Jerome Officials Say More Risks Lie Ahead if New Jail Isn’t Built

T.F. Council to Mull Grant Approval Criteria

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls City Council members will listen to a presentation on changing the approval criteria for a city grant that funds services the city should provide but doesn’t.

Earlier this year, council members decided to change how the council approved requests for funding from the Municipal Powers Outsource Grant. Now that the city has begun accepting MPOG applications, council members must now finalize their approval process.

The council will also:

- Consider giving Mayor Greg Lanting authority to sign a right of way deed to provide access to the visitor center and future adjacent development.
- Consider adopting an ordinance for a zoning amendment to allow mixed use at the northwest corner of Eastland Drive North and Addison Avenue East.
- Consider adopting a vacating ordinance of a portion of an undeveloped right-of-way within the 600 to 800 block of Wirsching Avenue West to allow for replanting and residential development.
- Listen to public hearing on amending an agreement to allow a U-Haul truck business and other development at 485 Grandview Drive.

Inmates at the Jerome County Jail come back in from the recreation yard Friday afternoon. The steps of the courthouse are being reconstructed to be ADA compliant.

Officials try for a fifth time, say they’ve worked harder than ever to get funding passed.

JEROME • In 2009, when Jerome County first asked voters about replacing the 35-year-old jail, Gretchen Stone was against it.

“I did a lot of research and a lot of homework and it wasn’t the right time,” she said.

Stone changed her mind. She’s leading a group of Jerome County residents working to convince their neighbors that now is the time to pass an $11.2 million bond supporting construction of a new county jail.

Since officials have shown the public plans, a site for the jail, how much it will cost and the cost to each tax payer, Stone said she believes voting yes for a new jail is a sound investment for the County.

County voters have turned down funding a new jail in the form of a lease and a bond option four times since 2009.

Now Stone’s group, the Jerome County Sheriff’s Office and Jerome County Commissioners say they’ve worked harder than ever to let voters know why they should vote yes.

There have been television appearances, radio shows, fliers and newspaper articles, said Jerome County Commissioner Charlie Howell.

Even if the public is a little tired of hearing about it, Howell said the need for a new jail hasn’t gone away.

Problems in the current jail are rampant, said Jerome County Jail Administrator Lt. Dan Kennedy. Not complying with the Americans with Disabilities Act or Idaho jail standards, Kennedy said, is dangerous for inmates and deputies.

“We’ll keep doing what we’re doing,” Kennedy said, “in the case that the jail bond fails again. We’ll keep running the jail as long as we can.”

An additional danger is that the Idaho Counties Risk Management Program might decide to reduce the amount of insurance available to the jail, Kennedy said. If a liability claim goes above the $500,000 minimum, Kennedy said, it would come out of the general fund for Jerome County.

“It puts the county at significant financial risk,” Kennedy said.

There is an even bigger problem looming said Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall. If financial risk leads officials to close the jail, McFall said, the county would be forced to house inmates in a judicial annex near the current facility where there are no bunks or showers. Meals would have to be contracted out,

Fire Claims Barn, 14 Calves

TIMES-NEWS

WENDELL • At around 2 p.m. Sunday, firefighters arrived at a burning, 50-foot long, concrete and wooden barn five miles west of Wendell. Eight calves escaped and 14 were killed. It took 10 firefighters a half hour to put out the blaze.

Wendell Fire Department Assistant Chief Crystal Houser said the fire appeared to have been caused by a controlled burning that spread to

Exchanging Cultures

For one Pakistan exchange student, America isn’t anything like she’s seen in the entertainment media.

GOODING • When Rida Zehra stepped off an airplane last August in Washington DC, she was a little nervous.

It was her first time in the United States and she didn’t know what to expect. She hoped America wouldn’t be like what she’d seen in the entertainment media, the source for her superficial knowledge of the U.S.

“I was a little scared,” the 17-year-old teen from Pakistan told the Times-News.

It wasn’t long after arriving in Idaho and starting at Gooding High School that she realized American was much different than she’d seen on the silver screen. It’s a much better, more hospitable place, she said.

Zehra, who came to the U.S. through ASSE-International Student Exchange Programs, says there are many advantages to students who participate in the exchange programs. One of them, no less, is learning correctly about the host country.

Before coming to America, for instance, she thought high schools in the U.S. were filled with rambunctious, crude and bullying students — the stereotypical image that she’d often seen on TV.

OJ Simpson Lawyers Say He Is Closer to Freedom

LAS VEGAS (AP) • The latest high-stakes court hearing for O.J. Simpson in the glitzy capital of big gambles has come to a close with the former football star's defense team feeling confident that their client is closer to getting out of prison.

The last time Simpson was in a Las Vegas courtroom, he was convicted of kidnapping and armed robbery. Now, with a new team of attorneys on his side, he has mounted a cool, methodical case that his former lead lawyer botched the 2008 trial so badly that a new one should be granted.

"He has a very good chance now," said Ozzie Fumo, one of the attorneys who represented Simpson. "I don't think the state was able to counter any of our issues."

Simpson's lawyers presented evidence that showed Miami-based attorney Yale Galanter shared responsibility for the ill-conceived plan for the NFL Hall of Famer and former Hollywood star to take back personal items and mementos from two sports collectible dealers in a Vegas hotel room. They also built a case that he deliberately sabotaged Simpson's chances for acquittal and appeal to protect himself and his own self-interests.

When the weeklong hearing ended Friday there seemed to be little doubt that major mistakes were made when Simpson was sentenced to nine to 33 years in prison on 12 criminal counts. The real question is whether enough was done to meet the high standard needed for District Court Judge Linda Marie Bell to free Simpson from state prison and grant him a new trial.

The final witness she heard from was Galanter, who defended his actions in a tense courtroom standoff with Simpson and his new representatives Friday.

As Simpson's legal team worked to portray Galanter as hungry for the money and fame that could come from an O.J. trial, the lawyer said it was Simpson who agreed to spend more than a half a million dollars on his defense, turned down a plea bargain and decided not to testify.

"I felt a genuine fondness for O.J. and was devastated when he lost," Galanter said.

Southeast Idaho School District Eyes Budget Cuts

POCATELLO (AP) • Officials with School District 25 in southeastern Idaho are looking at ways to trim $1.4 million for the upcoming school year.

The Idaho State Journal reports in a story on Sunday that the district that includes Pocatello and Chubbuck is considering cutting physical education in elementary schools.

Board Vice Chairman John Sargent says no one would lose their jobs if the cut is made.

Some other possibilities include eliminating three days each for nine high school counselors or cutting three media positions.

Funding for education in Idaho has been cut by $550 million in the last 10 years.

Tornadoes Level Homes in Oklahoma

Twisters also strike Kansas and Iowa.

EDMOND, Okla. (AP) • One of several tornadoes that touched down Sunday in Oklahoma turned homes in a trailer park near Oklahoma City into splinters and rubble and sent frightened residents along a 100-mile corridor scurrying for shelter.

The tornadoes that touched down in Oklahoma, Kansas and Iowa were part of a massive, northeastward-moving storm system that stretched from Texas to Minnesota.

At least four separate tornadoes touched down in central Oklahoma late Sunday afternoon, including the one near the town of Shawnee, 35 miles southeast of Oklahoma City, that laid waste to much of a mobile home park.

Reports of injuries in that tornado strike couldn't immediately be confirmed, as getting into the area was made difficult by the overturned tractor-trailers that forced the closure of a section of Interstate 40.

