Bellevue Man Accused of Attempted Rape

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Bellevue man has been accused of dragging a woman to his vehicle and attempting to rape her outside of a dance club in Twin Falls.

Jose Luis Grimaldo Jr., 33, was arraigned Friday in Twin Falls County Fifth District Court on a charge of battery with intent to commit a serious felony for the January incident.

According to a police report, officers were dispatched at 1:58 a.m. on Jan. 20 to the 360 Main Event Center at 348 Fourth Avenue South. When they arrived, officers spoke to a woman who appeared to be visibly upset and was crying, the report states.

Police said the woman's lips were bleeding, and she had a large contusion on her forehead.

According to the report, the woman said she was at the event center with her boyfriend, who then went to their car and went to sleep.

The woman told police that she went back inside and sat with several people in the center's VIP section. She said they asked her to go to Burley with them for an "after party."

After exchanging numbers with the group, the woman decided not go to Burley and began to leave the event center.

Then, the report states, the woman said one of the men in the group, who was wearing a blue Los Angeles Dodgers hat and jacket, grabbed her. The woman said the man, who had a thin-line goatee and a tattoo on the side of

Twin Falls Council Approves Strategic Plan

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • After a year of collecting data and public input, Twin Falls City Council members have a better idea of what the city's next 20 years of growth will look like.

During Monday's meeting, council members approved a strategic plan that offers long-term guidelines for future city growth.

City officials and consultants spent last year gathering public input and hosting informational sessions in order to get the best information from residents before finalizing the goals identified in the plan, City Manager Travis Rothweiler said.

"The vision we have created with our residents is incredibly robust and ambitious," Rothweiler said. "This plan helps drive our organization. This is the starting point."

Goals include expanding pedestrian and bicycle trails, and maintaining fire equipment and facilities to the highest standard.

Consultant Phil Kushlan of Kushlan and Associates worked with city staff to create the document. He praised the final product, saying that the city's unique approach to strategic planning will continue to be a benefit in the future.

"I think the amount of time you as a group took to complete this is significant," Kushlan said.

The council approved the plan unanimously. Some members offered suggestions to narrow the scope of some goals.

Councilwoman Rebecca Mills-Sojka suggested adding more focus to

MV High School Principal to Retire

Jack Altemose, principal of Magic Valley High School, stands for a portrait on April 12 in Twin Falls.

TWIN FALLS • After more than 30 years as an educator, Jack Altemose, principal of Magic Valley High School, will retire at the end of the school year. But, the 58-year-old man said, he has no plans to give up education completely.

He said he'll miss the students and teachers with whom he currently works.

"I'm not retiring, retiring," he said. "I still want to keep my foot in the door of education since that's pretty much been my whole life."

He leaves the high school being a little better educated himself. Many students at Magic Valley High School, for instance, are from single-parent or low-income families, he said.

"I was fortunate to come from a typical middle class upbringing. I had a 'Leave It to Beaver' family, two parents and the whole college education stuff," he said. "Many of these students have affiliations with gangs and parents who struggled in school."

Students have taught him about facing life's challenges with determination.

"It's been an amazing learning experience," he said. "A lot of kids have taught me by the struggles they go through. They get up every morning and come to school to complete their education. ... If I didn't have a military dad, I don't know that I would have shown up to school every day. My admiration for them is just amazing. They show up every day and give me their best"

Teachers, staff and students say his work at the school will not be forgotten.

"He's a good principal and very respectful," student Junior Alvas said. "He's always there if you need something or need to talk."

Pilar Cervantes, also a student, said the next principal the school gets should be a clone of Altemose, because "he is the best," she said. "Or better yet, just have him stay."

"He's a great principal, who makes us feel good," student

Stocks Edge Higher as Energy Stocks Rebound

NEW YORK (AP) • Stocks edged higher on Monday as energy stocks got a lift from recovering oil prices. The energy industry climbed 1 percent, making it the biggest gainer in the Standard & Poor's 500 index. Oil rose 75 cents, or 0.9 percent, to $88.76 a barrel Monday. A week ago, crude fell below $90 a barrel for the first time this year after reports that China's economic growth slowed. The broader market managed only a modest advance as investors focused on the outlook for company profits at the start of a big week for earnings on Wall Street.

Fish Stocking in the Magic Valley

Q. Which lakes does the Idaho Department of Fish and Game stock?

Kimberly Williams-Brackett

Curious Mind

According to the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, there are 15 lakes, ponds, or reservoirs in the Magic Valley region that had fish stocked in 2013: Crystal Lake, Dierkes Lake, Dog Creek Reservoir, Filer Pond East, Frank Oster Lake, Hagerman Pond, Herman Anderson Lake, Niagara Springs, Riley Creek, Rock Creek and the Snake River. Stocking typically takes place in early spring; as early as February or as late as September said Regional Fishery Manager Doug Megargle. "It depends on water conditions. It's a very dynamic and flexible schedule." In Twin Falls County, Dierkes Lake was stocked on March 14 with 3,080

Kamloops over six inches. Rock Creek was stocked with 212 adult rainbow trout the end of January, and stocked four times this spring with 8,021 catchable rainbow trout. The Snake River was stocked twice with 1,140 catchable triploid troutlodge Kamloops. In 2012, there were 71 bodies of water in the Magic Valley region that had fish stocked. Fish stocking in the Magic Valley began as early as 1967. There are 233 public water bodies in the Magic Valley that had fish stocked in the past 46 years. "A body of water is stocked depending on the type of fish we're trying to support, habitat suitability, ultimately the amount of fish we have on hand, and how successful we are," said Megargle. Currently, the best fishing is at Magic Reservoir or Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir by boat, or if you want the family experience from shore Dierkes Lake or Filer Pond was recommended, said Megargle. He said the catch depends on whether water levels are reasonable and water temperatures. For more information, visit <http://fishandgame.idaho.gov>. Have a question? ONLINE: Sad Day for Idaho GOP

On "Capitol Confidential," reporter Melissa Davlin blogs about Idaho politics. An excerpt from her latest post:

"Dedra Morris, administrative assistant for the Idaho Republican Party, died early Sunday in a car accident in Washington, according to the Spokesman-Review.

"Morris was 22 years old. According to her short biography on idgop.org, she grew up in Yerington, Nev., and graduated from Boise State University with a bachelor's in political science with an emphasis in American government and public policy.

"Through her work with the Idaho GOP, she made an impression with young conservatives across the state; my Facebook timeline was filled with tributes to her today, many of which featured a photo of a smiling Morris riding a skateboard. ..."

Mont. Man Reunited with Bird He Lost in a Divorce

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) • A Great Falls man who lost his macaw in a divorce more than five years ago has been reunited with the bird, thanks to an observant friend. Mike Taylor picked up the 25-year-old bird he calls "Love Love" at Montana's Parrot & Exotic Bird Sanctuary in Butte on Sunday. Taylor said his wife sold the bird after a nasty divorce. "I've been kind of looking for him the whole time," he said. A friend of Taylor's, Steven Campbell, recently spotted the bird during a visit to the sanctuary. It took some time for Campbell to convince Taylor. Then Taylor had to convince sanctuary founder Lori McAlexander. But she said he knew things about the bird that only a previous owner could have known, like it was blind in one eye, said "love love" and liked to play peek-a-boo.

It Will Warm Up, I Promise

Brian Neudorff
Meteorologist

Just when things were getting nice over the weekend, Mother Nature threw us another curve Monday. We had strong gusty winds, and a passing cold front brought areas of light snow and falling afternoon temperatures. It will get better, I promise. How many weathermen will give you a promise?

Today's weather will be sunny and slightly cooler than average as highs stay in the low to mid-50s. Winds won't be nearly as strong out of the west-southwest and will range between 5-15 mph. As we go into the middle of the week, we will start to warm up. Highs will be in the low to mid-60s on Wednesday but jump into the upper 60s by Thursday. Friday and the weekend get even warmer. Highs over this three-day period will reach the low 70s. Skies will remain sunny through the weekend and into early next week. As of right now, it looks like we are going to have an extended period of dry weather and light winds.

Her sisters are Thelma Lee, Grace Hansen, Doris Merrell, Helen Casto, Joy Fedderson, Dauna McIntyre and Gay Garrett; and her brother is Armour Jensen, all whom are deceased.

Evelynn was married to Milton H. Reese in Evanston, Wyo., on Sept. 14, 1940. They dry farmed in Utah before drawing a homestead in Paul, Idaho, in the year 1955. Evelynn worked as a personnel officer at the Bureau of Reclamation in Burley until her retirement in 1988. Eventually they sold their farm in Paul and bought a ranch in Moore, Idaho. They also bought a house in the town of Paul, where they lived when they weren't at the ranch.

Evelynn always looked on the bright side of everything and was always willing to help whenever she could. Her family said they never heard her say anything negative about anyone. Evelynn enjoyed playing bridge, doing crossword puzzles and fishing.

Evelynn is survived by her children, Kathy Preuit of Rupert, Idaho, Bill Reese of Moore, Idaho, and Marilyn (Brent) Whitesides of Rupert, Idaho; five grandchildren, Stacey (Kent)

Jackson, Brandon (Lisa) Whitesides, Troy (Janice) Preuit, Josh (Bobbie) Reese and Courtney (Gabe) Rollheiser; and 15 great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband, Milton; and a great-grandson, Ty Reese Jackson.

Thanks to the special people at Vista Assisted Living in Rupert for the wonderful care they gave our mother in her last days.

According to Evelynn's wishes there was no formal service held. A private family burial was held in the Rupert Cemetery under the direction of Joel Heward at Hansen Mortuary.

OBITUARIES

Patricia ‘Patsy’ Ann DuRette Hafen

March 5, 1931-April 19, 2013

HAGERMAN • Little Patricia Hafen passed peacefully Friday, April 19, 2013. She was 82.

Patricia was born March 5, 1931, the youngest of the eight children of Francis Ralph and Mary Valarie DuRette. Patricia grew up along the banks of the beautiful Willamette River in Oregon, part of a fun-loving family involved in farming and logging. She learned of tragedy early when she lost her mother at the age of 8.

In her late teens, she journeyed to St. George, Utah, to visit her Grandmother Short and Aunt Mable and, while there, was motivated to stay and attend Dixie College. There she met a handsome cheerleader, Gregerson Hafen, who wooed and won her love. They were married in the St. George Temple on May 26, 1951. Patsy finished her teaching degree and taught school while Greg served during the Korean War. Through the years, they had nine children, eight who they raised to adulthood.

