GOV. OTTER DECLARES DISASTER Idaho home to nation's top three wildfires.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI kkruesi@magicvalley.com

PINE • Idaho is a disaster area, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter declared Monday, as the nation's top three priority wildfires raged on.

The Elk Fire Complex grew almost 10,000 acres overnight and had destroyed at least 14 structures Monday.

The adjacent Pony Fire Complex and the Beaver Fire Complex near Fairfield ranked a close second and third behind the Elk.

The Elk Fire Complex had scorched nearly

They did not know whether the other 14 burned buildings were homes.

By Monday evening, the weather had cooled somewhat and humidity was up, giving firefighters a quick window to go on the offense to gain more control. Lines were dozed and back burns were intentionally lit to confine the flames to one area.

Residents remaining in town gathered outside the Pine Resort to catch a glimpse of the flames that the crews were igniting.

"I hope this is the last time I have to see this," yelled out a man with a camera, trying to find a 100,000 acres as of Monday. Fire conditions were expected to remain extreme due to an abundance of dry timber and changing wind conditions.

A Type 1 management team in charge of the fire has brought in more than 400 personnel.

The wildfire, sparked by lightning Thursday, was expected to have damaged or destroyed more buildings in the Fall Creek area, but firefighters still are clearing the roads and waiting for the timbers to cool before going in. better view of the fire.

Fire and law enforcement officials have taken over the tiny town of Pine, but plenty of people have ignored the evacuation order enacted by the Elmore County Sheriff's Office. Officials ordered the evacuation Sunday in Pine and along Pine/Featherville Road.

Dogs Steal the Show at Cassia County Fair

BY LAURIE WELCH lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Man's best friend strutted some of his finest stuff Monday – and demonstrated that some dogs have a mind of their own – during the kickoff of the Cassia County Fair and Rodeo.

Thirteen children showed their dogs during the event.

Charlotte Nyblade, 13, took top honors in the graduate-novice obedience competition, after her dog, Seth, aced the sit and stay exercise. She had to leave Seth in the show ring and stay out of his sight for three minutes.

Charlotte also took the second place rosette in the showmanship competition.

"It feels really good and makes me feel like it's all been worth it," she said.

During the graduate-novice obedience competition, 17-year-old Makaya Holt's dog, Oddball, used the opportunity to run underneath the superintendent's chair.

Oddball hung his head as Makaya retrieved him with a light reprimand.

"It's his off day today," Makaya said after the competition. "Sometimes that just happens."

A seasoned handler, she's been showing dogs since she was 5.

Cassia County and Burley: No Accord for Law Enforcement

BY LAURIE WELCH

lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • The Burley City Council voted Monday to keep making $120,833 payments each month for law enforcement services from Cassia County, even though the county has terminated its former law enforcement contract with the city.

City Council members said the payments will go directly to the sheriff rather than the county. The city will continue getting the same level of service, Sheriff Jay Heward said at the meeting.

"This is not a solution," Burley Mayor Terry Greenman said after the meeting. "We have to have a legal contract in place. We can't pay them $1.45 million and not know they'll provide us with the services."

Councilman Randy Hawkins cast the only dissenting vote, and Councilman John Craner was absent. Councilmen Russell Mallory, Casey Andersen, Gordon Hansen and Steve McGill passed the motion to keep making the payments..

The city will pay the equivalent of $1.45 million a year — the amount it had offered to pay the county for law enforcement services. The county had requested $1.5 million. When the city wouldn't agree, the county severed the contract.

"My motion is that we begin paying this increased amount, and they (the county) can decide if they want to keep the police department together," said Councilman McGill. If the county terminates police services, "it will be on their backs."

"I make a motion that we do that until such time our elected sheriff tells the city Please see CASSIA, A9

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Miners, Deal Stocks, Apple Rise on Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) • Corporate deal stories and technology stocks were bright spots on Wall Street Monday on a day when the indexes ended relatively flat.

BlackBerry jumped after the struggling smartphone maker said it would consider a sale. Dole Foods rose after its CEO said he would take the company private and Steinway Musical Instruments gained after receiving a new buyout offer.

Apple, another smartphone maker, was also in the news. The tech giant's stock rose after the blog AllThingsD said the company would release the latest version of its iPhone on Sept. 10.

Curious Mind Livestock Permits Must Be Obtained within City Limits

If you break the chicken ordinance in Twin Falls or other cities, what does the city do with your chickens?

he city of 66 1 Twin Falls does not do anything with the chickens. If a violator does not obtain an animal permit by a certain deadline, then they would be cited under city code 6-3-4," said Sean Standley, the city's Code Enforcement Coordinator.

Under the city code, it is unlawful to keep any horses, mules, donkeys, cows, sheep, goats, poultry or more than three rabbits, or any other animals except dogs, cats or other pets that are kept inside a residence or business, without first obtaining a permit from the city clerk.

A permit is granted subject to the applicant meeting the following specifications:

(A) To maintain poultry or more than three rabbits, the applicant must have at least 5,000 square feet of real property for each 25 fowl or for four to 25 rabbits. Fowl, poultry or rabbit enclosures must be no closer than 40 feet from a neighbor's dwelling. The applicant may request a variance from the city council to waive the 5,000 square feet requirement for 25 fowl.

(B) To keep one cow, one horse, one sheep or one goat, or any other animals except dogs and cats, the applicant must have at least 1 acre of property and at least 10,000 square feet of property or pasture land devoted exclusively for the use of each animal. Fences must enclose the animals to prevent trespass onto adjoining property. Applicants in compliance with this section prior to its amendment will be given five years to come into compliance with the square footage requirements.

"You must also have approval from the city sanitation inspector," said Standley.

Animal locations, structures, pens, corrals and any other premises used for keeping farm stock must be kept sanitary, free from obnoxious odors and substances. All animals must be confined. Animals cannot disturb local residents with any noise, odor or property damage

Livestock may be in loading pens for selling, loading or shipping, but they cannot be penned within city limits for more than 36 hours except by written permission of the sanitation inspector.

Before a permit is issued, the applicant must circulate a petition among all households within 300 feet of his own property, says section 6-3-8 of the city code. The petition must state the number and type(s) of animals and where the applicant plans to keep them.

The applicant must obtain an acknowledgement from every household whether the resident approves or disapproves, and 75 percent approval must be obtained before an animal permit will be issued. If the applicant cannot obtain an acknowledgement from a household, the applicant may substitute a statement for the resident excluded, explaining the attempts made to obtain the acknowledgement, and the results of those attempts.

The animal permit must not be issued if acknowledgement and approval has not been met.

What are Pyrocumulus Clouds?

he weather has remained fairly normal since I've been away, except for isolated storms that sparked large wildfires north of Mountain Home and north-northeast of Fairfield late last week. These fires produced some interesting clouds that could be seen from Twin Falls last weekend.

These are called pyrocumulus clouds or fire clouds. Pyrocumulus clouds form because of intense heat from wildfires or volcanoes. The fire causes the air above the fire to rise rapidly, forming a very strong updraft. These updrafts carry water vapor and ash high into the atmosphere, condensing to form a large cloud.

These clouds tend to resemble thunderstorm or cumulonimbus clouds, except they tend to have more of a gray or brownish tint because of the ash in the cloud.

Sometimes these pyrocumulus clouds carry enough water vapor that they will produce thunderstorms and even some rain. The rain can help to put out the fire, but these pyrocumulonumbus clouds also can produce lightning that could spark more fires and even gusty winds to help spread the flames.

You hear that wildfires can create their own weather, and this is very true. When you are adding large amounts of heat to the atmosphere, winds can and will change direction. The strength of winds from a fire can be 10 times stronger than the area winds around it. And, as mentioned above these storms can also produce clouds and sometimes even rain from the heat forcing air to rise upwards into the atmosphere ..

$500,000 LeBaron Homes Lawsuit Delayed, Conflicting Details Emerge

BY JOE CADOTTE jcadotte@magicvalley.com

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls Highway District says it's a done deal: A roadway set to be built 11 inches from a Lance LeBaron home will never happen.

A Twin Falls County commissioner says it's not that simple. Although that road never will be built, the city and county still need to hold separate public meetings to approve the road's relocation, Commissioner Terry Kramer said.

Not so, said David Jones, director of the highway district. The county has no say because moving the road does not affect how the land was originally platted. Kramer disagreed, saying the highway district's approval of the road does change the plat, which requires city and county approval.

Regardless of how the road issue plays out, a $500,000 lawsuit against LeBaron filed by homeowners Lee Ann and Rocky Hagan is far from over.

LeBaron's attorney, Jeff Stoker, requested a delay in the Aug. 28 initial court appearance. The Hagans' attorney, Jeff Rolig, agreed, saying he wants to file more depositions. The court date has not been rescheduled.

LeBaron built a house 11 inches from the site of a future road in 2009, then sold the home for $500,000 in 2012. When the Hagans learned about the problem, they wrote to LeBaron asking for their money back.

The Hagans told the Times-News they didn't get a response, so they filed suit last November. LeBaron said in an interview that he hadn't realized his mistake until after he sold the house, and then the Hagans refused his offer to resolve the problem.

LeBaron said he offered to give them their money back and they refused.

"I'm doing the best I can to solve the problem," LeBaron said Aug. 8. "I've gotten the paperwork into the highway department so that they can vacate the road and the problem is solved. I've bought them a lot, which cost me money to resolve the problem. They're actually getting more land than they originally bought. I did that to make sure they are taken care of. I did my best to take care of them."

Whether the road site is vacated won't undo the lawsuit, said Lee Ann Hagan.

"The only thing that I want people to know is that he knowingly sold me a house that was built in the wrong place, and if the road is vacated, it will have a negative impact on people who weren't involved," she said.

Despite the lawsuit's outcome, Rocky Hagan said, he wants people to know that title insurance isn't what many think it is.

"Almost everyone we've talked to during this process asks us, 'Isn't that what title insurance is for?' Most people don't know title insurance doesn't cover them in a situation like this. ... The one thing that I would really want to get said is that for people to protect themselves, they really need an extended title insurance policy. Regular title insurance won't prevent something like this from happening."

Suspect in Idaho Shootout Fired Once or Twice

BY TODD DVORAK AND ELLIOT SPAGAT

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO • A close family friend suspected of abducting a 16-year old girl after killing her mother and younger brother fired his rifle at FBI agents before they killed him deep in the Idaho wilderness, authorities said Monday.

Hannah Anderson didn't know her mother and brother were dead until she was rescued from 40-year-old James Lee DiMaggio, San Diego County Sheriff Bill Gore said.

"I can't make it any clearer: She was a victim in this case. She was not a willing participant," Gore said at a news conference with Hannah's father, Brett Anderson.

During a shootout with the FBI, DiMaggio fired at least once and perhaps twice, the sheriff said.

Hannah Anderson reunited with family in San Diego to begin what her father said would be a slow recovery. He thanked the horseback riders who reported seeing the pair near an alpine lake, saying na Anderson and 8-year-old Ethan Anderson and leaving their bodies in his burning home near San Diego on Aug. 4. Hannah's disappearance triggered a massive search in much of the western United States and parts of Canada and Mexico that ended with Saturday's shootout and rescue.

A DiMaggio family friend, Andrew Spanswick, said the suspect appears to have followed in his father's footsteps in a carefully laid plan. His house burned down exactly 15 years after his father disappeared. Saturday's shootout came exactly 15 years after his father committed suicide.

The younger DiMaggio "clearly had a death wish," Spanswick said.

The father, James Everet DiMaggio, was arrested after breaking into the home of his ex-girlfriend in 1988, wearing a ski mask and a carrying a sawed-off shotgun and handcuffs, Spanswick said. The former girlfriend wasn't home, but DiMaggio held her 16-year daughter and her boyfriend at gunpoint. The girl escaped after asking to That enabled investigators to focus efforts on a specific portion of the Frank Church-River of No Return Wilderness, a roadless 3,600-square-mile preserve in the heart of Idaho.

"They just didn't fit," said John, 71. "He might have been an outdoorsman in California, but he was not an outdoorsman in Idaho. ... Red flags kind of went up."

Initially, it was the lack of openness on the trail and a reluctance to engage in the polite exchange of banter like so many other recreationists John has encountered during horseback excursions.

The riders were puzzled why Anderson and DiMaggio were hiking in the opposite direction of their stated destination, the Salmon River.

But more than anything, it was their gear – or lack of it. Neither was wearing hiking boots or rain gear. DiMaggio, described as an avid hiker in his home state of California, was toting only a light pack. It even appeared Anderson was wearing pajama bottoms.

two FBI hostage teams moved in on the camp at Morehead Lake, about 8 miles inside the wilderness border and 40 miles east of the central Idaho town of Cascade.

