PAUL • A one-vehicle rollover crash resulted in the death of a teenager early Monday morning.

According to Idaho State Police, officers responded to a crash on SH25 at milepost 42, west of Paul around 4:30 a.m.

Jordin Kavert, 18, of Rupert, was traveling eastbound on SH25 in a 2000 Volkswagen Beetle. When Kavert crossed into the westbound lane, she went onto the westbound shoulder and struck the southbound shoulder of 950 West. Kavert then went airborne, landed in the north-bound lane of 950 West and continued into a nearby field, according to ISP reports.

The vehicle overturned and came to a stop on its roof. Kavert succumbed to her injuries at the scene.

Kavert was wearing a seatbelt at the time of the crash.

BY ALISON GENE SMITH

TWIN FALLS • Matt Smith couldn’t breathe. He couldn’t open his eyes. And his brain was beginning to swell.

Time was running out and an ambulance would not be able to get to him.

Smith had just fallen about 15 feet from an area known as Broken Bridge near Auger Falls, landing on his head, crushing part of his skull and breaking his femur.

Three days later, he awoke in a Boise hospital, confused and was covered in tubes and monitors.

As his brother walked in the room and started explaining what happened, Smith began pulling out the tubes that kept him alive. Smith told his brother he wanted to leave the hospital.

“He said, ‘No, man. You almost died,’” Smith said.

Smith underwent brain surgery, and had 30 staples from ear to ear across the top of his forehead.

Five weeks later, Smith is up walking and talking, nearly back to his old self.

“I’ve always been kind of a fast talking, let’s get it done kind of guy,” he said.

Now, he’s a little slower, but the father and business owner is still getting things done.

Smith’s friend, Mike Frank said Smith is the kind of person who will help anyone. When a friend called the night of April 20, needing a ride out of Auger Falls Park — he had a few too many drinks after a day of fishing — Smith, his wife Amy Koonce and Frank, piled into a pickup to go get him.

The three parked, walked across a bridge, “more of a cement slab than a bridge,” Frank said, to

Memorial Day Services a Reminder of Sacrifice

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • With poppy flowers tucked in hands and behind ears of members of the crowd before him, Wayne Goetz bowed his head and began reciting verses from “Old Glory.”

“But my finest hour comes when I am torn into strips to be used for bandages for my wounded comrades on the field of battle,” Goetz recited in a deep and somber voice. “When I fly at half mast to honor my soldiers and when I lie in the trembling arms of a grieving mother at the graveside of her fallen son.”

During Monday’s Memorial Day Service at the Twin Falls Cemetery, the old poem rung out to a small crowd who had come to honor the men and women who sacrificed their lives while serving this country in the military.

Bob Jackson, a Navy veteran and member of the local chapter of Veterans of Foreign Wars, praised the service of local veterans.

Straying from his original speech, Jackson urged the crowd that all veteran should be involved in at least one veteran support group like the VFW.

“Vets have got to get involved or you’re not going to see anything get done,” he said. “Right now, we don’t have enough participation.”

By the end of the ceremony, after the 21-gun salute and the playing of “Taps,” the crowd took a moment to release red, white and blue balloons, followed by a moment of silence.

Twin Falls was one of several cities that took time to honor the nation’s military service. Rep. Stephen Hartgen, R-Twin Falls, spoke at two Memorial Day events. Buhl, Filer and Burley also held services.

“These are debts we can repay only by honoring them,” Hartgen said. “We are also here to honor the values of our veterans.”

Curious Mind Over the Years, Memorials Have Honored Magic Valley Veterans

Many cities in the country have a memorial wall for soldiers from their town who were killed in action. Are there any in the Magic Valley?

Kimberly Williams-Brackett

Curious Mind

“There is a boulder on the grounds of the (Twin Falls County) courthouse with a memorial plaque paying tribute to local World War I veterans,” said Diane Greene with the Daughters of the American Revolution. “The memorial was donated by the Twin Falls chapter. It was originally installed on the courthouse lawn in 1922. It was removed for a while and then was reclaimed, restored, and placed at the south door of the courthouse in 1992.”

Greene said, “Every Veterans Day, the DAR meets at the memorial in the morning and places a wreath there for the day.”

“At City Park we have the Vietnam memorial on the corner of Shoshone Street and Sixth Avenue East for the fallen servicemen from that conflict,” said Twin Falls Parks and Recreation Director Dennis Bowyer. It was constructed in 1980.

“We have a World War memorial also at City Park — dedicated in 1941. It is located along Shoshone Street near the corner of Fourth Avenue East. Those two are the only ones we have on city property,” Bowyer said.

The Class of 1966 at Twin Falls High School erected a Vietnam War plaque on the entrance wall May 2007 in memory of alumni who served and died.

Twin Falls’ Sunset Memorial Park Veteran’s Monument was dedicated on Flag Day in honor of all veterans who have served. The surrounding area has been reserved especially for veterans.

In Twin Falls County, Buhl’s Veterans Memorial Park honors all veterans. It was constructed by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and donated to the city of Buhl in 1990. Hazelton lists all men who served in both World Wars on a large rock monument and water fountain next to city hall.

The Veterans Memorial Bridge located between Twin Falls and Jerome County crosses the Snake River on Route 50. Built in 1966, it replaced the older Hansen Bridge, which was a suspension bridge built in 1919.

The Magic Valley Veterans Memorial Cemetery and Rock Creek Veterans Cemetery is located three miles south of Hansen. According to interment.net, the Magic Valley cemetery has few veterans buried there. According to “Veterans Memorials in Idaho,” Rock Creek Cemetery is the only cemetery in Idaho, outside the Boise area, exclusively for veterans. It was dedicated on May 29, 1995.

The Cassia County Veterans Memorial is set in the heart of Burley on Overland Avenue. It has the name of every citizen that served from the Civil War to the war in Iraq, including the Spanish-American War. On July 14, 1995, it was erected in commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II by the city of Burley.

In Minidoka County, Rupert’s Veterans memorial statue was built in 1970 and is located at the county courthouse honoring all veterans.

Louis Bay, a member of VFW said the Jerome County Veterans Memorial in City Park lists names of veterans killed in all wars. The Desert Storm monument in North Park was dedicated July 4, 1992.

The Lincoln County Veterans Memorial is on the courthouse grounds in Shoshone in honor of VFW Little Wood River Post #3001. The memorial consists of a central, two-sided stone and flagpole surrounded by six smaller flagpoles for the service branches.

South Central Idaho Veterans Park in Wendell was dedicated on Veterans Day in 2005. Pedestals surrounding the monument display approximately 125 tiles each with veterans’ names. The Wendell Cemetery also has two memorials honoring all veterans, a potato-shaped rock memorial constructed in 1962 and a flag pole in 1986.

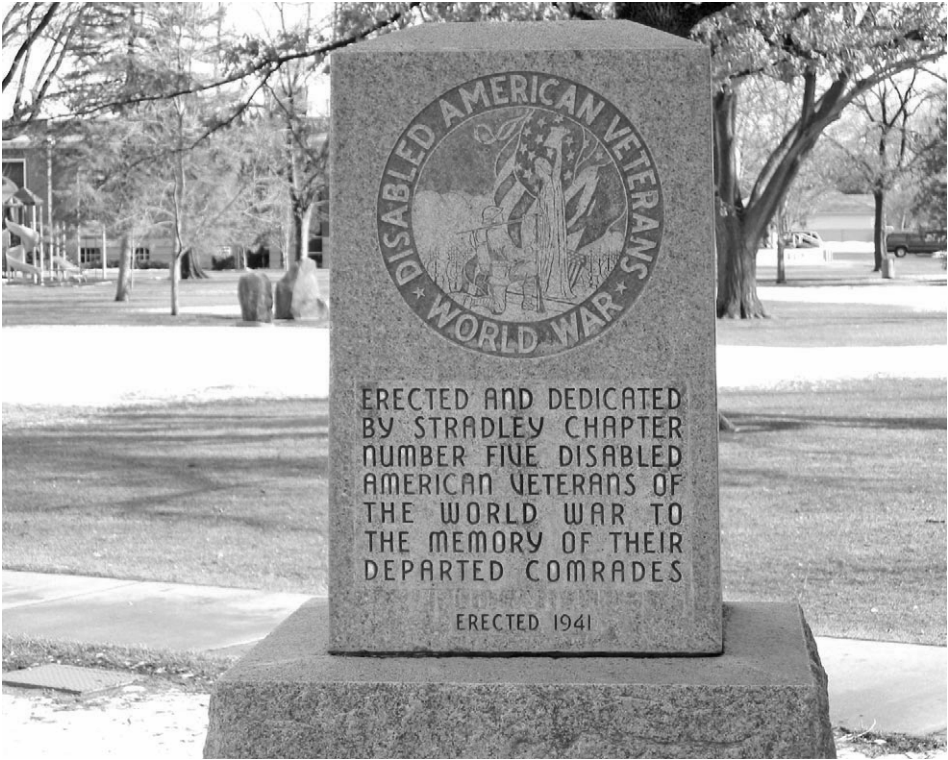

The Gooding Veterans Memorial is in front of the Gooding County courthouse in memory and recognition of all veterans who served their country during World War I, World War II, Korea, Vietnam and other conflicts.

The War Memorial Building in Fairfield was constructed in 1948.

old Bellevue City Hall honors all veterans. It was constructed in 1945 and has been refinished several times, most recently in 1991. Ketchum’s American Legion Hall also honors veterans.

Several cities have memorial plaques — Filer, Kimberly, Murtaugh and Paul. A plaque on the city flag pole is dedicated to a Paul resident and the only Idahoan killed during Operation Desert Storm.

ONLINE: Police Find Explosives During Drug Search

Crime reporter Alison Gene Smith’s blog, dubbed “Scanner Traffic,” gives you a behind-the-scenes look at her beat. Here’s an excerpt from her latest post:

“Twin Falls police found more than they were looking for Wednesday while executing a search warrant to look for drugs.

“According to a police report, officers went to a home in the 600 block of Second Avenue West in Twin Falls at about 5:18 p.m. Wednesday. ...

“When police arrived, they told Rachelle Dona Hoskin that they were searching for drugs, specifically meth. According to the report, police found several plastic baggies with what appeared to be meth, glass and metal pipes and digital scales.

“Police also reportedly found something unexpected: explosive blasting caps.

“The blasting caps were stored in a pill bottle next to other pill bottles that Hoskin uses daily, the report said.

“Hoskin was arrested on a felony meth charge and taken to jail. She was also cited with keeping explosives in the city limits. ...”

WEATHER

Rain Expected Today, Tomorrow

After nice weather on Memorial Day, many of us will go back to work today just in time for rain showers and thunderstorms. A strong weather system will bring a surge of moisture to southern Idaho by early Tuesday morning. That means rain showers and even a few thunderstorms will be possible throughout the day on Tuesday. I think there could be a break in the rain by Tuesday evening before a secondary weather system brings more showers to the area by Wednesday. The clouds and rain will really hold down temperatures on Tuesday and afternoon high temperatures will only climb into the lower 60s. Temperatures will remain on the cooler side, slightly below average through Thursday. Breezy conditions will also develop behind the front Wednesday and Thursday and we could see some wind gusts up to 35 mph.

