THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stocks Gain on Reassurance from a Top Fed Official

NEW YORK (AP) • Reassuring comments from a Federal Reserve official and better earnings from two big retailers helped push the stock market higher Tuesday.

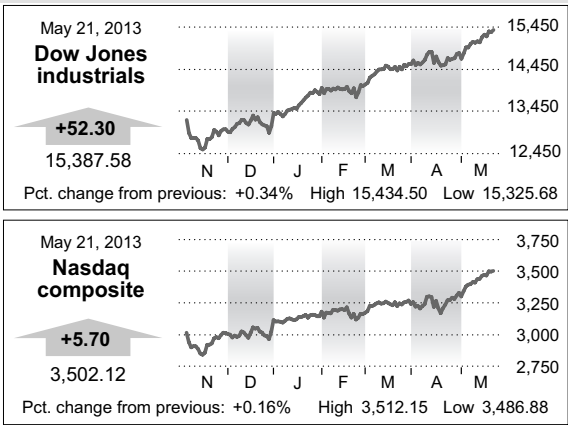

Stock indexes wobbled between gains and losses in early trading, then took a turn higher just before noon. That's when news crossed that James Bullard, head of the Fed's St. Louis branch, told an audience in Germany that the Fed ought to stick with its bond-buying effort to bolster the economic recovery.

"Those words were a salve for investors' nerves," said Lawrence Creatura, a fund manager at Federated Investors. Other Fed officials have recently talked about scaling back the program. "There's a lot of uncertainty surrounding this issue. And uncertainty and investors aren't always a happy match."

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 52.30 points to 15,387.58, a gain of 0.3 percent.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index edged up 2.87 points to 1,669.16, a slight increase of 0.2 percent. Both the Dow and the S&P are at record highs.

J.P. Morgan Chase & Co. gained 1.4 percent. Shareholders of the country's biggest bank voted to allow Jamie Dimon to keep his two titles, CEO and chairman of the board. Groups had pushed to split the two jobs, a drive that gained momentum from a multi-billion trading loss last year. The bank's stock rose 73 cents to $53.02.

Live on $160 a Month with These Tips

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • If you're looking to save money — and in this day and age, who isn't? — one aid is practically at your fingertips: coupons.

A Caldwell woman — "Idaho's Coupon Lady" — made a name for herself by clipping coupons. Jessica Hacker has appeared on news stations and has created a blog to teach people how they can best start using coupons to maximize their savings.

"I have a budget of $160 a month," Hacker said, noting that she and her husband have four children and she uses her budget for groceries, toiletries and cleaning supplies. "It is a very tight budget, but it's more than enough when you clip coupons."

"It's easy to live off a stockpile (of food and other necessities) once you have it.

It just takes time getting a stockpile."

The first three things a beginning clipper should do, she said:

- 1. Subscribe to a local newspaper. You can't clip coupons if you don't have coupons to clip, and newspapers — including the Times-News — are full of coupon mailers and grocery ads.
- 2. Start at drug stores. Toiletries are some of the first things you should buy using coupons, she said, especially if you're trying to build a stockpile or food storage because there are many opportunities, with coupons, to get them for free.
- 3. Visit grocery stores. Once you have become more familiar with couponing, and you've been able to see the savings and start your storage, move on to using coupons for food. It's a little tougher, because there aren't a lot of free-with-coupon items here, but the more you learn to use coupons the better you'll become at saving money.

"It takes a good solid three months of really focusing on this before you might notice a difference," she said. "But you can build your stockpile real fast."

Hacker said her house is filled with name-brand products, because with coupons she can afford them, whereas many people trying to pinch pennies an easy way to step into couponing," Hacker said. And it's rewarding because you can see the fruits of your labors almost immediately and it builds your confidence in using coupons.

"Every week, there's always a lot of freebies and it's

Jerome Schools Temporarily Without Phones, Internet Tuesday

TIMES-NEWS

JEROME • Telephone and Internet service were out at three Jerome schools Tuesday.

Services were unavailable after a cable line was accidentally cut Monday during repairs.

Crews worked throughout the night and were able to repair the damaged telephone and Internet lines Tuesday morning, said Russ Young, general manager of CableOne.

Formerly, the school district said service could be unavailable for up to a week.

The affected schools were Jefferson Elementary, Horizon Elementary and Jerome High.

Brian Neudorff
Meteorologist

Like many of you, I have been watching the coverage of the tornado and the aftermath out of Moore, Okla. My heart breaks for all those impacted in Oklahoma and on Monday night, watching the firefighters and people working on clearing the rubble and debris from what was Plaza Tower Elementary School, I cried. I say this not as a meteorologist, but as a son of a teacher, the husband of a soon-to-be teacher and the father of three school-aged boys.

I understand why tornadoes occur and form. I understand the science behind severe weather and because of that understanding many of my colleagues in the weather community can get very excited about the potential of severe weather.

I will admit, I have been guilty of looking at radar and watching storms and the potential tornadoes on radar, and get a little giddy about what I am seeing. As we saw on Monday in Moore, Okla., these storms have real consequences. Tornadoes are deadly and real. In a matter of minutes they can take everything away from all those affected. No more will I get excited about severe weather, but focus on the safety of people in the path of the storm.

Tornadoes are not very common across southern Idaho, but they can and have occurred. In tomorrow's column, I will focus on safety and what you can do to stay safe.

Sportswriters' updates on "Magic Valley Overtime" keep local sports lovers up to the minute. An excerpt from one of David Bashore's Tuesday-afternoon blog posts:

"Twin Falls senior Trell Dowd has committed to the Chuck Cox, left, describes the search for his missing daughter as he stands with attorney Anne Bremner during a news conference Tuesday in Seattle.

Lawyer: Feds Still Investigating Susan Powell Case

WEST VALLEY CITY, Utah (AP) • The lawyer for the family of missing Utah woman Susan Powell said Tuesday that even as local police close the active part of their investigation into her disappearance, federal authorities continue to review the case — a claim that was denied by the U.S. Attorney’s Office in Salt Lake City.

Anne Bremner made the announcement at a Seattle news conference a day after local officials in Utah said they had closed their active investigation into the Susan Powell case.

“This is not over,” Bremner said.

Newly released police records show that Utah officials believe Josh Powell likely killed his wife in late 2009, and that his brother, Michael Powell, helped dispose of the body, but authorities felt they didn’t have enough evidence to prove that theory in court.

Last year, as the investigation continued, Josh Powell killed himself and his two young sons in an explosive house fire, leaving nearly all of his life insurance proceeds to his brother, Michael, who later jumped to his death from a parking garage in Minnesota.

Bremner, who was joined at the news conference by Chuck Cox, Susan Powell’s father, said she and Cox were apprised earlier in the day of the federal investigation by an agent who has been directly involved in the case. She said she requested permission to announce the development at the news conference, and the agent granted it. Bremner said the scope involved looking into what Josh Powell’s father, Steve, knew about his daughter-in-law’s disappearance.

In response, Melodie Rydalch, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Attorney’s Office in Utah, issued a statement saying that federal agencies in Utah had assisted in the investigation and would be happy to do so again should circumstances warrant.

“However, we do not have plans to conduct any further investigation,” she said.

West Valley City Deputy Police Chief Mike Powell said he wasn’t immediately aware of any ongoing federal investigation but would look into it.

25 Graduate from Hagerman High School

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

HAGERMAN • While the song “Forever Young” played through speakers in the Prince Memorial Gymnasium at Hagerman Junior/High School, each of the graduates walked the aisles, giving single roses to someone special in their lives — a mother, a teacher.

Twenty-five students graduated from the high school Tuesday evening. Many already know what their next step in life will be.

Megan Bean, an honors student, said she plans to attend Boise State University to study pre-dental work.

Cody Arnold, in line waiting to enter the gym, said he plans to attend a school in Arizona studying welding. He got his first glimpse of the profession in shop class at Hagerman.

Justin Arriaga plans to stay closer to home. He’ll start at the College of Southern Idaho this fall, where he’ll study grants management.

“We have students who want to be welders, some who want to be morticians, the whole gamut,” said Leslie Priebe, a business teacher. She’s been at the school for 14 years, and said it’s always exciting to see students become interested in what they want to do after high school.

Once the students entered the gymnasium, where family and friends sat on wooden benches and straight back chairs, some of them waving program covers because of the warm temperature of the room, various speakers took to the stage, sharing memories, encouragement and excitement about the next chapter of their lives.

“Everything we’ve learned here has given us a background to go out into the world,” salutatorian Drew Daarud told the students.

“We’ve accomplished many things,” said valedictorian Nicole Knott. “Thank you, faculty, for what you taught us.”

Science teacher Troy Easterday shared stories from the classroom. One of the seniors took a swan dive in his classroom without any water. He broke a table. Another student was asked not to ever participate in another fundraiser. It was more of an inside joke, because only some of the crowd laughed. And another male student “dressed up with the girls,” he said. Easterday told him if he

Kimberly Voters Say Yes to $3M Facility Bond

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

KIMBERLY • Voters approved a proposed bond facilities levy for the Kimberly School District, allowing the district to push ahead with plans to renovate a World War II-era gymnasium and make improvements to its sports complex and technology classes.

The $3 million bond, which needed a supermajority to pass, garnered 69 percent (540) of the yes vote to 31 percent (242) that said no.

“We’re excited,” said Superintendent Luke Schroeder. “We’re very excited.”

More good news for the district: About half the bond amount will be paid back at 80 cents per dollar, Schroeder said.

“Due to a unique, one time funding opportunity,” reads information provided by the Kimberly School District, “we can take advantage of both a federal Qualified School Construction Bond and a state program that lowers the overall cost of the bond. We can bond for $3,000,000 and pay it back by extending our current bond payments for three years. This opportunity is especially advantageous because the school district will only be required to pay back $1.2 million of the $1.5 million from the Qualified School Construction portion of the bond.”

The bond is for the renovation of the L.A. Thomas Gym and Auditorium, one of the most used facilities in the district. Money also will be used to upgrade the sports complex and enhance technology in the classrooms.

The bond was a community initiative, Schroeder said, so it came as no surprise to him that it passed.

Three community groups — Let’s Finish It L.A. Thomas Committee, Kimberly Booster Club and Bulldog Pride Sports Complex group — proposed the bond issue to the school board. The groups placed signs all over town, he said, and made 600 phone calls Monday night to remind residents about the vote.

“Some very great people worked to get the (gym) done 70 years ago,” Schroeder said. “It’ll be nice to bring closure to that project. ... There are some very excited people here tonight.”

Twin Falls Wastewater Bond Passes in Landslide

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

TWIN FALLS • During Tuesday’s election, voters approved a $38 million bond to fund upgrading and expanding the Twin Falls wastewater treatment facility.

The bond passed by a landslide, getting almost 70 percent of the vote with 1,363 votes in favor and 604 votes opposing.

“I’m proud of the community’s forward thinking, even if it means a small personal sacrifice on their end,” said Lori Ward, co-chair of the citizen committee supporting the wastewater bond.

Ward, along with other members of the committee, celebrated the bond’s passing at Elevation 486 on Tuesday night. Refreshing online polling numbers, the committee was elated that the bond had passed.

Ward pointed to the committee’s grassroots efforts to getting the support needed for approving the vote.

“This really came from the community and it reflected what the community wanted,” she said.

The $38 million will go to improve and expand the facility, as well as replace sections of the city’s wastewater delivery system.

Currently, the city’s wastewater facility is nearing capacity and city officials are unable to approve any new large wastewater requests. The city has already had to turn away 12 companies due to a lack of wastewater space.

“We want to thank all the voters that made this happen and understanding the importance of it,” said Chris Reid, another co-chair of the committee.

Hansen School Levy

Hansen Voters Approve Supplemental School Levy

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

HANSEN • Residents decided to step up to help the Hansen School District by approving a two-year $190,000 supplemental levy.

Voters passed the levy 61 percent (269) to 39 percent (173).

The news puts a smile on the face of Superintendent Susan Scherz, because just two months before, on March 12, voters rejected the proposed levy.

“We’re ecstatic,” she said Tuesday night.

The district decided to gear up, inform the community better about why the levy was needed, and try again. It paid off, even though Scherz said there was a force in the community that still was opposed the levy.

The district placed commercial signs and banners in town, held public meetings, and called residents to remind them about voting. And, she said, the district received more positive responses from residents this time around.

“We worked hard to cover all our angles,” she said.

The levy, which will cost taxpayers $17.60 per year for every $10,000 in home value, will help the district with school supplies and to cover basic operating costs such as heating and air conditioning and building maintenance.

Scherz previously told the Times-News that if the levy failed to pass, staffing cuts could become a possibility, though she’d do everything in her power to avert such cuts. Because the levy passed, she’s more confident the district will be able to retain its staff — though it likely will do so through attrition. It also will “keep costs low by maximizing our resources.”

“I give a lot of thanks to the community, the school board, teachers and staff for putting in a lot of their own time to support this effort,” she said.

“It’s a tough balance. With a scandal, there’s no way to win. There may never have been any wrongdoing by anyone in the White House, on any of these issues, but once the allegations are made, you can’t win.”

AP Leak Investigation Less Clear-Cut Than the Massive Uproar

Whoever provided the initial leak to the Associated Press in April 2012 not only broke the law but caused the abrupt end to a secret, joint U.S./Saudi/British operation in Yemen that offered valuable intelligence against al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula.

One goal was to get AQAP’s operational head, Fahd Mohammed Ahmed al-Quso. That happened one day before the AP story appeared.

A second goal was to find and possibly kill AQAP bomb-maker Ibrahim Hassan al-Asiri, whose first underwear device almost killed Prince Mohammed bin Nayef, Saudi Arabia’s anti-terrorism chief. Soon after, Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab used such a device in a failed Christmas Day bombing attempt as his Northwest Airlines flight was landing in Detroit. The drone attack that killed Quso hadn’t occurred when AP reporters were checking out the leak and contacting government officials. Acting responsibly, the AP withheld its story for several days at the government’s request.

What happened afterward illustrates a sad state of affairs — within government (which can’t control critical secrets), the White House (which offered more information to shield itself from a wrong impression created by the AP story), politics (where every event during a presidential race becomes political fodder) and the press (which screams First Amendment at any attempt to investigate it).

There is a natural tension between journalists and the government over national security. There are many examples of administrations misusing secrecy to hide failures or promote successes. And there may be as many times when bad stories hurt clandestine operations. Hitting targets in the United States is one of AQAP’s goals. In association with Saudi intelligence, the CIA inserted a Saudi who convinced AQAP that he wanted to be a suicide bomber. Eventually he was outfitted with Asiri’s newest device, which he was to use on a U.S. aircraft. After the device was delivered to U.S. officials, someone or several people leaked the information to the AP.