When Greg returned, he and Patsy taught school in Circleville, Utah. In 1960, the opportunity came to purchase a homestead in the desert of Paul, Idaho. The family moved into a small trailer and used a community shower house while a home was lovingly constructed. Development of this property consumed the young family for the next nine years. Patsy taught at the Paul and Burley grade schools during these years of improving the farm and raising a family. Many happy times were shared with cousins from Oregon who visited during the summer earning money hoeing beets.

In 1969, an opportunity came to purchase a ranch in Bliss, Idaho. A bigger spread with room for a cattle herd was the determining factor in this move, and the Hagerman Valley communities were greatly loved by Patricia. She continued to teach school for many years, served in numerous capacities in her church community and enthusiastically shared her love for nursery rhymes, artistic endeavors and music with all along the path she trod.

She led Cub Scouts, authored plays and directed road shows with boundless energy. Her family and church were her greatest treasures, and she embraced them with an enduring love that will live on in future generations.

Patricia is survived by her loving husband, Greg; her sons, Rustin Hafen (Robin), John Hafen (Carol), Robbin Hafen (Melissa) and Rockland Hafen (Robin); her daughters, Laurie Hafen, Juli Hafen and Valrea Farnsworth (Matt); 27 grandchildren; and many great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her sons, Daniel DuRette and Gregerson Gilbert Hafen.

In lieu of flowers, memorials in Patricia’s name may be made to the Primary Children’s Medical Center Foundation, P.O. Box 58249, Salt Lake City, Utah 84158-0249, or to the art and music programs at Hagerman Elementary School, 324 N. Second Ave., Hagerman, ID 83332, or Bliss Elementary School, P.O. Box 115, Bliss, ID 83314.

The funeral will be conducted at 11 a.m. Saturday, April 27, at the Hagerman LDS Church, 620 S. State St. in Hagerman, Idaho. A visitation will begin one hour prior to the service. Interment will follow in the Hagerman Cemetery. Arrangements are under the care of Farnsworth Mortuary of Jerome.

Woodstock Singer Havens, 72, Dies of Heart Attack

BY MESFIN FEKADU

AP Music Writer

NEW YORK • Richie Havens, the folk singer and guitarist who was the first performer at Woodstock, died Monday. He was 72.

Havens died of a heart attack in New Jersey, his family said in a statement. He was born in Brooklyn.

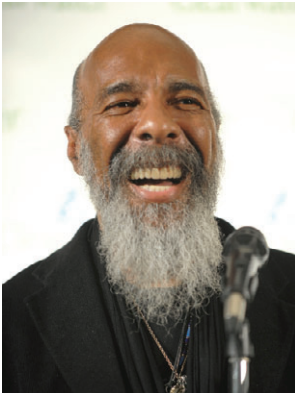

Havens was known for his crafty guitar work and cover songs, including his well-received cover of Bob Dylan’s “Just Like a Woman.”

His performance at the three-day 1969 Woodstock Festival, where headliners included Jimi Hendrix, was a turning point in his career. He was the first act to hit the stage, performing for nearly three hours. His performance of “Freedom” — based from the spiritual “Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child” — became an anthem.

Havens returned to the site during Woodstock’s 40th anniversary in 2009.

“Everything in my life, and so many others, is attached to that train,” he said in an interview that year with The Associated Press.

Woodstock remains one of the events that continues to define the 1960s in the popular imagination. Performers included The Who, Janis Joplin, Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young and dozens of others, and the trippy anarchy of Woodstock has become legendary. There was lots of nudity, casual sex, dirty dancing and open drug use. The stage announcer famously warned people to steer clear of the brown acid.

Havens

Havens had originally been scheduled to go on fifth but had been bumped up because of travel delays. Festival producer Michael Lang said in the book “The Road to Woodstock” that he chose Havens “because of his calm but powerful demeanor.”

His performance lasted hours because the next act hadn’t showed up.

“So I’d go back and sing three more,” Havens said in an interview with NPR. “This happened six times. So I sung every song I knew.”

Havens’ website said he had kidney surgery in 2010 and that he never recovered enough to perform concerts like he used to. He performed at Bill Clinton’s presidential Inauguration in 1993.

Havens, who released his debut “Mixed Bag” in 1967, has released more than 25 albums. He sang with doo-wop groups on the street corner in his Brooklyn neighborhood at an early age. At 20, he moved to New York City’s Greenwich Village, where he performed poetry, listened to folk music and learned how to play the guitar.

Save Saturdays: Postal Workers to Rally in Twin Falls

BY JOE CADOTTE
jcadotte@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • After losing nearly $16 billion dollars last year, U.S. Postal Service Postmaster General Patrick R. Donahoe wants to save $2 billion per year by cutting Saturday service.

If Congress doesn't pass a continuing resolution on Sept. 30 to keep Saturday delivery, Idaho State Association of Letter Carriers John Paige said 25,000 postal workers would lose their jobs — 20 to 30 of those in the Magic Valley. Saturday delivery could end as soon as October, Paige said.

On Friday, postal workers will gather outside the Red Lion Hotel Canyon Springs on Blue Lakes Boulevard from 4:30-5:30 p.m. to protest the potential loss of Saturday delivery.

Paige said he estimates around 50 postal workers and their families will join in the protest.

Paige, who is also a letter carrier in Pocatello, said a lot more than jobs would be lost.

"A lot of times, we don't just deliver mail," Paige said. He said he would lose his job if Saturdays were eliminated. "We act as watch dogs to see what's going on in the neighborhood. A lot of times the elderly and the handicapped need our help. We've had many instances where we've seen houses on fire with nobody home. We just keep an eye on the community, especially when people are out of town."

Through protesting, Paige said he wants to make the public aware of what they will lose if Saturdays are discontinued.

"You're just not going to get what you're paying for anymore," Paige said. "We're trying to get the public aware and to get them to get their members of Congress to vote in favor of (the continuing resolution)."

Paige said there are better alternatives to ending Saturday delivery. The biggest

"Rural communities, which Idaho mainly consist of, would really hurt the most. We'd actually lose revenue because a lot of the companies that use us now, who rely on Saturday delivery would seek it somewhere else. We would save $2 billion, but really it would be just a drop in the bucket."

one, he said, would be eliminating the pre-funding of retiree benefits.

"We have the ability to solve our own problems financially," Paige said. "One of them is this required pre-funding of future retiree health benefits that started back in 2006. It costs us around $5.5 billion per year. It's totally unnecessary. We're paying for employee benefits that haven't even been born yet. That accounts for 90 percent of our red ink."

Eliminating Saturdays would hurt more than help, Paige said, cutting one day at the post office could back the mail up for days. Especially for rural areas that already see delayed deliveries.

An employee walks through the 450,000 square foot Wow Logistics facility in Jerome on Wednesday. Some 35 to 40 trucks a day transfer dairy products like cheese and whey to and from the building.

MAGIC VALLEY DAIRY KING

WOW Logistics in Jerome serves as the international outlet for majority of dairy producers in the Magic Valley.

BY JOE CADOTTE
jcadotte@magicvalley.com

JEROME • There are about 464,000 dairy cows in the Magic Valley and whether the economy is good or bad, they still need to be milked.

"If the market fluctuates and you don't want to sell your product, you need some place to store it," said WOW Logistics Account Manager Mark Lopshire. "You've got to milk Bessie twice a day. You can't slow her down. You are going to continue to milk her every day. So what are you going to do with that product?"

That's where WOW Logistics in Jerome comes in. WOW Logistics in Jerome is a 450,000-thousand-square-foot warehouse built to store thousands of tons of cheese and dry dairy products.

Lopshire said the multi-temperature facility is vital for dairy plants and processors.

"Absolutely critical," Lopshire said. "The core competency for a dairy farmer is dairy and its storage. They've got to be able to focus on Bessie and feeding Bessie, getting the best milk products ... (and) shipping them to market and if they can't do that, they get caught up."

Some processors ship their products directly, Lopshire said, but WOW takes up most of the leftover slack.

The WOW warehouse reminds one of the end scene in Raiders of the Lost Ark when the Ark of the Covenant is being stored in that massive government warehouse. Instead of boxes that read, "Classified," there are endless hallways of whey, dried milk and cheese.

After walking through stacked pallets of dried milk and whey, two massive doors open to a giant refrigerator with 4,500 tons of cheddar cheese piled more than three stories high.

The next time you're eating cheese and crackers, Lopshire said, the chances are it was aged at WOW.

"It's kind of like trout," Lopshire said. "You go anywhere in the United States and eat trout, you have an 80 percent chance that it came from the Magic Valley."

Another set of doors opens to an identical refrigeration unit with another 4,500 tons of mostly cheddar. Finally, a third giant temperature-controlled unit contains nearly as much asiago and parmesan, which needs to age at least a year.

"They want a real, vibrant taste," Lopshire said. "After a year, cheese experts will take graters, pull the plug, feel it, smell it, taste it, run testing on it and see if it's ready for market."

When the cheese is ready to go, it's shipped out of the warehouse, primarily by truck, and eventually goes around the world.

Lopshire said, 40 to 50 trucks each carrying 43,000 pounds of dairy enter and leave the warehouse every day. Most of it is sent to ports in Seattle, where it is shipped worldwide.

"They'll wait for the market to fluctuate a little bit and then it will ship out to Canada, Mexico and Asia," Lopshire said. "Those are big markets for the Magic Valley."

"Idaho exports about 27 percent of all their ag overseas ... 90 percent of the Magic Valley dairy products are exported from this area."

Since WOW touches a lot of the international dairy economy, Lopshire said, the stockpiles in the warehouse can sometimes serve as an economic indicator.

WOW Distribution Center Manager Bill Powell oversees all of WOW's inbound and outbound deliveries. He said since the economy is improving, he sees traffic increase in the warehouse.

"Business is good," Powell said. "We're full and we hope we can accommodate their needs. If a producer calls and asks if we can handle it, I tell them it depends. If a shipment goes out and there's space we can handle it great. If we can't, then we may have to say 'We're full,' and we'd help them find a place to put their stuff, be it here or another warehouse that WOW works with."

WOW Logistics is based in Appleton, Wis. The facility in Jerome is the only one of the 13 public warehouses located outside the Midwest.

Twin Falls Urban Renewal Seeks Input on Expansion

BY JOE CADOTTE

If You Go

Urban Renewal Board is hosting a public input meeting 6 p.m. Wednesday, April 24, at the City Council Chambers.

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency is hoping to expand its revenue allocation area from its current boundaries in Old Towne into downtown. State statute allows URAs to expand as far as 16 blocks, but that expansion must be adjacent to current boundaries, said city of Twin Falls Economic Development Director Melinda Anderson.