A storm spotter told the National Weather Service that the tornado left the earth "scoured" at the mobile home park.

Forecasters had been warning for days that the weekend storm system could produce tornadoes, and emergency responders throughout the region were keeping a close eye on it Sunday night as it moved northeastward. Tornado watches or warnings were in effect through late Sunday in several states.

Dozens of homes were damaged by the other tornadoes that touched down in Oklahoma, but emergency officials had no immediate reports of injuries caused by any of them, including the first of the afternoon that hit Edmond, a suburb north of Oklahoma City, before making its way toward Tulsa, 90 miles to the northeast.

"I knew it was coming," said Randy Grau, who huddled with his wife and two young sons in their Edmond home's safe room when the tornado hit. He said he peered out his window as the weather worsened and believed he saw a flock of birds heading down the street.

Troops Earn Degrees in Combat Zones

ASSOCIATED PRESS
This image provided by Thomas Saenz, shows Saenz near the tarmac at Kabul International Airport in Kabul, Afghanistan. While serving in a combat zone, Saenz earned a master's degree in engineering from the University of Southern California while commanding a top security team.

Troops live on the edge but still have to get their homework done.

SAN DIEGO (AP) • Finals week was dangerous for Thomas Saenz. The Navy lieutenant needed armed guards and an armored car to get to an exam site, in Kabul, Afghanistan. A deadly bomb attack also caused him to miss classes — transmitted live via the Internet — but he persevered and earned a master's degree in engineering from the University of Southern California while commanding a top security team. His class graduated on Friday, as he joins a growing number of service members earning college degrees while deployed in a war zone. "Not only was he out there living on the edge, but he had to get his homework done," USC professor Frank Alvidrez said. The Obama administration is pushing universities to find creative ways to help service members complete their degrees as it tracks the success of its post 9/11 GI Bill, which is designed to be the most comprehensive education benefit for veterans since World War II. Enrollments for the new GI Bill number more than 480,000, according to the Veteran's Administration, which is starting to track the number of graduates. It's not known just how many others like Saenz earn their degrees while in combat. A commencement ceremony for 100 war-zone graduates from various universities is planned in late May in Kandahar. "They really are multitasking in the extreme," said Bob Ludwig, spokesman for the University of Maryland University College, adding that the coursework can provide relief from the mental turmoil of war. "It really is an opportunity to step away from the battlefield and have the sort of the safety of being in a classroom." UMUC has about 30,000 active-duty service members among its students and was among the first schools to send faculty to Iraq to teach troops in 2008 during the war. UMUC also has adjunct professors giving classes in tents in remote outposts of Afghanistan as well as online instruction on bases. Completing degrees online is a growing phenomenon, as more traditional public universities join private, for-profit schools in offering courses. Saenz, a 33-year-old father of two, used the GI Bill to enroll at USC but midway through his studies, the Navy pilot was called to be deployed to Afghanistan. After getting approval from his professors and Navy commanders, Saenz spent his final year of studies racing to his computer on base at 5 a.m. to attend the live transmission of his classes before dedicating his day to overseeing security for top generals and then-Secretary of Defense Leon Panetta. He missed a class that required his online presence when a suicide bomber blew himself up near NATO's headquarters in Kabul, killing six civilians. The base was locked down. Saenz wrote to his professor and aide when the Internet was back up to explain his absence. "I was worried because it was early in the semester and I was afraid it would affect my grade," he said. "But they were real supportive."

Non-native Snail Turns Up in Nevada River

RENO, Nev. (AP) • A nonnative snail has turned up in the Truckee River in Nevada for the first time, and wildlife officials are hoping it doesn't harm the river's trout population or spread to Lake Tahoe. Nevada Department of Wildlife officials said tests have confirmed the presence of at least three New Zealand mudsnails in the river near Reno. Now they're trying to determine the extent of the mudsnail population. "We know we have at least a one-mile distribution, bare minimum," Chris Crookshanks, fisheries biologist with the department of wildlife, told the Reno Gazette-Journal. Ranging in size from a grain of sand to an eighth-of-an-inch, the New Zealand mudsnail can thrive in huge densities, with up to 900,000 per square yard in parts of the Yellowstone River, researchers said. The mollusks compete with bugs and native invertebrates for food and can cause major harm to a stream's ecosystem. A single mudsnail can produce a colony of up to 40 million snails in a single year, fisheries supervisor Kim Tisdale said, and there's a fear the snails could harm the Truckee's trout population. "It's a big concern. They definitely can have negative impacts to the fisheries in the river," Tisdale told the Gazette-Journal. "Under perfect conditions, you can get really high concentrations and they can pretty much crowd out the good bugs."

Explosion in Afganistan Kills Soldier from Utah

ELK RIDGE, Utah (AP) • A soldier from Utah has been killed in an explosion in Afghanistan. Pfc. Cody Towse, 21, was among four soldiers killed when an improvised explosive device detonated Tuesday in Sanjaray, Afghanistan. The Army had reported him missing in action earlier in the week, and visited the soldier's family home in Elk Ridge on Saturday night to confirm the death. Family spokesman Todd Phillips said the medic's family was told that Towse was treating an injured soldier when he was killed in a second explosion. "He died giving aide to another," Phillips told The Salt Lake Tribune.

Swift Wins 8 Trophies at Billboard Awards

Another day, another domination for Taylor Swift: She was the red hot winner at the Billboard Music Awards. Swift won eight of 11 awards, including top artist and top Billboard 200 album for "Red." She told the crowd: "You are the longest and best relationship I ever had." She also had a colorful performance of her hit "22" — starting backstage and working her way to the main stage on the back of a bike with help from a dozen background dancers and a flurry of red balloons. Justin Bieber also performed — twice — and was also a multiple winner with three awards, including top male artist, social artist and the fan-voted milestone award, beating out Swift and Bruno Mars. When accepting the latter — where boos were heard — he alluded to the tumultuous weeks he's had in the public eye. "I'm 19 years old; I think I'm doing a pretty good job. And basically from my heart I really just want to say it should really be about the music, it should be about the craft that I'm making. This is not a gimmick," he said. "I'm an artist, and I should be taken seriously and all this other bull should not be spoken." Bieber performed with will.i.am and solo when he sang "Take You" in leather pants, a leather vest and a black shirt that had one sleeve, as blue laser lights beamed. Miguel, too, had a show-stopping performance, though he seemed to kick a fan when he jumped over the crowd while singing his hit "Adorn." The R&B singer seemed to have landed part of his body on one woman, who walked away, and kicked another, who held her head low. Maroon 5 and fun. were also nominated for 11 awards and walked away with one win each in pre-telecast announcements. Gotye and Rihanna had the second-most wins with four awards each. But the awards show, airing live from MGM Grand Garden Arena in Las Vegas on ABC, is less about the trophies — which reflect success on the Billboard charts — and more about the performances. Selena Gomez sang her seductive new hit, "Come & Get It," while Chris Brown danced around the stage.

Harrowing Choice

Officer who shot NY student faced difficult decision.

NEW YORK (AP) • The police officer who accidentally killed a Long Island college student along with an armed intruder faced perhaps the most harrowing decision of a law enforcement career: choosing the split-second moment when the risk is so high that you must act to save a life.

