DUTCHMEN MANUFACTURING CLOSES BURLEY PLANT 160 employees displaced.

BY C. COLT CRANE Times-News

BURLEY • A recreational vehicle production plant in Burley will close Nov. 15, leaving up to 160 employees jobless.

Dutchmen Manufacturing, an Indiana-based manufacturer, announced that the Burley RV plant will be moved to Pendleton, Ore.

"Our intention is to relocate the operations to Pendleton, where we already have an ongoing campus of production operations there," said Dutchmen Vice President David Thomas.

"It's tough, and we understand it's tough," Thomas said. "The employees have been offered the opportunity to relocate to Pendle-

Inaugural Standhope 60K Race Draws Lofty Comparisons

"Well, Bob, I think you're our age bracket winner," said race director Ben Blessing.

"Uh, I think actually that went to Wayne Rancourt – he turned 50," Youngman said.

"Oh, right. Sorry," Blessing said.

"That's OK, I'll just get it in a few years when I'm 60," he said.

At 57, Youngman was the oldest runner to finish the Standhope 60K race over 35.5 miles of the Pioneer Mountains' most rugged terrain on Saturday. It was the fifth ultramarathon in his two-year career.

The average age of the race's top 10 finishers was 37.4. But that 20-year difference doesn't mean much to the Sun Valley resident.

As a longtime endurance athlete - cycling, crosscountry skiing, tennis, mountain biking - Youngman actually has a big advantage over other runners of all ages. Besides being able to train all the time as a retiree, his core is tight and his resolve is strong.

Sieker said everyone is asked to wear yellow to show support and to bring lawn chairs.

"We need to raise awareness because we can all be peacefully pressuring the government, letting them know we care and we are not going to give up and we want something to be done to release him," Sieker said.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stocks Fall on Concern about Economy, Budget Fight

NEW YORK (AP) • Concerns about the strength of the economy and the potential for a budget fight in Washington pushed down the stock market Monday.

The Dow Jones industrial average and the Standard & Poor's 500 index fell for a third straight day.

Investors initially cheered the Federal Reserve's decision last Wednesday to keep its huge stimulus program in place. But they've since focused on the central bank's gloomier outlook for growth.

Up to 10 Inches of Snow Forecast for Sun Valley

BY JOE CADOTTE jcadotte@magicvalley.com

SUN VALLEY • Over the past month, Blaine County has been on fire and sloshed with flooding and mudslides. Tonight, up to 10 inches of snow is expected to start falling in the higher elevations, said Dawn Harmon, National Weather Service meteorologist in Pocatello.

A Special Weather Statement issued Monday calls for 3 to 10 inches of snowfall in the county.

"It's not a warning or hazardous outlook. It's just to let people know that change is coming," Harmon said. "It's a pretty confident change."

The outlook includes the Sawtooth Mountains and Upper Snake Highlands. Although the forecast came more than 24 hours before the storm, it's not expected to change.

"There isn't a very good chance things will change, she said. "There will be at least 3 to 6 inches of snow. If there is a change, it's not going to be a significant one."

The higher the elevation, the more snow will fall. Snow probably will not fall elsewhere in south-central Idaho. If it does, it will be less than an inch.

The white powder isn't expected to stick, Harmon said, but it will usher in a cold front Brian for Sun Valley. Temperatures are expected to drop from 62 degrees today to 51 Wednesday, she said.

njoy the temperatures in the 70s and sunshine while we still have them this week because changes are on the horizon. We will squeak out one more day of highs in the low-70s and upper-60s across the region but the sunshine will be limited. Clouds will be on the increase and so will the winds during the day as winds could reach 15 to 25 mph shifting to the northnorthwest.

The changes we see today will be just the first wave of storm systems moving through the region. Tonight, as a cold front associated with a passing upperlevel storm moves through, there will be a chance of showers across the central mountains and the Magic Valley as lows will be in the 30s and 40s. On Wednesday, another cold front moves through, along with another storm system. Temperatures will be in the mid- to low-50s during the afternoon and winds will remain strong and breezy. Off and on showers are also expected during the day and into Wednesday night.

Along with the cold temperatures Wednesday night through Thursday, there will also be the chance of snow in some of the mountains. Locations above 6,000-6,500 feet could see one to three inches by Thursday. Peaks above 9,000 feet could see six to nine inches of snow.

Keep this in mind if you are going to be traveling in mountains.

Twin Falls High School Senior Named National Merit Semifinalist

BY TETONA DUNLAP tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Zoe Rivas knew she scored well on the Preliminary SAT last year, but she wasn't expecting much more than high scores.

But this month, the 17year-old senior at Twin Falls High School became the only Magic Valley student to be named a semifinalist for the prestigious and lucrative National Merit Scholarship.

The 16,000 or so semifinalists can continue in the competition for 8,000 National Merit Scholarships worth about $35 million.

"It's a nice honor, and I hope she makes it all the way," said Ben Allen, principal of Twin Falls High. "It's a big thing nationwide, and a lot of colleges and universities know they are top students."

Allen said his school usually has one or two National Merit semifinalists each year.

Six of the school's students performed in the 90th percentile of the PSAT last year, said Twin Falls High School counselor Sharee Hamilton.

Rivas scored in the 99th percentile.

"It means good things for her future," Hamilton said. "I would describe her as an ideal student with a diverse course load. And she challenges herself in her courses, which I think is a good thing, a strength of schedule."

Rivas said she plans to attend a college on the East Coast and study engineering or astronomy.

ASHLEY SMITH · TIMES-NEWS Zoe Rivas is a national merit semifinalist at Twin Falls High School. She is the only one from the Magic Valley.

Hamilton said a Twin Falls student was named a National Merit Scholarship finalist two years ago and received a fully paid ride to her college of choice.

"We are really excited for Zoe," she said. "And in February when they (finalists) are notified, we just look forward to learning the outcome for Zoe and wish her luck."

Three semifinalists also were named in the Wood River Valley: Chandler Gifford and Andrew Graves of Wood River High School in Hailey and Arielle Rawlings of The Community School in Sun Valley.

Gifford and Graves "are excellent students," said Millie Reidy, college and career counselor at Wood River High School. "They both have very high grade point averages and high aspirations with what they want to do with their lives. They are great kids."

Wood River High School has one or two semifinalists a year, Reidy said, and the school is trying to increase that number by offering free test preparation sessions over the summer.

Rawlings could not be reached for comment.Across Idaho, a total of 80 students were named semifinalists.

To advance to finalist, semifinalists and their schools must submit a detailed application with the semifinalist's academic record, participation in school and community activities, demonstrated leadthroughout high school, be endorsed and recommended by a high school official, write an essay, and earn SAT scores that confirm the student's earlier performance on the qualifying test.

National Merit Scholarship winners of 2014 will be announced between April and July.

Rivas said she has started on her application for the finalist round and has been putting together a list of colleges she wants to attend in hopes of being named a National Merit Scholar.

"I think it would help more for colleges to see that I was a finalist ... I think it would help me more in the admission process," she said.

National Merit Scholarship winners of 2014 will be announced in four nationwide news releases beginning in April and concluding in July.

Squirrel Causes Weekend Power Outage; CSI Recovers Data

BY TETONA DUNLAP tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho was back to normal Monday afternoon after a power outage Saturday stopped electricity to four buildings, affecting databases and computer couldn't access email, network printers or financial aid data until Monday afternoon, Maughan said. But all of the data remained intact.

"Our air conditioning had been knocked out, and the rooms this equipment was located in overheated. That is thought to be the problem," Maughan said. "It's CSI spokesman Doug Maughan said the culprit was a squirrel that got into equipment near Fillmore Street. But Idaho Power spokeswoman Lynette Berriochoa wasn't so sure.

"I think one of our field reps reported that to CSI, but the dispatcher didn't have anything in the notes. The only thing in the notes was the fact that it tripped. The dispatcher said it could have been an animal or branch, but didn't have specifics," Berriochoa wrote in an email. "Because it happened in a split second and didn't cause an outage on our end, we honestly don't know what might have made it flicker."

OBITUARIES

Martha Eleanor Martens

April 16, 1925-Sept. 22, 2013

BUHL • Martha Eleanor Martens, 88, of Buhl, beloved mother, grandmother and great-grandmother, went home to her heavenly mansion Sunday morning, Sept. 22, 2013, at Desert View Care Center in Buhl.

Martha was born April 16, 1925, in the Clover parsonage, to Walter and Ida Rodenbeck Dannenfeldt, the youngest of their four daughters. She was baptized, confirmed and a lifelong member of Clover Trinity Lutheran Church. She attended Clover Lutheran School through eighth grade and graduated from Filer High School in 1943. She learned shorthand and was a stenographer for Peavey-Taber Co. for several years. She married Donald Martens on Dec. 1, 1946, and they farmed and ranched on the Clover Tract until their retirement in 1992. She lived on the homeplace for 65 years until moving to assisted living in 2011.

Martha was Donald's true helpmate through the 61 years they were married. She cooked, cleaned, canned and took care of five children while also helping with outside chores when needed. She drove the chuckwagon (pick-up) behind the cattle herd, babysitting the small grandsons on the annual cattle drives. She went with Donald to visit the elderly members of Clover and play the sermon tapes for them. She worked countless hours in the Farm Bureau booth at the Twin Falls County Fair, taking and serving food orders, while Donald fried burgers. She was a lifelong member of the Lutheran Women's Missionary League and helped serve food at many area auctions and also helped cook and serve hot lunch to the Clover School children. She was Donald's sole caregiver for 13 years after his stroke.

Martha loved her Lord and Savior, Jesus, and was a wonderful Christian example to her children, eight grandsons and 10 greatgrandchildren. They will always remember her unconditional love and daily prayers for all of them. Grammy also loved Chinese food, pizza parties, picnics and corn dogs at the county fair. She never lost her beautiful smile and her ability to make us laugh with her witty German expressions.

Martha is survived by four children, Jane Lewis of Dubois, Priscilla Martens and Miriam (Tom) Garrison of Buhl and the Rev. Matthew (Mary) Martens of Fort Dodge, Iowa; grandsons, Ric (Cheryl) Lewis, Rudi (Marissa) Lewis, Martin Lewis, Ben Martens, Dan Martens, Jesse (Kris) Garrison, Joel (Megan) Garrison and Jay (Ashley) Garrison; great-grandchildren, Jacob, Erica, Cassie, Lindsey, Nick, Jett, Jace, Jerett, Jaren and Jantz. She was preceded in death by her parents; husband, Donald; daughter, Marlene; and sisters, Irmgard Kaster, Paula Lierman and Melba Arambarri.

A celebration of life funeral service will be held at 3 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 25, at Clover Trinity Lutheran Church. A private burial will be held at the Clover Lutheran Cemetery prior to the service. Arrangements have been entrusted to Farmer Funeral Chapel of Buhl.

The family suggests memorials be made to Clover Trinity Lutheran Church or Clover Christian School.

The family would like to extend their thanks to the staff at Desert View Care Center for their loving care for Martha.

Wayne Clifford Perron

Sept. 22, 1932-Sept. 17, 2013

DIETRICH • Wayne Clifford Perron, 80, of Dietrich, passed honorably from this life at his home Tuesday, Sept. 17, 2013. He was surrounded by his loving and grateful family.

He was born Sept. 22, 1932, at Marley, Idaho, to Vernon F. (Bus) and Hazel Perron. He spent his early years with his family at Stibnite and Triumph mines, where his father worked. Later they lived in Richfield and finally Shoshone.