During a Wednesday evening public meeting, the URA hopes to get input from residents about potential projects. Knowing the priorities and interests of downtown property and business owners will help the URA craft its boundaries, Anderson said.

"This doesn't increase anyone's taxes. It allows the URA to actually invest money into downtown in the future," Anderson said.

Agency Chairperson Gary Garnand said the new area could potentially add 60 acres to their existing 608-acre tax-increment financing district.

"This is a critical piece of helping downtown," Garnand said. "Because the way the law is right now, we can't do anything to improve the area."

"Urban Renewal does not live in a vacuum. We've always felt that downtown is a critical piece of what we're about. We didn't realize until last November that we couldn't spend any (more) money down there."

Garnand said they want to hear what the public wants in terms of what needs to be improved.

"I'm very excited about what people have to say," Garnand said. "We look to this to be a positive experience for the community and a positive experience for us."

Boise Loan Broker to Refund Unlawful Upfront Fees

BOISE • A Boise loan broker has agreed to pay $19,575 in customer refunds and change his business practices, Attorney General Lawrence Wasden said. The agreement with Dairld G. Wurtz, Jr., who operates Allied Commercial Partners 1, LLC, resolved the lawsuit filed by Wasden's office February. Under terms of the settlement, Wurtz must comply with the Idaho Consumer Protection Act and Idaho's loan broker law, which prohibits loan brokers from accepting upfront fees for unfunded loans.

The Attorney General received complaints from consumers who paid thousands of dollars to Wurtz for business loans. Without providing a commitment to lend, Wurtz continued to charge the consumers for expenses. This practice violates the Idaho Consumer Protection Act and Idaho's loan broker law.

New Regulatory Body Come July

BOISE • Governor Otter and the Idaho Legislature approved a bill brought forth by the IDL during the 2013 session that changes the composition of the Idaho Oil and Gas Conservation Commission to include subject matter experts in oil and gas, geology and water rather than constitutional officers. The new commission also will include two landowners - one who owns minerals and one who owns only the surface estate.

The IDL examined other states to come up with the proposal, which changes Idaho's commission membership to more closely resemble other states' oil and gas regulatory commissions.

Come July 1, 2013, the Idaho Oil and Gas Conservation Commission will include five individuals appointed by the Governor and approved by the Senate. In May, the Governor's Office and IDL will begin soliciting applications for appointment to the commission.

Idaho, U.S. Gas Prices Head in Different Directions

for the first time this year.

Motorists across the country continue to feel relief at the pump as prices in every state but Idaho are lower than two week ago.

At $3.53 a gallon last week, Idahoans were paying 11 cents more than they were a month ago. Meanwhile the U.S. average price has dropped 17 cents during the same period to $3.52 last week. That's not to say that Idaho's average price is anywhere close to the $4.39 and $3.98 average prices last week in Hawaii and California.

CBS Buys Small Stake in Mobile TV Startup Syncbak

NEW YORK (AP) • CBS Corp. says it has made a minority investment in Syncbak, a technology company that allows mobile device users to pick up signals from their local TV stations over the Internet.

Founded in Marion, Iowa, in 2009, Syncbak allows people who download the app to watch local programming, even over a cellphone connection.

Broadcasters like CBS are hoping to reach consumers on new platforms as viewing habits change.

CBS's investment comes after it and other networks mounted a legal challenge to New York-based Aereo, a startup that plucks broadcast signals for free from the air and distributes them to customers via the Internet for $8 a month or more.

Broadcasters have sued Aereo, alleging copyright infringement. Aereo has prevailed so far, arguing that by using thousands of antennas, its service replicates a customer buying his own antenna to receive free over-the-air broadcasts.

It won a preliminary ruling in an appeals court earlier this month, which allowed it to continue offering its service in the New York City area. It plans to expand to Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington and 18 other U.S. markets this spring.

CBS said Monday that Syncbak's technology is being tested by more than 100 TV stations in 70 markets, including San Francisco, Philadelphia and Dallas.

CBS said it would work closely with cable, satellite and telecommunications companies on building Syncbak.

That suggests that getting the full use of Syncbak could require a pay TV subscription, although that hasn't yet been decided.

Most U.S. TV households pay for service from cable and satellite companies who in turn pay local TV stations for the right to retransmit their feeds to subscribers. These so-called retransmission fees amounted to $3 billion last year and are expected to double by 2018, according to research firm SNL Kagan.

Aereo jeopardizes those fees because, if its legal argument stands, cable and satellite companies could build similar technology to avoid paying for retransmission rights.

By offering local TV station content, Syncbak supplements the efforts of pay TV operators, such as Time Warner Cable

Inc., which last week began allowing live TV viewing of certain channels through its mobile app for customers who are outside their home.

Indian Girl’s Rape Highlights Police Apathy

BY NIRMALA GEORGE
Associated Press

NEW DELHI • A child disappears. Police are called. Nothing happens.

Child rights activists say the rape last week of a 5-year-old girl is just the latest case in which Indian police failed to take urgent action on a report of a missing child. Three days after the attack, the girl was found alone in locked room in the same New Delhi building where her family lives.

More than 90,000 children go missing in India each year; more than 34,000 are never found. Some parents say they lost crucial time because police wrongly dismissed their missing children as runaways, refused to file reports or treated the cases as nuisances.

The parents of the 5-year-old said that after their daughter disappeared, they repeatedly begged police to register a complaint and begin a search, but they were rejected.

Three days later, neighbors heard the sound of a child crying from a locked room in the tenement. They broke down the door and rushed the brutalized girl to the police station.

The parents said the police response was to offer $370 keep quiet about what had happened.

“They just wanted us to go away. They didn’t want to register a case even after they saw how badly our daughter was injured,” said the girl’s father, who cannot be identified because Indian law requires a rape victim’s identity be kept secret.

Delhi’s Police Commissioner Neeraj Kumar admitted Monday that local police had erred in handling the case.

“There have been shortfalls, so the station house officer and his deputy have been suspended,” Kumar told reporters.

Bombing Suspect Charged, Could Face Death Penalty

BY DENISE LAVOIE
AND STEVE PEOPLES

Associated Press

BOSTON • A seriously wounded Dzhokhar Tsarnaev was charged in his hospital room Monday with bombing the Boston Marathon in a plot with his older brother and could get the death penalty for the attack that killed three people.

Tsarnaev, 19, was charged by federal prosecutors with using and conspiring to use a weapon of mass destruction — a bomb — to kill.

The criminal complaint containing the allegations shed no light on the motive. But it gave a detailed sequence of events and cited surveillance-camera images of Tsarnaev dropping off a knapsack with one of the bombs and using a cellphone, perhaps to coordinate or detonate the blasts.

The two pressure-cooker bombs sprayed shrapnel into the crowd at the finish line last Monday. More than 200 people were wounded, and the dead included an 8-year-old boy.

The Massachusetts college student was listed in serious but stable condition at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center with a gunshot wound to the throat and other injuries. His brother, Tamerlan, 26, died last week in a fierce gunbattle with police.

“Although our investigation is ongoing, today’s charges bring a successful end to a tragic week for the city of Boston and for our country,” Attorney General Eric Holder said in a statement.

The charges carry the death penalty or a prison sentence of up to life.

“He has what’s coming to him,” a wounded Kaitlynn

Tsarnaev

Cates said from her hospital room. She was at the finish line when the first blast knocked her off her feet, and she suffered an injury to her lower leg.

Doctors: All Boston Bomb Patients Likely to Survive

BY MARILYNN MARCHIONE

AP Chief Medical Writer

BOSTON • In a glimmer of good news after last week’s tragedy, all of the more than 180 people injured in the Boston Marathon blasts who made it to a hospital alive now seem likely to survive.

That includes several people who arrived with legs attached by just a little skin, a 3-year-old boy with a head wound and bleeding on the brain, and a little girl riddled with nails. Even a transit system police officer whose heart had stopped and was close to bleeding to death after a shootout with the suspects now appears headed for recovery.

“All I feel is joy,” said Dr. George Velmahos, chief of trauma surgery at Massachusetts General Hospital, referring to his hospital’s 31 blast patients. “Whoever came in alive, stayed alive.”

Three people did die in the blasts, but at the scene, before hospitals even had a chance to try to save them. A Massachusetts Institute of Technology police officer who police say was fatally shot Thursday by the suspects was pronounced dead when he arrived at Massachusetts General.

The only person to reach a hospital alive and then die was one of the suspected bombers — 26-year-old Tamerlan Tsarnaev.

But the remarkable, universal survival one week later of all others injured in the blasts is a testimonial to fast care at the scene, on the way to hospitals, then in emergency and operating rooms. Everyone played a part, from doctors, nurses and paramedics to strangers who took off belts to use as tourniquets and staunch bleeding with their bare hands.

As of Monday, 51 people remained hospitalized, three of them in critical condition and five listed as serious. At least 14 people lost all or part of a limb; three of them lost more than one.

Two children with leg injuries remain hospitalized at Boston Children’s Hospital. A 7-year-old girl is in critical condition and 11-year-old Aaron Hern of Martinez, Calif., is in fair condition.

The surviving bombing suspect, 19-year-old Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, is in serious condition at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center with a neck wound.

“Our training, our practicing, went a long way” to minimizing chaos so that hospitals and emergency responders worked effectively to treat the many wounded, said Dr. William Mackey, surgery chief at Tufts Medical Center.

Bush Library Exhibits Features 9/11, War, Katrina, Recount

BY JAMIE STENGLE

DALLAS • A tour of the George W. Bush Presidential Library and Museum begins in a bright area representing his early domestic agenda. With one turn, visitors find themselves in a darkened room surrounded by chilling reminders of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

This contrast symbolizing Bush’s abrupt shift in priorities less than eight months into his first term. It’s among the most poignant exhibits at a museum that also chronicles the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq, Hurricane Katrina, the Florida recount and various other events.

The George W. Bush Presidential Center, which includes the library and museum along with 43rd president’s policy institute, will be dedicated Thursday. Bush’s father, George H.W. Bush, and all the living presidents are expected to attend. It opens to the public May 1.

Ex-bishop’s Widow Wants Optional Priestly Celibacy

BY DEBORA REY AND
MICHAEL WARREN

Associated Press

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina • She uses a wheelchair and carries the weight of her 87 years, but Clelia Luro feels powerful enough to make the Roman Catholic Church pay attention to her campaign to end priestly celibacy.

This woman, whose romance with a bishop and eventual marriage became a major scandal in the 1960s, is such a close friend with Pope Francis that he called her every Sunday when he was Argentina’s leading cardinal.

