Officers find new mode of transportation has its advantages.

BY ALISON GENE SMITH

BUHL • Police in Buhl have been testing out a new mode of transportation for their daily patrols. It's slower than a car, quieter, and only has two wheels. For two weeks, officers have been out patrolling on a new police bicycle. Buhl Police Sgt. Kevin Hanners said that about 15 years ago, an officer brought his own bike to work and used it to patrol occasionally. Now, the new Trek bike is department-owned and every officer can use it. Hanners said the bike runs at about $1,300. "You get a whole lot of bike for that," he said. The use of the patrol bicycle will also save on fuel costs since only one patrol car will be running while the bike is in use, he said. While officers won't be making traffic stops on the bike, Hanners said officers will be able to do regular patrols and respond to many types of calls including medical issues, vandalism and burglaries. Any time an officer is out on a bike, Hanners said, there will also be a second officer patrolling in a car for immediate calls like a fight in progress. Hanners said patrolling on a bike makes him more approachable as he rides through neighborhoods and parks. It's easier to flag down a person on a bike than a person in a car, he said. "People can reach out and talk to me," he said. Hanners said he's also taken the opportunity to ride through apartment complex parking lots and talk with children. The lack of a loud engine also helps with approaching people in certain situations, he said. In the future, Hanners said, the bike will be used in parades and at work during night patrols. T.F. Dog Park May Not Get Expected Donation

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls dog park just can't get a bone. Less than a week ago, Dr. Marty Becker announced he and his mother, Virginia Becker, would donate $30,000 to help build the anxiously awaited T.F. dog park. However, just Friday Marty announced that his mother no longer plans to donate her half of the park donation. "It's difficult for her to change her mind (especially with her passion for helping animals in T.F. area) and she'd still like to donate it upon her passing, but as we know there's no guarantee she'll have any money left," Marty wrote in an email to city Parks and Recreation Director Dennis Bowyer. In the email, Marty said he and his wife have already given the city $15,000 but it is no longer necessary to have the Beckers' names on the park. Marty also wrote he would be willing to come to Twin Falls for a dog park fundraiser to help raise enough money to get a dog park in place. "I'll move heaven and earth to help you make this much-needed dog park a reality," he said. Bowyer said that while the news is disappointing, the park is still receiving a sizable donation. Marty's donation announcement caused an immediate jump in individual donations, he said. "I see this as we got a $16,000 donation which is more than what we had before," Bowyer said. "This is still a good thing" However, the change in donation amount does impact when the city can begin construction. The original amount would have allowed early

Senators: Immigration Deal Not Final

WASHINGTON (AP) • Even with one of the largest hurdles to an immigration overhaul overcome, optimistic lawmakers on Sunday cautioned they had not finished work on a bill that would provide a path to citizenship for 11 million illegal immigrants.

The AFL-CIO and the pro-business U.S. Chamber of Commerce reached a deal late Friday that would allow tens of thousands of low-skill workers into the country to fill jobs in construction, restaurants and hotels. Yet despite the unusual agreement between the two powerful lobbying groups, lawmakers from both parties conceded that the negotiations were not finished. "With the agreement between business and labor, every major policy issue has been resolved," said Sen. Chuck

Decide to Grow Your Life

The decision to grow enlarges our capacity for happiness and serving others. It becomes a life-long process to which we commit. Growth separates living things from dead things. Please consider the discipline required for personal development.

Growing begins by gaining knowledge of our strengths, learning styles, and passions, and then feeding, training, and disciplining them.

We cultivate and nurture ourselves to invest in the growth of the whole garden of humanity. We are here to serve others as well as ourselves. Other peoples' hopes, dreams, or fears become important to us. We begin to recognize and affirm their strengths. Growing becomes relational and intentional.

Gaining knowledge in our own field of work and in leadership are investments we can make on a daily basis. The many facets of leadership include: respect, experience, emotional strength, people skills, discipline, vision, momentum, and timing. We always want to find better ways of serving those we lead.

The growing process looks like this:

- Gain knowledge.
- Reach out to others.
- Open your world. Find ways to serve at work and in family or community.
- Walk toward wisdom.

One of the best ways to go on learning is to teach. The leader teaches by sharing information and asking probing questions. We best serve others by working together in a shared vision.

Wisdom is the application of knowledge, discernment, insight, experience, and judgment to make good decisions when the right answer may not be obvious.

If we're really interested in doing the best job possible, we need to distinguish what is important and what is not.

Once we clearly see our roles in life and prepare to serve well, we can make a contribution to the world. This influence can become a legacy to future generations.

Sometimes I need more time to reflect and work on my priorities. This enables me to add directional focus to keep momentum and stay on course until my purpose is reached. When I put first things first, I have a better idea why I'm here and make my decisions accordingly. It's about saying no to the good in order to say yes to the best. I may not have time to do second things first.

Personal effectiveness is built on a strong foundation of competence, connection, and character. The quality and strength of a man's character makes trust possible. We don't just pursue our goals on the days we feel good. We live out our values every day.

We need a vision to grow. It starts within. We see the possibilities in front of us and begin to draw on our strengths and abilities to reach them. True vision adds value to others. It attracts, challenges, and unites people.

Fortunately, others have blazed the path ahead of us. We seek their help to find our core values and measure our progress. Hard work will earn us the proven track record that people can trust. That respect will gain influence and the right to lead.

N. Idaho School District Deals With Bomb Threats

BONNERS FERRY (AP) • Bomb threats scrawled on walls have become such a problem at a northern Idaho school district that a restroom monitor has been assigned to have high school students sign in and out of bathrooms. There have been nine bomb threats at the Boundary County School District since late October, The Spokesman-Review reported.

Four of them were written inside restrooms at Bonners Ferry High School, officials said. Three other bomb threats were found at the middle school, and two were called into the county's 911 dispatch center.

"We're vigorously pursuing catching the perpetrator or perpetrators," said Richard Conley, district superintendent. "That's why there's an $11,000 reward, as the community is fed up with it."

Investigators say they have identified several juvenile suspects but believe more students are responsible.

The bomb threats have led to evacuations, participation of local and federal law enforcement agencies, and the calling in of bomb-sniffing dogs.

"It's very draining on our resources," said Bonners Ferry Police Chief Steve Benkula. "It takes us a minimum of two hours to clear a school of any possible bomb threat."

Students also have been on the lookout for troublemakers.

"A lot of people say, 'If I find out who it is, I'm going to report it for sure,'" said 17-year-old McKenzie MacDonald, the junior class treasurer. "There's really nobody out there to keep the secret if they find out who it is."

Student leaders organized a high school assembly in an effort to end the bomb threats.

Two Hospitalized after Saturday Crash

SHOSHONE • Two Hailey residents were injured Saturday, March 30, in a motorcycle crash six miles south of Shoshone.

According to Idaho State Police, the one-vehicle crash happened just before 1 p.m. on northbound U.S. Highway 93. Kelly West, 38, was driving a 2003 Harley Davidson Road King when he failed to slow down in time, braked suddenly and lost control of the vehicle, police said.

The motorcycle then tipped over, injuring both

Kelly West and his 16-year-old passenger, Braydan West.

Both were taken to St. Luke’s Magic Valley Medical Center — Kelly West by air ambulance and Braydan West by ground ambulance. Kelly West was in “good” condition Sunday, according to the hospital. Braydan West was no longer at St. Luke’s; officials said he had been taken to another hospital.

Both of the Wests were wearing helmets, ISP said.

The crash blocked northbound U.S. 93 for about one hour. ISP continues to investigate the incident.

T.F. Council to Appoint Two New Police Officers

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls City Council will appoint two new officers to the Twin Falls Police Department during tonight’s meeting.

The meeting contains a short agenda and includes a presentation of a crime investigator certificate to Community Service Officer Joan Lang and considering a request to select a supplier to use on a Twin Falls Police Bomb Squad robot.

Finally, the council will listen to a public hearing on a request for the vacation of a dedicated public right of way located north of Ramblin Rose Way in the city’s area of impact.

Sgt. Kevin Hanners rides his police bike before the Easter parade on Main Street in Buhl on Saturday.

Patrol

Hanners, who commutes by bike from Filer every day, said he started cycling when he began to work out again after an injury. Now he competes in bike races all over the state. While on patrol, officers will have to take extra safety precautions.

While there’s no formal police bicycle training in Idaho, Hanners said, Buhl may do bike patrol training with the Elko, Nev., bicycle patrol officers in the future.

Hanners said the bike has a blinking red light on the back and a bright headlight on the front. He said the department is looking into high-visibility patrol shirts for officers who patrol on the bike.