Warmer air will move back in by Friday and just in time for next weekend. Mostly sunny skies will dominate the weather next week with temperatures back in the 70s. There’s a chance we could be back in the 80s by next Monday.

Hansen Student Doesn't Let Adversity Stand in Her Way

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

HANSEN • When she first came to Idaho, Nancy Lopez knew very little English. Now it is her favorite subject.

Lopez, a student at Hansen High School, graduated with the Class of 2013 this month. But it was a long road to graduation.

Lopez was born in Northern California to parents who did not speak English. Her father, a Mexican citizen, was later deported and she hasn't seen or heard from him in years. Her mother knows a little English today but prefers to stick with Spanish.

Talking with Lopez, you'd guess she's been speaking

English all her life.

"I love English," she said, noting she especially likes to write English papers. "And I really like math." She excelled at both subjects.

She has a message for other students who might come from challenging backgrounds or are placed in situations that try their patience: Don't give up, persevere and believe in yourself.

It also helps when teachers believe in their students. Lopez remembers a teacher who encouraged her in school, telling her she believed in Lopez's potential for success. It meant the world to her.

"What gets me is that she is so humble," said guidance counselor Candice Atkins.

"She's bright, respectful. She's extremely polite and gracious."

Case in point: "I didn't think my life was that interesting," Lopez said, adding that she wonders what stories other students have to tell, what obstacles they have overcome, in what projects they have excelled.

Lopez, who might seem like an average person in most ways, stands out by winning small battles with dignity every day.

Several teachers this year wanted to have her as an aide, Atkins said, but the school did away with aides in the classroom.

This fall, Lopez plans to attend the College of Southern Idaho to become a medical sonographer.

Hansen High School senior Nancy Lopez listens in English class on May 20, at the school. Lopez comes from a Spanish-speaking heritage, but has also excelled at English.

Rupert's Anthon Named to 'Accomplished Under 40' List

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • Rupert City Administrator Kelly Anthon was named one of Idaho's 40 most accomplished professionals under the age of 40.

Idaho Business Review and Boise State University College Business and Economics award the honor each year.

Anthon

"He is one of the most professional and easy to work with individuals I've ever met in my life," said Jim Bowers, city council member. "He is very unique, and we're extremely lucky to have him here."

According to the Idaho Business Review, there were 129 nominees and a six-member panel of past Accomplished Under 40 recipients scored the applicants in four categories — professional accomplishments, leadership skills, community involvement and long-term goals.

Last year, the city hired Anton to take over as city administrator. Prior to that, he practiced law at Robinson, Anthon and Tribe in Rupert. As a law partner, he focused on municipal law, debt restructuring and large business reorganization.

Matt Darrington, who practices law at Robinson, Anthon and Tribe, also made the Accomplished Under 40 list.

Anthon speaks fluent Japanese and used his bilingual ability in his law practice and as a contract business consultant and a corporate incentive program coordinator.

Anthon has served as the appointed city attorney for the cities of Burley, Rupert, Acequia and Minidoka. At the time of his first appointment, he was the youngest appointed city attorney in the state, according to a press release from the city of Rupert.

Anthon stepped away from his law firm last year when he took the position as city administrator.

"As a city administrator, he is very aggressive. I think hiring him was one of the best decisions this council has made," said Rupert Councilman Todd McGhee.

McGhee said because Anthon is a practicing attorney, he saves the city a lot of money by drafting and reviewing contracts before they are presented to the city's legal council.

McGhee said he did not know Anthon had been nominated for the award.

"I didn't know that because he doesn't go around tooting his own horn," McGhee said. "He's a rare find."

Anthon serves on the Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization's board, as chair of the South Central Idaho Chapter of the J. Reuben Clark Law Society, as a board member of the Mini-Cassia Economic Development Association and on the board of the Region IV Development Association.

He has worked closely with hospitals in both Minidoka County and Cassia County. He served two terms as president of the Minidoka Healthcare Foundation and he holds a seat on the governing board at Cassia Regional Medical Center.

He is a member of Rotary and has volunteered with the Idaho Department of the American Legion in operating the Gem Boys State program.

Last year, he served on the executive board of the Idaho Municipal Attorneys Association.

Twin Falls Airport Adds New 8:20 a.m. Flight

BY JOE CADOTTE

TWIN FALLS • With a rebounding economy and big companies like Chobani needing an international outlet, a new 8:20 a.m. flight was added to the schedule at Joslin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport, beginning June 3. The time was chosen to provide a way out of the Magic Valley at a “critical time” for business travelers. With the addition of the 8:20 a.m. flight, there are now five daily flight times available from Twin Falls.

“The availability of commercial air service is a critical ingredient for our community’s quality of life and economic vitality,” Airport Manager Bill Carberry wrote

Business leaders around the Magic Valley voiced concern about the lack of departure times out of Twin Falls, said Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce President Shawn Barigar. In response, Carberry and Barigar met with SkyWest last year and requested a new flight.

“When we’re looking at recruiting business here,” Barigar said, “the ability to get them in, show them what we need to show them, talk to them and get them out is important because time is money. Truthfully, in this day and age, time is more valuable than money.”

Currently, the only morning flight leaves Twin Falls at 6:50 a.m. If a traveler misses that flight, Barigar said, they have to wait until afternoon to get a transfer from Salt Lake City.

“If they missed that morning flight, they’d have a hard time getting to their final destination,” he said.

Key Bank Employees Spend Day Volunteering at Boys and Girls Club

BY JOE CADOTTE
jcadotte@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Key Bank managers, bankers and staff took off their suits last week in Twin Falls and put on work clothes to give back to the community for the annual “Neighbors Make a Difference Day.”

Twenty Key Bank employees from four locations in the Magic Valley joined 7,500 nationwide in the effort. The two Key Bank locations in Twin Falls closed their doors early Wednesday, May 22, to help clean and paint the Boys and Girls Club of the Magic Valley.

Although she greatly appreciates the help, Twin Falls Boys and Girls Club Director of Club Culture Holly Beymer said it was fun telling bank managers what to do.

“They don’t complain,” Beymer said, “whether its cleaning walls or some poor guy was scraping food off of picnic tables.”

While many banking institutions help out in the form of donations, Beymer said, “The hands-on approach says a lot.”

“We appreciate (donations) just as much, but there is something to be said for, especially bankers that are business people, that are willing to get (work) clothes on, get paint on their clothes and get dirty,” Beymer said. “It is meaningful on that level. A lot of people will give money. They’ve never even been to our campus.”

With two days instead of two weeks to prepare for summer activities this year, Beymer said the volunteers, who painted a gym and picnic tables, were a tremendous help.

“It’s something that we so appreciate because we just don’t have time to do it,” Beymer said.

ED GLAZAR • FOR THE TIMES-NEWS

KeyBank employees, and volunteers for the day, Sarah Coats, right, and Toni Sanchotena, paint a wall inside the gymnasium at the Boys and Girls Club of Twin Falls on Wednesday.

“It says they care about their community. It’s not just about their business and their success it’s about other organizations in the community and kids, so that means a lot to us.”

Outside, Financial Advisor Joe Wilson and three other staff busily painted a set of picnic tables.

“You just missed them,” Wilson said. “Around 15 kids, kindergarten age, cheered us on.”

Downtown Lead Teller Riley Juker said it’s nice to work outside and not have to dress up for the day.

“We got to wear these this morning,” Riley said referring to a paint stained shirt. “Everyone thought we were way under-dressed and we got tell them why. ...We never get to work outside.”

Banker Holley Hennefer agreed.

“This is much better than sitting at my desk all day,” Hennefer said. “There’s a tangible result and the children get to benefit from it.”

The outside crew spent hours scraping remnants of food and “animal residue” off the tables before sanding and painting them.

Downtown location Branch Manager Jonny Johnson was part of the picnic table crew. He said volunteering is good for the community and the bank.

“Community and banking go hand-in-hand, because we want to learn more about our customers,” Johnson said. “We’re here to give back in any way we can to help our community grow. If the community grows, it means the banking industry is going to grow.”

This is the 23rd year Key Bank loaned its staff nationwide for community projects. In Twin Falls, Johnson said nonprofits should give Key Bank a call next year if they could use a day of volunteer work from the bank’s staff.

State Senator Wants to Lure Gun Makers to Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) •

A Utah lawmaker wants to entice gun manufacturers to set up business in the state and has begun work on legislation to offer incentives.

Sen. Howard Stephenson, R-Draper, said he saw an opportunity for Utah after Maryland’s governor recently signed gun control legislation that Maryland-based gun maker Beretta called offensive.

The company issued a statement saying it was thinking of shifting some operations to other states.

Stephenson said he’s planning a bill for the next legislative session that might attract Beretta and other gun manufacturers to Utah by reducing restrictions and eliminating sales tax on machinery and parts used to make guns.

If the effort gains traction, the legislation might be taken up when lawmakers convene in January for next year’s session.

The gun control law signed earlier this month by Maryland Gov. Martin O’Malley is one of the toughest in the country. It requires people to submit fingerprints to state police to get a license to buy a handgun, limits gun magazines and bars people who’ve been involuntarily committed to mental health facilities from owning guns.

The measure also bans 45 types of assault weapons, but those who currently own the weapons will be able to keep them.

It does not require gun makers in the state to stop producing assault weapons.

In its statement, Beretta said legislators made concessions that shifted the bill “from being atrocious to simply being bad,” with elements such as the fingerprint requirement that will burden citizens exercising their Second Amendment rights.

“The idea of now investing additional funds in Maryland and thus rewarding a government that has insulted our customers and our products is offensive to us so we will take steps to evaluate such investments in other states,” the statement said.

Airport

If customers utilize the new 8:20 a.m. departure, Barigar said, it will increase the chances other airlines will add flights or routes from the Magic Valley.

“We’re excited to have the partnership with SkyWest adding that service and we’re hopeful the community will take an advantage of it. Because if we demonstrate an even greater demand, we may be able to convince them that there’s a good business plan for additional flights,” Barigar said.

“The new flight will help along a growing Twin Falls economy,” he said. “It’s one of those amenities that you look around a community, you need to have some sort of capacity to attract the kind of economic growth that we have here. It’s things like a quality school system, a junior college, state of the art hospital and air service. Those kinds of things are part of the whole package when you’re talking about what makes your community tick.”

Twin Falls is fortunate to get a new flight, Barigar said, especially since the airline industry as a whole is facing problems.

“We need to be thankful that we have commercial air service at all,” Barigar said, “and in a market this size.

Looking toward the future, Barigar said, there is plenty of expansion available at the airport to meet the needs of a growing population.

Oil

released Tuesday in Washington, which should help clarify the state of the recovery in the world’s biggest economy.

“We’re starting to build confidence in the economic data, but that’s not going to stop anyone from taking money off the table ahead of a long weekend,” Carl Larry of Oil Outlooks and Opinions said in a market commentary, referring to Monday’s Memorial Day holiday in the U.S.