Luro’s convinced that he will eventually lead the global church to end mandatory priestly celibacy, a requirement she says “the world no longer understands.” She believes this could resolve a global shortage of priests, and persuade many Catholics who are no longer practicing to recommit themselves to the church.

Supporters: Don’t Link Immigration Bill to Boston

BY ERICA WERNER

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Democratic supporters of a new immigration bill accused opponents Monday of trying to “exploit” the Boston Marathon bombings to hold up the legislation, sparking a testy exchange at a Senate hearing.

“I never said that! I never said that!” Sen. Chuck Grassley, R-Iowa, interjected as Sen. Chuck Schumer, D-N.Y., a lead author of the bill, criticized “those who are pointing to what happened, the terrible tragedy in Boston, as a, I would say, excuse for not doing a bill or delaying it.”

Schumer said he wasn’t talking about Grassley, who said last week that the bombings, allegedly carried out by two immigrant brothers, raised question about gaps in the U.S. immigration system that should be examined in context of the new bill. Senate Judiciary Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., banged his gavel to settle the proceedings.

The exchange came as the Judiciary Committee opened its second hearing on sweeping legislation to strengthen border security, allow tens of thousands of new high- and low-skilled workers into the country, require all employers to check their workers’ legal status, and provide an eventual path to citizenship for some 11 million immigrants now here illegally.

The obstacles to the legislation, released last week by a group of four Republican and four Democratic senators, were on stark display Monday. Polls show majority public backing for comprehensive legislation including a path to citizenship, and many Republicans also support such an approach. But in some corners, opposition has not wavered. That became clear as GOP senators took turns offering critiques.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Senate Judiciary Committee member Sen. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., right, questions a panel of witnesses during the committee’s hearing on immigration reform after a bipartisan group of senators agreed last week on legislation that would dramatically remake the U.S. immigration system, Monday on Capitol Hill in Washington.

Sen. Ted Cruz, R-Texas, called a path to citizenship “divisive,” and said that “any bill that insists upon that jeopardizes the likelihood of passing any immigration reform bill.”

Sen. Jeff Sessions, R-Ala., contended that the new bill would drive down wages and eliminate jobs for American workers.

Sen. John Cornyn, R-Texas, said the border security piece of the bill “falls well short of the sponsors’ aspiration to protect the borders and maintain U.S. sovereignty.”

How to Put America Back Together

Until we fully understand what turned two brothers who allegedly perpetrated the Boston Marathon bombings into murderers, it is hard to make any policy recommendation other than this: We need to redouble our efforts to make America stronger and healthier so it remains a vibrant counterexample to whatever bigoted ideology may have gripped these young men. With all our warts, we have built a unique society — a country where a black man, whose middle name is Hussein, whose grandfather was a Muslim, can run for president and first defeat a woman in his own party and then four years later a Mormon from the opposition, and no one thinks twice about it. With so many societies around the world being torn apart, especially in the Middle East, it is vital that America survives and flourishes as a beacon of pluralism.

Rebuilding our strength has to start with healing our economy. In that regard, it feels as if our budget drama has dragged on for so long that it has not only been drained of all emotional energy but nobody even remembers the plot anymore. It's worth recalling: What are we trying to do? We're trying to put America back on a sustainable growth track that will expand employment, strengthen our fiscal balance sheet to withstand future crises and generate resources to sustain the most needy and propel the next generation. That requires three things: We need to keep investing in the engines of our growth — infrastructure, government-financed research, education, immigration and regulations that incentivize risk-taking but prevent recklessness. We need to reform Social Security and Medicare so they can support all the baby boomers about to retire. And we need to raise more revenues, in the least painful way possible, because we can't just cut everything. As I've said, you can lose weight quickly by cutting off both thumbs, but that will be a problem at work. It was good to see President Barack Obama put out a budget proposal that addressed all three needs. The attacks on him from the left are unfair because, ultimately, we will need to do all three even more.

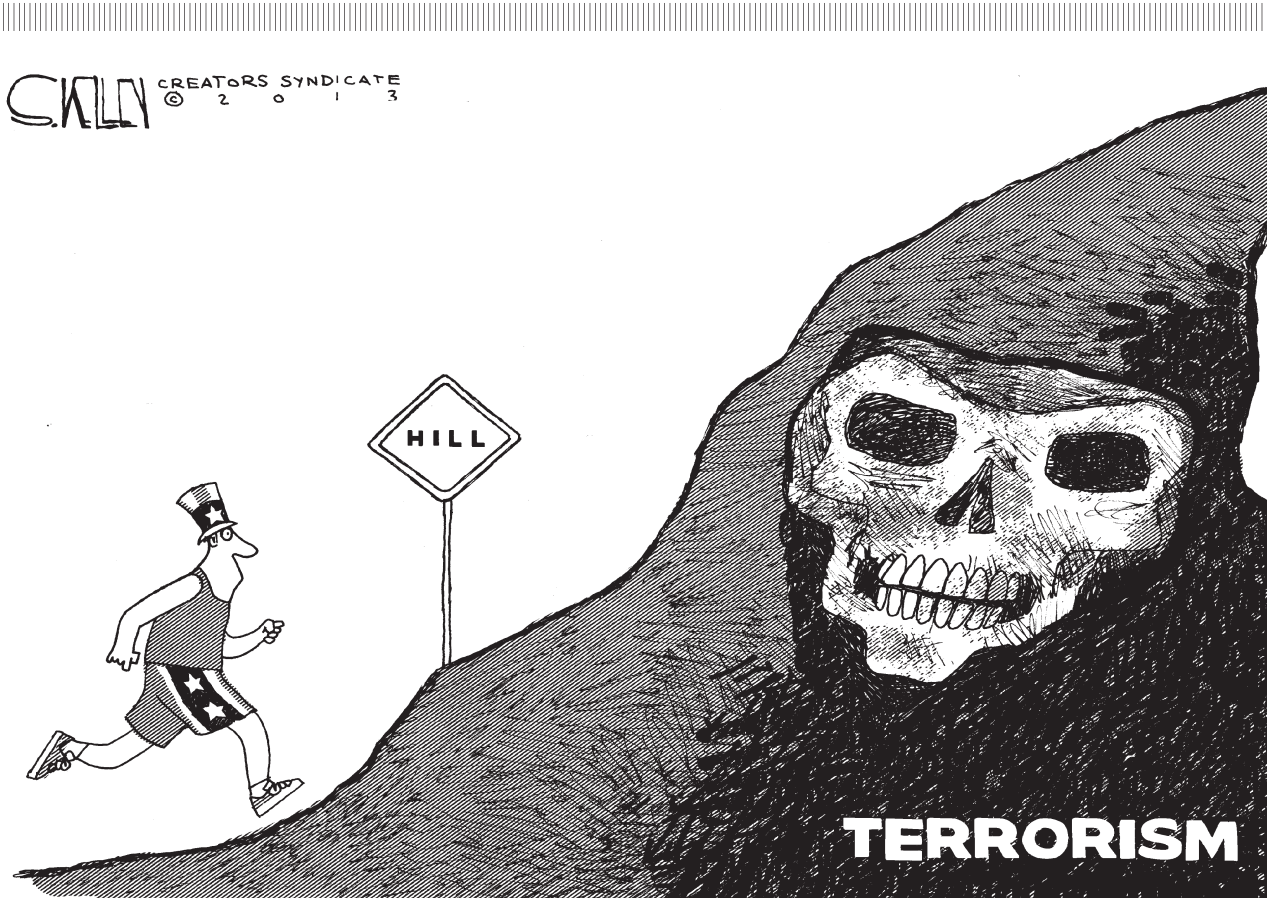

As Bloomberg News reported Monday: "Typical wage-earners retiring in 2010 will receive at least $3 for every $1 they contributed to the Medicare health-insurance program, according to an Urban Institute study." That's unsustainable. The Republican budget plan, though, would cut so much so fast — including taxes — that it would leave virtually nothing for investing in our growth engines. That's irresponsible.

So what to do? We need a more "radical center" — one much more willing to suggest radically new ideas to raise revenues, not the "split-the-difference-between-the-same-old-options center." And the best place to start is with a carbon tax. A phased-in carbon tax of $20 to $25 a ton could raise around $1 trillion over 10 years, as we each pay a few more dimes and quarters for every gallon of gasoline or hour of electricity.

With that new revenue stream, we'd have so many more options. One, preferred by Republicans like the statesman George Shultz and the Nobel laureate Gary Becker, is to make the carbon tax "revenue neutral." It could be offset entirely by a rebate or by cutting tax rates for every U.S. citizen and corporation, which would increase spending. Another option, the one I'd prefer, would devote half the carbon-tax revenues to individual and corporate tax cuts, use a quarter for new investments in infrastructure, preschool education, community colleges and research — which would create jobs now and tomorrow — and then use a quarter on deficit reduction.

In short, if you added such a carbon tax to Obama's budget, you'd have the makings of a radical grand bargain: Republicans would have the income tax cuts they want; Democrats would get the additional infrastructure stimulus they want, plus a new revenue stream to start gradually addressing the deficit, while reducing the amount that we'd have to bite from entitlements now; and the country would have a vehicle to address climate change, to drive clean-tech innovation (and to take money away from people who fund jihadist hate sites on the Internet).

However we divide the money, a carbon tax would enable a radical grand bargain that would be more fiscally responsible for the long run and more stimulative in the short run, paving the way to more sustainable growth. (Yes, a carbon tax is not painless. We would have to, and easily can, cushion the poor from its impact.) We'd be serving the present and the future. Here's one example how: Today states are slashing budgets for community colleges, just when every good job requires more skill. That is truly cutting off our thumbs to lose weight. Last week I interviewed Gary Green, the president of Forsyth Technical Community College, in Winston-Salem, N.C., with 10,000 students. "We have a labor surplus in this country and a labor shortage at the same time," Green explained to me. Workers in North Carolina, particularly in textiles and furniture, who lost jobs either to outsourcing or the recession in 2008, often "do not have the skills required to get a new job today" in the biotech, health care and manufacturing centers that are opening in the state. Our goal is not just balancing the budget. It's generating the resources in the most intelligent way possible to renew America for the 21st century.

Leader of Prom-planning Team Responds to Shot Glass Article

Sammantha Gulliford

Leader of Prom-planning Team

I think it's ironic with this whole "shot glass" thing going on in Jerome High School. Did it ever occur to anyone about the effect it had on the people who planned it?

