‘We Can Grow From This’

The Dutchmen plant’s exodus will be a blow to Burley’s tax base and employment figures.

BY C. COLT CRANE
ccrane@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • The Dutchmen plant in Burley will close up shop by Nov. 15 and the Indiana-based recreational vehicle manufacturer will take about 150 jobs with it.

Dutchmen Manufacturing came to Burley in 2007 with the help of state and local government entities. Former Idaho governor Jim Risch presented more than $1.5 million in state funds to help the manufacturer start producing travel trailers at its Burley site.

Dutchmen’s pending closure is another chapter in the decade-long roller coaster of manufacturing in the Mini-Cassia region. It’s an industrial landscape that’s seen significant investment since 2004, but also lost some large-scale manufacturers.

Dutchmen’s exodus — a blow to the city’s tax base and employment figures — leaves behind ready-to-use infrastructure, city officials said. The buildings Dutchmen is leaving, for example, are a potentially attractive asset to would-be tenants.

“There are a lot of things that this community has done right. It’s a shame to see Dutchmen go, but they are leaving a perfectly good building,” said Burley Mayor Terry Greenman. “We have people coming to this state looking for an existing facility. That’s just another opportunity.”

Burley Mayor Terry Greenman

From 2004 to 2012, Burley was able to bring in more than 10 notable businesses to help boost its economy, the state Department of Labor reports. Coast to Coast Carports, Mull-holland Positioning Systems and Hy-Line N.A. are among the list of businesses that have bolstered the town’s economy.

But a string of closures over the same period — JR Simplot, Kraft Cheese and now Dutchmen — cast a shadow over the future of manufacturing in Burley.

Simplot’s closure and the Great Recession in 2008 hit Cassia County especially hard. Unemployment jumped from 3.7 percent in September 2008 to 6.8 percent by September 2010, according to the Labor Department. That number has ticked down to 5.7 percent as of August, a full percentage point below the state average.

The loss of 600 jobs at Simplot in 2003 “woke” Burley up, Greenman said.

“Since that time, 38-plus businesses have come to town to replace all of those jobs and more. Sometimes when things happen, it isn’t a negative,” Greenman said. “It’s a wake-up call so we can see for ourselves who we really are and what we can do to invite businesses.”

Greenman also cited the McCain Foods expansion that was currently in progress for Burley.

“They’re going to build a new plant here and, from what I understand, it will have 140-some employees with a $54 million payroll. That’s huge.”

Watco LLC came to Burley in 2013 bringing with it 30 jobs and a $2.5 million annual payroll. In addition to Watco and the McCain Foods expansion, DOT Foods is currently expanding its presence in the Mini-Cassia area.

Per-capita income in Cassia County, with its historic reliance on agriculture, has lagged well behind the state. But local earnings surpassed the state average in 2010, as the local economy evolved into a more industrial one.

And, though the occasional closure stains a decade of growth, the general trends leave local officials optimistic about the future.

“We are a strong community,” Greenman said. “We can grow from this.”

Twin Falls Man Dies in Idaho 25 Crash

TIMES-NEWS

JEROME • A Twin Falls man died in a Tuesday evening crash on Idaho Highway 25, the Idaho State Police said Wednesday morning.

Delmis D. Beedle, 74, died of his injuries at the scene.

At about 9 p.m. Tuesday, near milepost 4 in Jerome County, Beedle was eastbound in a 2007 Pontiac G6. His vehicle struck the rear of a 2000 Kenworth driven by Jose J. Zarazua Zavala, 61, of Twin Falls, also east-bound.

Beedle was wearing his seat belt at the time of the crash, ISP said.

All lanes on Idaho 25 were blocked for about five hours. The crash is still under investigation.

Man Arrested in Connection with Heyburn Murder

BY C. COLT CRANE

EDINBURG, Texas • Almost two months after Craig Glen Short was found dead at Christopher Cruz’s residence in Heyburn, Cruz was arrested in Edinburg, Texas on Tuesday.

After the Aug. 2 shooting of Short, about 50 officers were on scene from the Minidoka and Cassia county sheriffs’ offices, the Heyburn Police Department and Idaho State Police. Idaho Fish and Game officers helped secure the scene, where evidence was processed for 12 hours.

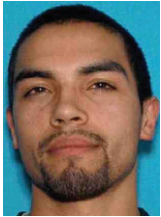

The case involved more than two homes and “a lot of evidence,” Minidoka County Sheriff Eric Snarr said at the time, declining to elaborate.

Cruz, 21, was suspected of shooting Short at Cruz’s residence at 423 S. 850 W., after a witness fled the scene to call 911.

A manhunt was launched and Cruz was declared “armed and dangerous.”

At the time of the shooting, police were searching for Cruz and a possible accomplice, girlfriend Stephanie Pauline Juarez, 32, of Heyburn. Juarez has not been charged, but she remains a person of interest in the case.

Cruz is being held at the Hidalgo County Sheriff’s Office in Edinburg, Texas on a $1 million bond for charges of first-degree murder and

One Body Recovered at Craters of the Moon

Search to resume for second missing woman.

BY JOHN SOWELL
Idaho Statesman

The search will resume early today for the second of two Boise women missing after a trip to Craters of the Moon National Monument.

A body had been recovered just before dark Wednesday about two miles from a popular Craters trailhead parking lot. Butte County Sheriff Wes Collins said the dead woman is “definitely” one of the missing hikers. The identity of the dead woman will be released this morning after family are notified, Collins said.

Jo Elliott-Blakeslee

“It definitely looked like she had gotten lost and was trying to hike out,” Collins said.

Jo Elliott-Blakeslee, 63, a physician at the Eastern Oregon Correctional Institution in Ontario, and Amelia Linkert, a retired special-education teacher at Lowell Scott Middle School in Meridian who turns 70 today, were scheduled to return from Craters of the Moon on Saturday, two days after they arrived at the monument southwest of Arco.

Friends and relatives described the women as experienced in the outdoors and unlikely to leave their dogs for long.

Friend and former colleague Deanna Salazar-Brown said Elliott-Blakeslee spends a lot of time outdoors and visits Hawaii each year.

“It doesn’t surprise me that she was hiking and camping over there,” Salazar-Brown said. “I’m really stunned and concerned to learn she’s missing.”

The two women parked their trailer at a KOA campground in Arco, about 22 miles northeast of the monument, Monument Superintendent Dan Buckley said. Their two labradoodle dogs and cellphones were found in a pickup truck parked at the Tree Molds Trailhead at the south end of the monument’s popular driving loop and hiking trails.

Collins said he does not think the women were victims of a crime. Their purses and other items were still inside the truck parked at the trailhead.

“We’re open to any possibility, but we don’t see any signs of foul play,” Collins said.

“An Evening of Jazz and Memories” at 7 p.m. at Twin Falls Center for the Arts, 195 River Vista Place. Tickets: $10, $13.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Wal-Mart, Washington Worries Whack Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) • Wal-Mart spooked the stock market Wednesday — helping push stocks lower for a fifth straight day.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 61 points, or 0.4 percent, to 15,273.26. The Dow was dragged down by Wal-Mart after Bloomberg News reported that the world's biggest retailer is cutting orders with suppliers as unsold merchandise piles up.

TWIN FALLS • Mrs. Clarence Smith knew the airplane was in trouble when she saw it, so she kept her eyes on its lights until it passed overhead.

That night in 1955, the Smith family was on its way from their home in Twin Falls to a Christmas party in Jerome. As they crossed the Perrine Memorial Bridge in their Chevrolet station wagon, they spotted the lights of a plane coming at them, barely 500 feet off the ground.

Above them, U.S. Air Force Lt. Clyde Seller was preparing to make an emergency landing on Highway 93.

Seller was flying a T33 Air Force jet from Williams Air Force Base in Arizona to Mountain Home when his instruments failed at 40,000 feet. Unable to see lights at the Twin Falls Municipal Airport, Seller looked for another place to land.

He circled his jet three times over Highway 93 north of Twin Falls before deciding to bring it down on the highway. The Smith family spotted the plane southbound on its third pass.

Seller turned and made a northbound landing on the two-lane highway north of the bridge. According to news reports, Seller flew the jet under high-powered electric lines before touching the ground.

The 100-mph landing would have been perfect, if it hadn't been for the 40-mph station wagon in the road. Mrs. Smith knew almost immediately what had hit them.

"There was a flash of light, an explosion like a bomb," Mrs. Smith told the Times-News after the wreck. "The car rocked violently but while things made by man were demolished, things made by God remained intact."

Sellers tried to brake the plane. Smith — unaware of the aircraft behind him — wasn't in a big hurry.