As journalists and politicians focus on what they say are too-broad subpoenas for records of 21 phone lines for AP offices and individuals, what’s lost is the damaging and criminal leak. Attorney General Eric H. Holder Jr.’s initial comment to reporters last week that “it is within the top two or three most serious leaks that I’ve ever seen” has been rejected. Journalists have heard that over the years.

This is different. The AP was working on a story where lives really could be at risk. Also at risk were the relationships between U.S., Saudi and British intelligence.

The AP responsibly held its story for five days when informed of national security issues. Although the news organization was informed about only part of the operation, the reality was that intelligence officials believed it had to be closed down immediately. The AP story, when it first appeared, made no mention of how the United States obtained the new type of bomb. But by describing the event as the CIA halting an AQAP suicide-bombing plot, the story turned a clever clandestine operation into a negative political issue for the White House during the presidential campaign.

How? The AP story tied the foiling of an AQAP plot to White House press secretary Jay Carney’s statement the week before that assured “the American public that the administration knew of no al-Qaida plots against the U.S. around the anniversary of bin Laden’s death.” The AP story implied that Carney’s statement was untrue. But Carney was right. This was a CIA ruse, not a terrorist-initiated plot.

Even during a “Face the Nation” appearance Sunday, AP President Gary Pruitt described the AP story as the U.S. thwarting “an al-Qaida plot to place a bomb on an airliner” and Carney as being “misleading to the American public.”

From the start, the AP placed the plot in the wrong context. Responding after the AP story, White House counterterrorism adviser John Brennan held a media backgrounder to reassure the public that the United States was somehow “in control” of the situation. That triggered other media inquiries, which led to the administration explaining the Saudi double agent and other details. The authorized leak was to control political damage. It was inevitable that the leak to the AP would generate an FBI probe. Given past leak investigations in the Bush and Obama administrations, journalists at the AP and elsewhere know they could face scrutiny. Like it or not, they are part of a crime.

Should the AP have been told in advance so it could try to quash the subpoenas? It could have delayed the inquiry for years. Having found my phone records caught up in criminal and civil case probes, such actions from government officials should not be a surprise. But how many times can the media claim such an action is “chilling sources?” That was a claim during the Valerie Plame case under the Bush administration and repeatedly invoked as the Obama Justice Department has pursued leakers.

The risk of breaking the law apparently didn’t chill those who leaked the information to the AP. This is not a whistleblower case. There are no heroes here, and the press was not protecting individuals trying to expose government malfeasance.

Caring for Bluebird Nesting Boxes an Interesting Hobby

My wife and I, at age 80-plus, maintain a Mountain Bluebird nesting box on the Langford Flat Road in the South Hills east of Rogerson. At present, we have 25 nesting boxes we monitor. We formerly had 50 but have friends who graciously took over the monitoring and maintenance of the nesting boxes on half the trail.

Bluebirds are cavity nesters and rely on cavities in old tress or other natural or manmade cavities in which to build their nests, hence the purpose and need of our nesting boxes. As the name implies, Mountain Bluebirds are generally found at higher elevations and that is why you don’t often see any in Twin Falls or the valley and why our nesting box trail is in the South Hills.

You can imagine our chagrin when monitoring our section of the trail a few days ago, we found seven nesting boxes — almost one-fourth of our boxes — either unusable because they have been maliciously damaged or missing completely; in other words, stolen! These nesting boxes are bolted to metal fence posts so they don’t just fall off and get blown away. On occasion, we have also found nesting boxes on our trail that have been used for target practice!

My request to the general public is that if you happen to be in the South Hills and observe someone stealing or damaging a nesting box — be it on our nesting box trail or one of the several other nesting box trails in the South Hills monitored by others in our community — please take down the license number of the person’s vehicle and turn it in either to the Twin Falls County Sheriff’s Office or the U.S. Forest Service. Damaging or stealing a nesting box is a violation of the federal migratory bird laws!

On a positive note, we found the majority of our remaining nesting boxes were being occupied by Mountain Bluebirds and had several nests containing six eggs! (Generally, a nest will contain only four or five eggs.) This is after a very low Bluebird count last year. Perhaps the Bluebirds are trying to make up for last year’s low count!

If anyone in our area is interested, I am available to give talks to school classes, clubs and/or civic groups about Mountain Bluebirds. There are also opportunities for persons interested in getting into an interesting hobby to take over nesting box trails presently being monitored by other octogenarians who may not be able to monitor their trails as actively as they should, and you could contact me about those as well. My phone number is 734-1109.

Bad Experience Fills Customer with Disappointment, Distrust

This past December (2012), I purchased a used pickup from a dealership in the area. I bought the vehicle “as is” (aka buyer beware), recognizing that there were no warranties, written or implied. When discussing issues with the truck, I was told basically, “You bought the truck as is, so we are not obligated to pay for the repairs.” It cost me more than an extra third of the truck cost for a replacement engine, including parts and labor.

I contacted a lawyer who charged me another $75 to tell me pretty much the same thing: “Lemon laws” do not apply in Idaho and “buyer beware” is the watchword for used vehicles. The truck was driven by me fewer than 2,000 miles! Since I cleaned their windows (or used to) up to four times per year, they would have been willing to apply that money ($800) toward the repairs, but they would still expect me to clean their windows for no extra charge to them. I would still have to pay the entire repair cost!

I am sending a copy of this letter to the Better Business Bureau, the dealership and its parent company, the News Journal and the Times-News, as well as to individuals. I do not expect anyone to whom this letter is sent to respond to what is written herein, nor am I anticipating any serious offer of compensation to come from the dealer nor from the corporation represented by those involved in the transaction.

I lost faith in the corporate reality during the 1970s and 1980s while pursuing a bachelor’s degree in sociology at Boise State University and have seen no reason to anticipate any change in the “Who Cares About the Consumer, Anyway?” attitude manifest since the early 1960s.

There is no threat written or compiled herein except for the following promise: This dealership will never again have me as a customer, nor will I ever again waste my money on this company’s products from this day forward. Also, as I promised the management, the best advertisement comes from word of mouth, whether negative or positive — and I have a big mouth!

I fully intend to relate this experience to everyone with whom I come into contact that asks me about buying a new or used vehicle. I hope it was worth losing a customer to save a few bucks!

Beware a Greece That Bears False Economic Recovery

Megan Greene

Bloomberg News

Judging from the markets and English-speaking news media this week, Greece’s damaged economy has finally turned the corner. I doubt it.

The Financial Times and Wall Street Journal ran prominent pieces about bullish investors ploughing back into Greek markets. On May 15, the Greek government’s borrowing costs on 10-year bonds fell by one percentage point, to the lowest level in three years.

Against this euphoria, the Greek statistics agency Elstat says the Greek economy contracted 5.3 percent in the first quarter of 2013 compared with a year earlier. This is the 19th consecutive quarter in which it has shrunk. There will be a recovery some day, so is this it? Certainly, there have been positive signs. Last week, the euro area’s finance ministers agreed to release 7.5 billion euros ($9.6 billion) of bailout funds to Greece 4.2 billion euros imminently, and the remaining 3.3 billion euros in June, provided that Greece first completes a number of measures.

The following day, Fitch Ratings upgraded Greece to B from CCC. That is still six levels below investment grade, yet the improvement inspired one of the biggest sovereign-bond market rallies we have seen in Greece since the beginning of the crisis.

There has also been a flurry of recent investment activity in Greece. After years of procrastination, the government on May 1 accepted a tender to privatize Opap, the gambling company that is the country’s most profitable state-owned enterprise. You have to try pretty hard to read this as a success story, though. Opap is the jewel in the crown, yet the government received only two bids for a 33 percent stake in the company, and the final price of was at the low end of expectations.

There has also been some investor interest in Greek banks and corporations. According to the Financial Times, a group of hedge funds has agreed to participate in the recapitalization of Alpha Bank in June. Two Greek companies refrigerator-parts maker Frigoglass and refinery company Hellenic Petroleum succeeded in issuing corporate bonds with yields of about 8 percent in recent weeks. While these yields are high, Greek companies were completely shut out of the bond markets in 2012.

These grim prospects for economic growth are accompanied by extreme social strain. Greek journalist Nick Malkoutzis quantified this strife in a recent article. There are, he wrote, “1.3 million Greeks that are out of work, some 400,000 families that have nobody earning an income, about 300,000 workers whose employers have not paid them for months, hundreds of thousands who have work but are finding it difficult to make ends meet and numerous young people who see their future away from Greece.”

Cassia Approves Burley Library Levy, Elects School Board Members

lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Voters in Burley approved a $231,000 levy Tuesday for the Burley Public Library while patrons in the Cassia County Joint School District elected trustees in three zones.

Burley residents approved a $231,000 two-year levy that will provide additional library funding for the tax years 2013 and 2014. The levy passed with a vote of 422 in favor and 317 opposed.

The voters in the Cassia County Joint School District re-elected Linda Petersen in Zone 3 over write-in candidate Con Haycock by a vote of 183 to 74.

Petersen has served on the school board for seven years.

“I will try my best to meet the education, safety and physical needs of the children in our community,” Petersen said.

Petersen said families have to put education at the forefront of their priority list and the district must find a way to complete necessary repairs on the district’s buildings.

Kathryn Millar retained her seat in Zone 4 over challenger Jeffrey Hawker by a vote of 295 to 71.

Millar could not be reached for comment at press time.

Heber Loughmiller won the open seat in Zone 5 with 439 votes against Janet Hartwell who received 145 votes.

“The biggest issue the school district faces in one word is trust,” said Loughmiller, who is a resident of the Connor Creek area near Pomerelle Mountain Resort. Loughmiller is a crop insurance agent and a farmer.

Loughmiller said his knowledge of budgets will be an asset to the board.

“I think they’ve lost their focus a little bit and I can help get them back to where they need to be,” said Loughmiller.

All school board members in Idaho serve four-year terms.

Gibbons was appointed to the school board two years ago to fill George MacDonald’s seat.

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls County Highway Districts will see new and returning faces to its commission seats.

During Tuesday’s election, voters re-elected incumbent Dave Burgess to the Twin Falls Highway District Subdistrict 1 seat with more than 75 percent of the vote (2,356 votes) against his opponent Bob Beer who got 725 votes.

JEROME JAIL BOND

Fifth Time a Charm: Jerome County Approves New Jail

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alsmith@magicvalley.com

JEROME • “We got it.”

Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall could finally say Tuesday night that there will be a new jail in Jerome County.

After five tries, voters in Jerome have approved funding for a new jail.

Voters passed the $11.2 million bond by 70.8 percent.

On Tuesday night, McFall didn’t have many words, but said he had a lot of calls to make to people who helped the bond pass.

“I’m ecstatic,” Jerome County Commissioner Charlie Howell said.

Howell gave credit to the bond passing to the citizens committee who passed out fliers and helped raise awareness of the problems in the jail.

“That’s what took it over the top,” he said. “The people that got involved. That’s what it takes.”

Howell said he looked forward to the challenge of building the jail and sending out requests for proposals to get the process of building the jail started.

Jerome County first asked residents for funding for a new jail in 2009, but was turned down by a tiny margin. Since then, while more than half of voters have approved of the funding, the county had not been able to make the two-thirds supermajority required to pass the bond.

McFall has long said that the aging jail, built in 1974, needs to be replaced for the safety of inmates and jail staff alike. Issues like sewage coming up through drains and electrical wiring problems plague the jail, he’s said, adding that the narrow hallways aren’t safe for staff and that the jail doesn’t comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act.

McFall and jail administrator Lt. Dan Kennedy have said that the Idaho Counties Risk Management Program could decide to reduce the amount of insurance available to the jail. If a liability claim goes above the $500,000 minimum, Kennedy said, it would come out of the general fund for Jerome County.

Without funding for a new facility, McFall and Kennedy said they would continue to run the jail as best they can for as long as they can.

JEROME WASTEWATER BOND

Jerome Says No to Wastewater Bond

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

JEROME • Jerome voters did not pass a $48 million bond needed to fund improvements to its city’s wastewater treatment facility.

Losing by only 7 percent, the Jerome wastewater bond was one of the closer races during Tuesday’s elections.

The bond got 393 votes in favor and 461 votes opposed.

“We put what we thought was the best measure on the table and the whole point was to allow the voters to have their say and to let us know what direction to go,” said Mayor John Shine.

Currently, the city is facing pressure from both federal and state officials to upgrade and improve its wastewater treatment facility. The city is potentially facing massive fines if it does not improve its wastewater facility.

Now that the bond has failed, Shine said the city council will begin moving forward on judicial confirmation. Judicial confirmation is asking a judge to review the debt and deem it an ordinary and necessary expense of the city.

“We will move on,” he said. “We will begin putting a case together for judicial confirmation. I’m sure this will come up at the next council meeting. We have quite a bit to talk about.”

HAGERMAN SCHOOL LEVY

Hagerman Approves School Levy, 13 to 2

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

HAGERMAN • Despite a lot of community buzz in Hagerman about the proposed supplemental school levy on the ballot, the vote came down to about a dozen voters who turned out to the polls.

The majority, 87 percent (13), voted yes, whereas 13 percent (2) voted no.

The two-year $300,000 supplemental levy will help the school district with several things, including hiring another teacher and purchasing much needed school supplies, said Superintendent Ty Jones.

“We’re thrilled with that,”

said Superintendent Ty Jones.

For the past several years, the district has been living off its fund balance, which dropped from $633,750 to around $217,000, he said.

“Things are tight. They’re tight all over,” he said. “It keeps going down about $200,000 every year because of lack of support from the state.”

The district, which has about 350 students and 40 teachers and staff, cut more than 6 percent of teacher, administrator and coach salaries. Athletic equipment, field trips, extra curricular travel and textbooks also have suffered. And the district hasn’t had new textbooks in about 10 years, he said.

Four part-time aide and support positions have been in jeopardy, but now that the levy has passed, Jones said the district likely will be able to retain them.

What does the levy cost residents? About $8.49 per month per $100,000 of taxable value of their home ($101.92 per year), Jones said, or $21.23 per month for every $250,000 of taxable value ($254.80 per year).

“The money we’re asking for is not for the football program and has nothing to do with sports. It’s for academics and just to maintain operations,” Karrie Jayo, one of two English teachers at Hagerman Junior High/High School, said in an earlier Times-News interview. “It’s for aides, for teachers to work in the classrooms and hopefully for us to get some new textbooks.

