BUSINESSES, COUNTIES ARGUE OVER PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX

BY MELISSA DAVLIN mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • A pending decision on personal property tax repeal drew Magic Valley government leaders to Boise this week. On Tuesday, the House Revenue and Taxation Committee heard testimony on two personal property tax bills: One, proposed by the Idaho Association of Counties, that would exempt the first $100,000 of a business's assessed personal property tax, and the other, proposed by the Idaho Association for Commerce & Industry, that would repeal the tax in its entirety. The committee will vote on the bills today or Thursday.

Members of the business community tended to favor the IACI proposal, saying it would spur economic development. Alex LaBeau, executive director of the Idaho Association for Commerce & Industry, said personal property tax is the No. 1 complaint among his group's membership.

"I think everyone sincerely believes this is a bad tax," LaBeau said. But most local government officials who testified favored the county proposal. Burley mayor Terry Greenman and Burley city administrator Mark Mitton said they're concerned, not just about the revenue itself, but the source of the money. Both opposed the IACI proposal.

TWIN FALLS • Voters trickled in few and far between to submit their ballot on Election Day.

On Tuesday, six different

Magic Valley school districts asked voters to check "yes" to pass several proposed supplemental levies.

At the Twin Falls Nazarene Church, just 43 voters had submitted their ballots as of 1:30 p.m. It was a drastically low number compared to the presidential election held in May, said poll worker Launa Noble.

"It'll be interesting to see how it turns out," Noble said. "Right now, we're not seeing a lot of people come out."

Noble and her fellow poll workers kept themselves busy by reading books, knitting scarves and playing Sudoku. In other voting locations, workers read jokes and stories out loud from their phones to pass the time.

"It's been really slow," said Susan Nutsch, a poll worker at Jerome Middle School.

Jerome resident Martha Piper said she voted not because she wanted the levy to pass but because she was passionate about voting.

"It's becoming a habit now. It's something that needs to be passed every time," she said. "I'm out here every time."

Twin Falls voter Phillip Lively said he was voting to make sure his voice was heard on the issue.

"It's probably something that needs to be passed, but I'm concerned at how they're going about it," Lively said.

Despite low numbers, some poll workers remained hopeful that more voters would turn out later on in the day.

"We're waiting on school to get out," said Linda Burton, a poll worker stationed at the Jerome Public Library. "That's when the teachers will come out and vote."

St. Luke's Sued by FTC, State of Idaho

BOISE • The Federal Trade Commission and Idaho Attorney General's office is suing St. Luke's Health System because they contend St. Luke's purchase of a Nampa health care group violates state and federal anticompetition laws.

Deputy Attorney General Brett De-Lange said the lawsuit will be filed in Boise's U.S. District Court Tuesday afternoon. The state contends St. Luke's purchase of Saltzer Medical Group unfairly gives St. Luke's the market power to raise health care rates for the region.

St. Luke's Health System, a notfor-profit company based in Boise that owns and operates six hospitals in Idaho, bought the 44-physician Saltzer Medical Group in December. St. Luke's officials maintain that the Please see ST. LUKE'S, A3

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Dow Ekes Out Eighth Straight Advance

NEW YORK (AP) • The Dow Jones industrial average logged its longest winning streak in two years — barely. A tiny gain gave the Dow its eighth straight increase Tuesday, long enough to match its longest series of gains since February 2011. The Dow rose 2.77 points, or 0.02 percent, to 14,450.06, having wavered between small gains and losses for most of the day. The broader Standard & Poor's 500 ended down

3.74 points, or 0.2 percent, at 1,552.48. The Nasdaq composite dropped 10.55 points, or 0.32 percent, to 3,242.32.

Drive-in Movie Theaters Will Open This Summer

BY JULIE WOOTTON jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Both drivein movie theaters in Twin Falls will soon reopen for a new season, but their futures remain up in the air.

The target reopening date for the Motor-Vu is March 22, depending on weather conditions. And Grand-Vu will likely follow two or three weeks later.

Larry Roper, managing director of Interstate Amusement, said the drive-ins will stay open as long as there are 35-mm films.

"I don't know how long that's going to be," he said. Without 35-mm films, drive-in theater owners would have to make costly upgrades to digital technology.

"If we cannot get some kind of solution to the end of the 35-mm film or a way to put digital into the drive-ins, they all will be closing," Roper said.

He said initial information from major studios such as Disney and Paramount indicated 35-mm films won't be produced after April 1.

The studios have already started to cut back, he said.

For the first time in 35 years, there won't be a summer show series for children in Jerome because it's unclear whether 35-mm films will be available to the Orpheum Theatre there.

"Jerome is going to feel the first hit when it loses its summer series," Roper said.

Upgrading technology at the Motor-Vu and Grand-Vu theaters would mean installing a much larger light source than indoor theaters.

Roper said each drive-in would need an 8,000-9,000 watt system to get light onto the outdoor screen. In comparison, the Twin Falls Cinema only uses 3,000 watts.

Upgrading could cost as much as $100,000 apiece, he

Other questions have also come up, Roper said, such as what effect all the dust at the drive-ins would have on the equipment. Twin Falls is among just a handful of Idaho towns, including Parma Grangeville, to still have a drive-in theater. Construction on the Motor-Vu finished in 1947, and the Grand-Vu was built in 1951.

Nationwide, the number of drive-in theaters is declining.

There were an estimated 368 drive-ins nationwide as of July 30, 2012, according to the United Drive-in Theatre Owners Association's website.

with That compares 4,063 drive-ins at the indutry's peak in 1958.

Officials Talk about Last Weeks in the Legislature

BY MELISSA DAVLIN mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • So what exactly is going on behind the scenes at the Legislature? On Tuesday, Speaker of the House Scott Bedke, R-Oakley, and Senate President Pro Tem Brent Hill, R-Rexburg, spoke to members of the Idaho Press Club about big issues lingering this session. Here are the highlights:

No Showdown on Personal Property Tax

The House Revenue and Taxation Committee will soon consider two separate proposals on repealing personal property tax, but the fight over the bills won't draw out the session past April, the two predicted.

There is also a possibility the Legislature won't pass either bill and sit on the personal property tax issue for another year. While Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter said a repeal was one of his priorities for the session, Hill said he didn't sense a showdown if the Legislature doesn't acquiesce.

"I can tell you that he's made no such threats," Hill

A Civil (if Long) Insurance Exchange Debate

The House is scheduled to debate the insurance exchange bill today. When the Senate heard a similar bill in February, the debate lasted six hours. Hill and Bedke both said they didn't mind the lengthy discussion.

"I think this is an issue that needs to be vetted," Bedke said. "There are members that feel strongly on this." That said, he expects the discussion to remain respectful, adding "this could be one of the House's finer hours."

Abortion Issues Likely Won't Come Up

Despite federal courts overturning Idaho's 20-week abortion ban earlier this month, Bedke and Hill - both pro-life — said they don't expect an abortion-related bill to come up this session.

"I think we can take a year off, personally," Bedke said.

Don't Count on Girl Scout Cookie Tax Exemption

Though a bill to exempt Girl Scout cookies from sales tax passed the House Revenue & Taxation Committee unanimously earlier this week, Hill said it might not get a hearing in the Senate.

The problem isn't just Girl Scouts, he said. It's too many sales tax exemptions in Idaho's code.