Rescue teams were dropped by helicopter about 21/2 hours away from where Anderson and DiMaggio were spotted by the lake, said FBI spokesman Jason Pack. The team had to hike with up to 100 pounds of tactical gear along a rough trail characterized by steep switchbacks and treacherous footing.

DiMaggio was extraordinarily close to the family, driving Hannah to gymnastics meets and Ethan to football practice.

MINIDOKA • A train partially derailed Sunday morning in Minidoka County near 800 East Road and Idaho 24 outside of Minidoka.

Eleven cars from the 63car train left the tracks at 11:20 a.m. Sunday.

No one was injured, and no crossings were blocked, said Minidoka County Sheriff Eric Snarr.

The cause of the derailment had not been determined, Snarr said, but the engineer and conductor thought the train was dragging something when it reached the switch, causing those cars to catch and leave the tracks.

Cars were scattered on both sides of the tracks.

and one tipped over and spilled lye, he said.

The train was en route from Salt Lake City to Oregon, said Union-Pacific Railroad spokesman Aaron Hunt.

One of the derailed cars was an empty tanker that usually carries anhydrous ammonia.

"That was definitely the car we were most focused on," said Hunt.

The other cars were carrying mixed freight, including lumber, grain and potash. "None of those spilled," he said.

Union-Pacific has 800 miles of track and 1,000 employees in Idaho, Hunt said.

The clean-up process is now up to Union-Pacific Railroad. Snarr said law enforcement and fire department personnel left the scene within a few hours.

the search might have taken much longer without them.

"She has been through a tremendous, horrific ordeal," said Brett Anderson, who declined to answer questions and pleaded for privacy.

Christopher Saincome, Hannah's grandfather, said his son-in-law wanted to take Hannah with him to Tennessee, where he recently moved. Saincome told him that she should stay in the San Diego area, where she was raised and has a large circle of friends.

"I think she needs to be here with friends," Saincome said. "I know she's taking it very tough. One of her best friends is with her, talking to her."

Gore declined to address how Hannah's mother and brother died, describe Hannah's captivity or say whether she tried to escape. The sheriff also refused to discuss the rescue or how many times DiMaggio was shot, other than to say the suspect is believed to have fired first and that Hannah was nearby.

Gore said the crime was "not spur of the moment" but would not elaborate. Sheriff's Capt. Duncan Fraser said last week that investigators believe DiMaggio may have had an "unusual infatuation" with the girl.

DiMaggio is suspected of killing 44-year-old Christi-use the bathroom.

The elder DiMaggio was imprisoned for a separate attack and died in 1998 after consuming a large amount of methamphetamine intravenously and walking into the desert.

The massive search for Hannah Anderson probably would have taken longer if a sharp-eyed retired sheriff and three other horseback riders in the rugged backcountry hadn't seen the pair Wednesday. Gore called it the "key event" in the search.

Mark John, who retired as a Gem County sheriff in 1996, shared his suspicions with the Idaho State Police after encountering DiMaggio and the girl on the trail.

A DIFFERENT KIND OF TREATMENT COULD HELP YOU FIND OSTEOARTHRITIS KNEE PAIN

A natural substance that lubricates your joint to relieve osteoarthritis knee pain

Ask your doctor about Synvisc-One, the #1 prescribed viscosupplement in the U.S.¹

The only viscosupplement providing up to 6 months of osteoarthritis knee pain relief with just one injection.*

Indication

Synvisc-One® (hylan G-F 20) is indicated for the treatment of pain in osteoarthritis (OA) of the knee in patients who have failed to respond adequately to conservative non-pharmacologic therapy and simple analgesics, e.g., acetaminophen.

Important Safety Information for Synvisc-One

Before trying Synvisc-One, tell your doctor if you have had an allergic reaction, such as swelling of the face, tongue or throat, respiratory difficulty, rash, itching or hives to SYNVISC or any hyaluronan-based products. Should not be used in patients with an infected knee joint, skin disease or infection around the area where the injection will be given, or circulatory problems in the legs. Synvisc-One is only for injection into the knee, performed by a doctor or other qualified health care professional. Synvisc-One has not been tested to show pain relief in joints other than the knee.

Tell your doctor if you are allergic to products from birds — such as feathers, eggs or poultry — or if your leg is swollen or infected. Synvisc-One has not been tested in children (≤21 years old), pregnant women or women who are nursing. You should tell your doctor if you think you are pregnant or if you are nursing a child. Talk to your doctor before resuming strenuous weight-bearing activities after treatment. The side effects sometimes seen after Synvisc-One include (<2% each): pain, swelling, heat, redness, and/or fluid build-up in or around the knee. Tell your doctor if you experience any side effects after treatment with Synvisc-One.

Patient Information

Be sure to read the following important information carefully. This information does not take the place of your doctor's advice. If you do not understand this information or want to know more, ask your doctor.

Glossary of Terms

Hyaluronan (pronounced hy-al-u-ROE-nan): is a natural substance that is present in very high amounts in joints. It acts like a lubricant and a shock absorber in the joint and is needed for the joint to work properly. Non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs: also known as "NSAIDs"; medication used to treat pain or swelling. There are many examples of NSAIDs, including (but not limited to) aspirin and ibuprofen. Some of these are over-the-counter drugs, and some can be obtained only by prescription. Osteoarthritis (pronounced OS-te-o-arth-RI-tis): (OA) is a type of arthritis that involves the wearing down of cartilage (the protective covering on the ends of your bones) and loss of cushioning fluid in the joint.

What is the Synvisc-One® product?

Synvise-One is a gel-like mixture that comes in a syringe containing 6 mL (1½ teaspoon) and is injected into your knee. It is made up of hylan A fluid, hylan B gel, and salt water. Hylan A and hylan B are made from as ubstance called hyaluronan (pronounced hy-al-u-ROE-nan), also known as sodium hyaluronate that comes from chicken combs Hvaluronan is a natural substance found in the body and is present in very high amounts in joints. The body's own hyaluronan acts like a lubricant and a shock absorber in the joint and is needed for the joint to work properly.

How is the Synvisc-One[®] product used? (Indications) The FDA-approved indication for Synvisc-One is: Synvisc-One is indicated for the treatment of pain in osteoarthritis (OA) of the knee in patients who have failed to respond adequately to conservative nonpharmacologic therapy and simple analgesics, e.g., acetaminophen

How is the Synvisc-One® product given? Your doctor will inject Synvisc-One into your knee

Are there any reasons why I should not receive a Synvisc-One® injection? (Contraindications)

Your doctor will determine if there is any reason why you are not an appropriate candidate for Synvisc-One. You should be aware that Synvisc-One:

 Should not be used in patients who have had any prior allergic reactions to Synvisc, Synvisc-One or any hyaluronan-based products. Signs of an allergic reaction may include swelling of your face, tongue, or throat; difficulty breathing or swallowing; shortness of breath; wheezing; chest pain; a tightness in your throat; sleepiness; rash; itching; hives; flushing; and/or fever.

 Should not be used in patients with a knee joint infection, skin disease or infection around the area where the injection will be given, or circulatory problems in the legs.

What should my doctor warn me about?

The following are important treatment considerations for you to discuss with your doctor and understand in order to help avoid unsatisfactory results and complications: Synvisc-One is only for injection into the knee, performed by a doctor or other qualified health care porfessional. Synvisc-One has not been tested to show pain relief in joints other than the knee.

 Synvisc-One has not been tested to show better pain relief when combined with other injected medicines

 Tell your doctor if you are allergic to products from birds such as feathers, eggs, and poultry.

 Tell your doctor if you have significant swelling or blood clots in the leg Synvisc-One has not been tested in pregnant women, or women who are nursing. You should tell your doctor if you think you are pregnant, or if you are nursing a child. • Synvisc-One has not been tested in children (\leq 21 years of age).

What are the risks of getting a Synvisc-One[®] injection?

The side effects (also called reactions) sometimes seen after any injection into the knee, including Synvisc-One, include: pain, swelling, heat, redness, and/or fluid buildup around the knee. These reactions are generally mild and do not last long. Reaction are generally treated by resting and applying ice to the injected knee. Sometimes it is necessary to give pain relievers by mouth such as acetaminophen or NSAIDs, or to give injections of steroids, or to remove fluid from the knee joint. Patients rarely undergo arthroscopy (a surgical inspection of the knee joint) or other medical procedures related to these reactions. Other side effects seen with Synvisc or Synvisc-One are: rashes, hives, itching, muscle pain/cramps, flushing and/or swelling of your face, fast heartbeat, nausea (or feeling sick to your stomach), dizziness, fever, chills, headache, difficulty breathing, swelling in your arms and/or legs, prickly feeling of your skin, and in rare cases a low number of platelets in the blood (platelets are a type of blood cell that are needed to help your blood clot when you are cut or injured). Rare cases of knee joint infection have been reported. If any of the above side effects or symptom appear after you are given Synvisc-One, or if you have any other problems, you should call your doctor

What are the benefits of getting a Synvisc-One® injection? As shown in a medical study of 253 patients with osteoarthritis (OA) of the knee, where approximately half received either a single injection of Synvisc-One or an injection of the same volume of salt water (a "Saline Control" injection), the major benefits of Synvisco One are pain relief and improvement in other symptoms related to OA of the knee.

What do I need to do after I get a Synvisc-One® injection? It is recommended you avoid strenuous activities (for example, high-impact sports such as tennis or jogging) or prolonged weight-bearing activities for approximately 48 hours following the injection. You should consult your doctor regarding the appropriate time to resume such activities.

What other treatments are available for OA?

If you have OA, there are other things you can do besides getting Synvisc-One. These include

Non-drug treatments

- Avoiding activities that cause knee pair
- Exercise or physical therapy
- Weight loss
- Removal of excess fluid from your knee
- Drug therapy
- Pain relievers such as acetaminophen and narcotics
 Drugs that reduce inflammation (signs of inflammation are swelling, pain or redness), such as aspirin and other non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs, for example ibuprofen and naproxen)
- · Steroids that are injected directly into your knee When should I call my doctor? (Troubleshooting

If any of the side effects or symptoms described above appear after you are given Synvisc-One, or if you have any other problems, you should call your doctor.

What did the clinical studies show? A study was conducted in 6 countries outside the United States with 21 physicians. The patients in the study had mild to moderate knee OA, moderate to severe pain, and did not have sufficient relief of their pain and symptoms with medications taken by mouth A total of 253 patients in the study were assigned by chance to receive either a single injection of Synvisc-One (n=123 patients), or an injection of the same volume of salt water (a "Saline Control" injection) (n=130 patients). Neither the patients nor the doctors evaluating them knew which treatment they received. Any fluid that was present in the patient's knee was removed before the injection. The patients were seen by their doctor at standard times over 6 months. Information was collected about how much pain they were experiencing doing various types of activities, how much they were limited in their daily activities by their OA, and on their overall condition. Their doctor also provided an overall rating of their OA.

The main measure of the study was how much pain the subjects had doing fi common types of activities over the 6 months duration of the study. Daily activity limitations and overall evaluations were also compared between the group of patients receiving Synvisc-One injection and the group receiving salt water injection. The study showed that patients receiving Synvisc-One had significantly less pain over 6 months. and felt significantly better than the patients who received the salt water injections. The difference in pain score reduction from baseline to 6 months between the Synvisc-One and salt water control injection was 0.15 out of a 5 point scale for the measurement of OA pain in the knee ne following are the most common adverse events that occurred during the clinical trial of Synvisc-One:

What adverse events were observed in the clinical study?

- Pain in the knee or at the injection site
- Stiffness, swelling or warmth in or around the knee
- Changes in the way that you walk (e.g., limping)
- Severe adverse events were not observed in the Synvisc-One trial. Joint infections did not occur in the injected knee in the Synvisc-One clinical trial. The most commonly occurring adverse events outside of the injected knee were headache, back pain, sore throat and the flu. One patient had a single episode of feeling faint.

Ernest James 'Ernie' Wills Jr.

June 27, 1932-Aug. 9, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Ernest James "Ernie" Wills Jr. was born June 27, 1932, the sixth child of Ernest James "EJ" Wills Sr. and Myrtle Laura Zobel Wills.

The grasshoppers, dust and devastation of the early 1930s were Ernie's earliest memories. His mother, Myrtle Wills, died when Ernie was only 2 years old, and his sister, Margaret, was 4. The family endured great hardship but managed to stay together, refusing to listen when well-meaning friends and relatives counseled letting the smallest children, Ernie and Margaret, be adopted, which was a common practice in those difficult days. He remembered very little of his mother but said he sometimes saw her face in the patterns of the clouds after she died. After several successive years of drought, the family was forced to leave their onceprosperous ranch in South Dakota and came west to Gooding, sleeping in fields and haystacks on their journey. Ernie later recalled that the alfalfa fields of eastern Idaho were the first green he had ever seen in his young life.

