Wildfires Ravage Idaho

‘There is nothing G-rated about this.’

FAIRFIELD • Hundreds of Idahoans still can’t return to their homes as the nation’s top priority wildfires ravage communities, devour grazing land and ruin recreation sites.

The destruction prompted Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter to declare Idaho a disaster area. The order allows state agencies to send more resources to help suppress the flames.

The largest wildfires include the 143,900-acre Pony Fire Complex near Mountain Home, the 98,400-acre Elk Fire Complex stretching from Pine to Prairie, and the 32,000-acre Beaver Creek Fire by Ketchum.

The Elmore County Sheriff’s Office ordered an evacuation Tuesday of Featherville and reiterated that its evacuation order is still in effect for people along the Pine/Featherville Road from Idaho 20 to the Johnson Creek Bridge south of Featherville.

Due to the fires’ extreme conditions and growth potential, the nation’s most experienced and trained management teams have been ushered in to oversee management of the battles until the wildfires are completely suppressed.

Combined, the state’s three largest wildfires had burned more than 274,000 acres as of Tuesday. Air quality warnings were issued in most of the southern half of the state. In Twin Falls and Ketchum, health officials ranked the area as moderate with certain parts of day considered unhealthy for sensitive groups.

At least 14 structures were destroyed in the Elk Fire, but fire crews have not released what types of buildings were lost. Nearly 700 Idaho Power customers were without power as of Tuesday due to the fire. The utility company did not Firefighters intentionally lit a back burn near the Pine Senior Center to protect the town’s homes Tuesday. Yet the fire continues to move northeast toward Featherville.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stock Market Ekes Out Small Gains; Apple Climbs

NEW YORK (AP) • Major stock indexes eked out small gains Tuesday after an upturn in technology companies outweighed weakness in other parts of the market, including a drop in airlines.

The gain in technology stocks was driven by Apple. The technology company surged after billionaire investor Carl Icahn said on Twitter that he held a large position in Apple and that its stock was undervalued.

Lampliter Motel Robber Sentenced to 12 Years

BY LAURIE WELCH

BURLEY • Matthew Hale, 21, put a mask over his face and held the rifle as he and four co-conspirators robbed the Lampliter Motel on East Main Street in Burley on Feb. 17.

Hale

He was sentenced for his part in the crime Tuesday in Cassia County District Court.

Hale was sentenced to 12 years, with five years fixed time in the state penitentiary for robbery and five years fixed in prison for the aggravated assault charge. The sentences will run concurrently.

District Judge Michael Crabtree placed Hale in the state's retained jurisdiction program.

"At the age of 21, this is either your wake-up call or it isn't," said Crabtree.

Under a plea agreement, Hale pleaded guilty to felony charges of robbery and aggravated assault. Charges of burglary, conspiracy to commit robbery and assault with the intent to commit a serious felony were dismissed, along with enhancement penalties.

Hale said he is "truly and deeply sorry for the pain and suffering" caused by the role he played in the robbery.

"I really am a good person," Hale said.

Crabtree read parts of the presentence investigator's report that outlined Hale's role in the late night robbery at the motel.

The presentence report said Hale's actions were not random but premeditated, and he has not taken responsibility.

He blames his actions on methamphetamine use and drug abuse, Crabtree read.

The report also said Hale's criminal thinking is highly developed, and he could pose a danger to himself or others.

After the robbery, Hale was extradited from Nevada to Cassia County.

"He does recognize the severity of his crime," said his attorney, Michael Tribe.

Two other adults, Jacob Rush and Kristen Castaneda, and two juveniles also participated in the robbery.

Castaneda entered an Alford plea under a plea agreement to a charge of burglary. She was sentenced to seven years in the state penitentiary, with two years fixed. The sentence was suspended, and she was placed on probation. Other charges were dismissed.

Rush pleaded guilty to charges of robbery and aggravated assault under a plea agreement. He was sentenced to 12 years in the state penitentiary with five years fixed for the robbery charge and five years fixed for aggravated assault. Rush was placed in the state's retained jurisdiction program.

Ambrose Sentenced to 30 Years to Life for First-degree Murder

BY LAURIE WELCH

BURLEY • Russell Taft's killer was brought to justice Tuesday in Cassia County District Court, more than a year after Taft was found slain in a crawlspace of his Burley motel in May 2012.

James Duane Ambrose, 53, was sentenced to 30 years to life for first-degree murder with a 14-year concurrent fixed sentence for grand theft.

Ambrose was sentenced after he changed his plea to guilty to both crimes under a plea agreement.

Afterward, Taft's sister Cheryl Morgan said she felt satisfied with the judgment.

Ambrose, a handyman, was her brother's friend and had been his employee for about five years, said Morgan, of Battle Ground, Wash.

"We were mostly concerned with someone being held responsible for my brother's death. It was a very brutal killing, and someone needed to be held responsible," Morgan said. "I'm feeling relieved that they acknowledged his children and the loss for the children. I'm also relieved that Ambrose had family members in the courtroom that came up to us and apologized. That was incredibly nice."

District Judge Michael

LAURIE WELCH • TIMES-NEWS

James Duane Ambrose enters Cassia County District Court on Tuesday to change his plea to guilty of first-degree murder and grand theft. Ambrose was sentenced during the hearing.

Crabtree also imposed a civil penalty of $5,000 against Ambrose to be shared by Taft's four children.

Ambrose was extradited to Idaho to face the charges and will return to Nevada to serve 22 years to life for a brutal home invasion he waged, severely beating an elderly couple, after he fled the murder scene in Burley. The Idaho sentence will run consecutively to the Nevada sentence.

County Prosecutor Al Barrus said Ambrose will be at least 106 before he is paroled from Nevada and Idaho prisons.

Ambrose stabbed Taft and stuffed him in a crawl space. He stayed around until the next day, then drove Taft's daughter to school and stole Taft's car, Barrus noted.

Ambrose declined to make a statement during the hearing.

"This is a difficult case. I don't know exactly what to say," said Clayne Zollinger, Taft's attorney.

Taft's sister Sharon Dunlap, of Long Beach, Wash., said she felt relieved but empty after the hearing. Both sisters spoke of the family's loss after the murder.

"I don't think unless you've been through something like that, that people understand the whole depth of it," Dunlap said in an interview after the hearing..

"The six months Ambrose was on the run was a total nightmare."

WEATHER

Next Verse Same as the First

Maybe you've heard the old children's song. "This is the song that never ends. It just goes on and on my friends.. That seems to sum up this summer, the weather and even the forecast for the next several days. It remains hot and dry with little to absolutely no rain.

It's getting to the point that I can't go out without someone stopping me and asking if I can do something about the heat and lack of rain. I wish I could snap my fingers or say some magic words to make it instantly cooler and wetter. Unfortunately, I can't.

When people ask me to change the weather, I give them the same line: "I don't make the garbage. I just drive the truck." If you are looking for cooler and wetter weather, you'll have to move away — or wait.

The forecast for the rest of the week and into the weekend remains hot and dry. The hottest day this week will be Thursday, as highs across the Magic Valley reach the upper 90s and, in a few places, triple digits. Temperatures will drop by the weekend, and we could see a high of 89 by Sunday. But that is still very warm. Looking over the next several days, no rain is in the forecast.

County Can't Overrule Highway District on Road in LeBaron Lawsuit

BY JOE CADOTTE
jcadotte@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Twin Falls County commissioner Tuesday corrected his statement from the day before, when he had insisted that the Twin Falls Highway District couldn't make the final decision on a controversial road near a home built by Lance LeBaron. Commissioner Terry Kramer had said the Highway District's decision to vacate the roadway wasn't final, as the county had to hold public meetings first. But Tuesday, Kramer called the Times-News to recant that statement. The Highway District has the authority to vacate the roadway without city or county approval, he said. The road being vacated had been planned for construction a mere 11 inches from a house LeBaron built on the wrong site, with a city inspector's approval. LeBaron sold the house, and the new owners have filed a lawsuit against him because of the road. The district's decision to vacate that road and build a road elsewhere does not need further approval because it doesn't change the original platted land, Kramer explained Tuesday. If the road ever is built, LeBaron will technically own it, so the county does not need to add it to the plat, he said. "The easement is owned by the district, but the land isn't. So it doesn't need to be drawn on that plat," Kramer said. "It doesn't change the ownership of that land, and it doesn't change the shape of that lot. "Lance can't build on it, but Lance will always own it. Lance will pay taxes on it. It's his."

Family Health Services Opens Clinic in Kimberly

BY MYCHEL MATTHEWS
mmatthews@magicvalley.com

KIMBERLY • Adam Richins jumped at the chance "to work in a town where everybody knows your name." Richins is an Idaho native who grew up in a family of all boys. As young boys, he and his brothers lived by the philosophical idiom "Hey! Watch this!" — and spent a lot of time at their small-town medical center. Richins is now a certified physician assistant at the new Family Health Services (FHS) medical center in Kimberly. The center is also staffed by Dr. Basil Anderson and Dr. Paige Humphreys, along with nursing staff, dental hygienists and support personnel. On Tuesday morning, staff, community leaders and residents celebrated the grand opening of the new 6,000-square-foot medical center on Main Street. Family Health Services provided health care in the Magic Valley for 30 years, said Adam Hodges, dental director at the Kimberly center. The not-for-profit group has 34,000 patients coming to its offices in Twin Falls, Burley, Buhl, Jerome and Fairfield. The medical center is a welcome addition to residents in the east end of Twin Falls County, where health services have been nearly non-existent for several decades. Larry Hall, Kimberly city administrator, said the medical center is a cornerstone for new development. The facility was built where the city hall once stood before it was condemned and demolished. "Doesn't this look a lot better than the old Kimberly City Hall?" he told the crowd, pointing to the new $1.3 million business behind him. The construction of the medical center was a partnership between Family Health Center, the Idaho Department of Commerce and the city of Kimberly. The city invested $81,000 in the project; the Commerce Department chipped in $500,000 through a Community Development Block Grant; and FHS put down $355,000 between in-kind payments and cash.