... Idaho is part of Common Core State Standards, but none of our books match anything. We’re going to have to spend some money on textbooks or at least technology.”

A lot of people in the community really pushed for the levy, Jones said.

“I knew there were some good people in Hagerman who knew the value of good education,” he said. “They really stepped up to the plate tonight.”

Foster Farms Recalls Grilled Chicken Breast Strips

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) • Federal agriculture officials say chicken producer Foster Farms is recalling about 6,165 pounds of its ready-to-eat grilled chicken breast strips because the strips contain wheat and soy — known allergens — which are not listed on the labels of its packages.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture’s Food Safety and Inspection Service announced the recall Tuesday, saying the mislabeled packages were discovered when a customer complained. Food safety inspectors and officials at Foster Farms say the problem occurred when labels for another chicken product that does not contain wheat or soy were inadvertently used.

Officials say there have been no reports of adverse reactions from the sale of the mislabeled products.

The chicken breast strips being recalled were produced on April 23 and were distributed to retail establishments in Arizona, California, Hawaii, Nevada, Oregon, Utah and Washington.

Contracted Employee Exposed to Ammonia

POCATELLO (AP) • A man working at the Simplot fertilizer plant west of Pocatello was hospitalized in critical condition after apparently being exposed to ammonia over the weekend.

The Power County Sheriff's Office says 23-year-old Derrick E. Martinez of Garden City, Kan., was found unconscious in a Blick's Phosphate Conversion mobile testing trailer on Simplot property Saturday afternoon.

He was taken to the hospital in Pocatello and then flown to a hospital in Salt Lake City, where he was listed in critical condition on Monday.

Exposure to high concentrations of ammonia in the air causes immediate burning of the nose, throat and respiratory tract.

Power County officials say the cause of the accident remains under investigation.

Idaho Man Facing Terror Charges Will Remain Jailed

BOISE (AP) • An Uzbek national facing terrorism-related charges in Idaho will remain jailed pending his trial after waiving his right to a detention hearing.

Lawyers for Fazliddin Kurbanov on Tuesday waived a hearing where a U.S. District Court judge was to have considered whether he should stay in Ada County jail in Boise until his July 2 trial.

Kurbanov is a refugee from Uzbekistan in Central Asia who arrived in Boise in 2009. He was arrested last Thursday.

The 30-year-old truck driver was indicted by a federal grand jury on charges that included teaching people to build bombs intended to target public transportation.

It's unclear whether the alleged targets were in the United States or elsewhere.

Prosecutors say they've contained Kurbanov's threat, but haven't said if more arrests are pending.

Boise Woman Arrested, Refused to Return Lost Dog

BOISE (AP) • Police in Boise have arrested a 49-year-old woman after officers say she refused several requests to return a lost dog to its owner.

Kelly R. Featherston was arrested Monday evening on suspicion of grand theft.

Police say the dog's owner called to report that someone else found her lost dog, but was unable to hold it. The person who found the dog gave the owner Featherston's contact information so she could retrieve the dog.

When the owner arrived, Featherston reportedly told her the dog was no longer there. The woman called police.

Officers repeatedly asked if she had the dog inside. Police say after much negotiation, Featherston allowed an officer into her house, where the officer found the dog.

The dog is a toy breed valued at about $700.

Idaho Wildlife Panel Backs Delisting of Grizzly Bears

BOISE (AP) • Idaho wildlife officials are urging the federal government to remove grizzly bears from the endangered species list.

The Idaho Fish and Game Commission voted in favor of delisting during its meeting last week, saying the state is in a better position to manage the species.

The commission approved a position statement that asserts the grizzly population have increased enough in core areas and warrant delisting.

Commissioners say prolonged protection for grizzly bears in Idaho is counterproductive to building and maintaining support for a healthy population.

Idaho has a couple of areas inhabited by grizzly bears, including eastern Idaho and the Yellowstone population and northern Idaho along the Montana border.

Court Strikes Down Ariz. 20-week Abortion Ban

BY PAUL ELIAS
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO • A federal court Tuesday struck down Arizona's ban on abortions after 20 weeks of pregnancy absent a medical emergency.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said the law violated a woman's constitutionally protected right to terminate a pregnancy before a fetus is able to survive outside the womb. "Viability" of a fetus is generally considered to start at 24 weeks. Normal pregnancies run about 40 weeks.

Nine other states have enacted similar bans starting at 20 weeks or even earlier. Several of those bans had previously been placed on hold or struck down by other courts.

Judge Marsha Berzon, writing for the unanimous three-judge panel on the San Francisco-based court, said such bans before viability violate a long string of U.S. Supreme Court rulings starting with the seminal Roe v. Wade decision in 1973.

The judge wrote that "a woman has a constitutional right to choose to terminate her pregnancy before the fetus is viable."

Gov. Jan Brewer signed the ban into law in April 2012 after it was approved by the Republican-led Legislature. Supporters said the law was meant to protect the mother's health and prevent fetuses from feeling pain. U.S. District Judge James Teilborg ruled it was constitutional, partly because of those concerns, but the 9th Circuit blocked the ban from going into effect until it ruled.

Lawyers representing Arizona argued that the ban wasn't technically a law but rather a medical regulation because it allowed for doctors to perform abortions in medical emergencies. Berzon rejected that reasoning and deemed the legislation a law banning abortions before a fetus is viable.

"The challenged Arizona statute's medical emergency exception does not transform the law from a prohibition on abortion into a regulation of abortion procedure," Berzon wrote. "Allowing a physician to decide if abortion is medically necessary is not the same as allowing a woman to decide whether to carry her own pregnancy to term."

Berzon was joined by judges Mary Schroeder and Andrew Kleinfeld.

Cathi Herrod, the head of a Christian social conservative group that championed the 2012 legislation, said the ruling overlooks the state's interest in protecting maternal health," but that the outcome wasn't surprising because of the court's reputation as siding with politically liberal causes.

"We look forward to an appeal to the United States Supreme Court," said Herrod, president of the Phoenix-based Center for Arizona Policy. The group filed a legal brief in support of the Arizona law.

The 9th Circuit's ruling is binding only in the nine Western states under the court's jurisdiction, and Idaho is the only other state in the region with a similar ban. A federal judge earlier declared Idaho's ban unconstitutional.

Janet Creppe, a lawyer who argued against the ban in court for the Center for Reproductive Rights, said the ruling Tuesday affirmed a woman's right to an abortion before viability.

"These laws are all unconstitutional," she said. "This is not a close legal question at all. These laws are unconstitutional."

Utah Gov. Herbert Rails against US Land Management

WASHINGTON (AP) • Utah Gov. Gary Herbert told a congressional subcommittee on Tuesday his state does a better job than U.S. land managers and has a bigger stake than the bureaucrats in protecting the natural resources and rugged beauty that drives Utah's outdoor recreation and tourism industry.

"No one understands state challenges and demographics better than the people who reside and govern there," said Herbert, chairman of the Western Governors' Association.

"No one is more committed to the most effective use of limited resources for the best possible outcome, for both our lands and our citizens, than those who will directly live with the consequences of those decisions," the Republican said in testimony before a House Natural Resources subcommittee examining the role of state and federal governments in managing national parks, forests and public rangelands.

Herbert said Utah and many other western states do a far better job than the feds on a host of environmental fronts, from thinning unhealthy forests at risk of catastrophic wildfire, to protecting sage grouse from Colorado through the Great Basin, the Southwest and into the Pacific Northwest.

"Sadly, we have strayed far from this vision of states as independent and robust policy innovators," he told the panel.

Of Utah's 54 million acres, roughly two-thirds are owned or managed by the federal government, about 21 percent privately owned and about 10 percent owned by the state, he said.

"I understand that the citizens of the rest of this great nation have an interest in the natural resources found within Utah and the rest of the West," he said.

But "the reality is that people don't flock to Utah from all over the world because its lands are federally managed. They flock to Utah because Utah lands are unique, precious and visually and even spiritually stunning," he said.

"These lands will be just as precious and valued if they are managed by state or local entities," he said.

Herbert signed legislation last year giving the federal government until 2014 to relinquish control of public lands in Utah. The Utah Legislature authorized a lawsuit if the federal government doesn't comply.

Herbert, the lone witness invited to testify before the subcommittee on Monday, and Rep. Rob Bishop, R-Utah, chairman of the subcommittee, have been especially critical of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's proposal to list the Gunnison sage grouse as an endangered species and designate 1.7 million acres in Colorado and Utah as critical habitat.

Biologists believe the bird has lost 90 percent of its historic habitat and now exists in only seven distinct populations. Noah Greenwald of the Center for Biological Diversity, which was among petitioners for the listing, said habitat fragmentation spurred by increased roads and other human activity has been identified as a key factor compromising the bird's ability to survive.

"The Gunnison sage grouse might finally get the protection it deserves," said Mark Salvo, wildlife program director for WildEarth Guardians, another petitioner. "Federal listing will buttress efforts to conserve the species."

SACRIFICE AND SERVICE IN OKLAHOMA

As crews search for the remaining victims in the wake of a devastating tornado, scenes of heroism unfold amid the rubble.

Search Nearly Complete after Oklahoma Tornado

Helmeted rescue workers raced Tuesday to complete the search for survivors and the dead in the Oklahoma City suburb where a mammoth tornado destroyed countless homes, cleared lots down to bare red earth and claimed 24 lives.

Scientists concluded the storm was a rare and extraordinarily powerful type of twister known as an EF5, which is capable of lifting reinforced buildings off the ground, hurling cars like missiles and stripping trees completely free of bark.

Meanwhile, residents of Moore began returning to their homes a day after the tornado smashed some neighborhoods into jagged wood scraps and gnarled pieces of metal. In place of their houses, many families found only empty lots. The fire chief said he was confident there are no more bodies or survivors in the rubble. The death toll was revised downward from 51 after the state medical examiner said some victims may have been counted twice in the confusion.

Hospitals Treat Hundreds

Hospital officials say they've treated hundreds of patients, including dozens of children, since a tornado hit an Oklahoma City suburb. About 60 patients remained hospitalized following Monday's tornado, though some were expected to be released Tuesday.

Norman Regional Hospital spokeswoman Melissa Heron says 20 of the more than 100 patients her hospital treated remained hospitalized. Spokeswoman Brooke Cayot (KAY'-ot) says about 20 of the 90 patients seen at Integris Southwest Medical Center also remained at the hospital.

OU Medical Center spokesman Scott Coppenbarger says his hospital has treated 93 people, including 59 children, since a round of storms Sunday. Twenty patients remained hospitalized Tuesday.

St. Anthony Hospital spokeswoman Sandra Payne says her hospital and affiliated facilities have seen 36 patients, including 14 children. All patients were being released or transferred.

Teachers Credited with Saving Students in Oklahoma

The principal's voice came on over the intercom at Plaza Towers Elementary School: A severe storm was approaching and students were to go to the cafeteria and wait for their parents to pick them up.

But before all of the youngsters could get there, the tornado alarm sounded.

The plan changed quickly. "All the teachers started screaming into the room and saying, 'Get into the hallway! We don't want you to die!' and stuff like that," said sixth-grader Phaedra Dunn. "We just took off running."

In the moments that followed, some of the children at Plaza Towers Elementary would, in fact, die. At least seven were killed by the twister Monday afternoon. Others would crawl out of the rubble, bloodied and bruised, utterly terrified.

The tornado that devastated this Oklahoma City suburb of 56,000 people destroyed Plaza Towers and also slammed Briarwood Elementary, where all the children appear to have survived. Students and parents recounted stories Tuesday of brave teachers who sheltered their pupils, in some cases by herding them into a closet and a restroom amid the fear and panic.

At Briarwood Elementary,

the students also went into the halls. But a third-grade teacher didn't think it looked safe, so she herded some of the children into a closet, said David Wheeler, one of the fathers who tried to rush to the school after the tornado hit.

The teacher shielded Wheeler's 8-year-old son, Gabriel, with her arms and held him down as the tornado collapsed the school roof and starting lifting students upward with a pull so strong that it literally sucked glasses off kids' faces, Wheeler said.

"She saved their lives by putting them in a closet and holding their heads down," Wheeler said.

Moore School Superintendent Susan Pierce said teachers and administrators put their well-rehearsed crisis plan into action as the tornado approached. But she suggested there are limits to what people can do in the face of such a powerful storm.

"Safety is our main priority," Pierce said. "We monitored the weather throughout the day and when it was time to shelter, we did just that."

IRS Chief Knew Tea Party Groups Targeted in 2012

WASHINGTON (AP) • The former head of the Internal Revenue Service said he first learned in the spring of 2012 — in the heat of the presidential campaign — that agents had improperly targeted political groups that vehemently opposed President Barack Obama's policies.

But, former Commissioner Douglas Shulman said Tuesday, he didn't tell higher ups in the Treasury Department and he didn't tell members of Congress.

he wouldn't apologize for it. "I had a partial set of facts, and I knew that the inspector general was going to be looking into it, and I knew that it was being stopped," Shulman told the Senate Finance Committee in his first public comments on the matter. "Sitting there then and sitting here today, I think I made the right decision, which is to let the inspector general get to the bottom of it, chase down all the facts and then make his findings public."

Shulman left the IRS in November when his five-year term ended. His testimony makes him the top official to publicly acknowledge knowing before the presidential election that tea party groups had been targeted.

Even so, senators from both political parties said they were skeptical of the version of events portrayed by Shulman and Steven Miller, the man who later took his place as acting commissioner.

FBI ID'S BENGHAZI SUSPECTS — BUT NO ARRESTS YET

WASHINGTON (AP) • The U.S. has identified five men who may be responsible for the attack on the diplomatic mission in Benghazi, Libya, last year, and has enough evidence to justify seizing them by military force as suspected terrorists, officials say. But there isn't enough proof to try them in a U.S. civilian court as the Obama administration prefers.

The men remain at large while the FBI gathers evidence. But the investigation has been slowed by the reduced U.S. intelligence presence in the region since the Sept. 11, 2012, attacks, and by the limited ability to assist by Libya's post-revolutionary law enforcement and intelligence agencies, which are still in their infancy since the overthrow of dictator Col. Moammar Gadhafi.

The decision not to seize the men militarily underscores the White House aim to move away from hunting terrorists as enemy combatants and holding them at the military prison in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

The preference is toward a process in which most are apprehended and tried by the countries where they are living or arrested by the U.S. with the host country's cooperation and tried in the U.S. criminal justice system. Using military force to detain the men might also harm fledgling relations with Libya and other post-Arab-Spring governments.

