daughter, Steven (Avis Schilling) if Wisconsin, Thomas (Susan Schmidt) of Kansas, Kevin (Dina Giliam) of Alaska, Mark (Marie Buckwalter) of Utah, Margene (Kenneth Burgener) of Utah, Wayne (Terri Williams) of California, Kelly (Janet Delos Reyes) of Utah, and William (Laurie Walton) of Wyoming. He is preceded in death by two sons, David and Robert; nine brothers; one sister; and one grandchild.

He passed away peacefully at home in Orem, Utah, on Saturday, Feb. 9, 2013.

The funeral will be at 1 p.m. Friday, Feb. 15, in the Canyon View LDS Stake Center, 575 E. 800 N. in Orem, Utah. Fernetta Adam

Feb. 5, 1931-Feb. 6, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Fernetta Marie Adam passed away peacefully at the Twin Falls Care Center on Wednesday, Feb. 6, 2013.

Fernetta Marie (Pleinis) Adam was born Feb. 5, 1931, to John and Anna Pleinis of McLaughlin, S.D. She attended McLaughlin High School and, after graduation, worked as a clerk at Hatch's Grocery Store until she met her sweetheart, Reinhold Adam. They were married Oct. 26, 1951, at McLaughlin, S.D., and moved to Roscoe, S.D., where Reiny was employed. They moved to Aberdeen, S.D., for a short time and then moved to Lodi, Calif., where they lived most of their lives. Fernetta was employed with a catering company while living in Lodi. Reiny retired and they moved to Twins Falls, Idaho, where she remained until the time of her death. She loved cooking and working with food so all her family and relatives could enjoy the fruits of her labor.

Fernetta loved entertaining and always welcomed anyone into her home with a great meal. Her greatest pleasure was having her children and family and friends around her. She was always the caretaker and made everyone feel at "home," especially her children and grandchildren. When Reiny and Fernetta would come home to South Dakota, they made sure that they visited with all her family and friends. She especially enjoyed dancing and listening to the music of her brother's band, "The West River Wranglers." Fernetta will be remembered for always having a smile and took the time to visit with everyone she met. She had a heart of gold.

Now she is at home in heaven with her husband, Reiny; parents, John and Anna Pleinis; twin daughters, Cheryl and Carol; daughter, Karen; and her brother, Myren Pleinis. She will be missed by all of her family, and we are glad that now she can rest and be taken care of by her father in heaven. She is survived by her sons, Virgil of Twin Falls and Stanley of California; several grandchildren and great-grandchildren; seven sisters; and four brothers.

A celebration of Fernetta's life will be held as a graveside service at 2 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 14, at the Rock Creek Veterans Cemetery, with Pastor Dale Metzger officiating. Services are under the direction of Trent Stimpson and staff at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park" in Twin Falls.

Spend an Evening in Tuscany

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Love Italian food and charm?

Then sign up for Cristina Ceccatelli Cook's "An Italian Dinner" cooking class from 6-8 p.m. Feb. 20 at Rudy's — A Cook's Paradise, 147 Main Ave. W.

Cost is $50.

On the menu is chicken scaloppini, Italian mashed potatoes and sauteed winter greens.

Cook grew up in Italy on her family's estate, La Fattoria di Riofi, in Tuscany. She is the founder and owner of Cristina's Restaurant in Sun Valley, which she opened in 1993, five years after moving to the United States.

The author of two cookbooks, "Cristina's of Sun Valley" (2005) and "Cristina's Tuscan Table" (2007), she will also have her brand new cookbook available.

Winning Combo: Kasha, Mushrooms and Onions

STEPHANIE WITT SEDGWICK
Special to The Washington Post

I grew up eating kasha varnishkes, a mix of kasha, onions, mushrooms and noodles. I liked it then, but now it seems a world away from how we cook and eat. What still works is the winning combination of kasha, onions and mushrooms. To reinvent the dish, I replaced the pasta, which was carb overkill, with chicken, lightening the dish and turning it from a side to a main course.

You can find kasha, which is buckwheat groats, in the kosher section of most supermarkets. Kasha comes in different granulations, so make sure to read the label.

Kasha Pilaf With Chicken, Mushrooms and Onions

6 servings.

1 cup medium-granulation kasha (buckwheat groats)
1 large egg white, lightly beaten
2 cups homemade or no-salt-added chicken broth, heated to just below a boil
Salt
2 to 3 tablespoons mild olive oil, plus more for drizzling, if desired

1 pound thinly sliced or pounded chicken breast cutlets
Freshly ground black pepper
1 pound button or cremini mushrooms, thinly sliced
1 large or 2 small onions (8 ounces), thinly sliced
Use a fork to combine the kasha and egg white in a small bowl, making sure to evenly coat the kasha with the egg. Heat a 10-inch non-stick saute pan or skillet over medium-high heat. Add the kasha mixture; cook, stirring, for 2 to 3 minutes, until the kernels separate and become dry. Reduce the heat to medium-low, add the hot broth and a pinch of salt, stir the mixture and cover. Cook for 7 to 10 minutes, until all of the liquid is absorbed. Transfer the kasha to a large bowl and stir it to separate the kernels.
While the kasha is cooking, heat 1 tablespoon of the oil in a large nonstick saute pan or skillet over medium-high heat. Season the chicken with salt and pepper to taste. Working in batches, transfer the cutlets to the hot pan, taking care not to crowd them. Cook for 3 to 4 minutes, until nicely browned. Turn the cutlets over and cook for 3 to 4 minutes, until the chicken is cooked through and nicely browned on the second side.

Transfer to a large plate. Repeat to cook all of the chicken. Let the chicken rest for 10 minutes.
Return the pan to the heat and add 1 tablespoon of the oil. Add the mushrooms, season with salt and pepper and cook, stirring every minute or two, for 6 to 8 minutes, until the mushrooms are soft and lightly browned. Add the mushrooms to the cooked kasha.
Return the saute pan or skillet to the heat, add the remaining tablespoon of oil, if needed, and reduce the heat to medium. Add the onions, and season with salt and pepper to taste. Cook, stirring every minute or two, for 6 to 8 minutes, until the onions are soft and have picked up some color.
While the onions are cooking, cut the chicken into strips about 1 1/2 inches long and 1/4-inch thick. Add the chicken to the kasha and mushroom pilaf.
When the onions are ready, add them to the pilaf. Stir to combine. Taste, add seasoning if needed. If the pilaf seems too dry, drizzle the oil over each portion right before serving. Serve hot or warm.

