Police Release Name of Woman Who Died in Jerome Fire

TIMES-NEWS

JEROME • The Jerome Police Department has released the name of the woman who died at Thursday’s reported fire.

According to police, Wanda Black, 67, of Jerome, died from the incident.

Both Jerome fire and police departments were dispatched to Heritage Homes, 100 N. Fillmore St., around 6:20 p.m. due to a reported fire and possible explosion. When officials arrived on the scene, the fire was already out and there was no evidence of an explosion.

The incident is still under investigation. However, police say information so far indicates that the event was accidental and foul play is not suspected.

SAFETY IN SCHOOL

BY ALISON GENE SMITH

TWIN FALLS • The tragedy of the children killed at Sandy Hook Elementary School in Newtown, Conn., has put school safety in the spotlight, both locally and nationally, but police and educators say they’ve had evolving plans to protect students for decades.

School shootings in the 1990s spurred police across the nation to coordinate their response efforts with schools.

In Twin Falls, Staff Sgt. Dennis Pullin said he was at a school safety training seminar when the shooting in Columbine, Colo., happened.

“Because of Columbine, we learned about what to do and what not to do,” Pullin said.

Pullin supervises the Twin Falls police school resource officer program. Four other officers are assigned to schools in Twin Falls: one at each high school and one at each middle school. The officers pay visits to and respond when requested to the elementary and alternative schools in the Twin Falls School District.

School resource officers often become a role model, mentor, teacher, law enforcer and counselor, Pullin said. The officers work to build a friendly relationship with students and be a figure students can trust.

At the April 8 City Council meeting in Twin Falls, police made a presentation on their school safety plans. Capt. Matt Hicks shared some of what the department learned, like the fact that there’s no solid profile for school shooters and that working on “what if” scenarios

Safety At CSI

In order to improve safety on its campus, the College of Southern Idaho recently created a new public safety director position. That position was filled by Jim Ellington, who previously coordinated CSI’s uniformed security.

Ellington said his background is in threat assessment. He’s worked for federal and state security. In his new position, Ellington said, he looks forward to enhancing the relationship between CSI security and Twin Falls Police. He’ll also be working on security at off-campus facilities in Jerome, Hailey, Gooding and Burley.

“How can we make CSI and its outreach centers less of an attractive target?” Ellington said.

Part of that is transitioning from a response program to a prevention program, he said.

“To me, a good security program is like a good insurance policy,” Ellington said.

Part of that program is encour-

Twin Falls Sheriff’s Office Investigates Dog Deaths

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls County Sheriff’s Office is investigating the discovery of four dog bodies south of Twin Falls on the last weekend in March.

After a passerby reported the dogs to the Humane Society of the United States, the organization contacted the sheriff’s office, according to a sheriff’s news release. An animal control deputy retrieved the dogs’ remains.

The Humane Society provided the funds to perform necropsies on all four animals in Boise, according to the news release.

Anyone with information is asked to contact the Twin Falls County Sheriff’s Office at 208-736-4000 or SIRCOMM at 208-735-1911.

Idaho Students Gather for FFA Conference

Samantha Woods, 16, from Homedale, goes up to give reasons on why horses place where they do Thursday during the Idaho FFA State Leadership Conference at CSI in Twin Falls.

TWIN FALLS • The second floor of the Taylor Building on the College of Southern Idaho campus was abuzz with activity Friday afternoon as teens from across the state readied themselves for the next event.

More than 2,000 FFA members and guests from across Idaho visited the college for a three-day FFA State Leadership Conference. Events wrap up today. Those who come out on top will travel to Louisville, Ky., in October for a national competition.

While many students visited the cafeteria during a lunch break, others, such as four students from the Gooding FFA chapter, sat in the hallways and quizzed each other about floral and nursery subjects, the topic of their next competition.

Each four-person team competed with other chapters for points. In the floral and nursery category, students were tested on plant identification, landscape plans and transplanting.

“There’s definitely a lot to know,” said 16-year-old Brianna Reed.

Her high school FFA classes helped her not only to learn about plants, but a host of other topics related to the ag industry. She said she learned developmental skills that can help her in the career she decides to pursue. Public speaking, reaching out to meet new

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stocks End a Four-day Advance as Energy Slides

NEW YORK (AP) • A four-day surge in the stock market came to an end on Friday as falling commodity prices brought down energy and mining companies. Signs of a slowing economy rattled commodity markets. The price of crude oil dropped 2 percent to $91 a barrel as weak U.S. economic reports followed forecasts for weaker oil demand. Gold plunged $64 to $1,501 an ounce, reaching its lowest level since July 2011. One trigger for the latest plunge was a government report that U.S. wholesale prices fell the most in 10 months in March.

ASK ST. LUKE'S

Frequent Bathroom Visits Could Be Symptoms of an Enlarged Prostate

I am a 50-year-old male and recently have had to go to the bathroom more often, especially at night. Could this be due to an enlarged prostate?

— Sam, Filer

Yes. BPH (benign prostatic hypertrophy) is a common condition in men, especially as we age. BPH is commonly referred to as an enlarged prostate. As men mature, the prostate grows. Around puberty, the prostate will double in size, and then around the age of 25 the prostate begins to grow again. This enlargement rarely causes symptoms before the age of 40 but commonly causes symptoms in men thereafter.

Symptoms of an enlarged prostate include a hesitant, interrupted or slow urine stream. Men can also have urinary urgency or leaking of urine with this condition. Also common is the need for frequent urination, especially at night. In some cases BPH can cause incomplete bladder emptying and urinary tract infections. BPH can be diagnosed with a visit with your doctor, and you may be referred to a urologist for further evaluation. A history is taken and a digital rectal exam is usually performed at these visits. Noninvasive urine tests may also be performed to help with diagnosis.

There are many different treatment options for an enlarged prostate. These include both medical and surgical options. Medical therapy is usually the first option considered, and several different surgical options are available to those needing further treatment.

BPH is a very treatable condition. Contact your primary care physician or urologist to discuss what options may be right for you.

High Wind Warnings Expected Saturday

Today will definitely not be as nice as Friday, with a weather system affecting southern Idaho. Clouds will be on the increase with a chance of rain showers for the Magic Valley and rain and snow mixing in the mountains and higher elevations. The storm system will also bring very windy conditions to the area with winds gusting as high as 40 mph across the Magic Valley. Wind advisories and high wind warnings have been issued for the day on Saturday for most of the Magic Valley.

Temperatures will be cooler on Sunday as the cold front moves through, bringing an end to the rain. It will remain breezy on Sunday with winds gusting up to 30 mph at times through the afternoon.

We will see a brief break in the stormy weather on Monday with mostly sunny skies. But another weather system will bring more rain and snow back to the forecast on Tuesday. Temperatures will warm up and conditions will dry out by the middle to end of next week.

ONLINE: Join My Spring Wildflower Watch

Times-News journalists blog on their outdoor adventures – and yours – at “Trails & Tales.” The latest entry is from Virginia Hutchins. Here’s an excerpt:

“Something yellow on the desert, something purple, something pink, and suddenly I’m deliriously happy about the start of a new wildflower season. “I’m armed with my third edition of A. Scott Earle’s ‘Idaho Mountain Wildflowers,’ and I have two – maybe four – blooms identified to start off my 2013 spring wildflower watch. “Yes, I know I’m just an excited amateur here. But I’m hoping you’ll help me by sharing the word when you spot southern Idaho’s wildflower blooms beginning this spring. Tell me what and where. Give me details. “As the sun rose yesterday morning, I was on the desert east of Magic Reservoir with volunteer sage grouse counter Bill Benkula and freelance photographer Ed Glazar, looking for grouse leks. Meadowlarks were singing like crazy, and antelope were watching us from several directions. And at my feet: a profusion of tiny violets, each with three white petals and two dark purple. “I couldn’t find that violet in Earle’s second edition – here on my desk – but I did find the yellow bells and leafy bluebells that I’d sketched in my notebook as Benkula paused to check his GPS. ... I’d really like to hear about the wildflowers you spot this spring and where you’re seeing them. Email me photos and descriptions at vhutchins@magicvalley.com ...”

Everything You Need to Know to Survive Tax Day

mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • April 15 is approaching quickly, meaning you have only three days to file your taxes.

Caught off-guard? Here’s what you need to know.

If I’m Filing My Taxes Myself, Where Can I Go with Questions?

Visit irs.gov, or head to the Idaho State Tax Commission Twin Falls Office at 440 Falls Ave. They’re open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. You can also give them a call at 800-972-7660.

Is It too late to Get Help Filing My Taxes?

No. If you’re an individual or small business owner with a fairly straight-forward tax return, you can go to a tax preparer, said Sarah Krause, manager at Liberty Tax Services in Twin Falls. If you have a more complex tax filing, such as multiple exemptions, Krause recommends heading to an accountant. Accountants are better equipped to navigate things like exemptions and sorting through multiple receipts, she said. (If you have to go to an accountant this late, you’ll likely have to file for an extension, said Deborah Silver of Hayes & Silver CPAs in Twin Falls. Most accountants are booked solid right now.)

What Are the Post Office Hours?

Magic Valley post offices aren’t open late. But if you can’t get there before close, don’t worry. While Twin Falls doesn’t have extended post office hours, the lobby at the Fairfield Street office will be open after the post office closes, said postmaster John Wiest. In the lobby, you’ll find an automated postal center with everything you need to file taxes. As long as it’s in by midnight Monday, you’re in good shape. To look up your local post office hours, visit usps.com.

How Much Time Should I Plan to Wait in Line at the Post Office?

If recent years give any indication, don’t worry about the long lines that used to define tax day. In April 2012, then-postmaster Bill Reese told the Times-News the post office has seen a decrease in tax day traffic, largely because of online filing and professional tax filing services.

How Much Time Should I set Aside for a Tax Preparer?

Krause of Liberty Tax Services said a simple form can take 20 minutes, while a more complex filing can take between 30 to 45 minutes. Liberty Tax Services takes drop-in appointments, Krause said, but if you’re truly procrastinating, call ahead to make sure they have time for you. You can also drop off your information and pick it up later. And definitely call ahead before heading to an accountant.

What Happens if I Can’t File By April 15?

You can file for an extension. Go to irs.gov and look for Form 4868. That gives you until Oct. 15 to file, though you must still estimate the amount you owe and pay that amount on time.

What Happens if I Don’t Have the Money to Pay My Taxes?

File an extension, said Deborah Silver of Hayes & Silver CPAs in Twin Falls. The penalty for not filing at all is higher than the penalty for filing for an extension and not paying on time.

Avalanche Control Worker Killed in Slide

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • Authorities on Friday were investigating a fatal avalanche involving a backcountry professional who deployed a special air bag but didn't survive a snow slide in the Wasatch mountains east of Salt Lake City.