Officers pair down their gear drastically when they’re on the patrol bike, Hanners said.

They’ll still have a clipboard, citation booklet, a flashlight and some rubber gloves among other necessities.

“You won’t have your road flares or your traffic cones,” he said.

If he is on his patrol bike and runs into a situation where he’ll need more equipment or has to make an arrest, Hanners said he’ll call the other officer on duty to come with the patrol car.

So far, Hanners said, the bike patrol has been well received by residents and is enjoyable for the officers.

“Most of the officers want to try it,” he said.

While weather can be a factor — officers won’t be riding around in a foot of snow — Hanners said a skiff of snow here and there won’t stop him from getting out on the bike to patrol in the colder months.

“Just watch for us,” he said. “Keep your eyes open so we don’t get hit.”

Man Who Apologized for Racist Past Dies

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Elwin Wilson, the former Ku Klux Klan supporter who publicly apologized for years of violent racism, including the beating of a black Freedom Rider who went on to become a Georgia congressman, has died. He was 76.

His wife, Judy Wilson, said he died Thursday at a hospital in South Carolina after a bout with the flu and suffering for years with heart and lung problems.

She told The Associated Press in a telephone interview Sunday that he was relieved he lived long enough to try to make amends for years of racial hatred. He detailed his deeds at length when he called The Herald of Rock Hill to apologize shortly after President Barack Obama's inauguration in 2009.

"He said he had it on his heart for a long time," Judy Wilson said. "He said he wished he could find the ones he mistreated and apologize to them all."

Among his actions were cross burnings; hanging a black doll in a noose at the end of his drive; flinging cantaloupes at black men walking down Main Street; hurling a jack handle at a black boy jiggling the soda machine in his father's service station; and the brutal beating of U.S. Rep. John Lewis, D-Ga., at a Rock Hill bus station in 1961.

"His story is a powerful story; his story must not be forgotten," Lewis told The Herald in a telephone interview Saturday. "His story and the way he arrived at his position must be understood, must be told."

After his apology to the newspaper, Wilson apologized in several other public venues, including during a meeting with Lewis at the congressman's Capitol Hill office.

In an April 2009 interview with the AP, Wilson tried to explain why he had decided to apologize.

"All I can say is that it has bothered me for years, all the bad stuff I've done," he said. "And I found out there is no way I could be saved and get to heaven and still not like blacks."

This month, Lewis received apologies from the current police chief of Montgomery, Ala., and the governor. But Wilson's apology remains special.

"He was the first private citizen," Lewis said. "He was the very, very first to come and apologize to me

... for a private citizen to come along and say, 'I'm the one that attacked you; I'm the one who beat you.' It was very meaningful."

In 2009, Lewis and Wilson accepted the Common Ground Award for Reconciliation at the Canadian embassy in Washington, D.C. Also that year, both were honored in California with awards on Worldwide Forgiveness Day. In Maryland, Wilson presented Lewis with an award. They also told their story to Oprah Winfrey and millions of viewers.

Workers prepare for lifting of a part of the dismantled hull of the USS Guardian on the Tubbataha Reef southwest of the Philippines on Friday.

Doomed US Navy Ship Removed from Reef

MANILA, Philippines (AP) • Workers in the southwestern Philippines have removed the last major part of a U.S. Navy minesweeper from a protected coral reef where it ran aground in January, and the damage will be assessed to determine the fine Washington will pay, officials said Sunday.

A crane lifted the 250-ton stern of the dismantled USS Guardian on Saturday from the reef, where it accidentally got stuck Jan. 17, officials said. The reef, designated a World Heritage site by UNESCO, the United Nations' cultural arm, is located in the Tubbataha National Marine Park in the Sulu Sea, about 400 miles southwest of Manila.

The doomed ship's parts will be transported to a Navy facility in Sasebo, Japan, to determine which ones can be reused and which will be junked, Philippine coast guard Commodore Enrico Efren Evangelista said.

Workers were cleaning debris at the site, where American and Filipino experts this week will begin a final assessment of the reef damage, to be paid for by Washington.

An initial estimate showed about 4,780 square yards of coral reef was damaged by the ship grounding, according to Tubbataha park superintendent Angelique Songco.

She said it was unlikely the estimate would change significantly.

Songco said the fine would be about $600 per square meter, so the U.S. could be facing a bill of more than $2 million.

Freezing Weather Wipes Out German Flea Circus

BERLIN (AP) • An entire troupe of performing fleas has fallen victim to the freezing temperatures currently gripping Germany. Flea circus director Robert Birk says he was shocked to find all of his 300 fleas dead inside their transport box Wednesday morning.

The circus immediately scrambled to find and train a new batch so it could fulfill its engagements at an open-air fair in the western town of Meckernich-Kommern.

Michael Faber, who organizes the fair, told The Associated Press that an insect expert at a nearby university was able to provide 50 fleas in time for the first show Sunday.

Faber says he hopes they'll "get through this

Hal Hargrave Jr., who is paralyzed from the neck down after a car crash when he was 17, shares a laugh with his trainer Chris Fitzgerald during his physical therapy session at a gym in Claremont, Calif., last year. Hargrave started the nonprofit Be Perfect Foundation and raised $2 million to help other young people who couldn't afford the same kind of rehabilitation program made available to him.

Paralyzed Ex-athlete's Foundation Helping Others

CLAREMONT, Calif. (AP) • As he rolls through the front door of the sprawling Claremont Club fitness center and shouts a friendly hello here and there, for just a moment it's as if nothing has changed since Hal Hargrave Jr. was the big, friendly teenage gym rat who haunted this place.

The burly Hargrave's head was filled with dreams of playing college baseball as he strode into the gym, stretched out on a bench and pressed 300 pounds above his body. Again and again.

He's still big and burly, his arms still muscular and he still works out nearly every day. Only these days Hargrave uses that strength to move his wheelchair in and out of the gym, where he still works out 20 hours a week and knows just about everybody in the place.

These days, though, Hargrave's goal is to get walking again, something he lost the ability to do on July 26, 2007, when he swerved his truck to avoid debris in the road. It flipped four times, the cab collapsing on him and snapping his spine. It left him paralyzed from the neck down.

The irony is never lost on Hargrave that he was delivering handicapped-accessible bathroom doors as part of a summer job. If it was a sign to a strapping 17-year-old athlete that his life was headed in the wrong direction, it would seem to have been a particularly harsh one, but Hargrave doesn't see it that way.

"Some people call me crazy for putting it this way, but I have been given a gift," the talkative, friendly 23-year-old says with a smile over lunch at the gym's small cafe. "They see this as an ailment. I don't."

He sees it instead as something that gave him a chance to help others, to have his life truly make a difference.

It inspired him to create the Be Perfect Foundation, a nonprofit charity that has raised $1.2 million to provide wheelchairs, make homes more accessible and, most importantly, keep more than 100 people in rehabilitation programs they otherwise couldn't afford.

All of which would have been pretty impressive if Hargrave had just stopped there. But he didn't.

He persuaded the Claremont Club president to turn a racquetball court and a basketball court into a wing for people with paralyzing injuries. Then he got Project Walk, a spinal rehabilitation center where he'd been treated, to open its first franchise in this bucolic college town 35 miles east of Los Angeles for those who couldn't make the commute to its San Diego area headquarters.

"Here's a 17-year-old boy

Hal Hargrave Jr. leaves after his workout in Claremont, Calif.

"Some people call me crazy for putting it this way, but I have been given a gift. They see this as an ailment. I don't."

who had a debilitating, life-changing accident," said Mike Alpert, who runs the Claremont Club and whose daughter has known Hargrave since the two were in kindergarten. "So many people that go through that would give up. Would be depressed. Would blame everybody else. Here's a young man who just said, 'I have a calling to change the world and to help people through what's happening to me. And then he goes out and does it! How special is that?'"

"He's an amazing young man," echoes Deborah Lieberman, president of University of La Verne, where Hargrave is a full-time student.

Although he hasn't regained full use of his fingers (he fist bumps rather than shakes hands), he's gotten back enough to take notes on his iPad. He maintains a near-perfect 3.8 grade point average.

Lieberman will never forget the first time they met two years ago at a basketball rally. Hargrave, never known to be shy, rolled up and introduced himself.

He told her how he'd been hurt and she expressed her condolences.

"And he said to me, 'DO NOT be sorry! It was a blessing!'"

Then he gave her a Be Perfect bracelet that she wears to this day.

Not that the road back from the accident was easy.

"It was very touch and go the first two weeks," recalled his father, Hal Hargrave Sr., who still chokes up when he talks about what his son has overcome and accomplished. "They had him on breathing machines. He got pneumonia. ... We didn't know if he was going to stay with us or not."