Monday was also a public holiday in Britain.

The global economic picture was clouded last week by a private survey showing weak Chinese manufacturing. That raised questions about the strength of oil demand in the world’s No. 2 economy.

Qinwei Wang, an economist with Capital Economics, said that recent Chinese indicators suggest that “general economic conditions remain downbeat.” The more closely watched official manufacturing survey is due Saturday, Wang said.

Markets will also be watching Friday’s meeting at its Vienna headquarters of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

“We anticipate that OPEC will stick with its official production target of 30 million barrels per day,” said a report from Commerzbank in Frankfurt. “Saudi Arabia and the other Arab Gulf states see no reason for the moment to comply with the demands of individual OPEC states to implement measures aimed at shoring up prices. Thus the oversupply on the oil market will remain in place for the time being.”

In April, OPEC’s output averaged 30.46 million barrel a day.

Brent crude, a benchmark for many international oil varieties, was down 8 cents to $102.56 a barrel on Nymex.

In other energy futures trading on Nymex:

- Wholesale gasoline lost 0.003 cents to $2.8256 a gallon.
- Heating oil rose 0.01 cent to $2.8642 per gallon.
- Natural gas added 5 cents to $4.336 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Hotel Magnate, Mo. Philanthropist Hammons Dies

ALAN SCHER ZAGIER
Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. • John Q. Hammons’ first business went bust, saddling him with debt. Yet the son of a poor Missouri dairy farmer paid it off within two years and turned his sights to hotels, the cornerstone of what would become a national real estate empire.

Along the way, he opened his wallet to his home state, donating millions to hospitals, public television and colleges in Springfield. It’s a town where his name graces so many buildings and streets — from Missouri State University’s basketball arena, for which he pledged $30 million alone, to the city’s tallest building — that comedian Bob Hope once joked it should rename itself “Hammonsville.”

Among the businessman’s secrets: He avoided big-city locations in favor of properties in college towns and state capitals.

“He would say, ‘The kids will always go to school, and you can’t fire the damn politicians,’” former company executive Scott Tarwater once said.

Hammons, who died Sunday at age 94 in a Springfield nursing home, built more than 200 hotels nationwide, including Embassy Suites, Marriotts, Radissons and Holiday Inns. He also developed an expansive real estate portfolio of golf courses, restaurants, convention centers, a casino and riverboat gambling. And he actively led the company well into his 80s.

“He did it the old-fashioned way: He earned it,” Bill Rowe, MSU’s former athletic director, said Monday shortly after learning about his friend’s death. “His eyes were always on the next target. He loved getting things done, then he was thinking about what to do next.”

“He was a die-hard fan of our university,” Rowe said, adding with a laugh: “And the St. Louis Cardinals.”

After Hammons’ first business — a company that sold mortar-less bricks — went bust in the late 1940s, he recovered to build subdivisions in southwest Missouri over the next decade. He then purchased 10 Holiday Inn franchises with a partner in 1958 from the company’s founder.

Hammons eventually became a regular on Forbes magazine’s list of the wealthiest Americans, and his estimated personal wealth several years ago was $1 billion. He took his company public in 1994 before returning it to private ownership a decade later.

“He has made such a major, significant difference to this community,” Jim Anderson, president of the Springfield Area Chamber of Commerce, said in a 2007 interview. “Some people may not see the way he has put us on the map.”

The hotel magnate was born James Quentin Hammons in 1919 in rural Fairview, about 60 miles southwest of Springfield, to a dairy farmer who lost the 200-acre family farm during the Depression. As a teen, he trapped rabbits and sold their pelts for a nickel apiece.

“I swore I would never be poor,” he told a biographer in 2002.

A graduate of Southwest Missouri State Teachers College, which is now Missouri State University, Hammons spent two years teaching science and history and coaching junior high basketball before going to work on the construction of the Alaska Highway. He married the former Juanita Baxter, a Springfield elementary school teacher and also a Southwest Missouri graduate, in September 1949. The couple had no children.

Longtime ‘Tonight Show’ Drummer Shaughnessy Dies

LOS ANGELES • Ed Shaughnessy, the jazz drummer who for nearly three decades anchored the rhythm section of Doc Severinsen’s “Tonight Show” band, has died in Southern California. He was 84.

William Selditz, a close family friend, tells the Los Angeles Times that Shaughnessy had a heart attack Friday at his home in Calabasas, outside Los Angeles.

The New Jersey native began his jazz career as a teenager, playing with Billie Holiday, Benny Goodman and Count Basie. He replaced Buddy Rich in Tommy Dorsey’s band.

In the mid-1950s Shaughnessy became a staff musician at CBS.

From 1963 to 1992, Shaughnessy was a late-night television fixture as part of the house band on NBC’s “Tonight Show” with Johnny Carson.

He is survived by a son and three grandchildren.

Memorial Day

Surging Wildfire Forces Evacuations in California

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) • A surging wildfire forced more than 1,000 people, including Memorial Day campers, to evacuate the mountains of California's Santa Barbara County, officials said.

The fire broke out about 2:45 p.m. Monday in Los Padres National Forest about 15 miles north of Santa Barbara and quickly surged to 700 acres amid winds of about 20 mph, U.S. Forest Service officials said.

The fire was threatening about 50 homes, many of them cabins and vacation rentals, and 50 to 75 residents had evacuated, county fire Capt. David Sadecki said.

Paradise Road and the many campgrounds along it were closed, forcing about 1,000 campers to evacuate, Sadecki said.

A U.S. Forest Service garage and two vehicles had burned, he said.

The American Red Cross set up an evacuation center at Santa Barbara City College and another was set up for horses stalled in the area's many stables.

The National Weather Service said the winds may get worse as night falls, but fire officials said they may also get help from the weather.

"We're hoping the temperatures drop and the humidity rises," Sadecki said.

A huge plume of gray and white smoke rose over the mountains and hovered over Santa Barbara, where many residents were flooding Facebook and Twitter with photos.

Police Investigate Armed Robbery of Store in Jerome

TIMES-NEWS

JEROME • Jerome police officers are investigating a convenience store robbery that occurred early Sunday morning.

Around 2:30 a.m., police officers responded to a report that a suspect had stolen an undisclosed amount of cash from the Oasis Stop and Go at 260 E. Main St., said Sgt. Dennis Clark.

The suspect had already fled the scene by the time officers got to the store. It was reported that the suspect was carrying a handgun, Clark said.

Details about the suspect are not being released at this time, he said.

Officers do have some information about the suspect but are continuing to investigate the case, Clark said.

Classmates: Teen Accused of Plot Spoke about Bombs

ALBANY, Ore. (AP) • Classmates of an Oregon teenager accused of planning to blow up his high school say the 17-year-old discussed bomb-making in the weeks before his arrest, but did not speak of a plot to inflict damage.

Thomas Stone, who attends West Albany High School, told KATU-TV that Grant Acord discussed bomb-making materials with him in class a couple of weeks ago.

"You know, I didn't think much of it 'cause he's kind of a strange kid," Stone said. "So I wasn't surprised he had some strange hobbies, you know?"

Acord was arrested Thursday night after police got a tip that the youth was making a bomb to blow up the school about 75 miles south of Portland.

On Saturday, Benton County District Attorney John Haroldson said Acord will be charged as an adult with attempted aggravated murder. Acord's relatives have not released any public statements, and it's unknown if they have hired a lawyer to represent him or if he will be assigned a public defender at Tuesday's arraignment.

The Associated Press normally doesn't name minors accused of crimes but is doing so in this case because of the seriousness of the allegations and because Acord is being charged as an adult.

Benton County District Attorney John Haroldson said in an interview Saturday that the alleged plot was "forged and inspired" by the 1999 massacre at Columbine High School in Colorado. He said investigators found six bombs in a secret compartment under the floorboards of Acord's bedroom, along with written plans, checklists and a diagram of the school.

Student Keagan Boggs said Acord had approached some of his friends to talk about bombs, though not the alleged plot.

"It wasn't like, 'Oh, I'm making bombs. I'm gonna blow stuff up,'" Boggs said.

No bombs were found during searches of the school, and classes will resume as scheduled Tuesday.

"I have been advised that none of the evidence developed thus far suggests any broader conspiracy or involvement by any other persons," Maria Delapoer, the superintendent of Albany schools, said in a statement to parents.

Austria Minister: EU Fails to Reach Deal on Syria

BY RAF CASERT AND JAMEY KEATEN
Associated Press

BRUSSELS • Austria’s foreign minister said Monday that the European Union’s top diplomats have failed to agree about how to deal with Syria’s civil war, and EU sanctions against Bashar Assad’s regime are likely to expire on June 1.

However, three other European diplomats insisted the 27-member bloc still had a chance to come to an agreement. One said Monday’s talks in Brussels were “far from over.” The three spoke on condition of anonymity as the proceedings continued.

During a break from critical EU talks aimed to work out a common position on Syria, Austrian Foreign Minister Michael Spindelegger told reporters he was concerned about what he called a failure to reach a common position and said that after the EU sanctions collapse “everybody is entitled to deliver weapons to the Assad regime or to the opposition.”

But he said he also was holding out hope for a last-minute reversal that could salvage an accord in the talks set to continue deep into the evening.

Speaking at an impromptu news conference, Spindelegger said that during the talks France and Britain had agreed not to deliver any weapons until Aug. 1. Those two countries — the EU’s biggest military powers — have been pushing the bloc to lift its embargo on delivery of weapons into Syria to help the embattled opposition.

UK Police Arrest 10th Suspect in Soldier’s Slaying

BY SYLVIA HUI
Associated Press

LONDON • British police arrested a 10th suspect Monday in connection with the vicious street killing of a soldier in London, an apparent Islamic extremist attack that has horrified the country and heightened racial tensions.

The 50-year-old man was detained in Welling, east of London, on suspicion of conspiring to murder 25-year-old soldier Lee Rigby, Scotland Yard said. Police gave no further information about the suspect’s identity.

The latest arrest came as more details trickled out about the background of Michael Adebolajo, 28, one of the two main British suspects in Wednesday’s slaying. He and Michael Adebowale, 22, were shot and wounded by police at the scene.

Rigby, an off-duty soldier, was run over by a vehicle and repeatedly stabbed with meat cleavers Wednesday afternoon near his barracks in southeast London.

British officials say the two main suspects had been known to them for some time, but revelations that Adebolajo had been arrested in Kenya in 2010 — and claims that British security officials had tried to recruit him as an informer after that — have fueled questions about whether U.K. authorities could have done more to prevent last week’s killing.

Obama to Nation: Don’t Take US Troops for Granted

BY DARLENE SUPERVILLE

ARLINGTON, Va. • Reflecting on the personal toll of war, President Barack Obama on Monday implored a nation in which few volunteer for the armed forces to “always remember and to be worthy of the sacrifice” of its fallen heroes.

Addressing a Memorial Day service at Arlington National Cemetery, Obama said he worries that U.S. servicemen and women — including thousands he sent to war in more than four years as commander in chief — aren’t being fully appreciated in an era in which “most Americans are not directly touched by war.”

