Ranchers Slated to Join Firefighting Efforts

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter’s bid to help create new state-funded rancher groups to fight wildfires comes as an existing Idaho-backed firefighting association is under scrutiny by federal safety investigators following a fatal accident last summer.

Otter cited 20-year-old firefighter Anne Veseth’s death in a wildfire near Orofino in his Jan. 7 State of the State speech as a reason for wanting $400,000 in taxpayer funding to help Idaho ranchers create new volunteer fire protective associations to knock down destructive, fast-moving range fires.

“We owe her and thousands like her a fighting chance while protecting our forests and rangelands,” Otter said.

This month, however, Occupational Safety and Health Administration investigators proposed a $14,000 fine for the state-funded Clearwater-Potlatch Timber Protective Association that was leading efforts on the Steep Corner fire where Veseth died Aug. 12 after being struck by a falling tree. They alleged the association violated numerous standards, including proper communications, weather awareness and identifying escape routes.

As these questions about Idaho firefighter safety loom, state forester David Groeschl said training for ranchers who will form the proposed new rangeland fire protective associations that Otter wants to help pay for is essential in maximizing safety — and avoiding accidents like the one that killed Veseth.

Ranchers will work with fire officials from the Bureau of Land Management. Please see RANCHERS, A4

House Destroyed in Buhl Fire

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

BUHL • Smoke still rose from the roof of a Buhl home late Tuesday morning as firefighters began to piece together how a fire that nearly destroyed the home began.

Buhl assistant fire chief Nathan Fawcett said the investigation into the fire, at 222 12th Ave. N. in Buhl, would take most of the day.

Initially, Fawcett said firefighters got two reports that someone was in the burning house but they completed two searches and no one was found.

Later, Fawcett said he got a report that everyone was out of the house.

The family of five was displaced from the home but their insurance company put them up in a hotel, said Roger Hinton, preparedness and response specialist with the American Red Cross of Greater Idaho. Hinton said the Red Cross was able to help the family with Dennis Osman, who lives two houses away from the home that burned said he called 911 after another neighbor alerted him about the fire. Osman said after he called 911 he ran to the home to see if he could help, but the smoke was too thick.

Fire Chief Mark Korsen said the fire started on the back porch of the house.

“It appears to have started in the dog house area,” Korsen said. “It was ruled accidental.”

Korsen said the cause wasn’t totally concluded but said the residents had a heat lamp near the dog house, which might have

The Preschool Controversy

Idaho has a history of resisting government-funded preschool and that isn’t changing with Obama’s latest pitch.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • Teaching children to read isn’t controversial. It’s who’s doing the teaching — and who pays for it — that raises eyebrows in the Idaho state house.

During his State of the Union address last week, President Barack Obama announced his intent to make pre-K education available in every state. Details on Obama’s proposal are vague, but Idaho has a history of resisting government-funded preschool. Most recently, in 2011, the state declined to seek up to $50 million in grants that would set up preschool education programs in Idaho.

So what would it take to get Idaho lawmakers on board? Or is the plan already off the table?

Here are some concerns lawmakers brought up:

It Can’t Be Mandatory

Retired teacher Rep. Donna Pence, D-Gooding, is an ardent supporter of pre-K education. Not all parents are equipped, or willing, to teach their children at home. But, she added, Idahoans have an independent streak and don’t want to be told what to do.

The solution? Make the program available, but not compulsory, Pence said.

That might not be enough to get lawmakers on board.

Rep. Reed DeMordaunt, R-Eagle and chairman of the House Education Committee, said he’d rather see preschool education stay with parents, and give them resources to educate kids at home. There’s a difference between sending 4-year-olds and 6-year-olds to school, he said, and 4-year-olds are better off learning outside of the classroom.

DeMordaunt acknowledged varying family dynamics, with single parents and parents who work multiple jobs. But even a little work can go a long

Talk of More Corporate Deals Sends Stocks Higher

NEW YORK (AP) • Talk of more deal-making sent the stock market higher Tuesday, putting the Dow Jones industrial average within close reach of its all-time high. Reports that retailers Office Depot and OfficeMax are discussing a merger came after big corporate deals for Heinz and Dell were announced in recent weeks. Some investors are betting that more deals could be on the way as buyers pay premium prices for publicly traded companies. The Dow rose 53.91 points to close at 14,035.67. All it would take now is one good day to push the average above 14,164, the record high reached in October 2007.

Intelligent Teamwork

Einstein once said that insanity was doing the same thing over and over again and expecting different results. So it would makes sense covering the same team at the same time on the same court three years straight would end the same way.

Dietrich won their third championship in a row Saturday morning. With the fans chanting “Devil Power!” and one of the kindest student athletes I’ve ever met, Kendra McConnell, playing like a woman possessed, the Blue Devils’ focus was razor sharp with every inbound pass challenged, every shot contested. When Acey Shaw’s wife, Jalyn Shaw asked why I hadn’t been up to cover any games this year in Dietrich, I quipped, “I knew we’d meet up in the championship game.”

Congratulations to all the hardworking staff and the girls who helped seal a dynasty.

I think Michael Jordan summed it up best when he said, “Talent wins games,

Memorable Performance

Apparently being flattened by a bulletin board is no big deal if you’re Stanley Lambchop.

The main character in the JuMP Company’s performances of “The Musical Adventures of Flat Stanley” decides to look on the bright side and uses his half-an-inch thick figure to embark on new adventures.

The musical is based on a popular children’s book. During a Thursday, Feb. 14, rehearsal, 56 Magic Valley children in the cast ran through different scenes and songs from the play. Hunter Case, 13, plays Stanley. He has been acting in JuMP Company plays since he was in first grade. The rehearsals — as well as his fellow actors — have made it memorable.

“Everyone just makes it fun,” he said.

Prepare for Series of Winter Storms

Neudorff

Winter weather is not ready to concede to spring anytime soon. So, if you are like many who have a bad case of spring fever, it looks like you will have to wait through a couple of rounds of winter storms before we see spring-like weather again.

The current storm system will continue to pass to our south today through Utah and into the Rockies. We are on the northern most fringe of this system so we don’t anticipate much more than a couple of inches of snow for most locations like Twin Falls, Jerome and Burley by this afternoon. Totals from last night to this afternoon should range from one to three inches in Twin Falls, Jerome, Shoshone up to Hailey, with three to six inches possible for southern Twin Falls County, down to Jackpot, through southern Cassia County and including Burley, which will be right on the edge of the one to three and the three to six inch line. It is possible Burley gets less than three inches. Winds will also increase and we could see gusts out of the west between 25 and 35 mph.

This storm is just the opening act for a stronger system that arrives Friday into Saturday. More snow is possible, along with strong gusty winds and colder temperatures. It is too early to know how much snow we will see, but the potential is there. We will keep you updated.

Xavier to Stay Open

Officials at the charter school reach agreement with landlord.

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Those most concerned about Xavier Charter School’s future received good news Tuesday night, Feb. 19: the school will stay open.

Xavier’s board chairwoman Debbi Burr announced the news to a crowd of roughly 100 during a public open house at the school. The response: a standing ovation and lots of smiles.

“This is the culmination of a lot of hours by school administration, stakeholders and the landlord,” Head of Schools Thad Biggers told the Times-News. “We’re pleased to reach an agreement that is fiscally viable for us and the landlord to work together.”

The school, which has been challenged financially over the past several months, has been negotiating with Twin Falls School Development LLC over a long-term lease price for the school building.

In November, the parties reached an agreement to cap the building lease price at $450,000 this fiscal year. But that didn’t address the future after June 30.

The financial problem was severe enough to warrant the attention of the Idaho Public Charter School Commission. That commission will still make a final decision about Xavier’s future during a special meeting Friday, Feb. 22, and the school had been expected to surrender its charter if it couldn’t reach a deal this week.

The agreement reached Tuesday will allow the school to pay Twin Falls School Development LLC $480,000 a year for the next three years, Biggers said, with the intent to purchase the school within that time. That’s down from the original price of $809,000, he said.

“Yay, it’s back to preparing lesson plans,” said Julyne Hall, a fifth-grade teacher at the school. Before the announcement, she had tears in her eyes as she talked about the fear of closure. After, her face was all smiles.

“There are teachers who’ve been here from the beginning that have gone through so much,” she said. “All I could think about were those teachers.”

Parents were thinking of their students.

“Before my daughter started coming here, she didn’t have a lot of confidence,” said Jessica Hahn, She now believes in her abilities and wants to pursue higher education.

Pablo Solis Martinez, 16, said many of his peers outside the school are involved with gangs and believes if it weren’t for Xavier and its teachers he might be, too. But the school, he said, has given him something better to shoot for.

“They treat me like family,” he said, noting he plans to be the first in his family to graduate high school.

“Now that the school will stay open, I can do that,” he said.

Biggers said officials will start looking at long-term plans — something they haven’t been able to do in a while.

For starters, the school is planning a fundraising breakfast from 8:30 to 11:30 March 16 at the school.

“This will all be in the news tomorrow,” Burr said about the announcement to stay open. “But tell your friends, tell everybody.”

$48M Jerome Wastewater Bond Headed to Ballot

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

JEROME • After several lengthy discussions and multiple meetings, Jerome City Council members set a $48 million amount to take to voters for the city’s wastewater treatment facility.

During Tuesday’s meeting, Feb. 19, the council voted 5-0 in favor of the amount with council members Chris Barber and Dale Ross voting no. Council members Robert Culver and Dawn Soto and Mayor John Shine voted in favor of the bond amount. The bond issue will appear on the May 21 ballot.

“I support growth,” Barber said while explaining why he would be voting no. “This is a tough decision, I wrestle with this.”

Shine said passing the bond amount was up to the citizens, not the council.

