ROAD WORK AHEAD

The state's 2013 list of road projects for south-central Idaho touches every part of the region.

TWIN FALLS • Getting out of Twin Falls may be a tad difficult in a few weeks.

Between crossing the Perrine Bridge that is scheduled to be resurfaced and navigating through a reconstruction of the U.S. Highway 93 and Interstate 84 junction, drivers should pack an extra dose of patience while traveling on state roads this year.

These projects and more are all on the Idaho Transportation Department's to-do list for 2013. The department has released its project list throughout southern Idaho, which includes more than a dozen bridge resurfacings and reconstructions and three large junction reconstructions.

"It's going to be a busy year," said Nathan Jerke, an ITD spokesman. "We have close to $60 million of projects scheduled this year."

Back on this year's list is the resurfacing of the Perrine Bridge on the Traveling on a state road and want to know if you'll run into a delay? ITD is encouraging the public to visit its website, www.511.idaho.gov. Drivers can see what sections are under construction and plan out how long it might take to travel through that area. Or, you can call 511.

Meeting Planned on Bliss Bridge

Replacement options for a 77-year-old bridge in Bliss will be the subject of a public meeting Wednesday, March 6, according to the Idaho Transportation Department.

The open house will be from 4-7 p.m. in the lunch room at the Bliss School, 601 East U.S. 30.

The bridge was originally constructed in 1936 and is traveled by about 1,500 vehicles per day, according to ITD. It is located close to one mile west of Bliss along the Interstate 84 business loop.

ITD staff will be available to discuss different replacement options include using different types of construction, traffic control, cost estimates and duration of work for each alternative.

ITD's alternatives vary, including a single-phased option that requires a road closure and a detour. Another option is a multi-phased project that would keep the roadway open, but require more construction time and land purchases for roadway realignment.

ITD will use public input to choose which alternative to use for the replacement project. Currently, the bridge is scheduled to be replaced in 2016.

One Dead in Rollover on Interstate 84

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • On Friday, March 1, at approximately 4 p.m., the Idaho State Police investigated a single vehicle rollover crash on westbound Interstate 84 at milepost 172, north of Twin Falls.

Rodolfo Del Fierro Herrera, 46 of Mexico, was traveling in the slow lane in a 1995 Ford Explorer when he attempted to change lanes. Upon noticing another vehicle traveling in the left lane, Herrera overcorrected and rolled his vehicle several times. Herrera was ejected from the vehicle and succumbed to his injuries at the scene of the crash. Herrera's passenger, Marco Navarro, 38, of Fresno, Calif., was transported to St Luke's Magic Valley in Twin Falls by ground ambulance. Only Navarro was wearing his seatbelt.

Both westbound lanes were blocked for approximately two hours. The investigation is ongoing.

Cities, T.F. County Discuss Effects of Losing Business Tax

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Eliminate personal property taxes and the city of Buhl will stop all road maintenance.

On top of that, Buhl will probably reduce or eliminate several positions on its police and fire staff just to make ends meet, said Mayor Tom McCauley.

"The financial impact is about a loss of $250,000. That's about 18 percent of our budget," he said. "Financially, this would be devastating."

On Thursday night, McCauley was one of several representatives of cities inside Twin Falls County to share the impact of repealing the state's personal property tax on businesses. A repeal effort is currently being discussed in the Legislature.

The Twin Falls County commissioners hosted the meeting for other cities to learn more about what their neighbors are going through. The commissioners urged cities to lobby against the tax removal.

In Idaho, personal property tax only applies to personal property used for business purposes. Exemptions include machinery for agricultural purposes and hospital medical equipment.

Supporters of the tax repeal argue that it gives incentive for more businesses to come to Idaho. They also argue that it can be unevenly applied and difficult to administer.

"We knew this would be coming for awhile now," Commissioner Terry Kramer said. "It was just a matter of when."

Not all cities would be hit as drastically as Buhl, but all would have to make adjustments. Smaller cities like Murtaugh, Hansen or Castleford would lose only a half-percent to 3 percent of their budget revenue if the personal property tax went away.

For Filer, personal property tax revenue makes up 9 percent of the budget, said Councilman Rick Dunn.

In Kimberly, the impact of the repeal wouldn't be as great as in Buhl, said Larry Hall, Kimberly's city administrator.

As a residential community, the city doesn't have large industrial business within its city limits, Hall said. As a result, the city doesn't generate a lot of revenue from personal property taxes.

For Twin Falls, the biggest impact of repealing personal property taxes would be to the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency, said City Manager Travis Rothweiler.

Twin Falls' URA receives 45 percent of its annual property tax income from personal property tax, he said. Without it, the agency would only be able to pay for its current indebtedness and would stop taking on new projects or helping with job creation.

"This would be monumentally devastating to URAs," Rothweiler said. "URAs are the only real economic development tool we have in Idaho."

At the end of the night, Kramer and the rest of the commissioners urged the group to seek out their local representatives.

"Find your legislators' stance and speak to them about your losses," said Kramer. "Some of your neighbors could be hit. If you have the chance to lobby, please do."

ASK ST. LUKE'S

The Details on Diabetes

What are the risk factors and symptoms of adult onset Type 2 diabetes? And if you have Type 2 diabetes, is it reversible? — Lisa, Buhl

Answered by Dr. Betty Sugden, St. Luke's Clinic, Jerome Family Medicine:

Risk factors include obesity and a diet high in sugars, starches and carbohydrates. Carbohydrates like white bread, pasta, flour tortillas and potatoes can raise your blood sugar. Of course, cakes, pies, cookies, chips and sugary drinks can all be contributing factors. Family history and genetic tendency also play an important role in the onset of adult diabetes. Lack of physical activity is associated with increasing your risk of getting Type 2 diabetes. Sugared carbonated drinks pose a very large risk factor, given that many people drink large quantities of these drinks on a daily basis. Symptoms of diabetes may include being excessively thirsty and urinating more frequently than usual. Another symptom may be getting up at night to urinate when that isn't something you normally do. You might be very hungry, but at the same time, losing weight. This happens because you are not able to use insulin, which is what incorporates sugar into your body for energy. The sugar comes out of your body in urine rather being used as a nutrient. People can feel dehydrated or experience blurred vision, or you may feel tired. You might get more bladder infections. Many people don't get diabetic symptoms until their blood sugar levels are very high — it can sometimes take five to six years before you could be diagnosed with diabetes. A blood glucose test is the key to determining the initial diabetic diagnosis. If you get diabetes, it is possible to return your blood sugar to a normal level and reverse your diagnosis. It takes hard work and collaboration with your primary care physician to determine what is the best course of action for you personally. It is best that you talk to your primary care provider when you get your annual wellness exam. They may include screening for your blood sugar level as part of your annual exam.

Another Windy Weekend

Brian Neudorff

Meteorologist

“As long as it's not windy, I'm fine.” That is a statement I hear very often when it comes to southern Idaho. Unfortunately, it looks like we have another wind event shaping up for the second half of the weekend. Areas of patchy fog and drizzle will be possible through the morning, but lifting to give way to some sunshine and warm temperatures. It will be breezy, with 10-20 mph winds out of the southeast but these winds will help push our afternoon temperatures into the mid 50s. Changes come for the second half of the weekend in the form of a cold front that moves through tonight into Sunday. Another weekend, another cold front that will bring showers to the area, this time in the form of rain. There could be some rain / snow mix as you work up into the higher elevations. Most of the precipitation will fall late tonight into early Saturday morning. The main story with this front will not be the precipitation but the winds. Winds will shift out of the west and will be sustained from 30 to 40 mph and gust near 50 mph for most of the day. Temperatures will be colder by about 10 degrees, with highs on Sunday in the mid to low 40s.

Jerome Sheriff Seeks Help with Business Theft

Scientists Say More Bison Vaccines Wouldn't Work

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) • A panel of scientists recommended against ramping up a vaccine program as a way to reduce disease prevalence in Yellowstone National Park bison, park officials said Friday.

The eight-member panel of university scientists and government researchers was convened this week by park administrators and Montana wildlife officials.

After three days of deliberations, they said proposals to more aggressively vaccinate wild bison against brucellosis would be ineffective at suppressing the disease. Brucellosis can cause pregnant animals to miscarry.

Some ranchers in Montana want the park to eradicate the disease from Yellowstone bison to prevent transmissions to cattle. About half the park's more than 4,000 bison have been exposed to brucellosis, which is also found in elk.

Yellowstone's chief scientist, Dave Hallac, said the scientific panel's recommendations will be considered as the park seeks to finish a decade-long bison vaccination study that includes the possibility of shooting the animals with specialized vaccination guns.

A final report from the scientists is expected in about three months, and Hallac said a final decision on a vaccination program is expected within a year.

Panel members also said the existing approach of keeping cattle and bison separate appeared to be effective because there have been no documented transmissions of brucellosis from bison to cattle.

And controlling the park's more than 4,000 bison through hunting and slaughter will likely continue — even though it has not had any apparent effect on reducing brucellosis levels, they said.

More research was recommended on proposals to use contraception as a way to control brucellosis and prevent its spread.

Suspect Up Seattle Tree Comes Down after 3 Hours

SEATTLE (AP) • A man wanted by police after an assault climbed 40 feet up a tree next to railroad tracks and dangled precariously for three hours Friday, prompting officials to stop train traffic until he climbed down.

The 38-year-old man had earlier broken windows at his ex-girlfriend's home and injured her male roommate, police said. He was arrested for investigation of domestic violence burglary, property damage and felony assault.

The man had recently been released from prison, Seattle police said on their blotter.

As he was led away in handcuffs, a KIRO-TV reporter asked the man why he climbed the tree.

"I like to climb," he said.

Officials feared the man would fall on the tracks in the Magnolia neighborhood near the Ballard railroad bridge. He climbed up and down on thin branches, swung back and forth, and at one point took off some clothes to make a little hammock he hung on for a while. He threatened to harm himself.

A Seattle Fire Department rescue team with ladders was standing by in case the man needed help, KOMO Radio reported.

A police negotiator talked with the man before he climbed down at about 8:30 a.m.

Police believe the man went to the ex-girlfriend's house in the neighborhood at about 1:30 a.m. and assaulted the man who was living there. The roommate was treated at a hospital for a broken foot.

Police believe the attacker returned at about 5 a.m. to break windows. The ex-girlfriend had fled the house out of fear and was unharmed.

Officers were investigating the property damage when an officer was flagged down by a motorist who reported hearing a man calling for help. Police figured out it was their suspect.

Seven trains were delayed while the tracks were closed: four Sound Transit Sounder commuter trains, an Amtrak train and two freight trains, said Burlington Northern Santa Fe spokesman Gus Melonas.

The tracks between Seattle and Everett have been repeatedly closed by mudslides this winter. Melonas said this was the first time in his 37-year railroad career that he has seen tracks closed by a man up a tree.

Pocket Dialing Calls Police to Drug Deal

MOLALLA, Ore. (AP) • Police in the Oregon town of Molalla say a dispatcher received a cellphone call and overheard a drug deal taking place.

A phone in the woman's pocket inadvertently dialed 911 early Tuesday and dispatchers heard a conversation with a man about drugs.