The family's first home in Gooding was upstairs from the hardware store they operated. Blankets held together with clothespins separated the "rooms." E.J. and his elder sons soon expanded the hardware business to include farm implements and automobiles, which became Wills Sales Company. They built a store north of the railroad tracks in Gooding for their budding operations. The eldest brother, Lowell, remained behind to operate the family business while brothers Wes, Bob, and Hank joined the U.S. Air Force. Wes was killed in China in 1943, which was a huge blow to the 11-year-old Ernie, who had idolized his older brother. Hank flew 30 missions over Germany, and was shot down in France but managed to return from the war safely. Bob supported the D-Day Invasion as a pilot for C47 troop carriers dropping paratroopers in support of Patton. People Magazine later honored the four brothers as the only four blood brothers who served as pilots and officers in the U.S. Air Force. E.J., Bob and Hank opened Wills Motor Company in Twin Falls in1946, which was initially a Nash agency, while Ernie was in junior high. His children remember him speaking fondly of the kindness shown to him by the high school principal, Vera C. O'Leary. Ernie graduated from high school in 1950 and attended college at University of Idaho, where he passed the requirements necessary for him to train as a pilot.

He left college to join the U.S. Air Force during the Korean War. It was a proud moment for him when he first flew a jet to Twin Falls, and was able to give his own little air show. The aircraft he piloted included the T-33 (training version of F88 Shooting Star) acting as a flight instructor while stationed in Bryant, Texas, and the B-47 Stratojet (first American swept wing nuclear bomber) for Strategic Air Command while stationed at March AFB, Calif. Although Ernie left the Air Force soon after he started a family, he never lost his love of flying, owning several airplanes in conjunction with his brothers. His children remember many pleasurable weekend mornings or evenings spent in the air "going to breakfast" or practicing touch-and-go landings at Smiley Creek, Jackpot or other isolated airstrips just for the joy of flying.

Ernie left the Air Force in 1960, and joined Wills Motor Company, eventually buying his father's interest in the business and becoming general manager. Ernie always considered the brothers' shared experience in the Air Force to be a contributing factor in their business success. Wills Motor Company has received many national awards for outstanding service and customer satisfaction. As general manager, Ernie expanded and modernized the facilities, while his thrift, frugality and mammoth work ethic helped the business weather hard economic times when other businesses struggled or failed.

friends up until Ernie's death.

Ernie was active in the Twin Falls Jaycees, was a board member of the Idaho Automobile Dealer's Association, and enjoyed participating in productions of musicals by the Magic Valley Dilettantes Group. Ernie's deep love of music was infused into his life and into the lives of his children who retain an appreciation for all forms of music. He enjoyed outdoor pursuits such as fishing and bird hunting. He was an active member of the Blue Lakes Country Club, golfing at least once a week with a group of devoted pals that include Dick Irwin, Chris Howard and Dale Riedesel. Two other members of the group, Jim Dodds and Fred Harder, are deceased. Ernie was known to be an excellent golfer. He was also an expert downhill skier for 60 years, and he and his family enjoyed many happy holidays at their property on Warm Springs Road in Ketchum. He spent time with all of his grandchildren and took them on some memorable trips, but was an especially important mentor to his grandsons, Nikolas Williams and Jeremy Fullmer.

Ernie, though sometimes exhibiting a stern exterior, had a huge soft spot for animals. He adopted many stray dogs and cats during his life, giving all of them happy homes. He served on the Twin Falls Animal Shelter Commission and instituted the injured animal fund in order to enable the shelter to treat animals to reduce their pain and repair their injuries. His two German shorthair dogs, Herman and Gunther, were among his most important companions during his later years. Gunther never left his master's side during Ernie's illness and death. Ernie was also a generous contributor to charities such as Smile Train. Though he was a demanding employer, many employees over the years benefitted from his spontaneous acts of generosity when they found themselves in need.

Ernie died peacefully at home surrounded by his family on the morning of Friday, Aug. 9, 2013, after a three-year battle with cancer.

He is survived by his four children: Eve Wills (Kurt Westenbarger), Chris Wills, Wendy Wills Munsee (Kelly) and Jennifer Wills; eight grandchildren: Nikolas Williams, Jeremy Fullmer (Lacy), Rachel Williams, Sarah Sattelberg (Ryan), Emma Wills, and Zach, Lucas and Anna Schroeder; and five great-grandchildren: Elliot and Ayla Fullmer, and Audrey, Jack and Reese Sattelberg. He was preceded in death by his parents, EJ and Myrtle; stepmother, Opal; and brothers, Lowell, Wesley and Robert. He is survived by his brother, Hank Wills; sisters, Margaret Vincent and Myrna Barritua; as well as his true friend, Linda Wills.

Viewing for family and friends will be from 5 to 7 p.m. Friday, Aug. 16, at Reynold's Funeral Chapel. The funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 17, at Reynold's Funeral Chapel. Services will conclude with burial in Sunset Memorial Park.

At Ernie's request, donations in lieu of flowers can be made to the Twin Falls Animal Shelter online at: http://twinfallsanimalshelter.com/donations/ or mailed directly to People for Pets, P.O. Box 1163, Attn: Dixie's Dream, Twin Falls, ID 83303.

Idaho Lottery Returns 10th Consecutive Record Profits

TIMES-NEWS

BOISE • For the 10th consecutive year, the Idaho Lottery has returned a record-breaking dividend to the people of Idaho. The Idaho Lottery Commission presented Gov. C. L. "Butch" Otter with a $48.2 million check, the largest dividend in the state Lottery's 24-year history, during a ceremony last month.

This year's record amount was nearly $7 million more than last year's record, a 16.1 percent increase, and is earmarked to benefit the Department of Education, the state's Permanent Building Fund and the Bond Levy Equalization Fund.

The Idaho Lottery also reached three other milestones:

"Once again, the Idaho Lottery has exceeded expectations by delivering an unprecedented dividend to the citizens of Idaho."

Gov. C. L. "Butch" Otter

hoans who contribute to education through the Idaho Lottery," said Willits. "The Idaho Department of Education is working to raise academic achievement for every Idaho student, and the money from the Idaho Lottery helps us move closer to this goal? Otter presented a check for more than $18 million to members of the Department of Administration's Permanent Building Fund, including Chair Gena Russell, Dee Jameson and Randy Steed. "Utilizing Lottery proceeds enables the Department of Administration's Division of Public Works and the Permanent Building Fund to address many essential improvements on Idaho's collegiate campuses while maintaining the quality and safety of our state workforce buildings," said department Director Teresa Luna. The Department of Education's Bond Levy Equalization Fund received its highest amount ever, too, with a distribution of more than $12 million. Since a statute change in 2009, the Bond Levy Equalization Fund has received more than $26 million in Lottery proceeds. This year's annual dividend was achieved from a second consecutive, record-breaking sales year by the Idaho Lottery and its network of nearly 1,200 retailers. The Lottery recorded $197.6 million in sales, a 12.4 percent increase over last year's, totaling nearly $22 million. During the year, Idaho experienced two record jackpot runs on the nation's most popular game, Powerball. Powerball sales were a record amount, eclipsing the previous mark set in 2006 with $45.5 million for fiscal year 2013. Scratch Games also saw a marked increase over the previous year, grossing nearly $108.7 million in sales

First Federal Bank in Twin Falls Grants $30,000 to Area Nonprofits

BY JOE CADOTTE jcadotte@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • First Federal Savings Bank is reaching out to area non-profits, helping them fund programs from Mustard Seed Ministries to Waggin' Tails Rescue. The effort is part of the bank's biannual awards program to strengthen the community through encouragement and donations.

Many former grant recipients came to the bank's special luncheon at the Blue Lakes Country Club on Aug. 8. This is the third time that Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASA) received a check from First Federal. Donations over the years have helped CASA to buy new computers and other technologies essential to its operations.

CASA is an independent child advocacy group that protects children throughout the court system. The $2,800 check presented to CASA last week will help buy iPads for staff and volunteers. Tahna Barton, CASA executive director, often spends eight hours a day in courtrooms, following abuse cases for children throughout south-central Idaho. She said having an iPad will allow her to get things done when she's away from the office.

"We'll be able to help more people," Barton said. "We'll be able to track more outcomes. We'll be able to get services to kids quicker and easier by having that instant access to email and everything involved. It's huge."

Among the organizations recognized at the luncheon, CASA sticks out because it is essential for protecting abused children, said First Federal President Alan Horner.

"If it wasn't for CASA, it would be very hit and miss with these kids getting the support and advocacy they need going to court. You need an independent organization, not somebody on the defense, not somebody on the offense; you need people in there speaking for those kids," he said.

The award is about more than money, Barton said. Simply knowing that people care about what she does helps her get out of bed every morning.

"It's not the best thing in the world to face child abuse every day. It can be daunting and not very rewarding," she said. "It (First Federal) keeps us going. To sit in here and look around and realize we're not by ourselves. There is a community behind us. A business that's as influential as First Federal to be there and care about us really adds fuel to get up the next morning and go at it again. They do so much more.

"The check is fabulous. The plaque is fabulous. But to know they care means so much more."

First Federal grants $60,000 per year to organizations throughout southcentral Idaho. Half of the grants are awarded at the annual meeting in August, and the other half at a luncheon in December. Once awarded, an applicant must wait 18 months to apply again.

A link to the application can be found at http://www.firstfd.com.

Total sales have eclipsed the $2.5 billion mark; the Lottery has awarded $1.5 billion in prizes to players. And, since beginning operations in 1989, the Idaho Lottery now has returned $600.5 million to the citizens of Idaho.

"Once again, the Idaho Lottery has exceeded expectations by delivering an unprecedented dividend to the citizens of Idaho," Otter said in a statement. "Its continuing success in working with Idaho businesses and the valuable contributions made to public schools and the permanent building fund has reduced the burden on taxpayers while enhancing Idaho's educational facilities?

Said state Lottery Director Jeff Anderson: "Never in the history of the lottery has there been a better time to be a player, a retailer or our beneficiary. Our past decade of success is an unprecedented era of responsible growth and dedication to the people of Idaho, its values and its future. Our annual accomplishment would not have been possible without the continued support of our statewide retailer network, our vendor partners and everyone who plays the Lottery. For our outstanding year, we thank you."

The Idaho Lottery's beneficiaries have received record amounts this year. Otter presented a record $18 million check to Luci Willits, chief of staff of the Department of Education. These monies are earmarked for the department's School District Building Fund.

"We at the state Department of Education appreciate the continued support of the many Ida-

Jackpot Waiting? Another 75 People with Unclaimed Property

TIMES-NEWS

Many Idahoans' names, for one reason or another, end up on the state's unclaimed property list.

People get divorced, they get remarried, they move out of state. And sometimes they don't leave the bank a forwarding address.

"Unclaimed property" usually doesn't refer to land or a house. Rather, it's money checking accounts, savings accounts, stock dividends, mutual funds and utility refunds - or items stored in a safety deposit box. At times coins, gems, jewelry and stamps are reported unclaimed by hospitals, hotels and financial institutions. Businesses turn over those assets to the state, which tries to reunite the stuff with its owner - or its heirs.

The Idaho State Treasurer's Office provided this sampling of 75 people who own unclaimed property valued at more than $100. Their last known addresses are in south-central Idaho.

But many other people are on the list, too. Be proactive by searching for your own name at http://sto.idaho.gov/, the office's website. You might be surprised at what you find.

Postal Service Financials Improve, but Big Losses Continue

BY JOSH HICKS

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON • The U.S. Postal Service will announce its third straight quarter of losses for fiscal 2013 on Monday, but those losses are declining, and that has agency and postal labor officials cautiously optimistic.

The $740 million loss in the agency's financial report is better than the $1.3 billion and $1.9 billion drops for the first two quarters, respectively, and means the Postal Service's troubled finances are trending in the right direction. The development might help push a divided Congress to reach a deal on overhauling the Postal Service, some say.

Losses for the agency this year have reached nearly $4 billion, a dramatic improvement after a loss of nearly $16 billion in 2012.

In a statement Friday, the agency credited the better numbers to increased efficiency, a decrease in workers' compensation, and growth in shipping and package services.

Labor groups have said the Postal Service could virtually break even if not for a 2006 congressional mandate that requires the agency to pre-fund employee retirement benefits - a common practice in the private sector but unique to the USPS among federal agencies. That obligation eats up about $5.5 billion a year, which is roughly the amount the Postal Service is on track to lose this year. The agency defaulted on its scheduled payment in 2012 and got a reprieve from Congress for 2011.

USPS officials said the agency will not return to financial stability without an overhaul. "We need to make fundamental changes to the way we currently do business," Chief Financial Officer Joe Corbett said in a statement. "Without comprehensive postal reform legislation signed into law, our hands are tied and we expect multibillion-dollar annual losses to continue."

National Association of Letter Carriers President Fredric Rolando said in a statement Friday that USPS operating revenue increased 3.6 percent compared with 2012's third-quarter numbers.