“This is a growth vs. no growth decision,” he said. “We’re going to have a lot to do in the next few years. It’s up to the citizens to say this is the right amount.”

Currently, the city’s wastewater treatment facility is nearing capacity. After the city faced an overflow incident two years ago — which was later determined to be caused by operator error — federal regulators began pressuring the city to improve its facility.

Barber and Ross expressed concern over industry involvement in the city’s wastewater capacity issues. Wet industries in Jerome, like Jerome Cheese Co., require more wastewater capacity and substance removal than residential users.

In other business, the council was asked to donate $15,000 to build a skate park at Sheppard’s Park in Jerome.

Council members voted to tentatively approve to budget the amount in next

Hearing Postponed in Sexual Abuse Case

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Former Burley High School vice principal Tara Bagley's arraignment in district court has been moved to next week.

Bagley will be arraigned at 9 a.m. Feb. 26 in Cassia County 5th District Court on seven felony counts of sexual battery committed through lewd acts on a child.

Bagley was charged for allegedly having sexual contact with two female students.

According to court records, the alleged abuse occurred from July 2011 to Dec. 12, 2012. The students are now 17 and 18 years old.

Bagley was hired by the Cassia County School District in 2004. Prior to that, she worked in the Minidoka County School District from 1996 to 2004.

Closing Arguments Today for Sexual Battery Trial

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Twin Falls man representing himself in court against more than a dozen sexual battery and child pornography charges has rested his case.

Closing arguments for the trial of Robert Brackett, 44, are scheduled to begin this morning.

Brackett is accused of having a sexual relationship two years ago with a girl who was 16 years old at the time.

The case entered its 13th day Tuesday, Feb. 19. That afternoon, District Judge Michael Crabtree told jurors that they should expect to have the case turned over to them today.

On Friday, Feb. 16, Brackett told the court he was still having trouble finding his daughter who was scheduled to be a witness in the case. Instead of his daughter testifying, a law clerk read the daughter's answers from several previous hearings.

Also Friday, Brackett called the alleged victim to the stand and questioned her. Brackett repeatedly attempted to ask the woman about whether she has lied under oath and about a pregnancy. Both subjects were objected to by Deputy Twin Falls County Prosecutor Julie Sturgill as not relevant. Crabtree agreed.

During her cross-examination of the woman, Sturgill went over the allegations again and asked her if the last two years had been a "long, hard haul."

The woman replied that they had been.

When he was allowed to question the alleged victim again, Brackett asked about the woman's other sexual activity, prompting another objection that the judge again upheld.

Throughout the trial, Crabtree has given Brackett numerous warnings about what questions he is allowed to ask and his conduct in the courtroom. Friday, Crabtree again warned Brackett about how his presentation appeared to the jury. He also explained that subjects that Brackett brings up need to be directly relevant to the issues that the jury will decide. And, he again reminded Brackett that mistaking the victim's age in a case such as this is not a defense — something Brackett has brought up several times.

More Charges for Mom in Feces, Drug-Filled House

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • More charges were filed against a Twin Falls woman who was charged with injury to a child after police allegedly discovered she allowed her 10-year-old son to live in a home filled with drugs, drug paraphernalia and animal feces.

On Jan. 15, Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies and other agencies served a search warrant at the home where Tina Deane, 49, and several other people live in the 1500 block of Maple Street in Twin Falls.

Deane was arraigned on Feb. 16 in Twin Falls County 5th District Court on new charges of possession of a controlled substance and possession of drug paraphernalia with intent to use.

During an interview with officers, the police report states, officers believed Deane's demeanor was consistent with that of someone who was under the influence of methamphetamine.

"Deane was unable to sit still, was randomly touching areas on her body, arms, and face and was unable to focus her attention on one thing for very long, had rapid eye movement, her topic of conversation rambled from subject to subject," the report states.

The report also states that Deane's physical appearance was consistent with someone who heavily uses meth.

According to the report, Deane told officers she is diabetic. After testing her blood sugar and giving herself an insulin shot, the report states, Deane's demeanor did not change.

Deane took officers to her bedroom where, she said, she lived with her 10 year old son, the report states.

The report states that officers found three plastic baggies with a white powdery substance that appeared to be methamphetamine.

"These were located in a cloth hanging rack on the backside of the door to the room easily within reach of an average 10 year old child," the report states.

Police also reported finding a glass pipe of a type that is often used to smoke methamphetamine.

According to the report, Deane told police she did not know how any of the illegal items got into her room.

According to a previous report by deputies, representatives from the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare also responded to the scene and took pictures. Officers also went to the boy's school to take custody of him.

Deane has a preliminary hearing on the drug charges on Friday, Feb. 22. A pretrial conference for the injury to a child charge is scheduled for March 19.

Ranchers

Management and the State Department of Lands, to ensure they know rules of engagement, he said.

"We have to really focus on the training — what can occur on rangeland, helping them understand the risks, and how to communicate and coordinate with the BLM," Groeschl said. "Can I give you an assurance that somebody would never be injured again? I wish I could tell you it would never happen again. I can't."

On Tuesday, the House Resources Committee approved a measure governing how these new rancher-led organizations are established.

Currently, Idaho law has no such standards for these groups, said Tom Schultz, director of the Lands Department, which will review the proposed associations' structure and training plans, along with the adequacy of their liability insurance.

"By at least having a structure or a framework for these rangeland fire protection associations, it provides greater oversight and protection to these entities than existing law," Schultz said.

Idaho's push to expand ranchers' role in fighting rangeland fires is modeled after a 50-year-old program in neighboring Oregon, which now has a dozen rancher-based firefighting organizations.

Greg Bedortha helped found the Post-Paulina Rangeland Fire Protective Association in Oregon in 2006. He hasn't had to fight a fire near his ranch east of Bend since then. But other members have, and Bedortha believes rancher groups have an important role in buttressing federal crews that often are stretched thin.

Idaho's new associations will be volunteer, formed by ranchers who have long sought permission to use their farm equipment to help corral range fires. In some instances, ranchers say they can act more quickly than BLM crews can respond.

The $400,000 Other wants is "seed money" to pay for drafting legal documents for associations and to supply them with used water tenders, radios and fire-resistant clothing. After this initial state cash, however, the groups are intended to fund themselves, through member assessments.

In advance of this legislation, Idaho's first rancher-led rangeland fire association was formed last year in Mountain Home. It assisted the federal agency on its first blaze in July.

Steve Acarregui, BLM Boise District fire manager, didn't return a phone call Tuesday on how the relationship worked. But in a letter last year to the state, Acarregui praised the Mountain Home group's initial contributions.

"What transpired was a good display of teamwork and willingness to safely achieve a common mission," he wrote.

POW-MIA Association Forms in T.F.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A new organization hopes to increase awareness of local prisoners of war and military personnel in general.

The Magic Valley POW-MIA Association began meeting a few months ago and the organization's leaders now seek more members, said Dayle Everts, a spokeswoman for the group.

"We feel that the veterans in this area are not being represented," she said. "We want to be there when any soldiers returning to this area are going to be greeted and welcomed home."

By increasing representation, the group hopes to find more families who may have a loved one deployed to help provide support, Everts said.

In the long term, the group would like to head projects that would support military families. However, before they can start, organizers are working to establish it as a nonprofit, Everts said. Members can then apply for grants and qualify for tax exemptions.

"We're pretty small right now so we don't have a lot of capabilities," Everts said. "But in the future, we expect to do more."

Get Involved

The Magic Valley POW-MIA Association meets the third Wednesday of every month — including tonight — at Idaho Joe's, 598 Blue Lakes Blvd N., Twin Falls. The group begins eating at 6 p.m. and the meeting begins at 6:30 p.m.

The group is open to anyone who is interested, Everts said. Its next meeting is slated for 6 p.m. today at Idaho Joe's, 598 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. in Twin Falls.

Firefighters arrived at the scene at about 11:05 a.m., Korsen said.

Tuesday at about 11:30 a.m., the fire was under control but smoke still poured out of the roof and back porch. The vinyl roof of the porch was melted and the attic was visible through a large portion of the back of the home that was completely destroyed.

Korsen said the fire continued to smolder after the fire was out, but was ruled totally contained at 11:47 a.m.

Tuesday afternoon Korsen said the fire was completely mopped up and was turned back over to the residents.

quarters of the house just had smoke damage, Fawcett said the fire damage in the attic spread through most of the house.

Korsen said the house was not a complete loss but it is currently unlivable. Much of the back of the house will have to be rebuilt, he said.

Since the door to the back bedroom was closed, the rest of the house was saved from fire damage, Korsen said.

Senate Committee Passes Bill on Health Care Sharing Ministries

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • The Senate Commerce and Industry Committee passed a bill that defines health care sharing ministries as exempt from being defined as insurance companies.

Health care sharing ministry members contribute to each others' health care bills instead of buying into insurance. The proposed law would ensure the ministries aren't held to the same standards and regulations as insurance companies, explained bill sponsor Sen. Sheryll Nuxoll, R-Cottonwood. It would also ward off potential lawsuits from insurance regulators.

Under the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, those participating in the ministries are exempt from the insurance mandate. Those testifying said they participate in the cost-sharing ministries as part of their faith.

"People who agree to a certain set of commitments on their lifestyle agree to pay each others medical bills," said Chris Brown. "It really is that simple."

The bill passed the committee unanimously.

way, he said.

DeMordaunt pointed to his children as an example. He used what his family called the "Big Yellow Book" to teach his kids to read and write. It took 15 minutes a day — a time investment even the busiest parents can make, he said.

"It was a wonderful little tool to help give my kids a little bit of a head start in terms of reading," DeMordaunt said. "...That's a tool that I would love to use as a way to empower our parents."