KGW reports police tracked the GPS signal to a car in an alley about a block away. An officer who arrived at the scene could be heard over the phone by dispatchers.

The officer found methamphetamine and arrested a 25-year-old man on multiple drug charges. The 25-year-old woman was cited for possessing marijuana — and hung up her phone.

Police: Meth Hidden in Pizza Box

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Police say they found drugs, not dinner, inside a pizza box during a recent traffic stop.

At about 4:30 p.m. on Feb. 27, a Twin Falls police officer stopped a vehicle after it allegedly crossed over the double yellow lines twice in the 1900 block of Addison Avenue East in Twin Falls.

According to a police report, the driver, Janna Lynn Learn, 31, told the officer she was eating and talking while driving, which caused her to cross over the line.

According to the report, another officer with a drug-sniffing dog helped with the stop. The report states that the dog sniffed the air around the vehicle and indicated there may be drugs present.

The passenger, Leonardo Honorato Martinez, 29, agreed to let police search him, the report states. According to the report, police found a glass pipe with white residue in it. The report states that the residue tested positive for methamphetamine after police performed a field test.

Police then searched the vehicle. According to the report, an officer found two bags containing a white crystal substance inside a pizza box that was sitting between the two front seats.

The substance in those bags also allegedly tested positive for meth. In the report, police wrote that they also found meth inside Learn's purse.

Martinez and Learn were both arrested. The two were arraigned on one charge each of possession of a controlled substance Thursday, Feb. 28, in Twin Falls County 5th District Court. Both are scheduled for preliminary hearings on March 8.

Police: Angry about Cheating, Woman Attacked Pair in Bed

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Police say a woman who believed she was being cheated on attacked a man and woman with part of a steel bed frame while they slept.

Jordana Brenda Bryan, 61, has been charged with aggravated battery causing great bodily harm in connection with the alleged attack.

Police responded at about 3 a.m. on Feb. 20 to the 100 block of Blue Lakes Boulevard in Twin Falls for a call about a battery.

When police arrived a woman told them that Bryan attacked her and a man while they were sleeping.

Both the man and woman told police that Bryan came into the room yelling vulgar names and began pulling the blankets off the two before she then hit them with part of a steel bed frame.

The two said they didn't know where Bryan went after the attack, the report states.

According to the report, the woman said her arm was numb and she believed it might be broken. Police reported seeing several severe lacerations on her legs. The man drove the woman to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center, the report states.

The report states that Twin Falls County Sheriff's deputies found Bryan at her home near the intersection of 2600 East and 3500 North, southwest of Hansen, where she was taken into custody.

When police asked Bryan what happened she allegedly told police that she went to a business she co-owns with the man and "had a feeling" the man was cheating on her, the report states.

Bryan allegedly said she ripped back the blankets from a bed there, saw the two in bed and began hitting and kicking the woman, the report states. According to the report, Bryan said she grabbed the steel piece and threw it down at the woman several times, the report states.

A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Bryan for March 22 in Twin Falls County Court.

Police: Spokane Mom Catches Baby Falling Out of Window

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) • A toddler who jumped on a bed and bounced out a second-story window was saved Friday by his mother, who leaped behind him, caught his foot and lowered him safely to his grandmother who was having a smoke on the porch below, police said.

The mother was just getting out of the shower when she saw the 14-month-old boy, who had been jumping on the bed, trip on a pillow and fly out the half-open window, Police Communications Director Monique Cotton said.

The mother smashed through the window and caught him by a foot as his head bounced on a small roof overhanging the front porch.

The momentum took them both out the window to the porch overhang. The mother was able to lower the baby to the grandmother just as his shoe came off in her hand, police said.

The grandmother heard the breaking glass and was in the right place at the right time to catch the baby before the mother fell into some bushes. She was taken to a hospital for treatment of cuts and a shoulder injury, Cotton said.

"The baby actually did fall," Cotton said. "Grandma caught him and mom fell in the bushes nearby. She's pretty scraped up."

The baby also was taken to the hospital with grandma to be checked out.

"The baby is going to be fine," Cotton said.

North-central Idaho Sees Rash of Burglaries

KENDRICK (AP) • Residents in the north-central Idaho towns of Juliaetta and Kendrick say they're frustrated over a rash of burglaries in recent months.

Burglars have hit several businesses and residences over the fall and winter months, the Lewiston Tribune reported. The post office, library and public schools have been targeted by burglars, and a Red Cross Pharmacy has been hit twice, according to the Latah County Sheriff's Department.

The small towns don't have their own police force and instead rely on the sheriff's office for law enforcement. Kendrick City Clerk Barbara Wilson said the city pays the sheriff's office $160 for five hours of patrol each month.

Pharmacy owner Doug Clayton said he wants a neighborhood watch program and a more prominent police presence. He says it typically takes a deputy 30 minutes to respond to an alarm, and criminals know they've got plenty of time to rob a store.

Last week, Clayton arrived at his store to find someone had forced open an old door that had been nailed and screwed shut.

"They really worked at that sucker," Clayton said, describing the effort and patience it took to force open the sealed entrance. The burglar, who was caught on Clayton's new surveillance cameras, took more than 3,000 hydrocodone tablets, 1,300 Valium tablets and 600 to 900 Xanax tablets.

The sheriff's office has a copy of the video, but Clayton said the person was wearing a cap and mask, making identification difficult. The male perpetrator appeared to be about 6 feet tall with a slender build, he said.

Public Works Director Steve Howerton said he sometimes sees one or two deputies driving the streets, but it doesn't take much effort to evade them.

"I think (criminals have) got their pattern figured out pretty well," Howerton said.

City officials have discussed taxing residents and businesses to cover the cost of hiring a full or part-time officer a few years ago, but the plan proved to be prohibitively expensive, Howerton said.

Sheriff Wayne Rausch says the region is struggling with a drug problem and he believes drugs are at the root of the burglaries. Rausch said his investigators have been working hard on the cases and could make arrests in the next couple of weeks.

Barbershop Chorus Marks 45 Years with Concert in Burley

BY LAURIE WELCH
welch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • The Snake River Flats will perform their 45th Anniversary Show on March 16 at the King Fine Arts Center in Burley.

The chorus will be joined by Reprise Quartet of Salt Lake City and the Gateway Chorus of Pocatello.

Special guests will include the White Pine Elementary School Chorus, said Aaron Clegg, president of the Snake River Flats.

The show is the major annual fundraiser for the chorus.

"Our chorus is still in danger of losing our charter," said Clegg, who is the youngest of the seven paid members of the Mini-Cassia chapter. "We are teetering on the edge of losing it."

If the chapter falls below six members, it will lose the Clegg said several of their members are in their mid- to late 80s.

Clegg has spent the year trying to recruit new members into the group but hasn't received much response.

Cost of the dues, which runs $151 for local, district and Barbershop Harmony Society dues, deters some potential members.

"A lot of people are just not interested in this type of music anymore," Clegg said.

Clegg said current music can be arranged into barbershop style.

north end of Twin Falls. Workers will reduce traffic to one lane each way starting around May, Jerke said. It was originally scheduled to be completed last year but ITD chose to delay the project until other smaller bridges were resurfaced.

Ideally, the project will be completed in 16 days before Memorial Day and summer activities begin, Jerke said.

"The odds of it being delayed this year are pretty much none," he said. "We really tried to ratchet down the amount of days the lanes would be closed."

Just north of the bridge, ITD plans to tackle the second stage of the I-84/U.S. 93 junction project to rebuild the I-84 eastbound bridge and ramps, relocate and install a new signal south of the junction, and extend the merging lane onto westbound I-84.

Work will begin in March on off-road sections, Jerke said. The project is expected to last about five months.

"We are hoping Perrine Bridge gets done before we start impacting traffic near the junction," Jerke said.

Another large project will take place east of Burley along westbound Interstate 86, from its junction with I-84 to the Raft River interchange. The work will mirror what was completed on the eastbound lanes in 2011.

However, since the $10 million project has yet to land a bid, it is still unknown when the project will begin. The department hopes to start in April or May, Jerke said.

"The big complaint out there is that it's one way in one direction for 15 miles," he said. "Our goal is to get it done as fast as possible."

In Blaine County, drivers can expect a one-lane reduction on Idaho Highway 75 from Timber Way to the Big Wood River Bridge.

Construction crews plan to rebuild and expand 3.25 miles of roadway to four lanes with new turn bays and a new signal at Hospital Drive.

"Hopefully, we'll see completion this year," Jerke said. "Depending on weather, it may be pushed back to 2014."

Overall, almost every area in southern Idaho will see some sort of construction project, Jerke. ITD is asking for drivers to drive safely and follow speed limits within construction areas.

"We are urging people to keep an eye out and stay safe," he said.

Inmate firefighter crews set back fires to fight the fast moving brush fire as it burns everything in its path at the Santa Ana River Wildlife Area in Riverside, Calif. on Thursday.

S. Calif. Wildfire is 40 Percent Contained

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Firefighters stopped the spread of a 311-acre wildfire in the heavily vegetated Santa Ana River bottom Friday, despite gusty Santa Ana winds and extremely dry conditions amid a late-winter heat spell.

Firefighters continued to work on hotspots, and a firefighting helicopter was on standby, said Greg Birchfield, a spokesman for the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection in Riverside County.

Containment was estimated at 40 percent. Afternoon conditions included northeast winds at 10-15 mph with gusts to 20-25 mph with temperatures in the low 80s and relative humidity at just 5 percent.

No injuries were reported, Birchfield said.

At its peak, the fire downed power lines and burned near a residential area, prompting a call for voluntary evacuations. That order was lifted and electricity was restored by Friday morning, county fire officials said.

On Thursday, a backyard trailer went up in flames about a quarter-mile from the fire lines in a neighborhood where embers were flying, but fire officials couldn't immediately say whether the wildfire embers sparked it.

Southern California's Santa Ana winds are most often associated with fall but can occur through winter. They are created when air moving clockwise around an area of surface high pressure in the interior of the West flows down through passes and canyons in the region's mountains, gaining speed and warmth as they blow from a northeasterly direction toward the Pacific Ocean.

Numerous Southern California points saw Friday high temperatures in the 80s and Fullerton, in Orange County, hit 90.

The National Weather Service said the surface high pressure over the Great Basin was expected to slowly weaken through early Saturday.

CHEERS AND JEERS

CHEERS to the Declo Hornets for winning their third team title in a row (and the fourth in school history). Declo had nine wrestlers place in the top six.

Winning three consecutive titles is rare, but not unprecedented. According to Idaho High School Activities Association records, three-peats have occurred 14 times by 11 different schools: Marsh Valley, Pocatello (twice), Teton (twice), Meridian, Sandpoint (twice), Eagle, Columbia, Snake River, American Falls, Parma and North Fremont. Teton won a record six in a row from 1968 to 1973.

CHEERS to the Twin Falls School District for taking a quick and decisive stand against cyberbullying this week. The district took action to remove two student-created Facebook pages the district says were full of cyberbullying among students at its two high schools.

School district spokeswoman Beth Pendergrass said students at Twin Falls and Canyon Ridge high schools posted comments about other students on the “Confessions” pages. Pendergrass said Facebook removed the pages within hours of the district reporting them.