"This is a great flagship property to start some change in town," said Hall. "The city is planning for growth rather than just letting it happen." Lynn Hudgens, chief executive officer of FHS, said the center will focus on preventative care. Hodges agreed. "Our goal is to get people healthy, then to keep them healthy," he said. "It's the only way to save patients money." FHS offers medical, dental and behavioral services. Its fees are charged on a sliding scale according to income. "This is a friendly, easy-going office," Hudgens said. "We are here for everyone in the community."

Woman Accused of Fake Pregnancy, Cancer Fraud to Change Plea

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A Buhl woman accused of faking a pregnancy and holding a fraudulent cancer fundraiser is to change her pleas Thursday. Lisa Holley, 44, and her husband, Michael Holley, 54, were accused in August 2012 of holding the fundraiser car wash for their daughter, who they said had leukemia, and were charged with two counts of grand theft by deception after Idaho State Police said the two accepted $1,200 in cash from an undercover officer. Police said the girl was not sick. In October, prosecutors filed an additional charge of grand theft by deception against Lisa Holley. Police said she faked being pregnant with triplets and took $1,435 in money and gifts from members of a Buhl church. Orders for mental health examinations on Lisa Holley in both cases were filed in March. She had a status hearing Monday, and the change of plea hearing was scheduled at that time. In July, Michael Holley entered an Alford plea in his case, meaning he maintains his innocence but agrees that prosecutors have enough evidence that they could convict him of the charge at trial. Holley said in court that he should have done more at the car wash to let everyone there know that his daughter did not have leukemia. He's to be sentenced Sept. 30.

Ralph Henry Jurgensmeier

May 1, 1920-Aug. 4, 2013

PLEASANT VIEW, Utah • Our loving father, grandfather and great-grandfather, Ralph Henry Jurgensmeier, age 93, passed away Aug. 4, 2013.

Ralph was born in Nuckolls County, Neb. May 1, 1920. He was the oldest child of Frank and Mary Kohmetscher Jurgensmeier. He married Bonnie Beth Jeppesen in Philadelphia, Pa. March 22, 1945; they were later sealed in the Logan Utah LDS Temple. Ralph served in the Navy in World War II. He served on the USS Phoenix, USS Marblehead and USS Oklahoma City. His ship, the USS Marblehead, was reported bombed and sunk in the Pacific, but it limped its way back to New York for repairs without a rudder. Ralph joined the Navy when one of the young men who lived near him came home and told him that every day in the Navy was like Sundays on the farm.

Ralph grew up on a farm, and loved farming. He homesteaded a dairy farm north of Rupert, Idaho. When he first moved to the farm it was mostly desert and sage brush. He took his small herd of Holstein cows and, with hard work, created a great place for a family to grow up.

One of his most treasured memories was the mission he and Bonnie served for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints at the St. George Visitor’s Center, the Jacob Hamblin home, the Brigham Young Home, the tabernacle and the church at Pine Valley. Ralph loved the St. George area and the people he met on their mission. He loved living and growing things in St. George, Utah. In his later years Ralph loved gardening, if he could have he would have grown a garden full of enough food and flowers to share with everyone.

The greatest gift he gave to his family was the times we would get together. He wanted all of his children and grandchildren to get together and enjoy each other’s company. He spent time and money making sure we had places to go and things to see. He took all of us on a trip to Nauvoo, Ill., and Nebraska where we could spend time together and with our Nebraska family. He is our anchor, the one who always wanted us to love each other and be together. He has 36 grandchildren, 89 great-grandchildren and seven great-great-grandchildren. We all called him Grandpa Great, because he was really Great!

Ralph is survived by his children, Valerie (Tom) Harward, Linda (Ken) Foit, Barbara (Stephen) Felt, Brenda (Taylor) Bennett, Dee (Karen) Jurgensmeier and Blair (Debbie) Jurgensmeier; two sisters, Frances Schoenrock and Mary Lou (Virgil) VerMaas; one brother, Orville Jurgensmeier; three sisters-in-law, Ruth Larsen, Dorene Jeppesen and Hala Bentzinger. He was preceded in death by his loving wife, Bonnie; three brothers, Walter Bentzinger, Jerry Jurgensmeier and Leland Jurgensmeier; sisters-in-law, Phyllis Jurgensmeier and Darlene Jurgensmeier; brother-in-law, Walter Schoenrock; a grandson, Russell Perry; and a granddaughter, Amber Jurgensmeier.

Special thanks goes to his “A Step Forward” Hospice caregivers, Judy and Brent; and his special “Comfort Keepers” caregiver Kay.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Aug. 16, at the Pleasant View South 8th Ward, 250 Elberta Drive, Pleasant View, Utah. Friends may visit with family from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. Friday at the church. Interment will be in the, Ben Lomond Cemetery in North Ogden, Utah. Services entrusted to Lindquist’s North Ogden Mortuary. John R. Hayes

Aug. 2, 1937-Aug. 11, 2013

AMERICAN FALLS • John R. Hayes was born Aug. 2, 1937, in American Falls, Idaho, to Wallace and Anita (Bade) Hayes. He passed at Pocatello, Idaho, Aug. 11, 2013, of natural causes after an exciting game of Bingo at the Shriner’s picnic, and watching the morning slack at the American Falls rodeo.

John was born and raised in Rockland on a cattle and dry land wheat farm. He graduated from Rockland High School where he was active in FFA and athletics. While in high school, he was a standout athlete and a member of the speech club. After graduation from high school, he attended Utah State University and also was active in the Idaho Cowboys and PRCA rodeo associations as a bulldogger. In 1961, he married Kathleen Goicoechea of Gooding. They built their life south of Rockland on the family farm where they raised many crops but their best was their three daughters: Tani, Tami and Heather.

John was active with the farming; raising and showing Hereford cattle; bull sales; racing Quarter horses; activities with the girls’ 4-H, high school rodeo and basketball; and in the fall when the harvest was done, it was hunting season. Over the years, John was very active in several organizations: the Masonic Lodge, the Shriner’s, the Order of the Eastern Star, DeMolay, Idaho Hereford Breeder’s Association, American Hereford Association, National Cattleman’s Association, the Power County Fat Stock Sale and 4-H Advisory Board, Power County Grain Growers, Idaho Purebred Breeders, Idaho Cattleman’s Association, and served as an advisor to the Idaho 4th District and State High School Rodeo associations.

John and Kathleen later divorced and John retired to Pocatello, where he sold real estate and spent the last 23 years with his longtime significant other, Karen Skinner. John and Karen spent their time enjoying each other, traveling, meeting new people and visiting family and friends. They even lived a few years down in the Louisiana Bayou. John and Karen both enjoyed traveling, fishing, playing cards, collecting and spending most of their later years following their grandchildren’s many activities. John got the greatest enjoyment from his grandkids, and he was always there to tell them a story and give them advice.

He is survived by his children, Tami (Zach) Parris of Pocatello and Heather (Travis) Williams of Gooding; grandchildren, Brandee (Tyler) Sabala, RJ Thompson, Zachary Parris Jr., Samantha Parris, Wyatt Williams and Wacey Williams; his great-grandchildren, Isabella Tani and Augustin Hayes Sabala; his ex-wife, Kathleen Goicoechea; his significant other, Karen Skinner; and her children, Ed Waldal; and grandchildren, Kendra Adams, Kayla Adams and Zachary Waldal; his siblings, Mary (Jay) Leyshon and Kathy Barkdull, both of American Falls, and Robert (Gaylynn) Hayes of Lewiston; several nieces and nephews; and many friends. He was preceded in death by his daughter, Tani Hayes; Brigitte Adams (Karen’s daughter); his sister, Marie Hayes Reinstra; his parents, Wallace and Anita Hayes; grandparents; and numerous aunts, uncles and cousins.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Aug. 16, at St. John’s Lutheran Church in American Falls. Services are under the direction of Davis-Rose Funeral Chapel in American Falls. Memorials can be made to the Shriner’s Children’s Hospital in Salt Lake City or Idaho Friends of 4-H. Condolences and memories may be shared at www.davis-rosemortuary.com.

OBITUARIES

Misako Fujita Yamagata

June 23, 1926-March 16, 2010

Frank Shigeto Yamagata

Aug. 11, 1917-Aug. 7, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Misako (Misa) Fujita Yamagata, 83, passed away March 16, 2010, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center due to complications following surgery. Her loving husband, Frank Shigeto Yamagata, four days shy of 96, passed away peacefully, Aug. 7, 2013, at Bridgeview Estates. At the time of their deaths, they were surrounded by many loving family members who greatly mourn their loss.

Misa was born June 23, 1926, in Ogden, Utah, to Chohachi and Tome Fujita. Her early years were spent in Cobry, Nev., until her father lost his job with the Union Pacific Railroad due to the war time hysteria. After a brief time spent in California, her family moved to Syracuse, Utah, where she attended Davis High School in Kaysville, Utah. At a dance in early 1951, she met a handsome farmer from Idaho, Frank Yamagata. They married Sept. 7, 1951, and she found herself living in the middle of sagebrush and rocks in the Hunt area. Nevertheless, she adapted well and became his indispensable right hand man. Misa survived what could have been a fatal farming accident in September 1968 when she fell under her tractor while raking beans. After two weeks in the hospital and many additional months of recovery, she was back to taking care of the household.

Frank was born Aug. 11, 1917, in Wapato, Wash., to Tsuruzo Oshima and Ura Yamagata. His family also lived in Pocatello, Idaho, before moving to Twin Falls in 1926. He attended Bickel Elementary School until his family moved to Jerome in 1928. Because of his father's ill health, Frank quit school during the 11th grade to help support his family, which included four siblings, three of whom were deaf. Frank was a natural born farmer and he and his father sharecropped for many years. After Pearl Harbor was bombed, they were ordered to leave the land they were sharecropping. This was a blessing in disguise because the next farm they sharecropped produced such a good harvest that the family was able to purchase their own farm in the Hunt area in the winter of 1942. In the off seasons, Frank helped build the Hunt Camp and also coal mined in Colorado. He always had a deep love and concern for his siblings. He saw to it that his three deaf siblings went to the Idaho School for the Deaf and Blind in Gooding and that his youngest brother went on to college. He was the much-loved and respected patriarch of the family. At the age of 33, Frank had caught the eyes of many young ladies, but his mother said, "Don't bring one home unless she can speak Japanese!" His search ended in Ogden, Utah, where he met Misa. He was instantly smitten.