You Need More Pre-K Teachers

Pence pointed out that early childhood education is more than daycare or glorified babysitting. There are specific degrees for pre-k professionals, she said, and those teachers generally make more than daycare workers. If every school district in the state offers pre-k programs, the state will have to hire more teachers.

Most colleges and universities in Idaho offer early childhood education programs, including College of Southern Idaho. Are they pumping out enough graduates? That depends on how the proposal takes shape, and if it passes.

You Can't Always Depend on Federal Funding

In the past, the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee, which sets the state's budget, has rejected federal funding for new programs. Why? That money isn't always guaranteed, and the state doesn't want to have to pull the program if the money disappears.

Currently in Idaho, school districts provide pre-k education for children with special needs, and those districts can choose to expand that program. But most districts in the state operate on tight budgets, and are cutting programs, not adding programs. An influx of federal dollars would help, but what happens if that money goes away?

Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert and co-chair of the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee, said he didn't know the specifics of Obama's proposal, but pointed out the government can't sort out budget issues before sequestration, "it's a moot point."

You Need to Address Other Problems in Public Education

In response to Obama's plan, Superintendent of Public Schools Tom Luna released a statement agreeing that home is the best place for children to learn pre-k skills, but acknowledged there are some students who are coming to kindergarten unprepared.

Still, Luna wants more information.

"The President offered few details in his State of the Union address," said Luna spokeswoman Melissa McGrath in a statement. "Superintendent Luna still has concerns in expanding the public education system we have today when everybody agrees that we are facing financial challenges with the current system."

Bonnie Edith Ledbetter Arkoosh

March 18, 1924-Feb. 16, 2013

BOISE • Bonnie Edith Ledbetter Arkoosh, born March 18, 1924, to Charles Thomas Ledbetter and Jewel Rose Ledbetter, in Glens Ferry, Idaho, died Saturday, Feb. 16, 2013, in Boise, Idaho, by surrender to her redeemer.

As a child growing up in Hammett, Bonnie rode the desert, hunted and fished with her dad; cooked and sewed with her mother; played state championship high school tennis with her friends; and graduated salutatorian from Glens Ferry High School. Bonnie took her registered nursing certification at Saint Alphonsus in Boise during World War II, rooming with Yvonne Wagner (nee Arkoosh), who introduced Bonnie to George Arkoosh, Yvonne's brother who ranched with his family in Gooding, Idaho. On Dec. 14, 1946, Bonnie and George eloped to be married at St. John's Cathedral in Boise, Idaho. They lived together in Gooding, raising nine children and untold sheep and cattle until George's death on Oct. 6, 1987.

Mom heartened illiterate immigrant boys who came to herd sheep, vagabonds who stopped at her ranch door, ranchers, farmers and stockmen, neighbors, politicians, scholars and clergy all with the same matchless graceful charm and deep individual respect. No one left her table or her home without an enduring impression of her hospitality and appreciation for her humane conversation.

With much love and patience, she enticed the moral compass of her children to resonate her values and objective sense of justice, her love of learning and her responsibility to community. We, each of her children, are grateful to Mom for offering us this happy direction for our lives.

Bonnie is survived by her children, Joseph Thomas Arkoosh, Michael Alexander Arkoosh (Kristine), John Cromwell Arkoosh (Deborah), Charles Thomas Arkoosh (Linda), James Elias Arkoosh (Sheri), George Francis Arkoosh II (Elizabeth), Ann Elizabeth Brown (Phil), Mary Rose Arkoosh (Rick) and Bonnie Theresa Carns (Tom); 22 grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

Rosary will be said for Bonnie at 6 p.m. Friday, Feb. 22, in the Resurrection Room at St. Mark's in Boise, Idaho. Her Requiem Mass and interment will be celebrated at 11 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 23, at St. Elizabeth's in Gooding, Idaho.

In keeping with the focus of Mom's love and compassion for her fellows, please make a donation to any charity of your preference in memory of her.

Orphaned Bears Keep NH Rehabilitator Busy

LYME, N.H. (AP) • When a bad year for feeding followed a good one for breeding, New Hampshire's only licensed bear rehabilitator ended up with 27 orphaned cubs instead of the usual three or four. Ben Kilham isn't losing any sleep over it, but the bears sure are.

"They've managed to keep themselves awake," he said. "There's always somebody who stirs up somebody else, and pretty soon, everybody's up."

Kilham keeps the cubs in an 8-acre enclosed forest behind his house until spring, when he works with the state Fish and Game Department to release them in remote locations. Normally, the bears sleep all winter, but not this bunch. For a while, Kilham tried withholding food in hopes that the bears would sleep, but that didn't work.

"They just roto-tilled the pen," he said. "It was obvious that they were seeking food, so we just gave up and started going back once a day feeding them."

Staying awake all winter won't hurt the bears any, he said, and if anything, they are better off having spent the winter in a large group. With just a few cubs, it was common for one to pace back and forth near the fence, Kilham said. But none of the current cubs are showing that kind of anxiety.

"They're just one big happy family, they roam around, play with each other," he said. "They are very, very happy as a big social unit."

Andy Timmins, the bear project leader for the New Hampshire Fish and Game Department, said officials were expecting more orphaned cubs than usual but were surprised at just how many turned up.

"It was like nothing we've ever seen. A high year in the past was maybe, seven or eight bears," he said. "It was a very challenging year, for sure, and we're not done yet. I'm absolutely positive there will be more showing up this spring as a result of these conditions last year."

The increase in orphaned cubs can be traced to a two-year swing in the bears' food supply. Younger female bears often don't give birth during leaner years, but with an abundance of beechnuts, berries and other food in 2011, there was a baby boom. In 2012, however, dry conditions meant food was scarce, and bears were forced to venture into backyards for food. Sows that foraged for food in chicken coops and beehives ended up getting shot by property owners, leaving the cubs behind. That's how 16 of the 27 cubs ended up with Kilham.

Kilham, who has been studying bears for more than 20 years, has produced and appeared in numerous documentaries and written two books about bear social behavior. The second is due out this summer, and he's also working on a doctoral degree in environmental conservation.

“I want to see my president. I’ve missed him a lot because Chavez is the spirit of the poor.”

Alicia Morroy, a seamstress in a statement after President Hugo Chavez returned to Venezuela after more than two months of treatment in Cuba following cancer surgery.

Balanced Budget Amendment Still a Terrible Idea

Frustrated by the persistence of large deficits, and alarmed by the long-term gap between spending and revenue, congressional Republicans are promoting a constitutional amendment to require balanced budgets. Rep. Trent Franks, an Arizona Republican, tells me that an amendment is a simple, easily understood way “to put this government back in its proper role.”

Ramesh Ponnuru

Bloomberg News

The amendment has long been a popular idea. It is also a bad idea, which is why it’s a good thing it isn’t going to come close to being ratified.

There are several competing versions. Some Republicans favor the “clean” amendment they supported in the 1980s and 1990s, which just requires balance. Others fear this would lead to tax increases. They want an amendment that requires balance and also caps spending at 18 percent of gross domestic product and requires a two-thirds vote of Congress to raise taxes. That’s the version that all Senate Republicans have agreed to co-sponsor. Some House Republicans have mused about yet a third version, which would require the government to balance its budgets over the course of an economic cycle rather than in any year.

The senators’ amendment would make the federal government a smaller share of the economy than it has been since the 1950s. The chief economic argument against it is that it would make recessions worse. When recessions hit, they increase deficits: Revenue falls while spending on unemployment benefits (among other things) goes up. A strict balanced-budget rule would force spending cuts or tax increases at times of economic weakness. The Federal Reserve could theoretically offset these effects, but you’d want to be pretty confident beforehand that it would do the right thing.

The economic argument assumes the amendment would be enforced. It isn’t clear how it would be. If the government were projected to run a deficit, would the courts step in to cut spending or raise taxes? The senators’ amendment rules out judicial tax increases but leaves the door open for court-ordered cuts in defense spending or Social Security benefits. The result would be a major expansion of judicial power over American life, brought to us by the party that has rightly warned against the growth of that very power for decades.

When pressed on the enforcement question, proponents sometimes say that a sense of shame will keep Congress from violating the amendment. (Really, that’s what they say.) The Senate Judiciary Committee made a similar point in a 1993 report on a proposed amendment: “In their campaigns for re-election, elected officials who flout their responsibilities under this amendment will find that the political process will provide the ultimate enforcement mechanism.”

If shame and political pressure could solve our debt woes, they already would have. If the budget is unbalanced, any future congressman will be able to say that he supports a remedy: cutting this or that program or raising taxes. There’s nothing in the amendment that would force congressmen to agree on just which solution to adopt, or to pass any of them. Instead of blaming one another just for deficits, they would blame one another for deficits and for violating the Constitution.

The polls may also be misleading Republicans about the political merits of a campaign for an amendment. Democrats will say that the Senate Republicans’ version of the amendment would gut Social Security and Medicare (which would, after all, be one way to comply with it). Without any plan of their own to balance the budget right now, Republicans won’t be able to counter that attack.