"The Postal Service's latest quarterly report makes clear that Postal Service finances are rebounding strongly as the U.S. economy improves," Rolando said. "The path to prosperity is clear: Address the prefunding fiasco and give the Postal Service the freedom to innovate and grow in the digital era."

Postmaster General Patrick Donahoe urged Congress in May to cancel the prefunding requirement, saying the proposal represents the "single biggest change that would have the least negative impact" among possible USPS reforms

Cable ONE Named Independent Operator of the Year

TWIN FALLS • Cable ONE, based in Pheonix, Ariz. with locations throughout Idaho, was recently named 2013 Independent Operator of the Year by Cable FAX Magazine.

Presented annually by Cable FAX Magazine and sponsored by the American Cable Association and the National Cable Television Cooperative (NCTC), this honor recognizes an ACA/NCTC independent cable operator that has distinguished itself by exemplifying excellence in service, sales, marketing, community service and industry advocacy.

"We want to thank all 2,100 of our associates for their dedication and commitment to Cable ONE and the communities we serve," said Cable ONE President and Chief Executive Officer, Tom Might in a statement. "Our continued success is a testament to the work they do day in and day out to serve our customers."

Cable ONE has had a busy 12 months, starting with an investment of nearly $60 million in an infrastructure upgrade which will provide Cable ONE customers with enhanced speed, reliability and quality in their Internet, cable and phone service. The project, which began in 2012 and will continue through 2014, will impact the majority of Cable ONE's 42 markets.

"We're committed to delivering the best possible experience to our customers," Might said. "We're confident that this investment will ensure that our customers will receive superior service in the speed, reliability, and the overall performance of our services."

Cable ONE's continued focus on delivering outstanding service to its customers led to a recent ranking by PC Magazine, which named the company as one of the top 10 fastest Internet Service Providers (ISP) in the nation.

Earlier this year, the company backed its belief in the quality and reliability of its services with the implementation of a 30-day money back satisfaction guarantee for new and existing customers who subscribe to any new service with Cable ONE.

"We believe strongly in the reliability of our products and services and we're committed to providing our customers with cutting-edge technology and on-going enhancements," said Joe Felbab, Cable ONE Vice President of Marketing.

Micron Cuts Jobs after Purchase of Japanese Firm

BOISE (AP) • Executives with Micron Technology Inc. are taking steps to cut about 5 percent of the company's workforce in offices, fabrication facilities and research labs in Idaho and across the world.

The cuts were announced starting Aug. 7 and come in the wake of Micron's acquisition of Japanese competitor, Elpida. The Boise-based computer memory chip maker has about 30,000 workers, meaning the cutback is aimed at trimming about 1,500 employees.

Company executives won't say how the reduction will affect Micron's Boise campus, which has about 5,600 employees.

"The timing, extent and

Micron's employee reductions are not a direct result of the company buying Elpida Memory Inc., which has 5,000 employees, said Dan Francisco, a Micron spokesman.

Such reductions are commonplace in tech companies striving to keep their workforce in line with the competitive industry, said Mike Howard, a semiconductor analyst for IHS iSuppli and a former Micron employee. Tech companies such as Intel have done 5 percent workforce reductions in the midst of profitable years, he said.

"Your workforce is constantly going to shift," Howard said.

Dave Petso, of Petso Financial Consultants in and former governor of Idaho, announced the relocation of two employees: Scott Moulton, commercial loan officer, is moving to the South Burley branch, and Keith Stone, vice president and commercial loan officer, will go to the North Burley branch.

Moulton grew up on a small dairy farm in Teton Valley. He graduated from Idaho State University with a bachelor's degree in finance. He is a member of the Mini-Cassia Chamber MOUNTAIN HOME • An ATV rider without a helmet veered into a ditch, was thrown off his vehicle and died at the scene Sunday night, the Elmore County Sheriff's Office reported Monday.

Pablo Correno Martinez, 52, of Glenns Ferry, was southbound on Grindstone Road near Flint Mesa Road when his 2013 Honda fourwheel ATV veered off the road's left shoulder and into the ditch, throwing him off.Martinez died at the scene, reported Patrol Sgt. homeowners cut down trees and cleared brush from homes and outbuildings. More resources arrived Monday, and the Pine Senior Center was transformed into a staging area, full of firefighters collecting orders and engines ready to attack.

Idaho Power Co. cut off electricity from Pine. It was unknown when it would come back on.

"We want to see what happens," said Cindy Larson, standing in her backyard Monday watching the flames meander down the hillside 300 yards away. "We stayed when the Trinity Ridge Fire was here. We're staying for this one."

In 2012, the Trinity Ridge Fire burned almost 150,000 acres north of Featherville. While evacuations were encouraged, the flames never neared Pine.

Cindy and her husband, John, have lived in Pine for 10 years. Their home was built to defend against wildfires, with a metal roof, a wet, green lawn and a stack of firewood far from any structures.

"We knew it was going to happen one year," she said. "We talk about it every year, that this the year the fire is going to come close. This is the year that it does that."

Community Meeting

Fairfield area residents are invited to a community meeting at 7 tonight at the American Legion Hall in Fairfield, where members of the incident management teams for the McCan Fire and adjoining Beaver Creek Fire will provide information on blazes burning in the area. Representatives from the BLM's Twin Falls District and Sawtooth National Forest also will attend, and residents can ask questions and talk individually with the managers.

For more information on that meeting, contact fire information at 877-608-0120 or McCan Fire@gmail.com. Ketchum and Hailey residents can attend 7 p.m. meetings for their areas as well, at Ketchum City Hall, 480 E. employees kept the doors open and lights on powered by a generator.

People trickled in and out to swap information about the fire, and fire crews stopped by for a glass of cold water or soda.

"We're tough," said Kylie Rivera, Pine resident and Resort employee. "We're not going until we absolutely have to."

For Rivera, watching the fire consume the mountains she's grown to love and respect is emotional.

"We cried last night," she said. "We're over it now, but it's still hard. These mountains won't look the same for a long time."

Nearby, the Pony Fire Complex also had grown, despite being 30 percent contained. Ravaging 143,000 acres, the blaze has been battled by fire crews sharing limited helicopters and air tankers with those fighting the Elk Complex Fire.

The fire caused evacuations near Mayfield, but homeowners were being allowed back in as safety allows.

The U.S. 20 corridor north of Mountain Home was threatened Monday night, and numerous road closures remained in effect.

Meanwhile, the Beaver Creek Fire Complex northwest of Hailey had reached 24,120 acres as of Monday.

Beth Lund's Type 1 Incident Management Team assumed command of the fire Monday morning, the U.S. Forest Service reported.

Aviation resources were working to keep the fire from spreading into the Deer Creek drainage to the east.

The fire forced the closure of Warm Springs, plus Warm Springs Road at Red Warrior Creek and all trails south of Baker Creek Road on both sides of Warm Springs Road, the Forest Service advised.

Also closed was the entire Fairfield Ranger District of the Sawtooth National Forest.

The adjacent McCan Fire northwest of Fairfield - now being managed separately from Beaver Creek - was a study in extremes Monday.

The fire's behavior was extreme, with an active "crown fire" sending flames leaping from treetop to treetop. The terrain's difficulty is extreme, and the potential for growth of the blaze measured at 23,860 acres Monday night - also was considered extreme, the U.S. Bureau of Land Management reported.

The McCan Fire ignited near the Soldier Mountains last Wednesday evening, Aug. 7, when lightning strikes peppered the area. It had blown up to 5,000 acres by last Thursday and by Monday night had nearly quintupled in size.

A force of 536 firefighters was battling the blaze, which was 16 percent contained as of press time Monday night.

Managing Editor Billie Stanton contributed to this report.

"They just didn't fit. He might have been an outdoorsman in California, but he was not an outdoorsman in Idaho. ... Red flags kind of went up."

Saving the Postal Service

hen the Framers created the office of postmaster general, they could not have imagined that one day Americans would rarely need to communicate by scrawling words on paper slips to be delivered by hired hand. Now the country maintains a vast organization of sorting plants, offices and mail carriers devoted to that slow and expensive process, and it's losing money. A lot of it: The U.S. Postal Service lost $15.9 billion last year, and it is losing billions more this year. On Friday it announced that it lost $740 million in the third quarter.

Lawmakers in Congress, though, have long resisted allowing the quasi-independent Postal Service to engage in serious cost-cutting, even as communication becomes ever more digital. Congressional balking has foiled efforts to restructure the service's labor costs, limit Saturday mail delivery and close branches. But the recalcitrance may finally end, if some promising signs in the House and Senate bear out.

House Oversight and Government Reform Committee Chairman Darrell Issa, R-Calif., last month passed a postal reform bill out of his panel that, while controversial, moves closer to Democratic positions than his previous proposals did. Meanwhile, Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee Chairman Thomas R. Carper, D-Del., last week struck a deal with Sen. Tom Coburn, R-Okla., his GOP counterpart, on a bill in their chamber. Neither the House nor the Senate bill is perfect, but the willingness of the key parties to recognize the problem and adjust their proposals toward each other is a refreshingly positive omen.

The two plans have important similarities. Both, for example, foresee the Postal Service reducing time-consuming "to the door" mail service, replacing it with delivery to curbside boxes or community "clusterboxes." Mr. Issa's bill is the better of the two, because it allows the Postal Service to more rapidly adapt to reality. The CarperCoburn bill would prohibit the closure of sorting plants for two years. Mr. Issa's wouldn't. Mr. Issa would allow the Postal Service to adopt a five-day delivery schedule for mail – though not for medication or packages – immediately. Mr. Carper and Mr. Coburn's plan would delay that obvious reform by at least a year.

There are other serious differences. But we hope that a spirit of compromise and common sense continues to prevail as both proposals make their way through their respective chambers and, ultimately, to a conference to reconcile the two. At the least, the Senate should not give in to any special-interest pressure to make the Carper-Coburn plan any weaker.

Hagadone's Investment in Boat Racing Part of His Legacy

ost north Idahoans have strong opinions about multi-millionaire resort developer and newspaper mogul Duane Hagadone's commitment to the well-being of Coeur d'Alene and north Idaho — indeed all of Idaho. Some see him as a generous philanthropist who gives both anonymously and publicly to many worthy causes. Others see him as one who gives only when it serves pure self-interest.

To his partisan supporters, Hagadone is a gutsy hero who, at considerable risk, invested in the Coeur d'Alene Resort and its fine golf course, gambling that "build it" and they will come. There were no guarantees, but he built it and they did come.

Regardless of one's views, of particular interest to many was the recent business decision to contribute $100,000 to the committee running the upcoming Coeur d'Alene Diamond Cup Unlimited Hydroplane races over Labor Day.

For unlimited hydro fans, there is nothing in all of sports quite like the sound of five or six unlimited hydros, engines at full throttle, roaring down the straight stretch for the running start of a heat.

The sport has always had drama because of competition between teams like Bernie Little's Miss Budweiser and Olie Bardahl's Miss Bardahl; and, because of colorful drivers like the Maverick's Mira Slovak, an airline pilot from the Czech Republic who flew his plane to freedom during the Iron Curtain days. Or a driver like Billy Schumacher, who won the last Diamond cup in 1968 driving the Bardahl.

Then there was the legendary Bill Muncey, who won more than 50 of the races, usually driving Miss Thriftway. And there were the community owned boats, the Miss Spokane, the Miss Burien, and the longest lasting one, the Miss Madison. That the sport was dangerous can be testified to the number of fine drivers, like Col. Warner Gardner, who died in the crash of Spokane's Eagle Electric, Rex Manchester who once had piloted the Miss Spokane, and Muncey himself died in an accident in Mexico.

Now, unlimited hydro fans in the inland northwest, who usually have to travel to the Tri-Cities for the Atomic Cup or to Seattle for the Seafair race to get their annual fix, can stay close to home. Hagadone is betting that the youth riots which turned the community against the races some 40 years ago will not reoccur. Instead, it will be a fun-filled and enjoyable experience for all.

Before one heaps new huzzah's on this complex yet extraordinarily successful businessman, one should best remember that like many of the super-rich, Hagdone's actions reflect his apparent belief there are two sets of laws: one for him and one the rest of us.

