Surrounded by charred sheetrock, Chad Young talks about his house that burned Thursday near Murtaugh.

Life goes on after Murtaugh house fire.

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

MURTAUGH • It's every homeowner's worst nightmare: A neighbor calls, and in a panicked voice says, "Your house is on fire."

Chad Young got that call on March 19. The morning of the fire, Young said, he dropped his children off at school and headed to Wendell to sort dairy cattle.

His wife, Teriauna, was unexpectedly out of town for an extra day, helping her sister after surgery in Utah.

Then, he got the call. "It took me a minute to register that it was on fire," Young said. "I thought, I guess I better get over there."

By the time Young arrived, the flames were out, but all of his family's belongings were either smoldering, soaking wet or covered in a thick, black coat of soot.

Everything in the once cheery house is now black: light green walls that Teriauna painted, the oak floors and kitchen cabinets, family portraits stuck to the refrigerator and a baby bottle on the floor.

"We tried to save stuff," he said, but the family's clothing, furniture and handmade quilts were too damaged to be salvaged. Even framed photos were ruined from the heat of the fire.

Cash in a drawer, saved for a rainy day, also went up in smoke

"Now I'm thinking the bank's not so bad," Young said, laughing.

While the Youngs' insurance company figures out the extent of the damage, the family is itemizing everything in their home, down to the brand of each pair of jeans.

Other than making the list of property, Young said there's not much he can do except wait for the investigation into the fire's cause to finish and structural engineers to decide if the home will need to be demolished.

"It's kind of a helpless feeling," he said.

After the fire, Young said, his neighbor, Brooke Stanger, told him what she saw.

Stanger told the Times-News that she was doing laundry at about 10 a.m. that day when the power went out. The power came back on, but the lights were dim, Stanger said.

"I went to unplug my T.V. I thought it might be a surge," she said. "I looked out the window and saw the transformer that goes to their house on fire, and it was sparking."

Stanger said the bases of two power poles near their homes were on fire and she could hear popping and snapping.

Lampliter Robbery Suspect Reaches Plea Agreement

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Jacob Rush, charged in the Feb. 17 Lampliter Motel robbery, waived his preliminary hearing in Cassia County 5th District Magistrate Court on Friday and agreed to accept the terms of a plea agreement offered by the state.

Rush, 18, agreed to plead guilty in district court to one count of felony robbery and one count of felony aggravated assault, said Rush's attorney, Dave Haley.

Under the agreement, the state will dismiss the remaining felony charges of conspiracy to commit robbery, assault with intent to commit a serious felony and burglary.

Rush will be arraigned at 9 a.m., April 9 in district court.

Haley said that after Rush spoke with his mother and other family members, he decided it "was in his best interest to waive the preliminary hearing and accept the offer."

Rush will be sentenced to four to 12 years in prison with up to 365 days of retained jurisdiction for each count. The sentences will run concurrently.

Cassia County 5th District Judge Michael Crabtree will allow himself to be bound by the plea agreement "although it's contrary to his practice" with the stipulation that no extraordinary facts come to light beforehand, Haley said.

School 'Fix It' Bill Passes Senate

BOISE (AP) • The Idaho Senate voted unanimously for the so-called "fix it" bill, a $30 million measure that restores funding to public education that had been eliminated when voters rejected the "Students Come First" propositions last November.

After Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter signs the measure, as he's expected to do, more than than $30 million would go toward teacher salaries, dual credit courses, technology and professional development.

Education groups including the Idaho Education Association and the Idaho School Boards Association all backed the plan.

The money contained in it addresses issues that weren't at the core of the dispute over Students Come First.

Sen. John Goedde of Coeur d'Alene, the Republican chairman of the Education Committee, characterized the measure as a must-pass proposal.

Senate OKs Teacher Pay Cut Bill

BOISE (AP) • Idaho school districts could get more flexibility to cut teacher pay during economic hard times under legislation approved in the Senate Friday.

The chamber voted 21-14 for the measure, which is one of several bills pushed by the Idaho School Boards Association this legislative session.

Sen. Jim Patrick, R-Twin

Falls, said he was confident school districts wouldn't cut salaries unnecessarily, over objections from foes who say it tips the balance of power of who gets to decide what teachers earn.

The measure now goes to the House for debate.

But one bill that isn't going to come to a vote is another ISBA-supported measure that gives school boards power to impose a "last, best offer" if contract talks with teachers stall. That legislation, which has been blasted by the Idaho Education Association teachers union, passed the House earlier this month on a 55-14 vote.

It would have given school board trustees power to end contract bargaining by June 10 if talks with teachers stall.

Out and About

DREW NASH • TIMES-NEWS

The Senate Chambers are seen during a legislative session at the Idaho Capitol on Wednesday in Boise.

Warm Temperatures This Weekend

It's going to be a very nice day today with plenty of sunshine and very mild temperatures. If you have outdoor plans, it will be a great day with sunny skies and afternoon high temperatures climbing all the way into the upper 60s. Some locations could even reach 70.

Easter Sunday will start off very nice with mostly sunny skies and once again very warm temperatures. Temperatures will climb to near 70 degrees. An approaching weather system will bring increased clouds by Sunday afternoon with a chance for isolated to scattered showers and thunderstorms by Sunday evening. The chance of rain showers and thunderstorms will linger into the day on Monday before the weather system moves out Monday afternoon. Temperatures on Monday behind the cold front will be cooler, only climbing into the lower to middle 60s.

Temperatures will quickly rebound on Tuesday and Wednesday. With mostly sunny skies both days, we will once again see high temperatures back into the upper 60s and lower 70s. Another weather system could bring more rain showers and thunderstorms to the Magic Valley by Thursday and Friday.

ONLINE: T.F. Dog Park May Not Get Expected Donation

Kimberlee Kruesi's local-government watchdog blog is dubbed "On the Agenda." An excerpt from her Friday post:

"Less than a week ago, Dr. Marty Becker announced he and his mother would donate $30,000 to help build the anxiously awaited Twin Falls dog park. However, just today Becker announced that his mother no longer plans on donating her half of the park donation.

"It's difficult for her to change her mind ... and she'd still like to donate it upon her passing, but as we know there's no guarantee she'll have any money left," Becker wrote in an email to city Parks and Recreation Director Dennis Bowyer.

"In the email, Becker said he and his wife have already given the city $15,000 but it is no longer necessary to have the Beckers' names on the park. "Becker also wrote he would be willing to come to T.F. for a dog park fundraiser to help raise enough funding to get a dog park in place.

"I'll move heaven and earth to help you make this much needed dog park a reality," he said.

"No word yet from the city on how this will impact the early construction that was given the green light because of the Beckers' original donation. ..."

Family Eulogizes Marine Killed in Nevada Mortar Shell Blast

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) • Family members described William Taylor Wild IV as a loving son, caring brother and consummate Marine during a funeral Friday for the 21-year-old who was killed along with six others last week when a mortar shell exploded during a training exercise at a base in Nevada.

Wild

Hundreds of friends, loved ones and neighbors poured in to Unitarian Universalist Church of Annapolis to talk about Wild's life. Photos of Wild and his family were displayed and mourners wore small yellow ribbons on their lapels to celebrate the man everyone affectionately called Taylor.

"Taylor Wild knew that life was special," said David Sprinkel, Wild's uncle, during the service. "Watching him spend time with his little sister Libby was incredible. Their play time usually erupted into a one-sided wrestling match. He would lift her off the ground spinning her over his head."

The Wilds last saw their son during Super Bowl weekend when he was on leave. Taylor was an avid Orioles and Ravens fan, his parents said.

In the days since his death, Wild has been described by loved ones as a Harry Potter enthusiast and sports fanatic.

The lance corporal joined the Marines shortly after graduating from Severna Park High in 2010. His parents said that he always wanted be in the military.

His father, William Taylor Wild III, is a command chief in the Air Force Reserve at Dover Air Force Base in Delaware.

Wild was in a weapons platoon and his specialty was mortars. The platoon was to deploy in November to Afghanistan, where he already done two tours, and one in Kuwait.

AT A GLANCE

Senate: State Should Trump Boise in Fight over Parking Garage

BOISE • The Senate voted 24-11 to exempt the state from Boise's local planning rules, to help it build a parking garage near the Capitol.

During Friday's debate, Republican Sen. Jim Rice of Caldwell argued it had never been city government's place to regulate the state.

Idaho has sold bonds for the $8 million, 580-car garage, but a city planning board has rejected the project's design.

Consequently, Idaho fears it will be delayed and grow more expensive.

State officials still hope to win an appeal next month.

If they don't, however, this measure that's now due a House vote would allow them to proceed with the garage, anyway. Democrats opposed the measure, as did Republican Sen. Todd Lake of Nampa.

Man Rescued from Grain Bin

BONNERS FERRY • A North Idaho man was rescued by quick-thinking emergency crews, neighbors and friends after he got trapped in a half-filled grain bin near Bonners Ferry.

The Bonner County Daily Bee reported Jim Shelton went into the bin on Monday to unplug it after it became jammed while loading grain onto trucks. Officials say he was trapped up to his armpits in grain and couldn't free himself.

Ken Baker with Boundary County Volunteer Ambulance says those assistant Shelton placed a plastic barrel — with the ends removed — around him and vacuumed out the grain around him.

Woman pleads Guilty to Theft

POCATELLO • A 36-year-old Chubbuck woman has pleaded guilty to embezzling more than $100,000 in federal money from the Aid For Friends homeless shelter in Pocatello. The U.S. Attorney's Office says Leslie A. Briggs pleaded guilty Thursday to theft of government property. Sentencing is set for June 18.