Canyon Ridge High School Principal Brady Dickinson sent an email to parents Tuesday about the pages.

“Schools will be monitoring the sites and if we are able to identify any of our students who have used the sites to intimidate, harass or otherwise harm another student, they will be subject to disciplinary action up to and including suspension or expulsion,” he wrote.

In response to the pages, students at Twin Falls High School created a “Twin Falls High Compliments” Facebook page for students to leave positive comments about each other and their school.

The “Compliments” page had about 337 Facebook “likes” Thursday evening.

CHEERS to Idaho’s House Education Committee who approved a bill that would give back to schools $30 million that was lost when voters repealed the 2011 Students Come First laws last fall. Rejection of those laws translated to a mid-year funding cut to schools, even though districts were counting on that money to make ends meet this year.

The bill now goes to the full House for debate.

LETTERS OF THANKS

Thank You To All Who Helped Us in a Difficult Times

I want to thank the staff at the Times-News for being faithful in doing a respectful job of informing the public of recent deaths. Thank you for making space to print long articles.

I wish to thank St. Luke’s emergency room and third floor doctor and nursing staff for the gentle care in their attempts to help my daughter, Sarah Bowman. I saw such kindness and respect for her even though she had no idea what was taking place. For the first time in my life, I witnessed male nurses give care so tenderly. I watched in tears as one fellow washed her eyes and then continued to wipe her face with such soft movements. The help the kitchen staff gave is much appreciated. They made it so I never had to leave my daughter’s side. All made Sarah’s passing a peaceful event.

Thanks to the doctors and staff at the MISTI center. Everyone showed concern and helpfulness. I thank you for being honest and telling me what to expect without false hope. I was able to prepare for the end of my daughter’s life.

Thank you to Parke’s Magic Valley Funeral Home for working with us and making arrangements that showed respect to my daughter and also for the family.

Also, I want to thank Valley Vista Village for its help in making my daughter welcome. Everyone has been a blessing at this time.

Thank you to Pastor Carlson of the Cornerstone Baptist Church. He arrived at the hospital just when Sarah needed him most. As soon as she saw him, she grabbed his hand and said, “Pray for me.” He did and I could see her body relax, and she settled into a peaceful sleep. She had no fear. She knew Jesus was waiting for her.

So many friends have come and shown support and love. We spent time sharing our favorite funny Sarah moments. It helped to relive those moments with people who loved her.

I want to publicly thank Ruby Hammond, who has worked so hard in caring for Sarah. Without her knowledge of the system, Sarah wouldn’t have received as much help as she needed throughout the years. I know she loves Sarah as much as I.

Most of all, I want to thank God for being faithful in preparing us for this time. He has given me such peace. I know that Sarah and I will someday be together again. Both of us will be walking and laughing in our heavenly bodies. No more pain or sorrow in our old bodies.

God bless all of you.

ONLINE COMMENTS

The conversation continues 24/7 on Magicvalley.com.

A lively debate was sparked online by the letter to the editor, “Gun Laws Should Be Left the Way They Are Now.”

tcasella: “It’s people, not guns.” Which is why we need more restrictions on people, not guns. Your argument is old. Please read the 23 Executive Orders and let me know exactly what your issue is, really. Absolutely no guns were asked to be taken away, which you would know if you had read the Executive Orders. The requests in those Executive Orders neither took away, nor threatened to take away, anything. They are very reasonable. TCasella” platts: “tcasella, When Democrats agree to restrict guns to crazy people or any other restriction on the Second Amendment that would prevent atrocities that have happened I will listen. Obama has lied to the American people not once or twice but hundreds of times just in the last few months so you are going to believe him again

- No thanks. I can show you where his proposed programs that are in effect in the US and require over a four month wait and more than $400 to license one hand gun for protection. People that will readily readily agree to giving up their freedoms to slick politicians don’t deserve them in the first place.”

Thank You to Kind Man Who Helped Me in Grocery Store Parking Lot

Last Saturday morning (Feb. 23) coming out of Fred Meyer, a gust of wind caught me while I was walking to my car. The pavement was frozen. I could have been blown to Kimberly by these high winds had it not been for a young man who rushed to help me and helped me get into

In this day and age when you have to try to talk to computer answering machines or a person from another country, it is really great to know that old-fashioned service is still alive and well at Mel Quale’s Electronics.

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) • A former University of Montana quarterback was acquitted Friday in a rape trial that has played out amid NCAA and federal investigations into how the city and school respond to rape allegations on campus.

The accusations against Jordan Johnson, 20, have drawn much attention in Montana, where UM football is the top sports attraction. Jurors deliberated for less than two hours.

Johnson led the University of Montana to a successful 2011 season as starting quarterback before being accused of assaulting a woman as they watched a movie together at her home last February.

His case has played out against a backdrop of NCAA and federal investigations of the university's athletic department and the manner in which rape allegations are handled on campus, investigated by police and prosecuted by the Missoula County attorney's office.

The situation left some worried that the highly successful football team was out of control off the field.

Early in Johnson's trial, the woman testified that she and Johnson were kissing when his demeanor changed and he held her down and raped her, despite her protests. Johnson told jurors the sex was consensual and that the woman never said "no," or he would have stopped.

He was briefly suspended from the football team when the allegations surfaced, then kicked off after charges were filed in July.

His trial began with jury selection Feb. 8. District Judge Karen Townsend initially called 400 potential jurors for the high-profile case, eventually seating 12 with five alternates.

Both the woman and Johnson testified that they had agreed to watch a movie at her house on Feb. 4, 2012, and that they were kissing and had taken off some of their clothes.

The woman told jurors that despite her protests, Johnson held her down and forced her to have sex with him.

She texted her roommate: "Omg ... I think I might have just gotten raped ... he kept pushing and pushing and I said no but he wouldn't listen ... I just wanna cry ... Omg what do I do!"

Johnson testified the sex was consensual. He said she asked if he had a condom and said it was OK that he didn't.

Concerns about the handling of sexual assault cases peaked in December 2011, when UM President Royce Engstrom ordered an outside investigation after two students reported being drugged and raped.

Former Supreme Court Justice Diane Barz later said her investigation found nine alleged rapes or sexual assaults involving students had occurred between September 2010 and December 2011, including at least two that hadn't been reported.

Idaho to Return Governor's Mansion to Simplot Family

BOISE (AP) • Idaho aims to return the hilltop mansion to the Simplot family by June 30 in a tentative agreement over the would-be governor's residence-turned-money pit that remained vacant even as maintenance costs skyrocketed.

That's according to a resolution approved unanimously by the Idaho Governor's Housing Committee Friday at a meeting in Boise.

J.R. Simplot, the deceased billionaire who built his agricultural empire, in part, on french fry sales to McDonald's, donated the home in 2004. But the fund to maintain the mansion has dwindled to just $775,000, from $1.5 million in 2005, as maintenance, electricity and repair costs added up.

According to the resolution, Idaho is "very grateful" for the gift but believes it's in the best interest of the state to return it. Sen. Chuck Winder, R-Boise, real-estate broker and the committee's chairman, reached the agreement with the family after discussions starting last year.

Other members of the governor's Housing committee, which includes four lawmakers and the head of the Department of Administration, also expressed relief at this decision.

"We do appreciate the gift, it just didn't work out, it's too costly for our budget," said Rep. Phylis King, D-Boise. "I think this is a great resolution."

Simplot's heirs originally insisted Idaho keep the place, but now are amenable to taking it back.

"We were aware of the resolution, we think it speaks for itself," said David Cuoio, a spokesman for the company in Boise.

Four days before Christmas in 2004, an elated then-Gov. Dirk Kempthorne released the big news: Simplot, who died in 2008, and his wife, Esther, had agreed to hand over the keys to the 7,400-square-foot home.

"As governors go and come, they'll enjoy it, I hope," Simplot said at the time, with Kempthorne at his side. "They won't have any trouble from me, that's for sure."

Almost immediately, assessors decided it was worth about a quarter less than original estimates, at the same time state officials concluded renovating the outdated 25-year-old home would cost much more — and take far longer — than expected.

Eventually, however, Kempthorne's plan to raise more than $3 million to do the work fizzled at just a few hundred thousand dollars, in part because he wasn't around; in 2006, President George W. Bush named Kempthorne U.S. Interior secretary.

In the race to replace him as governor that year, the home became a campaign issue.

First, Democrat Jerry Brady opined he'd never live in a home more fit for a feudal lord than a man of the people.

The eventual winner, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter, had his own issues with the place: J.R. Simplot was his former father-in-law, before Otter's 1993 divorce from Gay Simplot. After winning, the new governor decided he was more comfortable at his 70-acre ranch west of Boise.

Meanwhile, the costs were piling up: Maintenance costs of $80,000 seemed expensive in 2007, but they're now pegged at $180,000 for the current year: Electricity, $30,000; replacement flags, $5,100; janitors, $12,000.

It was this list of never-ending bills — the tile roof is now in need of major work — more fit for the billionaire who built the place than a conservative state that prides itself on how much money it doesn't spend that eventually proved decisive.

For years, the Simplots insisted the donation was final.

In 2006, J.R. Simplot, ever the businessman, told Idaho he'd trade 40 acres beneath the home still owned by the family for state land elsewhere — where he could mine or graze cattle.

Cuoio, the spokesman, said he's uncertain just what the family now plans to do with the house, once the transfer has taken place later this spring.

Last year, Sen. Les Bock, of Boise, was among those who began pushing for a final resolution for the house, including calling for public hearings. Nearly everybody who spoke favored the state jettisoning the property.

"It's the right thing to do, under the circumstances," Bock said Friday. "This is a chapter we can turn the page on."

Now that the decision has been made, Department of Administration director Teresa Luna said she'll spend the next 30 days determining how to prepare the home, including relocating the state china and deciding what to do with furnishings Idaho bought with donated funds.

For his part, Otter was consulted before Friday's vote, but his aides said he declined to influence the decision.

"The governor said he would go along with whatever they decided," said spokesman Jon Hanian. "Quite frankly, he doesn't have a vote there."

Man Adjusts to Spotlight from Gay Custody Case

IDAHO FALLS (AP) • Photographers, TV cameramen and reporters crowded around Theron McGriff as he descended the steps of the Idaho Supreme Court in Boise.

Like all people, McGriff was many things: Idaho Falls resident, Idaho National Laboratory manager, proud father of two girls.

But in that moment in 2004, the world cared only that McGriff was gay. Gay and sick with worry that the court's decision might separate him from his daughters.

The court later voted 4-1 to deny McGriff custody of his children but said in its ruling that "sexual orientation, in and of itself, cannot be the basis for awarding or removing custody."

He won the war for the cause but lost his own battle.

McGriff could not see the reporters raining questions upon him as he descended the courthouse steps. He only saw the glowering row of foam-covered microphones fencing him in a crowded semicircle.

The photo of McGriff in the Sept. 30, 2004, the Post Register gave eastern Idaho a face to later recognize as gay, someone to point at in grocery stores.

That face looked tired.

McGriff didn't ask for the attention. He wasn't trying to spearhead a movement.

Shutters snapped anyway. Questions peppered him from all sides.