Afton Letty Bronson Davis

July 13, 1928-May 18, 2013

BRUNEAU • Afton Letty Bronson Davis, of Bruneau, died Saturday, May 18, 2013, at the Cottages in Mountain Home surrounded by her family.

A service will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, May 24, with a viewing from 10 to 10:45 a.m. and the funeral beginning at 11 a.m. at the Bruneau American Legion Hall; interment will follow at the Bruneau Cemetery. Arrangements are under the direction of Rost Funeral Home, McMurtrey Chapel in Mountain Home.

Letty was born in Orem, Utah, to George Lynn and Ruby Elinor Bronson, on July 13, 1928. At the age of 5, she moved to Vale, Ore., with her parents and four older sisters. Her father farmed and built the house they lived in. When she was a freshman in high school, they moved to Adrian, Ore., where Letty graduated. She was a cheerleader and performer in school plays; she loved her high school years and maintained cherished friendships.

In April of her senior year, she had a blind date with Gene Davis, and they were married eight months later on Dec. 7, 1946. Gene had just returned from World War II. They lived in Homedale for three years, where they farmed and milked cows. During this time two daughters, Jeanne and Carla, were born. When the daughters were 2 and 1, they moved to Bruneau. In 1952 their son, Eric, was born. They worked very hard with Gene's brother, Don, and his wife, Pat, to establish Bruneau Cattle Co., which was a farming, ranching and feedlot operation.

Our mother's favorite job was caring for her husband and their three children. She was extremely loving, a great teacher, and a lot of fun! She always had a great garden, beautiful yard with flowers, and kept an immaculate house. She was known to have floors you could eat off, but no one had to because everyone was welcome to sit at her table with her family and enjoy her delicious food.

She loved doing hair and a few neighbors came for a cut, perm or a weekly shampoo and set. She was active in the PTO and served as treasurer of the Idaho Cowbelles Association in 1963. For years, she was secretary/treasurer for the Southside Bruneau Canal Co. and corporate secretary for Bruneau Cattle Co. She worked for several years at the Valley Merc in Bruneau. Besides all this, she drove silage truck every September.

Letty spent the last 4½ years at The Cottages Assisted Living Facility in Mountain Home. She received wonderful, loving care from Amber, Kathy and their staff during this entire time. Jeanne, Carla and Eric want to extend their deep appreciation for the compassion also shown to them. We also had great support from Dr. Crossley during this time and United Hospice the last few months.

Letty is survived by her daughters, Jeanne Gannon, and Carla and husband Chuck Locuson; son, Eric Davis; grandsons, Curtis and wife Jinney Gannon, Patrick Gannon, Matthew and wife Andrea Locuson, Chuck Locuson and fiancée Krissy, and Jeremy and wife Kate Mink; granddaughter, Erica Davis; great-granddaughters, Hillary and Shannon Murphy; and great-grandsons, Dray and Drew Mink. She was preceded in death by her parents; husband, Gene; son-in-law, Tom Gannon; sisters, Lynette (Roger) Anderson, Relya (Harvey) Hunt, Ethel (Harry) Stanford and Dorothy (Capp) King; two infant brothers; infant twin sisters; two nephews; and one niece.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to Bruneau American Legion Post 83, P.O. Box 648, Bruneau, ID 83604; Bruneau QRU, P.O. Box 294, Bruneau, ID, 83604; or the charity of your choice.

Larry Dale Barlogi

Dec. 9, 1924-April 21, 2013

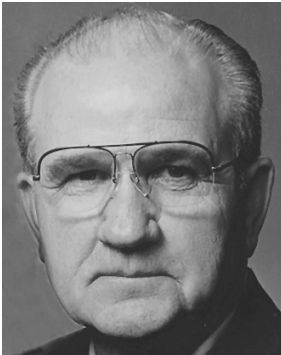

HAGERMAN • Larry Dale Barlogi, 88, of Hagerman, passed away Sunday, April 21, 2013, at Poplar Grove Assisted Living in Glenns Ferry, Idaho.

Larry was born at home in Hagerman on Dec. 9, 1924, the son of Rex and Nora Belle Barlogi. His family's property was near the Snake River, and Larry learned to fish when he was a young boy. As soon as the work was done for the day, he would be at the river fishing. The area also afforded him access to bird and game hunting. He had a love of outdoors and taught his children and grandchildren to love and respect the art of hunting and fishing.

When Larry was finished with school, he joined the U.S. Navy to aid in the effort of World War II. With his marksman skills, he quickly became an aerial gunnery instructor. After his service in the war, he returned to Hagerman to work with his dad on their ranch.

One day, he was at a community dance and saw a beautiful young girl named Patricia who was in town visiting relatives. Within two weeks of meeting, Larry asked Pat to marry him. Pat's mom, being practical, suggested the couple wait until after Christmas to make sure they still wanted to marry. On Dec. 28, 1949, they did indeed marry.

After this union the couple began an adventure together, which led them and their three children to move to countless cities and towns around the United States working construction projects for Morrison-Knutson. Larry helped build dams in the Hell's Canyon and spent 33 years with the company finishing with a project in Columbia. After retirement, he and Pat returned to Hagerman to enjoy their retirement. Larry continued his love of hunting and fishing in Idaho and was a rock hound and gem collector, making jewelry out of some of his finds.

Larry was preceded in death by one son, Bill Barlogi in 2009; his brother, Garland Barlogi; and sister, Nedra Buckmaster. He is survived by his wife of 63 years, Patricia "Pat" Barlogi of Hagerman; son, Rex (Carole) Barlogi of Gillette, Wyo.; daughter, Ann (Tom) Johnston of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho; grandchildren, Ben (Melanie) Johnston, Leah Johnston and Jimmy Johnston; and great-granddaughter, Olivia Johnston.

A graveside service for Larry will be at 10 a.m., Monday, May 27, (Memorial Day) at the Hagerman Cemetery. A gathering for friends and family will be held at 12:15 p.m. Monday at the Hagerman Senior Center. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the Hagerman Cemetery District. Arrangements are under the direction of Farmer Funeral Chapel in Buhl.

During the first years of her married life, she worked with her husband in ranching. She worked as a cook for the Cassia County School District and Cassia Memorial Hospital.

Later, she worked as a nurse’s aide at the hospital. She lived in Albion, Shoshone, Gooding, Burley and Rexburg, Idaho.

She was a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, serving in numerous teaching callings in the Sunday school, Young Women and Relief Society. She was a member of the IOOF Rebekah Lodge in Burley for 53 years. She belonged to the Farm and Home Extension Club, receiving countless ribbons and prizes for her cooking, baking, canning, crocheting and quilts. She was a member of the Daughters of the Utah Pioneers.

Faye is survived by her daughters, Louise (John) Poindexter of Packwood, Wash., and Louella (Allen) Mink of Salem, Idaho; a son, Clarence (Sheila) Gummow of Rexburg; 10 grandchildren; 21 great-grandchildren; and 10 great-great-grandchildren. Pamela (Pam) Pehrson

May 21, 1957-May 17, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Pam gracefully and peacefully passed Friday, May 17, 2013. She was surrounded by her loving companion, many friends and family.

Pam was born in Logan, Utah. She attended Utah State for several semesters then spent time working at Moore Business Forms. She was a firefighter and later finished her work career with Costco. She had many great friends at Costco and was deeply grateful for how well Costco treated her during her illness.

Pam’s hobbies and interests were as varied as her career choices. She loved skateboarding, skiing, hiking, riding her navy blue scooter around town and snowshoeing. But kayaking was her favorite; there were many days when she would spend time alone, thrilled to enjoy the beauty of the Snake River. Other times she would gather a group of friends and head to the river pulling her custom kayak trailer. A perfect Saturday for Pam would be paddling with her group of friends, drinking a few beers, telling a few jokes, sharing a lunch and body surfacing under a waterfall before packing up and heading back to the dock.

Pam is survived by too many friends to mention; she considered the Howa family her Twin Falls family and, like Costco, they treated her very well. Her younger sister, Julie Dalton and her husband, moved to Twin Falls to be closer to Pam in 2005. Squeakers is her much beloved kitty, the cutest black cat with a white chin and white paws. Squeakers was a constant loving companion to Pam.

A celebration of Pam’s life will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, May 25, at Parke’s Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls, Idaho.

In lieu of flowers, Pam requested that memorials be made to the Battered Women’s Shelter in Twin Falls, Idaho.

Those wishing to share memories and condolences may do so at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

In 1950, he went to work at the Naval Ordnance Plant in Pocatello, where he worked until the plant’s closure in 1959. At that time, Floyd, his wife and their three children moved to Corinne, Utah, where he worked for Thiokol Chemical Corporation during its years in production of the Minuteman Missile. Floyd concluded his working career in civil service spending 11 years at the Intermountain Indian School in Brigham City, Utah.

In 1981, Floyd and Doris moved to Twin Falls and later Kimberly. Floyd worked many years as the maintenance man for the United Methodist Church, the Valley Christian Church in Twin Falls and the Kimberly Senior Citizen Center. BURLEY • Camping this Memorial Weekend? Bring a Dutch oven or large cast iron deep dish for some of the best camping food of your life. According to a world champion Dutch oven cook in Burley, getting ooohs and aahs from an outdoor meal is much easier than it sounds.

Pit master Omar Alvarez of Burley cooks breakfast, lunch and dinner outside.

"I do it 365 days a year. I'm out here in the snow putting a brisket or burgers or whatever on," Alvarez said standing in front of five different styles of smokers and grills.

"I like being outdoors cooking like this," Alvarez said. "I enjoy cooking for people. I love cooking for people. The best thing that can happen to me is people come back and say, 'Hey you got any more? You got any left?' That makes me feel great."

Gardening for Good

Richfield church breaks ground on community garden to fight lack of nutrition.

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

RICHFIELD • A single, wild asparagus plant swayed in the afternoon wind.

Though it was the only plant growing inside the Richfield community garden — it's a sign of things to come.

Church members and volunteers at Richfield United Methodist Church marked plots and broke ground in Richfield's first community garden Saturday, May 18.

The idea is to teach people how to garden so they can grow their own food.

United Methodist Church Pastor Jeffrey Rickman said nutrition education is needed in Richfield, a town that has a population of around 500 people.

"You don't have to be here a decade to know there is a food problem," Rickman said. "Demographics have shifted dramatically and Richfield has lost a third of students here. It's mostly the elderly and retired and those are people who suffer from food insecurities the most."

Rickman said a number of people drive an hour away to Twin Falls to do most of their grocery shopping. Richfield currently has one

Don't Know What to Do with All Those Garden Veggies?

Kay Billington, a master food safety advisor through the University of Idaho Extension Office recommended four publications, which include canning instructions along with many excellent recipes. These four publications are the only ones recommended by University of Idaho Extension: "So Easy To Preserve" from Cooperative Extension The University of Georgia, "USDA Complete Guide to Home Canning," "Ball Complete Book of Home Preserving" and "Ball Blue Book Guide To Preserving." Billington said all are available from your local county extension office with the exception of "Ball Blue Book Guide To Preserving," which can be purchased locally where canning supplies are sold.

"Eventually we want to have people focus on local business," Rickman said.

With the help of a $2,000 Eliminate Hunger Grant from the Bishop's Task Force, UMC purchased a pump for watering and fencing. They also applied for an online grant, and though were not successful, were given 100 packets of organic seeds, which will be available to gardeners for free.

In addition, Terran Jensen, a teenager from Kimberly who is working on Eagle Scout requirements, donated two raised flower beds for the garden. These will provide easy access for gardeners that live in nearby senior housing. The Woodshed in Gooding also donated a shed for storage needs.

GARDEN VACATION

When deciding on a hotel for your vacation, any hotel with 'garden' as part of the name gives the impression of being restful. But for many gardeners a vacation in the summer is anything but restful, no matter where they stay. You may feel that your garden owns you in the summer and that you can't leave for fear of what you will find on your return. The two most immediate concerns are usually weeds and water. Keeping the lawn mowed is another task to be considered but it is relatively easy to delegate.

If you have a sprinkler system with a programmable clock the water needs of your plants may only be a passing thought. Baskets and other containers can be moved where the sprinklers can reach them to keep them alive while you are away. Or they can be put on a drip system that has a timer or clock. Planters or baskets usually grown in the sun can be moved temporarily to the shade to lessen the demand for water. Depending on how deep the shade is you won't want to leave them there for more than 5 days or they will begin to decline. For those of us still moving sprinklers around, irrigation is our biggest worry when we leave home for more than 24 hours. A sprinkler system is no guarantee of success however when left unsupervised for an extended period of time. This is why we invest time in friends so we can ask them to take care of our gardens while we vacation and then give them a big box of zucchini as payment.

No one likes to come home from vacation and find that an army of weeds have overpowered their petunias or worse still that the teenager they hired has pulled all the radish seedlings leaving a tidy row of kochia. If you can weed carefully just prior to leaving and then put several inches of mulch down you can safely wait a week or maybe two until more weeding is necessary. Mulching will also slow evaporation allowing the garden to go longer between irrigations. If you do end up staying at one of those 'garden' hotels don't get homesick and start weeding at the hotel.

Easy Ways to Jazz Up the Classic Campfire S'more

BY ALISON LADMAN
Associated Press

Three simple ingredients — a marshmallow, a piece of chocolate and two graham crackers. The symbol of summer and campfire snacking.

And there are so many possibilities for jazzing it up! Once you have a toasted marshmallow, you can sandwich it between all kinds of cookies, crackers and the like. Or you could swap out the basic chocolate for something a little more over-the-top, perhaps something with bacon or candied ginger embedded in it. And don't overlook gourmet marshmallows, which come in some wonderful flavors.

And don't hesitate to jam other ingredients in there, too. Liven up your s'mores with:

- Thin pretzel sticks
- Dried fruit (such as dried cherries and pineapple)
- Sweetened shredded coconut
- Thinly sliced fresh strawberries or apple
- Maraschino cherries
- Slices of banana
- Thinly sliced brownie or cake (as an additional filling, not in place of the graham crackers)
- Potato chips

And here are four more ideas to get your creativity flowing.

“It’s been a community effort,” said Cheri Ross, community garden organizer. Ross has been the UMC lay leader and gardener off and on for the past 36 years.

Ross said the biggest plot in the garden, at 16-feet-by-12-feet, will be designated for corn. Some of the produce grown in the garden will be used for the church’s free dinner every Thursday night at 6:30 p.m. Those meals that are available free to the public are usually vegetarian or healthy in nature and made from scratch.

