Boy Hit by Car at Twin Falls Intersection

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls police responded to a pedestrian versus vehicle crash at the intersection of Grant Avenue and Taylor Street in Twin Falls on Friday afternoon.

Twin Falls city spokesman Joshua Palmer said the pedestrian was a juvenile male.

Palmer said the boy sustained very minor injuries and was not transported to a hospital.

No citations were issued, Palmer said.

The crash happened at about 3:40 p.m., he said.

Idaho Legislature Searching for Consensus on Tax Repeal

TIMES-NEWS

BOISE • A proposed personal property tax repeal is in a holding pattern in the Idaho Legislature.

Though two opposing bills have had public hearings, House Revenue and Taxation Chairman Gary Collins said Friday after-their Dietrich home.

DIETRICH • Two years and one week ago, David Conner was lying on the cracked tile of his kitchen floor; his wife Colleen's arm was draped over his shoulder.

"I'm thinking, 'I hate this floor, and now I'm going to have my brains and blood and bones scattered all over it," David said. "Because I really thought they were going to shoot us."

Two years after the home invasion that rocked the tiny town of Dietrich, David and Colleen Conner spoke to the Times-News about the robbery, and their lives afterward.

attackers then tied him up and held a gun to his head. Colleen came out of the couple's bedroom, also armed with a gun, and soon everyone was pointing at each other in what David described as a "Mexican standoff."

"You have to make a decision," David said, "so she put the gun on the table."

noon he wasn't sure when, or if, he would schedule a vote.

"We're still looking for some type of consensus," Collins said.

The proposals would phase out part or all of a tax on business property. An existing law passed in 2008 would already end the tax on the first $100,000 of a business' property, but depends on an economic trigger that hasn't been reached yet.

One bill from the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry proposes a full repeal of the personal property tax. It would cost $120 million over time.

The Idaho Association of Counties drafted its own legislation, which would essentially pull the trigger on the existing 2008 law. That change would cost $19 million.

A third proposal hasn't yet been printed. Collins said he doesn't know what will happen with that bill Personal property tax reform has been regarded as potentially one of the big issues of the session. But Senate and House leaders said Tuesday there was no guarantee the Legislature would pass either personal property tax bill this session.

Site of Sunday Crash Slated for Replacement

DECLO • The bridges at the site of a fiery crash on Interstate 84 Sunday, March 10, will be the focus of a $30 million replacement project starting in 2015.

Twin bridges cross the Snake River at milepost 216, just west of I-84's Declo exit. On Sunday, a 2013 Volvo semi drove off the right shoulder of the westbound bridge and hit the guardrail. A fuel tank caught fire on impact and the flames spread to the bridge.

Colder Temps Return

ou knew it was bound to happen sooner or later a return to the cooler temperatures of March. But the warm afternoons in the 60s and 70s the last few days felt so nice.

Unfortunately, this is what we like to call in the television business as a tease, or a preview of what will eventually come. The cold, hard realization that it is still technically winter for the next five days will be felt as we go into the second half of the weekend and into early next week.

Today, we get one more nice, mild day with afternoon temperatures reaching the upper 50s to the low 60s. Skies over the Magic Valley will be mostly sunny and it will be breezy with gust up to 25 mph.

This all changes going into ronight and early Sunday morning, as a cold front will push south across the region. We will see some rain, possible snow mixed in, especially in the mountains and a return to colder temperatures. Most of the precipitation falls during the early morning on Sunday. Some places in the Magic Valley and Wood River Valley could see maybe a coating of snow. Most of the snow will fall in the mountains and produce a couple of inches. Sunday will also be very chilly as highs struggle to reach 50 and very wind. Winds will be out of west between 35 and 45 mph and some gust near 50 to 55 mph. The cooler active weather pattern will be in place as we go into next week.

ONLINE: All Court Hearings Are Recorded – Just for You

Crime reporter Alison Gene Smith's blog, dubbed "Scanner Traffic," gives you a behind-the-scenes look at her beat. Here's an excerpt from her latest post:

"... When a public hearing is 'on the record' it literally means it's being recorded. This is helpful for everyone involved in the case if there's any question about exactly what was said in court. ...

"Each county has a different method for allowing the public to listen to the audio recordings that are made of every public hearing.

"In Twin Falls it's as easy as telling court records staff what time the hearing was that you want to listen to. Twin Falls has a couple of public computers that are available to use. ...

"Court staff in each county can also make an audio CD of the hearing for a fee of $5 or $6 so you can listen in the comfort of your own home. This is a lot cheaper and quicker than ordering a transcript of the hearing ..."

It's Going Around: Cold Viruses Invade Schools, Businesses

BY JULIE WOOTTON jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Around the Magic Valley, the sounds of sneezing, coughing and nose blowing are common these days.

For some schools and businesses, illnesses have affected absentee rates among students and employees.

So what's going around right now?

At Minidoka Memorial Hospital, administrator Carl Hanson said there have been more viral infections treated at the hospital than last year.

"That's probably the most common aliment we've seen," he said.

Hanson said there haven't been a lot of flu cases.

At Target, store manager Jeremy Judd said there has been an uptick in employee illnesses since the end of January or early February.

"We have seen an increase as a store," he said about the Twin Falls location.

nesses compared with the same time last year.

"That's pretty substantial to see it dip that much," Dobbs said.

Attendance rates are still high - around 94 to 95 percent at most schools - but that's lower than usual.

Dobbs said there has also been a 1 or 2 percent drop in employee attendance.

There's a "very good" employee attendance rate overall, he said, so "we know they're sick if they're not coming."

Despite the uptick in absences, the Twin Falls School District hasn't been affected as much as when the H1N1 flu virus was going around a few years ago.

"We're not quite to that decline in attendance, but we're getting pretty close," Dobbs said.

Since Idaho's public schools receive state funding based on average daily attendance numbers, absences affect the amount of money school districts receive.

Twin Falls School District administrators are looking into the possibility of appealing to the Idaho State Department of Education for "extenuating circumstances," Dobbs said.

That's due to the "illnesses that have really hit our community pretty hard," he said.

A few years ago when student absences increased due to H1N1, the Twin Falls School District appealing and recovered some of the lost funding.

So what's being done to help students and employees stay healthy?

People are being encouraged to wash their hands, Dobbs said. There's hand sanitizer throughout school buildings.

And he said the message from schools is to stay home when you're sick.

Park officials say that as grizzlies come out of hibernation, people should stay in groups of three of more, make noise on the trail and carry bear spray.

Bears look for food as soon as they emerge from their dens. Park officials say bears are attracted to elk and bison that have died during the winter. The bears can react aggressively if they're surprised while feeding on the carcasses.

The Jackson Hole Daily reports that there haven't been any reports of bear sightings or tracks in Grand Teton National Park yet but, historically, half of the male population is usually out by now.

Visitors to both parks must stay at least 100 yards from black and grizzly bears.

Drone Privacy Bill Could Get Amendments

BOISE (AP) • Legislation intended to protect Idahoans privacy by restricting how law enforcement uses drones is headed to the Senate for possible changes.

The bill initially established clear legal guidelines when law enforcement could use unmanned aircraft in criminal investigations. Its Republican sponsor Sen. Chuck Winder of Boise says amendments that could be coming in the Senate might add more flexibility for state and local police.

Posters with the image of Pope Francis that read in Spanish; 'Francisco I, Argentine and Peronist,' get the attention of a woman walking past, in Buenos Aires on Friday.

Argentines Celebrate Francis as their 'Slum Pope'

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) • For more than a billion Roman Catholics worldwide, he's Pope Francis. For Argentina's poorest citizens, crowded in "misery villages" throughout the capital, he's proudly known as one of their own, a true "slum pope."