They were finally blessed with their only child, Wanda, in December, 1956. Misa was overjoyed to finally have a child and was an incredible, loving mother. In addition to cooking delicious Japanese meals, baking tempting desserts and helping out on the farm, Misa found time to be the "fun mom" to all of Wanda's classmates, hosting birthday parties and transporting them here and there, fully enjoying herself in the process. If she had any free time at all, it was spent crocheting and embroidering many beautiful items and sewing many outfits for herself, Wanda and Wanda's Barbie and Ken dolls. She also loved writing letters and was a faithful correspondent. Family members still cherish letters from her in her beautiful handwriting.

According to Japanese tradition, Frank's household also included his parents, whom he and Misa lovingly cared for until their deaths. Frank was a warm, but stern father, showing his love by providing for his family. As he grew older, he became more comfortable openly showing love and affection. He was always quick to give a big hug and an "I love you." Frank spent his leisure time reading, fishing and playing poker and black jack. He and Misa made countless trips to Jackpot with their good friends, Kim and George Semba. He played the violin by ear and had a beautiful singing voice. He was also the "go-to man" for investment advice and many family members looked to him for the latest hot stock tip.

After farming successfully for many years, Misa and Frank retired in 1980 and moved to Twin Falls. In 1988, they met their future son-in-law, Russell Davis. They loved him with all their hearts and the feeling was mutual. Russ was devoted to them for the rest of their lives. In 1994, they moved to Las Vegas, Nev., to be near Frank's siblings. Then in 1997, they moved to Houston, Texas, to be near Wanda and Russ. They spent many years in their own home in Houston until Frank's health necessitated a move to an independent living facility in 2003. They immediately loved this new lifestyle: restaurant-style dining, bingo, parties and being chauffeured to the shopping malls and to their doctors. All was going well when Hurricane Rita threatened Houston. Misa and Frank evacuated to Las Vegas, and it was while they were there that Wanda gave them the news that she and Russ were moving to Idaho and they were going, too. They were ecstatic! In January 2006, they came full circle back to their beloved Idaho. They moved into an independent apartment at Bridgeview, where they were living at the time of Misa's death. A few months later, Frank moved to an assisted living apartment, where he lived until his death. Misa loved to be involved in every outing and activity Bridgeview offered and made many friends there with her smile and ever-present giggle. Frank was an inspiration to everyone with his courage and optimism in dealing with old age and the gradual loss of mobility. He was determined that he was not going to spend his last days in bed.

Misa joined for eternity her parents and sisters, Hanako Fujinami and Kazuko Kawaguchi. She is survived by her sister, Yukiko Kawaguchi; and brother, Jun Fujita. Frank was preceded in death by his parents; brother, George Yamagata; and sister, Teruko Okada. He is survived by his brother, Gene Yamagata; and sister, Taeko Nitta. Their devoted only child, Wanda, and her much loved husband, Russell Davis, also survive them, as well as many adoring nieces and nephews.

Wanda and Russ would like to thank their amazing extended family for their presence and overwhelming love and support throughout Misa and Frank's lifetimes. Families are forever! Many thanks to the Bridgeview staff for taking care of Misa and Frank throughout their time at Bridgeview, especially during Frank's last days. Their loving attention, patience, compassion and kind words were phenomenal. Thanks also go to the Hospice Visions team for their concern and guidance through this difficult time.

Vote ‘Yes’ on Cassia County Facilities Levy

Voters in the Cassia County School District will once again have the opportunity to have their voices heard in the polling booth on Aug. 27 when the District puts forth a 10-year, $13.85 million dollar plant facility levy. And we believe they should vote for the levy to ensure our children have the facilities needed to match the high level of learning provided by the district’s teachers.

Bond and levy elections in the district have been a contentious subject over the past five years. Admittedly, the district has not done the best job informing voters of costs and needs. Confusion and rumors only compounded the issue.

But district officials appear to have heard what voters said after the latest levy failed in March.

They have compiled a detailed list of needs and estimated expenses for the next 10 years. This gives voters a needed look at what the district is facing and should assure them that the district will be good stewards of our tax dollars. In addition, they have planned a series of community meetings to present their proposal and answer questions from voters — and we think voters should participate and become informed for themselves instead of buying into the latest chatter on the playground.

Some voters may be concerned about the $7.99 million dollar increase over the expiring levy. The reality is that costs for maintaining the district have gone up in the past 10 years. The three new high schools that were built around 1998 are starting to age and are in need of some upkeep.

The current plant facility levy that expires this year was passed 10 years ago and the funds are used for maintaining the district’s 59 buildings, their fleet of school buses and the hundreds of acres of grass and parking lots. A plant facility levy cannot be used for operating expenses, salaries and text books. Those needs are addressed in supplemental levies and the construction of buildings is handled through school construction bonds.

And there is some good news for taxpayers in the district. The construction bond passed in 1998 expires in 2016. This will provide taxpayers with some relief on their annual bill, even with the increase in the plant facility levy.

We need to maintain our schools, buses and facilities. It is an important part of the equation of providing a top-quality education for our children.

Voters have approved the plant facility levy for the past 60 years. We encourage the voters of Cassia County to do their homework and vote accordingly.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

There is Hope for Lives that Have Been Broken

Kintsukuroi: In ancient Japanese culture, there is an art known as kintsukuroi. This translates into “golden repair.” This art entails melding the pieces of shattered pottery together with gold or silver resin lacquer. Part of the art is finding the right resin lacquer that will enhance the piece the most. Through this process, the once-shattered pottery is given new life. This art also comes with an understanding that the once ugly and useless piece is more beautiful for having been broken.

A true understanding of this art will bring enlightenment to other aspects of life. There is no person presently on this earth that is not shattered in some way. Does this mean that humanity is consigned to haunt the earth forever as shattered remains of people or, as T.S. Eliot writes, “hollow men”? Some people will say yes because, as the proverb goes, misery loves company. But I am inclined to believe that humanity can be fixed a lot like broken pottery can be fixed.

There is no one-size-fits-all answer for many of life’s problems. Like finding the right lacquer, a person must find the solution that fits the fractures they have. People will never be able restore themselves to innocence. But through kintsukuroi, they can make repairs and know that they were more beautiful for having been broken.

Without Generosity of Volunteers, So Many Would Go Without

the Blind and Visually Impaired recently had the opportunity to work with Interfaith Volunteer Caregivers of Magic Valley and the local Lions Club to assist a person with visual impairment with transportation.

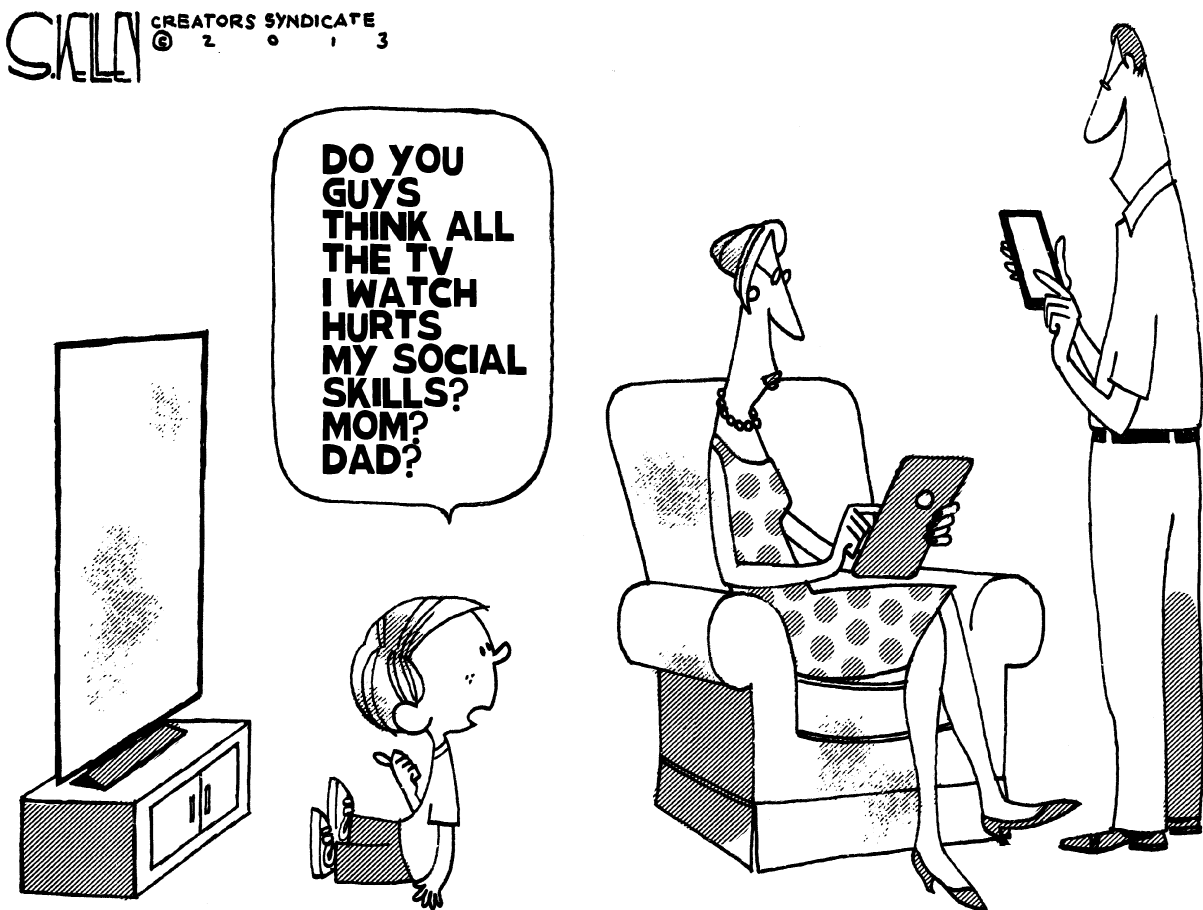

An appointment to a doctor out of town was needed and a call to IVC director Edie Schab was made, along with a call to the local Lions Club representative Cade Richman. The coordinated efforts between ICBVI, IVC and the Lions Club set in place a volunteer driver who donated her time and vehicle to provide transportation to the individual.