Most noteworthy of recent vintage was the construction of his multi-million dollar home over-looking Palm Springs. Only trouble is, according to the Wall Street Journal, Hagadone chose to build before having all the proper permits He reportedly told contractors to move ahead, he would pay whatever fines and penalties levied. This brought back to mind the time Jay Shelledy (former Idaho AP reporter, former managing editor of the Lewiston Tribune, former publisher of the Moscow-Pullman Daily News, and former editor of The Salt Lake Tribune), was working as a marine deputy sheriff on Lake Coeur d'Alene during one of the summers between teaching at Kootenai Junior-Senior High School. It was after dark when Shelledy spotted this sleek boat shooting across the lake without its running lights lit. Having ticketed several others that evening for the same violation, he gave chase and pulled the boat over. Hagadone was at the wheel. As Shelledy started to write the ticket Hagadone protested with the classic "do you know who I am?" Shelledy said, yes, he did, but it made no difference. Hagadone had to abide by the law like everyone else. Nor would it be fair, Jay said, to have ticketed the others that evening and not ticket Hagadone. While many lake-users will be thanking Mr. Hagadone for helping to bring back the unlimited hydro races, all should doff their hats to Shelledy for enforcing the law many years ago. There is less danger now of not seeing an oncoming bullet boat racing at unlimited hydro plane speeds across the lake at night driven by any scofflaw ignoring the requirement to have on running lights.

Take Closer Look at Idaho Education News and the Albertson Foundation

en. Branden Durst's recent op-ed critiquing Superintendent Luna's "end around" the Idaho Legislature and his subsequent analysis of GOP political genealogy has merit, especially as it relates to a newly minted news organization called Idaho Education News.

Funded by the Albertson Foundation, IEN started seven months ago in order to advance the school privatization agenda of Chairman Joe Scott. It bought the Boise State University name, where IEN is housed, simply by donating millions of dollars. Strategically, Albertson hired away established reporters Kevin Richert, Jennifer Swindell and Clark Corbin to do its messaging work, under the auspices of its new identity. Albertson uses the BSU trademark as a public relations gimmick to expedite credibility within Idaho. Albertson and IEN blur the arena of ethical journalism, which situation is different from Boise State's relationship with National Public Radio, where Boise State Public Radio, an NPR affiliate, is housed.

In this case, NPR is an already-established news entity with decades-long experience and an international reputation for quality and unbiased reporting. IEN is far from achieving NPR's status. While I wouldn't say IEN produces "pseudo journalism," as Sen. Durst suggests, I will say it has work to do. If IEN is not careful, it will be seen as the propaganda arm of Scott and Albertson, much like IdahoReporter.com is seen as the propaganda machine of the Idaho Freedom Foundation and executive director Wayne Hoffman (and whomever else funds the IFF, as Hoffman refuses to publicly disclose its corporate master).

I queried Betsy Russell, president of the Capitol Correspondents Association, as to why IEN received full press credentials as an upstart news organization and IdahoReporter.com has not. Her response: "All three of their reporters are BSU employees. The grant from the Albertson Foundation went to BSU. No one involved with the operation is involved in lobbying, which is key to credentialing. That is why IdahoReporter.com doesn't qualify; it is a lobbying organization headed by a registered lobbyist."

In a recent IEN article, cross-published by the Idaho Press-Tribune on July 19 titled, "Nampa, Vallivue among districts chosen for Idaho Leads program," such a disclosure was not placed. Whenever IEN reports on projects associated with the Albertson Foundation, it is, essentially, reporting on itself. Not to disclose such a conflict of interest is entirely unethical. The Idaho Press-Tribune, and news outlets statewide, need to be cognizant. While IEN does a decent job allowing for a diverse cadre of opeds, it has much work to do regarding selection of news topics and the angle and trajectory from which it report on these topics.

IEN reporters tend to report fairly on education issues occurring within Idaho state government (Legislature, Idaho State School Board, Idaho Department of Education, and within a handful of school districts). However. Idaho's public schools, teachers and students are doing amazing things, especially in the current political environment rife with policymakers who despise Idaho's public school system, its teachers and its outcomes.

IEN needs desperately to broaden its content and reporting to include the many successes occurring within Idaho's public schools not just charter schools both large and small across the state, especially rural schools and especially regarding traditionally underserved populations. This bias toward charter schools and against public schools casts a long shadow across IEN's early body of work.

Finally, IEN has not examined how the American Legislative Exchange Council is drafting many of Idaho's so-called education reform laws, behind closed doors, with legislators, lobbyists and politicians at the table — but not the public which practice circumvents democracy. Idaho Education News needs to report on the elephant in the room.

Practice Begins

High school football players take the field for first day.

rhowe@magicvalley.com

Behind black facemasks, sweat rolls off the faces of 57 teenage boys as their cleated feet crisscross the freshly mowed grass.

For the first time since winning the Class 2A state championship, the Declo High football team is back on the football field. A few familiar faces from that title team remain, but many more youngsters are anxious to take their turn at carrying the Hornet tradition.

A similar scene could be found all across Idaho on Monday, the first day of practices for teams playing Zero Week games, the weekend of Aug. 30. Hundreds of kids across Magic Valley labored through bear crawls, up-downs, gassers, ropes and blocking sleds, as 18 of the area's 26 high school football programs began two-a-days. At Declo's first practice, all they did was run. No one even touched a football. Declo coach Kelly Kidd seemed annoyed that somehow a bag of footballs had made its way to the sideline.

The theme was consistent: Conditioning.

In fact, at Declo's first practice, all they did was run. No one even touched a football. Declo coach Kelly Kidd seemed annoyed that somehow a bag of footballs had made its way to the sideline.

"Who brought those balls out?" he demanded.

Most high school teams hold two practices each day throughout the first week — called two-a-days. Declo's first week of practice, however, coincides with the Cassia County Fair. Even Kidd had to hurry out of practice to weigh sheep. For the Hornets, two-a-days will come next week.

"The first week is for getting kids together, set some goals," Kidd said. "You've got to get the state rules out of the way of helmets only for two practices, and then some shoulder pad practices. We use fair week, when kids are coming and going, and coaches are busy too, to meet those requirements, ease into it.

"Next week is when we really get down to seeing what we have, and learning, and developing the skills that will help each kid be successful," said Kidd, who is entering his 18th season as head coach.

BSU Offense Holds Advantage Heading into Week 2 of Camp

dbashore@magicvalley.com

BOISE • The Boise State football team started Week 2 of fall camp with a scrimmage Monday that was closed both the public and the media.

Two key details emerged after: conditioning, and an offense that looks like it'll make good on all its promise.

Head coach Chris Petersen said the offense looked more impressive than the defense in the scrimmage, with the caveat of not being "sure if one side was doing well or one side was doing bad."

Quarterback Joe Southwick wouldn't tip his hand, but noted the offense was ahead of the curve compared to last season's development.

"I think we're in a good spot right now," Southwick said. "We're ahead of where we were. A lot of guys are back, and our coaches are back, and that makes it easier on everyone. "... I'm very pleased so far," he added, assessing his own play. "It's a process, though; you've got three more weeks to go. One week's down, three more to go until we're in Husky Stadium. Me and (quarterbacks coach Jonathan Smith) are going to keep grinding."

Petersen was quick to point out that while there might be some typical "camp legs," or early-on fatigue, going on, the conditioning level needs to improve more than anything else.

"One thing that's real apparent is we're still a ways away from the conditioning level we need to be at. So that showed up, they knew it, and we're back to work tomorrow," Petersen said. "... I was probably more impressed with our offensive conditioning than our defensive conditioning. It's harder to play defense in terms of the conditioning; you've got one in tip-top shape to be able to run sideline to sideline for as much as we want those guys to go. So we've got a little bit of work to do there."

On the defensive side of the ball, Petersen identified freshman linebacker Tanner Vallejo as one who "jumped out" during the scrimmage. Through a third of fall camp he said that defensive players Demarcus Lawrence and Jeremy Ioane were also at a high level, as were the receiving corps and the "usual suspects."

"There's a lot of guys that are doing a good job," he said.

Boise State hosts its open practice/scrimmage on Sunday at 7 p.m. at Bronco Stadium. The session is scheduled to last roughly 90 minutes, and Petersen said Monday it would likely be half practice and half scrimmage.

Note: Petersen said Redshirt freshman defensive back Chancellor James tore an ACL and would miss the upcoming season.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Championship Expectations Alabama sets sights on another title.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) • Expectations are soaring at Alabama, where a 10-win season is practically considered a debacle and national championship contention is a minimum standard not a hope-we-can ambition.

Settle for a non-BCS bowl game? How embarrassing.

"It's the Alabama standard," All-America linebacker C.J. Mosley said. "It's the tradition that we live by. We're here to win championships. That's why everybody said they want coach (Nick) Saban here, and that's why the fans love us because they expect the same thing out of us every year. So why have anything less than a championship?

"Why would you want to go 10-3? Why would you want to just settle for the Capital One Bowl? Why not be great every time you can?"

The Crimson Tide is considered a front-runner for a third straight national championship and fourth in five years. The offense could lead the way this time.

Quarterback AJ McCarron has led Alabama to the past two national titles and directs an offense loaded with playmakers — albeit minus three All-America linemen. The defense has been annually among the nation's best, even if coordinator Kirby Smart insists 2012 was a down year despite yielding the nation's fewest yards and points.

Mosley and safety HaHa Clinton-Dix return but gone are two defensive line starters, All-America cornerback Dee Milliner and team leader linebacker Nico Johnson.

The SEC schedule is kinder than it could be once again. The Tide won't face SEC East powers South Carolina, Georgia or Florida in the regular season. Then again, the first two games are against Virginia Tech in Atlanta and a trip to Texas A&M – after an open date to switch defensive gears for the Aggies' hurry-up, nohuddle attack.

ASSOCIATED PRESS PHOTOS

Alabama quarterback AJ McCarron (10) throws a pass during practice on Monday in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Saban, who acknowledges his title celebrations only last for a night, is trying to keep his players from dwelling in past successes. The coach borrows from Michael Jordan's take on game-winning shots.

"The only one that matters is the next one," Saban said.

Some things to watch during Alabama's upcoming season:

1. HANDLING THE HYPE: Saban has said the 2010 Bama team that, incidentally, finished 10-3 and went to the Capital One Bowl, was as talented as his three national champions at Alabama, if not moreso. Talent alone won't likely carry the Tide past Virginia Tech and SEC West rivals Texas A&M and LSU – the only Alabama wide receiver Raheem Falkins (80) works through drills during the Crimson Tide's 12th preseason football practice on Monday.

two teams to beat 'Bama the past two seasons. The offseason started out rough with four players arrested and dismissed and, Saban said, some others skipping classes. He said the attitude improved.

2. OFFENSIVE LINE: Chance Warmack, D.J. Fluker and Barrett Jones have moved on to the NFL from one of the more dominant college offensive lines. How their replacements fare is the biggest question facing the offense. Left tackle Cyrus Kouandjio and guard Anthony Steen are potential early-round draft picks, while Ryan Kelly appears entrenched at Jones' center spot.

3. RUNNING DUO: T.J. Yeldon is the headliner among Alabama's tailbacks, but the Tide has thrived with two-back tandems of Trent Richardson/Mark Ingram, Richardson/Eddie Lacy and Lacy/Yeldon. Yeldon was a 1,000-yard rusher as a freshman who had two of his best performances in the SEC and national championship games. Fellow sophomore Kenyan Drake was effective as a reserve last season while Jalston Fowler and Dee Hart are returning from knee injuries. Derrick Henry, who broke Ken Hall's 51year-old national high school rushing mark, leads four highly rated freshman backs joining the mix.

4. TARGET-RICH ENVI-RONMENT: Amari Cooper had perhaps the best season by an Alabama receiver as a freshman, when three of his cohorts went down to season-ending injuries. Every key wideout returns and redshirt freshman Chris Black was a slightly more heralded recruit last year than Cooper before a preseason shoulder injury. Kenny Bell and DeAndrew White also were lost for the season at some point. Even without them, McCarron passed for 2,933 yards and 30 touchdowns against three interceptions and led the nation in passing efficiency. All that could lead to more passing than usual.

Stop the Presses: Not-so-bad Brad Passes Up Win

With four races remaining until the Chase for the Sprint Cup title begins, Keselowski is back in position to defend, and that has to make both NASCAR and team owner Roger Penske awfully happy.

Keselowski finished second on Sunday to Kyle Busch on the road course at Watkins Glen International to move into eighth place in the points. It was Keselowski's best finish of the season. It could have been better, but he passed up a chance on the final lap to knock Busch out of the way and nab a crucial victory.

"In my mind, points are great when you're in the Chase," Keselowski said. "Before that, to me it's about wins, even if you don't end up in the top 20. I'd rather be a wild card with four or five wins than be the guy in the Chase with zero wins."

The top 10 drivers in the points standings automatically qualify for the 10-race Chase, which begins next month after Richmond. There also are two wild cards, which go to the drivers from 11th to 20th in points who have the most wins. In the event of a tie in wins, points decide the spots. Right now, Kasey Kahne in 12th with two victories and Ryan Newman in 14th has one victory. They would be in if the Chase started today.

Then there's Newman's boss, Tony Stewart, who missed Sunday's race with a broken right leg and is out indefinitely. He was 11th before Sunday with one victory but dropped to 17th after missing the first race of his Cup career. It's possible he could return and make a miraculous comeback, though that's not likely.