Hargrave himself thought he would die as he lay trapped in the truck. Those stories about your life passing before you, he says, are true.

Although he's big and strong again, nerve damage keeps his body in a near perpetual state of motion, giving the impression he's fidgeting uncomfortably in his chair although he really feels little.

Given only a 1 to 3 percent chance of walking again, he threw himself into rehabilitation with the same fervor that once made him a high school sports star. Gradually movement returned to his shoulders, then his arms and hands. Lately he's started to get some in his legs as well.

"It's nothing that's too controlled movement yet, but it's coming back and I'm doing things that doctors are in disbelief about," he says happily.

It was after one of his arduous rehabilitation sessions, where limbs are yanked and twisted and bodies are placed in expensive machinery to simulate walking, that an epiphany led to his foundation.

Brian O'Neil, an electrician who had suffered a similar injury in a dirt-bike crash, told him he wouldn't see him again. He'd lost his job, was about to lose his house, didn't have insurance and couldn't afford any more rehabilitation.

Hargrave persuaded his father to pick up the cost of O'Neil's rehabilitation. Then, on the ride home, he decided why not help others as well?

He was told that running a foundation wouldn't be easy, especially for a guy going through his own grueling rehabilitation. But he was adamant.

"He didn't like the word no. And he didn't like the word can't," Hargrave Sr. says, chuckling at the memory of raising the oldest of his four children.

O'Neil was blown away — and still is.

"For such a young man he's very — I can't even find the words to mention the kind of guy Little Hal is," O'Neil, using the nickname close friends call Hargrave by, says emotionally. "He's just a great kid."

Hargrave scheduled the first of what would become annual fundraisers at the height of the Great Recession and he hoped he might get lucky and raise maybe $30,000. After $250,000 poured in, he thought: "Maybe we can do this forever."

So he soldiers on, getting up each day, working out, running the foundation, hanging out with friends, going to school.

Still a sports fanatic, he's earning a degree in communications with the hope of someday becoming a sports broadcaster.

But the foundation will always come first.

"I had dreams of going off and going to school and becoming a baseball player and doing this and that," he says as he finishes lunch. "But when I think back on it, it was so selfish. And now my dreams are much different. My dreams are to keep people in therapy and my dreams are to help other people. That's what my life is about at this point."

In this photo taken on Saturday, rescuers march to an area to search through rock and debris at a gold mine after a mudslide in Gyama village, in Maizhokunggar County of Lhasa, Tibet.

Slim Chance of Life after Tibet Mudslide Buries 83 Victims

BEIJING (AP) • Searchers were continuing to look for miners buried when a landslide swept through a gold mine in an extensively cleared area of Tibet, but authorities said chances were slim any survivors would be found. Twenty-one bodies have been recovered from the mudslide that buried 83 workers in piles of earth up to 30 meters deep.

The landslide Friday has spotlighted the extensive mining China has encouraged in the mountainous region and questions have been raised about whether the activities have destroyed Tibet's ecosystem.

The slide covered around 1.5 square miles in Gyama village in Maizhokunggar county, about 45 miles east of the regional capital, Lhasa.

Searchers had found 21 bodies by Sunday night and were searching for the rest, the official China National Radio said. Chances were slim of finding anyone alive, the state-run Xinhua News Agency quoted the Communist Party deputy secretary for Tibet, Wu Yingjie, as saying.

The miners worked for Huatailong Mining Development, a subsidiary of the China National Gold Group Corp., a state-owned enterprise and the country's largest gold producer. Beijing says the cause of the disaster has yet to be fully investigated, although state media say the mudslide was caused by a "natural disaster," without giving specifics.

Criticisms over possibly excessive mining in Tibet flashed through China's social media before they were scrubbed off or blocked from public view by censors.

Btan Tundop, a Tibetan resident, noted the Huatailong mine's dominance in the area in a short-lived microblog: "The entire Maizhokunggar has been taken over by China National Gold Group. Local Tibetans say the county and the village might as well be called Huatailong."

Man Convicted in '70 Deadly Ariz. Fire May be Released

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) • A man who has spent more than four decades in prison for a Tucson hotel fire that killed 29 people, including some who jumped from windows to escape the searing heat, is expected to be released Tuesday as part of a deal with prosecutors.

Louis Cuen Taylor was convicted of murder as a teen but has maintained his innocence in the December 1970 fire at the Pioneer Hotel.

The Tucson man, who turns 59 this week, is scheduled to plead no contest to murder in an agreement that sets aside his original conviction and gives him credit for time served, the Arizona Daily Star reported.

The fire came during a Christmas party for employees of an aircraft company and left many guests trapped in their rooms.

The building had no sprinkler system, exits were locked to prevent theft, and fire truck ladders were too short to reach the higher floors. Those factors led some people to jump from windows to their deaths. Others burned to death in their rooms. Most died of carbon-monoxide poisoning while waiting for rescue.

In total, 29 lives were lost to the blaze, including one victim who died months later in a hospital.

Taylor, then 16, was in the hotel that night watching the festivities. After the fire broke out, he and a hotel custodian tried to extinguish the blaze, then Taylor helped some of the trapped and injured guests escape. Hours later, he was taken into custody, interviewed by police without parental consent and charged with starting the fire. He was convicted in 1972 and sentenced to 28 concurrent life terms.

Judge Charles L. Hardy, who presided over Taylor's 1972 trial, publicly expressed skepticism about the jury's decision to convict the Tucson teen.

Pope Makes Easter Pleas for Mideast Peace

Francis decries conflicts in Middle East and on Korean peninsula

VATICAN CITY (AP) • Pope Francis delivered a plea for peace in his first Easter Sunday message to the world, decrying the seemingly endless conflicts in the Middle East and on the Korean peninsula after celebrating Mass at an outdoor altar before more than 250,000 people in flower-bedecked St. Peter's Square.

Francis shared in his flock's exuberance as they celebrated Christianity's core belief that Jesus Christ rose from the dead following crucifixion. After Mass, he stepped aboard an open-topped white popemobile for a cheerful spin through the joyous crowd, kissing babies and patting children on the head. One admirer of both the pope and of the pope's favorite soccer team, Argentina's Saints of San Lorenzo, insisted that Francis take a team jersey he was waving at the pontiff. A delighted Francis obliged, briefly holding up the shirt, and the crowd roared in approval.

Francis has repeatedly put concern for the poor and suffering at the center of his messages, and he pursued his promotion of the causes of peace and social justice in the Easter speech he delivered from the central balcony of St. Peter's Basilica, the same vantage point above the square where he was introduced to the world as the first Latin American pope on March 13.

The Roman Catholic leader aimed his Easter greetings at "every house and every family, especially where the suffering is greatest, in hospitals, in prisons." Francis prayed that Jesus would inspire people to "change hatred into love, vengeance into forgiveness, war into peace."

Texas DA Gunned Down

Kaufman County Sheriff David Byrnes, left, stands at a news conference on Sunday in Kaufman, Texas. On Saturday, Kaufman County District Attorney Mike McLelland and his wife, Cynthia, were murdered in their home.

District attorney said he always carried a gun; officials look for any connections in Colorado death.

KAUFMAN, Texas (AP) • Kaufman County District Attorney Mike McLelland took no chances after one of his assistant prosecutors was gunned down two months ago. McLelland said he carried a gun everywhere he went and took extra care when answering the door at his home.

"I'm ahead of everybody else because, basically, I'm a soldier," the 23-year Army veteran said in an interview less than two weeks ago.

On Saturday, he and his wife were found shot to death in their rural home just outside the town of Forney, about 20 miles from Dallas.

While investigators gave no motive for the killings, Forney Mayor Darren Rozell said: "It appears this was not a random act."

"Everybody's a little on edge and a little shocked," he said.

The slayings came less than two weeks after Colorado's prison chief was shot to death at his front door, apparently by a white supremacist ex-convict, and two months after Kaufman County Assistant District Attorney Mark Hasse was killed in a parking lot a block from his courthouse office. No arrests have been made in Hasse's slaying Jan. 31.

McLelland, 63, is the 13th prosecutor killed in the U.S. since the National Association of District Attorneys began keeping count in the 1960s.

Sheriff David Byrnes said Sunday that there was nothing to indicate for sure whether McLelland's slaying was connected to Hasse's. He declined to discuss it further. The sheriff also said he had no indication that white supremacist groups were involved in the killing of the DA.

