

Nitrate Levels Keep Rising

New study blames increase on fertilizer, manure.

TWIN FALLS • A new study shows south-central Idaho's nitrate levels in groundwater are expected to increase due to increased application of fertilizer and manure.

In an area known for its agriculture — particularly the dairy industry — the news isn't surprising. In fact, it was the area's large dairy industry that first led scientists to study nitrate levels in the Magic Valley, said Ken Skinner, a hydrologist with the U.S. Geological Survey.

According to the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality, Twin Falls ranks number one in the state's areas of greatest concern for nitrates.

Studying nitrogen levels in groundwater is important because close to 95 percent of the nation uses it as drinking water, Skinner said. Too much nitrogen in the water can lead to decreased oxygen flows in the body, especially for young children and the elderly.

The purpose of the study was not to find the top nitrate contributors but find out more about mapping future nitrate concentrations, he said.

Judge Strikes Down Idaho Abortion Law

2011 law banned abortions after 20 weeks of pregnancy.

BY REBECCA BOONE
AND TODD DVORAK
Associated Press

BOISE • A federal judge has struck down Idaho's law banning abortions after 20 weeks of pregnancy based on beliefs held by physicians and others that the fetus is able to feel pain at that point.

U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winmill ruled late Wednesday in favor of Jennie Linn McCormack, who was 33 at the time she decided to challenge the state's so-called fetal pain law and other abortion laws.

Idaho was one of seven states to adopt fetal pain laws in 2011, following in the footsteps of Nebraska's approval of the law in 2010. But those laws are no longer the most restrictive. This week, lawmakers in Arkansas overrode a veto of a near-ban on the abortion procedure starting from the 12th week of pregnancy.

Kimberly Man Working on Project for Veterans

KIMBERLY • A Kimberly man is working to build a memorial that would honor veterans at Kimberly's City Park.

Wayne Sayer said the project is still in the beginning stages, but he is quickly gaining the support of community and city officials who want to see the project completed.

"There's not enough thanks for our military in our community," he said. "I want this to be a place where people can say 'thank you' when they walk by."

Sayer said he is looking to install a flag for every branch of the military and a soldier's cross that would form a semicircle in the park. He would also like to add more picnic tables so families can enjoy the park.

Sayer already has a list of businesses looking to donate supplies and labor. He is also looking to work with the local American Legion chapter.

Kimberly Mayor Tracy Armstrong said he looks forward to hearing a project proposal from Sayer.

"I'm a veteran. I am behind this project, but right now the project is in its earliest of stages," he said. "When he has something a little firmer to propose, city council will consider the project."

For now, Sayer said he is getting the word out and working on finding enough funding. He said the project is expected to cost about $10,000.

For those interested in donating or learning more, contact Sayer at 208-423-6181.

TWIN FALLS WASTEWATER FACILITY NEARING CAPACITY

TWIN FALLS • The city of Twin Falls is beginning to feel the effects of its wastewater treatment facility nearing capacity.

While the city is able to provide wastewater capacity to those previously who have already received approval — known as a will-serve letter — the city is unable to support new and substantial users, according to a city news release.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

US Stocks Edge Up Following Dow's Record Day

NEW YORK (AP) • After barreling through a record the day before, the Dow Jones industrial average meandered higher on Wednesday.

The Dow edged up 42.47 points, or 0.3 percent, to close at 14,296.24. An encouraging job-market report helped nudge the stock market up and pushed bond prices lower.

On Tuesday, the Dow blew past the previous all-time high it hit more than five years ago. The index of 30 big corporations has more than doubled since hitting a low during the financial crisis in March 2009.

Hidden History

The Unidentified Bisbee Photos

BY MYCHEL MATTHEWS

Twin Falls County Historical Society

TWIN FALLS • Clarence Bisbee might have been a master of photography, but his record-keeping skills were a bit lacking.

Many of the subjects in Bisbee's photos are well-known landmarks, such as the Twin Falls County Courthouse or Shoshone Falls. But among the thousands of photos that Bisbee took in his lifetime, many are complete mysteries.

"It can be a challenge sometimes," said Bill Nichols, owner of BLIP Printers and Bisbee enthusiast. Nichols has learned to cross-reference the photos with local history books and resources at the Twin Falls Public Library.

Bisbee documented early life in the Magic Valley – from pioneer families in front of prove-up shacks to massive jack rabbit drives in the country.

Most of the photos are undated, and contain nameless faces in unknown locations. Bisbee numbered his photographs, but there was no rhyme or reason to his system. The numbers are not chronological, Nichols said.

A large jack rabbit population could destroy a farmer's entire crop in no time. Rabbit drives were the most effective way of controlling the jack rabbit population in early Twin Falls County.

Sometimes, Bisbee would caption the photos with a clever saying. Bisbee photo No. 667, for example, shows hundreds of jack rabbits being driven along a country road to their deaths.

"A rabbit drive. Fun for all but the rabbits," he wrote.

Perhaps Bisbee felt that a little mystery sparks interest.

Cooler Temperatures to End the Week

the overall pattern remains unsettled and colder. That is why we are keeping rain showers and snow in the forecast through the end of the week.

Today will feature clouds and sunshine. Temperatures will be 5 degrees below average and more than 10 degrees colder than what we saw on Wednesday. Highs in the afternoon will range from the low to mid-40s in the valleys to the upper 30s in the mountains. There is still a chance of isolated to scattered rain and snow showers across Southern Idaho. This time the focus will be south of the Snake River across Twin Falls and Cassia counties. Most of the day should remain dry in the valleys; the South Hills and Albion Mountains could see some light snow and rain showers. A few lingering rain and snow showers are possible Friday as the southern system drifts to the south and east of us. Temperatures will remain cooler than average Friday. By the weekend, we will dry out and see a slow warming trend back into the 50s.

ONLINE: Drink Idaho: Rusty Nail Red Pale Ale

Times-News Managing Editor Nate Poppino blogs about all things beer at "Idaho On Tap." An excerpt from his latest brew review:

"In bottles, cans and kegs, made in Twin Falls or Ponderay, Idaho-produced beers are showing up in greater numbers in Magic Valley stores and bars. ...

"Part of the Treasure Valley's recent brewing explosion, Crooked Fence Brewing opened its doors in spring 2012. In little time, it seemed, the brewery started sending bottles down to our neck of the woods.

"One of the brewery's regulars, Rusty Nail Red Pale Ale's name is apt. The beer boasts a firm rusty red tinge in the glass. ..."

1 MILLION REFUGEES

‘Human river’ of refugees continues to flow out of Syria.

BEIRUT (AP) • Syria’s accelerating humanitarian crisis hit a grim milestone Wednesday: The number of U.N.-registered refugees topped 1 million — half of them children — described by an aid worker as a ‘human river’ of thousands spilling out of the war-ravaged country every day.

Nearly 4 million of Syria’s 22 million people have been driven from their homes by the civil war. Of the displaced, 2 million have sought cover in camps and makeshift shelters across Syria, 1 million have registered as refugees in neighboring Turkey, Jordan, Lebanon, Iraq and Egypt, and several hundred thousand more fled the country but haven’t signed up with the U.N. refugee agency.

The West has refrained from military intervention in the two-year-old battle to oust Syrian President Bashar Assad, a conflict that has claimed more than 70,000 lives, and many Syrians hold the international community responsible for their misery.

“The refugee numbers swelled because the world community is sitting idly, watching the tyrant Assad killing innocent people,” said Mohammed Ammari, a 32-year-old refugee in the Zaatari camp straddling Jordan’s border with Syria. “Shame, shame, shame. The world should be ashamed.”

Despite an overall deadlock on the battlefield, the rebels have made recent gains, especially in northern Syria. On Wednesday, they completed their capture of Raqqa, the first major city to fall completely into rebel hands, activists said.

But with no quick end to the conflict in sight, the refugee problem is bound to worsen, said Panos Moutmtzis of the U.N. refugee agency, UNHCR. The number of uprooted Syrians is still lower than those displaced in other conflicts, including Afghanistan, Iraq and the Balkans, but the Syria crisis will likely be protracted, and widespread devastation will make quick repatriation unlikely.

“We fear that the worst may not have come yet,” Moutmtzis said.

The exodus from Syria picked up significantly in recent months, turning into a “human river flowing in, day and night,” he added.

The number of registered refugees doubled since December, he said, with some 7,000 fleeing Syria every day.

Many refugees moved from shelter to shelter in Syria first before deciding to leave the country, while others were driven out by the increasing lack of basic resources, such as bread and fuel, in their hometowns. In the hardest-hit areas, entire villages have emptied out and families spanning several generations cross the border together. On Wednesday, a 19-year-old mother of two became the one-millionth Syrian refugee to register with UNHCR. She would only give her first name, Bushra, because she feared reprisals.

Bushra waited with several others at a U.N. office in Lebanon’s northern city of Tripoli to sign up. Along with her 4-year-old daughter, Batoul, and 2-year-old son, Omar, she fled fighting in the central city of Homs more than two weeks ago.

“Our life conditions are very bad. It is very expensive here (in Lebanon) and we cannot find any work,” Bushra said.

Fact and Fantasy Collide in NYC Cannibalism Trial

NEW YORK (AP) • A teenager posts a Twitter message saying he’s going to blow up a school. A husband grumbles that he’s looking for a hit man to kill his wife. A wannabe jihadist says in an Internet chat room that he is ready to become a martyr. Are any of them serious? Or is it all bluster?

Separating real threats from idle talk is a workaday task for law enforcement. It is rarely easy, but it has taken on extreme complexity in the lurid case of Gilberto Valle, a New York City police officer charged with plotting to kidnap, cook and eat women he knew. At a conspiracy trial now in its second week, a jury has heard how Valle was part of an international community of fetishists who got their kicks trading wild fantasies online about violent acts against women.

By all accounts, he was into some sick stuff. After fighting crime at his day job, Valle spent his free time logging in to websites like Dark Fetish, where users posted accounts of rape, necrophilia and women being strangled and burned at the stake.

The site carried a disclaimer: “This place is about fantasies only.” But prosecutors claim Valle took steps to get into closer contact with some of the women he wrote about, including using a police department database to look up their personal information, emailing and texting them more often and meeting with at least one of them.

Jurors in what the tabloids have dubbed the “Cannibal Cop” case will have their hands full when they begin deliberations, possibly as early as Thursday.

Valle’s lawyer has argued that it was all clearly fiction. The plans Valle gruesomely described were never carried out. He never purchased the torture implements he described in emails with his fetishist pen pals. He never met the men accused of being his co-conspirators. The women he wrote about learned of the plans only after his arrest, with the exception of his wife, who discovered her husband’s pastime after installing spyware on his computer. As strange as the case is, experts said it touches on a common challenge in law enforcement:

deciphering intent without running afoul of the First Amendment right to free speech.

“Simply thinking bad thoughts is not a crime anywhere,” said David Raskin, a former assistant U.S. attorney who prosecuted terrorism conspiracies.

Nor is spouting off about violence on the Internet. So when terrorist sympathizers go online and talk about wanting to blow up buildings, the FBI will often send in an operative to tease out how far they are really willing to go.