Villa 21-24 is a slum so dangerous that most outsiders don't dare enter, but residents say Jorge Mario Bergoglio often showed up unannounced to share laughs and sips of mate, the traditional Argentine herbal tea shared by groups using a common straw. People here recall how the Buenos Aires archbishop ditched a limousine and would arrive on a bus to their little chapel; how he sponsored marathons and carpentry classes, consoled single mothers and washed the feet of recovering drug addicts; how he became one of them.

"Four years ago, I was at my worst and I needed help. When the Mass started he knelt down and washed my feet. It hit me hard. It was such a beautiful experience," said Cristian Marcelo Reynoso, 27, a garbage collector trying to kick a cocaine addiction through the church's rehab program.

"When I saw the news on the TV, I began screaming with joy, and look, I'm still trembling," Reynoso said. "El Chabon (The Dude) is so humble. He's a fan of San Lorenzo (the soccer club), like me. You talk to him like a friend." Long after he became a cardinal in 2001, this "prince of the church" wore a simple black Tshirt with a white collar. For many at the slum's Caacupe Virgin of the Miracles Church, it's nothing short of a miracle that their friend is the pope.

white poster of Carlos Mugica, an iconic Argentine slum priest who was killed in 1974 by a right-wing death squad intent on eliminating the "liberation theology" he preached. Bergoglio never favored liberation theology because of its alliances with armed leftist guerrilla movements in the 1970s. But he has done much to follow in Mugica's footsteps, sponsoring all sorts of outreach programs in Argentina's slums. This can be messy work, obliging priests to challenge drug dealers for the slumdwellers' allegiances, and putting their beliefs, even their lives, at risk. Sometimes compromises must be made. Just a few steps from the chapel, melted candles stand in a red shrine to the pagan folk hero Antonio "Gauchito" Gil, a 19th century outlaw revered among Argentina's poor for sharing his stolen bounty with the poor.

Many Argentines are as likely to pray for miracles from "Gauchito" as they are from authorized Catholic saints, but Bergoglio didn't object to the shrine's presence next to his chapel.

"For more than 20 years he came here. He's always been close to us and his impact on this slum is huge," said the parish priest, Lorenzo "Toto" de Vedia.

Cameras followed Bergoglio once as he washed the feet of 12 young men at a rehab center. "Then he kept coming back, taking confession and counseling them," Vedia said. On the priest's desk lay a newspaper with a huge, one-word headline: "FRANCISCO."

"You can tell that the church is going to change," Vedia said. "The fact that he chose the name Francisco says it all. It says: 'Let's stop messing around and devote ourselves to the poor.' That was St. Francis message and now 'Francisco' can live it."

In his first appearance at St. Peter's Square, the first Latin American pope bowed to the crowds and asked for their blessing. Back in Argentina, his friends in the slums recognized the gesture as the same sort of humility that won

"He was always part of our slum," housewife Lidia Valdivieso, 41, said after praying while resting her palm on a statue of St. Expeditus, patron saint of urgent and impossible causes. Having a 'papa villero' (slum pope) is the most beautiful thing that can happen to us. I still remember him going on long walks through our muddy streets or talking to our children," Valdivieso said.

Inside the concrete block chapel, there's a painted message commemorating Bergoglio's inauguration, and another big painting of Pope John Paul II, but no sign of Benedict XVI what soever. Near the altar, there's a large black-and-their hearts.

In the 13th century, St. Francis of Assisi made it his mission to respond to the poor and show that through simplicity and love, a stronger foundation for the church could be built.

Pope Francis' "mission is now to go on a pilgrimage to all lands, to walk with the people, to lead a church that walks," said Mercedes Trovato, 24, a youth volunteer who wore a wooden cross around her neck.

N. Dakota Close to Banning Abortions at 6 Weeks

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) • North Dakota on Friday moved closer to adopting what would be the most restrictive abortion laws in the country, with lawmakers sending the Republican governor measures that could set the state up for a costly legal battle over the U.S. Supreme Court decision that legalized the procedure.

The North Dakota Senate overwhelmingly approved two antiabortion bills Friday, one banning abortions as early as six weeks into a pregnancy and another prohibiting women from having the procedure because a fetus has a genetic defect, such as Down syndrome. North Dakota would be the first state in the U.S. to adopt such laws.

Supporters said their goal is to challenge the Supreme Court's 1973 Roe v. Wade ruling that legalized abortion up until a fetus is considered viable, usually at 22 to 24 weeks, though anti-abortion activists elsewhere have expressed concern about the strategy.

"It's a good day for babies," said Rep. Bette Grande, a Republican from Fargo who introduced both bills. The state's only abortion clinic is in Fargo, and abortionrights advocates say the measures are meant to shut it down.

TSA Stands by Plan to Allow Small Knives on Planes

The head of the Transportation Security Administration told lawmakers Thursday he stands by his plan to allow passengers to carry small knives onto planes despite a growing backlash against the proposal. It's unlikely in these days of hardened cockpit doors and other preventative measures that the small folding knives could be used by terrorists to take over a plane, TSA Administrator John Pistole told a hearing of the House Homeland Security Committee. The policy, which goes into effect April 25, has sparked strong opposition from flight attendants, federal air marshals, some pilot unions, and even aviation insurers. In the hands of the wrong passengers, the knives can be used to harm flight attendants and other passengers, critics say.

Worker Who Set Fire to Sub Sentenced to 17 Years

A shipyard worker who set fire to rags aboard a nuclear submarine because he wanted to go home was sentenced to a little more than 17 years in federal prison Friday for the blaze that transformed the vessel into a fiery furnace, injured seven people and caused about $450 million in damage.

Casey James Fury also was ordered to pay $400 million in restitution by a judge who weighed his lack of criminal record and the severity of the fire before imposing a 205month prison sentence.

(RIGHT) Casey Fury is seen in a file booking photo provided by the Dover, N.H., Police Department. Fury was sentenced on Friday for setting fire to a nuclear submarine last May.

The 25-year-old Fury, formerly of Portsmouth, N.H., pleaded guilty to setting the May 23 fire while the USS Miami was undergoing a 20-month dry dock overhaul at Portsmouth Naval Shipyard in Kittery. The blaze quickly grew into an inferno spewing superheated smoke that billowed from hatches. It took 12 hours and the efforts of more than 100 firefighters to save the submarine. Seven people were hurt, the Navy said.

CHEERS AND JEERS

JEERS to the Legislature's decision this session to once again ignore grocers' requests for staggered food stamp delivery dates. Sometimes it seems as if state lawmakers pick and choose when they want to be "business-friendly."

For years now, grocers have asked lawmakers for relief from the bottleneck of customers who arrive on the first of the month to redeem their food stamps.

But a Senate bill that would have staggered the food stamp distribution over the first 10 days of the month won't advance during this legislative session.

CHEERS to the news that the two drive-in movie theaters in Twin Falls will open again this summer.

Last summer, the Times-News' Drew Nash and Steve Kadel worked on a multi-page photo and reporting project called "An American Icon" about the place of the drive-in theaters in a Magic Valley summer. They were told that the theaters might not open again this summer because of the cost of converting from film to digital.

Looks like the owners bought a little more time before they have to make that decision.

CHEERS to the announcement that the Idaho Legislature is trying to end the session before Easter. The only thing that could drag this out, they say, is if they decide to hash out a personal property tax repeal.

Each day the Legislature is in session, it costs taxpayers about $35,000, mostly in per diem for lawmakers.

