CANYON RIM MANSLAUGHTER TRIAL: DAY THREE

Girlfriend, Lish Recount Three-Minute Fatal Fight

Defendant Cayde Lish, left, talks with his attorney Keith Roark, during his voluntary manslaughter trial Thursday at the James R. Munn Criminal Facility in Twin Falls.

Cayde Lish testifies as sole witness for the defense. Closing remarks, verdict expected today.

TWIN FALLS • As her boyfriend, Jeremiah Paiz, and Cayde Lish argued, Kayla Webb called a cab. Her phone logged the call at 12:52 a.m.

Three minutes later, at 12:55 a.m., as Paiz lay bleeding on the ground, she dialed 911.

On the recording of the call, played in court Thursday, Webb frantically talks with the dispatcher.

“I need an ambulance,” she sobbed. “Someone stabbed my boyfriend.”

She told the dispatcher she was calling from Canyon Crest. She explained that her boyfriend was breathing but his eyes were closed.

Dispatchers continued to ask for details about the man who stabbed Paiz, and as their questions continued Webb became hysterical.

“He’s white with brown hair,” she said. “I don’t even know what he was wearing. Please come. He’s bleeding so much.”

As police arrived, they pulled her away from Paiz, away from the blood.

She never saw him alive again, she testified.

After her testimony, prosecutors rested their case.

Lish Testifies

Lish testified Thursday as the sole witness for the defense. Together, Webb and Lish’s testimony filled in the details of what happened the night that would end with Paiz’s death.

The plan for the evening had been for the couple to meet a friend at O’Dunken’s Draught House downtown, Webb said. Instead, they went to Canyon Crest Dining and Event Center. Paiz, Webb and their friends talked, danced and had a few drinks.

At about 12:45 a.m., Webb was smoking

MANUAL DETAILS METHODS FOR WOLF HUNT SABOTAGE

Officials say such activities are illegal, consider threats ‘benign.’

BY BRIAN SMITH
bsmith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A new online document calls wolf hunters “despicable and sinister” and illustrates in detail how to illegally sabotage their efforts to trap and hunt the animal once listed as endangered across the nation, but now managed locally by some states.

Wildlife officials and hunters, however, contend they are not concerned with the threats contained in the 12-page manual penned by the “Redneck Wolf Lovin’ Brigade” and published by environmental group Earth First!

The manual details how to render hunters helpless, scare away wolves with air horns and smoke bombs during hunts and to dismantle traps. It also instructs saboteurs on how to eschew law enforcement and hide their activities.

“These goons are armed and have the law and government on their side,” the manual’s authors write about wolf hunters. “We don’t want to find you’ve been shot by a hunter or sent to Guantanamo. Let’s all stay wild and free.”

However, the passion wolf hunters have for protecting elk and deer herds, and for preserving their lifestyle is greater than any anti-wolf hunting movement, said Scott Rockholm, founder of the Sandpoint-based “Save Western Wildlife,” a pro-hunting organization. “When I hear a group like Earth First! or any of these radical organizations make these kind of threats ... it enrages me,” said Rockholm, a wolf hunter who frequents the Pioneer and Sawtooth mountains north of Blaine County. “Personally, I don’t believe any of them would have the guts to stand before any Idaho hunter.”

Idaho was home to 683 wolves and at least 117 packs last year, reports the state Department of Fish and Game.

In 2012, 330 wolves were killed by Idaho hunters. That number is up from 200 in 2011 and 46 in 2010. Wolf hunting season begins Aug. 30 for the state’s Southern Mountain region, said Greg Wooten, Fish and Game enforcement assistant chief.

Wooten said it is a misdemeanor offense to interfere with a state-sanctioned hunt or to intimidate or threaten a hunter. Such actions are punishable with up to six months in jail and a fine not to exceed $1,500, he said.

The manual has been distributed to all Fish and Game officers, Wooten said. However, Wooten is not worried about actions against state officers as such threats are “not uncommon.”

“It’s pretty benign,” he said. “It didn’t raise our eyebrows much.”

Todd Grimm, state wildlife services director for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said his field employees were also given a copy of the manual. USDA wildlife services officers investigate cases where wolves kill livestock — a growing problem in South-central Idaho. Wolves killed 90 cattle and 251 sheep last year.

“I think it is something you keep in the back of your mind,” Grimm said of the manual’s threats. “But, I don’t think it is something you expect to encounter on a daily basis.”

Wooten said he has not heard of any documented wolf hunt disruptions since Idaho wildlife officials began managing re-introduced wolves in 2009.

“Of course we have 110 officers statewide, so it’s likely, or possible, that one of our officers actually has,” he said.

Enforcement of the state’s hunter harassment laws is complaint-driven. Law enforcement is helpless to prevent or punish publication of documents like the sabotage manual, he said. “It is the

Beaver Creek Fire Almost Halfway Contained, Shelter Closes

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Fire crews have tightened their grip on the 110,000-acre fire in the Wood River Valley as other large fires in the West have begun threatening homes and evacuations.

Firefighters have contained almost half of the Beaver Creek Fire, full containment is expected by Saturday, Aug. 31.

Fire behavior is now moderate compared to the extreme behavior seen last week when it erupted Aug. 8, and the nighttime fire activity that plagued firefighting efforts has decreased significantly. Even the air quality in Blaine County had dropped from “extremely unhealthy” to “unhealthy” for the first time in more than a week, according to the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality.

The Blaine County Sheriff’s office has lifted many of the mandatory evacuations that were enacted last week and the American Red Cross closed its shelter in Hailey Thursday afternoon because it was no longer needed to offer sanctuary to evacuees.

The containment advance also has allowed fire supervisors to release resources to respond to other fires like the Little Queens Fire burning near Atlanta.

The fire grew to more than 10,000 acres as of Thursday with fire activity remaining extremely active for most of the day.

The Elmore County Sheriff’s office enacted a mandatory evacuation order for the town, but some have chosen to stay to help defend the town’s historic buildings and primary residences until more crews arrive.

Nearly 100 more fire personnel arrived Thursday, which now totals 247, to suppress the flames. Structure protection engines and Hotshot crews have placed pumps and hose was snaked around homes and buildings in Atlanta. Zero percent of the fire is contained and the cause remains under investigation.

More than 450-square-miles are currently on fire throughout the state and other blazes continue to burn throughout the West.

The threat of lightning has officials concerned about new fires.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Members of the Idaho City Hotshots start a back burn to combat the 111,000 acre Elk Fire Complex, that has burned more than 50 structures in the past week, on August 14, near Pine, Idaho.

ONLINE: Watching the Beaver Creek Fire Burn above Hailey

An excerpt from Dan Warner’s Wednesday post on his “News & Nuances” blog, accompanied by two videos:

“... As I entered town I saw that the flames weren’t only on top of the ridge over Hailey, but they were spilling down it, creeping bit by bit downhill.

“People stood on street corners in front of closed shops, some taking photos and others just standing there, their faces blank and eyes locked on the ridge. One person wore a surgical mask as she walked her dog in a meaningless pattern back and forth across a patch of grass, not really going anywhere, watching the blaze.

“In the early evening I was standing near Albertsons on Highway 75 watching flames swirl around trees on the ridge in brilliant flashes of orange that were hidden moments later by the smothering haze drifting lower and lower to obscure the top of the ridge.

“I asked a man nearby if I could record his reaction to the flames looming over the town. He looked over at me and blinked as if he was surprised I was standing next to him. ...

“The close proximity of the Beaver Creek Fire to homes, property and businesses stunned me, and the slow, creeping pace of the flames crawling down the hill in little tendrils of smoldering fuel only enhanced the suspenseful buzz in the air.

“The flames on the ridge, which roared dozens of feet upward and could be seen flickering from miles away, were mesmerizing and terrible ...”

Idaho Falls Man Captains Steamboat on Snake River

IDAHO FALLS • Eighty-six-year-old Gilbert Murdoch isn't normally a boat man — unless the boat is steam-powered.

"I wouldn't give you 10 cents for any gas-powered boat in the world," he said. "But a steamboat is different."

Murdoch is the owner of the SL Silent Venture, a 20-foot-long replica of an 1800s steamboat that he bought in March from a mechanic in Virginia. Murdoch and his family have taken the 1,500-pound, five-seat antique around eastern Idaho this summer, including the Ririe Reservoir and several spots along the Snake River.

"Everyone just marvels at it," Murdoch said. "It's something they don't see every day.

It really attracts attention."

Murdoch spent about $12,000 to buy the boat, transport it to Idaho and make some minor renovations.

Last week, the boat's smokestack received a bright-orange paint job at Outlaw Customs & Auto Repair in Idaho Falls. Sam Robison, owner of the auto shop, said he's never worked on anything quite like it.

"I definitely wasn't expecting it," Robison said. "Since it's an antique, we had to be really careful. It's got some character — it's definitely an eye-catcher."

Murdoch doesn't know much about the Silent Venture's history but said its Fiberglas hull was manufactured on the East Coast about 80 years ago. Its previous owner fitted its engine for steam propulsion. So, the boat runs entirely on wood and water.

"It's just a one-of-a-kind experience," said Daniel Murdoch, Gilbert's son. "When people see it, they want to try it."

Murdoch said the boat is not meant to go fast. Moving with the current, the Silent Venture travels about 8 mph. Against the current, it chugs along at only 1.5 miles per hour. A trip across the Ririe Reservoir takes a good two hours.

But Murdoch doesn't mind.

"There are other things besides speed," he said.

Then he pulled the steam whistle, releasing a piercing blow.

"People come down just to see it," he said. "There is just nothing quite like it. They really enjoy it."

A DIFFERENT KIND OF TREATMENT COULD HELP YOU FIND OSTEOARTHRITIS KNEE PAIN RELIEF.

A natural substance that lubricates your joint to relieve osteoarthritis knee pain

For a doctor near you, visit SynviscOne.com/doctor

Patient Information

Be sure to read the following important information carefully. This information does not take the place of your doctor's advice. If you do not understand this information or want to know more, ask your doctor.

Glossary of Terms

Hyaluronan (pronounced hy-al-u-ROE-nan): is a natural substance that is present in very high amounts in joints. It acts like a lubricant and a shock absorber in the joint and is needed for the joint to work properly. Non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs: also known as "NSAIDs"; medication used to treat pain or swelling. There are many examples of NSAIDs, including (but not limited to) aspirin and ibuprofen. Some of these are over-the-counter drugs, and some can be obtained only by prescription. Osteoarthritis (pronounced OS-te-o-arth-RI-tis): (OA) is a type of arthritis that involves the wearing down of cartilage (the protective covering on the ends of your bones) and loss of cushioning fluid in the joint.

What is the Synvisc-One® product?

Synvisc-One is a gel-like mixture that comes in a syringe containing 6 mL (1½ teaspoon) and is injected into your knee. It is made up of hylan A fluid, hylan B gel, and salt water. Hylan A and hylan B are made from a substance called hyaluronan (pronounced hy-al-u-ROE-nan), also known as sodium hyaluronate that comes from chicken combs. Hyaluronan is a natural substance found in the body and is present in very high amounts in joints. The body's own hyaluronan acts like a lubricant and a shock absorber in the joint and is needed for the joint to work properly.

How is the Synvisc-One® product used? (Indications)

The FDA-approved indication for Synvisc-One is: Synvisc-One is indicated for the treatment of pain in osteoarthritis (OA) of the knee in patients who have failed to respond adequately to conservative nonpharmacologic therapy and simple analgesics, e.g., acetaminophen.

How is the Synvisc-One® product given?

Your doctor will inject Synvisc-One into your knee.

Are there any reasons why I should not receive a Synvisc-One® injection? (Contraindications)

Your doctor will determine if there is any reason why you are not an appropriate candidate for Synvisc-One. You should be aware that Synvisc-One:

- Should not be used in patients who have had any prior allergic reactions to Synvisc, Synvisc-One or any hyaluronan-based products. Signs of an allergic reaction may include swelling of your face, tongue, or throat; difficulty breathing or swallowing; shortness of breath; wheezing; chest pain; a tightness in your throat; sleepiness; rash; itching; hives; flushing; and/or fever.
- Should not be used in patients with a knee joint infection, skin disease or infection around the area where the injection will be given, or circulatory problems in the legs.

What should my doctor warn me about?

The following are important treatment considerations for you to discuss with your doctor and understand in order to help avoid unsatisfactory results and complications:

- Synvisc-One is only for injection into the knee, performed by a doctor or other qualified health care professional. Synvisc-One has not been tested to show pain relief in joints other than the knee.
- Synvisc-One has not been tested to show better pain relief when combined with other injected medicines.
- Tell your doctor if you are allergic to products from birds such as feathers, eggs, and poultry.
- Tell your doctor if you have significant swelling or blood clots in the leg.
- Synvisc-One has not been tested in pregnant women, or women who are nursing. You should tell your doctor if you think you are pregnant, or if you are nursing a child.
- Synvisc-One has not been tested in children (≤21 years of age).