"If we get rid of some of the exemptions we had now we'd be looking at a five cent sales tax," Hill said, adding he prefers a wider base and lower rate for everyone.

Camas Voters Approve Supplemental Levy

T.F. Voters Pass $9M Supplemental Levy

BY ANDREW WEEKS aweeks@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls School District voters passed a $9 million supplemental levy Tuesday, helping to stave off additional furloughs and program cuts and maintaining operation costs.

The two-year levy passed with 1,665 voters, or 66 percent, saying yes; 865, or 34 percent, voted no.

"The supplemental levy is a very important aspect of the funding puzzle, and with it we know we will be able to continue to optimize the educational opportunities for our students," Superintendent Wiley Dobbs said in a prepared statement.

The levy, which replaces a $7.5 million supplemental levy that expires in June, provides $4.5 million each of the next two years to support the district's programs and staff. Based on the taxable $100,000 - what Dobbs called a minimal amount to support education. "We won't be where we were before 2009," district spokeswoman Beth Pendergrass previously told the Times-News, "but it allows us to maintain operations, to keep doing what we're doing now."

revenue," said Mitton, who has worked in public administration for decades. When Mitton worked in California, his county's general fund lost more than $2 million overnight when the state cut payments, resulting in layoffs and reductions in county services.

Greenman said businesses inquiring about opening in Burley don't ask about personal prop-

"It was never an issue," he said. Instead, companies are concerned about infrastructure – already problematic in Burley, Greenman said.

"We're having problems maintaining our streets," he said.

Twin Falls city manager Travis Rothweiler also testified against the IACI proposal. Rothweiler said the IACI bill wouldn't reimburse personal property tax revenue for any urban renewal districts formed after Jan 1, 2013.

Rothweiler pointed out that Chobani and the Glanbia expansion relied on urban renewal money for the projects. He urged the committee to support the county proposal.

"We believe that (the county proposal) allows the tax increment financing tool that is in place today to remain," Rothweiler said.

purchase will improve patient care and ensure better health outcomes as well as help contain medical costs.

But the purchase has been the subject of legal controversy for months. St. Alphonsus Health System, a competing medical group that operates four Catholic hospitals in Idaho and Oregon, sued St. Luke's over the planned acquisition in federal court in November, along with Treasure Valley Hospital, which is also based in Boise. St. Alphonsus and Treasure Valley Hospital both asked U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winmill to put a stop to the purchase while the lawsuit seeking to halt the deal moved through the court, but Winmill declined, saying the acquisition could always be unwound later if St. Alphonsus prevails.

Also last year the Idaho Attorney General's office asked St. Luke's to hold off on purchasing Saltzer Medical Group while the state and federal investigation into possible antitrust violations moved forward, but St. Luke's declined to wait.

Work at I-84/U.S. 93 Junction Begins

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Work is beginning on the long-awaited second stage of the reconstruction in the desert south of the Interstate 84/U.S. 93 junction, the Idaho Transportation Department announced. Construction is expected to be completed near the end of October.

Starting immediately, crews will begin replacing the eastbound I-84 bridge at the 173 interchange, realigning the eastbound on- and off-ramps, and installing a relocated traffic signal at the south end of the junction.

Crews will begin with ramp construction, followed by signal installation and bridge work over the next two months. Traffic on I-84 will be shifted onto the westbound lanes as the eastbound bridge is removed and replaced beginning in May.

The second stage of the junction comes years after the construction of Stage One, which was completed in the spring of 2003. Stage Two was delayed, then canceled after funding was redistributed. A portion of the original Stage Two was built in 2011 with concrete paving of U.S. 93 through the junction. Last year, the Idaho Transportation Board chose to fund Stage Two with statewide construction savings.

The additional space between the ramps and the junction will someday facilitate a third stage of construction to install loop ramps. The final stage will be scheduled when traffic increases to the point that the added ramps are necessary.

Western Construction of Boise is the contractor for the $11.8 million reconstruction project.

Most traffic delays will occur once the bridge work begins, but drivers should be aware that other traffic delays due to rock blasting will begin as soon as this week. As a precaution, short delays and rolling road closures will take place on both I-84 and U.S. 93 when blasts take place near the roadways.

Delays may be more frequent on U.S. 93 between Golf Course Road and I-84 as much of the area near the roadway will be used as a gravel source for the project. Areas on both sides of the highway are owned by the Idaho Department of Lands and leased to ITD for gravel and material sources. A portion of the quarry area will close space historically used for motorcycle and other recreational activity northeast of the Golf Course Road intersection. Users are advised to stay out of the source area to avoid injury.

Police Look for Drug Dealer, Find Man Who Huffed Canned Air

BY ALISON GENE SMITH alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls police started out looking for a reported drug dealer Sunday night but ended up finding a man who allegedly huffed compressed air and couldn't remember what he'd onlookers Concerned called police the evening of Sunday, March 10, to report a suspicious man trying to sell methamphetamine to children near the intersection of Harrison Street and Meadows

According to a police report, officers couldn't locate the suspect in that area, but citizens found the man, identified as Jonathon Thorne, 18, at about 8:38 p.m. near the intersection of Quincy Street and Monroe Place.

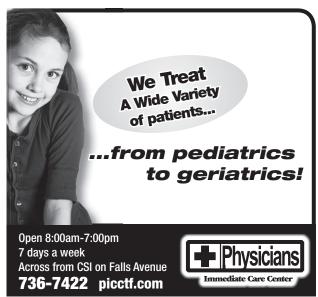

Thorne allegedly told police that he huffed a can of "Dust-Off" that he stole from Fred Meyer, the police report states.

According to the report, Thorne said he took a 30second to one-minute hit off the can of compressed air then began walking toward Harrison Elementary School. The report states that Thorne told police he remembered getting up after he blacked out and approaching children at the school but didn't remember what he said to them.

Thorne then continued to walk and inhale from the can before he threw it away in the 600 block of Quincy Street, the report states.

According to the report, Thorne told police he has huffed from the time he was 13 years old, and he said it gave him a light-headed feeling.

Thorne was taken into custody on suspicion of inhalation of intoxicants. Thorne was arraigned on the charge Monday morning in Twin Falls County 5th District Court, and a pretrial conference was scheduled for April 23.

Marvin was born March 2, 1935, in Gooding, Idaho, to Earl and Alice France. The sixth of eight children, his childhood was spent on the family farm north of Gooding where they raised livestock and row crops. Theirs was a close-knit, loving family. Marvin met Shirley Graves on a blind date Oct. 6, 1956. In this case, blind refers to the fact that Marvin was struck blind to all other girls from that day forward. They married one year later on Oct. 6, 1957. Marvin and Shirley had three children: Teri Ann, Ray Allen and Clayton Glen.

Marvin had many occupations throughout his lifetime, including ranching, farming, bank loan officer, tire repairman, contractor, school board member, county commissioner and Sunday school teacher. Q. I just read about another telephone scam. Several victims lost thousands of dollars to scammers who promised them millions. This is so sad!!

A. The voice on the phone might say that you have won a huge prize or even the lottery. Or, it might say that someone else won the lottery but because they live in another country they need your help. In either case, they say you can expect big money!! STOP!! Lotteries don't contact you, and you can't win a lottery you did not enter! Do not respond to phone calls, emails or letters that say you have won a lottery or sweepstakes. Do not wire money to anyone for "taxes" or "legal fees" to collect supposed winnings. If someone asks you to go to the bank to take out cash, or wants you to buy a cash card to send them money, don't do it! Never give your bank account number, social security number or any other personal information to someone who claims that you have won a prize. Don't be the next tragic scam victim.....