“Obviously, they are very, very different types of offenses,” Raskin said. “But it’s the same challenge from the law enforcement perspective, which is, ‘How do we get inside the guy’s head and figure out if he will act on the things he is saying?’”

Bolshoi Dancer Confesses to Attack on Ballet Chief

A Russian ballet star who has danced the roles of violent and powerful historical figures at the Bolshoi Theater has confessed to organizing the acid attack on the theater’s ballet chief, Moscow police said Wednesday.

A masked man threw a jar of sulfuric acid in the face of artistic director Sergei Filin as he returned home late on Jan. 17, severely burning his eyes. The 42-year-old former dancer is undergoing treatment in Germany.

Bolshoi soloist Pavel Dmitrichenko, 29, confessed to masterminding the attack, and two other men confessed to being the perpetrator and the driver of the getaway car, police said in a statement. All three were to appear in court on Thursday, when prosecutors were to move for criminal charges to be filed against them.

“I organized that attack but not to the extent that it occurred,” a bleary-eyed Dmitrichenko said in footage released by Russian police.

Lion Kills Person at California Animal Park

A lion killed a worker on Wednesday at a private wild animal park in Central California, authorities said.

The person was attacked and fatally injured after getting into an enclosure with the lion at Cat Haven in Dunlap, Calif., Cal Fire spokesman Ryan Michaels told The Associated Press.

The facility, which is licensed by the California Department of Fish and Wildlife, is about 45 miles east of Fresno in the Sierra Nevada foothills. A call to Cat Haven went unanswered. The lion, a 4-year-old male named Couscous, had been raised at Cat Haven since it was 8 weeks old, said Tanya Osegueda, a spokeswoman for Project Survival, the nonprofit that operates Cat Haven.

Osegueda did not know how the park acquired the cub.

Cat Haven is a 100-acre wild animal park just west of Kings Canyon National Park. Since the property opened in 1993, it has housed numerous big cats, including tigers, leopards and other exotic species.

Rosemary Tolman Barton

June 19, 1945-March 4, 2013

CLEARFIELD, Utah • Our beloved wife, mother, grandmother, sister, aunt and friend returned to her heavenly home Monday, March 4, 2013. She valiantly fought glioblastoma (brain cancer) for 17 months.

Rosemary Tolman Barton, 67, was born June 19, 1945, to Parley Glen Tolman and Sarah Opal Moffett Tolman in Los Angeles, Calif. She grew up in Oakley, Idaho, and graduated from Oakley High School in 1963. She served an LDS mission in the California South Mission. She graduated from Stevens-Henager College of Business with a secretarial degree.

On June 12, 1969, she married Dean Barton in the Logan, Utah, LDS Temple. Together, they raised five children in Clearfield, Utah. They served a church service mission together at the LDS Bishops' Storehouse in Ogden, Utah, from January to September 2011, when she was diagnosed with cancer. Rosemary was a secretary at Wasatch Elementary in Clearfield, Utah, for more than 20 years, retiring in June of 2007. She enjoyed watching the children of the community grow up. Her own children also attended Wasatch Elementary. She developed many close relationships with those she worked with, lasting beyond her retirement to the present day. Rosemary was an active member of the Clearfield 7th Ward, serving in many callings including Primary and Young Women's president and Relief Society president (twice). She had great love and compassion for those she served. She loved the gospel and was very diligent in her scripture study and journal writing.

She is survived by her husband, Dean; son, Bryan (Angela) Barton of Wellsville, Utah; daughters, Janiece Barton and Kristine Barton Linford, both of Clearfield, Utah, and Deanna Barton Fox (Joe) of San Diego, Calif.; and son, Steven (Magaly) Barton of Tooele, Utah. She has 15 grandchildren that she loved with her whole heart: seven granddaughters, Morgan, Arissa, Katlyn, Emilee, Maeva, Annie and Alicia; and eight grandsons, Conner, Andrew, Rees, Samuel, Damien, Logan, Corbin and Joshua. She is also survived by her brothers, Carl (Claudia) Tolman of Nampa, Rulon Tolman of Meridian, Golden (Barbara) Tolman of Burley and Rex (Karine) Tolman of Valrico, Fla.; sisters, Ruth Tolman Smith (Marvin) of Randolph, Utah, Lorraine Tolman Armstrong (Gary) of Boise and Gloria Tolman Hernandez (Steve) of Burley; and sister-in-law, Sherie Tolman of Boise. She is also survived by her in-laws, Karen and Rey Porter of Roy, Utah, Marge Barton of San Antonio, Texas, Floyd and Cheryl Barton of Roy, Utah, Juanita and Reid Child of Syracuse, Utah, and Marjorie and Carl Foote of Ogden, Utah; and many nieces, nephews, cousins, aunts, uncles and friends. She was preceded in death by her parents; two brothers, Allen and Richard; one sister, Carolyn; and son-in-law, James Linford, who passed away Sept. 8, 2012, also of glioblastoma.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, March 9, at Lindquist's Layton Mortuary, 1867 N. Fairfield Road in Layton, Utah. Friends may visit with family from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, March 8, and 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. Saturday. Interment will be in the Clearfield City Cemetery.

The family would like to extend a special thanks to family and friends who have cared for Rosemary during her illness. They would also like to thank Hospice Care of Northern Utah for the loving care given to her during her final days. Thanks also to the staff at Huntsman Cancer Institute, especially Dr. Adam Cohen and his staff; Renu Home Health, Rocky Mountain Home Care and Encompass Home Care for the care and compassion they provided Rosemary throughout her illness.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to America First Credit Union under the Rosemary Barton Memorial Fund. Condolences may be shared at: www.lindquist-mortuary.com.

THE WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON • John Wilpers Jr., a key member of the Army intelligence unit that arrested and thwarted the suicide of Hideki Tojo, the Japanese prime minister later executed for his war crimes during World War II, died Feb. 28 at a senior living home in Silver Spring, Md.. He was 93.

He had complications from dementia, said his son Michael Wilpers.

John Wilpers rarely spoke about the dramatic events of September 1945, in the days after the Japanese surrender, when he helped carry out Gen. Douglas MacArthur's order to locate and take into custody the vanquished prime minister.

Wilpers' actions first came to broad public awareness in 2010, when he received the Bronze Star Medal for his role in the arrest. His commanding officer recommended the decoration in 1947, but the paperwork apparently disappeared and remained lost until Wilpers made an inquiry nearly six decades later.

He made the query because he "felt the gray hand of old age sneaking up" on him, he told The Washington Post after receiving the medal, and not because he wished to glorify his actions or the realities of war.

Key Member of Army Unit That Captured Japan's Tojo Dies at 93

THE WASHINGTON POST

Joseph Frank, a longtime professor of literature whose five-volume biography of the 19th-century Russian novelist Fyodor Dostoevsky is considered a landmark of historical and literary scholarship, died Feb. 27 at his home in Palo Alto, Calif. He was 94.

He had pulmonary failure, according to The New York Times, which first reported his death.

Frank wrote on a wide range of literary subjects before he began to focus on Dostoevsky — the author of "Crime and Punishment," "The Idiot" and "The Brothers Karamazov" — in the 1950s.

Frank learned Russian and immersed himself in the turbulent milieu of Dostoevsky's life — he lived from 1821 to 1881 — to write what some scholars have called an incomparable portrait of the author's life and times. From 1976 to 2002, Frank chronicled Dostoevsky's dramatic life in five volumes that totaled more than 2,400 pages.

"No other scholar, in Russia or the West, comes close to Frank's command of the literary, political and philosophical context in which the great Russian writer lived and worked," Orlando Figes, a British historian of Russia, wrote in London's Sunday Telegraph newspaper in 2002.

Frank came to Dostoevsky while preparing a series of lectures on existential themes in literature and never turned back.

Dostoevsky came from a land-owning family, became active in radical literary and political circles and began writing in the 1840s. He was arrested in 1849 and sentenced to death, only to be reprieved at the last minute.

The Time When Washington D.C. Was Really Grim

“When I first met Richard Nixon,” Robert Bork says in the book he completed a few weeks before his death in December, “I could see in his expression the conviction that someone had blundered badly.” With the dry wit that, together with his mastery of the dry martini, made him delightful company, Bork says the president, who “almost visibly recoiled,” evidently considered his red beard emblematic of Ivy League left-wingery. Nixon probably thought the barbarians were within the gates.

They were. On Nixon’s staff. “Saving Justice: Watergate, the Saturday Night Massacre, and Other Adventures of a Solicitor General,” Bork’s recounting of events of 40 years ago, is an antidote to today’s tendency to think that things in Washington have never been worse. Bork became Nixon’s solicitor general in June 1973, 12 months after the Watergate burglary. Then Bork, fresh from Yale Law School’s faculty, met Nixon: “Apparently unsure if he was really dealing with a conservative Ivy League professor, he assured me his conservatism was something of a pose to keep others from moving too far left.” Conservatives knew this.

In the summer of 1973, Vice President Spiro Agnew asked to see Bork, but “really had nothing of substance to say.” Bork would soon learn why Agnew wanted to establish a relationship. A few weeks later, Nixon’s chief of staff, Al Haig, asked Bork to become Nixon’s chief defense counsel concerning Watergate matters, and told Bork that Agnew was under criminal investigation for accepting bribes while governor of Maryland, payments that continued while he was vice president.

While pondering Haig’s offer, Bork sought the advice of a Yale colleague, with whom he spoke on a “dark, semi-rural road” in suburban Virginia: “It’s an indication of the paranoia of the time that I really wanted to be someplace where it was impossible to be overheard.” By September, Bork and a few others knew the nation faced a novel possibility — a double impeachment, which could elevate to the presidency the speaker of the House, Oklahoma’s Carl Albert, who the year before may have been intoxicated when he drove his car into some other cars outside Washington’s Zebra Room saloon.

Agnew, says Bork, was “never one to miss out on making a little extra cash,” so he said that if he was forced out of the vice presidency “he hoped to remain in the administration a few more months to ensure his pension would vest.” When Bork and Attorney General Elliot Richardson were being taken into the Oval Office to explain to Nixon why Agnew should be indicted, Richardson got Bork into a White House restroom to talk. He turned on the faucets “in the expectation that the noise of running water would make our conversation inaudible if anybody was eavesdropping electronically.”

Claiming “vice presidential immunity,” Agnew said he could not be indicted until he had been impeached and removed from office. Bork and others rejected this because the vice presidency is not sufficiently central to governance. Yet in those fevered days, a Justice Department memo suggested that even a president could be indicted before impeachment because with the aid of modern technology he could run the executive branch from jail. But, the memo said measuredly, this “might be beneath the dignity of the office.”

On an October Saturday, when Nixon ordered Richardson to fire Archibald Cox, the Watergate special prosecutor, Richardson and his deputy resigned, urging Bork to execute Nixon’s lawful order, which he did. By the two resignations, he became acting attorney general, in which capacity he protected the ongoing investigation of Nixon.

At work the Sunday morning after the “Saturday Night Massacre,” his first official act as attorney general was to sign lease renewal forms for an oil field in Natrona County, Wyo., that became famous during President Warren Harding’s unsavory administration. The field’s name — Teapot Dome — was shorthand for political corruption, until displaced by Watergate.