What are the risks of getting a Synvisc-One® injection?

The side effects (also called reactions) sometimes seen after any injection into the knee, including Synvisc-One, include: pain, swelling, heat, redness, and/or fluid buildup around the knee. These reactions are generally mild and do not last long. Reactions are generally treated by resting and applying ice to the injected knee. Sometimes it is necessary to give pain relievers by mouth such as acetaminophen or NSAIDs, or to give injections of steroids, or to remove fluid from the knee joint. Patients rarely undergo arthroscopy (a surgical inspection of the knee joint) or other medical procedures related to these reactions. Other side effects seen with Synvisc or Synvisc-One are: rashes, hives, itching, muscle pain/cramps, flushing and/or swelling of your face, fast heartbeat, nausea (or feeling sick to your stomach), dizziness, fever, chills, headache, difficulty breathing, swelling in your arms and/or legs, prickly feeling of your skin, and in rare cases a low number of platelets in the blood (platelets are a type of blood cell that are needed to help your blood clot when you are cut or injured). Rare cases of knee joint infection have been reported. If any of the above side effects or symptoms appear after you are given Synvisc-One, or if you have any other problems, you should call your doctor.

What are the benefits of getting a Synvisc-One® injection?

As shown in a medical study of 253 patients with osteoarthritis (OA) of the knee, where approximately half received either a single injection of Synvisc-One or an injection of the same volume of salt water (a "Saline Control" injection), the major benefits of Synvisc-One are pain relief and improvement in other symptoms related to OA of the knee.

What do I need to do after I get a Synvisc-One® injection?

It is recommended you avoid strenuous activities (for example, high-impact sports such as tennis or jogging) or prolonged weight-bearing activities for approximately 48 hours following the injection. You should consult your doctor regarding the appropriate time to resume such activities.

What other treatments are available for OA?

If you have OA, there are other things you can do besides getting Synvisc-One. These include:

Non-drug treatments

- Avoiding activities that cause knee pain
- Exercise or physical therapy
- Weight loss
- Removal of excess fluid from your knee

Drug therapy

- Pain relievers such as acetaminophen and narcotics
- Drugs that reduce inflammation (signs of inflammation are swelling, pain or redness), such as aspirin and other non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs, for example ibuprofen and naproxen)
- Steroids that are injected directly into your knee

When should I call my doctor? (Troubleshooting)

If any of the side effects or symptoms described above appear after you are given Synvisc-One, or if you have any other problems, you should call your doctor.

What did the clinical studies show?

A study was conducted in 6 countries outside the United States with 21 physicians. The patients in the study had mild to moderate knee OA, moderate to severe pain, and did not have sufficient relief of their pain and symptoms with medications taken by mouth. A total of 253 patients in the study were assigned by chance to receive either a single injection of Synvisc-One (n=123 patients), or an injection of the same volume of salt water (a "Saline Control" injection) (n=130 patients). Neither the patients nor the doctors evaluating them knew which treatment they received. Any fluid that was present in the patient's knee was removed before the injection. The patients were seen by their doctor at standard times over 6 months. Information was collected about how much pain they were experiencing doing various types of activities, how much they were limited in their daily activities by their OA, and on their overall condition. Their doctor also provided an overall rating of their OA.

The main measure of the study was how much pain the subjects had during five common types of activities over the 6 months duration of the study. Daily activity limitations and overall evaluations were also compared between the group of patients receiving Synvisc-One injection and the group receiving salt water injection. The study showed that patients receiving Synvisc-One had significantly less pain over 6 months, and felt significantly better than the patients who received the salt water injections. The difference in pain score reduction from baseline to 6 months between the Synvisc-One and salt water control injection was 0.15 out of a 5 point scale for the measurement of OA pain in the knee.

What adverse events were observed in the clinical study?

The following are the most common adverse events that occurred during the clinical trial of Synvisc-One:

- Pain in the knee or at the injection site
- Stiffness, swelling or warmth in or around the knee
- Changes in the way that you walk (e.g., limping)

Severe adverse events were not observed in the Synvisc-One trial. Joint infections did not occur in the injected knee in the Synvisc-One clinical trial. The most commonly occurring adverse events outside of the injected knee were headache, back pain, sore throat and the flu. One patient had a single episode of feeling faint.

Cassia School District to Ask for Levy

Taxpayers will vote on a 10-year, $13.85M renewal of 60-year-old Plant facility levy.

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Fewer than a dozen people turned out Wednesday at the Cassia County School District's community meeting at Burley High School to discuss the renewal of the district's 60-year-old plant facility levy.

The district will ask taxpayers Aug. 27 to approve a 10-year $13.85 million levy to take care of major maintenance and repairs at the district's 59 buildings. The money also will buy new buses for the district's 62-bus fleet and technology.

The levy is $7.99 million, up from the $5.85 million, 10-year-levy that runs out this year. The proposed levy requires 55 percent voter approval to pass.

Voters in the joint school district can go to their general election precincts Tuesday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. to vote on issue.

The meeting was one in a series of community meetings the district is hosting to provide information about the levy and answer questions from the public.

Questions asked during the meeting included whether the water problem at the Raft River schools has been resolved and why the Mount Harrison Heritage Foundation is not responsible for repairs at the King Fine Arts Center.

Wrong-way Crash on I- 84 Leaves One in Hospital

TIMES-NEWS

JEROME • A Weiser woman was in serious at a Boise hospital Thursday evening after a car traveling the wrong way on the interstate smashed into her vehicle.

Julie Zeigler, 52, was traveling westbound on I-84 at about 1:20 a.m. when Robert Little's Volkswagen Jetta smashed into her Ford Taurus, State Police said.

Little, 53, of Salt Lake City, was traveling eastbound in the westbound lane, police said.

Zeigler was taken by air ambulance to St. Luke's Magic Valley Regional. She was then transported to St. Alphonsus hospital in Boise.

A St. Alphonsus spokeswoman said Thursday evening that Zeigler was listed in serious condition. Her passenger, Kylie Montes, 25, of New Plymouth, was uninjured. Little was taken to St. Luke's hospital in Twin Falls, treated and released.

Everyone involved was wearing a seatbelt.

The crash remains under investigation, State Police said.

People Sickened While Rafting, Working on River

Idaho health officials looking at illness affecting people, fire personnel on Salmon River.

BOISE (AP) • Idaho health officials are trying to determine what is causing the gastrointestinal illness that has affected commercial and private rafters on the Middle Fork of the Salmon River, as well as fire personnel.

Mike Taylor, an epidemiologist with the Eastern Idaho Public Health District, tells the Idaho Statesman that river guides have fallen ill and a Forest Service weed control crew had to be flown out after getting sick.

Taylor suspects it may be norovirus, a highly-contagious viral illness that causes nausea, vomiting and diarrhea and lasts for about two days.

About 50 people have reported getting ill while rafting or working on the river in the past month.

However, three people who were tested came back with three different illnesses — one had norovirus, one had E. coli and one had giardia.

So far, Taylor said, the only thing the victims have in common is being on the Middle Fork; they came from different rafting parties, and floated at different times.

"Even river guides have reported getting ill. A Forest Service weed control crew had to be flown out" after becoming ill, Taylor said.

The Middle Fork is isolated in rugged country, but it's highly popular among rafters, with about 9,500 floating the same 104-mile stretch last summer. According to the U.S. Forest Service, the average commercial raft group has about 23 people, while the average private group has 11 people. In all, about 800 people a week share the same campsites, water stations and toilets along the site, giving germs a prime opportunity to spread.

Amy Baumer with the Salmon-Challis National Forest said the federal agency cleans Middle Fork facilities daily and tests drinking water every month. So far, she said, all water tests have been clean.

Taylor said the district is working with the Forest Service to inform rafters about the outbreak and teach them how to reduce the risk of getting sick on a trip.

He says rafters should wash their hands frequently and avoid drinking any untreated water. Filtering river or creek water won't remove the virus; it must also be treated with a chemical disinfectant.

If norovirus is responsible for the outbreak, it could remain a problem all summer, he said.

"Norovirus is fairly stable in water and sunshine. Over the wintertime, it will be killed and we should start fresh next year," Taylor said.

Storm Cuts Power to Thousands

Severe weather system blows through southern Idaho.

BOISE (AP) • A severe storm system crossing Idaho left thousands of customers without power.

Thunderstorms moved across the state Thursday evening, and officials say there were reports of trees and power lines that were knocked down. Idaho Power estimated a little after 7:30 p.m. that there were about 4,500 customers without power in the Boise area, 2,500 in the dark around Horseshoe Bend and another 1,600 without service in areas around Twin Falls. Thousands of others who lost power earlier in the night had their power restored.

OPINION

Ignoring Evacuation Order is Hubris

Roughly 400 households under evacuation remained occupied last week. That's 400 potential tragedies. Four-hundred close calls. Four-hundred cases where firefighters and police could have been placed in unnecessary danger because of hubris.

Humanity might just be a fundamentally selfish species. But in any civilized society, it's necessary to realize when it's best to stop thinking about yourself and get out of the way.

The Beaver Creek Fire took off last week, and Blaine County Sheriff Gene Ramsey ordered 2,200 households from their homes.

But police agencies can't drag people from their property. Those who choose to stay despite evacuation orders are given a form that states they can't leave their property, asks for next of kin — an especially powerful reminder of the potential danger — and claims that no special attention will be directed to their unwisely occupied dwelling.

Rough estimates indicate one-in-five Ketchum and Hailey residents opted not to leave as the inferno bore down on them, according to the Blaine County Sheriff's Office.

While police and fire officials have no legal responsibility to pay special attention to the occupied homes, that doesn't mean they don't.

Each populated home is documented. Emergency responders know who's there. And few populations are as concerned with public safety as firefighters and law enforcement.

That's their job. That's their oath. They might say no special treatment is given, but that's not necessarily the reality on the ground.

By standing fast, homeowners are placing emergency responders in a moral quandary.

Times-News reporters and photographers were told, and in some cases witnessed, what happens when the blaze encroached on an occupied home.

Firefighters, pulled off the fire line, responded to one such residence and began a backburn, a measure used to get rid of flammable vegetation in a controlled way.

The homeowner panicked and demanded to be taken out. Chaos ensued. Resources that could have gone elsewhere were wasted.

Roughly 400 households under evacuation remained occupied last week. That's 400 potential tragedies. Four-hundred close calls. Four-hundred cases where firefighters and police could have been placed in unnecessary danger because of hubris.

People often admire the stubborn will of those who want to stay and defend their property.

The people of Atlanta, for instance, begging for help from the already strained fire crews, are standing fast and and trying to protect their tiny community from the growing Little Queens Fire. But theirs is a completely different circumstance than Ketchum and Hailey, where helicopters and hotshots poured in.

There's nothing to admire about the Beaver Creek stalwarts. They weren't protecting their homes.

They were selfishly endangering the very people there to help them. They were further complicating an already complicated situation.

Sometimes it's just best to get out of the way.

"When a soldier who shared information with the press and public is punished far more harshly than other who tortured prisoners and killed civilians, something is seriously wrong with our justice system."

Ben Wizner, head of the ACLU's speech and technology project in a statement after Army Pfc. Bradley Manning was sentenced to 35 years in prison.

READER COMMENT

Jerome County Treasurer to Retire Sept. 30, Endorses Deputy Kober

Being Treasurer for the citizens of Jerome County has been one of the most enjoyable and fulfilling experiences of my life.

Over this past 27 years, I have had the opportunity of meeting and getting to know so many members of my community. It has given me great pleasure to assist and, in some cases, teach many taxpayers about the tax process and why this system is necessary for a functioning community. I sincerely appreciate the friendships and support I have received from Jerome County.

The changes and advancements that have evolved in the Treasurer's office over these past 27 years are overwhelming. When I began my journey as Treasurer in 1986, Jerome County was divided into approximately 6,500 parcels and the tax collection charge was $4.5 million. This last collection (for the 2012 tax year) the parcel count was a little more than 14,500 parcels and the tax levy was at $21.5 million.

With technology the way it is today, it's hard to believe that there was only one computer in my office, which held a very primitive resource, and all of the tax payments and activity brought to the treasurer's office had to be processed and receipted by hand — oh my goodness.

During my years, I have applied many advances in my office and have witnessed many changes in the county.

I would like to share a few:

- I have set together an investment program using county surplus funds that includes utilizing collateralized government papers as well as specialty investment programs offered by locally qualified banks and state approved securities. I have developed these investments into a ladder investment portfolio so I could maximize the interest income. As of today, I am proud to say I have earned the citizens of Jerome County more than $3.7 million in interest.