“The big question is, how do you know, when someone’s pointing a gun at you, whether you should keep talking to them, or shoot?” said Michele Galietta, a professor of psychology at the John Jay College of Criminal Justice who helps train police officers. “That’s what makes the job of an officer amazingly difficult.”

Numbers Game

Small Florida city wonders who won Powerball jackpot.

ZEPHYRHILLS, Fla. (AP) • Some lucky person walked into a Publix supermarket in suburban Florida over the past few days and bought a ticket now worth an estimated $590.5 million — the highest Powerball jackpot in history.

But it wasn’t Matthew Bogel. On Sunday, he loaded groceries into his car after shopping at the Publix. He shook his head when asked about the jackpot.

It’s an amount too high for many to imagine. Compare it to the budget for the city of Zephyrhills: This year’s figure is just more than $49 million. The winning Powerball jackpot is 12 times that.

Whoever has the ticket hadn’t come forward as of Sunday morning.

“This would be the sixth Florida Powerball winner and right now, it’s the sole winner of the largest ever Powerball jackpot,” Florida Lottery executive Cindy O’Connell told The Associated Press. “We’re delighted right now that we have the sole winner.”

Publix spokeswoman Maria Brous said that there are a lot of rumors about who won, but the store doesn’t know. “We’re excited for the winner or winners,” she said.

O’Connell said Florida has had more Powerball winners than any other state but did not give any indication whether anyone had stepped forward with the winning ticket in Saturday’s drawing.

But plenty of people in Zephyrhills — population 13,337 — are wondering whether it’s someone they know.

Joan Albertson drove to the Publix early Sunday morning with her camera in hand, in case the winner emerged. She said she had bought a ticket at a store across the street, and the idea of winning that much money was still something of a shock.

“Oh, there’s so much good that you could do with that amount of money,” Albertson said. “I don’t even know where to begin.”

Zephyrhills is a small city in Pasco County, about 30 miles northeast of downtown Tampa. Once a rural farming town, it’s now known as a hotbed for skydiving activity, and the home to large retiree mobile home parks and Zephyrhills bottled water.

And now, one lucky lottery ticket.

Michele Bachmann, R-Minn., chair of the Tea Party Caucus, left, about the IRS’ targeting Tea Party groups on Capitol Hill in Washington, on May 16.*

Tea party looks to take advantage of moment.

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) • Is the tea party getting its groove back? Shouts of vindication from around the country suggest the movement’s leaders certainly think so.

They say the IRS acknowledgement that it had targeted their groups for extra scrutiny — a claim that tea party activists had made for years — is helping pump new energy into the coalition. And they are trying to use that development, along with the ongoing controversy over the Benghazi, Libya, terrorist attacks and the Justice Department’s secret seizure of journalists’ phone records, to recruit new activists incensed about government overreach.

“Suddenly, there are a lot of things pressing on the dam.”

Luke Rogonjich, a tea party leader in Phoenix

Luke Rogonjich, a tea party leader in Phoenix, called the trio of controversies a powerful confluence that bolsters the GOP’s case against big government. “Suddenly, there are a lot of things pressing on the dam,” said Rogonjich.

It’s unclear whether a movement made up of disparate grassroots groups with no central body can take advantage of the moment and leverage it to grow stronger after a sub-par showing in last fall’s election had called into question the movement’s lasting impact. Republicans and Democrats alike say the tea party runs the risk of going too far in its criticism, which could once again open the door to Democratic efforts to paint it as an extreme arm of the GOP.

“Never underestimate the tea party’s ability to overplay its hand,” said Democratic strategist Mo Elleithy. “Just because there is universal agreement that the IRS went too far, that should not be misread as acceptance of the tea party’s ideology of anger.”

At the very least, furor over the IRS devoting special attention to tea party groups claiming tax-exempt status is giving the tea party more visibility than it has had in months, and it’s providing a new rallying cry for tea party organizers starting to plot how to influence the 2014 congressional elections. The law allows tax-exempt organizations to lobby railroad,” he said.

Several days of around-the-clock work will be required, including inspections and testing of the newly rebuilt system, Permut said. The damaged rail cars were removed from the tracks on Sunday, the first step toward making the repairs.

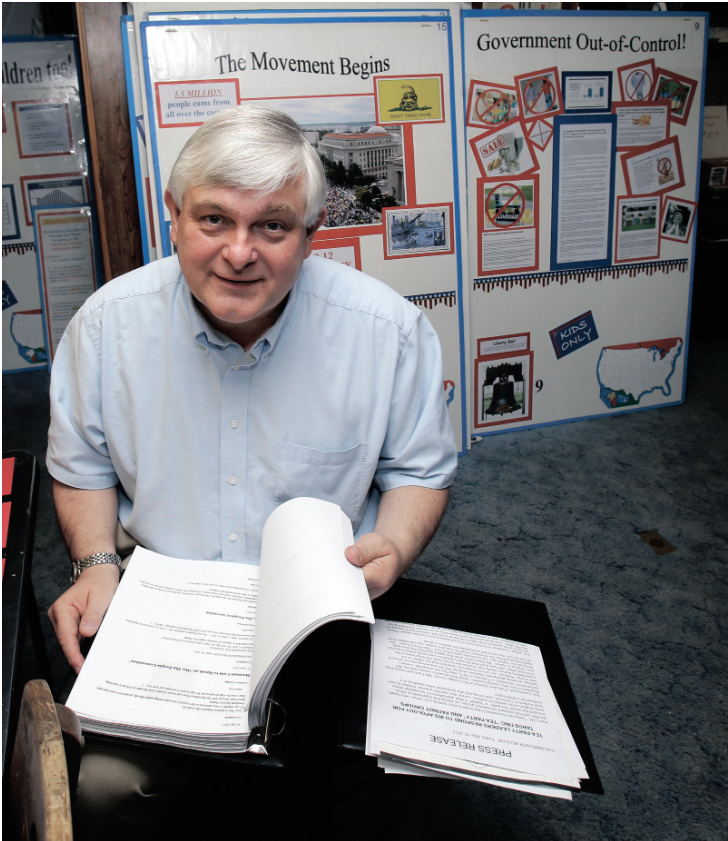

Service disruptions on the New Haven line between South Norwalk and New Haven are expected to continue “well into the coming week,” Permut said.

Each day, approximately 30,000 Metro-North customers use the stations where service has been shut down, according to the Metropolitan Transportation Authority, which operates Metro-North.

Amtrak service between New York and New Haven also was suspended, and there was no estimate on service restoration. Limited service was available between New Haven and Boston.

Jim Cameron, chairman of a commuter group, the Connecticut Rail Commuter Council, said he’s asked officials in numerous towns to suspend parking rules to accommodate what could be tens of thousands of motorists driving to unaffected train stations.

*Tom Zawistowski, founder of the nonprofit Ohio Liberty Coalition, one of the region’s largest groups affiliated with the national tea party movement, is seen in Kent, Ohio. and dabble in politics as long as their primary purpose is social welfare.

The tax-agency scandal — it has led to the acting IRS commissioner’s ouster, a criminal investigation and Capitol Hill hearings — seems to validate the tea party’s long-held belief among supporters that government was trampling on them specifically, a claim dismissed by ousted commissioner Steven T. Miller. He has called the targeting “a mistake and not an act of partisanship.”

Conn. Train Outage Expected for Days

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) • Tens of thousands of commuters are bracing for a difficult trip around southwest Connecticut and to New York City beginning Monday as workers repair the Metro-North commuter rail line crippled by a derailment and crash.