Prosecutors allege Briggs was assistant to the manager of the shelter's program that receives and manages Social Security benefits for people who may be unable to handle their money, helping them pay rent and other bills.

Briggs admitted that she wrote checks from the trust account for her own personal expenses.

Syringa Can Pursue Claim Against Idaho

BOISE (AP) • The Idaho Supreme Court justices ruled Friday phone consortium Syringa Networks can pursue its claim against the Department of Administration, alleging the agency's bidding process violated Idaho statutes governing purchasing.

Syringa sued Idaho in 2009, claiming the Department of Administration illegally handed Qwest Communications Inc. a $60 million contract to install the broadband infrastructure for the Idaho Education Network, an ongoing project to link public schools, universities and businesses in Idaho.

A 4th District Court judge dismissed Syringa's lawsuit, on grounds it hadn't exhausted administrative remedies.

But justices said there were no administrative remedies to exhaust.

Among other conclusions, Supreme Court Justice Jim Jones wrote then-Department of Administration Director Mike Gwartney "appears to have been the architect of the state's effort to bend the contracting rules to Qwest's advantage."

Nev. Senate Bill Paves Way for Medical Marijuana Shops

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) • A glimmer of hope grew a bit brighter Friday for Nevadans who have been waiting 13 years since the legalization of medicinal marijuana to finally have access to the drug.

Sen. Tick Segerblom, D-Las Vegas, presented SB374 to the Senate Judiciary Committee a week after he took members on a field trip to Arizona to hash out the complexities of the bill.

“I came away from Arizona realizing the faster we can get this moving, the better,” Segerblom said. He added that he hopes for the first dispensary in Nevada to open within a year.

The bill sets the framework for establishing and regulating medical marijuana dispensaries in Nevada, and it allows those dispensaries to operate store fronts for registered medical marijuana patients.

Despite state legalization of medical marijuana in 2000 and several attempts at laws like this bill, no legislature has passed policy allowing for the distribution of the drug. The reason for that is likely twofold: political pressure and concern of federal intervention because marijuana is still a controlled substance federally, Segerblom said.

“I’m actually very surprised at the amount of support this bill is getting,” Segerblom said. “It doesn’t have the political bugaboo attached to it like it has in past years.”

The majority of the committee Friday echoed the same sentiment that the time has come for medical marijuana dispensaries.

“This is a really important thing. You need to implement the law and so far that has not taken place,” said Sen. Scott Hammond, R-Las Vegas.

Committee members returned from Arizona with a number of proposed amendments, including changing the dispensaries from nonprofit to for-profit and increasing fees associated with starting and operating a dispensary.

“This is a business that will make a lot of money, so from my perspective it has got to be serious businesses that are serious about the process,” said

Sen. Mark Hutchinson, R-Las Vegas. He added that dispensaries in Arizona make $100,000 to $700,000 per month, so the increased fees would not be a hindrance to dispensaries opening for business. But opponents contend the increased fees favor big businesses and squash opportunities for private citizens seeking to get involved.

Dust Storm Accelerates Snowmelt in Idaho Mts

BOISE (AP) • A wind storm earlier this month covered a southwestern Idaho mountain range with dust from Oregon and Nevada and accelerated snowmelt due to the darker surface absorbing heat from the sun as opposed to being reflected by pristine white snow, scientists say. The Idaho Statesman reports that experts said the March 6 storm with winds averaging 34 mph and gusts up to 57 mph put a dust layer on the northern Owyhee Mountains. Hydrologists at the U.S. Department of Agriculture said observations in the region found accelerated melting from March 10 to March 16, with the Owyhee River runoff peaking a week earlier than normal.

“Nobody on our staff has ever witnessed anything similar,” said research hydrologist Adam Winstral. Snow surveyors with the Natural Resources Conservation Service said the dust reached as far east as the upper Mores Creek watershed near Idaho City in south-central Idaho.

“Because it’s been so dry in the valleys in Oregon and Nevada, the wind picked the dust up and carried it here,” said Ron Abramovich, a water supply specialist with the Idaho Natural Resources Conservation Service.

Abramovich said workers removed 3-inch core samples of snow that, when melted, left a half-inch plug of dust.

Scientists are careful about assigning causes to what appear to be shifts in weather patterns in the region. In general, they say climate change has led to warmer winters, hotter summers and bigger wildfires. That, in turn, has left some deserts with less native grasses to hold the soil in place. The scientists noted two large fires last year that could have played a role in the March dust storm. The Long Draw fire in Oregon was the largest in the state’s history, burning 870 square miles of grass and sagebrush territory. The Holloway fire on the Oregon-Nevada border burned about 380 square miles in Oregon and about 335 square miles in Nevada before being contained late in the fire season.

Letter Questions Retroactive Timber-payment Cuts

ASSOCIATED PRESS
This July 2011 file photo shows workers with Brandt Logging Company loading pine beetle-killed trees on a truck near Frisco, Colo. Colorado is among Western states that could be forced to repay millions of dollars in federal funds locked up in the national budget debate. Colorado stands to lose $8.4 million from the federal mineral royalties paid to states.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) • House Natural Resources Committee Chairman Doc Hastings and another 30 members of Congress have sent a letter to the Obama Administration, asking why it is demanding timber counties send back roughly $18 million in federal subsidies.

The Agriculture Department distributed $323 million to 41 states in January as part of the Secure Rural Schools program, which helps timber counties make up for revenue lost when national forests cut back logging to protect wildlife.

But the administration recently said the payments are subject to the sequester, and states must return a portion of the money.

In his letter to Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack, Hastings, a Washington Republican, says the move is an “obvious attempt” to make the sequester as painful as possible and asks for the repayments to be halted.

Idaho Man Waives Hearing in Pregnant Wife’s Death

SANDPOINT (AP) • A northern Idaho man accused of stabbing his pregnant wife to death with an ice pick and a kitchen knife in their Priest River home has waived his right to a preliminary hearing.

Jeremy Keith Swanson, 27, faces two counts of first-degree murder. He waived the right Wednesday in district court, meaning prosecutors won’t have to persuade a judge there is enough evidence to justify moving toward a possible trial, the Bonner County Daily Bee reported.

Court records said Swanson told authorities he knew 27-year-old Jennifer Marie Bosch-Swanson was 15 weeks pregnant when he stabbed her to death Dec. 18. Police say the cou-ple’s 20-month-old daughter also was in the home at the time, but she wasn’t harmed.

Judge Justin Julian advised Swanson of his rights, and Swanson answered that he understood. Julian accepted the waiver.

Jennifer Marie Bosch-Swanson’s friends and family attended the proceeding but declined to comment.

According to court records, Swanson called police to report the stabbing but said it was not premeditated.

Police said that before the stabbing, Swanson did an Internet search involving torturing a person by inflicting ice pick wounds that didn’t immediately cause death and that wouldn’t be detected by an autopsy.

When confronted with the Internet search information, Swanson told police he planned the attack and purchased an ice pick at a hardware store to carry it out, authorities said. Investigators said security-camera footage from a Priest River hardware store shows Swanson buying an ice pick as he returned to the couple’s home after work.

Police said Swanson told them he and his wife were arguing and his wife eventually went to the bedroom due to morning sickness to lie down, and that’s where he attacked her on the bed with an ice pick and kitchen knife. The criminal complaint against Swanson said his wife suffered multiple wounds to her head, chest and back. A motive has not been established.

Court Upholds Rammell’s Elk Poaching Conviction

BOISE (AP) • The Idaho Court of Appeals has upheld the conviction of former Republican gubernatorial candidate Rex Rammell for illegally shooting an elk during a 2010 hunting trip in eastern Idaho.

The decision handed down Thursday affirms two lower court decisions that also preserved Rammell’s misdemeanor conviction for shooting an elk in a hunting zone outside the boundaries identified by his official elk tag.

Rammell, a veterinarian and former elk rancher who ran and lost in the GOP primary for governor in May 2010, was initially convicted by an Idaho Falls jury in June 2011. He launched into the appeals process days later, losing first to a magistrate judge. The conviction was then upheld by 7th District Judge Jon J. Shindurling.

The Spokesman-Review reports Rammell focused his challenge to the Court of Appeals on grounds the law requires proof of specific criminal intent and that the state failed to prove that point regarding his shooting of an elk in the Tex Creek hunting zone.

The court, however, concluded the law doesn’t require prosecutors to prove intent to make its case the law was broken.

“It only requires general intent, namely, that a person knowingly possessed an animal protected under the statute, not that he or she intended to commit a crime,” Court of Appeals Judge David Gratton wrote.

Gratton also pointed out how Rammell never claimed he didn’t kill the elk in the wrong zone, but instead argued he thought the rules allowed him to kill an elk anywhere during open season.

“Rammell’s argument is actually a defense of ignorance of the law. Ignorance of the law is not a valid defense. Regardless of whether Rammell intended to violate the law, he still had the intent to possess the elk,” Gratton wrote.

Rammell also ran and lost last year in a race for a seat in the Idaho House representing Idaho County, then afterward announced he was done living and moved to Wyoming. Rammell did not return telephone messages left at his residence in Torrington, Wyo., by The Associated Press Friday.

OPINION

“The time has come to settle accounts with the U.S. imperialists in view of the prevailing situation.”

North Korean leader Kim Jong Un, warning that he beefed up his rocket forces after U.S. nuclear-capable B-2 bombers dropped dummy munitions in joint military drills with South Korea.

CHEERS AND JEERS

JEERS to Idaho Rep. Ken Andrus. During a House floor debate on March 22, Andrus said, “If a person doesn’t know the legislative district they’re in, maybe they shouldn’t have influence on ballot initiatives.”