If anyone has a plot in the community garden and has a question or problems they can direct them to Ross, she’s also a master gardener through the University of Idaho Extension Office.

“It’s always been you never went to town just for groceries,” said volunteer and church member, Tena Amy. “(The community garden) will be very popular once it gets going. We already have an asparagus plant. It’s got to be a good omen.”

Recipe from the The University of Georgia Cooperative Extension’s “So Easy To Preserve.”

Pepper Jelly with Liquid Pectin (5 half-pint jars)

- 4 or 5 hot peppers, cored and cut in pieces
- 4 sweet green peppers, cored and cut in pieces
- 1 cup white vinegar
- 5 cups sugar
- 1 pouch liquid pectin
- Green food coloring

Sterilize canning jars. Put half the peppers and half the vinegar into blender container; cover and process at liquefy until pepper is liquefied.

Repeat with remaining peppers and vinegar.

Combine liquefied peppers/vinegar and sugar in a large saucepot and boil slowly for 10 minutes.

Remove from heat. Add liquid pectin and boil hard 1 minute.

Skim and add a few drops of green food coloring.

Pour jelly immediately into hot canning jars, leaving 1/4-inch headspace.

Wipe jar rims and adjust lids.

Process 8 minutes in a Boiling Water Bath.

Easy Grilled Veggie Side Dish

Recipe courtesy of Cheri Ross

Cut up your favorite vegetables like asparagus, peppers, tomato wedges, sliced carrots and place them onto a large sheet of heavy duty foil.

Drizzle with 3 tablespoons of olive oil and 2 tablespoons of balsamic vinegar.

Then seal foil and grill.

Green and White Salad

Recipe courtesy of Cheri Ross.

- 1 head of cauliflower
- 1 head broccoli
- 1 bunch green onions
- 2 cans of water chestnuts
- Several stalks of celery
- Fresh, edible pod peas
- Add any other fresh green or white veggies you like as well
- Coleslaw dressing to coat all

Wash all veggies well and drain.

Terran Jensen from Troop 243 in Kimberly made two raised beds for the Richfield community garden as part of his Eagle Scouts requirements.

Rough chop all the vegetables and put into a large salad bowl.

Peel the stalks of the broccoli and chop the inside flesh.

Drain the chestnuts and add to the vegetables.

Pour dressing over all and mix well.

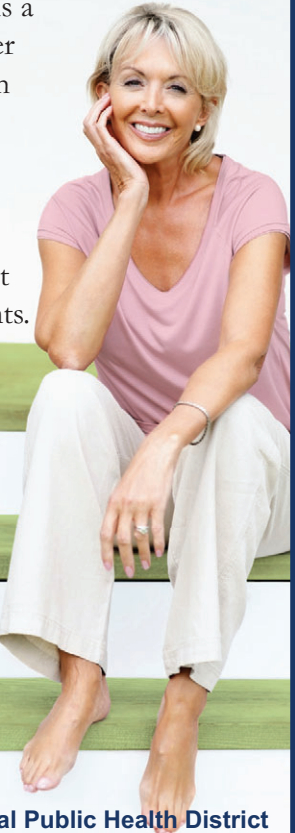

Let the salad rest for a few hours to absorb the dressing and flavors.

The Careless Artform of the Wonderful Summer Cocktail

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

The art of the summer cocktail is something I take most seriously.

Because several years ago I realized what surely is obvious to most people... But I can be a bit slow. Summer is better with a signature cocktail. Not a fancy dinner cocktail. Not a party cocktail. And certainly nothing that anyone who goes by the title “mixologist” ever would deign to make.

I’m talking about an everyday cocktail, something that can be thrown together after work or a day of swimming, then casually sipped — or even slurped — while standing at the grill or sitting by the pool or dock.

A good summer cocktail must be simple to assemble, and preferably from memory. It must be sweet and refreshing, but not cloying. It should have a crispness. It should welcome ice and not suffer noticeably as the ice melts. And it must be versatile enough to go with whatever is on the dinner menu.

Each summer, I seem to discover a new cocktail, which then becomes my summer cocktail for the remainder of the season. A few years back, it was my trashy sangria, which I could slosh together in under a minute. Red wine, sugar, lime juice and ice on nights I was feeling rushed. A bit of fruit and muddling were added on nights I wasn’t.

As complex as a true sangria concocted from far more (and better) ingredients that are allowed to meld for hours? By no means. But still refreshing and satisfying and delightful by the grill.

The summer after that it was my vodka watermelon chiller. Watermelon, vodka, ice, lemon juice and honey. Blend and done. Is there anything more refreshing than watermelon in August? And last year I discovered the magic that is gin and bitter lemon. Ice plus gin plus a splash of bitter lemon tonic. Add a slice of lemon and it’s heaven in the end-of-day sun.

This year it will be the pisco sour. Pisco is a South American brandy that has a clean, mildly sweet flavor. Traditional versions of this cocktail call for shaking it over ice with sugar and lemon juice. My take swaps in lime juice (which so loves barbecue) and rather than shaking it, I blend until frothy. Think frozen margarita, but so much better.

I also should add that proper stemware is essential for enjoying a summer cocktail. In my house that usually means either canning jars or recycled jam jars.

Pisco Sour

Start to finish: 5 minutes
Servings: 1

2 1/2 ounces pisco
1 1/2 ounces lime juice
1 1/2 ounces simple syrup
1 1/2 tablespoons egg white
1/2 cup ice

Combine all ingredients in a blender and blend until very smooth and frothy. Pour into a large, heavy glass and serve immediately.

Gin and Bitter Lemon

Start to finish: 5 minutes
Servings: 1

1 to 2 slices lemon
1 teaspoon sugar
1 1/2 ounces gin
Ice
Bitter lemon tonic
Fresh mint, to garnish

In a medium, heavy glass, combine the lemon slices and sugar. Gently muddle, then add the gin and enough ice to mostly fill the glass. Top with bitter lemon tonic, then stir and garnish with fresh mint.

Trashy Red Wine Sangria

If you feel so inclined, go ahead and float some raspberries or sliced strawberries in this, too.
Start to finish: 5 minutes
Servings: 1

1 to 2 slices orange
2 tablespoons lime juice
1 to 2 tablespoons sugar
4 ounces red wine
Ice
Seltzer water (optional)

In a large, heavy glass, combine the orange slices, lime juice and sugar. Gently muddle, then add the wine and enough ice to mostly fill the glass. Stir. If desired, top with a splash of seltzer for bubbles.

Vodka Watermelon Slushie

Start to finish: 5 minutes
Servings: 1

1 1/2 cups watermelon chunks
1/2 cup ice
1 1/2 ounces vodka

1 ounce lemon juice
1 ounce honey or simple syrup
Pinch salt

Combine all ingredients in a blender and blend until very smooth and frothy. Pour into a large, heavy glass and serve immediately.

ONLINE: Spring Hoppy Beers

Community blogger Steve Koonce writes about craft beers at “Idaho On Tap.” An excerpt from his latest post:

“After a 90 degree Mother’s Day and sprinklers spraying on area farms, what better time is there to look at some beers new (or returned) to the Magic Valley?”

“Laughing Dog Cream Ale pours thick and yellow, like a filtered wheat beer. Fresh malt and noble, grassy hops waft up with the generous carbonation, letting you know that you’re in for a treat. The first sip is refreshing, with a creamy mouth feel, smooth pilsner flavors and no aftertaste. ...

“Named after the holy oils found in hops, Odell Brewery’s St. Lupulin Extra Pale Ale boasts heavy hop flavors with smooth crystal malt accents. It pours golden pale with a nice thick head. You get some pine and citrusy hops on the nose, with a fair amount of crystal malt. ...

“A refreshing year-round choice that I recently found, multi-award winner Snake River Pale Ale, pours that very bright, orange color that I love in pale ale. Citrusy hop aromas of tangerine and lemon peel pleasure the senses. ...

SUMMER ROLLS HELP SQUEEZE VEGGIES INTO THE PICNIC

BY SARA MOULTON
Associated Press

When it comes to packing a picnic basket, sandwiches are almost always the stars of the menu. And why not? They are easy to eat with your hands, pack well and are versatile enough to keep everyone happy.

And for the rest of the meal, we tend to lean toward yet more finger food — chips, cookies, hopefully some fruit. In other words, gobs of carbs. But vegetables? Not so much.

Sure, carrot sticks, celery sticks, strips of bell pepper, and stalks of broccoli and cauliflower are every bit as handy as a sandwich. But let's face it, many of us feel that eating raw, unadorned veggies is like taking medicine. You do it because you're supposed to, not necessarily because you want to.

So here's a tasty — and handy — way to smuggle vegetables onto the picnic menu: fresh summer rolls. This dish involves filling a rice paper wrapper with a combination of raw vegetables, herbs, cooked noodles, protein, and sometimes fruit. And frankly despite the name (they sometimes are called fresh spring rolls, too) I consider them to be delicious in any season.

And they're so easy to prepare. You don't even have to cook them. All you have to do is soak the wrapper in warm water to make it pliable. Then fill it with just about anything you like. My recipe focuses on vegetables because I wanted to help fill the veggie gap at the picnic table. But whatever the filling, please don't lose this recipe's fresh mint (or basil if you prefer). The fresh herb is key.

Conveniently, summer rolls can be made ahead of time, covered with damp paper towels and plastic wrap, and stored for up to four hours in the refrigerator. The damp towels keep the rolls from drying out and sticking to each other. And given their compactness, summer rolls also happen to travel well. You can layer them side-by-side in those plastic snap-tight containers, covered with the damp towels and wrap.

By the way, it was the sauce in this recipe that first sold me on summer rolls. I'd never eaten them until one day, years ago, when Chinese cookbook author Rosa Ross was a guest chef in my Gourmet magazine dining room. Rosa happens to make the most delicious peanut dipping sauce on the planet. That day at Gourmet I killed a bunch of those rolls just so I could return for yet another mouthful of her sauce.

Years later, at work on my second cookbook, I started concocting a peanut sauce of my own. I did a ton of research, trying to sort all the possible ingredients. But to keep myself from filching her ideas, I deliberately didn't check Rosa's recipe. When my rolls didn't turn out to be as wonderful as hers, I was forced to look at her formula. It featured most of the usual suspects: peanut butter, of course, and hoisin, sesame oil and soy sauce.

But it also contained one ingredient that I saw in no other recipe — scallions. Who knew that two lonely little scallions could make all the difference? I called up Rosa and asked if she'd allow me to use her recipe, slightly adapted, in my cookbook, and give her credit. She graciously said yes. Now I'm sharing that sauce with you. Next picnic, don't be surprised if your kids start ignoring the chips and dogging the veggies.

Just blame it on the peanut sauce.

Fresh Summer Rolls with Spicy Peanut Dipping Sauce

*Start to finish: 40 minutes
Makes 16 rolls*

- For the dipping sauce:
3/4 cup smooth unsalted natural peanut butter
1/2 cup hoisin sauce
2 to 3 tablespoons lime or lemon juice, or to taste
2 scallions, white and green parts, coarsely chopped
1 tablespoon low-sodium soy sauce
2 teaspoons sesame oil
Hot sauce, to taste
2 tablespoons water
- For the rolls:
1 tablespoon rice vinegar
1/2 teaspoon sugar
Kosher salt
1 cup coarsely shredded carrots
1 cup shredded Napa cabbage

- Sixteen 8-inch rice paper wrappers
1/2 medium jicama, cut into julienne strips (about 1 cup)
1 cup thinly sliced red bell pepper strips
1 cup blanched and thinly sliced snow peas
32 large fresh mint leaves

To make the dipping sauce, in a food processor or blender combine the peanut butter, hoisin, 2 tablespoons lime juice, the scallions, soy sauce, sesame oil, hot sauce and water. Puree until smooth. Taste and add more lime juice or hot sauce if desired, and additional water if necessary to thin the sauce to a good dipping consistency. Transfer to a bowl and set aside.

To prepare the rolls, in a small bowl combine the rice vinegar, sugar and a hefty pinch of salt. Whisk until the salt and sugar are dissolved. Add the carrots and cabbage and toss well. Set aside.

Fill a large bowl with hot water. Add 1 rice paper wrapper to the water and let soak for 10 to 15 seconds, or until just barely soft and pliable. Lay the wrapper flat on the counter. In the center of the wrapper, place a small, oblong mound of the carrot-cabbage mixture, then top with a bit each of jicama, bell pepper and snow peas. Top with 2 mint leaves.

To fold the roll, start by folding the right and left sides of the wrapper over the fillings. Next, fold the end closest to you up over the fillings and sides. Holding the roll firmly, roll it away from you until the remaining wrapper is completely rolled up. Transfer the roll, seam side down, to a plate and cover with a damp paper towel. Repeat with the remaining wrappers and fillings.

The vegetable rolls can be made up to 4 hours ahead, covered with a damp paper towel and plastic wrap and chilled. Serve with the dipping sauce.

A Kebab as Happy on the Grill as Under the Broiler

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

The trouble with spring is that we get eager to grill, but we can't always count on the weather to cooperate.

Admittedly, I am a fair weather griller. I know some people who gleefully brave blizzards for the joy of putting meat to searing grate. I simply am not so hardy a man. A bit of a chill or dampness in the air is enough to scuttle my grill plans and send me back indoors.

Of course, that can make planning a challenge. Coming up with a whole new menu just because I don't want to get wet doesn't quite work for my life. So this time of year I tend to gravitate to recipes that won't complain if I need to move them indoors. This lemon-pepper lamb with bell pepper couscous is just such a recipe.

The meat marinates in a bath of olive oil, lemon juice, garlic and gobs of fresh oregano and rosemary. And while 30 minutes is plenty of time, it also can sit this way for up to 24 hours.

When you're ready to cook, it's on and off the grill in under 10 minutes. Weather not working for you? Move it indoors and pop the meat under the broiler. You'll be eating in the same amount of time.

If you're doing things ahead of time, consider also prepping your tzatziki in advance. The flavor gets better with time.

Lemon-garlic Lamb Kebabs with Bell Pepper Couscous

*Start to finish: 30 minutes, plus marinating
Servings: 6*

- For the lamb:
1/4 cup olive oil
6 cloves garlic, minced
2 tablespoons chopped fresh oregano
2 tablespoons chopped fresh rosemary
Juice 1 lemon
1 teaspoon kosher salt
1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
3 pounds lamb loin, cut into 2-inch chunks

- For the yogurt sauce:
6-ounce container plain Greek yogurt
Zest and juice of 1 lemon
1 tablespoon chopped fresh chives
1 small cucumber, peeled and finely chopped
Kosher salt and ground black pepper

- For the couscous:
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 medium yellow onion, diced
1 green bell pepper, cored and diced
2 cups chicken broth
1 cup couscous

In a large bowl, mix together the olive oil, garlic, oregano, rosemary, lemon juice, salt and pepper.