Crews will spend days rebuilding 2,000 feet of track, overhead wires and signals following the collision between two trains Friday evening that injured 72 people, Metro-North President Howard Permut said Sunday. Nine remained hospitalized.

“This amounts to the wholesale reconstruction of a two-track electrified

Gallon of regular averages $3.66, according to survey.

A LIFE REMEMBERED

A Doctor Who Loved the Outdoors

BY JULIE WOOTTON

jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • While we sat at her kitchen table Thursday, ZoeAnn Shaub pulled family photos and cards out of a manila folder.

She showed me a few of the pictures collected for her husband's memorial service.

One from 1990 shows Roy — who was a doctor — sitting at a desk in his office. His framed medical degree hangs on a wall next to X-ray images.

ZoeAnn said Roy's medical practice "came above everything else" except his family. And he's probably most remembered in the Twin Falls community for the 36 years he practiced medicine.

Twin Falls resident Roy Shaub, 84, died April 26.

"He was definitely a great man," ZoeAnn said, and an outstanding doctor.

Until Roy retired, he still made house calls. After receiving a phone call — sometimes in the middle of the night — he'd rush out with his black medical bag.

ZoeAnn told me she still runs into Roy's former patients around town.

Roy probably left the profession at a good time because "medicine has changed so much," she said. "It hurt him to see the limited amount of time with patients."

ZoeAnn said Roy devoted a lot of time to his patients and became close friends with them. It made him a better doctor, she said, because he understood their needs.

Since Roy's passing, handwritten cards have been arriving at ZoeAnn's home. Some of the sympathy notes are written in cursive handwriting, and some are from former patients.

"This one just came in the mail yesterday," ZoeAnn said, pulling out one card. She read some of the comments out loud.

When he was a doctor, Roy was officially on call every other weekend but didn't refuse to talk with a patient at other times.

"He was just so very caring," ZoeAnn said.

She laughed as she recalled a time when Roy had been on call all night and had slept for only 20 minutes. When a patient called at 6 a.m. complaining about a toothache, Roy asked why the man didn't call his dentist.

The patient responded, "At 6 o'clock in the morning?"

ZoeAnn described her husband as "very, very bright." When Roy didn't know something, he'd study up about the topic.

Because he spent a lot of time fishing, he insisted that his children learn to swim at a young age. He got books about swimming so he'd be able to teach them correct techniques.

Their three children swam competitively.

When he wasn't at work as a doctor, Roy was a skier, hunter and fisherman. ZoeAnn said Roy skied for the last time a year ago and kept in excellent shape.

The family built a cabin in Ketchum where the Shaubs spent a lot of time.

"We had many happy days up there," ZoeAnn said.

She also remembers a trip they took to Alaska in the late 1970s in a trailer. It took a week to get there and a week coming back. The adventure included numerous flat tires. ZoeAnn said the car was so muddy it was hard to see out the windows.

A couple of years later, they took their children to Washington, D.C., to learn about the nation's history. They took their trailer and stopped along the way to go fishing.

Roy's daughter Jill Elam said her father was a humble, quiet man who worked hard.

"He told us later in his life that everything he worked for was to give us what he never had," she said. Roy grew up in the Great Depression.

Elam said her father was widely respected throughout the community as a doctor.

"On a personal level, he worked lots when we were little," she said, but he spent as much time with the family as he could.

Elam said she has fond memories of their family vacations.

Because Roy worked so hard and focused so much attention on patients, she said, she didn't get to see his fun-loving side until he retired.

After Roy retired, he spent lots of time with his grandchildren.

Dick Irwin didn't know Roy as a doctor but met him after he retired. Roy was sitting in a chair at a golf course after playing a game.

Irwin — who was getting ready to retire — was looking for someone to play golf with. So he sat down and started talking with Roy.

"We decided to play golf together," he said. "That developed into a pretty good friendship."

Irwin and Roy shared a number of interests, including skiing and fishing. They also went on many trips together.

Irwin will miss Roy. "He was just a very loyal friend."

During two separate skiing accidents when Irwin sustained a concussion and broke his pelvis, Roy cared for him and then checked on him at home.

Irwin said his friend had a stubborn streak, though. "He wouldn't let me do anything for him, but he was always doing things for me."

Advocate for POWs, MIAs Dies at 72

THE WASHINGTON POST.

Maureen Dunn lost her husband on Feb. 14, 1968. She did not lose him the way thousands of other American military wives lost their husbands during the Vietnam War to death, clear and confirmed, acknowledged with a funeral and proved by a flag-draped casket. Her husband, Navy pilot Joseph Dunn Sr., was simply lost missing in action when his unarmed A-1 Skyraider was shot down over the South China Sea.

Joe was on his way from the Philippines to a U.S. aircraft carrier off the Vietnamese coast and was fast approaching a scheduled trip home for a visit. Before that last flight, he ordered flowers for his wife back in Massachusetts. The bouquet was delivered to her the day she learned that his plane had gone down. It was Valentine's Day.

"I felt like my heart was torn out of my body," Maureen Dunn once told the Boston Globe, "and yet I had to keep breathing."

For years, she was neither a wife nor a widow. That was how she described living with a loved one missing in action. It was an experience shared by the hundreds of military families Dunn came to represent during decades of dogged advocacy in Washington and internationally.

Dunn, 72, died May 10 at a rehabilitation center in West Roxbury, Mass., said her son, Joseph Dunn II. She had cancer.

Dunn started her campaign in 1968, the year her husband disappeared, rallying a dedicated band of supporters to form the "Where Is Lt. Joe Dunn?" committee. She talked to anyone who would listen to her, said her son, from shoppers at the supermarket to audiences at local high schools.

Over time, her campaign and similar ones across the country gained momentum. In 1970, when the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia was formed in Washington, Dunn was among the original members. She served over the years as a regional and national coordinator.

She helped lead demonstrations about the POW/MIA cause and met with ambassadors, presidents and other officials to lobby for support. She was credited with promoting the use of the now-iconic black-and-white POW/MIA flag, a symbol of solidarity with the missing.

READER COMMENT

Questions to Ask before Making a Campaign Donation

The norm in campaign finance, traditionally at least, goes like this: The candidate files and sets up an account for campaign spending, receives funds for campaign purposes, then spends it, presumably to around zero by Election Day, on such as ads, printing and mailing, salaries, office space, polling, depending on the size of the campaign. Traditionally, campaigns are like the Snake River at Milner Dam, which is dewatered at the end of one stretch, then refills in the next one.

That still often happens when candidates are in competitive races, when they collect whatever they can and spend it down, because they can't politically afford to leave resources on the table.

Nowadays, however, fewer congressional races are really competitive. If you're one of those nearly impregnable incumbents — say, a Republican in Idaho (or, a Democrat in some other states) — you really don't need but a fraction of the funds you take in. Most of your contributors aren't donating because they think you need it to win; they have other agendas in mind. You wind up with excess cash.

The handling of that excess money has come up in the case of Senator Mike Crapo's campaign treasury. Here's some background.

In the cycle leading up to his last election in 2010, Crapo raised $5.1 million, which was added to some cash he already had on hand. In the campaign, he spent about $3.4 million, only a portion of what he had available but still far more than he needed, since that was about 34 times as much as his Democratic opponent, Tom Sullivan, spent. Crapo ended the 2010 cycle with about $3 million cash on hand, and has continued to raise money since, though he's not up for re-election until 2016. As of the end of March, he had $3.4 million on hand. This is not an unusual situation; quite a few successful congressional candidates of both parties also are well padded.