I just want to state that in the first article, it acts like the kids who were involved in purchasing the shot glasses are bad kids, which is wrong. I was the one in charge of prom, and I have a 3.8 grade-point average. I have never been in trouble with the school. I've been pulled over once in the whole time of having my license. I was a part of Key Club, National Honor Society and annual staff. I have never been mixed up in drugs or alcohol. Prom consumed my life, and I still managed to keep my grades at As and Bs. I ran for junior class president out of choice and to make this school actually have an amazing prom for once.

I have to say with this article and the way it was portrayed makes a part of me never want to run for student council again. It shows that all the work we did wasn't appreciated.

Also, I enjoy that in the article it never talked about our budget. I received $650 to plan what I wanted. We did fundraisers to raise money for our budget, which most kids don't do. I went out and talked to people. I found a cotton candy machine, chocolate fountain and Slushy machine that we used for free. Where we purchased the cupcakes, they gave us half off. The venue and DJ knocked a few hundred dollars off our bill and let us use their decorations for free.

It's just shocking on how nice people can be when you just ask. I did all this so that we could have money for a better keepsake and more money for next year's prom.

Another thing, when I walked into the first meeting I ever had as junior class president, I was never handed guidelines or anything explaining what I was supposed to follow for planning prom. I was basically told the decision was mine. So as the year went on, I planned meetings with my committee. As a team, we planned the theme, decorations, what to buy, venue, snacks, chaperones and what the keepsake would be.

We also put a ton of time into decorating. Most of my weekends, all I did was make props and decorations for prom. The Friday night before prom, we decorated the venue from 5 p.m. to about 8:30 at night. Then the next morning, I was up at 8 a.m. doing more prom stuff. We all met at the high school to decorate Grand March at 9 a.m. and most stayed until 11 a.m., but it didn't get finished until 1 p.m. Then we had to be back at Grand March at 3:30 p.m. to make sure things were perfect. After that, I rushed to Twin to make sure all the fruit was cut and all the candy was put out at prom. After the dance, we stayed and cleaned until 12 a.m., finally eating dinner. I didn't get home until one in the morning.

It made for one long weekend, but for me, I didn't care. It made me happy to see all the students there having the time of their lives, dancing until the music ended. I enjoyed planning and it being hectic, with no time for anything in between because it made other people happy. All I wanted to do was provide Jerome High School with the time of their lives, which I think I did. Or at least I thought I did.

So thank you for taking away the joy I had in planning, what I thought, was one amazing prom. Thank you for never asking me if I ever needed help. Thank you for making me feel more stressed about a harmless glass than actually planning prom.

P.S. Why don't any prom books get letters about how it's inappropriate that they sell schools shot glasses, wine glasses or champagne glasses?

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Gun Control Debate Needs to Be Better Framed

It is time for citizen action to demand regulations regarding guns. When Congress can't function although some 90 percent of Americans support background checks for gun buyers, it is time to clean house. Or more accurately clean Senate and House. When these lawmakers are in terror of the National Rifle Association and apparently care more about their own financial well-being as future lobbyists than they do about the safety of Americans, we have no choice other than to oust most of them and brand the NRA for what it has become — a domestic terror enabler organization.

If you think that the Senate has preserved your gun rights and the Second Amendment by refusing to even debate this issue, please read on.

As an Idaho native and a gun owner since I was old enough to have one, I want to preserve my rights as much or more than anyone else. I also recognize that waving the Second Amendment in the face of other Americans, most of whom do not own guns nor care to, is a reckless policy and one that will, not may, lead to a re-interpretation of the Second Amendment.

Note that the amendment does not contain the word individual. A review of this amendment will reveal that it speaks only of "A well-regulated militia" and "the right of the people to keep and bear Arms" for the "the security of a free State." Nowhere do the words gun, hunting or even self-protection appear. Years ago, the Supreme Court interpreted that because guns were owned by individuals, the framers of the Bill of Rights meant it to be an individual right. This does not mean that a future court will not re-interpret it more strictly and the individual right could vanish in an instant.

Our state legislators who propose measures to prevent local sheriffs from enforcing conjectured federal gun legislation and our congressmen who refuse to debate measures designed to assure "A well-regulated militia" as defined in the amendment are not only failing to do their jobs but are putting at risk both the "security of a free State" and my individual right to own guns that are legal to hunt with, use for recreational target shooting, and to protect myself and my country should the need arise.

Listening to the NRA interpret the Second Amendment as creating a right for nearly any individual to own any number of almost any kind of gun for any purpose is certainly not what the founders envisioned when this amendment was penned in the age of flintlocks and smooth bore cannons and amid a continuing debate about even having a standing federal Army and Navy.

Now, in an age of assault weapons designed for military use and lasers that can shoot down aircraft, calls for thoughtful citizen action to demand that Congress properly regulate gun ownership and use before gun violence results in the inevitable re-interpretation of the amendment to seriously restrict gun ownership as we know it.

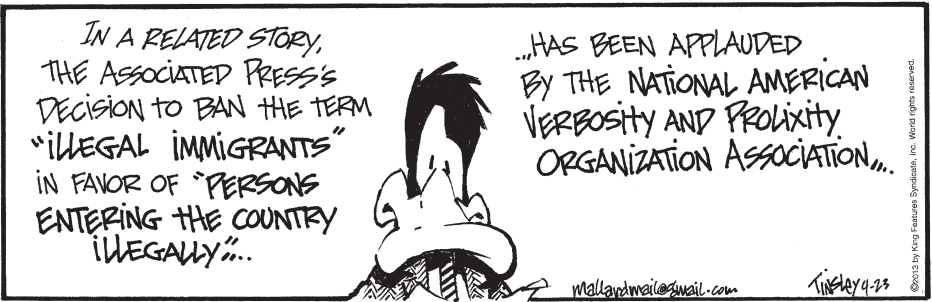

Please contact our congressmen and tell them to support carefully framed laws to maintain "A well-regulated militia" and maintain our individual gun ownership. This will benefit all concerned groups, even the NRA.

USDA Approves $1.1 Million Loan for Castleford Wastewater Facility Upgrade

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

CASTLEFORD • The city of Castleford's bank account got a little green this past Earth Day.

On Monday, the U.S. Department of Agriculture approved a $1.1 million loan to improve the city's wastewater treatment facility. The city will also receive a $475,000 grant for the project.

"Every year, we like to celebrate a project on Earth Day," said Wally Hedrick, state director of USDA Rural Development. "If you're in rural Idaho, every day is Earth Day."

Castleford voters approved taking out a bond to upgrade the city's wastewater system in November. Now that the city has been given the money, engineers can begin improving the facility.

"When we see small communities that go to the polls and show that they are willing to pay for this type of project, we pay attention,"

"If you're in rural Idaho, every day is Earth Day."

Wally Hedrick, state director of USDA
Rural Development

Hedrick said.

The city will use the money to replace three lagoons that have been used by the city since the 1960s, said Don Acheson with Riedesel Engineering. Back then, engineers used clay to line the lagoons. Inspectors believe the clay may have become weakened over time and allowed for leakage.

Currently, the city faces a tight deadline from state regulators to be in state and federal compliance by June 2014, said Acheson.

Idaho Department of Environmental Quality officials want to approve the new facility by next year, Acheson said.

Police: Twin Falls Man Exposed Himself at Elementary School

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Police say a 23-year-old man exposed himself to elementary school children last week.

According to a police report, on April 19 police were called to Lincoln Elementary School for a report about someone who exposed themselves to children on April 15.

Trent James Thompson, of Twin Falls, was arraigned in Twin Falls County Fifth District Court Monday on one count of indecent exposure. He was also charged with possession of drug paraphernalia.

While the school initially called about two possible suspects, only Thompson has been charged.

"At this point we believe there was only one," said Sgt. David Frick with the Twin Falls Police Department.

School officials were able to positively identify

Thompson as the man who children on the school's playground pointed out exposing himself.

At first, Thompson told police the incident happened earlier that day but then admitted to exposing himself on April 15, the report states.

Thomson's bond was set at $500. A pretrial conference for the charges, both misdemeanors, is scheduled for June 4.

BURLEY • Nearly 400 people turned out April 12 to honor two former Mini-Cassia legislators and a man noted for his work in wolf management.

The Zeb at the Ranch Best of the West Breakfast honored former legislators Denton Darrington and Bert Stevenson. Both left the Legislature this year. Noted wildlife authority Jack Oyler was also honored.

Zeb Bell said the Youth for Liberty Color Guard was featured and about 100 veterans were seated as special guests.

"We want to make this an annual event and make it a real tribute every year for three people," Bell said.

Bell said numerous sponsors allowed the tickets to

Former Burley Resident Dies in Police Custody

IDAHO STATESMAN

Anthony Firkins Jr., formerly of Burley, died while in custody of the Nampa police, Canyon County sheriff's deputies said Monday.

The Critical Incident Task Force and the Canyon County Sheriff's Office are investigating the death of the 33-year-old man, which occurred after he was apprehended early Friday following a high-speed chase. An autopsy was conducted Friday but the cause of death has not been determined, said Joe Decker, a spokesman for the Canyon County Sheriff's Office.

The exact circumstances of the man's death are still not clear, and Nampa police have not publicly specified the actions they took during his arrest. Decker said investigators are waiting on toxicology reports for Firkins. Lt. Chris McCormick is leading the investigation for Canyon County.

Nampa officers first responded Friday to a report of "suspicious circumstances" near the corner of Hudson and Canyon streets, including "the sounds of a female screaming somewhere in that area," Nampa officials said in a news release.

Officers saw a pickup driving "in a reckless manner with no lights on." They began pursuing the pickup and after several minutes Firkins lost control and crashed, according to the news release.

Firkins then got out of the pickup and jumped a fence, the release states. Officers found him hiding under a trailer.

"The suspect continued to be noncompliant with officers who were eventually able to take the suspect into custody," police stated in the release. Soon after, Firkins apparently stopped breathing, officials said.

Efforts Monday to contact family and friends of Firkins were unsuccessful.

Online court records reveal a handful of past criminal convictions for Firkins, including a 2007 guilty plea to attempted grand theft in Cassia County. He was sentenced to three years in prison in that case, but the judge retained jurisdiction — giving Firkins a chance to complete an initial period of confinement and treatment — and released Firkins on probation six months later.

During the same period in 2007, Firkins pleaded guilty in Cassia County to battery on a correctional officer or jailer, and waived an extradition hearing for unspecified charges in Wyoming, online court records show.

his neck, grabbed her by the arm and forced her through the front doors of the event center.

Then, the man forcefully dragged the woman to an SUV, the report states. The report states that the woman said she was yelling, screaming and struggling to get away, and while she was struggling, hit her head on the vehicle's door frame.

According to the report, the man hit the woman on her thighs and knees and was able to get her pants down to her knees, despite her fighting and hitting to try to get away.