BY SUSAN MONTOYA BRYAN

Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. • Despite the slowest start to a wildfire season in a decade, the head of the U.S. Forest Service said Tuesday his agency is preparing for another busy year, but with fewer firefighters.

Late winter storms have helped bring more snow and rain to some parts of the country, but Chief Tom Tidwell told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that much of the South and Southwest are expected to dry out by May and June as drought conditions persist.

That will give way to a season much like last year, when more than 14,500 square miles — an area bigger than the state of Maryland — were charred. A dozen lives were also lost last year and more than 2,200 homes and businesses were destroyed.

The predicted hot spots for wildfires this year? Tidwell pointed to Florida, Arizona, New Mexico and Southern California.

"The areas I'm talking about now are influenced by these severe and ongoing droughts, and that doesn't get changed with any few storms. So the potential is there," he said.

The most recent forecast from the National Interagency Fire Center in Boise, Idaho, show normal fire conditions through March,

US Braces for Another Bad Fire Year

This Aug. 2012 photo provided by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management shows the Holloway Fire outside Denio, Nev., which burned more than 525 square miles of remote rangeland straddling the Oregon-Nevada border.

but things will begin to change in April. In the Upper Midwest, for example, deficits in soil moisture are expected to lead to an increase in significant fire potential.

NIFC meteorologist Ed Delgado cautioned that much will depend on the spring storm track as well as how fast or slow snowpack in the higher elevations melts this year.

"Drought, it's one of the factors in determining fire season, but it's not the only one. There are a lot of other things we're looking at to gauge what's going to happen."

The predictions are key as the Forest Service ramps up for the season. The agency, which is trying to absorb a 5 percent cut in its preparedness funding due to sequestration, plans to preposition firefighters and other resources in areas where fire activity is expected to be above normal.

The funding cut will mean about 500 fewer fighters and 50 fewer engines with crews. The agency will also have to rely more on aircraft that are not on contract with the federal government, and Tidwell said that could ultimately lead to higher firefighting costs.

"We will respond like we always have, whatever it takes for us to be prepared," he said.

Last year saw record-setting fires in New Mexico and Oregon, while Colorado suffered through one of its worst fire seasons in more than a decade. At one point last summer, there were 10 fires burning across that state. Overall, several Western states had more acres burned in 2012 than the previous year, and the Forest Service spent more than $1.4 billion battling the blazes.

Kenya Says 'Yes' to Kenyatta, 'No' to International Court

enya's newly elected president, Uhuru Kenyatta, told supporters last weekend that the country's voters had "demonstrated a level of political maturity that surpassed expectations."

Governments around the world echoed the sentiment.

Awkwardly, Kenya has just elected a man who is under indictment at the International Criminal Court, accused of crimes against humanity. Yet Western nations are right to reserve judgment on Kenyatta as his trial plays out. And the ICC itself could learn valuable lessons about unintended consequences from this episode.

Kenyatta and the foreign spokesmen mean two different things by "maturity." For Kenyatta, it includes the refusal to be cowed by the ICC's proceedings. In fact, signs are that the charges, which Kenyatta decried as Western meddling in Kenyan affairs, energized his supporters. He won a sliver more than 50 percent of the vote (thus avoiding a runoff) on a turnout of 86 percent, the country's highest ever.

For the United States, Europe and others, "maturity" means an election that doesn't collapse into violence. That's what happened in 2007, when claims by one defeated candidate, Raila Odinga, of electoral fraud brought opposing camps into the streets; the charges against Kenyatta, a supporter of incumbent President Mwai Kibaki, relate to the ethnic killings of more than 1,100 that followed.

Once more the defeated candidate, Odinga is again challenging the results, this time at Kenya's Supreme Court, and deploring the performance of the electoral commission whose job was to supervise the vote. He also called for calm: "Any violence now could destroy the country forever," he said. A peaceful challenge to the election under the terms of the country's new constitution would indeed be a sign of maturity.

Kenya's citizens continue to vote along traditional tribal lines. In that respect, the country has far to go before it becomes an ordinary functioning democracy. They also want stability, as do the foreign investors who see the country as one of Africa's brightest prospects. If strife can be avoided, the International Monetary Fund reckons the economy will grow by 5.6 percent this year and 6.4 percent in 2014, up from 5.1 percent in 2012. The policy platforms of Kenyatta and Odinga weren't that different. The uncertainty that investors fear arose mainly from the risk of violence.

What about the ICC's accusations? They may well evaporate. The court dropped charges on March 11 against one of Kenyatta's co-accused, Francis Muthaura, partly because a prosecution witness recanted. Kenyatta is insisting he's innocent and has so far complied with the proceedings. His trial is due to start this summer. If it goes ahead and he ceases to cooperate, this could be less of a problem for Kenya than for the ICC and the governments that want to see it succeed.

Despite Kenyatta's anticolonial election pitch, Kenya is a military and economic ally of the West, particularly in the fight against terrorist groups in Somalia. It's also being courted by China and other emerging powers. Notwithstanding the hopes of the ICC's champions (including many European nations), sanctions or snubs in response to Kenyatta's indictment and possible refusal to cooperate would clash with the West's immediate interests.

For the time being, Kenya's Western allies will probably confine themselves to what diplomats call "essential contact," neither endorsing Kenyatta nor seeking to force him to account. It's far from elegant, but there's little choice, and on balance that approach is correct.

Meanwhile, the ICC should learn something from its role in swinging electoral support to Kenyatta, and from the charge critics make that it's an oppressor's court. The idea that the ICC is anti-African is by no means confined to Kenya. The court and its supporters ought to think hard about how to reverse that perception. Holding its trials of Africans in Africa rather than the Hague might be a good start.

Those accused of crimes against humanity should be brought to justice, and the ICC is a noble endeavor. But the symbolism of summoning Africans accused of crimes in Africa to Europe so that justice can be dispensed is just too fraught for anybody's good.

Revisionist History on Watergate

e can all accept George F. Will's thesis "D.C.'s darkest days; on March 7 that the nation's capital was in far more dire straits during President Richard Nixon's second term than in the dysfunctional morass we are now suffering. But Will's acceptance of Robert Bork's self-serving claim to have been the "protector" of the Watergate investigation is a mischaracterization of history. Bork, then Nixon's solicitor general, famously carried out the president's order to fire special prosecutor Archibald Cox after Attorney General Eliot Richardson and Deputy Attorney General William Ruckelshaus refused in what became known as the Saturday Night Massacre.

Bork's assertion that by firing Cox he acted to protect the ongoing investigation of Watergate crimes is akin to the Army major's claim during the Vietnam War that "it became necessary to destroy the town to save it." Secret recordings reveal that well before the controversy surrounding the subpoenaed White House tapes, Nixon discussed with his chief of staff, Alexander Haig, his intention to fire Cox. This was part and parcel of the president's continuing effort to obstruct the Watergate investigation.

Richard Ben-Veniste

The Washington Post

Bork, recently arrived from the Yale Law School faculty, lent his academic credibility to the attempt to justify the firing — which federal Judge Gerhard Gesell later ruled was plainly illegal, as Cox could be fired only for "extraordinary impropriety."

