TALKING TRASH

City councilor pushes for more representation for Twin Falls on waste district board.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The city of Twin Falls might be one of the area's largest waste contributors, but that doesn't mean it qualifies for a seat on the waste district's board.

Currently, the Southern Idaho Solid Waste District board is made up of one member from seven different counties. SISW operates as the area's landfill for seven south-central Idaho counties.

However, last week the Twin Falls City Council members once again held a discussion on the lack of city representation and possible rate increases if the city continues to push for increased recycling efforts.

Councilman Chris Talkington led the council discussion on possible solutions to increasing recycling efforts and pointed out concerns over in a SISW audit for fiscal year 2012.

Last year, 60 percent of Twin Falls County's waste came from the city, Talkington said. Without representation on the board, the city is at a disadvantage. For example, if the city wants to divert more waste materials as recycling, some city council members fear it could

Deputies Rescue Man Trapped in Cave

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office range deputies rescued an 18-year-old man from a cave Friday evening.

At about 5:36 p.m. Friday, range deputies were dispatched to an area of the Snake River Canyon rim, north of the intersection of Eastland Drive and Pole Line Road, for a man who was stuck in a cave.

Twin Falls Fire Department and Twin Falls Sheriff's Office Search and Rescue also responded to help the man, identified as Austin Wiggins of Buhl.

Wiggins was found and rescued. He was not injured.

Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office spokeswoman Lori Stewart said Wiggins was hiking with friends when he became lodged between rocks in a hole. It took rescuers about 30 minutes to get to Wiggins. The entire rescue took about two hours, Stewart said.

Stewart said rescuers used an anchored line as a safety aid during the rescue.

Good Ol' Boys Club? Not So Much

Law enforcement discusses how they respond when one of their own is arrested or under investigation.

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • While a good ol' boys mentality and police officers protecting their own still happens regularly in TV and movies, local law enforcement officials say it's just not the truth.

"Now there's a policy pretty much for everything we do," Casia County Undersheriff George Warrell said.

Policies taught from the beginning of officer training help instill the attitude that officers must be treated like anyone else, he said.

Recently, a Twin Falls County sheriff's deputy, was arrested on allegations of domestic abuse.

The same set of policies that require the sheriff's office to get another agency to investigate the case also require them to stay publicly silent on personnel issues, like Sgt. Michael Cooper's case, sheriff's office spokeswoman Lori Stewart said.

At times, she said, that can be

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

BofA Leads Banks Up; S&P 500 Index Ekes Out Gain

NEW YORK (AP) • Bank of America led a rally in big-bank stocks in mostly quiet trading on Monday. Stock indexes ended little changed following a record-setting run last week.

News that Bank of America and MBIA, a bond-insurance company, had reached a settlement over a long-running dispute propelled both companies' stocks up. BofA will pay $1.7 billion to MBIA and extend the troubled company a credit line.

MBIA soared 45 percent, or $4.46, to $14.29. Bank of America gained 5 percent, or 64 cents, to $12.88, making it the leading company in the Dow Jones industrial average.

The Dow slipped 5.07 points to close at 14,968.89. The Standard & Poor's 500 index crept up 3.08 points to 1,617.50, a gain of 0.2 percent.

Six of the 10 industry groups in the S&P 500 rose, with financial companies in the lead.

No major economic reports came out Monday, but a handful of companies reported their quarterly results. Tyson Foods, the nation's largest meat-processing company, fell 3 percent, the biggest drop in the Standard & Poor's 500 index, after saying its net income sank as costs for chicken feed rose. Tyson's stock lost 83 cents to $24.10.

Curious Mind

Southern Idaho's Banana Belt

Why is the scenic Hagerman Valley considered the banana belt of southern Idaho?

A banana belt is defined as any segment of a larger geographic region that enjoys warmer weather conditions than the region as a whole, especially in the wintertime.

"I believe that Hagerman is called the banana belt because the temperature is usually a few degrees warmer than the surrounding towns," said geologist Art Small. "I have heard Riggins called the banana belt also. The warmer temperatures are because of the low elevation and the canyon with black rocks, which absorb heat from the sun and radiate the heat down into the canyon."

Banana belts refer to areas with a warmer, milder climate, said Shawn Willsey, professor of geology at the College of Southern Idaho. "Hagerman is about 800 feet lower in elevation than Twin Falls and in a wide valley. Additionally, the numerous springs in the area provide water for a large riparian ecosystem. As the area lies below the canyon rim, it is somewhat sheltered by winds at times."

The Treasure Valley area around Nampa is known as Idaho's Banana Belt.

With Lewiston located at the confluence of the Snake and Clearwater Rivers, it is known as the "Banana Belt of the Pacific Northwest." Residents enjoy year-round golfing, while being only a short drive away from snow skiing. The elevation is 738 feet above sea level.

Kari Prassack, paleontologist for Hagerman Fossil Bed, said Hagerman Valley is called a "banana belt" because it is an area that receives warmer weather and less snowfall than the areas surrounding it — like a belt of the "tropics" in Idaho. "This happens because warm air lifts upwards over the mountains, expands and cools, producing rain. And then, as drier air, it descends along the other side — in this case into the valley here where the air compresses and warms."

Prassack was asked if dinosaurs gravitated to the Hagerman Valley because it was warmer. She said Idaho has some fossils that date to the Mesozoic (age of dinosaurs) but Hagerman's fossils are much more recent — only 3 to 4 million years compared to over 65 million. "The climate of all of North America was much warmer and wetter during the Mesozoic than it is today. As a result, there were dinosaurs living as far north as Alberta, Canada and even up above the Arctic Circle. The Hagerman Valley did not even exist back then. It was formed by the Bonneville Flood a mere 15,000 years ago," said Prassack.

ONLINE: Building Destroyed in Jerome Fire Originally Served as City's Mortuary

Kimberlee Kruesi's local-government watchdog blog is dubbed "On the Agenda." An excerpt from her Monday post:

"There's still not a lot of information about what started the downtown Jerome fire last Tuesday. And while the structure may no longer be intact, there's still plenty of information about its past.

"For example, the building was first built in 1908, just one year after the city of Jerome was officially founded, according to Linda Helms, assistant curator at the Jerome County Historical Museum.

"In the front, the building's owner ran a classy, designer furniture store, but in the back the owner also operated the city's only mortuary, Helms said. The caskets were stored in the basement, and a hand-operated elevator was used to raise elevators whenever they needed a casket. ..."

Scattered to Isolated Showers and Storms

Temperatures will remain warm over the next couple of days, but we will continue to see isolated to scattered showers and even thunderstorms each afternoon until the end of the week.

We are in a stagnant weather pattern called a "Rex block." This occurs when we get a strong high pressure in the upper layers of the atmosphere located off the coasts of Oregon and Washington that corresponds with a strong upper-level low pressure system off the coast of northern and central California. This flows warm, moist Pacific air from Southern California up into southern Idaho. With this pattern, our temperatures remain mild and we get scattered to isolated storms in the afternoon. Many of these showers and storms form in the higher terrain over the South Hills and up in the Wood River Region.

The forecast for today will feature more widely scattered showers and storms across the region, not only in the higher elevations but some in the valleys, especially in the afternoon. Temperatures will be in the upper 60s with winds out of the east from 5-15 mph. Expect the same kind of weather through Thursday with highs in the low to mid-70s and scattered to isolated showers and storms.

Twin Falls Council Focuses on Budget, Building Permits

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
Kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A new dog park, community garden and building improvements were just some of the items on the wish list of Twin Falls City Council members. The council is currently in the early stages of its fiscal year 2013-2014 budget planning process.

During Monday's meeting, members were asked what city staffers should focus on while preparing budget proposals.

Councilman Don Hall requested more funding for water infrastructure and wanted supporting funds for a city grant writer and other personnel as needed.

"We are a service organization. That service we provide happens with people. I'll be open to the idea if we need more personnel," he said.

Councilwoman Rebecca Mills Sojka requested more attention to downtown parking.

City staffers will now begin preparing budget proposals. The council will again discuss the budget in June, City Manager Travis Rothweiler said.

The budget discussion followed a presentation on the city's finances from the past six months.

Overall, the city is in a good spot to begin looking ahead to next year's budget, Rothweiler said.

The council also unanimously approved amending sections of the building permit fees ordinance.

The goal wasn't to increase building permit fees but to simplify the permit process, said Mitch Humble, community development director.

The city's building department is facing an increase in building permit applications while working on reduced staff, Humble said. This has resulted in an increased wait time in approving building permits.

Under the new amendments, the building project value structure has been simplified but the permit fee structure will not change. Mechanical, engineering and plumbing fees are now simplified, and the ordinances definition of "small job" has narrowed.

The City Council also unanimously approved to vacate two locations within the Canyon Trails Subdivision.

Agency Reports Earthquakes in Idaho, Yellowstone

POCATELLO (AP) • A series of small earthquakes sent jolts across a corner of southeast Idaho Sunday night.

The U.S. Geological Survey says two smaller earthquakes were also recorded inside the boundary of Yellowstone National Park in recent days.

Temblors of 4.2 and 3.6 magnitude were recorded in the Lava Hot Springs area. Authorities say the jolts generated calls from concerned residents, but so far there is no damage or injuries attributed to the temblors.

Both quakes are considered mild and not strong enough to cause severe damage.

The two earthquakes recorded in the northwest corner of Yellowstone National Park were also small — magnitude of 2.9 and 2.7. One hit Friday in an area 40 miles southeast of Gardiner, while the other was recorded Sunday night closer to West Yellowstone, Mont.

Feds Add Bigger, Faster Planes to Wildfire Fleet

BY JEFF BARNARD
Associated Press

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) • As the wildfire season ramps up across the West, the U.S. Forest Service is adding bigger, faster planes to its fleet to fight the fires.

The forest service announced Monday that it has selected contractors to provide seven air tankers that fly faster and drop a larger payload of fire retardant than other planes in its firefighting fleet.

The agency will spend nearly $160 million over five years for access to several models of aircraft, including a converted DC-10 jumbo jet, which can carry about five times as much flame-resistant liquid as any aircraft in regular use. The cost is about double the amount spent in past years, but the planes are expected to provide better service, said forest service fire and aviation director Tom Harbour. They also require less maintenance.

Former Mortician Gets Life Sentence

LOS ANGELES (AP) • A former mortician has been sentenced to 25 years to life for plotting to kill a funeral business rival in a decades-old case that initially resulted in a sentence of lifetime probation.

Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge Dorothy Shubin imposed the sentence Monday against 56-year-old David Wayne Sconce. Shubin found that Sconce had violated his probation after he was convicted late last year of having a stolen firearm.

Sconce was sentenced in 1989 to a five-year prison term for mutilating corpses, conducting mass cremations at a ceramics kiln and hiring thugs to rough up three competing morticians.

He later pleaded guilty to conspiring to hire a hit man to murder a potential buyer of a rival crematory.

Twin Falls Lottery Winner Makes Oasis an Anomaly

BY JOE CADOTTE

jcadotte@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A lottery cash out of $250,000 on April 15 made a Twin Falls Oasis Stop ‘N Go, at 2220 Addison Ave. East, a landmark destination.

Twin Falls resident John Miles’s $250,000 ticket was the third to be purchased from the store in a two-year period. Idaho Lottery spokesman David Workman said no other gas station in the state has had even two six-figure winnings in the same time frame.