- I have accommodated taxpayers with their tax payments by providing a payment drop box for ease of payment and designed a coupon booklet that assists those that use them to remember at bill paying time to send in a payment.

- I have developed a cross-training method within my office where each one of us can do the other's job, leaving no job undone when one member is out of the office. My goal was to make the county treasurer's office a friendlier and more efficient place to do business, as well as making it a place my employees enjoy working.

The changes I have seen throughout the years are:

- The movement from manual work to the technology of the computer world;
- The change, through elections and retirement, of elected officials — I've worked with four assessors (Wurst, Heinrich, Tolman and Haberman), two clerks (Watts (retired) and Emerson), two coroners (Ostler (retired) and Brant), five sheriffs (Hall, Gold, Silver, Weaver and McFall) and many commissioners.

I can honestly say that the working county officials and employees Jerome County has right now are a great group who are all working very hard for their constituents. I have enjoyed and am honored to have had the opportunity to work with them;

- I've personally witnessed the county's growth and evolution from farms and residences to farms, dairies and industrial, as well as city and subdivision residences and

- The new infrastructure of the schools in our community; the South Lincoln Industrial Park bringing businesses such as Jerome Cheese, WOW, Darigold Inc., and Idaho Milk Products, to name a few; as well as the process for our new jail. We truly are a changing and growing county to be contended with.

In my leaving, I would like to endorse my chief deputy, Tevian Kober, to fulfill my remaining term of one year. Tevian has worked closely with me for almost two years. She has great background in banking and is learning and absorbing the duties of treasurer like a sponge.

With Tevian's experience and knowledge and my deputy Karla's assistance, I feel the county taxpayers and employees will have a seamless continuity of my term to its end.

"I truly appreciate and am humbled by the support I have received from the citizens of Jerome County. You have provided me with many memories that I will treasure. This has been a wonderful job, I have enjoyed most every minute of it, but now it's time for a new adventure in my life."

Most importantly, I couldn't have given the hours and energy needed to do this job if I hadn't had the love, understanding and support of my husband, Wayne, and my daughters, Tami and Tina. I thank them for their patience when I was too busy to be with them.

Sincerely and proudly,
Mary Childers

Lish

a cigarette in front of Canyon Crest when Paiz came out to meet her. She noticed Lish by the door, talking to a woman. Paiz and Webb talked for a few seconds before Lish approached them.

“Oh, it’s you again,” Lish testified he said to Paiz.

Lish said he recognized Paiz from a confrontation a few weeks before at The Pocket, a bar and pool hall in Twin Falls. That night weeks ago, Paiz had insinuated that Lish and his friend were gay, and used a derogatory term, Lish said.

Both Lish and Webb testified that Paiz told him he had the wrong person.

Lish said that eventually Paiz seemed to remember that the two interacted before.

Webb said the argument escalated and Lish began to yell, “I’m Cayde Lish. I’m Cayde Lish,” and announcing how much he weighed.

Soon, a taxi cab pulled up. Webb said Paiz told Lish to take the cab, or they’d get in it.

Lish testified Paiz said Lish should get in the cab or Paiz would beat him up.

As Lish got into the car, Webb and Lish both said, Lish used a racial slur against Paiz.

“Cayde opened the cab door, he said (to Paiz) ‘Next time, I see you you’re going to be a corpse,’” Webb said.

Webb said Paiz went up to the door, grabbed it and put his leg in to stop Lish. Webb said she called Lish a name and said, “That was (expletive) up.” Then, Paiz told her to go call a cab so she went to sit on a bench outside Canyon Crest and made the 12:52 a.m. call.

The driver told Lish to get out of his cab. He didn’t want fighting in his car.

Lish testified that he watched the cab drive away. When he turned back toward Paiz, a fist slammed into his face.

“It temporarily knocked me silly,” Lish said.

When she looked up from calling the cab, Webb said, she saw the physical fight had started.

Lish and Paiz were scooting around on the ground, Paiz throwing short, uppercut punches while Lish was punching Paiz with his right arm, she said.

Lish said he was put in a headlock, and if became difficult to breathe. He thought two others had joined the brawl.

“At first, I tried to cover my face from being hit,” he said.

“I said, ‘You guys need to get off of me or I’m going to stab you,’” Lish said. “I was saying, ‘Stop. I don’t want to fight. Stop.’”

Lish said he was facing the ground and he couldn’t see anything, even who he was fighting.

“My vision was black and fists hitting my face,” he said.

Pulling a Knife

Lish’s knife, a four-inch folding knife with a spring-assist, was in his right pocket.

“I always carry a pocket knife wherever I go,” he said, “because they’re handy to have.”

Lish said he gave another warning, then started stabbing.

“I stabbed ... I tried to stab whoever was on me,” he said.

The punching stopped, but the arm around his neck didn’t loosen at first, he said. As soon as the arm around his neck was released, Lish said he stopped stabbing.

Webb said Lish and Paiz stood up, facing each other. Lish’s lip was bleeding. He swung at Paiz, missed, and fell on top of him.

Webb said Paiz rolled Lish off of him and the two stood up again.

“JD (Paiz) said to Lish, ‘Stay away from me; don’t touch me,’” Webb said.

As Paiz moved back, Lish walked toward him. Lish looked at Paiz and told him he was bleeding.

“That’s not my blood,” Webb said she heard Paiz say.

At that point, Webb said, she didn’t think either had been seriously injured. As she went into her purse to get a cigarette, she heard Paiz speak to Lish.

“You got me good,” he said, clenching his chest.

He knelt against a car and slowly dropped to the ground, Webb said.

Lish Runs Away

Lish ran away. Webb said she ran after him across the parking lot of Canyon Crest and grabbed his sweatshirt. He turned around, then pushed her down to the ground, she said.

She ran back to Paiz and called 911.

During cross examination, Lish’s defense attorney Keith Roark asked Webb about Lish’s injuries.

She said she still didn’t think they looked serious.

He also discussed her preliminary hearing testimony and her interviews with detectives.

Webb had previously testified that Paiz appeared to be in control of the fight, he said.

“There was never a time where you felt that Cayde was getting the better of JD (Paiz)?” Roark asked.

“Right,” she said. Prosecutor George Gunn cross examined Lish.

“You could have just turned around back into Canyon Crest, correct?” he asked.

Lish said that he thought multiple people had just been beating him.

“Why would I run back toward people who were hitting me?” he answered.

Gunn asked why Lish didn’t go to the well-lit Chevron station on Pole Line Road. Did he see the police cars with sirens blaring barreling toward Canyon Crest? Did he see an ambulance?

Lish said he didn’t see any of it.

Gunn asked why he didn’t go to the nearby hospital, his parents’ house, or even his own.

Lish said he wanted to talk to someone he trusted.

Gunn also asked to explain how long he thought there was more than one person fighting him.

“While you were stabbing the fourth or fifth time, nobody else that you thought was attacking you was trying to stop you,” he said.

Gunn asked Lish about the direction of the knife wounds. They appear to be directed toward one person, he said. Lish agreed.

“And as it turns out, he was the lone assailant?” Gunn asked.

“That’s what it seems to be,” Lish said.

good old U.S. of A.” and those rights are protected by the First Amendment to the Constitution, he said.

“You can go on the web and find out how to make a bomb,” he said. “Yeah, we know it is out there, but we would still have to establish probable cause that someone is actually performing those acts and have solid evidence linking those acts to the suspect.”

Rockholm said he is not intimidated by the manual. He thinks it is an empty publicity stunt and doubts most pro-wolf activists have the resources or motivation to interrupt such a labor-intensive hunt.

However, Rockholm said he has seen some traps disrupted. He said he feels like there would not be a similar tolerance for hunters who advocated for illegal activities.

“I don’t understand how these people can publish this,” he said. “Our law enforcement and state agencies that are responsible for protecting our rights are failing us. Whoever issued this, from the top down, needs to go to jail.”

Times-News calls and emails to Earth First! were not returned as of press time.

Much of the sabotage manual deals with how to disrupt trapping and it even instructs activists how to free a trapped wolf.

“It can be done, but it is not easy,” said Toby Boudreau, a Fish and Game biologist and wolf trapper. “First off, it’s illegal. But, I think if you are dealing with any animal in a trap, you can get hurt if you are not careful.”

A trapped wolf is a wild animal and its reaction depends on many factors including age and the situation, he said. Fish and Game regularly traps wolves to collar them for research purposes. They are sedated before they are released back to the wild alive and healthy, he said.

“Wild animals have two instincts,” Boudreau said. “One is to flee, and one is to fight. Sometimes you break into that zone where they are going to fight.”

There are more than 2,000 trappers in Idaho and anyone that traps a wolf in the state must go through an eight-hour class that focuses on the ethics of trapping the highest-profile big game animal in America.

“It’s a craft,” Boudreau said. “These people put every waking hour into figuring out how to catch this animal, how to keep that fur in the best shape possible and be the most humane about the whole thing.”

The manual warns readers that they can be killed in the process of releasing a trapped wolf, but claims its authors have done it successfully.

“I just think it is crazy groups put out things like that,” Boudreau said.

Filer Looks for Rapid Improvement in 2013

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

FILER • After a half-practice, half falls sports introduction and informational meeting for Filer fans and parents Thursday night — a rare easy day for the team as it prepares for its zero week opener with Burley — a few burly Wildcat coaches and players wrestled on the field, showing off strength they'd earned over the summer.

But head coach Bill Reynolds took it as a sign of something else, something he's been waiting for: spirit.

Maybe its preseason optimism, but Reynolds is seeing glimpses of moxie, the kind his program needs to break its slump.

"This group here, you can see the fight," Reynolds said. "They are ornery this year. I think we could have beat Buhl last year if we had more fight."

The Filer football program is trying to emerge from a positive feedback loop of negativity, a cycle of losing it's been mired in for a long time. To wit, it won one game last season, which was one more than the year before.

"Filer is in a rut," Reynolds said. "I don't know how long it has been since we had a winning season."

Reynolds picked his team to finish second in the conference to a "program out of this world right now," Gooding.

There's good reason for optimism.

The lines will be big and at a few positions exceptionally athletic.

Manuel Lepe is 250 pounds with the feet of a soccer player. Adam Shawver is even bigger after lifting weights six days a week, having recovered from shoulder surgery. He's pursuing his dream of playing Division I football.

Jacob Satterwhite and Caleb Rundle solidify a strong linebacker corps.

Kaleb Whitlock and Kristopher Wiedmeir could line up under center, behind one another. They could also throw to each other. Braydon Twitchell gives the Wildcats a third good quarterback.

Reynolds plans to use all of them.

"We are going to do things a little more different this year," Reynolds said. "It'll be more exciting for everyone."

The Wildcats will still run the veer. Every good veer needs a fullback.