Wayne served in the Army from 1954 to 1956. He was stationed in Germany. He attended the University of Idaho where he received his bachelor or arts degree. He got his master of arts degree at BYU. He started teaching and coaching in Dietrich. After a year, he moved to Aberdeen to teach and coach, but he came back to Dietrich five years later as principal/superintendent. He retired from education in 1990 after 32 years of service. Many former students, including his four sons, remember run-ins with the "Board of Education." Wayne loved the school, community and people of Dietrich. On June 6, 1958, Wayne married Mary Carolyn Coxen. It was one of the best decisions he ever made. Into this union, four sons and a daughter were born. He was later sealed to his wife and children as an eternal family in the LDS Temple in Idaho Falls. Wayne was baptized into The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in the Little Wood River southeast of Richfield. He served many years in the Dietrich Ward as Scoutmaster, clerk and elder's quorum teacher.

Wayne was an extraordinary hunter and fisherman. It was said that he and Smokey Webb were the luckiest hunters around because they got their deer or elk every year. He always insisted that it was the many miles over many days in steep terrain that made him and Smoke so lucky. It seems he had a hunting story about every ridge, mountain, creek or butte in the Magic and Wood River valleys. He loved to fish and spent many memorable days at Magic, Little Wood and Fish Creek reservoirs as well as the Richfield and Dietrich canals, Silver Creek and the Little Wood River. He often talked of a "monster" that wrapped him around the railroad trestle above Pagari and broke off. He loved to hunt arrowheads, and he gathered an amazing collection that he loved to show to anybody.

Wayne is survived by his loving wife, Carolyn; sons, Lari (Terri), Kevin (Suzanne), Marc (Carol) and Tracy (Traci); daughter, Carol (Paul) Ransom; brothers, Bill (Debbie), Durg (Kathi) and Denis (Deanna); and brother-in-law, Leon (Iris) Hubsmith.

Wayne's welcoming committee included his parents, V.F. "Bus" and Hazel Perron; brother, Harold; sister, Darlene "Sis" Hubsmith; sisters-in law, Dora and Yvonne; mother-in-law, Gladys; brother-in-law, Bud; nephew, Gabe; two great-nephews; generations of noble grandparents; and many, many beloved friends. He will be greatly missed.

A visitation will be held from 6 - 8 p.m. Friday evening, Sept. 27, at the Dietrich LDS Church, 181 S. 650 E. of Dietrich. A funeral celebration will be conducted at 11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 28, also at the Dietrich LDS Church, with a visitation beginning at 10 a.m. Interment at the Shoshone cemetery will follow. Arrangements are under the care of Farnsworth Mortuary of Jerome.

Elizabet Genell Taylor Mutter

Aug. 24, 1968-Sept. 20, 2013

HAGERMAN • Elizabet Genell Taylor Mutter, 45, of Hagerman, our loving mother, wife, daughter, sister and friend, went to heaven to be with her daddy Friday, Sept. 20, 2013.

Genell was born Aug. 24, 1968, in Jerome, Idaho, to parents Ann Eldredge and Warren Taylor. She grew up and attended school in Wendell, Idaho, where she later married Kerry Lawton and had two beautiful daughters, Melyssa and Amanda. Genell later moved to Jerome, Idaho, where she met and married the love of her life and soul mate, Glen Mutter, who also had a son, Jerrid. What Genell loved more than anything in the world was being a grandmother, or "YaYa," as she was known. She has six grandchildren, Holly, Ryder, Brooklyn, Madilyn, Austyn and Blake, whom she loved dearly and would do anything for. Genell had one of the biggest hearts and an unforgettable laugh. She recently became a member of the Snake River Bros. She couldn't wait to become a member and help children and families in need.

Genell is survived by her husband, Glen Mutter; her daughters, Melyssa (Wes) Whitesell and Amanda (Justin) Mulligan; her son, Jerrid (Kiah) Mutter: her parents, Ann and Allen Eldredge; her brothers and sisters; Galene Taylor, Garren (Jeanne) Taylor, Jenni (John) Reasch, Jordan (LaVergne) Eldredge and Kenny (Kerri) Eldredge; and many nieces, nephews, extended family members and friends. She is preceded in death by her father, Warren Taylor; and her grandparents.

Genell will be GREATLY missed and not a moment will pass when she is not on our mind. "We love you, Mom. See you when we see you!"

A celebration of Genell's life will be conducted at 11 a.m. Friday, Sept. 27, at the Life Church of Magic Valley, 425 E. Nez Perce in Jerome. In lieu of flowers, Genell's family suggests that memorials be made in her name at any D.L. Evans Bank branch. Arrangements are under the care of Farnsworth Mortuary of Jerome.

Ronald Frank Crossman

Jan. 27, 1940-Sept. 21, 2013

MURTAUGH • Ronald Frank Crossman, 73, of Murtaugh, passed away Saturday, Sept. 21, 2013, at River Ridge Care and Rehabilitation Center in Twin Falls.

Ron was born Jan. 27, 1940, in Los Angeles, Calif., to Frank and Ruth Harscher Crossman. In 1958, Ron moved to Ogden, Utah, where he found the LDS Church, was baptized and was a faithful, active member throughout the rest of his life. In 1960, he married Sharon Roundy in the Logan Utah LDS Temple. They had three children, Ronda, Chet and Tod.

He is survived by his wife of 53 wonderful years; his children, Ronda Crossman of Murtaugh and Chet Crossman of Middleton; eight grandchildren, Jason, Sasha, Calei, Jared, Vikki, Dakota, London and Talon; and one sister, Diana Bahr. He was preceded in death by his parents; and one son, Tod. The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 26, at the Murtaugh LDS Church. Burial will follow at the Riverview Cemetery in Tremonton, Utah. A viewing for family and friends will be held from 6 until 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 25, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Thursday at the church.

Arrangements have been entrusted to the care of the Rasmussen Funeral Home of Burley.

OBITUARIES

Patrick Ryan Hunter

Feb. 7, 1988-Sept. 20, 2013

RUPERT • At 6:44 p.m. Friday, Sept. 20, 2013, surrounded by his family, Patrick Ryan Hunter, a 25year-old resident of Rupert, moved into heaven with his brother, Brandon.

Patrick was born Feb. 7, 1988, in Twin Falls, Idaho, to Eldon and Lorie (Fohlin) Hunter. He attended schools in Minidoka County, graduating from Minico High School in 2007. He also at tended the College of Southern Idaho. Patrick was diagnosed with Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy at the age of 3. Upon diagnosis, life expectancy for this disease was 17 to 21 years. Patrick was determined not to allow this disease to keep him from losing his sense of humor, harassing his brothers or pursuing his passions. At age 6, he attended his first Muscular Dystrophy Association-sponsored summer camp and continued until he turned 19. He was obsessive about the game "World of War Craft" on the computer and developed a network of friends he interacted with until he was no longer able to play, at which time he took great pleasure in becoming his brother, Matthew's, game coach (aka backseat player). Much to Matthew's delight (not). Brandon, Patrick and Matthew had a unique bond because they shared the same disease. Since they were confined to wheel chairs, they went on great adventures together within the gaming world. Patrick was thrilled when his older brother, Justin and his wife, Kellene, made him an uncle. He immensely enjoyed his time with nephew, Ayden, and niece, Emma. He was so proud of them.

Patrick was preceded in death by his brother, Brandon; and grandfather, Ray Hunter. Patrick is survived by his parents, Eldon and Lorie of Rupert; two brothers, Justin (Kellene) Hunter of Heyburn and Matthew Hunter of Rupert; nephew, Ayden; niece, Emma; grandparents, Patricia Hunter (his namesake) of Heyburn, Sharon and RB Higgins of Elba, and Herm and Linda Fohlin of Campo, Calif.; and numerous aunts, uncles and cousins.

The family would like to thank all of the caregivers and hospice nurses who gave so generously of their time and energy throughout the years to care for Patrick. A special thanks to Patrick's BFF, Betsy.

The funeral will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 26, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, where friends and family may call from 5:30 until 6:45 p.m. Officiating will be Bishop Shannon Brown. Burial will be at 1 p.m. Friday, Sept. 27, at the Rupert Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests memorials be made at any First Federal Savings Bank to help cover funeral costs. Memorials can also be sent to the Hunters at 398 W. 200 N., Rupert, ID 83350. Any funds not used for funeral expenses will remain in a memorial account to help with future expenses for Matthew's care (Matthew also has Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy).

In parting, Matthew shares, "Death is but the start of the journey, and tho we will be separated for a time we will never be apart. Until we meet again, Patrick."

Runner

"A lot of people, when I describe this to them, they kind of take offense at it. They really focus on the age grouping, but to me that's a really hollow achievement."

He said he feels "wily." His salt and pepper hair pokes out from under his ball cap. He knows his body. He knows how to respond when challenged. And he knows to not take it too seriously.

That last part came in handy Saturday when he slipped from a zippy sixth place to a trudging 17th. He fell victim to one of his own bailiwicks — fueling his body through the race.

With no food in his belly or stores of carbohydrates left, the 127-pound Youngman started to burn his fat reserves. He started to climb the 11,000-foot Standhope Pass on empty. He nearly passed out.

"A younger guy doesn't have the confidence that they are going to be able to come back from a (race complication), that they might drop, really slow down, give up. Older guy? 'Eh, I'll make my way through this?"

At 45, second-place finisher Kelly Lance said he understands what Youngman means.

"Old guys have old man strength," the Pocatello runner said. "And they've got patience and more to run for. It is not all on testosterone."

Once at Betty Lake's aid station, Youngman slurped a soda and gulped watermelon and apple slices — a direct shot of sugar and carbohydrates.

"You can feel it," he said. "All of a sudden the game has changed."

An ultramarathon actually is more of an eating contest, Youngman said. But it's also a harvest of the intense training required to run one.

He runs about 90 miles a week. His body doesn't complain, but he knows he has a harder time developing and recovering.

"It has taken me two seasons to develop the muscle structure that I would have developed in half a season when I was younger," he said.

With a doctorate in physics, Youngman trains like a scientist. He plots detailed statistics – distance, vertical climb, time on feet and training load — so he can analyze his runs. He reads studies and running philosophy.

"The thing with ultrarunning is it's all about the training," he said. "If you don't like the training, it is not really the place to go."

While his training is complex, the reason Youngman likes to run is its simplicity. In cycling, one talks about the weight of the frame. In skiing, one is concerned with wax, poles and clothing.

All of those sports were about equipment. Running ultramarathons is simple – you against yourself against the Earth. Man against self.

Because of its simplicity, Youngman said, it is a mental sport. Don't lose focus. And try not to be anxious. Somewhere along the trail, something always goes wrong. On Saturday, it was his food, not his focus. But as he slung his drop bag over his shoulder and walked toward his car, Youngman said he'd learn.

"You go and you don't do what you want to do, but you learn a lot and you can use that down the road," he said. "So you always have a good experience."

Autopsy: California Mother Died from Blows to the Head

BY ELLIOT SPAGAT Associated Press

SAN DIEGO •A woman whose bludgeoned body was found in the burning home of a family friend who allegedly killed her son and abducted her 16year-old daughter died from at least a dozen blows to the head, according to an autopsy report released Monday.