Craig Patterson of Park City was a veteran backcountry skier for the Utah Department of Transportation since 2006. He was scouting terrain Thursday for avalanche danger in Big Cottonwood Canyon.

Officials for UDOT and the Utah Avalanche Center were at a slope under 10,403-foot Kessler Peak on a divide between Big and Little Cottonwood canyons, home to four of Utah's resorts including Alta and Snowbird.

Patterson, 34, was among eight backcountry professionals for UDOT who climb mountains on skis and drop explosives to set off avalanches, usually early in the morning before ski resorts open. They also fire cannon shells from fixed positions, working round-the-clock shifts to keep slides from endangering motorists on canyon roads.

"It's a big responsibility," UDOT spokesman Adam Carrillo said Friday. "They don't take it lightly, and a lot of times they end up going out on their own because there's a lot of terrain to cover."

Patterson's body was recovered just before 1 a.m. Friday.

A French supporter of the Indian cause, who refused to give his name, left, holds a flag of the American Indian Movement and an American exchange student, member of the Arizona's Hopi tribe, Bo Lomahquahu, stand outside the Drouot's auction house to protest the auction of Native American Hopi tribe masks Friday in Paris.

Hopi Mask Sale Draws Protests

PARIS (AP) • In a chaotic auction repeatedly interrupted by protests, dozens of Native American tribal masks were sold Friday after a French court ignored the objections of the Hopi tribe and the U.S. government.

The total tally was $1.2 million, with the most expensive, the "Mother Crow," selling for $209,000 — more than three times the pre-sale estimate.

Of the 70 masks up for sale, one was bought by an association to give back to the Hopis, the Drouot auction house said.

Advocates for the Hopi tribe had argued in court the masks have special status and are not art — they represent their dead ancestors' spirits. The Hopis, a Native American tribe whose territory is surrounded by Arizona, nurture the masks as if they are the living dead.

But the auctioneer insisted any move to block the sale could have broad repercussions for the art market in general and potentially force French museums to empty their collections of indigenous works.

The Katsinam, or "friends," masks made up nearly all of the 70 lots that went on display at the auction house, offering a rare public glimpse of such works in Europe. The masks are surreal faces made from wood, leather, horse hair and feathers, and painted in vivid pigments of red, blue, yellow and orange.

They date to the late 19th century and early 20th century, and are thought to have been taken from a reservation in northern Arizona in the 1930s and 1940s.

Hopi representatives contend the items were stolen at some point, and wanted the auction house to prove otherwise.

As the auction got under way two and a half hours after the court ruling, Jo Beranger, a 52-year-old French filmmaker, yelled as auctioneers showed a 1970s image of a Hopi leader in tribal beads and holding a mask.

Beranger, told The Associated Press that the Hopi leader had since died, and it was "a scandal" and "shameful" that he was shown.

Mont. Growers See Farm-to-table Trend

KALISPELL, Mont. (AP) • The farm-to-table movement is growing across the Flathead Valley and Northwest Montana. That's the takeaway from a panel at the Kalispell Chamber of Commerce's monthly luncheon on March 26 at the Red Lion Hotel, which included representatives from the local food industry.

More than 200 people attended the event to dine on local food and hear a progress report from area food producers, including Lower Valley Processing, Kalispell Creamery and the Western Montana Growers Cooperative. Representatives from Kalispell Public Schools and Kalispell Regional Healthcare were also present.

"The farm-to-table movement is beyond trending now. It's becoming more and more popular in our community," said chamber president Joe Unterreiner. "I think people understand that there is a demand for local products."

According to a local food map distributed by the chamber, there are more than 50 farms, orchards and dairies producing and selling across the Flathead Valley. One of the largest is Kalispell Creamery. The creamery opened in 2010 and is now selling its un-homogenized, all natural milk as far as Missoula and Bozeman. Owner Mary Tuck said events like the one hosted by the chamber can help local producers meet consumers and advocate for their industries.

"It's not just about promoting my product, but promoting the local food movement," Tuck said.

Immigration Bill Could Exclude Many

WASHINGTON (AP) • A promised path to citizenship for the 11 million immigrants in the U.S. illegally may leave out hundreds of thousands of them.

Bipartisan Senate legislation would make legalization and ultimately citizenship available only to those who arrived in the U.S. before Dec. 31, 2011, according to a Senate aide with knowledge of the proposals. Anyone who came after that date would be subject to deportation.

The bill, expected to be introduced next week, also would require applicants to document that they were in the country before the cutoff date, have a clean criminal record and show enough employment or financial stability that they're likely to stay off welfare, said the aide, who spoke on condition of anonymity because the proposals had not been made public.

Although the immigration of undocumented workers to the U.S. has been dropping, tens of thousands of people still arrive annually, so the cutoff date alone could exclude a large number of people.

The aide said hundreds of thousands could be excluded overall. That came as a disappointment to immigrant rights groups that had been hoping that anyone here as of the date of enactment of the bill could be able to become eligible for citizenship.

Nev. Committee Passes Bill Restricting Tanning

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) • High school students wanting to work on their tan before prom may have to do it the old-fashioned way — under the sun.

The Senate Committee on Commerce, Labor and Energy passed SB267 Friday, which prohibits minors from using tanning salons.

The bill now heads to the Senate for a full vote on the floor.

Originally the bill called for parental consent before a minor could use a tanning salon, but an amendment adopted Friday changed the language.

Salons that do allow minors could face civil liability from parents. They are also required to post signs about the risks of tanning and safeguards patrons should take.

ASSEMBLY ENDS 2 GUN BILLS IN NEVADA

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) • Amanda Collins burst into tears Friday as an Assembly chairman rejected a motion for a vote on a bill allowing people with concealed weapon permits to carry guns on Nevada's higher education campuses.

The same bill was killed in the same manner two years ago. Collins believes the bill would have passed Friday if a vote was allowed.

"All the women who get raped on our campuses, their blood is on his hands," Collins said of Assembly Judiciary Committee Chairman Jason Frierson, D-Las Vegas. "He had an opportunity to prevent that."

AB143 proposed allowing people with a concealed weapons permit to carry firearms on higher education campuses. An amendment to the bill limited that ability to students attending evening classes and allowed school officials to set regulations governing concealed guns in campus housing.

After the meeting, Frierson told reporters that two gun bills were not considered for votes because neither had enough support to clear the committee of 12.

US Stresses Limits of North Korea’s Nuclear Firepower

WASHINGTON (AP) • On the brink of an expected North Korean missile test, U.S. officials focused on the limits of Pyongyang’s nuclear firepower Friday, trying to shift attention from the disclosure that the North Koreans might be able to launch a nuclear strike. They insisted that while the unpredictable government might have rudimentary nuclear capabilities, it has not proved it has a weapon that could reach the United States.

A senior defense official said the U.S. sees a “strong likelihood” that North Korea will launch a test missile in coming days in defiance of international calls for restraint. The effort is expected to test the North’s ballistic missile technologies, not a nuclear weapon, said the official, who was granted anonymity to discuss intelligence matters.

Unless the missile unexpectedly heads for a U.S. or allied target, the Pentagon does not plan to try to shoot it down, several officials said. As a precaution, the U.S. has arrayed in the Pacific a number of missile defense Navy ships, tracking radars and other elements of its worldwide network for shooting down hostile missiles.

The tensions playing out on the Korean peninsula are the latest in a long-running drama that dates to the 1950-53 Korean War, fed by the North’s conviction that Washington is intent on destroying the government in Pyongyang and Washington’s worry that the North could, out of desperation, reignite the war by invading the South.

NAVY COMMANDER FACES EXPULSION FOLLOWING AFFAIR

GROTON, Conn. (AP) • A former submarine commander who faked his death to end an extramarital affair knows he made a terrible mistake and has apologized, and the Navy shouldn’t throw away his talent and training, his lawyer said Friday at a hearing to determine whether he will be expelled from the service.

A lieutenant acting as a prosecutor countered that there’s no place in the Navy for a man with the character of Cmdr. Michael P. Ward II. Ward, a married 43-year-old, sent his mistress in Virginia an email in July posing as a fictitious co-worker named Bob and saying Ward had died unexpectedly, a Navy investigation found. Ward was relieved of his duties aboard the USS Pittsburgh in August, a week after he’d taken command, and has received a letter of reprimand for adultery and other military violations.

Several officers gave testimony to a panel of three officers at the Naval Submarine Base in Groton who will decide whether Ward should stay in the Navy and at what rank.

Putin Builds Space-Weapon; Targets Mars, Moon

BY ILYA ARKHIPOV
Bloomberg News

BLAGOVESHCHENSK, Russia • Russia is building a system to neutralize space weapons as it prepares to send a man to Mars and build a permanent moon base, President Vladimir Putin and members of his government said Friday.

Russia will have the technical means by 2030 to counteract threats from space by other countries, Deputy Prime Minister Dmitry Rogozin said at a government meeting near the country’s new cosmodrome in the Far East. Until then, Russia will continue to expand its orbital capabilities to monitor potential threats and prevent rocket attacks, Rogozin said.

Putin said he’s considering creating a space ministry to oversee the industry. Russia, which put the first man into space, Yuri Gagarin, 52 years ago, plans to spend $52 billion on its space industry in 2013-2020, including completing the Vostochny cosmodrome near the border with China. Russia currently uses the Soviet-era Baikonur base in Kazakhstan for manned missions. The new facility is on schedule to handle its first rocket launch by 2015.

3 TEENS ARRESTED AFTER CALIFORNIA GIRL’S SUICIDE

SARATOGA, Calif. (AP) • Eight days after being sexually assaulted while passed out at a party, and then humiliated by online photos, 15-year-old Audrie Pott posted on Facebook that her life was ruined, “worst day ever,” and hanged herself, the family’s lawyer said.

For the next eight months, her family struggled to figure out what happened to their soccer loving, artistic, horse crazy daughter, whose gentle smile, long dark hair and shining eyes belied a struggling soul. And then on Thursday, seven months after the tragedy, a California sheriff’s office arrested three 16-year-old boys on suspicion of sexual battery. The arrests “reopened a wound” for family members of Pott, and they have gone into seclusion, family attorney Robert Allard said.

cause they are minors. Details about the assault were also not released. Cardoza said the suspects were booked into juvenile hall and face two felonies and one misdemeanor each.

The lieutenant said the arrests were the result of information gathered by his agency’s Saratoga High School resource officers. He said the investigation is ongoing, and Los Gatos police also continue looking into the girl’s September suicide. The Associated Press does not routinely identify victims of sexual assault. But in this case, Pott’s family wanted her name and case known, Allard said. The family also provided a photo to the AP.