What to do with the money just sitting there? Candidates aren't supposed to use it for personal purposes, though some occasionally dip in for semi-official uses. Sometimes flush candidates donate heavily to other candidates from their party (this happens on the legislative level too), generating political chits to be cashed later. Or the money can sit in a bank, drawing interest. But rules governing its use are not notably tight.

Bringing us to last week's headline about $250,000 in Crapo campaign money, an expenditure that required Crapo to amend his campaign filings reports. Former campaign manager Jake Ball says that he got from Crapo permission to increase the financial returns on the money (exactly what Crapo knew or didn't, remains unclear), and that in September 2008 he handed a quarter million of donor money to a friend, Gavin McCaleb, who (operating as Blueberry guru LLC) in turn poured it into Pyramid Global Resources of Las Vegas, which was expected to return a tidy profit in a couple of months. Instead, the quarter million disappeared, and Pyramid no longer has even a Nevada business filing. Poof!

Which has led to some comment about the financial management for which Crapo — an attorney and a member of the Senate banking committee — is directly responsible.

But there's a broader question, and part of it goes to anyone who contributes to a congressional campaign. The next time you get a campaign donation request, you might want to ask in reply just how much they've already got, how much they really need — and what exactly they need your money for.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Vote for Dave Burgess for Twin Falls Highway District

Did you know that the voters for Twin Falls Highway District include all residents in the city of Twin Falls, Kimberly, Hansen, Hollister and Rogerson, as well as residents in the county that surrounds those cities?

Voting for highway district commissioner will be on your ballot when you go to vote on Tuesday, May 21, at your polling place. This is an especially important election for the cities that have bond referendums on the ballot but also extremely important for highway district commissioner. By the way, I am supporting the candidate I have known and worked with since 1997. That is Dave Burgess, a kind, fair, honest, reliable man who cares deeply about the highway district. I have the utmost respect for Dave and want him to be on the commissioner's team. You all drive on Twin Falls Highway District roads so you should want the best candidate for the job. Dave Burgess fills the bill. Please go vote. Thank you.

Did Elected Leaders Make Right Choices?

Lee Halper

The foundations of our health and safety are our jails and sewers. Jerome has two bonds to consider Tuesday, and it's not a question of whether or not we need a new jail or an upgrade to our sewer system, it's a question of whether the right choices were made by our elected leaders on how to go about it.

The jail is on its fifth attempt, and though I was opposed to the first three tries, I supported the fourth. This attempt is pretty much the same as the fourth and in discussions with County officials; they are going for the best option during this time of low interest rates in addition to realizing there are plans B and C. I'm going to vote yes because even a new engine won't fix our old jalopy.

I was on the Blue Ribbon sewer committee and was at Jerome Cheese's presentation to the City concerning their proposed option to build their own treatment plant. We have big problems with the plant, and it's not just with the infrastructure. I'm in favor of having a sewer plant that isn't subject to fines from the EPA but is this the way to get there?

February 2010: The City checks the plants' capacity to see if it can accommodate a chicken hatchery. Nope. <http://bit.ly/YTtvtVT>.

February 17, 2011: City Manager Ben Marchant says a large amount of calcium from one of the cheese plants "clogged membranes" shut down the plant. <http://bit.ly/14GA25F>.

February 22, 2011: The Jerome City newsletter states "Due to calcium slime...Staff is investigating the origin and sent samples to the lab for testing. <http://bit.ly/YTtBeU>.

March 25, 2011: Ben

Marchant says "Only one dairy processor is linked to the line where city officials found the discharge to come from. The City is looking to upgrade the plant but items needed weren't budgeted for this year" <http://bit.ly/17Rd00q>.

July 6, 2011: The EPA considers possible fines and tells the City it needs $3 million of improvements. The City's sewer system got backed up with fluid composed of calcium, proteins and fat — all ingredients of milk products. <http://bit.ly/18axv5R>.

"I don't know what the truth of this whole affair is, but it can certainly be argued that the City (Jerome) is not on top of its game."

Lee Halper

August 24, 2011: The City is working its way towards getting a Judge to allow it to take on long-term debt for wastewater system upgrades. Those upgrades are estimated to cost about $3.25 million. <http://bit.ly/10eUUKS>.

October 7, 2011: City Administrator Ben Marchant resigns during a closed-door meeting. Before the closed-door meeting the council received a request from Marchant that indicated he didn't have any immediate plans to resign. Mayor Shine declined to comment on whether the council wanted the resignation, calling it a personnel matter. <http://bit.ly/p7OKa2>.

October 8, 2011: The City no longer is pursuing a Judge's permission for long term debt. Mayor Shine public records request, Shine communicated with City Council members about Boyd's position as wastewater director. Boyd requested a closed-door council meeting to discuss leadership at the wastewater treatment plant. <http://bit.ly/S9BRVN>.

After September 2012, the City met with Industrial users and then formed the Blue Ribbon Committee which met three times. According to a February 19, 2013 letter to the editor from Jerome Cheese plant director Bill Riebesell, a study commissioned by Industry "found that the director of the city's WWTP had taken some of the treatment equipment off line and this, and not anything from industry, caused the upset!" <http://bit.ly/18axX3T>.

October 2012: At the meet the Candidates forum, I talked with Ben Marchant and asked him why he left the City and all he said was "The City and I are on good terms."

February 19, 2013: City council members voted 3-2 in favor of the amount with council members Chris Barber and Dale Ross voting no. Council members Robert Culver and Dawn Soto and Mayor John Shine voted in favor of the $48 million bond amount.

March 6, 2013: Council members also voted Tuesday to approve a $165,000 purchase and sales agreement with Jerome Development Co. for land in the Jerome Butte Tech Park.

May 12, 2013: The Times-News, Jerome Chamber of Commerce and Jerome 20/20 Inc. publish letters of support for the proposed sewer bond.

May 14, 2013: I did a public records request for the name of the former wastewater director. The City supplied his name and this fact: "Mr. Boyd's separation from employment with the City is confidential."

I don't know what the truth of this whole affair is, but it can certainly be argued that the City is not on top of its game. Yes, we need to bring our sewer treatment plant into compliance, and yes, it would be nice to expand capacity, but with a split City Council, Jerome Cheese's offer to build its own plant for tax consideration and remembering the recent increases in sewer and water rates, if I still lived in the City, I would vote NO and wonder what happened to the EPA's estimate of $3.25 million to come into compliance as well as why the people aren't privy to the former employees Marchant and Boyd's separation agreements. Trust but verify!

Brian Duncan the Right Candidate for Minidoka School Board

Vote for commitment:

I am writing in support of Brian Duncan for school board in Minidoka Joint District 331.

I have been on the board with Brian for almost six years and am encouraging others to vote to keep him there. I have found Brian to be very dedicated and committed serving as our chairman of the board. He is willing to put in the time and effort necessary to ensure things run as smoothly as possible. Being on the school board demands a lot of time and commitment.

Mrs. JoAnna Cook recently submitted a letter requesting to withdraw from candidacy. Because school board elections are handled by the county now, she was told she had missed the deadline for withdrawing. She then reconsidered and is indicating her desire to run again. Yet, when invited to attend an advisory meeting and a forum so patrons could get to know her, she declined the requests.