Add the lamb, toss to coat evenly, then cover and refrigerate for at least 30 minutes and up to 24 hours.

When ready to cook, heat the grill to medium high or heat the oven on broil.

If using the broiler, line a rimmed baking sheet with foil, then set a metal rack over it. Coat the rack with cooking spray.

While the grill or oven heats, make the yogurt sauce. In a small bowl, mix together the yogurt, garlic, lemon zest and juice, chives, cucumber, 1/2 teaspoon of salt and 1/4 teaspoon of pepper.

To make the couscous, in a medium saucepan over medium-high, heat the oil. Add the onion and peppers, then saute for 5 minutes. Add the broth and bring to a simmer. Sprinkle in the couscous, then cover and remove from the heat.

To cook the lamb, thread the meat onto kebabs. If using the grill, use an oil-soaked paper towel held with tongs to coat the grates. Set the kebabs on the grates, close the cover and cook for 5 minutes, then turn and cook for another 2 to 3 minutes. If using the broiler, set the kebabs on the prepared pan and broiler for the same time.

Fluff the couscous, then divide between serving plates. Set lamb kebabs over each serving of couscous and serve with the yogurt sauce.

Per serving: 790 calories; 460 calories from fat (58 percent of total calories); 51 g fat (17 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 150 mg cholesterol; 30 g carbohydrate; 3 g fiber; 3 g sugar; 50 g protein; 840 mg sodium.

Alvarez

Alvarez opens the hatch to show rubbed chicken legs and amber seared pieces of pork sausage wrapped in bacon.

“You never put sauce on chicken to begin with,” Alvarez said. “Otherwise, you get that black, burnt-looking chicken. It’s always the last 15 minutes or so. There’s too much sugar in the barbecue sauces. You got to lay back. The sausage I dipped once, not the ones with bacon but I normally just dip them rather than brush because you get an even coating.”

There’s no secret to Alvarez’s touch. He openly divulges that his barbecue sauce is a mixture of Sweet Baby Ray’s, brown sugar, honey and pure maple syrup. Transparency also goes with his rub on the legs, “a basic barbecue rub, cyan pepper, brown sugar, cumin and a little cilantro.”

Despite what he describes as an “I love me” trophy room in his apartment, Alvarez is modest about his accomplishments.

“I’m a world champion cook, not a world champion chef,” Alvarez said. “There’s a big difference. I don’t wear a chef’s hat. I wear a cowboy hat.”

A basic Weber charcoal setup sits to the right of the offset. Alvarez pulls the lid off the short grill and a plume of smoke shrouds sizzling hamburgers and bacon-wrapped hot dogs.

“I always toast the hamburger buns,” Alvarez said shifting back to the offset with a plate full of meat. “Never put the meat directly on the bun. Put it on lettuce so the bun doesn’t get soggy.”

After tasting the most amazing chicken legs and sausage in my life, Alvarez explained that what he prepared for us was more like amateur hour for him. He said he hasn’t made hot dogs in almost 10 years. These days, more elaborate dishes frequent his yard, such as 15-pound briskets and whole turkeys he cooks in a 55 gallon steel drum modified into a three-level smoker.

For those interested in getting his or her hands on non-propane tasting food, Alvarez recommends starting with an 18 or 22-inch Weber “One-Touch Silver” charcoal grill and using Kingsford briquettes, which he said will burn for 45 minutes without having to be replaced.

As for meats, he said to start with hamburgers and hot dogs, move up to steaks and then get into more complex meals like smoked briskets and tenderloins.

Dutch Oven Cooking

Alvarez was raised near the King Ranch in Texas, one of the largest ranches in the world. Since his mom taught school on the ranch, Alvarez was exposed to grilling fresh cuts of meat as early as 8 years old. His Dutch oven expertise came when Alvarez moved to the Magic Valley from California 10 years ago. He went to a local Dutch oven competition and the following year won second place at a July 4 cookoff in Rupert.

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

“I said I was coming back the next year to win the competition and they laughed (and thought) ‘Here’s just a dumb Texan bragging.’”

Alvarez soon won more Dutch oven titles, including becoming the world champ in 2008 at the annual International Dutch Oven Society event in Salt Lake City, where he swept the competition with a three-layer tiramisu cake, raspberry twist bread and a flatiron steak.

Many combinations of meal and dessert items can be cooked in a Dutch oven. For practice, the cast iron assembly can be put in an oven preheated to 350 degrees with its most common dish, peach cobbler.

A Dutch oven’s natural habitat is on campfire coals, but Alvarez said briquettes can also heat the outdoor crockpot, which is what he did for me and Times-News photographer Ashley Smith.

I’ve tried peach cobbler in many forms and the stuff Alvarez scooped out of his Dutch oven was the best I’ve ever tasted.

Plus, Alvarez said, it’s easy to make.

“That’s one of the best things you can do in a Dutch oven is a cobbler,” Alvarez said. “It’s easy, for one. If I told you how I did that you wouldn’t believe it. I take three cans of peaches, dumped them in the oven, brown sugar, cinnamon, mix it all up and take white cake mix or yellow cake mix, pour it on top, put a couple slices of butter in there and some chopped walnuts. It’s done and ready in 35 to 45 minutes.”

For cobbler, beginners may have to measure things out, Alvarez said, but usually not unless the cake mix is made from scratch. Dessert isn’t the only thing that can be made in a Dutch oven. Migas are an easy breakfast — a mixture of corn tortillas, scrambled eggs and a can of Ro-Tel tomatoes.

Looking for a Dutch oven? They’re commonly found in outdoor sporting goods stores. Rudy’s - A Cook’s Paradise also sells them in downtown Twin Falls.

Summer Grilling Recipes

For the Times-News

Bacon-wrapped Hot Dogs

Wrap the hot dog with a strip of bacon, using a toothpick if necessary to hold in place.

Cook to desired doneness. I like mine with a lot of char on them. Use your favorite condiments and enjoy. These can be made on a grill or over an open fire while camping.

Alvarez

Unlimited Ways to Cook Burgers

Forget the simple burger and think out of the box. Wrap the patty with bacon, use two patties and use cheese: blue cheese, pepper jack, or American between the patties. Onion rings, pulled pork, chorizo or sautéed mushrooms can also go between two patties. Use your imagination to make a better burger.

Grilled Chicken

Legs or thighs are great on the grill, spice them up with your favorite rub, put them on the grill, prepare your barbecue sauce 15 minutes before they are done and apply the sauce. Be sure to use indirect heat to begin with and finish over direct heat.

Side Dishes

Beans, mustard potato salad, macaroni salad, baked potatoes (wrapped in foil and placed in the fire embers) can go on the grill wrapped in foil.

Desserts

Got to have Dutch oven peach cobbler, fast n’ easy, three bags frozen peaches (or fresh sliced if you have them) in a 10” Dutch oven. Cover the bottom with the peaches, add a handful of brown sugar and some cinnamon powder, chopped walnuts and stir well. Then add a box of cake mix. Add a couple chunks of butter on top of the cake mix. Do not stir. Then add three-quarter can of 7UP to the pot, cover with the lid and bake for about 35-45 minutes. Your nose should let you know when it’s done.

Now if you want some real low ‘n’ slow cooked barbecue, ribs, pork butts, brisket, chicken or sausage, we will be talking about that later this summer.

CLEANING

Question:

My garage is such a dirty mess! Seems like all of winter's gross gunk and yucky muck accumulated, then multiplied and replenished itself! Where do I start? I feel like slamming the door and running away! "I park the car then run real far!"

Minico High track and field coach Steve Haugeberg puts away hurdles on Tuesday afternoon at the school. The Spartans wrapped up the school's first-ever boys state track and field championship Saturday in Eagle.

Minico's Modest Mentor

Here's the story of Steve Haugeberg, the coach of Minico's track and field coach, fresh off a state championship victory, who'd prefer not to see this story printed.

BY RYAN HOWE

rhowe@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • Steve Haugeberg doesn't want this story printed.

He'd prefer the spotlight fall on the kids who delivered Minico High its first boys state track and field championship in school history last Saturday, not their coach.

He'd just as soon you didn't know how many hours he dedicates to Minidoka County's students, as a government teacher, assistant football coach, basketball scoreboard operator and ski school advisor.

He insists this story should be about Wes Patterson and Brad Cooper, from whom he says he learned everything he knows about coaching track.

He'd rather talk about the contributions of his assistant coaches, Gary Mittlesteadt, Cliff Holbrook, Calvin Pruett and Randy Reddington.

Although he's coached at Minico since 1997, no file photos exist of him in the Times-News archives.

Just like the boys state track title was, the story of Steve Haugeberg is long overdue.

star and earned a scholarship to Montana State as a running back.

One of his most memorable college games was the first week of the 1988 season. As a redshirt freshman, Haugeberg earned a spot on the traveling squad and took his first-ever airplane flight to Gainesville, Florida, to play the Gators and Emmitt Smith.

Florida beat the Bobcats 69-0, and 25 years later Haugeberg laughs about the suffocating humidity, the unbearable heat that made his shoes melt to the astroturf, and the Florida players' unbelievable speed.

The next year, Haugeberg earned a starting role in MSU's backfield. Unfortunately, a series of concussions cut his career short. But Haugeberg stuck around the team one more season as a student-coach, which altered his life path.

"I didn't have any intention of ever getting into coaching. My only experience with it was watching all the pressure on my college coaches, and that didn't look like fun," he said.

Once he got a taste, Haugeberg fell in love with coaching.

"Coaching is teaching kids, establishing relationships with kids and seeing them succeed and guiding them

Shoshone Grad Hutchins Signs at Williston State

TIMES-NEWS

WILLISTON, N.D. • Former Shoshone High School standout Kelcie Hutchins has signed with the Williston State College (N.D.) women's basketball program, the school announced.

Hutchins was a three-year starter at shooting guard for Shoshone, where she was a three-time all-conference selection. She averaged 13 points per game in her career and shot 79 percent from the foul line.

She was a 2012 graduate of Shoshone and did not play anywhere last season. Now she'll play for a familiar name in Idaho circles: Luanne Axelsson, who coached at Hagerman and Gooding before heading off to North Dakota.

"Missing that season made me realize how much I love basketball," Hutchins said in a release from the school. "I know I will have to work twice as hard as everyone else, and I am excited for that challenge. Coach A, out of anyone, can improve my game and bring me to that next level of play."

The Tetons made the second round of the NJCAA Division I Tournament last season, knocking out North Idaho College in the first round.

They played seven players in that game, so Hutchins figures to provide some depth if nothing else, even if Axelsson sees big things for her Idaho recruit.

"I am extremely excited for Kelcie to come to WSC," Axelsson said. I have been fortunate enough to have the opportunity to watch her play quite a bit. She is a consistent outside shooter and will be another weapon in our arsenal."

Kimberly's Jordan Wall Headed to MacMurray

TIMES-NEWS

KIMBERLY • One sport just won't do for Jordan Wall.

The Kimberly senior is headed to NCAA Division III school MacMurray College (Ill.) to play both softball and women's basketball.

MacMurray women's basketball coach Derek James and Kimberly softball coach Rich Bishop both confirmed Wall's decision to the Times-News.

As a senior Wall helped the Bulldogs to the 3A state play-in game on the hardwood, and third in the 3A District IV tournament on the diamond.

The Highlanders went 10-14 in basketball and 5-28 in softball in the sports' respective most recent seasons.

As an NCAA Division III school, MacMurray does not offer athletic scholarships.

NEW YORK • Daniel Paille

snapped a tie with 3:31 left in the third period, and the Boston Bruins put the New York Rangers on the brink of elimination with a 2-1 victory in Game 3 of the Eastern Conference semifinal series on Tuesday night. Boston leads the best-of-seven series 3-0 and can advance to the conference finals as early as Thursday at Madison Square Garden. Only three teams in NHL history have rallied from an 0-3 hole to advance.

The Bruins trailed 1-0 heading into the third, but defenseman Johnny Boychuk tied it at 3:10 of the period with his fourth of the playoffs. The Rangers hadn't lost in regulation when leading after two periods since Feb. 4, 2010.

Boston thought it had grabbed the lead seconds before Paille actually scored when a shot deflected off the mask of Rangers goalie Henrik Lundqvist, popped up in the air and landed on the goal line. Lundqvist couldn't find it before Paille swooped in from behind the net and poked in the puck.

Taylor Pyatt had made it 1-0 in the second period for the Rangers, who were outscored 8-4 in two losses at Boston to begin the series. New York had won nine straight games at home, including three in the playoffs against Washington in the first round.

Lundqvist was sharp until the third period and finished with 32 saves. Tuukka Rask stopped 23 shots in the win.

Cavs Win NBA Draft Lottery

NEW YORK • Nick Gilbert and the Cleveland Cavaliers have beaten the NBA lottery odds again.

The Cavaliers won the lottery for the second time in three years Tuesday, giving them the No. 1 pick for the June 27 draft.

Gilbert, owner Dan Gilbert's bowtie-wearing son, was on stage for another the victory. After he won it in 2011, the Cavs used the pick to take eventual Rookie of the Year Kyrie Irving.

The Orlando Magic fell back one spot to No. 2, while the Washington Wizards vaulted from the No. 8 spot to third.

Del Negro Won't Get New Contract

LOS ANGELES • Vinny Del Negro is out as coach of the Los Angeles Clippers after a season in which the team won its first division title but lost in the first round of the playoffs.

The team said Tuesday he won't be offered a contract when his current one expires at the end of June. He is just the second coach to leave the team with a winning record, following Larry Brown in 1993.

Del Negro had a 128-102 regular-season record in three years with the team. The Clippers made the playoffs the last two seasons, including last year when they advanced to the second round for only the second time since the franchise moved to Los Angeles in 1984.

This season, the team won a franchise-record 56 games, including a 17-game winning streak. And with All-Stars Chris Paul and Blake Griffin, the Clippers were one of the NBA's most exciting attractions, with acrobatic dunks and dazzling playmaking. But the postseason was quick and disappointing — an exit in six games to Memphis despite a 2-0 lead.

Murray Out of French Open

LONDON • Andy Murray has withdrawn from the French Open after seeking medical advice on his back injury.