“It’s the No. 1-selling retail location for scratch tickets anywhere in the Magic Valley, and it’s certainly one of the top 10 anywhere in the state of Idaho,” Workman said. “It’s got kind of a reputation as being a big winner and lucky store.”

When a scratch ticket is purchased in Idaho, there’s a 75 percent chance it will be valueless, Workman said. Despite the Oasis beating the odds by more than double, Workman said the location won’t change anyone’s luck.

“It’s kind of one of those things that’s just the luck of the draw,” Workman said. “Tickets are sent out across the state very randomly. Since that store sells a lot of

Tax Free Internet Shopping May Soon Be a Thing of the Past

BY JOE CADOTTE

jcadotte@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A mandate that would apply state sales tax to nearly every Internet purchase took a major step forward today when the U.S. Senate approved the Marketplace Fairness Act of 2013.

If the bill is signed into law, it would apply state taxes to all web purchases made from the 45 states with sales tax, including Idaho.

According to former state legislator Leon Smith, Idaho loses an estimated $35 million per year in remote sales, most of which are taxes not collected from Internet shoppers.

The Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce made its stance clear when Chamber President Shawn Barigar sent an email to all 885 members encouraging support of the bill.

“Businesses are saying that they’re losing customers, they’re losing transactions because of this unbalanced playing field. That’s a huge impact, because every one of those dollars that could’ve been spent here isn’t being spent here,” Barigar said. “That’s what the economy is: dollars getting spent. If that’s not happening here and it’s happening far away, that’s detrimental to our economy.”

Evening the Playing Field

One argument in favor of the Marketplace

Fairness Act is that it will even the playing field for small businesses that compete with the Internet.

Jim Vickers, owner of Vickers Western Store in Twin Falls, said people often take pictures of his saddles with smartphones and leave.

“Somebody comes in my store, they write down all the model numbers, they go home and write them online because they save six percent,” Vickers said. “If they aren’t paying sales tax, it puts all of the stores at a disadvantage. The largest competitor that we all have in business is the Internet. ...I can compete against (local stores) lower and match prices, but how do you compete against the Internet?”

Vickers said small, local businesses should be a priority in order to maintain a healthy, long-term economic outlook.

“Fair competition is the key to the ballgame,” Vickers said. “It’s very important for the mom and pop stores to be able to stay viable, because if we all have to buy from big boxes or over the Internet, I think we’re toast. Mom and pops are important. That’s where your kids and your grandkids can be entrepreneurs themselves.”

Businesses That Would Be Affected

Part of the mandate exempts businesses that sell under $1 million per year in Internet sales.

Red’s Trading Post in Twin Falls would not be exempt if the bill becomes law. The store sells around $4 million worth of guns per year. About 70 percent of their business is done online. Red’s owner Ryan Horsley said politicians are dressing up the bill to look like something it’s not.

“It sounds really peachy keen and nice, but the fact is we’re going to create an even bigger bureaucracy and this is going to make selling on the Internet extremely difficult,” Horsley said. “...Lets’ call a spade a spade. This is about tax. This is about collecting tax. This has really nothing to do with trying to protect small businesses. At least be honest with people. Stop trying to say this is going to save small business from Walmart or Amazon or eBay or any of these evil empires that small businesses see as a threat.”

Horsley said the Marketplace Fairness Act will be a strain on his employees and send online revenue to states that don’t have sales tax.

“We’re going to be able to adjust,” Horsley said. “It’s going to be difficult. We’re going to have to make some significant changes in regards to adapting with this. That’s tying up more people not being able to sell, not being able to package, but just to sit there and deal with taxing entities.”

Barigar said it’s technically not a new tax because state law requires anyone who doesn’t

One Sign of a Flowering Economy in Twin Falls

BY JOE CADOTTE

jcadotte@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • As the economy begins to bloom, colorful flower baskets will again be seen along Shoshone Street in Twin Falls.

Fifteen years ago, a partnership between the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce and the city created the Shoshone Street Hanging Flower Basket Project. For more than a decade, some 70 flower baskets hung from the historic lampposts from City Park to just south of the Old Towne Bridge.

The baskets were discontinued in 2010 when sponsorship dried up and the cost of maintenance increased, said Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce President Shawn Barigar.

“We just couldn’t make it pencil anymore,” Barigar said. “This year we’ve gotten a lot of phone calls from people saying, ‘We miss those — those were really nice.’ It was a nice addition to the community.”

When the project began 15 years ago, it cost $300 to sponsor a flower basket. Now that the city has agreed to take care of maintenance, Barigar said, a basket can be sponsored for $125 per year.

“It certainly adds to the aesthetics of the community,” Barigar said. “It’s part of that quality of life issue that we deal with here. That’s the reason we like to work, live and play here, so having those baskets really adds to the ambience of downtown.”

The baskets are grown by Moss Greenhouses in Jerome. Recognition signs from Lytle Signs, with the sponsor’s name clearly displayed, hang next to each basket.

Those interested in sponsoring a basket can call the Twin Falls Chamber at 208-733-3974.

Intermountain Gas Customers to Benefit from Surplus Sales

NAMPA • Intermountain Gas Company's liquefied natural gas facility has more than enough LNG to meet the needs of its customers, so state regulators have approved a plan submitted by Intermountain to allow it to sell the surplus to non-utility customers and share the proceeds with customers.

In its application to the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, Intermountain Gas said it would share half of the revenue it earns with customers, applying it against the annual Purchased Gas Cost Adjustment (PGA). The commission modified that request to allow a 50-50 share for sales up to $1.5 million per year but a 70 percent customer share of revenues for sales beyond that amount.

Intermountain Gas, a natural gas distribution company serving about 315,000 southern Idaho residents, expects to have excess capacity at its Nampa LNG facility for the next few years. It proposes to sell that excess until system growth requires it to use all its LNG to meet peak-day needs for its customers.

A full text of the commission's order, the company's application and other documents related to this case, is available on the commission's Web site at www.puc.idaho.gov. Click on "File Room" and then on "Open Gas Cases" and scroll down to Case Number INT-G-13-02.

Tax Commission Launches Website Geared to Mobile Devices

BOISE • The Idaho State Tax Commission launched its redesigned website (tax.idaho.gov) this week. The new site is adaptable for use with mobile devices like smartphones and tablets, and offers improved organization and navigation.

Some other additions to the site include: an identity theft page; a page for seniors and retirees; a calendar of tax events with the ability to subscribe to due date reminders; rotating news topics on the home page; expanded use of social media and the Tax Commission's training videos on YouTube.

YouTube Set to Soon Launch Pay Channels

BY RYAN NAKASHIMA
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES • YouTube is set to announce within a few weeks a series of channels that will require payment, a person familiar with the matter said Monday.

The content on the new pay channels will be in addition to the millions of videos viewers watch for free on YouTube. It's not clear whether the paid videos will come with advertising.

The person was not authorized to speak publicly and spoke on condition of anonymity.

The Financial Times reported earlier that viewers would be charged as little as $1.99 a month for subscriptions.

In a statement, YouTube said it is looking into creating a "subscription platform" that provides its partners with a way to generate revenue beyond video rentals and placing ads in and around content. It said, however, that it had "nothing to announce at this time."

Executives hinted at the coming pay channels at a preview event in March ahead of a meeting in New York with advertisers.

Such a model could help video producers make money from niche audiences. That's different from how YouTube works now, where the most popular videos, like PSY's "Gangnam Style" music video, make the most money from advertising.

One example given by executives was of video lessons by a computer science teacher.

"For people who create great value but for only a narrow interest group, I think that the potential for pay channels unlocks opportunities for creating revenue streams," said Lucas Watson, YouTube's vice president of sales and marketing, at the time.

Introducing pay channels would also accustom fans of YouTube to paying for content, something the site is not known for, although it has sold and rented movies and TV shows from major studios since late 2008.

"It's a whole new skill set to develop: to convince people to actually take out their credit card, even for one cent," said Robert Kyncl, YouTube's vice president and global head of content partnerships, told reporters at the March event.

Conservative Study Sets Off Immigration Bill Squabble

BY ERICA WERNER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • A bipartisan Senate immigration bill would cost the government a net $6.3 trillion over the next 50 years to provide benefits for millions of people now living in the U.S. illegally, the Heritage Foundation said in a report Monday, setting off a fierce dispute with fellow conservatives who attacked the study as flawed and political.

The study from the prominent conservative think tank said immigrants granted new legal status under the bill would eat up more than $9 trillion in health, education, retirement and other benefits over their lifetime, while contributing only around $3 trillion in taxes. Republicans and conservative groups who support the bill quickly countered that the study failed to measure broader economic benefits from an immigration overhaul, including a more robust workforce that would boost the gross domestic product.

"The Heritage Foundation document is a political document; it's not a very serious analysis," said former Mississippi Gov. Haley Barbour, a Republican who's part of a task force with the nonprofit Bipartisan Policy Center that supports the bill. "This study is designed to try to scare conservative Republicans into thinking the cost here is going to be so gigantic that you can't possibly be for it."

Former Sen. Jim DeMint, R-S.C., the Heritage Foundation's new president, dismissed such criticism.

"It's clear a number of people in Washington who might benefit from an amnesty, as well as a number of people in Congress, do not want to consider the costs," DeMint said. "No sensible thinking person could read this study and conclude that over 50 years that it could possibly have a positive economic impact."

The brouhaha developed as both sides prepare for the landmark bill to undergo its first tests later this week in the Senate Judiciary Committee, which will begin voting on amendments Thursday. It underscored the high political stakes for both supporters and opponents, as each jockeyed to define the legislation. And it laid bare splits within the Republican Party, where business-oriented leaders such as Barbour and anti-tax activist Grover Norquist are "No sensible thinking person could read this study and conclude that over 50 years that it could possibly have a positive economic impact."

Former Sen. Jim DeMint, R-S.C., the Heritage Foundation's new president

pushing for immigration reform, while more ideologically focused lawmakers and groups are voicing increasingly loud opposition.

The Heritage report was a reprisal of a study the group released at the height of the last congressional debate on immigration, in 2007, which said the bill being considered then would have cost $2.6 trillion. That figure, too, was disputed, but it carried weight with Republicans and helped lead to the legislation's eventual defeat in the Senate.

This time, supporters of the bill are determined not to let opponents wrest control of the debate. Anticipating Heritage's release of its new report, bill supporters responded quickly with conference calls and talking points criticizing its methodology and the foundation's agenda.

The Heritage authors acknowledged their report does not attempt to offer a comprehensive analysis of the entire 844-page immigration bill, which would boost border security, change legal immigration and worker programs, require all employers to check their workers' legal status and offer eventual citizenship to the estimated 11 million immigrants already living in the country illegally.

Instead, the Heritage study focused almost exclusively on the added costs the government would incur in providing benefits to immigrants here illegally once they gain legal status. These include Social Security, Medicare, unemployment insurance, health care, welfare, public education, and services like police and fire protection, highways and parks. The study said an average adult now living in the U.S. illegally would receive $592,000 more in government benefits over a lifetime than he or she would pay in taxes.

"It becomes extraordinarily expensive," the lead author, Robert Rector, said at a press conference near the Capitol for unveiling the report.

Costs are higher for this bill than the last one in 2007, Rector said, partly because government spending itself has grown more generous.

After the Vote

Regardless of how the bill plays out in Congress, Barigar said he'll continue to use the weight of the Chamber to support tighter legislation on Internet taxation.

"Our job as the Chamber is to provide a voice, vision and focus leadership to try to enhance the economic vitality and quality of life in our community," Barigar said. "That's our mission. We feel, based on the research we've done on this concept over the last eight years — that this is a good position for the Chamber to be in to protect Idaho businesses."