Wendell Harvey Worthington

April 6, 1920-Feb. 10, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Wendell Harvey Worthington passed away Sunday, Feb. 10, 2013, in his home surrounded by his loving family.

Wendell was born April 6, 1920, in Burley, Idaho, to Emma Zender Worthington and John Percy Worthington. He attended grade school in Declo and graduated high school in Burley. He furthered his education at Albion Normal School and Boise Junior College earning a degree in civil engineering. On Aug. 17, 1941, he married Wilda Ellen Johnson in Burley, Idaho. They were married for 66 years. They resided in Oakley and Boise. In 1945, Wendell enlisted in the United States Navy and served on the USS Iowa battleship. In 1947, they moved to Twin Falls, Idaho.

Wendell purchased a small family grocery store, "Truck Lane Market," which he and his wife owned and operated for 23 years. He also worked for Sunset Memorial Park for many years and, at age 80, retired from there. Wendell had a love for all his horses and mules, all of which he broke and trained. In 1978, he won the National Cutting Horse Open Championship for Idaho. He worked with many rodeo queens and offered his horse for their competitions. He also taught packing and knot-tying classes at CSI. He loved all hunting and fishing. His favorite was the annual elk hunting packing trips. In his later years, his passion was making incredible pack saddles (designed by him). These were sold throughout the United States, not to mention his unique cane making. Wendell had many favorite sayings and great sense of humor. Wendell and Wilda taught dance lessons in their home for 25 years. He knew the first four words of every country song and the rest was tra, la, la. He also loved the annual family camping trips.

Wendell will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

Wendell is survived by his children, Judy Cole (James Mason) of Auburn, Ind., Renae (Randy) Lee of Boise, Idaho, and Gary (Tami) Worthington of Twin Falls; also surviving are eight grandchildren, 13 great-grandchildren; one great-great-grandchild; five step grandchildren; 10 step great-grandchildren; and three step great-great-grandchildren. Also surviving is his sister, Dorothy Norton of Pocatello, Idaho. He was preceded in death by his wife, Wilda; his mother, Emma Worthington; his father, John Percy Worthington; his brothers, Lyle, Rex, John, Dale and Don Worthington.

A celebration of Wendell's life will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Feb. 15, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls, with Scott Brown officiating. A private family burial will take place at Sunset Memorial Park. A gathering for friends and family will take place from 5 until 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 14, as well as from 1 p.m. until the time of the service Friday at Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

The family suggests donations in his name may be made to the CSI Rodeo Program in care of the CSI Foundation. Donations may be left with funeral chapel staff or mailed to Reynolds Funeral Chapel, P.O. Box 1142, Twin Falls, ID 83303. Services are under the direction of Trent Stimpson and staff at Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls. Condolences may be left for the family by visiting www.reynoldschapel.com.

Andrea Kokes, of VeeBee Honey and Pollination, walks past beehive frames Feb. 6 at the company's facility in Buhl.

Bees

Honey and Pollination in 2003. It soon became a family affair. VeeBee's 1,100 hives are currently in Turlock, Calif., where the European honeybees are busily pollinating almond trees for clients.

During the honey season, generally from March through October, the hives are transferred to yards all over southern Idaho. Come harvest time in late summer, VeeBee will extract about seven barrels of raw honey. That equals 2,104 quarts of the gooey, delicious stuff.

Of course, not all VeeBee customers want quarts. You can also buy 5-, 2- and 1-gallon containers, a 6-pound jug, 5-pound bucket, pint, half-pint, hexagon and cute honey bear. Prices range from $6 to $148.

"It's real busy from mid-August through September," Kofoed said. "When we are extracting and bottling, it's a full-time job."

VeeBee offers two kinds of raw honey: Magic Valley honey, which is primarily from alfalfa and sweet clover, and Wood River Valley honey, which is a bit sweeter and comes from wildflowers.

"This year, the Wood River Valley honey tastes a bit like apple and cinnamon," Kofoed said.

Over at Tubbs' Berry Farm in Twin Falls, Heidi and Kirk Tubbs have been beekeeping for about five years and have 25 to 50 hives.

The business offers five kinds of honey: raspberry, from hives in the berry patch; Magic Valley Blend, from desert, canyon, wildflower and meadow blooms; Rock Creek, from wildflowers, clovers and mints in and near Rock Creek Canyon; Wild Meadow Clover, from hives in a wild hay meadow at the base of the Samaria Mountains; and Desert, from hives on the edge of the Owyhee Desert.

The honey is available in half-pints, pints and quarts.

According to Heidi Tubbs, the farm began keeping bees not so much for the honey they would produce — she figures the business is breaking even financially on the endeavor — but to pollinate the farm's berry bushes.

"There's not a lot of money in honey, and most beekeepers make their money off the pollination process," she said. "We got into the bees primarily to pollinate the berry plants, and the honey is a byproduct of the pollination process."

Pollination is helping Kofoed keep her family business afloat while VeeBee struggles to turn red to black.

"You can't make it on honey alone," said Kofoed, who estimated VeeBee sells about $3,000 worth of honey a month.

And that's why the bees are currently vacationing in California. They're pollinating almond trees for growers, who typically pay $150 per hive for the service.

"Without the honey bees, the growers don't get the almond nuts," Kofoed explained. "They need a certain concentration of bees to get a good crop of nuts."

But even with revenue from pollination, Kofoed estimated the entire business is routinely about $20,000 in the hole each year. VeeBee spends about $150,000 a year for such necessities as queen bees, hives, transportation, bee food, bee medicine and labor, and brings in about $130,000 a year.

The company's still young, she stressed, and hopes springs eternal.