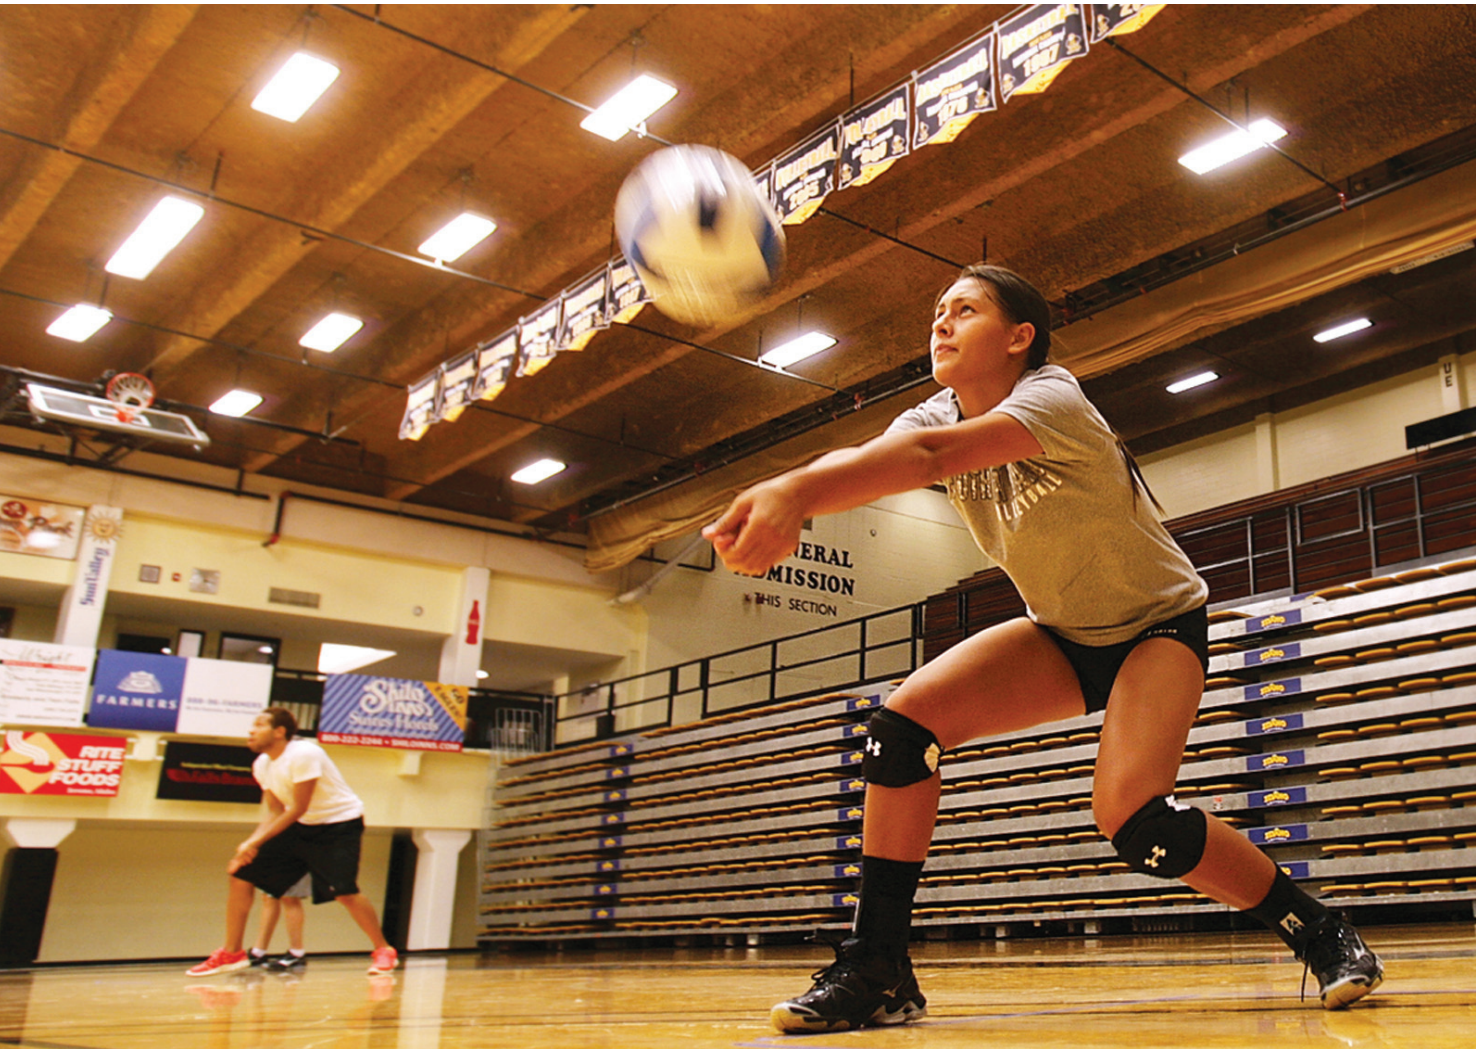

Enter Alex Lehman. The 200-pound wrestler, sub five second runner of the 40 yard dash returns in 2013 after breaking his ankle last year.

"He's a tank," Reynolds said. "All muscle. He has a great work ethic and loves to hit"

What impresses Reynolds most? Lehman's commitment to the team last year after his injury, showing up to every game and practice.

To Reynolds, it was another glimpse of new kind of team in 2013 — a winning one.

for us to start from."

Part of that stems from a figurative degree in Coachspeak. Another part of that is based in the fact that 13 players are brand new to the CSI program, and the only one with any playing experience in Twin Falls, libero Braiden Johnston, is just back from injury.

This early in the calendar, teams are just anxious to play someone other than themselves. CSI will play Central Wyoming at 3 p.m. today and return four hours later to play Casper (Wyo.). It'll be the first action that counts against opposition — the Golden Eagles scrimmaged both themselves and the College of Idaho earlier this week.

"We're needing to start playing and having that pressure. I thought they did a pretty good job in the scrimmages we had; we just need to be a little bit more consistent,"

Richfield Returns Plenty of Experience

TIMES-NEWS

RICHFIELD • Things haven't gone terribly well the last few seasons for the Richfield football team.

With the Sawtooth Conference realignment putting the four best teams of the last few seasons in the same division along with the Tigers, they'd appear to be also-rans in 2013.

The Tigers are the ones who return the most experienced football team heading into the new season.

But don't sleep on Richfield just yet. It might not have the name power of a Carey, Castleford, Dietrich or Lighthouse Christian, but the Tigers are the ones who return the most experienced football team heading into the new season.

Richfield has just 15 players, making depth a legitimate concern, but every starter the Tigers had last season is back for another go at the Sawtooth Conference, this time from the West Division.

It starts with the skill position players, namely quarterback Jeff Henson and running backs Zak Wood and Eric Beezley. Beezley was out injured for part of last season, but having a returning unit completely intact goes a long way toward preserving continuity.

Richfield's schedule is generous out of the gate before becoming more difficult in the middle with games against Lighthouse Christian and Dietrich, the two preseason favorites for the division and each a team tipped to go deep into the playoffs.

But with two games against Castleford and Carey coming down at the end of the season, and only one win absolutely necessary to have a shot at the expanded playoffs, there's plenty of cause for optimism where there hasn't been a lot to shout about since that magical semifinal run of 2008.

Arias Now the Man at Idaho State University

BY MARK LIPTAK
For the Times-News

POCATELLO • For the last two years Justin Arias has waited his turn to take over quarterback duties at Idaho State. The junior appeared in eight games back in 2011, backing up Kevin Yost, then redshirted last season.

Now he is "the man" to lead the Bengals high powered air attack. But how is he developing after almost two years without game experience?

"I'm a lot more comfortable now then I was two years ago," Arias said. "The game has slowed down. Before, it was like I'd break the huddle and start looking at the defense; what alignment is their line, where is the strong side linebacker, where are the safeties? I didn't even have time to think about the play I was supposed to be running. Now things are at a better pace for me."

Yost was a record setting quarterback in head coach Mike Kramer's offense that, despite the overall team record, put up some impressive numbers. Yost often threw 60 times a game, and that gave Arias plenty of time to go to school on his predecessor.

"I learned about how sometimes you have to throw the ball away," Arias said. "You have to get positive yardage as often as you can and there are times you just can't take a sack. You can't put yourself in a position where it's 3rd down and 18 yards very often!"

Phillies Rally in Ninth to Beat Rockies

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHILADELPHIA • Domonic Brown hit a game-ending RBI single to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 5-4 victory over the Colorado Rockies on Thursday night.

The Phillies scored twice in the eighth and ninth for their second come-from-behind win in as many days. They have won four of five to improve to 4-3 under interim manager Ryne Sandberg.

Colorado carried a 4-3 lead into the ninth, but Rafael Betancourt (2-5) blew a save opportunity for the second straight game and the third time in 19 chances. Cesar Jimenez (1-0) pitched a scoreless ninth for the win.

DODGERS 6, MARLINS 0 MIAMI • Clayton Kershaw allowed five hits in eight innings to lower his ERA to a major league-best 1.72, and the Los Angeles Dodgers won their third game in a row.

Kershaw (13-7) struck out six and walked three. The Marlins hit into three double plays and went 0 for 7 with runners in scoring position.

Former All-Star closer Brian Wilson made his first major-league appearance since undergoing Tommy John surgery and pitched the ninth, allowed one hit and struck out two. It was his first game since April 2012.

REDS 2, DIAMONDBACKS 1 CINCINNATI • Shin-Soo Choo scored in the eighth inning on Arizona's fourth wild pitch of the game, and Cincinnati raced to an improbable win.

Choo scored both Cincinnati runs, helping the Reds to their third win in the four-game series. Cincinnati (73-55) improved to a season-high 18 games over .500 and increased its lead over Arizona to seven games in the race for the National Philadelphia's Michael Young, right, is cheered by Chase Utley after making the game-winning run on a hit by Domonic Brown in the ninth inning on Thursday to defeat the Colorado Rockies 5-4.

League's second wild-card playoff spot.

NATIONALS 5, CUBS 4, 13 INNINGS CHICAGO • Denard Span scored the go-ahead run on pinch-hitter Chad Tracy's grounder in the 13th inning, and Washington beat the Chicago Cubs after Nationals starter Stephen Strasburg blew a three-run lead in the ninth.

Span doubled leading off the 13th against Michael Bowden (1-3). He moved up on a sacrifice bunt by Steve Lombardozzi and came around on Tracy's roller to the first-base side of the mound.

That made a winner of Craig Stammen (7-5), who worked two innings.

AMERICAN LEAGUE YANKEES 5, BLUE JAYS 3 NEW YORK • Andy Pettitte pitched six effective innings, Curtis Granderson homered, and the New York Yankees beat Toronto after a 3½-hour rain delay for their 10th straight victory against the Blue Jays.

Eduardo Nunez hit a two-run single, and the surging Yankees took advantage of a missed call to win their fifth consecutive game and 10th in 12 overall. New York improved to 12-1 against Toronto this season with its second four-game sweep of the Blue Jays, and moved within 3½ games of the second AL wild-card spot.

TWINS 7, TIGERS 6 DETROIT • Chris Herrmann's second RBI double of the game broke an eighth-inning tie and helped Minnesota edge Detroit.

With two out, Herrmann lined a ball into the right-center field gap. Center fielder Austin Jackson got a bad break on the ball, and just missed while attempting a shoestring catch. Doug Bernier scored from second to give the Twins the lead.

Bush, Moore Shine in Lions Win over Patriots

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT • Reggie Bush had five catches for 103 yards to help the Detroit Lions rout the New England Patriots 40-9 on Thursday night.

The Patriots' first-team offense, which was precise and efficient in the first two games of the exhibition season, was anything but in preseason game No. 3. Tight end Zach Sudfeld and running backs Brandon Bolden and Shane Vereen lost fumbles and Tom Brady threw an interception in four of New England's first five possessions. The other possession was a three-and-out that ended with Zoltan Mesko's punt.

Brady played four series in the first two preseason games combined, completing 18 of his 20 passes for 172 yards and two touchdowns in two victories. But in a half of work Thursday at Ford Field, he was 16 of 24 for 185 yards and the second-quarter interception by Detroit cornerback Chris Houston.

Detroit starter Matthew Stafford also played the entire first half, and helped lead Detroit's first team to a better showing than it had in its first two exhibition efforts. The starters played seven series in those games — a win over the Jets and a loss in Cleveland — and managed only a pair of field goals. Stafford finished 12 of 25 for 166 yards.

Boise State alum Kellen Moore performed well in the second half, completing 9 of 12 passes for 150 yards and two touchdowns.

PANTHERS 34, RAVENS 27 BALTIMORE • Ted Ginn Jr. returned a punt 74 yards for a touchdown and the Carolina Panthers' defense scored three times in a preseason victory over the mistake-prone Baltimore Ravens.

Drayton Florence took an interception 71 yards into the end zone, Thomas Davis scored on a 2-yard fumble return and linebacker Luke Kuechly picked off another of Joe Flacco's passes late in the second quarter to set up a 54-yard field goal by Graham Gano for a 24-7 lead.

Carolina (2-1) had only 67 yards in offense before halftime, yet reeled off 24 straight points after Baltimore (2-1) scored on its first possession.

Late in the third quarter, D.J. Moore intercepted a pass by Tyrod Taylor and ran 31 yards for a touchdown to make it 34-17.

Flacco, the Super Bowl MVP, played into the third quarter and went 18 for 24 for 169 yards and a touchdown. In three preseason games, he has two TD passes and three interceptions.

Kramer — who has had standout quarterbacks at Eastern Washington, Montana State and Idaho State — has already gone on record as saying that Arias is the smartest quarterback he's ever had.

"To hear that Coach said that about me makes me feel awesome. To know that he has that kind of confidence in me just brings up my level of confidence," he said.

Naturally, there are issues when a new quarterback takes over, a key one being timing with receivers. Idaho State has a strong, deep group of wide-outs, led by Cam Richmond and Luke Austin.

But they played with Yost for two years; they were used to him and he knew what they were going to do. But Arias is making sure that's not a season-long issue.

"I'd have to say at least 100 throws to them starting in practice, and until the games actually start you just don't really know what guys will do in certain situations," Arias said when asked about how long it takes to nail down timing with receivers. "But I'm sure that won't be a problem. We've got guys who are good athletes and fast catching the football."