Christina Anderson, 44, was found with duct tape wrapped around her neck and mouth several times and her ankles tied with a plastic cable, the San Diego County Medical Examiner's Office said. Anderson had cuts in her neck that were likely inflicted through the tape after she died.

The coroner said she died from blunt head trauma. The cause of death was undetermined for Anderson's 8-year-old son, Ethan, whose charred remains were found in the rubble. killed by FBI agents in the Idaho wilderness Aug. 10, one week after he allegedly abducted 16-year-old Hannah Anderson and killed Christina and Ethan Anderson at his home in Boulevard, 65 miles east of San Diego. Hannah Anderson was rescued and returned safely to California.

Christina Anderson asked DiMaggio to take Hannah to cheerleading camp Aug. 3 because she was at Ethan's football practice and unable to take her, San Diego County Sheriff's Detective Troy DuGal said in the autopsy report.

Hannah's disappearance triggered a massive search spanning much of the western United States and parts of Canada and Mexico. Authorities have said DiMaggio set fire to his home with a timer, giving him a 20-hour jump on them.

San Diego County Sheriff Bill Gore has called Hannah "a victim in every sense of the word." He has declined to discuss a possible motive and investigators haven't publicly addressed other aspects of the case, including why the family went to DiMaggio's home, and how Hannah was treated in captivity.

podium but was a little hesitant about the run's final descent into Broad Canyon.

"Then Kelly just came ripping by me," he said gasping for air. "I'm glad he came by me because he showed me how much faster I could be going downhill."

Lance, voice breaking with emotion, said he found the courage to "kill" the descents thanks to AC/DC's "Runaway Train." Lance, 45, finished just two minutes behind Gaitan — a near photo finish in the world of ultramarathons.

Coming across the finish line, he let fly a primal scream among the sounds of cowbells and applause. It was a stark contrast to Gaitan's sly finish, which took the crowd by surprise.

"That guy can do more," Gaitan remarked.

"I don't even know what I did," Lance said. "Did I shout? Might have been my wife."

Of the 47 runners who registered for the race, 36 finished. The other 11 either started the race early and were not counted or dropped from the course, race director Ben Blessing said.

In its first year, the race took runners from the Park Creek campground, along the base of The Devil's Bedstead, across Kane Creek, up Wildhorse Canyon and down along Fall Creek before sending them up 4,000 feet to the area near Standhope Peak and Betty Lake – elevation 11,000 feet – before descending into Broad Canyon.

The race originally was planned to start with a grueling stretch near Phi Kappa Mountain, but it was rerouted after Blessing and others found it to be too tough. Few runners complained about the switch.

Between three peaks, runners climbed a total of 10,000 feet in elevation. The lowest altitude runners saw was 7,200 feet, Blessing said.

"Dude, it is a really gnarly mountain run," Blessing said. "It is probably, on a scale of one to 10, it would be an eight or a nine."

Boise runner Brian Snyder, who helped Blessing tag and mark the trail, said the race's final climb nearly made him throw up.

"The altitude of Standhope Pass, when I was only doing it after 8 miles it felt fine, but after 20-some odd miles it is all you can do to remember to breathe," said Snyder, who finished sixth. "You start feeling sick and you start spinning. Good stuff."

Runners immediately began drawing comparisons between Standhope 60K and other famous ultramarathons. STANDHOPE 6oK (35.5 MILES) RESULTS 1 - Nicholas Gaitan, 25, Salt Lake (čity, 7.09:44 2 - Kelly Lance, 45, Pocatelio, 7:12:15 3 - John Hart, 46, Missoula, Mont, 7:13:57

The closure is a disappointment for the Mini-Cassia area and the state, said Jan Roeser, south-central Idaho economist for Idaho Department of Labor.

"It is a real blow to the area because of two things," Roeser said. "A lot of the skills that these workers have are construction skills, and that's an industry that took a big hit during the recession. The (Dutchmen) company never lost momentum during the recession. It was always a strong company, so we hate to see a stable employer like that leave."

Roeser pointed to another Mini-Cassia manufacturer as a bright spot in the gray news.

"McCain chose to expand their company and to grow and renovate," said Roeser. "We have investment in the area, and we have a lot of confidence in the Mini-Cassia area."

McCain Foods USA spent more than $15 million on improvements to its Burley potato processing plant over recent years.

The company bought the plant from Ore-Ida Foods Inc. in 1997, and the sprawling 476,000square-foot plant needed significant upgrades. Roeser also said many Idaho employers are looking for workers with construction skills and experience.

The Mini-Cassia area's high agricultural production is the biggest boon to the economy, the Department of Labor affirmed.

"You look at Cassia County, and it's the top agproducing county in the state with over $600 million in ag receipts. That's pretty amazing," said Roeser. "It's really a plus for that area. It keeps the food processing plants busy, and it attracts other supporting industry. It (the Dutchmen closure) is a blow, but we're leaving individuals with skills that can transfer into other industries."

Aram Koltookian, an executive vice president of Dutchmen, addressed the company's reasons in a news release Monday.

"This move will help Dutchmen and our dealers to maintain our lead over the competition with products built for the western market," he wrote. "The Pendleton campus offers us newly retooled production lines, room to expand, and the many advantages of on-site vendor relationships. This location will significantly improve our operating efficiencies in order to better serve our West Coast dealers."

"This will end tonight. Our forces will prevail. Kenyans are standing firm against aggression, and we will win,"

Kenya's National Disaster Operation Centre tweeted after Kenya's military launched a major operation at an upscale Nairobi mall and said it had rescued "most" of the hostages being held captive by al-Qaida-linked militants during a two-day standoff that killed at least 68 people and injured 175.

How Pure is Pure?

here is something gone terribly awry in our democratic system when decent, hard-working legislators can be recalled simply because they are not 100 percent pure on any particular issue near and dear to the hearts of the world's zealots.

That's the only take away one can have from the recent recall in Colorado of two solid public servants who, though basically supporters of the Second Amendment's qualified right of an individual to keep and bear arms, had the temerity to support something a majority of Coloradans support - namely universal background checks.

It's the first time ever in all of Colorado's political history that two legislators have been recalled. Sadly, the National Rifle Association is claiming credit for its role in this travesty and abuse of the recall provision, saying it illustrates once again the power of their message of "don't mess with me and my guns."

The NRA would have one believe the Second Amendment is an absolute, unqualified right for an individual to have most any weapon he wants, short of a small nuclear device, to defend hearth and self. This is simply not the case.

In point of fact, it wasn't untilrecently that the U.S. Supreme Court, in the case of Heller vs. the District of Columbia, in a stunning move led by conservative Justice Antonin Scalia, reversed two hundred years of settled law and affirmed the right of an individual apart from service in any sort of militia to have and bear arms.

Despite this precedent shattering, five to four majority opinion written by Scalia, one has to wonder if Supreme Court Justices had to stand for election every so many years whether the NRA would even support him. Why?

Well, even the great Scalia wrote that the Second Amendment was a qualified right, not an absolute right. Near the end of his opinion he wrote these qualifiers:

ed.....Nothing in our opinion should be taken to cast doubt on long-standing prohibitions on the possession of firearms by felons and the mentally ill, or laws forbidding the carrying of firearms in sensitive places such as schools and government buildings, or laws imposing conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms?

What is a law requiring universal background checks if not a condition imposed on the commercial sale of arms? Yet it was support for this qualification as well as limiting to 15 rounds magazines for a semi-automatic firearm that incurred the ire of the NRA and led to the recall of these two Colorado legislators.

We elect legislators to use their best judgment in passing laws that reflect the great est good for the greatest number. If they go too far astray, or get too arrogant, there is a process called a term of office whereby they have to stand for re-election and we can then pass judgment on their service. Recalls are meant to be utilized as a safety valve when there is egregious abuse of office; such as a legislator committing a felony, taking a bribe or sellnormal standing for re-election.

If a litmus test of 100 percent percent purity on any single issue becomes a standard for by which citizenry can remove a legislator, we all lose for what we'll then have is nothing but a set of automatons, who will ask their constituents to vote on every issue that comes before them. We no longer will be a representative democracy and a republic, which chooses a few to sift and weigh the many complex issues and decide the public interest.

Think about it. Even Justice Scalia would not be pure enough for the purists within the NRA who view the Second Amendment as an absolute right instead of a qualified right with attached responsibilities to apply and use common sense.

Fortunately, Idaho's recall provisions are much stricter than Colorado's. What happened there was a true abuse of the provision and a travesty of simple fairness and justice. My sympathy to the two public servants crucified by purists because they were not pure enough on one issue.

Pope Francis' new Tone Suggests an Age of Change

The following editorial appears on Bloomberg View: Since his papacy began in March, Pope Francis has shown himself to be a man of small but substantial gestures.

He exudes a pastoral charm - whether cleaning the feet of prisoners, hugging a disabled child after Easter Mass or picking up the phone to comfort the distraught - that didn't always come naturally to his predecessors. He dresses modestly, lives austerely, speaks constantly of the poor and drives a 1984 Renault. He has reached out to atheists, gays and divorcees.

In an interview released last week, Francis went further still. He affirmed his support for gays and lesbians, spoke candidly about his mistakes and doubts, and made clear that the Vatican, in his estimation, has fixated for far too long on a narrow set of controversial issues and "small-minded rules."

"The church's pastoral ministry cannot be obsessed with the transmission of a disjointed multitude of doctrines to be imposed insistently," he said. "We have to find a new balance; otherwise even the moral edifice of the church is likely to fall like a house of cards."

In describing that new balance, the pope's language was suffused with ambiguity, uncertainty and doubt in other words, the language of reality. And perhaps most strikingly, he showed himself to be comfortable with change. "Human self- understanding changes with time and so also human consciousness deepens," he said. "The view of the church's teaching as a monolith to defend without nuance or different understandings is wrong?

This is not the language one is accustomed to hearing from popes. Or from, say, Congress. Yet it should resonate with other large and change-averse institutions that will soon be grappling with an era of unprecedented change.

To say that Francis is trying to appease "liberal" Catholics, or is conforming to any other ideological caricature, is to miss the point. He's attempting to transcend the moribund and dispiriting language of the culture wars altogether, and to inject a note of seriousness and compassion into a public conversation saturated with triviality and invective. And he is grounding his arguments, in the best tradition of Catholic thought, in concern for the individual.

In doing so, Francis also makes a strong case that he, and by extension the church, has something to offer even increasingly secular societies. In the developing world, where some 70 percent of Catholics now live, the church is most visible in the network of social services it operates for the poor. In the rich world, in recent years, it has more often been the voice of reaction and sexual opprobrium. Francis is clearly trying to change that dynamic, to show that the church has more to offer.

We should hope he's right. In an age of accelerating

Don't Blame Boehner for House Dysfunction

There has been a lot of talk in both Democratic and Republican circles about whether House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio, can lead his caucus. Incidents such as the defeat of the farm bill on the House floor have been cited to support this narrative.

Butmuchoftheblamefor Washington failures has been mislaid.

The focus on Boehner has been more intense because House Democrats have abdicated any meaningful role in passing legislation. Few bills are able to garner Democratic support, often not because of policy differences but because House Democratic leaders have decided they would rather wash their hands of responsibility for governing and, instead, focus on winning back the majority.

The role of the minority party is to be the "loyal opposition," and Democrats have gotten it halfright - they are opposed to everything House Republicans do, but there is not much loyal about it.