"There's always the hope that it's got to get better, but it hasn't yet," she said.

Still, Kofoed buzzes about the magic of the business and the delight of the bee season.

"It's a joy going into a yard and hearing the bees sing as they collect nectar," she said. "It's enjoyable, too, to taste a new crop of honey and being excited about the new crop coming in."

The company sells its products to a variety of Magic Valley businesses, including through online food co-op Idaho's Bounty. Kokes and her daughter Harley Knopp, 18 — who is quickly learning the VeeBee business and helps wherever she's needed — estimate VeeBee sells to at least 20 businesses from Meridian to Sun Valley.

"A lot of customers buy our honey because it's local, and they know where it comes from," Kofoed said.

The company's products aren't limited to honey. Lip balm, body butter and boot sealant are among the items stocked on store shelves.

"Honey is all good," Kokes said. "It's liquid gold."

That gold oozes to customers outside southern Idaho, too. VeeBee has fans in California, Colorado, Montana, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Virginia and Washington.

"We are proud of our product, and that's part of the joy we get from it," Kofoed said.

Body Found in Rubble of Burned Calif. Cabin

BIG BEAR, Calif. (AP) • The extraordinary manhunt for the former Los Angeles police officer suspected of three murders converged Tuesday on a mountain cabin where authorities believe he barricaded himself inside, engaged in a shootout that killed a deputy and then never emerged as the home went up in flames.

A single gunshot was heard from within, and a charred body was found inside.

If the man inside proves to be Christopher Dorner, as authorities suspect, the search for the most wanted man in America over the last week would have ended the way he had expected — death, with the police pursuing him.

Thousands of officers had been on the hunt for the former Navy reservist since police said he launched a campaign to exact revenge against the Los Angeles Police Department for his firing. They say he threatened to bring “warfare” to officers and their families, spreading fear and setting off a search for him across the Southwest and Mexico.

Obama Pledges Swift Reaction to NKorea Nuke Test

WASHINGTON (AP) • President Barack Obama reacted sharply to North Korea’s nuclear test Tuesday, promising swift international action to bring the rogue communist regime in line. The detonation came hours before the president’s State of the Union address, where he was expected to touch on U.S. plans to reduce its nuclear arsenal.

In a statement, Obama called Pyongyang’s third nuclear test in seven years a “highly provocative act” that threatens U.S. security and international peace. The reaction from the White House was significantly stronger than it was after North Korea’s long-range missile test in December, when the administration only promised “appropriate action” alongside America’s allies.

“The danger posed by North Korea’s threatening activities warrants further swift and credible action by the international community,” Obama said in a statement early Tuesday.

Secretary of State John Kerry spoke by telephone with the foreign ministers of South Korea and Japan after the test, as well as China, and Obama called South Korean President Lee Myung-bak to assure him the U.S. would help defend his country.

North Korea said it successfully detonated a miniaturized nuclear device at a northeastern test site Tuesday. South Korean, U.S. and Japanese seismic monitoring agencies said they detected an earthquake in North Korea with a magnitude between 4.9 and 5.2.

South Korean protesters wear masks of North Korean leader Kim Jong Un, right, and his wife Ri Sol Ju during a rally in Seoul on Thursday.

AT A GLANCE

Apple CEO: Shareholder Lawsuit Is ‘Silly Sideshow’

Apple CEO Tim Cook is calling a shareholder lawsuit against the company a “silly sideshow,” even as he said he is open to looking at the shareholder’s proposals for sharing more cash with investors. Investor David Einhorn sued Apple Inc. last week, saying a proposal slated for a vote at the company’s annual meeting in two weeks would make it more difficult to enact his plan to reward shareholders by distributing a new class of shares.

Cook said Apple’s proposal puts more power in the hands of shareholders, making it difficult to understand why a shareholder would fight it.

Calling the fight a waste of time, Cook said Apple won’t squander money by mailing letters to shareholders to persuade them to vote for the proposal.

“My preference is that everyone on both sides of this issue would take the money they’re spending on this and donating it to a worthy cause,” Cook said.

Obama: Half of US Combat Troops Home Within 1 Year

WASHINGTON (AP) • President Barack Obama’s decision to bring home within a year about half of the 66,000 U.S. troops now in Afghanistan will shrink the force to the size he found it when he entered the White House vowing to reinvigorate a stalemated war.

Still to be decided: how many troops will remain beyond 2014, when the U.S.-led combat mission is scheduled to end. The stated goal is to prepare Afghanistan’s army and police to handle the Taliban insurgency largely on their own by then.

Obama determined that his war goals could be achieved by bringing 34,000 U.S. troops home by this time next year, officials said, leaving somewhere between 32,000 and 34,000 to support and train Afghan forces.

That is about the number in Afghanistan when he took office in January 2009; in a series of moves designed to reverse the Taliban’s battlefield momentum, he tripled the total American force before starting to scale it back in the summer of 2011.

STATE OF THE UNION

Obama Presses for Jobs Without Raising Deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) • President Barack Obama declared the nation is unquestionably stronger Tuesday night in his first State of the Union address since winning re-election, though he conceded America’s economic revival is an “unfinished task.” He challenged a deeply divided Congress to compromise in the country’s interest on ways to boost job creation and strengthen the middle class.

In specific proposals for his second term, he called for increased federal spending to fix the nation’s roads and bridges, the first increase in the minimum wage in six years and expansion of early education to every American 4-year-old.

The president also pledged to cut the number of U.S. troops in Afghanistan in half within a year.

In a speech centered squarely on jump-starting the economy, Obama sought support from Republicans by asserting that his proposals would not increase the deficit “by a single dime.” But with unemployment persistently high and consumer confidence falling, he pressed a case for a significant government role in reigniting economic growth.

“The American people don’t expect government to solve every problem; they don’t expect those of us in this chamber to agree on every issue,” he said. “But they do expect us to put the nation’s interests before party. They do expect us to forge reasonable compromise where we can.”

“It is our unfinished task to restore the basic bargain that built this country — the idea that if you work hard and meet your responsibilities, you can get ahead, no matter where you come from, what you look like, or who you love,” Obama said, speaking to a joint session of Congress and a television audience of millions.