ONLINE: Man Disassembles One Vacant House, Stores Parts in Another

Crime reporter Alison Gene Smith's blog, dubbed "Scanner Traffic," gives you a behind-the-scenes look at her beat. An excerpt from her latest post:

"A Twin Falls property owner had a nasty surprise when he discovered someone had stolen the metal awnings on a vacant house he owned. The story got stranger when he discovered that the awnings along with scrap metal and some clothing were being stored in another house he owned, right next door. "I've read about squatters using a vacant house for living quarters before, so it's a good idea to keep vacant houses locked tight. Most of the time it appears someone was just looking for a warm place to stay overnight, but I've also read police reports of drug use or burglaries in vacant properties.

"I've also read a lot about scrap metal theft — but never had squatting and metal theft been combined in one report. ..."

Week's Cold Temperatures Won't Last Much Longer

The cold air this week is a rude reminder that winter is just around the corner.

Many of the mountain locations across southern Idaho have seen their first snow of the season. The good news is that the cold fall weather is just a speed bump to the fall season. Higher temperatures will return by the weekend and early next week.

The raw, cold and showery weather will continue for today. Upper level storms will keep the moisture and cold temperatures in place for most of the day. The bulk of the showers will occur in the morning into early afternoon. Afternoon temperatures will only reach the low 50s and some snow is still possible in the northern and southern mountains. Winds won't be nearly as gusty, but off and on rain showers are possible.

As the storm system exits to the east into Wyoming Friday, it will dry out across the region, but it will remain chilly. Afternoon temperatures will be in the mid to upper 50s. The weekend will feature sunny skies and warmer temperatures, Saturday will reach the upper 60s and by Sunday we will be back into 70s.

Area Mental Health Care Provider Seeks $15 M in Damages with State Lawsuit

Seasons of Hope takes first steps toward suing after closing Burley, Twin Falls location under fraud allegations.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

POCATELLO • A Pocatello mental health care provider that closed its Burley and Twin Falls operations has taken the first step toward suing the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

The Idaho State Journal reports Seasons of Hope filed a tort claim contending the business sustained damages in excess of $15 million after the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare suspended its Medicaid provider status amid a fraud investigation earlier this year.

A district judge found in June that Seasons of Hope didn't commit any fraud but he did order the company to pay the Department of Health and Welfare about $94,000.

In the tort claim, Seasons of Hope says the Department of Health and Welfare was trying to put the company out of business by launching the investigation. Under state law, a party that wants to sue the state must first notify the potential defendant by filing a tort claim requesting damages.

If the state denies the tort claim or fails to respond within 180 days, a lawsuit may be filed.

Seasons of Hope once had more than 100 employees in seven offices throughout southern and eastern Idaho. But in March, the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare notified the company that its Medicaid provider status was being suspended.

The letter also said department officials believed Seasons of Hope owed about $449,000 for fraudulent Medicaid claims. As a result, the company closed its offices. Meanwhile, Seasons of Hope owner Heath Sommer appealed the Health and Welfare Department's actions.

After a hearing, District Judge Peter McDermott said that billing errors didn't amount to fraud and he reversed the suspension. The Department of Health and Welfare has since appealed the judge's decision, and Department Director Richard Armstrong has roughly six weeks to make a decision on the appeal.

Meanwhile, at least 19 former employees of Seasons of Hope have filed a lawsuit against the company in Pocatello's 6th District Court contending that they are owed wages and other benefits lost when the company closed its doors.

In the tort claim against the state, Seasons of Hope includes those wages and benefits as part of its claims for damages against the Department of Health and Welfare.

Finding the Balance at Auger Falls

Citizens and Twin Falls city planners meet to discuss future plans for the park.

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Striking a balance between public access and preserving a precious resource. That's the challenge that city planners face as plans move forward to develop Auger Falls.

In 2005, a group of citizens met to discuss what they wanted for the future of the near-600-acre, city-owned area around Auger Falls.

Wednesday, several original members, along with some new faces, met to see if the plan was on track.

Access to the falls was closed after Memorial Day to allow work to begin on the Auger Falls pipeline project.

At Wednesday's meeting, city engineer Lee Glaesemann said access is set to re-open mid- to late-October.

During the pipeline project, the road into the area has been widened and straightened out, getting rid of blind corners and other hazards.

But what's next for the area?

Much of Wednesday's meeting focused on how to balance the many uses for Auger Falls — hiking, bicycling, river access, bird watching and more — with the natural and historical resources that need to be protected.

Glaesemann and Dennis Bowyer, city parks and recreation director, outlined the history of the access to the area and what the future might hold.

Right now, there are no plans for restrooms or paved roads through the park, and access might be limited during certain parts of the year, like critical nesting periods for birds, Bowyer said.

Everyone should be able to see Auger Falls, but the challenge will be keeping visitors in designated areas, he said.

"If we just swing open the gates and let people in 24 hours a day, we're afraid that they'll love it to death," Glaesemann said.

Possibilities for development include hiking trails, a mountain bike trail, historical signage and other interpretive sites, scenic lookouts, an educational day camp and river access restoring, all while restoring natural areas and preserving important historical sites like the Urie Homestead.

Wetlands filled by treated wastewater, to support water birds and other wildlife year-round, are also in the works.

Fires in 2005 and 2010 burned black swaths through formerly green wildlife corridors.

"There was some great wildlife habitat that we lost," Glaesemann said.

Additional water features and green spaces with native plants will help reduce wildfire danger, he said.

"Perennial native or near-native plants are less sparse and the fire doesn't like to burn through as hot or fast," he said.

City planners shouldn't rush into the restoration of the area, said Lance Bennett, with Conservation Seeding and Restoration.

"It took 150 years to degrade the area," Bennett said. "It's going to take time to get it back to native or semi-native."

Karl Ruprecht, with the Prairie Falcon chapter of the National Audubon Society, said he first walked the road between the wastewater plant and the current parking lot when he was 5-years-old.

Ruprecht said he was a little sad that the road has been widened, but in the long run, can see positive change coming to the area.

"Hopefully the ends justify the means," he said.

Testimony Continues in St. Luke's Trial

BY AUDREY DUTTON
Idaho Statesman

BOISE • Videotaped testimony shown Wednesday in the trial against St. Luke's Health System revealed that health insurance plans for Idaho Power and Boise School District were designed to steer employees to Saint Alphonsus Health System. But the incentives didn't work.

For the school district, Regence BlueShield of Idaho's plan charged less for coinsurance at Saint Alphonsus hospitals than at other hospitals, said Scott Clement, a former Regence vice president.

The Regence plan for Idaho Power "involved ... the payment of an amount to Idaho Power employees who sought services from [Saint Alphonsus providers]," Clement said in his video deposition.

"It wasn't driving business, it just wasn't meeting expectations that both Idaho Power and Saint Al's had [about] how it would perform," Clement said.

The trial in U.S. District Court in Boise is considering whether St. Luke's broke antitrust laws when it bought Saltzer Medical Group, a Nampa business that employed a large share of the primary care providers in the area.

The Federal Trade Commission, Idaho Attorney General Lawrence Wasden, Saint Alphonsus and Treasure Valley Hospital allege that St. Luke's broke the law. Among other things, they say the buyout gives St. Luke's too much bargaining power with health insurance companies. Health insurers figure prominently in the case.

Judge B. Lynn Winmill's courtroom was closed for most of the day Wednesday, the third day of the four-week trial. It was open in the morning for Clement's testimony and briefly in the afternoon for the start of testimony from an executive who was involved in a health network designed for Micron Technology.

The courtroom was closed for testimony from six witnesses.

Feds: Vegas Police Better at Tracking Use of Force

BY KEN RITTER
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS • The head of a federal law enforcement oversight group credited Las Vegas police Wednesday with upgrading training, keeping better track of how and when officers use deadly force, and instituting a pilot program to put cameras on the uniforms of some officers.

The acting head of the U.S. Justice Department’s Community Oriented Policing Services told reporters that the Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department has addressed or completed all but nine of 80 reforms called for in a report the agency made public 10 months ago.

“We’re talking significant progress in a matter of months, COPS Acting Director Joshua Ederheimer said at a news conference with U.S. Attorney Daniel Bogden and Clark County Sheriff Doug Gillespie.

Ederheimer noted that other police departments take years or decades to implement reforms, and said the collaborative COPS review appeared to be having an effect in Las Vegas.

“The number of officer-involved shootings is gradually declining, he said.

After peaking at 25 shootings in 2010, Las Vegas police were involved in 17 officer-involved shootings in 2011, 11 in 2012 and 10 so far this year, the report said. Four people died in police shootings in 2012, and two this year, department officials said.

Ederheimer, Bogden and Gillespie said some of the nine unresolved recommendations depended on action by other agencies, such as a proposal that the Clark County district attorney dedicate resources to more fully investigate officer-involved shootings.

