A Simple Step to Secure 2 Schools:

ADD DOORS

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Inside Mountain View Elementary School, the classrooms have gained doors.

And doors will start appearing in Declo Elementary School during spring break.

The projects are a simple step meant to improve student safety. Both schools were constructed in the 1970s with an open-classroom design.

"As school emergencies have occurred across the country, it's become very apparent that being able to secure students within a classroom behind a locked door is one of the preventative measures we can take as a district, and yet we have two schools without walls and doors," said Gaylen Smyer, superintendent of the Cassia County School District.

Mountain View Principal Delia Valdez said 10 donated doors have been installed at the school so far. Seven rooms still need doors.

"We decided to put the doors that were donated on classrooms nearest the exits for safety reasons," Valdez said.

Nikki Beck, president of Mountain View's parent-teacher organization, said after the Dec. 14 school shootings in Newtown, Conn., she was compelled

Xavier's Plan to Stay Open Passes Review

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • It's official: Xavier Charter School will stay open.

Earlier this week, school officials announced a deal with their landlord needed to prevent the Twin Falls school's closure at the end of the school year. Friday morning was the last step in that deal. The Idaho Public Charter School Commission met in Boise to discuss Xavier's status.

"It was basically a formality," said Commission Director Tamara Baysinger. "This was a chance for Xavier to let the commission know what agreement was reached. We weren't in a position to decide if the school would remain open last time we met because they were still working on trying to reach an agreement."

Xavier officials announced to around 100 people at a public meeting Tuesday night that the school had reached an agreement on rental fees with its landlord, Twin Falls School Development LLC, for the next three years. The parties agree that Xavier will pay the development company $480,000 a year for the next three years — down from the original price of $809,000, Head of Schools Thad Biggers told the Times-News — with the intention of Xavier to purchase the building in that time.

"This is the culmination of a lot of hours by school administration, stakeholders and the landlord," he

Digital Mammography Up and Running in Jerome

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

JEROME • St. Luke's Jerome now has digital mammography, allowing patients access to the latest screening technology without driving to Twin Falls.

The new mammography unit has been up and running since Feb. 6.

Curtis Maier, administrative director for St. Luke's Jerome, said it's the same technology that's used in other facilities within the St. Luke's Health System.

Dr. Michael Dixon, a radiologist, said digital mammography is a big deal for Jerome.

"It brings Jerome into state-of-the-art mammography," he said.

The nearly $400,000 project was funded through a three-way partnership.

St. Benedict's Health Foundation donated $200,000, while St. Luke's Magic Valley Health Foundation contributed $50,000. St. Luke's Health System covered the rest of the cost.

The new equipment has been well received, he said, and the digital mammography suite has been busy over the past couple of weeks.

With the new technology, patients can expect the breast cancer screening process to go faster.

Dow Bounces from 2-day Slide to a 3-digit Gain

NEW YORK (AP) • Strong earnings from big U.S. companies pushed the Dow Jones industrial average to a rare triple-digit gain Friday, but the S&P 500 index still posted its first weekly loss of the year.

Hewlett-Packard had the biggest gain in the Dow and the Standard & Poor's 500 index. It posted fiscal first-quarter earnings late Thursday that beat all forecasts, a relief after months of bad news for the computer maker. H-P rose $2.10, or 12.3 percent, to $19.20.

Cabot Oil & Gas Corp. was the S&P 500's second-best performer, jumping a day after reporting earnings that beat analysts' expectations. It rose $5.95, or 11.1 percent, to $59.81.

American International Group Inc. rose after its fourth-quarter operating results exceeded analysts' forecasts. The company's net loss was $4 billion, mainly because of claims related to Superstorm Sandy, in the first full quarter after it finished repaying its $182 billion government bailout. AIG rose $1.17, or 3.1 percent, to $38.45.

Strong Gusty Winds and Snow

A cold front associated with an unusually strong winter Pacific storm moved through during the early morning hours. Snow and strong gusty winds have been associated with this system. When all is said and done, some places could see three to six inches of snow in the valleys and six to 12 inches as you go south of U.S. Highway 30 into the South Hills.

Our weather for most of today will be on the strong gusty winds. There are wind advisories in place for Gooding, Jerome and Twin Falls counties. Sustained winds this afternoon and evening will be out of the west-northwest between 25 to 35 mph. Some of the gusts during this time could reach 45 to 55 mph, with up to 60 mph in a few isolated locations in the South Hills. With strong winds and snow showers, blowing and drifting snow and white-out conditions are likely across all of the Magic Valley.

It will remain a little breezy on Sunday, but the winds won't be as strong. High temperatures in the afternoon will reach the mid- to upper- 30s. Most of the day will feature partly sunny skies. On Monday, another quick moving system moves in across Idaho late in the day into Monday night. It won't be as strong as today's storm, but could put down a quick coating to maybe three inches of snow.

T.F. Wastewater Committee Closer to Proposal

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Twin Falls advisory committee has just a week to finalize its recommendation on how to upgrade the city's wastewater facility if it wants to get the money approved during the May election.

The 37-member committee decided Friday to recommend a revenue bond to fund the proposed $32 million project.

The money is needed to upgrade and expand the city's wastewater treatment facility because it is almost at capacity. The committee has yet to finalize the details about the bond amount and how long the city should take on the debt.

During Friday's meeting, several committee members urged the group to get the bond on the May ballot. To do so, the committee must submit its final recommendations to the City Council by March 4, said Travis Rothweiler, Twin Falls city manager.

"I won't have a full council on March 18, which is the deadline for the May election," he said. "And I believe the council will want time to discuss this for more than just one night."

While the committee approved the type of bond, it still needs to figure out if the city will take on the debt for 20 or 25 years. The different lengths of time will determine the amount of interest and how much residential and commercial user rates go up.

"Twenty years works because in 20 years, we'll be having this discussion again," said Jackie Fields, city engineer. "It would be nice not to worry about the debt from the previous bond."

The current project proposal would almost double capacity at the wastewater plant, according to a 20-year plan proposal. This would most likely result in an almost 30 percent rate increase. For residential users, rates would increase between $6.50 and $7.50 per month.

The committee plans to meet twice next week before submitting its proposal to the council, said Christopher Reid, one of the committee's chairmen.

ASK ST. LUKE'S

How Much Time Should Children Spend in Front of a Computer?

I have two children, a daughter who is 11 and a son who is 15. What are things that I can do to keep my kids safe while using the Internet and how much time should they be spending in front of a computer screen per day?

— Julie, Twin Falls

Answered by Dr. Kathryn Reese, St. Luke's Clinic, Pediatrics:

Here are a couple of general thoughts in regard to computer and Internet safety.

One of the more important things you can do at home is to make sure your children are using their computer in a public place, like the family room or perhaps the kitchen. Even if teens are doing research for homework, innocent online searches can lead to sites that aren't appropriate for them. It is also possible for viruses to be downloaded to your computer just by closing a screen that may inadvertently pop up with a search that wasn't intended. That is why the public area for teen computer use is important for parents; they can help monitor a potentially dangerous or inappropriate situation.

If your child uses social media or does a lot of online gaming, it's beneficial for parents to have access to their children's usernames and passwords. It is essential to know who your child is interacting with, either on social media sites or gaming sites. There are a lot of conversations that go on while your child is online — perhaps even with a video link — so help your child understand the importance of only interacting with people they and you have actually met in person. Befriending friends of friends is not a good idea, again, unless you have physically met them. There are many predators in the virtual world who pose as teenagers and can befriend your child.

Children should limit their video use to no more than three hours a day, which includes TV, homework on the computer, gaming — anything where you are looking at a screen. Spend some time with your child that does not include TV or Internet use — take a walk with the dog, go on a hike, get outdoors. It's a great way to continue to bond with your child, even in the teenage years.

Establishing ground rules for computer and gaming use early on with your pre-teens and teenagers is a great way to be clear about expectations and can save many arguments in the future.

Hearing Continued for T.F. Attorney

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A hearing has been continued to March 15 for a Twin Falls attorney accused of involving a gun in a July confrontation.

Joseph Rockstahl was charged in November with three misdemeanors: weapon exhibition or use of a deadly weapon, aiming a weapon at others and disturbing the peace.

He pleaded not guilty to all three charges.

A motion to dismiss the case was filed Jan. 31. A hearing was originally scheduled for Friday, Feb. 22.

The hearing is now scheduled for 3:30 p.m. March 15.

On July 2, Twin Falls police responded to the 2200 block of Nisqually Street in Twin Falls for a call about a man with a gun.

According to the report, Rockstahl said he and his wife were having a couple of drinks outside and were upset about the noise coming from a construction site two houses down the road.

The report states Rockstahl said his wife walked down to complain about the noise and spoke with the three men working at the site. She later returned to the site to complain about the noise again.

In his statement to police, Rockstahl wrote he heard yelling coming from the site. He wrote he grabbed a 9 mm pistol, tucking it under his arm, because he believed he would be outnumbered by the construction workers.

According to the report, Rockstahl said he pointed the gun at the ground but could not chamber a round in the gun because of surgery on his wrist.

Bill Adding Exchange Oversight Delayed

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • A House committee has rescheduled the hearing for a bill intended to give a proposed state health insurance exchange more legislative oversight.

The main legislation creating the exchange — an aspect of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act — will now head to the House after it passed the Idaho Senate 23-12 on Thursday. Now, a Monday public hearing in the House Health and Welfare Committee for the trailer bill — House Bill 179 — has been rescheduled.