Florida Sen. Marco Rubio, a rising Republican star, sought to draw a contrast with Obama in excerpts of his GOP response, saying economic opportunity “isn’t bestowed on us from Washington. It comes from a vibrant free economy where people can risk their own money to open a business. And when they succeed, they hire more people, who in turn invest or spend the money they make, helping others start a business and create jobs,” Rubio said in the excerpts, released before Obama spoke.

The president’s address marked the most specific outline of his second-term agenda since winning re-election, and included proposals for increased spending on manufacturing, infrastructure and education. His focus on jobs and growth underscored the degree to which he is still hampered by the economy, even as he pursues a bolder agenda including overhauling the nation’s immigration laws, enacting stricter gun-control measures and tackling climate change.

Obama’s proposals, many of which are repackaged versions of initiatives that stalled in his first term, face an uncertain future on Capitol Hill, where Republicans retain control of the House. The GOP is most ardently opposed to Obama’s calls for legislating more tax revenue to reduce the deficit and offset broad automatic spending cuts — known as the sequester — that are to take effect March 1.

he should try back another time. People applying for unemployment benefits in this state with the nation’s highest jobless rate must wait on hold an average of 51 minutes. Not only that, but some of those interviewed by The Associated Press say that their benefits are often weeks late and that when they try to speak to a human about the problem, they’re referred to a computer.

French Assembly Passes Gay Marriage, Adoption Bill

France’s lower house of parliament approved a sweeping bill on Tuesday to legalize gay marriage and allow same-sex couples to adopt children, handing a major legislative victory to President Francois Hollande’s Socialists on a divisive social issue. The measure, approved in the National Assembly in a 329-to-229 vote, puts France on track to join about a dozen mostly European nations that allow gay marriage and comes despite a string of recent demonstrations by opponents of the so-called “marriage for all” bill.

Polls indicate a narrow majority of French support legalizing gay marriage, though that support falls when questions about the adoption and conception of children come into play. The Assembly has been debating the bill, and voting on its individual articles in recent weeks. The overall legislation now goes in the coming weeks to the Senate, which also is controlled by the governing Socialists and their allies.

RAFT RIVER HIGHWAY DISTRICT
2013 AGGREGATE CRUSHING PROJECT
ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Separate sealed BIDS for the Raft River Highway District-2013 Aggregate Crushing Project will be received by Paragon Consulting, Inc. at their offices located at 157 West 4th Street, Kuna, Idaho 83634 until 2:00 p.m. local time on February 28, 2013, and then, publicly opened and read aloud.

The project involves crushing approximately 16,000 tons of 1/2 -in. Crushed Aggregate Type II-a, in Stockpile, and 3,000 tons of Class 3 Cover Coat Material, delivered to the Bridge Pit, south of Malta along Old Highway 81 South Road. It is the intent of these documents to describe the work required to complete this project in sufficient detail to secure comparable bids. All parts or work not specifically mentioned which are necessary in order to provide a complete product shall be included in the bid and shall conform to all Local, State and Federal requirements.

The Project Documents and Drawings may be examined at the following locations:

- 1) Raft River Highway District - P.O. Box 636, Malta, ID 83342
- 2) PARAGON CONSULTING, INC. - 157 W. 4th Street, Kuna, ID 83634
- 3) Associated General Contractors - 1649 West Shoreline Drive, Boise, Idaho 83702
- 4) The Project Documents and Drawings may be obtained from PARAGON Consulting, Inc. at 157 West 4th Street, Kuna, Idaho 83634, ph. (208) 922-9138. Copies of these documents may be purchased for a refundable fee of $50.00 for each set. A $10.00 shipping charge, non-refundable, will be assessed on all mailed plans.

In determining the lowest responsive bid, the OWNER will consider all acceptable bids on a basis consistent with the bid package. The OWNER will also consider whether the bidder is a responsible bidder.

Before a contract will be awarded for work contemplated herein, the OWNER will conduct such investigation as is necessary to determine the performance record and ability of the apparent low bidder to perform the size and type of work specified under this Contract. Upon request, the bidder shall submit such information as deemed necessary by the OWNER to evaluate the bidder's qualifications.

All bids must be signed and accompanied by evidence of authority to sign.

Bids must be accompanied by Bid Security in the form of a bid bond, certified check, cashiers check, or cash in the amount of 5% of the amount of the bid proposal. Said bid security shall be forfeited to the Raft River Highway District as liquidated damages should the successful bidder fail to enter into contract in accordance with their proposal as specified in the Instructions to Bidders.

Raft River Highway District reserves the right to reject any or all proposals, waive any nonmaterial irregularities in the bids received, and to accept the proposal deemed most advantageous to the best interest of the Highway District.

Copy Editor
Times-News/Twin Falls, Idaho
Wanted: One Copy Editor who can whip up graphics and maps, read copy, write headlines and design pages on a universal desk. But you'll need to do more than that. You'll need to create visual stories that can be read in two seconds. You'll need to understand people are attracted to small things, like the closing of a theater curtain, the pause in a musical score, the darkness between the fireflies. You'll need to create a masterpiece.

If you're up for it, we have your canvas. The Times-News is searching for a creative copy editor who can do it all.

The Times-News is a 17,500-circulation daily newspaper (21,500 on Sundays) owned by Lee Enterprises. It offers a competitive salary, medical, dental, vision, and life insurance benefits, vacation, sick, holiday pay and 401K-retirement plan.

To apply, log on to www.magicvalley.com/workhere. Portfolios of all shapes, sizes and sounds can be sent to News Editor Robert Monteith at rmonteith@magicvalley.com. Show us you're a human being, rather than an "applicant," and you'll be on the right track. We are a drug-free workplace, and all applicants considered for employment must pass a post-offer drug screen prior to commencing employment. EOE

CREATIVE DESIGNER
If you are interested in creating and designing ads for clients that fit those customers needs, then we want to talk to you. Times News is looking for an individual with computer graphic designing experience & multi-media web design skills to work in our Twin Falls office.