(Bork later stipulated that Cox had committed no such impropriety.) The grateful president, Bork recently wrote, promised to nominate him to the Supreme Court upon the next vacancy.

Nixon's order to fire Cox followed the Watergate prosecutor's refusal to accept any substitute for the presidential recordings that had been subpoenaed by a grand jury and ordered produced by the courts. Indeed, far from championing an independent investigation that would allow recourse to the judicial process, Bork signed an order on Oct. 23, 1973 - three days after firing Cox - abolishing the Office of the Watergate Special Prosecution Force. Bork's support for Nixon's position, if successful, would have kept secret the most devastating evidence against Nixon and his closest associates. It was only after the firestorm of public revulsion following the

Saturday Night Massacre that Nixon backed down — producing seven subpoenaed tapes (less 18 1/2 minutes of deliberately erased conversation on one of them) — and acceded to the demand to appoint a new special prosecutor to replace Archibald Cox.

Without the tape-recorded evidence demonstrating irrefutably, in Nixon's own voice, his knowledge of and active involvement in obstruction of justice, it is likely that Nixon would have escaped impeachment and removal from office. But the next special prosecutor, Leon Jaworski, with a charter virtually identical to his predecessor's, continued Cox's pursuit of the evidence and the rest is (unrevised) history.

Richard Ben-Veniste was chief of the Watergate Task Force of the Watergate Special Prosecutor's Office.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Support Efforts to Beat Multiple Sclerosis

I live in Filer, and I am one of millions of people who have connected to end multiple sclerosis. I'm writing to ask for your help in changing the lives of people living with MS in this community and across the country by publishing the following letter:

Multiple sclerosis is a chronic disease of the central nervous system for which there is no cure. MS interrupts the flow of information within the brain and between the brain and the rest of the body. Thanks to growing collaboration around the world, however, there are improved treatments leading to enhanced quality of life for people living with MS. MS divides minds from bodies, pulls people from their lives and away from one another. MS is a destroyer of connection. But it is possible to build connections that MS cannot destroy. Our connections raise questions, find answers, bring knowledge and provide hope. Every connection we make is a small victory and, together, our small victories create larger ones that will help end MS forever. Every connection counts.

I know the effects of MS; I have MS. Beginning with MS Awareness Week, March 11 to 17, I encourage people to connect in a way that is most meaningful to them, as there is no more powerful way to end MS. It's easy to get involved, visit www.MSconnection.org. It only takes a few minutes to make a difference in the lives of the millions of people worldwide who live with this disease.

Being involved with the National MS Society has made a huge difference in my life through education, support and connection with others dealing with this disease as well. Here are some simple things people in our community can do:

- Visit www.MSidaho.org to learn more about MS.
- Donate and help be part of the solution to the problem of MS. The National MS Society is one of the largest funders of MS research. More than 20 years ago, there were no treatments for MS. Today there are nine FDA-approved therapies because people supported the movement!
- Wear orange or an orange ribbon and tell people why.
- Tell 10 people that MS Awareness Week is March 11 to 17 and ask them to tell 10 people they know.
- Sponsor a walker or cyclist in a Walk MS or Bike MS event, or participate yourself!

Every connection matters. Let's connect for a world free of MS. Thank you, JINGER BURTON

Ask Developers, Not Taxpayers, to Fund Additional Wastewater Capacity

I find it interesting that the Twin Falls City Council approved wastewater treatment for the new yogurt plant and did not realize that it would maximize the city's ability to process other wastewater requests.

Now they want to have the taxpayers approve a bond for additional wastewater treatment to the tune of more than $30 million, raising the citizens of Twin Falls' water bill again in almost a year. I would suggest that a better approach would be to ask those who want additional treatment capacity to fund it. That would not only apply to business but additional housing subdivisions.

Trial Begins in Teen Party Stabbing Case

BY ALISON GENE SMITH alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A trial began Tuesday for two men accused of helping in the stabbing attack of an 18-year-old Jerome man.

Jeffrey Allred and Roberto Garza Jr. are both charged with aggravated battery with a deadly weapon and conspiracy to commit aggravated battery with a deadly weapon in connection with an alleged attack on Orlando Ramirez.

Jury selection in the case took up the morning, and opening statements began at about 2:15 p.m. Tuesday.

Twin Falls County Senior Deputy Prosecutor Stan Holloway described the events leading up to the alleged attack.

Holloway said Nicholas Gray, 20, who was sentenced to up to 11 years in prison on Monday after admitting to his role in the attack, wanted to get revenge against Ramirez for hitting his younger sister, 18-year-old Jennifer Gray.

According to Holloway, Ramirez was aiming for a teen boy; his fist grazed the boy's head, then hit Jennifer Gray. During Nicholas Gray's sentencing, Holloway said Nicholas Gray brought a group of young men and teens, including Garza and Allred, to attack Ramirez.

Holloway said Ramirez underwent emergency surgery, had his gallbladder removed and his liver was lacerated in the stabbing.

Allred's attorney, Mark Guerry, opened by telling the jury this was a complicated case, but that the jury would come to see that Rarmiez was a willing participant in what became a brawl when he was stabbed by Nicholas Gray. Allred and Garza never had any intention of stabbing Ramirez or anyone else, Guerry said.

Tim Williams, Garza's attorney, said the evidence would show that Ramirez was drunk and wanted to finish the fight.

Holloway called Deputy Neil Schultz as his first witness. Schultz described how he was called to the 1700 block of Blake Street in Twin Falls for a call about a stabbing. He testified that he saw blood on the ground and taped off the area. He also noted that photos taken of the scene appeared to be taken a few hours after he taped the scene off.

Holloway also called Kelby Birch and Felicity Ochoa, who live at the house where the altercation took place.

Birch said she was hosting a small get-together with friends when things got out of hand. She said she invited her cousin, Ochoa, who was at a different party, to bring her friends over to the house. Everything was fine for about 45 minutes, she testified, then a verbal argument about jealousy over a girl at the party arose.

"That was when everything started going crazy," Birch said.

Birch testified that Ramirez thought his friend was going to get hit by a bigger teen in the fight. Ramirez ran into the street where the two teens were and hit the bigger teen, Birch said. Meanwhile, Jennifer Gray had gone into the street to hug one of the teens and got inadvertently hit by Ramirez, she testified.

Under cross examination, Birch said Jennifer Gray started bruising immediately from the blow and dropped to the ground when she was hit, but maintained that Ramirez was aiming at the teen boy.

Ochoa testified that she didn't remember much from the night of the fight, but said when the car pulled up with Nicholas Gray and the others she heard someone ask, "Which one is he?" She couldn't identify who said it.

The trial will resume at 9 a.m. this morning.

Jennifer Gray was also severely injured during the alleged fight when she was hit in the head with a rock. She was charged with aggravated battery with a deadly weapon and conspiracy to commit aggravated battery. A trial is scheduled for her on April 24.

A 17-year-old boy was charged with aggravated battery with a deadly weapon, aggravated battery causing great bodily harm and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon in connection to the case. He's scheduled for a March 19 trial.

The 17-year-old Ramirez was allegedly trying to hit when he struck Jennifer Gray pleaded guilty to charges of aggravated battery with a deadly weapon and conspiracy to commit aggravated battery.

Free Nitrate Testing Offered for Private Wells at Jerome Health Fair

JEROME • Owners of private wells can get their drinking water tested for nitrate at the St. Luke's Jerome Health Fair, Saturday, March 16.