LETTERS OF THANKS

Thank You for the Kindness of Strangers in Burley

On March 4, I was returning to my home in Burley from Boise where I stopped in Jerome at the Shell gas station and convenience store to fill up with gas. As I was leaving the store, I pulled onto the street in the direction of Walmart, where I turned left and misjudged the deviation in the curb at that point and jumped my car upon the curb and got high centered. Needless to say, I got my car high-centered and couldn't move.

I immediately got my phone book out and was looking for a tow truck to call when I looked in the rearview mirror and saw a young man approaching my car. I opened my window wherein the young man offered to help me out of my predicament. I quickly accepted his offer at which time another young man appeared that was a friend of the first young man and also offered to help. They very quickly hooked a chain to my car to the first young man's pickup and quickly pulled me back off the curb. It took them less than five minutes. I half heartedly thanked them and proceeded on my way to Burley. I have been kicking myself ever since for not giving them a proper thank you. So I want to take this opportunity to acknowledge their good deed, and I hope if anyone reads this letter that is familiar with this story that they will inform these young men and tell them that the rude man from Burley thanks them very much. Nev. Examines Its Gun Policy

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) • The brother of a taxicab driver killed last month in a fiery shootout and crash on the Las Vegas Strip is speaking out against gun violence.

Tehran Boldon urged members of the Senate Judiciary Committee on Friday to ban assault weapons and high-capacity magazines.

"Assault weapons have no place on our streets, and high capacity magazines have no place in our country,' Boldon told the committee. "Law enforcement, military that's one thing. But civilians don't need those."

His brother, Michael Boldon, was one of three people killed Feb. 21 when the driver of a Maserati was gunned down and his car careened into other vehicles before erupting in a fireball. Gun violence has dominated headlines across the country and state legislatures are taking a hard look at their gun policies.

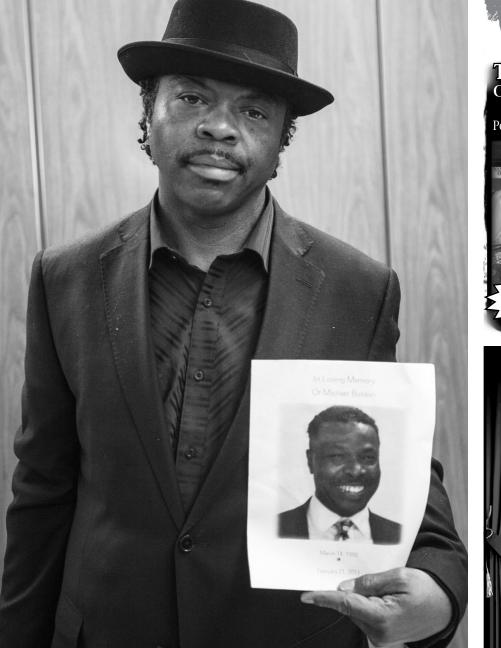

The crash on the Strip came less than a year and a half after Eduardo Sencion killed four people and then himself at a Carson City IHOP restaurant in 2011. Police still don't know what motivated Sencion to unload 90 rounds from a semi-automatic rifle in less than 90 seconds that September day.

"He took that with him to the grave,' Carson City Sheriff Kenneth Furlong told lawmakers Friday.

Furlong added that the rifle Sencion used was modified to be fully automatic – meaning it was illegal under Nevada law – but that it was not an assault rifle.

Aside from the modified rifle, Sencion didn't violate any laws owning the weapons, Furlong said. Sencion was a diagnosed paranoid schizophrenic.

educating them, but they continue to face unvielding fixed costs such as buses, maintenance and repairs, said Paul Stark, the teachers union's top lawyer in Idaho. "The net effect is, the funds of the state are reduced, and the funds of the private schools are increased" he said. "For a public school, there's no savings whatsoever." Just one Republican, Rep. Neil Anderson of Blackfoot, opposed the measure. A rancher, he compared the potential shift in funding to the everyday reality he experiences on his spread in southeastern Idaho: If he has 98 cows, instead of 100, he still faces roughly the same costs. Hay costs run about the same for the slightly smaller herd, and the tractor still needs gas. "The more we take money from them, the more they come to resemble a ghost town," Anderson said, of public schools. "We ought to work on sustaining our communities. The House will now debate the measure.

The bill would provide tax credits worth up to $10 million each year, enough for scholarships for about 3,000 students annually. Coeur d'Alene Republican Sen. Bob Nonini, the measure's sponsor, said this could actually save Idaho money in the long run, because reducing public school enrollment would also cut Idaho's per-student funding obligation.

Among those who testified at the meeting for the measure was Shelly Matthews, founder of LAM Christian Academy in Coeur d'Alene.

The 13-year-old Lutheranaffiliated, K-through-5th grade school is at the mercy of the economy, she said. When it's in the doldrums, some parents don't have the resources to pay the $4,500 tuition and are forced to look elsewhere.

"When the numbers go down, when the economy is difficult, our numbers go down, and we have to adjust our budget," Matthews said. "This is a kind of bill that could help those parents."

Foes included the Idaho Education Association, which argued that the tax credits would just funnel tax dollars to religious schools.

A spokesman for Republican House Speaker John Boehner said that Boehner had a good talk Friday with Republicans in the group and that the lawmakers have made real progress.

The group's four Democrats met Thursday with Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi, and Pelosi's spokesman said she's optimistic about the prospects for reform.

The group hoped to release their bill around the time of the State of the Union last month, but now an aide says they will aim for early April, once Congress returns from a twoweek recess.

A sweeping immigration bill is a tougher lift in the Republican-controlled House because of the conservatives who dominate the Republican conference, and members of the House immigration group have been struggling to write a bill that can have broad appeal. It remains unclear how they will handle a pathway to citizenship for the estimated 11 million illegal immigrants already in the country.

The invaders ransacked the house, emptying drawers, stripping the bed, tearing closet doors off the hinges and tipping over shelves.

David said they told him if they didn't find what they wanted or if they found something the Conners didn't tell them about, things would go very badly for the couple.

At one point, the invaders brought Colleen back into the kitchen and made her sit by the oven.

"She reached out with her foot, really careful, and she tapped my foot," David said. "I tapped her back to let her know I was OK."

When he heard about people being robbed before, herded into a bank vault or tied up on the floor like he was, David said he'd wondered how the victims let it happen.

"I used to think, 'Man, I'd never let that happen. I would do something," he said. "I didn't do anything."

Public Criticism

Both David and Colleen said they've been criticized for opening their door and their other actions during the robbery.

"I've had people say, 'Oh well, my husband said you should have done this and you should have done that," Colleen said. "And you always think you know what you're going to do in that situation, but you never know until you're faced with it." David likened the experience to getting in a car wreck or being diagnosed with cancer.

"It's almost hard to realize it's you," he said.

Before the home invasion, the Conners said their children urged them to get a security system. In a small community like Dietrich, the couple said they never thought a robbery could happen to them.

"We have lights; we've got dogs; we've got guns," David said he told his children. "Somebody would be really stupid to come here. Well, they were stupid and they came."

Added Security

Since the home invasion, the Conners say they've taken extra security precautions. They always lock the doors and always keep their guns loaded.

David said he watches unfamiliar cars that pass by on the country road in front of his home. If the dogs bark in the middle of the night, they're both up, checking at the windows for danger. But, the couple said, they don't go outside to see what's going on.

"No, absolutely no," David said. "I'm never going to open the door again."

Who Do You Think You Are?

Four people were charged with the home invasion robbery at the Conners' house. All four pleaded guilty.