Maybe if legislators would quit redrawing district lines to protect themselves, voters would be more familiar with the district in which they reside.

Andrus’s condescending comment was made as the House debated a bill that would make it more difficult to put voter referendums on the ballot. Before the bill passed, petitioners needed 6 percent of registered voters. Now they need 6 percent of voters from 18 districts. The idea was to get more input from rural areas.

Apparently, the idea was to only get input from people who have memorized the latest redistricting map.

JEERS to all the bills designed to “send a message” this session. The latest such empty piece of legislation was a House measure approved 57-13 that would urge the Federal Communications Commission to crack down on television programs that portray premarital sex. This empty piece of legislation was nothing more than a statement.

CHEERS to America’s Veterinarian Dr. Marty Becker for donating $15,000 to the long-awaited Twin Falls dog park. Unfortunately, the donation was originally going to be $30,000, but when extenuating circumstances kept Becker’s mother from donating matching funds, Becker sent an email to Twin Falls Parks and Recreation Director Dennis Bowyer saying he would be willing to come to Twin Falls for a dog park fundraiser to help raise enough funding to get a dog park in place.

“I’ll move heaven and earth to help you make this much needed dog park a reality,” he said.

Thank You to St. Luke’s for Great Care after Recent Fall

On Jan. 24, when we had an ice storm on top of packed snow, I fell in my driveway and broke my hip.

Magic Valley’s medical team rolled into action for my benefit. The first responders were on the scene in just a few minutes, despite the treacherous roads. The emergency medical technicians arrived and transported me to St. Luke’s hospital. The emergency room personnel, the X-ray technicians, the nurses and CNAs — everybody involved — should be commended for their caring kindness and their expertise.

I will always be grateful to Dr. William May, who operated on me, not only for his surgical skill but for his patient, caring attendance during my recovery. And to the therapist and the nurses who came to my home at his direction to see to my care.

We are very fortunate to have St. Luke’s Magic Valley Medical Center and the many wonderful medical personnel we have right here in our own backyard.

Get Serious about Closing Guantanamo Prison

Thomas Wilner

have been led to believe that the detainees are all too dangerous to release or transfer, and that we must keep them at Guantanamo to protect our security.

That line may play well politically, but it is simply not true, and it is costing us dearly.

One hundred and sixty-six men are still held at Guantanamo. Fewer than 20 are “high-value detainees,” men who were transferred to Guantanamo from other locations several years ago and are scheduled to stand trial for war crimes. The others were, at most, low-level functionaries or people swept up and sold for bounties in the confusing initial stages of the fog of war in Afghanistan. Many simply were in the wrong place at the wrong time. In fact, more than half of them — 86 — were cleared for release more than three years ago by a special presidential task force composed of top U.S. intelligence and law enforcement officials. Some were cleared even before that, during the Bush administration. Because of congressional restrictions, however, they remain locked up. And unlike prisoners in the United States, these men are held virtually incommunicado, with no opportunity to see their families. Those not initially cleared were promised review hearings almost four years ago, but not one has occurred. They are understandably frustrated.

Even beyond the terrible injustice to them, the United States is paying a very high price for all this. Guantanamo is our nation’s most expensive prison, with an annual operating budget of almost $177 million, more than a million dollars per year for each detainee, and almost $90 million a year just for the 86 prisoners who were cleared for release three-plus years ago. The nearly $300 million spent jailing the latter group the past three years and the annual cost of keeping Guantanamo open amount to a lot of money that could be used to save jobs and services being cut as a result of the so-called sequester. And the costs of keeping Guantanamo open probably will increase. The military has said its Cuban base is in dire need of upgrades and has requested nearly $200 million for capital improvements to keep Guantanamo functioning as a prison. Where is the congressional concern with those costs?

But the cost to our nation is more than economic. Many who have been charged with protecting our national security, including former defense secretary Robert Gates, former national security adviser Dennis Blair, former CIA director David Petraeus and former secretary of state Colin Powell, have pointed out that Guantanamo actually hurts U.S. security. As Sen. John McCain emphasized during his bid for the White House, when he “strongly” favored closing Guantanamo, the prison is a negative symbol that serves as an important recruiting tool for terrorists. President Obama himself has said that Guantanamo has probably “created more terrorists around the world than it ever detained.”

Thomas Wilner was counsel of record to Guantanamo detainees in Rasul v. Bush and Boumediene v. Bush, the two Supreme Court cases that established detainees’ right to habeas corpus.

LETTERS OF THANKS

Thank You to St. Luke’s Staff for Being Professional, Courteous

Congratulations, St. Luke’s Magic Valley and your staff for a job well done.

On Feb. 26, I had a knee replacement performed and had a three-day stay at St. Luke’s. I would like to make this observation concerning the people I came in contact with, from the doctor’s office and my first pre-surgery visit to the St. Luke’s Home Health Care nurse to the therapist who worked with me at home until I was released after leaving the hospital. Never did I meet or come into contact with anyone who was not professional, courteous and was there to serve me. This includes the cleaning lady who came in every afternoon with a smile on her face and acted as if she enjoyed being there.

I have been fortunate not to have spent any time in a hospital prior to this, and we all hear “horror stories” about such places — not that I would go there for a vacation. However, from my personal experience, we in the Magic Valley are fortunate to have a facility such as St. Luke’s. Most of all, I feel what made this a more pleasant experience for me were the people, especially on the second floor. Day or night shift, you won’t find a better group of people. Last but not least is the kitchen staff. What a blueberry parfait! The food was outstanding and delivered warm as well.

Thanks to all of you for a pleasant experience.

Paraglider Chris Santacroce takes flight from the Point of the Mountain against the backdrop of Utah Lake and the Wasatch mountains Thursday in Draper, Utah.

Paragliders Are Losing Ground

DRAPER, Utah (AP) • Three decades ago, Chris Santacroce taught himself to do somersaults a few thousand feet in the air. He ran off a mountain ridge here, taking flight against the backdrop of Utah Lake and the Wasatch mountains.

Today, Santacroce, known as the “Yoda” of the sport, holds international titles and a Red Bull sponsorship. And that spot is among the world’s most treasured paragliding sites.

But paragliders contend the spot is now in jeopardy. In March, a cement company that owns part of the mountain started to plow off a southern corner of the ridge.

“For us, it’s disbelief,” Santacroce said of the bulldozing. “It’s like, holy crap. Could this be the end of an era?”

The hill south of Salt Lake City, known as Steep Mountain, touts an ideal bundle of geographic factors. That wind affords daredevils the rare fortune of soaring on a smooth, constant breeze from dawn till dusk and on most days of the year. And it helped shape the sport, giving paragliders more time to practice and try out acrobatic stunts in the air.

“It’s to paragliders and hang gliders what Waimea Bay is to surfers, or Yosemite is to hikers,” said paraglider Kristjan Morgan, adding, “There isn’t a next best place.”

The company has mined the area for decades, but steered bulldozers clear of the paragliding spot until this month.

Now, the missing chunk of ridge worries the flying community that the company will lop off other, more vital pieces of the mountain. That, they say, would deflate the area’s singular, sturdy wind flow and put the ideal flying spot in jeopardy.

And that could drain thousands of visitors from the point’s half-dozen pilot schools and paragliding outfitters, hurting the tight-knit community atop the mountain.

There, a development houses about two dozen enthusiasts.

Those “Point rats” acknowledge that the current missing chunk of ridge has not affected their flying, for the most part.

“It’s not absolutely the end of the world for us” so far, Santacroce said. “But boy would we like to make a deal and cinch it up” to safeguard the rest of the ridge.

Paragliders and hang gliders say trekking up and flying at the point is a pilgrimage.

Bruce Busby, the vice president of Canada’s Hang Gliding and Paragliding Association, has visited the site about 10 times in the last two decades from his home in Calgary, Alberta. “It’s relaxed, it’s easy, it’s fun,” Busby said, “and it’s absolutely fantastic flying.”

Paragliders are working to raise the mountain’s profile through an online campaign called “Save Point of the Mountain.” Now, they are urging the county to buy the land and hope the attention will secure the mountain. But that could be a long shot.

The Geneva Rock Company, which owns the mountain, plans to continue pushing that gravel off the ridge. That’s because spot contains lucrative, high-quality rocks that help to build Utah highways, said David Przybyla, spokesman for the company.

“This isn’t something where we can pick up operations and go to someone else’s backyard,” Przybyla said.

Bill Would Grant Immigrants Licenses

DENVER (AP) • Illegal immigrants would be eligible to get Colorado driver’s licenses under a bill Democrats plan to introduce Monday, the third substantial piece of immigration legislation this year for a party that a few years ago joined Republicans in passing strict enforcement laws.

With the proposal, Colorado would join only a handful of states in the nation that allows driver’s licenses for illegal immigrants. New Mexico and Washington allow illegal immigrants to obtain the same driver licenses as U.S. citizens. Illinois passed a law this year.

Colorado Democratic Sen. Jessie Ulibarri, the sponsor of the bill, said illegal immigrants are already driving, whether it is to take their children to school or take loved ones to the hospital.

“If they’re driving on our roads, we want to make sure that every single driver is licensed and insured,” he said.

The bill, to be unveiled during a news conference, will be called the “Colorado Road and Community Safety Act.”

Republican Sen. Kent Lambert argued the proposal would violate federal immigration law.

“Maybe he plans to override all federal law. I think that’s very problematic,” said Lambert, who has been a staunch opponent of illegal immigration.