Idaho Department of Environmental Quality staff will provide free nitrate testing from 7 a.m.-noon at the the Jerome Rec Center, 2032 S. Lincoln Ave.

Nitrate is the most widespread contaminant in ground water in Idaho. Nitrate is a chemical form of nitrogen found naturally in small amounts in soil and groundwater.

Some land use practices and human activities may increase nitrate in ground-water to dangerous levels. In areas having shallow depths to groundwater, sandy soils, or shallow wells, nitrate contamination can easily occur.

Drinking water that contains high levels of nitrate is especially dangerous for infants under the age of 6 months, unborn children and adults with low stomach acidity.

To participate in the free testing, well owners are advised to:

- Collect the water sample on the morning of March 16.
- Allow the water to run 5-10 minutes to empty the pressure tank so water comes directly from the aquifer. This will give more accurate results.
- Use a clean glass jar or Ziploc bag to collect the water sample. Label the outside with your name, address, date, and well name (garden well, house well, etc.).
- Collect water from a source that is not connected to a treatment device (water softener, carbon filter, or other filtration system). An outside faucet or hydrant works best.

- If using a jar, rinse the jar and lid, then fill the container with about one cup of water.
- Keep the sample cool until tested. DEQ will test it onsite for nitrate and give you the results.

"Having well owners' water tested and raising awareness of the importance of protecting the ground water as a drinking water source is a great way to mark the last day of Ground Water Awareness Week, March 10-16," said Irene Nautch, DEQ's Drinking Water Protection Coordinator in Twin Falls.

Most Idaho Dairy Workers Are Illegals

BOISE (AP) • Different estimates say most of Idaho's 8,300 dairy farm workers are illegal immigrants.

U.S. Rep. Paul Labrador recently put the number at 90 percent.

Idaho Dairymen's Association executive director Bob Naerebout said he believes it is between 75 percent and 80 percent.

Naerebout said his estimate is based on U.S. Department of Agriculture figures and past audits by U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement.

Narebout told the Idaho Statesman the high number of illegal immigrants on dairy farms has social and legal consequences.

RESEARCH SHOWS WARMING TREND IN N. IDAHO STREAMS

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) • Warmer water temperatures being recorded in northern Idaho streams and rivers are creating unhealthy conditions for trout, especially the region's Westslope cutthroat population, Idaho environmental officials said.

A recent analysis by the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality shows that nearly 900 miles of streams in Kootenai and Shoshone counties are reaching temperatures up to 80 degrees in warmer months, well above the optimal temperature of 55 degrees or colder for trout species.

"That's pretty warm even for people. So it's very warm for trout," Kajsa Stromberg, DEQ spokeswoman, told the Coeur d'Alene Press in a story published Tuesday.

The biggest factor to the warming trend is excessive sun exposure and lack of tree cover that provides shade and protection, she said. The region most affected by the warmer waters is the North Fork Coeur d'Alene River Sub basin, a region popular for anglers and prized for its population of cutthroat trout.

The warmer temperatures have a variety of negative impacts on trout, from making the fish lethargic to heightened risk and exposure to potentially threatening disease.

"They're a very popular fishery, very popular with the anglers," Stromberg said of the streams. "And for a lot of people, just the fact that they're out there is important. They're really beautiful."

To help reverse the trend, the DEQ is proposing a plan to lower water temperatures and improve access to colder, deeper waters.

The strategy includes building more rock structures and logs to narrow and deepen channels and improving access fish have to cold-water channels and natural springs. The plan, now open for public review and comment, would also protect more of the region's shoreline trees from timber

Voters Say No to Levy Proposal in Hansen

BY ANDREW WEEKS aweeks@magicvalley.com

HANSEN • The Hansen School District received disappointing news on Tuesday after voters failed to approve a $190,000 supplemental levy.

But just barely: 115 taxpayers, or 51 percent, voted against the proposal, while 111, or 49 percent, voted for it.

Superintendent Susan Scherz said she's disappointed, but it's something the district will have to respect. That could mean tough choices will have to be made.

"We'll just have to get back together with the board, process it and see how we want to move forward," she said.

Staffing cuts are a possibility, but she said she'll do everything to avoid such drastic measures.

The district has 29 teachers and around 370 students.

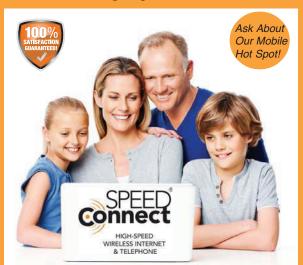

The levy's cost to taxpayers would have been $17.60 per year for every $10,000 in home value.

Voters passed a one-year levy of the same amount last year, but this year the district was asking for a two-year cycle on the levy.

"We'll try to do everything to not (cut positions), but it also depend on where the Legislature takes things," Scherz said. "We're all on the same ride together."

Bees Brave Cold, Pests to Produce Summer Honey

BY ERYN SHAY JOHNSON

Times-News

TWIN FALLS • Winter months bring out heavy duty coats, long pants, stockings and gloves, but for bees in the Magic Valley they rely on two things to keep them alive honey and heat.

While most apiaries send the bees to California for the winter, businesses like Tubbs' Berry Farm winterize their bees.

The Tubbs' prepare their bees before the season ends by setting aside honey stores before selling the extra product. But with a dry summer in 2012, this winter was a bit

"We had a long, dry summer," said Kirk Tubbs. "There wasn't a lot of nectar. With a harder winter, there is a higher mortality rate."

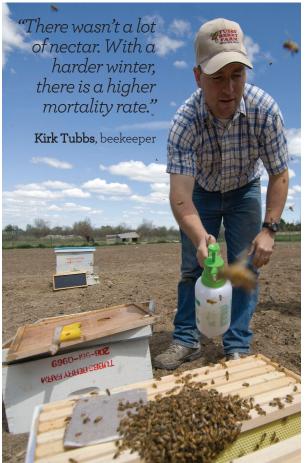

According to a 2011 Times-News article, Idaho lost about 5,000 colonies between 2009 and 2010, leaving the bee census at 98,000 colonies. (Only beekeepers that have five or more colonies were included in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's numbers and colonies are not included if honey is not produced.)

What's the forecast for this year? Tubbs said it all depends on the bees.

Tubbs lost bees this winter, maybe slightly more than last year, but he still has hives that look wonderful. Tubbs will finish checking hives as the month progresses but it is still too soon to count a final mortality rate.

Bees can starve a few inches away from honey because a few inches is a long way for a bee when it is cold outside.

When temperatures start to drop, the bees decrease mobility and start to form a Please see BEES, F3 arly spring can be a time of both dread and wonder. Dread if you didn't get all (or any) of your fall garden projects finished, and now you are sure regret and recrimination are awaiting you somewhere near the lawn mower. Don't do garden guilt. Instead lean toward the wonder of spring, and enjoy your garden as it wakes up. Getting out there quickly before anyone notices will also allow you to grab the last of the Christmas lights.