Watergate now seems as distant as the Punic Wars. Nixon, born 100 years ago in January, is remembered for large diplomatic as well as criminal deeds. Agnew is deservedly forgotten. Bork deserves to be remembered by a grateful nation for the services he rendered in preventing disarray in the Justice Department at a moment of unprecedented assault on the rule of law, and for facilitating the removal of a president during Washington days that were darker than most people today can imagine. His book confirms the axiom that our ignorance of history makes us libel our own times.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Investment in Education Will Pay Off for Idaho

Idaho and our legislators must review state public education funding to brighten the future of our children as well as enhance our state and local economies. A balanced state budget is essential. However, the state is spending nearly four times as much annually for every prison inmate compared to state appropriation for educating each child in grades K through 12.

For 2010 to 2011, the state contributed funding for each child’s education in the Twin Falls School District at the rate of $5,224. For this same time period, they supported each prison inmate annually to the tune of $19,060. This year’s state funding has declined further to $4,994 per student. Research has clearly identified a significant correlation between the potential for criminal activity and a lack of success in school.

An educated child with a bright and productive future is excellent insurance against a life of crime, since that child has been provided guidance, mentoring, academic knowledge, thinking skills, job skill training, hope and a path toward a life-supporting career or job in the future.

Today, Idaho’s education spending ranks 50th nationally — our communities and our children deserve better.

I personally advocate a prevention pathway through educating and preparing our children for productive and contributing lives versus wasted human potential.

To make up for the current lack of state funding, on March 12 you will be asked to vote on a new supplemental levy for the Twin Falls School District. For a home value of $100,000, it will cost you less than buying a cup of coffee or soda one time each month. It is up to us locally to support our children’s education to its fullest at this time, since the state is not willing to do so. I urge you to vote yes for the supplemental levy on March 12.

Repairman’s Exceptional Service Might Have Saved a Life

Last week on Sunday (Feb. 24), my gas water heater started to blow water out the faucet at the top. We got the water turned off and a couple of friends said if I’d buy the new water heater, they’d install it for me. Monday, I decided to have it done professionally. I asked a friend who to hire and she suggested Ramsey’s, so I called them.

On Monday afternoon, the fellow came over and noticed that my venting seemed odd. He followed it to where it goes out of the house and removed the vent to the chimney only to see that the liner of the chimney had, at some time, rusted out and fallen down into the chimney, closing off the vent for the water heater and the furnace.

“You’re lucky no one died of carbon monoxide poisoning,” he said. My friend whose room was next to the furnace room was at that time in the hospital since Saturday with multiple symptoms that included nausea, headaches, vomiting and fainting. When her doctor came in Tuesday morning, she told him about the water heater and the chimney liner. He said that was exactly what was going on with her.

Now, I’ve said all that to say this: Thank God the guys from Ramsey’s know what they’re doing. The workman didn’t ask me what I wanted done. He said he’d be back with a helper to get the old liner out of the chimney and replace it, which they did. We installed a second carbon monoxide alarm in the basement (though the one we had never rang, even though it tested OK), and we are here to tell you what everyone says but not everyone does: Get your chimneys and your venting systems checked from time to time.

If the water heater hadn’t malfunctioned, at least one of us might have died. Ramsey’s, you are right at the top of my gratitude list and will stay there even after I get the bill.

Big Government is Not the Way to Economic Recovery

The Washington Post writers on the sequestration based their arguments on the Keynesian economic theory that big government and big spending will help the economy. In fact, the Keynesian theory that originated the stimulus promised less than 5 percent unemployment and 4 percent growth by now. This theory failed, along with the collapse of the USSR, Greece, Spain and many other instances.

We know that our debt will eventually lead to $500 billion a year in interest payments that will destroy the many spending programs these people promote. Obama invented the sequestration as a method to detract from his spending during the election. In fact, he threatened to veto any avoidance of these cuts while running for office.

Now the story changes, but he still blocked any reasonable changes to allow departments to manage these cuts to prevent damage to the economy and get rid of failed programs. These cuts are to the future budget increases, the deficit spending still increases, laying debt on our children.

The military cuts are different. Obama has already cut the military by $500 billion. Additional cuts are slash and burn. He has so far prevented reasonable management of these future reductions. He is holding the military hostage to get more tax increases. We know that paying this debt will eventually fall on the middle class. Taxes will have to increase dramatically. Taxing the rich is simply class warfare and good sound bites for the big spenders.

We are borrowing $4 billion a day from China, and others and our overspending increases every year into the future.

This president has shown repeatedly that he has no interest in following the Simpson-Bowles recommendations. We have already had tax increases without any domestic cuts. This president has had many chances to pinpoint and manage these reduced spending proposals and has refused.

Idaho Department of Correction Budget to See 7 Percent Increase

The bulk of the money will cover cost increases in the state’s contracts with private prison companies and a medical care provider.

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • Idaho’s legislative budget writers have approved a 7 percent increase in general funds for the Department of Correction, with the bulk of the money going to cover cost increases in the state’s contracts with private prison companies and a medical care provider.

Though the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee approved the $202 million budget — including $180 million in general funds — with unanimous votes Tuesday morning, several members voiced concerns about the cost and value of Idaho’s contract with Corrections Corporation of America, the Nashville, Tenn.-based company that runs the Idaho Correctional Center south of Boise.

Rep. Shirley Ringo, D-Moscow, proposed attaching language to the budget encouraging the Correction Department to seek bids from other companies and to submit a bid of its own to run the prison, which has been the subject of several lawsuits over inmate violence and poor management.

The committee voted 4-14 against the motion, but several members including Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, said they supported the idea of examining all options when it comes to who runs ICC. Cameron said he voted against the motion because he believes it was beyond the scope of the budget-setting committee, and would be better dealt with by a policy-setting committee or by the executive branch.

“I think it would be really nice to have an honest evaluation of the costs,” Ringo said before the committee meeting. “But I know there are some political realities that come into play.” The state pays CCA just under $30 million to run the prison, including a contractually required 3 percent increase worth about $135,000 approved by the committee Tuesday.

But the Idaho Department of Correction has never determined just how much it would cost if the department were to run the prison.

About five years ago, Idaho Department of Correction Director Brent Reinke asked the Board of Correction and

Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter’s office if his department could bid for the contract to run ICC — a move that would have given Idaho a firm idea of how much it would cost to make the facility public, along with a more general idea of what kind of profit private companies could expect to earn while running the prison.

But the board responded with a firm “no” and the governor’s office simply deflected the matter back to the board.

But an examination of comparative costs done by The Associated Press last year showed that the contract with CCA may not offer any cost savings at all, and privatization could actually be costing the state more money than if the Idaho Department of Correction ran the lockup.

Gooding Woman Faces Prison for Embezzlement

HAILEY (AP) • A 52-year-old Gooding woman faces two to six years in prison for embezzling up to $500,000 from a real estate brokerage, its owner and her friend over a period of about seven years.

The Idaho Mountain Express reports 5th District Judge Robert Elgee on Monday also ordered Tracy Dalin to pay $75,000 in restitution.

Dalin had served as secretary and real estate agent at Sun Land Investments in Bellevue and also managed the personal accounts of the owner and her friend. Prosecutors alleged Dalin used complicated account transfer schemes to hide the theft of up to $500,000. She did repay some of the money before the company grew suspicious of her in 2009.

Elgee rejected a proposal that Dalin be jailed with work release so she could continue teaching home economics at Bliss High School.

Federal Cuts Mean Layoffs at Idaho Lab

Security staff reductions could hit as early as April 1 as a result of a $6.7 million rollback in the fiscal 2103 budget for lab safeguards.

IDAHO FALLS (AP) • Federal budget cuts that went into effect last week will likely lead to the layoff of as many as 84 security workers at the Idaho National Laboratory, according to energy department officials.

The cuts in security staff were announced Tuesday and could come as early as April 1 as a result of a $6.7 million rollback in the fiscal 2103 budget for lab safeguards.

The staffing reductions are just part of the personnel cuts anticipated for the research facility — by far the biggest employer in eastern Idaho.

The federal cuts that kicked in Friday total about $85 billion and affect a wide scope of programs.

So far, Democrats and Republicans have shown little urgency when it comes to restoring the cuts.

Lab officials are bracing for cuts of $12 million in budgets that help pay for contractors to oversee a hazardous waste cleanup at the site. The loss of that money could lead to the layoff or furlough of 155 more employees starting next month.

The lab’s main contractor, Battelle Energy Alliance, which oversees the entire facility, is set to lose about $7 million, enough to force the loss of 80 more jobs.

The fiscal cuts will impact more than staffing, said Brad Bugger, spokesman for the U.S. Department of Energy. Agreements involving universities, research and development projects, efforts to reduce nuclear materials and spent fuel at the lab site, and Department of Homeland Security programs may also feel the effect of the cutbacks, he said.

“We will continue to investigate options to mitigate these impacts,” Bugger said.

The safeguards and security program has 500 employees and operates under a budget controlled by the Department of Defense, which has taken a significant share of the federal budget cuts.

63 Yellowstone Bison to Go to Research Facility

HELENA, Mont. (AP) • Government officials are planning to transfer 63 Yellowstone National Park bison to a nearby research facility as the park seeks ways to reduce its growing population of the animals.

Montana Gov. Steve Bullock’s office said Wednesday that he has given approval to move the bison about three miles from the park’s northern entrance north entrance to the U.S. Department of Agriculture’s facility in Corwin Springs.

The date of the transfer is uncertain. The National Park Service will not round up bison from inside the park for the relocation, but only those animals that leave the park in winter in search of food, Yellowstone spokesman Dan Hottle said Wednesday.

Officials were trying to determine if there are enough bison outside the park’s boundaries to begin capturing the animals, he said.

House Signs Off on 2nd Charter Schools Bill

BOISE • A measure giving organizations including Idaho public universities and non-profits power to open charter schools has passed the House.

Lengthy debate from both sides of the aisle preceded Wednesday’s 48-19 vote that moves the proposal to the Senate.

The bill governs how outside groups would be supervised if they move to open alternative schools.

It also creates contractual benchmarks for charter schools, to demonstrate that they are flourishing and accountable to the state.

Proponents argued opening charter schools offers more school choice to Idaho families.

Pingree Republican Rep. Julie VanOrden said charter schools can often serve struggling students better than their public school cousins.

Moscow Democrat Rep. Shirley Ringo said the measure could result in waves of new schools — and more hands in the state’s public education funding pot.

Idaho Senate Panel Backs Boosting Child Porn Fight

BOISE • Police officers fears that Idaho will become a safe haven for child pornographers helped convince a Senate panel to lend its initial support to a proposed $2 million measure to boost efforts to fight cybercrime.

The Senate State Affairs unanimously backed the plan on Wednesday morning. Now, the full Senate will debate the bill.

Initially, the Idaho attorney general’s office would use money recovered in consumer protection cases to fund startup of the expanded Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force.

The five-year-old, two-person task force would be boosted to 14 investigators to tackle complex cases where sophisticated computer skills are necessary to catch people producing, trading and consuming child pornography.

Ongoing costs for the agency would run about $1.6 million annually.