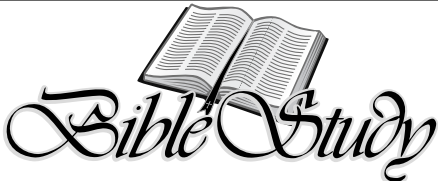

“If people are here illegally, that means it’s illegal to do this,” he said.

Immigrant advocates tried to get driver’s licenses proposal on the ballot last year, but failed to get enough signatures to send it to voters. The group that pushed that ballot proposal, Driver’s Licenses For All, said that everyone would benefit if drivers who are currently unlicensed learned the rules of the road and got insurance.

“It’s not a benefit for them. It’s a benefit for everyone,” said Esmeralda Dominguez, an organizer with the group.

Ulibarri said the licenses would show that the people are not U.S. citizens so they would not be able to register to vote.

Immigrants would have to prove they’re paying state and federal taxes and have an identification card from their country to get driver’s licenses. Ulibarri said qualifying documents are to show that immigrants “are here in our community, paying taxes, trying to play by the rules” and making themselves known to state government.

NEVADA JOBLESS RATE FALLS TO 9.6 PERCENT

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) • Nevada’s jobless rate dropped to 9.6 percent in February, down from 11.8 percent a year ago and marking the biggest year-over-year decrease among states, the Nevada Department of Employment, Training and Rehabilitation reported Friday.

February’s unemployment rate is the lowest since December 2008, said Bill Anderson, chief economist with the state agency.

Gov. Brian Sandoval said he was pleased with the “improving overall direction of the state’s economy.”

“Unemployment is trending down, jobs are moving in a positive direction and for the first time in more than a decade, women account for almost 46 percent of the total labor force,” Sandoval said in a statement. “Many Nevadans, however, are still feeling the pain of our protracted recession and with 132,000 citizens among the unemployed, much work remains to be done.”

The number of unemployed is a decrease of 600 from January and 31,200 from February 2012, the report said.

In Las Vegas, the unadjusted rate was 9.8 percent, down from 12.1 percent a year ago and 10.2 percent in January.

The unemployment rate in the Reno-Sparks area fell to 10.1 percent, down from 12.2 percent in February 2012 and 10.5 percent the previous month.

She called 911 when she saw what she said looked like fireworks coming out from under the eaves of the house. “That’s when I noticed the flames in the windows,” she said. Stanger said she also called Idaho Power after the fire department arrived , since she’d seen the fire around the power poles and the sparking transformer. “We’re looking into the situation, as are other interested parties,” said Kevin Winslow, a communication specialist with Idaho Power. Since the fire, the response from the community has been surprising, Young said, and a little embarrassing for a person who doesn’t like to ask for help. “I have insurance,” he said. “I’ll be compensated eventually.” While he and his family deal with the aftermath of the fire, life goes on. “I’ve got heifers coming in from California. I’ve got a lot of stuff going on,” he said. Despite the hardship of his family being forced out of their home and losing all their belongings, Young said he’s grateful. No one was home during the fire, but they easily could have been. “That would have been a disaster,” he said. “This isn’t a disaster. This is a problem.”

MAN UNINJURED AFTER BISON ATTACK IN UTAH

ANTELOPE ISLAND, Utah (AP) • Park officials say a Utah man is unharmed after a bison rammed him against a fence on Antelope Island last weekend. Antelope Island State Park assistant manager John Sullivan says the attack occurred Saturday during the Antelope Island Buffalo Run. Officials have not identified the man and it’s not clear if he was a participant in the race.

Sullivan says the man was uninjured and is lucky to be alive. KSL-TV reports witnesses say the man may have provoked the animal by rattling the fence to get its attention. Sullivan says the man insisted he did not provoke the bison and officials did not issue a citation. Since the 1890s, Bison have been on Antelope Island, which is the largest island in the Great Salt Lake.

Doug Abenroth said the alleged co-conspirator in the case, Matthew Hale, 21, was arrested in Nevada and has not signed a waiver of extradition. “That means there will be a hearing and it’s a longer process,” Abenroth said. “It usually takes 30-60 days.”

Alleged co-conspirator Kristen Marie Castaneda, 20, was charged with felony counts of robbery, aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, assault with intent to commit a serious felony and burglary. She waived her preliminary hearing in magistrate court. A jury trial is set for 9 a.m., May 5. Two 16-year-olds, a male and a female, were also charged in connection with the robbery.

Resurrection!

My very first recollection of the joy of Easter was a finger-pointing-in-your-face celebration with my little sister one Easter morning. Like a well-oiled machine, I discovered and consumed more Easter eggs than she did during our first annual Easter egg hunt competition. (Cut me some slack, I was only 7 years old, she was 2.)

My first childhood memory of Easter worship came at our church's Easter morning sunrise service. I had no idea who invented that too cold, too early worship in the dark tradition. My dad, the pastor, dragged me half asleep to that service (one of the only kids in attendance, I might add). It felt like 4 a.m., but in reality it was 6:30 a.m.

Years later, I recalled debating with my dad, only once, about the legitimacy of Easter sunrise services. I remember pontificating that as far as my exhaustive Biblical research had discovered, there was no Biblical evidence of anyone under the age of 16 in attendance at the original empty tomb. So why me at the sunrise service? For the record, I'm grateful for those churches and pastors that continue the great sunrise service tradition. I'm also grateful our congregation hasn't challenged that boundary of my pastoral commitment, yet.

Like most Christian kids, I grew into Easter and Easter grew into me. At first it was more my adolescent celebration of Easter eggs and spring break than any profound spiritual experience. As time progressed, however, I gradually experienced as many spiritual pilgrims do — an awakening to the deeper implications of the "resurrection."

Fast forward quite a few years to last week. I stood by the bedside of one of the elderly saints from our congregation. We observed life slowly slipping away. We knew it was only a matter of time before he would slip from that semicomatose fog to death's door. He, as many others since the day of Jesus' resurrection have done, took that last earthly step. He was poised to step through the door into that spectacular new landscape we call eternity, heaven to be more exact. He was ready.

As a pastor, I've spent many moments, holy moments, waiting for an earthly life to end and an eternal life to begin. It is in these very private and personal moments I am reminded of the deepest meaning of "resurrection."

This week and every week I am moved to the core of my being by the life and death and life implications of this resurrection power. More than ever before, I hold on tightly to the words of Jesus, "I am the resurrection and the life. He who believes in me will live, even though he dies, and whoever lives and believes in me will never die."

Let the resurrection celebration begin!

Brian Vriesman, pastor of Twin Falls Reformed Church, may be reached at 733-6128 or brian@tffc.org.

Finding Meaning in Suffering

Burley bookstore owner and former pastor helps others find their life's purpose.

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • What is the meaning of life? When Rev. Alice Long was in her 30s she was faced with this question after she had a brain hemorrhage. What is the meaning to life after the left side of your body is paralyzed? What is the meaning to life when you can no longer walk? "You don't suffer for the heck of it," Long said. "I did learn how to walk again, but I'm not who I was. Am I going to have a victim's attitude or a survivor's attitude?"

Long's answer 23 years ago to the question of "What is the meaning of her life?": Be a survivor. On March 19, Long was at Lost But Found Books/Alice's Coffee and Espresso making drink orders in the back of the used bookstore for a pair of customers. Long chatted with a couple about her latest trip to Israel where she spoke to professors, doctors, counselors and logotherapy students as a faculty member of the Viktor Frankl Institute of Logotherapy based in Texas. Her role isn't that of a therapist, but as a teacher, training others to become certified logotherapists like her.

The Viktor Frankl Institute of Logotherapy is an educational, credentialing and publishing organization that serves to acquaint the public with the work of Dr. Viktor E. Frankl. Frankl's logotherapy is based on the idea that the human person is motivated by a "will to meaning," an inner pull to find a meaning in life. Some of logotherapy's basic principles include:

- Life has meaning under all circum-

Rev. Alice Long said she can run classes anywhere, but first students need to be registered through The Viktor Frankl Institute of Logotherapy. For more information, visit <http://www.viktor-franklinstitute.org>. The Viktor Frankl Institute of Logotherapy offers courses to professionals interested in treating mental disorders as well as to persons interested in human growth and development. - stances, even the most miserable ones.
- Our main motivation for living is our will to find meaning in life.
  - We have freedom to find meaning in what we do, and what we experience, or at least in the stand we take when faced with a situation of unchangeable suffering.

Frankl was a Holocaust survivor of four concentration campus, including Auschwitz in Poland from 1942-45. The entire time he was in these camps, Frankl secretly kept a record of his observations on scraps of paper. Eventually, he published a book in German outlining his ideas on Logotherapy, which was translated into English in 1959. When Frankl died in 1997 in Vienna, Austria, his book "Man's Search for Meaning," had been translated into 24 languages and reprinted 73 times. Long has been a faculty member of the Viktor Frankl Institute since August. Long estimated that Idaho probably has around 50 people who utilize logotherapy because a number of people who use this philosophy are cognitive behavioral therapists. She became interested in the philosophy when she was a hospice chaplain. For her, there were a lot of similar ideas when it came to logotherapy and finding meaning in death and dying. "I would like to work with a hospice again in the future," Long said. Soon, Long will start working as a certified probation and parole facilitator in Burley. She thinks her background can bring a great deal to this position because logotherapy boils down to the fact that you have the power to choose, no matter the biological or environmental forces. And you can always find the meaning of the moment. Even Long's own recovery had meaning, not only for her, but those around her. "My kids were 9 and 12 at the time and they learned how to help somebody with a disability and not be embarrassed. They've seen mom in a wheelchair," Long said. Long said she also sees the effects of her experience on her grandchildren today. "They are extremely thoughtful and kind and always help me," Long said.