Rep. Fred Wood, R-Burley and House Health and Welfare chairman, said he was asked by leadership to hold off on hearing the bill, which was introduced by freshman legislator Rep. Luke Malek, R-Coeur d'Alene, and supported by a coalition of 16 freshmen Republicans.

Wood didn't know why he was asked to reschedule the hearing, but said the bill isn't dead.

"I was just asked to hold it for a day or two," Wood said.

Speaker of the House Scott Bedke, R-Oakley, reiterated the bill isn't dead. Rather, the House wants to examine whether they should combine the two bills into one or leave the trailer bill alone while looking at other potential additions to the exchange. That takes a balancing act of being respectful to the author of the original bill — Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter — while listening to the wishes of the his caucus, he said.

Rep. Steve Miller, R-Fairfield and one of the freshmen who supported the trailer bill, said he's OK with tweaking it as long as its original intent stays intact. He added that he wouldn't mind additional protections for the state in the final draft.

Second Suspect to Change Plea in Sexual Abuse Case

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismsmith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Hansen woman accused along with a Jerome man of abusing a child for several years is scheduled to change her plea to guilty in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

Kandi Gay Mohr, 45, and David Michael Meyers, 45, were both charged with several counts of offenses related to sexual abuse.

Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies say the two repeatedly molested a young child for several years, starting when the child was about 2 years old. The child is now about 11.

Mohr is scheduled to change her plea on Monday, Feb. 24. A trial was scheduled to begin on Feb. 25.

Mohr faces two counts of sexual abuse of a minor under 16, two counts of lewd conduct with a minor under 16 and one count of injury to a child.

Meyers reached a plea deal with prosecutors in January. He pleaded guilty to one count of lewd conduct with a child under 16 and three counts of possessing or accessing child pornography. In turn, prosecutors dismissed another count of lewd conduct, another six counts of child pornography and one count of sexual abuse of a child under 16. He's scheduled to be sentenced March 18.

According to court records, Twin Falls County sheriff's detectives spoke with FBI agents and Jerome city police detectives about a case of lewd conduct with a minor they believed happened in Hansen. The FBI agents explained a detective from the Metropolitan Police Department in Washington D.C. was working undercover in a multi-jurisdictional child exploitation task force and was in-involved in a Yahoo Internet chat session with a Jerome man later identified as Meyers.

Two other men were also charged in connection with the case.

Bruce Wayne Slater, 48, was allegedly seen in an inappropriate picture with a young child found on Mohr's phone. He was charged with a count of lewd conduct with a minor under 16 and a count of willfully possessing or accessing child pornography.

According to online court records, Slater was found guilty of both charges after a short jury trial Thursday, Feb. 21. He's scheduled to be sentenced on April 15.

Bruce Lowell Wilson was charged with four counts of possession of child pornography in connection to the case, but all four charges were dropped after a preliminary hearing in November.

Fire Damages Oakley Barn

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

OAKLEY • Firefighters were called Thursday to put out a fire that broke out in an Oakley barn used for calving earlier in the day.

No one was injured and the calves had been moved out of the shed before the fire occurred.

Oakley Fire Chief Harlo Clark said the cause of the fire remained under investigation on Friday.

Clark said the barn is located at 2000 S. 24 E. and belongs to Jerry Marchant. Firefighters received the call at 5:54 p.m.

Clark said the barn is located 25 and 50 yards from two homes. Firefighters were able to contain the blaze in the barn and neither home was damaged.

The wooden roof of the barn was completely destroyed, as was the north wall of the structure.

The Burley Fire Department was called to assist the Oakley crew.

Before, it used to take about 30 minutes to complete a mammogram. Now, it takes 15 minutes or less.

Dixon said the procedure for a mammogram is pretty much the same, but the machine is newer and smoother.

The feedback from patients is that it feels better, he said.

Digital mammography technology at St. Luke's Jerome also allows radiologists to read images every day instead of twice a week.

That means patients get results back sooner.

Mammogram images used to be taken using film. Once images were taken, a piece of film would be taken to a darkroom to be developed.

Dixon said large, national randomized clinical studies in 2005 and 2006 looked at how the quality of digital mammography compared with film.

After that, medical centers began converting to digital mammography.

The technology allows radiologists to adjust images using a computer. They'll also be able to access archived digital images from a patient's past mammograms.

For patients, Dixon said digital mammography provides a clinical benefit for women who have dense breast tissue.

Mammography isn't perfect and can't detect all cancers, he said. But Dixon said it has a definite benefit and has been shown to reduce mortality rates.

There has been a lot of discussion on a nationwide level about mammograms, he said, such as how often women should receive one and at what age.

Dixon said he supports recommendations that women should receive a mammogram every year starting at age 40.

Idaho has the lowest mammography rate in the country.

Some local programs — such as through the South Central Public Health District and St. Luke's Magic Valley Health Foundation — offer financial assistance to help cover the cost for women who meet eligibility requirements.

"Safety is at the top of our minds in the PTO. It's all about the safety for our children," Beck said.

The open classrooms were constructed under the premise that teachers could more easily team-teach and move from area to area rather than have the students change classrooms.

"The concept didn't really work for long and soon they started trying to partition themselves off from other classrooms," said Smyer.

Bookshelves and dividers were added to close in the classrooms, but there was no way to add doors to the divided spaces.

Smyer said after the Sandy Hook Elementary School incident, the district had Cassia County sheriff's deputies walk through the district's buildings and make safety recommendations.

"Although we don't have walls, the police said the barriers were still sufficient to separate an aggressor from that classroom of students if there was a door," Smyer said.

Ten doors were donated to Mountain View by the Unity Church of Latter-day Saints after the church was remodeled, Smyer said.

The school district hired a carpenter to frame the door jambs and exterior walls, put in sheetrock and paint.

"I can't believe how quiet it is now when you walk down the halls, and the teachers say their classes have bonded more since the doors were added," Beck said.

Valdez said she expects the remaining classrooms to get doors before spring break.

Declo Elementary is already on a list of buildings that the district believes need replaced.

In 2007, the district hired an engineer to compile a list of projects in the district in preparation for a construction bond issue that voters rejected.

"He told us it was better to tear down the Declo school and start over," Smyer said.

The district has tried to make repairs to buildings that need to be replaced without putting too much money into them, he said.

"As these school emergencies have occurred, I'm glad they haven't happened here. But they have occurred elsewhere, and that means that were vulnerable also," he said.

"So the safety issues became a priority."

said. "We're pleased to reach an agreement that is fiscally viable for us and the landlord to work together."

Xavier has struggled financially for months and feared closing if an agreement was not reached. A key to the agreement is the ability to purchase the building, Biggers said.

The school plans to pursue fundraising opportunities, beginning March 16 with a breakfast at the school.

"We are just thrilled they managed to work this out," Baysinger said. "Xavier is a high-achievement school and a good thing for the community."

South Korean protesters stand under a banner showing North Korean leader Kim Jong Un depicted as a pig during an anti-North Korea rally in Seoul on Friday to denounce North Korea's nuclear test.

OBAMA, JAPAN'S PM SIGNAL SOLIDARITY ON N. KOREA

WASHINGTON (AP) • Signaling solidarity, President Barack Obama and Japan's new prime minister said Friday that North Korea's recent nuclear provocations would not be tolerated and pledged to seek strong action against the isolated nation.

Following an Oval Office meeting, Obama said he and Prime Minister Shinzo Abe were united in their "determination to takes strong actions" in response to North Korea's nuclear test launch earlier this month.

Abe, speaking through a translator, said the two leaders have agreed to deal "resolutely" with North Korea.

"We just cannot tolerate the actions of North Korea, such as launching missiles and conducting nuclear tests," said Abe, adding that the two leaders also agreed to push for tougher U.N. Security Council sanctions against North Korea.

Other regional tensions in Asia served as the backdrop for Friday's meetings, most notably Japan's dispute with China over the Japanese-administered Senkaku islands.

The dispute flared after Tokyo nationalized some of the islands in September. China also claims the tiny islands, which it calls Diaoyu. It has stepped up patrols into what Japan considers its territorial waters, heightening concern that a conflict could be sparked. The tensions highlight the rivalry between China, the world's second-largest economy, and Japan, which is the third. Tokyo accused China last month of locking weapons-guiding radar on a Japanese destroyer and a helicopter, in what it viewed as a dangerous escalation. Beijing accused Tokyo of fabricating the reports to smear China.

The U.S. has treaty obligations to help Japan in the event of a conflict, obligations Abe said were a stabilizing factor in ensuring peace and stability in the region. He pledged that Japan would continue to deal with the China dispute in a calm manner. Abe is the latest in a revolving door of Japanese prime ministers, underscoring the Asian nation's prolonged economic malaise. He is the fifth prime minister since Obama took office. Friday's meeting was an opportunity for the U.S. to gauge Tokyo's intent to join negotiations on the Trans-Pacific Partnership, a nationwide free trade pact being pushed by Washington. Abe held back from such a commitment, which is opposed by most of his party and Japan's small but politically powerful farming lobby, at least until after key elections in July for the upper house.

In a joint statement following the meeting, the two leaders agreed to continue their talks about Japan's "possible interest" in joining the trade pact, known as the TPP. But they agreed that concerns remained, particularly with respect to the automotive and insurance sectors.