Attorney General Lawrence Wasden would oversee the task force.

Man Arrested on Kidnap Charge

IDAHO FALLS • Police in Idaho Falls have arrested a Dubois man on suspicion of second-degree kidnapping and burglary after a family reported being held against their will.

The Idaho State Journal

reports police arrested 23-year-old Josue Andres Rodriguez on Tuesday night. A man told police that Rodriguez approached him outside his apartment Monday morning and asked to use a cellphone. The man said he did not have a phone and Rodriguez started acting erratically.

The man told investigators Rodriguez followed him back to his apartment, forced the door closed and asked to see how much money he had before starting a physical fight. The victim’s wife took their 2-year-old child, climbed out the window and called police.

Hy-Line Tells Burley to Keep the Chickens Out

Company officials cite concern over disease.

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • An official from a Burley chicken hatchery said the company would prefer the city keep its ordinance banning chickens intact.

“One of the reasons that we moved into this area is we knew the majority of our employees would be drawn from the city and it has an ordinance in place that prohibits owning poultry,” Mike Privett of Hy-Line North America said Tuesday, March 5, at a Burley City Council meeting.

Privett’s comments came as the council debates allowing residents to keep a limited number of chickens and rabbits within Burley city limits. The city currently prohibits keeping horses, cattle, hogs, sheep, goats, rabbits, chicken or poultry, except baby chickens less than 4 weeks of age.

Hy-Line has already featured in the council’s discussion. Last month, council members considered adding a chicken-free quarter-mile or half-mile buffer zone around Hy-Line to prevent the spread of any diseases among the birds, if the ordinance change goes forward.

Privett said outside his role representing Hy-Line, he understands the backyard chicken business because his family owns a poultry farm with a mail-order hatchery.

Most people raising backyard chickens don’t properly inoculate or sanitize the coops, he said, often leading to disease.

“These are the things that come up in these small-backyard type situations,” Privett said, and why his father’s company has robust restrictions.

From a company standpoint, Privett said Hy-Line is concerned about allowing chickens in the city because of bio-security. There is a threat of diseases like avian flu being carried into the facility, then being spread to larger facilities, he said.

Hy-Line even bans employees from owning poultry or other exotic birds and has rules about even coming into contact with the birds before entering the facility.

Councilman Steve McGill asked what prevents someone living in the county just west of Hy-Line from owning poultry.

Privett said there are county ordinances in place regarding large poultry facilities and the smaller operations are an inherent risk for the company.

“We don’t try to control that,” Privett said.

McGill said there are already chickens living in the city limits and a good way to protect the company would be an ordinance with a registration process for the birds.

“Not permitting it doesn’t lessen the fact that there are chickens in this town,” said McGill. “We can’t act like we don’t have chickens here and they’re here by people who know they shouldn’t have them.”

Mayor Terry Greenman asked what suggestions Hy-Line had for the ordinance other than totally disallowing chickens.

Privett said the main concerns of Hy-Line would be containment and not allowing the birds to run loose, reporting disease, and limiting the number allowed for residents to four or five.

“We would greatly appreciate any kind of buffer you could put around our facility,” Privett said.

Heyburn resident Jim Bryant said he’s been a landlord in Burley for nearly 40 years and has dealt with tenants who’ve kept goats — even some who raised sheep in a back bedroom.

Bryant said he’s concerned about people keeping chickens in front yards or between the sidewalks and the roads.

“This chicken thing cannot float, it’s bad to the bone,” Bryant said.

Abortion

In his 42-page decision, Winmill sided with McCormack and her attorney, Richard Hearn, declaring Idaho’s fetal pain law places an undue burden on a woman’s right to have an abortion. The judge also took the Legislature — dominated by Republicans in both chambers — to task for the motives driving adoption of the law, finding that efforts to protect a fetus don’t outweigh a women’s right to choose.

The judge found “compelling evidence of the Legislature’s ‘improper purpose’ in enacting it,” Winmill wrote. “The state may not rely on its interest in the potential life of the fetus to place a substantial obstacle to abortion before viability in women’s paths,” he said.

The ruling also finds unconstitutional at least two other Idaho laws dealing with abortion that Hearn and McCormack also challenged.

One is Idaho’s requirement that first-trimester abortions be performed by a physician in a staffed office or clinic, a law that makes most drug-induced abortions, such as RU-486, illegal.

The ruling also targets a law requiring that second-trimester abortions be performed in a hospital and a statute that criminalizes the woman in some cases for undergoing the procedure.

“Historically, abortion statutes sought to protect pregnant females from third parties providing dangerous abortions,” Winmill wrote. “As a result, most states’ abortion laws traditionally criminalized the behavior of third parties to protect the health of pregnant women — they did not punish women for obtaining an abortion. By punishing women, Idaho’s abortion statute is therefore unusual.”

McCormack originally filed her lawsuit in federal court against Bannock County’s prosecuting attorney on grounds the new fetal pain law was unconstitutional. She initially sought class-action status against prosecutor Mark Hiedeman, who filed criminal charges against her alleging she had an illegal abortion.

McCormack was charged after police began investigating after finding a fetus in a box in January 2011. An autopsy determined it was between five and six months gestation. Police said McCormack told them she didn’t have enough money to go to a licensed medical professional, so her sister helped her access abortion-inducing drugs online.

A judge later dismissed the criminal case without prejudice for lack of evidence, but left open the possibility for prosecutors to refile.

In her lawsuit, McCormack challenged the lack of access to abortions for women in her region, as well as the ban on abortions after 20 weeks.

She noted there are no elective-abortion providers in southeastern Idaho, forcing women seeking the procedure to travel elsewhere.

McCormack was unmarried and unemployed at the time of her pregnancy — with an income of $200 to $250 a month — and already had three children.

She couldn’t afford the time or money it would take to travel to Salt Lake City to get an abortion, the lawsuit says.

growth of dairies,” he said. “We were looking to see what the next 20 years might look like.”

The study focused on using groundwater flow of the mid-Snake River region to follow nitrate levels over a 20-year period.

Key findings included results that showed nitrate levels increasing over time even if nitrogen input remained consistent. Even if nitrate input levels remain the same over the next 20 years, they will eventually exceed the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency’s maximum contaminant level for drinking water.

The study also found that the largest nitrate concentrations in the Magic Valley don’t always appear at the sites with the most contributions of them.

Areas like southern Gooding County and parts of Jerome County have high amounts of nitrogen making its way to the groundwater, but high spring flows push the water up and out of the groundwater. This ultimately helps reduce nitrate levels to lower than expected, Skinner said.

However, this means more nitrogen is moved through the springs and into the Snake River and doesn’t necessarily stop the problem, Skinner said.

“It was one of the surprises of our findings,” he said. “Whereas in other areas, they may not be applying as much nitrogen but there is nothing to dilute it.”

Bob Naerebout, executive director of the Idaho Dairy-men’s Association, said the study’s results aren’t surprising. The next step is to study the area’s top nitrate contributors.

His association is working with the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality to fund a three-year study that will look at all nitrogen contributors in the Magic Valley.

Naerebout noted that managing nitrate levels has been a focus for dairies since the late 1990s as part of regulations regarding cattle waste. Dairy producers have been working to reduce any nitrates from reaching the Eastern Snake Plain Aquifer, the area’s critical water source.

“It’s critical to remember that there are multiple sources for nitrates,” he said, noting other contributors include septic tanks.

Wastewater

Significant wastewater users applying to increase or add capacity will be denied a will-serve letter until the city can resolve its wastewater shortfall.

Currently, Twin Falls City Council members are discussing putting a $38 million bond on the May ballot to be approved by voters. If passed, the money would be used to improve and expand the city’s wastewater facility.

“As a community, we are faced with a perfect storm of urgent need, low cost of money and steady growth,” said Lori Ward, chairwoman of the citizens committee that submitted the bond amount recommendations to the council. “This is a basic city service that needs our attention.”

The city council will continue discussing the bond issue at its next meeting at 5 p.m. Monday, March 11, at 305 Third Avenue E. in Twin Falls.

SILVER'S SEDIMENT

Built-up silt is raising temperatures in beloved Silver Creek, but some fly fishers disagree on a restoration proposal.

BY VIRGINIA HUTCHINS
vhutchins@magicvalley.com

PICABO • It's no wonder that fly fishers revere Silver Creek: a spring-fed trout stream with gin-clear water, slow current and legendary insect hatches.

And they know a prime stretch of Silver Creek is suffering from sediment buildup that raises water temperatures and stresses those prized trout.

But they don't agree on a million-dollar proposal to fix that.

"It's a fantastic fishery, but everybody thinks they know exactly what's right for it," said Dennis Brauer of Twin Falls, co-president of Magic Valley Fly Fishers.

A beloved stretch of that beloved creek is dubbed Kilpatrick Pond — a wider, slower section of stream formed in 1883 or 1884 when the Purdy family installed a dam to raise the water high enough for diversion into its ranch's irrigation canals.

The upstream portion of the "pond" flows across land open to public access and owned by the The Nature Conservancy, where the Kilpatrick Road Bridge over Silver Creek marks the property line. From the bridge downstream to the dam, the rest of the Kilpatrick Pond is on private land owned by the Purdy family's Picabo Livestock Co.

But the waterway is all public. And anglers in float tubes will populate Kilpatrick Pond from the Memorial Day opening weekend to the end of Silver Creek's trout-fishing season.

"Really, this float tube area is one of the crown jewels of fishing on Silver Creek," said David Glasscock of Picabo, an outfitter and fly fishing guide on Silver Creek for 33 years.

But remember that sediment? Deposited in Kilpatrick Pond over the past 80 years — from farming, livestock, recreation, roads — it soaks up the sun and dramatically warms the shallow water.

And the cold-loving trout so prized in Silver Creek are sensitive to minute changes in temperature. A rainbow trout in 70-degree water is lethargic and won't go for an angler's fly, The Nature Conservancy's Arthur Talsma said.

So the nonprofit and its ranching neighbor collaborated to design and fund a proposed restoration project on Kilpatrick Pond.

The Nature Conservancy and Picabo Livestock both have permits from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, said Dayna Gross, watershed manager for the Conservancy's Silver Creek Preserve. But they still need permits from Blaine County and from the Idaho Department of Water Resources.

The county and state will both hear public comments at a March 19 hearing in Hailey. But opinion has been plentiful already.

Blaine County has received more than 50 letters and emails on the proposed Kilpatrick Pond restoration, said Tom Bergin, director of the county's land use and building services office.

What Anglers Say

Reporter Virginia Hutchins talked with six fly fishers about the restoration proposal on Silver Creek's Kilpatrick Pond. Here's some of what they said:

• Chad Chorney of Twin Falls, a Magic Valley Fly Fishers member and southern Idaho project manager for Trout Unlimited:

"I'm very familiar with it, and I think overall I'm in favor of what they're doing to try to address some of the key issues on Silver Creek," he said.

Proposals from The Nature Conservancy and the Purdy family are ambitious, were shared openly with the public and have gone through several design changes. "I think they've gotten better every time," Chorney said.