Colorado's corrections director, Tom Clements, was killed March 19 when he answered the doorbell at his home outside Colorado Springs. Evan Spencer Ebel, a former Colorado inmate and white supremacist who authorities suspect shot Clements, died in a shootout with Texas deputies two days later about 100 miles from Kaufman.

El Paso County, Colo., sheriff's spokesman Sgt. Joe Roybal said Sunday that investigators had found no evidence so far connecting the Texas killings to the Colorado case, but added: "We're examining all possibilities."

McLelland, in an Associated Press interview shortly after the Colorado slaying, raised the possibility that Hasse was gunned down by a white supremacist gang.

McLelland, elected DA in 2010, said that Hasse hadn't prosecuted any cases against white supremacists but that his office had handled several, and those gangs had a strong presence around Kaufman County, a mostly rural area dotted with subdivisions, with a population of about 104,000.

"We put some real dents in the Aryan Brotherhood around here in the past year," McLelland said.

McLelland said he carried a gun everywhere he went, even to walk his dog around town, a bedroom community for the Dallas area. He figured assassins were more likely to try to attack him outside. He said he had warned all his employees to be constantly on the alert.

"The people in my line of work are going to have to get better at it," he said of dealing with the danger, "because they're going to need it more in the future."

The number of attacks on prosecutors, judges and senior law enforcement officers in the U.S. has spiked in the past three years, according to Glenn McGovern, an investigator with the Santa Clara County, Calif., District Attorney's Office who tracks such cases.

For about a month after Hasse's slaying, sheriff's deputies were parked in the district attorney's driveway, said Sam Rosander, a McLelland neighbor.

The FBI and the Texas Rangers joined the investigation into the McLellands' deaths.

2 in China Die from Bird Flu

BEIJING (AP) • Two Shanghai men have died from a lesser-known type of bird flu in the first known human deaths from the strain, and Chinese authorities said Sunday that it wasn't clear how they were infected, but that there was no evidence of human-to-human transmission.

A third person, a woman in the nearby province of Anhui, also contracted the H7N9 strain of bird flu and was in critical condition, China's National Health and Family Planning Commission said in a report on its website.

There was no sign that any of the three, who were infected over the past two months, had contracted the disease from each other, and no sign of infection in the 88 people who had closest contact with them, the medical agency said.

H7N9 bird flu is considered a low pathogenic strain that cannot easily be contracted by humans. The overwhelming majority of human deaths from bird flu have been caused by the more virulent H5N1, which decimated poultry stocks across Asia in 2003.

The World Health Organization is "closely monitoring the situation" in China, regional agency spokesman Timothy O'Leary said in Manila.

"There is apparently no evidence of human-to-human transmission, and transmission of the virus appears to be inefficient, therefore the risk to public health would appear to be low," O'Leary said.

One of the two men from Shanghai, who was 87, became ill on Feb. 19 and died on Feb. 27. The other man, 27, became ill on Feb. 27 and died on March 4, the Chinese health commission said. A 35-year-old woman in the Anhui city of Chuzhou became ill on March 9 and is being treated.

The Chinese Center for Disease Control and Prevention conducted tests and confirmed Saturday that all three cases were H7N9, the health commission said.

Forgotten US Airship Crash Recalled 80 Years Later

LAKEHURST, N.J. (AP) • History buffs will gather this week near the New Jersey coast to commemorate a major airship disaster.

No, not that one.

Newsreel footage and radio announcer Herbert Morrison's plaintive cry, "Oh, the humanity!" made the 1937 explosion of the Hindenburg at the Lakehurst Naval Air Station probably the best-known crash of an airship.

But just four years earlier, a U.S. Navy airship seemingly jinxed from the start and later celebrated in song crashed only about 40 miles away, claiming more than twice as many lives.

The USS Akron, a 785-foot dirigible, was in its third year of flight when a violent storm sent it plunging tail-first into the Atlantic Ocean shortly after midnight on April 4, 1933.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

A plaque and a piece of the USS Akron airship are seen at a small veteran's memorial park in a neighborhood in Manchester Township, N.J.

"No broadcasters, no photographers, no big balls of fire, so who knew?" said Nick Rakoncza, a member of the Navy Lakehurst Historical Society. "Everybody thinks that the Hindenburg was the world's greatest (airship) disaster. It was not."

A ceremony to commemorate the 80th anniversary of the crash, the deadliest airship disaster on record, is being held Thursday at a veterans park where there is a tiny plaque dedicated to the victims. Below it is a small piece of metal from the airship.

Few in the area seemed to know about the disaster, let alone the memorial plaque; even a Navy officer sent on an underwater mission to explore the wreckage many years later had not heard of the Akron.

"It's almost a forgotten accident," said Rick Zitarosa, historian for the Navy Lakehurst Historical Society. "The Akron deserves to be remembered."

The Akron crashed off the community of Barnegat Light just a few hours after taking off from Lakehurst, killing 73 of the 76 men aboard, largely because the ship had no life vests and only one rubber raft, according to Navy records and the Navy Lakehurst Historical Society. They had been moved to another airship and were never replaced.

Lt. Cmdr. Herbert Wiley, Moody Erwin and Richard Deal were pulled from the frigid waters by a German tanker that had been nearby.

Erwin and Deal had been hanging on a fuel tank. Wiley was clinging to a board, according to an account he gave to a newspaper the next day.

In a newsreel interview, Wiley, standing next to the other survivors, said he was in the control car just before the crash. He said crew members could not see the ocean until they were about 300 feet above the water.

"The order was given to stand by for a crash," Wiley said. "The ship hit the water within 30 seconds of that order and most of us, I believe, we catapulted into the water."

Among the casualties was Rear Adm. William Moffett, the first chief of the Bureau of Navy Aeronautics.

When the wreckage was found, Zitarosa said, the airship had collapsed to about 25 feet in height. It had originally stood at about 150 feet.

"It was a catastrophic disintegration of the ship once it hit the water," Zitarosa said.

Time to Decide on Afghanistan

The United States has problems in Afghanistan, with the Taliban, Pakistan and Afghan President Hamid Karzai. The Obama administration is making them worse by dila-tory decision-making about how many U.S. troops will re-main there after 2014.

Ronald Neumann

The Washington Post

While recent news has focused on the latest spats with Karzai, there are some bright spots. The Afghan police are denying the Taliban passage in parts of the south where coalition troops have fought for seven years without this progress. Afghans are showing an increased willingness to-ward self-defense, perhaps partially in reaction to a heavy assassination campaign by the Taliban. This month, I heard accounts in eastern and southern Afghanistan of the Afghan army, national police and local police forces mutu-ally supporting one another in ways that used to be all too rare.

Yet major challenges remain as we approach the final handover of security to the Afghans in 21 months. For one thing, local police forces could yet be a long-term threat to the state if they become predatory or promote inter-tribal feuding. This is why the expansion of local police must be done with a deep understanding of each village where the force is formed and careful attention paid to the district po-lice chiefs who support and supervise the force.

U.S. indecision on post-2014 forces is damaging the handover goal. So is the public discussion of troop numbers too low to achieve their stated purpose. Some allies already have shown a willingness to keep as many as 2,000 troops in northern and western Afghanistan after 2014. But they will not do so if those numbers are too large in proportion to the forces the United States intends to leave or if we take away air support the allies depend on for supplies. Other allies will make troop decisions only after we do.

Doubts about U.S. intentions confuse everyone, particu-larly the Afghans, who, when in doubt and as a matter of survival, move to hedging behavior instead of to profes-sional military development. It is clear that a minimally ef-fective force needs to have a presence in the country's four major military areas: Herat, Mazar-e Sharif, Jalalabad and Kandahar. Without these bases, U.S. advisers would not have the reach to circulate effectively to the brigade level, where the critical strengthening of the Afghan army will need to continue.

This is what advising is all about. It is in the field, not some central camp, where the real transformation to an ef-fective fighting force takes place. The "training and advis-ing" that President Barack Obama has promised needs a presence outside Kabul. So do counterterrorist forces. Not every essential strike can be launched from Kabul.

The number required to have a chance of achieving the two stated tasks of counterterrorism and advising is in the range of 10,000 U.S. troops; that number is already less than many would have liked because it leaves a dangerously small margin for error. Yes, the United States is facing fi-nancial strains. But to gamble our remaining chance of success in Afghanistan on the difference of a few thousand troops is shortsighted or displays a lack of support for the men and women whose lives are at risk in carrying out the policy. If the numbers coming out of White House discus-sions of troop levels are 2,000 or 3,000, the signal to friends and enemies alike will be a lack of will. It is past time to conclude the decision process.