On another occasion, IVC provided a volunteer to assist a person with visual impairment with assistive technology training so she could play and listen to audio books independently.

Without the generosity of volunteers, so many people in our community would go

“As far as I’m concerned, I didn’t get a fair trial, and this is a sham, and do what youse want with me. That’s it. That’s my final word.”

Former Boston mob boss James “Whitey” Bulger in comments before being convicted in a string of 11 killings and dozens of gangland crimes.

READER COMMENT

America Needs the Humanities More than Ever

Recently, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences issued a major report on the need for a renewed national commitment to humanities education in K-12 classrooms, in our universities, and for lifelong learners.

Commissioned by a bipartisan group of Senators and Congressmen, including Senators Lamar Alexander (R-Tennessee) and Mark Warner (D-Virginia), the report entitled “The Heart of the Matter” deserves a wide readership. The report cautions that science, technology, engineering, and math education (STEM) not come at the expense of the humanities. While STEM education may offer a path to jobs, the humanities are critical to an informed American citizenry. The survival of democracy itself hinges on a citizenry versed in history, literature, languages, ethics, and law.

With half the states no longer requiring civics education, former U.S. Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O’Connor, a crusader for civics, is quoted in the report: “If we don’t take every generation of young people and make sure they understand that they are an essential part of government, we won’t survive.”

There is plenty of data to show how the humanities contribute to the economy, and how employers greatly value critical thinking in an increasingly integrated global economy. Beyond the statistics, however, the humanities light the intellectual fire that makes a job or profession worth doing. The new report urges Congress to stop the erosion of funding for the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) and the grassroots work of the state humanities councils.

Yet this report arrives just as leadership in the U.S. House of Representatives is proposing cuts so deep to the NEH — 49 percent — as to cripple the agency’s effectiveness and threaten the existence of the nonprofit state humanities councils.

Through the state councils, NEH funds reach into every congressional district in America, and the Idaho Humanities Council (IHC) ensures that they reach into every corner of Idaho. And Idahoans are hungry for humanities programming.

This summer the IHC involved more than 100 K-12 teachers in workshops examining Idaho territorial history. Past IHC summer teacher institutes have explored the presidencies of Lincoln and Jefferson, the history of the Cold War, the Constitution, the literature of Mark Twain, Ernest Hemingway, John Steinbeck, Willa Cather, Native American literature, and more.

This year, the IHC sponsored reading programs for the public in Hailey, Coeur d’Alene, Boise, and Idaho Falls (and this fall in Twin Falls) exploring the theme “Making Sense of the American Civil War.” In February, more than 100 participated in the five-meeting program in Idaho Falls alone—and participants are asking for more.

More rural libraries sign up every year to participate in Idaho’s “Let’s Talk About It” reading program than the IHC can afford to involve. A partnership of the IHC, the Idaho Commission for Libraries, and U.S. Bank Foundation—the 2013-2014 series will make possible 80 programs in 16 libraries from Bonners Ferry to Preston. Hundreds attend the IHC’s annual Distinguished Humanities Lectures with nationally recognized writers, biographers, journalists, and historians in Boise, Coeur d’Alene, and Idaho Falls every year.

Thousands visit Smithsonian traveling exhibitions that the IHC annually brings to Idaho museums and libraries. More than 5,000 attended IHC Speakers Bureau lectures in 2012. IHC grants offer essential support to museums, libraries, teachers, colleges and universities, and other organizations every year.

The list goes on. The legislation that created the NEH in 1965 states that, “Democracy demands wisdom.” The humanities teach empathy, reason, tolerance, and civility—ingredients sorely lacking in public dialogue today, but essential to a civil society. The humanities lift the lamp toward a meaningful life, and we need that light now more than ever.

Rick Ardinger is the Executive Director of the Idaho Humanities Council.

Pieces of Heaven Cupcakery Looks to Expand

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • When it comes to cupcakes, there are no flavor boundaries.

At least that’s what you will find at Pieces of Heaven Cupcakery in downtown Twin Falls.

When Pieces of Heaven opened in March 2012, it offered 110 cupcake flavors. Today it has 180.

Owner Krislyn Canary predicted that 250 flavor combinations probably will be offered by next year.

That’s because Krislyn constantly finds inspiration in the ice cream and candy aisles at markets. She said if these sweet treats can be made from creative combinations, why couldn’t that translate into cake?

So what are the most popular?

The French Toast cupcake and the Peanut Butter Blast.

“It actually tastes like French toast with the syrup and butter,” said manager Samantha Canary. “And the Peanut Butter Blast is peanut butter cake with Reese’s Pieces and peanut butter frosting.”

A woman came into the store once asking if they could make a chicken and waffle cupcake. And though the woman never ordered it, Krislyn said she was up to the challenge.

Cupcakes sit on display at Pieces of Heaven Cupcakery in downtown Twin Falls.

Before opening the storefront, Krislyn operated Pieces of Heaven out of her house for five years. She used to make cakes and chocolates as gifts for family and friends during the holidays.

When Pieces of Heaven opened, business

When and Where?

The Pieces of Heaven Cupcakery is at 153 Main Ave. E. in downtown Twin Falls. It is open 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday. For more information, 208-539-2211 was slow Krislyn said. But foot traffic has picked up recently since Old Towne GR and Moose Hill opened nearby, she said. The two businesses bring a loyal following.

“It’s really helped. More people are walking downtown, and a lot of people didn’t know we were down here,” Krislyn said.

Krislyn and Samantha said they hope to revamp the cupcakery in the coming months by adding more tables and chairs for people to sit and enjoy their cupcakes. They have started making suckers and hope to add Italian sodas to their menu.

And though Krislyn initially thought about opening her storefront on Blue Lakes Boulevard, she said she made the right choice.

“I was happy to come downtown. This is kind of where I want to be,” Krislyn said. “Walking traffic is the best traffic.”

Rudy’s – A Cook’s Recipe of the Week

Tomato Zucchini Strata

Adapted from Chef Emily Kaiser for Food and Wine

A French take on strata, or savory bread pudding, this simple summer dish contains zucchini, onion and tomatoes layered with slices of baguette, then baked with chicken stock and cream.

- One 6-oz. baguette, cut into 1/4-inch slices
- 1/4 cup extra-virgin olive oil, plus more for drizzling
- Salt and freshly ground pepper
- 2 medium zucchini (1 lb.), cut into 1/2-inch dice
- 1 large red onion, diced into 1/2-inch pieces
- 1/2 tsp. chopped thyme
- 1/2 cup low-sodium chicken broth
- 1/4 cup heavy cream
- 1/2 cup shredded Gruyère cheese
- 1/4 cup freshly grated Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese
- 4 medium tomatoes (1 1/2 lbs. total), sliced 1/4 inch thick

1. Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Arrange the baguette slices on a large baking sheet and drizzle lightly with olive oil. Season the bread with salt and pepper and bake for about six minutes, until crisp and golden brown.

2. In a 10-inch ovenproof skillet, heat 2 tablespoons of the olive oil. Add the zucchini, onion and thyme, season with salt and pepper and cook over moderately high heat, stirring a few times, until just tender, about five minutes. Add 1/4 cup of the broth and the heavy cream and simmer over moderate heat until slightly thickened, about three minutes. Season with salt and pepper and transfer half of the zucchini mixture to a plate and reserve.

3. Spread the remaining zucchini in an even layer in the skillet. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons of the Gruyère and 1 tablespoon of the Parmigiano-Reggiano and top with a layer of toasted baguette slices. Spread the reserved zucchini mixture over the toasts and sprinkle with an additional 2 tablespoons of Gruyère and 1 tablespoon of Parmigiano-Reggiano. Arrange alternatively slices of tomato and baguette on top in concentric circles. Sprinkle with the remaining 1/4 cup Gruyère and 3 tablespoons of grated cheese. Drizzle with the remaining 2 tablespoons of olive oil and season with salt and pepper. Carefully pour the remaining 1/4 cup of broth around the edge of the skillet and over the top.

4. Bake for about 35 minutes, until the top is richly browned and the tomatoes have released their juices. Let stand for 10 minutes before serving.

Make Ahead: The strata can stand at room temperature for up to two hours. Re-heat in a 350 degree oven for about 10 minutes, just until warmed through.

How to Control Stubborn Weeds

The presence of bindweed (perennial morning glory), thistle or quack grass in your garden practically guarantees there will be cussing. The names of these weeds are themselves curse words. Try telling someone you found some of the T-word in your yard, and watch their puzzled reaction. How you deal with invasion from hard to control weeds will test your character. It is a contest of wills. Stubborn weeds require stubborn weeder.

In the interest of transparency, I have not had to battle bindweed on a large scale. Quack grass is still winning in some areas of my garden, however.

Bindweed, field bindweed or perennial morning glory are different names for the same persistent weed. Don’t confuse it with the annual morning glory, a pretty flowering vine that never hurt anyone. The problem with bindweed and other seemingly Roundup Ready® weeds is that they can wear a gardener down. Your usual weapons may not work as easily in eradicating them, and so some gardeners accept containment.

If you settle in for a fight and are willing to try multiple methods, you can win. Digging rather than pulling is more effective because deep taproots and root buds, in the case of bindweed, are some of the features that help these tenacious weeds survive.