• David Glasscock, a Picabo outfitter and fly fishing guide who owns Idaho Angling Services:

"There's nothing wrong with it (Kilpatrick Pond on the Nature Conservancy's land) the way it is. Even with the sediment that's loaded in there, it's still very good fishing," Glasscock said. "There's no documented evidence of any trout mortality in the Kilpatrick Pond area from high water temperatures."

His take on the restoration proposal: "I think the general public's on the losing end of this all the way around, and it's really unnecessary."

• Dennis Brauer of Twin Falls, co-president of Magic Valley Fly Fishers:

"There's the people who don't want anything to change, because a lot of people are afraid it's going to affect the fishing," Brauer said. "Nobody wants their favorite spot to be disturbed."

But disruption would be short-term and the project would improve fishing in the long term, he said, so he's in favor of it.

Of the Magic Valley Fly Fishers members who fish Silver Creek regularly, most support the project, Brauer said.

• Pete DeBaun, a Ketchum fly fishing guide:

He sees some good and some bad in the plan.

"I'm not sure what this would do. I'm not positive that the cost would validate the benefits," DeBaun said.

Natural Resources Camp Immerses Youth in Science, Sun Valley

KETCHUM • The University of Idaho's 2013 Natural Resources camp for youth 12-14 years old will offer something new: a look at Idaho's volcanology.

Campers will learn about Craters of the Moon National Monument, Snake River Plain geology, volcanoes and other close-to-hand examples of Idaho's fiery past. The addition expands the camp's mission to help youth explore Idaho's wildlife, rangeland, forests, water and soil.

The June 24-29 camp near Sun Valley is sponsored by University of Idaho Extension, Idaho Association of Soil Conservation Districts and the JR Simplot Co.

The campers will also repeat a popular feature added last year, immersing themselves in an example of an Idaho geothermal resource with a field trip to Easley Hot Springs for some swimming and end-of-camp relaxation.

"It's a little reward for the kids after spending a week with a lot of activities and learning," Amber Moore, camp director, said in a press release. She is a soil scientist for UI Extension at Kimberly.

Natural Resources Camp can provide up to 90 youth with an up-close look at Idaho and science.

"We're bringing in a lot more repeat campers," Moore said. One reason is the cabin leader program that trains campers the first year to manage their cabins the next year.

Applications for the 2013 camp are available through UI Extension and through Soil Conservation District offices across the state, or visit <http://www.extension.uidaho.edu/nrc>.

Registration is $235 by May 21, and $255 after that. For scholarship information, call a Soil Conservation District office.

Why You Should Help Find Solutions to Wildlife Diversity Funding

Question: "I attended the Wildlife Summit several months ago and was wondering if there has been any follow-up from the surveys or the group discussions."

Idaho's species at risk. We have all observed the impacts of a federal species listing as "threatened" on local and state economies as well as to conservation efforts. Innovative approaches to conservation of Idaho's at-risk species are critical when facing possible federal listing of species.

A funded Wildlife Diversity Program will also reinforce conservation efforts that benefit game species including elk, mule deer and sage grouse that share the same habitats as the nongame wildlife.

Get involved: We have set up regional wildlife work groups to explore opportunities to increase funding for the Wildlife Diversity Program. Our first meeting for the Magic Valley regional work group is scheduled for 6 p.m. Wednesday, March 13, at the Magic Valley regional office in Jerome. Due to the dinner hour of the meeting, and because some will travel to attend, we'll provide a variety of pizzas and beverages so folks won't go hungry.

Historically wildlife conservation has been promoted and shouldered on the backs of hunters and anglers. From the Wildlife Summit, you may remember the highly emotional presentation and challenge to all Idahoans from Shane Mahoney, who said, "Conservation is an act of citizenship."

If you are interested and can participate, please RSVP the Magic Valley regional office by March 8 (208-324-4359). If you'd like to participate but can't attend this meeting, please let us know and we will look for ways to accommodate you for future meetings.

Questions? Call the Magic Valley office of Fish and Game at 208-324-4350 or e-mail us at the Fish and Game website, <http://fish-handgame.idaho.gov>.

Herrett's Stocks of Twin Falls Makes Genius Handgun Grips

In my last column, I bragged about the inherent "gun control" properties of Hogue's rubber overmolded rifle and shotgun stocks, mentioning only in passing that the company also manufactures a popular line of handgun grips. This omission was deliberate. I believe that when it's time to "come to grips" with your handgun, no one fashions a finer handgun grip than Rod Herrett of Twin Falls.

The very first lesson that I learned upon meeting Rod at his factory several years ago was: "Handles are found on shovels and axes; handguns are fitted with stocks!"

With this misconception cleared up, my good-natured tour guide walked me through his plant, introducing me to his skilled staff and detailing the finer points of handgun stock manufacture. Situated inconspicuously at 169 Madrona, Herrett's Stocks Inc. is a major player in the production of standard factory and true "custom" handgun stocks, as well as bow handles, laser-engraved belt buckles and plaques.

Basic economic theory dictates that to manage costs, high-volume manufacturers must produce goods designed for the "average" consumer. This principle holds true whether you're building refrigerators, flip-flops or firearms. Mass-produced firearms are equipped with stocks intended to fit the average shooter.

Converting a sow's ear to a silk purse, Herrett-style.

If you're an average shooter, this usually doesn't present much of a problem. For the 100-200 rounds that you run through your guns each year, you've either learned to adapt your shooting form to better fit your gun or you've modified your ill-fitting gun by adding a recoil pad or changing the sights.

But if you shoot a lot — recreationally or competitively — you will become a much better shot using a gun that fits you like a glove. This is the handgun market niche that company founder Steve Herrett (Rod's dad) entered more than 40 years ago. To quote Steve: "When buying stocks you should only consider the best. We at Herrett's have spent a lifetime in stock research and development and have shown the world that our stocks are superior stocks. When accuracy counts, you will find Herrett's being used by shooters all over the world."

To produce these stocks, Rod has equipped his factory with the latest in computer-controlled milling machines and laser-engraving stations, as well as hand-operated equipment designed and built by his father and manned by his highly skilled staff.

Though Rod's extensive product line includes carefully crafted production stocks, the company's forte is its custom hand-made model. The secret behind Herrett's custom stocks is their proprietary made-to-measure procedure. By tracing the critical dimensions of your shooting hand on a template sheet, you provide the grip crafters with the precise dimensions necessary to sculpt a stock that will fit your hand — not the average shooter's.

In addition to offering a plethora of stock styles in high-grade walnut or exotic woods, Herrett's can enhance your stock with custom checkering patterns or laser-engraved logos of your choice.

Rod mentioned that the downturn in today's economy has persuaded many handgunners to upgrade their existing weapons with custom stocks rather than purchasing new ones. Makes sense!

To truly appreciate the many stock types and customizing options, check out their website at www.herrett-stocks.com or give Rod a call at 208-733-1498 and order a free brochure.

I'm still researching and pecking away on the Feinstein "assault weapons ban" piece. Be sure to check it out in my next column.

As Sun Valley Wrings all it Can from Olympic Training Site, Your Recreation Will Benefit

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

SUN VALLEY • Dr. Maria Maricich hopes her own resume as an Olympic downhill racer will help her tap some of the chiropractic business that might be needed with the elite athletes who come to train at Sun Valley.

Nordic ski instructor Steve Haims hopes the recent designation of Sun Valley as a U.S. Olympic/Paralympic Nordic training site will bring fitness tourists and others to the Wood River Valley.

And Hailey resident Tim Hamilton can't wait to see U.S. Ski Team members in action.

"When we see the U.S. Ski Team rollerblading down the bike path, it's going to be a show stopper!" he said.

Those are some of the reactions of those who gathered last week in Sun Valley to consider the possibilities that Sun Valley's designation as an Olympic training site offers.

The community could rest on its laurels and do nothing more, said Harry Griffith, director of Sustain Blaine. By securing the designation, the community has already shown that it has Nordic tracks, race events, coaches and volunteers worthy of being a training site.

But it could go for the gusto, including more training camps, competitions, conferences, seminars, U.S. Olympic programs and, perhaps, even a gig hosting Olympic trials. In the process, it may be able to secure more sponsorships from businesses like Chobani and Coca-Cola for high-profile events, such as the Boulder Mountain Tour.

"The athletes who come here to train love the bike path because it's safe. We go elsewhere and our athletes have to train on high-volume traffic roads," said Rick Ka-

KAREN BOSSICK • FOR THE TIMES-NEWS

Flags touting Sun Valley's status as an Olympic/Paralympic Nordic training site went up outside the Sun Valley Nordic Center on Sunday — just in time for this week's NCAA collegiate championship races there. Similar flags will go up at the Ketchum Town Plaza, Galena Lodge, Sun Valley Ski Education Foundation headquarters and Lake Creek Nordic Training Center.

pala, Sun Valley's head Nordic ski coach.

Both Griffith and Don Wiseman, who heads up the Sun Valley Ski Education Foundation, point to the Oklahoma City Boathouse Foundation as the training site worthy of emulating.

The foundation diverted water from the Oklahoma River into a canal and, since, Oklahoma City has hosted national and international racing events and festivals there, including USA Canoe/Kayak Olympic Trials, an international Rowing World Challenge and crowd-pleasing dragon boat races. They built a National High Performance Center with a rowing tank, hypoxic training room and indoor propulsion swim pool. And they're about to build a world-class White-water Rafting and Kayak Center and river stadium.

Here, Kapala said he is already talking with Boise State University about establishing a human performance lab. The lab would not be just for elite athletes; it could be used for fitness tourists who come to Sun Valley for week-long camps to improve Nordic or mountain bike performance.

And Marc Mast, who heads up the Wood River Ability Program which works with Paralympians, says he'd like to bring a World Cup Paralympics to Sun Valley in a couple of years.

The audience said they would like to take it a step further by getting Sun Valley designated as a training site for mountain biking and freestyle skiing. Other possibilities include snowboarding, alpine and ice skating training sites.

Griffith said Sun Valley businesses, including health care providers and retail establishments, should realize an economic boon from the designation if the community takes advantage of it.

"The economic impact — you can't buy this," he said.

Parks and Recreation Seeks Trail Rangers

TWIN FALLS • Want to get paid for clearing trail and riding a motorbike in the mountains of Idaho for the summer? Apply to be a trail ranger with the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation.

Idaho has one of the largest systems of single-track trail in the U.S. Keeping those miles of trails accessible to users is a task coordinated by Parks and Recreation's Trail Ranger Program: removing downfall, turning out water and removing other debris from trails.

Every spring other management agencies around the state participate in the program and provide temporary housing for trail rangers as close as possible to the trail system. Housing is usually rustic — such as a Forest Service guard station — but includes a sheltered sleeping area, cooking facilities, a clean water source, showers and refrigeration for food.

For information and to apply to be a trail ranger, visit <http://parksandrecreation.idaho.gov/activities/atv-motorbike> or contact Todd Wernex at 208-514-2413 or todd.wernex@idpr.idaho.gov.

Spring Black Bear Results Available Online

JEROME • Hunters who applied for spring black bear controlled hunts can find results on the Idaho Department of Fish and Game website.

Go to <http://fishandgame.idaho.gov/public/licenses/controlled-hunts/?getPage=81>.