We have troops at war who are not being told the structure they are to achieve in 21 months. There is a mil-itary transition process going on, but no one can say to what purpose without the detail required for coherent planning. The location and size of our civilian contingent after 2014 require knowing the military structure on which some of its security will rest. And our NATO allies and Afghan partners are confused as to our strategic intent.

Some say that, before a final decision regarding troop numbers is made, we need to conclude a basic security agreement with Kabul that will govern the status and conditions of our forces after 2014. This is not logical. No one would buy a car on the basis of "sign now and I'll tell you how it's equipped later." The Afghans need to know what is being offered if they are to meet our terms for im-munity and other conditions.

Obama has stated our intent to advise and assist Afghan forces after 2014 while they take over the fight for their country's internal security. Decisions about how to support that intent are urgently needed.

Don Burnett a Good Investment for the University of Idaho

The departure of Du-ane Nellis as presi-dent of the Univer-sity of Idaho has kicked in a nationwide search for a replacement, standard procedure these days for filling such jobs as university presidents.

It will take about a year. It will involve dozens of peo-ple, vast amounts of time, and considerable money and angst. How much money for the search? That varies, but similar searches around the country these days tend to cost upward of $100,000, for consultants, travel, ad-vertising and more.

The president it generates probably, if history is any guide, will have an impres-sive resume but little or no experience with either Ida-ho or the university, and so necessarily will have to spend a year or two getting acquainted and learning the ropes. Because the search is national, salary and benefits will ratchet up to the na-tional marketplace level, which has been racheting ever higher and higher.

How long will this invest-ment — assuming the choice is a good one, which isn't always the case — last? Maybe not long. In the case of Nellis, chosen by a na-tionwide search, about four years. His predecessor as permanent president, Tim-othy White, also lasted four years. His predecessor, Robert Hoover, lasted a little longer, about seven years, but left under a cloud.

Something like this prob-ably will be the university's, and Idaho's, experience again.

Or. Last week an interim president — to fill in be-tween Nellis and a perma-nent successor — was named. He is Don Burnett, the dean of the university's law school.

The state Board of Educa-tion could do a lot worse than to just make his ap-pointment permanent, right now.

If he'd take it (his age, in his mid-60s, might be his argument against). But consider his background.

He's an Idaho native (born in Pocatello), was an attor-ney by profession, clerking for the chief justice of the Idaho Supreme Court and working as an assistant at-torney general for entering into private practice (which is where I met him in Pocatello, in the 70s). He was also, I learn in reviewing his bio, a military JAG officer. He became involved enough in politics to earn mention of-ten as a prospective candi-date for various offices, in-cluding the state legislature; he would have been a highly skilled campaigner. He be-came president of the Idaho State Bar and one of the first judges on the Idaho Court of Appeals, where his opinions were some of the best writ-ten I've ever seen. He knows Idaho extremely well.

On the academic side he has degrees from Harvard University and two other institutions, and served 12 years as dean of the Univer-sity of Louisville (Kentucky) law school, before returning to Idaho to become dean at UI. This shorthand resume just scratches the surface.

A national search would have a hard time improving on Burnett. And his learning curve would be slight. Bear all that in mind if the Board of Ed does what it usually does in the months ahead.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

One-third of the Earth Will Be Destroyed by WWII

In response to Vaughn Phelps' letter to the editor, I would like to say that the Bible has the story of life in it, so here is your answer. There will be a sweeping catastrophe, although we do not know when.

Ezekiel 38:1-6 lists the names of the nations involved in World War III. Gog is Russia. Persia is West Pak-iston to Turkey to Egypt. Ethiopia is Ethiopia, Somalia, Sudan, Libya. Gomer and his bands is the Warsaw Pact area of Eastern Europe. Toga-mah of the north quarter is the Baltic States (Estonia, Lithuania, Latvia).

There are wars, riots, demonstra-tions, hunger in most of these places listed. The news does not say much here in Idaho about Ethiopia, but I did read something in the paper about problems in Sudan. Old Persia includes Iraq and Iran.

As a Bible-believing Christian, I need to show what all this is leading to. The Third World War has to be getting close. The USA bound by NATO will be "cut." What that means, I can imagine but do not know. From what Obama is doing, it does not look good for us. Why go to Burma? Why give arms to Egypt?

World War III, according to the Bible, will lead to one third of the earth getting destroyed. Ezekiel 39:6 says, "I will send fire on a bunch of places, including 'the young lion,'" which is us. Say your prayers. God blesses.

Time to Stop Raiding Social Security, Medicare

Re: "Are People Getting $3 in Medicare Benefits for Every $1 in Taxes"

They lumped Social Security into the conversation. Many of us have paid in much more to Social Security than we will ever get back, but that's OK. Seniors don't like it being called an "entitle-ment"; however, many people get ben-efits that have paid little or nothing, so it is an "entitlement" in many cases.

Means testing would go a long way toward fixing it, but some politicians refuse because the money paid to mil-lionaires and billionaires comes back to the government in taxes and can be spent again. They raid the fund every year because they know how to spend our money best.

This is a baby step away from raiding your bank account. Medicare was sold as a means to help reduce the medical costs in our senior years. Taxes paid in over a lifetime would pay for it. Not so, it has turned into a welfare program with the costs shifted to our children on a 1 to 3 basis. In other words, we're borrowing $2 from China for every $1 spent, sending the bill with interest to our children.

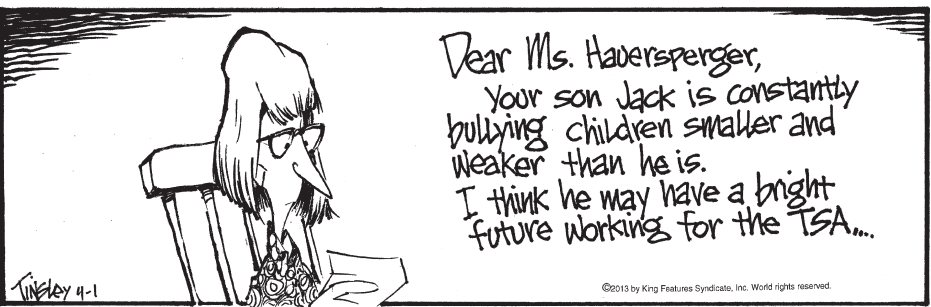

This is flat wrong. Social Security is much easier to fix.

1 Dead, 1 Injured in Saturday Rollover

53-year-old man pronounced dead on scene of Murtaugh accident.

TIMES-NEWS

MURTAUGH • A rollover on 4500 East south of Murtaugh Lake left one dead and another injured around 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office reports that 53-year-old Felipe Morales was pronounced dead on the scene after being ejected from a Saturn. The other man, from Malta, was also ejected from the car and taken by air ambulance to a Boise hospital.

Sheriff's Office spokeswoman Lori Stewart said the name of the second man isn't being released because his family has not yet been notified.

"A third party reported the accident," Stewart said. "There were no witnesses. We suspect speed and alcohol were factors in the crash but that isn't certain."

The crash is currently under investigation.

Three Die in 95-vehicle Pileup

String of accidents occurred in foggy conditions.

GALAX, Va. (AP) • Nearly 100 vehicles crashed Sunday along a mountainous, foggy stretch of interstate near the Virginia-North Carolina border, killing three people and injuring 25 others.

Police said traffic along Interstate 77 in southwest Virginia backed up for about 8 miles in the southbound lanes after the accidents. Authorities closed the northbound lanes so that fire trucks, ambulances and police could get to the series of chain-reaction wrecks.

Virginia State Police determined there were 17 separate crashes involving 95 vehicles within a mile span near the base of Fancy Gap Mountain, spokeswoman Corinne Geller said. The crashes began around 1:15 p.m. Sunday when there was heavy fog in the area.

"This mountain is notorious for fog banks. They have advance signs warning people. But the problem is, people are seeing well and suddenly they're in a fog bank," said Glen Sage of the American Red Cross office in the town of Galax.

Since 1997, there have been at least six such pileups on the mountain but Sunday's crash was the most deadly, according to The Roanoke Times. Two people died in crashes involving dozens of vehicles in both 2000 and 2010.

Overhead message boards warned drivers since about 6 a.m. Sunday to slow down because of the severe fog, Geller said. The crashes were mostly caused by drivers going too fast for conditions.

At the "epicenter" was a wreck involving up to eight vehicles, some of which caught fire, Geller said. Photos from the accident scene showed a burned out tractor-trailer and several crumpled vehicles badly charred. Those taken to hospitals had injuries ranging from serious to minor.

School buses took stranded people to shelters and hotels. Nina Rose, 20, and her mother, were driving home to Rochester, N.Y., when they encountered the pileup.