Preventing flowering will prevent seed production so careful removal in the spring improves your chances. These weeds do not belong in a compost pile; instead send them far, far away.

At some point, most people are willing to use chemicals on troublesome weeds even if they don’t use them otherwise. Glyphosate (Roundup) is going to be most effective in the fall, particularly if you make several applications. For bindweed, some recommend four applications, seven to 10 days apart, from early to late fall.

Remember Roundup is nonselective, so it will kill desirable plants as well. Using a paint brush, sponge or the new Roundup gel to apply allows you to target weeds close to your garden plants. Broadleaf weed killers such as 2,4-D may be more effective in the spring before the weeds are in reproductive growth. Care must be taken with these chemicals as well so that other broadleaf plants are not harmed. 2,4-D has no effect on quack grass. Weed killers will work much better if the weeds are well watered and the temperatures are not too high.

Having heard Idahoans discuss politics, I am certain there is sufficient stubbornness in this state to battle stubborn weeds.

What methods have you used for weed control? What weed(s) give you the most trouble? I welcome your feedback.

Apparently, the rest of Idaho got together up in Nampa for the third annual Idaho Brewer’s Fest. It was a cute affair, with 16 Idaho breweries showing up to pour their tasty beverages. Chipotle Grill Considering Change to Allow Antibiotics

NEW YORK (AP) • Chipotle Mexican Grill is reviewing a change to start using beef that has been treated with antibiotics, but said no decision has yet been made on the matter.

The Denver-based chain stressed in a press release Tuesday that its beef, chicken and pork continues to come from animals that are not given antibiotics or added hormones whenever possible. But it said it's considering tweaking its "responsibly raised" meat standards to allow meat from animals that have been given antibiotics to treat illnesses.

The statement was issued after a Bloomberg story noted the change; Chris Arnold, a spokesman for Chipotle, said he had incorrectly stated the new policy had been decided, even though it was still under review.

Under Chipotle's current definition of meat it considers "responsibly raised," the company says animals aren't treated with antibiotics under any circumstances.

The use of antibiotics to treat sick animals is considered acceptable by some health advocates, including the Center for Science in the Public Interest, which is based in Washington, D.C. Sarah Klein, a senior attorney with the group, said the problem is when animals are fed antibiotics with food on a constant basis to promote growth or prevent disease, which could in turn lead to the growth of antibiotic resistant germs.

But Klein said the "Organic Meat" and "No Antibiotics Administered: USDA Verified" labels found in supermarkets mean the meat wasn't treated with antibiotics, even if the animal was sick. She noted that there are other labels that aren't verified by the government, such as "raised without antibiotics."

"It may be true, but it's not verified," she said.

Chipotle started transitioning to meat without antibiotics or hormones in 1999, Arnold said. He said the company reached its goal of switching over its supply entirely a couple years ago. But more recently, Arnold said it was running into difficulty securing enough supply that met its standards.

As a result, Arnold said the company has recently had to serve meat that didn't fall within its "responsibly raised" guidelines. This year, he said about 15 to 20 percent of the beef it used was conventionally grown. During such shortages, which typically last a few weeks, he said the company posts signs by registers to alert customers of the change.

Chipotle has grown in popularity in part because of its "Food With Integrity" slogan, making a possible change to its policy notable. The company now has more than 1,500 locations, up from 489 at the end of 2005.

Shares of Chipotle Mexican Grill Inc. added $3.37 to close Tuesday trading at $406.34. The stock has risen 74 percent since hitting its 52-week low in October.

Mars Food Study Researchers Emerge from Dome

BY JENNIFER SINCO KELLEHER
Associated Press

HONOLULU • Six researchers have spent the past four months living in a small dome on a barren Hawaii lava field at 8,000 feet, trying to figure out what foods astronauts might eat on Mars and during deep-space missions.

They emerged Tuesday with their recipes and without the space suits they were required to wear each time they ventured onto the northern slope of Mauna Loa — an active volcano that last erupted in 1984.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

important for future space missions is comfort food, he said. A favorite among the crew: Nutella, the chocolate-hazelnut spread. "It's something we craved," he said. "We had a limited supply so we had to ration it."

The study, dubbed Hawaii Space Exploration Analog and Simulation, included an open call for recipes that involved a lot of Spam. The canned meat, popular in Hawaii households, was a common ingredient in suggested recipes because of its shelf-life, said Kim Binsted, a UH-Manoa associate professor who is an investigator on the study but didn't live in the habitat.

The researchers prepared several dishes using Spam, including a Cajun jambalaya and a fried rice noodle dish.

She said Hawaii's temperate weather and Mauna Loa's geological features were a perfect setting for the study. The area is isolated, yet accessible, and has no visible plant or animal life.

"It looks like Mars," she said.

Team members will spend several days in debriefings after they emerge from the dome. They'll likely be disoriented from the experience, Binsted said, and they have requested a beach outing before returning to their regular lives.

Go For the Food: Grilled Cheese in Tony Washington

BY PHILIP ELLIOTT
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • This is a city of monuments, for sure — both to history and to restaurants. There are the stone-faced tributes to Lincoln and King, as well as the Washington establishments that are shrines to culinary ego and ingenuity alike. But to appreciate this capital city and its true character, get away from both categories and venture to the quickly developing stretch around the 14th Street corridor. There, discover the best tribute to the ultimate American comfort food: Stoney's grilled cheeses. Yes, grilled cheeses. While other restaurants in Washington deservedly earn high praise from foodies for their longevity, tradition and innovation, the low-key vibe of Stoney's is the embodiment of what folks who call Washington home know better. The wood-floored, high-ceiling neighborhood bar captures the flavor that suburban chain restaurants try to replicate in mall parking lots, without the kitsch or glaring fluorescent lights. No high-energy script, just vintage-style, low-intensity bulbs. Stoney's menu is genuinely casual and its signature grilled cheese menu doesn't carry a celebrity chef's endorsement increasingly common in Washington and its environs in Maryland and Virginia. It's a city where tourists often wait hours to sample plates prepared by bold-faced kitchen whizzes such as Jose Andres or Michel Richard and reality show veterans such as Mike Isabella and Spike Mendelsohn. And weekend lines at Georgetown's feuding cupcake stores often stretch around blocks. At Stoney's, it's seat yourself, no host or hostess. Menus are already on the tables. Water and soda glasses are plastic. Draft beer trumps craft cocktails. There are multiple varieties of grilled cheese, all delicious. There is the classic, with melted American between two thick slices of buttery Texas toast, crispy on the outside but chewy in the middle. The "super" variety adds juicy tomato, break-your-tooth-crunchy bacon and plenty of onions. Another option includes thick and salty slices of ham to the mix. These are the kind of dishes Mom made to ward off the cold, coupled with tomato soup. None tops $10 and each comes with fries — though the onion rings are an option with far more texture. During happy hour, the price dips as low as the remarkable $3 in a city where meals' costs climb at a ridiculous clip. Which is why at Stoney's, high-priced consultants, political operatives and blue-collar residents alike slide up to the wooden barstools without any of the class distinctions that leave Washington open to fair criticism that the capital is among the country's most segregated based on income. Pictures of famous Washingtonians are on the wall — there's Colin Powell! And Bill Clinton! — near framed cases of police and fire badges from departments that visit from around the country. Stoney's opened in 1968 at a spot a few blocks away but moved to its current location in 2006, just as the neighborhood's development got humming. And while the clientele has shifted as the neighborhood has grown — a Whole Foods is across the street, and other neighbors on the block include two solid farm-to-table restaurants, a running shop and a yoga studio — the menu has not. And that menu remains rooted in cheese. Not the fancy, expensive kinds that are sold by the ounce at froufrou specialty shops. No, Stoney's appreciates the classics: American, cheddar, Parmesan. Best when melted, of course. The grilled cheese offerings are the must-try dishes. But the mac and cheese with bacon, the meatloaf sandwich and Reuben all are laden with melted cheese and earn rave reviews. They're the kind of plates that, with one look, make it clear you'll need extra napkins. Paper napkins, of course. This is not the place for cloth ones. Those are available at the other places.

Give Wild Rice a Second Chance in Summer Salad

BY ALISON LADMAN
Associated Press

Wild rice seemed to have its moment back in the '90s. That's roughly when Americans first seemed to discover there was more to the rice world than long grain white. Since then, wild rice (and yes, we know it's really a grass, not a true rice) seems to have lost its luster. People moved on to all the many other new and exciting grains that have come along since, things like quinoa and farro, not to mention the many designer and heirloom rices now lining grocers' shelves. But we still have a soft spot for the tender, nutty chew of wild rice. So we created a cool, sweet summer salad to show off just how delicious it can be.

HERBED WILD RICE SALAD WITH APRICOTS AND BLUEBERRIES
Start to finish: 1 1/2 hours (30 minutes active)
Servings: 6
1 cup wild rice
Kosher salt
3 tablespoons olive oil
3 tablespoons white balsamic vinegar
1 tablespoon honey
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
2 tablespoons chopped fresh chives

This July 22 photo shows a recipe for herbed wild rice salad with apricots and blueberries.

2 tablespoons chopped fresh tarragon
2 tablespoons chopped fresh thyme
Ground black pepper
2 fresh apricots, pitted and diced
1 cup blueberries
In a medium pot, combine the wild rice, a hefty pinch of salt and 6 cups water. Bring to a boil, then reduce to a simmer. Simmer for 35 to 45 minutes, adding water as needed. When the rice is tender, strain through a mesh strainer and spread in an even layer on a rimmed baking sheet to cool.

To speed the process, you can set the baking sheet in the refrigerator. Once the rice has cooled, in a medium bowl, whisk together the olive oil, vinegar, honey, mustard, chives, tarragon, thyme and a pinch each of salt and pepper. Stir in the wild rice, apricots and blueberries. Season with additional salt and black pepper as needed.