Jeremiah Bennett, called the ringleader of the robbery, was sentenced to 20 yearslife in prison. Aaron Donabedian was sentenced to 10-14 years; Gabriel Baker was sentenced to eight to 10 years; Jamie Taylor was sentenced to six to 10 years in prison, with the court retaining jurisdiction for one year. She's now out on probation.

While the Conners are satisfied with Bennett's sentence, they said they would have liked to see Donabedian go to trial, if only to prove that he was in the house.

Donabedian pleaded guilty to his charges, but maintained that he simply drove the others to the house and never went inside.

The Conners spoke in court at Bennett's sentencing in October 2011 and were able to confront him.

"Do you remember, Jeremiah, the night you came into my house, what you said to me when you had me down on the floor with a shotgun in my face?" David asked at the sentencing hearing. "You said, 'Who the hell do you think you are, coming after me with a shotgun?' Well, I'm asking you, who the hell do you think you are? Coming into my house, putting a shotgun in my face, terrorizing my wife, tearing my house up, stealing all my property,

Riders Report New Jersey Bus Filled with Roaches

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) • Riders on a New York City-bound bus from New Jersey are reporting an invasion of cockroaches.

A passenger on a Manhattan-bound bus from Atlantic City tells WABC-TV that roaches started coming out of the vents inside the bus just 15 minutes into their Friday afternoon journey.

The passenger reports roaches could be seen crawling on seats, windows, side panels and even on people.

Greyhound said the 48 passengers on board were moved to a new bus, and the bus they had been riding is being examined to determine where the bugs came from.

spokesman for the Idaho Transportation Department. But no damage was done to the core of the structure, he said.

ITD will perform repairs to the damaged guardrail early next week.

Jerke said the westbound bridge will be rebuilt first in 2015, then the eastbound lane in 2016. The entire project should be complete in two years. Traffic will be diverted to two opposing lanes of traffic on one bridge as each bridge is rebuilt.

"One of the really good things that will come out of this project is they will re-greater distance for merging traffic before entering the bridge. The bridges will also be widened.

Multiple accidents have occurred on the bridges over the years, including an incident in July 2004 where a semitrailer struck a pickup, crashed through the guardrail on the eastbound bridge and plunged into the Snake River.

"Historically, there have been some crashes on the bridges," Jerke said. "And the bridges have really taken a beating over the years."

Jerke said bridges are considered for replacement as they move down a rating system. Bridges are rated from one to 100 based on several factors like the condition of the piers, girders, surface, road deck and guard rails. "The rating on these bridges has been going down for years," Jerke said.

The westbound bridge is rated at 54 and the eastbound bridge is rated at 59.

Jerke said when bridges reach a rating in the 40s and 50s, officials begin looking at the benefits of major renovations. Bridges are usually replaced when they reach a rating in the 20s or 30s.

"There's not a threat of it falling in the river tomorrow. It's still a stable structure," Jerke said of the milepost 216 bridges.

The bridges are located eight miles east of Burley and were built in 1960. They underwent major rehab work in 1978 and repairs in 2002.

Health Fair Clarification

We understand that an out of state lab company is marketing lab services to Gooding County as part of an event they call a "health fair." Its mailer has created some confusion, and we want to confirm that company's event is not sponsored by or associated with North Canyon Medical Center's Annual Health Fair.

The NCMC Annual Health Fair, being held Saturday, May 18th, is held each year to improve the healthcare of people in our region by providing free screenings, specials on lab work, and other health and wellness information.

Unlike the other event, our Annual Health Fair is not held to generate business for an out of state company. We encourage you to participate in our Health Fair, in May, and to support your community hospital, thereby keeping your money in the local community.

Be Willing to Enter the Darkness to Get to the Light

"I stood staring at the pasta aisle, remembering my German father who thought he was Italian. What are you doing?" my son asked. I'm being sappy — a combination of sad and happy -that means that I am exceptionally well-adjusted emotionally."

– Alan Wolfelt

lan Wolfelt had his audience transfixed. The renowned grief counselor mixed in humor, personal stories with his perspective on the grief journey and how those of us gathered – clergy, social workers, therapists, nurses, chaplains and caregivers of every sort – could help companion people through grief.

Dr. Wolfelt spoke with compassion, insight and understanding about his work and the thousands of lives he has touched and from whom he has learned.

"Ninety-percent of being a good grief companion is listening by being willing to enter the darkness before entering the light," Wolfelt said.

Wolfelt talked about how America has become a deathdenying culture. We are quick to tell people to 'get over it' or to offer religious platitudes instead of true companionship in grief. It takes courage to move through grief, but moving through is the only way. If we deny our grief, we suffer.

To be able to sit with a person, feeling powerless and without offering clichéd answers is to enter their darkness.

Wolfelt described the six needs of mourning: to acknowledge the reality of death; to feel the pain of loss; to remember the person who died; to develop a new self-identity; to search for meaning and to receive ongoing support. Reminding us that there is no reward for speed in the mourning process, he also acknowledges how the process is individual-based on such things as the quality of the relationship, the personalities involved and the availability of support systems around people.

For people of faith, Dr. Wolfelt cautions against theologizing: "God must have had a plan," "She's an angel now," etc. These truisms fail to meet the person where they are and only serve to further isolate the bereaved. "To be 'bereaved' means to be ripped apart," Wolfelt said.

He did remind us of how crucial ritual is in healing after a loss. Remembering the beloved by telling stories, cherishing memories and holding onto mementos are important parts of mourning.

CATCH THE SPIRIT

"I came here knowing that this church was ready. They want a big revival."

Rev. Gary Ross

Paster Gary Ross listens during dinner at the informal 'Catch the Spirit' meeting Wednesday night at the Crossroads United Methodist Church in Kimberly.

Crossroads United Methodist Church in Kimberly makes changes to tradition to grow its membership.

BY TETONA DUNLAP

KIMBERLY • You can't know where you

Consider Jesus: how he wept at the grave of his friend Lazarus or as he cried over Jerusalem. These remind us that there is no shame in vulnerability. Consider how he listened to people and met them where they were in their lives. Consider how he took his time with his disciples – allowing them to come gradually to the truth about God's kingdom in the world.

During this season of Lent, as we prepare once again for his triumph over death, let us be unafraid to walk with people in their own road to Calvary.

During Holy Week, some Christians will be singing, "Were You There?"

Our brothers and sisters in grief will remember if we 'were there' with them in their grief, not offering platitudes or quick answers, but offering ourselves as Jesus' heart in the world.

Crossroads United Methodist Church in Kimberly knows this all too well. Fueled by its past financial troubles, its members are working to revitalize their congregation by growing their membership.

Four years ago the small Methodist congregation was at a crossroads.

They were $3.1 million in debt and on the brink of losing their church at auction after a foreclosure.

"It was a hopeless situation for us," said Rev. Gary Ross, who was called in to assist the 180-member congregation.

But in the final hours before the doors were chained shut, Ross said, several "miracles" happened.

Farmers National Bank offered Crossroads United Methodist Church an opportunity to purchase its new building for $1.1 million. Crossroads secured two loans — a 30-year loan from Farmers and $100,000 from the Oregon-Idaho Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Then church member Nora Andersen of Hansen, a woman who lived a seemingly unassuming life, died and left behind a $2.3 million estate. She gave it away to 10 local nonprofits, with each organization receiving $237,500.

Crossroads United Methodist Church in Kimberly was one of those organizations. The money helped the church pay off its debt and keep its building.

"It was a miracle, this building was given to us by the grace of God and it comes with a payment, to grow the kingdom of God," Ross said.

Today, Crossroads United Methodist Church is at another turning point working to retain a rapidly decreasing membership.