It is the responsibility of hunters to find out whether their names were drawn in these hunts, Fish and Game said.

You can look up drawing odds on the Fish and Game website, too.

Details for obtaining or exchanging tags are explained on the site. Those drawing a spring bear controlled hunt and who have a general season tag may exchange the general season tag for the controlled hunt tag or may keep the general season tag and buy the controlled hunt bear tag. Any exchanges of tags must be completed at a Fish and Game office.

Trapshooting League Scores

TWIN FALLS • Jeff Scott of the Twin Falls Gun Club provided these Snake River Trapshooting Association league scores for week five:

Twin Falls Cliff Hangers: Jeff Scott, 25; Tara Ortmann and John Houser, each 24; rookie Kirk Johnson, 22. Week 5 total: 95. Cumulative score: 460.

Twin Falls Rim Runners: Gary Hite, 25; Jerry Kaster, 24; Shad Boyd, 23; rookie Jamin Wills, 24. Week 5 total: 96. Cumulative score: 468.

Heyburn Dudes: Scott Abo, 25; Nick Kraus, 24; Ken Wood and Joe Nelson, each 23; rookie Kirk Goringe, 24. Week 5 total: 96. Cumulative score: 466.

Woodriver Gun Club: Rick Ruggles and Jim Chatterton, each 25; Juan Goitandia and Chris Larson, each 24; rookie Russ Lamb, 24. Week 5 total: 98. Cumulative score: 480.

Boise Gun Club: David Poseley, 25; Wayne Faude, Norm Foster and Chet Carter, each 23; rookie Rich Rabe, 21. Week 5 total: 92. Cumulative score: 463.

Remember upcoming events: Spring League sign-up is March 7, and league shooting starts March 14. A PITA Doubles Marathon is on March 10, and the PITA shooter appreciation shoot is March 23-24.

Information: Twin Falls Gun Club, 208-734-0639.

Enter Nature Conservancy's Nature Vacation Sweepstakes

TWIN FALLS • A stunning canyon and unparalleled fly fishing. Or miles of trails through ecologically significant forests in the Central Appalachians.

That's the choice for a three-night, two-day vacation package from The Nature Conservancy, which teamed up with Natural Retreats to offer a getaway nature vacation to either the South Fork Canyon of Idaho or Warm Springs Mountain in the Allegheny Highlands of Virginia.

Enter the vacation sweepstakes at <http://bit.ly/VA-Retreat2Nature>. Enter by Friday, March 22. One winner will receive:

Trip for Two: Guided fishing at South Fork Lodge in Idaho; a guided hike through the South Fork Preserve; and lodging, including breakfast each morning and lunch while fishing; or Trip for Four: Guided fishing at Virginia Hot Springs, Va., on the Jackson River; a guided hike through the Warm Springs Mountain Preserve; and lodging, including breakfast each morning.

The Nature Conservancy is a conservation organization working to protect ecologically important lands and waters.

Information about the Retreat to Nature sweepstakes: Ashley Duncan, 919-260-2962 or elizabethashley@gmail.com.

Ask Fish and Game: Topographic Maps

Question: Can I get maps from Fish and Game?

Answer: Yes! Look for an order form in the rules booklets, or on the Idaho Department of Fish and Game website here: <http://fishandgame.idaho.gov/public/hunt/?getPage=162>. Fill out one of these order forms and mail it with payment to Idaho Fish and Game, Merchandise Order, P.O. Box 25, Boise, ID 83707.

You can buy maps over the counter at Fish and Game headquarters in Boise, but most of the regional offices don't stock them.

Topographic sheet maps are 1:100,000 scale and measure 38 by 27 inches. Maps cover the state on a grid and do show unit boundaries. They are $8.35 each, which includes Idaho sales tax.

Maps also are available online at <http://fishandgame.idaho.gov/public/hunt/?getPage=250>.

Idaho Power Stocks Thousands of Rainbow Trout in Mid-Snake River

TWIN FALLS • The journey to an angler's frying pan started in the Snake River for about 72,000 rainbow trout this week as Idaho Power stocked several popular fishing spots.

Idaho Power said it released 50,000 rainbow trout this week into C.J. Strike's Cottonwood and Jack's Creek accesses. An additional 6,000 were released into the Lower Salmon Falls Reservoir near Bell Rapids; 14,000 at Centennial Park near Twin Falls; and 2,000 below Bliss Dam. A second round of releases is planned for October.

Idaho Power's federal licenses to operate its hydroelectric facilities on the Snake River require the company to enhance recreational opportunities.

"That includes many parks, boat landings and fishing access spots along the river, as well as the fish-stocking program," Idaho Power biologist Ben Reingold said in a press release.

Some of the fish released this week were fitted with jaw tags used by Idaho Power researchers to evaluate the success of the stocking program. Tagged fish have been released in the river since spring 2007.

Fish released this week are about 10 inches long and were reared at a private hatchery in the Hagerman Valley, the utility said.

Anglers are asked to report any tagged fish they catch by recording the tag number, date, the reward value (if any) and the approximate location where it was caught. They can call 1-800-388-6011 and provide information that includes their name, mailing address, telephone number and whether the fish was kept or released. Anglers who report tagged fish through the toll-free number are entered into a drawing for $1,000.

area," Bergin said. The employee who's compiling those comments characterized them as generally — but not unanimously — supportive.

Greg Loomis of Hailey, a fly fishing guide in the area for 30 years, said he's "absolutely in favor of it."

"We can't force the fish to adjust to the way it is right now and expect them to survive," he said.

So anglers might have to adjust to a different experience on Kilpatrick Pond if the restoration project gains approval. And even the fly fishers who wholeheartedly support the proposal say they understand others' reluctance to let anyone mess with Silver Creek.

"As fishermen and guides we don't like change," Loomis said.

The Proposal

On the upstream portion of Kilpatrick Pond, The Nature Conservancy wants to remove built-up sediment from a 30-meter-wide channel through the pond, to restore a more natural flow of cold water. But mud banks and old sediment on its north side would be stabilized with an underwater fence of posts and fabric and planted with an overhanging bank of wetlands sod, to improve habitat for birds, insects and juvenile fish.

"Expect it to look a little muddy and rough at first," Talsma told a Magic Valley Fly Fishers meeting in January. But new vegetation should look good in a couple of years.

The University of Idaho and the firm GeoEngineers modeled the proposed channel and its effects.

Kilpatrick Pond immediately downstream of the bridge won't change at all, said Nick Purdy, president of Picabo Livestock. But in the lower portion of the pond — just before its irrigation diversion dam — the company proposes shifting silt to form wetlands and an island while restoring a channel of faster water that would carry any suspended sediment through and beyond the Silver Creek system, he said.

Picabo Livestock would also replace the dam to allow fish passage and to allow the release of colder water through the bottom of the dam, Purdy said.

Loomis is impressed that these two landowners got together and agreed on a plan: "It's commendable that they're tackling this," he said.

If the nonprofit and the ranch get their permits from the county and state, they hope to start construction in October 2013 — cutting short the fishing season.

"The earth work will be complete by early winter 2014 and revegetation will occur into the spring of 2015," stated a Nature Conservancy fact sheet. At least part of Kilpatrick Pond would be open to fishing in 2014.

Gross said the two projects total about $1 million.

With private donations and a wetlands-creation grant from the U.S. Natural Resources Conservation Service, The Nature Conservancy is about halfway to its $500,000 funding goal, she said. The nonprofit is also applying for a grant from the Blaine County Land, Water and Wildlife Program funded by Blaine voters' 2008 approval of a property tax levy for conservation.

Purdy pegged the Picabo Livestock project cost at $400,000 and said the ranch has raised half of that so far — from private users of Silver Creek; a $150,000 NRCS grant for revegetating the wetlands and the future island; and a $25,000 grant from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in conjunction with Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

The Objections

So, what's not to like?

Glasscock fears the work would damage the streambed's aquatic insect population — those hatches the fly fishers love to match. But The Nature Conservancy will collaborate with the U.S. Geological Survey to study and measure insect numbers, Gross said; she's confident the small mayflies will come back.

Glasscock also contends that deeper channels in the Picabo Livestock end of the pond would make it harder for anglers in float tubes to make their return trip to the bridge. Now, the pond is shallow enough that anglers can stay in their tubes and walk back in the water without trespassing on the ranch's private banks.

"So it's going to be a big loss to the public," he said.

Not so, Purdy said.

"I don't think that's a valid concern," he said. His design calls for banks of tapered gravel beside the proposed wetlands, so anglers can walk back at the edge of the water.

Anglers also have other options for a return trip past Picabo Livestock's private property, Gross said, such as kicking upstream with fins, using ping-pong paddles as oars, or floating all the way to U.S. Highway 20 to hitchhike back or arrange a shuttle.

"I've actually seen a guy riding a bike on the highway with his float tube," she said. "I'm not sure I would recommend that. It didn't look too safe."

But walking back in the water is the only reasonable way, Glasscock insists.

Stressing that he understands the benefits of the proposed restoration, Ketchum fly fishing guide Pete DeBaun has a different objection:

"It's a certain sense of purity within the system," he said. "There's a feeling that when you dig holes and make islands ... the perception of some would be that you're taking one of the most pristine, untouched rainbow fisheries in the world and you're going Disneyland on us."

Trout would be totally at home in a

How to Weigh In

Two applications for stream-alteration permits on Silver Creek's Kilpatrick Pond — from The Nature Conservancy and Picabo Livestock Co. — will be the subject of a public hearing at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 19, in the main meeting room of the Old County Courthouse at 206 First Ave. S. in Hailey.

Both Blaine County commissioners and a representative from the Idaho Department of Water Resources' stream channel protection program will listen to public comments. The county and the state are considering the two applications together because they deal with two halves of a single restoration proposal that's partly on Nature Conservancy land and partly on Picabo Livestock land.

What's next: No decision is expected March 19, said Tom Bergin, director of Blaine County's land use and building services office.

Later, the IDWR representative will determine how the department will process the applications, Bergin said, and he expects the county to delay its own decision until it gets feedback from IDWR.

Read up: To learn more about the proposal, read the application materials posted on Blaine County's website: <http://bit.ly/ZzSGzX>

Written comments: Send them to the Blaine County land use office by mail, email (pzcounter@co.blaine.id.us) or by fax (208-788-5576). Bergin expects the written comments already received to be posted on Blaine County's website soon.

cold, deep, insect-heavy channel, he said. But that fish magnet would also draw "the idiot guide who just can't help but just put two nymphs, a split shot and an indicator ... and low and behold they've got a happy client!"

Others have put in a lifetime of trying to fish Silver Creek on its own terms, DeBaun said. Then he tempered his touch of scorn by adding that even the "bluebloods" understand the appeal of easy fishing.

Restoration or not, don't count on easy in Silver Creek.

"All the trout in Silver Creek have a Ph.D.," Talsma said, echoing an old saying. "They've looked at a lot of stuff."

Anglers

as extraordinary as years ago, he said, but nobody has adequately answered why. And the creek is still very healthy: "It's been on the long, good run."