A CRAVING FOR MEAT: SPECIFIC TASTE AND SMELL SENSES RESPOND STRONGLY, BUT NOT TO LAB BEEF

BY MARTA ZARASKA
Special to The Washington Post

According to those who tried it last week, lab-grown beef doesn't really taste like meat. So what exactly gives meat its flavor and makes us beg for more?

We've long known why ice cream and chocolate appeal so much to our taste buds: It's that blissful mixture of sugar and fat. But what's so special about bacon and steak that, for most people, it trumps the growing pile of scientific data on meat's detrimental health effects?

The answer, according to scientists, lies in meat's unique mixture of fat and umami (more about this taste later), spiced up in a process called the Maillard reaction the browning that happens when we cook a piece of meat. "These are powerful stimuli to humans," says Paul Breslin, a nutritional sciences professor at Rutgers University.

As much as 95 percent of what we think of as meat's taste is actually its aroma, according to a Barb Stuckey, author of "Taste: Surprising Stories and Science About Why Food Tastes Good." And the lack of strong scents is one reason why raw meat is not very appealing.

Even animals seem to agree: If mice could cook, many would turn up their noses at raw meat. The first time Rachel Carmody of Harvard University offered her lab mice mini-steaks, both roasted and raw, the animals eagerly went for the cooked meat. In similar experiments, chimps, gorillas and orangutans were clear about their preferences, too: Roasting, grilling and stewing appealed to them.

One of the main reasons for that is the Maillard reaction, the marriage between carbohydrates and amino acids that occurs in a slightly moist, hot environment and that produces aromas so delightful that they "make us go weak at the knees," says Adam Drewnowski, director of the Nutritional Sciences Program at the University of Washington. More than 1,000 chemical compounds are responsible for the scents of meats, and many are created by this reaction. Some smell fruity, other musty, while still others have the scent of nuts, mildew, marshmallow and even crushed bugs. When taken together, they create the enticing aroma of a backyard barbecue or a stove-top saute.

Drewnowski points out that the Maillard reaction is also behind our love of baked cookies, crusty bread and roasted coffee, but the magic that occurs during the grilling of meat is probably the most potent. The Maillard reaction is also the reason why the lab-created beef burger, which tasters said was unappetizingly bland, nonetheless smelled quite good as it was being cooked.

There may be a strong evolutionary basis for our idea of what smells good. As Drewnowski explains, "the Maillard reaction is a way for us to notice that the product has been cooked. The aroma of the Maillard reaction meant the meat was safe to eat."

Beyond the Maillard reaction, our desire for meat is often a desire for fat, scientists say. "When you think you're craving meat, most likely what you're really craving is fat," Breslin says.

Fat is more energy-dense than sugars, and as such it was highly desirable for our ancestors' survival. Fat in meat has a particular texture, an appealing creaminess and juiciness. When you cook a piece of pork or beef, it's not just the Maillard reaction that occurs; fats also start to oxidize, creating delicious scents that rush toward your nose.

The lab burger, created from stem cells extracted from a cow's shoulder, contained muscle fibers only and had no fat. It had been spiced with a dash of salt and colored with saffron and beet juice, and the meaty scents it emitted were there when it was being cooked in a pan but they were "subtle," said Richard McGeown, the chef who cooked it. And without fat, the mouthfeel was not particularly good.

Another reason why cooked meat is so hard to resist is that it's loaded with the taste known as umami (Japanese for "delicious"). This fifth taste in addition to salty, sweet, sour and bitter was identified a century ago, but only in recent years has it become widely accepted by scientists.

In nature, three substances are responsible for umami taste: glutamate (as in Parmesan cheese, soy sauce, sun-dried tomatoes and many meats), inosinate (which is found in meat and fish) and guanylate (think dried mushrooms).

When two or three of these substances are combined, the umami taste of a dish is vastly magnified, in an effect that chefs call a "u-bomb." And meat, says Toshihide Nishimura, a professor of food science at Nippon Veterinary and Life Science University in Tokyo, is a particularly good example of the mouthwatering synergy of umami substances.

Humans like umami. Gary Beauchamp, director of the Monell Chemical Senses Center in Philadelphia, found that if given a choice, we go for dishes with added glutamate. We learn its taste even before we're born: Amniotic fluid is loaded with glutamate. Some scientists believe that the role of umami is to indicate the presence of proteins in food, which helps us choose good sources of that nutrient. Cooking releases glutamate, making foods more delicious. That is why, Breslin says, the umami taste like the Maillard reaction signals that meat has been cooked and thus is safer to eat.

Does all this mean humans will always have a craving for meat? Not necessarily. If you want to cut down on meat, for health or other reasons, try a few simple tricks.

To enjoy the Maillard reaction, Drewnowski suggests, choose freshly baked breads, crunchy toasts, roasted veggies. To make up for the meat fats that you're forgoing, try avocados, cheese and nuts that contain healthful fats. As for umami, Breslin suggests that tofu cooked with soy sauce, a little peanut butter and mushrooms should satisfy your craving.

For lab beef to taste more like conventional meat, we will have to wait until scientists figure out how to add fat tissue to the muscle fibers. This, according to the Dutch professor who created the lab meat and provided a taste of it last week, will take "another couple of months."

Boise State quarterback Joe Southwick throws against Colorado State University Saturday, Nov. 17, 2012 at Bronco Stadium in Boise.

Hansen, Murtaugh to Combine Football Programs

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

MURTAUGH • The Murtaugh and Hansen high school football teams will join together in a cooperative for the 2013 season, and for the foreseeable future.

The schools, located 10 miles apart, have both struggled with low participation for several years. On Monday, Hansen coach Tee Jay Berry looked at his squad of 13 boys and decided it was time to co-op — perhaps permanently.

“This is something that’s needed to happen for a long time,” Berry said. “As long as everything works out great, I don’t see any reason it doesn’t just stay this way.”

Berry reached out to Murtaugh coaches and administrators on Monday morning, and by evening both school boards had approved the arrangement. The cooperative is pending approval by the Idaho High School Activities Association, which Murtaugh coach Adam Johnson said would have an answer by this Friday.

“We’ve cleared the hardest hurdles — getting both communities and school boards on board,” Johnson said. “The rivalry of old was there, but you kind of adapt as the communities change, and ultimately the goal is to do what’s best for both schools. I was really proud that both school boards were willing to consider this, put rivalries aside and just make the best decision for the kids.”

Upon IHSAA approval, the combined programs will compete as the Murtaugh Red Devils, but play Hansen’s Class 1A-I schedule. Home games and practices will be held at

BSU Receiving Corps Poised to Break Out

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

BOISE • Joe Southwick’s problem is a good one to have.

Boise State’s senior quarterback is surrounded by a plethora of playmakers, but only has one ball.

“(Wide receiver) is maybe our deepest position on our football team,” Southwick said. “You look at it, and there’s probably six or seven guys who can legitly go out and play and get it done. ... It’s going to be tough to get them all the ball.”

Deep and talented, BSU’s wide receivers have a combination of size and speed that could allow Southwick to pick apart secondaries.

“It starts with the quarterback giving the receiver a chance, and they have to go up and make plays on those 50-50 balls, where the defensive back is right there,” said coach Chris Petersen. “We have had receivers in the past who could do that. Kellen (Moore) would give those guys a chance, and he had some pretty good guys around him. And with the guys around Joe, that’s what we need to have happen.”

The guys around Joe are among the best in the Mountain West. The Broncos return five of their top six pass catchers from 2012, including team leaders Matt Miller (66 catches, 769 yards) and Kirby Moore (36 catches, 368 yards).

Petersen hopes Geraldo Boldewijn and Aaron Burks, who re-

“Everyone is going to find their niche for when they can play on the field. There’s a lot of familiarity with everyone involved. We’ve been working the whole summer and that’s carried over into this camp and it’s showing right now.”

Kirby Moore

spectively caught 18 and 17 passes last season, will elevate their game.

“I think the stage is set for those guys to take the next step, and if they do, and there are others guys who can too, but it will take the passing game to the next level,” Petersen said.

The buzz this summer was the group made great strides, and so far in fall camp the receivers have taken turns making jaw-dropping plays.

“I think everyone improved over the offseason and you can really tell out here today,” Kirby Moore said last week. “Everyone is going to find their niche for when they can play on the field. There’s a lot of familiarity with everyone involved. We’ve been working the whole summer and that’s carried over into this camp and it’s showing right now.”

The buzzword this offseason has been “explosive” — as in, the offense needs to find a way to be more explosive than it was in 2012. BSU’s passing offense was ranked 70th in the nation last year, and the team was 54th in scoring.

“You’re all going to see eventually, once the season starts, but we’re really looking good. I can’t complain about it,” Burks said Monday. “I always think we’re going to be more explosive, but we want to show the world instead of talk about it. We’ll let it show on the field.”

Miller, Moore, Boldewijn and Burks are all 6-foot-3 or taller, which could cause matchup nightmares for defensive backs. Toss in speedy Dallas Burroughs and Shane Williams-Rhodes in the slot — not to mention proven tight ends Gabe Linehan and Holden Huff — and it’s no wonder Southwick can’t wait for the Aug. 31 season opener at Washington.

“That’s awesome for us,” Southwick said. “We’re going to be very versatile in that position. We can throw a bunch of different guys out there in different packages and really make teams prepare for different stuff. Production-wise, I think we have guys who are going to produce.”

MLB BRIEFS

Miller Homers Twice as Mariners Beat Rays

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. • Leadoff hitter Brad Miller homered twice to help the Seattle Mariners send the Tampa Bay Rays to their sixth straight loss with a 5-4 victory on Tuesday night.

Miller has four home runs this season, which have come in a pair of two-homer games. He connected for his first two big league homers on July 19 at Houston.

Tampa Bay also got two homers from its leadoff hitter, Ben Zobrist.

According to the Rays, it is just the third time since 1916, when records are available, that both leadoff hitters had multihomer games. The others were June 5, 1994 (Minnesota’s Chuck Knoblauch and Tony Phillips of Detroit) and July 8, 1965 (Houston’s Joe Morgan and Felipe Alou of the Milwaukee Braves).