China: Landslide Buries 83 in Tibet Gold Mine Area

BEIJING (AP) • A massive landslide engulfed a gold mining area in mountainous Tibet, burying 83 workers believed to have been asleep early Friday morning, Chinese state media said.

About 2.6 million cubic yards of mud, rock and debris swept through the area as the workers were resting and covered an area measuring around 1.5 square miles, China Central Television said. The official Xinhua News Agency said the workers in Lhasa's Maizhokunggar county worked for a subsidiary of the China National Gold Group Corp., a state-owned enterprise and the country's largest gold producer.

The disaster is likely to inflame critics of Chinese rule in Tibet who say Beijing's interests are driven by the region's mineral wealth and strategic position and come at the expense of the region's delicate ecosystem and Tibetans' Buddhist culture and traditional way of life.

The reports said at least two of the buried workers were Tibetan while most of the workers were believed to be ethnic Han Chinese, a reflection of how such large projects often create an influx of the majority ethnic group into the region.

More than 1,000 police, firefighters, soldiers and medics have been deployed to the site, about 45 miles east of Lhasa, the regional capital. They conducted searches armed with devices to detect signs of life and accompanied by sniffer dogs, reports said. Around 30 excavators were also digging away at the site late Friday as temperatures fell to just below freezing.

The reports said the landslide was caused by a "natural disaster" but did not provide specifics. It was unclear why the first news reports of the landslide came out several hours after it occurred.

China's recently appoint-

Earthmovers remove rocks and mud where a landslide hit a mine in Maizhokunggar County of Lhasa on Friday.

MILAN (AP) • Italy remained in political gridlock Thursday after the center-left leader announced he had failed to form a government.

Pier Luigi Bersani, who has been talking with parties since Friday, expressed some bitterness when he told reporters at the president's office in Rome that he found "unacceptable" attempts by some parties to set "preclusions and conditions."

Bersani's attempt at forming a stable government able to help Italy out of recession and get Italians back to work was always a long shot. Bersani's coalition controls the lower house, but not the Senate, and inconclusive February elections gave strong voice to a protest party.

The next move belongs to President Giorgio Napolitano, who will hold a day of consultations Friday to "personally ascertain the developments possible," the president's secretary general, Donato Marra, said. aThe failure makes more likely a possible technical government with a well-defined mission to take on urgent tasks, which include rewriting the election law, and push through some measures that have broader acceptance, like cutting political costs.

Christians Mark Jesus's Crucifixion on Good Friday

JERUSALEM (AP) • Hundreds of Christians streamed through the cobblestone alleyways of Jerusalem's Old City on Friday, hoisting wooden crosses and chanting prayers to mark the crucifixion of Jesus.

Throng of pilgrims walked a traditional Good Friday procession that retraces Jesus' steps along the Via Dolorosa, Latin for the "Way of Suffering." They followed his 14 stations, saying a prayer at each and ending at the ancient Holy Sepulcher church.

Along the route, Franciscan friars in brown robes chanted prayers in Latin and explained the different stations to crowds through a megaphone. Leonard Mary, a priest from Irondale, Alabama, was dressed as Jesus wearing a crown of thorns. He was flanked by men posing as Roman soldiers and had fake blood dripping down his chest as he hugged a giant cross down the street.

"The most perfect love that was ever seen in the world was when Jesus died for us. He showed us the perfection of love," the priest said.

Good Friday events began with a morning service at the cavernous Holy Sepulcher, which was built on the place where tradition holds that Jesus was crucified, briefly entombed and resurrected. Clergy dressed in colorful robes entered through the church's large wooden doors as worshippers prayed in the church courtyard.

Later Friday, a service was due in Bethlehem's Church of the Nativity, built atop the traditional site of Jesus' birth. Christians believe Jesus was crucified on Good Friday and resurrected on Easter Sunday.

Roman Catholic and Protestant congregations that observe the new, Gregorian calendar, are marking holy week. Orthodox Christians, who follow the old, Julian calendar, will mark Good Friday in May.

Less than 2 percent of the population of Israel and the Palestinian territories is Christian, mostly split between Catholicism and Orthodox streams of Christianity. Christians in the West Bank wanting to attend services in Jerusalem must obtain permission from Israeli authorities.

NKorea Threat May be More Bark than Bite

BY JEAN H. LEE
Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea • Across North Korea, soldiers are gearing up for battle and shrouding their jeeps and vans with camouflage netting. Newly painted signboards and posters call for "death to the U.S. imperialists" and urge the people to fight with "arms, not words."

But even as North Korean leader Kim Jong Un is issuing midnight battle cries to his generals to ready their rockets, he and his million-man army know full well that a successful missile strike on U.S. targets would be suicide for the outnumbered, out-powered North Korean regime.

Despite the hastening drumbeat of warfare — seemingly bringing the region to the very brink of conflict with threats and provocations — Pyongyang aims to force Washington to the negotiating table, pressure the new president in Seoul to change policy on North Korea, and build unity inside the communist country without triggering a full-blown war.

North Korea wants to draw attention to the tenuousness of the armistice designed to maintain peace on the Korean Peninsula, a truce Pyongyang recently announced it would no longer honor as it warned that war could break out at any time.

In July, it will be 60 years since North Korea and China signed an armistice with the U.S. and the United Nations to bring an end to three years of fighting that cost millions of lives. The designated Demilitarized Zone has evolved into the most heavily guarded border in the world.

It was never intended to be a permanent border. But six decades later, North and South remain divided, with Pyongyang feeling abandoned by the South Koreans in the quest for reunification and threatened by the Americans.

In that time, South Korea has blossomed from a poor, agrarian nation of peasants into the world's 15th largest economy while North Korea is struggling to find a way out of a Cold War chasm that has left it with a per capita income on par with sub-Saharan Africa.

North Koreans punch the air during a rally at Kim Il Sung Square in downtown Pyongyang on Friday.

Obama: Nelson Mandela as Strong Physically as Personally

President Barack Obama says he's concerned about Nelson Mandela's health, but that the anti-apartheid leader is as strong physically as he has been in leadership and character. Obama says he's sending his thoughts and prayers to Mandela, who is back in the hospital for the third time in months with a chronic lung infection.

Obama says Mandela, South Africa's first black president, is a hero and an inspiration who gave everything to his people. Obama's remarks came Thursday as he met with the leaders of Sierra Leone, Senegal, Malawi and Cape Verde.

Britain's Domestic Spy Agency Names New Director

Britain's domestic spy agency has chosen a new director, a 50-year-old ornithologist with counterterrorism experience in the Middle East and Northern Ireland.

Andrew Parker, one of the youngest MI5 directors in recent history, has worked for the service for 30 years and led the agency's response to the July 7 London transit bombings in 2005.

Parker said Thursday that he's "extremely proud of the extraordinary work the men and women of MI5 do to keep the country safe in challenging circumstances," and that he looks "forward to leading the service through its next chapter."

Parker has been the deputy director general since 2007. He succeeds Jonathan Evans, who is leaving MI5 after 33 years of service. He starts his job on April 22.

Syrian Rebels in Strategic Battle for South

Capitalizing on a recent influx of weapons, Syrian rebels are waging a strategic battle for the southern part of the country and seeking to secure a corridor from the Jordanian border to Damascus in preparation for an eventual assault on the capital.

On Friday, the rebels celebrated their latest victory: They seized full control of Dael, a key town along a main highway, after forces of President Bashar Assad's regime all but withdrew from the area.

SWISS WWII SPY TO REST IN ARLINGTON NATIONAL CEMETERY

THE WASHINGTON POST

Armed with a Colt .45 and fluency in four languages, Rene Joyeuse spent five months undercover near German-occupied Paris for an American spy agency during World War II.

Before and after the Normandy invasion of June 1944, the Swiss-born Joyeuse supplied vital intelligence and helped rescue more than 200 downed Allied airmen through an escape network. Joyeuse received the Distinguished Service Cross, the military's highest award for valor after the Medal of Honor. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, then supreme Allied commander, personally pinned it on him. But the honor Joyeuse most wanted burial at Arlington National Cemetery, the most hallowed ground of his adopted country was initially denied to him after his death last June, at 92, in upstate New York.

He did not qualify, his family was told, because his attachment to the Office of Strategic Services, the CIA's wartime predecessor, did not meet the cemetery's requirement of active U.S. military service.

With up to 30 funerals held a day, the rules and culture that govern the nation's burial ground are strict and can be broken only with a waiver from the U.S. president or the secretary of the Army. Only 62 foreign nationals who perished while working with the American military have been buried at Arlington since the cemetery was established in 1864, said retired cemetery historian Tom Sherlock.

"It seemed almost completely wrong that people who fought against Rene Joyeuse are buried there, and he couldn't get in," said military and espionage historian Patrick O'Donnell, who helped the family make its case to influential members of the armed forces establishment.

Decades-old Art Heist Reinvestigated in Florida

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) • On an April evening nearly 44 years ago, just days after Easter Sunday, someone slipped into a museum in Sarasota and stole 15 paintings, one portraying the resurrected Jesus and 14 depicting the Stations of the Cross. Now, a Sarasota County Sheriff's detective is reinvestigating the decades-old disappearance of the art.

"Those paintings could be anywhere in the world," said Detective Kim McGath.

All of the paintings were done by artist, illustrator and author Ben Stahl, who died in 1987. He was well known in the 1950s and '60s for being a prolific and well-compensated illustrator for the Saturday Evening Post and for creating movie posters and book covers. "Ben Hur" and the 25th anniversary edition of "Gone With The Wind" were among the movie posters; "Madame Bovary" was one of his limited-edition book illustrations.