Other recommendations, like a call for training and evaluating Las Vegas police officers on their ability to de-escalate tense confrontations, weren’t assessed yet but would be made part of a final report due in February, Ederheimer said.

One, which would have police officers involved in on-duty shootings provide statements to criminal investigators, may never be implemented, the report said. It said police unions were directing Las Vegas officers involved in shootings not to cooperate with deadly force investigations.

The head of the Las Vegas Police Protective Association, Chris Collins, disputed that finding. He said officers routinely cooperate in several layers of post-shooting departmental and administrative reviews. But he said officers are advised not to provide statements in legal proceedings unless they are granted so-called Garrity protection from criminal prosecution — meaning their words won’t be used to self-incriminate them.

COPS was enlisted in January 2012 to study Las Vegas police use-of-force policies and practices aimed at cutting the number of officer-involved shootings, after a series of high-profile police shootings and a Las Vegas Review-Journal analysis that tallied 142 people killed by Las Vegas police in a little more than a decade. The newspaper investigation concluded that Las Vegas police were quicker to the trigger than officers in other similarly sized cities.

COPS officials on Wednesday termed the resulting review a “collaborative reform model.

Gillespie, the elected chief of a Las Vegas police force that includes about 3,200 sworn police and jail officers and 1,500 civilians, has announced he won’t seek a third term as sheriff. But he promised the reforms would continue.

“Actions speak louder than words, Gillespie said. “We were, we are and we continue to be committed to these reforms,” Ederheimer noted that his agency planned to use the Las Vegas experience in similar police practices reviews of departments in Philadelphia and Spokane, Wash.

Lawyer: Manning’s Gender Issues Being Assessed

BY DAVID DISHNEAU AND MICHELLE R. SMITH
Associated Press

BRISTOL, R.I. • The lawyer who defended Army Pvt. Chelsea Manning against charges of leaking classified information said Wednesday that his client is being assessed at a military prison for gender identity disorder, and that he’s hopeful the military will allow Manning to receive hormone therapy.

Civilian attorney David Coombs spoke to more than 150 students and faculty at Roger Williams University School of Law, where he has taught. Manning, previously known as Bradley, is serving a 35-year sentence for a July conviction on espionage and other offenses for sending more than 700,000 documents and some battlefield video to the anti-secrecy website WikiLeaks. She said after she was sentenced that she wishes to live as a woman and receive hormone therapy. The military previously said it does not provide it.

Coombs said the military prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., brought in an expert, whom he would not identify, to assess Manning’s overall health, including her previously diagnosed gender dysphoria — the sense that she is a woman in a man’s body. Manning was diagnosed with gender dysphoria by two Army behavioral health specialists before her trial, but the Army has said prisoners must be re-evaluated when they are moved to a new facility.

“They seem to be a person with the heart in the right place. They want to make sure they get the call right and they do what is in the best interest of Chelsea,” Coombs said.

“I have confidence that they’re going to do an honest appraisal, so I’m hoping that when they do that, that results in that treatment,” Coombs added after the talk. “I think the facility is doing all the right things at this point, looking at it and not ruling anything out.”

A Fort Leavenworth spokeswoman said she forwarded questions from The Associated Press about Manning’s status to the U.S. Disciplinary Barracks but did not receive an immediate response.

Briton Relaxes After Grueling Solo Trek

BY RACHEL D’ORO
Associated Press

ANCHORAGE, Alaska • Sarah Outen can be excused for being a bit of a slacker this week, relatively speaking, having just become the first woman to row solo from Japan to Alaska across the North Pacific Ocean.

The 28-year-old British adventurer is taking a brief break in a small town in Alaska’s Aleutian Islands. Outen, of Oakham, England, arrived in Adak late Monday after 150 days and 3,750 miles at sea in her boat, Happy Socks.

Outen said Wednesday that the journey has been the most amazing adventure of her life, full of the highest highs and the lowest lows. She’s experienced unforgettable encounters with whales, sharks and the blackest nights exploding with stars. She’s battled fierce storms, whiteout fog, exhaustion and a close call with a cargo ship, not to mention the challenge of living in a tiny space amid the turmoil of the ocean while all alone.

There were times deep desperation set in.

“It’s a pretty relentless place, she said. “It really contrasts the feeling of just contentment. When things go right and it feels good and you’re happy to be there, it’s just a magical feeling to be alone in the ocean.

Idaho Aquarium, Workers Guilty in Fla. Fish Scheme

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) • An Idaho aquarium and two of its workers have pleaded guilty in Florida to illegally scheming to purchase and transport marine wildlife, including sharks and rays.

Federal court records show the guilty pleas were entered Tuesday in Key West by Idaho Aquarium Inc. and two of its officers: Ammon Covino and Christopher Conk, both 40. Prosecutors say the conspiracy involved spotted eagle rays and lemon sharks that were intended for display at the aquarium.

Authorities intercepted communications in which Covino and Conk told Florida suppliers to ignore the law and make the shipments. Each faces up to five years in prison.

Under a plea agreement, the aquarium will pay a $10,000 criminal fine, be placed on probation and make a $50,000 donation to the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation.

Pittsburgh-area Kindergarten has 10 Sets of Twins

ALLISON PARK, Pa. (AP) • A Pittsburgh-area elementary school has a novel way to acclimate its kindergartners to the school experience, but it's not a technique that can be easily shared with other schools.

Burchfield Elementary School's brand-new kindergarten class has 10 sets of twins. That means 20 out of 100 pupils in the affluent suburban school's kindergarten program started the year with at least one close friend.

Principal Jeff Rojik said that kindergartners are often nervous about starting school but that the twins are helping with that transition.

"You often have times where you have kids who are nervous about coming to school, who are anxious and have a lot of apprehension," Rojik told KDKA-TV. "But so far, with 20 twins in a set of 100 students, it's a nice transition. They have a brother or a sister to help them get through the tough times."

Sally Engel agrees that it's nice to have her brother, Cy, in the same class.

"Whenever you want someone to play with and you don't have anybody else, you've got somebody in your family — you have a twin," Sally said.

Rojik said the kindergarten class isn't the only one with a glut of multiple birthed-siblings. The school's first grade has four sets of twins and one set of triplets.

"It could be in the water," Rojik quipped.

Black Bear Leaves Juneau Bar on Bartender's Command

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) • If only all unwelcome bar guests were this obliging.

A black bear walked into the bar at the Alaskan Hotel in downtown Juneau on Monday night.

Bartender Ariel Svetlik-McCarthy says she freaked out and yelled, "No bear! Get out! No! You can't be in here!"

The bear complied, leaving the bar within seconds.

State biologist Ryan Scott says it's rare for black bears to go inside Juneau businesses, but they have wandered inside homes before.

He tells KTOO the staff did a great job, and it was good news the bear left.

State wildlife officials have killed two nuisance bears in Juneau this summer.

USPS Seeks Increase in Cost of Stamps, to 49 Cents

WASHINGTON (AP) • It soon could cost 49 cents to mail a letter.

The postal Board of Governors said Wednesday it wants to raise the price of a first-class stamp by 3 cents, citing the agency's "precarious financial condition" and the uncertain prospects for postal overhaul legislation in Congress.

"Of the options currently available to the Postal Service to align costs and revenues, increasing postage prices is a last resort that reflects extreme financial challenges," board chairman Mickey Barnett wrote customers.

The rate proposal must be approved by the independent Postal Regulatory Commission. If the commission accepts it, the increase would become effective Jan. 26.

Under federal law the post office cannot raise its prices more than the rate of inflation unless it gets approval from the commission. In seeking the increase, Barnett cited "extraordinary and exceptional circumstances which have contributed to continued financial losses" by the agency.

Nevada Black Bears on the Prowl for Food

BY SANDRA CHEREB
Associated Press

CARSON CITY, Nev. • Nevada's black bears are on the prow for high calorie comfort food to pack on pounds before winter.

The increased bear activity is keeping biologists with the Nevada Department of Wildlife busy to make sure the hungry bruins don't get into trouble by getting too close to people.

Wildlife officials also want residents to do their part by limiting easy pickings that attract foraging bears and lure them into situations that could lead to their death.

Trash is a No. 1 menace. Bears that become addicted to trash can lose a fear of humans, instead associating them with food. Such bears can become aggressive, a trait that many times leads to them being destroyed as a public safety hazard.

Garbage, bird feeders, pet food and fruit trees also provide tasty buffets for bears.

"People with fruit trees are asked to pick ripened fruit from the trees and off the ground as soon as possible in order to avoid any problems with bears," NDOW biologist Carl Lackey said Wednesday. "We need to keep people and property safe and these bears wild."

This is the time of year when bears develop a voracious appetite and increase their daily caloric intake from 3,000 calories per day to 25,000 or more.