YANKEES 14, ANGELS 7

NEW YORK • Alfonso Soriano homered twice and drove in a career-high six runs, Alex Rodriguez had a two-run double, and the New York Yankees’ bats bailed out a wild CC Sabathia.

Vernon Wells homered against his former team, and leadoff batter Eduardo Nunez drove in four runs as New York equaled its highest run total of the season. The second-worst, run-producing offense in the AL won by more than three runs for the first time in 26 games.

Jason Vargas (6-5) gave up two homers in his first start since having surgery to remove a blood clot from near his left armpit on June 26, including Soriano’s go-ahead two-run drive in the fifth.

RED SOX 4, BLUE JAYS 2, 11 INNINGS

TORONTO • Shane Victorino hit a two-run single in the 11th inning and the Boston Red Sox beat the Toronto Blue Jays.

Jarrod Saltalamacchia drew a one-out walk off Aaron Loup (4-5) and Will Middlebrooks followed with a single. Jacoby Ellsbury grounded into a fielder’s choice, with Middlebrooks forced at second and Saltalamacchia advancing to third.

Ellsbury stole second before Victorino grounded a two-run single up the middle.

INDIANS 5, TWINS 2

MINNEAPOLIS • Zach McAllister won for the first time in almost three months, Ryan Raburn homered and the Cleveland Indians beat the Minnesota Twins.

Coming off his worst start of the season on Thursday against Detroit, McAllister (5-7) bounced back and held Minnesota to one earned run and four hits in six innings. He struck out seven in his first win since May 23.

Josh Willingham homered for the Twins in the second inning, Minnesota’s 23rd straight run from a home run.

Seattle Mariners shortstop Brad Miller (5) forces Tampa Bay Rays’ Evan Longoria out at second base during the seventh inning of a baseball game Tuesday in St. Petersburg, Fla.

NATIONAL LEAGUE BRAVES 3, PHILLIES 1

ATLANTA — Kris Medlen continued his late-season surge by winning his fourth straight start, Chris Johnson hit a two-run home run and the Atlanta Braves beat the Philadelphia Phillies.

Medlen (10-10) appeared to be in danger of being sent to the bullpen one month ago. In late July, Tim Hudson was lost for the season with a broken right ankle and Paul Maholm went on the 15-day DL with a bruised left wrist.

Though Maholm may be only one minor league rehab start away from coming off the disabled list, Medlen’s spot in the rotation appears more secure. He left after walking Erik Kratz to open the eighth, getting a standing ovation after allowing one run on five hits in seven innings.

After David Carpenter pitched a perfect eighth, Craig Kimbrel earned his 37th save by recording the final three outs.

INTERLEAGUE MARLINS 1, ROYALS 0, 10 INNINGS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. • Christian Yelich singled home the go-ahead run with one out in the 10th inning and the Miami Marlins beat the Kansas City Royals after a tidy matchup of contrasting starters.

Hard-throwing Marlins prodigy Jose Fernandez and wily Royals veteran Bruce

Chen each lasted seven innings before handing the scoreless game over to their bullpens.

It continued to extra innings before Kansas City reliever Kelvin Herrera (4-6) brushed the jersey of the Marlins’ Jake Marisnick with a pitch in the 10th. Marisnick stole second and then scored on Yelich’s single through the right side of the infield, his third hit of the game. Chad Qualls (3-1) earned the win for Miami, while Steve Cishek worked around a single in the bottom half of the 10th for his 25th save.

Woods’ Year Changed After Distraction at Masters

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PITTSFORD, N.Y. • Imagine how different it might have been for Tiger Woods if not for one perfect shot.

Major championships always have a signature moment. The 20-foot birdie putt by Adam Scott on the 18th hole at Augusta National that led to a green jacket. The pure 4-iron that Justin Rose hit into the 18th at Merion. Phil Mickelson’s 3-wood onto the 17th green at Muirfield. Jason Dufner’s wedge to a dangerous pin on the fifth hole at Oak Hill that stopped a foot from the cup.

The defining moment in another major-less season for Woods was his wedge on the 15th hole in the second round of the Masters.

It hit the pin and shattered his calm.

One inch to the right or to the left and he most likely would have had an easy birdie and the outright lead. Instead, the ball caromed off the green and into the water, setting off a wild chain of events that put Woods into the middle of a controversy that wasn’t his doing except for inadvertently taking the wrong drop.

Information leaked to ESPN and Golf Channel didn’t help. For two hours, all anyone knew was that Woods was being penalized two shots for the incorrect drop, and thus signed an incorrect scorecard, but he would not be disqualified.

There was outrage, and rightly so. Some of that lingered even after Augusta National offered a reasonable explanation that its decision was based on Rule 33-7, which gives a committee discretion to waive disqualification. In this case, the club said it could have — and should have — talked to Woods before he signed his card. Whether the club let him off the hook is a separate debate. Either way, Woods was seen as the central character in a conspiracy.

Can one shot really make that much of a difference? There’s no way to know how the Masters or the rest of his season would have unfolded. But this much was clear. Those who have spent years around Woods at golf tournaments noticed a sharp change in his outlook in the month leading to the first major of the year.

When he won at Doral, there was an undeniable sense of peace about Woods that had been missing since the scandal in his personal life at the end of 2009. That serenity was evident again at Bay Hill, even as he revealed a relationship with Olympic skier Lindsey Vonn, and he went on to win the Arnold Palmer Invitational with ease.

Woods never looked the same after the Masters, despite winning his next start at The Players Championship.

None of this can be proved, of course. He did have an elbow injury that kept him out of two tournaments this summer. And it’s impossible to say what’s going on inside someone’s head, especially a golfer, and especially someone like Woods.

Even so, few other sports rely so heavily on inner calm. Woods talked about that after his two biggest blowouts in majors — his 12-shot win at the Masters and 15-shot win at the U.S. Open.

“There comes a point in time when you feel tranquil, when you feel calm. You feel at ease with yourself. And those weeks, I felt that way,” he said after the 2000 U.S. Open win at Pebble Beach. “I felt very at ease with myself. And for some reason, things just flowed. And no matter what you do, good or bad, it really doesn’t get to you.”

There is nothing wrong with his game, even as it remains subject to intense scrutiny.

Woods has five wins this year, which includes two World Golf Championships and The Players Championships. That’s a career for some players. Yes, he tends to win on the same courses, but maybe that’s because he plays the same courses on his limited schedule.

But there was something about the majors this year that brought out a different player.

Nick Faldo said before the British Open that Woods was “not in a good mental place.” For some reason, this became news. Jack Nicklaus effectively suggested the same thing in a Golf Channel interview during the final round of the PGA Championship. Nicklaus said Woods was swinging the club a week earlier at Firestone “as well as I’ve ever seen him swing it,” and that his swing wasn’t quite the same as he got deeper into the PGA Championship, and further behind on the leaderboard.

Nicklaus said it was “between his ears.”

“You start losing confidence,” he said. “You try to do something you can’t do it and then it frustrates you. We all go through those things.”

More telling was a prediction from Geoff Ogilvy, who finished the British Open around lunchtime Sunday and was asked to handicap the final round. Ogilvy thought Muirfield was set up perfectly for Woods, who was two shots behind. The course was yellow and fast, the kind of conditions on which Woods thrives in links golf. His only caveat was that Woods could not afford to lose ground early because it would put too much stress on him. That’s about how it unfolded. Woods had a couple of three-putt bogeys early and it was a fight the rest of the way.

Woods hasn’t had a mental coach since he was an amateur, and he doesn’t need one now. He doesn’t need someone to show him clips of Yoda before a major for inspiration. He doesn’t need to hear a tired message to, “Trust your swing.”

He needs the peace he had in March. And he has to find that himself.

Murtaugh High.

Murtaugh (a 1A-II school) will drop its schedule, which opens dates for Castleford, Dietrich, Lighthouse Christian, Richfield, Carey, Camas County, Rockland and Jackpot, Nev.

The two coaching staffs will combine, with Johnson serving as head coach.

Murtaugh’s football program has been on life support off-and-on for several years. Due to low numbers, it almost lost its program in 2007. Then in 2012, the Red Devils began the season with 12 players. Injuries whittled the team down to seven, and Murtaugh was forced to forfeit its final four games.

“I think (kids from both schools) are excited because the last thing they wanted to do was have to forfeit games. They’re good friends with each other, they’re just down the road from each other and grew up together. Now they feel like they legitimately have a chance to make it through the season,” Johnson said.

The combined programs will join about 25 kids — enough to field a JV team, according to Berry and Johnson. Both coaches expect that fact will coax more freshman

Teams will combine under Murtaugh name
Combined enrollments will put team in 1A-I classification

Team will play Hansen’s 2013 schedule in Snake River Conference

Murtaugh’s schedule will be erased, creating open dates for at least 7 opponents players to come out. Previously, due to low numbers, freshmen were often forced onto the varsity field before they were physically ready, which led to an unpleasant experience or even injuries.

Johnson said the Murtaugh school board discussed the option of playing 6-man football — a pilot program starting this year in Idaho — but travel distances and the fact only a few schools have committed to play 6-man made that option unappealing.

“They had that talk last spring ... but decided to stay 8-man,” Johnson said. “For right now, I think it’s the best option for both us and Hansen. To join forces, we’re pretty much guaranteeing we’re going to have enough kids, they’re going to get a complete season, they’re going to get to have a program and have the Friday night atmosphere, and also the younger kids will compete where they belong.”

Berry said the new team will practice together for the first time today.

Union Tells NFL Players HGH Testing Close

The NFL Players Association “tentatively agreed” to let the league take 40 blood samples for HGH tests each week during the season, with a positive result drawing a four-game suspension, according to a memo the union sent players.

A copy of the NFLPA’s email, written in a question-and-answer format, was obtained Tuesday by The Associated Press.

The memo says “a computer program will randomly select” five players apiece from eight teams each week to take the blood tests.