As good as the Bengal passing attack has been over the past few years, the running game has been the polar opposite. Idaho State hasn't averaged 100 rushing yards per game in a season since 2007, and it hasn't had a back gain 100 yards on the ground in a game against a NCAA Division I opponent since 2009.

That will be key to making the pass-happy offense more effective.

"I think you'll see a difference this year," said Arias. "We've got bigger guys on the offensive line, for one thing. Running the ball probably isn't going to be our primary option, but there are times you do have to run, and we are working on some things this year to make that happen."

Playing the first two games at home against smaller division opponents should help the transition period for Arias and the Bengals, before they play at Washington, then start the Big Sky season.

Cartisser said. "There are so many pieces that can work, so we have to figure out who's going to step up at this particular time and be consistently good."

CSI will play Northwest College (Wyo.) on Saturday morning before playing a tournament placement game in the afternoon — six teams will play three preliminary matches each, with seeding being determined for 1 vs. 2, 3 vs. 4 and 5 vs. 6 matches Saturday afternoon.

There might be more pressure in following weeks, with more heralded teams popping up on CSI's schedule, but Cartisser isn't convinced that's the case.

"I think one of the hardest things about entire the season is not having a ton of information about the other teams, especially at the junior college level," Cartisser said. "We'll take care of our side of the net but we'll have to figure out the other side pretty quickly."

“We’re Not Stupid. We Just Play that Way”

Whatever the New York Jets spent sending players to media training earlier this week would have been better spent on tackling dummies.

Put uniforms on a few and plant 'em strategically around the postgame locker room while the real-life tackling dummies hide in the showers and voila! — no matter the question, or how many times it gets asked, the answer is always the same. Better still, most reporters won't notice the difference, and after a few weeks, simply give up.

Reporter: "Another tough loss. What's the mood in the locker room?"

Dummy:

Reporter: "This is three in a row for you guys. Isn't it time for something to change?"

Dummy:

Reporter: "That's what you said last week."

Dummy:

Instead, the Jets followed the strategy every other NFL team employs according to league mandate in one form or another; namely, paying consultants or having their own PR staff teach players how to move their lips without really saying anything. For those who had trouble grasping even that simple concept, the Jets handed out flash cards with a dozen or so "bridge" phrases to get players out of tight spots.

Included are: "That's not my area of expertise, but ... Let me answer you by saying that ... Another thing to remember is ..." and so on.

All they do is buy the player some time. None get them off the hook because they still have to say something, which is generally where the trouble begins.

What the Jets really need are answers that cut off most lines of questioning after a loss, something they could manage as many as a dozen times this season.

The defense likely will be respectable, since coach Rex Ryan is so good on that side of the ball that he could probably cobble together a scheme using the aforementioned dummies. But scoring points is another matter altogether. The Jets still haven't settled on a starting quarterback, the receiving corps is thin and New York's running game will hinge on whether oft-injured Chris Ivory is good and/or durable enough to be a featured back.

So without further ado, here's a handful of tried-and-true alternatives:

- "We're not stupid. We just play that way sometimes."

The quote originated with former Bengals coach Sam Wyche. But imagine it coming out of the mouth of Ryan or even QB Mark Sanchez, especially if the Jets manage to recreate the hilarious

"butt-fumble" that became the signature moment of last season's futility.

- "We've got to find a way to win. I'm willing to start cheating."

This one was uttered by former Pats tight end Marv Cook long before New England became a perennial contender. It has the whiff of desperation and heads off any questions about a player's commitment going forward. But it comes with one important caveat. No player with a previous suspension for violating the league's drug policy — this means you, Calvin Pace, and you, Antonio Holmes — should touch it.

- "Defensively, I think it's important for us to tackle."

Credit this one to Broncos linebacker Karl Mecklenburg just before Super Bowl XXIV. As noted above, the Jets won't need to make excuses on defense often. But we included it for the benefit of cornerback Antonio Cromartie, whose tackling style has been occasionally compared to that of famous matadors. Just in case.

- "This job is better than I could get if I used my college degree, which, at this point, I can't remember what it was in."

This all-purpose quote came from former Raiders tackle Mike Golic and suggests things have hit rock bottom. Plus, even if the questioner doesn't take pity on the interviewee, it doesn't easily lend itself to follow-ups.

- "We need more cohesion, rather than Stalinistic purges where you operate under a level of fear. We all need to join hands and sing, 'Kumbaya.'"

This one was hatched by Brian Williams of pro basketball's Denver Nuggets, but it's the go-to quote for teams falling apart at the end of the season. For starters, reporters will have to look up "Stalinistic purges," and then decide who in the Jets' front office is behind this latest sweeping-out. If nothing else, that should severely curtail their time for further questions.

And if those don't fit, well, there's always this gem from none other than Buddy Ryan, the former coach, mentor and father of the Jets' Rex Ryan, following an embarrassing loss.

- "That's the first time I've ever been beaten by a team that looked like it was trying to die."

Heyward Has Surgery on Jaw

ATLANTA (AP) • Braves outfielder Jason Heyward had surgery Thursday on his broken right jaw after he was struck by a pitch.

The team has not said how long he will be out, but he could miss the rest of the regular season. Atlanta has a commanding lead in the NL East and hopes Heyward will recover in time for the playoffs.

Dr. Glenn Maron operated in Atlanta, one day after Heyward was injured. He inserted plates in both places where the jaw was fractured.

Before his injury, Heyward had become one of the Braves' hottest hitters. He was batting .253 with 13 homers and 37 RBIs.

The loss of Heyward is the latest in a staggering string of injuries for the Braves this season, even while building a 15-game lead entering Thursday night's game at St. Louis.

Already, the Braves have lost six players to season-ending operations, including starting pitcher Tim Hudson and key relievers Eric O'Flaherty and Jonny Venters.

Utah co-offensive coordinator Dennis Erickson, center, watches a play Aug. 5 during Utah's football practice in Salt Lake City. Turns out Erickson found life without football pretty boring after he took off for a season after he was let go by Arizona State.

Dennis Erickson Happy to Be Back in the Game

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Turns out Dennis Erickson found life without football pretty boring.

The veteran college coach took a season off after he was let go by Arizona State in 2011, thinking maybe at that point he'd retire. But after sitting out and watching fall Saturdays pass him by, he decided he'd had enough.

Erickson was hired in January as a co-offensive coordinator at Utah under head coach Kyle Whittingham.

"It was a chance to get back into the Pac-12, and it was close to where I live in Idaho," Erickson said. "More than anything, it was an opportunity to get back into coaching. I was out for that year and I missed it a lot. So I just wanted to get back in. And it's been a lot of fun for me."

Erickson is charged with helping to install an uptempo offense, giving the Utes a new look heading into their third year in the Pac-12. He's working with fellow offensive coordinator Brian Johnson, the former Utah quarterback who played from 2004-08 and went a school-record 26-7 as a starter.

"I really believe in playing fast," Erickson said. "We've been able to get better at it, but we've got a lot of things to learn. It doesn't happen overnight."

Erickson, 66, led Miami to national championships in 1989 and 1991. Utah is his fourth Pac-12 school; he's also been head coach at Washington State (1987-88), Oregon State (1999-02) and Arizona State (2007-11). He's made additional stops at Idaho (twice) and Wyoming.

He also was head coach of

the Seattle Seahawks (1995-98) and San Francisco 49ers (2003-04).

The Utes can use his help. Last season, they averaged 25.9 points, far below Oregon's average of 49.6. They ranked 105th in the nation in total offense, averaging 324.42 yards.

Utah finished 5-7 and missed out on going to a bowl game for the first time since 2002.

Erickson and Johnson are depending on sophomore quarterback Travis Wilson, who had to start the final seven games of last season for the Utes because of injuries.

Wilson threw for a respectable 1,311 yards and seven touchdowns, but he also threw six interceptions and struggled at times in close games to get the offense into scoring position.

Wilson said he's embraced a leadership role as well as the new no-huddle offense.

"It's going to be a lot faster,"

Wilson said. "We're going to really try to achieve a lot more plays throughout the whole game. That's the big emphasis."

Erickson said Wilson is progressing nicely.

"We weren't very good on offense last year and we were very inexperienced on the offensive line," Erickson said. "So he got introduced to it in maybe not the best situation. But he learned from it. And I really like where he's coming from and how he's improved. He's going to be the guy that makes this offense go."

The Utes open the season next Thursday night at home against rival Utah State. Utah is expected to finish fifth in the Pac-12 South, where the team finished last season.

The Utes were in the Mountain West Conference before joining the Pac-12 for the 2011 season. The team is still transitioning to the faster, bigger league, but the players think they'll surprise some of the naysayers with the new offense.

"We'll be able to surprise a lot of people given where we were as an offense last year and not being very productive. Hopefully, we can come out and have that underdog mentality as an offense and just surprise people. Catch them on their toes," junior tight end Jake Murphy said. "Not many people are expecting much out of our offense right now. We like it like that. It should be interesting."

Erickson and Johnson will share play-calling duties, with Johnson on the field and Erickson upstairs in the box.

After more than 40 years in coaching, Erickson said it's been decades since he's watched from above.

"It will be a little different, but it should be fun," he said. "I can have a hot dog if I want one. And I don't have to stand out in the weather if it's pouring. So I like that."

Murray Could Face Djokovic in U.S. Open Semis

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Defending champion Andy Murray could face top-seeded Novak Djokovic only in the semifinals at the U.S. Open, while Rafael Nadal and Roger Federer — who have never played each other at Flushing Meadows — might meet in the quarterfinals.

Murray earned his first Grand Slam championship by beating Djokovic in the 2012 U.S. Open final, then added a second by beating the No. 1-ranked Serb in the Wimbledon title match last month. But there can't be a rematch in New York in the final, thanks to Thursday's draw.

"Coming to the U.S. Open last year, I'd never won a Grand Slam. I didn't know if I was ever going to win one," Murray said at the draw ceremony. "A lot of people would say ... like, 'He's good enough to win a Grand Slam. He's going to win one.' But the more finals you lose in, the more you start to doubt yourself and think, 'Is it ever going to happen?' Getting that weight off my shoulders last year was huge."

Play at the year's last Grand Slam tournament begins Monday.

In addition to No. 2 Nadal against No. 7 Federer, a 17-time major champion who has his lowest seeding at the U.S. Open since he was 13th in 2002, the other possible men's quarterfinals are 2011 champion Djokovic vs. 2009 champion Juan Martin del Potro, No. 3 Murray vs. No. 5 Tomas Berdych, and No. 4 David Ferrer vs. No. 8 Richard Gasquet.

Federer, who owns five U.S. Open titles, and Nadal also were set up for a possible quarterfinal at Wimbledon this year, but that never materialized: Nadal lost in the first round, and Federer in the second.

The potential women's quarterfinals at the U.S. Open are No. 1 Serena Williams against No. 8 Angelique Kerber, No. 2 Victoria Azarenka against No. 7 Petra Kvitova, No. 3 Agnieszka Radwanska against No. 5 Li Na, and No. 4 Sara Errani against No. 6 Caroline Wozniacki.

The woman who originally was seeded third in the tournament, 2006 champion Maria Sharapova, withdrew Wednesday because of a right shoulder injury.

Williams' 16 Grand Slam titles include four at the U.S. Open, including last year. Her first-round opponent will be 2010 French Open champion Francesca Schiavone. Williams could play 15th-seeded Sloane Stephens of the United States in the fourth round; Stephens won their Australian Open quarterfinal in January.

"I take every match really seriously. I don't look too far in the draw. I just look at the first one," Williams said. "For me, my competition comes with each match. Every match is going to be a very, very tough competition for me, and I just stay focused on one at a time."

Williams has won 77 of her past 81 matches, and was asked Thursday whether she is playing better than she ever has.

"I hope not," Williams answered. "I always like to hope I can do better, so we'll see."

Her older sister, 2000-01 U.S. Open champion Venus, is unseeded and was drawn to play No. 12 Kirsten Flipkens, a Wimbledon semifinalist last month, in the first round next week.

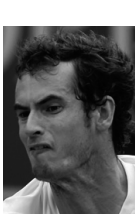

Djokovic and 2010 U.S. Open champion Nadal, who recently overtook Murray at No. 2 in the rankings, could meet only in the final. They've already met in five Grand Slam championship matches, including in New York in 2010 and 2011.

One intriguing earlier matchup for 12-time major title winner Nadal could come in the fourth round, when he might have to play 6-foot-10 John Isner, a big-serving American who is seeded 13th and pushed the Spaniard to five sets at the French Open two years ago.

Nadal was drawn to play another American, 21-year-old Ryan Harrison, in the first round.

Djokovic, who has reached at least the semifinals at the U.S. Open each of the past six years, could face 25th-seeded Grigor Dimitrov in the third round. Dimitrov surprisingly beat Djokovic on clay at the Madrid Masters in May, although Djokovic won their matchup less than a month later at the French Open.