It's a physiological change known as hyperphagia, when bears eat as much as they can to put on as much fat as possible to sustain them through winter hibernation.

"Nothing much gets in the bear's way when they are this hungry," Lackey said.

This week alone, NDOW said there has been a sharp increase in bear activity in the foothills and valleys of western Nevada, from Verdi and Reno to Topaz Ranch Estates in Douglas County and Yerington in Lyon County.

In recent days, at least five bears have been struck and killed by vehicles, another indication that they are on the move in search of food, NDOW spokesman Chris Healy said. The latest casualty was Saturday night in the Foothill Road area of Douglas County.

Game Warden Mike McCusker said the agency has four bear traps and all have been set out to capture bears that have gotten too comfortable around civilization.

"The goal is to trap these bears, perform aversion conditioning and release the bears, unharmed but chastised, back into the wild," he said.

With aversion therapy, bears are shot with rubber bullets and chased by Karelian bear dogs when they are released. The idea is to make bears uncomfortable around people and alter their behavior.

The agency has used the tactic nearly 400 times since the late 1990s.

Change Proposed in Critical Habit for Lynx in US

SEATTLE (AP) • The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has proposed a revision in the critical habitat designation for a species of lynx listed as threatened under the Endangered Species Act.

The proposal would designate more than 41,000 square miles within the states of Maine, Minnesota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Wyoming as critical habitat for the Canada lynx.

The federal government is asking for public comment on aspects of the proposal, including whether areas where the lynx have recently moved into, including parts of New Hampshire and Vermont, should be added to the critical habitat.

The proposed revision comes after several snowmobiling groups launched unsuccessful legal challenges of the previously designated critical habitat.

As part of the proposal announced Wednesday, federal officials said they considering excluding more than 1,900 square miles of tribal lands within the states of Maine, Montana and Washington.

The new critical habitat adds some land as well, including some private timber lands in northern Maine, as well as Bureau of Land Management and National Park Service land in northeastern Wyoming. The lynx have been protected since 2000.

The Center for Biological Diversity applauded the Fish and Wildlife proposal, saying the extra space could help the rare wildcat whose population has been reduced by trapping and habitat loss.

"Like many animals, Canada lynx need quiet places free of disturbance from snowmobiles and other human activities to survive, so we're thrilled the Fish and Wildlife Service has proposed expanding their critical habitat," said Noah Greenwald, endangered species director at the Center for Biological Diversity.

The federal government has also asked the public to consider whether some lands in Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming and Washington should be considered essential habitat, in part because they connect the places where lynx live.

OBITUARIES

Helen Uhrich Eyraud

May 14, 1925-Sept. 22, 2013

RUPERT • Helen Uhrich Eyraud went to be with her Lord and Savior on Sunday, Sept. 22, 2013, at the age of 88 at Parke View Nursing Home.

She was born May 14, 1925, in Fort Morgan, Colo., to John and Katie Klauser. She was the youngest of eight children. In 1930, the family moved to the Mini-Cassia area, where she attended school and worked until her marriage in 1942 to Paul Uhrich. They farmed in the Paul area until 1961, when they moved to Boise where she worked in various retail stores. To this union, three children were born, Gary, Roger and Sylvia. They divorced in 1975m and she returned to the Rupert area.

On Oct. 10, 1976, she married Louis Eyraud at Rupert. Louie passed away in March of 1983 after a long battle with cancer. During their marriage, they resided in Rupert and she worked at Stokers Dairy until she retired at the age of 69. She attended the United Methodist Church in Rupert.

She loved to sew and bake and created many beautiful quilts and articles of clothing for family and friends. Everyone enjoyed her baking and will always remember her coffee cake and banana bread. She spent many hours working in her flowers.

She is survived by a son, Gary (Judy) Uhrich of Clarkston, Wash.; a daughter-in-law, Disa Uhrich of Rupert; a daughter, Sylvia (Warren) Daniel of Nampa; five grandchildren, Robert (Lauri) Uhrich of Asotin, Wash., Paulette Orts of Boise, Crystal (Danny) Debban of Nampa, Maria (Dennis) Smith of Las Vegas, Nev., and Ava Page of Draper, Utah. She had 15 great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her parents; four brothers, Ed, Alex, Albert and Harry Klauser; a sister, Lydia Galassini; a brother and sister who died as infants; her son, Roger; and three grandchildren, Katte, Brian and Julie Uhrich.

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 28, at Hansen Mortuary, 710 Sixth St. in Rupert. A private burial service will be held in the Paul Cemetery under the direction of Joel Heward Hansen Mortuary.

Mary Lowry

Oct. 7, 1938-Sept. 25, 2013

RUPERT • Mary Lowry returned home Wednesday, Sept. 25, 2013. She died peacefully, surrounded by her family. She fought cancer courageously and with hope to the very end.

Mary was born Oct. 7, 1938 in Ogden, Utah, to Peter Michael and Ethelyn Greene Pilati. She loved having the same birth date as her father. She was the oldest daughter, along with her two brothers, John (Jack) Pilati and Richard Pilati. A younger sister, Patricia Pilati, completed their family. After moving to Salt Lake City, she attended schools there and graduated from South High School. She went on to study at the University of Utah.

While working as a secretary, she met Lee R. Lowry. They were married Oct. 2, 1959. Lee and Mary were blessed with six children: Linda (Mike) Murray of Vernal, Utah, David (Lynette) Lowry of South Weber, Utah, Tamara (Steve) Barras of Rupert, Idaho, Richard (Kelly) Lowry of Mesa, Ariz., Margaret (Doug) Coombs of Paradise, Utah, and Michelle (Garth) Searle of Declo, Idaho. They were sealed as a family on Sept. 20, 1973, in the Logan Utah LDS Temple. Lee and Mary enjoyed raising their family in Rupert.

Mary's pride and joy was her family and she devoted herself and her time to that. She was loving, kind and patient with others and tried to pattern her life after her Savior Jesus Christ. She was a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. She delighted in service and served faithfully to the end. She loved working in the Relief Society, Young Women and Primary. Her recent love was serving the Primary nursery children of the Rupert 4th Ward, being a visiting teacher and serving in the Twin Falls Temple. She and Lee delighted in being missionaries and served in the Dominican Republic; Tampa, Fla.; Tulsa, Okla.; and Waddell, Ariz., missions. After their missionary service, they returned to Rupert. Mary took care of Lee as his health began to fail. During this time, they enjoyed having their special babysitting kids come each day. They loved Raigen, Karter, Ashlynn, Aden and Cash as if they were their own grandchildren. After Lee passed away, Mary became a developmental therapist for FACTS in Rupert. She loved this very much. There she became acquainted with Chad Robinson and became his personal helper. She and Chad shared a wonderful friendship that was priceless to Mary. She was sad to end her employment working with Chad during her battle with cancer.

Mary treasured being a wife, mother, grandmother, great-grandmother and friend. She is survived by all six of her children, 29 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren. She is preceded in death by her parents; her siblings; husband, Lee Lowry; a grandson, Chase Lee Searle; son-in-law, Mike (Linda) Murray; and daughter-in-law, Anita (Richard) Lowry.

A special thank you to Dr. Richard Miranda and his kind staff. She appreciated the wonderful people of the Infusion Center at the Cassia Memorial Hospital and the Minidoka Memorial Hospice.

The funeral will be at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 28, at the Rupert LDS West Stake Center, 26 S. 100 W. in Rupert. A viewing will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 27, at the Morrison Funeral Home, 188 S. Highway 24 in Rupert and from 9 to 9:45 a.m. Saturday prior to the funeral at the church.

Read obituaries before they appear in the paper. Tomorrow's obituaries appear online at 7 p.m. every evening.

New $100 Bill Has Ink Well, More Color, 3-D

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) • A glitzier, high-tech version of America's $100 bill is rolling off the presses and headed for wallets soon.

Despite years of production-related delays, the updated $100 bill has undergone a major makeover that includes a color-changing ink well, 3-D security ribbon, and more texture on Benjamin Franklin's collar.

The new, more expensive C-note is scheduled to enter circulation Oct. 8 and also has a higher calling: It aims to fight back against counterfeiters by using better printers and technology.

The modifications will help people check for fake $100s without going to a bank or using a blacklight, said Michael Lambert, a deputy associate director at the Federal Reserve.

"We try and find security features that can be used at a number of different levels, from more experienced cash handlers ... down to the person on the street who really needs to know the security features so they can protect themselves," Lambert said in an interview Wednesday.

The new $100 bill still bears the image of Franklin, one of America's Founding Fathers. But it adds part of the Declaration of Independence, written in script from Franklin's left shoulder to the right edge of the bill. A quill and an ink well are printed behind the text, and a blue ribbon goes down near the center of the bill.