He also one of the first professors at the Famous Artists School, a correspondence course in art once advertised on the back of matchbooks. Stahl wrote and illustrated "Blackbeard's Ghost," which was made into a 1968 Walt Disney film.

Commissioned to illustrate a Bible for the Catholic Press in the mid-1950s, Stahl painted the 14 Stations of the Cross. Later, he decided to paint larger versions, along with a 15th painting titled "The Resurrection," because he wanted his work to end on a positive note. All 15 paintings were 6 feet by 9 feet, and painted in oil. In 1965, Stahl and his wife moved to Sarasota, Fla., and decided to open a museum for the large-scale paintings. Called "The Museum of the Cross," it was one of the main tourist attractions in the area at the time.

Whoever stole the paintings and other pieces of art in the predawn hours of April 16, 1969 must have known what they were doing, said McGath, because they carefully removed each of the tacks that attached the canvases to the frames.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

This image provided by the Sarasota County Sheriff's Office shows Stahl's painting 'Jesus is Condemned To Death,' from his Stations of the Cross series. This and dozens of Stahl's other works were stolen just days after Easter in 1969 from his museum in Sarasota, Fla.

Together, Loy and Frieda enjoyed camping, fishing, golfing and spending time with all their children and grandchildren. Frieda was a longtime member of Clear Lake Country Club; she served on the board of directors and was the secretary of the board. She was a lifetime member of Eastern Star. Frieda spent many years as a florist at Pearls Posies and at Popplewell Elementary as a well-known "lunch lady." # Teague, Early Black TV Newsmen, Dies

NEW YORK (AP) • Bob Teague, a former news anchor, reporter and producer and one of New York City's first black television journalists, has died. He was 84.

Teague, who lived in Monmouth Junction, N.J., died Thursday, WNBC said. His widow, Jan, told The New York Times that he suffered from T-cell lymphoma.

Teague was a veteran newspaper reporter who had worked at The Milwau- kee Journal and The New York Times when he joined New York's NBC affiliate in 1963.

At WNBC, he became a correspondent for "Harlem: Test for the North," an hour-long program started after riots broke out in the area. He also covered other minority communities during the tumultuous 1960s.

"They felt black reporters would be invulnerable in a riot," Teague said in a 1981 interview.

Teague often subbed on NBC network news and sports programs, but he was critical of the industry that employed him.

"How can you make the decisions about your lives, your family, your business if what you are getting is information about what the beautiful people are doing?" Teague wrote in a 1982 book, "Live and Off-Color: News Biz."

In 1867, U.S. Secretary of State William H. Seward reached agreement with Russia to purchase the territory of Alaska for $7.2 million.

In 1963, singer Lesley Gore, age 16, recorded her hit "It's My Party" for Mercury Records in New York.

In 1972, North Vietnamese forces launched their three-pronged Easter Offensive against South Vietnam; the fighting lasted until the following October.

Chinese spectators cheered as Greece handed off the Olympic flame for its journey to Beijing and relay through 20 countries; but protesters brandishing Tibetan flags stole the limelight. President George W. Bush threw out the ceremonial first pitch at Washington's new stadium, Nationals Park; the Washington Nationals defeated the Atlanta Braves, 3-2, in the first regular-season game played at the park. Cambodian-born journalist Dith Pran, whose story became the subject of the award-winning film "The Killing Fields," died in New Brunswick, N.J. at age 65.

Play Structure

Here's an outdoor play structure with something for everyone. For kids, it's a tree house, fort and jungle gym all rolled into one. For parents, it's a sturdy playhouse with a safety-conscious design and a clean, unobtrusive look. It features a smooth hard-board slide, two sandboxes and a gable roof with a canvas top.

The structure stands a little more than 10 feet tall and is 6 feet square (not including the ladder or slide). The floor is about 5 feet off the ground.

BROUGHT TO YOU BY:

TIMES-NEWS
magicvalley.com

DEAR ABBY: There's this guy I like, "Joey." My sister likes him, too. Joey and I are not dating, although we are very close friends. My sister (of course) decided to ask him out on a date. I'm so upset with her. It has been two days since their date and I'm still not talking to her.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

I can't believe she asked him out when she knew I was about to. I don't want to ruin our relationship, but Joey is now into her. Please give me some advice before I do something terribly wrong.

— CAN'T TAKE IT IN FLORIDA

DEAR CAN'T TAKE IT: If your sister jumped in knowing you were interested in Joey, it was sneaky and wrong. But you have nothing to gain by declaring war over it. Keep your options open and bide your time. With luck, their romance will blow over — and when it does, if you have maintained your position as Joey's "close friend," you can make your move then. It may take nerves of steel, but I have faith in you, and it will be worth it in the long run.

DEAR ABBY: My niece is being married soon on the East Coast. My husband and our two teenaged children have been invited to attend. We cannot afford the multiple airfares and the cost of hotel accommodations that attending this wedding would require.

We don't look poor and we don't act poor, but money is very tight right now because we're paying for the last semester of our third child's college tuition. I had already sent a lovely shower gift to my niece.

How can we gracefully decline the invitation without offending anyone? We also have household repairs that have to be attended to.

— JUST DON'T HAVE IT IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR JUST DON'T HAVE IT: As I see it, you have two choices — respond by saying you have a "conflict," or tell these relatives you would love to be there, but with the cost of a college education these days, you can't swing it. (I vote for the latter.)

DEAR ABBY: I lost my mom last year. It was unexpected, and my father and I are still hurting. Mom had a friend who never fails to tell me how the loss of her mother and her husband was much more painful for her than my loss. Every time I have the unfortunate luck of answering the phone when she calls, she'll ask how I'm doing, then launch into how hard it was on her and I don't know the true pain that she does.

I am sick of people telling me they understand how I feel and what I'm going through. No one knows the depth of what I'm experiencing, except maybe my sibling. I moved back home to take care of my wonderful mother. She was my best friend. I could tell her anything and she was never judgmental. I love her and I hurt from her loss.

Please tell people when offering condolences to just listen and be there. That's what anyone who suffers a loss needs more than anything. Do not compare your pain to theirs.

And Abby, please know how sorry I am for the loss of your own dear mother, and thank you for letting me vent.

— HOLE IN MY HEART IN OCEAN SPRINGS, MISS.

DEAR HOLE IN YOUR HEART: I'm sorry for your loss, too, and you're welcome. Please know that no rule of etiquette says you have to listen to that woman's insensitive prattle. The next time she starts, it is perfectly acceptable to stop her cold and tell her that when she compares her pain to yours she is being insensitive, and that if she does it one more time you will hang up. Clearly, she is not calling to see how you're doing; she is calling to dump. There are times when you must protect yourself, and this is one of them.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"Promise the earth to counter shine Whatever makes heaven's forehead fine."

— Richard Crashaw

Today's deal features several rather subtle points in the play. The auction to three no-trump was straightforward enough, but the final contract was a very unattractive one. The risk of the defenders cashing four hearts and a spade was a high one — and as it turned out, the spade blockage generated other additional problems.

After West led the heart jack, East cashed the queen, king and ace, on which West had the opportunity to signal suit preference. By following up the line with the four and nine, he was strongly suggesting no spade honor. Since East could infer that declarer rated to have his precise distribution, he thoughtfully shifted to a club. When declarer saw what might happen if he played a spade at once (East would win and play a second club to leave the spades blocked), he found an unlikely resource by leading the diamond 10 to his king. Then he played the spade king. East won and continued with his plan by returning a second club. Declarer ran all the clubs, pitching his spade queen, and came down to a three-card ending with the doubleton spade jack and a small diamond in dummy, and the heart eight and the diamond K-9 in hand. East could keep his diamonds, but West (forced to keep the doubleton spade 10 and the master heart) had to pitch his last diamond.

Now declarer led out the spade jack to pitch his heart, then finessed the diamond nine for his contract.

ANSWER: It looks best to me to double here rather than overcall in diamonds. That way you get hearts into the picture, and although your diamond suit is respectable, it is not quite good enough for a two-level overcall — especially when you have such a desirable alternative available. If partner picks clubs, let him play there.

IF MARCH 30 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: The itch to try something different may be difficult to fight during the next four weeks. You will experience fewer problems if you plan ahead and wait until July to make financial decisions — or wait until fall to launch major initiatives. Lay low in April and September when hard work piles up. You really hit your stride in October and November — and if you are single, you could even meet the person of your dreams. People will view you with favor and overlook your faults, so those are excellent months to apply for a new job, meet prospective in-laws or appear in public. It is also a favorable time to make significant decisions about a romantic commitment.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): There is no time like the present. It is a good time to examine problems that have reappeared and find a lasting solution. Get organized so you can do things more efficiently in the future.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Let life go slip-sliding along. Put off important commitments, contracts or major purchases. Spend your time with friends or enjoying community events and put major decisions on the back burner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Expectations that are too high may not be met. Formality may be needed when dealing with important individuals and could block essential communication. Resist those who attempt to guilt you into action.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): There are some things you want so much that you can taste them, but that doesn't mean they are in good taste. Consider how you can adopt methods that can be cost effective without being cheap.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Having fun may require a huge effort, but is well worth the bother. Overcome any temporary downturn in the atmosphere by focusing on hard work and efficiency. Mistakes may illuminate what needs attention.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Maintain a low profile and avoid taking major steps. You might be obsessed with getting the best that money can buy and be willing to dig into deep pockets, but the fine print may trip you up in the end.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Keep a smile on your face and wait out a few hours of doubt. Jealousy is a terrible mistress. Your fleeting concerns about someone's loyalty could very easily be misguided. True love may be tested.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): If push comes to shove, restrain yourself; try not to shove back. Your current romantic obsession is like a chocolate soldier that looks formidable on the battlefield, but melts in the heat of passion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): What you want and what you get are not necessarily the same. You may think you are being practical about money and sensible with the budget, but you could go to extremes without realizing it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): In the wild, a lone wolf perishes — but the pack survives. Band with others and put your personal ambitions aside. Put off major purchases until you can be sure you are acting logically.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Plotting and planning can get your foot in the door, but you may be disappointed in the results. The urge to indulge in an extravagance might create an inner conflict. Don't launch new initiatives.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't throw out the baby with the bathwater. Be on your very best behavior, as someone might easily take offense or stir up trouble. Keep your credit card in your wallet; it is tempting to go to extremes.