The girl’s family members have not commented and have requested privacy until a planned news conference Tuesday. Her father and stepmother, Lawrence and Lisa Pott, along with her mother Sheila Pott, have started the Audrie Pott Foundation to provide music and art scholarships and offer youth counseling and support.

The foundation website alludes to the teen’s struggles, but until now neither law enforcement, school officials nor family have discussed the sexual assault.

“She was compassionate about life, her friends, her family, and would never do anything to harm anyone,” the site says. “She was in the process of developing the ability to cope with the cruelty of this world but had not quite figured it all out.

“Ultimately, she had not yet acquired the antibiotics to deal with the challenges present for teens in today’s society.” Two days after Pott died, fellow students and staff at her high school wore her favorite color, teal, in her honor.

Lincoln Impersonators Rub Elbows in Ohio

COLUMBUS (AP) • John Cooper’s obsession with being Abraham Lincoln began one score and five years ago. Its beginnings were humble.

Tall, lean and bearded, the Ohio man already bore a passing resemblance to the Rail Splitter, or so he was told. One Halloween he donned a frock coat he found in his mother’s attic, and his wife fashioned a stovepipe hat out of cardboard. A little spray paint on his beard, and he was ready for trick or treat with the kids.

He was so convincing that before long he was invited to come to schools in costume around Presidents Day. Then people started paying him to show up at their events in character to talk about the 16th president.

The rest is history.

But honestly, this is a huge weekend for the 62-year-old Cooper, who is helping to host a gathering of impersonators of the Great Emancipator in Columbus.

The 19th annual convention of the Association of Lincoln Presenters has attracted around three dozen Abes in chin beards and full regalia, along with 30 or so Mary Todd Lincolns and various other Civil War-era figures, including Gen. Ulysses S. Grant.

“I tell people I think we hold this convention just so we can run around in our costumes all weekend,” says Cooper, a retired Defense Department parts manager.

In Columbus, the Lincoln impersonators will walk where he walked — and where he lay in state after he was assassinated in 1865. Lincoln gave speeches at the Ohio Statehouse in 1859 and 1861, and his casket rested in the building’s rotunda for six hours on its way from Washington back to Illinois for burial. More than 50,000 stood in line to pay their respects.

GOP Should Just Say No to Legalizing Drugs

BY PETER WEHNER
Special to The Washington Post

“Individuals and families need support in society and the public arena. Today, many parents rightly believe the culture is against them. Government policies should stand with responsible parents and under no circumstances actively undermine them.”

EDITORIAL ART BY TREVOR PETERSEN •
TIMES-NEWS

Some say that the Republican Party needs to find new issues to champion if it hopes to become America’s major party. There is something to this. But being a conservative party, the GOP should also look to the past, where wisdom often resides.

In that spirit, Republicans once again should take a strong stand against drug use and legalization. Virtually no lawmaker in either party is doing so.

For his part, President Barack Obama has said more about the NCAA men’s basketball bracket than he has about the dangers posed by illegal drugs. Gil Kerlikowske, the president’s “drug czar,” said last month, “The administration has not done a particularly good job of, one, talking about marijuana as a public health issue, and number two, talking about what can be done and where we should be headed on our drug policy.”

This is a startling admission, and there is a cost to abdication.

The drug-legalization movement is well-funded and making inroads. Voters in Washington state and Colorado passed ballot initiatives in November legalizing marijuana for recreational use. A bill to legalize marijuana was introduced in the Maryland House of Delegates last month. And Democrats in Congress have introduced legislation to end federal prohibitions on marijuana use.

This is the perfect time for Republicans to offer counterarguments grounded in medical science, common sense and human experience.

For example: One of the main deterrents to drug use is because it is illegal. If drugs become legal, their price will go down and use will go up. And marijuana is far more potent than in the past. Studies have shown that adolescents and young adults who are heavy users of marijuana suffer from disrupted brain development and cognitive processing problems.

Drug legalization will lead to more cases of addiction, which shatters lives. The vast majority of people who are addicted to harder drugs started by using marijuana. John Walters, the drug czar in the George W. Bush administration, noted last year, “Legalization has been tried in various forms, and every nation that has tried it has reversed course sooner or later.”

Strong, integrated anti-drug policies have had impressive success in the United States. Both marijuana and cocaine use are down significantly from their peak use in the 1970s and ’80s.

So the policy arguments against drug legalization are all there; they simply need to be deployed.

But there is another, deeper set of arguments to be made.

In his dialogues, Plato taught that no man is a citizen alone. Individuals and families need support in society and the public arena. Today, many parents rightly believe the culture is against them. Government policies should stand with responsible parents and under no circumstances actively undermine them. Drug legalization would do exactly that. It would send an unmistakable signal to everyone, including the young: Drug use is not a big deal. We’re giving up. Have at it.

In taking a strong stand against drug use and legalization, Republicans would align themselves with parents, schools and communities in the great, urgent task of any civilization: protecting children and raising them to become responsible adults.

But the argument against drug legalization can go even further. As the late social scientist James Q. Wilson noted, many people cite the “costs” of and “socioeconomic factors” behind drug use; rarely do people say that drug use is wrong because it is morally problematic, because of what it can do to mind and soul. Indeed, in some liberal and libertarian circles, the “language of morality” is ridiculed. It is considered unenlightened, benighted and simplistic. The role of the state is to maximize individual liberty and be indifferent to human character.

This is an impossible stance to sustain. The law is a moral teacher, for well or ill, and self-government depends on certain dispositions and civic habits. The shaping of human character is preeminently overwhelming the task of parents, schools, religious institutions and civic groups. But government can play a role. Republicans should prefer that it be a constructive one, which is why they should speak out forcefully and intelligently against drug legalization.

Bush administration and special assistant to the director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy during the George H.W. Bush administration.

JEERS to the family that could be ruining it for all of us. Richard and Melinda Armstrong of Caldwell are suing the U.S. Forest Service for $1 million after a dead tree fell and injured their son in the Boise National Forest. A gust of wind blew over the tree and the 6-year-old received a puncture wound, laceration and compound fracture. If their suit is successful, how long will it be before we are signing waivers promising to enter the forest at our own risk? We thought that was a given. How long will it be before access to the forest is restricted for liability reasons? According to the family’s complaint, even if the campsite was not considered to be developed, the improvements there, including a fire ring made of rocks, and the Forest Service’s knowledge that it was a place where people camped regularly created a duty for the agency “to take immediate measures to inspect and remove the tree, close the site and/or warn user at the site of the serious risk of injury, death or property damage.”

CHEERS to the Rupert community for honoring and remembering the ultimate sacrifice made by Sgt. Chris J. Workman. The one-year anniversary of Sgt. Workman’s death in the Helmand Province of Afghanistan will be marked at 6 p.m. April 19 at Minico High School. A display case will be dedicated in the foyer of the high school with a commemorative portrait of Workman, his crew and the aircraft. It will also include memorabilia such as Workman’s awards and other items from the soldier’s life. Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, will speak at the event.

Freewill donations to the Sgt. Chris Workman Memorial Scholarship Fund will be accepted and used for military scholarship opportunities for Idaho-based military personnel.

Northern Rockies Wolf Numbers Drop 7 Percent

BY MATTHEW BROWN
Associated Press

BILLINGS, Mont. • Aggressive gray wolf hunting and trapping took a toll in much of the Northern Rockies last year as the predator’s population saw its most significant decline since being reintroduced to the region two decades ago.

Yet state and federal wildlife officials said Friday that the population remains healthy overall, despite worries among some wildlife advocates over high harvest rates. Its range is even expanding in some areas as packs take hold in new portions of eastern Washington state and Oregon.

Overall, biologists tallied a minimum of 1,674 wolves in 321 packs across the six-state Northern Rockies region at the end of 2012. That marks a 7 percent decline.

“We expected the states to bring the population down and that’s what’s been happening,” said Mike Jimenez, wolf recovery coordinator for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. “They are bringing it down gradually.”

Wolf management was turned over to the states when the animals lost their federal protections over the last two years. Hunters and trappers legally killed a combined 570 wolves in Montana, Idaho and Wyoming last year.

State officials in the three states have been adamant about their desire to have fewer wolves on the landscape. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will continue to monitor the species at least until 2016 to ensure they aren’t again wiped out as happened in the early 20th century.

The year-end numbers show Wyoming’s wolf population down 16 percent from 2011, to 277 animals. Montana’s numbers fell 4 percent to 625 and Idaho’s dropped 11 percent to 683.

That was partially offset by population gains in eastern portions of Washington and Oregon, where wolf numbers have been climbing rapidly over the last few years but still remain low compared to other parts of the region.

Oregon now has 46 wolves in the eastern third of the state and Washington 43. Combined, that’s almost double the 2011 numbers.

The government’s original recovery goal, set in the 1990s, was at least 300 wolves across the region.

Despite last year’s decline, the latest figures show the population remains at more than five times that level.

Parts of northern Utah also fall with in the Northern Rockies wolf recovery area, but the state has no wolves.

In Wyoming, wildlife officials this week said the state will halve its quota for the fall hunting season, to 26 animals.

The proposal will be up for public review this spring. It applies only to the state’s trophy game areas for wolves in the northwest corner of the state around Yellowstone and Grand Teton National Parks. Elsewhere in the state wolves are designated as predatory animals that can be shot on sight.

If the population drops below 150 wolves or 15 breeding pairs in the state for three years in a row, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has said it would step in to see if the animals need federal protections restored.

Wyoming Game and Fish spokesman Eric Keszler said the quota reduction is meant to keep that from happening. “While we still want to reduce the number slightly, we want to be conservative in our approach,” he said.

By contrast, in Montana and Idaho, wildlife officials have loosened restrictions on their wolf harvests and pledge to continue driving down wolf numbers to reduce attacks on livestock and big game herds.

Notwithstanding protests from wildlife advocates over the increasingly aggressive tactics hunters can use — including higher bag limits, longer seasons and the use of electronic calls — officials from both states contend they have enough wolves to ensure the species won’t be returned to the endangered list.

Wolf attacks on livestock were up last year, primarily due to large numbers of sheep being killed in a limited number of instances. Confirmed wolf depredations for 2012 included 194 cattle, 470 sheep, and six dogs.

In response to those attacks, wildlife agents and ranchers killed 229 wolves. That figure was up almost 30 percent from the prior year.

Wolves were exterminated across the Lower 48 states last century except in the Great Lakes region.

Prosecutors Say Crackdown Crushed SW Idaho Gang

NAMPA (AP) • Local and federal officials say their organized efforts to crack down on the activities of a street gang operating in southwestern Idaho and eastern Oregon have paid big dividends.

Since launching the investigation three years ago, state and federal prosecutors have secured 21 convictions of members of the Brown Magic Clica, a Mexican-American street gang with roots in California. Convictions cover a variety of felonies, including drug trafficking, intimidating witnesses, murder and racketeering charges.