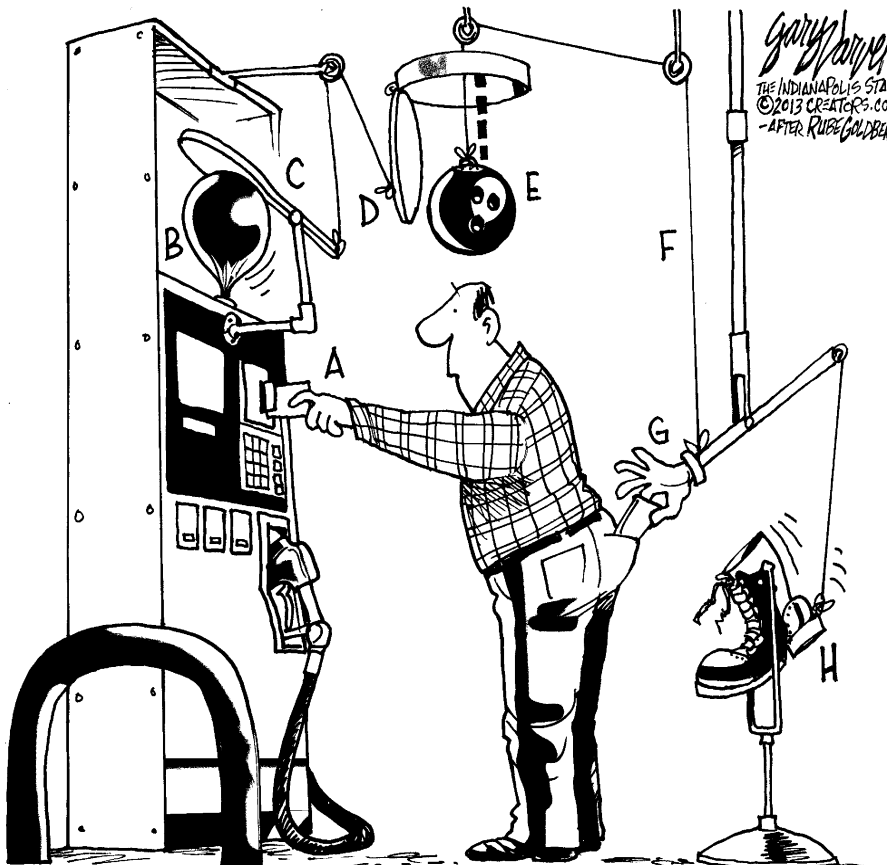

The other political risk for Republicans is that the time they waste making the case for an ineffectual amendment is time they don’t spend persuading voters that they have any ideas that would help families balance their own budgets. And it would indeed be time wasted. All the Republicans and 22 of the Democrats in the Senate, plus all the Republicans and 56 of the Democrats in the House, would have to vote for the idea to send it to the states. Then three-quarters of the states, which have grown increasingly dependent on federal deficit spending to keep their own budgets in balance, would have to ratify it. The amendment isn’t going anywhere.

Voters already know that Republicans are concerned about the deficit. Exit polls during the 2012 presidential election showed that voters favored the Republican candidate, Mitt Romney, over President Barack Obama by two percentage points as a deficit-cutter. The 15 percent of voters who said the deficit was their top issue backed Romney 2 to 1.

The Republican Party has a lot of problems. A fight over the Balanced Budget Amendment would, at best, solve one it doesn’t have.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Residents Shouldn’t Be So Willing to Give Up Saturday Delivery

The announcement to end Saturday delivery of mail by Aug. 5 is an unnecessary and negative procedure in order to save money.

Trading 17 percent for service for 2 percent in savings does not make much business sense. No taxpayer dollars are used. The 2006 congressional mandate to pre-fund future retirees’ health benefits for 10 years is the real problem, accounting for 80 percent of the Postal Service’s red ink. This loss in service would disproportionately affect the elderly, rural communities and small businesses.

I have heard some say that they would not care if Saturday mail delivery was discontinued. Are you willing to take a chance that something important may come for you in the mail only to be delayed? Why take chances when it is unnecessary? Once Saturday mail delivery is gone, it will be gone forever. What will be the trend after that; four-day delivery, three-day and then two-day delivery?

It is estimated that 25,000 jobs, which would include many veterans, would be eliminated if Saturday mail delivery was discontinued. Ending Saturday delivery would greatly endanger the mission of providing the best possible service to the American people.

Splitting Up the Airwaves

The following editorial appeared in Tuesdays Washington Post:

Who should be able to use the public airwaves? The Federal Communications Commission is reorganizing the electromagnetic spectrum — which enables television signals to reach into Americans’ homes, radio into their cars, WiFi into their coffee shops and 4G cellphone service into their pockets — and The Post’s Cecilia Kang reports that high-tech companies are doing battle with telecommunications firms over who will get which share.

Under a law Congress passed last year, the rights to use the portion of the spectrum currently devoted to UHF television broadcasting will be reclaimed and auctioned off to mobile broadband companies. That’s good. That portion of the spectrum is extremely valuable, because broadcast signals using those frequencies can easily penetrate concrete walls or bend around trees, and the country’s cellphone networks need it. These networks have revolutionized daily life, making immense quantities of information accessible to millions of Americans from practically anywhere. But as streaming video becomes more common, those networks will get increasingly creaky without more spectrum.

Reserving freed-up spectrum for individual companies willing to pay for its exclusive use will promote network reliability and private investment in new communications infrastructure, since those firms — and their customers — would have assurance that their signals won’t be crowded and won’t encounter interference.

To ensure that strong signals don’t interfere with one another, the FCC would create “guard bands” between the blocks it would license off. The FCC would then open up those guard bands for anyone to use for free, as long as they weren’t used to broadcast high-power signals. Similar arrangements in the past enabled the proliferation of baby monitors, cordless home phones, car key remotes — and WiFi signals. With slivers of spectrum designated for unlicensed use at these new frequencies, it would be much easier to provide public wireless Internet access to whole cities or rural zones, for example, or to link smart electricity meters with utilities, home appliances and each other. Myriad other innovations would no doubt be possible with new, unlicensed spectrum available to all sorts of inventors.

So, what’s the dispute? One side worries that regulators will make the guard bands too large, reserving more spectrum for unlicensed use than is necessary to prevent interference and thereby reducing what telecommunications companies could use to bolster their networks. And some even want to see the guard bands sold off. The other side pushes back that at least a handful of frequencies must be available for inventors to use freely; otherwise, high costs would deter valuable innovation.

The FCC should base the size of the guard bands on the best reckoning of engineers on how wide they must be to serve their primary technical purpose. Anyone who has browsed recently through mobile-app stores knows that lots of useful innovation happens after spectrum is sold off. It’s very reasonable, though, for some of the public airwaves to be more publicly accessible, allowing free use of the spectrum that’s left over and enabling anyone from Google to would-be inventors tinkering in their garage to design low-power devices that would take advantage of it.

US Ready to Strike Back on Chinese Cyberattacks

WASHINGTON (AP) • As public evidence mounts that the Chinese military is responsible for stealing massive amounts of U.S. government data and corporate trade secrets, the Obama administration is poised to spell out specific trade actions it may take against Beijing or any other country guilty of cyberespionage.

According to officials familiar with the plans, the White House is eyeing fines, penalties and other trade restrictions as initial, more-aggressive steps the U.S. would take in response to what top officials say has been an unrelenting campaign of cyberstealing linked to the Chinese government. The new strategy is to be released Wednesday, said the officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to speak publicly about the threatened action.

The White House plans come after a Virginia-based cybersecurity firm released a torrent of details Monday that tied a secret Chinese military unit in Shanghai to years of cyberattacks against U.S. companies. After analyzing breaches that compromised more than 140 companies, Mandiant has concluded that they can be linked People's Liberation Army's Unit 61398.

Military experts believe the unit is part of the People's Liberation Army's cyber-command, which is under the direct authority of the General Staff Department, China's version of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. As such, its activities would be likely to be authorized at the highest levels of China's military.

The release of Mandiant's report, complete with details on three of the alleged hackers and photographs of one of the military unit's buildings in Shanghai, makes public what U.S. authorities have said less publicly for years. But it also increases the pressure on the U.S. to take more forceful action against the Chinese for what experts say has been years of systematic espionage.

"If the Chinese government flew planes into our airspace, our planes would escort them away. If it happened two, three or four times, the president would be on the phone and there would be threats of retaliation," said former FBI executive assistant director Shawn Henry. "This is happening thousands of times a day. There needs to be some definition of where the red line is and what the repercussions would be."

Henry, now president of the security firm CrowdStrike, said that rather than tell companies to increase their cybersecurity the government needs to focus more on how to deter the hackers and the nations that are backing them.

James Lewis, a cybersecurity expert at the Center for Strategic and International Studies, said that in the past year the White House has been taking a serious look at responding to China, adding that "this will be the year they will put more pressure on, even while realizing it will be hard for the Chinese to change. There's not an on-off switch."

The Chinese government, meanwhile, has denied involvement in the cyberattacks tracked by Mandiant. Instead, the Foreign Ministry said that China, too, is a victim of hacking, some of it traced to the U.S. Foreign Ministry spokesman Hong Lei cited a report by an agency under the Ministry of Information Technology and Industry that said in 2012 alone that foreign hackers used viruses and other malicious software to seize control of 1,400 computers in China and 38,000 websites.

"Among the above attacks, those from the U.S. numbered the most," Hong said at a daily media briefing, lodging the most specific allegations the Chinese government has made about foreign hacking.

Cybersecurity experts say U.S. authorities do not conduct similar attacks or steal data from Chinese companies, but acknowledge that intelligence agencies routinely spy on other countries. China is clearly a target of interest, said Lewis, noting that the U.S. would be interested in Beijing's military policies.

In its report, Mandiant said it traced the hacking back to a neighborhood in the outskirts of Shanghai that includes a white 12-story office building run by the PLA's Unit 61398.

$50 Million in Diamonds Stolen at Brussels Airport

BRUSSELS (AP) • When the armored car set off for the Brussels airport carrying $50 million worth of precious stones from Antwerp's diamond district, eight gunmen knew all about it.

One of the biggest diamond heists in recent memory was about to go down.

The thieves surely knew it would be too risky to make their move in Antwerp, which is the world capital of diamond-cutting, 27 miles from the airport. The city's diamond industry has some 2,000 surveillance cameras, police monitoring and countless identity controls to protect its $200 million in daily trade of rough and polished gems.