It's not a challenge unique to the Kimberly church. According to a 2012 Christian Post article, the United Methodist Church's membership has declined nationwide. In 2011, the article states, the UMC suffered a drop of nearly 72,000 members, with 18 conferences reporting membership losses of 2 percent or more.

Ross and members of Crossroads' congregation see this as a time for change within their own church's structure and approach.

And they credit the financial turmoil the church went through as the spark that will light the fire. DREW NASH • TIMES-NEWS

Phillip Cummins, 13, (center) and Jacob Cox, 13, pray during the 'Catch the Spirit' service Wednesday. Instead of going to the worship hall for the service, the congregation stays in the common area where they eat. dinner.

"I came here knowing that this church was ready," Ross said. "They want a big revival."

The revival Ross is talking about is called the Vital Congregation Movement.

If You Go...

"Catch the Spirit" is every Wednesday from 6-7:15 p.m., with dinner starting at 6 p.m. and worship at 6:30 p.m. Everyone is welcome and childcare is provided.

The UMC website describes a vital congregation as "one that grows over time, engages more people in its community, involves more people in ministry and mission and invites people to give generously to mission."

In 2012, 72 United Methodist annual conferences, representing more than 26,000 congregations around the world, presented their goals for ministry in five areas: average worship attendance, professions of faith, growth through small groups, engagement in mission and generous giving to mission.

"It (church) isn't speaking to the young people today," Ross said.

So Crossroads United Methodist Church has made some changes to tradition.

The old structure broke leadership in the church down by committees. Crossroads now has a church council and ministry teams, so people can serve on one that interests them.

Then leadership within Crossroads talked with the younger members of their congregation and asked them, "What do they need?"

The answer: The members' faith wasn't being fed.

In response, the church now offers a Wednesday night service, in addition to their usual Sunday service.

"Catch the Spirit" is designed for people who wouldn't normally attend church. It is just one of the new approaches the church has recently implemented.

People sat around tables in the common area March 13 sharing a meal of lasagna, salad and bread. At exactly 6:30 p.m. Ross stood at the front of the room, the only light coming from two floor lamps on either side of him as sunlight coming through the windows dimmed.

The night's service focused on the idea of "uncertainty." Rather than gathering inside the traditional worship area, sitting in pews as Ross took the pulpit, adults and children remained seated around the tables while some stood.

The service is short, lasting about 40 minutes. Replacing traditonal Methodist hymns and songs are a mixture of videos, contemporary Christian music set to a photo slideshow, and words from Ross.

OBITUARIES

Betty Lou Crozier

Oct. 3, 1926-March 15, 2013

JEROME • Betty Lou Crozier, 86, of Jerome, passed away quietly Friday, March 15, 2013, at Creekside Residential Care Center in Jerome.

She was born in Tremonton, Utah, on Oct. 3, 1926, to Nathaniel Ray and Viola Hinman Porritt. Betty Lou attended Tremonton schools, helped on the family farm and won numerous awards with her brothers and sisters on a county and state level showing registered Hampshire sheep.

After graduation from Bear River High School in 1944, Betty attended LDS Business College and was employed by Bear River State Bank in Tremonton. On Sept. 15, 1950, she married Lyal William Crozier, also of Tremonton. In 1951, they settled in Jerome to help on Lyal's father's farm south of Jerome. Lyal and Betty helped "Grandpa George" for a number of years until Lyal started his own career as a horse and livestock dealer and handler, also helping at many of the local livestock auctions. Betty worked full time in partnership with Lyal at raising one daughter and five sons, always eager to be involved in and supportive of all their endeavors including all their school, church, Scouting, athletic, horse show, rodeo and 4-H activities.

Betty mostly enjoyed being with and serving her family. She was an active member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and served on many levels including Young Women, Cub and Boy Scouting and as counselor and president in both the Primary and Relief Society. She enjoyed genealogy, crafts of many kinds, cooking, sewing and being a wife, mother and grandmother.

Betty Lou was preceded in passing by her parents, Ray and Viola Porritt; two sisters, Ellis and LaRue; two brothers, Steven and Kenneth; her husband, Lyal William Crozier; her daughter, Connie Rae Ruby; and a grandson, Braiden Lickley. She is survived by her sister, Lois Bone of Riverton, Utah; five sons, Ronald William Crozier (Karen), Reed L. Crozier (Colleen), John Perry Crozier (Jill), all of Jerome, Sandy Lynn Crozier of Auburn Wash., and Jerry Don Crozier (Charlene) of Twin Falls; and son-inlaw, Roland Ruby of Wendell. She leaves behind a host of 18 loving grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren.

A visitation will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Sunday, March 17, at the Jerome LDS 1st Ward Church, 825 E. Ave. B in Jerome. The funeral will be conducted at 2 p.m. Monday, March 18, also at the Jerome LDS 1st Ward Chapel, with Bishop Dean Bingham of Jerome LDS 4th Ward officiating. A visitation will begin one hour prior to the service. Interment will follow in the Jerome Cemetery. Arrangements are under the care of Farnsworth Mortuary of Jerome.

Betty Lou's family would like to extend a special "thank you" to Creekside for the kind care she received there.

In lieu of flowers, it is requested that memorials be made in Betty's name to the LDS Church Humanitarian Aid Fund, Humanitarian Services, c/o LDS Philanthropies, Joseph Smith Memorial Building, 15 E. South Temple St. No. 2E, Salt Lake City, UT 84150.

NYC Museum Displaying Audubon's Bird Watercolors

NEW YORK (AP) • The New-York Historical Society is exhibiting its entire collection of 474 bird watercolors by John James Audubon for the first time.

They're being shown chronologically in three exhibitions over three years. The first group went on view Friday.

The collection includes 435 watercolors engraved for Audubon's monumental "The Birds of America." The intricately detailed, life-size renderings are the naturalist's greatest work.

An original edition of Audubon's book, known as the double elephant folio, is also being shown. Its plates will be turned weekly.

The 3 1/2-foot-tall volume features all the avian species known to Audubon in early 19th-century North America. He sold the engraved plates in a subscription series.

The museum purchased all the watercolors, except one, from the artist's widow in 1863.

The first exhibition ends May 19.

This ca. 1825 image provided by the New-York Historical Society of a Red-shouldered Hawk attacking Northern Bobwhites is one of 474 bird watercolors by John James Audubon in the collection of the New-York Historical Society, which is mouting three exhibitions of all of its Audubon images over three years. The 474 watercolors include 435 that were engraved for Audubon's monumental 'The Birds of America.' It's considered the greatest book of printed engravings ever produced.

your typical old preacher," Ross said.

In a couple of months, Ross will turn 73 and will have to retire because of United Methodist rules, which will mean another will pastor Crossroads. But he plans to stay as a retired clergy member.

And though one may not immediately recognize Ross as the pastor, he said he never wears robes. That is the whole idea: Ross doesn't claim to be the one in charge.

"It's our church, we tell him what to do," said church council chairman Mike Fisher, referring to their new worship design team.

"Catch the Spirit" started in January and according to one of the founders, Larry Burrows, has been well attended. On March 13, about 25 adults and 10 or more children were present.

"Technology is big for our service. Our goal is as the service grows to move it into the gym," Burrows said.

He said the idea of "Catch the Spirit" is to give people a message that pertains to their daily lives and that is more informal than the traditional structure of the church.

"We got tired of playing church and wanted to focus on church. It's all focused on Him and not on the politics of church," Burrows said. "We want everyone to feel welcomed, but especially want to pull in the younger generation."

Steve Gomez of Kimberly works in Nevada and said that in the past year, he has made it to about three Sunday services. The Wednesday night service is more convenient, he said, and he likes the atmosphere.