“I think it’s safe to say that the Brown Magic Clica is basically gone from our valley for the time being,” Canyon County Prosecuting Attorney Bryan Taylor said at a press conference Thursday. “Hopefully we can keep them away, and I look forward to working with all of our partners on additional aspects.”

The investigation code-named “Operation Black Magic” began three years ago, focusing on criminal activity between 2006 and 2010. In 2011, the U.S. Attorney’s Office announced the indictments of 30 suspected gang members and quickly began notching convictions.

Court documents show the defendants admitted their gang was involved in conspiring and in some cases committing murder, arson and witness intimidation. The racketeering charges mark the first use of the federal Racketeer Influenced Corrupt Organization, or RICO, case in the state. The convictions at the state level focused primarily on gang recruitment charges.

During the time period examined in the investigation, U.S. Attorney in Idaho Wendy Olson said BMC members committed two murders and attempted seven more. One of these attempts included shooting at a crowd at a child’s baptism party in Payette.

“The multiple convictions of Brown Magic Clica members under the federal RICO statute demonstrate that we will meet the gang business of violence and intimidation with federal tools designed to disrupt this criminal conduct,” Olson said.

Jewell Sworn In as Interior Secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) • Sally Jewell has been sworn in as Interior secretary, replacing Ken Salazar, who stepped down after more than four years as head of the agency responsible for more than 500 million acres of national parks and other public lands.

The 57-year-old Jewell, a former CEO of outdoor retailer Recreational Equipment Inc., won Senate confirmation earlier this week.

She was sworn in Friday at a private ceremony at the Supreme Court. Retired Justice Sandra Day O’Connor administered the oath of office. O’Connor and Jewell worked together on an independent commission that recommended a new vision for the National Park Service.

Salazar, a former Colorado senator, thanked Interior employees for their service Thursday in a 40-second YouTube video.

NORTH LAS VEGAS, Nev. • A southern Nevada pawn gun dealer is auctioning a handgun once owned by a rogue former LAPD officer who killed four people before fatally shooting himself after a manhunt in February.

George Bramlett at Bargain Pawn in North Las Vegas thinks the .38 Special that Christopher Dörner sold him in January might fetch a couple of thousand dollars.

He tells The Associated Press he wants to donate the money to the families of two California police officers Dörner killed.

But administrators handling funds for San Bernardino County Sheriff Deputy Jeremiah MacKay and Riverside police Officer Michael Crain say the families don’t want the money.

Sgt. Brian Smith calls the offer “morbid.”

Already, the bidding is close to $500 for a weapon Bramlett says is probably worth $250 to $300.

Otter Vetoes Bill to Divert Funds to Wolf Control

BY HANNAH FURFARO
Associated Press

BOISE • Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter has taken out his veto pen and nixed a pair of bills, including one measure calling on Idaho Fish and Game to divert up to $100,000 to a program aimed at managing the state’s wolf population.

The second measure would have given the attorney general power to investigate elected county officials in certain circumstances.

The Republican governor’s decision to reject the bills Thursday mark the only two vetoes so far this year and come a week after lawmakers wrapped up the 2013 Legislature.

The bill intended to divert money from Fish and Game was sponsored by Rep. Judy Boyle, R-Midvale. It would have moved funds currently used to improve hunting access for sportsmen to a separate program focused on eliminating wolves that prey on livestock and prized game like elk and deer.

In a letter explaining his decision, Otter cited concerns that Fish and Game and sportsmen didn’t have an appropriate chance to weigh in.

Pulling money for hunting access could create a rift between sportsman and livestock producers — two groups he says are vital to controlling predatory wolves.

It could make “a cooperative, long-term solution to wolf depredation costs more difficult to achieve,” Otter wrote. “It is important ... that discussions with affected parties be held in earnest so that problems can be solved — not created.”

The Idaho House passed the measure on a 45-23 vote in March. The Senate later passed it by a 26-8 margin.

Proponents say the extra dollars would help replace funds lost through federal budget cuts to the depredation program, intended to manage wolves that kill livestock and other wildlife in the state.

But it had detractors, including the Idaho Fish and Game Commission. Last week, chairman Randy Budge sent Otter a letter urging him to veto the bill, saying hunter access programs — which open up both public and private land for sportsmen — are already underfunded.

Mike Keckler, Idaho Fish and Game spokesman, said the Access Yes! program opened up 432,000 private acres to hunters last year, using $340,000 to compensate land owners open to allowing hunting on their property.

Keckler said Otter has directed the department to team up with the state Department of Agriculture to find new solutions that stretch state dollars to protect the interests of both hunters and livestock producers.

“We’re anxious to find a solution where all sides benefit,” he said.

Otter also killed a bill that would have given shifted power to the attorney general.

That legislation would remove the authority of county prosecutors to investigate their own county commissions in instances when those officials are suspected of misconduct — with the goal of ending a potential conflict of interest between county employees.

Idaho Falls Man Remains in Coma after Police Taser Shocks

IDAHO FALLS (AP) • An Idaho Falls man shocked several times with a Taser during an encounter with police is still in a coma and listed in critical condition.

Idaho Falls Police Sgt. Phil Grimes says 44-year-old Ronald R. Mencer Jr., has been hospitalized since Sunday.

The Post Register reports Mencer was shocked by a police officer after allegedly approaching officers aggressively and with a screwdriver in one hand. Police Chief Mark McBride said officers initially tried to push Mencer away during the first encounter, but Mencer returned and tried to kick and bite them.

The Taser was then used several times to subdue Mencer. Paramedics then arrived at the scene and administered CPR and a breathing bag to treat Mencer.

The officer who administered the Taser shocks remains on duty.

Police: Man Met Underage Boy via Smartphone App for Sexual Encounter

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismsith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Police say a Twin Falls man met a 14-year-old boy for sex through a smartphone app, and the boy used the app to find multiple adult men to have sex with.

The man, Christopher Lamarche LeBlanc, now 20, was arraigned on a charge of lewd conduct with a minor in Twin Falls County 5th District Court on Tuesday.

According to a police report, Twin Falls detectives met with a father in August 2012 after the father expressed concern about his son's online activities. Police also interviewed the boy, now 15, later that month.

According to the report, in the interview the boy said he used the Grindr app he downloaded to his phone to meet adult men for sexual encounters.

Grindr advertises itself as a way for adult men to meet other gay or bisexual men near them who also have the application downloaded. The app uses GPS in cellphones to show the user's location to other users. Grindr's terms of service state that its users must be at least 18 years old.

In the report, the boy told detectives that he had 10 or 11 adult sexual partners that he'd met on the Internet.

The boy told police that he would tell the men that he was 15 or 16 years old before engaging in sexual activity, the report states.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebs said the boy in the case can't be charged with anything for seeking out adult sexual partners.

"It's the adult's job not to commit a crime," he said.

Lori Stewart, victims' assistance coordinator with the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office, said her office tries to arrange treatment when children are exhibiting behaviors like seeking out adult sexual partners. Stewart said children are matched up with a counselor with whom they have a good rapport. A counselor makes sure there are no underlying issues, like the possibility of the child being victimized prior to the incident, and then begins talking about what happened and why it's happening, Stewart said.

Recently, Stewart said, the sheriff's office made a similar arrest where a 16-year-old girl was in a sexual relationship with a 21-year-old man.

According to the police report in LeBlanc's case, the boy said he sneaked out of his bedroom window and met the men at various public locations or the men's homes.

The boy told police he knew his sexual partners only by their first names, but remembered that one man he had multiple sexual encounters with worked at Macy's in Twin Falls.

On Aug. 29, detectives met with LeBlanc at the Twin Falls Police Department for a voluntary interview. According to the report, LeBlanc admitted to having sex with the boy multiple times.

"Mr. LeBlanc said that he wanted to cooperate and he understands what he has done is wrong," an officer wrote in the report.

When police told LeBlanc the boy's age, the report states, LeBlanc said he knew the boy was younger than 18. During the time of the sexual encounters, the report states, the boy was 14 and LeBlanc was 19.

LeBlanc was free to leave after the interview. In a second interview he told police a few names of other men the boy might have had sex with, the report states, but the boy was unable to identify the men in a photo lineup.

In November 2012, LeBlanc was charged with grand theft for stealing cash and merchandise from Macy's. LeBlanc pleaded guilty to the grand theft charge on April 2 after being offered a plea deal that includes the lewd conduct charge.

According to court records, prosecutors are prepared to recommend that LeBlanc be sentenced to two to five years in prison on the grand theft charge. At a court hearing on April 2, LeBlanc's attorney Sam Beus told the court that he and LeBlanc reviewed a proposed plea deal from prosecutors that said the state would recommend LeBlanc be sentenced to four to eight years in prison for the lewd conduct charge. In both cases, prosecutors would recommend that the court retain jurisdiction, which means that LeBlanc would attend programming through the Idaho Department of Corrections while being incarcerated for a shorter amount of time, Beus said at the hearing. The two sentences would run at the same time.

Twin Falls County 5th District Judge Randy Stoker tentatively scheduled sentencing for both cases for May 28. A preliminary hearing for the lewd conduct charge is scheduled for April 19, and Beus said he and his client have not yet agreed to accept the plea agreement in that case.

Nev. Assembly Committee Kills Recreational Pot Bill

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) • Nevada's won't be lighting up joints anytime soon, at least not legally.

A proposal to legalize the recreational use of marijuana will not become law this session after an Assembly committee failed to vote on the bill before adjourning on the last day for bills to clear the committee of origin.

The bill was presented to members of the Assembly

Judiciary Committee by Democratic Assemblymen Joseph Hogan and Andrew Martin of Las Vegas a week before Friday's deadline.

It would have placed regulations similar to alcohol laws on the usage of marijuana.

In addition, it imposed a 25 percent tax on each grower, manufacturer and purchaser of marijuana to help fund early childhood and literacy programs in K-12 education.

people and taking charge in leadership positions are all things that she has learned.

Parliamentary procedures — conducting meetings — is something that Maggie Brown, 17, of Gooding appreciates.

"FFA has impacted my school career positively because it's helped me become a better public speaker. I've got to meet people and do some traveling," she said. "I think everything I've learned in FFA will help me in the future."

On Friday, she was concentrating on the floral and nursery tests.

Each team has four members, said 17-year-old Colton Mink, but they are judged as individuals. Mink said he placed as the top individual last year, while his team came in second.

"I'm excited to be here," said team member Ben Fredericksen. "I just like to compete."

A team from Aberdeen was sitting near, preparing for its ag marketing and sales competition, as was a team from Meridian.

Justin Nesbitt, 17, of Meridian said he didn't know how many teams his group was up against.

"It could be just a few or everyone," he said.