The newly elected Japanese leader is a nationalist and a keen advocate of stronger relations with Washington, which have assumed more importance for Tokyo. It has locked horns in recent months with emerging power China over the control of unoccupied islands in the resource-rich seas between them.

SOME PATIENTS WON'T SEE NURSES OF DIFFERENT RACE

DETROIT (AP) • It's been called one of medicine's "open secrets" — allowing patients to refuse treatment by a doctor or nurse of another race.

In the latest example, a white man with a swastika tattoo insisted that black nurses not be allowed to touch his newborn. Now two black nurses are suing the hospital, claiming it bowed to his illegal demands. NATO, US to Keep 12,000 Troops in Afghanistan after Combat

WASHINGTON (AP) • The U.S. and its NATO allies revealed Friday they may keep as many as 12,000 troops in Afghanistan after the combat mission ends next year, largely American forces tasked with hunting down remnants of al-Qaida and helping Afghan forces with their own security.

Patience with the 11-year-old war has grown thin in the U.S. and Europe, yet Washington and its allies feel they cannot pick up and leave without risking a repeat of events in Afghanistan after Soviet troops withdrew in 1989: Attention turned elsewhere, the Taliban grabbed power and al-Qaida found refuge.

In disclosing that he and his NATO counterparts were discussing a residual force of between 8,000 and 12,000 troops in Afghanistan beyond 2014, Defense Secretary Leon Panetta said most allied defense ministers assured him they are committed to remaining part of a U.S.-led coalition.

"I feel very confident that we are going to get a number of nations to make that contribution for the enduring presence," Panetta told a news conference at NATO headquarters in Brussels at the conclusion of a defense ministers meeting.

The U.S. and its allies have managed to stick together throughout the war, despite differing views. The Europeans have seen the military mission as mainly aimed at promoting stable governance; the Americans have viewed it as mainly combat. Some allies, including France, have already pulled out their combat troops.

The Obama administration has not said how many troops or diplomats it intends to keep in Afghanistan after 2014; it is in the early stages of negotiating a bilateral security agreement with Kabul that would set the legal parameters. There currently are 66,000 U.S. troops in Afghanistan, down from a 2010 peak of 100,000.

In addition to targeting terrorists, the post-2014 missions are expected to be defined as training and advising a still-developing Afghan army and police force and providing security for the U.S. and allied civilian and military presence, officials said.

The largely unspoken assumption on which the post-2014 plan is built is that Afghanistan's own forces will be strong enough to hold off the Taliban on their own starting in 2015 and to prevent the country's relapse into civil war. The worry is that if the Taliban regained power they would allow al-Qaida to return in large numbers, defeating the original purpose of the U.S. military action in 2001.

Budget pressures in the U.S. and Europe also complicate the outlook.

"There's no question in the current budget environment, with deep cuts in European defense spending and the kind of political gridlock that we see in the United States now with regards to our own budget, is putting at risk our ability to effectively act together," Panetta said. "As I prepare to step down as secretary of defense, I do fear that the alliance will soon be, if it is not already, stretched too thin."

National Park Cuts Detailed in Memo

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) • The towering giant sequoias at Yosemite National Park would go unprotected from visitors who might trample their shallow roots. At Cape Cod National Seashore, large sections of the Great Beach would close to keep eggs from being destroyed if natural resource managers are cut.

Gettysburg would decrease by one-fifth the numbers of school children who learn about the historic Pennsylvania battle that was a turning point in the Civil War.

As America's financial clock ticks toward forced spending cuts to countless government agencies, The Associated Press has obtained a National Park Service memo that compiles a list of potential effects at the nation's most beautiful and historic places just as spring vacation season begins.

"We're planning for this to happen and hoping that it doesn't," said Park Service spokesman Jeffrey Olson, who confirmed that the list is authentic and represents cuts the department is considering.

Park Service Director Jon Jarvis last month asked superintendents to show by Feb. 11 how they would absorb the 5 percent funding cuts. The memo includes some of those decisions.

While not all 398 parks had submitted plans by the time the memo was written, a pattern of deep slashes that could harm resources and provide fewer protections for visitors has emerged.

In Yosemite National Park in California, for example, park administrators fear that less frequent trash pickup would potentially attract bears into campgrounds.

The cuts will be challenging considering they would be implemented over the next seven months — peak season for national parks. That's especially true in Yellowstone, where the summertime crush of millions of visitors in cars and RVs dwarfs those who venture into the park on snowmobiles during the winter.

More than 3 million people typically visit Yellowstone between May and September, 10 times as many as the park gets the rest of the year.

"This is a big, complex park, and we provide a lot of services that people don't realize," Yellowstone spokesman Al Nash said. "They don't realize we're also the water and wastewater treatment operators and that it's our job to patch potholes, for heaven's sake."

The memo says that in anticipation of the cuts, a hiring freeze is in place and the furloughing of permanent staff is on the table.

"Clear patterns are starting to emerge," the memo said. "In general, parks have very limited financial flexibility to respond to a 5 percent cut in operations."

Most of the Park Service's $2.9 billion budget is for permanent spending such as staff salaries, fuel, utilities and rent payments. Superintendents can use about 10 percent of their budgets on discretionary spending for things ranging from interpretive programs to historic-artifact maintenance to trail repair, and they would lose half of that to the 5 percent cuts.

"There's no fat left to trim in the Park Service budget," said John Garder of the non-profit parks advocacy group the National Park Conservation Association. "In the scope of a year of federal spending, these cuts would be permanently damaging and save 15 minutes of spending."

For years Congress has been cutting funding to the National Park Service, and in today's dollars it is 15 percent less than a decade ago, said Garder, who is the nonprofit's budget and appropriations legislative representative in Washington, D.C. Park spending amounts to one-fourteenth of 1 percent of the federal budget, he said.

One in five international tourists visits one of America's 398 national parks, research shows, and the parks are one-third of the top 25 domestic travel destinations. If the cuts go through, the memo shows national parks will notice fewer services, shorter hours and the placing of some sensitive areas completely off-limits to visitors when there are too few staff members to protect resources.

Mont. Quarterback's Police Interview Played

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) • Former University of Montana quarterback Jordan Johnson told police in a May interview he could never rape anyone and wasn't raised to be that way.

District Court jurors hearing the case against Johnson watched video of his police interview Thursday and again on Friday. In it, Johnson said the woman was enjoying their sexual encounter and that he would have stopped if she had asked him to.

"Why would I ever do something like this? I wouldn't," Johnson said.

He said he was quiet afterward because he felt guilty about having sex with one woman while being involved with another.

He is charged with sexual intercourse without consent for the Feb. 4, 2012, encounter.

"Looking back on it, I wish I'd have handled it differently," he said. "I feel bad her feelings have been hurt like this, given that it didn't happen the way she says it did."

In part of the interview shown Friday morning, Johnson broke down crying when a detective told Johnson that a rape charge could ruin his plans to teach math and coach football. He said he didn't care about that and just wanted to be a normal kid.

An expert witness testifying for the defense Friday told jurors that he reviewed records in the case and found no medical evidence of non-consensual sex.

Dr. Theodore Hariton of Tucson, Ariz., was allowed to testify, along with a character witness for Johnson, because they had traveled from out-of-state.

ONLINE: Covering the Robert Brackets Trial

Times-News criminal justice reporter Alison Smith blogs about court and crime news at "Scanner Traffic." Here's an excerpt from her latest post:

"...This means Brackett himself filed motions with judges, argued with prosecutors in court and called and questioned witnesses throughout the trial.

"When I heard the the trial was scheduled through last a week, I knew it was most likely an underestimation of what would actually come to pass, but I don't think anyone realized the trial would last more than three weeks, Jan. 29 to Feb. 20.

"In the halls of the courthouse, judges, court staff, public defenders and expensive private attorneys alike could be heard wondering how long the trial would go on, if the jury was bored, how the prosecutor was holding up and what Brackett would say next, as the trial dragged on.

"During the trial, 5th District Judge Michael Crabtree repeatedly reprimanded Brackett for talking out of turn, muttering under his breath and trying to get in evidence that was specifically blocked from the trial in earlier hearings for being irrelevant..."

Sen. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., right, tours a facility to treat contaminated groundwater with Energy Department manager Matt McCormick on Tuesday on the Hanford nuclear reservation near Richland, Wash.

6 UNDERGROUND HANFORD NUCLEAR TANKS LEAKING

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP) • Six underground radioactive waste tanks at the nation's most contaminated nuclear site are leaking, Gov. Jay Inslee said Friday.

Inslee made the announcement after meeting with federal officials in Washington, D.C. Last week it was revealed that one of the 177 tanks at south-central Washington's Hanford Nuclear Reservation was leaking liquids. Inslee called the latest news "disturbing."

The tanks, which already are long past their intended 20-year life span, hold millions of gallons of a highly radioactive stew left from decades of plutonium production for nuclear weapons.

The U.S. Department of Energy said earlier that liquid levels were decreasing in one of the tanks at the site. Monitoring wells near the tank have not detected higher radiation levels.

The federal government created Hanford in the 1940s as part of the top-secret Manhattan Project to build the atomic bomb. The government spends $2 billion each year on Hanford cleanup — one-third of its entire budget for nuclear cleanup nationally. The cleanup is expected to last decades.

Central to cleanup is the construction of a plant to convert millions of gallons of waste into glasslike logs for safe, secure storage. The $12.3 billion plant is billions of dollars over budget and behind schedule.