And the thieves no doubt realized that once Swiss Flight LX789 was airborne Monday night on its way to Zurich, the diamonds tucked in its hold, it would be too late to get their hands on the gems.

But the airport's 25-kilometer fence and the transfer of the diamonds from the armored car on the tarmac to the hold of the Fokker 100 twin-engine jet — now that held potential.

After weeks of lashing rain, snow, sleet and black ice, Monday evening was finally as good as it gets in late winter in Belgium. Crisp, cold air meant dry roads for a perfect getaway, and winter's early darkness was a blessing for those needing stealth.

About 20 minutes before the flight's scheduled 8:05 p.m. departure, the robbers hid in a construction site outside the airport fence. Then they apparently cut through the fence and, in two black cars with blue police lights flashing, drove onto the tarmac, speeding straight to pier A, where the armored car had just finished transferring the diamonds to the Fokker.

Dressed in dark police clothing and hoods, the thieves whipped out machine guns and stopped the pilots and the transport security crew in their tracks.

The 29 passengers?

"They saw nothing," Anja Bijmens of the Brussels prosecutor's office said Tuesday. The thieves "never fired a shot. They never injured anyone."

With speed and precision, the thieves opened the plane's hold, picked out 120 parcels and loaded them into the cars.

"Afterward, they made a high-speed getaway," Bijmens said, estimating the whole operation took five minutes.

Workers place concrete blocks to block access to a security fence next to the tarmac at Brussels international airport on Tuesday.

By late Tuesday, investigators had found the charred remains of a van most likely used in the heist but little else.

Because of the heist's clockwork precision, there was immediate speculation the thieves had help from the inside. But Bijmens said only that the investigation is still going on. Embarrassed airport officials were left to explain how thieves could so smoothly get in, stage a robbery and make a clean getaway. Diamond industry officials who pride themselves on the security of their trade were equally mortified.

Airport spokesman Jan Van Der Cruysse could not explain how the area could be so vulnerable. "We abide by the most stringent rules," he said, noting the same apply to other European airports.

Kent Lee, owner of Cold Stone Creamery in Twin Falls, places an assortment of Rocky Mountain Chocolate Factory candy in a tray on Feb. 12. Lee is renovating the Cold Stone store and expects to carry Rocky Mountain candy, apples and other items beginning March 1.

CHOCOLATE!

Cold Stone Creamery takes on even more scrumptious delights.

BY PAUL DUNN
 pdunn@magicvalley.com

 Come March 1, that’s what Albert Einstein’s famous theory of relativity – $E=MC^2$ – will really mean, at least in Twin Falls.
 That’s the day Cold Stone Creamery adds devilishly delightful goodies from the Rocky Mountain Chocolate Factory (RMCF) to its already formidable array of sweet treats.
 Cold Stone owner Kent Lee expected the renovation to begin Feb. 18. Workers will get rid of a long counter and perform some other work to accommodate the new RMCF products – all inside the existing structure at 799 Cheney Drive in Twin Falls.

 Lee expects renovation, a new Rocky Mountain counter and products to cost $75,000. New equipment will include a 4-foot-long candy display counter and a 7-foot-long “apple radius,” which is basically a curved counter to accommodate chocolate-dipped apples.
 Lee said adding the RMCF products just seemed logical.

 “It’s a good fit with the ice cream,” said the 54-year-old. “We create different kinds of ice cream here, and we can do the same with the apples. Also, we can sell the candy and apples more readily in the winter when the ice cream sales are slower.”
 Lee, who has owned the Twin Falls Cold Stone for 10 years and also owns two franchises in the Boise area, trained for four days recently at the RMCF headquarters in Durango, Colo.
 “In three days we dipped 250 apples,” he said.

That’s about how many apples Lee hopes he and his staff will have to dip as his new business takes off – 75 to 100 a day. After spending about $70,000 a year for the new RMCF products, Lee figures to increase his overall revenue by about $130,000.
 He’s not sure how many new customers his augmented business will attract, but he’s confident they’ll return to the shop more often than before. Cold Stone averages about 150 customers a day in winter and 300 in summer, Lee said.

Cooking for 15 – and a Few Hundred More

Executive chef LuAnn Stites Kraft enhances the experience of a monastery stay with food.
 BY TETONA DUNLAP
 tdunlap@magicvalley.com

JEROME • For executive chef LuAnn Stites Kraft, working at the Monastery of the Ascension is like cooking for family.
 “I know what they like and what they don’t like and what they should like,” Kraft said with a laugh.
 She has worked at the monastery for seven years and prepares meals for a community of fifteen Benedictine monks. She is the monastery’s only full-time employee.
 She still remembers the first time she made a meal for the monks. The meal was a success, but she forgot one little thing.
 Kraft said she was approached later by one of the monks and told, “We like a little something sweet after dinner.”
 Now, Kraft said she always makes sure she has a dessert after meals – homemade puddings, flan, cakes, tapiocas and cobbles.
 Some of the monks occasionally help prepare meals. And after everyone is finished eating, they do the dishes.
 On Feb. 8, Kraft sat at a table in the dining room of the monastery going over paperwork before she had to prepare that night’s dinner.
 “Food is such a unifying force. It’s that love, the love that’s in the food,” she said.
 Kraft said she cooks from scratch using fresh and local foods. She orders food from Cloverleaf Creamery, Falls Brand, and M & M Heath Farms. She also keeps a small garden on the property.
 She likes to serve local and fresh, even though that’s not what she grew up eating.

Worms: A Zimbabwe Snack, from Tree to Dinner Table

BY TSVANGIRAYI
MUKWAZHI
Associated Press

GWANDA, Zimbabwe • In Zimbabwe as well as most parts of southern Africa, mopane worms are a staple part of the diet in rural areas and are considered a delicacy in the cities. They can be eaten dry, as crunchy as potato chips, or cooked and drenched in sauce.

I decided to document the harvesting, preparation, sale and consumption of the worms, and found the preparation somewhat stomach-turning. But the worms can be mighty tasty and they're very nutritious. Here's everything you always wanted to know about mopane worms but were afraid to ask.

The Mopane Worm

The worm is the large caterpillar of the Gonimbrasia belina species, commonly called the emperor moth. It is known as a mopane worm because it is found chomping the leaves of mopane trees after it hatches in summer. It has also burrowed its way into literature, finding its way, for example, into the pages of Alexander McCall Smith's series about "The No. 1 Ladies' Detective Agency," set in neighboring Botswana. At least one of the characters munches on dried mopane worms.

The Harvest

After six weeks of rain, the mopane worms can be seen clinging to, and feeding on, the leaves of the mopane trees in rural Gwanda, an arid cattle-ranching area in southern Zimbabwe.

Amanda Ncube normally fetches firewood to sell and looks after the family cattle, but when it's worm-harvesting season she joins other women and a few men in collecting the worms, which are as long as the width of two hands and as thick as a cigar. She slowly plucks them from the lower branches before climbing partway up the tree to shake off the higher ones. The more stubborn ones that cling to the leaves and branches are pried loose with a long stick.

The worms excrete a brown liquid once they make contact with a human hand, leaving the pickers' hands wet and slippery. As they harvest the worms, the women and men move from one tree to another until their buckets are full.

A thick slimy green fluid comes out as Ncube carefully squeezes out the entrails from a mopane worm she has just plucked from a tree. While some worms are prepared on site, other harvesters wait until they are back home where they squeeze out the entrails of the worms before leaving them to dry for a few days in the hot African sun.

During harvest season, the porches of mud-walled homes are covered with thousands of worms, laid out to dry.

The Market

At the local market, mopane worms are quite popular with residents who buy a cup or two of them and eat them immediately. The market is abuzz with activity, with most stalls strategically displaying the delicacy so people cannot miss them. Vendors offer free samples. The mopane worms are graded according to size and the area where they were harvested.

Picky buyers ask about their provenance before buying, favoring worms from one district over another because, to the connoisseurs, worms from one area taste different from those from another.

High Protein

The mopane worm is a healthful and cheap source of nutrition.

A Zimbabwean nutritionist, Marlon Chidemo, says the worms are high in healthy nutrients and contain three times the amount of protein as beef. He says eating worms is less taxing on the environment than consuming beef because it takes far fewer leaves to produce worms than it does feed to produce the same amount of beef.

Wormy Business

Dried mopane worms have become a multimillion-dollar industry, even exported to countries like South Africa and Botswana. They can be found in African restaurants in Paris.

Preparation

Once they've been dried out, they can be eaten straight away. They can also be cooked in a spicy or peanut butter sauce and served with pap, a maize porridge.

Having grown up eating the mopane worms, I have never had the opportunity to see how they harvest and prepare them until now. While the process is rather disgusting, the worm can be a pleasure to eat as a starter or a side dish. The taste is reminiscent of salty potato chips.

Malawi's first President Hastings Kamuzu Banda preferred his just like that, simply dried and then eaten as a snack like chips. Banda was known for carrying around pocketsful of worms that he would also offer to children.

A Recipe

Here is a Congolese recipe that AP's special Africa correspondent Michelle Faul describes as "one of the tastiest" for mopane worms.

Mopani Worms for four people.

Ingredients: 500 grams

dried mopane worms; three tomatoes, diced or 1 can of tomatoes; two onions, diced; 1/2 teaspoon turmeric; three fresh green chilies, finely chopped; three cloves of garlic, finely chopped; tablespoon of fresh ginger, finely chopped.

Soak dried worms in water for 3-4 hours to reconstitute. Fry onions in groundnut oil on medium heat until translucent. Add turmeric, chilies, garlic and ginger. Fry for about five minutes. Add tomatoes and cook on low for about 20 minutes until spices are well blended. Add drained worms and cook until they have softened a bit but still are a little crunchy. Salt and pepper to taste. Enjoy.

Kraft, a mother of five, said when she was a child her mother was a “mom of the ’50s.”