First, though, every player participating in NFL training camps this year will provide a blood sample and information about “height, weight, age, and race/ethnicity” for a “population study” to determine what level of HGH will result in penalties, the union wrote.

The NFLPA’s letter says that if more than 5 percent of all training camp samples are above that threshold, players who fail will have “reasonable cause” testing during the next two seasons — meaning they’ll be subject to additional testing. A player testing positive again during the 2013-14 or 2014-15 seasons will get an eight-game suspension. A player without another positive result in that time will be removed from the extra testing program.

Tuesday’s email to players indicates the union has signed off on various aspects of the HGH program and says owners and players “will likely finalize soon” the in-season weekly testing. But the memo does not make clear what exactly the NFL has agreed to at this point or give specifics about what stands in the way of a final accord.

No date has been set for the start of testing, because there are still issues that need to be negotiated between the NFL and union, including whether the commissioner or a neutral arbitrator will handle certain types of appeals of discipline.

League spokesman Brian McCarthy declined to comment on any specifics in the NFLPA memo, writing in an email to the AP: “We do not have yet a comprehensive agreement for HGH testing.”

Ganassi Drops Montoya

Juan Pablo Montoya, one of the most decorated drivers in the world with an Indianapolis 500 victory and wins in Formula One, NASCAR and the Rolex 24 Hours of Daytona, will not have a chance to find success in NASCAR with longtime team owner Chip Ganassi.

The team owner informed Montoya he will not bring

IF AUGUST 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Over the next 6-8 eight weeks, your business sense is at an all-time high. Join a club or attend business meetings where your friendly demeanor will help you make friends and influence others. A vacation or romantic holiday could be your cup of tea. Between November and the end of January, you may need to “grin and bear it.” Honor existing obligations, but don't undertake new ones or add to your financial burden in that time period. The answers to your prayers may appear in March, when you have an opportunity to make some improvements. If you want to change jobs, make a career move, or find a soul mate, the summer looks promising.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): In order to show someone you're sincere about what you say, it's wise to take action and prove it. Place emphasis on teamwork and cooperation instead of competition.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Put business concerns on the back burner. Focus on romance, having a good time and being congenial. Your expert opinion on financial matters is less expert than usual today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your assessment of a situation may be right on the mark, but the problem will be getting others to see things your way. You may not be able to implement much needed changes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Heart-to-heart talks of offer an opportunity to make amends or accept apologies. Outdoor activities, sports, or exercise could lead to amorous thoughts or a chance for a romantic interlude.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Where there's a will there's a way. Get projects off the ground while energy and ambition are at hand. You'll find the stamina to complete all the work and support from people in your circle.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Compliments or flattery can reverberate and create a pleasing background noise. Be more interested in teamwork than competition on the playing field of love.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Where money, job, or business is concerned, remain steadfast and refuse to take a gamble. It may seem there are long periods when everyone seems to oppose your wishes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Work on getting a tan, but don't forget sunscreen. Even when things are going well, it's wise to take sensible precautions. The most important person is the one who defends your interests.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You might have an urge to pick up the tab at lunch or take the time to pick up a treat for loved ones on the way home. You know that money is best used to bring joy and happiness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): There's a case of feast or famine in your pantry. You know expectations can shift quickly, so stock up for any eventuality. You may arrive at a pleasant compromise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): It might be better to wait until you can afford the very best than to settle for something less than perfect. Your judgment and timing could be off center regarding love or money.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Those in authority want to see solid results and you have the creative ideas to mix the concrete. Whistle while you work; spread good cheer and foster a spirit of cooperation.

DEAR ABBY: My 22-year-old daughter and her two young children live with me. She doesn't work, which is fine. I don't mind supporting her because I'd rather have the kids see their mom.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

I spent most of my life as a single mom, working long hours and not seeing my kids. My work has finally paid off, and I'm at a point where, while not rich, I can support my daughter and grandbabies.

The problem is the baby daddy. He has a history of drug abuse, theft and jail time. He works only part-time jobs, which he loses monthly. He gives my daughter nothing and treats her as if she owes him.

I don't want to support him, but he has moved in and won't leave my house. I have told him to go, that he's welcome to visit the kids, but he ignores me. It's like talking to a wall. He won't even acknowledge that I told him to leave. He acts like he's king of the castle when it's my home! I can't take it anymore. I pay all the bills.

I told my daughter, and she ignores me as well. My oldest son has offered to talk to them for me. I don't want to lose my grandbabies. They are my purpose in life. Please help.

— FURIOUS IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR FURIOUS: Part of your problem may be the degree to which you enable your daughter. You won't be around forever. She needs to learn to be independent so she can support herself and those children. Clearly, Baby Daddy isn't man enough to be of any assistance.

If he has lived with you for a while, you may need a lawyer to get him out. According to Los Angeles attorney Lee Dresie: "You can get rid of the freeloader by giving him a 30-day 'notice to leave' in writing. It should say, 'You have 30 days to leave my home. If you don't, I will bring an action to evict you.' If he still refuses to go, consult an attorney who specializes in eviction law."

This is Abby again: Be sure you have a witness present when the notice is given so Baby Daddy can't deny receiving it. Your son could be that witness, and yes, he should be asked to lead the discussion on how to resolve this situation.

It is also troubling that the daughter for whom you provide food and shelter is ignoring you. You're treated this way because you don't assert yourself. Please do it before Baby Daddy impregnates her again and you have four people to support.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 27 and have an issue that has bothered me for most of my life. I have overly hot/sweaty hands and feet. When I was dating women, they wouldn't want to hold my hand, which bothered me a lot. Also, my friends sometimes make fun of me for it.

I am entering a profession that will require lots of handshaking with potential clients. This will be an issue for me because I don't want to make a bad impression. Do you have any suggestions?

— SWEATY IN NORTH DAKOTA

DEAR SWEATY: Yes! There is help for your problem, and the way to get it is to talk with a dermatologist. There is a product that can curb the excessive sweating (hyperhidrosis), but a doctor must prescribe it for you. Botox injections could also help, but they should be administered by a physician. There is also a machine used to treat this condition. The dermatologist can help you decide which solution would be the best for you.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

“What reinforcement we may gain from hope,
If not, what resolution from despair.”

— John Milton

West’s opening lead against three no-trump was very much open to discussion. While some would lead a low club, others would insist on a heart, while others, including me, would recommend the spade nine. This would be especially clear when the opponents are limited, but even here, leading from a sequence is as likely to be right as anything else, and somewhat less likely to cost a trick.

Say you lead the spade nine; dummy’s king wins, partner playing the three. Declarer next passes the diamond queen successfully, then repeats the diamond finesse. Now he leads a heart to his queen. Have you decided whether you will win or duck? And are you going to press on with spades or shift?

Given partner’s discouraging spade spot, if you ARE going to shift to clubs — which seems right — then the right play is surely the jack. If partner has the A-10, any club works, while if partner has the A-9, you need to pin the 10 in declarer’s hand, and a low club shift won’t work.

When the board came up in the Olympiad last year in Lille, Eduardo Scanavino of Argentina played three no-trump on a spade lead to the jack, queen, and ace. Scanavino now deceptively led a low heart from hand. Schermer did extremely well to see through his ruse and hop up with the heart king to fire the club jack through for down one.

ANSWER: Normally, the range for a simple raise is six to nine HCP. With 10 HCP you would consider making a limit raise. But with such a balanced hand and so few controls, not to mention weak trumps, the simple raise to two hearts is more than enough.

AND BE SEEN!

Today's Highlight:
On August 14, 1945, President Harry S. Truman announced that Japan had surrendered unconditional-ly, ending World War II.
On this date:
In 1848, the Oregon Territory was created.
In 1908, a race riot erupted in Springfield, Ill., as a white mob began setting black-owned homes and businesses on fire; at least two blacks and five whites were killed in the violence.

TODAY IN HISTORY

In 1935, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the Social Security Act into law.
In 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill issued the Atlantic Charter, a statement of principles that renounced aggression.

In 1947, Pakistan became independent of British rule.
In 1951, newspaper publisher William Randolph Hearst, 88, died in Beverly Hills, Calif.

In 1962, robbers held up a U.S. mail truck in Plymouth, Mass., making off with more than $1.5 million; the loot was never recovered.

In 1963, playwright Clifford Odets, 57, died in Los Angeles.

In 1969, British troops went to Northern Ireland to intervene in sectarian violence between Protestants and Roman Catholics.

In 1973, U.S. bombing of Cambodia came to a halt.

In 1993, Pope John Paul II denounced abortion and euthanasia as well as sexual abuse by American priests in a speech at McNichols Sports Arena in Denver.

In 1997, an unrepentant Timothy McVeigh was formally sentenced to death for the Oklahoma City bombing.

Ten years ago: A huge blackout hit the northeastern United States and part of Canada; 50 million people lost power. The chief justice of the Alabama Supreme Court, Roy Moore, said he would not remove a Ten Commandments monument from the state judicial building, defying a federal court order to remove the granite monument. Rebels lifted their siege of Liberia's capital.

Five years ago: President George W. Bush signed consumer-safety legislation that banned lead from children's toys, imposing the toughest standard in the world.

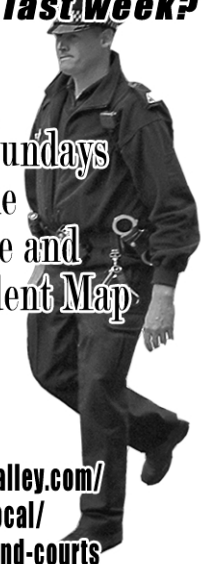

One year ago: Vice President Joe Biden sparked a campaign commotion, telling an audience in southern Virginia that included hundreds of black voters that Republican Mitt Romney wanted to put them "back in chains" by deregulating Wall Street. (Biden later mocked Republican criticism over the remark while conceding he'd meant to use different words.) Ron Palillo, the actor best known as the nerdy high school student Arnold Horshack on the 1970s sitcom "Welcome Back, Kotter," died in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., at age 63.