Inslee and Oregon Gov. John Kitzhaber have championed building additional tanks to ensure safe storage of the waste until the plant is completed. Democratic Sen. Ron Wyden of Oregon said earlier this week that he shares their concerns about the integrity of the tanks, but that he wants more scientific information to determine it's the correct way to spend scarce money.

Wyden noted the nation's most contaminated nuclear site — and the challenges associated with ridding it of its toxic legacy — will be a subject of upcoming hearings and a higher priority in Washington, D.C.

Mormons Open 58 New Missions

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • The Mormon church is creating 58 new missions around the world to accommodate an influx of missionaries triggered by the lowering of the minimum age.

Church leaders said in an Friday that the missions redistribute missionaries within states and countries where The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is already proselytizing.

Each mission usually has 150-250 missionaries. There are now 405 missions worldwide.

The list of new missions includes eight in Mexico and seven in Brazil. There are two in Arizona: in Gilbert and Scottsdale. There is one in Salt Lake City.

LDS leaders lowered of the minimum age for missionaries from 21 to 19 for women and from 19 to 18 for men.

MONTANA SENATE BACKS
BIG SCHOOL FUNDING BILL

HELENA, Mont. (AP) • The state Senate on Friday endorsed a revamp of education funding that both increases school money and cuts property taxes — handing a defeat to conservative Republican leaders in the chamber who fought to undermine the measure.

Senate Bill 175 relies on an influx of natural resource revenue as it provides revenue sought by school officials, while also providing some relief for homeowners.

It would increase school funding about $100 million over the next two years, and reduce property taxes used in school funding by close to $50 million. Many districts now complain that they are burdened with oppressive local school levies, and supported the proposed relief.

State Sen. Llew Jones, of Conrad, spent two years drafting the measure with the help of school officials and ultimately, drew a broad coalition of support for his plan.

The measure was backed in a 33-16 initial vote Friday with support from almost half of the chamber's Republicans and all its Democrats. It is seen as a proposal coming from the ideological middle, led by Jones who is known as a pragmatic policy wonk in a place that often rewards political firebrands.

Buhl's Mejia Avoids Disaster, Others Coast in 3A Prelims

BY RYAN HOWE
 rhowe@magicvalley.com

POCATELLO • At the state wrestling tournament, one tiny mistake can cost you everything.

Buhl senior Stephen Mejia almost learned that lesson the hard way.

With an 8-1 lead over Snake River's Cash Cardona in the third period of their 160-pound Class 3A quarterfinal match, Mejia momentarily got caught out of position. Cardona pounced, and put Mejia on his back.

"It was my own stupid fault. I left my elbow up for a split second and he caught it," Mejia said. Mejia narrowly avoided getting pinned and was eventually able to reverse Cardona and pin him.

But for Mejia, the No. 1-seeded wrestler in his bracket, the near-upset was an eye-opener. He will try to shake it off and refocus his mindset as he heads into today's semifinals against Jovan Cornejo of Homedale.

CSI, North Idaho Women Tangle for SWAC Title

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The first win was hard enough. The next one is for the No. 1 seed in the Region 18 tournament.

The No. 17 College of Southern Idaho women's basketball season finishes up regular season play today, hosting No. 4 North Idaho.

A win and the Golden Eagles tie for the Scenic West Athletic Conference crown, winning the tiebreaker for the regional tournament.

It's a long way from 6-9.

"It's would obviously be good for the program," head coach Randy Rogers said. "It's been four years since we've won the conference championship. From where we came early in the year it would be great."

After losing at home to the Cardinals 60-42 in mid January, the Golden Eagles stunned North Idaho at home in their last match-up, shooting 47 percent from the field in the 70-68 upset.

Rogers and his players don't think they can rely on another hot shooting performance to beat the Cardinals a second time.

"We are talking about a top five team," Rogers said. "They are better than us at every position. We're going to have to make special plays in special moments."

Julia Dufurrena had a double-double in the team's most recent game, a 69-66 overtime win on the road against Snow College.

As the Golden Eagles spent the majority of the last hour of Wednesday's practice going through end-of-game scenarios, Dufurrena was hoisting up imagined last-second shots. But against the Cardinals, stops are the focus, not shots.

"It's crazy to think of how far we have come and that we have this opportunity," Dufurrena said. "We're going to have to play really good defense, and box out. They are big, strong and want to win. They have big desire. We have to match that."

Had the men's team played No. 7 Salt Lake Community College in a 37-minute game last week, CSI would have perhaps had the momentum producing road win it needed as it prepares for the Region 18 tournament.

Up one with three minutes left, the Golden Eagles were outscored by 11, much caused by fouls and quick offensive possessions trying to lengthen the game against the conference champion Bruins, to no avail.

Now, after falling flat against Snow, CSI has one game left, against SWAC's second best team, North Idaho, one CSI has lost two games to, including a 51-47 defeat at home.

"We obviously need to get over the hump just a little bit," head coach Steve Gosar said. "We were right there with North here at our home court, with Salt Lake at home and on their court. We need a little belief in each other and ourselves. We have just found ways to lose. I do believe we have the ability to make a deep run if we can get a few stops and a few shots. If we extend the season as long as possible then we might get that month we're looking for, then anything can happen."

Even with a win against North Idaho, CSI can't improve its seed, which is fourth for next week's tournament in Coeur d'Alene.

said Jeppsen.

Said Minico coach Justin Gardner: "We definitely didn't go out and try to (recruit) him. I know those things are out there, but we had nothing in it at all. This kid has been fighting hard, but he's kind of had some mental lapses. We told him, if you believe in yourself, you can accomplish it."

A few Burley wrestlers stood close by when Jeppsen squeaked out a 8-7 win in the quarterfinals at the 4A state wrestling tournament Friday at Holt Arena. The former teammates offered him congratulations.

"It's pretty weird to see them at tournaments and stuff, but they're still family to me. They're still supportive of me, and I'm supportive of them," Jeppsen said. "We're still really close even though we're at different schools."

Jeppsen's quarterfinal win was one of the many highlights during Day 1's action. Facing Andre Aguinaga from Pocatello, to whom he had lost by technical fall earlier this season, Jeppsen found himself tied in the third period.

Taking a calculated risk, Jeppsen conceded one escape point so that he could go to work, down a point, in the neutral position. The strategy paid off, as Jeppsen landed a shot and earned a two-point takedown as time expired.

"I don't really know what was going through my head," Jeppsen said. "I knew there was short time, so I had to make something happen quick."

Jeppsen will now face Nampa's Mikel Perales in the semifinals. In the other 120 semi, Spartan teammate Wyatt Bingham will go against Michael Carr of Middleton, after Bingham earned a couple of pins Friday.

Minico finished Day 1 as the top District IV team in the Class 4A standings, sitting in eighth place with 47 points. Columbia (143) and Kuna (130) have distanced themselves from the field in first and second place, respectively.

Overall, the Spartans sent three wrestlers to the semifinals, including 160-pounder Wyt Bedke, who got a tight 3-2 overtime decision in the first round, followed by an 8-5 decision in the quarterfinals. He will meet Jared

Bird of Bonneville in today's semifinals.

Is Gardner happy for the wrestlers who made the semifinals?

"Our goal is the finals. That's what we want, that's what we train for," Gardner said.

Twin Falls senior Isaac Laris breezed to a 14-4 major decision in the opening round, followed by a tight 9-7 overtime win in the quarterfinals. He will go against Columbia's Kam Reddish in the semifinal round.

The 152-pound bracket saw plenty of District IV action. Two of the area's top wrestlers advanced to the semifinals. Canyon Ridge's Kaleb Price got a pair of pins Friday. Wood River's Tom Bailey got a pin and a 6-3 decision. On opposite sides of the bracket, Price will go against No. 1-seeded Ruben Pulido, while Bailey will see Bonneville's Jacom Stacey, who upset the No. 2-seeded wrestler in the opening round.

The 195-pound bracket is also well-represented by area talent. Twin Falls' Landon Hatch worked his way into the semifinals with a pin and a major decision. He will meet No. 1 seed Tim McDonald of Columbia.

Meanwhile, Burley's Juan Labra, the highest seeded District IV wrestler in Class 4A, lived up to his No. 2 seeding with a major decision and a pin. In the semis, the Bobcat senior will meet Jordan Vielma of Bonneville.

Today's action begins with the semifinals at 9 a.m. at Holt Arena, followed by consolation rounds. Finals are scheduled for 3:30 p.m.

"I know the next (match) is more important than that one," Mejia said. "Now I know I can't overlook anyone. It almost cost me a match. I know this next one I have to stay in position better. I can't make any more mistakes."

Filer's JaCade Jones, seeded third at 160, also made it to the semis on Friday.

As a defending state champ, Gooding's Torin Brunson knows he has to be at the top of his game.

"It feels like everybody's out to get me," Brunson said.

After pinning his first-round opponent, Brunson faced Teton's Chris Hoggan in the quarterfinals. Right from the opening whistle, Hoggan was the aggressor. But Brunson effectively scrambled to earn the pin.

"I knew he was going to try to come at me pretty aggressively, and I just waited for him to mess up and I just attacked and it was over," said Brunson, who will meet Fruitland's Nik Fagen in the semis.

In 11th place, Gooding is the top District IV team with 55 points. Weiser tops the team scoring with 106 points, followed by Snake River with 98.5.