"It was a bit overwhelming," McGriff said Wednesday. "They were asking me very deep and personal questions. I was not hysterical, but I was definitely upset. I was overcome at that moment."

But McGriff toughened.

Strangers rallied to his support during the appeal and its aftermath.

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Theron McGriff talks about his child custody battle Feb. 19 at the Unitarian Universalist Church in Idaho Falls.

One of his new friends was John Schroeder, another gay Idaho Falls parent.

Schroeder said McGriff was traumatized by the attention, once even vomiting before giving an interview to a national TV network.

But Schroeder said McGriff slowly accepted his mantle as the face of being gay in Idaho Falls.

"He was really quite distraught about all the attention, but he understood it wasn't just about him," Schroeder said. "It was about all gay parents."

At the onset of the appeal, all McGriff cared about was preserving his right to parent his daughters.

That aspect worked out.

Despite the court's ruling that denied McGriff custody, his ex-wife relented, and eventually his girls were again staying with him a little more than half the time.

McGriff's partner slept in a trailer parked outside the house during the appeal. With the courtroom drama behind them, he moved inside.

He remains there today, nearly 17 years after they became a couple.

The girls grew up, graduated from high school and went to college. Today, they are 18 and 22.

McGriff said they never encountered significant problems at school, which pleasantly surprised him. Other parents also were more accepting than he expected.

"Times are changing," McGriff said. "Kids don't have the hang-ups adults do."

Ore. Report Says Coal-train Dust Data Too Sparse

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) • Industry data are too scant to gauge the health effects of coal dust blowing off of trains headed from the Great Plains to export terminals along the West Coast, according to a review by Multnomah County's health department.

County Chairman Jeff Coggen, a coal export opponent, requested the report on health effects, The Oregonian newspaper reported.

Local governments can't stop the export projects, he said, but "the burden should be on the coal companies and the train companies to prove that this is not going to damage the health of our residents."

One in nine Multnomah County residents lives within a third of a mile of potential coal-train routes, the report said.

Three of the five terminals being considered for coal exports could send trains through Portland — one in Coos Bay and two along the Columbia River in Longview, Wash., and at a Port of St. Helens industrial park near Clatskanie.

The analysis looked at the impact if all three projects succeed, bringing up to 90 million tons of coal through the county on 16 to 19 trains each day. But some of the traffic might be on the Washington side of the river, and two of the terminals haven't applied for permits.

"The bottom line is a lot of the information on coal dust dispersal is proprietary, and it's not well validated," said Gary Oxman, who recently retired as county health officer and oversaw the report. "It doesn't mean there's a terrible risk from train transport, but it needs to be illuminated more."

The report says the federal government should do a regional study of export proposals, a call similar to one made by Oregon Gov. John Kitzhaber. The dust contains harmful metals, including cadmium. But little is known about how it's dispersed or the size of the particles. Smaller particles are more likely to lodge in the lungs.

BNSF Railway has estimated that up to a ton blows off of a single car. But terminal and rail officials say most of the dust is lost near mines in Montana and Wyoming's Powder River Basin.

Coal shipments have been going through Washington to export ports in British Columbia for decades with no complaints made to regulators there, say advocates such as the Alliance for Northwest Jobs and Exports, a trade group that includes railroads and coal companies.

"Coal dust is one issue where people involved in the alliance feel very, very comfortable that it's not a concern," said spokeswoman Lauri Hennessey. "I really feel it's a red herring."

The report concludes the trains a mile long would generate relatively small increases in diesel pollution and noise, but they would go through areas already heavily affected by pollution. The trains could create cumulative delays of up to two hours per day at at-grade rail crossings, the report said.

State Dept: No Major Objections to Canada Pipeline

WASHINGTON (AP) • The State Department on Friday raised no major objections to the Keystone XL oil pipeline and said other options to get the oil from Canada to Gulf Coast refineries are worse for climate change.

But the latest environmental review stops short of recommending whether the project should be approved. State Department approval of the 1,700-mile pipeline is needed because it crosses a U.S. border. The lengthy report says Canadian tar sands are likely to be developed, regardless of whether the U.S. approves Keystone XL, which would carry oil from western Canada to refineries in Texas. The pipeline would also travel through Montana, South Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma.

The report acknowledges that development of tar sands in Alberta would create greenhouse gases but makes clear that other methods to transport the oil — including rail, trucks and barges — also pose a risk to the environment.

The State Department analysis for the first time evaluated two options using rail: shipping the oil on trains to existing pipelines or to oil tankers. The report shows that those other methods would release more greenhouse gases that contribute to global warming than the pipeline. The Keystone XL pipeline, according to the report, would release annually the same amount of global warming pollution as 626,000 passenger cars.

A scenario that would move the oil on trains to mostly existing pipelines would release 8 percent more greenhouse gases such as carbon dioxide than Keystone XL. That scenario would not require State Department approval because any new pipelines would not cross the U.S. border.

Another alternative that relies mostly on rail to move the oil to the Canadian west coast, where it would be loaded on to oil tankers to the U.S. Gulf Coast, would result in 17 percent more greenhouse gas emissions, the report said.

In both alternatives, the oil would be shipped in rail cars as bitumen, a thick, tar-like substance, rather than as a liquid. The State Department was required to conduct a new environmental analysis after the pipeline's operator, Calgary-based TransCanada, changed the project's route through Nebraska. The Obama administration blocked the project last year because of concerns that the original route would have jeopardized environmentally sensitive land in the Sand Hills region.

The administration later approved a southern section of the pipeline, from Cushing, Okla., to the Texas coast, as part of what President Barack Obama has called an "all of the above" energy policy.

In this Jan. 23 photo, Sen. John Hoeven, R-N.D., points at an illustration of existing pipeline, while speaking at a news conference about the Keystone XL oil pipeline on Capitol Hill in Washington.

Happy 40th

Imputation? What is That?

I was thinking the other day about Christ-given salvation. It is a pure delight to think about all that happens within a person's heart when salvation is granted. It is awesome to think about the grace, faith, transformation, adoption, regeneration, forgiveness, confession, justification and imputation that are integral aspects of redemption.

Wait, imputation? Yes, imputation.

Now that sounds like an intrusive word, and it is. But what is it? In a proper, biblical understanding of salvation, it is essential to have a theology that includes imputation, that is, Christ's righteousness imputed to believers. Wayne Grudem, in his great work "Systematic Theology" explains imputation in this way: "God thinks of Christ's righteousness as belonging to us, or regards it as belonging to us."

Imputation is closely related to justification. As a matter of fact they go hand in hand. There is no justification without the imputation of Christ's righteousness. Grudem defines justification as "an instantaneous legal act of God in which he thinks of our sins as forgiven and Christ's righteousness as belonging to us, and declares us to be righteous in his sight."

This imputed righteousness gives the redeemed Christian the ability to have a right relationship with God Almighty. It gives whoever believes in Jesus Christ the ability to go directly to the throne room of God and intercede without the need for a priest. Being imputed with Christ's righteousness empowers the believer to be seen by God as His child. This is awesome stuff.

A passage of Scripture that spells out this truth can be found in the book of Romans. In chapter four, the Apostle Paul is laying out the doctrines of justification and imputation. Paul clearly points to the fact that God is the One who justifies and the One who imputes Christ's righteousness. What then shall we say that Abraham, our forefather according to the flesh, has found?

For if Abraham was justified by works, he has something to boast about, but not before God. For what does the Scripture say? "Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him as righteousness" (4:1-3; emphasis added). God did not grant Abraham righteousness based upon his works but because of his faith in God.

Paul continues in verses four and five, "Now to the one who works, his wage is not credited as a favor, but as what is due. But to the one who does not work, but believes in Him who justifies the ungodly, his faith is credited as righteousness, just as David also speaks of the blessing on the man to whom God credits righteousness apart from works." Imputed righteousness comes through a faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. It is an instantaneous thing that the Lord does.

Romans 5:17 says, "For if by the transgression of the one, death reigned through the one, much more those who receive the abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness will reign in life through the One, Jesus Christ."

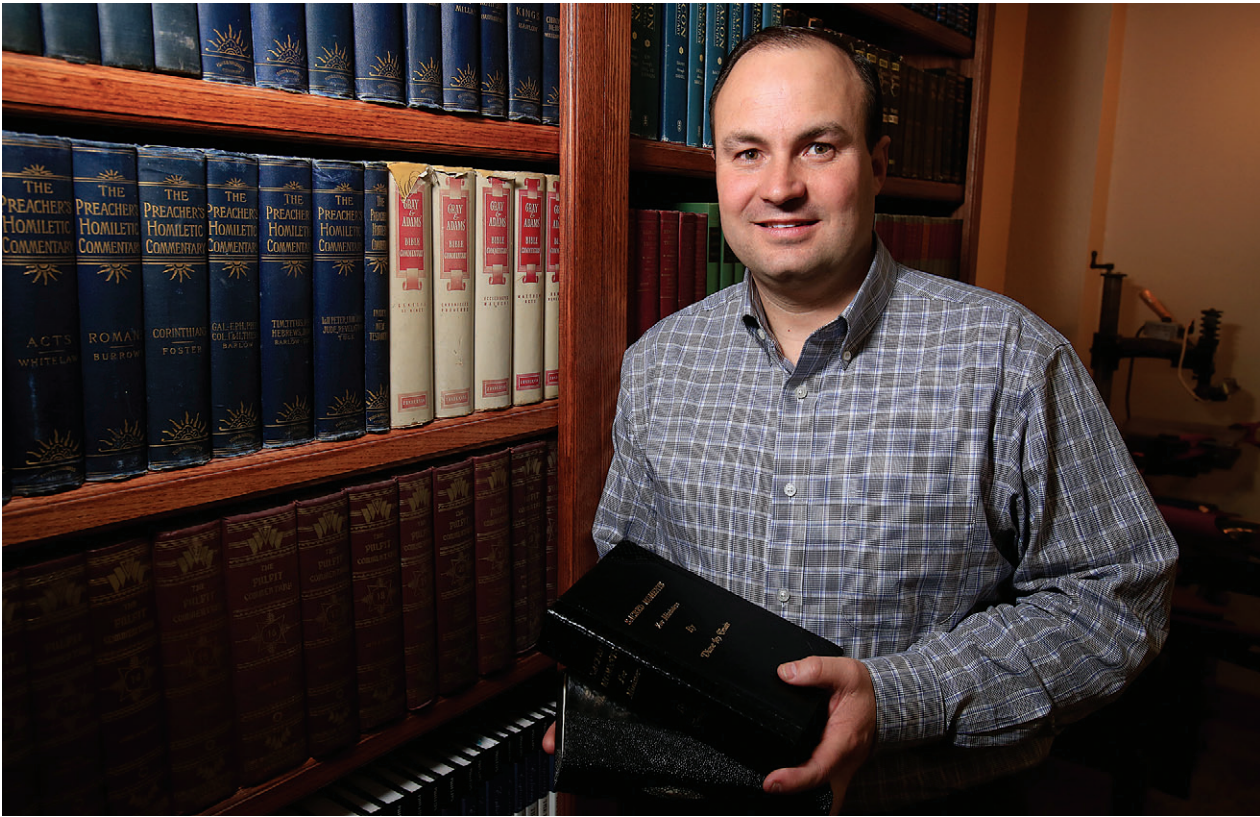

What a great promise and process salvation is. It is not that a believer is justified through baptism, and then must work to get heaven. No, justification is imputed with Christ's righteousness at the moment faith in the Lord Jesus Christ alone becomes a reality. After salvation, the believer's Christ-redeemed works are a product of this imputed righteousness.