For those not as fortunate as the recent winner, Workman said to think of their loss as more of a donation. The Idaho Lottery generates more than $40 million per year that is used for public schools, colleges and infrastructure.

Evelyn Parke Craner

Oct. 31, 1929-May 5, 2013

REXBURG • Our sweet wife, mother and grandmother passed away Sunday, May 5, 2013. What joy she must be experiencing right now!

Evelyn Parke Craner was born Oct. 31, 1929, in Declo, Idaho. She lived life in such a beautiful way, whether she was serving as a mission president's wife in the Philippines, as matron of the Logan Temple, in a semester abroad program in Israel or having the neighborhood children in to make gingerbread houses. She is gracious, inspiring and fun! She enjoyed genealogy, handwork, baking, gardening and their cabin. She is greatly loved because she loved greatly. Her eyes sparkle especially for her loving husband. The example of their marriage is such a gift to their posterity. We have all been blessed to witness a real love story throughout our lives.

She is missed greatly by all and especially by her husband, Max W. Craner; her six daughters and sons-in-law, Diane and Rex Brown, Brenda and Stan Benedict, Maxine and Russ Benedict, Teresa and Richard Western, Susan and Tim Mecham, and Veanne and Van Elg; and 126 grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She is also missed by her younger sister, Cleone and Richard Moncur of Declo, Idaho.

How grateful we are for the knowledge that we will be together forever! Evelyn is welcomed home by her parents, Vasco and Teresa Parke; sister and brother-in-law, Nadine and John Banner; and many wonderful friends and relatives that await her. We will honor her by striving to follow her Christ-like example of love and charity, compassion, sense of dignity, love of life, kindness and wonderful sense of humor.

Visitation will be held from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Thursday, May 9, at Flamm Funeral Home, 61 N. First E. in Rexburg, Idaho. The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, May 10, at the Rexburg East Stake Center, 387 S. Fourth E. in Rexburg. Interment will be at noon Saturday, May 11, at the Declo Cemetery in Declo. Arlene Hirning Gerleman

April 26, 1941-April 9, 2013

PLANO, Texas • Arlene Hirning Gerleman, formerly of Rupert, Idaho, passed away peacefully Tuesday, April 9, 2013, in the home of her son, Michael, following a short illness.

Arlene was born April 26, 1941, in Rupert, Idaho, the daughter of John and Lil Hirning. She worked for many years in the Hirning Cafe, the family-owned business in downtown Rupert. She married the love of her life, Ronald "Gus" Gerleman on June 13, 1958, and together they raised four children. Their home was always open to anyone who needed a home and a family to be a part of. Later in life, Arlene fulfilled her lifelong dream of going to college and, when she was 46, she fully realized this dream when she earned a degree in secondary education. She taught at East Minico Junior High and then moved to Rawlins, Wyo., in 1991, where she taught for 10 years before retiring due to health problems. Gus and Arlene then moved to Denver, Colo., in 2001 to be near family, and she continued living there until her passing.

She is preceded in death by her husband, Gus; two daughters, Rhonda and Renae; and one grandson, Ryan Klier. She is survived by a brother, Art Hirning of Pocatello, Idaho; two sons, Arlan Gerleman of Pocatello, Idaho, and Michael (Becky) Gerleman of Plano, Texas; and numerous grandchildren, great-grandchildren, nieces and nephews.

Internment will be at 1:15 p.m. Friday, May 17, at the Logan National Cemetery in Denver, Colo. A memorial service will be held Saturday, May 18, at Valley View Christian Church, 11004 Wildfield Lane in Littleton, Colo.

Q. My husband wants to buy his favorite aunt a computer for her birthday. He plans to teach her how to use it when we visit later this month. Is he being realistic?

A. His aunt may be a little reluctant especially if she has never used a computer before. On the other hand, she will be delighted at his thoughtfulness! Using a computer will open up many opportunities for her. Once she knows the basics of computer operation, she can write, play computer games, find recipes on the Internet, and email children in the family. A university study found that computer-savvy older adults who search the Internet may stimulate and possibly improve their brain function. Encourage your husband to keep the computer lessons as relaxed and simple as possible. Before your visit is over, he may want to line up a good instructor to continue lessons until his aunt is comfortable with her new computer.

cause a rate increase — which would then fall onto city residents — for not sending enough material to the landfill.

“Their (SISW) operation does not allow for any recycling,” he said. “That’s unfair to the city of Twin Falls.”

The city faced a similar situation in the past when it sought representation on the Southern Idaho Regional Communication Center board, Talkington said. Like SISW, the board was only made up of one county representative despite the city of Twin Falls making up a bulk of the calls. The city eventually decided to operate its own dispatch center.

Creating a city spot on the board first requires getting approval from the board, said Stephanie Thompson, SISW’s chief finance officer.

The district isn’t looking to raise its rates at this time but the district does have fixed costs it must meet, she said. However, the district isn’t opposed to recycling.

“We do have waste diversion programs,” she said.

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

Renato Larios and Dave Abrahamson, both of PSI Environmental Systems, Inc, collect recycling on Monday afternoon in Twin Falls.

“Last year, we diverted 32,000 tons through our recycling programs.”

Talkington also pointed out that SISW’s latest financial audit included a detailed paragraph on “a certain deficiency in internal control.” Yet, according to the financial auditor who conducted the report, the deficiency refers to SISW’s lack of a certified public accountant on its staff.

Close to five years ago, auditng standards changed to expect that cities, counties, school board and waste districts would have an accountant on their payroll to help keep track of expenses, said Gerald Price, of Gerald Price and Associates based in Burley.

There isn’t a penalty for not having a CPA on staff but auditors are now required to point it out in each audit, he said.

“In Idaho, only large cities and counties have a CPA on staff,” he said. “Most Idaho counties, especially in rural areas, do not have a CPA and you’ll see this paragraph show up. It’s a generic paragraph we have to add.”

On Friday, Twin Falls city and county officials will meet to discuss SISW’s finances, Talkington said.

“We need serious answers that don’t patronize us,” he said. “There have been a lot of issues not answered.”

Wash. State Graduate Wears Wedding Gown Under Robe

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — With friends and family already gathered for her graduation from Washington State University, Cassie Dotts thought it would be a good time for another ceremony — her wedding.

She married University of Idaho fisheries science graduate Ben Ho in a ceremony on Friday in Moscow, Idaho. Then she received her doctorate in veterinary medicine in Saturday’s WSU graduation in Pullman, Wash.

The Moscow-Pullman Daily News reports that Dotts wore her cap and gown over her wedding dress for people who wanted to see her as both a graduate and newlywed.

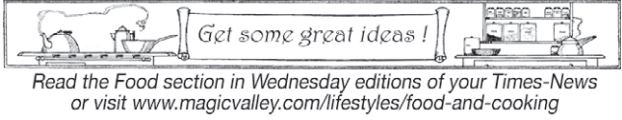

The couple plan to move to Dotts’ native Nevada where she plans to work as a veterinarian in Las Vegas.

frustrating when it feels like the sheriff’s office doesn’t get to tell its side of the story.

“An employee has rights and can say whatever,” Stewart said. “We can’t tell our side. It’s frustrating when we know we’ve done our job.”

These days, something as simple as an officer’s family member being involved in a traffic accident requires another agency be called in to handle the crash, said Twin Falls County Sheriff’s Office Chief Deputy Don Newman.

Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall said he remembers some attitude of “cops protecting cops” when he first started out in law enforcement in the 1970s, but it soon faded.

McFall said the Rodney King police beating in Los Angeles and other high profile incidents made police agencies hyper-aware of their image in the public eye.

If a deputy is pulled over for driving under the influence by another deputy, or police respond to the home of an officer or officer’s family member, a second agency is called in to do the criminal investigation, Newman said.

“Because of public perception that cops will cover for cops,” Newman said. “That’s not the case.”

These days, Newman said, the sheriff’s office is as transparent as possible.

If a Twin Falls County deputy is arrested, another agency like Twin Falls police or Idaho State Police are called in.

“It’s hard to convince people we have the ability to be unbiased,” Newman said.

In some cases, a deputy is put on paid leave while a criminal or administrative investigation is underway,

More Online

Policies from the Twin Falls County Sheriff’s Office are posted with the online version of this story at Magicvalley.com.

Newman said.

While some might question the practice, Newman said, the employee is entitled to pay while a decision about their job is being made.

The sheriff’s office also has to be careful about the reason for firing someone, Newman said. If he fires someone without due process, Newman said he’d be the one in trouble at the end of the day.

Along with a criminal investigation, sheriff’s office employees also face an administrative investigation. Since that investigation is about their employment, and not the criminal case, Newman said, the rights a person has in court don’t apply.

In court, a person has the right to remain silent, a deputy can be fired if they refuse to answer a question during an administrative investigation, he said.

Although supervisors can use the information learned in an administrative investigation to determine whether someone can keep their job, that information can’t be used in court, McFall said.

McFall, Warrell and Newman all said that if a deputy is arrested, the public can be assured the case will be handled like any other.

“Our trust with the public is our most important aspect and therefore law enforcement entities take it serious and make darn sure the public feels good about the way we’re handling situations when we screw up,” McFall said. “Police screw up too.”

Protections for Wolverines Draw States’ Opposition

BY MATTHEW BROWN
Associated Press

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — State officials in the Northern Rockies are opposing a federal proposal that cites climate change as a looming threat to the carnivorous wolverine, which depends on deep mountain snows to survive.

The pending U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service proposal would declare the rare, elusive animal a threatened species across the Lower 48 states. That could end trapping of the so-called “mountain devil,” and allow Colorado potentially to reintroduce the animals in the southern Rocky Mountains.

But Montana, Idaho and Wyoming officials said Monday that federal protections aren’t necessary for the estimated 250-300 wolverines that live in the region. Biologists say it could take decades for warming temperatures to shrink their mountain habitat.

Environmentalists want the federal government to consider even stronger protections. They say the danger of extinction has been understated.

Israeli Airstrike in Syria Aimed at Iran

BY JOSEF FEDERMAN AND KARIN LAUB

Associated Press

BEIRUT • From Israel’s perspective, its airstrikes near Damascus were more about Iran than Syria: Tehran’s shipment of guided missiles destroyed in the weekend attacks would have posed a potent threat had the weapons reached Iranian proxy Hezbollah in Lebanon.

While Israel says it has no interest getting involved in the Syrian civil war, it could find itself drawn into the conflict if Syrian leader Bashar Assad’s Iranian patrons continue to use his territory to ship arms to Hezbollah.

Repeated Israeli strikes would almost certainly prompt Syrian retaliation, yielding a nightmare scenario in which Israel finds itself in a Syrian morass teeming with jihadi rebels, sectarian hatred and chemical weapons.

For the West, it offers another compelling argument that the Syrian war must somehow be brought to an end.

Since the uprising in Syria began in March 2011, Israel has carefully avoided taking sides.

At the same time, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu has repeatedly declared a series of red lines that could trigger Israeli military intervention, including the delivery of “game-changing” weapons to Hezbollah.

The first test of this policy came in January when an Israeli airstrike in Syria destroyed a shipment of advanced anti-aircraft missiles bound for Hezbollah, according to U.S. officials.

Israel and Hezbollah fought an inconclusive monthlong war in 2006 and are bitter enemies.

When Israeli intelligence determined last week that sophisticated Iranian-made Fateh-110 missiles had entered Syria, the military prepared to strike again.