The ink in the well changes colors from copper to green when the bill is turned. A watermark of Franklin also appears on the right side of the bill when it's held up to light.

‘YELLOW BRICK ROAD’ LEADING TO NEW ENGLAND PIRATE BOOTY

BREWSTER, Mass. (AP) • He calls it “the yellow brick road” because it’s literally sprinkled with gold dust.

This road runs along Cape Cod's shifting seafloor, and undersea explorer Barry Clifford believes it leads to undiscovered treasure from the wreck of the pirate ship Whydah.

About two weeks ago, Clifford and his dive team took a previously unplanned trip back to the wreck site, and Clifford returned more convinced than ever that the road he's exploring is a path to riches.

“We think we’re very, very close,” Clifford said.

The Whydah sank in a brutal storm in 1717 with plunder from 50 ships on board. Clifford discovered the wreck site in 1984 off Wellfleet and has since pulled up 200,000 artifacts, including gold ornaments, sword handles, even a boy's leg.

But just this year, Clifford learned far more treasure may be resting with the Whydah, the only authenticated pirate ship wreck in U.S. waters.

Colonial-era documents discovered in April indicated the Whydah raided two vessels in the weeks before it sank. Its haul on those raids included 400,000 coins, the records said.

A Sept. 1 dive during what was supposed to be Clifford's last trip of the season uncovered evidence he was near those coins. That convinced Clifford he had to make another trip before summer's end. So Clifford and a seven-man crew went back on a three-day trip that ended Sept. 13.

Clifford headed for the “yellow brick road,” which refers to a gold and artifact-strewn path extending between two significant sites at the Whydah wreck that are about 700 feet apart — a cannon pile and a large chunk of wood Clifford thinks is the Whydah's stern.

The trove of coins and other treasure likely poured from the stern as the ship broke up and the stern drifted to its rest 300 years ago, he said.

Divers searching the path on the recent trip pulled up several concretions, which are rocky masses that form when metals, such as gold and silver, chemically react to seawater. Diver Jon Matel said one discovery was following another, even though divers were working in “black water,” or zero-visibility.

Matel says several feet of a fine seaweed called mung settled in the excavated pits and it was like diving in a vat of black Jello.

“You're going by your feel, your touch, your hands, and the ping of a metal detector,” Matel said. “When that thing goes off, it's a great feeling.”

X-Rays show all the newly retrieved concretions have coins and gold inside. To Clifford it's more proof of high concentrations of metals and coins being dumped en masse on that spot of sea floor.

Clifford believes two examples that were pulled up on the prior trip are particularly compelling evidence: a cannonball piled with 11 coins and a foot-and-a-half long piece of iron stacked with 50 coins.

OUR VIEW

Loss of Legal Aid a Social Tragedy

Idaho State Police respond to a domestic violence call every 88 minutes and more than 630 victims of domestic violence, primarily women, look for help each day from social programs in Idaho, according to data compiled by the Idaho Coalition Against Sexual and Domestic Violence and ISP.

The Violence Policy Center released a report Wednesday that nearly two out of every 100,000 Idaho women die at the hands of an abusive partner — the seventh highest rate in the nation.

Let that sink in for a minute.

It’s with statistics like these in our minds that we groaned when Idaho Legal Aid Services informed us it will drastically reduce its representation for indigent battered women because of federal budget cuts. Hundreds of women, with nowhere else to turn, rely on the organization’s attorneys to win them legal protection.

But no more.

Did we mention 18 Idahoans died in 2011 after being beaten by their partner?

Idaho Legal Aid Services has for years relied on federal and state grants to fund its open-for-all legal service. The continued federal sequester cost the U.S. Department of Justice $20 million in grant funding that had been offered to organizations such as Idaho Legal Aid Services through the Violence Against Women Act. The organization’s federal funding ceases on Sept. 30, the end of the fiscal year. Other federal funding for the program, through the Legal Services Corp., precipitously dropped more than $250,000 since 2010, said Jim Cook, ILAS’ executive director.

The organization’s attorneys represented 82 women in 2012 at its Twin Falls office alone. Another 475 local women were guided through finding private legal help that year.

When lawmakers faced the inconvenience of delayed airline flights earlier this year because of the sequester, they scurried to fix the issue. But victims of domestic violence aren’t getting such a reprieve.

Cook and his board of directors used one-day furloughs and other cost-cutting measures to make it this far. But, starting Tuesday, the organization’s level of representation of Idaho’s beaten, raped and trapped women will be a mere shadow of itself.

Without these services, fewer women will have somewhere to turn, a hand to guide them through the complexities of the legal system.

The state and federal governments spent years in budgetary crises mode. Legislators in Washington are trapped in a battle that saw one U.S. senator stand at a podium for more than 21 hours this week, simply talking in order to delay a vote on a three-month budget bill.

The nation’s eyes are focused on the Affordable Care Act, the core of the partisan squabble. If a deal isn’t reached by Sept. 30, thousands of federal employees across the nation could be furloughed.

But Obamacare is serving as a distraction from the devastation leveled by the sequester and other budget cuts.

Apparently, helping our most helpless isn’t “essential.”

How sad.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Twin Falls, a Place of Kindness

I was in the Twin Falls area last month helping friends settle an estate. I was driving a van with a large trailer loaded to the mud flaps. After a stop at Deseret Industries (wonderful people), I noticed a bad hitch and an overheated axle bearing.

Don Ballard came to my rescue and restored the axle bearing in a parking lot. When he saw that the hitch needed more than a patch, Don invited me to his home. After getting a repair in place, Don and his wife, Carol, had me spend the night in their home. On Sunday, Don guided me to Emery Lynch in Jerome. On his only day off, Emery finished the weld on the van that let me continue on my journey to Denver and Wichita.

I met many kind people during my stay in Twin Falls.

Don Ballard and Emery Lynch are two examples of them.

Don Thibault: One of Our Finest

The first words that come to mind are determined and determination. Other words then follow like positive, forceful, successful and the secret of success is constancy of purpose.

But in the final analysis, there is only one success and that is to be able to spend your life in your own way and not to give others absurd maddening claims upon it.

I have watched him more than 40 years and the impact that he has had over his family and our community has been remarkable. Several generations of this man’s seed have had a profound impact on many lives in our community. To be sure, each community in America has men who are the drivers of purpose and our little village, tucked in this spot on earth, is no exception.

However, when someone stands out with such impact on everything and everyone he touches, then it is incumbent on us, when this man is alive, that he should be acknowledged, noted and respected, not on his passing from the scene and in a written obituary with donated flowers to wilt in the vase.

Not often in the story of mankind does a man arrive on this earth who is both steel and velvet, who is as hard as rock and soft as the drifting fog, who holds in his heart and mind the paradox of terrible storm and peace unspeakable and perfect.

From his determination to be the best Idaho potato grower, to his family, to his stability and leadership in each of these areas, he has excelled. Why wait until he is cold in his casket to say, “Well done good and faithful servant.”

He is truly one of those men who are the backbone of our society and stability of our nation. We to often have such good intentions to write a letter, make a phone call or just to say how special someone is. But good intentions are often lost by procrastination. That is why I want to publicly state and pass on my thanks to a man that in my life has been very “tall in the saddle and quite a ride it has been.”

Thanks for the kind words and gracious manner of your life, Don Thibault. You are truly a blessing to more people than you know. May you have many more years of life and good health before we all start that trip down those ceaseless ages of eternity.”

READER COMMENT

Obamacare Worries a Local Physician

Dr. David McClusky

St. Lukes Clinic General

health care they need.

The first way ACA attempts to cut costs is through a panel called the Independent Payment Advisory Board (IPAB), a panel that will determine what treatments to restrict in order to meet the financial targets. Decisions made by the IPAB about what types of care are restricted are based primarily on financial considerations. A new medicine that is more effective and has fewer side effects may, nonetheless, be restricted because the panel needs to find a way to cut costs. This may be a great way to cut spending, but it is a horrible way to practice medicine.

In some cases, failure to properly treat a patient results not only in ongoing illness and pain, but also can end up costing more over the long run in lost wages, visits to the emergency room and other costs of poor health.

Physicians are keenly aware of costs and we work hard to find the best treatment at a reasonable price. Finding the right balance of care and cost, however, for the patient in our care, is best left with doctors and their patients.

Second, some have argued that government should be allowed to “negotiate” with companies providing medicines or other treatments to get the lowest cost. This might indeed cut costs to the federal government. Some companies providing devices or medicines will agree to lower prices, finding a way to cut their costs.

What happens, however, if a particular treatment is unavailable because its inventor can’t sell it at the government’s preferred price? The only option for government negotiators is to prevent that treatment from being prescribed to anyone on Medicare. This is a heads-I-win-tails-you-lose situation for patients. If the government is successful in negotiating a price, the government keeps the extra money. If they are unsuccessful, the patient loses access to the care they need.