Less than 1 percent of the population of more than 313 million people serves in the military, officials have said.

Obama said he couldn’t explain why few are touched by war, but he allowed that it could be because of the bravery and skill of the all-volunteer force, along with new technologies that make it possible to carry out missions while endangering fewer personnel. Contrast that with generations past, when Obama said millions

Bombs Tear through Baghdad

More than 60 people were killed.

BAGHDAD • A coordinated wave of car bombings tore through mostly Shiite areas of Baghdad on Monday, killing at least 66 people and maiming nearly 200 as insurgents step up the bloodshed roiling Iraq.

The attacks in markets and other areas frequented by civilians are the latest sign of a rapid deterioration in security as sectarian tensions are exacerbated by anti-government protests and the war in neighboring Syria grinds on.

More than 450 people have been killed across Iraq in May. Most of the killings came over the past two weeks in the most sustained wave of violence since U.S. troops left in December 2011.

The surge in attacks is reminiscent of the sectarian carnage that pushed Iraq to the brink of civil war in 2006 and 2007. April was Iraq’s deadliest month since June 2008, according to a United Nations tally that put last month’s death toll at more than 700.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for Monday’s bombings, but they bore the hallmarks of al-Qaida’s Iraqi arm. The group, known as the Islamic State of Iraq, frequently uses car bombs and coordinated blasts against Shiites to undermine Iraqis’ confidence in the Shiite-led government.

The day’s deadliest attack happened when two bombs exploded in the eastern Habibiya area on the edge of the sprawling Shiite district of Sadr City.

Those blasts killed 12 and wounded 35, police said.

Twin blasts also struck an open-air market in the predominantly Shiite al-Maalif area, killing six and wounding 12.

Another car bomb exploded in the busy commercial Sadoun Street in downtown Baghdad. It killed five civilians and wounded 14, police said. Among the wounded were four policemen who were at a nearby checkpoint.

The central street is one of the capital’s main commercial areas and is lined with clinics, pharmacies and shops. Firefighters were seen struggling to extinguish flames as police sealed off the area. Several shops were partially damaged or burned.

“What crime have those innocent people committed?” asked witness Zein al-Abidin. “Who is responsible for these massacres?”

Border Entry Fee Study Sparks Fierce Northern Opposition

BY MANUEL VALDES
Associated Press

SEATTLE • By Michael Hill’s estimation, 90 percent of the people pumping gas at his station just south of the U.S.-Canada border in Washington state are Canadians.

Gas north of the 49th parallel, he said, is about $1.30 per gallon more expensive than in the United States. But that’s not the only product that Canadians seek in visits to Washington state: Beer, wine and milk are significantly cheaper (beer and wine alone are roughly half the price in the U.S.).

Add a strong Canadian dollar and the result is a key element of the economy in the towns of Whatcom County. For example, the town of Blaine, population just shy of 5,000, generates over $225,000 from a penny per gallon gas tax, which is about 30 percent of its street maintenance budget.

That’s why Hill and others are troubled by the notion of charging a fee to enter the U.S. by land. Last month, in its 2014 fiscal year budget proposal, the Department of Homeland Security requested permission to study a fee at the nation’s land border crossings.

Thank You to Jerome Voters for Passing Jail Bond

To the citizens of Jerome County:

We want to take time to thank the citizens of Jerome County for passing the bond levy to build a jail and sheriff’s office to replace the aging current jail. The courthouse was built in 1939 and the county jail addition in 1974 and would have quickly become an unacceptable liability in the coming years.

We give our thanks to Gretchen Stone, who not only worked long and tireless hours helping to educate the citizens of our dilemma but also expended her own funds in her effort. We appreciate her watchdog efforts in making sure her government is accountable and helping us come up with a plan which was effective and efficient and assuring no tax dollars were being wasted.

We are committed to use good judgment and provide the county of Jerome with a facility that the citizens will be proud of, be functional and provide a safe haven for our children, grandchildren and the citizens in the many years to come.

Obamacare Is a Socialist Bureaucrat’s Dream of Control

The destruction of our constitutional republic is accelerating! We are rapidly becoming a socialist, Third World country that will be controlled by bureaucrats in a tyrannical United Nations world government.

The unscientific Environmental Protection Agency is bureaucratically implementing the United Nations Agenda 21 (sustainable development). New regulations on coal-fired power generation plants to lower carbon dioxide emissions will cost millions and 20 percent are expected to shut down. This will raise our power bills unnecessarily while we subsidize unsustainable wind and solar. This is based on the man-caused global warming hoax (see www.petitionproject.org). CO2 is not a pollutant!

Exercise of our First, Second and Fourth Amendment rights are nearly gone, while federal bureaucrats plead the Fifth amendment to cover their guilt.

Trade agreements like North American Free Trade Agreement and membership in the World Trade Organization have moved millions of jobs overseas. Our trade deficit is now $500 billion per year. Proposed trade agreements with the European Union and Pacific Rim nations will destroy our independence.

The Gang of Eight immigration reform bill will reward law-breakers and cost trillions. It mandates a national ID card with our photo and creates a biometric database on every American.

The United Nations Small Arms Treaty could disarm Americans. Registration (background checks) at the federal level will lead to confiscation.

Our students are being indoctrinated to be green, global citizens under various United Nations programs coming through the unconstitutional Department of Education. We have kicked God out of the classroom and replaced him with Marx and Darwin.

ObamaCare is a socialist’s bureaucratic dream of controlling people’s health. Death panels are coming and much higher premiums are already here.

Eventually the United Nations bureaucrats will control everything. We must get out of the tyrannical United Nations by passing H.R. 75. If liberty and freedom are destroyed in America, the world will be in darkness.

Immigration Bill Provides No Real Plan for Securing Borders

We agree with the sheriffs.

Twenty-six sheriffs sent a letter to Congress on May 9 expressing their “deep concerns regarding Immigration Bill S.744” as it “will profoundly impact the security of the country, our nation’s communities and the people we as law enforcement officers are sworn to protect.” (Letter online at: <http://bit.ly/12gTVzY>)

This immigration bill provides no real plan for securing America’s borders and ignores laws that are already on the books for border security. Border security should be a first priority. Border security is part of America’s Constitution.

By not minding the store, the borders in this case, millions illegally flood into America, and they do not leave. Due to an unenforced tracking system, how will local law enforcement know if these illegals are national security threats? Criminals? Harmful to Americans?

Sen. Crapo, Sen. Risch, please listen to the sheriffs.

Luna Has Alientated Idaho Teachers, Voters

Stop the lunacy! The brilliant new campaign manager for the 2013 Luna recall, Dr. L.R. Wheeler, has a simple plan to help remove Tom Luna from office. On www.recallluna.com, click on “sign the petition.” Then sign our little online petition. It is just that simple.

Tom Luna’s policies seem to be causing Idaho’s teachers to jump ship faster than fleas leaping off a drowning dog. The teachers I speak with feel vilified and betrayed. If that were not enough, Mr. Luna and the Legislature turned a deaf ear to Idaho voters who rejected all three “Luna Laws” on Nov. 6, 2012, by a huge margin in all 44 counties. Luna and the Legislature brought back “Luna Law” No. 1.

Now is the time to go to www.recallluna.com, click on “sign the petition” and then sign our little online petition. It is just that simple.

IRS Needs Clear Standards for Tax-exempt Groups

The IRS’ improper scrutiny of conservative groups’ applications for tax-exempt status certainly warrants investigation. But we must not lose sight of the underlying problems that led to this situation: the lack of workable standards to determine what activity the Internal Revenue Service considers “political” and how much of it a nonprofit group can do.

This issue was highlighted last Friday during a House hearing on IRS activity. Asked if he could define when a group applying for tax exemption as a 501(c)(4) “social welfare organization” is being too political, Steven Miller admitted that he could not say for sure. If the IRS’ former acting commissioner doesn’t know, it is impossible to expect front-line staff reviewing applications to know what to look for, nor for citizen advocacy groups to understand what rules govern their conduct.

Under current protocol to determine whether an applicant qualifies for 501(c)(4) status, the IRS assesses “all the facts and circumstances” to determine whether an activity is political or furthers social welfare. Employees then apply another ambiguous facts-and-circumstances test to determine whether the applicant is primarily furthering social welfare or engaged in too much politics. In other words, overburdened midand lower-level IRS staff are asked to flag possibly political organizations based on no clearer a standard than knowing political activity when they see it.

This also raises questions

Gary D. Bass & Elizabeth J. Kingsley

about how the agency can be expected to enforce unclear rules that its employees do not understand.

Much of this problem could be addressed by adopting objective, substantive criteria to define political intervention for nonprofit organizations. For the past four years, we have worked with legal experts and nonprofit leaders at the Bright Lines Project (now housed at Public Citizen) to develop just such a proposal.

Using standards similar to those that have worked for more than two decades to define lobbying for charities, we crafted working definitions for political intervention that would apply to tax-exempt entities. Communications that refer to a clearly identified candidate and reflect a view on that candidate would meet the threshold definition of “political intervention.” Our test provides exceptions for bona fide lobbying and other non-electoral activity. For example, lobbying aimed at moving a public official to take a specific official action, voter-education materials developed using an impartial methodology and limited responses to candidates who take aim at an organization would not be treated as campaign advocacy unless the communication consists of paid mass-media advertising.

The Bright Lines proposal, which is to be released Friday, is accompanied by more than 30 examples to illustrate how each concept would apply in the real world. For instance, if the group is trying to influence a pending vote, highlighting that a politician seeking reelection had voted against similar legislation in the past would not be politicking. But it would be political activity for the group to bash an incumbent’s record while there was no prospect of a legislative vote. (Our proposal allows a different definition for 527 organizations, which must disclose their donors and their expenditures, to avoid discouraging political actors to opt for this classification.)

“Adopting an unambiguous definition of political intervention and clearly articulated levels of permissible political activity will significantly reduce uncertainty and greatly reduce the chilling impact created by the IRS’s facts-and-circumstances approach.”

Our proposal or similar definitions could be enacted by the IRS as a regulation. If the agency cannot or will not act, Congress should direct it to implement a clear rule.

Congress also needs to put forth standards on the extent of allowable political activity by nonprofit groups. The lack of clarity means that 501(c)(4) groups can spend as much as 49 percent of their budget on politics and still be considered “primarily” social welfare. Given the vast amounts of undisclosed political money that passes through 501(c)(4) social welfare groups, Congress should limit the amount of 501(c)(4) political activity, so that such activity is channeled toward organizations that must disclose their donors.

The IRS must also have the resources to put its clear definitions to work and make sure that groups do what they say they will do. Congress cannot continue to be penny-wise and pound-foolish: Providing the resources for strong enforcement would enable the agency to fairly enforce its rules and foster an environment where civic engagement can flourish.

Without clear rules, missteps though not justifiable are understandable. Adopting an unambiguous definition of political intervention and clearly articulated levels of permissible political activity will significantly reduce uncertainty and greatly reduce the chilling impact created by the IRS’s facts-and-circumstances approach. Such changes would also further insulate the IRS from political manipulation.