Brunson is one of three Senators in the championship semifinals.

Defending state champ Cole McGinnis looked good Friday with a pair of pins at 285 pounds. He will face Teton's Jake Hoggan in Saturday's semifinals.

Senator senior Sam Dalton also earned two pins at 182 pounds. He meets No. 1 seed Garret Hyde of Bear Lake in the semifinals.

Kimberly senior Tanner

Mulberry is a semifinalist after a pin and a 7-0 decision. The only thing standing in the way of making the 132-pound finals is top seeded Brady DeYoung of Weiser.

Gooding senior Eric Finley, the District IV champ at 220, was forced to forfeit the tournament due to a knee injury. He was seeded fourth in his bracket with a 25-8 record and was expected to finish on the podium.

Today's action begins with the semifinals at 9 a.m. at Holt Arena, followed by consolation rounds. Finals are scheduled for 3:30 p.m.

From their team T-shirts, to the way teammates would surround the mats to cheer for their teammates, it was clear Declo's wrestlers are a tight-knit group.

"It's something special," said junior 195-pounder Drexton Thrall. "We can get pretty mad in the wrestling room when they push us pretty hard, but we're a family."

The Hornets kept it simple while preparing this week for state.

"We just stuck to the basics. We practiced hard. We always thought of how hard the other team is practicing so we have to practice harder than them," Thrall said.

Lawrence Gillette, whose son Jason Gillette is a senior, has coached this group since junior high.

"These boys are a tight group. They've wrestled together since sixth grade," Lawrence Gillette said.

With a major decision and a pin, Declo sophomore 126-pounder John Nunnelee breezed into the semifinals, where he will face No. 1-seeded T.J. Thacker of Ririe.

At 138, the expected rematch between Raft River's Wyatt Smith and Declo's Stirland Zollinger materialized. Smith advanced with a pin and an 11-4 decision; Zollinger had two pins. The District IV foes will go head-to-head in the semifinals.

Josh Phillips of Declo got a pin and a technical fall to improve his record to 52-2 on the season and earn a spot in the semifinals against Clancy Beck of Aberdeen.

Brad Payne appears poised to improve on his fifth-place state finish from a year ago as he reached the semifinals with a 12-3 major decision, and then a 14-10 decision. He will match up in the semis with Caleb Williams of North Gem.

Declo's Gillette (170) and Thrall (195) each scored a pair of pins en route to the semifinals. Both Hornets will face opponents from Firth: Gillette vs. Matt Lindberg and Thrall vs. Luke Madsen.

Defending state champ Kage Osterhout advanced with two pins, and the senior will go against New Plymouth's Marcus Davis in the 220 semifinals.

Two more District IV wrestlers will compete in today's semifinal round. Oakley's Brody Smith will face Malad's Dallin Ward at 98 pounds. At 106, Williams Wells of Oakley will meet Casey Burley of Salmon in the semis.

LOCAL ROUNDUP

CSI BASEBALL TEAM DROPS 2 IN NEVADA

TIMES-NEWS

HENDERSON, Nev. • Given its inability to practice much at home due to weather, the College of Southern Idaho baseball team is still playing catch-up, a few hundred repetitions behind some of their opponents.

It's no coincidence then that it lost to a warm-weather team, College of Southern Nevada, 7-1 on Friday but was much more competitive with Salt Lake Community College, losing 9-8.

The two games were part of a Scenic West round-robin designed to fill a weekend date vacated when Utah State-Eastern dropped to NJCAA Division II starting this season.

"The first game (against the Bruins) you could tell was just two teams that hadn't played a lot of baseball," CSI head coach Boomer Walker said. "We had some defensive issues, plenty of offense, but our sophomores made some errors tonight. We are going to have some of that for a while, but hopefully in a few weeks we can get more practice in."

The Golden Eagles compiled 15 hits in the first game, and 23 on the day, including 12 from the top three spots in the lineup, Jordan Godman, Tanner Morache and Carter Yagi — the last of whom had a home run in the loss to Salt Lake.

But with shoddy defense — four errors in the first game — and a pitching staff that yielded eight walks in both contests, CSI is looking to rebound from losses that snapped its five-game win streak.

"Baseball is a game of timing and rhythm," Walker said. "It has been great to just get some repetitions to see where we are at, but we need more."

CSI plays Western Nevada and Colorado Northwestern today in Henderson.

Oklahoma quarterback Landry Jones answers a question during a news conference at the NFL football scouting combine in Indianapolis, Friday.

Skill Position Stars Use NFL Combine as Proving Ground

ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS • Matt Barkley and Landry Jones made some tough calls last season.

Instead of taking first-round money and leaving school early, they decided to stick around, hone their skills, chase a national championship and improve their draft stock.

With the NFL draft about two months away, the two quarterbacks once billed as Heisman Trophy front-runners are now trying to improve to enhance their chances of being selected early.

"I've learned a lot in this past year that you can't teach in a classroom," Barkley said Friday at the NFL scouting combine. "You have to learn through experience in regards to handling adversity at its peak. You have to get guys going in the locker room, in the huddle, on the practice field when you're not playing for the postseason. It allowed me to step up and be that voice."

It's unclear whether that will help Barkley in a year where there is no clear-cut top choice, even among the quarterbacks.

Scouts saw Barkley and Southern California's shot at a national championship — and his chance for the Heisman — come crashing down in a season that went terribly wrong. Becoming the first

"I've learned a lot in this past year that you can't teach in a classroom. You have to learn through experience in regards to handling adversity at its peak. You have to get guys going in the locker room, in the huddle, on the practice field when you're not playing for the postseason. It allowed me to step up and be that voice."

quarterback taken in the draft took a hit when he sprained his right shoulder in a late-season loss to crosstown rival UCLA. Barkley never took another college snap, and though he acknowledged Friday the rehab program is on track, critics are already wondering why he won't throw until his March 27 pro day.

Barkley also may find himself answering questions about a locker room dust-up that followed the Trojans' Sun Bowl loss to Georgia Tech.

"It was a normal football locker room environment. That happens all the time, trust me. It happens all the time on teams across the country," Barkley said. "It was nothing out of hand. It was guys exchanging words and wanting to set the record straight. But the captains, myself and some of the other seniors, we had everything under control."

The concerns about Jones have nothing to do with health.

In 2012, he actually threw for more touchdowns, a higher completion percentage and had fewer interceptions and a better efficiency rating than in the previous season. But the perception after Oklahoma fell out of the title chase was that Jones failed to improve his poise in the pocket or his footwork. His performance at the Senior Bowl (3 of 9 for 16 yards with two sacks) raised more red flags.

Jones believes the extra year in college has made him better.

"I think I showed the things that I wanted to improve on," he said after measuring in at 6-foot-4, 225 pounds in Indy. "I shortened my motion and move around in the pocket a lot more than I have been."

There are so many concerns about this year's class of skill players, some analysts believe the unthinkable could happen: an entire first round without a quarterback or running back selected.

Right now, the top-rated quarterback is believed to be West Virginia's Geno Smith, like Jones and Barkley a drop-back passer. Others expect North Carolina State's strong-armed Mike Glennon to be a fast riser as the draft nears.

The quarterbacks aren't alone.

At running back, the list of potential first-round options essentially ended when South Carolina's Marcus Lattimore shredded his right knee in a gruesome scene Oct. 27. His pitch is that he will be the same spectacular runner when he returns, like two other NFL superstars who came back from devastating knee injuries.

"There will never be another Adrian Peterson, but that gives me a lot of motivation knowing that he came back from it. That's what I plan on doing, just coming back better," Lattimore said. "I feel like we both run hard. (Peterson) runs like nobody is there. He runs with total destruction."

"I feel like if I could compare my game to anybody, it would be Frank Gore. I feel like he's got low pads, he's got great vision, he can see the field and (has) great balance."

Danica Brings New Eyes to NASCAR and Daytona 500

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. • The big boys brought their little girls to see NASCAR's shining star.

Jeff Gordon, Carl Edwards and Jimmie Johnson all took their daughters to meet Danica Patrick this week at Daytona International Speedway.

It was the ultimate backstage pass.

Patrick dropped to one knee, wrapped her right arm around Ella Gordon's waist and posed for pictures as the 5-year-old flashed an endless grin in Victory Lane last week. Every day since, Patrick's crew has handed out dozens and dozens of lugnuts to little girls clamoring for souvenirs. Annie Edwards wore GoDaddy green shoes for the special occasion. Evie Johnson recognizes only two cars, her Dad said — his and the green one.

"Carl was saying it's good that she sees me in real life and in person because 'To her, you are like some mythical creature that doesn't exist,'" Patrick said. "Then after qualifying, Jimmie Johnson brought his little girl over. That's three pretty big drivers who have little girls that want to meet me."

Danicamania is in full bloom at Daytona — and with a brand new audience.

The first woman in history to earn the top starting spot in a race at NASCAR's elite Sprint Cup Series, Patrick will bring new eyeballs to Sunday's season-opening Daytona 500. She'll lure in casual sports fans, women who don't know a muffler from a manifold, and little girls in awe of the glamorous driver and her fast green car.

It's an ambassador role Patrick has played since her 2005 debut at the Indianapolis 500, where she became the first woman to lead laps in the biggest race in the world. But it's so much more now.

"You can only lead by example and I don't necessarily want my example to step outside the box and be a girl in a guy's world. That's not what I am trying to say," Patrick said. "But if you have a talent for something, do not be afraid to follow through with it and not feel different. Do not feel like you are less qualified or less competent to be able to do the job because you are different. Ignore that and let it be about what your potential is."