• Greg Loomis of Hailey, a fly fishing guide who administers the website Savesilvercreek.org:

"I am completely in favor of the pond project," Loomis said, speaking personally and not for the website. "I've gone through all of that data and talked to the engineers ... It's a sound project."

He said fly fishers' and landowners' concerns — such as movement of sediment downstream during construction, microinvertebrate displacement and less space for float tubes to spread out — have been put to rest, and opposition now is based on not knowing enough about the project. People will learn that the changes aren't as big a deal as they fear, Loomis said.

• John Huber, a Picabo fly fishing guide employed by the Purdys:

Opposition is from a small group of anglers concerned about access but veiling that behind a concern for the fishery, Huber said. It's unreasonable for float tube fishers to expect an easy upstream return to their vehicles just because the law allows them to float the waterway through private land.

"What's next?" he said. "We'll have to slow the current down for them? ... Where does it end?"

Idaho Dental Foundation Grants Available

The Idaho Dental Foundation is seeking applications for 2013 grants. The deadline for submission is March 15. Funding objectives include:

- Projects that improve the oral health of Idaho uninsured.
- Projects that increase the oral health of Idaho working poor.

The Idaho Dental Foundation is a nonprofit cooperation exclusively for charitable, educational, and scientific purposes; including but not limited to the making of distributions to organizations that qualify as exempt organizations under sections 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code.

Previous recipients include Lewis-Clark State College Foundation, Genesis World Mission, Terry Reilly

Health Services, Dirne Dental Clinic, and more. The IDF board is committed to the most efficient use of its donor's charitable dollars for oral health in the state of Idaho.

Information and applications are available at www.IdahoDentalFoundation.org.

The Idaho Dental Foundation was founded in 2006 by the Idaho State Dental Association (ISDA) as a tax exempt 501(c)(3) corporation. The board of directors are unpaid volunteers who meet twice a year and represent all seven dental societies of the ISDA. The IDF partners with dentists, community health districts, businesses, other foundations, and government leaders to improve oral health statewide through education and service.

Small Airports Irked by Removal of Body Scanners

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) • Managers at dozens of small airports have expressed outrage at federal officials for hauling new full-body scanners away from their facilities and sending them to large hubs that haven't yet upgraded older machines criticized for showing too much anatomy.

U.S. Transportation Security Administration contractors were threatened with arrest after officials at a Montana airport said they received no notice before the workers arrived. In North Dakota, the scanners are set to be yanked from a terminal remodeled last year with $40,000 in local funds just to fit the new machines.

"We think it's silly to have installed the thing and then come back nine months later and take it out," Bismarck airport manager Greg Haug said.

The L3 Millimeter Wave body scanners, which are about the size of a minivan on end and produce cartoonlike outlines of travelers, are being removed from 49 smaller airports across the country to help replace 174 full-body scanners used at larger airports. After controversy erupted over the bare images of a person's body the full-body scanners produce, Congress set a June deadline for them to be removed or updated.

But officials at smaller airports said removing their machines will produce longer lines, increased pat-downs, decreased security and a waste of taxpayer money.

North Dakota officials are especially critical of the swap because the state's airline boardings are skyrocketing with booming oil development.

Baseball players ages 13-15 (age as of April 30, 2013) from Jerome, Lincoln, and Gooding counties are invited to register for Babe Ruth Baseball.

Softball players ages 13-14 (age as of December 31, 2012) from Jerome, Lincoln and Gooding counties are invited to register for Babe Ruth Softball. Players from those same counties interested in playing American Legion Baseball for the Jerome Cyclones are also encouraged to pre-register one of these two nights for tryouts later in April.

Registration will be held at the Jerome High School Baseball Field from 6 to 7 p.m. both nights. Babe Ruth baseball and softball players should bring a birth certificate (if new to the league) and glove, along with a parent or legal guardian. Cost is a $65 registration fee, plus $10 for new pants.

Legion players will simply be signing up for tryouts so they will not need to bring any money or baseball equipment.

CSI Gears Up for Home Rodeo

TWIN FALLS • After a long winter break, the College of Southern Idaho rodeo team is back in the saddle.

Tonight CSI hosts the Rocky Mountain Regional Rodeo at 7 p.m. and Friday and Saturday nights, it’s time for the 37th Annual CSI Intercollegiate Rodeo at 8 p.m. in the Shawn Davis Arena at the Eldon Evans Expo Center.

CSI’s men’s team occupies the top position in the Rocky Mountain Region standings and is second in the national standings. Two of the team’s leading riders are National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association (NIRA) and Rocky Mountain Region top saddle bronc rider Spencer Wright from Milford, Utah, and fellow contender Orin Larsen from Ingalls, Manitoba, who sits fifth in the NIRA standings and third in the Rocky Mountain Region in the men’s all-around.

Even though Twin Falls isn’t his home, Wright must feel at home at CSI, as he follows a string of four brothers — Cody, Calvin, Alex and Jesse — who preceded him at CSI, all finding success in the college and professional ranks.

The CSI men are strongest and most consistent in the rough stock events and this year is no different. In saddle bronc, Wright, Cole Hatcher (Winemucca, Nev.) and Larsen sit one-two-three and Tab Hildreth (Gunnison, Colo.) is fifth.

Larsen is the top rider in bareback, followed by Zach Hutchison (Malta) in second place and Tyler Hanssen (Rupert) in sixth. Trent Jacobson (Irwin) is second in bull riding, followed by Trasen Jones (Holbrook) in third place, Hutchison in fifth, Colton Baratti (Filer) eighth, Jade Wadsworth (Kimberly) ninth, and Johnny Owens (Hereford) 11th. In tie-down roping, Brogan Parkin (Rupert) is tenth, while Jones is 11th in steer wrestling.

The women’s team is second in the region with freshmen Darby Fox, Kyndal Stradley, Jacee Bedke, Timmi CSI’s Trasen Jones rides a bull during last year’s rodeo.

Ward finding success at the college level and Samantha Logan, Chuck Povey and Kayle Mulick continuing to be steady veterans. Fox (Glenns Ferry), the top cowgirl from high school’s District V in 2012, is leading the barrel racing, is sixth in breakaway and 13th in goats in the region.

Both Stradley (Filer) and Bedke (Oakley) were standouts in District VI high school rodeo, having competed against each other for four years. Now the pair is teamed together in team roping and sits in seventh place in the event. Stradley is also seventh in barrels and Bedke

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On June 18, 2013, at the hour of 1:00 o'clock PM of said day, at First American Title Co., 199 Country Lane, Jerome, Idaho, JUST LAW, INC., as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Jerome, State of Idaho, and described as follows to wit:

Lot 9 in Block 4 of Johns Subdivision, to the City of Jerome, Jerome County, Idaho, according to the plat filed October 25, 1993, as Instrument Number 933978, Jerome County, Idaho.

The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113 Idaho Code, the Trustee has been informed the address of 835 1st Ave., East, Jerome, ID, is sometimes associated with the said real property.

This Trustee's Sale is subject to a bankruptcy filing, a payoff, a reinstatement or any other conditions of which the Trustee is not aware that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, this sale may be null and void, the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Trustee and the Beneficiary shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possessions or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by Jevon Benson and Davina Benson, husband and wife, as Grantor(s) with Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc., solely as nominee for D.L. Evans Bank, an Idaho Corporation as the Beneficiary, under the Deed of Trust recorded December 11, 2007, as Instrument No. 2077378, in the records of Jerome County, Idaho. The Beneficial interest of said Deed of Trust was subsequently assigned to Suntrust Mortgage, Inc., recorded November 6, 2012, as Instrument No. 2124749, in the records of said County.

THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay the amount due under the certain Promissory Note and Deed of Trust, in the amounts called for thereunder as follows:

Monthly payments in the amount of $1,024.58 for the months of May 2011 through and including to the date of sale, together with late charges and monthly payments accruing. The sum owing on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $144,361.91 as principal, plus service charges, attorney's fees, costs of this foreclosure, any and all funds expended by Beneficiary to protect their security interest, and interest accruing at the rate of 5% from April 1, 2011, together with delinquent taxes plus penalties and interest to the date of sale.

The Beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy said obligation.

Dated this 14th day of February, 2013.

WHEREAS, the City of Jerome wishes to regulate the display of animated signs or electronic message displays (EMD); and WHEREAS, the current ordinance does not specifically regulate or address the implementation and regulation of animated signs and EMD; and

WHEREAS, the public safety and welfare and uniform aesthetic considerations are promoted by providing for regulations as to the use of animated signs and EMD.

BE IT THEREFORE ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF JEROME, IDAHO, AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. Section 17.32.020 is amended to include the following definitions:

"Animated Sign": Any sign that uses movement or change of lighting to depict action or create a special effect or scene or the illusion of movement.

"Electronic Message Display": A sign or portion thereof capable of displaying words, symbols, figures or images that can be electronically or mechanically changed by remote or automatic means.

SECTION 2. Section 17.032.040 is amended as follows:

A. Any animated sign, electronic message displays (EMD), illuminated advertising device or advertising display shall conform to the following requirements:

1. Shall contain static messages only, and shall not have movement, or the appearance or optical illusion of movement of any part of the sign structure, design, or pictorial segment of the sign, including the movement or appearance of movement of any illumination or the flashing/varying of light intensity.
2. Each message or frame must be displayed for a minimum of five (5) seconds.
3. Area shall not occupy more than fifty (50) percent of the sign.
4. Shall emit a light of constant intensity, not to exceed 5,000 nits on clear days and 500 nits from dawn to dusk. In no event shall such an illuminated sign or device be placed or directed to permit the beams and illumination therefrom to be directed or beamed upon a public thoroughfare, highway, sidewalk or adjacent premises to cause glare or reflection that may constitute a traffic hazard or nuisance.
5. Text-only single color message displays with letters no higher than twelve (12) inches may scroll or travel without the static message limitation. Maximum area for such displays is sixty (60) square feet.
6. Number: One per business or center.
7. Such signs, displays, or device may not be installed on a non-conforming sign.

8. Animated signs and EMD are allowed by special use permit only and in accordance with Section 17.60.

~~B. No sign shall employ any parts or elements which revolve, rotate, whirl, spin or otherwise make use of motion to attract attention. Provided, however, subsection A of this section and this subsection shall not apply to any sign which conveys messages by moving letters or numbers, produced by electronic means. Any such sign may be allowed by special use permit, utilizing the procedures for a special use permit set forth in chapter 17.60 of this title. In no case shall the message area of any such sign for which a special use permit is issued exceed a total of sixty (60) square feet.~~

~~C. E. No sign of any classification shall be installed, erected or attached in any form, shape or manner to a fire escape or any door or window giving access to any fire escape.~~

~~D. C. All signs shall be secured in such a fashion as to prevent unsafe movement or vibration in conformance with the most recent edition of the uniform building code adopted by the city.~~

~~E. D. No sign shall be placed in any public right of way except publicly owned signs, i.e., traffic control signs and directional signs. Signs directing and guiding traffic or containing traffic markings, located on private property but bearing no advertising matter shall be permitted.~~

~~F. E. No sign shall be above the top wall line of the building on which it is placed.~~

~~G. F. The electrical features of any sign and the installation thereof shall have been inspected by the state of Idaho electrical inspector and a copy of the permit provided to the city of Jerome building official prior to the operation of the sign.~~

~~H. G. More than one freestanding sign per road frontage may be allowed by special use permit as long as there is a minimum distance of one hundred feet (100') between signs. Billboard and off premises signs shall be permitted only within the interstate sign overlay zone.~~

~~I. H. The maximum height of any freestanding sign, except for signs located in the interstate overlay area business, or manufacturing zone shall be thirty five feet (35').~~

~~J. J. Building signs are allowed on each building face not to exceed three (3) square feet per linear foot of building width. (Ord. 1074, 2010)~~

SECTION 3. This Ordinance shall become effective upon its passage and publication as provided by law.