Let me conclude with this great truth. "Therefore, having been justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom also we have obtained our introduction by faith into this grace in which we stand; and we exult in hope of the glory of God" (Romans 5:1-2).

Beloved, faith in the Lord Jesus Christ is the conduit through which this justifying, imputing righteousness of Christ is given to the redeemed sinner. Peace comes from knowing that Christ is enough. He is sufficient. He has performed a work on the cross that flows into those who trust Him with their whole heart, and godly fruit is a display of Christ's righteousness in the life of the believer. This fruit reveals to the world those who belong to Christ. All I can say is "Hallelujah, what a Savior!"

The Hands that Bind

Pastor Darin Dodd perfects his art with a swathe of the exotic.

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • In the basement of Bible Missionary Church, pastor Darin Dodd practices an ancient art.

Below the pulpit sits Dodd's office, a room filled with shelves of books and 30 drawers containing hundreds of metal fonts and religious symbol stamps.

It's a library of religious works kept together by Dodd's deft hands.

Bookbinding — the assembling of pages and a cover into a book — was around well before the invention of movable type. European monks hand-stitched books together during the 6th century.

Dodd employs similiar attention to detail.

He has always used quality glue, which locks on but never gets brittle, and the best hides — his favorite is goatskin. But recently, Dodd began to stretch more exotic hides across the books he binds.

Recently, Dodd displayed a shiny black book on his desk that looked wet to the touch. Glistening in gold on the spine was the title, "Sacred Moments for Ministers."

What looked like patent leather was actually sea snake skin.

The dark green book with "Purity and Power" stamped in gold was made from the hide of a lizard. And a 100-year-old Bible nearby, a bubble pattern that resembled the rattle of a snake running up the book's spine, was actually an ostrich's leg. Dodd has started to buy these exotic hides from Tandy Leather Factory based in Texas to put his own touch on the craft of bookbinding. Eventually he would like to start using hides from a customer's hunt or safari. But he said the hides would need to be tanned first before he could use them.

Dodd started collecting books while a Bible college student in Illinois. A fifth-generation preacher, he said his father was an avid reader and book collector. As a student, the younger Dodd was also encouraged to continuously fill his mind with good material to share with their congregations.

So when Dodd and his father found out about a local college that was closing and selling their library, Dodd jumped at the chance to start his own collection.

"They were selling rare jewels for 10 cents a piece. I got a couple hundred books, but a lot of them needed repair," Dodd said.

But at the time, Dodd didn't know much about bookbinding and repair.

"I took an old T-shirt I colored to match the cover of one of the books," Dodd said. "I needed some training"

Dodd enrolled in a bookbinding class in Ann Arbor,

Mich., taught by Don Etherington, director of the Book Conservation Program at the American Academy of Bookbinding. Etherington has worked for the Library of Congress, conserving books and documents, and also worked on commissions for the royal family in England.

"He (Etherington) helped me take a big step forward," Dodd said.

The pastor found other mentors, including Frank Powell, a bookbinder from "People buy textbooks for $150 and they use and it just breaks. Books once had so much detail, now they use cheap glue and it's all done by machine ... they can't give them as much attention as they need."

Animal Realm to be Discussed

TWIN FALLS • Ken Whiting will lead the discussion, "The Animal Realm," when the Magic Valley Unitarian Universalist Fellowship meets at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls Senior Center, 530 Shoshone St. W.

Whiting says animals have always been regarded in Buddhist thought as sentient beings, different in their intellectual ability than humans but no less capable of feeling suffering. Furthermore, animals possess Buddha nature and therefore an equal potential to become enlightened. Moreover, the doctrine of rebirth held that any human could be reborn as an animal and any animal could be reborn as a human. An animal might be a reborn dead relative, and anybody who looked far enough back through his or her infinite series of lives would eventually perceive every animal to be a distant relative. The Buddha expounded that sentient beings currently living in the animal realm have been our mothers, brothers, sisters, fathers, children, friends in past rebirths. One cannot, therefore, make a hard distinction between moral rules applicable to animals and those applicable to humans; ultimately humans and animals were (once) part of a single family. They (and we) are all interconnected.

Participants will also discuss other religious beliefs and their own beliefs regarding animals as well as how the "human animal" fits into this interconnected web of life.

Newcomers are welcome. Child care is available. Information: Ken Whiting at 208-734-9161.

Series Focuses on Gospel of John

TWIN FALLS • During March, Church on a Mission, 134 Hansen St. E. in Twin Falls, will continue the Bible teaching series focused on the Gospel of John and the seven miraculous signs. This Sunday, March 3, will include special Communion and the Rev. Jim Sommer bringing the message. Worship is at 10:30 a.m.

Bible Study is at 6 p.m. Wednesdays at the church. Current study is in the Book of Luke.

A women's brunch will be held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, March 16, at the church. All women are invited. Those who need a ride are encouraged to call the church at its new number listed below.

All Invited to Sunday Dinner

WENDELL • A corned beef and cabbage dinner will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday, March 3, at the Wendell United Methodist Church, 175 E. Main.

Everyone is invited to come enjoy good food and visit with friends, family and neighbors.

Freewill offerings will be accepted.

Information: 208-536-5751.

Lenton Luncheon Every Wednesday

BURLEY • The First Presbyterian Church, 2100 Burton Ave. in Burley, continues its Lenten Luncheon series Wednesdays, Feb. 27 through March 20.

A soup and sandwich luncheon is served at noon. Fellowship and an inspirational message follow. The event will be over in an hour so working people can return to work on time. Freewill donations will be accepted for Camp Sawtooth scholarships.

Messages are from "Voices of Repentance" by Donald H. Neidigk. The series tells the stories of five everyday people who went to John the Baptist for baptism. Characters, except for John, are fictional and include a Pharisee, a Sadducee, a well-dressed man, a well-fed woman and a tax collector. Come see how their baptism by John and knowing Jesus impacted and changed their lives. We pray the stories will be meaningful to you as you search your hearts for a deeper, more meaningful relationship with your Savior Jesus Christ during this season of Lent.

All are welcome; please plan to attend and bring a friend! Information: call the church at 208-678-5131.

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS
Darin Dodd talks about the various leathers he uses to bind books.

Bind

And with the popularity of electronic books, Dodd has noticed the lack of detail given to books today.

"People buy textbooks for $150 and they use and it just breaks," Dodd said, picking up a book with a broken spine. "Books once had so much detail, now they use cheap glue and it's all done by machine... they can't give them as much attention as they need."

Finding a bookbinder, let alone a good one, is hard in Idaho, said Ruby "Bee" Stewart.

Stewart owns Bee's Book Been in Twin Falls, a bookstore that specializes in out-of-print and hard to find books. For years, she took her books to Powell to be repaired.

Today, she takes her books to Dodd, who started his own bookbinding business called Renew Bindery.

Sending books to binders in cities like New York City and Seattle is always an option. But Stewart said you don't know how well they will do until you get the book mailed back.

"If you're not in the big city, you can't find one that does a good job," Stewart said. "Darin and any bookbinder is an artist and what they do takes a lot of training and time to do it."

Dodd's business has grown by word of mouth.

"I knew he had good training," said Barbara Damon of Twin Falls, who found out about Dodd through Stewart.

Dodd restored three books for Damon: her church's records book from 1937, a 1934 Bible story book and an old medical book that belonged to Damon's mother.

"I didn't know there was one (bookbinder) locally," Damon said. "It's very hard to find someone from the old school."

To repair the book of Bible stories and the medical book cost $60 each. And Dodd did the church record book for free.

"They were in sad shape... It's a time-consuming thing and I'm pleased with it," Damon said.

Syrian Rebels Desperate for Weapons

BEIRUT (AP) • The head of Syria's rebels said Friday that the food and medical supplies the United States plans to give his fighters for the first time won't bring them any closer to defeating President Bashar Assad's forces in the country's civil war.

"We don't want food and drink, and we don't want bandages. When we're wounded, we want to die. The only thing we want is weapons," Gen. Salim Idris, chief of staff of the opposition's Supreme Military Council, told The Associated Press by telephone.

The former brigadier in Assad's army warned that the world's failure to provide heavier arms is only prolonging the nearly 2-year-old uprising that has killed an estimated 70,000 people.

In what was described as a significant policy shift, the Obama administration said Thursday it was giving an additional $60 million in assistance to Syria's political opposition and said it would, for the first time, provide non-lethal aid directly to rebels battling to topple Assad.

The move was announced by U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry at an international conference on Syria in Rome. In the coming days, several European nations are expected to take similar steps in working with the military wing of the opposition to increase pressure on Assad to step down and pave the way for a democratic transition.

But the frustration expressed by Idris is shared by most of his colleagues in the Syrian opposition, as well as by scores of rebels fighting in Syria.

They feel abandoned by the outside world while the Assad regime pounds them with artillery and bombs.

No Budging on the Budget Cuts

Obama formally enacts reductions.

BY DAVID ESPO
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON • Gridlocked once more, President Barack Obama and Republican congressional leaders refused to budge in their budget standoff Friday as $85 billion in across-the-board spending cuts bore down on individual Americans and the nation's still-recovering economy. "None of this is necessary," said the president after a sterile White House meeting that portended a long standoff.

Obama formally enacted the reductions a few hours before the midnight deadline required by law. Yet their impact had been felt thousands of miles away well before then. In Seattle, the King County Housing Authority announced it had stopped issuing housing vouchers under a federal program that benefits "elderly or disabled households, veterans, and families with children."

The president met with top lawmakers for less than an hour at the White House, then sought repeatedly to fix the blame on Republicans for the broad spending reductions and any damage that they inflict. "They've allowed these cuts to happen because they refuse to budge on closing a single wasteful loophole to help reduce the deficit," he said, renewing his demand for a comprehensive deficit-cutting deal that includes higher taxes.

Republicans said they wanted deficit cuts, too, but not tax increases. "The president got his tax hikes on Jan. 1," House Speaker John Boehner told reporters, a reference to a $600 billion increase on higher wage earners that cleared Congress on the first day of the year. Now, he said after the meeting, it is time take on "the spending problem here in Washington."

Senate Republican leader Mitch McConnell of Kentucky was equally emphatic. "I will not be part of any back-room deal, and I will absolutely not agree to increase taxes," he vowed in a written statement.

Hagel: Budget Cuts Won't Erode US Military Power

Defense secretary calls situation manageable.

WASHINGTON (AP) • Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel lamented $46 billion in automatic defense budget cuts as "abrupt and arbitrary" but expressed confidence Friday that the Obama administration will find ways to manage them without jeopardizing national security.

At his first news conference since replacing Leon Panetta as Pentagon chief, Hagel struck a more relaxed tone about the budget reductions, part of $85 billion in government-wide spending cuts that were taking effect Friday at midnight.