Keselowski is one of three winless drivers in the top 10 and the most vulnerable. Clint Bowyer is firmly entrenched in second and Dale Earnhardt Jr. is sixth, nearly a full race in points (36) ahead of Keselowski.

So, what gives? Why Mr. Nice Guy?

Remember, this is the driver who sent Carl Edwards flying at the Talladega finish line while traveling nearly 200 mph to notch his first Sprint Cup victory. Small wonder Edwards' boss, Jack Roush, wouldn't answer a question about Keselowski two years ago at The Glen, when the driver of Penske's blue No. 2 was nursing a broken ankle and still driving at a high level.

And it wasn't so long ago that Keselowski badmouthed Busch over the public address system at Bristol after an altercation. There was no love lost there.

Then there was last year at The Glen, when Keselowski bumped Busch out of the way on the final lap as they slid around a track surface coated with oil from a blown engine. Busch had what appeared to be a victory snatched away, and though he recovered quickly to finish seventh, in the end that race cost him a berth in the Chase. He was beaten for the last spot by Jeff Gordon in the final laps at Richmond.

"It was a really, really sticky situation last year to win here, and it wasn't all Brad's fault. There was oil on the track," Busch said. "But Brad's the one that spun us out. Ifigured maybe he could do some of the same again, but he kept it clean."

Keselowski did pull up tight to the bumper of Busch's No. 18 Toyota on the final lap and challenged him all the way to the finish line. There was no bump, though, which was surprising considering the stakes.

Manziel Mess Clouds Start of A&M's Season

HOUSTON (AP) • This was supposed to be a season full of promise for the Texas A&M Aggies after they finished 11-2 in their first SEC season.

Instead they're in limbo with Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Manziel under an NCAA investigation after allegedly being paid to sign autographs.

The quarterback threw for more than 3,000 yards and added more than 1,000 on the ground last year to become the first freshman to win the Heisman.

He then spent the offseason making headlines for immature antics off the field. But none of those mistakes could have jeopardized his college career. His most recent reported transgressions, if proven true, could keep him off the field and completely change the complexion of Texas A&M's upcoming season.

The ESPN report that said the NCAA is investigating whether Manziel was paid for signing hundreds of autographs last January surfaced the night before A&M started camp. If Manziel was paid for his autograph on memorabilia, it could potentially violate NCAA amateurism rules and put his eligibility in question.

Manziel hasn't spoken to the media since the allegations came to light, but coach Kevin Sumlin was forced to field scores of questions about his quarterback's future.

At one point during the inquisition Sumlin was asked if he was annoyed that all the positives of his team were being overshadowed by Manziel's constant distractions.

"What do you think," he shot back. "You can answer that."

Then he softened up a little. "We've got a team of guys that are hungry," he said. "Guys that understand the challenges that are ahead of them, that have been away and know the expectations from their communities ... and they're excited about it. Annoyed is not the word. It's part of it."

He wouldn't speculate when asked if Manziel would start when A&M begins the season Aug. 31, but did acknowledge that they need to use camp to identify his backup regardless of his status.

Five things to know about Texas A&M in 2013:

WHO COULD FILL IN?: If Manziel is suspended, the Aggies will have to scramble to groom someone to fill in for the Heisman winner. The two top contenders are junior Matt Joeckel, who is the twin brother of former A&M left tackle Luke Joeckel, and redshirt freshman Matt Davis. Joeckel is the true passer of the two, having thrown for almost 6,900 yards and 72 touchdowns in high school. He's seen limited game action for the Aggies and had just 42 yards passing last season. Davis is more in the vein of Manziel after throwing for almost 1,500 yards and 13 touchdowns and adding another 931 yards and 12 touchdowns on the ground at a senior at Houston's Klein Forest high school.

NO DROPOFF HERE: Left tackle Luke Joeckel, who won the Outland Trophy as the nation's best offensive lineman, is gone after forgoing his senior season and being drafted second overall by Jacksonville. His absence shouldn't be cause for concern though, with right tackle Jake Matthews simply shifting into his spot. Matthews is the son of NFL Hall of Famer Bruce Matthews and earned All-SEC honors last season. The Aggies should also be solid at right tackle with Cedric Ogbuehi moving from guard to fill that spot after he started all 13 games last season.

SEPTEMBER SHOW-DOWN: The Aggies won't have to wait long for their first big test of the season with a rematch with Alabama looming on Sept. 14. Manziel and Texas A&M went down to Tuscaloosa and shocked the Tide last season 29-24, handing Alabama its only loss in its national title season. This time they'll host the showdown in what many are calling the biggest game ever in College Station. Hotels in and around College Station have been sold out for months and Sumlin joked that everyone has been begging his players for tickets to the game for longer than that.

BIG TARGETS: Whoever lines up at quarterback for Texas A&M will have a bevy of big targets to get the ball to. The group is led by 6foot-5, 225-pound Mike Evans. Evans started 13 games as a freshman last season and led the team with 82 catches for 1,105 yards, which were both school records for a freshman. He'll be joined this season by 6-4 Edward Pope, who redshirted last year after piling up more than 1,200 yards receiving as a senior in high school

Across the Snake River in Minidoka County, Tim Perrigot also began his 18th season on Monday, as head coach of the Minico Spartans. After a hard cardio workout in which some players lost their breakfast, he gathered the kids around him to take a knee.

"We're not asking you to do anything those guys before you didn't do," he said, pointing toward the wall outside the team's locker room that lists the school's conference championships - 11 total and seven over the past eight years.

"These young kids, I think they know that. They know there's some tradition," Perrigot said later. "They've grown up under the lights and seen what's happened around here on Fridays. It's a lot of fun and they want to be a part of that."

Season openers are still 18 days away, but it's never too early to start sizing up the rival. Perrigot's first question to a visitor Monday was, "Have you been over to Burley? What are their numbers like?"

Later that day, the same visitor stopped by Burley High's practice. The first question Bobcat head coach Jed Thomas asked: "Have you been to Minico? How are their numbers?"

Burley had a little more than half the number of kids Minico had out on Monday. In just his second season, Thomas is still working to build the Bobcat program.

Perhaps more than any other sport, football is a numbers game. The more kids out, the better — and it's never enough. Even after 18 years and all those conference championships, Perrigot still works to coax more kids to the football field.

"I like this team. I don't like our numbers, we don't have great numbers, but I like this football team," Perrigot said.

Another Great Basin Conference coach happy with his team is secondyear Jerome head man Sid Gambles, whose Tigers opened practice Monday as well.

Jerome tied for the conference title last season and has goals of an outright crown in 2013. Monday was a good start down that road, albeit one measured in the little things.

"It went really well. I think we're ahead of where we've been the last few years. We were able to get some good things done over the summer, and I like where we're at," Gambles said. "We're pretty much doing the same drills we did last year, but it seems like we can get through them quicker and coaches can teach them more effectively. We can have a 15 minute period instead of 20 to 25 minutes. Tonight we were able to put in both of our drills that we use every day, defensively and last year it took two or three days to do that. Now we'll be able to run those drills all the time."

Rangers' Darvish Nearly Perfect

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON • Yu Darvish was nearly perfect against the Astros once again, taking a no-hit bid into the eighth inning and striking out a career-high 15 to lead the Texas Rangers over Houston 2-1 Monday for their eighth straight win.

Darvish (12-5) dominated the Astros until Carlos Corporan lined a home run into the right-field seats with one out in the eighth for Houston's only hit.

Until the homer, Houston's lone runner came when rookie Jonathan Villar drew a two-out walk in the sixth. A pitch before the walk, Texas catcher A.J. Pierzynski was ejected for arguing with plate umpire Ron Kulpa on a breaking ball he called low.

In early April, Darvish was one out away from a perfect game at Minute Maid Park before Marwin Gonzalez singled between his legs.

YANKEES 2, ANGELS 1

NEW YORK • Minus Mariano Rivera in the ninth inning, the New York Yankees used a pair of relievers to close out the Los Angeles Angels and preserve the win for Hiroki Kuroda.

Kuroda (11-7) tossed three-hit ball for eight his second career start and the Minnesota Twins backed him with a pair of home runs to beat Cleveland.

Albers (2-0) allowed just two singles, walked none and struck out two.

ATHLETICS 5, BLUE JAYS 1

TORONTO • Alberto Callaspo hit a tiebreaking, two-run double in the ninth inning and the Oakland Athletics topped Toronto.

Callaspo, who had a tiebreaking double in the eighth inning of Sunday's 6-4 win, broke a 1-all deadlock with a bases-loaded double off closer Casey Janssen (4-1).

Ryan Cook (5-2) got two outs

NATIONAL LEAGUE PHILLIES 5, BRAVES 1.

ATLANTA • Cole Hamels took a shutout into the ninth inning, Cody Asche hit a three-run homer and the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Atlanta Braves 5-1 Monday night in a game overshadowed by a fatal fall at Turner Field.

Atlanta police spokesman John Chafee said a man died after falling more than 60 feet from an upper-level platform to a parking lot. He said the fall that occurred before 9 p.m. appeared to be an accident. Hamels (5-13) struck out nine with one walk while allowing six hits and one run as the Phillies snapped a streak of 11 straight road losses. Asche, a left-handed hitter, pulled a fastball from Julio Teheran (9-6) about three rows deep into the right-field seats in the sixth inning for his second homer. Phillies manager Charlie Manuel earned his 1,000th career win. Asche hit his homer two pitches after Teheran hit Darin Ruf with a pitch. Chase Utley, who led off the inning with a single, also scored on the homer. Asche singled off Anthony Vavaro in the ninth, stole second and scored on a single by Carlos Ruiz.

Colquitt Now Highest-paid Punter in Family, NFL

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. • Britton Colquitt spent close to an hour with his wife and their 1-year-old son in one of the corporate tents at the Denver Broncos headquarters following practice Monday.

The NFL's new highestpaid punter swears he wasn't being a snob. He just didn't realize he was keeping a throng of media members waiting for him at the podium.

It's not every day that punters get this kind of at tention – or make this kind of money.

Colquitt became the league's highest-paid punter when he signed his threeyear, $11.7 million extension upon arriving to work Monday.

The deal included a $3 million signing bonus that, when added to this year's $1.275 million salary, also makes him the NFL's highest-compensated punter in 2013.

His extension averages $3.9 million a season, besting the $3.75 million average that his older brother, Dustin, is getting with a five-year, $18.75 million deal he signed this spring with the Kansas City Chiefs.

"He was laughing about it and he's very proud of me and he's kind of my biggest fan, so it's nice to have a big brother like that," Colquitt said. "And we all know he's the better punter, so I can give him a hard time about that."

Depending on how you look at it, both brothers can claim they're the pro punter making the most money.

"Yeah, I think he still does," Colquitt said. "But somehow they've made it look like he doesn't. He lives in a bigger house, has more kids. He's still picking up the dinner check."

Fifteen years ago, Chris Jacke was heavily criticized for saying he wanted to become the league's first $1 million kicker - at a time when one of his teammates in Green Bay, Sean Jones, was on record saying he hated kickers because they weren't real football players.

Now a punter is making close to four times that much.

"I've already had a few of my friends and people text me saying, 'My son's going to be a punter. I'm sending him to you when he's 15;" Colquitt said. "I've always told people, though, 'Special teams is the way to go. Or golf?"

His son, Nash, is a lefty, he said, "so I'm sending him to Dustin. So, I don't even have to worry about that. I'm teaching him to golf and then Dustin can teach him how to punt."

shutout innings.

Rivera was given the night off after blowing three straight save chances, including one Sunday. Fans chanted "We want Mo!" after Boone Logan relieved to begin the ninth and allowed a leadoff single to J.B. Shuck.

Yankees manager Joe Girardi said after the game that he wanted to give Rivera a night off after the career saves leader pitched three times in the past five days.

David Robertson struck out Mark Trumbo and ex-Yankee Chris Nelson with the bases loaded for his first save this season.

Garrett Richards (3-4) took the loss.

WHITE SOX 6, TIGERS 2 CHICAGO • Chris Sale scattered nine hits in his fourth complete game of the season, and the Chicago White Sox overcame Miguel Cabrera's fourth homer in fourth games to beat the Detroit Tigers.

Josh Phegley, Gordon Beckham and Alexei Ramirez singled in runs in a three-run fifth inning as Chicago handed AL Central-leading Detroit its third loss in four games.

Sale (8-11) struck out six and walked none, winning his second straight start after going 1-9 in his previous 11.

Cabrera went 2 for 4 with a homer in the first. The AL leader in batting, RBIs and runs scored is second in homers with 37.

Tigers starter Doug Fister (10-6) gave up four runs on eight hits and three walks in six innings.

REDS 2, CUBS 0

CHICAGO • The Cincinnati Reds aren't hitting much and their bullpen is tired. Mat Latos made sure they wouldn't need much of a contribution from either area to beat the slumping Chicago Cubs.