The second-ranked Briton was forced to pull out of the Italian Open during his second-round match against Marcel Granollers of Spain last Wednesday because of a lower back complaint.

The U.S. Open champion met with specialists this week and has opted to now focus on preparing for the start of the grass-court season and Wimbledon next month.

Murray says in a statement: "It's a really tough decision and I love playing in Paris, but after seeking medical advice I am not fit to compete," adding "now my complete focus is on getting back on the court as soon as possible."

The French Open starts Sunday.

Yankees, Man City to Co-own MLS Team

NEW YORK • The New York Yankees are going into the soccer business.

The Yankees are partnering with Manchester City to own Major League Soccer's 20th team, which will be called New York City Football Club and plans to start play in the 2015 season.

Manchester City, owned by Sheik Mansour bin Zayed bin Sultan Al Nahyan, will be the majority owner of the team. Yankees President Randy Levine will be the lead person responsible for launching the team.

While MLS has been negotiating with New York to build a stadium in Flushing Meadows Corona Park, near the home of the New York Mets, NYC FC will start play at an interim home and will consider other sites for a stadium. Levine said Yankee Stadium, where Manchester City plays Chelsea in an exhibition on Saturday, is a possibility for an initial home.

Pirates Rally Past Cubs

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PITTSBURGH • Travis Snider hit a pinch-hit grand slam during a five-run sixth and the Pittsburgh Pirates spoiled a strong return to the mound for Matt Garza with a 5-4 win over the Chicago Cubs on Tuesday night. Garza allowed one hit over five shutout innings in his first outing in 10 months, but the Pirates pounced on a Chicago bullpen that is 10th in the National League in ERA by sending 11 men to the plate in the sixth. Snider's first career home run with the bases loaded was the first Pirates pinch-hit grand slam in five years. Garza had been sidelined since July 21 because of a stress reaction in his right elbow and, later, a strained upper back.. Wandy Rodriguez (5-2) allowed three runs on six hits over six innings for the Pirates, who have won nine of 11.

PHILLIES 7, MARLINS 3
MIAMI • Delmon Young homered and Ryan Howard added three hits and three RBIs to help carry Philadelphia. Tyler Cloyd (1-0) allowed two runs and eight hits in seven innings. He was recalled from Triple-A Lehigh Valley (International League) earlier in the day. Miami's Jose Fernandez went five innings, allowing one run and five hits. He walked one and struck out two. Philadelphia went ahead 2-1 in the sixth when Domonic Brown's ground out scored Howard from third. Howard led off with a single and took third on Young's double to deep center off Duane Below (0-1). Howard's single with the bases loaded scored two runs and highlighted a four-run seventh that gave the Phillies a 6-1 lead. Howard returned to the lineup after missing two games with a sore left knee. He received a cortisone shot Sunday.

REDS 4, METS 0
NEW YORK • Mike Leake pitched three-hit ball for seven sharp innings and the Cincinnati Reds capitalized on star third baseman David Wright's early error. Devin Mesoraco homered as the Reds won for the ninth time in 11 games. They scored three times in the first inning after Wright let a bases-loaded, two-out grounder skip through his legs.

American League
TIGERS 5, INDIANS 1

CLEVELAND • Miguel Cabrera hit a two-run homer and Max Scherzer retired 22 straight batters after the first inning to stop the Indians' winning streak at five and trim their lead in the AL Central. Cabrera's laser shot in the sixth inning off Corey Kluber (3-3) helped the Tigers win for just the second time in six games. The defending AL champions also moved within 1 1-2 games of the first-place Indians, who have won 18 of 23 since April 28. Scherzer (6-0) gave up two singles and a run in the first before shutting down baseball's hottest team for eight innings.

ORIOLES 3, YANKEES 2, 10 INNINGS
BALTIMORE • Nate McLouth homered leading off the bottom of the 10th inning, Chris Dickerson hit a pair of solo shots and the Baltimore Orioles snapped a six-game losing streak. McLouth hit a 1-1 pitch from Vidal Nuno (1-1) into the bleachers in right-center to give the Orioles their first win since May 12.

Jim Johnson (2-4), who blew three save opportunities during the six-game skid, got three straight outs in the 10th. His performance capped an exceptional effort by Orioles pitchers, who retired 21 of the last 22 New York batters.

RAYS 4, BLUE JAYS 3
TORONTO • Kelly Johnson and Desmond Jennings homered, and Alex Cobb won for the first time in three starts. Cobb (5-2) allowed one run and three hits in 6 1-3 innings for his first victory since winning at Colorado on May 5. The right-hander walked two and struck out two. Thirteen of his 19 outs came on groundballs.

Jake McGee got two outs in the seventh before the Blue Jays rallied against Joel Peralta in the eighth. Munenori Kawasaki singled, Melky Cabrera walked and Jose Bautista hit an RBI single. Edwin Encarnacion struck out before Adam Lind reach on a fielding error by second baseman Ryan Roberts. Roberts redeemed himself when Fernando Rodney came on and got J.P. Arencibia to ground in to an inning-ending double play on the first pitch, with Roberts and shortstop Yunel Escobar combining.

S.F., Houston Get Super Bowl Bids

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON • The NFL will celebrate its 50th Super Bowl in northern California, where its newest, most high-tech venue is being built. That makes South Florida, in the midst of a spat over expensive stadium renovations, a loser for the 2016 game. And Miami took a double defeat when Houston was awarded the 2017 championship game. In two separate votes, NFL owners Tuesday went with the both San Francisco Bay Area and Houston on the first ballot at their spring meetings. The 49ers' new home is set to open next year in Santa Clara, and will host the first Super Bowl in the area since 1985. Houston staged the 2004 Super Bowl. Miami has hosted 10 of them — including the Jets upset of the Colts in 1969 — and is tied with New Orleans for the most. But South Florida got rejected twice after the Florida Legislature did not support financing to renovate Sun Life Stadium. “We are so excited to be able to be able to put on the ‘Golden Super Bowl’ in the Golden State,” 49ers CEO Jed York said. They will stage it in what is being promoted as the most technologically advanced stadium in the world, and earned that right on a day when the NFL made a $400 million deal with Microsoft to upgrade the fan viewing experience. Levi's Stadium figures to be the first cashless, ticketless venue in NFL championship history, with WiFi capability for 75,000 people. “After losing a Super Bowl (to Baltimore last February), it feels really good to win a Super Bowl,” York cracked. Houston hosted once before, in 2004, and is calling the 51st Super Bowl an international experience that will include fans from Mexico. “I think a lot of them just felt like, hey, it's Houston's time,” Texans owner Robert McNair said of his colleagues. “They knew we could do a good job. From 2004 to '17, that's 13 years. So I agree, I think it's Houston's time.” The only previous Super Bowl played in northern California was at Stanford Stadium in 1985.

through that,” he said. “To see kids have success, in whatever capacity, whether it be a state championship or a personal best, that's what makes it worthwhile.” After college, newly wed with a child on the way, Haugeberg landed the first job he could find — at West Minico Middle School. He thought he would work for a few years, gain experience and then move on. That was 20 years ago. “He's been offered head coaching jobs other places, but I'm glad he's still here,” said Minico head football coach Tim Perrigot, who started at West Minico the same year as Haugeberg, 1992. “He's my best friend and we've been together since we started. He's been my right-hand man.” As young coaches in their mid-20s, the pair moved up to the high school, Perrigot as head football coach, Haugeberg as defensive coordinator and head track coach. When Haugeberg took over Minico track in 1997-98, the program had been in the capable hands of Patterson, who still serves as a volunteer assistant coach. The 30-plus years of experience of both Patterson and Cooper, the throws coach, was vital in the Spartans' state championship, Haugeberg said. Minico won a girls state title in 2001, but until last Saturday its boys had never won, despite coming close on several occasions. “We've gone to state before where we've lost it on a false start, or (other unlucky mishaps). Finally the luck was all on our side,” Haugeberg said. “First you've got to have the talent, which we did. We have some very talented kids and they can make you look like an awesome coach.” According to the athletes, they're not the reason Haugeberg looks like an awesome coach. “We couldn't have done it without him,” said senior Taylor Seaton. “There were points during the season when I was down on myself a little bit, and he was the one who pushed me and kept me working hard, kept us all going and kept our hopes up. He's the one who told us we could do it, that we could win a state championship. He had faith in us.”

...

The Minico football team has either won outright or shared the Great Basin Conference championship eight of the last nine years and Haugeberg is a big reason why. His contributions often go unnoticed — and he prefers it that way — but the players know who the unsung hero is. “Coach Haug knows a lot about what he's doing: running backs, corner backs, safeties, even linebackers,” said senior Caleb Worley. Haugeberg doesn't talk much, but when he does, the kids listen. “Haug is definitely the quieter coach, but sometimes it's smarter to be quiet because he can think about what he's doing and he can correct Perrigot's mistakes. Even if Perrigot gets mad at him, usually coach Haug is right,” Worley said.

They've ran Minico's varsity football program for 17 years like Batman and Robin, Sherlock Holmes and Watson. Perrigot's fiery, emotional style is offset by Haugeberg's calm, steady demeanor. Haugeberg's bend-don't-break defensive philosophy epitomizes his patience. It's preparation, attention to detail and trusting the game plan. It's playing a solid base defense and forcing opponents to sustain long drives, knowing eventually high school offenses will make a mistake. Ironically, that same philosophy worked to bring Minico its state track championship on Saturday. Despite having not won a single track meet all season, Haugeberg set up his team to win state, and got his kids to believe. “We felt really confident going into state knowing that everything was going to be all right,” Worley said. “He told us to do what you do, we don't need anything spectacular, no miracles need to happen. He said if we run like we did at districts, we're going to win the state track meet.” Sure enough, Haugeberg's boys stayed calm and steady while the opposition made costly mistakes — a false start here, a botched relay handoff there — and the Spartans prevailed by the slimmest of margins, edging runner-up Rigby by just 1.25 points. “It was a total team effort,” Haugeberg said. “All the kids feel really good about their contribution. It's a really neat way to win it. I was so excited for the kids.”

MICHAEL JORDAN: BOBCATS CHANGING NAME TO HORNETS

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE, N.C. • Michael Jordan wants to “bring the buzz back” to Charlotte. The Bobcats owner said at a press conference Tuesday evening he's changing his team's name to the Charlotte Hornets beginning in 2014-15. Jordan said he submitted an application to the NBA board of governors earlier Tuesday informing them of his decision and is optimistic the board will approve the name change when they convene in July. “Let's bring the buzz back, and bring that energy back on the basketball court and make this city proud again,” Jordan said.

Charlotte will remain the Bobcats next season, but if all goes as planned Jordan anticipates his team will become the Hornets the following season. Jordan said his organization is giving the fans what they want. “We spoke to our season ticket holders and fans, and overwhelmingly you guys wanted the Hornets name back,” Jordan said. “And we went out and brought the name back.” NBA deputy commissioner and COO Adam Silver previously said it would take about 18 months for the Bobcats to change their name, but pointed out the fact that the league owns the rights to the name Hornets could help speed up the transition process. Silver said in the April interview the name change would be “an enormously complex process and a very expensive process for the team. From everything to the uniforms, to the building, to the letterhead to the signs on the offices — “all of that has to be taken into account.” Pete Guelli, Charlotte's executive vice president and chief sales marketing officer, estimated the cost of changing the name to the Hornets at about $4 million. He added, however, that the decision wasn't based on money and that “nothing was going to keep us from going down this road because this is what the fans wanted.” Jordan knows that it will take more than just changing the name of the front of the jersey to turn his struggling franchise around — it will take talent. The Bobcats are 28-120 over the past two seasons, the worst record in the league. “Ultimately we still have to play the game at a high level, which is what the Hornets did for a long period of time,” Jordan said. “Changing the name does not guarantee that we're going to be a playoff-contending team. We still have a lot of work to do to build that. I'm not walking away from that. It is what it is.” He said it's too early in the process to know if the team will keep the Hornets' teal and purple colors. The NBA's Hornets resided in Charlotte from 1988-2002 before then-owner George Shinn moved the team to New Orleans following a financial dispute with city officials over replacing the Charlotte Coliseum. Shinn wanted a new arena with additional luxury suites.

Charlotte Bobcats owner Michael Jordan speaks during an NBA basketball news conference in Charlotte, N.C., Tuesday. The Bobcats announced that the team will be changing their name to the Charlotte Hornets.

The New Orleans Hornets, now owned by Tom Benson, recently changed their name to the Pelicans. Charlotte was awarded an expansion team in 2003 and then-owner Bob Johnson named the team the Bobcats. The venture was a financial disaster for Johnson, who lost millions before selling majority ownership to Jordan in 2010. Even with Jordan at the helm, the Bobcats have never come close to matching the popularity of the Hornets, a team which sold out 364 straight home games, a streak that stretched nearly nine full seasons. Since 2010 three Charlotte area residents have been leading a grass roots movement to persuade Jordan to bring back the popular Hornets nickname.

Golf Adopts Rule to Ban Anchored Putting Stroke

The new rule will make it illegal to anchor the club against the body when making a golf stroke.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Golf's two governing bodies outlawed the anchored putting stroke used by four of the last six major champions, approving a new rule that starts in 2016 and urging the PGA Tour to follow along so the 600-year-old sport is still played under one set of rules.

The Royal & Ancient Golf Club and the U.S. Golf Association adopted Rule 14-1b, which prohibits players from anchoring a club against their bodies.

"We strongly believe that this rule is for the betterment of the game," USGA President Glen Nager said. "Rule 14-1b protects one of the important challenges in the game — the free swing of the entire club."

The decision Tuesday ends six months of sometimes rancorous debate. The rule was opposed by the PGA Tour and the PGA of America, which contended the stroke commonly used for long putters was not hurting the game and there was no statistical proof that it was an advantage.

"We recognize this has been a divisive issue, but after thorough consideration, we remain convinced that this is the right decision for golf," R&A chief executive Peter Dawson said at European Tour headquarters outside London.

The next step — and perhaps the most important step — is for the PGA Tour to follow the new rule or decide to establish its own condition of competition that would allow players to anchor the long putters. Most believe that would lead to chaos in golf. If a special condition were allowed for the PGA Tour, it would mean players could not use the anchored stroke at the U.S. Open and British Open. Augusta National is likely to follow the new rule at the Masters.

PGA Tour Commissioner Tim Finchem said in February the USGA and R&A would be "making a mistake" to adopt the rule, though he also has stressed in just about every interview that it was critical for golf to play under one set of rules.