Medical Pot Laws, Treats May Send More Children to ER

BY LINDSEY TANNER
AP Medical Writer

CHICAGO • Increased use of medical marijuana may lead to more young children getting sick from accidentally eating food made with the drug, a Colorado study suggests.

Medical marijuana items include yummy-looking gummy candies, cookies and other treats that may entice young children. Fourteen children were treated at Colorado Children's Hospital in the two years after a 2009 federal policy change led to a surge in medical marijuana use, the study found. That's when federal authorities said they would not prosecute legal users.

Study cases were mostly mild, but parents should know about potential risks and keep the products out of reach, said lead author Dr. George Sam Wang, an emergency room physician at the hospital.

Unusual drowsiness and unsteady walking were among the symptoms. One child, a 5-year-old boy, had trouble breathing. Eight children were hospitalized, two in the intensive care unit, though all recovered within a few days, Wang said. By contrast, in four years preceding the policy change, the Denver-area hospital had no such cases.

Some children came in laughing, glassy-eyed or "acting a little goofy and 'off,'" Wang said. Many had eaten medical marijuana food items, although nonmedical marijuana was involved in at least three cases. The children were younger than 12 and included an 8-month-old boy.

The study was released Monday in JAMA Pediatrics.

Eighteen states and Washington, D.C., allow medical marijuana, though it remains illegal under federal law. Colorado's law dates to 2000, but the study notes that use there soared after the 2009 policy change on prosecution. Last year, Colorado and Washington state legalized adult possession of small amounts of nonmedical marijuana.

Some states, including Colorado, allow medical marijuana use by sick kids, with parents' supervision.

In a journal editorial, two Seattle poisoning specialists say that at least seven more states are considering legalizing medical marijuana and that laws that expand marijuana use likely will lead to more children sickened.

Mayor of Moore, Okla. Familiar with Tornadoes

BY RAMIT PLUSHNICK-MASTI
Associated Press

MOORE, Okla. • Glenn Lewis looks out at a pile of twisted metal, broken wood, smashed vehicles and torn school books. This is what is left of one of the two schools in his Oklahoma town that were obliterated by a massive tornado that killed seven children in the building.

"This was ground zero," the longtime mayor of Moore said, viewing the mounds of rubble that were once Plaza Towers Elementary School. "This is hallowed ground."

In his nearly 20 years as mayor of this Oklahoma City suburb, Lewis has already rebuilt his town twice, grappling with the aftermath of tornadoes so enormous the probability they strike is barely 2 percent. Yet Moore has been slammed by EF5 tornadoes — the largest on the rating scale — twice.

The first came in May 1999, when 36 people were killed. The second hit last week, killing 24 people.

"We know how to do this," Lewis said as he viewed the school's damage for the first time since the May 20 storm. "Because unfortunately, we've done it before."

Lewis has been elected eight times as a nonpartisan in this city of 60,000 people that, aside from its tornado tragedies, may be best known as the home of country singer Toby Keith.

The mayor recalled with a laugh how years ago, when at a meeting of the Council of Mayors, he was given a table with 12 seats, one for him and his "staff." He sat alone because, he noted, "I have no staff." But the organization allowed him to befriend one of his mentors, former Chicago Mayor Richard Daley, who Lewis said taught him some of the ins and outs of getting things done — advice that has proven useful as he steers his town through repeated disasters.

Looking out the window as he recently rode into a field of debris, he noted the smells: natural gas, insulation, rotting wood and food. He knows these smells. He has seen the twisted metal, the smashed vehicles, the planks of wood embedded in car doors.

This time, though, there are the school books torn to shreds and scattered clear across the interstates.

And the dead children.

He wondered out loud why no one died at the other school that was destroyed, Briarwood, yet seven children at Plaza Towers were killed by a wall that collapsed.

"You just look at it and you say, 'Is there anything you could have done better?'" he said.

Moore, a part-time mayor, is a jeweler by trade. His warehouse and manufacturing shop were destroyed by the tornado, losses he estimated at more than $1.5 million.

"I know what these people are going through. I lost stuff, too," he said, looking around at the demolished homes surrounding the schools.

"But it's just stuff," he said, turning again to the ruins of the school. "These people lost family members."

Moore has been his family's home since 1962. It is here that he and his wife, Pam, raised their daughter, a 29-year-old who now works for the federal government in Washington. This is where the 57-year-old came after graduating from the University of Oklahoma and the University of Central Oklahoma.

Today, his round, jovial face and quick smile are showing the exhaustion and stress of facing the death and destruction before him, and the cleanup ahead. He noted that his wife, a 4th grade school teacher, knows many of the teachers at the two schools that took a direct hit, saying she was devastated.

Yet he plows on, giving interviews to the national media, meeting state and federal officials to arrange aid for his community, contracting with companies to ensure that debris is quickly removed and working with local, state and federal law enforcement to reopen roads.

Through it, he finds time for the little things. He goes home to try to help his neighbors. In the morning, he swings by McDonald's to buy breakfast biscuits for the troopers manning the checkpoints. On one morning, after McDonald's employees complained the troopers' blockade was preventing customers from getting in, he gently convinced the troopers to move their checkpoint.

He's also trying to make sure the owners of the movie theater, which was damaged in the storm, have access so they can quickly repair the facility. Movies, he figures, could offer a much-needed escape for residents dealing with the stress of starting from scratch.

"We want there to be a sense of normalcy," he said.

Fire Breaks Out Aboard Royal Caribbean Cruise Ship

BY KASEY JONES
Associated Press

BALTIMORE • A fire that broke out aboard a Royal Caribbean ship Monday did enough damage that the rest of the cruise was canceled and the cruise line said the more than 2,200 passengers aboard will be flown from the Bahamas back to Baltimore.

The fire that began at 2:50 a.m. Monday was extinguished about two hours later with no injuries reported. A cause wasn't immediately known.

Royal Caribbean said in a series of tweets that executives have met with passengers and that the cruise line is arranging flights for all 2,224 guests on Tuesday. It said passengers will receive a full refund of their fare and a certificate for a future cruise.

Aboard ship, the captain announced that passengers needed to go to their muster stations, rousing Mark J. Ormesher from his stateroom on the Grandeur of the Seas.

Ormesher said in an email to The Associated Press that immediately after the captain's announcement, his room attendant knocked on the door and told him and his girlfriend to grab their flotation devices, saying it wasn't a drill.

Ormesher, a native of England, who lives in Manassas, Va., said he and his girlfriend smelled acrid smoke as they went to their muster station, the ship's casino. The crew quickly provided instruction.

"This encouraged calm amongst the passengers," he said. Passengers were required to remain at their stations for four hours, he said, and the captain "provided us as much information as we needed to stay safe."

Two Dead, Five Injured after Central Texas Shootings

EDEN, Texas (AP) • Two people are dead and five injured, including a sheriff, after a gunman in Central Texas opened fire on several vehicles, apparently at random, authorities said.

The Texas Department of Public Safety said the gunman is among the dead. His identity was not released Monday, but authorities said he was a 23-year-old North Carolina resident.

DPS said the shootings began about 4:30 a.m. Sunday when the gunman shot a motorist in the Eden area in Concho County, about 40 miles southeast of San Angelo. Over the next 90 minutes, he's suspected of shooting two people who were sitting in a car at a convenience store in McCulloch County and then another motorist back in adjacent Concho County.

Shortly after 6 a.m., a 41-year-old woman, Alicia Torres, was found dead in her car in Eola, just east of San Angelo.

The suspect fired on the vehicle of Concho County

Sheriff Richard Doane when the sheriff came upon him north of Eden, according to DPS. Doane was wounded in the gunfire and hospitalized.

A state trooper and game warden came upon the scene and exchanged gunfire with the suspect, who was killed.

An assault rifle, handgun and hundreds of rounds of ammunition were recovered, DPS said.

Concho County authorities deferred comment Monday to the DPS office in Austin. Phone messages left there were not immediately returned.

Vets Disability Benefits: Law Schools Curb Backlog

NORFOLK, Va. • Legal clinics run by law schools are being touted as a possible way to help reduce the significant backlog of veterans' disability benefits claims in the country.

The Veterans Administration has said that of the nearly 900,000 claims pending in its system, some 250,000 are from veterans who have been waiting at least a year for a decision.

At the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, a clinic staffed with students working for free has helped dozens of veterans submit hundreds of claims over the past four years. The school has written a guide for other schools that may be interested in starting similar clinics.

On Thursday, Democratic U.S. Sen. Jeanne Shaheen of New Hampshire and others introduced a bill allowing the VA to provide funding for such clinics.

Motorcyclist Dies after Collision with Vehicle

BOISE • Police in Boise say a motorcycle rider traveling at a high rate of speed has died after colliding with a vehicle.

Police say the motorcyclist was passing vehicles on the right-hand side as he traveled west on Fairview Ave. at about 10:30 p.m. Friday when he collided with an eastbound motorist making a left-hand turn.

Police say the young man from Boise wasn't wearing a helmet or other protective gear and was taken to a nearby hospital where he was pronounced dead a short time later.

Police say a passenger in the vehicle was transported to a hospital with non-life threatening injuries. The driver of the vehicle wasn't injured.

The crash remains under investigation.

Future of Colorado River on Agenda in San Diego

Top water decision-makers from seven Western states plan to join conservation groups and Indian tribes in San Diego on Tuesday to begin hammering out rules for squeezing every useable drop from the overtaxed Colorado River.

The work meeting hosted by federal water managers comes amid dire predictions for the waterway. The U.S. interior secretary five months ago issued a call to arms and declared that the river already described as the most plumbed and regulated in the world would be unable to meet demands of a growing regional population over the next 50 years.

"We're looking at a very significant chance of declaring a shortage in the Colorado River basin in 2016," Michael Connor, commissioner of the Bureau of Reclamation, said in an interview in advance of the conference.

"We really need to get to specifics, technical liabilities and the political feasibility of projects," he said.

Connor heads the federal agency responsible for what he called the most litigated and fought-over resource in the country. He said data projects 2013 will be the fourth-driest year in the Colorado River basin over the past 100 years. Last year was the fifth-driest year on record.

The river provides drinking water, power and recreation for some 40 million people in California, Arizona, Colorado, Nevada, Utah, New Mexico and Wyoming. Its largest reservoirs — Lake Mead near Las Vegas and Lake Powell near Page, Ariz. — are projected to drop to 45 percent capacity by September, Connor said.

Hydropower from Ag Ditches Pushed in Congress

BY MATTHEW BROWN
Associated Press

BILLINGS, Mont. • Federal lawmakers are seeking to lift restrictions on hydropower development so more local irrigation districts could use water flowing through government-sponsored agricultural canals and pipelines to generate electricity.

Proponents say hundreds of irrigation systems, the bulk of them in the Great Plains and Rocky Mountains, would be able to pursue small power projects under proposals from Western lawmakers.

The measures seek to change laws that block or restrict hydropower projects on systems built by the government after 1939, as part of efforts to help people hard-hit by drought at the time of the Dust Bowl. They would promote projects of five megawatts or less that could generate money and work for irrigation districts.