Latos pitched eight scoreless innings, and Brandon Phillips hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning to lead the Reds to a 2-0 win over All-Star Travis Wood and the Cubs on Monday night.

Latos, 4-0 with a 1.32 ERA since the All-Star break, allowed six hits and struck out nine for the Reds, who gained a half-game on idle Pittsburgh and St. Louis $in \, the \, \rm NL \, Central.$

Latos (12-3) gave the Reds' bullpen a much needed rest after Cincinnati used six relievers for a combined six innings of work Sunday in a 3-2, 13-inning win over San Diego.

REDEMPTION

Jason Dufner celebrates winning the PGA Championship golf tournament at Oak Hill Country Club on Sunday.

Dufner doesn't let opportunity slip by at PGA Championship.

PITTSFORD, N.Y. (AP) • Jason Dufner doesn't have the same set of skills as Rory McIlroy and Adam Scott, though his career has shared the same path - from a memorable collapse at a major championship to redemption in pretty short order.

And in this sport, redemption doesn't always come easily. Just ask Dustin Johnson or Thomas Bjorn. There's an even longer list of players who gave away majors in the final hour and never so much as earned another shot, such as Ed Sneed or Mike Reid.

There was reason to believe Dufner might be part of the latter group.

Go back just two years to Atlanta Athletic Club to find Dufner standing on the 15th tee with the PGA Championship in his hands. He was four shots clear of Anders Hansen and five ahead of Keegan Bradley, who had just made a triple bogey on the par-315th.

What followed was painful to watch.

Dufner hit into the water

"Maybe looking back 10, 15 years from now, I'll feel disappointment that I let this one get away if I never get another chance," Dufner said that day.

He was certain there would be more opportunities.

But then, everyone feels that way.

McIlroy had a four-shot lead at the Masters in 2010 and shot 80 to tie the record for the worst score by a 54hole leader. He vowed to learn from his mistakes, and it was the shortest lesson in major championship history. He won the very next major by setting the U.S. Open record of 268 at Congressional for an eight-shot win. That wasn't a huge surprise. McIlroy is a special player.

More agonizing was watching Scott make bogey on the last four holes at Royal Lytham & St. Annes, turning a four-shot lead with four holes to play into another British Open title for Ernie Els. Scott promised he would do better the next time. He truly believed there money list. At age 34, it was only his second year playing all four majors. Would he ever get another chance like that?

Yes. And when he least expected it.

That experience in Atlanta served Dufner well in the short term. He won twice on the PGA Tour the next year. He made the Ryder Cup team and went 3-1. And his popularity as the guy with no pulse took off when he was caught by a camera slumping against the wall, zoned out, while sitting next to elementary school children learning about focus.

On the golf course, however, his game was ordinary. He was an afterthought at most tournaments. His only top 10s were in the U.S. Open and Bridgestone Invitational, and he didn't have a chance to win either one.

Without warning, his opportunity arrived at Oak Hill when he produced the 26th round of 63 in a major to take the 36-hole lead, and at least got into the last group. Dufner executed his game so beautifully on Sunday that he made the last two hours about as exciting as he looks.

But it was the blueprint for would be a next time, and he waited only two more majors to win the Masters.

Dufner didn't have that pedigree.

When he threw away his shot at the PGA Championship, he had never won on the PGA Tour and never cracked the top 30 on the winning this major. With a two-shot lead over Jim Furyk going to the back nine, he matched scores with Furyk on every hole the rest of the way - even bogeys on the last two holes – for a 68 to win by two.

Bjorn appeared to have the 2003 British Open wrapped at Oak Hill all the more. "He always jabbed at me a little bit about having one of these in his house," Dufner said, sitting next to the Wanamaker Trophy. "And now I've got one, too. It's pretty neat to come back and win a PGA, to be honest with you."

Andy Murray Gears up for New Challenges

MASON, Ohio (AP) • Olympic gold medal? Check. Win a major? Check. Finally win Wimbledon? Check.

Andy Murray has a new "To Do" list. Instead of trying to win majors, he's now defending them.

Murray approaches the U.S. Open with a new perspective after winning it for the first time last year.

"It's a new experience, so I don't know how I'm going to respond," he said Monday ahead of the Western & Southern Open. "You know, I'm staying in the same hotel as last year, and I'll try and stick to a similar sort of schedule and try and get comfortable there as soon as I arrive in New York. I'm looking forward to it.

"I get excited always for the Grand Slams, and there's some pressures that you can deal with well and some you don't. Hopefully, this will be one that I deal with well. I've always enjoyed playing in New York. I hope I've got the energy there and the desire to have a good tournament."

After becoming the first British man to win Wimbledon since Fred Perry in 1936 and fulfilling the demands that go with it, Murray took nearly a week off. He vacationed in the Bahamas before resuming his training in Miami. He returned to tournament play last week in Montreal, where he lost in the third round.

"In the time after Wimbledon, those few days it was tough," he said. "It was really busy. It was very demanding. I wasn't particularly stressed out by it because I just won Wimbledon, so I wasn't really that bothered by all of it."

gram for coaches and volunteers intended to raise awareness about the use and dangers of performance-enhancing drugs among young players.

Working with the Taylor Hooton Foundation, Little League hopes to have an online program ready for the 2014 season. The youth sports organization had been in discussions with the foundation for more than a year about such a program, well before Major League Baseball announced suspensions recently for more than a dozen players following a lengthy investigation into a Florida antiaging clinic accused of distributing PEDs.

Thousands of coaches, along with young players and their families are expected to visit South Williamsport during the 11-day tournament, and foundation president Don Hooton plans to attend, too, to spread his awareness message in person.

"This is a teachable moment. Ever parent, every coach should take the opportunity of all these suspensions to sit down and talk to your kids about why they shouldn't be involved in performanceenhancing drugs," Hooton said in a recent phone interview.

Biden Keeps His Name in the Game

BY JOSH LEDERMAN Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Joe Biden may run for president in 2016, or he may not. But he wants you to know he could.

Iowa. New Hampshire. South Carolina. Michigan. Three years out from the next presidential election, the vice president is polishing his connections and racking up favors in all the right states to ensure he stays part of the conversation, keeping his name near the top of a list of likely contenders even if the prime spot seems to have already been claimed by Hillary Rodham Clinton.

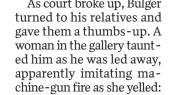

Biden's advisers and friends say his crowded schedule of campaign events to boost Democrats in key primary states reflects his role as vice president and a party leader, not some grand strategy to lay the groundwork for a presidential campaign he hasn't yet decided to undertake. But Democratic activists and donors say the signals are all too clear when a two-time presidential candidate who is openly entertaining a third run makes the trek to early primary states. "He's doing the smart thing. He's moving around. He's going to the early states. He's letting folks know he's interested," said Dick Harpootlian, who chaired the South Carolina Democratic Party until earlier this year. He described the stops as a chance to "meet all the major players in the Democratic primary process, in one room, in one night."

That Biden, 70, is still interested in the top job is far from a secret, and in his current office, the writing is on the wall.

"I have two portraits hanging: one of Jefferson, one of Adams. Both vice presidents who became presidents," Biden told GQ last month, noting the former presidents' self-satisfied expressions. "I joke to myself, I wonder what their portraits looked like when they were vice presidents." As a two-term sitting vice president, Senate veteran and Democratic Party luminary, Biden in any other year would have the right of first refusal for the Democratic nomination.

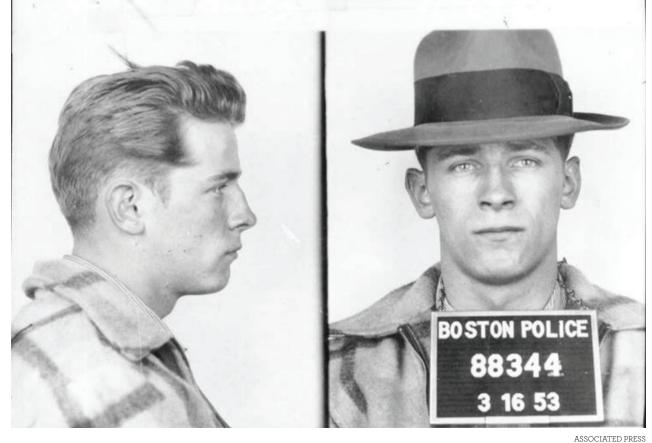

"Rat-a-tat-tat, Whitey!" Outside the courtroom, relatives of the victims hugged each other, the prosecutors and even defense attorneys.

Patricia Donahue wept, saying it was a relief to see Bulger convicted in the murder of her husband, Michael Donahue, who authorities say was an innocent victim who died in a hail of gunfire while giving a ride to an FBI informant marked for death by Bulger.

"He's guilty of murdering my husband. There's nobody that said that," his widow said.

Thomas Donahue, who was 8 when his father was killed, said: "Thirty-one years of deceit, of cover-up of my father's murder. Finally we have somebody guilty of it. Thirty-one years that's a long time." He said that when he heard the verdict, "I wanted to jump up. I was like, 'Damn right." "Today is a day that many in this city thought would never come," said U.S. Attorney Carmen Ortiz. "This day of reckoning has been a long time in coming." She added: "We hope that we stand here today to mark the end of an era that was very ugly in

Mob Boss 'Whitey' Bulger Guilty in 11 Killings

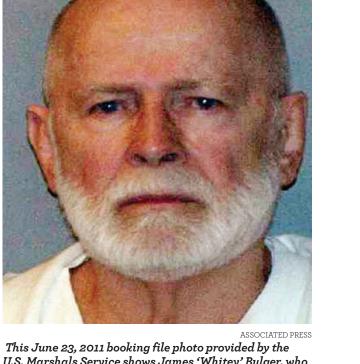

BY JAY LINDSAY AND DENISE LAVOIE Associated Press

BOSTON • James "Whitey" Bulger, the feared Boston mob boss who became one of the nation's most-wanted fugitives, was convicted Monday in a string of 11 killings and dozens of other gangland crimes, many of them committed while he was said to be an FBI informant.

Bulger, 83, stood silently and showed no reaction to verdict, which brought to a close a case that not only transfixed the city with its grisly violence but exposed corruption inside the Boston FBI and an overly cozy relationship between the bureau and its underworld snitches.

Bulger was charged primarily with racketeering, which listed 33 criminal acts - among them, 19 murders that he allegedly helped orchestrate or carried out himself during the 1970s and '80s while he led the Winter Hill Gang, Boston's ruthless Irish mob. After 41/2 days of deliber ations, the federal jury decided he took part in 11 of those murders, along with nearly all the other crimes on the list, including acts of extortion, money-laundering and drug dealing. He was also found guilty of 30 other offenses, including possesslightly stooped, whitebearded Bulger. As court broke up, Bulger turned to his relatives and

NYPD Wrongly Targeted Minorities, Judge Rules

BY COLLEEN LONG

Associated Press

NEW YORK • The nation's largest police department illegally and systematically singled out large numbers of blacks and Hispanics under its controversial stop-and-frisk policy, a federal judge ruled Monday while appointing an independent monitor to oversee major changes, including body cameras on some officers.

Mayor Michael Bloomberg said he would appeal the ruling, which was a stinging rebuke to a policy he and the New York Police Department have defended as a life-saving, crime-fighting tool that helped lead the city to historic crime lows. The legal outcome could affect how and whether other cities employ the tactic.

"The city's highest officials have turned a blind eye to the evidence that officers are conducting stops in a racially discriminatory manner," U.S. District Judge Shira Scheindlin wrote in her ruling. "In their zeal to defend a policy that they believe to be effective, they have willfully ignored overwhelming proof that the policy of targeting 'the right people' is racially discriminatory."

Stop-and-frisk has been around for decades in some form, but recorded stops increased dramatically under the Bloomberg administration to an all-time high in 2011 of 684,330, mostly of black and Hispanic men. The lawsuit was filed in 2004 by four men, all minorities, and became a class-action case.

About half the people who are stopped are subject only to questioning. Others have their bag or backpack searched, and sometimes police conduct a full patdown. Only 10 percent of all stops result in arrest, and a weapon is recovered a small fraction of the time.

Scheindlin noted she was not putting an end to the practice, which is constitutional, but was reforming the way the NYPD implemented its stops. sion of machine guns. Bulger could get life in prison at sentencing Nov. 13. But given his age, even a modest term could amount ing of law enforcement officials "allowed him to operate a violent organization in this town, and it also allowed him to slip away when honest law enforcement was closing in."

Bulger attorney J.W. Carney Jr. said Bulger intends to appeal because the judge didn't let him argue that he had been granted immunity for his crimes by a now-dead federal prosecutor.

But Carney said Bulger was important to him that the government corruption be exposed, and important to him to see the deals the government was able to make with certain people."

"Mr. Bulger knew as soon as he was arrested that he was going to die behind the walls of a prison or on a gurney and injected with chemicals that would kill him," Carney said. "This trial has never been about Jim Bulger being set free."