As the work of our clinic expands, we understand that budget pressures will hit us, just as they hit the federal government and everyone else involved in providing health care. We face those constraints every day and understand the need to choose effective but cost-efficient treatments.

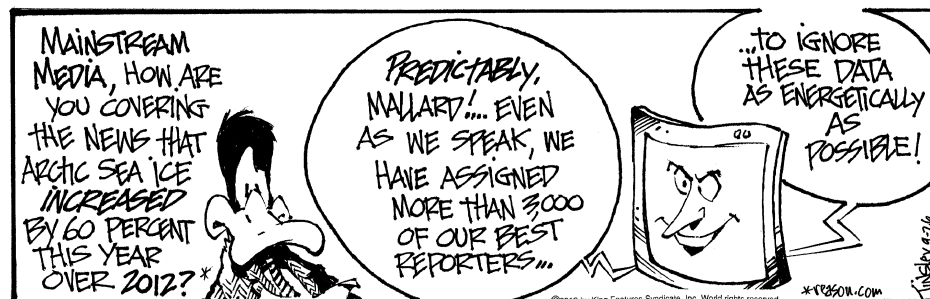

But every patient is different and efforts to restrict a whole range of treatments is not a sound approach to medical care. That is one reason we began our work at the Mustard Seed. We believe we can offer the best care to those in need, without the many strings and difficulties imposed by government programs. We are fortunate to have the choice. Unless Congress makes important changes to Obamacare, others may not have that choice.

FBI: Navy Yard Gunman Left Note about Radio Waves

WASHINGTON (AP) • Washington Navy Yard gunman Aaron Alexis left a note saying he was driven to kill by months of bombardment with extremely low-frequency radio waves, the FBI said Wednesday in a disclosure that explains the phrase he etched on his shotgun: “My ELF Weapon!”

Alexis did not target particular individuals during the Sept. 16 attack in which he killed 12 people, and there is no indication the shooting stemmed from any workplace dispute, said Valerie Parlave, assistant director in charge of the FBI’s Washington field office. Instead, authorities said, his behavior in the weeks before the shooting and evidence recovered from his hotel room, backpack and other belongings reveal a man increasingly in the throes of paranoia and delusions.

“Ultra-low frequency attack is what I’ve been subject to for the last 3 months, and to be perfectly honest that is what has driven me to this,” read an electronic document agents recovered after the shooting.

The attack came one month after Alexis had complained to police in Rhode Island that people were talking to him through the walls and ceilings of his hotel room and sending microwave vibrations into his body to deprive him of sleep.

On his shotgun, he had scrawled “My ELF Weapon!” — an apparent reference to extremely low-frequency waves — along with “End to the Torment!” “Not what yall say” and “Better off this way,” the FBI said.

Alexis, a 34-year-old former Navy reservist and computer technician for a government contractor, used a valid badge to get in to the Navy Yard and opened fire inside a building with the Remington shotgun, which he had legally purchased in Virginia two days earlier. He also used a 9 mm handgun that he took from a security guard, a weapon found near Alexis’ body. He was killed in the building by a U.S. Park Police officer following a rampage and shootout with police that the FBI said lasted more than an hour.

“There are indicators that Alexis was prepared to die during the attack and that he accepted death as the inevitable consequence of his actions,” Parlave said.

Surveillance video released by the FBI on Wednesday shows Alexis pulling his rental car into a garage, walking into the building with a bag and then skulking down a corridor with a shotgun, ducking and crouching around a corner and walking briskly down a flight of stairs. The video does not show him actually shooting anyone.

Charges: Up to $300K Stolen from Wash. Senate Dems

BY GENE JOHNSON
Associated Press

SEATTLE • The former head of a campaign committee supporting Democratic state Senate candidates has been charged with theft after prosecutors said he admitted embezzling up to $300,000 to feed his drinking and gambling habits.

Michael King, 32, faces eight counts of theft in King County Superior Court. Charging papers filed Tuesday say he confessed to stealing $200,000 to $300,000.

“I did these things and I have to accept consequences and I do,” King said during a recorded interview with a prosecutor, according to a probable cause statement filed in the case.

King, who had been respected in political circles for his acumen, headed the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, which fielded donations from political action committees, companies and individuals and directed them to Democratic senators and candidates.

The financial irregularities came to light after a review discovered that King had appeared to have spent significant sums on polling after last fall’s election, when there was no reason to conduct polling, Seattle police said.

His bank account showed dozens of withdrawals made at Goldie’s casino in Shoreline, the Tulalip Casino in Marysville and the Silver Dollar Casino in SeaTac, a detective wrote in the probable cause statement.

King’s attorney did not immediately return a call seeking comment. His arraignment has been set for Oct. 7. He faces a sentencing range of 22 to 29 months, said Dan Donohoe, a spokesman for the King County prosecutor’s office, who declined to confirm whether a plea deal had been reached. The co-chairs of the committee, Sens. David Frockt, Ed Murray and Sharon Nelson, issued a statement saying the thefts began in 2011 and accelerated in February 2012, when King was given the authority to write checks himself rather than request reimbursements through Argo Strategies, which served as the committee’s treasurer.

Blame squarely lies with King, the senators said, but they added, “We acknowledge responsibility for a system of controls that were not sufficient when there was a trusted employee determined to exploit any gaps that, in hindsight, existed.” They said they have adopted new rules to ensure greater oversight for campaign donations. Among them, the committee’s executive director will no longer be able to obtain independent check-writing authority. The chairs also said they are monitoring and reviewing the financial books monthly.

Bruin Foursome Hopes to Go Out on Top

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • On a cold Wednesday afternoon hours prior to their last regular season home game, Twin Falls seniors Madeline Watkins, Allison Simmons, Carolyn Hernandez and Rebecca Behrens huddled together in the same bleachers that served witness to their exploits for so long.

Across the field, on the opponent's sideline, hung banners with their names, names that conference foes have heard more than enough times from the Bruin sideline.

But it wasn't exactly glad tidings.

"I didn't even know it was our last," said Hernandez, a central defender.

Eyes welled, mist fell, but a few stories later, it was laughs, and the sun again shone.

A serious turn in the conversation; the stretch run was acknowledged — the Bruins, undefeated in the Great Basin Conference, have five games left, all on the road.

The group revealed they have something to finish besides each other's sentences.

"We want to end with a state championship," they said in unison, as they usually do.

They're looking for a perfect ending, but the journey won't be forgotten if it doesn't happen.

Forwards Watkins and Behrens, along with goalkeeper Simmons, have played together since they were 5 years old.

"Twenty-five seasons together," Behrens said. "I counted."

Hernandez is the new kid on the block. She's only played with the other three since she was 10.

"She just joined the pack," Behrens said. "She is the new girl."

Behrens, the other three said, is the funny one.

"She keeps us laughing and eases the tension," Hernandez said. "She face-planted on the ball (last game)."

"She doesn't think before she talks sometimes," Watkins said.

Watkins is the "rock."

"Whenever we are having a bad game, she is the one that keeps us steady," Simmons said.

Watkins and Behrens score the goals, but its Hernandez and Simmons that make them hold up.

"She takes care of us," Behrens said.

"She is the mom," Watkins said.

"She is the goalie, so her job is to take care of us on the field," Behrens said.

But Simmons has her own protection — the feisty defender Hernandez.

"Carolyn is the sass and the backbone," Behrens said.

"She has always been the voice," Simmons said. "All of us are pretty timid when it comes to speaking our minds. We have the same thought processes, but Carolyn is the one who shares it, gets us out of our shells and says 'no, we have to stand up for ourselves.' She is "Fundamentally, he died that night," said Cinkovich, Idaho's first-year assistant head coach and offensive coordinator.

Cinkovich

That was Nov. 21, 2003. Cinkovich's Las Vegas High School football team — a powerhouse in Nevada — was two wins from another state championship game. But any worries about football blurred into the background with Gomez on the ground and surrounded by medical personnel that night.

Gomez was taken to a Las Vegas hospital, where he died two days later after being put on a ventilator. An autopsy revealed Gomez died of blunt force trauma to the head.

"It's brutal," said Las Vegas High coach James Thurman, who was on Cinkovich's staff at the time. "You work with these kids day in, day out, year in, year out and you consider them your own. I know it tore Coach Cink up. It was heartbreaking for him. He cared about all the kids. ... It took a lot out of him."

Two days after his team lost in the state finals, an emotionally drained Cinkovich got a call from UNLV. John Robinson asked him to become his wide receivers coach, and he accepted the job after taking a few weeks to be with his team.