Although Israel has not officially confirmed the operation, a senior official said a first airstrike at a Damascus airport early Friday destroyed most of the shipment, while a series of subsequent airstrikes on nearby locations Sunday took out the remnants of the missiles. The official spoke on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to discuss a covert military mission.

Residents in Damascus said they felt and heard several huge blasts before dawn Sunday. Radwan Midani, a 25-year-old office assistant, said he “saw the sky light up.”

Boston Bomb Suspect’s Pal Released Pending Trial

BY DENISE LAVOIE
Associated Press

BOSTON • A friend of Boston Marathon bombing suspect Dzhokhar Tsarnaev has been released from federal custody while he awaits trial for allegedly lying to federal investigators probing the April 15 bombings.

Robel Phillipos was charged last week and faces up to eight years in prison if convicted. The 19-year-old was a student at the University of Massachusetts Dartmouth with Tsarnaev.

Prosecutors initially asked that Phillipos be held while he awaits trial, arguing that he poses a serious flight risk.

But prosecutors and Phillipos’ lawyers said Monday in a joint motion they now agree that Phillipos can be released under strict conditions, including home confinement, monitoring with an electronic bracelet and a $100,000 secured bond.

Magistrate Judge Marianne Bowler agreed to the request during a hearing Monday afternoon.

Secrecy Shrouds Pretrial Hearing in WikiLeaks Case

BY DAVID DISHNEAU
Associated Press

FORT MEADE, Md. • Government secrecy reaches a new level this week in the court-martial of Army Pfc. Bradley Manning, an intelligence analyst who sent 700,000 classified U.S. documents to the WikiLeaks website.

A military judge, Col. Denise Lind, has ordered what prosecutors say is an unprecedented closed hearing Wednesday at Fort Meade to help her decide how much of Manning’s upcoming trial should be closed to protect national security.

An unidentified prosecution witness will testify during that closed hearing in a “dry run.” Defense attorneys say that could allow the judge to find ways to avoid closing the courtroom to the public during the presentation of classified evidence. Lind and attorneys for both sides have suggested there are a number of options to shield sensitive material, including closing parts of the trial; redacting documents; using written summaries as evidence to omit sensitive details; or even using code words for classified information.

The sensitive evidence includes Iraq and Afghanistan battlefield reports and State Department cables Manning has acknowledged leaking, along with official communications about those classified documents. The government says the leaks in 2009 and 2010 endangered lives and security. Manning’s lawyers contend there was little to no damage.

Lind’s decision to hold the practice run out of public view has drawn mixed reactions from national security and legal experts. Air Force Reserve Lt. Col. David Frakt, who teaches at the University of Pittsburgh law school, called it a “great idea” for minimizing disruptions such as those at U.S. military commissions’ cases involving terrorism detainees at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. Frakt defended Guantanamo detainees Mohammed Jawad and Ali Hamza al Bahlul in 2008 and 2009.

“The judge wants the trial, when it happens, to go smoothly, and the last thing you want is some inadvertent disclosure,” Frakt said.

AT A GLANCE

Bashful? Buy the Little Blue Pill Online

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) • Men who are bashful about needing help in the bedroom no longer have to visit a drugstore to buy that little blue pill.

In a first for the drug industry, Pfizer Inc. told The Associated Press that on Monday it will sell begin selling erectile dysfunction pill Viagra directly to patients on its website.

Men still will need a prescription to buy the blue pill on viagra.com, but they won’t have to face a pharmacist to get it filled.

Other drugmakers likely will watch closely, and could begin selling other medicines online.

Unlikely Scribe Handwrites Good Book in 4 Years

PHILMONT, N.Y. (AP) • In the beginning, New York resident Phillip Patterson decided to write out every word in the Bible.

Now, four years after starting with Genesis, the 63-year-old Hudson Valley man has copied out more than 2,400 pages and is close to completing the job. Patterson will finish up the final lines of the Book of Revelation during a ceremony at his church, St. Peter’s Presbyterian in Spencertown, on May 11.

Patterson might seem like an unlikely scribe for the King James version of the Bible. The retired interior designer is neither monkish nor zealous. He goes to church but has never been particularly religious. Health issues — including AIDS and anemia — have sent him to the hospital and slowed the work.

But he says he has always been curious.

Minn. Prepares to Dispose of I-35W Bridge Parts

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) • Minnesota is preparing to give victims, historians and engineers a chance to claim some of the crumpled steel from the deadly 2007 collapse of the Interstate 35W bridge before the rest is sold for scrap.

Aug. 1 will mark the six-year anniversary of when the bridge buckled and fell into the Mississippi River during evening rush hour in Minneapolis, killing 13 people and injuring 145 others.

The Minnesota Department of Transportation had to store the steel beams and plates until all the legal claims could be resolved.

The Minnesota House is poised to vote Monday on a bill to give the department months to parcel out free pieces to victims’ families, collapse survivors, the state historical society and others. The bill also awaits Senate action.

Smuggled Dinosaur Skeleton Returned to Mongolia

NEW YORK (AP) • U.S. authorities in New York have returned a 70-million-year-old nearly complete Tyrannosaurus skeleton to the Mongolian government.

Authorities say the skeleton was looted from the Gobi Desert. It was seized by Immigration and Customs Enforcement agents in New York.

A Gainesville, Fla., fossils dealer pleaded guilty to smuggling charges in a cooperation deal last December.

The government said Eric Prokopi smuggled the bones into the U.S. then assembled them into a skeleton. It was sold by Dallas-based Heritage Auctions for over $1 million. The deal was suspended. The government said the dinosaur skeleton was mislabeled as rep-

Helen Mirren Gives Noisy Drummers a Royal Rebuke

LONDON (AP) • Silence for the queen, please.

A troupe of street drummers got a shock when Helen Mirren, dressed as Queen Elizabeth II, emerged from a London theater to berate them for disrupting her show.

Mirren is starring in “The Audience,” a drama about the weekly meetings between the queen and Britain’s prime ministers over her 60-year reign.

Outside noise became too much for the actress to bear during Saturday’s performance. Mirren acknowledged to the Daily Telegraph newspaper that she used less-than-royal language in her rant.

“I’m afraid there were a few ‘thespian’ words used,” Mirren was quoted as saying. “They got a very stern royal ticking off, but I have to say they were very sweet, and they stopped immediately.

“I felt rotten, but on the other hand they were destroying our performance so something had to be done.”

This Ain’t Yogurt

An Arab friend remarked to me that watching the United States debate how much to get involved in Syria reminded him of an Arab proverb: “If you burn your tongue once eating soup, for the rest of your life you’ll blow on your yogurt.”

After burning our tongues in Iraq and Afghanistan, and watching with increasing distress the aftermath of the revolutions in Libya, Tunisia and Egypt, President Barack Obama is right to be cautious about getting burned in Damascus. We’ve now seen enough of these Arab transitions from autocracy to draw some crucial lessons about what it takes to sustain positive change in these countries. We ignore the lessons at our peril — especially the lesson of Iraq, which everyone just wants to forget but is hugely relevant.

Syria is Iraq’s twin: an artificial state that was also born after World War I inside lines drawn by imperial powers. Like Iraq, Syria’s constituent communities — Sunnis, Alawite/Shiites, Kurds, Druze, Christians — never volunteered to live together under agreed rules. So, like Iraq, Syria has been ruled for much of its modern history by either a colonial power or an iron-fisted autocrat. In Iraq, the hope was that once the iron-fisted dictator was removed by us it would steadily transition to a multisectarian, multiparty democracy. Ditto for Egypt, Libya, Tunisia and Yemen.

But we now see the huge difference between Eastern Europe in 1989 and the Arab world in 2013. In most of Eastern Europe, the heavy lid of communist authoritarian rule was suppressing broad and deeply rooted aspirations for democracy. So when that lid was removed, most of these countries relatively quickly moved to freely elected governments — helped and inspired by the European Union.

In the Arab world, in contrast, the heavy lid of authoritarianism was suppressing sectarian, tribal, Islamist and democratic aspirations. So, when the lids were removed, all four surfaced at once. But the Islamist trend has been the most energetic — helped and inspired not by the EU but by Islamist mosques and charities in the Persian Gulf — and the democratic one has proved to be the least organized, least funded and most frail. In short, most of Eastern Europe turned out to be like Poland after communism ended and most of the Arab countries turned out to be like Yugoslavia after communism ended.

As I said, our hope and the hope of the courageous Arab democrats who started all these revolutions, was that these Arab countries would make the transition from Saddam to Jefferson without getting stuck in Khomeini or Hobbes — to go from autocracy to democracy without getting stuck in Islamism or anarchism.