"The congregation here is a little bit older than most churches, they're all so nice, but I'd say about 90 percent are in their 70s and 80s," Gomez said. "(The Wednesday service is) quite a bit different, the music is different, but I like it all."

Gomez, a father of seven, said he also likes that he and wife can bring all their children.

And the Wednesday service is just the first step to a fresh approach at Crossroads.

"At my age, doing a revitalization of a church is a lot of work," Ross said. "It's kind of fun to be on the cutting edge."

OVERHEAD DOOR 12' h x 14' w.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I are in our 20s and have been dating for five years. We're renovating a home that we will live in once it's completed. We have never lived together before.

During the renovation I have come to the house to find that he has opened packages that were addressed to me. The first time, I didn't say anything because I thought he might have thought it was his. After the second and third times, I mentioned - nicely that they weren't his to open. He claims he "knew" they were things for the house, which is why he opened them.

I was raised that people's mail and packages were theirs to open, and I would never think of opening anything sent to him. This is an issue for me, but he brushes it off. He feels entitled to open my packages since it is his home, too. How can I make it clear that I expect him to respect my personal mail when he thinks this is no big deal?

- NO RESPECT INNEW YORK

DEAR NO RESPECT: If I were you, I'd be less concerned about his opening your packages and far more concerned that when you tell him something bothers you, he ignores it. His disregard for your feelings is a red flag.

Your boyfriend appears to think that what is yours is his. Is the reverse also true? (I'll bet it's not.) Does he also check your phone messages and email? Does this extend to any other areas of your relationship?

If this was only about his opening your mail, I would advise you to open a post office box in your name only. However, if the answer to any of my questions is yes, I think you should take a sober look at the entire relationship.

DEAR ABBY: My motherin-law is addicted to prescription painkillers and has been for more than 10 years. She went to rehab once, but relapsed and hasn't been able to get clean since. She has tried to quit on her own, but ends up having great emotional stress and slight psychotic episodes and starts again.

My problem is, my husband sees her addiction as "manageable." He sees no harm in having her watch our 3-year-old daughter, even though he has told me he has seen her nod off with her eyes rolled back like drug addicts do, usually during the afternoon. When we argue about this, he becomes defensive and attacks my family for being "overprotective and paranoid."

Am I right to put my foot down? I'm sick and tired of fighting over this.

-NOTPARANOID IN PENNSYLVANIA DEAR NOT PARANOID:

Continue putting your foot down! A person whose eyes have rolled back after taking drugs or alcohol hasn't "nodded off." The person has lost consciousness and PASSED OUT. In your mother-inlaw's case, it means that while she may be physically present, she is completely unavailable to supervise your child. Leaving your daughter under the care of a person in this condition is child endangerment. That's why you can't allow it.

DEAR ABBY: Would you please settle a friendly debate between me and my friends? Is it ever appropriate to use your cellphone to update social media or send a text message during a church sermon, or is it still considered a rude act?

- OLD-FASHIONED IN KENTUCKY

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED: It's still considered rude. In a house of worship, we are supposed to be thinking about more important things than our social schedule, our Facebook page or who tweeted us.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

Times News

IF MARCH 16 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You might be sharp as a tack during the next several months, so run your personal life like a welloiled machine. Lay out a game plan so you can swiftly reach your goals in the upcoming six to eight weeks. Your value and talents are most easily recognized by others, making this an excellent time to pursue a new job, a new career, or a new relationship based on trust and mutual admiration. No one will give you a free ride in Iune, but no one will bar the way, either, so use your business skills to make sound and profitable financial or business decisions. Your popularity extends through July when you are at the peak of your attractiveness. That is a good time to make changes, commitments or major decisions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): All's fair in love and war, but sometimes people take advantage of your good nature. Cancel shopping sprees; an urge to be extravagant and a bad case of "show-off-itis" might be in the air.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Even when life seems to be a bowl of cherries, you still need to avoid the pits. Today's treats and indulgences may mean you must sacrifice a few of tomorrow's pleasures. Focus on being as true blue as the sky above

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You must stoop to conquer. You can win hearts by being generous, and outmaneuver enemies by being humble and down-to-earth. Willingness to compromise will unlock closed doors.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It is often said that one should keep friends close, but enemies closer. Hold off on making proposals or asking for commitments. Bend over backward to err on the side of generosity whenever possible.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Good deeds are seldom headline news. Kindness and generosity might not make the front page, but somewhere in the future there will be a reward. Be prepared to follow through on promises.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Vinegar offsets the sweetness of sugar. Something too sweet might turn you off, so it is up to you to remain skeptical of empty promises or overindulgence. Misunderstandings with a significant other can be avoided.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are prone to making sweeping gestures and extravagant displays. You may be better off staying home this evening. If you are on the lookout for a soul mate, you may only meet those who are insincere.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Toe the line and be conscientious about handling responsibilities. That will give you more time to go overboard in the romance department. A special someone might demonstrate expensive tastes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't let it go to your head. Be flattered when picked out of a crowd or singled out. You might receive kudos for your accomplishments or hear plenty of sweet nothings in private embraces.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An investment in knowledge will always pay the best interest. Keep your money in your pocket and stay abreast of current events, open up a book or get involved with online learning experiences.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You only need to keep up with the Joneses if there is a prize to be won. Remain watchful of unnecessary indulgences and avoid making an expensive purchase merely for appearances sake.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Quit clowning around. Avoid pratfalls by staying out of the limelight and passing up the chance to romance a new partner. Hold off on finalizing a major decision or making an extravagant purchase.

Times-News All-area Upper-weight Wrestler of the Year

BY NICK RULAND

nruland@magicvalley.com

GOODING • In 2013, one wrestler from the state of Idaho scored against Gooding's now two-time defending upper-weight champion, junior Cole McGinnis.

His name is Jake Hoggan from Teton, and he was considered the third best 285-pound wrestler in Idaho heading into the state tournament.

At best, the score was an accident, occurring as McGinnis rolled on his stomach going out of bounds.

"It still counted as two points," McGinnis said. "I kind of got upset. It made me focus more and made me think I need to stay on top of my game."

McGinnis ended up doing to Hoggan what he did to every wrestler he faced from the state of Idaho.

Technically, it was a pin, as they all were. But they were McGinnis pins: acts of overwhelming physical dominance carried out with cold efficiency.

"It's kind of a one-move deal," McGinnis said. "I do the same thing every time. I just kind of bull rush them and go for a single leg."

McGinnis is the wrestling mat's apex predator, doing what his genes and work ethic allow, yielding no mercy.

"Other wrestlers try to talk to me (before matches), but I'm not very receptive to that," McGinnis said. "I would rather just not talk to them and go out and wrestle." Opponents were lucky to last more than 30 seconds. Many of McGinnis' pins were completed in 10 seconds or less.

"I just try to go out there and win as fast as possible so I don't make any mistakes," McGinnis said. "Having strength just helps."

Wrestling isn't even McGinnis' favorite sport. That's football, where he'll likely be headed to one of the country's top programs on a scholarship.

MLB Pitchers Lostin Translation No More

ASSOCIATED PRESS

TAMPA, Fla. • There were times in the low minors when Mariano Rivera felt totally lost on the mound. That was, before he got a good grasp of his cut fastball - and English.

"The manager or coach would tell me something and I didn't understand them," the New York Yankees' closer said. "You nod your head yes, but you have no idea what they are saying."

Major League Baseball is trying to ease the language barrier, adopting a new rule that permits interpreters to join mound conferences when pitchers aren't fluent in English.

Yet for Latino pitchers, something still might get lost in translation.