- Designer will help develop and produce advertising solutions for a wide array of clients.
- We need a team player with excellent communication skills and the ability to pitch in to help on projects wherever needed.
- The successful candidate will design advertisements on tight deadlines, and generate ad ideas and campaigns with their sales team. The candidate will take ideas from the Classifieds Manager and create smart, and eye-catching classified sections, while adhering to tight deadline schedules.
- Qualified applicants will have an Associate Degree in Computer Applications, Computer Graphics, Graphic Arts or the equivalent in experience. Experience with Macintosh computers using Adobe cs5 Suite. Strong typing skills are essential and experience with web graphic application software such as Flash, and DreamWeaver, is preferred.
- The Creative Designer is responsible for prioritizing, tracking, and maintaining tight deadline schedules on multiple projects, including ad production, graphic production, photo manipulation, and plate processing.
- The ability to work scheduled hours including some evenings and occasional weekends.

DEAR ABBY: My daughters are attractive young women, both doing well in their professional careers. "Melanie," who is 27, is married to "Sam," an extremely attractive and successful man.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

My 30-year-old daughter, "Alicia," has been divorced for a year. Her marriage failed two years ago because she and her husband had an appetite for sex outside their marriage. While I was disturbed about that, I was horrified to learn that Melanie allows her sister to occasionally have sex with Sam.

Melanie's argument is that Sam is less likely to cheat given this situation. When I asked her and Sam about it, he said it wasn't his idea. My current husband says any man who would refuse this "set-up" would be nuts. Alicia claims she "doesn't have time" to date right now, and after she finishes her MBA, she'll seek out a more normal relationship.

I am distraught about this mess. Melanie says she wants to start a family soon. She says she loves Sam, who can "handle everything," and she enjoys seeing "everyone happy." She says Alicia won't sleep around now and, maybe, one day she'll marry a handsome man like Sam who will "return the favor!"

I can't believe these girls are my daughters. Should I continue to protest or let it go? Is this relaxed attitude about sex prevalent in young people today? I cannot understand Melanie's lack of desire to defend her turf.

— HEARTBROKEN MOM IN FLORIDA

DEAR MOM: Your daughters appear to be into the concept of open marriage. Clearly, they do not view marriage and relationships the same way you do.

Melanie is naive to think that encouraging Sam to have a sexual relationship with her sister will discourage him from seeking other partners. Far from it. And as for her wanting to start a family, has she considered what will happen if her husband impregnates Alicia at the same time — or first?

But back to your question: Are you right to protest? You certainly are. That's what mothers are for — to inject a dose of sanity when everyone around her is losing theirs.

DEAR ABBY: The other day at work, my girlfriend overheard a group of people in the break room talking about what they'd do first if they won the lottery. Without exception, everyone in that room said the first thing they would do is get a divorce. My girlfriend was stunned.

Have you ever done an informal reader survey on this subject? Is the state of marriage in America really that bad? I'm also curious if answers would differ along gender lines. Let me know what you think, and thanks.

— HAPPILY SINGLE BUT STILL A BELIEVER IN MARRIAGE

DEAR HAPPILY SINGLE: No, I have not done a reader survey on this subject. But I'm glad you asked, because I think what your girlfriend heard is a sad commentary on the state of the marriages of her co-workers. Readers, if you'd care to chime in on this, I'm sure it would be enlightening.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"There was things which he stretched, but mainly he told the truth."

— Mark Twain

Today's deal shows that expert players can make just as many amusing mistakes as their less talented colleagues. In one room, the Australian East-West pair had found an excellent vulnerable save in five hearts over four spades, down 200 on a top spade lead.

In the other room it looks as if four spades should be relatively straightforward to make. West led a top club, and now instead of playing on trumps, South made the "expert" play of a heart at trick two to cut the defenders' communications. West won this and shifted to the diamond queen. Oops ... Now declarer could not prevent West from ruffing a diamond and East from ruffing a club for down one.

In the Netherlands-China match, South played four spades on the lead of the diamond queen. Declarer won in dummy and led a spade to his hand, Huub Bertens as East ducking because he could see that the ruff would gain his side only one trick, and that this would not be enough.

Now declarer played a heart. The defenders took their diamond ruff and led a club, won in North. At this point when a second trump was played, Bertens took his spade ace and played a second heart, forcing dummy to ruff and locking the lead in the North hand. Dummy had four diamonds and two clubs left, while East was out of both minors and still had a trump, so declarer was forced to concede a second ruff.

ANSWER: My personal style (which I would also recommend to others) is that facing an overcall, all jumps in new suits are fit-showing, meaning that they promise at least invitational values and guarantee at least three-card support for partner, while also showing a decent suit in which you jump. A jump in partner's suit remains natural and pre-emptive, of course, but this hand is tailor-made for a three-spade call.

IF FEBRUARY 13 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Reach for the stars during the upcoming three months. For the next four weeks, your business instincts are at an apex and your career aspirations could be achieved. Networking with like-minded individuals can help you along the road to success, as well. Make key plans for the future and put them in motion during May and early June when your luck is at a high point and favorable outcomes are most probable. That might be a great time to change jobs, test out a new career or move into a new home. You will be wiser than usual and have the most assistance from the universe with anything you begin.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): When your day seems like a roller coaster, it is up to you to decide whether to scream or to relax and enjoy the ride. Don't forget tomorrow is a holiday for lovers and special plans must be made.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Those who sit on the highest horse might have a greatest fall. You could find a way to help someone who has a good opinion of themselves and help yourself at the same time. Perform a good deed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): When you work for a cause, you don't expect applause. The rewards you receive are less concrete, but more lasting than a pat on the back. Loved ones prove their worth and supportive partners are protective.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Never forget what is worth remembering, or remember what is best forgotten. Trust your intuitions, but squash memories that create stumbling blocks. Solid progress is possible if you follow the rules.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Just because you face defeats doesn't mean you are defeated. Rather than fight an uphill battle, bide your time. All things come to those who wait. Confront issues bravely and fix problems that crop up.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Stop thinking about what could go wrong and start thinking about what could go right. If weighed down by concerns, find someone to share the load. Supporters are waiting for permission to lend a hand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): If you don't want anyone to know your secret, don't discuss it. You can receive appreciation for your fairness and charitable nature, but others may not be willing to put their money on the line.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be picky about honoring policies and procedures, but don't let them paralyze you. If you wait until you're sure it's right to do something, you'll probably never be able to do much of anything.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The bigger the group, the bigger the audience for your talents. Look for encouragement and guidance from peers. A friend may grow closer and spark interest in a partnership.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Silence implies consent. You prefer to be seen as mysterious, so you decline to make an expected comment. Sometimes your silence can be misinterpreted as approval when none is meant.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Cultivate confidence. Flaws may begin to appear in facades. Both some imperfections could cause doubt in solid accomplishments. A certain amount of conflict must be expected. Do your best.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't judge, just listen. Do not lower your standards to participate in passing on rumors. Words can travel quickly along the grapevine. It is up to you to listen and make up your own mind.