In 2010, he landed at Arkansas to work with Bobby Petrino, a former teammate at Carroll College. And when Paul Petrino took over at Idaho in December, Cinkovich returned to the Northwest after playing two years at Spokane Falls Community College and growing up in Federal Way, Wash.

With each move, the 52-year-old has stayed connected to Thurman and his former school. Every time he goes back to Las Vegas, he stops by Gomez's gravesite — something he started doing while at UNLV.

One visit, on the anniversary of Gomez's last game, still stands out.

"When I was coaching at UNLV, I know the day — Nov. 21," Cinkovich said from his office at the Kibbie Dome. "I saw his dad at the gravesite one day. As a coach that's an eye-opener, because how do you treat kids? What do they tell their parents about you?"

Gomez's father spoke little English, but he and Cinkovich talked briefly. The coach has since lost track of the Gomez family after they moved out of the area.

The episode still looms large for Cinkovich in his coaching career, both his nine decorated years at Las Vegas High and the decade since at the college level.

Although the Wildcats program was dominant in the 1940s and '50s, it hadn't won a playoff game in 35 years when Cinkovich achieved that feat in 1995, his first year. His teams went on to become nationally ranked in 1999 and 2000, and in 2001, Las Vegas claimed the Nevada 4A title.

"Coach Cink established an attitude of excellence, an attitude of discipline," Thurman said in a phone interview.

Cinkovich saw how structure and discipline could pay off while playing offensive guard for Bob Petrino Sr. at Carroll. Before joining Bobby at Arkansas, he remained close to the

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

LSU-Georgia Highlights Week to Reshape Rankings

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Finally, a college football weekend with real potential to reshape the rankings and shake up the national championship race.

The fifth Saturday of the season features four games matching ranked teams, highlighted by No. 6 LSU at No. 9 Georgia. Eight more ranked teams play road games of varying degrees of difficulty.

Last weekend's schedule produced mostly blowouts, and when it was over it was as if it never happened. The top 14 teams in the AP Top 25 held their spots from the week before, and no team moved up more than one place.

This Saturday could end with a couple of teams saying goodbye to their national championship hopes, and maybe a few new teams being taken more seriously as contenders.

Georgia wraps up the toughest September schedule in the country with its third game against a top-10 opponent.

The Bulldogs (2-1) split with Clemson and South Carolina to start the season and now face an LSU team that is yet again looking like a Southeastern Conference heavyweight, though the Tigers are getting it done a little differently this season.

For the first time in a few years, LSU's passing game is a strength instead of a question mark.

Zach Mettenberger has the sixth best passer rating in the country.

"There's a big ceiling on him," Bulldogs coach Mark Richt said of Mettenberger, who originally attended Georgia but was dismissed from the team when, as a red-shirt freshman, he got into legal trouble over his treatment of a woman at a bar.

ham and Jarvis Landry are making a case for being the top tandem not just in the SEC but in the nation.

That should lead to another increasingly common occurrence: high-scoring SEC games.

Georgia, with quarterback Aaron Murray and tailback Todd Gurley leading the way, is seventh in the nation in yards per play at 7.83. LSU is ninth at 7.53.

The other big game in the SEC takes place in Tuscaloosa, where No. 1 Alabama faces No. 21 Mississippi.

The Rebels spread it out and play fast like Texas A&M, but Ole Miss presents very different challenges.

"Even though the offenses may be similar, the philosophies are not the same," Tide coach Nick Saban said.

No. 4 Ohio State faces its first stiff test of the season when No. 24 Wisconsin comes to Ohio Stadium on Saturday night.

No. 22 Notre Dame is an underdog for the second straight season to Oklahoma. Of course, that didn't stop the Fighting Irish from beating the Sooners in Norman last year. Any hope the Irish have of getting back to the BCS title game would be dashed with a second loss.

The picks:
MAIN EVENT
No. 6 LSU (plus 3) at No. 9 Georgia

Oracle Beats New Zealand to Keep America's Cup

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO • The big black cat almost used up its last life at the start, burying its bows in a wave and falling behind a boatload of Kiwis.

Of course, it was only fitting in this America's Cup that Oracle Team USA would need to survive near-defeat again.

With one last spectacular push in a winner-take-all finale Wednesday, the United States managed to hang onto the Auld Mug in closing out the longest, fastest and, by far, wildest America's Cup ever with one of the greatest comebacks in sports.

Skipper Jimmy Spithill steered Oracle's space-age, 72-foot catamaran to its eighth straight victory, speeding past Dean Barker and Team New Zealand in Race 19 on a San Francisco Bay course bordered by the Golden Gate Bridge, Alcatraz and the Embarcadero.

All but defeated a week ago, the 34-year-old Australian and his international crew twice rallied from seven-point deficits to win 9-8. Owned by software billionaire Larry Ellison, Oracle Team USA was docked two points for illegally modifying boats in warmup regattas and had to win 11 races to keep the trophy.

"It really is about the team, man," Spithill said. "On your own you're nothing, but when you've got a team like this around you, they can make you look great. They did all of that today and the whole series. I'm so proud of the boys ... They didn't flinch."

It could have been over shortly after the start just inside the Golden Gate Bridge.
Oracle's hulking black catamaran — with a giant No. 17 on each hull — buried its twin bows in a wave approaching the first mark and Barker turned his red-and-black cat around the buoy with a 7-second lead.

The New Zealanders were game despite being stranded on match point for a week. Spithill and crew still had to sail their best to keep from becoming the third American loser in 30 years.

Oracle narrowed Team New Zealand's lead to 3 seconds turning onto the third leg, the only time the boats sail into the wind.

New Zealand had the lead the first time the boats crossed on opposite tacks. By the time they crossed again, the American boat — with only one American on its 11-man crew — had the lead.

As Oracle worked to stay ahead, tactician Ben Ainslie, a four-time Olympic gold medalist from Britain, implored his mates by saying, "This is it. This is it. Working your (rears) off!"

It had to be a gut-wrenching moment in New Zealand — coming so close to winning the oldest trophy in international sports a week ago, only to see Oracle suddenly improve its speed.

"We knew we had a fight on our hands," Barker said. "It's really frustrating. The gains that they made were just phenomenal. They did just an amazing job of sorting out their boat. It's a good thing for us they didn't do it earlier. I am incredibly proud of our team and what we achieved. But we didn't get that last one we needed to take the cup back to New Zealand. It's just very hard to swallow."

Can 49ers Handle the Rams?

ASSOCIATED PRESS

On their way to the Super Bowl last season, the 49ers couldn't solve one team: the Rams. St. Louis beat San Francisco once and the teams played to a tie, rare blemishes on the 49ers' record.

Jim Harbaugh's team gets another shot at the Rams tonight, and the 49ers (No. 12 in the AP Pro32) are 3-point favorites over No. 23 St. Louis.

Coming off successive losses in which their offense was awful, the 49ers are in turmoil. Linebacker Aldon Smith is taking a leave of absence to deal with personal problems.

At least in a short week, they have no choice but to concentrate heavily on football.

"I think it's a distraction to whoever wants to think about it, to whoever wants to pay attention to it," cornerback Carlos Rogers said. "When I get out there on the field and play, I'm thinking about playing whatever team, I'm not thinking about Aldon and whatever situation went on with him."

Pretty good advice, especially facing Jeff Fisher's Rams, who also come off a poor outing. One of the NFL's top coaches for two decades, Fisher is likely to have St. Louis ready for the defending NFC West champs.

"We've been on the losing end of a lot of games, this organization has," Fisher said. "Now last year, we got our feet back on the map, but I don't think there's a rivalry yet. It's a division opponent. It's a big challenge for us on a short week, but I don't necessarily see it as a rivalry yet. Hopefully, it will become one."

This game could help do that.

the confidence."

Good thing the Bruins have a backbone. Most everything else is torn or broken. The team has dealt with extensive injuries — from an ACL tear to sophomore Tanner Thompson to concussions and hamstring pulls to multiple players — leaving them with as few as two bench players some games.

Head coach Katie Kauffman, who also coached the four seniors as 10-year-olds, anticipates that her team will be healthy when it counts, allowing it to keep the program's five-year trajectory.

"Our last year in 5A we made it to the state playoffs finally," Kauffman said. "The year after that we made it to the state tournament and won a game. And then two years ago made it to state and made it to third day of the state tournament, and then last year we made it to the third-place game."

The next logical step isn't lost on the group of four, but then again, they share a perspective that keeps a run at a state championship a reality and not a head game — if they can get healthy.

"There have been family crises that we have been there for each other for, wins, losses and everything together," Simmons said. "It's on and off the field. We aren't just friends during the season. We are always there for each other. It's hard to find that chemistry. We haven't always won. I try to always be there for them. They are still my sisters."