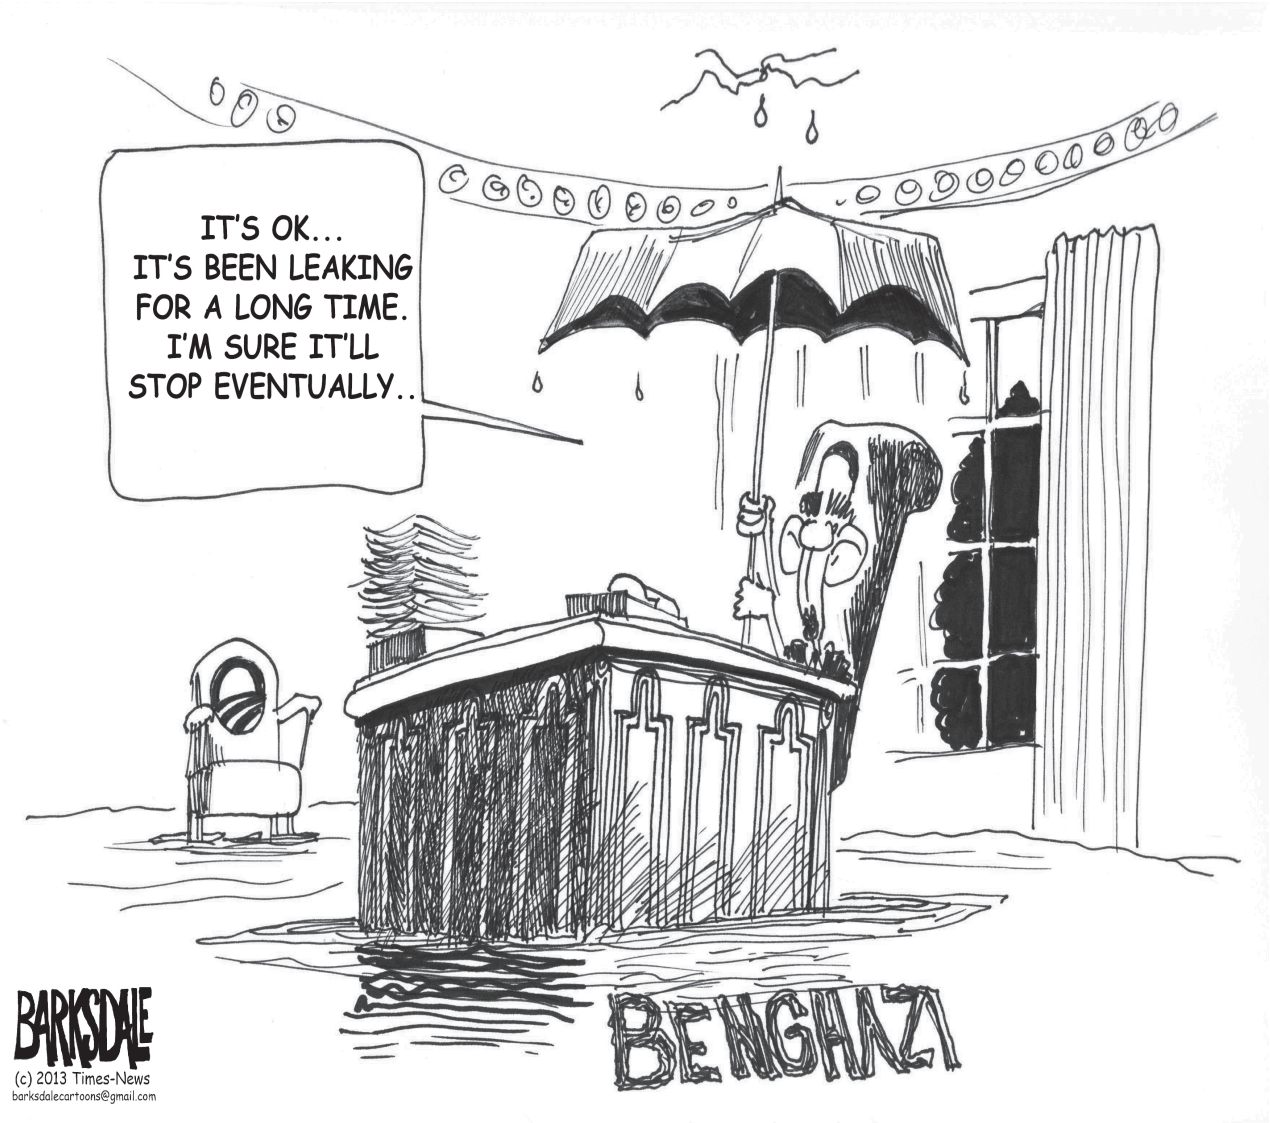

To do that, though, they need either an external midwife to act as a referee between all their constituent communities (who never developed trust in one another) as they try to replace sectarianism, Islamism and tribalism with a spirit of democratic citizenship, or they need their own Nelson Mandela. That is, a homegrown figure who can lead, inspire and navigate a democratic transition that is inclusive of all communities.

America, we all know, played that external referee role in Iraq — hugely ineptly at first. Eventually, though, the U.S. and moderate Iraqis found a way back from the brink, beat back both Sunni and Shiite violent extremists, wrote a constitution and held multiple free elections, hoping to give birth to that Iraqi Mandela. Alas, they got Nouri al-Maliki, a Shiite who, instead of building trust with other communities, is re-sowing sectarian division. Decades of zero-sum politics — “I’m-weak-how-can-I-compromise/I’m-strong-why-should-I-compromise” — are hard to extinguish.

I believe that if you want to end the Syrian civil war and tilt Syria onto a democratic path, you need an international force to occupy the entire country, secure the borders, disarm all the militias and midwife a transition to democracy. It would be staggeringly costly and take a long time, with the outcome still not guaranteed. But without a homegrown Syrian leader who can be a healer, not a divider, for all its communities, my view is that anything short of an external force that rebuilds Syria from the bottom up will fail. Since there are no countries volunteering for that role (and I am certainly not nominating the U.S.), my guess is that the fighting in Syria will continue until the parties get exhausted.

Meanwhile, wherever we can identify truly “good” rebels, we should strengthen them, but we should also be redoubling our diplomatic efforts to foster a more credible opposition leadership of reconciliation-minded Syrians who can reassure all of Syria’s communities that they will have an equitable place at a new cabinet table. (Never underestimate how many Syrians are clinging to the tyrannical Bashar Assad out of fear that after him comes only Hobbes or Khomeini.) That way, when the combatants get exhausted and realize that there can be no victor and no vanquished — a realization that took 14 years in Lebanon’s civil war next door — a fair power-sharing plan will be in place. Even then, Syrians will almost certainly need outside help to reassure everyone during the transition, but we can cross that bridge when we come to it.

Here’s the one alternative that won’t happen: one side decisively defeating the other and ushering in peace that way. That is a fantasy.

Things to Toss: Flip-flops

Flip-flop, flip-flop, flip-flop, flip-flop. What a glorious sound to hear when it is accompanied by crashing waves, squawking seagulls and ice being blended for drinks with little umbrellas. During the walk to work or around town on a Saturday — or anywhere where there isn’t sand within 20 steps? Not so much. Actually, not at all.

At the beach, the foot thong screams, “I’m on vacation!” In an urban environment, the message is “I give up” or “I don’t care” — and not in a good way. The freedom that flip-flops give the wearer is undeniable. The desire for comfort is understandable. But the sloppiness they inspire is inexcusable.

Jonathan Capehart

The Washington Post

Ain’t nothin’ chic or hip about a man or a woman dressed to the nines with 10 toes hanging out. There is most definitely nothing cute about the sight of pants scraping the pavement or the horrible conditions of said feet. You know what I’m talking about: crusted heels and toes blackened by the dirt and debris picked up ambling the concrete jungle. And those gross conditions are exacerbated by hoofing it to the office or around the neighborhood in the cold or the rain. Street gravy, anyone?

There are painful consequences to wearing flip-flops. A 2008 study from Auburn University found that the shoes can lead to orthopedic problems, such as sore feet, ankles and legs. There are also the blisters, calluses and stubbed toes to consider. “They are terrible for the arches. They give you no support, and they don’t protect your feet,” Kathya Zinszer, an associate professor and director of community outreach at Temple University’s School of Podiatric

Medicine, told CNN. “You need to make sure that you are securing the biomechanics of your foot,” she said. “So if you just get what people call slides, or rubbery flip-flops, it is more dangerous than trying to do something barefoot.”

Look, I know I’m fighting a lonesome battle. Especially since the object I’d love to toss goes all the way back to the ancient Egyptians. But if you want to walk like an Egyptian, do so in lace-ups, heels or, if you must, any other type of sandal.

Vote ‘Yes’ for T.F. Wastewater Bond

The Board of Directors of the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce endorses the Citizens Advisory Committee recommendation to pass a $38 million, 20-year Wastewater Infrastructure bond for upgrading and improving the current facility and treatment process and urges voters to approve the proposed bond.

The current wastewater treatment facility has served our community well for nearly 50 years. Twin Falls has enjoyed steady growth in population during these years. Our residential population has doubled and Twin Falls has become the regional hub for industry, commerce, retail, tourism and transportation. This growth has stretched the facility’s

Mark Lopshire

services to full capacity. As a result, the city is currently unable to approve any new residential, commercial and industrial construction or expansion, which limits the addition of new jobs and economic growth for our families and community. This halt on growth includes public sector projects and limits the city and school district from expanding and constructing new facilities that provide services contributing to the high quality of life enjoyed in our city.

The proposed upgrades will double our current capacity and will use an environmentally friendly, state-of-the-art process, which is ideal for our climate and easy to expand in the future. The proposed bond is also fiscally responsible, adding an average of just $5.21 per month to residential rates. Even with this user rate increase, which is not a tax, Twin Falls will still have some of the lowest sewer rates in the Magic Valley and we will be able to provide more jobs for our children and grandchildren.

An upgraded wastewater treatment facility is a vital asset to our community and will go hand in hand with low taxes, affordable utility rates and quality educational opportunities. In addition, it will further create a vibrant community in attracting new businesses to our area and allow for expansion of existing businesses. This increased ca-capacity will allow our community and economy to continue growing and maintain the momentum of recent economic development success. Careful planning and investing in this type of infrastructure will ensure Twin Falls can continue to grow responsibly while providing a high level of the necessary services for our community.

As a business organization, the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce realizes the necessity and advantages to upgrading our wastewater treatment facility and encourages voters to vote “Yes” in the May 21 election.

Company Nixes Idaho Cobalt Mine Amid Money Problems

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • A proposed Idaho cobalt mine with government approval and support from environmental groups has nixed its project, for now, because it said the price of the metal is too low and risk-averse financiers want too much to lend it money.

Chief Executive Officer Mari-Ann Green of Formation Metals Inc. said the company's Idaho Cobalt Project aims to be ready when prices rebound and investors return.

In the meantime, however, her Vancouver, British Columbia-based company is in retrenchment mode, slashing jobs and salaries and focusing on boosting its separate business at its precious metals refinery near Kellogg in northern Idaho's Silver Valley.

Formation had aimed to construct the nation's largest cobalt mine in the Salmon-Challis National Forest to unearth the strategic metal used in jet engines, hybrid vehicle batteries, and prosthetic knees and hips. Now, the project — and the 150 full-time jobs that were to accompany it — is limbo.

It didn't return a phone call seeking comment Monday but outlined its challenges in a statement to investors.

"The weak prices seen over the last year, coupled with enhanced adversity to risk by potential financiers in these turbulent markets has made financing costs unattractive for the further development of the ICP at this time," Green said.

Cobalt prices peaked at more than $50 per pound in 2007. That's about the time when Formation Metals said it could yield about $46 million of the strategic metal annually.

But since then, its price has languished, trading at around $12 per pound recently, according to a report from the U.S. Geological Survey based on prices from the London Metal Exchange.

The mine had secured permits from the U.S. Forest Service in 2008 and that same year won kudos from environmental groups, including the Idaho Conservation League, after striking a pact over how to manage and reclaim the site.

Robert Cope, a commissioner in central Idaho's Lemhi County that had hoped to see a boost to its local economy, pointed out other mines in the region are retrenching, too, with metals prices in the cellar.

Late last year, Thompson Creek Metals Co. Inc. in neighboring Custer County suspended expansion plans at its molybdenum mine in a move that will cut 100 jobs through 2014.

"It's not like this is the only mining outfit in the world that's cutting back right now," Cope said, adding he's optimistic that Formation will reinvigorate operations as market conditions recover.

"Sometimes great ideas have to wait for their time to come."

As of December, Formation still hoped to begin underground construction using a $5 million cash infusion from a private investor to prepare for the work and winterize the project.

But everything was predicated on larger financing that never materialized. Even so, the company isn't abandoning the project, Green said.

"The ICP is a valuable asset and we intend to preserve it for future development once conditions improve," she said.

Otter Pardons Two Men Convicted of Drug Offenses

BOISE (AP) • Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter has issued pardons to two men who were convicted of peddling illegal drugs, served time in prison and are now turning their lives around on the outside.

Monday's pardons for Robert Thornton and Eric Hinckley mark the first time Otter has used his authority to grant clemency to offenders. It's also the first offender pardon since 2000 when Dirk Kempthorne was governor.

Thornton is 57 years old and was convicted in 1992 for selling cocaine in Ada County.

Hinckley is 37 years old and was charged in 2002 with selling methamphetamine in Idaho Falls.

Otter acted on the recommendation of the Idaho Commission for Pardons and Parole.

He says both men are positive examples of how to embrace change and emerge from the state prison system.

Treasure Valley Using Less Water

BOISE (AP) • An increased emphasis on conservation and education along with more efficient appliances are contributing to a decline in water use in Idaho's biggest metropolitan area.

The Idaho Statesman reports that water use in the Treasure Valley last year was down about 30,000 gallons annually for each metered customer compared to 2000 consumption. Overall, that's about 2.5 billion gallons annually and enough water to serve an additional 29,000 customers.

Over the last decade, the state's largest water market has taken steps to reduce consumption.

Five years ago, Boise opened the WaterShed Environmental Education Center, which has raised more than $1.2 million and educated about 100,000 people about conserving water.