Today is Ash Wednesday, Feb. 13, the 44th day of 2013. There are 321 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Feb. 13, 1943, during World War II, the U.S. Marine Corps Women's Reserve was officially established.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1542, the fifth wife of England's King Henry VIII, Catherine Howard, was executed for adultery.

In 1741, Andrew Bradford of Pennsylvania published the first American magazine. "The American Magazine, or A Monthly View of the Political State of the British Colonies" lasted three issues.

In 1861, Abraham Lincoln was officially declared winner of the 1860 presidential election as electors cast their ballots.

In 1920, the League of Nations recognized the perpetual neutrality of Switzerland.

In 1933, the Warsaw Convention, governing airlines' liability for international carriage of persons, luggage and goods, went into effect.

In 1935, a jury in Flemington, N.J. found Bruno Richard Hauptmann guilty of first-degree murder in the kidnap-slaying of the son of Charles and Anne Lindbergh. (Hauptmann was later executed.)

In 1945, during World War II, Allied planes began bombing the German city of Dresden. The Soviets captured Budapest, Hungary, from the Germans.

In 1960, France exploded its first atomic bomb in the Sahara Desert.

In 1972, the 11th Winter Olympics ended in Sapporo, Japan.

In 1980, the 13th Winter Olympics opened in Lake Placid, N.Y.

In 1988, the 15th winter Olympics opened in Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

In 1991, during Operation Desert Storm, allied warplanes destroyed an underground shelter in Baghdad that had been identified as a military command center; Iraqi officials said 500 civilians were killed.

Ten years ago: Clara Harris, who'd run down her husband, David, with her Mercedes after catching him with his mistress, was convicted by a Houston jury of murder despite her claim that she'd hit him accidentally while in a heartsick daze. (Harris was sentenced to 20 years in prison.) A U.S. government plane carrying four Americans and a Colombian went down in rebel territory in southern Colombia; the executed bodies of an American and the Colombian were found in the wreckage (the other three Americans were held by rebels until they were rescued in July 2008). Walt W. Rostow, an adviser to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, died in Austin, Texas, at age 86.

Five years ago: Under oath and sometimes blistering questioning, seven-time Cy Young Award winner Roger Clemens told Congress: "I have never taken steroids or HGH." Hollywood writers ended their 100-day strike that had disrupted the TV season and canceled awards shows. Japanese movie director Kon Ichikawa died in Tokyo at age 92.

One year ago: President Barack Obama unveiled a record $3.8 trillion election-year budget plan, calling for stimulus-style spending on roads and schools and tax hikes on the wealthy to help pay the costs. Gov. Chris Gregoire signed into law a measure making Washington state the seventh to legalize same-sex marriage.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Wrestling May Be Cut From 2020 Olympics Program, IOC Says

BY CHRISTOPHER ELSE
AND DAN BAYNES

Bloomberg News

The International Olympic Committee's executive board voted Tuesday to drop wrestling from the program for the 2020 Summer Games as the body tries to keep the event fresh, a spokesman said.

The recommendation by the 15-member board will be reviewed and then a final vote will be held in September. Wrestling will get a chance to rally support and will be among eight sports vying for inclusion at the 2020 Games, IOC spokesman Mark Adams said at a press conference in Lausanne, Switzerland.

"This program is about renewing or trying to renew the program for the Olympic Games," Adams said. "We're looking for the 25 core sports: What is the program that works best for the Olympic Games?"

The IOC's decision was surprising, but understandable, according to Rick Stimpson, former Idaho District IV wrestling commissioner and current president of Idaway, a statewide non-profit organization promoting amateur folk-style wrestling in Idaho.

"I was surprised, just because it's one of the oldest sports and one of the original sports in the Olympics," Stimpson said. "I think it's a really sad deal to lose it from the Olympics. But as far as what it's going to do to wrestling in our state, I don't know."

Stimpson said it's a matter of style.

High schools and colleges wrestle folk-style, while USA Wrestling and the Olympics wrestle freestyle and Greco-Roman.

"The popularity of freestyle and Greco wrestling is just not there, around the world," he said. "Outside of Russia and Iran, I don't think it's a real popular sport anywhere."

The IOC panel reviewed a report from the organization's program commission, which assessed each of the 26 sports at last year's London Games. The board decided to cut wrestling and keep modern pentathlon, which had been one of the sports considered for removal. The IOC systematically reviews every event following games.

Money Matters in High School Athletics

This is part IV of our program building series focusing on the factors Canyon Ridge and other new schools must deal with when building successful teams. Part IV focuses on the necessity of community behind new schools.

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Is the community that supports Canyon Ridge at a disadvantage with other schools in the region, especially Twin Falls?

Could it have an negative effect on Riverhawks sports?

There's reason to believe so. "You walk around the halls of Canyon Ridge, come to our school when the bell rings and walk down the halls, and you can tell the difference," one coach in the region said. "The key to a successful program is the community behind it and parents willing and able to take kids to tournaments and camps at a really early age."