As costs mount to repair aging water supply networks and make them more efficient in the face of recurring drought, irrigation district managers said the electricity from small hydropower projects could be sold to provide money to help cover their expenses.

"We have the ability for more power generation but are being held back," said Gary Mancos, superintendent for the Mancos Water Conservancy District in southwestern Colorado.

A hydropower bill from Colorado Republican Rep. Scott Tipton, which would cover 373 Bureau of Reclamation canals and water conduits, passed the House last month with broad support from both parties. A similar measure from Wyoming Republican Sen. John Barrasso has cleared the committee level in the Senate and is awaiting a floor vote.

Another House bill, from Republican Rep. Steve Daines of Montana, targets a dozen waterways not fully covered by the other measures. It had an initial hearing last week and could come up for a committee-level vote over the summer.

Daines' bill includes water supply projects in Montana, Utah, Idaho, South Dakota, Colorado, Nebraska and Texas.

The first-term Republican said allowing hydropower development on those irrigation systems would help promote a renewable energy resource at no cost to taxpayers, while giving a boost to irrigation districts that are vital for producing crops as varied as sugar beets, corn, malted barley and alfalfa.

"Besides water, our rancher and farmers in Montana need power. These same irrigation projects have the potential to power homes and businesses," Daines said. "The federal government stands in the way, as current law prohibits non-federal developers from taking full advantage" of hydropower from irrigation systems.

Bruce Farling with Montana Trout Unlimited said he's reviewed the proposals and did not have any immediate concerns that they could hurt fisheries. For projects limited solely to irrigation systems, "fish shouldn't be there in the first place," he said.

But he added that future hydropower initiatives would have to be looked at individually to make sure there were no problems like the possibility of fish getting trapped in a canal.

Group Asks to Make Medicaid Lawsuit Class-action

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • Thirteen severely disabled residents who sued the state last year after their Medicaid budgets were dramatically cut are asking a federal judge to make the case a class-action lawsuit on behalf of the roughly 3,600 people who receive medical care through Idaho's Developmentally Disabled Medicaid Wavier program.

A judge already had ordered the state to either restore the plaintiffs' Medicaid budgets or fix the process it uses to notify them of cuts while the lawsuit proceeds.

But Ritchie Eppink, an attorney with the ACLU of Idaho who is representing the group, said he requested class-action status because the Department of Health and Welfare was still using the old notification process for everyone else in the program.

"What the department has done instead is to try to wiggle out by saying, 'OK, we won't send these faulty notices out to your clients, but we will send them out to everyone else in the program,'" Eppink said.

If the judge agrees to make the case a class-action and stop the budget cuts while it moves forward, the state could be forced to restore the budget back to 2011 levels. That's an increase of roughly $3.1 million in state dollars, and more than $10 million when the federal match is added in.

All of the plaintiffs have multiple medical or mental health problems or developmental disabilities, and all of them need supervision. Some require 24-hour care.

Normally, the state assigns those clients an "individual budget" for the year, which is essentially a cap on how much each client may spend on medical needs or other care. But the plaintiffs say that in 2011, their budgets were cut dramatically, leaving them without enough funds to get the care they need. They also say the state doesn't give clients adequate notice of the cuts or how they can appeal the decisions.

North Prevails in 8-man Shrine All-Star Football Game

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Shoshone High's Caleb Aoi had gotten used to running away from Hagerman's Justin Arriaga.

It was nice to run behind him for a change.

At the 36th Annual District IV Shrine High School All-Star Football Games on Monday at Twin Falls High School, the area's seniors came together for one final hurrah on the gridiron, with proceeds going toward Shrines Hospitals for Children.

In the 8-man game, the North defeated the South 12-6.

Aoi took a zone-read handoff from Shoshone teammate and North quarterback Garrett Sant, and scampered 19 yards for the go-ahead touchdown in the third quarter.

"It didn't seem like there was a hole at first, then I saw Justin Arriaga come across and (block) one of the guys on the outside. I just cut off his butt and he sprung me loose for that huge run," Aoi said. "It was great not being on the opposite team as them. Those guys are a lot of fun to play with. You don't get to see it when you play against them, but when you play on the same team we got to know each other pretty well and we made a lot of new friends. It's definitely something I would tell all future seniors to do."

Sant and Braden Crist, of Hagerman, received MVP honors for the North team.

Castleford's Ty Zimmers, who rushed for 90 yards, and Donnie Aardema of Lighthouse Christian were named MVPs of the South.

South marched 80 yards down the field on the first possession of the game and Emmet Boden of Raft River punched in the 1-yard touchdown.

South turned the ball over on downs with 18 seconds remaining in the second quarter. The North immediately went downfield, as Sant connected on a 72-yard touchdown pass to Braden Crist of Hagerman.

"We had that play set up because we had just run our zone play right there, so we faked the handoff and we knew the line-backer guarding our slot guy would come up on the fake, so we just sent him over the top. We knew it was going to work," Sant said.

The Sant-Crist bomb was the biggest play of the evening, and tied the ballgame 6-6 heading into halftime.

"We were just trying to take a shot and score a touchdown," Crist said. "I was just trying to catch the ball. (Sant) is a great quarterback... It was great, my last game, just go all out for it no matter what."

Despite their first-drive success, the South all-stars struggled offensively, and turned the ball over twice in the second half – an interception by the North's Troy Baynes of Murtaugh and a fumble recovery by Arriaga.

their all-star teammates, both defenses dominated the low-scoring ballgame – especially by 8-man standards.

"On offense you've got to have chemistry. On defense you just go out and hit, so it's a lot easier to play defense," Sant said.

"Most kids who love football love to come out here and play this game," Sant added. "It's got a special meaning, but it's (also) special to kids who love football, and I love football."

Spurs Advance to Finals, Sweep Grizzlies 93-86

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. • Tony Parker scored 37 points in his best game this postseason, and the San Antonio Spurs advanced to their first NBA Final since 2007 when they won their last championship by beating the Memphis Grizzlies 93-86 on Monday night.

The Spurs now have won six straight in these playoffs from when they finished off Golden State in the semifinals to sweeping the Grizzlies in the Western Conference final.

The Grizzlies went from being undefeated on their own court in their best postseason in franchise history to being swept by the very same franchise that needed four games to knock them out of their first playoff appearance back in 2004. Parker had his best game this postseason as he hit 15 of 21 and all six at the free throw line earning the Spurs and Tim Duncan plenty of rest before Game 1 of the Finals on June 6.

Blackhawks Beat Red Wings 4-3, Force a Game 7

DETROIT • Bryan Bickell scored a go-ahead goal early in the third period and the Chicago Blackhawks held on to beat the Detroit Red Wings 4-3 in Game 6 on Monday night, giving the NHL's top-seeded team a shot to advance to the Western Conference finals.

The Blackhawks, who trailed the second round series 3-1, began the third down by one and were up by two goals midway through the period after an offensive flurry. They needed the cushion because Damien Brunner scored with 52 seconds left to pull Detroit within one. The Red Wings pulled their goaltender, but they were unable to score with the extra skater.

Slow French Open Start for Nadal; Sharapova Wins

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARIS • Rafael Nadal knows this story well. All too well. Saw it up close the previous time he played in a major tournament.

Early round, main stadium, unknown opponent taking risky swings and putting everything in. At Wimbledon nearly a year ago, it was 100th-ranked Lukas Rosol who took it to Nadal and beat him in the second round. At the French Open on Monday, in Nadal's return to Grand Slam action after missing seven months with knee trouble, it was 59th-ranked Daniel Brands in the guest-star role.

Like Rosol, Brands is 6-foot-5 and lanky. Like Rosol, Brands employed a go-for-broke style and was hitting big. And for one whole set and most of the next during a first-round match in Court Philippe Chatrier, against the most successful man in Roland Garros history, it worked.

Nadal already owns a record seven French Open titles, including the past three. His bid to become the only man with eight championships at any of tennis' quartet of most important tournaments got off to a slow start, before he restored order by coming back to beat a faltering Brands 4-6, 7-6 (4), 6-4, 6-3.

"He was trying to hit every ball as hard as he can," said Nadal, who improved to 37-2 this season, with 16 victories in a row. "He made me suffer, I can tell you."

Brands came in 0-4 at the French Open, and with a sub-.500 career record in all tour matches, and his strategy was right out of Rosol's playbook: Keep points short and aim for the lines.

"That's the way. If you give Nadal time, there's no chance. You have to be aggressive. That's my view," Rosol, who's now ranked 36th, said Monday after winning his first-round match. "If other players play aggressive against him, that's the only way to beat him."

Toni Nadal, who is Rafael's uncle and coach, saw similarities with the last time his nephew played at a Grand Slam.

"Yes, it was a little the same," Toni said. "Against Rosol, in the fifth set, we couldn't do anything."

But when a reporter wanted to know whether there's a pattern being established as to the type of foe who can bother Rafael, Toni shrugged that off, replying: "When you play against an opponent who serves really well, who puts in a high percentage of first serves, and who hits balls really fast, it's complicated for everyone — not just for Rafael."

Had the third-seeded Nadal lost the match, it would have been one of the biggest upsets in the sport's history. Even merely losing the first set was significant, though, considering that Nadal began the day having dropped only 14 of the 170 sets he'd contested at the clay-court major tournament.

The victory improved his career record at Roland Garros to 53-1, the only loss coming in the fourth round in 2009 against Robin Soderling, not incidentally a 6-foot-4 free swinger.

"It was very, very difficult for us," Toni Nadal said after Monday's match.

There was no such struggle for the tournament's other defending champion, Maria Sharapova, who needed all of 54 minutes to overpower 42nd-ranked Hsieh Su-wei of Taiwan 6-2, 6-1. Or for 2011 women's titlist Li Na, a 6-3, 6-4 winner against Anabel Medina Garrigues. Or for 2010 champion Francesca Schiavone, who also won in straight sets.

Detroit Tigers right fielder Torii Hunter catches the fly hit by Pittsburgh Pirates' Andrew McCutchen during the first inning of a baseball game in Detroit on Monday.

Verlander, Tigers Hold On for 6-5 Win over Pirates

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT • Justin Verlander struck out 13 in seven innings and Jhonny Peralta had four hits to lead the Detroit Tigers over the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-5 on Monday.

It was Peralta's first four-hit game since June 4, 2010, when he was playing for Cleveland. Detroit has won six of seven.

Verlander (6-4) hadn't pitched more than five innings in any of his previous three starts, struggling at times with his location. But he was sharp for the most part against Pittsburgh, allowing three runs and seven hits with two walks.

Joaquin Benoit allowed two runs — one earned — in the eighth. Jose Valverde finished for his sixth save in seven chances, striking out a swinging Andrew McCutchen with a runner on first to end it.

Pittsburgh left-hander Francisco Liriano (3-1) allowed four runs and eight hits in five innings.

ATHLETICS 4, GIANTS 1 OAKLAND, Calif. • Josh Donaldson hit a two-run homer to back Dan Straily's strong start, and the Athletics won the Bay Bridge Series opener.