If you have herbaceous perennials (plants that come back every year but die to the ground in the winter) that haven't been cut back, now is a great time to take care of that. If there is some new growth coming out of the ground, just cut back the old growth above it. If you can't see any new growth, cutting them to 3 inches is usually

Some experts actually advise waiting to cut back perennials until spring because they believe this may increase winter survival. So if you get attitude from a neighbor while you are cutting your perennials, pretend that this was your plan all along. Tell them that plants can use carbohydrates from the stems into the early winter (it might be true). You may have noticed I said 3 inches is usually safe, this was not only because I love disclaimers but also because there are always exceptions. Some plants we treat like herbaceous perennials are actually woodies. That's another one of those weird terms used by even weirder plant people. What it means for normal people is bushes that lose their leaves in the winter.

Some common plants that fit the 'not really herbaceous' category are Lavender (Lavendula), Butterfly Bush Please see GARDEN FIRSTS, F2 Draught House

Hungry for a Change? Here are some new items on 6 local menus.

BY TETONA DUNLAP tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Can you feel the change in the air? The days are getting longer and the weather a little more pleasant.

And with spring starting next week you might notice variety in more than just your

Some of your favorite local eateries and restaurants are revamping their menus. Some emerging trends include fare that is lighter, fresher and healthier just in time for bikini season.

Depot Grill

Just a week ago, the owners and chefs at the Depot Grill, 545 Shoshone St. W., gave their menu a complete makeover. It's the first update since 1964, said co-owner and chef Don Olson.

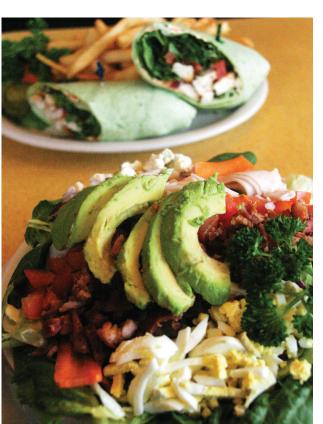

The menu still features more than 300 items and hasn't taken away from what the Depot Grill is known for breakfast and filling meals like chicken fried steak and eggs. But you will find more light and fresh fare on the menu. Some new plates include the Cobb salad ($6.75), a heaping plate of tossed greens, tomatoes, avocado, bacon bits, boiled eggs and more; and the chicken chipotle wrap ($6.29), featuring boneless breaded chicken, chipotle cream cheese and Romaine lettuce all in a spinach wrap.

Olson said these items and more have been a part of a rotating daily special and seemed to be popular. On March 4 they were added permanently to the menu.

"We've been a working man's restaurant for awhile? Olson said. "But we have new businesses downtown like the St. Luke's billing office and Glanbia and we are trying to entice the female clientele, too."

O'Dunkens

Co-owner Bev O'Connor said

TETONA DUNLAP • TIMES-NEWS The cobb salad and chicken chipotle wrap are new menu items at the Depot Grill in Twin Falls. O'Dunkens changes up its menu a couple of times a year.

"You got to try some things out and if they work, they work," O'Connor said. New on the menu are bangers and mash ($7.99), pork and seeds ($8.99) and a fruit and cheese platter ($9.25).

O'Connor said they decided to add a healther appetizer option with the fruit and cheese platter, which features fresh fruit like grapes and apples and various cheeses. The portions are big and come with slices of bread, walnuts and honey.

If you are looking for a heartier dish try the bangers and mash, a traditional British dish of mashed potatoes and sausage. The O'Dunkens version will also feature an onion

O'Connor also suggests you try out the pork and seeds, which are pieces of pork seasoned with spicy mustard seed and sesame seed. "It's so good, everybody loves it," O'Connor said.

Also look for corned beef and cabbage all day every First Friday. O'Dunkens Draught House is located at 102 Main Ave. N. in Twin Falls.

The Coffee Shop and Lunchbox Deli

You may know that The Coffee Shop and Lunchbox Deli is located at 1105 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. But did you know that they opened a second location in Jerome in November? The Coffee Shack, 262 Golf Course Road, is a drive-thru kiosk that offers the same coffee and drinks that you can find in Twin Falls, along with several breakfast items like biscuits and gravy, scones and bagels.

Co-owner Shane Black said you can still find the same drink specials at the Jerome location, like the $212-ounce latte that is available everyday. Back in Twin Falls, The Coffee Shop and Lunchbox

New York City Appeals Soda Size Defeat as 'Contrary to Law'

BY DAVID MCLAUGHLIN, CHRIS DOLMETSCH AND HENRY GOLDMAN

Bloomberg News

NEW YORK • New York City challenged a ruling throwing out Mayor Michael R. Bloomberg's proposal to ban some largesize soda drinks, calling the decision Monday by a state court judge "contrary

In a five page notice of appeal, the city said it would fight the ruling by New York Supreme Court Justice Milton Tingling in Manhattan before the court's appellate division. Monday, Tingling barred the ban from becoming law Tuesday, saying it had too many loopholes and violated the jurisdiction of New York's City

The city's Board of Health in September approved the plan to cap the size of sugary soft drinks sold in restaurants, movie theaters, stadiums and arenas at 16 ounces a cup. In October, groups representing beverage makers, restaurants and theaters asked the court to quash the regulation as "unprecedented interference" with consumer choice. Tingling issued a permanent injunction barring the city from implementing the plan.

"The loopholes in this rule effectively defeat the stated purpose," Tingling wrote. "It is arbitrary and capricious because it applies to some but not all food establishments in the city, it excludes other beverages that have significantly higher concentrations of sugar sweeteners."

The plaintiffs said the city had overreached and ignored the rights of New Yorkers to make their own choices. The plan is "grossly unfair" to small businesses such as street-food vendors and pizzerias because convenience and grocery stores can still sell the larger sizes, lawyers for the plaintiffs said.

The city argued it's trying to stem an epidemic of obesity driven by consumption of sugary beverages, which is rising because food establishments sell everlarger portions. Under the rule, consumers are free to buy an unlimited number of smaller drinks and get refills.

Michael A. Cardozo, corporation counsel of New York City's Law Department, said Monday that "the board of health has the legal authority and the responsibility to tackle" the leading causes of a "growing obesity epidemic." Bloomberg is the majority owner of Bloomberg LP, parent of Bloomberg

The board of health last year ordered the restrictions put in place. Food-service establishments would have had three months to comply; after that, they would have faced a $200 fine each time a city inspector found violations. The ban wouldn't have applied to convenience stores, bodegas and groceries, which are regulated by the state.

Since taking office in 2002, Bloomberg, 71, has made public health a hallmark of his administration. He's banned arteryclogging trans-fat food additives and workplace smoking; raised tobacco taxes; increased testing for HIV, cholesterol and blood pressure; and required restaurant chains to post the calorie content of menu items.

The mayor, a Republican-turned-independent, said such actions have raised life expectancy in the city to almost 81 for babies born in 2010, 2.2 years more than the national average.

"There's one public health crisis that has grown worse over the years and that is obesity" Bloomberg said Monday at a news conference. "If we are serious about fighting obesity we have to be honest about what causes it and we have to have the courage to tackle it head on."

Bloomberg, calling the decision "clearly in error," said he was confident it would be overturned by a higher court. Jamie McShane, a spokesman for New York City Council Speaker Christine Quinn, didn't immediately return a call seeking comment on the appeal, or the judge's ruling the ban violated the separation of powers. Quinn, a Democrat, announced this week she is running for her party's nomination for the mayoral election in November. At a press conference Tuesday morning, New York City Council Speaker Christine Quinn, a Democrat, said "it's appropriate to let the court do its job and rule on what the issues are there relevant to the board of health's power."