At one point another man began banging on the SUV, telling the man inside to stop, the report states. At that time, the woman told police, she was able to get her pants back on and run away from the SUV to her car where her boyfriend was still sleeping.

The report states that the SUV and a blue car started leaving the scene. The woman then grabbed a baseball bat that was in her car and chased the vehicles, hitting the smaller car with the bat, the report states. According to the report, the back window of the car was broken out and the vehicles both pulled away.

Later, the report states, two men in a Chevrolet Tahoe drove to the Twin Falls County Jail and told deputies they believed police wanted to talk to them about an incident at the 360 Main Event Center.

Deputies notified officers at the event center, and the woman was able to identify one of the men as the person who helped her out of the SUV.

According to the report, the men eventually revealed that they were with a third man they called "Junior," the report states.

The next day, police obtained a photo of the man, identified as Grimaldo, and the woman identified him in a photo lineup as the man who tried to rape her, the report states.

According to the report, police left messages for Grimaldo, but were unable to locate him.

According to online court records, Grimaldo was arrested on April 10 and he posted a $50,000 bond the next day. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Friday.

Twin Falls County Victims' Assistance Coordinator Lori Stewart said the kind of attack alleged in this case is rare.

"The huge majority of sexual assaults are by a known person," she said.

Stewart said she could only think of a handful in her 15-year career.

The next principal should be visible in the school and make sure they put students first, just as Altemose has done over the course of his 13 years at the school, teacher Dionne Davidson said.

The school plans to have a new principal hired by start of the next school year.

"We hope to have one by then," Davidson said.

"I think he's got a good program going. He's great with the students," teacher Brittney Huntsman said.

Altemose said if a teacher ever needs a substitute, he might be available. He said he probably will always be involved with education to one degree or another.

"I enjoy what I do. I love doing what I've been able to do. I've never had a boring day. These kids have taught me a ton," he said. "It's never been about me. I love these kids, but it's just time to move on to a new adventure."

CSI shortstop Carter Yagi's range of personality benefits his teammates while hindering his team's opponents on the field.

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Shortstop Carter Yagi is jester and taskmaster for the College of Southern Idaho baseball team.

He's the warmest personality and one of its coldest competitors.

After the Golden Eagles' 1-0 win on a wind-chilled Saturday against the College of Southern Nevada, teammates dumped ice on his head.

He had a rare poor series at the plate. It seemed an intentionally ironic gesture.

Payback, perhaps.

Three months ago, Yagi was one of the players pulling teammates out of bed, insisting they conduct batting practice in twenty degree weather.

Yagi hasn't missed a day of batting practice in his two years at CSI, according to head coach Boomer Walker — literally hundreds of days consecutively in the cages in the morning.

He's had to completely change his swing and approach to survive and now thrive at the college level.

He's gone from a predominately pull-hitter in high school and his first year at CSI, to an all-fields on-base machine.

"He was a kid that was overlooked in high school a lot, and I think he wants to play for a long time," Walker said. "He is a guy that will take coaching. He had no idea who he was when he got here. He was a guy that hooked everything, focused on one third of the field and wanted to hit home runs. As coaches, we have tried to impress upon him that that isn't going to work at this level."

Carter, who will play at Big 12 power Kansas State next year, found out who he was — a hitter that can push a .400 batting average at the JUCO level. He dropped just below the mark after the four game set with CSN.

"My approach to hitting is middle opposite," Yagi said. "I try to get that early fastball. If I don't get a fastball early, I'll adjust and wait for it and then drive it over the short-stop's head."

Yagi had a on base percentage over .500 going into the weekend. Despite racking up the outs over the four games, he contributed by building up opponent's pitch counts.

"I just try to fight off as many as I can until I get what I want," Yagi said.

He battles, but not with himself.

He no longer just carries a big stick. He's spoken up.

"Carter leads as much off the field as he does on the field," Walker said. "He is the guy people go to with questions or if they have problems. The things I say to the club, I relay to him so that he can tell them. He's a guy that can relate to anyone on the team. He is not above anyone. But he just never stops working. When we are done with practice he is the guy rounding guys up to go lift weights. If he sees that guys are getting a little lazy, he will grab them and take them out to hit or lift weights."

Yagi's range at shortstop is only trumped by his range of personality, which allows him to fill multiple roles.

His now ubiquitous presence, along with that of fellow sophomores Tanner Morache (third baseman) and Kendal Maier (second baseman), might be the biggest reason for the Golden Eagles mid-season turnaround.

"It's been about the team chemistry this year," Yagi said. "We are sick of being the that third team in the conference."

Yagi, of course, had only become sick of that third place status after a year.

He's not used to it.

Yagi played second base at 5A Cottonwood High in Utah and helped them win two state championships. He was overshadowed by star shortstop Dalton Gust, who played at Salt Lake Community College and CSN. Yagi might have been overshadowed by his brother, too, who at 5-foot-6 plays for Utah State.

But Yagi still likes to walk in those footsteps.

"He helped guide me and develop a love for the game," Yagi said.

Yagi seems to relish the chance to be the center of attention.

It's taken more than a re-worked swing and the designation of team drill sergeant to turn fortunes. Yagi has to make them laugh, too.

He dances.

"To tell you the truth, I love Carter," said Bobby Wright, CSI's third baseman and right fielder. "He is a big, tough guy and a big-time leader. But inside the locker room he is one of the funniest kids I've ever met. He's a dance guy, Gangnam style. He shows off."

MANCHESTER UNITED WINS RECORD 20TH LEAGUE TITLE

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MANCHESTER, England • With 75,000 delirious Manchester United fans chanting “Champions! Champions!” at full voice, Rio Ferdinand tugged the back of Robin van Persie’s jersey near the forward’s number and shouted: “No. 20! No. 20!”

Twenty was the number at Old Trafford on Monday night. Van Persie’s first-half hat trick helped Manchester United produce a performance of style and swagger, a 3-0 victory over Aston Villa that clinched the club’s record 20th English league title with four matches to spare.

“It is a great feeling,” the Dutch forward said. “It is a fantastic team and fantastic players. It is a championship for every single one of them.”

Signed from Arsenal last summer, Van Persie put United ahead 83 seconds with a shot from close range. He doubled the lead with a volley in the 12th minute and completed his hat trick in the 33rd minute with his league-high 24th goal of the season.

Manchester United (27-4-3) has a 16-point lead over Manchester City (20-5-8), which has five games left. United will receive the trophy after its last home game of the season, against Swansea on May 12.

United manager Alex Ferguson’s decision to buy Van Persie last summer from Arsenal manager Arsene Wenger for $36 million — a hefty price for a player who had been injury prone — proved to be pivotal in the race against City, a team Ferguson once dubbed “noisy neighbors.”

As Ferguson walked into the center circle moments after the final whistle to soak up the atmosphere, he was soon embraced by Van Persie, who left Ferdinand and the rest of his teammates celebrating in front of fans and made a beeline for the Scot.

“I remember Arsene Wenger saying he’s a better player than you think,” Ferguson said after securing the 49th trophy of his managerial career. “I think he could be right. In terms of impact, I think it’s as big as anyone I can remember.”

ACC Schools Agree to Grant TV Rights to League

The Atlantic Coast Conference will retain the media rights of any school that chooses to leave the conference before 2027, essentially locking its schools into the league through the length of its current television deal.

The league said Monday that presidents of 15 current and soon-to-be member schools have agreed to and signed the deal, which is effective immediately and could slam the brakes on years of realignment around college athletics.

“In my opinion, any potential realignment of the Atlantic Coast Conference ended with this vote,” Miami athletic director Blake James said. “Today was a great day for the league and for all the members of the league.”

The decision applies to eventual new arrivals Pittsburgh, Syracuse, Notre Dame and Louisville. Maryland, who has announced plans to leave for the Big Ten in 2014, wasn’t included.

Awarding control of those TV rights — and, more importantly, the money that comes with them — to the league means that a school would have to leave its TV rights behind if it chose to go elsewhere.

Brooklyn Nets center Brook Lopez (11) defends against Chicago Bulls forward Luol Deng (9) during their first-round NBA basketball playoff game in New York.

Bulls Shut Down Nets 90-82, Even Series at 1-1

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Chicago evened its playoff series the only way it knows how: with bruising Bulls defense.

Carlos Boozer had 13 points and 12 rebounds, Joakim Noah gutted his way through a foot injury to make three fourth-quarter baskets, and the Bulls beat the Brooklyn Nets 90-82 on Monday night to even their first-round series at one game apiece.

Luol Deng bounced back from a poor opener with 15 points and 10 rebounds for the Bulls, who became the first team to win a road game this postseason.

Chicago held the Nets to two baskets in the third quarter to build a big enough lead to hold off a charge in the fourth.

Noah finished with 11 points and 10 rebounds for the Bulls, who host Game 3 on Thursday.

Brook Lopez scored 21 points for the Nets, who shot 35 percent from the field and were just 4 of 21 from 3-point range. Star point guard Deron Williams was 1 of 9, finishing with eight points.

After an unrecognizable defensive effort in a 106-89 loss in Game 1, when they allowed the Nets to shoot 16 of 20 in the second quarter, the Bulls got back to the mentality that has helped them overcome a number of injuries, including the season-long absence of Derrick Rose.

Noah, who has battled plantar fasciitis and whose status was in question coming into the series, played 26 minutes, just passing the 20-to-25 that coach Tom Thibodeau said he would be limited to.

Joe Johnson scored 17 points but shot 6 of 18 for the Nets, who couldn’t even reach the 87.5 points they averaged against the Bulls in the regular season, let alone the 106 they rang up in the opener.

Two nights after the first major postseason game in Brooklyn since the 1956 World Series, the crowd wasn’t as energetic and neither were the Nets, who didn’t give the fans much to cheer about with poor starts in both halves.

The Nets didn’t make their first field goal of the third quarter until Williams’ first basket of the game with 6:35 remaining in the period. Noah dunked less than a minute later, but that was about it for the Nets’ offense.

Boozer converted a three-point play to start a 9-2 run to end the period, and Chicago was ahead 69-57.

Brooklyn was 2 of 19 (10.5 percent) in the quarter, missing all three 3-point attempts. Noah’s low-scoring backup, Nazr Mohammed, had as many baskets in the period as the Nets.

Indians Rally for 3-2 Win over White Sox

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO • Asdrubal Cabrera hit a clutch two-run single in his return to the lineup and the Cleveland Indians used a throwing error by reliever Matt Thornton to rally for a 3-2 victory over the sloppy Chicago White Sox on Monday night.