"With so much fog we didn't see much around it," Rose told the Roanoke newspaper. "As we got further up we just saw a bunch of people standing on the median, just with their kids and families all together. There were cars smashed into other cars, and cars just underneath other semi-trucks."

Darrell Utt, 17, of Moore County, N.C., was stuck in the northbound lanes for about three hours as he traveled to Huntington, W. Va.

"It was really foggy at first," he said. "We probably saw over 50 tow trucks. We saw about five cars come down and three semi-trucks. One of them, it didn't even look like a car, it looked like a chunk of metal."

Schumer, the New York Democrat who brokered the labor-business deal.

But it hasn't taken the form of a bill and the eight senators searching for a compromise haven't met about the potential breakthrough.

"We haven't signed off," said Sen. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C.

"There are a few details yet. But conceptually, we have an agreement between business and labor, between ourselves that has to be drafted," he added.

Yet just before lawmakers began appearing on Sunday shows, Sen. Marco Rubio warned he was not ready to lend his name — and political clout — to such a deal without hashing out the details.

"Reports that the bipartisan group of eight senators have agreed on a legislative proposal are premature," said Rubio, a Florida Republican who is among the lawmakers working on legislation.

Rubio, a Cuban-American who is weighing a presidential bid in 2016, is a leading figure inside his party. Lawmakers will be closely watching any deal for his approval and his skepticism about the process did little to encourage optimism.

Rubio, who is the group's emissary to conservatives, called the agreement "a starting point" but said 92 senators from 43 states haven't yet been involved in the process.

The detente between the nation's leading labor federation and the powerful business lobbying group still needs senators' approval, including a nod from Sen. John McCain, the Arizona Republican whose previous efforts came up short.

"I think we're on track. . . But as Sen. Rubio correctly says, we have said we will not come to final agreement till we look at all of the legislative language and he's correctly pointing out that that language hasn't been fully drafted," Schumer said.

Sen. Jeff Flake, R-Ariz., also noted the significance of the truce between labor and business but added that this wasn't yet complete.

"That doesn't mean we've crossed every 'i' or dotted every 't,' or vice versa," said Flake, who is among the eight lawmakers working on the deal.

Schumer negotiated the deal between AFL-CIO president Richard Trumka and Chamber of Commerce head Tom Donohue during a late-Friday phone call. Under the compromise, the government would create a new "W" visa for low-skill workers who would earn wages paid to Americans or the prevailing wages for the industry they're working in, whichever is higher. The Labor Department would determine prevailing wage based on customary rates in specific localities, so that it would vary from city to city.

The proposed measure would secure the border, crack down on employers, improve legal immigration and create a 13-year pathway to citizenship for the millions of illegal immigrants already here.

It's a major second-term priority of President Barack Obama's and would usher in the most dramatic changes to the faltering U.S. immigration system in more than two decades.

"This is a legacy item for him. There is no doubt in my mind that he wants to pass comprehensive immigration reform," said David Axelrod, a longtime political confidant of Obama.

During the last week, an immigration deal seemed doomed. But the breakthrough late Friday restarted the talks.

Four Hurt in Crash, Attack at Calif. Walmart

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) • Four people were hurt Sunday when a driver crashed his vehicle into a Wal-Mart and then assaulted customers inside, officials said.

Investigators have not determined how fast the driver — described as a male in his 30s — was going at the time of the crash but the car went about 10 to 20 feet into the store in San Jose. About 70 people were inside at the time, police Officer Albert Morales said.

After the crash at around 11:15 a.m., the unidentified driver got out of his vehicle and used a blunt object to attack people, Morales said. The driver was arrested when officers arrived.

One person suffered what Morales described as serious injuries. He did not know the extent of the injuries to the three other people but said they were not life-threatening. One of the injured included a store employee.

Customer Sharon Kaye told the San Jose Mercury News the driver side-swiped her car as he made several runs around the parking lot before driving between poles at the entrance and crashing into the store.

"At first, I thought I may have done something to anger him while driving," she said. "But then I realized he was out to get into the store."

After the crash, the entrance to the Wal-Mart was roped off with yellow police tape, and workers put up large boards covering the automatic doors where the car had entered.

'Megaload' Firm to Start Production

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) • The Canadian company whose desire to move gigantic oil equipment loads across Idaho and Montana caused about three years of legal wrangling in both states is close to producing oil.

Imperial Oil/ExxonMobil officials said the processing equipment has been assembled at the Kearl Lake Oil Sands project in northern Alberta. Imperial spokesman Pius Rolheiser told the Missoulian Friday that production was likely just days away.

"We are continuing to make progress toward safe completion of startup activities," he said, without being more specific about an exact date. Imperial Oil, a Canadian arm of Exxon-Mobil, initially proposed hauling more than 200 oversized loads starting from the Port of Lewiston in Idaho on U.S. 12 and Montana 200, but the proposal was protested on several fronts and in the court system in both states.

Stimpson Shines at District VI Rodeo

dphilbin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • When it was time for Minico sophomore Jaylee Stimpson to make her run in poles on Saturday night in the District VI high school performance at the College of Southern Idaho, Stimpson thought about not running her horse, Chickie. But after her warm up, Stimpson knew the horse well enough to know that he was ready to go and she had enough faith in Chickie to take the chance on the gelding. Turns out it was a good decision because Chickie removed all of the cowgirl's doubts and handled the pole route with a smoking run of 19.958 seconds.

"He is special," said Stimpson. "No one has been on him but me. He can be lazy but I could tell he was ready to run. Chickie is like all the good ones – they have a mind of their own."

This year Stimpson is more prepared to compete than she was as a freshman.

"I am more mentally ready and don't have as many nerves, because I know what to expect," said Stimpson. "Last year was bad because of some injuries to my horses. I worked hard during the winter and my horses and I are prepared. Now, I'm ready to jump on my horses and compete."

Stimpson sits in second place in the all-around standings with 114 points, trailing the 133 collected to date by Filer junior Cara Vierstra. For her five events, Stimpson is second in barrels and breakaway, third in goats, ninth in poles and fifth in team roping with partner Tegan Alger.

Vierstra remained solid and continued her dominance, accumulating more points (64) in four of her five events than any other competitor. She had a pair of wins in goats, a win and fifth in breakaway, a second and fourth in poles, and a fourth and sixth in barrels.

MLB Opening Day Games Feature Strasburg, Rivalries, AL vs NL

The Kansas City Royals have been absent from the playoffs since the day Billy Butler was born. They’ve barely had a winning season in the last two decades. They’ve often lost 100 games in a year.

And yet, buoyed by the best record in spring training, hope abounds — for the Royals, for most everybody putting on a big league uniform.

“There’s no reason we shouldn’t be better,” said Butler, the Royals’ All-Star slugger. “How much better that is? I’m not a mind reader. I’m not a projector.”

Ah, opening day.

The hot dogs taste better, the box scores mean more and most every team thinks it’s just a break or two away from reaching the World Series.

A dozen games were set for Monday across the majors. Star pitchers Justin Verlander, Stephen Strasburg and Adam Wainwright try to get off to great starts, old rivalries are renewed at Yankee Stadium and Dodger Stadium, and a quirky interleague schedule unfolds.

No snow is in the forecast for any ballpark on April Fools’ Day, but freezing temperatures are expected at Target Field in Minnesota when Verlander and the AL champion Tigers take on the Twins.

“It’s going to be cold but I’ve pitched in that kind of weather before,” Verlander said. “I don’t think about it. It’s always cold in Detroit on opening day.”

The season started Sunday night in Houston when the Astros, who shifted from the National League to the American League during the winter, hosted the Texas Rangers. Astros righty Bud Norris threw a called strike to Ian Kinsler to begin the year, and Houston’s Jose Altuve singled for the first hit.

Long the site of baseball’s traditional opener, Cincinnati was going to have a new look Monday. That’s when Josh Hamilton and his new Los Angeles Angels teammates visit Cincinnati in the first interleague matchup this season.

The Astros’ move left 15 teams in each league, meaning an AL vs. NL matchup most every day this season.

“It is very strange,” Reds manager Dusty Baker said.

On both coasts, there was a very familiar look — Red Sox-Yankees and Giants-Dodgers.

Mariano Rivera was set for his final opening day when the banged-up Yankees hosted Boston. The New York closer is among several big names who missed most or even all of last year — Troy Tulowitzki, Victor Martinez and John Lackey are in that group.

Injured stars Derek Jeter, Alex Rodriguez, Curtis Granderson and Mark Teixeira won’t be in pinstripes for the first pitch.