“We had a lot of canned soups and casseroles,” she said. “Salad was iceberg lettuce with Thousand Island dressing.”

Her favorite cuisine now is ethnic foods, and she loves to make soups.

“I want something from the heart ... I’m not talking about five-star, but real food for real people,” Kraft said.

Kraft got her start in the kitchen at St. Edward’s Catholic School, where her children attended and where she helped start a lunch program as a cook in 1990. Kraft said she had always fed her children natural and healthy foods, and tried to incorporate that style in the school lunchroom.

In 1992, Kraft started working at Metropolis Bakery Cafe in downtown Twin Falls doing various tasks, which sometimes included baking. She also cooked and baked at several other businesses in the Magic Valley.

“I worked with a lot of good chefs,” Kraft said. “The more I learned, the more I wanted to do.”

In 2007, Kraft had surgery and wasn’t working for six weeks. That was when she received a call from the monastery asking her to come work for them.

“It’s phenomenal working here,” Kraft said. “Every day is different ... it’s such a diverse, colorful people who come here.”

Kraft cooks meals not only for the monks who live at the monastery, but also the hundreds of people who visit every year.

A Benedictine monk eats a breakfast casserole that LuAnn Stites Kraft prepared on Feb. 9 at the Monastery of the Ascension near Jerome.

“Every time I go I hear people comment on how good the food is. It’s always healthy. It’s unlike any food I’ve ever had. I certainly can’t make it at home.”

Priest Rand Fagg of St. Matthew’s Episcopal Church in Rupert

The monks’ main ministry and community outreach is offering Benedictine hospitality, according to their website. To further that ministry they operate the Ministry Center, a guest and retreat house.

The center hosts periodic retreats, workshops, conferences and classes. In the summer it hosts programs for Road Scholars, a not-for-profit educational travel organization.

Priest Rand Fagg of St. Matthew’s Episcopal Church in Rupert has attended a half-dozen retreats and overnight stays at the monastery.

Fagg said the food is often the aspect of the experience that stands out the most.

“Every time I go I hear people comment on how good the food is,” Fagg said. “It’s always healthy. It’s unlike any food I’ve ever had. I certainly can’t make it at home.”

Fagg especially enjoys the breads and soups.

“They had a soup, a non-gluten carrot soup. It doesn’t sound that tasty, but it was delicious, thick and rich,” he said.

Father Norbert Novak, guestmaster of the Ministry Center, said he always receives rave reviews from visitors about the food served during their stay.

Novak also had nothing but praise for the meals he eats daily.

His favorite dishes include the roast beef sandwich with gravy, sausage and sauerkraut, and especially breakfast.

“The food is fabulous. It’s a place where you can consistently eat healthy, fresh food,” said Janet King, a deacon at St. Matthew’s. “It always makes you eager to go there.”

Chocolate

“They say people come back more often because you have a different variety of products,” he explained.

For the health-conscious — that’s a joke, by the way — those RMCF chocolate-dipped Granny Smith apples should be a huge draw, Lee hopes.

“The main thing that people like are the apples,” he said. “Customers travel to Ketchum and Boise to get them, and now they’ll be able to get them in Twin Falls.”

Lee expects to have from 15 to 20 different types of apples, all covered in a swath of caramel before other ingredients are added. They’ll include the “Oreo”; the “Peanut Butter Bomb,” which Lee said is “ridiculously good”; the “Butterfinger”; the “Toffee”; the “Apple Pie” and the “Worms and Dirt.”

Here’s the chocolate fix you’ll experience with several of the apples:

The Peanut Butter Bomb is especially gruesome: It’s initially covered in caramel and rolled in peanuts. Then it’s covered in a thick layer of peanut butter chocolate and rolled in another layer of peanuts.

The Apple Pie, which Lee said is one of the most popular RMCF apples, begins with caramel. To that is added “white ribbon” chocolate covered in brown sugar and cinnamon.

The Worms and Dirt is covered in caramel and layered with white chocolate and Oreo cookie crumbs. Two gummy worms adorn the top.

The apples will range from $3.95 to $7.95 apiece.

Kent Lee, owner of Cold Stone Creamery in Twin Falls, displays Rocky Mountain Chocolate Factory candy on Feb. 12.

And if those don’t have enough chocolate for you, back them up with candy — perhaps a “Peanut Butter Bucket.”

This bodacious bounty is a quarter-pound conglomeration of peanut butter and chocolate.

Still not enough?

Then add some individual cashew bears, toffee, truffles or full boxes of candy to the mix. And if that’s still not curing the crave, Lee will also offer frozen bananas or cheesecake dipped in chocolate, and strawberries dipped in the same.

“I have a ton of candy back there,” Lee said about his initial chocolate inventory from RMCF. “I’ll tell you what ... we brought some home and ate all of it. It’s very high quality chocolate, and I think our customers will love it.”

Some will even wag their tails, they’ll be so excited. That’s right: Lee will offer safe-to-eat white chocolate-dipped bone treats for dogs that contain no cocoa or caffeine.

“The treats will be sold in single pieces or by the ‘barker’s dozen,’” Lee concluded with a laugh.

Today's Highlight:

On Feb. 20, 2003, a fire sparked by pyrotechnics broke out during a concert by the group Great White at The Station nightclub in West Warwick, R.I., killing 100 people and injuring about 200 others.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1792, President George Washington signed an act creating the U.S. Post Office.

In 1809, the Supreme Court ruled that no state legislature could annul the judgments or determine the jurisdictions of federal courts.

In 1839, Congress prohibited dueling in the District of Columbia.

In 1862, William Wallace Lincoln, the 11-year-old son of President Abraham Lincoln and first lady Mary Todd Lincoln, died at the White House, apparently of typhoid fever.

In 1907, President Theodore Roosevelt signed an immigration act which excluded "idiots, imbeciles, feeble-minded persons, epileptics, insane persons" from being admitted to the United States.

In 1933, Congress proposed the 21st Amendment to the U.S. Constitution to repeal Prohibition.

In 1938, Anthony Eden resigned as British foreign secretary following Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's decision to negotiate with Italian dictator Benito Mussolini.

In 1944, during World War II, U.S. bombers began raiding German aircraft manufacturing centers in a series of attacks that became known as "Big Week."

In 1962, astronaut John Glenn became the first American to orbit the Earth as he flew aboard Project Mercury's Friendship 7 spacecraft.

In 1965, the Ranger 8 spacecraft crashed on the moon, as planned, after sending back thousands of pictures of the lunar surface.

In 1971, the National Emergency Warning Center in Colorado erroneously ordered U.S. radio and TV stations off the air; some stations heeded the alert, which was not lifted for about 40 minutes.

In 1998, Tara Lipinski of the U.S. won the ladies' figure skating gold medal at the Nagano Olympics; Michelle Kwan won the silver.

Ten years ago: Former Air Force Master Sgt. Brian Patrick Regan was convicted in Alexandria, Va., of offering to sell U.S. intelligence to Iraq and China but acquitted of attempted spying for Libya. (Regan was later sentenced to life without parole.) A 17-year-old Mexican girl mistakenly given a heart and lungs with the wrong blood type received a second set of organs at Duke University Medical Center in North Carolina; however, Jessica (cq) Santillan suffered brain damage and later died.

Five years ago: A U.S. Navy cruiser blasted a disabled spy satellite with a pinpoint missile strike that achieved the main mission of exploding a tank of toxic fuel 130 miles above the Pacific Ocean. Space shuttle Atlantis and its crew returned to Earth, after delivering a new European lab to the international space station.

One year ago: Russian President Dmitry Medvedev held an unprecedented meeting with opposition leaders, who said they were encouraged by his promises to make it easier for anti-Kremlin parties to take part in elections. Former senator and astronaut John Glenn celebrated the 50th anniversary of his history-making space flight at Ohio State University by kicking off a forum about NASA's future.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"To meet death one needs no letters of introduction."
— Leo Tolstoy

There is a big difference between needing tricks from a suit, in which case you grab what you can get, and trying to avoid losing too many tricks in that suit.

Against three no-trump, West led the spade five, and although when East played the king declarer has two sure tricks in the suit, this gives him only seven winners. In order to get home he needs to set up his diamond suit, which should produce three tricks once the ace and king have been knocked out. Three diamonds, two clubs and three heart tricks are eight, so only one trick is needed from the spade suit.

What South needs to guard against is the spade suit producing three tricks for the defense. If spades break 4-3, all is well, but if they break 5-2, declarer must exhaust East's spades before he wins the first diamond honor, and West will surely do his best to arrange that he does. (If East has both diamond honors, there is no problem; if West has both, there is no hope. But if they divide, then taking insurance at the cost of a trick ensures the contract.)

Therefore, declarer must duck the spade king and win the spade return, so that when East is in with the diamond ace, he has no further spade to play, and the spade 10 in dummy acts as a guard against the run of the suit when West gets in. Now the defense can only come to two spade and two diamond tricks.

ANSWER: Although you cannot be sure that your spade king is pulling its full weight, you certainly have enough to look for game here. The issue is whether to bid four hearts or simply raise to three hearts. (It surely cannot be right to consider no-trump here.) I believe your heart spots entitle you to bid game.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend, “Doug” (24), and I (22) have been in a long-distance relationship for a year, but we were friends for a couple of years before that. I had never had a serious relationship before and lacked experience. Doug has not only been in two other long-term relationships, but has had sex with more than 15 women. One of them is an amateur porn actress.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

I knew about this, but it didn’t bother me until recently. Doug had a party, and while he was drunk he told one of his buddies — in front of me — that he should watch a certain porn film starring his ex-girlfriend. It made me feel awkward. The next day he apologized.