School board meetings and responsibilities aren't always convenient; they require commitment from the individual and support from the family, both of which Brian possesses. Brian has gone above and beyond the minimum time and commitment requirements for being a good board member. Brian has been active in the Idaho School Board Association, having served in numerous District IV level positions and as president of the ISBA and received numerous awards for his commitment and dedication as outlined by the ISBA. He was instrumental in getting the Lighthouse Training for school boards in Idaho. His opinion is highly regarded among many in the state. He isn't afraid of rolling his sleeves up and getting to work when things get a little tough, as sometimes they do.

Please vote for Brian and for his commitment to the students and patrons of Minidoka Joint District 331, Zone 1.

Vote Yes on Tuesday for Jerome Wastewater Bond

It is my understanding that over the last year, Jerome has lost the opportunity to add over 500 new jobs because of the inability to handle the wastewater needs of the businesses that wanted to locate here. In addition, current industry cannot expand their operations without available wastewater capacity.

There have been decisions made in the past that caused frustration or improved an issue. As a community, we have paid or gained from those decisions. The pain should not be a reason for us to hold back from a better future. Sewer rates are going to go up, but the expansion of the current wastewater capacity will allow for growth. Jobs are needed for the community and the more new business and expansion that we see in the future, the less ongoing costs there will be to the residents. Essentially, the costs are spread over more people and business, thus reducing the burden on all.

If your concern is the cost of this growth, consider the cost if there is no growth.

This great country still gives us the opportunity to vote. I encourage you to show your support for a better place for us and for our children. Please vote to pass the wastewater bond.

Thank you for your consideration,

2 Arrested in Killing over iPad in Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS • Two men have been arrested in the killing of a teenage boy over an iPad in Las Vegas, police said Sunday.

Jacob Dismont, 18, and Michael Solid, 21, were booked Saturday into the Clark County jail on charges of open murder, robbery and conspiracy to commit robbery.

According to investigators, Marcos Arenas, 15, was walking down a street with the iPad on Thursday when a passenger got out of a vehicle and tried to steal the device from him.

Dismont is accused of trying to wrest the tablet away and dragging Arenas toward the SUV when the youth wouldn't let go of the device. After Dismont re-entered the vehicle and Solid sped away, the teen was dragged until he fell. The vehicle ran over Arenas and he died at a hospital.

"I think both the public and police department share the same sentiment that this

"For him to lose his life over an iPad, it's just not fair."

Ivan Arenas, whose son, Marcos, died as a result of an attempted theft of an iPad was a senseless act of violence," police spokesman Bill Cassell told The Associated Press.

The suspects succeeded in making off with the device, officers said.

Ivan Arenas said he bought the iPad for his son less than two months ago. The family has never had a lot, the father said, and his son valued everything he had.

"For him to lose his life over an iPad, it's just not fair," Ivan Arenas told the Las Vegas Review-Journal.

"Never in my life would I imagine that me buying my kid an iPad for his birthday would end up with him getting run over."

Similar thefts of iPads, iPhones and other Apple devices have become so widespread nationwide that the crime has earned the nickname, "Apple picking," Cassell said.

Even though some students might exemplify that image, she said, for the most part it's not a realistic portrayal of her Gooding school.

"I was afraid I wouldn't like it, that students wouldn't like me, that I wouldn't be able to adjust or that they wouldn't be nice to me," she said. "But it's been a wonderful experience. People are welcoming and friendly."

Likewise, she's met people who have a superficial knowledge of her native country. Zehra is happy that she's been able to teach them that their image of Pakistan might not be right, either.

Roughly 50,000 students across the globe apply for scholarship exchange, said Melody Wilson, Zehra's host mom and a local representative of ASSE. Only about 1,000 receive the scholarship. Those who do are "cream of the crop," Wilson said, "because they really work for it."

and have responsibility."

It's fine with Wilson, who has two daughters of her own, if a student doesn't know how to cook because they still bring her recipes from their native lands.

"I like to try new things," she said.

Wilson's 21-year-old daughter, Sandrelin Wilson, said she's enjoyed having Zehra in the home because it's like having another sister.

"She's the first exchange student who's really clicked with me," she said. "We have the same interests and we take forever shopping, because we're both very indecisive."

Zehra said she's felt like a part of the Wilson family, and encourages other students to consider applying for the exchange program.

"They have given love to me, they help me if I have a problem at school, and have exposed me to American culture," she said. "I cook for them and they love it. They love the traditional clothes that I wear and are truly my family."

Wilson said ASSE, one of several exchange programs, is in need of host families in the Magic Valley, noting that she hopes in the future to have other students in her home.

"One of the neat things about having an exchange student is that it opens your eyes to where you live because it's all brand new to them," she said. "You might look at the same rock, but they'll notice little cracks where water is trickling out. You start seeing things through their eyes."

And, Wilson said, when she visits a foreign country from whence a student came, she'll have a place to stay. Wilson visited Spain's basque country, for instance, where one of her former students live.

Does she plan to visit Pakistan?

"I've been informed that I'm going to a wedding over there whether I want to or not," Wilson said with a laugh. "I wouldn't mind going to Pakistan."

Zehra leaves Idaho for Washington DC on June 13, and will leave the U.S. two days later. She is excited to return to her native country, where she'll continue her education. Zehra plans to follow in her uncle's footsteps by becoming an anesthesiologist. From now on whenever she thinks about America, she'll remember her host family and the love that was given to her during her 10-month stay in the Magic Valley. Maybe one day Zehra will return.

"We'll see where life takes me," Zehra said. "But it's going to be a long contact" with the Wilsons.

McFall said, because it wouldn't make sense to haul food from the jail kitchen to the annex.

If voters don't support funding a new jail, Kennedy said an estimated six inmates could be housed in each of the annex's four cells.

If there are more arrests than space, Kennedy said, inmates would have to be transferred to a different jail. McFall said the county already spends about $200,000 per year housing inmates outside the county.

Kennedy said some have asked him why inmates need nice facilities when many go without.

Many point to Maricopa County Jail in Arizona, which is constructed of tents, he said. As a veteran, Kennedy said if troops can spend time in desert tents, a petty thief can rough it in jail. The issue is state and federal codes that dictate jail standards, inmates and the ALCU, he said. Jerome doesn't.

McFall said the bond is a good investment.

"It just makes sense to avoid litigation," McFall said.

Shooting

She spoke Sunday as Hofstra University students honored 21-year-old Andrea Rebello by wearing white ribbons at their graduation ceremony.

Rebello was killed two days earlier after a masked man walked through the unlocked door of her off-campus home. A police officer aiming at the would-be robber opened fire, hitting the Hofstra junior as well as the ex-convict holding her in a headlock.

On Saturday evening, flags on the Hempstead campus were at half-staff and students held a silent outdoor vigil in front of a photo of the young woman. Surrounded by candles and flowers, they sang "Ave Maria."

Rebello's funeral is scheduled for Wednesday in Sleepy Hollow, in Westchester County, north of New York City.

Her life ended in the seconds that forced the veteran police officer to make a fatal decision, but the questions surrounding the student's death are just beginning, along with an internal investigation by the Nassau County Police Department.

The bare facts are simple. Rebello and the intruder, Dalton Smith, died early Friday when the officer fired eight shots, hitting him seven times, with one bullet striking Rebello once in the head, according to county homicide squad Lt. John Azzata.