As it stands, only people employed full time as interpreters can accompany managers and pitching coaches onto the field. And right now most, if not all, are for Asian players. Yu Darvish and Hiroki Kuroda, for example, are routinely provided translators by their teams. But Spanish-speaking players mostly rely on bilingual teammates or coaches to help them, be it on the mound, in the field or in the clubhouse.

The reasoning is that Asian players go directly from overseas teams to the majors without time to pick up English in the minors. Also, most linguists consider the transition to be more difficult than it is for Latino players.

"It's kind of the same and it's kind of different," Baltimore catcher Matt Wieters said. "For the most part, a lot of the Latin guys that are in the big leagues have been through the minor leagues, have had years of experience in the minor leagues to develop a relationship. Some of the Asian pitchers come over here and it's their first year over here and they haven't had that sort of adjustment time. It's up for debate."

Yin Chen said through Orioles translator Tim Lin that, above all, the rule should be fair.

"If I can bring my interpreter, Spanish players should bring their interpreter, too," he said. Rivera agreed.

"Yes, that should be allowed," the all-time saves leader said. "Somebody on the team should be allowed to translate for them?

Added Pittsburgh general manager Neal Huntington: "There's validity in exploring that idea."

The new rule has already been used by the Chicago Cubs in spring training and will extend into the regular season, which begins March 31. It was approved in January at the owners' meeting and later OK'd by the players' union. Pro baseball in Japan already had such a provision. Translators will be dressed like trainers - in sportswear (shirt and long pants), rather than uniforms or street clothes, and be available on the bench.

On opening day last year, more than 28 percent of players on big league rosters were born outside the 50 United States, including more than 200 from Hispanic countries.

Of course, any club is welcome to hire a Latino interpreter. A team without one could eventually get some leeway with the new rule.

"Well, I think there's going to be a designated interpreter for each club, and I don't think it's going to be a coach," MLB executive Joe Torre said Thursday before managing the U.S. team in the World Baseball Classic

Miami Heat's LeBron James jumps onto a table while trying to save a ball going out of bounds against the Milwaukee Bucks in the second half of an NBA game on Friday in Milwaukee.

Heat Win 21st-straight, Beat Bucks 107-94

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MILWAUKEE • LeBron James and Chris Bosh each scored 28 points, and the Miami Heat made it 21 straight wins, beating the Milwaukee Bucks 107-94 on Friday night.

Only three other teams have won 20 in a row in one season, and the Heat now trail just the 1971-72 Los Angeles Lakers (33) and the 2007-08 Houston Rockets (22) after moving ahead of the 1970-71 Bucks.

They withstood an early scare when Dwyane Wade walked to the locker room with a neck strain after crashing to the court. Miami led by as much as 17 in the third quarter, then withstood a push by the Bucks to remain unbeaten since a loss at Indiana on Feb.1.

Miami next plays Sunday at Toronto, where the winning streak began on Feb. 3.

Bosh hit from all angles and was 12 of 16 in the game, nailing two 3-pointers. He even converted a four-point play that made it 67-53 about five minutes into the third quarter.

James was his usual dominant self, and Wade finished with 20 points as the Heat avenged a loss at Milwaukee in late December.

LAKERS 99, PACERS 93 INDIANAPOLIS • Kobe

Bryant lasted just one quarter on a severely sprained left ankle, then watched Dwight Howard complete a go-ahead, three-point play with 90 seconds left to help Los Angeles hold off Indiana.

Bryant started two nights after he was hurt but was ineffective. He went 0 for 4 in the first quarter, then went to the bench and did not return. He spent the second half holding a black box with wires running down to the injured ankle as he cheered on the Lakers (35-32).

Howard finished with 20 points and 12 rebounds. Metta World Peace had 19 points.

George Hill scored 27 points and Paul George had 20 for Indiana.

THUNDER 117, MAGIC 104 OKLAHOMA CITY • Kevin Durant scored 26 points and Russell Westbrook added 23 to help Oklahoma City keep up its dominant play at home with a victory over Orlando.

The Thunder scored a season-high 73 points in the first half, shooting 64 percent from the floor and converting 18 of 22 free throws. Oklahoma City led by 27 in the second quarter before Orlando pulled to 73-56 at the break.

ROCKETS 108, TIMBERWOLVES 100

HOUSTON • James Harden scored 37 points, Jeremy Lin had 24 and Houston rallied from 20 points down in the third quarter to beat Minnesota.

Harden also grabbed seven rebounds and handed out eight assists for the Rockets, who stayed two games ahead of the Los Angeles Lakers in the No. 7 spot in the Western Conference.

Derrick Williams and Jose Barea scored 19 points apiece for the Timberwolves, who led 59-39 early in the third quarter. The Rockets held Minnesota to only 16 field goals the rest of the way.

HAWKS 107, SUNS 94

ATLANTA • Josh Smith made a strong return to Atlanta's lineup with 17 points, 11 rebounds and seven assists, and the Hawks led by double figures throughout the final period of a victory over Phoenix.

Smith returned to Atlanta's lineup after missing one game with a sprained left knee. All five starters scored in double figures, with Al Horford adding 16 points and 11 rebounds.

MAVERICKS 96, CAVALIERS 86

DALLAS • Rodrigue Beaubois scored 18 points off the bench and keyed a fourth-quarter run to lead Dallas past Cleveland.

Beaubois had seven points and two assists in a 17-4 run that gave Dallas the lead for good to start the fourth.

Reserves Darren Collison and Brandan Wright each scored 13 to pace a Mavericks bench that outscored the Cavaliers' 60-19.

WIZARDS 96, HORNETS 87 WASHINGTON • John Wall put on a rare shooting show, scoring a season-high 29 points and matching his career high with three 3-pointers and Washington ran its home winning streak to four.

Wall went 12 for 15 from the field, including 3 for 3 from 3point range, displaying an outside touch that's been mostly absent since he was chosen No. 1 overall in the 2010 draft. He entered Friday's game just 3 for 20 from 3-point range for the season, and he was a mere 3 for 42 last season.

RAPTORS 92, BOBCATS 78

TORONTO • Rudy Gay scored 28 points, Amir Johnson had 12 points and a career-high 21 rebounds, and Toronto beat Charlotte.

NUGGETS 87, GRIZZLIES 80

DENVER • Kosta Koufos scored 18 points and grabbed a career-high 16 rebounds, helping the Denver Nuggets rally to beat the Memphis Grizzlies 87-80 on Friday night for their 11th straight win, their longest streak in 30 years

Idaho Women Advance to WAC Tourney Title Game

BY CHRISTIAN CAPLE The Spokesman-Review

LAS VEGAS • Devyn Christensen collapsed onto the Orleans Arena floor, crushed beneath the realization that even her WAC tournament-record nine 3-pointers and careerhigh 37 points weren't enough to prolong the Aggies' stay here.

They ran into an Idaho team they'd twice beaten, and the Vandals didn't want to go home, either.

The result will be memomeniscus. "I'm so happy I don't have any words for it." And, of course, there was Schivo, who scored just five Jerry Finkbeiner drew up the "Valparaiso play," a reference to the full-court inbound play that produced Bryce Drew's famous winning 3-pointer against Mississippi in the 1998 NCAA tournament.

Newlee wanted Idaho to give a foul - it had only committed five - once the ball was inbounded. But after a Utah State player received a clean pass near the top of the key, she dished to Christensen deep on the left wing.

She took a couple of dribbles, lost control of the ball, and Idaho's spot in the WAC championship game was clinched.

McGinnis

"I kind of wrestle for football so I am athletic in other ways," McGinnis said. "But winning a state championship definitely means a lot to me. It helps with pad level and staying low. It helps with the overall quickness for short period of time, hand speed and the big deal is using body weight and leverage. It really helps a lot with that."