Justin Masterson (4-1) pitched seven effective innings to help the Indians win their third straight. They have won three of four this season against the White Sox.

Cleveland had runners on first and second with one out in the eighth when Thornton threw wildly to second while trying to pick off Drew Stubbs. Both runners moved up as the ball went into center field. Jason Kipnis struck out for the second out, but Cabrera hit a liner to center to give Cleveland a 3-2 lead. He clapped his hands as he rounded first following the big hit.

RED SOX 9, ATHLETICS 6 BOSTON • Mike Napoli hit a grand slam and drove in five runs, Will Middlebrooks busted out of a slump with a three-run homer and the Boston Red Sox rebounded from a doubleheader sweep by beating the Oakland Athletics 9-6 on Monday night.

The Red Sox, swept by Kansas City Sunday, scored three runs in the fourth and five in the fifth. Napoli’s fourth career slam keyed the five-run fifth and helped end Oakland’s eight-game winning streak against Boston.

The Athletics dropped their season-high fourth straight.

Felix Doubront (2-0) allowed three runs on three hits, walking five. He also threw two wild pitches and struck out eight in 6 2-3 innings.

A.J. Griffin (2-1) was tagged for a career-worst nine runs — seven earned — and eight hits in four-plus innings.

ORIOLES 2, BLUE JAYS 1 BALTIMORE • Nick Markakis singled home the winning run with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning, giving the Orioles a victory over the Blue Jays.

Toronto reliever Aaron Loup (1-2) began the ninth by hitting Chris Davis with a pitch. After a sacrifice bunt, Steve Pearce popped out and Nolan Reimold received an intentional walk before Alexi Casilla reached on a throwing error by shortstop Munenori Kawasaki that loaded the bases.

Markakis then sliced an 0-2 pitch to the opposite field near the left-field line.

Jim Johnson (1-1) worked a perfect ninth for the Orioles, now 5-2 on a nine-game home-stand that ends Wednesday.

RAYS 5, YANKEES 1 ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. • Matt Moore became the first Rays pitcher to win his first four starts of a season, Ryan Roberts homered twice and Tampa Bay beat CC Sabathia and the Yankees.

Moore (4-0) allowed one run, two hits, three walks and had nine strikeouts over eight innings. Roberts connected in the first and third to help the Rays take an early 5-0 lead.

Yankees infielder Kevin Youkilis, who left Saturday’s game at Toronto with lower back stiffness, was a late scratch Monday after the back tightened up following batting practice. Sabathia (3-2) had a three-game winning streak end. The left-hander gave up five runs and seven hits over seven innings.

National League CARDINALS 3, NATIONALS 2 WASHINGTON • Yadier Molina drove in the go-ahead run in the sixth inning, backing Shelby Miller’s strong start Monday night, and the St. Louis Cardinals returned to the site of their Game 5 NL division series victory last season with a 3-2 victory over the Washington Nationals.

The other big hit for St. Louis was Allen Craig’s two-run double in the third.

Miller (3-1) struck out eight in 6 2-3 innings, allowing two runs and four hits.

All the Cardinals’ runs came against Dan Haren (1-3), who gave up three runs and six hits in five-plus innings.

Edward Mujica pitched a 1-2-3 ninth for his second save. The Cardinals have alternated wins and losses over their last nine games.

Washington has lost seven of 10.

PHILLIES 3, PIRATES 2 PHILADELPHIA • Jimmy Rollins hit a tiebreaking single in the sixth inning and Jonathan Pettibone had an impressive major league debut to lead Philadelphia past Pittsburgh.

Pettibone allowed two runs and six hits, striking out six in 5 1-3 innings. Raul Valdes (1-0) got two outs in the sixth and Jonathan Papelbon finished for his fourth save.

Pedro Alvarez and Russell Martin hit solo homers for the Pirates on a chilly night when the temperature dipped below 50 degrees. Pirates starter A.J. Burnett gave up two runs and five hits, fanning seven in five innings. Jared Hughes (1-2) retired his first two batters in the sixth before running into trouble.

Jacobs: Auburn Review Finds No Evidence of Fraud

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MONTGOMERY, Ala. • Former Auburn coach Gene Chizik lashed out at media reports accusing the football program of flouting the NCAA rules and called it “the most scrutinized” and sometimes vilified program in college football.

Chizik spoke Monday evening, hours after athletic director Jay Jacobs said an internal review into allegations by former players of academic fraud before the 2010 BCS championship game found no evidence of wrongdoing. The coach, who was fired after a 3-9 season, said he ran a clean program and decried reports going back to Cam Newton’s Heisman Trophy-winning season three years ago.

“The notion that we would pay a player in any shape or form to come to Auburn or stay at Auburn is absurd,” Chizik said in a 35-minute interview with writers who cover the team.

The more recent accusations surfaced in separate reports. ESPN The Magazine reported that there was widespread synthetic marijuana use among football players from the national title team and former New York Times and Sports Illustrated reporter Selena Roberts raised allegations from former players of grade changes and payments or offers of money.

Jacobs posted in a letter to fans on the school’s Web site the results of a review by his department and the university’s Internal Auditing department. Auburn worked with the NCAA in investigating the academic fraud, said Jack Smith, the athletic department’s director of strategic communications.

Jacobs had disputed Roberts’ report in an earlier statement but said Auburn would review the claims. This time, he and Chizik fired back.

“I’m tired of these attacks on Auburn,” Jacobs said, adding that the football program hadn’t been found guilty of a major violation in 20 years.

Seahawks, Chancellor Agree to Contract Extension

ASSOCIATED PRESS

RENTON, Wash. •

Kam Chancellor got the full treatment, from the use of the Seahawks' giant auditorium to standing on stage flanked by his head coach and general manager holding up a jersey with his name stitched across the back.

It was meaningful because Chancellor never got that opportunity when he was drafted in the fifth round out of Virginia Tech.

"Obviously, this is a big deal and we're trying to make a big deal out of this day for Kam," Seattle general manager John Schneider said. "This is Kam's day. Kam was a fifth-round draft pick. He hasn't been able to experience something like this and hopefully he's here for the rest of his career."

Chancellor became the first member of Seattle's standout secondary to be locked up for the long term when he signed a four-year extension with the Seahawks on Monday that will keep the young safety under contract with the only organization he's ever played for through the 2017 season.

Chancellor was Schneider's top priority this offseason when it came to take care of players in-house. Sure the Seahawks made headlines with their trade for Percy Harvin and the signings of Cliff Avril and Antoine Winfield, but Schneider insisted none of those deals would have been consummated had they affected Seattle's ability to get a long-term contract done with Chancellor.

It was a promise the Seahawks made to Chancellor at the end of last season and followed through on. He is also the first player drafted with Schneider and coach Pete Carroll in command to receive an extension.

"I've got so many words it's hard to throw them out there. I just feel great right now. The Seahawks organization has blessed me. It just feels good. I'm a happy person right now," Chancellor said. "Negotiations are negotiations, things are going to be up and down, be a bumpy road. At the end of the day it's done. That's all that matters at the end."

Chancellor, who turned 25 earlier this month, has grown from being a fifth-round pick in 2010 into the hard-hitting anchor in Seattle's talented secondary. In 2011, Chancellor was a Pro Bowl selection in his first season as a starter, when he had 73 tackles, four interceptions and 13 passes defended. Last season, Chancellor was used even more in run support and recorded a career-high 92 tackles.

But it was as a rookie in 2010, when Chancellor was playing behind and learning from former All-Pro Lawyer Milloy, that Carroll saw the potential in Chancellor. Chancellor started at Virginia Tech as a quarterback before moving to cornerback and rover, and finally settling at safety. By the end of his rookie year, Chancellor was getting significant snaps on defense and was not just being used on special teams.

He took over the starting spot in 2011 when Seattle chose not to re-sign Milloy. Chancellor's play in his first season as a starter was rewarded with a Pro Bowl trip after he was voted in as a first-alternate for the game.

"It was a great upbringing for him. Lawyer was a fantastic football player to follow and Kam did everything in that same style of play,"

Carroll said. "It started with (special) teams but he's never taken a step back. He's a tremendous all-around athlete ... but all of that has fit together."

A year ago, the Seahawks' main in-house goal was getting Marshawn Lynch resigned. This year it was Chancellor and now Schneider, and his staff can turn to other players that could be due big paydays. Two other members of Seattle's secondary — All-Pro Earl Thomas and Richard Sherman — have deals that expire after the 2014 season and could be looking at big-money extensions when the time comes.

Thomas could re-negotiate his deal now, but Sherman isn't eligible for one more season under rules of the collective bargaining agreement.

"This whole offseason has been about Kam, and we wouldn't have gotten into any other deals if we felt it was going to put his situation in jeopardy," Schneider said.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"There are no second acts in American lives."
— F. Scott Fitzgerald

In today's deal from the Yeh Tournament held five years ago, both tables reached five clubs, Fredrik Nystrom from the South seat after West had doubled a diamond call, Alfredo Versace from an uninformative auction from the North seat. Versace received a heart lead and simply played ace and another spade. Then he played a trump to hand. East won the ace and played another trump. Versace ruffed a spade in dummy and discovered he had two spade losers now since he was out of trump and had nowhere to park them. Down one.

Nystrom, part of the Swedish team that is the current holder of the Olympiad title, received the lead of the heart jack. He won in hand, played to the spade ace, and ruffed a spade. Next he took the heart king and ruffed a heart.

When East followed with the heart queen, Nystrom drew the sensible inference that West's presumed length in the red suits would leave him with short spades. So Nystrom ruffed the next spade with the club king.

Had both opponents followed, he would have played on trumps to make 11 or 12 tricks. As it was, when the bad spade break came to light, declarer ruffed a diamond to dummy, then ruffed a spade with the club eight. His second chance came when West could not overruff. Now declarer simply lost the long spade and the club ace.

ANSWER: If you play New Minor Forcing, you have the option of checking back for a 5-3 spade fit, but my instincts are simply to raise directly to three no-trump, giving away less information to the opponents about your shape and not giving them the chance to double an artificial call.

Today is Tuesday, April 23, the 113th day of 2013. There are 252 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On April 23, 1943, U.S. Navy Lt. John F. Kennedy assumed command of PT-109, a motor torpedo boat, in the Solomon Islands during World War II. (On Aug. 2, 1943, PT-109 was rammed and sunk by a Japanese destroyer, the Amagiri, killing two crew members; Kennedy and 10 others managed to survive.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1616, English poet and dramatist William Shakespeare, 52, died on what has been traditionally regarded as the anniversary of his birth in 1564.