Whereas Panetta had warned of "catastrophic" effects that could reduce America to the status of a "second-rate" military power, Hagel said he believed the across-the-board budget cuts and their far-reaching effects will prove manageable.

"Today, America has the best fighting force in the world capable of responding to any challenge," he told reporters. "This unnecessary budget crisis makes that job much harder. But we will continue to ensure America's security."

Hagel met for a little over an hour with the chiefs of each of the services, plus the chairman of the Joint Chiefs, Gen. Martin Dempsey, to discuss budget issues.

Hagel told reporters that numerous actions will be taken in coming days by the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps to begin meeting the requirement for $46 billion in budget savings by the end of the fiscal year on Sept. 30. He said thousands of defense civilian workers, for example, will be notified later this month that they could be required to take one day of unpaid leave per week through September.

President Barack Obama has exempted military personnel from the automatic budget cuts, and the Pentagon has decided that its combat operations in Afghanistan, as well as its nuclear weapons force, will be protected from reductions. Even so, the Army will curtail training of forces other than those scheduled to go to Afghanistan; the Air Force will reduce flying hours for pilots and the Navy has already announced plans to delay ship deployments.

New Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel speaks during a news conference on Friday.

Sinkhole Swallows Florida Man

SEFFNER, Fla. (AP) • In a matter of seconds, the earth opened under Jeff Bush's bedroom and swallowed him up like something out of a horror movie. About the only thing left was the TV cable running down into the hole.

Bush, 37, was presumed dead Friday, the victim of a sinkhole — a hazard so common in Florida that state law requires home insurers to provide coverage against the danger.

The sinkhole, estimated at 20 feet across and 20 feet deep, caused the home's concrete floor to cave in around 11 p.m. Thursday as everyone in the Tampa-area house was turning in for the night. It gave way with a loud crash that sounded like a car hitting the house and brought Bush's brother running.

Jeremy Bush said he jumped into the hole but couldn't see his brother and had to be rescued himself by a sheriff's deputy who reached out and pulled him to safety as the ground crumbled around him.

"The floor was still giving in and the dirt was still going down, but I didn't care. I wanted to save my brother," Jeremy Bush said through tears Friday in a neighbor's yard. "But I just couldn't do nothing."

He added: "I could swear I heard him hollering my name to help him."

Officials lowered equipment into the sinkhole and saw no signs of life, said Hillsborough County Fire Rescue spokeswoman Jessica Damico.

China Executes Four Foreigners Over Murders

BEIJING (AP) • China executed four foreigners on Friday for killing 13 Chinese sailors in an attack on the Mekong River, following a live nationwide broadcast showing them being led to their deaths that harkened back to the mass public execution rallies of past years.

The attack on the sailors on the Mekong highlighted drug smuggling and extortion rackets along the vital waterway and led to a major expansion of Chinese police powers in the region.

Accused ringleader Naw Kham and accomplices Hsang Kham, Yi Lai, and Zha Xiha were found guilty of the killings. The four are of Myanmar, Thai, Laotian and unknown nationality.

In the unusual live broadcast, state-run CCTV showed the four being led in shackles and handcuffs from their cells at a jail in southwestern Yunnan province's capital of Kunming prior to their execution by lethal injection. Their deaths were announced two hours later by the Yunnan provincial police department.

China has mostly abandoned the once-common practice of parading condemned criminals before crowds in stadiums and through city streets on the way to execution grounds on the edge of cities.

The broadcast was a response to widespread Chinese outrage over the killings, as well as an attempt to emphasize the heinousness of the crime and the efficiency of China's police and courts in doling out justice, said Prof. Yu Guoming of Renmin University's School of Mass Media.

"The brutality of Naw Kham in the killing really got ordinary Chinese people riled up. It's no wonder that it has attracted such huge attention from the public," Yu said.

The gang was accused of ambushing two flat-bottomed Chinese cargo ships on the upper reaches of the Mekong River on Oct. 5, 2011, in Myanmar waters infested with gangs that make their living from protection rackets and the production and smuggling of drugs.

Marjorie Louise Barigar

Aug. 6, 1926-Feb. 27, 2013

BUHL • Marjorie Louise Barigar, 86, of Buhl, died on Wednesday, Feb. 27, 2013, at St. Luke’s Magic Valley Medical Center, surrounded by her friends and family.

Marjorie was born on Aug. 6, 1926, to Roscoe and Gertrude Walker in Buhl. When she was very young, the family moved to the Roseworth Tract, south of Castleford, where Roscoe worked for the Utah Cattle and Construction Co. While living there, she learned to cook with her mother for the threshing and haying crews.

Marjorie attended first through eighth grade in a one-room schoolhouse in Roseworth. She excelled in school and even assisted with teaching the students in younger grades. The family moved back to Buhl when she was 12, where she entered Buhl High School, graduating in 1942 at the age of 15. Following graduation and during World War II, she worked for a short time at an attorney’s office in Buhl and then at Rangen Inc.

On Feb. 4, 1947, Marjorie married Al Barigar in Elko, Nev. Together, they farmed in the Fairview and Clover areas south of Buhl. While holding down the household duties, helping on the farm, and raising their boys, Neal, Daryl and Lee, she worked for Bob Erkins at the Snake River Trout Company until her retirement.

During retirement, Al and Marjorie spent time together exploring the many fishing holes of Southern Idaho, living life to the fullest with friends and enjoying time with family. After Al’s death, Marjorie did some travelling with friends — including to England, Canada, and Hawaii (which had she not had the farm, she said she would have moved to) — and then settled down on the farm to tend to not only the 160 acres but also her beautiful flower and vegetable gardens. She was a friend and mother to all, whether related or not, and freely shared sound advice with a loving heart.

She is survived by her sons, Neal “Griz” and Lee; grandson, Shawn (Camille) Barigar, and great-grandsons, Brock and Xander; daughter-in-law, Maggie (Bob) Himmelberger; and granddaughter, Robyn (Merrill) Cheney, and their son, Andy.

She was preceded in death by her parents; brothers, Elmer and Jimmy Walker; her husband, Al; and son, Daryl.

A funeral service will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, March 4, at Farmer Funeral Chapel in Buhl. A viewing will be from 10 to 11 a.m. prior to the service. A reception will follow at the Buhl Eighth Street Center on the corner of Eighth Avenue and Locust Street.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests memorial donations to the College of Southern Idaho Foundation. Marjorie will be loved and missed by many.

Bonnie Franklin,
‘One Day At a Time’
Star, Dies at 69

NEW YORK • Bonnie Franklin, the pert, red-headed actress whom millions came to identify with for her role as divorced mom Ann Romano on the long-running sitcom “One Day at a Time,” has died.

She died Friday at her home in Los Angeles due to complications from pancreatic cancer, family members said. She was 69. Her family had announced she was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer in September.

Franklin was a veteran stage and television performer before “One Day At a Time” made her a star.

Developed by Norman Lear and co-created by Whitney Blake — herself a former sitcom star and single mother raising future actress Meredith Baxter — the series was groundbreaking for its focus on a young divorced mother seeking independence from a suffocating marriage.

It premiered on CBS in December 1975, just five years after the network had balked at having Mary Tyler Moore play a divorced woman on her own comedy series, insisting that newly single Mary Richards be portrayed as having ended her engagement instead.

On her own in Indianapolis, Ann Romano was raising two teenage girls — played by Mackenzie Phillips, already famous for the film “American Graffiti,” and a previously unknown Valerie Bertinelli. “One Day At a Time” ran on CBS until 1984, by which time both daughters had grown and married, while Romano had remarried and become a grandmother. During the first seven of its nine seasons on the air, the show was a Top 20 hit.

Like other Lear productions such as “All in the Family” and “Good Times,” “One Day at a Time” dealt with contemporary issues once absent from TV comedies such as premarital sex, birth control, suicide and sexual harassment — issues that had previously been overlooked by TV comedies whose households were usually headed by a husband and wife or, rarely, a widowed parent.

Meanwhile, the series weathered its own crises as Phillips was twice written out of the series to deal with her drug abuse and other personal problems.

Writing in her 2009 memoir “High On Arrival,” Phillips remembered Franklin as hardworking and professional, even a perfectionist.

In her 2008 memoir “Losing It,” Bertinelli noted that Franklin, just 31 when the show began, wasn’t old enough to be her real mother.

Even so, wrote Bertinelli, “within a few days I recognized her immense talent and felt privileged to work with her. ... She was like a hip, younger complement to my real mom.”

Anti-Smoking Advocate
Who Smoked Through
Hole in Throat Dies

LOS ANGELES • A woman who smoked a cigarette through a hole in her throat to illustrate her struggle with nicotine addiction in a California public service advertisement has died of cancer, health officials and her family said Wednesday.

Debi Austin died Feb. 22 at Valley Presbyterian Hospital in Van Nuys, according to family friend and spokesman Jim Walker. She was 62.

Austin first appeared on television in 1996, telling viewers she began smoking at age 13 and could never quit. In a quiet, halting rasp, Austin told the camera, “They say nicotine isn’t addictive,” before inhaling from a lit cigarette held to a hole in her throat.

“How can they say that?” Austin asked viewers, as cigarette smoke wafted from the hole.

Called a stoma, the hole in her throat allowed her to breathe after her larynx was removed at age 42.

The TV spot was “the most-recognized and talked about California tobacco control ad,” according to the state health department.

“Debi was a pioneer in the fight against tobacco and showed tremendous courage by sharing her story to educate Californians on the dangers of smoking,” said Dr. Ron Chapman, who heads the health department. “She was an inspiration for Californians to quit smoking and also influenced countless others not to start.”

Four months after the ad, Austin quit smoking — halting a two- to three-pack-a-day habit.

NOTICES

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE: The following described property will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, payable in lawful money of the United States, in the office of First American Title Company, 199 Country Lane, Jerome, ID 83338 on 05/30/2013 at 11:00 AM, (recognized local time) for the purpose of foreclosing that certain Deed of Trust recorded 06/19/2006 as Instrument Number 2063571, and executed by ROBERT D MILLER AND SANDRA MILLER, HUSBAND AND WIFE, as Grantor(s), in favor of MORTGAGE ELECTRONIC REGISTRATION SYSTEMS, INC., as Beneficiary, to RECONTRUST COMPANY, N.A., the Current Trustee of record, covering the following real property located in Jerome County, State of Idaho: LEGAL DESCRIPTION: LOT 1, BLOCK 2, F.R. MANN SUBDIVISION NO. 3, JEROME TOWNSITE, JEROME COUNTY, IDAHO, ACCORDING TO THE PLAT THEREOF, FILED JANUARY 13, 1972, AS INSTRUMENT NO. 192366. JEROME COUNTY RECORDS, IN FOLDER 5, NO. 2; AMENDED DEDICATION FILED MARCH 31, 1972, AS INSTRUMENT NO. 193608. JEROME COUNTY RECORDS, IN FOLDER NO. 10, NO. 2. The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purpose of compliance with Idaho Code, Section 60-113, the Trustee has been informed that the street address of 523 12TH AVE EAST, Jerome, ID, 83338 is sometimes associated with said real property. Bidders must be prepared to tender the trustee the full amount of the bid at the sale in the form of cash, or a cashier's check drawn on a state or federally insured savings institution. Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in that certain Deed of Trust. The default for which this sale is to be made is: Failure to pay the monthly payment due 02/01/2009 of principal, interest and impounds and subsequent installments due thereafter; plus late charges, with interest currently accruing at 8.125% per annum; together with all subsequent sums advanced by beneficiary pursuant to the terms and conditions of said Deed of Trust, and any supplemental modifications thereto. The principal balance owing as of this date on said obligation is $87,080.49, plus interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations thereunder and in this sale, together with any unpaid and/or accruing real property taxes, and/or assessments, attorneys' fees, Trustees' fees and costs, and any other amount advanced to protect said security, as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust. Therefore, the Beneficiary elects to sell, or cause said trust property to be sold, to satisfy said obligation. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THIS FIRM IS ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT AND ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE, AND THAT THE DEBT MAY BE DISPUTED. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a) IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION. Bobby Wolff

"To be ignorant of one's ignorance is the malady of the ignorant."