Democrats frequently push

Steve LaTourette

back against this, arguing that Boehner isn't willing to move legislation that isn't supported by a majority of his caucus even if there would be 218 votes for passage. But the reality is that Boehner has been willing to waive the "Hastert rule" and bring important legislation to the floor.

Boehner is a skilled politician who is more than able to lead his caucus – well, at least the 180 or somembers interested in actively participating in the legislative process. Unfortunately for Boehner, for the House as an institution and for the country in general, these 180 public servants are not the problem.

Thirty to 40 other members of the House, however, believe their only responsibility as a member of Congress is to show up and vote "no." Frankly, they take such a dim view of their job that a trained monkey could do what they do. And, sadly, the situation is becoming one in which the monkeys are running the zoo.

It is these members who are largely responsible for the dysfunction in Washington and the failure of the legislative process. They have gleefully ground to a halt the work of the people. Because of them, agreement cannot be reached on legislation once deemed too important not to pass, such as the farm bill or the transportation bill.

These members are cheered on by interest groups such as the Club for Growth and FreedomWorks, organizations that have made a lucrative business out of Washington's dysfunction.

The No On Everything caucus, exemplified by members such as Justin Amash, R-Mich., and Michele Bachmann, R-Minn., has tapped into Americans' unhappiness with Washington while deepening the dysfunction that has bred such widespread contempt among voters. It's an admirable feat of political skill in the basest sense, but it is also everything that is wrong with politics today.

Our country faces some heady issues. We have a limited window of time to deal with other important questions, such as fundamental tax reform and critical reforms to the U.S. immigration system.

It is time for Democrats and the No On Everything caucus to step up and become meaningful participants in the legislative process.

Progressives may say they bemoan the "radicalism" of the tea party, and tea party advocates may claim to despise the "tactics" of liberals, but the truth is that both sides have abdicated the most basic responsibilities of elected officials. Both sides are complicit in creating an environment in which nothing can be accomplished.

Our nation faces serious challenges. Sitting on the sidelines is not an option.

Steve La Tourette, who represented Ohio's 19th and 14th congressional districts in the U.S. House from 1995 to 2013, is president of Main Street Partnership, an organization of centrist Republicans.

technological and social upheaval - when everything from communications to economics to politics to the global climate is rapidly evolving - a moral voice that is not only open to change but also attuned to the individual suffering and alienation that change can cause will grow ever more important.

Francis' rhetoric implies no imminent revolution in church policies. Yet the Vatican is an organization of the long game. "Many think that changes and reforms can take place in a short time," he said. "I believe that we always need time to lay the foundations for real, effective change."

This is true, both in the church and in every other human institution. You may be disappointed that Francis hasn't started officiating at gay weddings, or you may be furious that he's opening a dialogue on issues his predecessors considered closed. You may not care at all. Whatever your view, however, Francis ought to be taken seriously. In the war of ideas, the papacy remains a singularly influential institution, and this pope is wielding his persuasive power in a new and vivifying way.

St. Luke's Defends Saltzer Buyout, Opponents Lay Out Attack Plan

BY AUDREY DUTTON Idaho Statesman

The legal teams for St. Luke's Health System, federal and state regulators and St. Alphonsus Health System said Monday that, for the next month, they all will try to convince a federal judge that their goals are to give Idahoans the best health care and the most competition allowed under the law.

The lawsuit stems from St. Luke's buyout of the Nampa-based Saltzer Medical Group. That gave St. Luke's a foothold in Canyon County health care.

The Federal Trade Commission and Idaho Attorney General's Office argue that the buyout was an illegal marketgrab, giving the health system a nearly 80 percent share of primary care in Nampa. St. Alphonsus and a smaller surgical hospital say the buyout does serious damage to their businesses and will result in lost revenues as the St. Luke'semployed Saltzer physicians stop sending patients to St. Luke's competitors.

"When they buy a doctor group, they basically are buying a referral system," said Tom Greene, lead attorney for the FTC.

Greene told Judge B. Lynn Winmill that St. Luke's offered Saltzer doctors a "double-digit boost in their pay" and planned to earn that money back through a "pay more and charge more deal," leading to higher premiums.

During opening statements, Greene and other attorneys for the state, St. Alphonsus and Treasure Valley Hospital ran through PowerPoint slides, brightly colored charts and sworn witness statements they hope will convince Winmill that St. Luke's should not keep Saltzer because it will mean fewer choices for consumers, harm to competing businesses and higher prices for health care.

Bridge Work Reduces I-84 Lanes

Not so, said St. Luke's attorney Jack Bierig, a partner at Chicago-based Sidley Austin. Bierig listed numerous ways the Saltzer deal would help St. Luke's launch a new health-insurance product, help low-income and uninsured patients get preventive care and result in other benefits. If Winmill orders St. Luke's to give up Saltzer because it's possible the buyout will foreclose competition and raise prices, the ironic outcome could be harm to consumers, Bierig said.

St. Luke's attorney Christine Neuhoff added in an interview Monday that its ownership of Saltzer would add competition – not by adding a new player to the mix in the Treasure Valley, but by adding a new type of product, a health insurance plan that puts more financial risk on St. Luke's to work efficiently and not perform wasteful operations or tests.

"It's something that has not been previously available here," Neuhoff said. "If we offer that product, and patients want it, employers want it, our competitors will have to adjust."

St. Luke's opponents point to the Magic Valley market - where St. Luke's employs most physicians, and prices increased significantly – as proof that it charges more when it buys competitors. Bierig said that "prices increased for a variety of legitimate reasons," not because St. Luke's uses its size as a way to demand higher prices from insurers.

Winmill asked very few questions, but he pressed Bierig on how likely it is that St. Luke's will actually lower prices and make great strides in health care that it couldn't without owning make Saltzer.

There's no guarantee, Bierig said. But "the antitrust [law] should not nip our efforts in the bud," he said. "This is so not pie in the sky. This is not even pie. This is reality, right here on planet Earth."

For part of the six-hour court session, the courtroom doors were closed to the public in order to protect trade secrets that could be revealed as the sides make their cases. The court is likely to be closed for much of today for the same reason.

Coach Petersen: Southwick Must Play Better

'Handful of plays' QB needs to make to get Boise State over the 'hump.'

NICK RULAND

nruland@magicvalley.com

BOISE • As a former college quarterback, Boise State head coach Chris Petersen knows a thing or two about the most scrutinized position in sports.

He isn't wont to publically scrutinize quarterbacks for the sake of it – certainly not his own.

In that vein, his statements on Monday were a bit of a surprise.

Petersen dished on his starting quarterback Joe Southwick in a way he hadn't all year.

"Joe played tough," Petersen "He is playing well, but nobody is playing perfect by a long stretch. There are a handful of plays that he has to make if we are going to go over the hump."

The Broncos have scored at least 40 points in each of the last three games. Southwick has completed close to 76 percent of his passes in that time frame, running for more than 50 yards in the last two. However, with a defense struggling to get stops and turnovers, there's increased pressure on Southwick to eliminate mistakes.

In the second quarter of Friday night's 41-40 loss to Fresno State, after a touchdown drive and ensuing threeand-out series by the Bulldogs, Southwick threw a costly interception near the redzone on 1^{st} and 10.

"That is the position on offense that all fingers are going to point at when it is really good and when it is not," Petersen said. "(He) made some spectacular plays, we're really proud of him, but there are also some plays he needs to make at this point in his career. That's not to single him out, because we could start right here with me and go down the line because everyone has to do a little bit better."

Southwick's Health and Injury Secrecy

Southwick appeared to injure his shoulder after a four yard run in the second quarter against the Bulldogs. On Monday, Petersen said Southwick was "fine." Expect that to be the last update Petersen gives on short term injuries.

"Unless a guy is out long-term, I'm not commenting on it," Petersen said. "It doesn't help us. Southern Miss is going to sit here and watch every single word I'm saying."

Pierre Captures Pro Truck Championship

BY LINDA BRITTSAN

For the Times-News

It's really true. Johnny Pierre has captured the Pro Trucks championship.

After years of finishing second in the final standings, this year Pierre not only rounded up the 2013 American Speed Association Pro Trucks title, he did it in convincing fashion by also winning the main event race.

Pierre's evening, however, was not without its nervous moments. Although he carried 28-point advantage over Hannah Newhouse going into Saturday night's events at Magic Valley Speedway, Pierre was eighth in qualifying and admittedly "lost some points" to Newhouse after she posted the fastest time of the entrants.

In their respective heat races Pierre would finish fourth, while Newhouse came in second. Fourteen trucks were in the starting field for the final main event race of the season. After a little confusion in the first lap, the race progressed caution free until John Newhouse and Jerry Rice tangled in the front stretch at Lap 38.

After the restart, Pierre, who had earlier taken over the lead, managed to keep the rest of the field behind him for the remainder of the event. Hannah Newhouse became his closest competitor when she moved into second after passing Scott Luttmer with 10 laps to go in the race, but she ran out of time in her pursuit of the win.

"We finally got things figured out tonight," Pierre said. "Then during the main event race, I had great coaching by my spotter and I didn't think Hannah or Scott had anything for

(AVBOVE RIGHT) Boise State quarterback Joe Southwick looks to throw against Air Force Sept. 13 at Bronco Stadium in Boise.

Lack of Snaps

Back-up quarterback Grant Hedrick has completed nine of 13 passes, also running for a 50 yard touchdown in his first drive of the season. After Southwick came out of the game with a shoulder injury, Hedrick threw a seemingly momentum-changing 18-yard touchdown pass to Troy Ware.

After the game, Petersen said he had planned to have Hedrick in that portion of the game prior to the hit Southwick endured.

Petersen would like to play Hedrick more.

"I wish we could find more ways to get him in the game and let him go without disrupting Joe's rhythm," Petersen said. "Grant brings something to the table. He can throw the ball, Grant can run. We will keep looking at ways to get him in there."

Hedrick might be the Broncos best quarterback... physically.

"He has very good mechanics, a strong arm, the ball comes out." Why does Southwick still have the edge?

Knowledge of the offense.

"What Joe does so well is he has such a good command of our system," Petersen said. "People

Sweep puts Dammper on Baltamore's Wildcard Bid

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. • Wil Myers tied it with a two-run single on a jarring play in the seventh inning then pinch-hitter James Loney stunned the Orioles with a leadoff homer in the ninth, and the Tampa Bay Rays completed a fourgame sweep that put a serious damper in Baltimore's wild-card hopes with a 5-4 victory Monday.

The Orioles lost All-Star third baseman Manny Machado to a leg injury in the top of the seventh.

The win pushed the Rays a full game ahead of idle Cleveland for the top AL wild card. Baltimore fell five games behind the Indians with six games to go for both teams.

RANGERS 12, ASTROS 0 ARLINGTON, Texas . Alex Rios hit for the cycle and Derek Holland struck out nine in his second shutout of the season as Texas started its final push for a playoff spot.

The Rangers pulled within a game of idle Cleveland for the second AL wild-card berth with six games remaining.

Rios finished off the cycle with a triple to rightcenter field in the sixth inning, and later scored to put Texas up 11-0. He doubled in the first inning, had an infield single in the third and hit his 18th homer in the fourth. TWINS 4, TIGERS 3, 11 INNINGS

MINNEAPOLIS • Josmil Pinto hit an RBI single in the 11th inning and Minnesota overcame 12 strikeouts by Justin Verlander.