Teams qualified through chapter and district competitions before moving onto the state event. The event also features lectures on ag topics and opportunities for students to meet peers. It gives students a chance to become familiar with the CSI campus, something Reed said she was grateful for because she plans to attend after high school.

Cody Park, an instructor from Aberdeen, said he had a wonderful FFA instructor in high school, so much so that Park decided he also wanted to become a teacher.

That's what FFA is about, he said — learning, having fun, making friends, but also building confidence in one's ability.

"I've seen freshman students who come into school who are shy, but by their senior year are public speaking, in leadership roles and traveling the country," he said. "I figured if I could work in FFA, that'd be the thing to do."

Ohio Police Chief Says He Ate Cake Laced with Pot

LAURELVILLE, Ohio (AP) • An Ohio police chief says he ate cake left in his kitchen without realizing it was laced with cannabis oil.

Laurelville Chief Mike Berkemeier says he fell ill after eating the cake a couple of weeks ago and couldn't figure out what was wrong. He says he drove a few blocks to the police station, where medics took him for medical testing.

The Logan Daily News reports Berkemeier was hospitalized for more than a day. While there, a phone call with his daughter revealed the cake had been laced with an oil form of the psychoactive chemical component that causes a high from marijuana.

Berkemeier tells WBNS-TV one of his daughter's friends took the cake to his home, southeast of Columbus.

There's no word of criminal charges.

Safety

doesn't work.

"We like to examine from the worst case, but looking at everything that could happen doesn't help," he said at the meeting.

Police and educators agree that the best way to prevent a violent incident at a school is for someone who hears something troubling to report it. Early detection and mitigating troubling signs are key in preventing violence in schools, Hicks said.

Most school shooters told someone their plans before committing the act, Pullin said in an interview with the Times-News.

Pullin said school resource officers make it clear that students can talk to them.

"The community has a role to play," Pullin said. "Somebody has to step forward."

Twin Falls School District Superintendent Wiley Dobbs agreed.

"We can't read minds. We can't guess," he said.

Dobbs said counselors and school resource officers want to work with students who are being bullied, but also the bullies themselves.

"If they continue those behaviors, they're likely to be unsuccessful in life," he said.

The school district consistently tries to remind parents and the community that they have a key role in school safety, he said.

"When they see things that aren't quite right, report it to us," he said. "The one thing I can say as a superintendent, I promise we will take it seriously and follow up on it."

Along with schools and parents being organized, emergency responders need to be on the same page, Hicks said at the council meeting. This need was magnified after the shooting at the Twin Falls Hampton Inn that left one man dead and an officer injured.

"We realize we'll have officers from multiple agencies," Hicks told the city council.

All that extra help is good, but can cause confusion, he said.

Soon, Twin Falls Police and Twin Falls County Sheriff's deputies will begin working more closely with each other on school safety issues, Pullin said. Before the next school year, Pullin said, the two agencies would most likely begin training together.

Since the shooting at Sandy Hook, there's been a new surge of suggestions for improving safety in schools. Pullin said there are things police and schools can do to improve safety, but some solutions come with logistical issues.

Metal detectors, for example, aren't much use if they aren't guarded, he said. Many schools have dozens of entrances, making that prospect not feasible.

Increasing the number of school resource officers is one thing Dobbs said the school district is working on.

"The program has been so positive and effective," Dobbs said. "That would be money well spent."

Currently, the Twin Falls School District pays a portion of the school resource officers' salaries totaling $95,000.

"We try to be as diligent as we can," Pullin said.

Minico High foreign exchange student Eva Mollik practices with the Spartans' tennis team Friday.

UNTAPPED TALENT

Eva Mollik, a tennis star and exchange student at Minico, is undefeated so far this season. She talks about living in the U.S. and why she loves tennis.

BY RYAN HOWE

rhowe@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • When Eva Mollik packed her suitcase to come to the United States from Germany as a foreign exchange student, she brought one important accessory.

Her tennis racquet. "I looked up if they had a tennis team," Mollik said of her new school, Minico High.

Sure enough, Minico does have a tennis team, and now, at the midway point of the season, 16-year-old Mollik is undefeated (9-0) and is poised for a district title in girls singles.

Karen Ferguson, who has been Minico's tennis coach for more than a decade, said Mollik is the most talented player she's coached.

"She has a lot of variety to her game and she's a really smart player," Ferguson said. "She always has a great attitude and is willing to work with anybody on our team. She's very coachable."

Ferguson has never had a player with this much experience before.

Coming from a country where tennis and handball are more popular than American sports like basketball and baseball (although soccer is king), Mollik first picked up a tennis racquet when she was 4 years old and began playing competitively at age 11. Both her parents and her 19-year-old brother play tennis.

"I like that it's just you. Tennis is really mental," said Mollik. "I get really personal playing it, because when I'm playing and I make a mistake I have to figure out how to fix it. Sometimes it drives me crazy and I hate it because I'm like, what did I do wrong, and why doesn't it work? But I like how during the game you can change everything and get better."

Mollik is from Aachen, a city in western Germany with a population of 260,000.

"(America) is way different than I thought. Everything is spread out here and they use the car everywhere and the food is really different," Mollik said. "People are nicer here; they're more outgoing. I like that. And high school is way different."

One difference, in Germany, students don't play sports for their schools. Instead, they compete on club teams.

"I like high school here, the whole school spirit," Mollik said. "We don't have that at all (in Germany). We don't have school colors, assemblies, or any of that. I see the school here is kind of like a family. Everybody is together, and we are against other schools."

She has blown through her less experienced American competition thus far, begging the question: How good is Mollik?

"We haven't seen what she can do yet," Ferguson said.

Competition will get tougher before the season is over. One big test will be next weekend at the East Idaho Invitational in Idaho Falls. And then there's the state tournament May 17-18 in Boise.

"My main goal is not to win state. It's go to state and do my best," Mollik said. "What my coach in Germany always told me, it shouldn't be a goal to win. It should be a goal to play your best and to have fun."

Until she came to Rupert, Mollik always thought she would like to live in a big city.

"Now that I've been here for so long I like the country. I like the mountains and the fields," she said.

In June, after the school year, Mollik will return home to Germany. She will finish high school and then go to college. Ultimately, she wants to travel and experience the world.

She can already check Rupert, Idaho, off her list.

Canyon Ridge Trio Signs on Same Day

BY NICK RULAND

nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Canyon Ridge seniors Brinley Miller and Emma Stephens have played softball with each other since the first grade.

Now they're going to play together in college.

The shortstop pitcher duo for the Riverhawks, one of the most impressive teams in the Great Basin Conference so far this season, signed on Friday at Big Bend Community College (Moses Lake, Wash.).

"We've been pretty much inseparable since first grade," Stephens said. "When we are together we are comfortable with everybody. We are pretty much sisters."

Big Bend Head Coach Ray Mofitt recruited Miller when he was the pitching coach for Northwest Christian University. He independently recruited both players when he was hired in Washington.

"He contacted me through email," Miller said. "He had me visit. He was really friendly and right when I stepped on the field I knew that was the place. The environment was really nice."

Miller, a speedy shortstop, and Stephens, a crafty three-pitch pitcher, both have a chance to make an impact next season because of their work ethic, according to assistant softball coach Brian Parks.

"They both are leaders for us," Parks said. "I think that's because of all the work they've put in. That's how they made it this far."

The duo hit in the middle of the lineup for the Riverhawks, though it's unclear where they project to hit at Big Bend.

Stephens, also a volleyball player, was born near Bellevue, Wash., and said it was a goal of hers to "make it back home."

Riverhawks goalkeeper Raven Oesterlein could have been a volleyball player. Volleyball coach Stacey Boer was in attendance. Oesterlein was one that got away — likely for the better.

Oesterlein was the third Canyon Ridge athlete to sign on Friday, inking with the University of Great Falls, a private Roman Catholic university located in Great Falls, Mont., where she'll be a goalkeeper.

"As a player she got better and better," soccer coach Christa Tackett said. "She is super aggressive on the field. Her work ethic is amazing."

Four players from Idaho play at Great Falls, including two who graduated from Minico last year, Jakobie Rogers and Samantha McGhie.

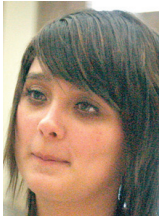

Riverhawks alumnus Jayd Wartluft signed with the Vikings in 2011.

She helped Oesterlein in the recruiting process.

"I really liked playing with girls there; they weren't intimidating at all," Oesterlein said. "It was nice at least knowing one of

NEW YORK • The Yankees turned a triple play at home for the first time in 45 years, Adam Jones dropped Vernon Wells' fly ball while blowing a bubble for a tiebreaking three-run error and New York beat the Baltimore Orioles 5-2 Friday night for its fourth straight win.

CC Sabathia (2-1) allowed two runs — one earned — and eight hits with nine strikeouts and no walks. Mariano Rivera finished for his second save as New York (5-4) moved over .500 for the first time this year.

Jones — a Gold Glove center fielder — ranged back for Wells' fly ball and closed his glove too early. Then in the eighth, Manny Machado hit a sharp low liner that second baseman Robinson Cano pick up on a hop, starting New York's first triple play in the Bronx since June 3, 1968, against Minnesota.

Miguel Gonzalez (1-1) was the loser.

INDIANS 1, WHITE SOX 0 CLEVELAND • Justin Masterson (3-0) pitched a five-hitter for the first complete game in the AL this year, and Nick Swishe hit a two-out RBI single in the ninth off Jesse Crain (0-1).

Masterson, who has three of Cleveland's four wins, extended his consecutive scoreless innings streak to a career-high 19.

BLUE JAYS 8, ROYALS 4 KANSAS CITY, Mo. • Toronto's Jose Reyes drove in a pair of runs before getting carted off in the sixth inning with a sprained left ankle.

Reyes was attempting to steal second when he started his slide late. The four-time All-Star's left ankle twisted awkwardly beneath him as he slid over the bag, and trainers from both teams ran out to help as Reyes screamed in pain on the infield dirt.

He was carted off the field and taken to a hospital for an MRI. The results were not immediately known.

National League Braves 6, Nationals 4

WASHINGTON • Ramiro Pena hit a two-run homer off Craig Stammen with two outs in the 10th inning and the Atlanta Braves came back to beat the Washington Nationals 6-4 Friday night, stretching their winning streak to seven games.

Pena, who reached on a bunt as a pinch hitter in the eighth, helped Atlanta win a game it trailed 4-0 after two innings and 4-2 entering the ninth.

Bryce Harper hit a two-run, opposite-field shot in the first for his fifth homer, and Denard Span and Jayson Werth tacked on RBI singles in the second for the Nationals.

CUBS 4, GIANTS 3 CHICAGO • Starlin Castro's ninth-inning double

TIMES-NEWS

SALT LAKE CITY • The College of Southern Idaho held its first conference lead of the year — by virtue of holding the tiebreaker in head-to-head competition — for a little more than three hours.