— Amos Alcott

.....

Do you like the way North handled his cards in today's deal? I do. It is simple and straightforward, since North can reasonably expect to buy a decent five-card diamond suit. So long as his partner does not have significant wasted values in spades, slam should have good play. A slightly more prudent approach would be to jump to four spades at the second turn, as long as that promises specifically a singleton spade and not a void. If partner signs off in five diamonds, one can respect that approach.

Of course, today it turns out that South does have an almost wasted spade king and nothing in hearts — not to mention that neither clubs nor diamonds will behave as South might wish. And still the slam has decent play (if you can spot the winning line, which is not necessarily obvious).

The heart king goes to dummy's ace, and declarer plays the diamond king, and a diamond to the ace. Next come the club ace, king, and queen, on which South throws a heart. A club ruff follows, and declarer next leads a diamond to the queen and takes the fifth club, discarding his last heart from hand.

In the four-card ending, dummy has a trump, a spade and two hearts, while South has three spades and a trump left. West has two spades and two hearts, and when declarer leads a spade to the 10, West must win but then cannot lead either major without conceding the rest.

ANSWER: You should double again, card-showing, not worried that you have only three hearts.
Your partner will remove the double to four no-trump if he has a two-suiter, and will select hearts only if he has five of them.
You cannot afford to pass out four spades with a hand this good, and bidding directly is too unilateral.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old female from the West Coast. I am home-schooled and don't have many friends because I score high in tests, meaning I retain more information than the average person.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

On the rare occasion that I mingle with children my own age, they call me unpleasant names, play pranks on me and otherwise torture me. I had to change my emergency cell-phone number and start using my sister's because there have been so many immature and insulting prank calls.

I hate it. I can't help that I am smart, and I refuse to de-grade myself by dumbering down my actions and speech because they can't handle their insecurities.

—HIGH IQ
DEAR HIGH IQ: Being "different" isn't easy, and clearly you are very intelligent. But you and your parents should understand that crank calls are not "pranks" — they are a form of bullying and should have been reported when they happened.

Most parents who home-school also network with other home-schooling parents so their children can socialize with peers. If your parents haven't done this, I recommend you discuss it with them. You might also meet more intellectually advanced young people if you joined special-interest groups for older students.

Your high IQ might be less threatening to the students who have given you trouble if you volunteer to tutor some of them who need help with their schoolwork. (Just don't fall into the trap of doing it FOR them.)

DEAR ABBY: I have been with my boyfriend, "Dan," for almost five years. He's wonderful and we have a great relationship. We have talked about spending our lives together, but had mutually agreed in the beginning that marriage wasn't a priority for either of us. He has said for years that he never wanted to marry — which is fine with me.

I now suspect that he's planning to propose to me on our fifth anniversary. (He has never been great at hiding surprises.)

I'm thrilled that he wants to make that kind of commitment, and I want nothing more than to spend the rest of my life with him, but the thought of marriage scares me. I don't know if it's nerves about the pending proposal or that I have never planned on marriage and now I have to think about all the stress and strife that comes with planning a wedding.

I want to say yes, but I love the way things are right now, and I know that marriage will change things. What, if anything, do I say to him?

—COLD FEET? IN SALT LAKE CITY

DEAR COLD FEET?: I wish you had mentioned why you think being married to Dan would "change things." If you've been happy together for five years, it's unlikely that making a formal commitment would damage the special relationship you have together. Perhaps this is "old school," but I feel that if couples plan to bring children into the world, they should be married. Because you want nothing more than to spend the rest of your life with Dan, and are concerned about the stress of planning a wedding, when he pops the question, I suggest you say, "Yes — why don't we elope?"

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

IF MARCH 2 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your dedicated attention to the rules and ability to shoulder responsibilities is something you can be proud of this month. Between now and the end of April, you are more attractive and appealing than usual. This is a good time to look for the person of your dreams or the job that answers your needs. Any offers or opportunities that appear in August could be heaven-sent. Look forward to rewarding business or career experiences in August and a chance to relax your vigilance and indulge your taste for the finer things in life. That is when you can make wise choices and launch plans for the future that will be beneficial on many levels.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Get all the chores done early to leave room for fun later. You have no intention of being lonely tonight and because you actively seek someone's exclusive company, that person will know you care.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Spend wisely. If you are investing for the long term or find something of lasting value, you will be satisfied with what you purchase. If you are just following popular trends, you may regret it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Give within reason. There are many charities worthy of a generous hand-out — but if you aren't careful with your generosity, you may find yourself among the needy. Take care to stay within your means.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It's better than you think. There could be a great deal of pressure in your life, but there is someone in the background secretly rooting for your side. Expect help from behind the scenes this weekend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Humble pie has no calories. Don't expect to receive praise before the job is done. The hearty pats on the back you imagine are yours by right might not be as richly deserved as you would like them to be.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You may feel like an old dog, but you are not too old to learn new tricks. Recognize your limitations, but put some effort into stretching a bit beyond them. Exercise is good for the mind — and the body.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): True love holds up under the weight of sympathy and compassion. If you run into a dead end, there is time to go back and start over again. By being thorough and patient, you will eventually reach your goals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Promises weren't made to be broken. You have what it takes to get the job done and are willing to honor your commitments — even if it hurts. Your motto may be, "If you've made your bed, you must lie in it."

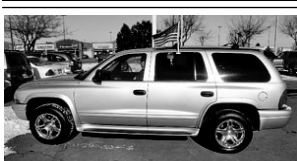

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): If you treat someone like family, your actions could be misunderstood. Someone may misinterpret your well-meant kindness, or even wonder if you are trying to undermine their influence.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Turn off the cell-phone and spend quality time with loved ones. Business may bring home the bacon, but there's no point if you can't take time out to enjoy the bacon with the family once in a while.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You just want to be loved. The way you handle money or the way in which you treat your possessions is a reflection of how you handle relationships. A special someone may question your sincerity.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't bargain with your integrity. It is tempting to wiggle out of an obligation or change your mind on a whim — but if you do so under these stars, you might drive a wedge between you and a loved one.

Bobcats Eliminated from 4A Tournament

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

BOISE • Burley's much-anticipated return to the Class 4A state boys basketball tournament was short-lived after the Bobcats bowed out with a 67-41 loss to Bishop Kelly on Friday at Borah High School.

Making its first state appearance in five years, lack of tournament experience was among the chief factors for Burley's quick exit. It faced more savvy teams in Skyview (ninth consecutive state trip) and Bishop Kelly (fourth state trip in five seasons) on back-to-back days.

"It seemed like we were nervous. We weren't knocking down shots that we normally do," Burley head coach Jack Bagley said.

Whether it was tournament jitters or some other reason, Burley couldn't keep pace with hotter shooting teams. Bishop Kelly knocked down 56.5 percent of its shots to Burley's 32.7 percent, which included a dreadful 4-of-25 effort from beyond the 3-point line.

What's more, Burley's 21 turnovers led to 25 Bishop Kelly points, and the Knights outrebounded Burley 35-24.

"We had matchup problems. They beat us on the boards, they beat us inside and they had guards hitting shots. They're a talented team," Bagley said.

Brandon Hosteen led Burley with 13 points and five rebounds, and Zander Cook added 10 points.

"Everybody wants to win a state championship, but we did some good things this year. We didn't get it done, but I'm still happy with what we did," Cook said. "We'll do better next year. We're going to try to get back. This season is over, and we'll look forward to next year."

But for three seniors, there is no next year. Kody Coltrin, Jackson Knopp and Kyle Garrard played their final game in a Bobcat uniform.

"They're fantastic kids," Bagley said. "They're smart and very talented. I would

CSI Women Topple Snow

BY GARRETT CABEZA
For the Times-News

COEUR D'ALENE • The top-seeded College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles defeated Snow College 57-43 on Friday in the second round of the women's Region 18 basketball tournament on the campus of North Idaho College.

CSI sophomore guard Adriana Dent knocked down a 3-pointer on the first possession of the game.

"She's been so big for us this year, especially late," head coach Randy Rogers said.

Dent finished with 16 points, nine rebounds and six steals.

"We decided to stay in our offense and just play hard and just get out there after loose balls and deny everything," Dent said.

Fellow guard Patrice Toston drained

a three from the top of the key with under 14 minutes left in the first half, and about a minute later got a layup in transition to extend CSI's lead 13-4.

Toston had 11 points and three steals. CSI held Snow to six points the first 11 minutes of the game.

Snow shot 5-of-20 from the field in the first half, but was 7-for-8 at the free throw line.

CSI led 24-14 with a few minutes remaining in the first half after a couple of layups.

Golden Eagles' Julia Dufurrena scored in the lane off of an assist from Cassidy Skidmore with under a minute left.

Dent made one of two free throws with 3.6 seconds left to put the Golden Eagles up by 11 at the half.

Dent and Toston led CSI with seven points apiece at the end of the first half.

"I just wanted to come out here and get a taste of the game, get a feel for the game," Dent said. "I just wanted to play, honestly."

Snow's Amber Daly hit a long two-point shot early in the second half to cut the Golden Eagle lead to single digits.

Bruins Fall in Semifinals

Twin Falls boys lose lead after fourth-quarter rally by Moscow.

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

BOISE • The Bruins were just eight minutes away from the Idaho Center.

Twin Falls had a 7-point lead over Moscow after three quarters of their Class 4A state semifinal Friday evening at Borah High School.

But with a fourth-quarter rally, Moscow clipped Twin Falls 57-55, ending the District IV champ's state title hopes.

Instead of playing defending state champ Rigby in the Idaho Center on Saturday night, Twin Falls (20-7) will vie for the third-place trophy against Skyview at 11 a.m. in Borah.

The Bruins appeared to be well on their way to their first state championship game since winning it in 2010, as Damon Jones scored eight points in a row, Alec Meyerhoeffer drained a way-deep 3-pointer and Kade Meyerhoeffer drove for a layup. That sequence gave Twin Falls its biggest lead, 43-34, at the 2:38 mark of the third quarter.

But Moscow (18-5) opened the fourth quarter on a 9-0 run, taking a 45-43 lead with 5:35 remaining.

Filer to Play for Third-place Trophy after Loss

MERIDIAN • Sometimes the state basketball tournament reveals the hardest truths.