And right now, she believes her potential is to win "The Great American Race."

Patrick starts first on Sunday, next to four-time champion Gordon, and after running 32 laps in Friday's practice and mixing it up with NASCAR's biggest stars, she was more convinced than ever that she can be a player in the race.

"Can I win? Yeah. Absolutely," Patrick said. "I feel comfortable in this kind of race situation. I feel comfortable in the draft. I feel comfortable that the speeds are not a problem. I know I am inexperienced. I know I am rookie out there. I will do the best job I can to win. I do believe I have a chance to win. I do believe experience would help, but that doesn't mean I don't have a chance to win."

Crew chief Tony Gibson was even more convinced he's got a winner for Sunday. He was part of Derrike Cope's improbable 1990 victory, when Cope inherited the win when the late Dale Earnhardt blew a tire on the final lap.

"She has got the talent," Gibson said. "She's already proven in the Nationwide Series, from what I've seen on the speedway stuff, she definitely gets the respect. People know she's fast. She can draft. She knows how the air works. She gets a lot of that from IndyCar. So I have 100 percent confidence she can win the Daytona 500."

"I remember Derrike Cope, nobody gave him a chance, either, but I saw him in Victory Lane. I know it can be done."

But the Daytona 500 is a pressure-packed race unlike anything except the Indy 500. Some of the best drivers never win it — it took seven-time champion Earnhardt 20 tries to finally get his lone win — and Tony Stewart, Patrick's teammate and car owner, goes into Sunday's race seeking his first victory in 15 tries.

The City on a Hill

Brian Vriesman

Pastor's Corner

One of the great statements defining a Christ follower's identity is from Matthew 5 where Jesus says, "You are the salt of the earth, ... the light of the world, ... a city on a hill."

From the moment God chose a people (beginning with Abraham), God's intent was that His "peculiar" people would be called to be a blessing to the nations, to have a significant impact. Early in Jesus' platform speech called "the Sermon on the Mount," he illustrated the extent of our impact. Jesus proclaimed we are to be like salt, like light, like a highly visible city.

The irony of our treatment of his first two illustrations, salt and light, is that we might perceive our impact as optional. Jesus hints that our perception could be an issue.

What's the impact of salt with no savor, Jesus asks? It gets tossed out. The alternative to being the light of the world? We can always hide light under a bowl (unless it's Tupperware) and our dent in the darkness disappears. It seems Jesus even anticipated the apathy that often sabotages our potential impact as Christ followers.

Not so, however, with his third illustration — city on a hill. The city can't be hidden! End of argument. It's the "city on a hill" that underscores the inescapable impact of Christ followers. In biblical times, cities were built on hills, always the most strategic locations. Visibility was unlimited, both from the city and toward the city.

There was no placing a city under a dome of darkness or a cone of silence. No matter what the city desired to do or become, it would always remain visible. It would always remain strategic.

The "city on a hill" is really a more accurate assessment of the impact of Christ followers. Salt unused turns into garbage, it's easily disposed of. Light put under any object obstructing its brightness simply perpetuates darkness. But we can't hide a city.

There's no putting something that big under a bowl. A city on a hill is always on display, for better or worse. People observe the cities condition from a distance, long before they enter its gates.

It's the one metaphor that both motivates and haunts me. As a follower of Jesus, I am visible for anyone and everyone to observe. There's no tossing aside or hiding the impact of my witness. My impact is not an option, it's an inevitability. It's inescapable.

If we think our role for the cause of Christ doesn't matter because we've determined it doesn't matter ... think again. We're the city on the hill! Let's leave the light on and keep the salt fresh.

Boise Pastor Saeed Abedini was sentenced to eight years in Iran's Evin Prison after authorities there accused him of building a network of Christian churches.

SAVE SAEED

Justice sought for Saeed Abedini, a Boise pastor sentenced to eight years in an Iranian prison.

BOISE • Naghmeh Abedini is finding it painful to adapt to the role of single mom.

Naghmeh's two children ask her when their daddy is coming home. She can't answer their questions — because she doesn't know.

Saeed Abedini, 32, Naghmeh's husband and father of their two young children, has been imprisoned in Iran since September 2012.

Saeed was in Iran visiting family and working to establish a non-religious orphanage. Arrested at the home of a friend, he was charged with attempting to undermine state security by creating a network of Christian churches in private homes.

At one point, reports indicated Saeed could be released. Iran's semi-official ISNA news agency reported in late January that Saeed was to be released imminently after posting $116,000 bail.

But in a Jan. 21 American Center for Law and Justice posting, Naghmeh said that report was "all a lie by the Iranian media ... this is a game to silence the international media."

On Jan. 27, Saeed was sentenced to eight years in Iran's Evin Prison, which has a reputation for being one of the most brutal in the country.

Earlier this week, Saeed was able to write a letter to his wife and supporters detailing conditions inside Evin Prison. The letter is posted on ACLJ's website.

Saeed wrote, "The conditions here get so very difficult that my eyes get blurry, my body does not have the strength to walk, and my steps become very weak and shaky. Various (bullying) groups, the psychological warfare, a year of not seeing my family, physical violence, actions committed to humiliate me, insults, being mocked, being confronted with extremists in the prison who create another prison within the prison walls, and the death threats..."

How You Can Help

Naghmeh Abedini said she is not certain whether Saeed receives his mail, but believes the sheer volume will influence the way he is treated. To write to Saeed, address your non-political letter to: Saeed Abedini, Evin Prison, Saadat Abad, Tehran, Islamic Republic of Iran. Make sure it is in five separate lines. The postage will cost $1.10.

For more information about the American Center for Law and Justice and Saeed Abedini's story, visit www.aclj.org.

You can also sign the Save Saeed petition at <http://savesaeed.org/>.

Before Saeed's sentencing, Naghmeh had limited phone contact with her husband.

In a telephone interview this month, Tiffany Barrans, international legal director for ACLJ, joined Naghmeh in asking for prayer and support for Saeed.

"My daughter (age 6) is old enough to understand," Naghmeh said. "She cried and told me, 'Mommy, I'm forgetting Daddy's face.' How do I tell her that it may be eight years?"

The ACLJ began working behind the scenes on Saeed's case after he was put on house arrest on July 28, 2012, said spokesman Gene Kapp. The group then became more publicly involved after Saeed's arrest. The ACLJ represents Naghmeh and her and Saeed's two children to bring attention and support to Saeed's case in Iran.

"At ACLJ.org there is a petition that people can sign," Barrans said. "While it is not legally binding, it signifies the level of interest in Pastor Saeed Abedini's case and may influence Saeed's treatment for the better."

According to a December 2012 Idaho Statesman article, Abedini became a U.S. citizen in 2010 and converted to Christianity about 12 years ago.

Recently, Saeed's Iranian family was able to visit him in prison.

In a Feb. 19 account of that visit written by the ACLJ, family members said, "The Iranian prison guards told Saeed we'd abandoned him, that he was forgotten and alone. Saeed's family told him that hundreds of thousands of Americans had signed petitions for his freedom, and they told him of the musicians who were all rallying to support him and call for his freedom."

The ACLJ also filed a written statement on Feb. 17 on Saeed's behalf before the United Nations Human Rights Council. It outlined Saeed's case and stated that as a member state of the UN, the Islamic Republic of Iran is obligated to adhere to norms set forth in the UN Charter, such as those requiring members "to achieve international cooperation ... in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and ... fundamental freedoms ... without distinction as to religion."

Local Prayers

Prayer groups across the Magic Valley are focused on Saeed's case, including members of the Magic Valley Bible Church in Twin Falls. Becky Schell, who writes a prayer digest each week for the church, said many members have committed themselves to regular prayer for the imprisoned pastor.

Kara Fort, outreach director at Valley Christian Church in Twin Falls, said her congregation has been encouraged to sign the ACLJ petition urging President Obama, Secretary of State John Kerry and Congress to take all available diplomatic and legislative action to pressure Iran to respect religious freedom.

"For someone so young and dedicated to be falsely imprisoned by trying to bring Christian humanitarian efforts into this world is just incomprehensible," Fort said. "We know he has a wife and family, and personally, I can not imagine how they must feel right now."

Fort pointed out that a lot of important figures in the Bible were imprisoned and it required them to rely on God in an entirely new way.

"We are praying fervently for his protection and early safe release," Fort said. "While none of us know him personally, we don't have to. He is a brother in Christ, and we believe the love and commitment he put forth to bring an orphanage into fruition is putting his faith in action, which God calls us all to do."

These churches are in good company. Christian musicians like Michael W. Smith, Josh Turner, Ricky Skaggs and Natalie Grant have recorded videos asking people to sign petitions on his behalf. The ACLJ also started the Save Saeed project, an online petition seeking Saeed's release that had collected 252,273 signatures as of Feb. 20. The goal is to gather 300,000 by March 5, then take the signatures to the UN.

Barrans said Saeed's release could lead to relief for some of the other people who are imprisoned because of human rights issue.

Naghmeh said she knows her husband's faith remains firm.

"He said if he dies, he still will not change his faith," Naghmeh said. "He loves Jesus and will not deny him."

And while he remains imprisoned, Saeed's family and friends — like many in the Magic Valley and across the country — are praying.