Straily (3-2) tossed six innings of one-run ball, allowing four hits and one walk. Buster Posey's groundout in the sixth inning drove in San Francisco's lone run.

Donaldson connected against Madison Bumgarner (4-3) in the fourth, and Yoenis Cespedes added a two-run double against George Kontos in the seventh to extend Oakland's lead.

Sean Doolittle pitched two perfect innings and Grant Balfour recorded his 11th save of the season for Oakland, which has won four straight and nine of 10.

ORIOLES 6, NATIONALS 2 WASHINGTON • Jason Hammel pitched eight sharp innings in his longest start of the season, leading the Orioles to the win.

Nick Markakis and Yamaico Navarro each drove in two runs and the Orioles had 15 hits, including three from Manny Machado.

Hammel (7-2) improved to 4-0 at Nationals Park. He allowed eight hits and two runs, struck out eight and walked none.

Nationals starter Gio Gonzalez (3-3) was charged with four runs and eight hits in 5 2-3 innings. The left-hander had no record and a sparkling 1.29 ERA over his previous three outings.

Washington played without Bryce Harper, who has swelling in his left knee.

REDS 4, INDIANS 2 CINCINNATI • Joey Votto hit a tiebreaking two-run homer in the eighth inning to lift Cincinnati to the victory.

Votto drove a 2-1 pitch from Nick Hagadone (0-1) over the wall in left for his ninth homer. Hagadone was called up from Triple-A earlier in the day when closer Chris Perez was put on the disabled list with a sore right shoulder.

Shin-Soo Choo also had a leadoff homer in the first for the Reds. Choo was traded from the Indians to the Reds in the offseason.

Pinch hitter Jason Giambi had a tying solo homer in the eighth for Cleveland, snapping an 0-for-24 slump.

Jonathan Broxton (2-1) got two outs for the win and Aroldis Chapman pitched the ninth for his 13th save.

DIAMONDBACKS 5, RANGERS 3 PHOENIX • Tyler Skaggs struck out nine in six scoreless innings and the Diamondbacks held on for the win in the opener of a doubleheader.

Skaggs (1-0), who lost out to Patrick Corbin for Arizona's fifth starting spot in the spring, was recalled from Triple-A Reno before the game after scheduled starter Ian Kennedy cut his right index finger washing dishes.

Another 21-year-old lefty, Martin Perez (0-1), took the loss in his first start of the season. He allowed four runs, three earned, in 5 1-3 innings.

Cody Ross hit a solo homer for the Diamondbacks. Heath Bell got two outs for his ninth save.

Adrian Beltre had a two-run single in Texas' three-run ninth.

CARDINALS 6, ROYALS 3 KANSAS CITY, Mo. • Yadier Molina homered and drove in four runs to help the Cardinals get the win.

Molina hit a two-run homer in the first. He then doubled home a run in the third and had a sacrifice fly in the fourth.

Adam Wainwright (7-3) allowed three runs and 12 hits in eight innings, but managed to get the win. Edward Mujica finished for his 15th save.

It was the most hits allowed by Wainwright since Sept. 14, 2010, against the Chicago Cubs.

James Shields (2-6) gave up nine hits and season highs of six runs and five walks in six innings to lose his fourth straight start.

Rookie David Lough had four hits for Kansas City.

RAYS 10, MARLINS 6 ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. • Kelly Johnson hit a pair of three-run homers and Tampa Bay handed Miami its sixth straight loss.

Johnson also doubled, singled and stole a base. He matched his career highs for RBIs and hits during his eighth multihomer game, and first since May 30, 2011, against the Marlins while with Arizona.

Johnson, who has 24 RBIs in 21 games this month, connected against rookie Jose Fernandez (2-3) in a six-run second inning. He then broke open the game by hitting his 10th home run in the eighth against A.J. Ramos.

Jake McGee (2-2) got the victory after pitching two scoreless innings of relief.

TWINS 6, BREWERS 3 MILWAUKEE • Joe Mauer wound up with a home run instead of a double after umpires went to video replay, and the Twins got a sorely needed victory.

Kevin Correia (5-4) pitched six innings and gave up three homers as Minnesota won for only the second time in 13 games. Glen Perkins pitched a perfect ninth inning for his 10th save.

Carlos Gomez homered twice for the Brewers.

MARINERS 9, PADRES 0 SEATTLE • Aaron Harang threw a four-hitter, Jason Bay hit his first career leadoff homer and Michael Morse added a three-run shot as part of Seattle's four-run first inning.

Harang (2-5) rebounded from a poor last start against the Angels, allowing a leadoff bloop double to Everth Cabrera and then retiring 18 of the next 19 batters. It was his first complete game since June 4, 2009, and first shutout since April 12, 2009. He struck out a season-high eight and threw 122 pitches.

A day after getting the game-winning hit in the 13th inning against Texas that snapped the Mariners' eight-game losing streak, Bay got Seattle started against San Diego lefty Clayton Richard.

Bay hit Clayton Richard's fourth pitch out to deep right-center field for his fifth homer of the season. Morse followed with his 11th homer into the right-field seats after Richard (0-5) walked Kyle Seager and gave up a double to Kendrys Morales.

ASTROS 3, ROCKIES 2, 12 INNINGS HOUSTON • Brandon Barnes hit a game-ending RBI double to give Houston the victory.

The Rockies intentionally walked Jose Altuve with two outs before Barnes drove in drive in pinch runner Roger Cedeno with a ground-rule double to right off Wilton Lopez (1-2).

Paul Clemens (2-2) struck out two in a scoreless 12th for the win.

CUBS 7, WHITE SOX 0 CHICAGO • Jeff Samardzija threw a complete game, two-hit shutout and Julio Borbon hit a two-run home run and the Chicago Cubs beat the Chicago White Sox 7-0 on Monday.

RED SOX 9, PHILLIES 3 BOSTON • Dustin Pedroia and Mike Napoli homered in the first inning as the Boston Red Sox jumped to an early lead and coasted to a 9-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies on Monday night.

BLUE JAYS 9, BRAVES 3 TORONTO • Edwin Encarnacion hit a three-run homer, Colby Rasmus and J.P. Arencibia each had a two-run shot and the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Atlanta Braves 9-3 on Monday night.

METS 2, YANKEES 1 NEW YORK • Daniel Murphy hit a go-ahead single in the eighth after being denied a homer two innings earlier, and the New York Mets rallied to beat the rival Yankees 2-1 Monday night for their second straight home win after losing eight in a row.

Popular Win Eases Kanaan's Worries at Trying Time

It had been nearly three years since Tony Kanaan's last victory, a drought so long his young son had no memory of ever seeing his father win a race.

Jenna Fryer

In the Pits

It was a sticky subject with young Leo, who just last week reminded Kanaan of the winless stretch during a phone call from Brazil. "I was having a conversation with him about losing the other day — I was trying to teach him you don't win every time," Kanaan said Monday. "He said, 'Yeah, Dad, because as long as I remember, I haven't seen you win.' That was harsh." Harsh, but unfortunately true for a driver trapped in a never-ending search for sponsorship that had turned the last few years into an overwhelming struggle to ensure he could race. It's what made his breakthrough victory Sunday in the Indianapolis 500 so sweet, so special. It was a victory for the old guard, one Leo would always remember, and proved good guys sometimes do finish first. More important, it relieved the financial burden KV Racing Technology has faced this season, a year in which Kanaan's car lost its longtime primary sponsor and had been piecing together corporate support since right before the season opener when the team announced

Hydroxycut had signed on for nine races. It left five unsponsored, and Kanaan revealed Monday that team co-owners Kevin Kalkhoven and Jimmy Vasser went into Indianapolis unsure if they'd finish the season. "The past three years I've been working extremely hard, probably even harder than driving the car, to find the sponsorship to keep surviving," Kanaan said. "I hope this win helps me a little bit more, makes it easier to either find a sponsorship or maybe get back on a team that is well-funded. I'm not saying we're going to make the same money we used to make, because these are different times. "But I would like to have a little bit less pressure on my side, to just really concentrate on driving." He's in the final year of his contract with KV, a team that snapped him up before shortly before the 2011 season opener when sponsorship materialized. Kanaan was out of a job at the time because his sponsorship at Andretti Autosport had gone away, and a plan to drive for a new team started by fellow Brazilian Gil de Ferran fell apart because of a lack of funding. The deal to drive for de Ferran was announced in December 2010 and evaporated two months later. So he's grateful to KV Racing, which has worked hard to compete on the race track and in the sponsorship game the last three years. Kanaan would like to continue driving for the team, but has grown weary of the fight. "I'm happy where I'm at, I'm confident that with this we can build something solid for the following year," he said. "We were so sketchy up until this race, we didn't even know if we were going to do the entire year. Now I'm pretty sure we will. But I would love to work a little bit less on that side."

It seems strange that a driver as popular as Kanaan has such struggles. The crowd clearly adores the longtime IndyCar stalwart, evidenced by the roar of the crowd when he surged past Ryan Hunter-Reay on the final restart Sunday. The applause was thunderous moments later when a caution essentially ended the race, and Kanaan circled the track under yellow for two final laps. They were still standing and cheering 45 minutes later when he took his victory lap, showering him with chants of "TK! TK! TK!" as he passed by in a convertible. "It gave me goose bumps, it was crazy," Vasser said. The entire day was filled with tears of happiness as losing driver after losing driver saluted Kanaan, who shared an emotional long embrace with Alex Zanardi, the beloved former champion who lost both his legs in a 2001 accident. Zanardi had come from Italy to watch the 500 and had Kanaan rub one of his gold medals from the 2012 London Paralympics for luck before the race. Even Hunter-Reay, who dropped from first to third on the final restart, found solace in losing to Kanaan. "It hurts to come so close to winning, and it's hard to say anything positive, but I guess the only consolation is that Tony finally got what he deserved," Hunter-Reay said. Kanaan was feted by three-time winner Dario Franchitti, who stood next to his crumpled car after bringing out the final caution to give his old friend two thumbs up as he passed under yellow, and Mario Andretti and Parnelli Jones. Best friend Rubens Barrichello called from Paris, sobbing so hard into the phone Kanaan couldn't even tell who the voicemail was from. It had taken him 12 years to win the big race, and he'd become something of a hard-luck tale while ranking third on the list of most laps led among drivers who had failed to win Indy. "I was watching the race from the Pagoda and the fans were sure happy to see Tony win, they cheered like hell and you could really hear them above the sounds of the engines when he was leading," said Jones, the 1963 winner. "For a while there I was afraid Tony was going to be the next Lloyd Ruby and never make it to Victory Lane at Indy. Tony will represent Indianapolis Motor Speedway well. I welcome him the club." It's fitting, too, that Kanaan's likeness will go on the Borg-Warner trophy after the late Dan Wheldon and Franchitti, two of his closest friends. Made several self-deprecating mentions of "his ugly face" and "big nose" finally making it onto the trophy. The timing was perfect, even though Kanaan found a way to make fun of his place in history. "The trophy is really going to be ugly now," he said. "You've got the biggest teeth with Dan next to the biggest eyebrows with Dario and now the biggest nose with me. I love it!"