Of course, having learned her name, I couldn’t help myself from searching for her on the Internet. Now I can’t stop comparing myself to her, and I feel intimidated and frustrated. I have been struggling with how to get over it. Doug has told me many times that he loves me and I believe him. But those stupid, drunken comments really knocked me down. How do I get over my boyfriend’s past?

— ECLIPSED
BY A “STAR”
IN NEW YORK

DEAR ECLIPSED: A giant step in the right direction would be to quit comparing yourself to a porn actress. In his addled condition, your immature boyfriend couldn’t resist bragging to his buddies because he thought it would impress them with his prowess. If he had serious feelings about her, he would still be with her, not in a relationship with you.

That said, it would be in your best interest to find out if this woman really was a “girlfriend” or one of his one-night stands. If he is in a long-distance relationship with you and tends to be promiscuous, you should be more concerned about his judgment than how to get over his past.

DEAR ABBY: We have always purchased rather than leased our cars. One of them has 225,000 miles on the odometer and is running well. I have two friends who lease expensive foreign cars. Keeping the mileage down on their cars is important to them, especially when it comes time to return them at the end of the lease. Because of this, I find myself driving more often than I should. One friend attends a weekly meeting with me, and we’re supposed to take turns driving each other every other week. But somehow I end up at the wheel more often. I’d hate to start writing down our outings, but I’m beginning to feel used.

While I respect their decision to lease expensive new cars, it is not my responsibility to keep their expenses down. Both of these women are in a better financial position than I am, although we are all “comfortable.” Any ideas about how to approach this without seeming petty? It has been going on for a long while and is starting to bother me.

— DRIVEN TOO FAR IN LONG BEACH, CALIF.

DEAR DRIVEN TOO FAR: If you feel that you are being taken advantage of, then you probably are. I recommend you wean these ladies off your chauffeur services by being less available when they need a ride. And if you are asked why, remind them of your original agreement to share the driving duties 50-50.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

IF FEBRUARY 20 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Make lasting improvements during the coming six months. Visualize good health and then get to work to make it a reality. April is a month when you will be more adept at business, finances and strategic planning, but late June and early July is the ideal time to execute your plans. You will be wiser than usual and will receive sound advice from mentors. If a new love interest has entered your life, then that is the perfect time to make a lasting commitment.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders
ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't sell yourself short. You are more than capable of doing the job and there's no reason that you shouldn't make sure that everyone knows it. It's not bragging if you can back it up with concrete results.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Broaden your horizons. Because there's only so far you can get on your charm and good looks, it may be time to learn a new skill. Keep your ears open and take advice from friends or colleagues to heart

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Bide your time. You may feel pressured to seal a deal quickly, but it may be to your advantage to wait until new information becomes available. Anything you may say about someone is likely to be repeated.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Rise to the challenge. A worthy opponent brings out the best in you and elevates you to the peak of your game. In amorous endeavors, you feel it is time to make a move, but may be better served by waiting.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You will need to think on your feet and make decisions quickly to see your way through the latest obstacle. Get ahead in the romance department by giving definitive answers rather than by skirting the truth.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Little things mean a lot. Paying attention to detail can save your bacon and prevent disaster. Don't let distractions divert your attention from the main goal. Follow through on promises.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can go your own way. It may be difficult to gather enthusiasm for a project, since you'll be on your own. If you choose to follow others, make sure they have somewhere to lead you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): There's a time and place for everything. Star-crossed schedules may have your partner feeling affectionate while you are battling a heavy workload. Be careful in deciding which path you consider the priority.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): When the cat's away, the mice will play. You'll be given a longer leash than usual and you'll be able to point your energies in any direction you choose. You'll be in your element in social situations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Money can't buy you love. Ideally, you could just settle an argument with a pricey gift but some situations require a more cerebral approach and a long discussion. Meet challenges head on.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Watch your step. Telling people what they want to hear may be construed as being on their side, so choose words carefully. This is a good time to spend some time walking in someone else's shoes.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Strive for success. Set your sights on achieving your goals today. Utilize your imagination and think outside the box to create something lasting. Time spent learning the latest gossip is time wasted.

Bruins’ Blue Crew: Decades of Dedication

Editor’s Note: This is the final edition of a series about the Magic Valley’s high school superfans. For five weeks, photographer Drew Nash talked to student supporters at schools in Twin Falls, Rupert, Burley and Jerome about why they love their schools and what they do to show it.

TWIN FALLS • From the Bleacher Bums of the ’80s to the present Blue Crew, Twin Falls students have displayed their dedication for generations. The Blue Crew sprung to life last year and has matured into a modern day pep club, boasting a large student section that pushes the limits.

“It gives kids a sense of belonging. They like being a part of what’s going on,” says Twin Falls Athletic Director Mike Federico.

When Federico mentions that the kids do a great job of supporting one another he’s not joking. With the boys basketball team still battling at home, the girls team and their fans found a way to make it back immediately after finishing their run at the state tournament in Meridian on Saturday to cheer on their counterparts.

Senior Hannah Meyerhoeffer says, “The Blue Crew isn’t something you can put into words. You go to the game, you know things are going to get rowdy. We’re going to be loud, we’re going to be obnoxious and some people don’t like that, but it’s part of our school spirit. We like to have fun with it. That’s what makes it high school.”

Feeding the Bruin beast comes easy these days. Senior Nathan Hoy says, “Yeah, we push the limits a little bit, but we just like to have fun and we

Bruins Capitalize on Second Chance, Eliminate Jerome

BY NICK RULAND

TWIN FALLS • The Jerome boys basketball season ended on a high note, while Twin Falls earned a state tournament berth and a rematch with Burley in the 4A District IV Tournament championship after eliminating the Tigers 64-45 on Thursday.

The Bruins’ Kade Meyerhoeffer scored 15 of his team-high 18 points and the team’s 18 points in the first quarter, asserting himself offensively as Alec Meyerhoeffer sat the first three minutes after being disciplined for receiving a technical foul in the Bruins recent loss against Burley.

“Coach wanted me to be more aggressive,” Kade Meyerhoeffer said.

Kade Meyerhoeffer knocked down four 3-pointers in the first quarter after opening the game with a steal and an old fashioned three-point play.

Butte County Clips Shoshone Boys for State Berth

BY RYAN HOWE

KIMBERLY • During his tenure as Richfield High’s girls basketball coach, Steve Kent got used to winning district championships and taking teams to state.

It’s a rare experience for his new team, but it’s something the Butte County boys could get used to.

The Pirates pulled away in the second half to beat Shoshone 48-43 Tuesday in the District IV-V-VI tournament championship game. According to Kent, it’s the first boys basketball district title in 30 years.

“It meant a lot to the community and the kids, because there’s been some really lean years there in boys basketball,” said Kent. “I got lucky to get this group.”

Garrett Sant scored 17 points and Edward Anguiano added 10 for Shoshone, but it wasn’t enough to keep up with the Isham duo of Hayden and Kyle.

Kyle Isham slashed Shoshone with his penetration and finished with 17 points. Big man Hayden Isham was a mismatch inside, scoring 16 points and grabbing a load of rebounds.

“Too much Hayden Isham inside,” said Shoshone coach Larry Messick. “We don’t do a very good job boxing out the boards and we can’t jump with those guys.”

Jazz Send Warriors to 6th-straight Loss, 115-101

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SALT LAKE CITY • Al Jefferson scored 24 points, Gordon Hayward added 17 in his return from a shoulder injury and the Utah Jazz defeated Golden State 115-101 Tuesday night to extend the Warriors' losing streak to six games.

Seven Jazz players scored in double figures, and Utah got 47 points from its reserves.

The Jazz made 10 of 21 3-pointers, including three by Randy Foye.

Stephen Curry led Golden State with 29 points, Jarrett Jack had 19 off the bench and David Lee contributed 18 on 9-of-13 shooting.

Lee's runner and Curry's fourth 3-pointer pulled the Warriors within 93-87 with 9:47 remaining.

That's as close as they would get.

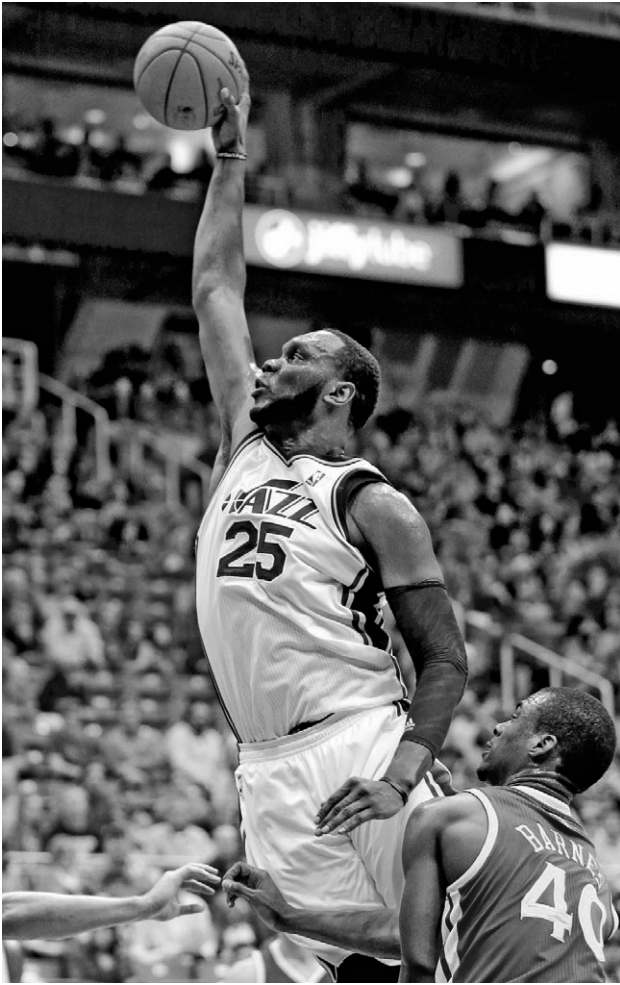

Paul Millsap's turnaround jumper ignited a 6-0 Utah run and the Jazz held the Warriors to 30 percent shooting in the fourth.