Pope Clears Decks with Appointments, Tweaks

BY NICOLE WINFIELD
Associated Press

VATICAN CITY • Pope Benedict XVI is clearing the decks of his pontificate, tweaking the rules of the conclave, finessing the religious rites used to launch the next papacy and making some eyebrow-raising final appointments before he retires next week.

The Vatican newspaper L’Osservatore Romano said in editions published late Friday that Benedict had signed a decree earlier in the week making some changes to the papal installation Mass, separating out the actual rite of installation from the liturgy itself.

He is also studying the text of a separate document governing the rules of the conclave, though it’s not known if it will address the thorny issue of whether the election can begin earlier than March 15, by some interpretations the earliest the vote can start under the current rules.

And on Friday, the Vatican announced Benedict had transferred a top official in the secretariat of state, Monsignor Ettore Balestrero, to Colombia — an appointment that came amid swirling media speculation about the contents of a confidential report into the Vatican’s leaks scandal.

Italian newspapers have been rife for days with unsourced reports about the contents of the secret dossier that three cardinals prepared for Benedict after investigating the origins of the leaks. The scandal erupted last year after papers taken from the pope’s desk were published in a blockbuster book. The pope’s butler was convicted in October of aggravated theft, and later pardoned.

The Vatican has refused to comment on the reports, which have claimed the contents of the dossier, delivered to Benedict in December, were a factor in his decision to resign. Benedict himself has said he simply no longer has the “strength of mind and body” to carry on.

The Vatican spokesman, the Rev. Federico Lombardi, has indicated that Benedict would meet with the three cardinals before stepping down Feb. 28, in one of his final private audiences.

Given the rivalries, turf battles and allegations of corruption exposed by the leaks themselves, there is some speculation that cardinals entering the conclave might want to know the contents of the dossier before choosing a new pope.

Balestrero was head of the Holy See’s delegation to the Council of Europe’s Moneyval committee, which evaluated the Vatican’s anti-money laundering and anti-terror financing measures. He has had a hand in the efforts by the Vatican bank to be more transparent and is close to Benedict’s No. 2, the Vatican secretary of state Cardinal Tarcisio Bertone.

The Vatican submitted itself to Moneyval’s evaluation in a bid to improve its reputation in the financial world.

The Vatican passed the test on the first try in August, and Moneyval said it had made great progress in a short amount of time. But the Holy See received poor or failing grades for its financial watchdog agency and its bank, long the source of some of the Vatican’s more storied scandals.

Some of the documents leaked in the midst of the “Vatileaks” scandal concerned differences of opinion about the level of financial transparency the Holy See should provide about the bank, the Institute for Religious Works. However, Balestrero himself wasn’t named in any significant way in the leaks.

The Vatican is now working to comply with Moneyval’s recommendations before the next round of evaluation. Lombardi said the lengthy Moneyval process would simply be handled by someone else now that Balestrero is leaving.

Lombardi said Balestrero’s transfer had been months in the works, was a clear promotion and had nothing to do with what the Vatican considers baseless reporting.

Lombardi noted that the nunciature in Bogota is one of the most important in Latin America, with the headquarters for the Latin American bishops’ conference as well as the regional organization for religious orders, and is usually headed by someone who has had experience as a nuncio in at least two other postings.

“The procedure for this nomination was started some time ago, as evidenced by the fact that the agreement (with Colombia) has already been reached,” Lombardi told The Associated Press. “It was started well before the pope’s resignation, so it’s completely unfounded to link it to the news articles in recent days.”

Asked if the transfer had anything to do with the broader Vatileaks investigation, Lombardi said he was declining comment in line with the Vatican’s decision not to confirm or deny any specifics of the investigation.

Sept 2010 photo from files showing Cardinal Keith Patrick O’Brien speaking to the media in Edinburgh, Scotland. Roman Catholic priests should be allowed to marry and have children, Britain’s most senior Catholic cleric said Friday.

Cardinal: Married Catholic Priests Are a Possibility

LONDON (AP) • Roman Catholic priests should be allowed to marry and have children, Britain’s most senior Catholic cleric said Friday.

Cardinal Keith O’Brien, who heads the Roman Catholic Church in Scotland, said the requirement for priestly celibacy is “not of divine origin” and could be reconsidered.

He told BBC Scotland that “the celibacy of the clergy, whether priests should marry — Jesus didn’t say that.”

He said that “many priests have found it very difficult to cope with celibacy,” and while he had never considered marriage himself, “I would be very happy if others had the opportunity of considering whether or not they could or should get married.”

O’Brien, 74, will form part of the conclave of cardinals that chooses the next pontiff, following the resignation of Pope Benedict XVI. Benedict announced earlier this month that he will step down Feb. 28 — the first pope to resign in almost 600 years.

The cardinal said that the next pope would be free to consider changing church policy on issues, such as celibacy for priests, that were not “basic dogmatic beliefs.”

He said that “we know at the present time in some branches of the church — in some branches of the Catholic church — priests can get married, so that is obviously not of divine origin and it could get discussed again.”

In recent years a number of traditionalist Anglicans opposed to the ordination of women and other changes have joined the Roman Catholic Church. The pope granted special dispensation for married Anglican clergy to stay married and be ordained in the Catholic Church.

O’Brien also said it was time to think seriously about having a pope from outside Europe.

Ed was born Sept. 19, 1928, in Joplin, Mo., to John Riley Moore and Myrtle (McCullough) Moore. He spent his childhood in Missouri until 1935, when his family moved to Buhl, Idaho. Ed grew up with his six sisters and four brothers and attended Buhl schools. He enjoyed running track and playing basketball, which he continued to play on the recreation leagues.

He married Barbara Martin in Elko, Nev., on Sept. 20, 1949. They had a child who died at birth; they were later divorced. Ed then met Joann Rassmussen, and they married May 1, 1954, in Twin Falls. Of this union, Ed helped raise Phylliss’s children, Archie Lynn Thompson and daughter, Theda May Share. He later helped raise granddaughter, Athena, and treated her as his own child; they all say they could not have had a better father figure.

Ed worked for United Cop of Buhl and in Battleground, Wash., before becoming the manager of the Buhl store and helping start a new store in Rupert. Ed also drove fuel delivery for the store, which led to a job for Kerb’s Oil in Burley, Idaho. Ed was a member of the Idaho National Guard for 12

In his younger years, his biggest passion was training and riding horses in local riding clubs and cow cutting contests with his brother, George. Ed has a special horse, Pokey, which he talked about often.

He is survived by one brother, Eugene Moore; son, Tom (Jeanne) Moore of Rexburg; daughters, Lori (Steve) Ridley of Filer and Theda (Doug) Share of Buhl; granddaughters, Melissa (Scott) Brandhagen, Melinda (Jacob) Hammond, Tiffany (Cody) Bridwell, Whitney Ridley, Callie Ridley, Shiloe (Dave) Goodliffe, Paige Moore, Talon Moore, Athena (Jim) Sabala, Deana (Brock) Tvrdy, Morgan (Tim) Breck, Savanna Share, Tawnie Share, Hollye Lierman and Elisabeth (Cory) McDonald; grandsons, Casey Ridley, Ian Moore, Chance Share, Joe Thompson and Rustin Thompson; and 27 great-grandchildren. Joan Mary Thompson

Sept. 22, 1935-Feb. 20, 2013

BURLEY • Joan Mary Thompson, 77, of Burley, Idaho, was welcomed into the arms of her Lord and Savior on Wednesday, Feb. 20, 2013, with her family by her side.

Joan was an only child and was born to George and Anna Stoltenberg on Sept. 22, 1935, in Burke, S.D. She met Walt, the love of her life, at age 15. They were married on Sept. 22, 1951, in Kimberly, Idaho, on her 16th birthday. Together they were blessed with six children, George, Tress, Valle, Walt Jr., Kelly and Tammy.

Joan had an amazing love for the Lord and her family. She had a heart for people; no matter who you were, you were always treated with love and kindness. Joan loved the outdoors and her biggest passion was fishing. Her favorite fishing spot was at the family cabin at Magic Reservoir. She also loved church and taking care of her friends and family, as she pastored alongside her husband at New Life Fellowship in Burley. She loved singing, playing her accordion and worshipping the Lord. She was known by many for her heart of gold and adored by her family. She had the heart of a servant; her door was always open. You could find her in the kitchen cooking and eager to share with whoever walked through the door. She was known by many and loved by all. She is loved, and her presence will be greatly missed.

Joan is survived by her husband of 61 years, Walter Eugene Thompson; six children, George (Nancy) Thompson, Tress (Ray) Eagle, Valle (Les) Steube, Walt Thompson Jr., Kelly (Debbie) Thompson and Tammy (Rick) Zimmerman. She is also survived by her 13 grandchildren; 22 great-grandchildren; and her four-legged son, Cookie. She was preceded in death by her parents, George and Anna Stoltenberg; and son-in-law, John Green.

A celebration of Joan’s life will be held at 2 p.m. Monday, Feb. 25, at the Grace Community Center, 100 N. Meridian in Rupert, with Pastor Rick Zimmerman officiating. Friends may call one hour prior to the service Monday at the church. Services are under the direction of Morrison-Payne Funeral Home in Burley.

Oberdorfer, Judge and Ex-deputy to RFK, Dies at 94

WASHINGTON (AP) • Louis F. Oberdorfer, a former deputy to Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy in the 1960s who later heard hundreds of cases as a federal judge in Washington, has died. Oberdorfer died Thursday on his 94th birthday, said Sheldon Snook, a spokesman for the federal court in Washington.