The Tigers led 3-0 in the eighth, but Jose Veras gave up RBI doubles to Eduardo Escobar and Ryan Doumit. Brian Dozier led off the ninth with a tying homer against previously perfect closer Joaquin Benoit. WHITE SOX 3, BLUE

JAYS 2

CHICAGO · Jose Quintana pitched into the eighth inning and rookie Marcus Semien hit his first major league homer to lead Chicago.

Quintana (9-6), who entered the game with the most no-decisions in the American League at 17, allowed two runs and five hits in 7 1-3 innings. Addison Reed pitched the ninth intime in 21 years, clinching at least a National League wild card Monday night when they beat the Chicago Cubs 2-1 and the Washington Nationals lost to St. Louis.

It will be Pittsburgh's first trip to the postseason since Barry Bonds, Jim Leyland and Co. won three straight NL East titles from 1990-92. Bonds then left for San Francisco as a free agent, and the small-budget Pirates piled up 20 consecutive losing seasons the longest streak in major professional sports. REDS 3, METS 2, 10

INNINGS

CINCINNATI • Shin-Soo Choo drove in the winning run with a single off the wall in the 10th inning, and Cincinnati secured a playoff spot after beating New York.

The second-place Reds clinched at least an NL wild card when Washington lost to St. Louis. Cincinnati manager Dusty Baker said there would be no celebration yet, not with a second straight NL Central title still in play.

CARDINALS 4, NATIONALS 3

ST. LOUIS • Carlos Beltran homered, Adam Wainwright earned his 18th win and St. Louis eliminated Washington from playoff contention.

Looking for their first NL Central title since 2009, the Cardinals maintained a two-game lead over Cincinnati and Pittsburgh with five to play.

All three teams are headed to the postseason. St. Louis secured no worse than a wild card on Sunday.

The Nationals won the NL East last season with 98 wins but were eliminated by St. Louis in the division series. One year later, they were knocked out by the Cardinals again.

BREWERS 5, BRAVES 0

ATLANTA • Marco Estrada pitched two-hit ball for seven innings and Milwaukee belted three homers against Atlanta.

The NL East champion Braves are a half-game ahead of St. Louis for the best record in the National League.

MARLINS 4, PHILLIES O

MIAMI • Nathan Eovaldi pitched into the eighth inning to help Miami blank

Emmert Says Change Coming for NCAA

ASSOCIATED PRESS

GRAPEVINE, Texas • President Mark Emmert said Monday he expects "a lot of change" for the governance structure of Division I sports over the next year.

"I've said publicly on a number of occasions the only thing everybody agrees on with Division I governance is that it doesn't work," Emmert said during his opening remarks at a meeting of more than 100 Division I faculty athletics representatives. He later said NCAA directors are looking at the next six to eight months in particular.

"I think the board anticipates a lot of change," he said. "They're going into their October and January meetings expecting to look at a whole different governance model for Division I. So it will be significantly different."

The NCAA's annual convention is in January. The board hopes to adopt proposals at its meeting next April, and then have a special meeting for the full membership next summer.

The discussion focused on transparency and the public perception of the NCAA.

Emmert has received sharp criticism for months, for everything from the unprecedented sanctions handed to Penn State for the Jerry Sandusky child sexabuse scandal to the botched investigation of alleged misconduct in University of Miami athletics. He, and the NCAA in general, have been singled out by conference commissioners, professional athletes and even current college football players.

Houston Texans running back Arian Foster, who says in an upcoming documentary he accepted money while at Tennessee, recently called the NCAA a bully. Some college players wore patches Saturday with the letters APU, standing for All Players United, to call for NCAA reform. Additionally, SEC Commissioner Mike Slive suggested last week that the NCAA's rules on governing agents are part of the problem amid reports of possible problems at Alabama and Tennessee.

"I haven't talked to Mike about it, so I can't speak for him," Emmert said Monday.

The third-year president is fully aware of the public's perception of the NCAA. Emmert said the board and other NCAA officials have concerns about that. The public sees him as more of a commissioner of a professional sport, which Emmert said is not the case.

He said getting people to understand the NCAA is more than just him or the board of directors – decisions are driven by the hundreds of member schools – is a difficult task.

"To think that the president of the NCAA has ever been anything like the commissioner of baseball is ludicrous," Emmert said, "but yet that would be the most popular perception I suspect that people have of what my job is."

The discussion did touch briefly on whether the NCAA would consider creating a new big-school Bowl Division — in essence, splitting up the current Division I. A packet distributed at the session called "Principles and Model for New Governance Structure" suggests that FBS institutions and conferences that are more closely aligned in issues and athletics resources form a new division.

"The simpler the governance structure, the better," the packet states.

got out of hand, when Terrelle Pryor (19 for 28 for 281 yards) hit Denarius Moore in the middle of the field and Broncos defensive backs Duke Ihenacho and Dominique Rodgers-Cromartie whiffed on the tackle. Moore went 73 yards to cut Oakland's deficit to 17-7 in the second quarter. All of which simply gave Manning the ball back more quickly. On the first play of the next drive, he hit Decker, who spun away from his defender for a 61yard gain. Three plays later, the Broncos were up 17 again after Manning found Thomas on an out route for a 13-yard score. The Broncos defense, now halfway through Von Miller's suspension and playing again without injured Champ Bailey, allowed only 9 yards on the ground to Darren McFadden, who came into the game leading the league with 223 yards from scrimmage. McFadden did, however, throw a touchdown - a 16-yard connection to Marcel Reece on a halfback option - and get a late score on the ground.

San Francisco 49ers linebacker Aldon Smith (99) walks on the field during the fourth quarter of an NFL football game against the Indianapolis Colts in San Francisco, Sunday.

49ers Prepare to Move Forward without Aldon Smith

BY JANIE MCCAULEY AP Sports Writer

SANTA CLARA, Calif. • The San Francisco 49ers are prepared to go forward without star linebacker Aldon Smith for as long as it takes for him to get clean, healthy and improve his life.

Smith was placed on the reserve non-football injury list Monday as he enters rehab for substance abuse and begins what team CEO Jed York has termed an indefinite absence.

"I am taking a leave of absence to address my health," Smith said through the 49ers. "I am sorry that I have affected my team, my family and the organization. I will do everything in my power to handle this situation the best way possible. I appreciate the support of the 49ers and our fans."

The NFL said there is no

San Francisco didn't immediately announce a corresponding roster move.

"We have a pretty good idea what we're going to do and we'll make that announcement," Harbaugh said.

Smith had previously been arrested on suspicion of DUI in January 2012 in Miami shortly after the 49ers lost in the NFC championship game. He is expected to remain in the Bay Area for treatment.

He could face a suspension from the NFL either later this season or next season, and it is likely given he has had more than one infraction. The NFL would let the legal process play itself out first.

Harbaugh said Dan Skuta, Ahmad Brooks and Corey Lemonier will help fill the void left by Smith, who had a franchise-best 191/2 sacks last season. Demarcus Dobbs, who was suspended for Week 1 for his own arrest on suspicion of DUI and marijuana possession from last season, also could be in the mix for some packages. "I have confidence in those guys and know they'll do a good job," Harbaugh said. "Go with the guys we've got." Smith, selected seventh overall in the 2011 draft out of Missouri, turns 24 on Wednesday. Missouri coach Gary Pinkel said Smith "never had any problems with that, zero," at school. He said he texted Smith earlier Monday and thought the situation could be turned into something "real positive." "You look at any player who's 22-23 years old and has tremendous success, that's difficult to handle," Pinkel said. "You become very, very vulnerable in many, many ways and maybe ways you don't even understand."

seconds later, Wes Welker was all alone, cradling the quarterback's latest touchdown pass.

All part of another impeccably crafted victory for Manning and the Denver Broncos, who rolled over the Oakland Raiders 37-21 Monday night. Denver's 127 points lead the league and are 31 more than secondplace Green Bay.

Manning went 32 for 37 for 374 yards and set a few more records while outwitthe overmatched ting Raiders (1-2).

"You see flashes of good things," Manning said. "When we're executing and not making mistakes, we can go the distance. We can go 80 yards, take advantage of a short field."

Manning's 12 touchdown passes are one more than Tom Brady's old record for the first three games, set in 2011. Manning still has yet to throw an interception, which matches a record held by Michael Vick, who also threw 12 touchdowns before his first pick in 2010.

As much as the numbers, it was Manning's deciphertion fake that froze the defense and left Decker wide open in the back of the end zone.

Manning's targets for the next two touchdowns -Welker and Julius Thomas didn't have defenders within three steps of them. Wide open. A sure sign that Manning had diagnosed the defense he was looking at well before the snap and knew exactly where he wanted to go with the ball.

"All of them did a good job competing," Manning said of his receivers. "We knew we were in a challenge, because Oakland has good cover corners. Mix up their coverage well. Guys did a good job getting open versus man, and finding holes in the zones. All of them did a good job running with the ball after the catch."

OK, so the evening wasn't perfect. There were the five incompletions, though two of them were flat-out drops and another two hit receivers in the hands, but would have been difficult catches. The Broncos settled for three field goals and had to punt once. Rookie Montee seamless replacement for injured Ryan Clady as his blindside protector didn't exactly pan out. Lamarr Houston beat Denver's new starting left tackle badly in the third quarter for a sack and strip that halted a drive that had reached the Raiders 13.

But Denver was ahead 30-7 at that point.

"Those are things we have to iron out," Manning said.

And, really, any complaints about Denver's offense seem like quibbling given what's gone on so far this season. The record for touchdown passes in a season is 50, set by Brady in 2007. If he keeps up this pace, Manning will throw 64.

As for Denver's biggest rival, the Raiders - since Manning arrived, the Broncos have outscored them 100-40 in three runaway wins.

The Raiders offense made one big play before the game minimum number of games Smith must miss on the reserve non-football injury list, and he can return when ready.

On whether he expects Smith to return this season, coach Jim Harbaugh said only, "there's a process, we're going to respect that process."

Smith played Sunday and had five tackles just two days after he was arrested and jailed Friday morning on suspicion of DUI and marijuana possession. Smith apologized after the 27-7 home loss to the Colts, and now his team moves forward without him heading to St. Louis on Thursday.

"We're very supportive of Aldon as we are of all of our players, all of our coaches, our personnel. Always support it in house," Harbaugh said. "We've hashed through it, now we're taking steps and Aldon's taking steps. We support him in that."

UNEMPLOYMENT

Idaho's August Jobless Rate Climbs to 6.8 Percent

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Idaho's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate rose twotenths of a percentage point in August over July, as total employment dropped to its lowest level in nearly a year, said Robert Fick, Idaho Department of Labor spokesman.

The state's jobless rate of 6.8 percent is up seventenths of a percentage point since April, one of the nation's largest rate increases over the past four months.

Nationally, unemployment fell another tenth of a point in August to 7.3 percent, down two-tenths from April, Fick said.

Idaho's unemployment numbers remained below the national rate for the 143rd month – one month short of 12 years. The last time the gap was smaller than a half percentage point was October 2002, Fick said.