Burley Running Back Rebollozo Signs with College of Idaho

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Burley High senior Jason Rebollozo became the latest member of the newly reinstated College of Idaho football program when he signed a Frontier Conference letter of intent on Monday.

"This is the next big step," Rebollozo said. "(The reality of signing) is hitting me in the face right now"

Usually it's Rebollozo doing the hitting, as a 5-foot-8, 190-pound running back and linebacker for the Bobcats.

According to Burley head coach Jed Thomas, the College of Idaho coaches consider Rebollozo "a diamond in the rough." During his senior season, Rebollozo was hindered with an ankle injury and he was never able to show what he's capable of.

"You didn't get to see Jason's potential even a little bit, unfortunately," Thomas said. "His footwork is great and he's quick in terms of his lateral movement and foot speed."

Rebollozo

Thomas praised Rebollozo's dedication, leadership and coachability.

"He can take a concept of what you want him to do and he will give you everything that he's got," Thomas said.

Rebollozo sacrificed playing baseball this spring so that he could run track to get faster for football.

Rebollozo said he visited the Caldwell campus three times before settling on the C of I.

"I love the campus, the education is really good and the people around there are friendly," Rebollozo said.

He said he's excited to be a member of head coach Mike Moroski's first recruiting class that will lay the foundation for Yote football.

"I think it's a good thing to start something new. It's going to be ground zero for everyone."

Rebollozo is the son of Gabe and Tina Rebollozo. He has a 3.8 GPA and plans to study physical therapy and exercise science.

Buhl Boy Golfers Win 3A District IV Crown

TWIN FALLS • Get used to the names that qualified for state at the 3A District IV golf tournament, you'll likely be seeing them for the next few years.

Buhl, with its three freshman and junior Kade Crossland, playing on their home course, shot a season best 296, finishing 26 strokes ahead of Filer to win the district crown.

Freshman Kayden Eckert shot a personal best 69 — winning the individual district trophy — three weeks after tearing muscles near his hip during baseball. Eckert, an up-and-coming basketball player, plays two sports in spring.

"I haven't felt pain in like three days,"

Eckert said. "I was just going for a 75 today."

Eckert finished with five birdies and, he said, at least five one-putts. His teammates, Kade Crossland, who was three under on the front nine, finishing with a 74, and freshman Kasey Crossland, who knocked in a 25-foot putt, ribbed Eckert for his hip injury — perhaps spurring him on.

"I think he's fine," Kade Crossland said. "I think he is (milking it)."

T.F. Senior Golfers Bust through 'Senior Slump'

RYAN HOWE • TIMES-NEWS

Twin Fall senior Kyle Miley shot a 1-under par 67 on Monday at Twin Falls Golf Club to win the Class 4A District IV championship.

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • It was an exciting day for some of Magic Valley's top senior golfers at the District IV golf championship and Class 4A state qualifier on Monday at Twin Falls Golf Club.

Two Twin Falls players finally busted through their "senior slump."

One Minico golfer finally realized his high school goal.

And one Canyon Ridge senior achieved the unthinkable.

The day's best round was by Twin Falls senior Kyle Miley, who overcame a sluggish front nine to shoot a 1-under 67. For the past few years, Miley has been the area's top golf talent, but this year he hasn't been atop the leaderboard as much.

"I think it's mostly mental. I lost confidence early in the year," said Miley, who will be golfing for Colorado School of Mines next year. "If you don't have confidence, you're not going to play well out here."

Miley has especially struggled with the putter. On Monday, he dealt with the firm, fast greens and finished with 30 putts on his round. After shooting 1-over on the front nine, Miley buckled down on the back. Birdies on 11, 12 and 13 got him on the right track.

The Bruins' Sydney Lee can relate to Miley's senior slump. Lee, who will golf at Hawaii Pacific University next season, has experienced a roller coaster season after changing her clubs and swing.

Arencibia's 9th-inning HR Lifts Toronto over Rays

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. • J.P. Arencibia hit a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth inning off Fernando Rodney and the Toronto Blue Jays completed their comeback from a seven-run deficit, beating the Tampa Bay Rays 8-7 on Monday night.

The last time Toronto rallied from at least seven runs down to win was June 5, 2007, when it overcame an 8-1 margin to beat Tampa Bay 12-11, according to STATS LLC.

Tampa Bay last lost a lead of at least seven runs was May 25, 2009, when Cleveland came back from a 10-0 deficit to win 11-10.

This time, Evan Longoria hit his third career grand slam as Tampa Bay built a 7-0 lead that Jeremy Hellickson and four relievers failed to protect before a season-low crowd of 9,952 at Tropicana Field.

Toronto trailed 7-6 when Adam Lind drew a leadoff walk against Rodney (1-1). Pinch-runner Emilio Bonifacio stole second and continued to third on catcher Jose Molina's throwing error with no outs.

Rodney retired the next two batters before Arencibia lined a 2-2 pitch into the left-field seats.

Darren Oliver (1-1) got the win and Casey Janssen worked a perfect ninth for his eighth save.

INDIANS 7, ATHLETICS 3 CLEVELAND • Asdrubal Cabrera homered twice and Mark Reynolds hit one to the deepest reaches of Progressive Field, leading the Indians to the victory.

Jason Kipnis and Cabrera hit consecutive homers in the first inning off Jarrod Parker (1-5). In the fifth, Cabrera homered again and Reynolds launched a 460-foot shot — his 10th this season — that nearly cleared the left-field bleachers.

The four homers backed Ubaldo Jimenez (2-2), who had his second straight solid outing. Jimenez struck out a season-high eight in 5 2-3 innings as Cleveland won for the seventh time in eight games.

Jason Giambi hit a clutch, two-run single and Ryan Raburn doubled home a run in the seventh for the Indians, who had their six-game winning streak stopped Sunday.

Yoenis Cespedes homered and hit a sacrifice fly for Oakland, which had won eight in a row over the Indians.

WHITE SOX 2, ROYALS 1, 11 INNINGS KANSAS CITY, Mo. • Jordan Danks atoned for a baserunning blunder in the ninth inning by hitting a solo home run in the 11th that lifted the White Sox to the win.

Danks connected with two outs off Kelvin Herrera (2-3) for his first homer of the season. The White Sox avoided a three-game sweep and won for only the fifth time in 18 tries in Kauffman Stadium.

The White Sox trailed 1-0 before loading the bases with no outs in the ninth. After Paul Konerko grounded into a home-to-first double play, Danks entered as a pinch runner at second base for Adam Dunn.

Conor Gillaspie was intentionally walked to load the bases. Alexei Ramirez followed with an infield single up the middle that made it 1-1, but Danks was caught in a rundown between third and home and tagged out, ending the rally.

Jesse Crain (1-1) got the win and Addison Reed worked the 11th for his 11th save in 12 opportunities.

National League BRAVES 7, REDS 4

CINCINNATI • Andrelton Simmons homered twice and drove in a career-high four runs on Monday night, leading the Atlanta Braves to a 7-4 victory that ended the Cincinnati Reds' winning streak at three games.

The Braves won at a place where they've had little success lately. They were 0-4 at Great American Ball Park last year and 14-25 overall since it opened for the 2003 season.

Paul Maholm (4-3) held down an offense that's been all-or-nothing. The left-hander allowed four hits and two runs in 5 2-3 innings. Cincinnati stranded five runners in scoring position overall.

Craig Kimbrel gave up a pair of singles in the ninth before fanning Joey Votto, picking up his 10th save in 12 opportunities.

Atlanta scored in four of five innings against Bronson Arroyo (2-4), who gave up eight hits, walked two and allowed four runs in his shortest outing of the season.

Simmons had a solo shot and an RBI single off Arroyo. He added a two-run homer in the eighth off Logan Ondrusek, matching his career high for hits.

Freddie Freeman also singled and doubled and drove in a run off Arroyo, who needed 98 pitches to get through five innings. Jordan Schafer added his first career pinch-hit homer as the Braves pulled away.

The injury-sapped Braves got a little closer to full strength when catcher Brian McCann was activated off the disabled list, completing a comeback from surgery on his throwing shoulder last October. The six-time All-Star started and went 0 for 4 with a walk.

Right fielder Jason Heyward

also increased his workout activities while recovering from surgery to remove his appendix on April 22. The Braves will decide by the end of the week whether he's ready to start a rehab assignment in the minors.

The Braves made it tough on Arroyo from the outset. Freeman singled home a run in the first inning, but Atlanta left the bases loaded when Dan Uggla struck out.

Simmons led off the second inning with a homer down the third-base line. Uggla opened the fourth with his second triple of the season — a ball into the gap in right-center field — and scored on Simmons' single off the glove of Zack Cozart in the hole at shortstop for a 3-0 lead.

Evan Gattis doubled home a run in the fifth off Arroyo. The Braves pulled away with three runs in the eighth off Ondrusek.

Couples, Montgomerie Among 5 Inducted to World Golf Hall of Fame

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. • About the only thing Fred Couples and Colin Montgomerie had in common was a golf swing they could trust for a lifetime.

Couples became the first American to reach No. 1 in the world and won the Masters by a blade of grass that kept his ball from trickling into Rae's Creek. Montgomerie found fame on the European Tour, where he won the Order of Merit a record seven times in a row, though he never won a major, a glaring hole in his credentials.

Couples sauntered down the fairways, the essence of cool. Montgomerie walked with his head down, never looking like he was having much fun.

They shared the stage Monday night when both were inducted into the World Golf Hall of Fame, along with three others in the Class of 2013. The others were former U.S. Open champion and broadcaster Ken Venturi, former European Tour executive director Ken Schofield and two-time British Open champion and architect Willie Park Jr.

That brings the Hall of Fame to 146 members.

"I never thought about the Hall of Fame as a kid," Couples said. "I never made a putt at the golf course ... it was always to win the tournament that was on TV that week, but I never made a putt to say, 'Wow, if I make this I'm in the Hall of Fame.' No one does that. But when you get in there, obviously, I'm lucky to be in there. I barely got in here, but I'm in. And it's quite an honor."

The election of this year's class was not without some debate.

Couples was elected on the PGA Tour ballot ahead of Mark O'Meara and Davis Love III, both of whom either won more tournaments or more majors. Couples received only 51 percent of the vote, a record low for the PGA Tour ballot. It takes 65 percent to get elected, though there is a loophole that if no one gets 65 percent, one player is elected provided he receives at least 50 percent.

Montgomerie won 31 times on the European Tour, the most of any British player, and he was a stalwart in the Ryder Cup. The Scot played in eight of them and never lost in singles (6-0-2) while competing on six winning teams. He also was the winning captain in Wales in 2010.

He never won on the biggest stage, however. Montgomerie lost the 1994 U.S. Open and the 1995 PGA Championship in a playoff. He was second to Ernie Els again in the 1997 U.S. Open at Congressional. And the most painful of all came in 2006 at Winged Foot, when he made double bogey from the middle of the 18th fairway and finished one shot behind Geoff Ogilvy.

"That's the one that hurts," Montgomerie said of Winged Foot, noting another Hall of Fame member, Phil Mickelson, also made double bogey on the 18th. "The four or five others, really, somebody happened to beat me. The 2006 Winged Foot, I beat myself. And that's where it hurts most. So that has taken the most to recover from."

Montgomerie is the fourth player in the last four years to be inducted into the Hall of Fame without having won a major. The others were Jumbo Ozaki, Jock Hutchison and Christy O'Connor Sr. A fifth would be Peter Alliss, who won 23 times on the European Tour, though he was recognized more for his work with the BBC.