NETS 113, BUCKS 111
NEW YORK • Joe Johnson hit a tying 3-pointer in the closing seconds of the fourth quarter and then his buzzer-beating jumper at the end of overtime lifted the Brooklyn Nets to a 113-111 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks on Tuesday night.

Johnson finished with 24 points, and Brook Lopez and Deron Williams added 19 each as the Nets snapped a 13-game losing streak against the Bucks dating back to March 30, 2009.

Brandon Jennings scored 34 points to lead the Bucks. Ersan Ilyasova had 21 points, Monta Ellis added 18 and Larry Sanders 14.

Jennings saw his short jumper go in and out with 15 seconds left in overtime. After a Nets timeout, Johnson was intentionally fouled by Luc Mbah a Moute with 5 seconds left. The Nets in-bounded again and Johnson won the game with his foul line jumper over Mbah A Moute.

BULLS 96, HORNETS 87
NEW ORLEANS • Luol Deng scored 20 points and Chicago snapped a two-game skid.

The Bulls took the lead for good late in the first quarter, but didn't put the Hornets away until Deng's clutch jumper from the top of the key with 44.8 seconds left put Chicago up 94-87 after New Orleans had pulled within five points on Eric Gordon's 3-pointer.

Carlos Boozer added 17 points and 10 rebounds, and Joakim Noah had 15 points and 17 rebounds for Chicago, which outrebounded New Orleans 47-39 and had 15 second-chance points.

Gordon finished with 20 and Anthony Davis had 15 points and 10 rebounds for New Orleans, which saw its two-game winning streak snapped after committing nine of its 15 turnovers in the final quarter. Greivis Vasquez had 11 points and 10 assists.

GRIZZLIES 105, PISTONS 91
AUBURN HILLS, Mich. • Mike Conley scored 19 points, Zach Randolph had his 31st double-double and Memphis won its fourth straight game Tuesday night, 105-91 at Detroit. Randolph had 15 points and 10 rebounds and the Grizzlies rode a strong second half to win in both teams' first game since the All Star break.

Brandon Knight and Jonas Jerebko each scored 13 points and Jose Calderon added 10 points and seven assists for the Pistons, who have lost two of their last three at home.

The Grizzlies trailed by as many as 11 points in the first half, but ended it on a 23-3 run to lead 53-42 at intermission. The Pistons managed just one basket in the final eight minutes of the half and had twice as many turnovers as field goals (8-4) in the second quarter.

RAPTORS 96, WIZARDS 88
WASHINGTON • DeMar DeRozan and Rudy Gay scored 24 points apiece, and Toronto won a matchup between slow-starting, coming-on-lately teams.

Playing with an improvised scoreboard, horn, game clock and 24-second clock because of a malfunction in the scoring system, the Raptors took the lead for good in the second quarter and won their fifth straight game, putting them one victory shy of last season's total.

BOBCATS 105, MAGIC 92
ORLANDO, Fla. • Kemba Walker and Gerald Henderson each had 24 points, Byron Mullens added 20 points and 12 rebounds and Charlotte survived Orlando's second-half comeback.

Mullens has had at least 20 points and 10 rebounds in three of the Bobcats' last five games.

NUGGETS 97, CELTICS 90
DENVER • Danilo Gallinari and Ty Lawson each scored 26 points to help the Denver Nuggets snap a three-game losing streak by beating the Boston Celtics 97-90 Tuesday night.

No. 1 Indiana Beats No. 4 Michigan State 72-68

EAST LANSING, Mich. • Victor Oladipo shook off a sprained left ankle with a spectacular performance to lift top-ranked Indiana to a 72-68 win over No. 4 Michigan State on Tuesday night.

Oladipo's go-ahead putback, dunk and free throws in the final minute gave him 19 points to go along with nine rebounds, five steals and a block. Not bad for a guy who didn't play after halftime of his previous game, just three days earlier, because of the injury.

Hoosiers coach Tom Crean insisted that the junior shooting guard "wasn't even close" to 100-percent healthy.

"There's no doubt his foot hurt," Crean said. "That mind was right, and that was the biggest thing."

USOC Sounding Out 35 Cities for 2024 Olympic Bid

The U.S. Olympic Committee is looking for cities interested in bidding for the 2024 Summer Games.

The USOC sent letters to the mayors of 35 cities Tuesday to gauge interest in a potential bid to bring the Summer Olympics back to the country for the first time since 1996.

"Our objective in this process is to identify a partner city that can work with us to present a compelling bid to the IOC and that has the right alignment of political, business and community leadership," USOC CEO Scott Blackmun said in the letter.

Walter Johnson's Family Puts Items Up for Auction

WASHINGTON • The ticket is for Row 1, Section B, Seat 7 of the Lower Grand Stand at Griffith Stadium. Game 7 of the 1924 World Series. The perforations are still intact — it was never torn in two by a ticket-taker. It's the only one of its kind known to still exist.

It had been sitting for decades in one of 32 scrapbooks created by the wife of Walter Johnson, the Hall of Fame icon who on Oct. 10, 1924, was the winning pitcher for the Washington Senators in a 12-inning classic against the New York Giants. The victory gave the nation's capital its only World Series title to date.

"My theory is that the ticket was hers and she walked in with him. Who's going to ask her for her ticket? She's Walter Johnson's wife," said Hank Thomas, Johnson's grandson. "She just walked into the stadium and never had to use her ticket. She brought it back and put it in the scrapbook."

Floyd Mayweather Jr. to Fight Guerrero on Showtime

Floyd Mayweather Jr. will fight Robert Guerrero on May 4, and he's changing television networks to do it.

The biggest star in boxing dropped a surprise Tuesday while announcing his long-rumored next bout: After several years on HBO, Mayweather is moving to Showtime with a lucrative multi-fight deal.

Mayweather's move is a coup for Showtime, the CBS-owned network that has always trailed behind HBO in boxing prominence. Mayweather (43-0, 26 KOs) is the sport's biggest moneymaker, and his new revenue-sharing deal with Showtime could include up to six pay-per-view fights over 30 months.

Riveron Promoted to Officiating Director

NEW YORK • The NFL has promoted Alberto Riveron, the league's first Hispanic referee, to senior director of officiating.

Riveron was born in Cuba and moved to Miami with his family at age 5. He became a referee in 2008 after serving four seasons as a side judge.

The 52-year-old Riveron takes the newly created position as second in command of the department under new vice president of officiating Dean Blandino.

the first half to take a 26-24 lead. But the shooting percentage dropped off in the second half.

"We tell them at halftime, now you've got to find your legs," said Messick. "Your legs are there in the first quarter, but then after that you have to come off of screens and get separation between you and the defense. I thought in the second half, too many hurried shots and too many off-balanced shots."

Butte County extended its matchup zone defense and harassed Shoshone on the perimeter. Meanwhile on the other end, Shoshone gave up too many offensive rebounds, especially in key situations.

After the Pirates extended a nine-point lead midway through the fourth quarter, Shoshone's Trey Waite and Anguiano buried 3-pointers on back-to-back possessions. Later, with 1:55 remaining, Sant's offensive rebound and put-back made it a one-point game, 44-43.

But Shoshone couldn't get a shot to fall after that, and Hayden Isham dominated the final 90 seconds on the boards, as well as scoring the Pirates' final four points.

"Shoshone's a good team," Kent said. "I thought all along they were the second best team. They've proven that to us both times they played us."

Butte County (22-1), which hasn't lost since November, advances to the Class 1A_I state tournament, Feb. 28-March 2 at Vallivue High School in Caldwell.

Shoshone (13-10) will play Grace for second place and a state berth at 7 p.m. today, also at Kimberly.

seven 3-pointers — the Tigers could have been positioned to win the game.

Jerome generated more inside shots and even missed a number of chip-shots at the basket. But those playing in their last high school games — Will Hope, Simon Espinoza, Corey Smith, Eric Gratzner, and Morgan Bowman — scored 41 of the team's 45 points. Espinoza and Hope combined for 28.

After Espinoza made a running jumper and Smith followed it with a drive in the third quarter, cutting the lead to seven, the Bruins took the air out of the ball and the energy out of the building with a nearly-three-minute possession, just as it seemed the momentum was swinging heavily in the Tigers favor.

While not a fan favorite, Harr's strategy worked, as the Bruins went on to outscore the Tigers by 12 the rest of the way.

"Our kids played really hard tonight," Jerome head coach Joe Messick said. "I felt we had a fantastic season. Our kids improved a lot over the year and we won 14 games."

The Bruins iced the game behind a junior varsity call-up, sophomore Braden Stutzman, who scored 10 of his 12 points in the fourth quarter, making all five of shots in the game.

"The kid has no fear," Kade Meyerhoeffler said. "He's really good."

Stutzman is just one more weapon Burley and the Bruins' state tournament opponent(s) will have to worry about.

"He is a very focused kid," Harr said. "I was kind of worried to have a sophomore in that situation, but he just played the game and did what he was asked. He is a good athlete and I didn't think the pressure would get to him."

Harr and his players said after the game that they'll need to improve their transition offense and defense to

If the team happens to come out a little flat Hoy and the crew know they have to pick up the slack. Between their over-the-top clothing choices and obnoxious chants — not to mention the sheer volume they bring to the house — the Blue Crew has plenty of weapons to keep opposing fan sections at bay.

Established in 1907, Twin Falls High School has continued to build successful programs that have enriched the lives of students for more than a century.

"Win or lose we're still proud to be Bruins," says Hoy.