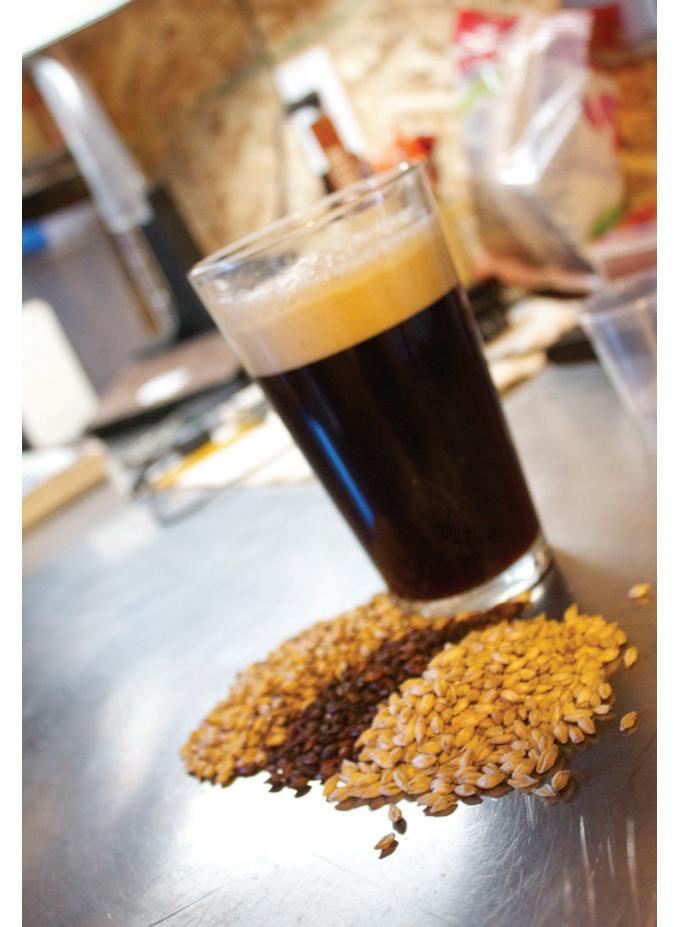

time workers.

Idaho employers across all industries were hiring at or slightly above normal levels in July, putting jobs in August 2.6 percent over the level a year earlier, albeit not ameliorating the growth in unemployment.

Nationally, jobs in August were 1.7 percent higher than August 2012.

Seven of every 10 new jobs in August were in services, and nearly all were in sectors that typically have more part-time workers retail and administrative services, where more than a quarter of the jobs are parttime, and food service, where half are part-time jobs, Hyer said.

As unemployment has risen and the labor force and total employment declined over much of the past year, state analysts speculate employers still are concerned about the state and national economic future. Only once since the 2008 recession have Idaho employers hired more people in any month than they did during the same month in 2007, and that was in July when the increase was 33 workers statewide. Despite the rising unemployment rate, Idaho unemployment benefit payments in August were down 39 percent, with the number of claimants 36 percent lower than in August 2012, Fick said.

A PLAN BREWING Homebrew Shop Aims for Downtown Twin Falls.

The number of Idaho workers without jobs in August was up 1,200 from July – to nearly 52,300 people – the highest total since September 2012. Commensurately, the number of people working in August fell 2,200 to just under 721,000, the lowest total in nearly a year.

Last year, 24.2 percent of Idaho jobs were part-time, compared with 18.2 percent of all jobs before the recession. Only Oregon, Utah, Wisconsin and Maine had higher percentages of part-

BURLEY • After pursuing an education out of state, a Burley resident has come home and joined an orthodontic practice to help bring smiles to the Mini-Cassia area

Dr. Justin Ward, who graduated from Burley High School in 2000, said he's happy to be back among friends and family.

"My wife and I decided that Burley would be a good place to raise a family," Ward said. "I grew up here and wanted to come home."

He joined Dr. Dennis Michaelson's practice, now named River Valley Orthodontics. The office will feature weekend and evening hours, Ward said.

"I've always dreamed about coming back to Burley, but I didn't know if it would work out with the job market," he said. "Being able to join with Dr. Michaelson felt like a blessing. It's good to be back in the community that helped raise me."

After graduating from Brigham Young University with a bachelor's degree in biology, Ward attended dental school at the Medical University of South Carolina. He said he graduated first in his class, receiving his doctorate in Dental Medicine.

Ward then entered a residency program for three years, specializing in orthodontics.

"I think the main reason I decided to go into orthodontics was because I saw the huge difference it can make in people's lives," he said. "I wanted to be a part of that, to help someone change their life. I'm passionate about it?

TWIN FALLS • When Steve Baum discusses his homebrew business, people often think he's just someone with a hobby.

Most hobbyists don't set up shop, however.

Baum and wife and business partner Connie are searching Twin Falls storefronts for the best place in which to expand Twin Fools Brew Shoppe.

Baum's current space is tucked to the side of a wood stairway in his garage in Filer. An old, busted-up Dr. Pepper vending machine buzzes against a wall in the back next to a walk-in freezer like those in school cafeteria kitchens.

While the space works for Baum's own brewing, he is ready to move on.

Zoning restrictions prevent walk-in traffic at Baum's home, and brewing laws make it illegal to sell homebrew. He wants to offer an experience, selling bottles of craft beer, leading classes on homebrew and someday expanding to homemade wine, cheese and artisan breads.

"You go to a store, you touch it and feel it - you've got to buy it," he said.

At home, Baum is limited to selling homebrew supplies such as flavor extracts and malt. More than a dozen types of malt line wire shelves in the garage, ranging from lighter grains for more basic lagers to deep brown grains that add complex tones to Baum's stouts.

Currently, Baum said, there is not a walk-in store near Twin Falls that sells all of the necessary materials for homebrew. Some travel as far as Boise to get their supplies in person.

Others, like Brad Gilmartin, go online. When Gilmartin moved to Jerome from Boise about four years ago, he had trouble finding the beers he was used to

"I was really spoiled in Boise," he said.

When he started brewing 5-gallon batches of his own beer, Gilmartin went to the web to order his supplies. If a brew shop opened nearby, though, he would be interested.

Gilmartin said it might be hard to match some online prices, but the physical store would save him money on shipping.

Flavorings and spices hang on the wall of Steve Baum's garage in Filer. Baum and his wife Connie operate Twin Fools Brew Shoppe out of his garage.

While the store has Baum excited, anxiety inevitably follows. He will continue to work full-time as a nurse at St. Luke's Magic Valley Regional Medical Center for the steady income while operating the store 40 hours each week.

"It's tough to swallow because everyone dreams of their own business a certain way," but reality can be tough, he said.

Passion pushes him onward. Baum said he enjoys being resourceful, brewing his own beer and raising chickens.

"I'm a little more backwoods than modern man," he said.

Baum said brewing - along with baking, cheese-making and other such hands-on skills - is an art form with which many have lost touch.

When Baum started brewing in 2009, he was not a particularly skilled artist. His first few batches achieved high alcohol contents of 7 and 8 percent.

"But they were nasty," he said, making a face as if remembering the flavor.

Now, Baum says, the science of brewing intrigues him. He combines multiple malts with extracts, hops and a bit of sugar at the end for carbonation, waiting a few patient weeks for the first taste. The beer doesn't always taste just as he expected, but Baum said part of the fun of homebrew is experimenting.

The perfect store space Baum is looking for would include a space for those experiments. Baum said he wants to teach brewing classes in-store, so along with retail space, the shop needs a refrigeration area and a brewing room.

After looking over about 10 properties, Baum said he might have found the right spot downtown. He is examining his finances this week and hopes to make an offer on the building if possible.

"It's still kind of up in the air at this point," he said.

Many Idahoans' names, for one reason or another, end up on the state's unclaimed property list.

People get divorced, get remarried or move out of state. And sometimes they don't leave the bank a forwarding address.

"Unclaimed property" usually doesn't refer to land or a house. Rather, it's mon-- checking accounts, ev savings accounts, stock dividends, mutual funds and utility refunds – or items stored in a safety deposit box. At times coins, gems, jewelry and stamps are reported unclaimed by hospitals, hotels and financial institutions.

Businesses turn over those assets to the state, which tries to reunite the stuff with its owner - or its heirs.

The Idaho Treasurer's Office provided this sampling of 75 people who own unclaimed property valued at more than $100. Their last known addresses are in south-central Idaho.

But many other people are on the list, too. Be proactive by searching your own name at sto.idaho.gov. You might be surprised by what you find.

Opening Day Nears for Locally Owned Great Harvest Bakery in Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS • Local owners Derek and Sophia Bates are putting the finishing touches on their new Great Harvest Bread Company bakery in Twin Falls, said Sophia Bates in an email to the Times-News.

The bakery is located at 727 Blue Lakes Blvd. North in the former Hollywood Video store, next to Fred Meyer, and will hold a grand opening celebration Friday with a full day of activities.

The bakery will hold four raffle drawings throughout its opening day – at 9 a.m., noon, 3 p.m., and 6 p.m. – for prizes that include free bread and gift baskets. Other family activities will include face painting, balloon animals and live music.

Festivities will continue Saturday with more live music, face painting, balloon animals and raffles throughout the day.

"We're excited to bake and share fresh, healthy bread and sweets with our friends in Twin Falls," said Sophia Bates. "We have combined our love of food and community to fulfill this exciting opportunity to own and operate a neighborhood bakery. Our grand opening is the finale to months and months of planning, but also the beginning to an extended relationship with the community as we share a love of whole grain nutrition with them."

The couple first met while attending Utah State University. Derek Bates worked with the Navy for a decade and then transitioned to the Air Force. Sophia Bates is a stay-at-home mom for their four children.

Great Harvest bakeries grind Montana wheat berries into whole-wheat flour daily to ensure freshness and flavor, Sophia Bates said. The bread also does not contain preservatives, additives or dough conditioners, she said.

"Our goal is to create a fun and inviting atmosphere, and offer customers fresh, great tasting whole-grain breads and sweets," said Derek Bates. "The big day is finally here. We hope our bakery feels like you're entering a friend's home who happens to be baking fresh bread and sweets, brewing locally roasted coffee, and making deli-style sandwiches with the freshest ingredients."

Bakery menu items include the signature Honey Whole Wheat crafted from five ingredients: freshly ground wholewheat flour, honey, yeast, water, and salt; plus a variety of tasty loaves like Cinnamon Chip and Popeye.

The opening menu will also feature loaves of Burley, cranberry orange, Breakfast Blast, Dakota and pizza breads. Sweet treats will include pumpkin chocolate chip muffins and berry cream cheese scones. Oatmeal chocolate chip, oatmeal raisin and salted caramel cookies will be baked fresh daily.

Other unique items on the bakery's racks will include pancake mix, Groovy Granola, a nine-grain hot cereal, a variety of Originally founded in 1976 in Great Falls, Mont., Great Harvest has more than 240 bakeries located throughout the nation, including Alaska and Hawaii.

Idaho Housing and Finance Association Arm Earns Nationwide Recognition

BOISE • The Housing Company, a department within the state Housing and Finance Association, was honored for their "green practices" by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, said Jason Lantz in an email to the Times-News, a spokesman for IHFA.

The Housing Company is one of 17 organizations nationwide to earn full Green Organizational Accreditation by the Sustainable Performance Institute and HUD, he said.

Full Green Accreditation distinguishes organizations that implement green building and operational best practices, build the capacity of staff, effectively track and measure building performance, realize significant improvements in health and energy efficiency and achieve cost savings, he said. The Sustainable Performance Institute commended The Housing Company in particular for its strong construction and rehabilitation practices, Lantz said.

"This accreditation reflects our commitment to sustainable practices in all aspects of our operations as we work to create stronger, healthier Idaho communities," said Douglas Peterson, director of The Housing Company. "We don't just talk about being green, we practice it every day - from the way we've implemented sustainable practices at the approximately 30 properties we manage to how we design and build new properties."