According to National School Lunch data provided by Canyon Ridge principal Brady Dickinson, 58 percent of students at Canyon Ridge qualify for free and reduced lunch while 40 percent qualify at Twin Falls. At Canyon Ridge's feeder school, Robert Stuart Middle School, 70.3 percent qualify. At Vera C. O'Leary Middle School, which feeds students to Twin Falls High, 51.4 percent qualify.

"Yes it's a fact. There are demographic differences, but it's how you address those," Dickinson said. "It could be a factor that contributes to the challenges we face, but I don't want to be a school that makes excuses."

But if there are lower income families supporting future and current Canyon Ridge students compared to other schools, how does that affect their sports programs?

"My best teams are those that start young and play in tournaments," Burley boys head basketball coach Jack Bagley said. "Those kids come from parents who will get a group of them together and take them around to AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) stuff and prep tournaments. Basketball, like others, is a year-round sport."

According to Canyon Ridge boys head basketball coach Jacoby Fox and other coaches around the region, the Canyon Ridge community has lower AAU participation than most in the conference.

Twin Falls basketball coach Matt Harr said he monitors six AAU teams from sixth- to eighth-grade that will eventually comprise his team. Canyon Ridge doesn't have any. It has players on the Twin Falls' teams and on those from other areas. Fox said Canyon Ridge will have its own team soon.

Fox tried to organize an AAU team last year without success.

"In the spring, we started to try to organize AAU groups," Fox said. "That was the first year that we had a coach who sought out to get a group of guys and not just have the kids playing for random schools or coaches. It didn't go as planned. Our kids just didn't end up coming out."

Whether those children did not come out due to a lack of money (AAU teams cost between $10 and $25), apathy or other summer activities is not known.

SUPERFANS: MINICO SPARTANS

Noisy Minico Fans Help as They Cheer

Editor's Note: Meet the Magic Valley's high school superfans. For five weeks, photographer Drew Nash will talk to student supporters at schools in Twin Falls, Rupert, Burley and Jerome about why they love their schools and what they do to show it.

RUPERT • Getting into the opposing team's head isn't enough.

Spartans aim for the opposing crowd's as well.

"Once you start getting their fans riled up and then you start getting us, I think that makes the night just that much more special and entertaining," said sophomore Maddy Eames said.

Entertainment is in no short supply over at Minico High School with its creative cheers and large fan support.

With the amount of noise

Minico is able to generate, older supporters may want to bring ear plugs. "We want to make a lot of noise and for people to be amazed," said Minico Athletic Director Kelly Arritt.

"We were jumping so hard last year we broke some of the bleachers," Eames said with a smirk. "It was going crazy and their student section was yelling and ours was yelling but ours were louder. It was a crazy adrenaline rush."

The sea of red in the stands and the noise equivalent of a volcano erupting may overwhelm the senses. But Minico's sense of charity may run deepest of all. During a recent Minico "red-out" in January, the Spartan faithful were able to raise more than $1,000 for the American Heart Association — in 35 seconds.

Declo District Wrestling Champs — Again

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

WENDELL • Four years ago, a plucky group of freshmen announced their arrival by helping Declo win the District IV wrestling title.

On Tuesday at Wendell High School, those seniors went out as four-time district champions.

Sure, they were happy to snap photos with the district trophy, but the Hornets didn't make too much of their impressive high school sweep.

"It's good and everything, but state is the real goal," said Josh Phillips.

By qualifying 13 wrestlers to the state tournament — Feb. 22-23 at Holt Arena in Pocatello — Declo has a good chance to win its third consecutive Class 2A state title.

The Hornets had nine individual district champs: Alex Alonzo, Jorge Alonzo, John Nunnelee, Stirland Zollinger, Josh Phillips, Brad Payne, Jason Gillette, Drexton Thrall and Kage Osterhout. That's one more champ than Declo had last year.

"The kids are wrestling well, and I think they're peaking now. I like what I'm seeing on the mat," said Declo coach Lawrence Gillette.

Declo scored 215.5 team points to outdistance runner-up Oakley with 126. Oakley qualified eight to state, including district champions Brody Smith and William Wells.

Raft River finished third, despite no individual champs, and will send seven wrestlers to state.

Fourth-place Valley got five to state, led by champion Brad Gerratt.

Matt Hunt of Wendell won a district title as the Trojans qualified six to state.

Glenns Ferry crowned two district champs, Edy Mesillas and Nate Shenk. The Pilots will send four wrestlers to state.

Jerome Tigers Advance Past Canyon Ridge

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

JEROME • Winless Canyon Ridge held a fourth quarter lead.

Just not for long.

Jerome's Simon Espinoza knocked down a corner 3-pointer with two minutes left to put the Tigers up 31-26, as Jerome beat Canyon Ridge in the first round of the 4A District IV tournament, 37-30.

Espinoza, the Tigers' best shooter in tight situations this year, scored 10 points and helped change the game's momentum with a steal off the press on the first possession of the fourth quarter, leading to a Will Hope put-back and lead.

"We just started playing more aggressive defense in the fourth," Espinoza said. "I've got a shooter's mentality, ice in the veins, I guess. But (Canyon Ridge) plays really hard."

The Riverhawks largely outplayed the Tigers, collecting eight more offensive rebounds and turning the ball over eight fewer times, but could not find the basket, shooting 21 percent from the field and 50 percent from the free-throw line.

"We were really close today and we beat every team in boards, we beat every team with hustle and heart. But

Canyon Ridge

But the lack of participation equals possibly hundreds of hours of basketball time that future Canyon Ridge players won't have.

"It's not just about the guys playing together, it's about learning the fundamentals and skills," Jerome head coach Joe Messick said. "If you haven't started developing those skills by seventh- or eighth grade, it's probably too late."

But once children from the Canyon Ridge community reach high school, there is financial support comparable to other schools in its conference.

According to Canyon Ridge Activities Director Kim Wray, the high school booster club contributes between $5,000 and $8,000 a year. That's allowed the school to purchase things like a "Gun" shooting machine at a cost of $4,000, a device many schools don't possess. It gives basketball players the opportunity to shoot by themselves.

And parents for the girls basketball team shell out hundreds of dollars to go to off-season camps.