Manning Defense Keys on Mental Health, Leadership

BY DAVID DISHNEAU Associated Press

FORT MEADE, Md. • Lawyers for Army Pfc. Bradley Manning opened their case Monday in the sentencing phase of his trial by attacking commanders' decisions to send the young intelligence analyst to Iraq and let him keep his top-secret security clearance despite emotional outbursts and concerns about his mental health.

Manning faces up to 90 years in prison for disclosing reams of classified information through the anti-secrecy website WikiLeaks. His lawyers are presenting evidence in hopes of a lighter sentence.

Manning had a history of violent outbursts and psychological evaluations during his military training before and after he deployed in 2009. During his stateside training as an intelligence analyst, he had to give a classroom presentation about the dangers of disclosing classified information after he provided secret details about his schooling in online communications with relatives.

His brigade commander, Col. David Miller, testified the 2nd Brigade of the 10th Mountain Division deployed in the fall of 2009 with 10 to 15 percent fewer intelligence analysts than the number authorized by the military. But Miller denied feeling any pressure to take soldiers who should not have deployed.

"In a counterinsurgency fight, you can always use more," he said.

Maj. Clifford Clausen, who headed the brigade's intelligence branch, said there was pressure to take every soldier.

"We were having a problem meeting strength. There was a pressure on the whole unit to deploy," he said.

Miller's executive officer Lt. Col. Brian Kerns said he had concerns before deployment about Clausen's leadership abilities.

"I think it was the right decision at the time to move forward with the individuals that we had because we didn't have anything better at the time that we could turn to," he said.

Clausen was removed from the position in early 2010 because of his failure to effectively communicate intelligence findings to commanders, Kerns and Miller testified.

Kerns and Clausen both said they received letters of reprimand as a result of an Army investigation into Manning's actions. They are among 15 people disciplined in the case.

In Iraq, Manning had several more emotional outbursts. One episode prompted commanders to remove the bolt from his rifle, rendering it unusable. Sports 6 • Tuesday, August 13, 2013

Jury Given Time Amid Rapid Pace of Fort Hood Trial

BY NOMAAN MERCHANT AND PAUL J. WEBER Associated Press

FORT HOOD, Texas • Testimony has been moving so quickly during the military trial of the soldier accused in the 2009 Fort Hood shooting rampage that the judge decided to give jurors extra time on Monday in between witnesses to finish their notes.

Maj. Nidal Hasan is acting as his own attorney during the trial at the Texas military base, where he is accused of killing 13 people and injuring about what happened the afternoon of Nov. 5, 2009. They've said a gunman shouted "Allahu Akbar!" -Arabic for "God is great!" and opened fire on unarmed soldiers, many of whom were getting ready to deploy to Afghanistan.

A nurse working at the center, Ted Coukoulis, recalled people trying to save wounded soldiers who were dead or quickly bleeding to death.

"I don't know how much blood I swallowed that day," he told jurors on Monday.

more than 30 others in November 2009. If convicted, he could face the death penalty.

But he has mostly sat silent during the trial, enabling prosecutors to call more than 60 witnesses in just four days.

Witness after witness many of them soldiers shot during the attack - described how Hasan opened fire inside a Fort Hood building, leaving it scattered with blood and the dead. Yet Hasan has questioned just two witnesses and raised only a few brief objections, and many witnesses were on the stand for 20 minutes or less.

The rapid pace raises the possibility that prosecutors may wrap up far sooner than the months-long timeline the judge initially said was possible for the trial. On Monday, she started taking brief breaks so jurors could finish their notes after each witness.

"Just look up when you're ready. Take as much time as you need," the judge, Col. Tara Osborn, said.

So far, witnesses have built a gory, detailed picture

Many of the wounded soldiers thought the gunfire was a training exercise, and some didn't realize it was an attack until they were hit by bullets. Spc. Joseph Foster testified that he recalled thinking, "Those paintballs are looking really real."

Spc. Jonathan Sims also took the stand Monday, telling jurors how he was shot while trying to protect another soldier whose neck he was holding to try to stop the bleeding.

Sims then echoed earlier testimony when he said he heard a wounded soldier crying out, "My baby! My baby!" One of the soldiers who was killed, Pvt. Franceska Velez, was pregnant.

A total of 18 witnesses testified Monday, and Hasan didn't question any of them.

The Army psychiatrist did, however, indicate that he was enlisting the help of his standby attorneys, who have been ordered to help him during the trial. Hasan told Osborn that he had assigned "some tasks" to one of them and wanted the judge to let the lawyer skip court for the day.

"It would be in my best interest if he used that time to prepare for that," Hasan said, and Osborn agreed.

It was among the few hints that Hasan has offered about his defense since his brief opening statement last week, when he acknowledged that evidence would show he was the shooter and described himself as a soldier who "switched sides." He indicated before trial that he would call just two witnesses. His standby defense attorneys have protested that Hasan was putting up a defense that guarantees him the death penalty.

UK Bars Trash Cans from Tracking People with Wi-Fi

BY RAPHAEL SATTER Associated Press

LONDON • Officials demanded Monday that an advertising firm stop using a network of high-tech trash cans to track people walking through London's financial district.

The Renew ad firm has been using technology embedded in the hulking receptacles to measure the Wi-Fi signals emitted by smartphones, and suggested that it would apply the concept of "cookies" tracking files that follow Internet users across the Web - to the physical world.

"We will cookie the street," Renew Chief Executive Kaveh Memari said in June. But the City of London Corporation insisted that Renew pull the plug on the program, which captures smartphones' serial numbers and analyzes signal strength to follow people up and down the street. Renew didn't immediately return a call seeking comment on whether it would comply with the authorities demand.

In this deal from the Lille 2012 world championships, six diamonds generally came home when it was attempted, but one variation produced a particularly interesting problem for declarer.

Since the play is easy on any other lead (you are forced to run the heart lead to your queen), let's say West leads a low club. What's next?

It looks natural to go after trumps, and to protect against a 4-0 trump break, you need to lead toward the diamond king-queen rather than starting with the diamond jack. When East wins and shifts to a heart, you suddenly have a problem. Did you notice that a heart shift was going to jeopardize your entries? You might as well put up the heart queen now — more in hope than expectation. You won't get any value out of your queen if you don't.

When West covers, you take your heart ace and play a trump to the queen. Had trumps split 2-2, you would have been home free, but as it is, you need to unblock spades (don't you?) before drawing the last trump. By cashing only two spades, all you can afford to take before drawing trumps, you will leave the suit temporarily blocked. But you do have a resource.

After drawing the last trump, you pitch your spade queen on the club king and have unscrambled the blockage. You now have two homes for your heart losers on the spade jack and spade 10.

ANSWER: I threw this problem in as a trap to see if I could tempt anyone to make a takeout double or an overcall with totally unsuitable shape. Just because you have a minimum opening bid does not mean you have to bid when the opponents open. If the opponents bid and raise hearts, you may come to life with a double, but not until then.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have two wonderful sons who joined our family through adoption. While we don't broadcast that they are adopted, it sometimes comes up in conversation. When it does, people inevitably ask, "What happened to their 'real' parents?" or, "Why were they given up?"

I know folks are curious, but these comments are hurtful. The details of my sons' lives are private, to be shared as they grow in ageappropriate ways. They know they are adopted, but are too young to know the details surrounding their lives prior to joining our family. I do not want to have an in-depth conversation with every person who asks a nosy question. These questions always seem to come up when the kids are around and I feel unprepared to answer them.

Do you have any suggestions for a witty and confident response that can shut down these questions? I don't want my boys to be ashamed that they were adopted, but I also don't want the details out there for public consumption.

> - ADOPTED MOMININDY

DEAR ADOPTED MOM: That someone would be so insensitive as to pose those questions in front of the children is disconcerting. While I can't think of a "witty" response that would deter the questioner, I can think of one that would be effective. Look the person in the eye, smile and say, "Oh, that's a long story, but look at what beautiful sons I have. I feel truly blessed."

DEAR ABBY: My parents died when I was a teenager. In the years since I have noticed strange things. While I don't find pennies, I do often see streetlights turn off right before I drive under them. I drive a lot at night and in the early morning because I work graveyard shifts, and it seems to happen almost every day when I go to work or come home.

I guess it could be coincidental. But a friend suggested years ago that it's my parents letting me know they're watching over me. I want to believe, yet I feel skeptical at the same time. Have you ever

Times News

IF AUGUST 13 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Between now and the end of September you may enjoy popularity in group activities or within business organizations. Your ambitions and vision keep you on the right track career-wise. September might be a good time for a glamorous vacation, but you may be led astray by your own desires or be deluded where a new romantic partner is concerned. Be responsible and organized, but don't start anything of importance in November or December, when it's wise to keep your nose to the proverbial grindstone. A protective angel watches over everything you do in March, so an innocuous opportunity might be a blessing in disguise, or a chance meeting could lead to a permanent improvement in your life.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Tame the tiger of ambition. Restore your equilibrium through sports or a walk in the woods. The great outdoors might remind you of ways to get in touch with your inner child.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The sound of true love and mutual attraction is playing on the celestial jukebox. Even if you and your significant other have distinct differences you can honor each other's views.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You know more than you think you do. Once you kick-start your brainpower it will be hard to slow down. Focus on making your most ambitious financial dreams and plans a reality.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Do things that will make you healthy and wealthy by being wise. You have a deft hand when handling finances and can make intelligent business decisions that benefit everyone.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Mixing business with pleasure is a bit like mixing oil and water. Group activities or meetings however can be very productive even though there may be competing factions at work.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The Jolly Roger is not your flag. You aren't a pirate, so cutthroat business tactics won't fit you very well. Use latent talents and a spirit of kindness to make headway in the business world.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Turn the switch and your love light will brighten the day. Working side by side with a member of the opposite sex could awake passionate romantic feelings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be generous with your time and talents. Acting on faith without asking for concrete proof is likely to work out to your advantage. Romantic moments may be in the cards this evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Tackle the big things and ignore the small stuff that could distract you. Demonstrating some initiative behind the scenes might earn you more than one pat on the back.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take care of necessities early in the day so there's time to participate in tender twosomes in the evening. A key relationship could arrive at a satisfactory conclusion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Treat yourself to a fabulous new outfit or duck out for a haircut that flatters your face. Your powers of attraction are at a peak and you possess perfect taste in the beauty department.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Contemplate beautiful things even if you wish upon a shooting star and someone reminds you it's just space debris. Don't be discouraged or lose your childlike sense of wonder.

Harper Passey of Burley enjoys the Cassia County Fair and Rodeo Parade last year.

BY LAURIE WELCH lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Butter-drenched corn on the cob, the electric hum of whirling rides and the anticipation of bull-riding cowboys bursting from a rodeo chute will draw thousands to the Cassia County Fair and Rodeo Aug. 12-17.

fair each year. Admission is free. "In a small town like this the community just loves to come together to see friends and their fellow residents, past and present," said Sam Yoshida, president of the Cassia County fair board. "We take very small steps making any changes to the fair because it's been so successful in the past few years. The last thing we want to do is ruin a good thing."

About 25,000 people visit the

Yoshida said the major change this year, besides behind-thescenes improvements to safety features and facility upgrades, is the addition of free entertainment on the hypnotist's stage.

"The hypnotist will still perform free, three times a day, but during other times the stage will be open to local talent," said Yoshida.

The concert on Tuesday will feature country music singer, Aaron Tippen.

"This concert is going to be really good," said Cory Parish, fairgrounds manager.

There will be entertainment each night, except on Monday, including team ranch sorting on Wednesday, which is free to the public.

Local thrill seekers will try their hand during the wild cow ride on Thursday and Saturday. The kid's calf scramble will also be held on Thursday.

Brown Amusements carnival opens on Tuesday.

Parade Marshals, Chuck and Delta Skaggs will lead the Cassia County Fair & Rodeo Parade Wednesday starting at 10 a.m. projects this year and close to 330 raised animals.

"The fair to them is the high point of all their hard work," said Davids. "They may have ripped out that zipper for the tenth time or walked that pig 100 miles, but it's all worth it when they get to show off their projects at the fair."

Davids said some of the children work hard and then suffer a hardship, without the reward of taking a project to the fair.

Sisters, Sara and Hannah Beck's heifers recently got out and ate inappropriate feed. The girls lost their animals.

"It's a big learning experience," Davids said.

Parish said more paid parking was added this year at the fairgrounds, which can be accessed from Hiland Avenue.

"It's well worth a couple of bucks to come in and park a little closer," said Parish.

Hiland Avenue will be blocked off near the fair so motorists wishing to use the parking will come from the north across the railroad tracks.

"If you look at the number of people in our county and the percentage that attend our fair, it's pretty incredible," said Yoshida. "I'll put our fair up against anyone's."