Green Organizational Accreditation is part of HUD's Affordable Green Initiative, a pilot program launched in 2012 to support affordable housing organizations. The goal of the initiative is to enable organizations to institutionalize sustainability and achieve higher levels of performance in the management of their housing portfolios.

Twin Falls Habitat for Humanity ReStore Doubled in Size with New Location

The Magic Valley Habitat for Humanity ReStore doubled in size and has a new location at 639 Eastland Dr. S. in Twin Falls, said Linda Fleming, Executive Director.

The ReStore sells new and used building materials at low cost to the public as well as keeping hundreds of thousand of pounds recycled materials from being thrown away every year.

Habitat for Humanity ReStore cut the red ribbon along with the Twin Falls Area Chamber's Ambassadors last week. Re-Store sales support Habitat for Humanity of the Magic Valley's primary objectives of building or remodeling affordable energy efficient houses for low-income families and for the urban residential neighborhood rehabilitation, Fleming said.

The ReStore is open on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Donations are tax deductible.

Kenyan Siege Said To Be in Final Stage

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) . Kenyan security forces were in the final stages of flushing out Islamic extremist terrorists from a besieged shopping mall, the vice president said late Monday, two days after the upscale mall was seized by members of a Somali group linked to al-Qaida.

It is unlikely that any more hostages remained inside Westgate Mall, said another official.

But similar claims of a quick resolution were made by Kenyan officials on Sunday and the siege has continued for another day. It is not possible to independently verify their assertions.

Three attackers were killed in the fighting Monday, officials said, and more than 10 suspects arrested. Eleven Kenyan soldiers were wounded in the running gun battles. By evening, Kenyan security officials claimed the upper hand.

"Taken control of all the floors. We're not here to feed the attackers with pastries but to finish and punish them," Police Inspector General David Kimaiyo said on Twitter.

Kenya's interior minister said the evacuation of hostages "has gone very, very well" and that Kenyan officials are "very certain" that there are few if any hostages left in the building.

Vice President William Ruto landed in Kenya late Monday after International Criminal Court officials in The Hague gave him permission to return to Kenya. Ruto is on trial for crimes against humanity charges over allegations he helped orchestrate Kenya's 2007-08 post-election violence.

Interior Minister Joseph Ole Lenku revised the death toll to 62. Kenyan officials earlier said 59 people have died since the siege on Westgate Mall began Saturday, while the Red Cross had put the toll at 68, then in a tweet lowered it to 62, saying some bodies had been counted twice.

Earlier witness reports had indicated that a woman was among the estimated 10 to 15

Israel Sends Experts to Advise on Kenya Standoff

JERUSALEM (AP) • Scarred by memories of a pair of attacks on Israeli targets in Africa a decade ago, Israel has dispatched a team of experts to its close ally Kenya to advise authorities on the bloody standoff at a Nairobi shopping mall.

While officials refuse to discuss the precise nature of the assistance, Israeli leaders have made it clear they believe the defeat of the al-Qaida militants behind the mall attack will have great meaning around the world.

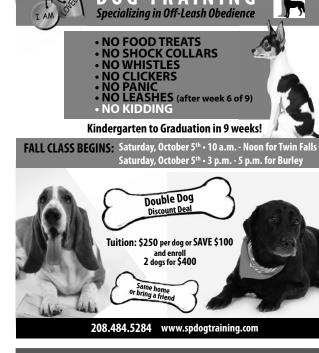

"Israel is always ready to help other coun-attackers. Lenku said that instead some male attackers had dressed up like women.

Dark plumes of smoke rose from the mall for more than an hour Monday afternoon tries, other friendly countries, in combating terrorism. I think that terrorism has become a threat to the entire world and therefore countries - United States, Israel and other Western countries - should cooperate," Yuval Steinitz, Israel's cabinet minister for strategic affairs, told The Associated Press.

Israel has had strong commercial interests across Africa for decades. But only in recent years has it begun to view Africa, particularly eastern Africa, as being of vital strategic interest in the battle against Islamic extremists. One of those groups, Al-Shabab, has claimed responsibility for the Nairobi attack, which has left dozens dead.

COLORADO FLOODING

Death Toll Rises to 8 as Biden Pays Area Visit

DENVER (AP) • A 79-yearold woman whose house was swept away by the Big Thompson River was found dead on the river bank, authorities said Monday, bringing to eight the death toll from the massive flooding in Colorado.

As the number of people unaccounted-for dwindled to six, Vice President Joe Biden viewed the devastation from a helicopter before meeting with disaster workers.

"I promise you, I promise you, there will be help," Biden said, trying to mute concerns that a possible federal government shutdown could derail relief efforts.

The latest victim was identified as Evelyn M. Starner. Larimer County authorities said she drowned and suffered blunt force trauma.

Starner was previously list ed as missing and presumed dead. Authorities initially said she was 80.

Starner was found Saturday. Two other people were still missing and presumed dead – a 60-year-old woman and a 46-year-old man, both from Larimer County.

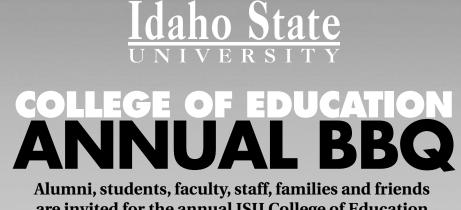

The number of unaccounted for people shrank as improving communications and road access allowed authorities to contact 54 people over the weekend who had not been heard from.

The floods caused damage across 17 counties and nearly 2,000 square miles. Nearly 2,000 homes were damaged or destroyed along with more than 200 miles of state highways and 50 state bridges.

The floods are also blamed for spills of about 27,000 gallons of oil in northern Colorado oilfields, including two mishaps found over the weekend, the Colorado Oil and Gas Conservation Commission said.

The commission said it's tracking eight notable leaks, 10 other locations with some evidence of leaks, and 33 places where oilfield equipment appears damaged but no evidence of spills has been spotted. About 1,300 oil and gas wells remain shut down.

Egypt Brotherhood Ban Opens Way to Wider Crackdown

CAIRO • An Egyptian court on Monday ordered the banning of the Muslim Brotherhood and the confiscation of its assets, opening the door for authorities to dramatically accelerate a crackdown on the extensive network of schools, hospitals, charities and other social institutions that was the foundation of the group's political power.

Security forces have already been moving against the Brotherhood's social networks, raiding schools and hospitals run by the group since the military's July 3 ouster of Islamist President

ATHENS, Greece • Five senior police officers in Greece were replaced Monday after the government ordered anurgent inquiry into alleged links between the police and the farright Golden Dawn party.

The Public Order Ministry said the heads of the police's special forces, internal security, organized crime, firearms and explosives, and a rapidresponse motorcycle division had been moved to other posts pending an investigation into weekend reports in the Greek media that police provided the party with assistance in alleged criminal activity.

Merkel ran for re-election on her basic formula: help financially weak countries but impose harsh conditions, such as deep budget cuts and politically painful economic reforms.

One fact that could affect her policies is that she will change coalition partners. Her previous one, the Free Democrats, did not make it into parliament. So she'll have to share power with one of two left-ofcenter parties, the Greens or more likely — the labor-union backed Social Democrats. The Social Democrats campaigned for less emphasis on austerity in Europe, but they're otherwise mostly in line with Merkel's approach.

Times News

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 24, the 267th day of 2013. There are 98 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Sept. 24, 1976, former hostage Patricia Hearst was sentenced to seven years in prison for her part in a 1974 bank robbery in San Francisco carried out by the Symbionese Liberation Army. Hearst was released after 22 months after receiving clemency from President Jimmy Carter.

On this date:

In 1789, Congress passed a Judiciary Act, which provided for an attorney general and a Supreme Court.

In 1869, thousands of businessmen were ruined in a Wall Street panic known as Black Friday after financiers Jay Gould and James Fisk at tempted to corner the gold market.

In 1929, Lt. James H. Doolittle guided a Consolidated NY-2 Biplane over Mitchel Field in New York in the first all-instrument flight.

In 1948, Mildred Gillars, accused of being Nazi wartime radio propagandist "Axis Sally," pleaded not guilty in Washington, D.C., to charges of treason. Gillars, later convicted, ended up serving 12 years in prison.

In 1955, President Dwight D. Eisenhower suffered a heart attack while on vacation in Denver.

In 1961, "Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color" premiered on NBC.

In 1963, the U.S. Senate ratified a treaty with Britain and the Soviet Union limiting nuclear testing.

In 1969, the trial of the "Chicago Eight" (later seven) began. Five of the defendants were later convicted of crossing state lines to incite riots at the 1968 Democratic National Convention, but the convictions were ultimately overturned.

In 1991, kidnappers in Lebanon freed British hostage Jack Mann after holding him captive for more than two years. Children's author Theodor Seuss Geisel (GY'-zul), better known as Dr. Seuss, died in La Jolla, Calif., at age 87.

In 2001, President George W. Bush ordered a freeze on the assets of 27 people and organizations with suspected links to terrorism, including Islamic militant Osama bin Laden, and urged other nations to do likewise.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Ten years ago: After four turbulent months, three special legislative sessions and two Democratic walkouts, both houses of the Republican-controlled Texas Legislature adopted redistricting plans favoring the GOP. The top candidates vying to replace California Governor Gray Davis joined in a lively debate.

Five years ago: Officials reopened Galveston, Texas, to residents who were warned about Hurricane Ike's debris and disruption of utilities. Japanese lawmakers elected Taro Aso, leader of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party, prime minister.

One year ago: President Barack Obama told the ABC talk show "The View" that the deadly attack earlier in the month on the U.S. diplomatic compound in Benghazi, Libya, was not the result of mob violence; he said "there's no doubt" that the assault wasn't spontaneous. Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney accused Obama of minimizing the Benghazi attack as a mere "bump in the road." Provocative ads began appearing in New York City subways, equating Muslim radicals with savages.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 23year-old woman who still lives at home. I have been working for the last five years and have saved enough to live comfortably on my own. Unfortunately, my parents have forbidden me to do it because they think I'm being manipulated into it by my boyfriend, that I just want to "do whatever I want" and be out until late (although I'm rarely up past 9 p.m. and they know it), and because I "can't stand them" anymore.

I have no privacy! My mail is opened "mistakenly" and my calls are listened in on even when I politely - and sometimes angrily - ask them not to. They have even imposed a rule that I must show them my bank balance weekly.

They have told me I will not leave the house without being married first. I would like to live on my own before I actually marry so I can experience what it's like. This is something I have always wanted to do. If I do move out, they say I'll "bring shame and embarrassment" to the family.

There seems to be a double standard going on here because my older brother has his girlfriend sleep over. How can I accommodate my parents without being disowned?

- FEELING HELP-LESS IN ILLINOIS DEAR FEELING HELP-LESS: Your parents have chosen to ignore that you are an adult, self-supporting and entitled to make your own choices. They may be well-meaning, but they are extremely heavy-handed. Their hypervigilance - opening your mail, eavesdropping on your phone calls and insisting on checking your bank balance weekly - is over the top. They would like you to be "safely" married before you leave their protection.

Is their problem that they disapprove of your boyfriend? If you get a place of your own, do you plan on moving him in? If that's not the case, there is no reason why your living independently might shame or embarrass them.