With a gun pointed at her, Smith "kept saying, 'I'm going to kill her,' and then he pointed the gun at the police officer," according to Azzata.

The officer acted quickly, saying later that he believed his and Rebello's life were in danger, according to authorities.

No doubt, he was acting to try to save lives — his own and that of the young woman, Galletta said.

But the fallout was tragic.

"What we're asking the

cop to anticipate is, 'What is going on in the suspect's mind at the moment?'" she said.

"We're always trying to de-escalate, to contain a situation, but the issue of safety comes in first, and that's the evaluation the officer has to make."

In collaboration with the New York City Police Department, Galletta is part of a John Jay program that prepares young officers to react to life-threatening situations. Actors are used to replicate scenarios reflecting reality.

Police tactical manuals are meant to assist officers in making the best decision possible, but in the end, "they're not 100 percent foolproof," Galletta said. "In a situation like that, you can follow procedure, and it doesn't mean it comes out perfectly."

The officer who fired the shots is an eight-year NYPD veteran and has been with Nassau County police for 12 years.

He is now out on sick leave, Azzata said.

Idaho Power Sticks with Coal to Meet Power Demands

BOISE (AP) • Idaho Power Co. will continue to rely on coal to meet the state's energy demands, company officials said.

LaMont Keen, president and CEO of Idacorp and Idaho Power Co., said the company will continue to get power from coal plants in Wyoming and Nevada for at least the next two years.

"Without these coal plants, the air conditioners won't be on and the pumps won't be lifting the water onto the crops," Keen said.

According to the Idaho Statesman, Keen told stockholders at an annual meeting Thursday that the company intends to ask the Idaho Public Utilities Commission to approve its decision to spend millions on required pollution-control upgrades on coal plants.

A contractor analyzed upgrading coal plants against the cost of building a gas-fired plant. The company's Langley Gulch gas plant near Fruitland cost nearly $400 million.

Idaho Power, Keen said, has raised its goal for cutting carbon dioxide emissions in 2015 to 15 percent after a majority of stockholders in 2008 urged the utility to cut emissions. As part of that, the company opted to spend up to $500 million for pollution-control equipment for two coal plants in Nevada and three in Wyoming. The company doesn't operate the plants but is a part owner in all five.

Idaho Power serves about 500,000 customers, the majority in Idaho but some also in eastern Oregon. The company gets about 40 percent of its power from coal.

This Jan. 4 file photo shows Sen. Mike Crapo, R-Idaho, speaking outside Alexandria General District Court in Alexandria, Va. Crapo recently announced he was refiling an old FEC form to account for a $250,000 loss in 2010. Turns out his campaign manager made a bad investment and lost the money.

Sen. Mike Crapo's Campaign Suffered from Poor Controls

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • As William Corbett was preparing a final federal elections disclosure for his boss, U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo, in October 2008, he said there was something important he wasn't told.

Crapo's then-campaign manager, Jake Ball, shifted $250,000 from a campaign account to another account at now-defunct Washington Mutual that was controlled by Ball's friend, a Boise real-estate investor, for a loan. Corbett, who was leaving as Crapo's volunteer treasurer at the time, said Ball kept him totally in the dark.

"Obviously, if I would have (had knowledge of the transaction), it would have been reported," Corbett told The Associated Press.

Just what happened to the cash became apparent this month when Crapo amended his 2008 and 2009 Federal Election Commission filings, reporting that someone at Pyramid Global Resources in Las Vegas took the money Ball had moved. "A third-party venture ... absconded with the money," Crapo wrote in a statement.

Ball said he stood by a sworn affidavit he gave Crapo's lawyers in March, contending he sought to increase the campaign coffers with the loan with a friend, not his own personal wealth.

The episode, however, illustrates the dangers of loose internal financial controls inside campaigns. Federal law allows campaigns to invest donor money to increase the size of their coffers, though most of its guidance deals with relatively safe investments, like money market accounts, not speculative real estate.

A survey of several of Idaho's congressional delegation showed their financial controls vary, but most say they've got measures in place to avoid what happened in Crapo's campaign.

Crapo's spokesman, Lindsay Nothern, said adjustments under new treasurer, Paul Kilgore, will prevent a repeat. Now, one person writes checks; another signs them; then, the transactions are quickly passed through Kilgore's accounting system, Nothern said.

"Every time somebody makes a move within the campaign today, it's noted by the treasurer — just like it should have been back then," he said, adding blame ultimately falls on Ball, not Corbett. "It's incumbent on Jake's position to report what's going on to the treasurer, and he didn't report this transaction."

EX-VOLUNTEER FIREFIGHTER SENTENCED FOR ARSON

IDAHO CITY (AP) • A former volunteer firefighter who set a fire northwest of Boise last summer that destroyed a home, threatened about 100 others and cost $2.3 million to fight has been sentenced to 10 years in prison.

Nineteen-year-old Nathaniel Bartholomew's sentence Friday in 4th District Court requires him to serve at least three and a half years before becoming eligible for parole.

Judge Patrick Owen retained jurisdiction, meaning if Bartholomew successfully completes a six-month program in prison he could be released on probation at that time.

Bartholomew was a member of the Clear Creek volunteer fire department when he started the fire Sept. 17 in Boise County.

Bartholomew was arrested while fighting the fire with other Clear Creek volunteer firefighters.

E. Idaho Auto Dealership Apologizes for Radio Ad

IDAHO FALLS (AP) • An eastern Idaho auto dealership that offended some area residents with a radio commercial that included a derogatory reference about special needs children in a sales pitch for trucks has apologized.

KIFI-TV reports in a story Friday that Pocatello-based Cole Chevrolet pulled the ads and is also teaming up with the Special Olympics of Eastern Idaho. Company officials say they made an unwitting mistake.

The advertisement says, "Are you driving a wimpy truck? Do your kids take the short bus so they won't be seen in it?"

The company says it has made a donation and that Marketing Director Valorie Smith will create public service announcements for Special Olympics.

Special Olympics of Eastern Idaho Director Holly Giglio says in the end good things came about for Special Olympics.

Hansen’s Kaleb Gunnell throws the shot put at the Class 1A state track and field championships on Friday at Middleton High School. Gunnell won the 1A discus championship Saturday.

SON OF A GUNNELL

After winning the 1A discus championship, Hansen’s Kaleb Gunnell is now setting his sights on his dad’s throwing records and a college scholarship.

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

MIDDLETON • Hansen’s Kaleb Gunnell picked the right closet. The junior won the 1A discus championship Saturday with a throw of 147-feet-5. The odds of a Hansen athlete developing into one of the state’s top throwers? One in a Gunnell. Hansen, with a track team of six, doesn’t have a throw coach. Neither head coach and activities director Bob Wayment nor assistant Bob Twiss know the technique — they have other areas of expertise — but they don’t sweat it. “If you don’t know what you’re talking about, you could get them hurt,” Wayment said. You better know someone. Gunnell happened to live with a someone. He figured it out by accident. “I was in elementary school. I walked into dad’s closet one day, and he had his letterman jacket in there with all the medals,” Gunnell said. “That’s when I asked him.” He’s been gunning for dad’s records ever since. Ryan Gunnell, who graduated Hansen in ’95, still holds the school’s top marks in both throws. But his kid is getting closer. After adding three feet from his top throw in districts, he’s now five feet back in the discus (dad’s record is 152-feet-5). “He told me last night, ‘I’m going to take a week off and then get right back to work,’” Wayment said. But Kaleb Gunnell won’t be satisfied with just breaking dad’s records — he wants to throw far enough to have his college paid for. “I want to be around 175 to 180 feet next year,” Gunnell said. “I need to hit the weight room. I’m going to a throwing camp at (Idaho State University) and then I’m going to hit the weight room hard.” Throwing may be the most technical event in track and field. Without the resources to hire experienced coaches, athletes from 1A schools have to be resourceful, especially if the technique isn’t properly passed on from thrower to thrower.