Burley's Kunz Inspired By His 'Papa Bear', Coach

rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • It's not always easy being the coach's kid. “It definitely has its pros and cons,” said Burley senior shortstop Jackson Kunz. When Burley head coach Devin Kunz brought up his son to start on the varsity team as a freshman, some scoffed at the perceived favoritism. It didn't take long for Jackson to quiet the critics, as he led the team in batting average and was an All-Great Basin Conference player that season. “Coming here with my dad and having all the criticism from other people, saying I'm not good enough, that has given me motivation to be a better baseball player and just let my game talk,” Jackson said. Growing up the son of a former minor league pitcher, Jackson Kunz had a bat and ball in his hands before he could walk. “I didn't want to be the dad who is the ex-player who (forced his kid to play). I always just wanted him to do what he wanted to do,” said Devin. “He grew up playing baseball, basketball, football, skiing. He always loved baseball more than anything.” Prior to Burley, Devin was an assistant coach at Twin Falls. Jackson would go to every practice and game, even riding the bus to away games and playing cards with the older players. Knowing that left-handed hitters are a valuable commodity, Devin wouldn't let Jackson bat right-handed when he was younger. Today, he still bats left, but does most everything else — throwing, golfing — right-handed. Jackson said he's grateful for what he's “It's bittersweet coming to an end right now. I'm trying not to think about him being gone. It's going to be sad when he's gone, but for him it's exciting because it's a new challenge in college.”

Burley head baseball coach Devin Kunz, talking about his son, Jackson, leaving for college after this season learned from the man he calls “Papa Bear.” Time is winding down for the father-son duo, as Jackson — a 3.8 GPA student — will graduate this spring. “It's bittersweet coming to an end right now,” said Devin. “I'm trying not to think about him being gone. It's going to be sad when he's gone, but for him it's exciting because it's a new challenge in college.” After the American Legion season this summer, Jackson will embark on his college baseball career at Utah Valley University — the same place Devin played, back when the school was a community college. He went on to play at BYU, and then was drafted into the Texas Rangers organization. “Just knowing what he's done makes me want to work that much harder to see if I can get farther than he was, get a little bragging rights,” Jackson said. Burley got off to a rocky 0-4 start this season, as Jackson missed the first two weeks due to a knee injury — torn ACL, MCL and LCL — suffered in a football game last fall. Despite playing only three full games, Jackson was a first-team All-Great Basin Conference and second-team All-Idaho selection at wide receiver. The senior captain made his return to the field on Thursday, as Burley competes at the Buck's Bags tournament this weekend in Boise. “It's just a love I have for the game,” said Jackson. “Sitting out, you respect the game more. I realize I can help my team, so I'm glad to be back.” The team is glad to have him back. “It's huge to have another guy on the field who has played as many games as Jackson has,” said Burley senior catcher Jack Darrington. “We're young everywhere, so a leader on the field is a big deal to have, a guy who can make plays and help everybody out.” It's impossible to overstate what value the Kunz family has brought to the Burley baseball program. Their arrival in 2009 coincides with the resurgence of Burley baseball. The team has been more competitive, evidenced by the Burley Green Sox winning the Class A American Legion Baseball state title last summer. Five Burley players in the past three years signed on to play college ball. What's more, Devin also oversaw the renovations to Burley's baseball field, which has hosted the Legion state tournament and Northwest Regional tournaments. Through it all, “Papa Bear” has raised a program — and a son — he can be proud of. “For me, it's been great,” Devin said, “being out there every day, watching him grow and getting to spend that extra time together doing something that we both love. It's been pretty special.”

Bruins Swept at Buck's Bags

TIMES-NEWS

BOISE • Twin Falls let big innings and big miscues cost it Friday in the Buck's Bags Spring Classic baseball tournament. The Bruins committed seven errors in a 6-4 loss to Rocky Mountain in its first game of the day at Capital High School, then gave up seven runs in the fourth inning of an 8-2 loss to Capital. Damon Jones went 3-for-7 on the day and gave up four runs, all unearned, against Rocky Mountain. Twin Falls rounds out the tournament today with a game against Timberline.

Farewell to the Greatest Hoops League Ever

Thanks for nothing, greedy college administrators.

Because of you, we're bidding farewell to the greatest basketball conference there ever was — and perhaps ever will be.

At least the Big East as we knew it is going out in style. That's only appropriate, given all it has meant to the game over the last three-plus decades.

But watching Syracuse and Marquette advance to a regional final, assuring one will make it to the Final Four, and knowing top-seeded Louisville could very well give the league another team in Atlanta only heightens the sting of what's about to happen.

Seven basketball-playing schools are jumping off a sinking ship to form a new version of the Big East, joined by three other schools that don't have major football programs. That league will carry on the legacy of what was launched in 1979, but it's unreasonable to expect "Big East, The Sequel" to come anywhere close to matching the impact of the original.

For this, we should all be ticked off.

Seriously, when does it stop?

Not anytime soon, I'm afraid.

In the mess that is college realignment, we've seen longtime rivalries ripped apart, once-sturdy leagues now scrambling for their lives or gone altogether, schools falling over themselves to start football programs or move up to the Football Bowl Subdivision — all in the name of the almighty dollar.

Supposedly, this is progress.

Just try telling that to a hoops fan.

The major conferences have far too much power, there's no one with the backbone or the authority to bring a little sanity to the madness, and we're left with a wake for the Big East.

"It's a good league, always been a good league," Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim said Friday, talking about the league his school will soon be leaving.

The Orange's next loss — or three more wins — will mark the end of their time in a conference they helped start.

When this latest round of football-driven Scrabble is done, we'll have Syracuse playing in the Atlantic Coast Conference instead of the Big East (ditto for Pittsburgh and Notre Dame), we'll have Maryland playing in the Big Ten instead of the ACC, and we'll have once-mighty UConn playing in some new league with a bunch of Southeastern and Southwestern schools that used to comprise Conference USA.

Seriously, schools are changing conferences about as often as Taylor Swift writes a breakup song — maybe she could do one for the Big East — and there's still no indication that the dust is close to settling. UConn might wind up in the ACC, too. Or maybe some ACC schools will bolt for the Southeastern Conference.

After all, as Derek Dooley once said: It's not really about the money — it's about the amount.

At this very moment, there is surely some college president or athletic director or booster trying to figure out a way to squeeze a few more bucks out of the pie. Who cares if college kids have to take cross-country trips on school nights for conference games? Who cares if a once-great basketball conference is carved up like an apple pie at a Fourth of July picnic?

"There's no question leaving the Big East will be sad," Syracuse assistant coach Mike Hopkins said, taking a second to think long-term amid the instant gratification of facing Marquette on Saturday for a trip to the Final Four.

"It already is in so many ways."

No one has taken a bigger beating in all this conference realignment than the Big East, largely because of a decision it made about a decade after its founding to add football to its roster of sports.

A bunch of schools giddily joined up, but they had no loyalty to the original concept. Of the eight teams that first played Big East football, seven have already moved on to other conferences or soon will be.

Because of that, we may never again see one conference put three teams in the Final Four, as the Big East did in 1985 with Villanova (the eventual national champion), Georgetown and St. John's — certainly not a league that has nine teams, which was the Big East membership at the time.

If conferences continue to expand, we might see a league match the record 11 teams the Big East put in the NCAA field two years ago in its more bloated alignment — though, that's the very state that contributed to its demise.

No matter what, there's no denying what the Big East once was — and still is for another week or so.

The best in the land. "I wish we weren't playing each other," said Marquette coach Buzz Williams, whose school will be moving on to the new Big East. "Maybe if we were in different regions, maybe we could both continue to play."

Very shortly, it won't matter. All that will be left are memories, tattered clippings and old TV footage.

Thankfully, Boeheim took a moment to reflect on Friday during his turn at the podium.

"It's remarkable that you could start a league and it could be good right away, like the Big East was," he said wistfully, remembering some of the early stars such as Patrick Ewing, Chris Mullin, Pearl Washington and Walter Berry. "It has been an unbelievable 34 years. Over that 34-year period, it's been as good as any league. You can easily make that argument."

Boeheim said he understands why it's happening, even though it really has nothing to do with his sport.

"It was almost inevitable that the football schools would need to get with football schools," he said. "I think it will work for the basketball schools now that they're going to get together, and they will have a really good basketball league. I think that's for the best. I think it will work out, and we have a great challenge going to what will be a tremendous basketball league."

Sorry, Jim, we disagree.

There's nothing good about breaking up the Big East.

Maybe there will come a day when we'll at least acknowledge that it was all a big mistake, acknowledge how much we've lost.

At that point, of course, it will be far too late to do anything about it.

Thanks for nothing.

ORLANDO, Fla. • Tobias Harris had 30 points and 11 rebounds to help the Orlando Magic break an eight-game losing streak.