PASSED BY THE COUNCIL this 19th day of February, 2013.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On Tuesday, the 25th day of June, 2013, at the hour of 10:00 o'clock a.m. of said day at the front steps of the Lincoln County Courthouse, 111 W. "B" St., Shoshone, in the County of Lincoln, State of Idaho, Ryan M. Fawcett, as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property situated in the County of Lincoln, State of Idaho, and described as follows, to wit:

NORTH 111.29 FEET OF LOT 8, BLOCK 1, DIETRICH WEST, DIVISION NO. 1 OF DIETRICH, LINCOLN COUNTY, IDAHO AS THE SAME IS PLATTED THEREOF, NOW OF RECORD IN THE OFFICE OF THE RECORDER OF SAID COUNTY.

The Successor Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113, Idaho Code, the Successor Trustee has been informed that the street address of 419 N. Washington St., Dietrich, Idaho, is sometimes associated with said real property.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by MELISSA A. WICKER, a Single Person, Grantor, to Ryan M. Fawcett, Successor Trustee, for the benefit and security of GMAC MORTGAGE CORPORATION, recorded September 4, 2002, as Instrument No. 173254, Mortgage records of Lincoln County, Idaho; and assigned to the IDAHO HOUSING AND FINANCE ASSOCIATION by Assignment of Deed of Trust recorded on September 25, 2002, as Instrument No. 173352, Mortgage records of Lincoln County, Idaho. THE ABOVE GRANTOR IS NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506 (4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT SHE IS, OR IS NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay when due, monthly installment payments under the Deed of Trust Note dated August 26, 2002, in the amount of $468.00 each, for the months of August, 2011, through February, 2013, inclusive; and for each and every month thereafter until date of sale or reimbursement. All delinquent payments are now due, plus accumulated late charges, plus any costs or expenses associated with this foreclosure. The accrued interest is at the rate of 6.11% per annum from July 1, 2011. The principal balance owing as of this date on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $56,072.78, plus accrued interest at the rate of 6.11% per annum from July 1, 2011.

DATED This 22nd day of February, 2013.

NOTICE OF SHERIFF'S SALE
ALLEN KEITH JONES and JUANITA JONES, husband and wife, Plaintiffs,
vs.
GLENN ODLE, a single man; FATIMA SILVA, a single woman; and IDAHO STATE TAX COMMISSION, an agency of the State of Idaho, Defendants.

Under and by virtue of a Writ of Execution issued out of the above-entitled Court, in the above-entitled action, dated February 19, 2013, wherein the plaintiffs obtained a Judgment and Decree of Foreclosure against the defendants on the 8th day of February, 2013, and determining that the plaintiffs are owed the sum of $100,440.15, I have levied upon all right, title, interest and claim of said defendants of, in and to the following described real property and appurtenances located in Twin Falls County, Idaho, to-wit:

The North one-half of Lot 30, Block 2, AMENDED SENIOR ADDITION, Twin Falls County, Idaho, according to the official plat thereof recorded in Book 3 of Plats, page 21, records of Twin Falls County, Idaho.

The street address for the property is 525 Locust Street, Twin Falls, Idaho, 83301.

I am commanded and required to proceed to notice for sale and to sell at public auction the above-described real property and appurtenances and to apply the proceeds of such sale to the satisfaction of said Judgment and Decree of Foreclosure in the total amount of $100,440.15 with interest thereon at the statutory rate of 5.25% per annum, or $14.447 per day, from February 8, 2013, and my fees and costs.

PUBLIC NOTICE IF HEREBY GIVEN: That on the 9th day of April, 2013, at the hour of 2:00 o'clock p.m., at the front door of the Twin Falls County Courthouse, 425 Shoshone Street North, Twin Falls, Idaho, I will attend, offer and sell at public auction all or so much of the above-described real property and appurtenances as directed to be sold as may be necessary to pay and satisfy the Judgment and Decree of Foreclosure as set out in the Writ of Execution, with interest thereon and costs, to the highest bidder for cash, in lawful money of the United States of America.

A Sheriff's Certificate of Sale will be delivered to the purchaser and the real property sold shall be subject to redemption rights as set forth in Idaho Code 11-402 of one year if the property sold consists of a tract of land of more than twenty (20) acres, and six (6) months if the real property sold consists of a tract of land of twenty (20) acres or less.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

*“Whether ye may not hold Secrets more dear than gold—
This is the ever new Puzzle within your blue.”*
— Charles Goodrich Whiting

Against South's contract of three no-trump, from a pair game, West obediently led the spade eight, and most declarers sensibly held up the spade ace for one round, but then took the second spade trick.

The contract could not be made without bringing in the club suit, so some players took the simplistic approach of playing ace, and another club to West's king, whereupon 10 tricks rolled in.

At other tables, the more astute Wests unblocked their club king under declarer's ace, appreciating that their partner must hold the jack. Otherwise, why had South not entered dummy and led toward his club jack, to keep East, the danger hand, off lead?

Another declarer crossed to dummy with a heart at trick three, and led the club five, under which East sleepily followed with the three. Declarer played the eight, and West was forced to win with the king, after which there was no defense.

The unluckiest declarer of all crossed to dummy and led a small club. East inserted the 10 (which suggested ownership of the jack), and when South played the ace, West unblocked the king. Now the contract had to fail.

There is no guaranteed route to success. Best is for South to lead toward the club queen at trick three, and West must duck his king. Declarer puts up the queen and leads a low club from dummy, on which East plays the jack (NOT the 10). Now South has to guess whether to duck or win the trick.

ANSWER: With a balanced hand, after hearing a one-diamond response to one club, your best rebid is one no-trump rather than one spade. The one-spade call should show an unbalanced hand with at least four clubs. In fact, even with a 4-4 pattern in the black suits, you have the choice of rebidding one no-trump. The logic is that responder rates not to have a major or to have enough points to introduce a major over one no-trump.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you because I can share this anonymously. I am close to 60 years old and I'm terrified of the dentist. Every time I pick up the phone to make an appointment I get so anxious I feel like I'm going to die.

Do you think I will be able to find a caring, compassionate and nonjudgmental dentist? Are they out there? Sometimes I wish I could die instead of going to the dentist. Am I crazy?

— MRS. ANXIETY
IN THE U.S.A.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR MRS. ANXIETY: Let me put it this way — if you're crazy, you have a lot of company. Many people fear going to the dentist. However, there have been improvements in the field since you were a child — including sedation for people who choose "not to be there" while their dental problems are being attended to.

Good dental health is very important to our overall health, so please don't put off any further making an appointment. Tell the person who is booking the appointment what your needs are, and if that dentist can't accommodate you, ask for a referral to one who can.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a nanny for four families over the last 10 years. I am now working for a family of five. I don't make a lot of money, but I enjoy what I do.

My problem is all the gift-buying I feel required to do — such as on the children's birthdays, Christmas and the mom's birth of more babies. My employer is expecting yet another baby this summer and her 3-year-old has another birthday coming up.

I'm tired of the gift-buying and really can't afford to do it anymore. When the new baby is born, I am tempted to just say "Congratulations!" Any suggestions?

— GIFTED OUT

DEAR GIFTED OUT: Yes. When the newest addition to the family arrives, give your employer a nice card. You should not be expected to come up with a gift. You are already giving these children loving and responsible care and that is gift enough.

DEAR ABBY: During the first year of our marriage, my husband cheated on me with women from his past as well as new encounters. When I confronted him, he promised to stop. He would then call and email these women, and tell them I was checking up on him and he'd contact them later.

This has gone on for years. He swears he's no longer cheating, and we have sought counseling — which I stopped because the counselor and I agreed that my husband didn't think he had a problem.

When I confront him with my suspicions, he insists that I am "driving him away" by accusing him. He is very arrogant, and people who don't know him believe he's a great guy and I am the problem. I have considered revenge cheating, but it goes against my morals. I think about divorcing him, but then I think — what if I am wrong? What if he really is being faithful? What should I do? I love him.

— UNSURE

DEAR UNSURE: I agree that "revenge" cheating is not the solution to your problem. Hire a private detective and get to the bottom of this. If you're wrong, you need counseling to resolve your insecurities. However, if he's cheating, you will know you haven't been imagining things and can decide rationally if it's in your best interests to continue being married to a womanizer.

IF MARCH 7 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your social circle could be top priority during the next four to six weeks. Group activities could distract you from what is really important, so a weekend built for two or a getaway vacation might be just the ticket. Material ambitions will develop in May, and you will have an astute grasp of what is required to get ahead financially or in your career. In September, a lucky break might put you at the top of your class. Plan ahead so you can launch your most crucial plans in September when Lady Luck will be smiling over your shoulder and when your judgment is better than usual. That is an excellent time to make major changes or decisions.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Use your brainpower to get powered up once the switch is turned on. A brain-storm may launch you into a new study. Confidential or useful information may come to light or is available on the Internet.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Rock with the rhythm of romance. Even when performing the daily chores, you can be lifted up by a sense of harmony with a special someone. Enticing detours might lead you to a beneficial opportunity.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Convince to conquer. You may find it easy to investigate an idea and obtain the facts that back up a plan. You are able to succinctly share your views and persuade others to do what you want them to do.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Unless you are a fish, don't rise to the bait. Remain calm, steadfast and true, even when tempted to slam a door or two. Arguments can only spin out of control if you let them start in the first place.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You will only see what lies beneath the waves when the tide goes out. The truth may be exposed today. Those who are older and wiser might offer beneficial nuggets of wisdom sifted from years of experience.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Become part of the community or local scene. Your home or neighborhood could be the center for social functions or activity. Lend a helping hand to a new acquaintance or network close to home base.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Avoid bouncing checks and your financial status will bounce back into good health. Clip coupons for necessities, count your change and put your love of extravagances into a holding pattern.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You must be strong to admit you are wrong. Mistakes are only something to be embarrassed about when you hide them and only a sign of weakness when you refuse to learn something from them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Ace an important research project. Find a peaceful place to study in solitude and you will be able to put the pieces of the puzzle together. This is a good time to make a long-term commitment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It may be time for a group hug. You may meet resistance if you try to manipulate people or situations into a predetermined direction. Show your appreciation by giving someone a pat on the back.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Trust the professional advice you receive. Rely upon your instincts, judgment and a grasp of salient facts to guide you in the right direction. Take time to pick up the phone and spread good will.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Although times are changing, you'll still be the apple of someone's eye. There may be a deadline to meet or pressures to bear, but there is someone waiting in the wings.