"I've enjoyed thoroughly my exploits in major championships," Montgomerie said. "I just haven't been fortunate, or whatever it takes. I've never, ever stood up and made a winner's speech and said I was unlucky. Never. I never will. There's always a time where a bit of fortunate comes your way, whether it be for you or against your opponent at the time, and it just so happens that I just haven't been so-called fortunate to walk through the door. The door has been ajar many a time. I just haven't been able to walk through it."

"So at the same time, if you're talking about regrets of any part of my golfing career, I have none. Absolutely none," he said. "I've done exactly what I've tried to do. I've tried 100 percent on every shot, and sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't."

Montgomerie also received 51 percent of the vote on the International ballot.

Venturi was ill and could not make the trip to Florida for the induction ceremony. He was a premier amateur out of San Francisco, leading the 1956 Masters until an 80 in the final round. Venturi captured the 1964 U.S. Open at Congressional, in such stifling heat that he suffered from severe dehydration and nearly collapsed before he finished. When carpal tunnel syndrome ended his career, he moved to the broadcast booth and enjoyed 35 years of distinguished service to CBS Sports.

Rangers Hold Off Caps, Cut Deficit to 2-1

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Derek Stepan and Arron Asham both scored tiebreaking goals in the third period for the New York Rangers in a 4-3 victory over the Washington Capitals in Game 3 on Monday night.

The Rangers finally found their offense and got back into their first-round playoff series. New York still trails 2-1 in the Eastern Conference series, with Game 4 here Wednesday night.

Stepan gave the Rangers the lead for good with 6:25 remaining when he deftly tipped in a pass in front from Rick Nash. Asham had put New York in front 3-2 at 2:53, but Jay Beagle got the Capitals even again 4:26 later.

Derick Brassard had a goal and two assists for the Rangers, who managed only one goal in the first two losses in Washington and hadn't scored since the first period of Game 1 — a score-

Adam McQuaid, Rich Peverley, Nathan Horton, Daniel Paille and David Krejci, with an empty-net goal with 1:17 remaining, scored for Boston

The win came before 19,746 fans inside the Air Canada Centre. Outside, a blue-and-white throng watched on a big screen in Maple Leaf Square as play-off hockey returned to Toronto for the first time since 2004.

After being beaten 4-2 in Boston on Saturday night, the Bruins upped their game. The Leafs, meanwhile, made mistakes and were punished, although they tried to close the gap with a busy third period in which they outshot the visitors 18-6. The Leafs finished with a 47-38 edge in shots.

Game 4 is Wednesday in Toronto, with Boston leading 2-1 in the best-of-seven series.

The dominant line of Milan Lucic, Krejci and Horton finished with two goals and six assists. They have combined for 17 points through the first three postseason games, with five goals and 12 assists.

BULLS STEAL GAME 1, TOP HEAT 93-86

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI • Nate Robinson scored 27 points, Jimmy Butler added 21 points and 14 rebounds while playing every second for the third straight game, and the Chicago Bulls stunned the Miami Heat 93-86 on Monday night to take Game 1 of their Eastern Conference semifinal series.

Trailing 86-83 with 2 minutes left, the Bulls scored the final 10 points of the game to beat the Heat once again.

Joakim Noah added 13 points, Taj Gibson had 12 and Marco Belinelli added 10 for Chicago, which snapped a 27-game Miami winning streak during the regular season, and handed the Heat their first loss in their last 13 games in this one.

LeBron James scored 24 points for Miami, which got 14 from Dwyane Wade.

Game 2 is Wednesday night in Miami.

The Bulls were without Derrick Rose, as they've been all season. Kirk Hinrich was out again with a calf injury. Luol Deng isn't even expected to rejoin the team until Tuesday, after dealing with an illness apparently so severe that a spinal tap — and other tests since — were needed to rule out things like meningitis.

And the group that was left gave the reigning NBA champions more than they could handle.

A pair of three-point plays by James — one of them coming when he just broke through a tackle attempt by Butler and muscled the ball to the rim anyway — gave Miami a 76-69 lead midway through the fourth quarter, the biggest deficit Chicago faced all night.

The Bulls, predictably, were undeterred. Coming off a Game 7 road win in Brooklyn two nights earlier just to get into a series with Miami, the Bulls just kept grinding. When Ray Allen made a 3-pointer to give Miami an 80-78 lead, Butler came back with one of his own to put the Bulls back on top. When the Heat went up by three after James made a free throw with 2:22 left, Belinelli connected for 3 — on a second-effort possession — to knot the game.

Then when Robinson connected on a 20-footer with 1:18 left, the Bulls had the lead and plenty of swagger.

With good reason, too.

Wade missed a 3-pointer on the next possession, Robinson drove the lane and scored with 45.5 seconds left, and suddenly the Bulls were up 90-86 — rendered virtually the entire building silent.

James drove against Butler and tried a 12-footer that missed everything, the Bulls got the rebound, Robinson made a free throw to stretch the lead to five and the stunner was complete.

Game 1 to the Bulls. And with it, home-court advantage as well.

It was a night that started with a celebration and ended with Miami's arena in silence.

James was honored before the game, with a brief on-court ceremony to commemorate his fourth NBA MVP award.

"Everybody here knows about the statistics," NBA Commissioner David Stern said. "All I would like to add in presenting this trophy is that LeBron James exemplifies the values of our game. Teamwork, passion, a continued extraordinary desire to improve, and a state of excellence that is unmatched. So thank you LeBron James, for what you bring to our league."

James picked up the trophy — he was actually presented with it Sunday — and made a slow circle with it aloft, as cheers rained down from the sold-out stands.

"It's an unbelievable achievement, but I wouldn't be able to do it without these 14 guys here, our coaching staff and most of all you guys," James said, speaking to the crowd. "This trophy is for you. So thank you so much, and let's get ready to go."

And with that, the game started.

Problem was, no one was ready to go.

The Heat missed their first seven shots — maybe rust from an eight-day lay-off really was a factor — and Chicago led 21-15 after an opening quarter where Nazr Mohammed, he of the 2.6-point-per-game scoring average in this regular season, had as many points (two) as any Miami starter did.

A 10-0 Heat run in the second gave Miami a 25-23 lead, and the teams were tied at 37 at halftime.

The story at that point was James, who wore twice as many pairs of sneakers in the first half (two) as he had field goals (one). He had two points at the break, the lowest of his 120-game postseason career, on just 1 for 6 shooting. James started the game in sneakers that were MVP editions, then returned to his more customary style late in the first half.

He opened the second half with a 3-pointer, so the shoes were a quick fix.

But the Bulls were in for the long haul, and after James made the consecutive three-point plays to open a seven-point lead, Chicago answered with seven straight points, knotting the game at 76-all when Belinelli made a 3-pointer with just under 5 minutes left.

Momentum belonged to Chicago, and soon, so did the game.

about my pull cart thing, because I can't really carry (my bag) on my back," Eckert said.

Fellow freshman Cooper Felton shot an 81.

"Some of those kids play baseball, too, like three sports," Kimberly's Matt Hochee said. "It's crazy."

Hochee shot a 75, good for third place and a state tournament berth.

He was grouped with Kade Crossland, Gooding's Zach Woods and Filer's Alex Dey, all of whom shot 77 or below and qualified for the state tournament.

"It's a lot more pressure, especially when you see those guys hitting good shots," Hochee said. "Trying to top that is really difficult."

Hochee topped them a few times, he said, nearly driving a par 4 on the back nine with a 360-yard smash.

Woods, who earned a scholarship to play Division

III golf at MacMurry College in southern Illinois after one of the Highlander coaches flew in to watch him play last year, finished fifth with a 75, one stroke below the qualifying number for 3A.

Woods built on his tournament winning round in Gooding last week, where he rediscovered his stroke despite fierce winds. With his wrist recovered after injuring it early in the year, he's hoping to improve upon his 11th place finish at state with at least a top five mark this year.

He'll have to stay better hydrated though.

"It was muggy down by river and I kind of lost concentration," Woods said. "It was hard walking, staying up. I was slurring my words and couldn't process anything."

Filer, with Dey, Jed Oyler, Jacob Oyler, Brutke, and Jasper, qualified to state as a team by finishing second in the district tournament.

Gooding sophomore Corri Pierson won the girls tournament with a 109. Despite finishing third as a team, she and Jae Anderson qualified for state (as top three district finishers).

"I had some pretty good drives and a few good putts," Pierson said. "I shot a 105 in the practice round. My short game wasn't the best. I think a lot of girls were getting frustrated after bad shots."

Many of the girl groups took more than six hours to finish their round.

Few were happy with their performance.

Kimberly freshman Isa Hopkins finished second with a 114.

"I was pretty disappointed," Hopkins said. "There was definitely frustration out there. I think we put a lot of pressure on ourselves because it's districts, but at least some of us made state."

Chalk some of it up to inexperience.

Just like the boys, the girls tournament was dominated by underclassman.

Kimberly, which finished first in the tournament with a team score of 486, featured three freshman, a sophomore and a junior.

They hope they'll have gotten their big tournament jitters out of the way for next week.

"They were kind of stressed," Bulldogs coach Ryan Nesmith said. "They were pretty nervous coming over on the bus."

4A Golf

"When I started to see that I was falling into a senior slump, I was terrified and tried to fix it as soon as I could and it just wasn't fixing," Lee said.

According to Lee, her front nine on Monday was "atrocious," with four double bogeys in a row.

"I saw 44 on the card and I thought to myself, you can't come in with another bad score," Lee said.

So she sharpened her focus and carded a 1-under 35 on the back to finish with an 8-over 79, best in the girls competition by 17 strokes.

"The back was finally how I want to play," said Lee "I thought about by swing, slowed it down, followed through the ball and was hitting it solid. It seemed easy."

With its five golfers finishing in the top 6, Twin Falls' boys shot 285 and easily won the team competition by 48 strokes over runner-up Canyon Ridge. The Riverhawks' 333 was just enough to edge Burley's 337. The district's top two teams — Twin Falls and Canyon Ridge — qualified for the Class 4A state tournament, May 13-14 at University of Idaho Golf Course in Moscow.

Joining them will be Minico's Jake Johnson, who qualified individually by finishing fifth. The senior is capping his senior year by making his first-ever trip to state.

"I'm really happy that I made it. Even though it's not as a team, it's still fun to go up there individually," said Johnson, who shot a 75. "That was my only goal. My last year playing golf for Minico I wanted to just play good in districts and go to state and hopefully do good up there."

With only three full teams on the girls side, only one state tournament spot was available, and that went to Twin Falls, which shot 381.

But one Canyon Ridge golfer turned heads with her vastly improved play.

After playing softball her freshman and sophomore years, a shoulder injury kept Keri Schwarz off the diamond. As a senior, she decided to try something new, and she began golfing just three months ago.

Her first tournament score: 158.

But Schwarz kept working at her game and credits her brother, Canyon Ridge freshman Drew Schwarz, for encouraging her.

On Monday, Keri Schwarz shot a 98 to finish third overall and qualify for the state tournament.

"It turned out a lot better than I thought it was going to," she said.

SALT LAKE CITY • A Utah prosecutor said Monday he plans to decide soon what charges to file against a teenager accused of punching a soccer referee who later died after slipping into a weeklong coma. Authorities say the 17-year-old struck Ricardo Portillo in the head last month during a recreational league match after the referee called a penalty against him. Hours later, the 46-year-old went into a coma. He never regained consciousness and died Saturday. An autopsy was performed the next day, authorities said, but the results have not been made public.