And then it was back to where it's been all year in the standings — second.

CSI split its doubleheader against Salt Lake Community College Friday in its first match-up of the season with the Bruins, winning game one 4-3 but falling in game two 8-2.

"I'm not upset with the split," head coach Nick Baumert said. "But when you get that first win, you get a little bit hungry."

Pitcher Sierra Whitmer won her 16th game of the season (16-1), wiggling out of a jam in the eighth inning after a Bruins home run pulled them within a run.

"She was clutch," Baumert said.

Sierra Whitmer hit her fifth home run of the season in third to tie the game at two. Aubrey Whitmer smashed her sixth of the season to go ahead in the fifth and Averie Schroeder launched her third of the year in the seventh to provide what ended up the game-winning run.

In game two, CSI was down 4-1 heading into the sixth inning when the defense faltered, according to Baumert.

The Golden Eagles will need to take both games from the Bruins on Saturday to move ahead of them in the standings.

Texas an Ideal Spot for Biffle to Get Season Boost

ASSOCIATED PRESS

FORT WORTH, Texas • Greg Biffle is looking forward to a do-over on a 1½-mile track in the new Sprint Cup car.

Texas Motor Speedway is an ideal spot because Biffle and the entire Roush Fenway Racing team have had so much success there. Biffle is the defending race champion, too, and he can't wait for Saturday night.

There is admittedly an extra emphasis and a different sense of urgency this weekend for Biffle, who struggled to a 17th-place finish last month at Las Vegas. That track is similar to Texas and the only 1½-mile circuit NASCAR visited the first six races this season.

"We plain-and-simply screwed up at Vegas and I take most of the blame for that. We were just way off with the new car," said Biffle, who has gotten all 18 of his career wins on longer tracks. "This track feels good. I had really good speed here. ... I think we have a good chance at winning. Right place, right time."

Kyle Busch earned the pole for the race with a record Texas qualifying lap of 196.299 mph in his Toyota, which knocked brother Kurt Busch's Chevrolet off the pole. Kurt Busch will start second after a lap of 195.688 mph.

The Busch brothers have started on the front row together one other time, at Las Vegas four years ago. Kyle won from the pole that day and Kurt finished 23rd.

After being fast in testing and practice, Biffle qualified his Ford 35th with a lap of 190.921 mph.

As surprising as the struggles at Las Vegas were, for Biffle, it was his solid, ninth-place finish last week at Martinsville, the half-mile track that is the shortest on the circuit.

"I just never thought that would happen to us, but that is just the way it works," said Biffle, sixth in season points.

The 25th Cup race at the Texas speedway, which opened in 1997 and started hosting two races a year in 2005, will be the first night race this season — and for the new Gen-6 cars.

While Biffle won at Texas last April, Jimmie Johnson held off Brad Keselowski in a 1-2 white-knuckle finish last November. Johnson and Keselowski slammed together near the start-finish line after a late restart, but managed to maintain control in a few wild closing laps when they stayed in close proximity.

"Yeah, it was awesome. I enjoyed it in the car. (I) Thought I was going to get turned around in (turns) one and two one of the restarts we had, but we didn't," Johnson said Friday, recalling that race. "We raced right to that ragged edge and pulled it off. Of course I had a good perspective of it after the race when I watched the video and I smiled. That is just good hard racing."

The fall victory kept Johnson ahead in points with two races to go, but Keselowski went on to win the championship.

After winning last week at Martinsville and leading a career-high 346 laps, Johnson has the series points lead.

Driver Greg Biffle sits along pit road during qualifying for the NASCAR Sprint Cup series NRA 500 auto race at Texas Motor Speedway on Friday in Fort Worth, Texas. Biffle is looking forward to a do-over in the new Sprint Cup car. Texas Motor Speedway is an ideal spot since Biffle and the entire Roush Fenway Racing team have had so much success there.

Right behind him is Keselowski, who has five finishes in the top six this season. He was asked if the Texas race last fall was a defining moment.

"Yes and no. I would say it would be a defining moment if we had won the race. I think it was a defining moment for me knowing that we could run competitively at tracks others didn't feel like we could I felt like we could," Keselowski said. "Coming back here, while we might not have gotten the win we wanted last fall, I feel like we can get it done this spring."

Johnson starts seventh at Texas and Keselowski 16th.

Roush drivers certainly know how to get it done on the high-banked Texas track, where Jack Roush's nine victories are the most by any owner. Johnson's victory last fall was the fourth for Rick Hendrick, the second-highest among owners.

Matt Kenseth, in his first season with Joe Gibbs Racing, has the track record of 772 laps led. All of those were for Roush, and 40 more than two-time Texas winner Biffle has.

Biffle's other Texas win came in the spring race in 2005, with teammate Carl Edwards winning that fall. Edwards swept both races in 2008, and is the only three-time Cup winner there.

"I think all of us look forward to coming here because of our past performances, and I know we expect a lot out of ourselves here," said Edwards, who is seventh in season points.

Because of the new cars, there were two full-field testing sessions on Thursday that gave teams more than three extra hours on the track.

Although Edwards had a tough day in the testing, he got some notes from his teammate after Biffle had the fastest lap. They are side-by-side in the garage, and Edwards has spent a lot of time "walking over there" and asking a lot of questions.

Edwards qualified ninth with a lap of 194.147 mph.

"He said something that kind of struck me," Edwards said. "He was describing his car and he said, 'But you know it's just like Texas normally is,' and I thought, 'Here's a guy who knows every nuance of this race track and he knows exactly what the car is going to do after five or six laps.' ... He's a motivator."

Day Leads at Masters, 14-year-old Makes Cut

ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUGUSTA, Ga. • The 14-year-old from China isn't going anywhere in a hurry. And this Masters is still along way from taking shape.

Despite being the first player at Augusta National to get hit with a one-shot penalty for slow play, teen sensation Guan Tianlang still made history Friday as the youngest player to make the cut in a PGA Tour-sanctioned event.

And it came down to the last shot of a wild and windy day.

Jason Day could have sent the kid home early with a birdie from just off the front of the green on the 18th hole. But the Australian was wide left and tapped in for par, giving him a 4-under 68 and a one-shot lead over fellow Aussie Marc Leishman and the ageless Fred Couples.

The par meant that Guan, who had one shot added to his score on the 17th hole for his second bad time of the round — made the cut under the 10-shot rule.

"If I can make it, I would be really happy for it," Guan said some five hours earlier. "But if I didn't make it, it's still a great week."

He's now part of a weekend at Augusta that should be as dynamic as ever.

Day was at 6-under 138, and 18 players were within four shots of the lead, including Tiger Woods.

Woods moved into a share of the lead with a two-putt birdie on the eighth hole, and his game looked to be as sharp as ever — perhaps too sharp. Right when it looked like he might take the outright lead, Woods hit a lob wedge that was so perfect it hit the flag on the par-5 15th and caromed backward off the green and into the water. Instead of having a short birdie putt, he had to scramble to save bogey.

Woods posed over another shot on the 18th and was stunned to see it hop onto the upper shelf, leading to his second three-putt bogey of the week. He had to settle for a 71, though he was still only three shots out of the lead.

"My score doesn't quite indicate how well I played today," Woods said.

Day, a runner-up at the Masters two years ago, can be one of the most exciting players in golf when his game is on, and he was firing at flags from everywhere Friday. Even from the pine straw under the trees on the dangerous 11th, the Aussie took dead aim at the pin and set up a rare birdie to join the leaders.

His only blunder was hitting into the water short of the 12th, though he still managed to escape with bogey, and then he fired a 4-wood low enough to stay below the trees and avoid the wind on the 13th, setting up a two-putt birdie.

He was cognizant of the guys behind him — Woods included — though just as much pressure comes from trying to be the first Australian in a green jacket.

"The moment I start worrying about other players is the moment I start losing focus on what I need to do, and when I do that, I'll start making bogeys," Day said. "It's obviously great to have the lead. I'm very exciting for the challenge over the next two days. It really is exciting to have the opportunity to win the Masters. I'm very, very happy where I am right now."

The 53-year-old Couples, who shared the 36-hole lead last year at the Masters, birdied the 18th hole for a 71 and will play in the final group.

"I did tee off Thursday with the idea of playing well, and now it's Friday afternoon late. I'm surprised, but I'm not going to freak out over it," Couples said.

Former Masters champion Angel Cabrera birdied five of his last six holes for a 69 and was in the group two shots behind, along with former U.S. Open champion Jim Furyk (71) and Brandt Snedeker (70). Woods was at 3-under 141 with six others, including Adam Scott (72), Lee Westwood (71) and Justin Rose (71).

And still in the mix was Rory McIlroy, who turned his fortunes around with a 5-wood from about 275 yards that set up a short eagle putt. He added three more birdies on the back nine and had a 70, leaving him only four shots out of the lead going into the weekend.

"Anything under par today was going to be a good score," McIlroy said.

The hole locations were severe in spots, with one pin tucked on top of a mound toward the front of the fifth green. The par 5s played into an opposite wind on the back nine, and they were not easy to reach. Furyk got home in two on the 15th hole Thursday with a hybrid. He used that same club to lay up on Friday.

Such tough conditions made the performance of Guan that much more impressive. He had a respectable 75, which included the one-shot penalty.

And for the longest time, it looked as though it might be costly.

Guan, playing with Matteo Manassero and Ben Crenshaw, was informed his group was out of position as it left the 10th green. They were on the clock on the 12th hole, meaning players would be timed to make sure they hit their shots within the 40-second limit. The teen got his first bad time with his second shot on the 13th hole, and it was clear he was in trouble after his shot into the 17th when John Paramor, chief referee in Europe, walked out to speak to him.

"You give him the news, the best you can," Paramor said.

Fred Ridley, the head of competition at the Masters, did not say how long Guan took to hit his second shot on the 17th, only that it was a "considerable margin" over his time. Guan still managed to make par on the 17th, and if he was shaken by the news so late in the round, it didn't show. He made one last par and was at 4-over 148.

His game is well beyond his years, and so was his attitude over the first slow-play penalty in a major since Gregory Bourdy in the 2010 PGA Championship.

"I respect the decision they make," said Guan, who spent nearly 90 minutes talking with officials after the round. "They should do it because it's fair to everybody."

The penalty looked ominous because Dustin Johnson was running off birdies every way imaginable, the only player to reach 7-under par in nasty conditions. His round imploded, however, when he played the final five holes in 6-over par. That included a double bogey on the 15th when he hit his third shot into the water. He had a 76 and plunged down the leaderboard, though he was still only five shots behind.