The tour said in a statement it would consult with its Player Advisory Council and policy board to determine "whether various provisions of Rule 14-1b will be implemented in our competitions, and if so, examine the process for implementation." It declined further comment until then.

"I think it's really important that the PGA Tour — and all the professional tours — continue to follow one set of rules," USGA executive director Mike Davis said. "We have gotten very positive feedback from the tours around the world saying that they like one set of rules, they like the R&A and USGA governing those. So if there was some type of schism, we don't think that would be good for golf."

In this May 9 file photo, Adam Scott of Australia putts on the 15th green during the first round of The Players championship golf tournament at TPC Sawgrass in Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla. Golf's governing bodies have adopted a new rule that outlaws the putting stroke used by four of the last six major champions. The Royal & Ancient Golf Club and U.S. Golf Association announced Tuesday that Rule 14-1b would start in 2016.

"And we are doing what we think is right for the long-term benefit of the game for all golfers, and we just can't write them for one group of elite players."

The new rule does not ban the long putters, only the way they commonly are used. Golfers no longer will be able to anchor the club against their bodies to create the effect of a hinge. Masters champion Adam Scott used a long putter he pressed against his chest. British Open champion Ernie Els and U.S. Open champion Webb Simpson used a belly putter, as did Keegan Bradley in the 2011 PGA Championship.

PGA of America President Ted Bishop, who had some of the sharpest comments over the last few months, also said his group would discuss the new rule — and confer with the PGA Tour — before deciding how to proceed.

"We are disappointed with this outcome," Bishop said. "As we have said publicly and repeatedly during the comment period, we do not believe 14-1b is in the best interest of recreational golfers and we are concerned about the negative impact it may have on both the enjoyment and growth of the game."

Some forms of anchoring have been around at least 40 years, and old photographs suggest it has been used even longer. It wasn't until after Bradley became the first major champion to use a belly putter that the USGA and R&A said it would take a new look at the putting style.

"It can never be too late to do the right thing," Nager said.

Those in favor of anchored putting argued that none of the top 20 players in the PGA Tour's most reliable putting statistic used a long putter, and if it was such an advantage, why wasn't everyone using it?

The governing bodies announced the proposed rule on Nov. 28, even though they had no data to show an advantage. What concerned them more was a spike in usage on the PGA Tour, more junior golfers using the long putters and comments from instructors that it was a better way to putt. There was concern the conventional putter would become obsolete over time.

Garcia, Woods Still Trading Barbs

ASSOCIATED PRESS

VIRGINIA WATER, England • Tiger Woods and Sergio Garcia don't like each other, and they're making no effort to disguise their feelings.

The verbal feuding began May 11 during the third round of The Players Championship. It resumed this week on both sides of the Atlantic when Woods offered a one-word answer if he thought about contacting Garcia to put the matter to rest.

"No," he replied with a tight smile.

Garcia fired back at a sponsor function outside London.

"He called me a whiner. That's probably right," he told reporters. "It's also probably the first thing he's told you guys that's true in 15 years. I know what he is like. You guys are finding out."

Garcia tried to tone down the barbs Tuesday at the BMW Championship when asked about the spat.

"I can't like everybody and there's people that you connect with and there's people that you don't," Garcia said at Wentworth. "He doesn't need me in his life, I don't need him in mine and let's move on and keep doing what we're doing. There's never really been a true connection I would have with maybe Luke (Donald) or Adam Scott or some of the other guys that I get along with well."

"I think we should kind of move on and forget — well, it will be difficult to forget — but kind of move on about what happened."

Disputes among golfers are nothing new, though it's rare for two high-profile players to go at each other through the media.

The animosity between them goes as far back as 2000, when Garcia beat Woods in the Monday night exhibition "Battle at Bighorn" and celebrated as if he had won something much more important. Two years later in the U.S. Open at Bethpage Black, where Woods won wire-to-wire, Garcia complained that the second round should have been halted because of rain and that "if Tiger Woods would have been out there, it would have been called."

The latest chapter took place on the second fairway at the TPC Sawgrass in the

Garcia Sorry for 'Fried Chicken' Remark

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sergio Garcia is apologizing for saying he would "serve fried chicken" while making a joke about having Tiger Woods over for dinner.

The British newspaper The Guardian reports Garcia was asked in jest while on stage at the European Tour's awards dinner Tuesday night if he would invite Woods to dinner during the U.S. Open.

The Guardian reports Garcia said: "We will have him round every night. We will serve fried chicken."

The newspaper says Garcia released a statement through the European Tour: "I apologise for any offence that may have been caused by my comment on stage during The European Tour Players' Awards dinner. I answered a question that was clearly made towards me as a joke with a silly remark, but in no way was the comment meant in a racist manner." Garcia has acknowledged not getting along with Woods.

third round, when Garcia had a one-shot lead. He was preparing to play his second shot on the par 5 from the fairway when he was disrupted by cheers from the gallery around Woods deep in the trees. Woods was about 50 yards away and couldn't see the Spaniard. The crowd burst into cheers when Woods took a 5-wood from his bag to play a risky shot through a gap in the trees.

During a storm delay, Garcia suggested in a TV interview that Woods could have kept the crowd from cheering if he had been paying closer attention. Later that evening, Woods said he understood from marshals that Garcia had already hit.

Today is Wednesday, May 22, the 142nd day of 2013. There are 223 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On May 22, 1913, the American Cancer Society was founded in New York by a group of doctors and business leaders under its original name, the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1860, the United States and Japan exchanged ratifications of the Treaty of Amity and Commerce during a ceremony in Washington.

In 1935, President Franklin D. Roosevelt appeared before Congress to explain his decision to veto a bill that would have allowed World War I veterans to cash in bonus certificates before their 1945 due date.

In 1939, the foreign ministers of Germany and Italy, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Galeazzo Ciano, signed a "Pact of Steel" committing the two countries to a military alliance.

In 1947, the Truman Doctrine was enacted as Congress appropriated military and economic aid for Greece and Turkey.

In 1960, an earthquake of magnitude 9.5, the strongest ever measured, struck southern Chile, claiming some 1,655 lives.

In 1963, Greek politician Grigoris Lambrakis was attacked by right-wingers after delivering a speech in Thessaloniki; he died five days later. (The assassination inspired a book as well as the 1969 Costa-Gavras film "Z.")

In 1968, the nuclear-powered submarine USS Scorpion, with 99 men aboard, sank in the Atlantic Ocean. (The remains of the sub were later found on the ocean floor 400 miles southwest of the Azores.)

In 1969, the lunar module of Apollo 10, with Thomas P. Stafford and Eugene Cernan aboard, flew to within nine miles of the moon's surface in a dress rehearsal for the first lunar landing.

In 1972, President Richard Nixon began a visit to the Soviet Union, during which he and Kremlin leaders signed the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The island nation of Ceylon became the republic of Sri Lanka.

In 1981 "Yorkshire Ripper" Peter Sutcliffe was convicted in London of murdering 13 women and was sentenced to life in prison.

In 1992, after a reign lasting nearly 30 years, Johnny Carson hosted NBC's "Tonight Show" for the last time.

Ten years ago: Annika Sorenstam became the first woman since Babe Didrikson Zaharias in 1945 to tee off against the men on the pro tour, playing in the first round of the Colonial golf tournament in Fort Worth, Texas. (Sorenstam missed the cut the next day by four shots.)

Five years ago: A Texas appeals court said the state had no right to take more than 400 children from a polygamist group's ranch the previous month. (The children were returned to their parents.) Britain's Conservative Party won a special election that was viewed as a rebuke to Prime Minister and Labour Party leader Gordon Brown. Indiana Jones returned to the big screen in "Indiana Jones and the Kingdom of the Crystal Skull."

One year ago: The Falcon 9, built by billionaire businessman Elon Musk, sped toward the International Space Station with a load of groceries and other supplies, marking the first time a commercial spacecraft had been sent to the orbiting outpost. In Flint, Mich., Elias Abuelazam, a drifter accused of faking car trouble, then stabbing strangers who came to his aid, was convicted of murdering handyman Arnold Minor after jurors rejected an insanity defense. Wesley A. Brown, the first African-American to graduate from the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, died in Silver Spring, Md., at age 85. Green Bay Packers receiver Donald Driver and his professional partner, Peta Murgatroyd, won "Dancing with the Stars" on ABC.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently learned that our sister-in-law's adult son from a prior marriage, "Charlie," is now "Claire." My husband and I have three sons, ages 2 to 10 years.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

This sister-in-law expressed concern that our 10-year-old would remember Charlie and say something inappropriate. She's demanding that we lie to him and tell him Claire is another daughter we have never met. My husband and I do not lie to our children. We feel it is best to explain to all three of our sons that Charlie has decided to make a lifestyle change and let them ask questions if they choose. What is your opinion?

— TRUTH-TELLING PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: I don't believe in lying to children either, but before you tell your sons that Charlie decided to make a "lifestyle change," I urge you to do some research about gender identity. It is not as simple on any level as changing an aspect of one's lifestyle. It is about who Claire truly feels she is inside.

If your oldest boy remembers Charlie, he should know that some people feel from an early age that they were born into the wrong body — the wrong gender. Fortunately, there is help for it in the form of medication and surgery. He should be told that the problem has been solved and Charlie is now Claire. When the younger children are older, they can be told the same thing in an age-appropriate manner if the subject comes up.

DEAR ABBY: My children's father died of cancer about a year ago. As a result, they receive Social Security benefits as his surviving dependents. He had no life insurance, so this is all they have.

The problem is nearly everyone who finds out they receive this money becomes angry and jealous. Abby, these benefits came from his earnings and are meant to assist me in supporting the children he is no longer here to help with. We try not to mention the money, but sometimes it comes up in conversation.

How can people be jealous about money received from such a tragedy? Would they really want to lose a family member in exchange for cash? Please ask people to be more considerate in a situation where a child has paid a far greater price than any check in the mail could cover.

— SURVIVING MOM IN ILLINOIS

DEAR MOM: I'm sorry for your loss. People, particularly in a difficult economy, can become jealous if they think someone is getting "something for nothing." (And depending upon how dysfunctional a family is, they might indeed be willing to "lose" a family member in exchange for cash.)

I'm passing your sentiments along, but my advice to you is to stop discussing finances unless there is a specific reason why the person you're talking to must have that information.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law picks her nose in front of others by covering her finger with a tissue and then digging deep into her nose. She claims this is acceptable behavior even though the rest of us are grossed out. She refuses to stop unless somebody like you tells her otherwise.

Please help with this. I have a 7-year-old daughter who sees her, and I don't want her to think this is proper behavior in public.

— GROSSED OUT

DEAR GROSSED OUT: It's one thing to use a tissue for a gentle nose-blow, and quite another to use it as camouflage for a major excavation. That your MIL is grossing out those around her should be evidence enough that what she's doing is bad manners. It is showing lack of consideration for those around her.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"The iron tongue of midnight hath told twelve; Lovers, to bed; 'tis almost fairy time."

— William Shakespeare

In today's deal, South started low, then felt obliged to make one exploratory call above game, getting him to the Goldilocks level: not too low, not too high, just right for a newspaper article! North's four-spade bid simply suggested a minimum with four trumps, while his five-heart bid showed the ace or king, while denying a diamond control.

Against five spades, West was not challenged to lead the diamond jack. The defenders cashed two rounds of the suit and led a third, and declarer made the natural play of ruffing high, protecting against a possible over-ruff and prepared to claim his 11 tricks. However, when he led a top trump from hand and found the 5-0 trump break, a reassessment was required.

South found the solution when he cashed the two top clubs, then played the heart ace and king to put the lead in dummy in a five-card ending where dummy had the J-10-9 of spades and a high and low heart, while declarer had the trump Q-6 and three low clubs.

At this point, declarer led the low heart from dummy, giving East a problem to which there was no solution. If he ruffed high, declarer would overruff and draw trump, taking trick 13 with the master heart. If he ruffed low or discarded, declarer would score his small trump and take the last four tricks with a high crossruff.

ANSWER: This was the problem South faced today, and he opted to open one club and jump into spades rather than open two clubs. I wholeheartedly agree. The alternative of a two-club opening pre-empts your own side — wouldn't you rather get both suits into the auction and set up a game-force at the two-level than not bid either of your suits till the three-level?

IF MAY 22 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Plan ahead to make the most of a tranquil period in July when others will be more willing to support your dreams and when your judgment is at its best. That is a great time to put crucial plans into motion or to make key decisions. Don't be too proud to accept a helping hand. A burst of ambition or a shift of focus is likely in August and September, but you would be wise to wait until October or early November to make changes in finances, business, job or career. You may be tempted to follow a romantic fantasy, but it could drain your wallet or energies.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): When there is a cool head at the helm, a friendship can help you achieve ambitions. Rather than wasting your energies on politically volatile viewpoints and the latest fads, stick to honored traditions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): It is good to defend your territory, but unwise to instigate confrontations. With Mars, the planet of warfare, in your sign, you could be tempted to stick up for your rights if someone crosses the line.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Propriety could limit your prospects. Venus, planet of love and romance, is in your sign, so your heart may yearn to make romantic fantasies a reality. Other people could find you especially appealing today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Someone close could be tough to please, but you will be able to wear down the resistance over the next few days. Eventually, your charming ways will win a special someone's heart if you are patient.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Turn a negative into a positive by being tough at work and sweet at home. Someone close to you might be caught up in a hectic schedule, so this could be a perfect time to demonstrate true understanding.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Save your pennies for a rainy day. It is a sign of shrewdness to watch for sales; hold off on major purchases. You might meet a passing fancy in a public place, but new contacts must stand the test of time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Put your best foot forward and honor the conventions for the best results. A special someone may make expectations crystal clear. Don't pursue fun and games when serious responsibilities need attention.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Realize your dreams through determination. Tap into a well of self-discipline to start an exercise program, diet or to simply set down rules for organizing your belongings in a logical way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be concise and to the point; don't daydream. Some parts of life need to be run like a business, but you are prone to being overly sensitive and sympathetic when a tough stance is called for.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A little gallantry now will pay off big later. Just follow the rules of the game if it seems as though control of the ball is in the other person's court. Good relationships require continual give and take.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Put it in proper perspective. Self-discipline may be called for where business, job or career is concerned, but romantic fantasies are vying for your attention, as well. Remember to put business before pleasure.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Make it the real thing. If poetry travels through your mind, be sure to write it down. Your intuitions are heightened and you are capable of dreaming up inspiring images. Spend some quiet time alone.