Dad helped son learn the basics. But dad also works. Kaleb Gunnell needed more. He got tips from across the Magic Valley, including a former Filer thrower, whom he visits when he can. “One thing about track is that all the coaches help if they ask questions,” Wayment said. “At schools our size, kids like Kaleb have to be willing to listen and seek out help.” If Kaleb Gunnell keeps it up, he may just find himself working under some of the best coaches in the country.

DEAR ABBY: I have worked in the field of education for more than 40 years, with the last 25 years serving in adult education, helping students complete their high school equivalency diploma. BIG changes are impending worldwide in this very important educational service. Starting in 2014, the cost may go up. Up until two years ago, the classes in our community were free. The testing cost $7.50, which paid for a printed diploma. Since then, the cost has gone up – first to $25 and then to $35.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

Now the GED program has been bought by a for-profit organization and the costs will go higher than ever. Furthermore, it will no longer be possible to take the test using pencil and paper. It will all be done on computer.

Please encourage the thousands of adults who do not have their high school degrees to make a life-changing decision for themselves and their families NOW!

– JOY IN A CLASSROOM DOWN SOUTH

DEAR JOY: I am sure many readers will thank you for this important heads-up. Readers, the changes Joy has described will go into effect on Jan. 2, 2014. According to the media representative for the GED Testing Service in Washington, D.C., the costs of the tests will be determined by the state in which it is administered. It is currently between $0 and $250, and in 2014 will “marginally increase or decrease” according to which state you live in. (Decrease? Forgive me for being doubtful ...) Criteria for passing or failing the test will remain the same.

Readers, any of you who are not computer literate should start now. Do not delay. If you are uncomfortable with technology and have a friend or relative who is knowledgeable, more information can be obtained by visiting www.gedtestingservice.com.

DEAR ABBY: I have been in the workplace for 20 years. During that time I have witnessed lying, cheating, lechery, betrayal, vicious gossip, arrogance, entitlement, stealing and bullying, etc.

Last week, a co-worker whom I liked and respected confided to me that she hopes a 102-year-old relative will die soon because she needs to inherit some money. I was floored and had a hard time keeping the shock off my face.

Does work bring out the worst in people? Is it because we all must be here every day? Is it too many people competing for too few resources? Is my hide too thin? Am I in the wrong job?

– THE DAILY GRIND

DEAR DAILY GRIND: When you spend eight hours a day with people, they usually reveal their core values at some point. In your case, you appear to work with someone who “over-shares.” I don’t think your hide is too thin, and I’m not in a position to tell you if you’re in the wrong job. You may, however, be overdue for a vacation.

P.S. Let’s cross our fingers and hope that relative makes it to 110.

DEAR ABBY: Please settle a family disagreement. A scratch ticket is given to a friend or relative as a gift. If that ticket is a winner, is there an expectation that the winnings should be shared with the person who gave the ticket?

– JEFF IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR JEFF: A gift is a gift. There is no obligation to share. Alexander Pope wrote, “Hope springs eternal in the human breast,” but if you are hoping you’ll get a cut of the money, don’t hold your breath.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

*“What mischief cleaves to unsubdued regret,
How fancy sickens by vague hopes beset;
How baffled projects on the spirit prey,
And fruitless wishes eat the heart away.”*

— William Wordsworth

In today's deal from the Dyspeptics Club, South had been tempted to pass North's take-out double of two diamonds, but in the end preferred to bid his chunky four-card heart suit. How would you plan the play in four hearts on a diamond lead?

At the table, declarer ruffed the diamond lead in dummy, drew trump, played the three top clubs, and ruffed a club. He next played a spade to the jack, king and ace, and eventually had to go one down.

Feeling unusually contrite, South asked his partner if he might have done better. North consoled him, telling him that there was a double-dummy way he might have gone down two!

South should have seen that if hearts broke, he would have five trump tricks, three clubs and the diamond ace, so four club tricks would suffice. Instead of taking dummy's entry out prematurely by ruffing the diamond, he should have won the opening lead with his ace, pitching a spade from dummy, drawn trump, and now played his clubs. If they had broken 3-3, he would have made an overtrick; as it was, he would ruff out the clubs and lead a spade to the king to try for an overtrick.

Even after ruffing the opening lead, he had an easy road to recovery. After drawing trump ending in hand, he should simply have ducked a club to East. He could then have won the return and cashed the four club tricks needed.

ANSWER: If ever there were a hand where underleading an ace made sense, this is it. Dummy rates to have decent clubs, while neither red suit looks safe, and a trump is impossible. Particularly, as partner did not raise clubs, you won't lose your ace by underleading it.

IF MAY 20 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Good luck and wisdom are on your side in late June and early July, so don't be afraid to accept rewards or opportunities. That is an excellent time to launch key projects or to make a frank appraisal of your future. The itch to make a splash for yourself in the material world could transform your routines as the summer unfolds — and will come to a peak in September. Your ambitions can be realized through hard work and determination. In October and November, focus on ambitions, business and career rather than a passing romantic fancy.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Stick to the promises you have made, even if you feel a compulsion to break away and do your own thing. Keep in touch with loved ones; let them know your every move to prevent misunderstandings.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be true to your school. This isn't the time to switch allegiances or act on impulse. Your erratic choices could cause others to judge you as undependable just when a key opportunity is presented.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Pearls of wisdom fall from your lips like rose petals on a warm spring day. If you have something important to say, this is the time to speak. Focus on proving that you are loyal and true blue.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Those in charge could think you are brilliant. Whatever you say may be broadcast far and wide, so be sure to promote viable ideas that will impress higher-ups and add momentum to your career.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): If you want to hear praise, it might be better to listen than to speak. It is in your best interests to seek guidance from a trustworthy source before making irrevocable changes or making key decisions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Giving in to whims and moods could make others doubt your sincerity. Before you go off on a tangent or dip into your piggy bank, run your ideas by a trusted companion and get sound advice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Prove you are dependable. An opportunity to exceed your wildest dreams could fall flat if someone has a lack of confidence in your ability to honor commitments. Be a stickler about paying bills on time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may focus on dotting i's and crossing t's today, just remember that "T" could stand for "trust." Point out how dependable you are and remain reliable as a rock to avoid tiffs with loved ones.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be trusting, but don't be foolish. If you see that an upcoming situation could create a rift, take time to straighten it out right away. A little bird might bring valuable information or insights.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It's your turn at bat. Remain poised to handle anything that is unpredictable or disruptive. Just when everything is going along as planned, someone or something might throw you a curve ball.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The way you handle your finances reflects on your character. Proof of your dedication to duty and a sterling reputation are like money in the bank. Don't let gossip or news deflate your spirits.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Those who feel emotions the most are often hurt the most. The path of true love is sometimes rocky, but by the end of the day you will back on a smooth track. Avoid impetuous actions, but do speak your mind.