Not knowing your parents, I can't judge whether their threat to disown you is serious or not. However, if it is, realize it's a form of blackmail, and you will have to decide which is more important – your freedom or their support.

TD C PR THE ACES ON BR

"Greatness is a spiritual condition worthy to excite love, interest, and admiration."

Matthew Arnold

In today's deal, when North doubled a weak two in pass-out seat, South's bid of three hearts promised constructive values since the partnership was playing Lebensohl. With fewer values, South would first have bid two no-trump simply to show a weak hand. After North now optimistically drove to the heart slam. West led the spade two, an obvious singleton.

Had South's club jack been the diamond jack, both of his spade losers could have been discarded. As it was, South had to resort to desperate measures.

The lead was won with dummy's ace, and South's first wish — that the heart 10 would come down doubleton so that two clubs could be ruffed in dummy failed to materialize. So declarer drew West's last trump and was about to settle for the club finesse when he was struck with a better idea.

Instead, he cashed the club king and three rounds of diamonds, discarding a losing spade from hand, then led dummy's fourth diamond. When East failed to follow, South jettisoned his last spade, and West was forced to win the trick. Declarer knew that West now had only clubs left and would be forced to play into his tenace.

If East had shown up with the fourth diamond, declarer would have ruffed the trick and exited with a low club. That would have forced West to win and play back a club into declarer's tenace, allowing both of dummy's spades to be discarded.

ANSWER: Since you have a respectable raise of your partner's suit, you certainly have enough to go to game, and with weak spades and a diamond honor, you should not be afraid of playing three no-trump, even if you have a 5-3 spade fit. Raise to three no-trump with confidence.

DEARABBY: "Lights Out in Federal Way, Wash." (Aug. 13) asked if it was a "sign" that her deceased parents were watching over her when streetlights would go out as she drove under them on her way home.

I understand your desire to give encouragement to someone who has lost her loved ones, but don't you know that many streetlights are light-activated so that after headlights hit them in just the right way they will turn off? After you pass under them, it becomes dark enough again and they will turn back on within a few minutes.

While I'm sure that given the opportunity this girl's parents would watch over her, the streetlights she described have nothing to do with the paranormal but have a scientific and logical explanation.

- SOMEONE'S WATCHINGIN GUILFORD, MO. DEAR WATCHING: While

many readers shared similar experiences, the majority had a logical explanation as you did. However, I still feel that if what she's experiencing brings her comfort, the important thing is what she chooses to believe.

IF SEPTEMBER 24 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Look for a chance to lead others, rise in the ranks on the job, or benefit from a wider range of connections during the upcoming two months. This is a time when you're more focused on achieving recognition in the business world. Once you make a step forward or improve your financial condition, you're unlikely to slip backwards. Any advancement you make in late October or early November is likely to be permanent. Plan to take a vacation or fulfill other fantasies in January or February when your business or financial ideas are on the back burner.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Add more than you subtract. In financial matters, make a conscious effort to avoid careless spending. A key love relationship can be kick-started to restore harmony and serenity

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Someone's example of efficiency can become your role model. Work on a pet project or get up to speed with career matters. Utilize the extra energy and passion at your fingertips.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): No matter how dull and boring routine work seems, or how many obligations you must fulfill, rest assured that things will improve. Your opinions earn respect within social circles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Things from the bargain bin are easily tossed in the trash. Value the lasting things that never waver or fade. Refuse to let hidden inner fears prevent you from being the best you can be.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Pay attention to the poetry in the world around you. Explore the depth of feelings that thrive between you and a loved one. A friendly flirtation could warm up a chilly business situation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It's time to put some plans and ideas in front of others. They say it takes money to make money, but you should try to "make it do or do without." Use networking power, not financial clout, to find success.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A special someone might be quite impressed by your physical prowess or brash self-confidence. This could be a good time to approach someone without seeming overly aggressive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): One is the loneliest number. Find someone to share your day. The great outdoors or competitive sports are highlighted. If you are going to play at anything, resolve to play to win.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't throw away something that's still useful. Transform old things into new ones or find new uses for them. Cash in by having a garage sale, or make a donation to local charity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Count courtesy just like stitches. As you know, a stitch in time saves nine. If you step on toes, beg someone's pardon. Knit back together a relationship that's fallen apart at the seams.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Faithfully follow friends. When the going gets tough, the tough get going, but real friends show their true colors. If your ambition is tweaked, then it's time to apply your skill set like a pro.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your mental acrobatics and logical approach may be unappreciated, but intuitions could be right on the mark. A passing flirtation might bring someone of value into your circle of friends.

"A lot of people, when I describe this to them, they kind of take offense at it. They really focus on the age grouping, but to me that's a really hollow achievement."

He said he feels "wily." His salt and pepper hair pokes out from under his ball cap. He knows his body. He knows how to respond when challenged. And he knows to not take it too seriously.

That last part came in handy Saturday when he slipped from a zippy sixth place to a trudging 17th. He fell victim to one of his own bailiwicks - fueling his body through the race.

With no food in his belly or stores of carbohydrates left, the 127-pound Youngman started to burn his fat reserves. He started to climb the 11,000foot Standhope Pass on empty. He nearly passed out.

"A younger guy doesn't have the confidence that they are going to be able to come back from a (race complication), that they might drop, really slow down, give up. Older guy? 'Eh, I'll make my way through this?"

At 45, second-place finisher Kelly Lance said he understands what Youngman means

"Old guys have old man strength," the Pocatello runner said. "And they've got patience and more to run for. It is not all on testosterone."

Once at Betty Lake's aid station, Youngman slurped a soda and gulped watermelon and apple slices – a direct shot of sugar and carbohydrates.

"You can feel it," he said. "All of a sudden the game has changed."

An ultramarathon actually is more of an eating contest, Youngman said. But it's also a harvest of the intense training required to run one.

He runs about 90 miles a week. His body doesn't complain, but he knows he has a harder time developing and recovering.

"It has taken me two seasons to develop the muscle structure that I would have developed in half a season when I was younger," he said. With a doctorate in physics, Youngman trains like a scientist. He plots detailed statistics - distance, vertical climb, time on feet and training load so he can analyze his runs. He reads studies and running philosophy.

"The thing with ultrarunning is it's all about the training," he said. "If you don't like the training, it is not really the place to go."

While his training is complex, the reason Youngman likes to run is its simplicity. In cycling, one talks about the weight of the frame. In skiing, one is concerned with wax, poles and clothing.

All of those sports were about equipment. Running ultramarathons is simple you against yourself against the Earth. Man against self.

Because of its simplicity, Youngman said, it is a mental sport. Don't lose focus. And try not to be anxious. Somewhere along the trail, something always goes wrong. On Saturday, it was his food, not his focus.

But as he slung his drop bag over his shoulder and walked toward his car, Youngman said he'd learn.

"You go and you don't do what you want to do, but you learn a lot and you can use that down the road," he said. "So you always have a good experience."

podium but was a little hesitant about the run's final descent into Broad Canyon.

"Then Kelly just came ripping by me," he said gasping for air. "I'm glad he came by me because he showed me how much faster I could be going downhill."

Lance, voice breaking with emotion, said he found the courage to "kill" the descents thanks to AC/DC's "Runaway Train." Lance, 45, finished just two minutes behind Gaitan - a near photo finish in the world of ultramarathons.

Coming across the finish line, he let fly a primal scream among the sounds of cowbells and applause. It was a stark contrast to Gaitan's sly finish, which took the crowd by surprise.

"That guy can do more," Gaitan remarked.

"I don't even know what I did," Lance said. "Did I shout? Might have been my wife."

Of the 47 runners who registered for the race, 36 finished. The other 11 either started the race early and were not counted or dropped from the course, race director Ben Blessing said.

In its first year, the race took runners from the Park Creek campground, along the base of The Devil's Bedstead, across Kane Creek, up Wildhorse Canyon and down along Fall Creek before sending them up 4,000 feet to the area near Standhope Peak and Betty Lake - elevation 11,000 feet - before deinto Broad scending Canyon.

The race originally was planned to start with a grueling stretch near Phi Kappa Mountain, but it was rerouted after Blessing and others found it to be too tough. Few runners complained about the switch.

Between three peaks, runners climbed a total of 10,000 feet in elevation. The lowest altitude runners saw was 7,200 feet, Blessing said.

"Dude, it is a really gnarly mountain run," Blessing said. "It is probably, on a scale of one to 10, it would be an eight or a nine."

Boise runner Brian Snyder, who helped Blessing tag and mark the trail, said the race's final climb nearly made him throw up.

"The altitude of Standhope Pass, when I was only doing it after 8 miles it felt fine, but after 20some odd miles it is all you can do to remember to breathe," said Snyder, who finished sixth. "You start feeling sick and you start spinning. Good stuff."

Runners immediately began drawing comparisons between Standhope 60K and other famous ultramarathons.

"Hardrock has nothing on this," Hart said, referring to a famous 100-mile race through Colorado's San Juan Mountains.

"Yes!" Blessing said, throwing his arms in the air.

"It was unbelievable, beautiful, killer and that last climb? Oh, you just had to dig for that too," Hart said, sweat rolling down his nose. "It's a great course, it'll challenge anybody. Let's get (superstar ultramarathoner) Kilian Jornet out here and punish him on this course." Gaitan said he finished the Leadville Silver Rush 50 in Colorado and ranked Standhope on par with that terrain. The Leadville 100 ranks as one of the toughest ultramarathons in the sport.

"Just the sheer up and down was intense," he said.

Blessing said he plans to make the race an annual event but may move the date to better accommodate Idaho's other summer races.

"It seems like everybody is pretty thrilled about the course and everybody looks like they are pretty wiped out at the finish," he said, smiling.

Improving our hospital, our patients' lives and the community

Gassia Regional Medical Center is expanding its Emergency and Imaging departments. We're growing and improving to better care for our patients. We're adding new technology, new patient areas, an in-house MRI, and a telehealth suite - all so you can stay close to home for your healthcare. We're still Cassia Regional Medical Center, but with a new look and outlook.

The closure is a disappointment for the Mini-Cassia area and the state, said Jan Roeser, south-cenhigh agricultural production is the biggest boon to the economy, the Department of Labor affirmed.

"You look at Cassia County, and it's the top ag-producing county in the state with over $600 million in ag tral Idaho economist for Idaho Department of Labor.

"It is a real blow to the area because of two things," Roeser said. "A lot of the skills that these workers have are construction skills, and that's an industry that took a big hit during the recession. The (Dutchmen) company never lost momentum during the recession. It was always a strong company, so we hate to see a stable employer like that leave."

Roeser pointed to another Mini-Cassia manufacturer as a bright spot in the gray news.

"McCain chose to expand their company and to grow and renovate," said Roeser. "We have investment in the area, and we have a lot of confidence in the Mini-Cassia area."

McCain Foods USA spent more than $15 million on improvements to its Burley potato processing plant over recent years.

The company bought the plant from Ore-Ida Foods Inc. in 1997, and the sprawling 476,000-square-foot plant needed significant upgrades.

Roeser also said many Idaho employers are looking for workers with construction skills and experience.

receipts. That's pretty amazing," said Roeser. "It's really a plus for that area. It keeps the food processing plants busy, and it attracts other supporting industry. It (the Dutchmen closure) is a blow, but we're leaving individuals with skills that can transfer into other industries."

Aram Koltookian, an executive vice president of Dutchmen, addressed the company's reasons in a news release Monday.