But McGinnis doesn't just wrestle for personal achievement and training. He's there for the camaraderie and to set an example, along with his February. ported in "Cole just comes from a family that works," Gooding coach Clay Robinson said. "He is a workhorse. They do a lot of physical work as a family and he just knows the value of it. And he has the natural abilities, an incredible athlete, plus he is coachable. For someone who has dominated the way he has and still wants to come into practice and learn ... Man, he is the real deal all the way around."

rable for the few who witnessed it. Addie Schivo's free throws with 3.5 seconds left provided the final, 84-82 margin for the third-seeded Vandals, but that was just the final big offensive play in a game that featured plenty on both sides.

This was March basketball at its finest, USU and Idaho putting on an afternoon display that rivaled anything produced by the four conference tournaments held here in the last two weeks.

The Vandals (16-15), one win away from an NCAA tournament bid, face No. 1 seed Seattle University (20-9) at 12 p.m. Saturday for the tournament championship.

"They wanted it. We wanted it," said Christensen, who scored 26 of her team's final 34 points during the last 14 minutes. "They hit shots when they needed to, and we neededjust a few more seconds and I think it would have been a different story."

Instead, the story is this: The Vandals ripped off a 17-2 run to take a 68-59 lead with 5:16 to play after trailing for most of the second half, then withstood a furious comeback led by Christensen and a final Aggies possession that ended without a shot attempt.

Stacey Barr led the effort by scoring 26 points on 8-of-14 shooting. But there were team-wide contributions, a staple of the kind of play that keeps teams alive during this time of year.

There were Ali Forde's 14 rebounds to propel Idaho to a 47-35 edge on the glass despite the Aggies shooting a higher percentage (43.9) than the Vandals (40). There were 12 points scored by senior Jessica Graham, including the final seven of Idaho's big run.

"This is all I've ever wanted," said Graham, whose career at Idaho has been marred by three ACL tears and a torn points in 19 minutes, pulling down an offensive rebound after Krissy Karr missed a runner in the final seconds - one of just four shots Idaho missed in the final 10 minutes while scoring 33 points - then drawing a foul, stepping to the line with 3.5 seconds left and knocking down both free throws.

"I was pretty comfortable," Schivo said. "It was a little nerve-wracking, but I hit the first one and knew I was good."

Idaho coach Jon Newlee called timeout to set his defense. Utah State (18-13) coach

"I thought, 'Please don't foul if she's going to pick that thing up and shoot it," Newlee said.

It wouldn't have been a surprise if Christensen had risen and nailed a winner. She scored 10 points in a span of 1:40 to cut Idaho's lead to 81-79. After Idaho's Alyssa Charlston split a pair of free throws, Franny Vaaulu tied the score with an offensive rebound and 3-point play with 12.1 seconds left.

Invasion

David put on his shoes, grabbed an unloaded shotgun and headed outside to see what the ruckus was.

As soon as he stepped outside, David said, he was tackled and carried back in the house. The attackers then tied him up and held a gun to his head. Colleen came out of the couple's bedroom, also armed with a gun, and soon everyone was pointing at each other in what David described as a "Mexican standoff."

"You have to make a decision," David said, "so she put the gun on the table."

The invaders demanded cash, jewelry and guns. As David lay on the floor tied up, Colleen was forced to go from room to room gathering the valuables, including a coin collection she started as a child.

The invaders ransacked the house, emptying drawers, stripping the bed, tearing closet doors off the hinges and tipping over shelves.

David said they told him if they didn't find what they wanted or if they found something the Conners didn't tell them about, things would go very badly for the couple.

At one point, the invaders brought Colleen back into the kitchen and made her sit by the oven.

"She reached out with her foot, really careful, and she tapped my foot," David said. "I tapped her back to let her know I was OK."

When he heard about people being robbed before, herded into a bank vault or tied up on the floor like he was, David said he'd wondered how the victims let it happen.

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS David Conner shows photos of his home after it was invaded by four men on March 9, 2011.

More Online

Go to Magicvalley.com to watch a video of the interview with the Conners. Also look for a post next week with more from the interview on reporter Alison Smith's blog, Scanner Traffic.

"I used to think, 'Man, I'd never let that happen. I would do something," he said. "I didn't do anything."

Public Criticism

Both David and Colleen said they've been criticized for opening their door and their other actions during the robbery.

"I've had people say, 'Oh well, my husband said you should have done this and you should have done that;" Colleen said. "And you always think you know what you're going to do in that situation, but you never know until you're faced with it."

David likened the experience to getting in a car wreck or being diagnosed with cancer.

"It's almost hard to realize it's you," he said.

Before the home invasion, the Conners said, their children urged them to get a security system. In a small community like Dietrich, the couple said they never thought a robbery could happen to them.

"We have lights; we've got dogs; we've got guns," David said he told his children. "Somebody would be really stupid to come here. Well, they were stupid and they came."

Added Security

Since the home invasion, the Conners say they've taken extra security precautions. They always lock the doors and always keep their guns loaded.

David said he watches unfamiliar cars that pass by on the country road in front of his home. If the dogs bark in the middle of the night, they're both up, checking at the windows for danger. But, the couple said, they don't go outside to see what's going on.

"No, absolutely no," David said. "I'm never going to open the door again."

Who Do You Think You Are?

Four people were charged with the home invasion robbery at the Conners' house. All four pleaded guilty.

Jeremiah Bennett, called the ringleader of the robbery, was sentenced to 20 years to life in prison. Aaron Donabedian was sentenced to 10-14 years; Gabriel Baker was sentenced to eight -10 years; Jamie Taylor was sentenced to six-10 years in prison, with the court retaining jurisdiction for one year. She's now out on probation.

While the Conners are satisfied with Bennett's sen-reach a rating in the 40s and 50s, officials begin looking at the benefits of major renovations. Bridges are usually replaced when they reach a rating in the 20s or 30s.

"There's not a threat of it falling in the river tomorrow. It's still a stable structure," Jerke said of the milepost 216 bridges.

The bridges are located eight miles east of Burley and were built in 1960. They underwent major rehab work in 1978 and repairs in 2002.

According to ITD, about 18,000 vehicles use the road each day. That volume is expected to triple during the life of the future bridges.

tence, they said they would have liked to see Donabedian go to trial, if only to prove that he was in the house. Donabedian pleaded guilty to his charges, but maintained that he simply drove the others to the house and never went inside.

The Conners spoke in court at Bennett's sentencing in October 2011 and were able to confront him.

"Do you remember, Jeremiah, the night you came into my house, what you said to me when you had me down on the floor with a shotgun in my face?" David asked at the sentencing hearing. "You said, 'Who the hell do you think you are, coming after me with a shotgun?' Well, I'm asking you, who the hell do you think you are? Coming into my house, putting a shotgun in my face, terrorizing my wife, tearing my house up, stealing all my property, threatening to kill us?"

David said he remembers Bennett glaring at him in court on several occasions.

"I'd glare back," David said. "He'd look away first."

Health Fair Clarification

We understand that an out of state lab company is marketing lab services to Gooding County as part of an event they call a "health fair." Its mailer has created some confusion, and we want to confirm that company's event is not sponsored by or associated with North Canyon Medical Center's Annual Health Fair.

The NCMC Annual Health Fair, being held Saturday, May 18th, is held each year to improve the healthcare of people in our region by providing free screenings, specials on lab work, and other health and wellness information.

Unlike the other event, our Annual Health Fair is not held to generate business for an out of state company. We encourage you to participate in our Health Fair, in May, and to support your community hospital, thereby keeping your money in the local community.