Maurice Harkless added 18 points and grabbed nine rebounds, while reserves E'Twaun Moore and Andrew Nicholson scored 15 and 14, respectively, for Orlando.

John Wall led the Wizards with 35 points, nine rebounds and two assists. Martell Webster was the only other Wizard in double figures, scoring 19.

Harris had the key basket, a 15-foot floater that gave the Magic a 93-88 lead with 1:22 left in the game.

Wall made two free throws to get the Wizards within 93-90, but after the Magic missed Wall couldn't convert at the other end and the Magic sealed the win from the free throw line.

HEAT 108, HORNETS 89

NEW ORLEANS • LeBron James scored 36 points, hitting six consecutive 3-pointers in less than six minutes during the first half, and the Miami Heat rebounded from their first loss in nearly two months to beat the New Orleans Hornets 108-89 on Friday night.

The Heat, whose 27-game winning streak ended in Chicago on Wednesday, looked ready to start a new one while clinching the top seed for the Eastern Conference playoffs. James kept shooting 3-pointers after making his first one with 1:55 left in the first quarter, and he did not miss until he already had set a season high with his sixth.

James finished with seven 3s, one shy of his career high. Dwyane Wade added 17 points and seven assists. Norris Cole scored 12 points and Chris Bosh 10.

TIMBERWOLVES 101, THUNDER 93

MINNEAPOLIS • Nikola Pekovic had 22 points and 15 rebounds and Ricky Rubio added 17 points and seven assists to help Minnesota stun Oklahoma City.

Durant had 36 points and seven rebounds, but was just 4 for 9 in the final 22 minutes. Russell Westbrook added 18 points and nine assists for the Thunder.

CELTICS 118, HAWKS 107

BOSTON • Paul Pierce had 20 points, 10 assists and 10 rebounds, and Jeff Green scored 27 points to carry Boston to the victory over Atlanta.

Jason Terry was 5 of 7 on 3-pointers and finished with 24 points for Boston, which won its second straight following a five-game losing streak.

Josh Smith led the Hawks with 18 points but shot just 7 of 23 from the floor and 0 for 6 in the second half. Jeff Teague added 17 points and seven assists.

The Celtics, who closed to 1½ games behind the Hawks for the Eastern Conference's sixth playoff spot, won the season series 3-1.

GRIZZLIES 103, ROCKETS 94

MEMPHIS, Tenn. • Zach Randolph and Marc Gasol scored 21 points apiece and Memphis snapped a two-game losing streak.

Randolph added 12 rebounds, Tony Allen scored 16 points, connecting on 8 of 12 shots, and Mike Conley finished with 15 points and 10 assists.

KNICKS 111, BOBCATS 102

NEW YORK • J.R. Smith scored 37 points, his third consecutive 30-point outing, and New York beat Charlotte for its season-high seventh straight victory.

Carmelo Anthony had 32 points and Raymond Felton added 18 for the Knicks, who have the longest current streak in the NBA. They built a 30-point lead that was reduced to single digits for the second game in a row.

76ERS 97, CAVALIERS 87

CLEVELAND • Evan Turner

scored 23 points and Philadelphia sent Cleveland to its season-high seventh straight loss.

RAPTORS 99, PISTONS 82

DENVER • Rookie Evan Fournier scored a season-high 19 points, including 10 in the fourth quarter, and the Denver Nuggets extended their home winning streak to 18 games by beating the Brooklyn Nets 109-87 Friday night.

SPORTS SHORTS

Qualifier in the Lead as McIlroy Barely Makes Cut

HUMBLE, Texas • Steve Wheatcroft hates going to Monday qualifiers. He was reminded Friday why they can be worth it.

Wheatcroft ran off three straight birdies early in his round and kept bogeys off his card for a second straight 5-under 67. That gave him a one-shot lead over D.A. Points and Jason Kokrak going into the weekend at the Houston Open.

Rory McIlroy also will be around, but just barely. He two-putted from 85 feet on the fringe on his 17th hole for a birdie that gave him a 70. McIlroy made the cut on the number, though he goes into the weekend nine shots out of the lead.

Phil Mickelson recovered from a bad spot and also made the cut on the number.

Bolt to Run 150-meter Race at Copacabana Beach

RIO DE JANEIRO • Usain Bolt will have Copacabana beach in the background when he tries to break his 150-meter world best in a street race this weekend in Rio de Janeiro.

Bolt will compete at a track specially built at the famous beach on Sunday, challenging Antigua and Barbuda's Daniel Bailey, Ecuador's Alex Quinones, and a Brazilian athlete from a local qualifier.

The blue four-lane track is in the middle of the beach, with Sugar Loaf mountain nearby.

Oscar Pistorius was originally expected to participate to promote the 2016 Rio Olympics, but withdrew after being charged with the shooting death of girlfriend Reeva Steenkamp. He would have run against fellow double-amputee Alan Oliveira, who beat the South African in the 200 at the Paralympics in London. Oliveira will instead compete against American Jerome Singleton.

The blue four-lane track is in the middle of the beach, with Sugar Loaf mountain nearby.

A women's race will also take place at the Copacabana track on Sunday.

Bolt set the 150 mark of 14.35 seconds in the streets of Manchester in 2009.

The event is part of Bolt's four-day promotional tour to Rio and is supervised by the International Association of Athletics Federation.

The Jamaican has been visiting social projects. On Thursday, he met with about 140 children from a program that gives them opportunities to train to try to become professional athletes.

Bolt, who at the London Olympics became the first man to successfully defend the 100 and 200 titles, said he will be back in Rio for the 2016 Games but downplayed his chances of breaking world records again.

"I am definitely going to be here," he said. "The record is going to be a little bit harder to break because then I will be kind of old. I'll be 33 but I'll definitely come and give a good performance, definitely."

He reiterated he won't run the 400 or do the long jump this year.

"Those events are out as far as I am concerned," he said.

Meanwhile, Bolt's agent, Ricky Simms, said in a statement to the AP that he was "having positive negotiations" with organizers of the London Diamond League meet to compete on July 26-27 but acknowledged both sides "still have some things to finalize."

The London meet, celebrating a year since the Olympics, would be one of his last competitions before the world championships in Moscow in August.

Cowboys, Romo Agree on 6-year, $108M Extension

ARLINGTON, Texas • Tony Romo has a chance to start for the Dallas Cowboys longer than Roger Staubach or Troy Aikman. The question is whether he will ever match their Super Bowl pedigrees.

Romo and the Cowboys agreed to a six-year contract extension worth $108 million Friday, with about half of that guaranteed to make him the highest-paid player in franchise history.

The agreement, reported on the team's website, will lower the quarterback's salary cap number for 2013 by about $5 million, giving the team more room to sign free agents and draft picks.

Romo, who turns 33 next month and was entering the final year of his contract, gets $55 million guaranteed.

Verlander, Tigers Agree to $180M, 7-year Deal

LAKELAND, Fla. • Detroit Tigers ace Justin Verlander has agreed to a $180 million, seven-year contract, topping Felix Hernandez for the richest deal for a pitcher in baseball history.

The 2011 AL MVP and Cy Young Award winner had been signed through 2014 and set to earn $20 million in each of the next two seasons.

The new deal announced Friday keeps those salaries and adds $140 million in new guaranteed money: $28 million each season from 2015-19. It includes a $22 million option for 2020 that would become guaranteed if he finishes among the top five in 2019 Cy Young voting. The deal could be worth $202 million over eight seasons. Verlander's agreement topped the record for pitchers set when Hernandez and Seattle agreed in February to a $175 million, seven-year contract.

Buster Posey Gets $167M, 9-year Deal from Giants

SAN FRANCISCO • The San Francisco Giants have rewarded NL MVP and batting champion Buster Posey with a $167 million, nine-year contract.

Posey's deal, announced Friday by the reigning World Series champions, includes a club option for 2022 that could raise the value to $186 million over 10 years.

The agreement is the longest for a catcher and the largest in Giants history, surpassing Matt Cain's $127.5 million, six-year contract.

Posey had been due to make $8 million this year. He instead gets a $7 million signing bonus, with $5 million payable Oct. 15 and the remainder Jan. 15, and his 2013 salary is reduced to $3 million. The agreement includes a full no-trade clause.

CSI Baseball

Stouder struck out the side without a run coming across, and the Golden Eagles eventually got the runs they needed, winning 3-2 in 11 innings.

"I wasn't planning on getting in that situation," Stouder said. "My mindset is to throw strikes and let the defense do the work. I had to use the whole repertoire to get out of that jam."

Stouder worked seven innings of one-run ball, giving a scuffling Golden Eagles offense a chance to win.

CSI scratched across two runs in the bottom of the seventh, scoring on a double and fielders choice. After getting favorable out calls at third and home that would have put Western Nevada in position to get at least a two-run lead, as shortstop Carter Yagi and second baseman Kendal Maier made pinpoint relay throws just in time, CSI finally pushed across a third run in the 11th on a walk to earn a split on the day. Western Nevada won 3-1 in the opener..

"It wasn't great baseball, but it wasn't bad baseball and the games were competitive," Walker said. "Both teams had a lot of opportunities. We'd still like to play better."

Walker later called the two games a manager's dream because of the multiple pitching changes and small ball opportunities.

"Maybe a win like this can help us relax a little bit in situations," Walker said. "We are going to play in a ton of these games."

Thanks to the hometown kid who will be headed to the University of Utah next season, CSI will have a chance to take the series from Western Nevada in today's doubleheader.

The Golden Eagles are still in fourth place in the conference, two games back of Western Nevada in third.