Quinn announced this week she is running for her party's nomination in the mayoral election in November. She didn't address the judge's assertion that the soda ban should have been approved as a city council ordinance, rather than as a decree by the mayor's appointed board of health. Boston barred sweetened soda and junk food from school vending machines in 2004, and Mayor Thomas Menino last year ordered a phased sugardrink ban in all municipal buildings and city-sponsored events. San Francisco and Los Angeles County have also acted to reduce sugared-drink consumption in buildings, according to Harvard University's School of Public Health.

A Feb. 28 Quinnipiac University poll found that city voters oppose it, 51 percent to 46 percent, with a 3.1 percentagepoint error margin. A lobbying group backed by consumers and industry executives, New Yorkers for Beverage Choices, orchestrated a series of protests at City Hall last year.

(Buddleia), and Russian Sage (Perovskia). Pruning these should not be as severe, but they will perform better if you cut them in the spring down to about 10 inches. Pruning will help to control the size and shape and improves flowering. What if you just don't know what you have and there is no way you are going to ask?

Fortunately plants come equipped to communicate with you. Watch them as they begin growing and observe where the new growth is coming from; herbaceous perennials will come mostly from the root or crown, so the message here is the old growth is unnecessary. If there is new growth all along the stem it is probably a woody shrub.

Ornamental grasses are another group of plants with their own rules. These are the tall grasses that have recently become very popular and are particularly adaptable to Idaho gardens. Early spring (just before asparagus picking time) is the ideal time to cut them back, leaving about 3-4 inches. Cutting grasses back in the fall is a shame because most are quite beautiful in the winter. However, now is the time to encourage a new season's growth, so clean out all of last year's growth. And while you are cutting, think about the wonder of spring - about how with a sharp tool you can clear out the old and begin again.

cluster, a circular shape with bee's huddling together to form a shield around the queen and the other members of the hive. The protective layer can be several bees deep with the outermost reaching the honey store and supplying food to the internal bees. Hives don't survive if food runs out or if the cold forces the cluster to form a tighter ball moving them farther away from the honey store. Occasionally, the hive will fail if the queen is old and passes away during the winter months.

Bill Lemmons, owner of B & B Apiaries, sends his hives to California to vacation in warm weather and almond orchards.

"There is a big demand for bees to pollinize almonds in California," said Lemmons.

"What they pay is good; we make more money doing that than from honey crop."

Lemmons said another reason to send the bees away is so they can have a honey

"The bees are susceptible to what we leave them," said Kay Miller, an employee at B & B, "which is nothing."

A vanishing floral source discourages the majority of apiaries in the state to keep their bees winterized. The allure of a paycheck is also a huge contributing factor.

"Everything that we consume needs to be pollinated," Miller said.

B&B sends their bees to almond orchards in Merced County from October until March. The vacation for Lemmons' bees is about to come to an end. This week, B & B will bring hives back to the Magic Valley. The hives will be loaded onto semi-trucks at night after being netted and will travel nearly 12 hours to return home.

Only 6 percent of the bees will be lost in transportation, Lemmons said, a small number compared to the 25 percent lost when the bees were winterized in Idaho.

But both Lemmons and Tubbs agree that the biggest threat to bees is not the cold but varroa mites - small pests similar to ticks.

"With all these new diseases it has been difficult to maintain healthy (hives)," Lemmons said.

Russian City Celebrates Pancakes, Self-Promotion

BY WILL ENGLUND

The Washington Post

PSKOV • Russia Fat, round and pagan. For Russians, it's that time of year, and here in Pskov they're not going to let anyone else outdo them. This is Butter Week, and this is when Pskov stakes its claim as the home of Czar Pancake.

Lent, in the Orthodox Church, begins on March 18, so starting this Monday, Pskov's griddles have been sizzling overtime. This is like a week-long Mardi Gras, except that it's all about blini the distinctively Russian yeasty pancakes served all day and into the evening and filled with everything from herring to honey, all drenched in butter.

Actors and musicians are performing, artists have been creating a City of Straw Sculptures, and leading citizens are trying their hands at the stovetop, led by the holiday's biggest booster, Gov. Andrei Turchak.Russians everywhere celebrate the week known as Maslenitsa, so what's Pskov's special claim? None at all, said a highly amused Lidia Chechelnitskaya, deputy director of the Folk Art Center of the Pskov region. But no one else had laid claim to it, so why not?

"We had an opportunity, and we had a wish," she said, her face alight in her cramped and bustling office, "and anything is possible when these things come together."

ONLINE: What is Brown Ale?"

Managing Editor Nate Poppino blogs on all things beer at Idaho On Tap. Here's what's on his mind this

"The term brown ale" can easily be confusing, or at least not much more useful than the term 'red wine."

So warns the entry on "brown ale" in the Oxford

Companion to Beer. And its advice should be welltaken.

Brown ales originating in Britain already referred to quite a variety of beers before America's craft resurgence. Now, a bottle labeled as a brown could be anything from a hop-heavy darker ale to a malty beer highlighting flavors of caramel and nut.

As is usually the case, an American brown ale tends to emphasize hops. But again, this is one style where you never want to assume, as shown by Payette Brewing's Mutton Buster Brown Ale.

In bottles, cans and kegs, made in Twin Falls or Ponderay, Idaho-produced beers are showing up in greater numbers in Magic Valley stores and bars. "Drink Idaho" introduces you each week to another Gem State brew available locally.

Ten years ago: Forced into a diplomatic retreat, U.S. officials said President George W. Bush might delay a vote on his troubled United Nations resolution or even drop it - and fight Iraq without the international body's backing. The Senate voted 64-33 to ban a procedure that critics called partial birth abortion. (The measure passed the House and was signed into law by President Bush in November 2003.) Norwegian Robert Sorlie won the Iditarod Trail Sled Dog race in nine days, 15 hours, 47 minutes.

Five years ago: The body of Chaldean Catholic Archbishop Paulos Faraj Rahho was found in a shallow grave in northern Iraq, two weeks after he was kidnapped by gunmen in one of the most dramatic attacks against the country's small Christian community. Gold hit a record, rising to $1,000 an ounce for the first time (however, it fell sharply later in the year). Bode Miller clinched the men's overall World Cup ski title in Bormio, Italy.

One year ago: A resurgent Rick Santorum swept to victory in Republican presidential primaries in Alabama and Mississippi. Twenty-two students returning from a ski holiday and six adults died when their bus crashed inside a tunnel in southern Switzerland. A ferry carrying more than 200 people collided with a cargo boat and sank short of Dhaka, Bangladesh; most on board died. Encyclopaedia Britannica Inc. said it would stop publishing print editions of its flagship encyclopedia. Dallas Seavey, at age 25, became the youngest winner ever of the Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race in Alaska.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"And with you memories come, sharp pain, and dole. Now there's a choice — heartache or tortured liver!

A sea-sick body, or a you-sick soul!"

— Rupert Brooke

Today's deal sees two different defenders at work. Both succeeded in defeating their opponents' game, but in very different ways.

At each table, South was declarer in four spades when North treated his hand as worth a jump raise facing his partner's free bid of one spade. Of course in this auction South had promised five spades, since he would have doubled one heart with only four spades.

The defense started with West leading the heart jack, and East overtaking to play clubs. At one table, East found the best technical defense when he shifted to the club jack. South covered with the queen, and West won and returned the club nine. Now, whatever declarer did, he had to lose two more club tricks.