Last year, Canyon Ridge sent seven players to the Gonzaga basketball camp at a cost of $400, and seven more have signed up for the same camp this year. The girls program also held its own basketball camp for middle schoolers at $40 per camper, many of whom were from the Canyon Ridge community.

"These girls are dedicated, and their parents have been great," girls basketball coach Trudy Weaver said.

But most of the programs at Canyon Ridge, like football and wrestling, look to find creative solutions to minimize the costs of off-season programs. Rather than traveling to camps, they bring them to Canyon Ridge, using the top-notch facilities as leverage.

CSI operates its football camp at Canyon Ridge and allows student-athletes to participate for free. Head football coach Justin Alsterlund holds a youth camp in May, charging camper for only two of their four days of participation. "I don't think it's demographics. It's the economy," Alsterlund said. "We know even the smallest amount can be a lot these days because everyone is hurting."

The wrestling team holds its own off-season camp at Canyon Ridge and is in the process of organizing a chapter of IDAWAY wrestling, an inexpensive off-season youth wrestling program that coaches hope can complement the local Parks and Recreation program.

"Wrestling is something anyone can do," head coach Justin Pehrson said. "It's as close to free as you're going to get."

But despite the school's best efforts to increase youth participation, it remains lacking.

"As a parent, it feels like there are fewer kids feeding in to Robert Stuart that are playing sports," Dickson said. "If that is the case, then why?"

Whether it's possible to increase youth participation or not, Canyon Ridge will keep trying.

"I don't think you can deny that there is a socio-economic difference between the two schools, and it changes some of the things you do as a head coach," Dickinson said. "We just have to find ways around it, and I think we have the people that will figure it out."

Jerome's Simon Espinoza takes a shot Tuesday against Canyon Crest at Jerome High School.

we can't always get it done," said Vince Burke, who had seven points, five rebounds and two nifty assists inside. "You have to outscore the opponent, not just outthrustle them. We take a lot of pride here in our hustle and defense, and we come out with it every time. That's a promise."

Jerome coach Joe Messick, whose team has mixed up their defenses this year, used a zone the entire contest, with the hope of enticing Canyon Ridge into perimeter jump shots.

"We felt that gave us the best chance to win," Messick said. "We wanted to force them into shots we wanted them to take."

Jerome did not look particularly energized, focused or sharp on Tuesday, but turned it up when they had to, forcing the Riverhawks into fourth quarter turnovers.

For Canyon Ridge, there were glimpses on offense that the program can highlight in film sessions moving forward. The interior passing from Burke and Justin Sims created easy scores inside, while both players outplayed the larger Tigers inside on both ends of the floor.

"It was as good of a zone offense as we have played all year," head coach Jacoby Fox said. "It comes down to knocking down a couple of shots. That will come, I truly believe it."

Jerome will play at Burley on Thursday.

TODAY'S NATIONAL MAP

The report analyzed almost 40 criteria including television appeal, anti-corruption practices and popularity. The IOC wants to add a sport to the 2020 Games and plans to remove one of the current events. Wrestling will still be automatically included on the list of candidate sports to be added in 2020.

"It's not a case of what's wrong with wrestling, but instead what's right for the 25 sports for the Olympic program," Adams said.

The International Federation of Associated Wrestling Styles, known as FILA, said it was "greatly astonished" by the recommendation, and that it would work to convince the IOC to keep the sport, which consists of two disciplines: Greco-Roman, where athletes use their upper bodies and arms only, and freestyle, where athletes can use any part of their bodies.

Russia won 11 wrestling medals at the London Games last year, with four golds. Japan also had four gold medalists and six total medals, while Iran had three golds among six won in the sport. Azerbaijan had seven medals in London, including two golds, equaling the number of winners for the U.S., which had four wrestling medals in total.

FILA "is represented in 180 countries, with wrestling being the national sport in a fair amount of them and the only possibility for athletes to represent their country at the Olympic Games," the governing body said today in a statement on its website.

Greco-Roman had seven weight categories, and is only for male athletes. Freestyle also has seven weight classes for men, and four for women. Eight years after the Greco-Roman style was featured in the Athens Games of 1896, freestyle was added in St. Louis. Women's competition started in Athens in 2004.

Greco-Roman wrestling was incorporated into the modern Olympics in 1896 because organizers considered it historically significant. It was part of the games in Olympia,

Greece, as early as 708 B.C., when wrestlers in loincloths would coat themselves in olive oil and grapple against a backdrop of temples and statues, according to the 2011 book "Power Games: Ritual and Rivalry at the Ancient Greek Olympics," by David Stuttard. Baseball and softball were the most recent sports to be removed from the Olympics following a 2005 vote and last appeared at the 2008 Beijing Games. Golf and rugby sevens will join the program at the 2016 Games in Rio de Janeiro. Wrestling will join baseball and softball, which are seeking inclusion as two disciplines under a single sports banner, karate, roller sports, squash, sport climbing, wakeboard and the Chinese martial art of wushu in trying to get added to the 2020 schedule. The IOC's executive board will meet May 29-31 in St. Petersburg, Russia, to decide which sport or sports to propose for inclusion in 2020. A final vote take place in September at a full meeting of IOC members in Buenos Aires, where a ballot will also decide which city out of Istanbul, Madrid and Tokyo hosts the event.

Minico Fans

awe-inspiring.

"When the crowd's there it's definitely an adrenaline rush," senior basketball player Matt Harper said. "Especially that last Burley-Minico game when it got loud at the end. It was awesome being on that floor!"

Minico High School was founded in 1955 and has worked hard to create the level of fan participation that it enjoys today.

"We have a lot of participation with the student body. The kids (student-athletes) have remained positive and the students support them," Arritt said.

Evidence shows the Minico student section goes deep when there are legit sophomores superfans in attendance.

"I think if you dress up and you actually put the effort into it, you should have a spot on the front row so you can cheer on your team because it shows you're a fan and that you're dedicated," said Eames.

With stars littered throughout the bleachers and spilling onto the floor, Minico's future appears bright.

"When people come into our gym we want them to know that our fans have a lot of support and our school is good place to be," Arritt said.