Oberdorfer was appointed to the court in 1977 by President Jimmy Carter and took senior status in 1992, meaning he continued to hear cases but fewer of them. He heard cases until several years ago. He had two strokes in recent years, said Judge Royce C. Lamberth, the Chief Judge of the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. He said Oberdorfer died in his sleep.

As a judge, Oberdorfer authored more than 1,300 opinions. In the late 1980s, one of his rulings pushed the U.S. Defense Department to extend veteran status to thousands of men who sailed merchant ships during World War II.

In 1990, he issued a ruling ordering the District of Columbia to give the Ku Klux Klan permission to march to the U.S. Capitol. He also made headlines for ignoring mandatory minimum prison terms for crack cocaine crimes. Congress has since changed the law, which came to be seen as unfair. For years, Oberdorfer also oversaw cases involving Vietnamese orphans who were hurt in a plane crash in 1975 during the United States’ ‘Operation Babylift.’

More recently, in 2000, Oberdorfer was part of a three-judge panel that heard a lawsuit by District of Columbia residents arguing it was unconstitutional they weren’t allowed to elect representatives to Congress.

Stalinist Regime Chronicler Alexei German Dies at 74

MOSCOW (AP) • Alexei German, a Russian film director best known for his works chronicling the Stalinist era in the Soviet Union, died in Moscow on Thursday. He was 74.

His son, Alexei German Jr., said in a blog post Thursday that the filmmaker died of heart failure at a hospital in St. Petersburg.

German came to prominence internationally for his 1983 production ‘My Friend

Ivan Lapshin’ about a police investigator battling a criminal gang. Authorities blocked the film’s release for two years because of its realistic depiction of Soviet life in the wake of the Stalinist terror of the late 1930s.

‘Khrustalyov, My Car,’ a grotesque narrative centered on Stalin’s final days, had a troubled production and received a hostile reception at its Cannes premiere in 1998, but later attained cult status.

Civil Rights, Christian Photographer Rutledge Dies

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) • Donald ‘Don’ Rutledge, who won acclaim shooting photos during the civil rights movement before turning his lens toward Christian photography, died Tuesday at his home near Richmond. He was 82.

Rutledge grew up in Smithville, Tenn., starting out as a Baptist preacher while still in high school. After seminary school, he instead went to work for Black Star, a top photojournalism agency, and traveled the globe shooting photos for Life, Look and other magazines.

It was his photos for John Howard Griffin’s 1961 book ‘Black Like Me’ about Griffin’s experiences of racism in the Jim Crow-era South that garnered Rutledge national acclaim. Griffin chemically darkened his skin to appear black and wrote about the difficulties he experienced in Atlanta and New Orleans as a ‘black’ man under segregation while Rutledge pho-

“It was a very volatile situation having a white man photograph in a black neighborhood,” his wife of 61 years, Lucy Marie Rutledge, told the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Then in 1966, Rutledge joined his two loves and went to work for Home Missions magazine for the Southern Baptist Convention. He traveled to all 50 states over the next decade capturing moments of dedication and devotion of missionaries and others.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 15-year-old student who reads your column every day, and I hope you can help me.

I want to be closer to my parents. They yell at my siblings and me and call us names. It hurts me very much. If we make a mistake — even a little one — or forget our chores, we can expect to be insulted, yelled at, etc. I have learned to tune them out, but I don't understand how such intelligent people like my parents can act this way.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

Years ago, I decided to talk to them about it, but that was seen as an act of defiance. My parents, especially my father, can't take constructive criticism and respond with more yelling.

Each of our arguments leaves me upset for days. But I still believe I need to do something. I want to be close to them before it's too late, but I have lost so much respect and trust for them, and they probably feel the same.

Please, Abby, I don't know what to do. I would greatly appreciate your advice, although I know you are very busy. Thank you for taking the time to read my letter.

— HOPEFUL IN NEW YORK

DEAR HOPEFUL: You have my sympathy. Harsh words can leave wounds that last longer than physical bruises. Some parents develop hair-trigger tempers when they are under financial pressure. Others, without realizing it, model their behavior on the way their parents raised THEM and overreact when their children make mistakes.

Because you haven't been able to get through to your father, talk to a trusted adult relative about the fact that you would like to be closer to your parents but don't know how. If they hear it from another adult, they might be more open to the message.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 26-year-old mother of a 13-month-old daughter, "Lissa." I am a "by-the-book" mom. I'm still breastfeeding and I am strict about what I allow my daughter to eat. She has just barely started to eat table food.

I don't want my child to have bad eating habits, so I try to give her only healthy items at dinnertime. Her dad, on the other hand, thinks it's funny to give her junk, including sugar. When she was only 2 months old, I caught him giving her licorice. The other day, it was soda and ice cream. I don't agree with this, and it's causing us a lot of fights.

When we sit down to dinner, I have Lissa's meal set aside. But before I can sit down, her dad starts giving her things off his plate and then she won't eat her dinner. I have told him I don't like it, but he doesn't understand that I want to teach her good eating habits.

Am I wrong in trying so hard? Or should I just give up and let her eat junk?

— TRYING MY BEST IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR TRYING: Parenting is supposed to be a team sport and I'm more concerned about the fact that Lissa's dad is undercutting you than what's going into her mouth right now. If he continues, in another year or two, your little girl will regard him as a pushover and you as a big meanie.

You may need an impartial mediator to get through to Lissa's father, and the perfect person to do that is your child's pediatrician. Let the doctor tell Daddy that the more she is given sweets, the more she'll crave them.

The only thing about your approach that might be of concern to me is your calling yourself a "by-the-book" mother. A conscientious parent not only goes by the book and is consistent, but she also uses her head and listens to her heart. I hope you will remember that.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Such labored nothings, in so strange a style, Amaze the unlearned, and make the learned smile."

— Alexander Pope

Against four spades, West led the trump seven to East's ace and a trump was returned — West following suit.

The contract is in danger only if East has the diamond king and you cannot avoid losing two club tricks. If West has both club honors, you will surely be sunk whenever East has the diamond king. Let's not worry about that.

What else do we know? There are clues in the bidding and the lead. Since West did not lead a heart, East surely has a heart honor. If East had the club ace as well, he would have the spade ace, the diamond king, the club ace and a heart honor. That would give him at least 12 high-card points and an opener in third seat. Thus, if the diamond king is wrong, so is the club ace.

The best way to win against this layout is to lead the club four from hand next! If West rises with the ace, then you will lose only one club trick and are home free. If West plays low, you put in the jack. East will win the first club and can only return a heart. You will win and play the club king to West's ace. West must shift to diamonds, but you rise with the ace and ruff the clubs good before returning to dummy with a heart ruff to run the good clubs. You will make four trumps, a heart, a heart ruff, a diamond and three clubs.

ANSWER: Your partner's redouble sounds like an SOS redouble — "Help, get me out of here." His likely holding is four spades and five or six hearts, and since you know spades is now the best strain, simply bid two spades rather than confuse the issue with further escape maneuvers. The rule here is that if you want to play a doubled contract, you don't need to redouble to get a good score.

IF FEBRUARY 23 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are getting better all the time. In the next several months, you can improve your health and develop lasting habits and insightful goals with far reaching consequences. Your growing sense of intuition and compassion can be used while forming business strategies to help yourself while helping others. You are at your best in April when intuitions are on target about financial matters. July is the very best time to make a major change in your life, such as taking a new job or moving into a new home. That is when you are best equipped to make informed decisions and lasting commitments.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't keep your hobbies to yourself. Sharing your passions with a friend or partner may make it twice as fun. Putting all your eggs in one basket may put you at a disadvantage if things don't go your way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Make the most of new encounters. Get involved with your community by volunteering or attending social gatherings. Unused abilities may take flight when exposed to a wider range of contacts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The idea of a secret is not to tell anyone. Don't betray a trust by blabbing privileged information to someone. Look for ways to make improvements, both to your house and to your appearance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Just because you heard something does not make it so. Don't let gossip influence your decisions; go with what you know for a fact. There's a difference between how it is and how you want it to be.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A little confidence can take you a long way. Remember the Little Engine that kept saying, "I think I can..." and let that be your inspiration. Today, you'll find that the best things in life really are free.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): No two people are the same. The beauty of the world is reflected in the diversity of each and every individual. You shouldn't be concerned if a family member's way of thinking seems alien to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The message may not be what you want to hear, but you'll love how the messenger presents it. A pat on the back and a few kind words should be all it takes to brighten your day. A little exercise never hurts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Open your mind. There's no such thing as bad knowledge. Let your brain become a sponge for any and all information that comes your way. Don't let a miscommunication cause unnecessary strife.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Boasts may ruffle some feathers. Even if you only speak the truth, nobody likes to hear a braggart. Make up for lost time by devoting most of the day towards some quality time with family.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Share the wealth. Upon honest reflection, you're doing fairly well, so it won't hurt to be charitable and lend a helping hand to those less fortunate. Don't forget that charity begins at home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Promises don't need to be empty. A face-to-face discussion might open your eyes to new possibilities. Once convinced that something or someone has merit, don't be afraid to act or to offer praise.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't limit your dreams. Long-term goals and objectives can be like a shooting gallery: The more targets you set your sights on, the more likely you are to hit one. Discussions with loved ones may offer revelations.