In the second round, Djokovic might play Lukas Rosol, the man who upset Nadal at Wimbledon while ranked 100th in 2012, or Benjamin Becker, who defeated Andre Agassi at the 2006 U.S. Open in the American's last professional match.

Milwaukee's Ryan Braun Finally Admits Drug Use in 2011

ASSOCIATED PRESS

A month after acknowledging only that he made "mistakes," Ryan Braun admitted taking performance-enhancing drugs during his NL MVP season of 2011.

The suspended Milwaukee slugger said he took a cream and a lozenge containing banned substances while rehabilitating an injury.

"It was a huge mistake for which I am deeply ashamed and I compounded the situation by not admitting my mistakes immediately," Braun said in a statement released by the Brewers.

Braun tested positive for elevated testosterone in October 2011, but his 50-game suspension was overturned when an arbitrator ruled that the urine sample was mishandled.

While Braun took full responsibility for his actions and apologized to the collector of the urine sample, teammates and Commissioner Bud Selig among others, the statement still leaves several key questions unanswered.

Among them: Who gave Braun the PEDs and where did they come from? What was the exact substance in the products? Did he know the cream and lozenge were tainted at the time he took them?

Last month Braun accepted a 65-game suspension resulting from Major League Baseball's investigation of the now-closed Biogenesis of America anti-aging clinic, which was accused of providing banned substances to players.

"By coming forward when I did and waiving my right to appeal any sanctions that were going to be imposed, I knew I was making the correct decision and taking the first step in the right direction," he said. "It was important to me to begin my suspension immediately to minimize the burden on everyone I had so negatively affected — my teammates, the entire Brewers organization, the fans and all of MLB."

Braun was the first of 14 players disciplined this year as a result of the Biogenesis probe. Twelve accepted 50-game penalties, including a trio of All-Stars: Texas outfielder Nelson Cruz, Detroit shortstop Jhonny Peralta and San Diego shortstop Everth Cabrera.

Yankees third baseman Alex Rodriguez is appealing his 211-game penalty, assessed for violations of the drug program and labor contract.

In his initial meeting with MLB investigators to discuss Biogenesis, Braun declined to answer questions. But in the statement, he said he initiated a second session with MLB where he admitted his guilt and began discussing a penalty.

"After my interview with MLB in late June of this year, I came to the realization that it was time to come to grips with the truth," Braun said. "I was never presented with baseball's evidence against me, but I didn't need to be, because I knew what I had done."

Braun's urine tested positive for elevated testosterone from a sample collected on Saturday, Oct. 1, 2011, after Milwaukee's NL division series opener against Arizona. The drug collector, Dino Laurenzi Jr., stored the samples from Braun and two other players at home and dropped them off at a Federal Express office on Monday, rather than send them immediately, as specified in baseball's drug collection rules.

The players' association argued that the specimen was handled improperly, and arbitrator Shyam Das overturned the discipline on Feb. 23 last year.

During a news conference the following day on the field at Milwaukee's spring training stadium in Phoenix, Braun proclaimed he had been vindicated. A week later Braun's lawyer criticized Laurenzi when the collector defended himself.

"I have no one to blame but myself. I know that over the last year and a half I made some serious mistakes, both in the information I failed to share during my arbitration hearing and the comments I made to the press afterwards," Braun said. "I have disappointed the people closest to me — the ones who fought for me because they truly believed me all along. I kept the truth from everyone. For a long time, I was in denial and convinced myself that I had not done anything wrong."

OBITUARIES

Cecil Leon Rice

Sept. 29, 1924-Aug. 20, 2013

FILER • Cecil Leon Rice passed away peacefully at his home early Tuesday morning, Aug. 20, 2013, surrounded by his daughters and Lois, his sweetheart of 66 years.

Leon was born in Plevna, Mo., on Sept. 29, 1924, to James Cecil and Virgie Belle (Rhoades) Rice. He married Lois May Shuler in a civil ceremony on Oct. 23, 1947; they were sealed for time and all eternity on Oct. 23, 1970, in the Logan LDS Temple. They have five children, Wanda (Rodney) Payne, J.R. (Sue) Rice, Sue (Marv) Pebley, Joyce (Jeff) Devey and Vickie (Dennis) Henson; 18 grandchildren; 37 great-grandchildren; and one great-great-grandchild. Leon was preceded in death by his father, mother and brothers; his son, J.R.; and his son-in-law, Dennis.

Leon graduated as class president and valedictorian at the age of 17 and went to work on a river boat as a soda jerk. He spent many summers traveling to Idaho with his parents to work in the fields, haul timber and even helped build the Minidoka Internment Camp. Like many young men, he joined the Army Air Corps in 1942. After his regular tour of duty, he married his sweetheart and re-enlisted in the Air Force for another 20 years. He retired as a chief master sergeant in 1964. He then worked eight years with the Civil Service as a computer programmer. He moved to Idaho in 1972 and programmed computers for companies in the Magic Valley.

Being a Cub Scout leader was perhaps his most cherished position and, for the five years, he was ward finance clerk for the Filer 1st Ward and his records always balanced. He was called as executive secretary to Bishop Jerry Staley. Over time, they became close friends. Leon was a good provider for the needs of his family and was forever faithful to his wife. He was steady, dependable and trustworthy. His "word was as good as his bond."

The family would like to thank the staff at Bridgeview Estates, Visions Hospice and White Mortuary for their care throughout this difficult time.

The funeral for Leon will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 24, at the Filer 1st Ward, 841 W. Midway in Filer, Idaho, with Bishop Jerre Tews conducting. Burial will follow at the Filer Cemetery, with military honors by the Magic Valley Honor Guard and Idaho National Guard. A viewing for friends and family will take place from 9:30 to 10:45 a.m. Saturday morning at the LDS Church.

Services are under the direction of Trent Stimpson and staff at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park" in Twin Falls. Condolences may be left for the family by visiting whitemortuary.com.

Richard Edwin Hartman

Dec. 27, 1948-Aug. 19, 2013

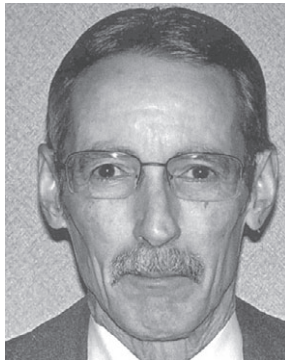

JACKPOT, Nev. • Richard Edwin Hartman, 65 years old, passed away Monday, Aug. 19, 2013.

Born June 29, 1948, in Oakland, Calif., Richard was adopted by his parents, Lawrence and Ester Hartman on Dec. 27, 1948. He was their only child. His family moved to Bellingham, Wash., in 1952 and resided there until 1958, where they lived on an acre lot with sheep and cows. Richard was involved with the Boy Scouts and, during this time, used one of his lambs as part of a parade where he played the part of an Indian who had just captured a lamb; his Indian name was "Eagle Feather." He had many adventures on the land with kittens, dogs and playing in the barn.

Richard and his family then left Bellingham for Bremerton, Wash., where his father worked in the naval shipyard and then to Portland, Ore., for a short time until they moved to Idaho Falls, Idaho, in 1959. Richard graduated from Idaho Falls High School and earned a degree in electrical engineering from Idaho State University. He had many hobbies including hunting, archery, stamp collecting, photography and bowling. It was his love of bowling and pool that helped pay his way through college. This might be where the term "hustler" came from.

Richard moved to Jackpot, Nev., in 1971, where he worked at Cactus Pete's as a slot cashier and table games dealer and then on to Barton's 93 where he worked until his death. He filled many roles at Barton's, starting as a table games dealer, supervisor and soon worked his way up to general manager. He made many lifelong friends through the years here, including La Rae Gilster Taylor, who was more like family than a friend.

Richard met Laura Smith in 1972 and they were married in 1977 and later went on to divorce. Richard became a stepfather to Jesse Hofeling. In 1978, they welcomed their son, Travis, into the world and Richard couldn't have been more overjoyed to be a father. Richard's greatest joy in life was being a father, and it showed in the countless memories he made with his boys. Travis was the light of Richard's life and the reason for his gray hair. Through the years, there were many trips to Disneyland, World Fair, Yellowstone and multiple Utah Jazz games. During Travis' teen years, Richard would take Travis and his friends to various concerts, and the boys still listen to this music today with fond memories of their time with Richard.

Some of Richard's hobbies turned into lifelong passions, including obtaining a pilot's license and certification in Ham radio. Richard was quite a character and can be remembered by one of his quotes, "Well, I'm feeling a little horse puckerish tonight." He also took pride in being part of the Shriner's and was more than happy to obtain tickets for his grandbabies to the Shriner's Circus over the years.

As much as Richard enjoyed being a father, his next greatest joy was that as a role as grandfather. He welcomed his first pride and joy, Danika Rose Hartman, on May 10, 2005, and Dyllen Eva Marie Hartman on Nov. 10, 2007. He was also an honorary grandpa to Hunter Pike and welcomed him as his own.

"Don't remember me with sadness, but instead fill your hearts and thoughts with love I leave you and memories we had."

A celebration of Richard's life will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday, Aug. 26, at Barton's Club 93 in Jackpot, Nev.

Arrangements and cremation are under the direction of Trent Stimpson and staff at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park" in Twin Falls. Condolences may be left for the family by visiting whitemortuary.com.

Former 'Today' News Anchor Lew Wood dies at Age 84

Television host, who had distinguished career, was in declining health for some time.

LOS ANGELES (AP) • Lew Wood, who marched with Martin Luther King Jr., covered John F. Kennedy's assassination and was a news anchor for NBC's "Today" show during a distinguished broadcast career that began with the dawn of television, has died at age 84.

Wood, who had been in declining health, died of kidney failure Wednesday at a hospice in Riverside County, his daughter Brigitte Wood told The Associated Press.

He was perhaps best known as "Today's" third news anchor, succeeding Frank Blair in 1975. Although Blair had held the job for 22 years, Wood left after just a year, going into public relations. He stayed in that field until retiring in 2006.

"He always joked that when he left the 'Today' show, it was due to illness and fatigue. They were sick and tired of him," his daughter said with a laugh Thursday.

With the show's producers deciding to take the program's news report in a different direction, Wood moved on to public relations, training corporate executives how to present themselves to the media and working for the American Legion and other organizations.

Before taking the "Today" show job, he had anchored the news for WNBC in New York and worked as a correspondent for CBS.

For the latter network he reported on the 1960s Civil Rights movement, accompanying King on one of his marches. He was also in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963, as part of the CBS team covering Kennedy's campaign swing through Texas.

Wood had covered a breakfast speech Kennedy made in nearby Fort Worth, and snapped a personal photo of the president greeting well-wishers before Kennedy left for the Dallas motorcade where he would be fatally shot. After his departure, Wood headed to a restaurant for lunch, stopping briefly to check in with fellow correspondent Dan Rather, who was covering the motorcade.

In a remembrance posted on the website reportersnotebook.net, he recalled Rather telling him, "Hold On Lew — don't go away," then quickly coming back on the line to say the president had been shot and he should go to the hospital.

"Which he did," said Rather, who spoke warmly of Wood on Thursday, remembering him as both a fine reporter and collegial colleague.

"He was a workhorse, very steady and reliable, excellent reporter and had good on-camera presence," Rather told the AP.

Three Best Bets in Magic Valley

Local magicians will boggle your mind this weekend with a variety of tricks and illusions during Kiwanis Club of Twin Falls' MagicFest Extravaganza.

Catch one of the two magic shows Saturday at the Twin Falls Center for the Arts. There's also a dinner auction tonight at 360 Main Event Center.

In past years, MagicFest featured big-name performers. But this year, all the entertainment will be provided by members of Magic Valley Magicians.

Olen Foreman, a member of the group, said they'll perform a "whole variety of magic," including on-stage illusions.

Proceeds from this weekend's events will go toward Kiwanis Club's local and international projects.

Twin Falls County Fair

Head out to the fairgrounds in Filer starting Wednesday to check out the entertainment, including free shows, a concert, 4-H/FFA shows and carnival rides.

This year's Twin Falls

County Fair includes a new carnival, which will bring 27 rides, at least 22 games and food concessions.

"It will fill up the midway, that's for sure," fair manager John Pitz told me last week.

Extreme thrill-seekers will be in for a treat. One ride will give participants the experience of being at 3.5Gs.

Also, be sure to check out other new attractions at the fair this year, including a Frisbee dog show and comedy game show.

Raising Money to Help Those in Need

It has been a long couple of weeks for firefighters, as well as many Wood River Valley residents affected by the Beaver Creek Fire.