Furyk also hit into the water on the 15th with a wedge he chucked so badly that it didn't make it halfway across the pond. Scott made his third straight bogey at No. 5, but that was the last mistake he made. He answered with three birdies the rest of the way.

Day's 68 was the lowest score of the round, with conditions so tricky that only five players broke 70.

"It just feels like every shot is the biggest shot you've ever hit in your life out there," Day said. "It's really, really difficult. I'm just glad to be in the clubhouse right now."

RELIGION

Designed to Thrive

What kind of life are you living? What kind of life does God have for you? John 10:10 is a very familiar scripture, and often quoted in our churches. It says, the thief (the enemy) comes to kill, steal and destroy, but I (Jesus) have come that you might have life, and that life more abundantly.

It is easy to see that the enemy is the devil, and his three fold purpose is all about destroying lives, stealing, and killing from everyone. Jesus purpose is clearly stated as well. He has come to bring life. Simply stated, the devil brings death and destruction and Jesus is the life giver! His life is not just average, get by, mediocre life, it is life in abundance, full and running over. Life in Christ is one that is THRIVING AND FLOURISHING! So when we look at this verse, we can see who our enemy is (the devil), and who our advocate is (God). The advocate, the one on our side, is Jesus, and He is for us.

Another familiar verse in Romans 8:31 says, if God be for us, who can be against us? We can probably all agree that lots of things can go wrong and come against us, because we do live in a fallen world. Many things can rise up to try to take us out, but when we have God on our side they will not succeed. One of my favorite saying is "If it isn't good yet, it isn't done yet!" God is working on our behalf. He can turn things around for our good. Our advocate is advocating for us! He doesn't want us to experience life in the average way. We are to live life full and running over. We are designed to thrive and flourish. That is abundant life! Abundance reminds me of my garden in August. There are more than enough tomatoes, and more than enough squash to fill up our family and many others with abundance. Abundance reminds me of Shoshone Falls, flooding over in with spring runoff. Abundance reminds me of God's love. It is wider and deeper and stronger than we can fathom. So whenever you feel like the adversary is coming against you, remember who is on your side. God is, and He is the God who brings life to you in abundance.

Our theme for our Annual Ladies Conference, Rejoice 2013 is Designed to Thrive. It starts next Thursday and we invite all ladies to join us April 18-20, with our special guest speaker April Osteen Simmons, (Pastor Joel Osteen's youngest sister), for an encouraging, inspiring time. PROACTIVE PRINT

Local churches share how they use the power of the printed word in their communities.

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • In an increasingly digital world, does the printed word still have a place in helping local churches get their message out?

Yes, according to Jes Benson, communication coordinator of the Episcopal Diocese of Idaho.

Benson teaches a workshop to Episcopal parishes on how written words are a proactive way to inspire and energize parishes and the community.

"Even though a church has been in a community for awhile, it doesn't mean it knows how to bring in new people," Benson said. "Evangelism in the community is sharing information in the community. Everything is becoming so digitally oriented and a lot of our conversations are how we are a church that is traditional, but using modern tools."

And while the number of people who found their church by searching online increased by 91 percent from 2009 to 2012, Benson said, the printed word is still powerful.

"I realize people really like to have something they can hold in their hands, but then there's the digitally native, like my 16-year-old son, who does not need to have anything in his hand to read and he's comfortable."

Benson said that in her workshop she tries to teach churches how to use newsletters to not only inform current members, but also invite and inspire people who are not members.

How can a newsletter do all this? Benson suggests putting newcomer or small group activities in the newsletter and staying away from language that may be confusing. Clarity is the new creativity.

Benson said parishes should ask themselves, "Is the language understandable?"

"Just because we are online, it doesn't mean people are going to see our message. The sign outside, more people are apt to see it or a poster in Starbucks."

Jason Houser, family pastor at Lighthouse in Twin Falls

"There's a lot of Episcopal language I don't understand, I call it Episcopalese, there are a lot of acronyms," Benson said.

Use photographs of congregation members and events, Benson added. She said photos round out the story or message and are inclusive: "People I know go there."

Jason Houser, family pastor at Lighthouse in Twin Falls, said his church has tried a number of different mediums to communicate with the community.

"We really want to be a church that is a blessing in the community," Houser said.

Lighthouse has hosted movies at local theaters, put advertisements in the newspaper, had commercials on radio stations and more. But, Houser said, though it is amazing what one can do online, often the most effective tool is the sign outside of the church that promotes events.

"Just because we are online, it doesn't mean people are going to see our message," Houser said. "The sign outside, more people are apt to see it or a poster in Starbucks."

Houser said visitors to Lighthouse often decide to stop in after seeing their sign when driving by.

"It's always a challenge to promote. We are always brainstorming on how we can reach the community," Houser said.

And hitting all mediums — both online and off — ensures Lighthouse reaches all ages, Houser said.

Some churches like Cornerstone Baptist Church in Twin Falls use outdoor signs to advertise events and share messages. On April 2, Cornerstone's sign bore the message, "Morality will keep you out of jail, but only the blood of Jesus Christ will keep you out of Hell."

Pastor Bruce Carlson said the message — usually Bible verses — changes monthly and "helps convey a message of truth and hope to the community."

In addition to these messages, Carlson said the church does bulletins every Sunday and hands out gospel tracts — small pamphlets — inviting people to visit.

Carlson said this combination of methods has seemed to work in getting information on their church out.

Posters, another useful tool, can often reach an audience when placed in locations where people aren't generally looking for information on religion, Benson said. Examples include coffeeshops, libraries, grocery stores and banks.

In coffeeshops, where younger people are more likely to be found, she advises to pay attention to language and write with the reader in mind. Some examples of posters that have been effective include "Robin Williams' Top 10 Reasons to Be Episcopalian" or the "Top 10 Reasons Children are Welcome in Our Church."

"There are a lot of communities that would benefit from hanging posters in Hispanic communities, inviting them to come worship with them," Benson said. "I encourage parishes that if they have a guest or someone who wanders in to ask if they want more information, share a newsletter with them."

OBITUARIES

Oliver Ingram

Oct. 19, 1927-April 11, 2013

KIMBERLY • Oliver Ingram, 85, of Kimberly, Idaho, passed away Thursday, April 11, 2013, at his home with his family at his side.

Oliver was born Oct. 19, 1927, in Spring Valley, Ark., to Albert Jones Ingram and Annie Elizabeth Morsebach. He attended the Fishback School in Springdale, Ark., and moved to California with his family. At the age of 16, he drove the family pickup alone, from Arkansas to California, working at odd jobs to get money for gas along the way. Oliver served two years in the Army and upon returning home, moved to Idaho and married Marie Drain of Jerome. They had three daughters, Sharon, and twins, Paula and Penny. They were later divorced. Oliver farmed in the Jerome area and worked for United Automotive, Arnold Machinery and Longview Fiber in Twin Falls. He then started his own forklift repair business, Oliver's Lift Truck Maintenance. On retiring from mechanic work, he drove the employee bus for Cactus Petes for a year and a half, and then retired for good.

He was an avid fisherman and hunter, enjoying the local fishing and sturgeon on the Columbia River in Oregon. He especially enjoyed hunting for elk in the desert, and deer in the North and South Hills. His big delight in the summer was growing a large garden, which he always wanted to plant in March.

In 1962, Oliver married

Joan Marie Dahlquist in Winnemucca, Nev. They have one son, Jeffrey Paul.

He is survived by his wife, Joan; son, Jeff of Twin Falls; and daughters, Paula (Rick) Gertulla and Sharon (Darrell) Thrasher of Astoria, Ore.; seven grandchildren; 12 great-grandchildren; and one great-great-grandchild. He is also survived by two brothers, Bob and James (Charmaine) Ingram of California. He was preceded in death by his parents; one daughter, Penny; and two brothers and five sisters.

A viewing will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Sunday, April 14, at Rosenau Funeral Home. A graveside service will be held at 2 p.m. Monday, April 15, at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. The family suggests memorials be given to your favorite charity, diabetes, heart or cancer funds. Donations may be left or mailed to Rosenau Funeral Home, 2826 Addison Ave. E., Twin Falls, ID 83301. Family and friends are encouraged to share memories at www.rosenaufuneralhome.com.

Dallas Dee Orr

Dec. 28, 1953-April 10, 2013

CALDWELL • On Wednesday, April 10, 2013, Dallas Dee Orr, 59, of Caldwell, Idaho, passed into a restful sleep after a valiant fight with pancreatic cancer.

Dallas was born on a winter day Dec. 28, 1953, to Frank L. and Mary E. (Dell) Orr of Rupert, Idaho. He was raised on a farm in Rupert and attended Minico High School. At the age of 19, he started working for Amalgamated Sugar Co., where he devoted 33-plus years.

Dallas fell in love and married Linda Huff 38 years ago in January of 1975 and from this love Eric, Justin and Jennifer were born.

In 2000, he and his sons worked together to form Orr Trucking and Orr Inc.

Dallas loved spending time with his family water-skiing, hunting, fishing, the great outdoors, fast cars and rock-n-roll. He had an appreciation for beautiful landscapes and photography. He was a loving husband and a great provider for his family. He instilled in his children a hard work ethic.

He is survived by his wife, Linda, of Caldwell; children, Eric (Christa) of Mountain Home, Justin and Jennifer of Boise; grandchildren, Kamryn and J.R. of Mountain Home; and his siblings, Robert (Lynda) Orr, Larry Orr and Carolyn Orr. He was preceded in death by his parents and brother, Daryl.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, April 15, at the Dakan Funeral Chapel, 504 S. Kimball Ave. in Caldwell, Idaho. Friends may visit from 6 to 8 p.m. Sunday, April 14, and one hour prior to the service Monday at the chapel.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests donations to be made to The Lustgarten Foundation at 1111 Stewart Ave., Bethpage, NY 11714, for pancreatic cancer research.

Groundbreaking Improv Comic Winters Dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) • Jonathan Winters, the cherub-faced comedian whose breakneck improvisations and misfit characters inspired the likes of Robin Williams and Jim Carrey, has died. He was 87. The Ohio native died Thursday evening at his Montecito, Calif., home of natural causes, said Joe Petro III, a longtime friend. He was surrounded by family and friends.

Winters was a pioneer of improvisational standup comedy, with an exceptional gift for mimicry, a grab bag of eccentric personalities and a bottomless reservoir of creative energy. Facial contortions, sound effects, tall tales — all could be used in a matter of seconds to get a laugh.

"Jonathan Winters was the worthy custodian of a sparkling and childish comedic genius. He did God's work. I was lucky 2 know him," Carrey tweeted on Friday.

On Jack Paar's television show in 1964, Winters was handed a foot-long stick and he swiftly became a fisherman, violinist, lion tamer, canoeist, U.N. diplomat, bullfighter, flutist, delusional psychiatric patient, British headmaster and Bing Crosby's golf club.