As the years pass, Filer players will wonder how many times out of 10 they could have beaten Shelley.

On Friday, in the 3A semifinals, with future Weber State players McKay Cannon and Chad Leckington held to 6-of-15 shooting, the Wildcats lost to the state champion favorite Russets, 66-52.

The Wildcats will play for third place today at 11 a.m. against Fruitland at Meridian High School.

One of the best boys basketball teams in Filer history was had by the Russets' Tyler Fredrickson, the catch-and-shoot beneficiary of Cannon (6 assists). Fredrickson was 6-of-6 from the field for 19 points, the kind of numbers that make the Russets virtually unbeatable.

"We know he was their third guy," head coach Allen Kesley said. "He has the benefit of those other two players creating for him."

But the Wildcats will be haunted most by Jed Oyler's three fouls in the first quarter that landed him on the

Carey Boys Overpowered by Salmon River

The Panthers will play against Kendrick for the third-place trophy.

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

CALDWELL • For the first time since 2009, Carey's state boys basketball tournament itinerary won't include a trip to the Idaho Center.

The Panthers knew they were in for a tough afternoon Friday in the 1A-II semifinals, and they got everything they expected from a Salmon River team that outclassed them 65-48 at Caldwell High School, becoming the first team not named Carey or Nezperce to get to the championship game in the last four tournaments.

The Savages were fast on the perimeter, tall and strong on the block, and lethal in transition. It was too tough a matchup for the undersized and outmanned Panthers.

"This was an education for us, but it's good," Carey coach Dick Simpson said. "They've got a little bit of everything, and we've learned most of the year on two sophomores and a freshman. Our youngest players are our best players right now."

Sophomore Nate Adamson scored a game-high 28 points, but 23 of those came in the second half, by which time Salmon River had run away.

After the first quarter it was 15-10, but the Savages had Carey chasing shadows

Salmon River led 32-15 at halftime.

"They're good. We can't complain too much," Adamson said of his team's three state title appearances. "We did our best, but they were just better than us today."

Carey will look to bounce back at 11 a.m. Saturday in the third-place game against Kendrick.

"We've got to come back out (Saturday), and it's not going to be an easy game there either," Simpson said.

STATE ROUNDUP

In a game where the teams seemed to trade haymakers, Moscow landed the knockout punch with 1:50 to go. Adam Gresch drained a 3-pointer to put the Bears up by three. From there, Moscow was 4-of-4 on clutch free throws while Twin Falls ran out of answers.

Alec Meyerhoeffer scored a game-high 24 points for Twin Falls, and Jones had 14 points and eight boards. But the Bruins really needed a third player to step up.

Moscow worked inside with 6-foot-6 Nick Ellison, who finished with 22 points and six rebounds. He scored the Bears' first 10 points of the game, setting up his team up for an inside-out attack later on.

"It was a good plan on their part. As soon as we started helping ... they had some other guys hit 3s. We had some good looks, but they hit some big shots in the fourth quarter and we didn't," said Twin Falls head coach Matt Harr.

Late in the game, Dane Randall and Gresch were the heroes for Moscow. Ten of Randall's 12 points came in the second half. Gresch scored all of his 12 points in the fourth quarter.

Halftime was deadlocked 25-25. Twin Falls' biggest lead was nine points.

But the momentum slipped away, and instead Twin Falls will try to earn its third consecutive third-place trophy.

"It's a tough game to play. Skyview is in the same boat; we both were expecting to play tomorrow night," Harr said. "If you love the game of basketball, you go out and play hard. I know these kids will play hard tomorrow."

bench for much of the contest. He was held to 17 minutes for the game, eventually fouling out.

Oyler, possibly the most important offensive player against Sugar-Salem's zone Thursday, was the only player for Filer to have any offensive rhythm, according to Kelsey.

The senior forward hit the game's first shot, a 3-pointer, and made 5-of-6 shots for a team-high 12 points.

With Oyler out of the game, the Russets closed out Filer's outside shooters, forcing ball reversals just so a player could see the basket upon attempting a shot.

"We struggled offensively getting into any type of flow," Kelsey said. "They closed out. We are used to getting more open shots. They close out so well."

Filer shot 6-of-27 from the 3-point line and was forced into 15 turnovers.

The Wildcats hung on for as long as they could, keeping the game within striking distance until the fourth quarter when the Russets finally overwhelmed the

CROSSLAND BROS. BOOST BUHL PAST TIMBERLAKE

The Indians will play for the 3A consolation championship today.

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

MERIDIAN • Kasey Crossland, all 106-pounds of him, sure didn't seem to be weighed down by the big-shot pressure of the 3A state tournament.

Buhl's freshman made the most important basket of his young, promising high school career, a corner 3-pointer with 1:29 left, stemming a 10-1 run by Timberlake to put his team up by five, as the Indians went on to win 76-69.

The Indians will play for the 3A consolation championship at 9:15 a.m. Saturday at Meridian high school.

"We kind of got nervous because this is our first state tournament," Kasey Crossland said. "We had to calm down and just get the ball up the court."

Prior to the clutch 3-pointer, the Tigers had cut an 11-point lead down to two with a series of adrenaline-aided steals and forays to the rim.

"I'm not going to lie. We could have folded our tents because we are so young," Buhl head coach Dan Winn said. "(Kasey) almost turned it over and then he realized (the moment) and hit the 3-pointer. That's the most relaxed part of his game, shooting the three."

Kasey and Kade Crossland, brothers, each scored 23 points, combining to make 10 3-point shots.

"It was the best those two have played together in the same game," Winn said.

Kade Crossland, a junior, built on his strong second half in the team's loss to Snake River when he scored 16 of his team's 20 points. After going 7-of-14 on Friday, Kade Crossland has scored 39 points in his last six quarters on better than 50 percent from the floor. He's also added 13 rebounds.

Buhl complemented its hot shooting game with a strong performance on the glass, which Winn said was the biggest key to the win. The Indians outrebounded Timberlake 49-37.

Freshman guard Hayden Eckert added 12 points and six assists for the Indians.

Austin Allen came off the bench to lead Timberlake with 17 points on 6-of-12 shooting.

Before fouling out, reserve Michael Lively had eight rebounds, three points and two assists.

take any of them as a son. Our whole season, I didn't have one kid miss one practice. That just shows their dedication to the program and their willingness to try to get better."

District IV runner-up Burley ends its season with a 17-9 record, but its crowning achievement was earning the Class 4A state academic championship for the second year in a row.

Despite trailing 35-19 at halftime, Burley didn't roll over.

"I'm proud of my kids' effort all season long. They never quit. They worked hard, and that's all I can ask for," Bagley said.

The Bobcats started the third quarter with a 7-0 run - two buckets by Hosteen and a 3-point play by Karsten Hinkley - to slash the deficit to nine. But Bishop Kelly (18-8) responded with a 7-point run of its own and cruised into Saturday's consolation trophy game.

Salt Lake Eliminates Golden Eagles from Region 18 Tourney

BY GARRETT CABEZA
For the Times-news

COEUR D'ALENE • The College of Southern Idaho picked up where they left off from last night by getting into an offensive rhythm early. But Salt Lake ended up putting on the offensive clinic, eliminating the Golden Eagles from the mens Region 18 basketball tournament Friday night, 89-73, on the campus of North Idaho College.

After a quick 18-9 start by College of Southern Idaho, the Bruins showed why they are the top seed in the tournament, tying the game at 25 about midway through the first half.

Salt Lake found its offensive rhythm and headed into the break ahead 45-34. James Reid led CSI in the first half with 11 points, including three baskets from 3-point land.

The Golden Eagles shot 52.6 percent from the floor in the first half and 55.6 percent from beyond the 3-point line.

The Bruins' Tyrell Cordin led all scorers with 12 points, shooting 5-of-7 from the field.

Salt Lake capitalized on the Golden Eagles' turnovers, scoring 14 points off mistakes.

CSI's Montigo Alford started the second half by hitting a three in the corner on the Golden Eagles' first possession.

Salt Lake pushed back after that, leading 62-47 with 11:52 left.

Jaysean Paige flew through the air for a put-back dunk around the 10:40 mark after an Alford miss but Sai Tummala responded with a midair put-back layup around the midway point of the second half.

Salt Lake's Yi Hsiang Chou hit a three to answer Paige's mid-range jumper shortly after.

Conference-leading scorer Skyler Halford drained a three from a couple of feet behind the 3-point line to extend the Bruins' lead 74-55. On Salt Lake's next possession, Payton hit a jump shot to build the lead to 21 points.

With a little over five minutes, CSI missed two 3-pointers on the same possession before Paige got dialed in from the 3-point corner.

CSI cut into the lead but never was able to overcome the double-digit deficit.

LOCAL ROUNDUP

CSI BASEBALL SWEEPS CNCC

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho baseball team clearly wanted to prove last week's loss to Colorado Northwestern was a fluke.

CSI routed the visiting Spartans 10-0 and 7-2 on Friday, leveling its Scenic West record at 3-3 (12-7 overall).

Isaac Anderson and Nathan Ackerman both homered on the day for the Golden Eagles, while Kyle Olson and Wendell grad Nolan Stouder dominated on the mound.

The two teams play another doubleheader on Saturday.

Softball CSI SWEEPS SNOW

EPHRAIM, Utah • Last-gasp homers were methods du jour for the CSI softball team.

Sierra Whitmer bailed herself out with a game-tying homer with two outs in the seventh inning of Game 1 against Snow, which CSI won 8-4 in nine innings.

Then, with CSI again down to its final out, Kylee Hogue hit a go-ahead three-run homer to give CSI a 7-5 win in Game 2.

Whitmer and Nellie Makings picked up the wins for CSI, which improved to 18-5 (13-1 Scenic West).

The two teams play again Saturday.

CSI Women

Dent hit a three for CSI to push the lead back to 10 points.

With the score at 35-25 four minutes into the second half, Dent grabbed an offensive rebound, scored and was fouled. She missed the free throw to keep the lead at 12 points.

Toston made it 45-29 after a layup in transition about midway through the second half.

The deficit remained around 16 points until the 2:09 mark when Snow cut it to 12 points.

CSI will play North Idaho College at 6 p.m. for the championship and an NJCAA National Tournament berth.

Rogers said they will have to control NIC's Georgia Stirton and quiet the crowd to win.

"She's a big-time player, Georgia Stirton from North Idaho," Rogers said. "It's on her floor, so we got to somehow take the crowd out of it. They get pretty raucous up here."

LOCAL BRIEFS

Pomerelle Events Upcoming

Pomerelle Ski Area will host the popular "Hot Iron Nights" competition Saturday, March 2. There are categories for both skiers and snowboarders in this annual nighttime event, held under the lights. "Hot Iron Nights" draws skiers and riders from all over the region who win cash prizes for the best skills.

A "Kids' Day" giant slalom challenge will be held at Pomerelle on Saturday, March 9. Walk-in registration is available from 9 to 11 a.m., with racing at noon. Competition is open to all skiers and snowboarders age 12 or under, of all abilities. Cost is $15 plus a $10 refundable bib fee. Release waivers must be signed by parents.

T.F. Youth Soccer Registration