In the other room, East shifted to the club king at trick two, and when it held the trick, he continued with a low club. South looked at him suspiciously. Was East trying to pull a fast one, with an original club holding of ace-kingthird, or did he have his actual holding and had given up on the legitimate way to defeat the contract?

In the end, South guessed wrong and went up with the queen, letting West take his ace and cash a third club trick for the

So which defender followed the better line? It is hard to say. Had East held the club nine or eight in addition to the king-jack, the technical play of shifting to the club jack would surely have been right.

ANSWER: This hand is just below the minimum required for a negative double followed by a correction of two of a red suit to two spades. And since you certainly need more to make a forcing call of two spades here, you should probably pass and hope partner can reopen the bidding when he is short in clubs.

THAT SCRAMBLED WORD GAME

Don't bother struggling. I have you in my trance.

DEAR ${f A}{f B}{f B}{f Y}$ Jeanne Phillips

He wants to continue living together and pretend nothing happened. He went to counseling and quit. Then he went to a psychiatrist, who diagnosed him with a "mixed personality disorder." He says he wants to make up for his mistake with me, but all the while he was having unprotected sex.

I doubt he'll ever stop lying to me because he always has. I can't spend the rest of my life looking over my shoulder because this has happened before, although not to this extent. He said he just "led a double life" and he doesn't want to do it anymore. He admitted he did it because he never thought he would get caught.

During this long affair, he was brazen, arrogant and abusive to me. Now he wants to be attentive, but he makes me sick. What do I do?

- CAN'T TRUST HIM IN NEW JERSEY DEAR CAN'T TRUST

HIM: Only you can decide that, but in order to do it rationally, without anger or vengefulness, I'm advising you to make up your mind AFTER some sessions with a psychologist on your own. What your husband wants at this point is far less important than what YOU want. And why you would want to continue in a marriage to an abusive philanderer is something only you can answer.

DEAR ABBY: I am a gay man who has been single for seven years. I met this guy, "Mark," about 10 months ago and we hit it off immediately. We have almost everything in common except that I'm a Democrat and he's a Republican. We both know how we feel about our political differences and decided to continue dating anyway.

My problem concerns my other gay friends, mostly Democrats, who don't like Mark because he's a Republican. I have tried explaining to them that we overlook our differences and concentrate on the many things we have in common, and they should try to do the same. But they no longer invite me to gatherings and their phone calls have ceased.

I feel hurt and rejected by my closest friends, some of whom I have known my whole life. I feel torn between them and Mark, who is someone I really care for. Is it wrong to continue my relationship with my boyfriend at the expense of my friends?

- POLITICALLY INCORRECT

DEAR POLITICALLY IN-CORRECT: Twenty-twelve was a particularly heated election year, with important issues at stake and negative campaigning bringing out the worst in many people. Now that the election has been decided, one would hope that inflamed emotions will settle down and life can return to normal.

I know several couples who have strong and happy "mixed" marriages in which the spouses do not always agree politically. It is a shame that you would be required to choose between the man you care for and your longtime friends, who want to ignore that there are also gay Republicans.

I see nothing wrong with continuing your relationship with Mark; however, I think it may be time for you to expand your circle of friends if this is how your old ones behave. You'll all be happier if you do. Trust me on that.

IF MARCH 13 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are at the center of attention everywhere you go during the next several weeks. Your excitement at the world around you attracts people from diverse walks of life, but you may attract that special someone you have been looking for, as well. Wait to make key commitments, as not everyone you meet will stick to you like glue. Your reputation as a savvy businessperson is enhanced in late May and early June, so that is a good time to make decisions or changes in your financial status. Any genuine relationship will thrive in October and opportunities to improve your life might come knocking. If you have planned carefully in May, then by October your efforts should bear fruit.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Time moves slowly for those who wait. Self-control and discipline may be difficult, but will prevent problems. Fight off the temptation to dive into a new investment and bite back the urge to avoid duties.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may be encouraged by a friend to jump into a financially risky venture. Although a proposal might sound like music to your ears, the results of any decisions or changes made now could hit a sour note.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): It may pay to keep all your options open. You may think that your business skills are enhanced during the next several days, but it won't pay to put finances on the line. Wait for better opportunities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Steer a straight path financially. The daily flow of events might bring business practices and ambitions into the spotlight, so you may be tempted to compete with others. Stick to your original LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You might fall down but you can get right back up. Pressure may be brought to bear on you to make changes that are not based on traditional ideas. Put business decisions on the back burner for the next few days.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Keep plugging away at mastering a new skill. This isn't the best time to acquire new investments. Avoid being pinned down by a new agreement and hold off on putting important plans into motion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Prime for priorities. The answers to your prayers might not arrive today, but you can be sure they are on their way. Other people may be so focused on an absorbing task that your needs or requests are ignored.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Learn lessons. It is interesting that "break down" includes the word "break," which sounds like "brake." If you slow down and put on the brakes rather than moving forward you won't break SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't let achieving business or career objectives interfere with family peace and harmony. You may run into deals that look good on the surface but don't hold up to scrutiny.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Storms make trees develop deeper roots. It may be difficult to meet large demands on your piggy bank or your heart. Hold off on major expenditures, investments or commitments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): There is truth in the well-known platitude that money isn't everything. Keep your thoughts, finances and emotions focused on achieving long term goals rather than seeking instant gratification.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Use sympathy and understanding. Try not to appear too businesslike or unapproachable when contacted by others. You might be sidetracked by ambitions and ignore what is really important.

"Things went the right way for us," Parke said. "Everybody contributed and did their Please see PARKE, S4

ST. LOUIS • Mark Mihal was having a good opening day on the links when he noticed an unusual depression on the 14th fairway at Annbriar Golf Club in southern Illinois. Remarking to his friends how awkward it would be to have to hit out of it, he went over for a closer look.

One step onto the pocked section and the 43year-old mortgage broker plunged into a sinkhole. He landed 18 feet down with a painful thud, and his friends managed to hoist him to safety with a rope after about 20 minutes. But Friday's experience gave Mihal quite a fright, particularly after the recent death of a Florida man whose body hasn't been found since a sinkhole swallowed him and his bedroom.

"I feel lucky just to come out of it with a shoulder injury, falling that far and not knowing what I was going to hit," Mihal, from the St. Louis suburb of Creve Coeur, told The Associated Press before heading off to learn whether he'll need surgery. "It was absolutely crazy."

Annbriar general manager Russ Nobbe described the sinkhole as "an extremely unfortunate event, an event we feel is an act of nature."

any way we could have foreseen this happening," he told a Tuesday news conference.

Mihal said it was a real downer on what had been a fine outing.

RUPERT • Minico couldn't come up with timely hits Tuesday as the Spartans lost 6-1 to Bonneville in its season opener and the debut of new head baseball coach Jared Price.

Minico outhit Bonneville 8-6, led by Tanner Anderson's 3-for-4 performance. He scored the Spartans' only run, on an RBI single by Shay Chandler in the first inning.

Minico left 10 base runners stranded and received no offensive production from the bottom half of its batting order. The Spartans also had four errors. "You can't give extra outs to a good team like that," said Price. Bonneville's Lincoln Clayton blasted a home run to start the game. He finished 3-for-4 with three RBIs, plus he tossed five strikeouts in two innings of relief to pick up the win.