"As a kid, I always wanted to be lots of things," he told U.S. News & World Report in 1988. "I was a Walter Mitty type. I wanted to be in the French Foreign Legion, a detective, a doctor, a test pilot with a scarf, a fisherman who hauled in a tremendous marlin after a 12-hour fight."

The humor most often was based in reality — his characters Maude Frickert and Elwood P. Suggins, for example, were based on people Winters knew growing up in Ohio.

A devotee of Groucho Marx and Laurel and Hardy, Winters and his free-for-all brand of humor inspired Johnny Carson, Billy Crystal, Tracey Ullman and Lily Tomlin, among many others. But Williams and Carrey are his best-known followers.

"First he was my idol, then he was my mentor and amazing friend. I'll miss him huge. He was my Comedy Buddha. Long live the Buddha," Williams said in a statement on Friday.

Ballet Legend Maria Tallchief Dies at 88

CHICAGO (AP) • Maria Tallchief, one of America's first great prima ballerinas who gave life to such works as "The Nutcracker," "Firebird," and other masterpieces from legendary choreographer George Balanchine, has died. She was 88.

Tallchief died Thursday in Chicago, her daughter, Elise Paschen, said Friday.

Tallchief danced with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo from 1942 to 1947, but her career was most associated with the New York City Ballet, where she worked from 1948 to 1965. Balanchine, the Russian-born dance genius, was not only the company's director; in 1946, he became Tallchief's husband for some years.

She told Women's Wear Daily in 2003 that when she first worked with Balanchine she thought, "I am seeing music. This is it! I was a musician myself, and I thought, 'I am in my place now! I knew that that's the way I wanted to dance.'"

Tallchief was one of five Oklahoma natives of American Indian descent who rose to prominence in the ballet world from the 1940s through the 1960s. She retired in 1965, when she started teaching the next generation of dancers.

"My mother was a ballet legend, who was proud of her Osage heritage," Paschen said in a statement. "Her dynamic presence lit up the room. I will miss her passion, commitment to her art and devotion to her family. She raised the bar high and strove for excellence in everything she did."

Tallchief created roles in many of Balanchine's ballets, including "Orpheus" in 1948, and "Scotch Symphony" in 1952. She was the Sugar Plum Fairy in his original production of "The Nutcracker" in 1954.

Jacques d'Amboise, a former New York City Ballet dancer who partnered with Tallchief in many performances, said she was the Mount Everest of dance.

"She was the perfect representative of the American ballerina," said d'Amboise, who with the National Dance Institute in New York. "There is one word for her: Grand. She was absolutely grand."

Today is Saturday, April 13, the 103rd day of 2013. There are 262 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On April 13, 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt dedicated the Jefferson Memorial in Washington, D.C., on the 200th anniversary of the third American president's birth.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1613, Pocahontas, daughter of Chief Powhatan, was captured by English Capt. Samuel Argall in Virginia and held in exchange for English prisoners and stolen weapons. (During a yearlong captivity, Pocahontas converted to Christianity and ultimately opted to stay with the English.)

In 1742, Handel's "Messiah" had its first public performance in Dublin, Ireland.

In 1743, the third president of the United States, Thomas Jefferson, was born in Shadwell in the Virginia Colony.

In 1860, the Pony Express completed its inaugural run from St. Joseph, Mo. to Sacramento, Calif. in 10 days.

In 1861, at the start of the Civil War, Fort Sumter in South Carolina fell to Confederate forces.

In 1912, the Royal Flying Corps, a predecessor of Britain's Royal Air Force, was created.

In 1943, Radio Berlin announced the discovery of thousands of graves of massacred Polish officers in Russia's Katyn Forest; the Nazis blamed the killings on the Soviets, who in turn blamed the Nazis. (Post-Soviet Russia has acknowledged the massacre was carried out by Josef Stalin's much feared secret police.)

In 1958, Van Cliburn of the United States won the first International Tchaikovsky Competition for piano in Moscow; Russian Valery Klimov won the violin competition.

In 1964, Sidney Poitier became the first black performer in a leading role to win an Academy Award for "Lilies of the Field." (Patricia Neal was named best actress for "Hud"; best picture went to "Tom Jones.")

In 1970, Apollo 13, four-fifths of the way to the moon, was crippled when a tank containing liquid oxygen burst. (The astronauts managed to return safely.)

In 1986, Pope John Paul II visited the Great Synagogue of Rome in the first recorded papal visit of its kind to a Jewish house of worship.

In 1992, the Great Chicago Flood took place as the city's century-old tunnel system and adjacent basements filled with water from the Chicago River.

This is a GREAT way to earn some extra cash! Start a delivery route today!

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"You cannot get a quart into a pint pot."
— English proverb

North-South used the fact that this was rubber bridge to justify their exuberant bidding to six spades. A favorable lead seemed to give declarer good chances, but the bad heart break required South to play extremely well to justify his optimism.
After winning the trump lead in hand, declarer cashed the heart ace, crossed to dummy with a trump, and ruffed a low heart. Then he went to dummy with another trump and ruffed one more heart.

When West showed out, this appeared to put the final nail in the coffin for South's contract. But declarer was quick to spot that he was still in business because East, who guarded the hearts, might well have at least two of the missing club honors. Declarer drew the last trump and followed with three rounds of diamonds, ending in dummy. This left him with three clubs in hand, and dummy with the king-jack of hearts and the club queen. Meanwhile, East had to make a discard from the Q-10 of hearts and the club A-J.

Since a heart or the club jack would be immediately fatal, East made a good try by discarding his ace. But there was no joy — declarer followed with the club queen, pinning East's jack. If West won, he could lead only a club into South's 10-8 tenace. If West ducked, then the heart king would be South's 12th trick. This is a fine example of the squeeze known as a "winkle."

ANSWER: The important thing to do here is to suggest diamond support and values, and with short spades. You might also want to emphasize this feature of your hand before the auction gets out of control. (You expect to hear a lot of spades to your left on the next round.) The choice is between a splinter jump to three spades or a void-showing call of four spades. I marginally prefer the former.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 14-year-old girl. I don't understand why adults tell me to be an independent thinker, to embrace myself, and then put me down for not conforming. Why is it outrageous to come to your own conclusions, speculate, challenge accepted ideas or find your own faith? It would be easier to quietly nod an empty head and smile to please our parents and the adults who influence kids, so they can enjoy superficial satisfaction for how "well" they have raised us.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

Should I deny myself as an individual and be pulled along, or is it better to stay quiet and just be who everyone expects you to be?

— INDEPENDENT THINKER IN FLORIDA

DEAR INDEPENDENT THINKER: Independent thinkers are the people who have contributed the most to society. Our most important scientific discoveries were conceived by individuals who chose not to accept conventional thinking. The same is true for religion — Jesus was an independent thinker.

I'm not sure what kind of conversation you feel the adults in your life are trying to discourage. But people who are deeply committed to their religious faith can feel offended or threatened if their beliefs are challenged. Even though you are an independent thinker, you should be respectful of the beliefs of others.

DEAR ABBY: Around the time of my sister's wedding, she and her fiancé, "Greg," tried to get me and their best man, "Bruce," together. They brought him along when they would visit and encouraged us to date. Not long after the wedding we did start dating.

Bruce is a great guy and I enjoy being with him. My problem is, he's my brother-in-law's nephew even though they are close in age. (Bruce's mom is Greg's half sister.)

Am I dating a family member? Are we committing incest? Should we end this relationship? I don't know what is "right."

— WEIRDED OUT IN WISCONSIN

DEAR WEIRDED OUT: Bruce is not a blood relative; he is related to you by marriage. That is not the same as incest. If you care about each other, the right thing to do is continue the relationship and see where it leads. "Great guys" can make great husbands.

DEAR ABBY: My husband fathered a child in high school that was placed for adoption. His mother has become very close with the adoptive family and visits often. My husband does not. However, my mother-in-law constantly asks him to go on vacation with her to visit the child. I also found out that she sends the child gifts and signs my husband's name on the cards.

Abby, I feel this is hugely disrespectful not only to me, but also to my husband. He has chosen not to get involved with this child because he doesn't think it's fair to the adoptive family. He also doesn't wish to become attached. We have already told her she is overstepping her boundaries, but it continues to happen. What can we do?

— FRUSTRATED IN THE SOUTH

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Your mother-in-law may have the best of intentions, but forging your husband's name is dishonest. Sooner or later the child will find out the truth, and the result may be painful. However, there is nothing you can do to control your husband's mother's behavior, so accept it and don't take it personally.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

IF APRIL 13 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You can realize your dreams, especially if you take advantage of helpful opportunities that knock on your door during the next several weeks. You have worked incredibly hard to get where you are, so you deserve some rewards. Kick back and take time to smell the roses even if you think that you should be focused on getting ahead. You should seek advice before taking any key steps. Wait until August to make major changes or decisions that could impact your financial status. Plan ahead so you can take a vacation in September when you will have both the ways and means to get away from it all.

Jeraldine

Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Pamper your inner child. Take the weekend off from the rat race and leave the business world behind. Recharge your batteries by doing some of the things you liked to do during your childhood.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Sweet dreams are made of this. You are so romantic and full of fun that a casual playmate may begin to think about a having a long-term relationship. Make a major purchase and receive lasting benefits.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Not everything has a price tag. Good advice can be priceless. If you're itching to make a major purchase, you'll be more satisfied with the outcome if you wait until next week.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Happiness might begin with a hobby. Over the next few days, crafts and camaraderie can add color and a touch of glamour to life. Partners may have some exciting creative ideas, as well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Wind up your winter projects and put away the sleds and snow shovels so that you will be ready to initiate spring activities. Be skeptical of a sales pitch; this is a good day to ask for professional advice.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You could be considered a rock of reliability for your partner. Unconditional love means accepting whatever comes your way and going ahead and doing what needs to be done without quibbling.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Let your love life enjoy a renaissance. You can play the part of sweet Guinevere to someone's gallant Galahad — or vice versa. It is possible to get some of your romantic fantasies fulfilled during this weekend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Love or money. You might become caught up in making your money grow or meet someone who makes your heart pound a bit faster. Find a lover who can press all the right buttons at the right time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Get every whim satisfied with a snap of your fingers. It won't require much effort to have it your way. Find ways to spend quality time with a special someone and explore new frontiers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It's a good time to sit down for a frank discussion to find out where you stand. You and a partner can come to an understanding under these sensitive and kind-hearted planetary alignments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): To plant ideas or anything of value, first you must have a receptive place prepared. It's a good idea to weed the flower beds or put away winter clothing to prepare for an entirely new season.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't let flattery go to your head. You may be the sole object of someone's affection or the center of attention. Fleeting popularity may boost your confidence, but be alert for fair-weather friends.