Salt Lake County District

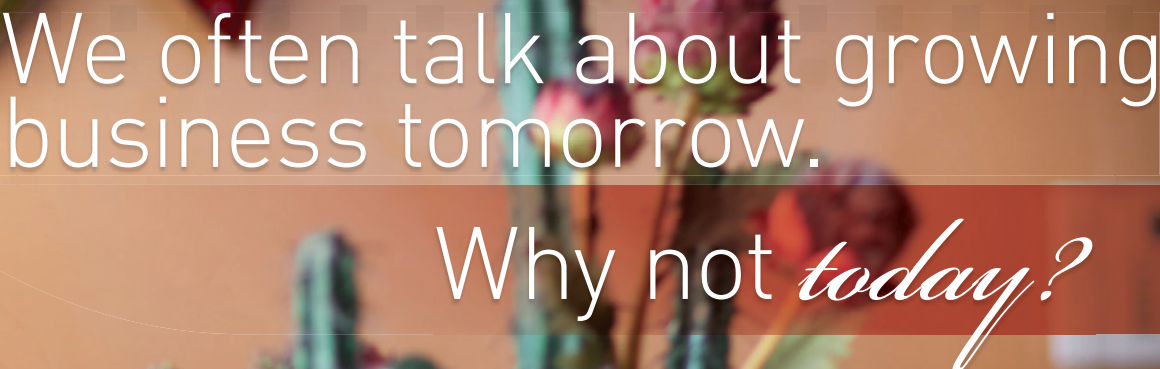

Attorney Sim Gill said he and other officials are reviewing evidence and state statutes to determine the appropriate charges, which he expects to announce by midweek.

The teen, whose name is being withheld because he is a minor, is in juvenile detention on suspicion of aggravated assault. Authorities are considering additional charges since Portillo's death.

Legal analysts say the key factor for Gill to determine is intent.

Paul Cassell, a criminal law professor at the University of Utah, who is not involved in the case, said that from what he has seen it doesn't appear the teenager intended to kill Portillo, which means a murder charge is highly unlikely.

Today is Tuesday, May 7, the 127th day of 2013. There are 238 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On May 7, 1763, Pontiac,
chief of the Ottawa Indians, attempted to lead a sneak attack on British-held Fort Detroit, but was foiled because the British had been tipped off in advance. (The Ottawa Indians and other tribes then launched an all-out war with the British that came to be known as Pontiac's War.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1789, the first inaugural ball was held in New York in honor of President George Washington and his wife, Martha.

In 1824, Beethoven's
Symphony No. 9 in D minor,
Op. 125, had its premiere in Vienna.

In 1825, composer Antonio Salieri died in Vienna, Austria.

In 1833, composer Johannes Brahms was born in Hamburg, Germany.

In 1840, composer Peter Ilyich Tchaikovsky was born in Votkinsk, Russia.

In 1915, nearly 1,200 people died when a German torpedo sank the British liner
RMS Lusitania off the Irish coast.

In 1942, U.S. Army Gen.
Jonathan Wainwright went on a Manila radio station to announce the Allied surrender of the Philippines to Japanese forces during World War II.

In 1945, Germany signed an unconditional surrender at Allied headquarters in Rheims (rams), France, ending its role in World War II.

In 1954, the 55-day Battle of Dien Bien Phu in Vietnam ended with Vietnamese insurgents overrunning French forces.

In 1963, the United States launched the Telstar 2 communications satellite.

In 1975, President Gerald R. Ford formally declared an end to the "Vietnam era." In Ho Chi Minh City — formerly Saigon — the Viet Cong celebrated its takeover.

In 1992, the latest addition to America's space shuttle fleet, Endeavour, went on its first flight. A 203-year-old proposed constitutional amendment barring Congress from giving itself a midterm pay raise received enough votes for ratification as Michigan became the 38th state to approve it.

Ten years ago: President George W. Bush ordered the lifting of sanctions against Iraq, and called on members of the U.N. Security Council to do the same. The White House announced President
Bush had chosen New Mexico oilman Colin R. McMillan to be secretary of the Navy and Air Force Secretary James Roche to replace the dismissed secretary of the Army, Thomas White.
(However, McMillan died in an apparent suicide in July 2003, while Roche's nomination languished in Congress before being withdrawn in March 2004.)

Five years ago: President George W. Bush, addressing the Council of Americas, said Cuba's post-Fidel Castro leadership had made only "empty gestures at reform" as he rejected calls for easing U.S. restrictions on the communist island.
Dmitry Medvedev was sworn in as Russia's president.

One year ago: Education
Secretary Arne Duncan broke ranks with the White House, stating his unequivocal support for same-sex marriage one day after Vice President Joe Biden suggested on NBC that he supported gay marriage as well.
Vladimir Putin took the oath of office as Russia's president in a brief but regal
Kremlin ceremony.

DEAR ABBY: I'm responding to your request for comments about the letter from "Happily Single" (Feb. 13) and whether a divorce would be the first course of action upon winning the lottery. In a community-property state, a divorce AFTER winning wouldn't legally protect you from having to share the spoils with your soon-to-be (and probably now bitter) ex-spouse.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

My husband and I have talked at length about what we'd do if either of us won the Powerball jackpots, and no, divorce was NOT on the list. We'd start by consulting a lawyer/financial planner to find a way to protect our privacy before claiming the money.

I suspect the comments from "Happily's" co-workers are evidence that unhappy marrieds group together — or enjoy complaining about their spouses. Either way, it's sad. Studies show that complaining about a spouse significantly decreases one's satisfaction in a relationship. While we all "vent" from time to time, if talking divorce is your first response to a jackpot win, then you're in the wrong relationship.

— INIT FOR THE LONG HAUL

DEAR INIT: I hit the jackpot with the huge response I received about that letter. And the majority of readers said they would NOT divorce:

DEAR ABBY: I am a lottery winner, and I feel blessed and proud that I can take care of my wife the way she deserves. Within two minutes of my win I was on the phone with her, telling her to quit her stressful job. We now have a wonderful life, with more than we ever hoped for.

— SATISFIED IN THE SUNSHINE STATE

DEAR ABBY: I'm single, but that letter didn't surprise me. I think a lot of people feel they must be married by a certain age, so they end up "settling." Read some of the crazy lottery winner stories posted online, and you'll see people trade in their spouses because they feel they can do better or "move up," kind of like buying a bigger, better house. I'm not saying it's right, but it happens.

— CINDY IN ARLINGTON, VA.

DEAR ABBY: If I won the lottery, the first thing I'd do is GET married. We're waiting so we can afford the nice wedding we both want.

— STEPHANIE IN SAUGUS, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: The first thing I'd do if I won is pay off all my debts. I'm ALREADY divorced.

— DIANA IN TEXAS CITY, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: I wouldn't consider getting divorced if I won, but I might finally buy that second husband I've been wanting but can't afford.

— TACOMA READER

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 40 years. If I won I would not divorce. There's NO WAY I'd want to give him half the money. I would stay married so I could have control over the money he spent. It would make up for all the years that he would pinch my pennies and make me squeeze a nickel till the buffalo pooped.

— WISHFUL IN OHIO

DEAR ABBY: If I were to win the lottery, I would trade all of it just to have one more hug and one more night talking with my wife, who died 16 years ago. Our children were young when she died, and I have tried my best to raise them to be good adults. But my heart still aches over losing her to cancer. I believe all widows and widowers would agree with me on this.

— TRENT IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR ABBY: "When" we win, my husband and I plan on going into a self-made "witness protection program" to hide from the long-lost relatives. But we will absolutely do it TOGETHER.

— HOPING IN GEORGIA

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"New opinions are always suspected, and usually opposed, without any other reason but because they are not already common."

— John Locke

In today's deal, the three little pigs all found their way to a six-heart slam on a top spade lead from West. The pig who made his house out of straw won in dummy, cashed the heart ace, then went to the diamond ace and took a heart finesse. West won his heart queen to play back a spade, forcing declarer to ruff in dummy. Now, with clubs not breaking, declarer could no longer bring home 12 tricks, whether he drew the last trump or not.

By contrast, the little pig who made his house out of wood cashed the ace and king of hearts, and when they split, he snorted smugly to himself and turned his attention to clubs. Even though West could ruff away one of his winners, he was safe.

In the post-mortem, the pigs were arguing about whose line was best. The third little pig, who made his house out of stone, pointed out that he had found a line that guarded against either a 4-1 break in hearts or clubs (or both) and lost only if West had the singleton heart queen. He had won the opening lead and taken an immediate trump finesse.

When it lost, he ruffed the spade return, drew trumps, and set up the clubs with the diamond ace as an entry. Had the heart jack held, the heart ace and king would have followed, and then he could have played on clubs, with two side entries to dummy available had he needed them.

ANSWER: Facing a two-level overcall, one should play new suits by unpassed hands as forcing for one round. With a hand surely too good for a simple three-club rebid, the choices are to bid no-trump, introduce the hearts, and cue-bid. Since the latter sounds like better spade tolerance, I'll settle unhappily for the two-no-trump call and hope to be able to muddle back to hearts one way or another.

IF MAY 7 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: It may be difficult to judge who, or what, is detrimental to your interests in the coming eight to 12 weeks. You may be blinded by the razzle-dazzle of a new romantic figure in your life, or be fascinated by the possibilities of a get-rich scheme. Obtain sound advice before you risk your heart or your money. Work hard and do not become distracted by your fantasies. By mid-September, you will be in the position to make sound decisions about career, business and investments. With reliable guidance, you can reap the rewards you deserve and set up a viable plan of action for coming months.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Apply yourself. Once blockades and obstructions have been circumvented, there is no limit to how much you can accomplish through sheer determination. Wrestle with an adversary to prove your strength.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Every snowflake melts. Even if you have been buried by an avalanche of responsibilities or aggravations, they will soon be a thing of the past. Extra effort creates extra energy for accomplishment.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Play to your strengths. The best way to make a decision or solve a problem could be similar to playing a game of rock, paper, scissors. Each situation requires a unique set of skills or tools.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Go after your objectives with gusto. You can join with others to make ambitions a reality. If you focus on meaningful ways to set a good example, you will receive loyalty and trust in return.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Take pride in your work. Anything worth doing is worth doing well. When your powers of concentration are honed to a sharp point, you can easily add perfect finishing touches to important projects.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Taste the trust. A significant other or a bosom buddy can be trusted to have the solution to one of your biggest problems. Those in close connection may intuitively fulfill your innermost desires.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may be left behind if you don't keep up with the crowd. You will only feel left out if you stick out, so make an effort to fit in. You must play the part of a chameleon at work or in public.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Difficult doesn't mean impossible, but it does mean you have to work hard. When you are ready to give up, just picture a little ant carrying home a large leaf and know that you, too, can carry more than your weight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Solve a dilemma. Look for the fairest way to treat all concerned parties. Improve your mental and physical well being through exercise that allows you to let off steam through appropriate channels.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Actions speak louder than words. Stick up for your rights – and for the rights of others. You will win the most feathers in your cap by protecting the underdog and fiercely guarding your territory.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The best defense is a good offense. Don't be misled by a feint or misdirection, but put a positive spin on your own actions. Find an opportunity to stretch neglected muscles with outdoor exercise.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Promote your own interests if they bring widespread benefits. To sell something, you show customers what's in it for them. Get signatures on the dotted line when your charm is at a high point.