North Carolina Top Seed for NCAA Baseball Tourney

ASSOCIATED PRESS OMAHA, Neb. • As good as the record-setting Vanderbilt baseball team has been this season, North Carolina has been just a little bit better. That was the opinion of the NCAA Division I baseball tournament selection committee, which on Monday picked the Tar Heels as the No. 1 national seed for the 64-team tournament. "It was really a close, close call," committee chairman Dennis Farrell said. "I'm not so sure I can really articulate what the determining factor was." The tournament opens Friday with 16 four-team, double-elimination regionals. Best-of-three super regionals will be held next week, with those winners moving to the College World Series in Omaha. The national seeds behind North Carolina and Vanderbilt, in order, are: Oregon State, LSU, Cal State Fullerton, Virginia, Florida State and Oregon. North Carolina (52-8) won its first ACC regular-season championship since 1990, and its 48 regular-season victories were a school record. The Tar Heels lost two straight series to end the regular season, but they remain the only team in the nation that hasn't lost consecutive games. In the ACC tournament they needed 14 innings to beat Clemson and 18 to defeat North Carolina State before they won the title with a 4-1 victory over Virginia Tech on Sunday. They're averaging 8.2 runs a game, and their .867 winning percentage is the best in the country. They have the conference pitcher and player of the year in left-hander Kent Emanuel and third baseman Colin Moran. The No. 1 seed is a first for coach Mike Fox's program. The Tar Heels have been a top-eight seed six of the last seven years. "It's exciting," Fox said. "It's just important to be one of the top eight, really. Just try to be a national seed, so if you're fortunate enough to win a regional, you know you're playing at home the next weekend." The Tar Heels open against Canisius (42-15), which is in the tournament for the first time after winning the MAAC post-season title. "It's about preparing for the next phase of our season," Fox said. "After that first pitch Friday, the seeding doesn't come into play." Vanderbilt (51-9) looked to have a good shot at earning the No. 1 seed after winning a record 26 regular-season games in Southeastern Conference play. The Commodores feature pitcher Tyler Beede, who is unbeaten in 14 decisions. Vanderbilt had the nation's No. 1 RPI after the regular season, ahead of North Carolina. That was just one of the criteria used by the selection committee, Farrell said. "It really is kind of a marriage of art and science," he said. "We get a lot of data put in front of us. We get advice from regional advisory committees. At the end of the day it's a vote of 10 committee members."

Today is Tuesday, May 28, the 148th day of 2013. There are 217 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On May 28, 1863, the 54th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry Regiment, made up of freed blacks, left Boston to fight for the Union in the Civil War.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1533, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Thomas Cranmer, declared the marriage of England's King Henry VI-II to Anne Boleyn valid.
In 1892, the Sierra Club was organized in San Francisco.

In 1912, the Senate Commerce Committee issued its report on the Titanic disaster that cited a “state of absolute unpreparedness,” improperly tested safety equipment and an “indifference to danger” as some of the causes of an “unnecessary tragedy”

In 1929, the first all-color talking picture, “On with the Show,” opened in New York.

In 1934, the Dionne quintuplets — Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie and Yvonne — were born to Elzire Dionne at the family farm in Ontario, Canada.

In 1937, President Franklin D. Roosevelt pushed a button in Washington signaling that vehicular traffic could begin crossing the just-opened Golden Gate Bridge in California. Neville Chamberlain became prime minister of Britain.

In 1940, during World War II, the Belgian army surrendered to invading German forces.

In 1959, the U.S. Army launched Able, a rhesus monkey, and Baker, a squirrel monkey, aboard a Jupiter missile for a suborbital flight which both primates survived.

In 1961, Amnesty International had its beginnings with the publication of an article in the British newspaper The Observer, “The Forgotten Prisoners”

In 1977, 165 people were killed when fire raced through the Beverly Hills Supper Club in Southgate, Ky.

In 1987, to the embarrassment of Soviet officials, Mathias Rust, a young West German pilot, landed a private plane in Moscow's Red Square without authorization. (Rust was freed by the Soviets the following year.)

In 1998, comic actor Phil Hartman of “Saturday Night Live” and “NewsRadio” fame was shot to death at his home in Encino, Calif., by his wife, Brynn, who then killed herself.

Ten years ago: President George W. Bush signed a 10-year, $350 billion package of tax cuts, saying they already were “adding fuel to an economic recovery.” Amnesty International released a report saying the U.S.-led war on terror had made the world a more dangerous and repressive place, a finding dismissed by Washington as “without merit.” Actress Martha Scott died in Van Nuys, Calif., at age 90.

Five years ago: The White House reacted angrily to a highly critical memoir by President George W. Bush's former press secretary, Scott McClellan, who wrote that Bush had relied on an aggressive “political propaganda campaign” instead of the truth to sell the Iraq war. Nepal's lawmakers abolished the monarchy and declared the country a republic, ending 239 years of royal rule.

One year ago: President Barack Obama paid tribute on Memorial Day to the men and women who died defending America, pointing to Vietnam veterans as an under-appreciated and sometimes maligned group of war heroes. Nineteen people, including 13 children, were killed in a mall fire in Qatar.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"I don't look to jump over 7-foot bars; I look around for 1-foot bars that I can step over."

— Warren Buffett

We are taught in our cradles that "Second Hand Plays Low" and "Third Hand Plays High," but all rules are made to be broken. Today's deal demonstrates a situation that arises quite frequently where it is right for "Second Hand to Play High." It might have been better for North to raise two no-trump to three, given his balanced hand and honors in all the outside suits. However, then South would not have been put to the test in four hearts.

West led the diamond nine, and declarer correctly deduced that both the ace and jack would be with East. The reflex action would have been to play low on the diamond, but our South decided to make life difficult for East by rising with dummy's queen. In with the ace, East had to decide what suit to switch to. In the event, he chose a trump, saving declarer a guess that he would probably have gotten wrong. West won his heart king and, for want of anything better to do, continued with a second trump to the queen and ace.

All declarer now needed was to find the spade queen, but again he gave the opponents every chance to find it for him. He drew the last trump, West discarding a diamond, and exited with king and another diamond. With little to guide him, East was in the hot seat yet again, and this time he chose to exit with a spade, ending declarer's problems.

ANSWER: The conundrum this deal presents if you are not playing Drury is an almost insoluble one. Do you jump to three hearts and find yourself too high for no reason, or raise to two hearts and miss a game? Fifty years ago, Doug Drury suggested that a two-club response by a passed hand shows fit and a maximum pass. What you lose in the ability to bid clubs, you gain in much more accurate passed-hand bidding.

DEAR ABBY: I own a business with just two employees, my husband and a very old friend. The friend has been in the business for 15 years, and he is critical to running it. My husband has been with me for 11 years, but in the business for only three. He is not critical to running the business.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

Their relationship is a constant strain. Neither one likes the other, but they generally tolerate each other. When tensions arise they become emotional, and I end up caught between them, unable to put an end to it.

How do we work and live in peace? Their conflict is affecting the smooth functioning of the business. What should I do to end the hostility? I'm a quiet type, which probably feeds the situation.

— WALKING ONEGGSHELLS

DEAR WALKING ON EGGSHELLS: You may be a quiet type, but you are also the boss. The atmosphere you describe is unhealthy for your business. For it to continue to be successful, your business must be nurtured as a separate entity apart from your friendship and your marriage.

Because the present situation makes it difficult for all of you to function together, I'm suggesting that you tell your husband you love him, but either he must get along with the longtime employee or leave the business — because it's the business that is paying the bills, feeding and putting a roof over all of you!

DEAR ABBY: A friend, "Wanda," invited my husband, "Hugh," and me to a dinner party two years ago. Hugh had too much to drink and insulted not only Wanda but also one of the guests. He apologized the next day.

This is not the first time he has done this at dinner parties, and his behavior has had a negative impact on some of my best friendships. I used to entertain all the time, but I can no longer invite my friends over as they no longer want to be around Hugh.

Wanda continues to invite me to her dinner parties, but has made a point of telling me that Hugh is NOT invited. Not wanting to lose another friend, I have been going alone. I let my husband know why, and he says it doesn't bother him, but I feel guilty attending without him. My friendships are important to me and I'm torn about what to do.

— PARTY OF ONE

DEAR PARTY: If your husband can't control his behavior when he's had a drink or two, then he should not be drinking in public. That he says it "doesn't bother him" that he's no longer welcome in these people's homes is sad, as it should be a glaring signal that he needs help.

Because he isn't ready to do something about his problem, continue to socialize without him. That you do is admirable, so please stop feeling guilty about it.

DEAR ABBY: About a year ago, my wife had an affair with one of the instructors at a training seminar. We are working to repair our marriage and are making great strides. She says there's nothing else going on now.

My wife has been invited to a graduation ceremony where she is to receive an award from the same instructor. This will be the first time I meet this person, and I have mixed feelings about it. How should I approach this meeting?

— MIXED FEELINGS IN MISSOURI

DEAR MIXED FEELINGS: Do it with cool civility, complete sobriety and as little contact as possible.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

IF MAY 28 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: A new personal perspective may develop in the year to come. As the next few weeks unfold, you may be an eager beaver about getting ahead and are at your best when making rational decisions about business, job or career. Don't start off on a wild goose chase in August and September when your ambitions might outweigh common sense. Any career or business opportunity worth pursuing will still be available in November. Put significant plans into action or look for opportunities to improve your life on numerous levels during November.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The tides have turned, so learn and earn. An educational experience that you embark upon now could be the key to future prosperity. You are quite likely to receive more attention and applause than usual.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Develop a valid value system that embraces life, love and legal tender. Contentment with what you have will prevent you from spending on extravagant items, only on what reflects good taste.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): View every situation as an opportunity to prove your strength and ability. Your social skills are in fine fettle under today's planetary alignments so do your best to fortify close personal relationships.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Put personal resources to work for you in ingenious ways. Sometimes you are torn by the desire to cling possessively to people and things. Free yourself from habitual conditioning; try a new direction.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Positive thinking will let you do everything that negative thinking won't. Don't let push come to shove — a creative workaround will serve you better short-term and keep the door open for the future.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are completely in charge of your attitude. Don't let other people choose it for you. Your interpretation of events is more significant than the events themselves, so choose your interpretations wisely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You could be wiser than usual. Genuine admirers may seek your opinion. The people who provide support or offer unsolicited advice do so from the goodness of their hearts. Don't look for strings attached.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You might miss the silver lining if you are too busy looking for gold. You will come to a realization that you are happier when you share your possessions with others than when you keep them to yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Regardless of who you are or what you've accomplished, it's always appropriate to toot your own horn. The recognition and support of those around you will nurture your best qualities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You could be tempted to challenge social conventions to achieve your ambitions. You may be torn between a desire to demonstrate openness of expression and a sense of privacy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Widen your sphere of influence. Meet new people and spreading good cheer wherever you go. Your creativity could be enhanced by seeing works of art or immersing yourself in beautiful surroundings.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): If a little experience goes a long way, imagine how far you can go with a lot of experience. You may be surprised to find that you have a creative talent once you buckle down and work diligently.

The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