Sun Valley on Ice puts on a show Saturday to benefit the Wildland Firefighter Foundation. There's free general admission bleacher seating with a donation to the foundation.

Also on Saturday, the Southern Idaho Parrot Head Club hosts their summer concert fundraiser in Buhl to benefit local disabled veterans.

For details on these events and many others, see the full calendar in this section.

TWIN FALLS • For the first time, local magicians will provide all of the entertainment during this year's MagicFest Extravaganza.

The weekend of magic – presented by the Kiwanis Club of Twin Falls – is today and Saturday.

In the past, the club brought in big-name magicians for MagicFest, said Olen Foreman, a member of Magic Valley Magicians.

There were several comments after past shows that the local magicians were as good as big-name performers from Las Vegas, he said.

"We're kind of excited to show our stuff," Foreman said.

Two Magic Spectacular shows will feature magicians from around the Magic Valley. Shows are 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday at the Twin Falls Center for the Arts.

Nearly five years ago, Lance Clow – a magician himself – had a vision of creating a magic festival as

What Else is Happening at the Fair?

Read a special wrap in Tuesday's edition to find out what else you can do at the Twin Falls County Fair.

When the Twin Falls County Fair starts next week and the fairgrounds in Filer will be bustling with activity. Whirling carnival rides, live entertainment, 4-H/FFA shows and the scent of fried food can make for sensory overload.

If you find yourself wandering around the fairgrounds wondering where to go first, here are some suggestions of entertainment events you won't want to miss.

1. Concerts

Country music artist Craig Morgan headlines this year's fair concert at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 1.

He has performed around the world and has 14 Top 10 hits, including "Redneck Yacht Club," "Almost Home," "That's What I Love About Sunday" and "Tough."

The concert also features special guest Gloriana. Their single "(Kissed You) Good Night" was recently certified platinum.

As of last week, an estimated 1,200 to 1,500 concert tickets have been sold, fair manager John Pitz said.

Concert tickets – which include fair admission – are $20 for reserved seats or $17 for general admission.

Tickets can be purchased at tfc-fair.com. If any tickets are left over, they'll be sold at the gate on the night of the concert.

2. Carnival

A new carnival – Mighty Thomas Carnival – is coming to the fairgrounds this year, bringing lots of rides and plenty of stomach-churning excitement.

It's the same carnival that comes to the Montana and Utah state fairs, Pitz said.

The carnival will include 27 rides, at least 22 games and food concessions.

"It will fill up the midway, that's for sure," Pitz said.

There will be a wide variety of rides for carnival-goers to choose from, said John Hanschen, president of Thomas Carnival, Inc.

A brand new ride called "Monster Trucks" is one of many geared toward children and features eye-catching lights, vehicles and sound effects.

The carnival will also include a big ferris wheel, which Hanschen said is popular.

While you're at the carnival, look for a swinging boat ride, merry-go-round and a family roller coaster. Another ride – "Super Shout" – takes riders up a tower 90 feet in the air, followed by a freefall.

It's not the only ride that will give thrill-seekers something to talk about. The carnival will also bring in an extreme ride that gives brave participants the experience of being at 3.5Gs.

The ride is 125 feet tall, Hanschen said. It seats eight people at a time and spins around in a circle.

Tickets for that ride are $10 and will be sold separately from the carnival wristband.

Rock Legend Hagar Presents Donation to Idaho Foodbank

JACKPOT, Nev. • Before his performance Sunday at Cactus Petes Resort Casino, rock legend Sammy Hagar presented a $2,500 donation to the Idaho Foodbank. The foodbank has three locations around the Gem State: Boise, Pocatello and Lewiston. Services are provided to 39 of Idaho's 44 counties and Hagar's donation will strictly support the Magic Valley, said Karen Vauk, president and CEO of Idaho Foodbank. "It was a surprise to us," she said about the donation. "We received a call that Sammy Hagar wanted to make a generous donation to support the residents of Magic Valley who are food insecure. We provide the food to residents in that area, so we are delighted." With every $1 donated, the foodbank is able to provide the equivalent of three meals. Hagar said in every town, he tries not to just play a concert and then leave. "I like to leave something behind besides just a great

Hagar said he has handed out food at foodbanks and likes how they work and how happy the people are. "They look at you like you're changing their lives and it's a great thing... and it is changing lives," he said. "It makes life more bearable. I like to keep the money in the community." Vauk said she wants to thank Hagar for the donation. "He has so many opportunities to see a lot of different communities," she said. "It's clear that he cares about the communities that he travels to. That's pretty special."

abled American Veterans group. McDonald said it's one of the club's favorite local causes.

She created the club in 2009. As a requirement of being a chartered chapter of Parrot Heads in Paradise, the social club is required to do at least two fundraisers or community service projects each year. "Our club way surpasses that," McDonald said. The motto of Parrot Head chapters is to "party with a purpose," she said, and give back to the community. The 50-member local club started its annual summer concert four years ago at Centennial Waterfront Park in Twin Falls. In past years, a tropical rock band from San Diego performed, but they were all booked this year. The concert is also being moved to a winery this weekend with the hope of increasing foot traffic, McDonald said.

Fair

With many options for riders, Hanschen encourages fair-goers to check out what's at the carnival and to look at signs with rider requirements for each one.

"Customers should look around and pick out ones they'll enjoy," he said.

The carnival opens at 3 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Aug. 28-30. It opens at noon on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, Aug. 31-Sept. 1.

Advance sale carnival tickets are $20 for a voucher, which can be redeemed for one all-day wristband or one 30-ticket sheet.

Tickets are available at local Oasis Stop 'N Go locations, Twin Falls County Fair office or online at www.tfcfair.com.

The presale ends at 11 a.m. Wednesday, Aug. 28.

3. Activities for Children

Let your children burn off some energy at the Young Guns Wild West Fun Park. Little ones can participate in 10 interactive, western-themed activities.

One of those activities is a "quick draw" contest, but it's not what you might expect when thinking about the Wild West.

There aren't any guns involved. Instead, a picture of a farm animal will be put on display.

"Whichever kid draws the animal the fastest wins the contest," Pitz said.

At another station, children will sit on a saddle and see if they can throw a rope around a dummy.

Once you're done at the fun park, stop by the petting farm at the fairgrounds for more child-friendly entertainment.

4. Frisbee Dog Show

Another new entertainment event at the fair this year is Rocket's K-9 Comets Frisbee Dog Stars Show, which includes a team of six dogs.

"Basically, they do all kinds of tricks with Frisbees and dogs," Pitz said.

There hasn't been a Frisbee dog show at the fair for eight or nine years.

They'll perform at 1 p.m., 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. daily. You can find them in the area between the 4-H building and free stage.

5. Monster Trucks

Come see some giant trucks during the All Star Monster Truck Tour at 7 p.m.

Wednesday, Aug. 28 at Shouse Arena.

Meet the drivers during a free event from 5:30-6:30 p.m. before the show starts.

Once the 60-to 90-minute show kicks off, it will feature four monster trucks that have never been seen before in the Twin Falls area, said Bryan Wagner, president of All Star Motorsport Productions.

It's the first time the monster truck tour has come to the Twin Falls County Fair.

The event also includes a competition that anyone can enter. Bring any kind of truck or car and race one at a time against the clock in a course with jumps and turns.

Registration for the "Tough Truck Challenge" is 4-6 p.m. at the back gate of the arena. For information about rules and payout, visit www.allstarmonster.com.

Tickets for the truck tour are $12 and include fair admission. They can be purchased at www.tfcfair.com.

6. Comedy and Magic

Comedy hypnotist Michael Swenson will make his first appearance at the fair.

He's putting on a game show called "BONK," a cross between "Jeopardy" and "The Three Stooges," Pitz said.

At the end of fair week, the overall winner will take home a 47" flat screen television.

Also during fair week, Jeff Martin — who's billed as the blond, curly-hair magician — comes from Southern California to entertain audiences.

Magic

from the role, but is still lending his assistance.

Kiwanis Club of Twin Falls wants to keep the event going for years to come.

Magicfest is a cooperative venture with Magic Valley Magicians, a club with seven members. Six of them are performing this weekend.

"We enjoy the cooperation with them," said Revis Turner, MagicFest event chairman and Kiwanis Club member. "It's something that I hope we kind of establish as a pattern."

In addition to the two magic shows this weekend, there's a "MagicFeast" dinner auction at 7 p.m. today at 360 Main Events Center in downtown Twin Falls.

MagicFeast is an "auction combined with a little bit of a magic show," Turner said.

This weekend, local magicians will perform a "whole variety of magic," including on-stage illusions, Foreman said.

Many of the members have been wowing audiences for decades with their tricks and illusions.

Foreman has been doing magic for 39 years. After he got married, he fell in love with the activity after watching his father-in-law perform.

It has been a longtime hobby for Foreman, like many other members of Magic Valley Magicians.

"Most of us are just what I would call hobbyists," he said.

The group of magicians didn't create a formal club until January 2011. Up until that point, a few people had been meeting on their own.

The club is always looking for new members, Foreman said, and they are dedicated to promoting magic for its entertainment value.

Club members help each other become better magicians, he said.

Foreman performs about five or six shows each year, but said he'd love to do more. Proceeds from this weekend's events will go toward Kiwanis Club's local and international projects.

Here in the Magic Valley, the club has provided funding to the Salvation Army in the past, including the organization's youth programs.

Other projects have included providing scholarships for a summer music camp, funding a baseball/softball facility at Canyon Ridge High School, helping with equipment that will be placed at Twin Falls City Park and providing financial assistance to help a robotics club travel to competitions.

The club has about 30 different projects, Turner said.

On an international scale, half of the proceeds from Magicfest will go to help support Kiwanis efforts to eliminate maternal and neonatal tetanus.

The club provides funding to the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), Turner said. Since 2011, Kiwanis members have collectively provided funding to eliminate tetanus in 10 countries.

"By 2015, we hope to have internationally raised and pledged (enough money) to provide immunization to 61 million women," he said.

Raffle to Benefit Kimberly Resident

TIMES-NEWS

KIMBERLY • Raffle tickets are on sale to help Kimberly resident, Christine Bryant, with her medical costs.

Raffle tickets are $10 each and can be purchased from any employee at Maxie's Pizza & Pasta, 626 N. Main St. in Kimberly.

A drawing will take place at 7 p.m. Friday, Aug. 30 at the restaurant. Raffle items are a one-of-a-kind painting by Gary Stone, as well as a copy of Bev and Gary Stone's book, "Stone by Stone on the Oregon Trail."

You don't have to be present at the event to win. There will also be live music from 6-9 p.m. by Brienne Lynn.

All proceeds from the raffle will go toward Bryant's medical costs.

Bryant had a bad reaction to some medication and ended up almost losing her life due to blood clots in her lungs. She's still on the road to recovery and doesn't have insurance, so Kimberly community members are raising money to help with medical costs.

Gary Stone's painting will be on display at Maxie's Pizza & Pasta in Kimberly until Aug. 30.

Sun Valley Ice Show to Benefit Firefighters Foundation

TIMES-NEWS

SUN VALLEY • While firefighters continue to battle the Beaver Creek Fire, Sun Valley Resort plans to dedicate its ice show Saturday night to a foundation that supports families of wildland firefighters.