“It’s still the Yankees, it’s still going to be a good lineup,”

Boston starter Jon Lester said Sunday. “They’re missing a few of their big guys but anybody that fills in for them, it’s like what I said, they’re going to put professional at-bats together and still — it’s not going to be a walk in the park.”

No easy decisions, either, for Boston manager John Farrell, one of six new skippers in the majors this year.

At Dodger Stadium, Matt Cain starts for the World Series champion San Francisco Giants when they play Los Angeles in the century-old rivalry.

It will mark the 64th season at the microphone for Dodgers announcer Vin Scully. Heck, Tigers manager Jim Leyland seems like a mere pup by comparison, now starting his 50th year in pro ball.

All-Star shortstop Hanley Ramirez is sidelined for the Dodgers. Around the majors, third basemen Chase Headley of San Diego, David Freese of St. Louis and Brett Lawrie of Toronto will begin the season on the disabled list.

Mets third baseman David Wright plans to be in the lineup at Citi Field to take on San Diego. He hurt his ribcage at the World Baseball Classic.

“I feel good physically,” Wright said. “It would have been nice to have maybe a few more at-bats toward the end, but I didn’t have that luxury.”

On Tuesday, there are two more openers — Baltimore at Tampa Bay, and Cleveland at HOUSTON•Rick Ankiel and the Houston Astros made an impressive debut in the American League, trouncing the Texas Rangers 8-2 Sunday in the major league opener and giving Bo Porter a win in his first game as manager.

Ankiel launched a pinch-hit three-run shot for the first homer this season, Bud Norris pitched well for the win and Erik Bedard threw 3 1-3 scoreless innings for his first career save.

Having switched from the National League to the AL in the offseason, the Astros earned their first opening day victory since 2006 and the 4,000th regular-season win in franchise history.

Houston is coming off consecutive 100-loss seasons and has the lowest payroll in the majors. But it opened in style wearing spiffy new uniforms that brought back the orange and blue of old-school Astros teams.

revamped Toronto.

All 30 teams will pay tribute to the 20 children and six adults killed last December at the Sandy Hook Elementary School in Newtown, Conn. Players, managers, coaches and umpires will wear a memorial patch through Tuesday that includes the seal of Newtown, a black ribbon and 26 stars, and there will be a moment of silence at each stadium.

NCAA TOURNAMENT

Louisville, Michigan Reach Final Four

ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS • With tears in their eyes and Kevin Ware in their hearts, there was no way Louisville was losing this game.

Russ Smith scored 23, Gorgui Dieng had 14 points, 11 rebounds and four blocks, and top-seeded Louisville put aside the shock from Ware’s gruesome leg injury to earn a second straight trip to the Final Four with an 85-63 victory over Duke on Sunday afternoon.

As the final seconds ticked down, Chane Behanan put Ware’s jersey on and stood at the end of the Louisville bench, screaming. Cardinals fans chanted “Kevin Ware! Kevin Ware!”

“We won this for him,” coach Rick Pitino said. “We were all choked up with emotion for him. We’ll get him back to normal. We’ve got great doctors, great trainers.”

Ware played his high-school ball in Georgia and the Final Four is in Atlanta, just adding to the emotion for the victorious Cardinals.

“We talked about it every timeout, ‘Get Kevin home,’” Pitino said.

Louisville’s Gorgui Dieng (10) blocks a shot by Duke’s Mason Plumlee (5) during the first half of the Midwest Regional final in the NCAA college basketball tournament, on Sunday in Indianapolis.

Led by Burke and sharp-shooting guard Nik Stauskas, one of three freshmen starters, Michigan controlled Florida from start to finish in a 79-59 win Sunday.

“It means the world — 20 years has passed and we haven’t been on that stage yet,” said Tim Hardaway Jr., the junior elder statesman in the starting lineup.

The last time Michigan made it this far was the Fab Five era of the early 1990s, what until now had been considered the program’s glory years.

Louisville Upsets No. 1 Baylor 82-81

OKLAHOMA CITY • Shoni Schimmel scored 22 points and Monique Reid hit two free throws with 2.6 seconds left to lift sixth-seeded Louisville to a stunning 82-81 upset of top-ranked, defending national champion Baylor on Sunday night in the regional semifinals of the NCAA women’s tournament.

Odyssey Sims scored 28 points and hit a pair of free throws with 9.1 seconds left to give the Lady Bears (34-2) their only lead of the game.

Reid caught an inbounds pass near the baseline after that and went coast to coast before getting fouled by All-American Brittney Griner on her way to the basket.

Sims had one last chance to save Baylor’s season after Reid’s free throws but was off-target and late on a desperation heave.

Points Wins the Houston Open

HUMBLE, Texas • D.A. Points came back from a long rain delay and made four pars. The last one gave him a one-shot victory in the Houston Open and sent him to the Masters.

Points closed with a 6-under 66 on Sunday, saving par on the last two holes at Redstone Golf Club to outlast Masters-bound Henrik Stenson and Billy Horschel. The final round was halted for nearly three hours because of storms that soaked the golf course.

Murray Rallies past Ferrer for Sony Open Title

KEY BISCAIYNE, Fla. • Andy Murray has erased a championship point and rallied past David Ferrer 2-6, 6-4, 7-6 (1) in the final of the Sony Open.

One point from defeat in the last set, Murray skipped a forehand off the far baseline to stay in the match Sunday. He then dominated the tiebreaker, while Ferrer appeared to cramp and collapsed to the court after one rally.

Crosby Out Indefinitely with Broken Jaw

PITTSBURGH • The Pittsburgh Penguins say Sidney Crosby has a broken jaw and is out indefinitely after being hit in the mouth with a puck in a win against the New York Islanders.

The Penguins said on the team website Sunday that Crosby had surgery Saturday night, and there will be an update on his status later in the week.

Crosby, the NHL’s leading scorer, was struck in the face with a puck in the first period of the Penguins’ 2-0 win on Saturday. The team said Crosby also had “major dental work” and will have more work done later in the week.

The Penguins have won 15 straight games, and next play Buffalo on Tuesday.

Oxford Beats Cambridge in University Boat Race

LONDON • Oxford won the annual university Boat Race on Sunday, beating defending champion Cambridge by 1½ lengths to reverse last year’s result.

With an estimated 250,000 people lining the banks of the River Thames in freezing conditions, the heavier Oxford crew featuring two Olympians from the 2012 London Games never trailed on the 4 1/4-mile course.

It cut Cambridge’s overall lead to 81-77 in one of England’s oldest and most prestigious sporting events. The event was calmer this year in southwest London. Last year, an Oxford crew member collapsed in his boat after the finish. Also, the race was disrupted by a protester who jumped into the water and swam between the boats.

Bolt Wins 150-meter Race at Copacabana Beach

RIO DE JANEIRO • Usain Bolt started his season by winning a 150-meter race on a track set up at Copacabana beach in Rio de Janeiro on Sunday.

Bolt cruised to victory in 14.42 seconds, falling short of the world-best mark of 14.35 he set on the streets of Manchester in 2009.

“I’m feeling good and more confident this year,” said Vierstra, who was the top cowgirl in District VI in 2012. “But I need to get stronger in barrels and team roping. Team roping is my weakest event. My partner, Raylee Reeves, is a really good header so I need to be a better heeler.”

Rupert freshman Hallee Hitt, has gathered enough points (75) to place herself in the sixth spot in the overall standings and is the current top rookie girl. She added 42 points over the weekend. Hitt and Jordan Laroque from Minico clicked for a win in team roping on Friday and a fourth on Saturday. She also finished third and fourth in breakaway, seventh and eighth in barrels, and ninth and tenth in goats.

“The hardest part about competing in high school is that I’m the puppy competing with the big dogs,” said Hitt. “It’s kinda scary being a rookie. I have to remember to keep a positive attitude and not over analyze or it can cause me to have a panic attack. There are good runs and bad runs.”

Is the rookie nervous about the high school competition?

“Yes, but it’s good to be a little nervous,” said Hitt. “It

Surretty was able to keep stay close with a win and a third in steer wrestling and a second and sixth in team roping with twin brother, Cody for a weekend total of 32 points.

Kimberly sophomore Derek Wadsworth had a pair of wins on Saturday riding Rehab for 59 points to win the bull riding and made a solid steer wrestling best run of 8.97 seconds.

“Not that the story need be long, but it will take a long while to make it short.”

One aspect of constructive bidding that frequently challenges beginners is the idea that when you have shown extra shape in the auction, you are then not obligated to continue showing the same feature of your hand. Instead, as in today’s deal, once you have shown spades and diamonds, as South, and partner has suggested heart length and strength, why not try no-trump?