In 1789, President-elect George Washington and his wife, Martha, moved into the first executive mansion, the Franklin House, in New York.

In 1791, the 15th president of the United States, James Buchanan, was born in Franklin County, Pa.

In 1910, former President Theodore Roosevelt delivered his famous "Man in the Arena" speech at the Sorbonne in Paris.

In 1940, about 200 people died in the Rhythm Night Club Fire in Natchez, Miss.

In 1954, Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves hit the first of his record 755 major-league home runs in a game against the St. Louis Cardinals. (The Braves won, 7-5.)

In 1968, student protesters began occupying buildings on the campus of Columbia University in New York; police put down the protests a week later.

In 1969, Sirhan Sirhan was sentenced to death for assassinating New York Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. (The sentence was later reduced to life imprisonment.)

In 1988, a federal ban on smoking during domestic airline flights of two hours or less went into effect.

In 1993, labor leader Cesar Chavez died in San Luis, Ariz., at age 66.

In 1998, James Earl Ray, who'd confessed to assassinating the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. and then insisted he'd been framed, died at a Nashville, Tenn., hospital at age 70.

In 2007, Boris Yeltsin, the first freely elected Russian president, died in Moscow at age 76.

Ten years ago: Global health officials warned travelers to avoid Beijing and Toronto, where they might get the SARS virus and export it to new locations. U.S. negotiators met with North Korean and Chinese representatives in Beijing for the first three-way meeting by the governments since the Korean War. American Airlines reported a billion-dollar first-quarter loss.

Five years ago: President George W. Bush, pushing for a Mideast peace agreement, met at the White House with Jordan's King Abdullah II. Defense Secretary Robert Gates announced that Army Gen. David Petraeus would be nominated by President George W. Bush to be the next commander of U.S. Central Command. The Supreme Court unanimously affirmed that police had the power to conduct searches and seize evidence, even when done during an arrest that turned out to have violated state law. The Chicago Cubs won their 10,000th game, joining the Giants in reaching that mark with a 7-6 victory in 10 innings at Colorado.

One year ago: Oscar-winner Jennifer Hudson broke down in tears while testifying at the Chicago trial of William Balfour, the man accused of killing her mother, brother and 7-year-old nephew in a jealous rage in 2008. (Balfour was convicted of first-degree murder and sentenced to life in prison.) The government reported that Social Security was rushing even faster toward insolvency, with its trust funds expected to run dry in 2033, three years earlier than previously projected.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 18 years to a man I have a good relationship with. My problem is he has always been extremely rude to my parents. They aren't critical or judgmental of him, and they try hard to be friendly and accommodating, perhaps thinking it might lessen the rudeness he continually shows them.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

Example: If my mom asks him how his parents are doing, without looking up from his cellphone he'll grunt and say, "They're fine" — nothing more. When we go out to dinner, he usually doesn't join in the conversation. Instead, he just sits there with a dismissive, bored look on his face.

I have told him I don't want him to come with me when I visit them. It only takes a few times before he asks if he can come again and promises to try to behave. But after a few visits, he reverts back to his old, rude ways. It has reached a point that it's affecting our marriage. Can you offer any suggestions for how this issue can be resolved?

— TIRED OF IT
TORONTO

DEAR TIRED OF IT: It would be helpful to know WHY your husband behaves this way. Does he dislike your folks? Does he have so little in common with them he doesn't know how to participate in a conversation with them? Is he this way with any other people?

Perhaps it would be better for all concerned if he saw them with you less often, say, 30 percent to 50 percent of the time. And before he does, make sure he is up to the task of being social because, as it stands, I agree his behavior is rude. He's not a teenager with his nose buried in a cellphone; he's an adult who should know better. If he finds your parents' company less than stimulating, he should be a better actor.

DEAR ABBY: Last year my darling mother lost her battle with cancer. Aside from grief and loss, a bigger issue looms over my life. It concerns my stepdad.

Before Mom was diagnosed, my stepfather was a selfish, self-centered man. At times he was mean to her to the point that I wanted her to leave him. In fairness, once Mom was diagnosed, he stepped up to the plate and took excellent care of her until her death. I have other issues with my stepfather. He was inappropriate with me, sharing things he should have kept to himself. It caused my mother great heartache and made me lose respect for him. I am still uncomfortable around him. Mom knew how I felt and understood.

Now that she is gone, do I have any obligation to him? He has a strained relationship with his only child. My sibling thinks I'm too hard on him, but doesn't understand the major problems our stepdad caused. I don't want to continue pretending I like him. Please help, Abby.

— SEARCHING
FOR GUIDANCE

DEAR SEARCHING: You are entitled to your feelings and, no, you do not have any obligation to your stepfather. If your sibling wants to see him, that's his/her choice. Explain to your sibling your reasons for feeling the way you do — and if you encounter your stepfather during family gatherings, be polite and don't linger. That isn't pretending to like the man; it's good manners.

IF APRIL 23 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Put material ambitions on the back burner and focus on spiritual values this year. You are particularly blessed by creative energy and can enjoy some of the same things that delighted you during childhood. June and July are great months in which to begin a health regimen with lasting benefits. Wait until August to make crucial decisions, or to launch key plans, because you may be presented with heaven-sent opportunities that solve your problems and needs, and can successfully make major decisions or launch new initiatives. To be a success in the business world or to climb higher with career accomplishments, you could wait until September for the best results.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Hindsight is 20-20. You will never know just how effective a change is until the change is complete. Continue to chisel away at a problem or a project and you will achieve lasting results.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Passions play their part. It is time to go for broke. Your romantic urges could get a workout tonight, since your loved ones might find you irresistible as affectionate Venus travels through your sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Life can be a gamble. Sometimes you give nothing and receive something — and sometimes you give everything and end up with nothing. Prove to others that you will be there through thick and thin.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The bee in your bonnet might hum a love song. You could feel more attractive to a special someone — and a friendship could develop into physical attraction. Keep everything out in the open and aboveboard.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You will never appreciate the value of anything until you take care of it. Whether you are sweeping the kitchen floor or tending to a sick relative, you will find hidden significance and extra strengths.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Enjoy being in the right place at the right time with the right person who understands your wants and needs. A little research and dedicated clarification will save you big headaches later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Breathing space might be needed, but that's not a problem today. Anyone worth knowing will make space for you in his or her life. You could be fixated on making a casual attraction a conquest.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Like Hansel and Gretel, creative solutions can lead you out of the woods. You may experience a brief period of confusion with a key relationship, but you can follow the path of least resistance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make moneymaking a top priority while the stars smile on your income-accruing talents. You might be tempted to impress a new romance with some sleight-of-hand involving a credit card.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You are unstoppable. Your confidence is bolstered by expressions of support from family members or praise from the boss. Once you take hold of the reins, you are determined to please others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your intuitions could lead you in the right direction. You could find a chance to give someone some subtle signals of your hidden feelings. If romance knocks on your door tonight, be sure to answer.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): If you can't control the winds, you must adjust your sails. Rather than trying the same old tactics when dealing with friends and lovers, you will get better results by adapting to circumstances.

Online court records reveal a handful of past criminal convictions for Firkins, including a 2007 guilty plea to attempted grand theft in Cassia County. He was sentenced to three years in prison in that case, but the judge retained jurisdiction — giving Firkins a chance to complete an initial period of confinement and treatment — and released Firkins on probation six months later.

During the same period in 2007, Firkins pleaded guilty in Cassia County to battery on a correctional officer or jailer, and waived an extradition hearing for unspecified charges in Wyoming, on-line court records show.

the project to the forefront,” Christensen said.

Jill Lyman underwent surgery and radiation treatments for cancer earlier this year.

“I think it’s just beautiful, and it really represents a lot to me,” said Jill Lyman, who picked out the two tones of pink paint from a breast cancer pamphlet she received during treatment.

“Breast cancer is not just a women’s disease. Men get it, too,” Jill said. “We want to get this tractor out there and make everyone aware of that.”

Jill Lyman’s mother and grandmother both died of breast cancer

Christensen said many people in the community donated toward the project.

“This project has always been on my mind as something I wanted to do,” Christensen said. “Our motto is Rethink Pink.”

Lyman said people have already been stopping by the shop to take photos of the tractor, which will make its debut this weekend at the CSI Car Show at the Expo Center in Twin Falls.

Donations received during the show will go toward breast cancer awareness.

Christensen said they will put the tractor on display at as many venues as possible, including Relay For Life events.

“Our goal is to get this tractor out there so as many people as possible can see it,” Christensen said.

Bellevue Man Accused of Attempted Rape in T.F.

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Bellevue man has been accused of dragging a woman to his vehicle and attempting to rape her outside of a dance club in Twin Falls.

Jose Luis Grimaldo Jr., 33, was arraigned Friday in Twin Falls County Fifth District Court on a charge of battery with intent to commit a serious felony for the January incident.

According to a police report, officers were dispatched at 1:58 a.m. on Jan. 20 to the 360 Main Event Center at 348 Fourth Avenue South. When they arrived, officers spoke to a woman who appeared to be visibly upset and was crying, the report states.

Police said the woman’s lips were bleeding and she had a large contusion on her forehead.

According to the report, the woman said she was at the event center with her boyfriend, who then went to their car and went to sleep.

After exchanging numbers with the group, the woman decided not to go to Burley and began to leave the event center.

Then, the report states, the woman said one of the men in the group, who was wearing a blue Los Angeles Dodgers hat and jacket, grabbed her. The woman said the man, who had a thin-line goatee and a tattoo on the side of his neck, grabbed her by the arm and forced her through the front doors of the event center.

Then, the man forcefully dragged the woman to an SUV, the report states. The report states that the woman said she was yelling, screaming and struggling to get away, and while she was struggling, hit her head on the vehicle’s door frame.

According to the report, the man hit the woman on her thighs and knees and was able to get her pants down to her knees, despite her fighting and hitting to try to get away.

At one point another man began banging on the SUV, telling the man inside to stop, the report states. At that time, the woman told police, she was able to get her pants back on and run away from the SUV to her car where her boyfriend was still sleeping.

The report states that the SUV and a blue car started leaving the scene. The woman then grabbed a baseball bat that was in her car and chased the vehicles, hitting the smaller car with the bat, the report states. According to the report, the back window of the car was broken out and the vehicles both pulled away.

Later, the report states, two men in a Chevrolet Tahoe drove to the Twin Falls County Jail and told deputies they believed police wanted to talk to them about an incident at the 360 Main Event Center.

Deputies notified officers at the event center, and the woman was able to identify one of the men as the person who helped her out of the SUV.

According to the report, the men eventually revealed that they were with a third man they called “Junior,” the report states.