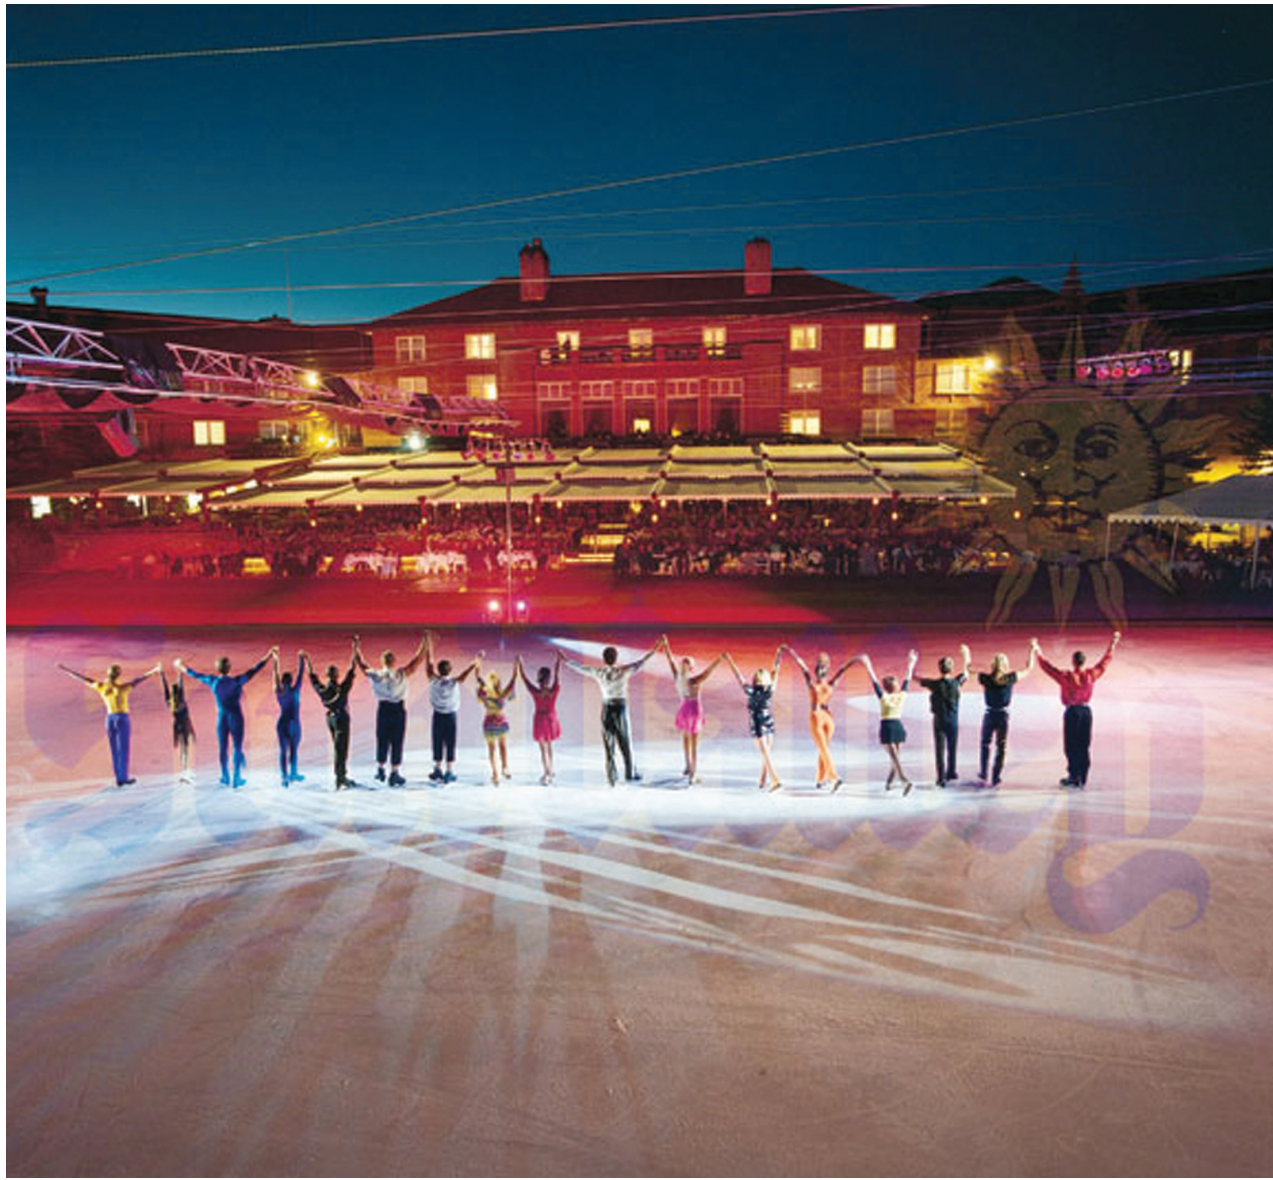

Doors open at 7:30 p.m. and the ice show starts at 9 p.m.

General admission tickets to Sun Valley On Ice will be free. In exchange, audience members will be asked to make a donation to the Wildland Firefighter Foundation

General admission tickets to Sun Valley On Ice will be free. In exchange, audience members will be asked to make a donation to the Wildland Firefighter Foundation, an organization that provides a safety net to the firefighting community.

"We really want to thank Sun Valley for its past and continued support of our wildland firefighting community," said Burk Minor, director of the Wildland Firefighter Foundation. "We have over 1,700 firefighters risking life and limb on the Beaver Creek Fire alone and we all appreciate Sun Valley's efforts that go above and beyond."

The Wildland Firefighter Foundation provides direct financial support to the families of firefighters killed and injured in wildland fires throughout the U.S.

"We've had 31 fatalities so far this fire season, so the need has never been greater," Minor said.

Throughout the peak fire response, the Sun Valley Resort has served as a home away from home for fire evacuees and their families. Sun Valley resources were used in keeping the fire away from Ketchum, with snowmaking guns doing double duty as fire suppressors on Bald Mountain.

"Sun Valley's first concern is and always will be for the safety of our guests and employees, and the work of these courageous firefighters is crucial to our community," Sun Valley spokesman Jack Sibbach said.

Don’t Fail to Care for Your Lawn in the Fall
by Joe Cooper, All About Lawns Columnist

Looking forward to when you can leave the lawnmower alone? With the end of summer come cooler temperatures and potentially higher moisture, making your job as a lawn care specialist a little easier. As we head into this season, keep a few things in mind that can help maintain the good lawn health you’ve cultivated this summer.

Put your soil to the test.

Apply some back-to-school spirit to your lawn by considering a soil test to determine the quality of your soil. Soil testing is easy; you can usually find access to a local soil testing lab online or through your local greenhouse or hardware store. Having a few samples of your lawn area’s soil tested will let you know how your lawn is doing, how nutrient-rich it is (i.e. nitrogen and phosphorous content), and how many contaminants it contains.

Experts recommend soil testing during the fall to give time for using the results for the next growing season.

Weed, or warn weeds away.

Late summer / early fall is a good time to tackle those weeds, but keep a few things in mind:

- Some herbicides used in weed killers can prevent new lawn seeds from germinating, so if you’ve just fed your grass, take a pass on herbicides.
- No weeds yet? Be proactive by using herbicides for “pre-emergent” weeds. These products can help keep your lawn weed-free during the fall.

Loosen things up.

This time of year is also good for aerating, which loosens up the soil beneath the lawn and can be a good time for seeding. Waiting for some rain to get the soil in good condition first is wise, and waiting until after you aerate to seed is even wiser. Do you live in a hot, dry climate? You may want to wait to aerate, since aerating an overly dry lawn can damage your soil.

No need for any of these three tips? Then just keep mowing, watering, and wait for cooler temperatures. Fall and winter are lower maintenance seasons for lawns, freeing you to do some more creative things with your landscape; or, to simply relax!

IF AUGUST 23 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your business sense is in top form during the next few weeks, but you might be more interested in joining a club or organization to further your ambitions by hooking up with the key movers and shakers in your job or career line. New relationships can seem heaven sent in October or December, but if you're single and meet a new prospective partner, get advice from friends, as you may tend to romanticize anyone you meet. Life takes a turn for the better in May when very important plans can be launched and many things, including career and finances, fall into place in a way that's definitely to your advantage.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The urge to splurge could upset your financial appcart. Hold off on making major purchases and avoid making a new romantic conquest. Everything looks better in the store window.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You or someone close to you could harbor secret yearnings. Although a passion might help you work harder in a single-minded way, don't act on transitory romantic obsessions.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Get down to brass tacks. Face up to responsibilities and obligations before you indulge in fantasies. Before you spend a dollar, ask yourself if it makes sense or if it's an indulgence.
CANCER (June 21-July 22): Daydreams and plans that seem farfetched now may be possible later. Financial ventures that seem to grind to a halt require careful reevaluation before proceeding any further.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You're better off enjoying an intense heart-to-heart conversation with a good friend than pursuing a passionate rendezvous. New romantic connections can cause crucial complications.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Keep your wallet in your pocket. Temptations may abound today and whatever attracts you in a somewhat obsessive manner might be less than satisfactory in the long run.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The fine line between love and desire could blur. If you become fixated on someone or something, it's almost sure to cause you a problem. Cool off with a cold shower tonight.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Put that piano down. Save the heavy lifting for another time; keep your schedule light. You may feel pressured to attend a social event or to delve into deep analysis of a relationship.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Congregate with friends and buddies and chat away, but don't let an important cat out of the bag. The unusual attracts you but won't necessarily prove to be of lasting value.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): This weekend, you might recall the words from the '60s song by the Animals, "Don't Let Me Be Misunderstood." Focus on being clear as a bell to avoid unearned criticism.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Prepare to be a weekend warrior. Sports events and shopping expeditions with friends may loom on the horizon. Tastes could run toward the exotic so be sensible about spending.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may feel compelled to put some personal plans on hold. Remain true to long-term goals, but don't ignore a side trip that could be fun. A little romance appears in a glance.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"Man is an embodied paradox, a bundle of contradictions."
— Charles Caleb Colton

In today's deal it is fairly safe for West to compete against two spades (even when vulnerable), and he should make a second takeout double to prevent his opponents from stealing an easy partscore. North-South should press on to three spades over three diamonds for the same reason. After that, it is sensible for East either to try to defeat three spades, or to take one more push. The vulnerability may persuade him to pass at pairs; and indeed, in four diamonds he would be doubled and set 200.

Against three spades, West leads three rounds of hearts. With the diamond ace and club king marked in the West hand, South should envision an endplay that will guarantee his contract. He should draw trump, then eliminate West's remaining heart by ruffing the last heart from dummy in the closed hand and should then lead toward the club queen.

West cannot rise with the king, or South will be able to discard one of dummy's diamonds on the fourth round of clubs. If South is allowed to win the club queen in dummy, he then leads another club and passes the lead to West, who is then hopelessly endplayed. (West's best defense is to follow with the club nine or club 10 on the first round of the suit. His hope is that East will have the club eight and will therefore be able to prevent the throw-in. As the cards lie, however, this defense does not quite work.)

ANSWER: You have plenty of high cards, but when your partner can only make a simple raise to two spades, you are surely high enough. Any club finesse rates to be wrong, and your heart queen looks valueless, so game is surely going to be against the odds. Therefore pass and try to go plus, though you may be obliged to bid three spades in the face of further competition.

DEAR ABBY: I'm not sure how you can help me, but I'd appreciate some input. I'm in my 50s and retired from the military.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

As a young man, I was so shy I couldn't speak to girls. I joined the military early and came out of my shell, but the demands of military life made it hard for me to meet or date anyone. Most of my adult life in the service has been spent taking care of soldiers' emotional, financial and professional needs so they could do their jobs.

I can't seem to convince women to date me. They say I "have no relationship history" so I don't know how to compromise or share. I can change my wardrobe, I can lose some weight, but I can't change my "history." What on earth do I say or do to convince women (both on-line and offline) to take a chance with me? I just want a chance to meet a special someone. Please help me.

— FRUSTRATED IN TEXAS

DEAR FRUSTRATED: You are the second longtime bachelor who has asked me this question in the last several weeks! I don't know what pop psychologist came up with the thesis that never-married men are to be avoided. If anything, your letter shows how dangerous it is to make blanket generalizations.

A man like you has much to offer. You are stable, have no bitter ex-wives who will interfere in a relationship, no children who are still trying to "find" themselves or tell you they hate your lady friends, and no alimony. I assume you are financially secure, and after a life in the military, have taken care of yourself physically.

Perhaps you should mention this to the next woman who tells you she doesn't want to date you because you have no "history." You should not hesitate to post your single status on your profile. Intelligent women will want to meet you, get to know you, and be willing to help you CREATE a history together. And those women who aren't willing aren't worth your time.

DEAR ABBY: My partner, "Kevin," and I have been together for 12 years. Although we have a close and loving relationship, one major sticking point has dogged us from early on.

I am 19 years younger than Kevin and very outgoing. I enjoy spending time with friends and socializing. I understand that when one is in a relationship, time spent with friends is reduced. However, if I become friends with someone, Kevin will find something wrong with the person, make unkind comments about them to me and make me feel guilty for wanting to be with them. It could be the person is too loud, too opinionated, has different eating habits than his, etc.

The friend's gender or sexual orientation has no bearing. I have had to forgo friendships over the years because it's just easier to do that than to argue. I love being with Kevin, but I'm not sure what I can do to resolve this challenge. He doesn't feel a need to change. What should I do?

— "DAN" IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR "DAN": Start by recognizing that what Kevin is doing may be a reflection of his insecurity. The more time you spend with someone else, the less you spend with him. He doesn't feel a need to change because his nitpicking has been successful in diverting you from these friendships.

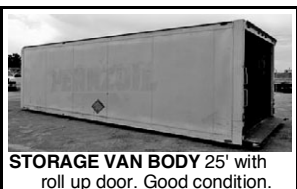

Try this: The next time you become friendly with someone and Kevin starts putting the person down, don't take the bait. Tell him he's entitled to his opinion and if he'd like to join you, he is welcome. If not, you'll see him later. It may help you to establish some independence. Mature adults can do that and still have a healthy relationship.