As you can see, trying for nine tricks in no-trump might have been the easiest way to bring home a game today, but South elected to rebid diamonds at his third turn, and soon found himself in the perfectly reasonable contract of five diamonds — doubled by East on general suspicion rather than anything else. Against the suit game, West kicked off with the club nine. East took the ace and returned the suit, South’s queen winning. The main danger to the contract now was the threat of a club ruff.

To sidestep the danger, declarer cashed the spade ace and ruffed a spade. The fall of East’s jack simplified the play. Declarer threw the club king on the heart ace, then played the diamond king. East took his ace and played a club. However, South simply ruffed high, drew trump, and claimed.

Even if the spade jack had not fallen, declarer would have been decently placed by relying on a 4-3 spade break.

ANSWER: This is a close decision. Should you lead the club queen to play for ruffs or to set up partner’s suit, or a relatively passive spade, looking not to give anything away? With a seven-count, you know your side has half the deck, which argues for going passive. You can always be a hero tomorrow.

Today is Monday, April 1, the 91st day of 2013. There are 274 days left in the year. This is April Fool's Day.

Today's Highlight:

On April 1, 1789, the U.S. House of Representatives held its first full meeting in New York; Frederick Muhlenberg of Pennsylvania was elected the first House speaker.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1853, Cincinnati, Ohio, established a fire department made up of paid city employees.

In 1912, the city of Branson, Mo., was incorporated.

In 1933, Nazi Germany staged a daylong national boycott of Jewish-owned businesses.

In 1939, the United States recognized the government of Gen. Francisco Franco in Spain, the same day Franco went on radio to declare victory in the Spanish Civil War.

In 1945, American forces launched the amphibious invasion of Okinawa during World War II.

In 1962, the Katherine Anne Porter novel "Ship of Fools," an allegory about the rise of Nazism in Germany, was published by Little, Brown & Co. on April Fool's Day.

In 1963, New York City's daily newspapers resumed publishing after settlement was reached in a 114-day strike. The daytime drama "General Hospital" premiered on ABC-TV.

In 1972, the first Major League Baseball players' strike began; it lasted 12 days.

In 1976, Apple Computer was founded by Steve Jobs, Steve Wozniak and Ronald Wayne.

In 1983, tens of thousands of anti-nuclear demonstrators linked arms in a 14-mile human chain spanning three defense installations in rural England, including the Greenham Common U.S. Air Base.

In 1984, recording star Marvin Gaye was shot to death by his father, Marvin Gay (cq) Sr. in Los Angeles, the day before his 45th birthday. (The elder Gay pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter, and received probation.)

In 1992, the National Hockey League Players' Association went on its first-ever strike, which lasted 10 days.

Ten years ago: American troops entered a hospital in Nasiriyah, Iraq, and rescued Army Pfc. Jessica Lynch, who'd been held prisoner since her unit was ambushed on March 23. A Cuban plane hijacked the day before with 32 people aboard landed at Key West, Fla., where the hijacker surrendered.

Five years ago: The Pentagon made public a legal memo dated March 14, 2003 that approved the use of harsh interrogation techniques against terror suspects, saying that President George W. Bush's wartime authority trumped any international ban on torture. (The memo was rescinded in December 2003.) Top executives of the country's five biggest oil companies told a skeptical Congress they knew record fuel prices were hurting people, but argued it wasn't their fault and that their huge profits were in line with other industries.

One year ago: A coalition of more than 70 partners, including the United States, pledged to send millions of dollars and communications equipment to Syria's opposition groups. Myanmar's democracy icon, Aung San Suu Kyi (ahng sahn soo chee), was elected to her country's parliament. Former Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid died at age 77. Taylor Swift won her second consecutive entertainer of the year award at the Academy of Country Music Awards.

DEAR READERS: It's April Fools' Day, the day on which I share some offbeat letters and examples of readers' efforts to pull my leg. It's all in fun — so enjoy!

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married almost 10 years. He has always been a good husband, but recently he has been coming home increasingly late. He says he's putting in overtime.

The other day when I was doing the laundry, I discovered a red stain on his underwear. He said they were painting the bathroom at work and he had gotten paint on it when he used the facilities, but it looks more like lipstick to me.

Can you tell me how to get the lipstick out of his shorts?

— GOOD HOUSEWIFE

DEAR GOOD HOUSEWIFE: There's more to marriage than getting whiter whites. You may be a great housewife, but you're missing the big picture. More important than getting the lipstick out of his shorts is keeping his shorts away from the lipstick. And that's no joke.

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend just moved in, and we're going to have a party to celebrate. We have decided to have it here, but the problem is we have just one bathroom.

I think we should rent a porta-potty. We could put it in the hallway next to the dining room. My girlfriend thinks that's tacky, but I think it's a sensible solution. Because this is a fourth-floor walk-up, the porta-potty folks may charge extra to deliver it. Advice, please?

— TOM AND NANCY

DEAR TOM AND NANCY: Gladly. CHARGE for the use of the porta-potty and two things will happen: You will make enough money to reimburse yourself for the delivery cost, and so few guests will accept your invitations in the future that your one bathroom will be able to accommodate them.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I and our teenage son came home from a family get-together, and after he went to bed, my wife told me she wants to get a new, "bouncier" bed. We don't want to wake up our son with the noise of our enjoying it. What kind of bed do you recommend?

— MR. ROMANCE

DEAR MR. ROMANCE: Forget the bed and buy a trampoline. And if your son asks why, tell him you're training to join the circus.

DEAR ABBY: How can I give my boyfriend makeup sex if we never have an argument?

— MISS BLISS

DEAR MISS BLISS: That's a good question. If you figure out the answer, let me know.

DEAR ABBY: I am a married man dating a married woman. She's the love of my life. My girlfriend is sweet, kind, has a caring heart and is very much a lady.

We often sneak away for romantic weekends, where we laugh and enjoy being together and forget our daily routines. Sometimes I'll stop and watch her while she shops or talks to people and admire how beautiful she is. The twinkle in her eyes is as close as I can get to the stars in the sky. I adore her and plan to be with her for the rest of my life.

And one more thing: My girlfriend is also my bride of 40 years!

— ONE LUCKY GUY

DEAR LUCKY GUY: Normally I'd advise you to try to turn your wife into the love of your life, but you're ahead of me!

IF APRIL 1 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Since dynamic Uranus is traveling through your part of the cosmic pie the upcoming year could be exciting. During the next eight to 12 weeks, you may be fascinated by new people and ideas. Go ahead and experiment, but avoid making drastic or permanent changes. Some people and things will either lose their appeal or drift away in the future. Wait until July, when your street smarts are at a peak, to make crucial financial decisions. Hold off until October to interview for new jobs or to make a romantic commitment. October is when your popularity is at an apex and when people are more likely to trust you and appreciate your true worth.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Step up the pace. As business matters fall into place with relative ease throughout the day, you find more time for amorous pursuits in the evening. Don't waste opportunities to meet exciting new contacts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A slight effort now yields huge rewards later. Take advantage of some inside information by acting on it right away. Being kind and compassionate to those in need will be repaid in the future.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): It's all in the attitude. You set the mood in your office by whistling while you work or by being gloomy. A relationship may change for the better or a search for romance may yield better than average results.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Don't stifle creativity. You are in your element when thinking outside the box and approaching problems from unorthodox perspectives. There's no obstacle you can't conquer if you simply think.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): It's always darkest before the dawn. The monotony and boredom of the day will be a sharp contrast to the excitement that waits in the evening. Let a close friend or romantic partner guide you to an adventure.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Let the social butterfly within you spread its wings. The more people you reach today the more you can win over with your charms. Use taste and common sense when making purchasing decisions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Listen carefully to hear the sweet sounds of bliss. While romantic moments may not be perfect, you'll be in far too good of a mood to notice any flaws. Write down ideas, lest they be lost forever.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Nothing lasts forever. Your financial situation is about to undergo a subtle change, but nothing that minor tweaking can't fix. Long-term plans may need to be altered slightly, but avoid drastic changes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A penny saved is a penny earned. Find simple, painless ways to cut spending. You may not become rich overnight — but over time, those pennies add up. The best solution is often the simplest one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't place limits on your dreams. If you want something passionately enough, there's no reason you shouldn't strive to have it. Brainstorming with a close friend may yield the answers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't look a gift horse in the mouth. You shouldn't let a lucrative opportunity that will fall into your lap go to waste. Making a major purchase could be considered, but only if the item is worthwhile.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Keep the faith. Stay the course with your current plans and have confidence that you'll achieve the optimum results and that those you depend upon will come through for you. Take all advice to heart.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