Stop Poachers in Their Tracks

Because Idaho's Wildlife Belongs to You!

Since 1980 Citizens Against Poaching, Inc. (CAP) and its volunteer board of eight sportsmen and sportswoman from all parts of Idaho have been working to prevent wildlife poaching. CAP works closely with IDFG Enforcement by providing funding for many of the important tools conservation officers need to effectively detect, apprehend and prosecute wildlife law violators. CAP's interest is particularly directed at the flagrant, unethical poacher who gives all responsible hunters and sportsmen a bad rap and who steals valuable wildlife from all Idahoans.

CAP FUNDING

The CAP fund is provided by Idaho hunters. Citizens who check "YES" designate $1 of their Idaho Fish and Game non-refundable controlled hunt fees to Citizens Against Poaching. They do not pay an extra dollar! When "yes" is checked, $1 is moved from the IDFG account to the CAP account.

- I want to catch thieves who steal and waste wildlife!
- I am a sportsman protecting Idaho's Wildlife!
- I want to help prevent wildlife crimes!
- I am a Citizen Against Poaching!

-The CAP wildlife violation hotline is operated 24/7 and callers may remain anonymous.

-If a citation is issued as a result, the caller may be eligible for a monetary reward.

-Since its inception, CAP has paid out over $400,000 in rewards.

The Citizens Against Poaching fund is managed by the Board of Directors with oversight of certified Idaho accounting and investment firms. CAP is a nonprofit organization registered with the Idaho Secretary of State. Tax deductible donations are accepted.

Are We Just Now Seeing Manning in His Prime?

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. • Peyton Manning is only getting better with age. Those surgical scars on his neck are starting to fade like all those fears that he might never be the same quarter-back — or even play again — after his right arm shrank from a damaged nerve in his biceps two years ago. After attacking his rehab as doggedly as he assails defenses, Denver's 37-year-old quarterback is making it hard to fathom and easy to forget that not so long ago he was missing an entire season and getting fired in Indianapolis. The four-time MVP is off to the best start of his storied 16-year career.

Driven by last year's play-off pratfall, Manning is putting up historic numbers while directing an imaginative offense that's still working through some growing pains.

Here's the scary part for opponents: Even with so many footballs slipping through his teammates' hands or going through the uprights after stalled drives, the Broncos (3-0) are averaging 42 points.

"I think Peyton's playing at an all-time (high) right now," said Philadelphia coach Chip Kelly, whose Eagles (1-2) visit Denver on Sunday. "You couple him being at the top of his game and then give him the weapons that he has, it's a pretty dangerous formula to go against."

The 2013 Rocky Mountain version of the "Fearsome Foursome" is Demaryius Thomas, Eric Decker, Wes Welker and Julius Thomas, who have collected 72 catches for 943 yards and 11 TDs already.

"Usually you have a main guy as part of the offense, a star that you can load up and take him away," Eagles defensive coordinator Bill Davis said. "Peyton makes you defend the field."

Manning is the first quarterback in NFL history to collect a dozen touchdown throws in the first three weeks of the season, and his off-the-charts passer rating of 134.7 is way above the career high of 121.1 he set in his pinnacle 2004 season, when he threw for 49 TDs.

Manning was masterful Monday night in completing a career-high 86.5 percent of his passes in Denver's wipe-out of Oakland.

Manning, though, finds no time in his no-nonsense schedule to contemplate just how special this start is.

"This is a new season. It's one week at a time," he said.

"I don't have a great comparison to other years. But guys are making good plays in the passing game and we are doing a good job getting yards after the catch."

Take Decker's 61-yard gain Monday night. He runs an 18-yard curl and there's a 6-inch window for Manning, who delivers a frozen rope of a throw that seems to stun even Decker, who hesitates for a split second before turning upfield for a 61-yard gain.

Manning

"I was on him like a shadow," Raiders cornerback Mike Jenkins said. "I actually felt the ball go across my fingers. ... He's a genius."

Just imagine him in his prime? Are you kidding? In many ways, it's right here, right now.

Manning's work ethic keeps him in tip-top shape and his mental mastery of the game keeps getting better.

"I'd like to think that any player would use the experience from the year before to his advantage, to learn what to do against certain defenses, to learn what not to do," Manning said. "With being able to play a lot, you certainly gain great experience."

He's putting that to use like never before, too.

"The guy is just awesome," Jenkins said. "I've never seen anything like him. It is very frustrating for you to be in the right spot and he still squeezes the ball in for a great throw. There's not too much you can do about that. Most games you play, that's your ball. But it's Peyton Manning."

Or, Peyton Manning 2.0.

He bounced back last year from a series of neck injuries and surgeries that sidelined him in 2011, an all-too-familiar ordeal for the first family of football after his older brother, Cooper, saw his football dreams dashed because of a spinal condition.

Family patriarch Archie Manning said Peyton "never took football for granted because of what happened to Cooper."

"I think he always knew he was fortunate in regard to health. But he wasn't ready for his career to be over, not like that. Not four surgeries and having to leave the place where he had been so long. He just didn't want it to end right there," Archie Manning said. "So, I think the good Lord looked down on him there and allowed him to play some more football, so we are grateful for that."

Detroit Tigers Clinch AL Central

Silver Creek Restoration Will Start Downstream of Bridge

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

PICABO • A much discussed Silver Creek restoration is finally slated to start this week, leading to some hunting and fishing restrictions.

The Nature Conservancy, a nonprofit conservation organization, entered a partnership with the neighboring Picabo Livestock Co. ranch for restoration projects at the Kilpatrick Pond area. After an extensive permit process, backers of the project won their final permits in June after a lengthy public hearing and a unanimous vote by Blaine County commissioners.

Idaho big game hunters could see same conditions as last year.

“Most likely, success rates will be similar. It will be a good hunting season.”

Toby Boudreau, Idaho Department of Fish and Game’s deer and elk coordinator

BY ROGER PHILLIPS
Idaho Statesman

BOISE • It’s all about the weather. How many times have you heard that in a big game forecast?

There’s a lot of truth to it, but if you want the two-second preview of the upcoming hunt, Toby Boudreau, Idaho Department of Fish and Game’s deer and elk coordinator, said expect hunting like last year.

“Most likely, success rates will be similar,” he said. “It will be a good hunting season.”

Weather is one of the biggest driving factors affecting big game herds and harvests.

This summer’s dry conditions have been reflected by large wildfires, but fires aren’t likely to affect statewide harvests.

We’ve had back-to-back dry years, which typically means light fawns, but we also had a mild winter.

Fish and Game’s fawn monitoring showed about 60 percent of mule deer fawns statewide survived last winter, which is about 10 percent above average.

Those fawns from last year are now budding two-points, which make up a large part of the annual mule deer harvest.

Now let’s turn to elk, which are harder and less prone to winter kill. Winter conditions still affect them, but not as drastically as deer.

But Fish and Game biologists see a direct correlation between early snow and elk harvests. When it snows early, harvest tends to go up.

We were hit by snowstorms in October last year, and the deer and elk harvests ticked upward.

We’ve had a very hot, dry summer in much of the state, which can mean mixed things for hunters.

Drought dries up many water sources, such as small ponds, seeps and small streams, so animals tend to be concentrated near water larger water sources.

But if hot, dry weather persists into October big game seasons, hunters will face difficult conditions for stalking animals because it’s noisy and game tends to hole up during hot weather.

If those early snowstorms arrive for a second year, it could tip things in the hunters’ favor.

Of course, we’re talking generalities, and Idaho is a large and diverse state.

Weather conditions in the Owyhee Desert in October will be much different than rain forests of North Idaho, or the mountains of Central or eastern Idaho.

While the state’s game herds are overall healthy, they’re certainly not static.

Many elk hunters will continue to be frustrated if harvests continue to shift away from the traditional hunting areas and general, any-weapon seasons.

And of course we can’t forget about the elephant in the elk camp — wolves, which are holding their population numbers despite several seasons of hunting and now trapping.

Soldier Mountain Ski Area Wants Help Naming Runs

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

FAIRFIELD • It won’t be long before skiers and snowboarders hit the slopes again at Soldier Mountain Ski Area.

Depending on weather, skiing near Fairfield generally opens in mid-December, lodge manager

Kristi Schiermeier said. But before the new season, the ski area is coming up with historical names for some of its runs.

Soldier Mountain used to have runs named for “certain people for certain reasons,” Schiermeier said. For instance, a longtime ski patrolman.

“We just want to go back to the historic names,” she said.

The ski area will restore some of the runs’ original names and will come up with new names for others. Schiermeier has been calling people to ask for suggestions that honor locals instrumental in the ski area’s history.

IDAHO’S YOUTH PHEASANT SEASON OPENS ON OCT. 5

JEROME • A youth pheasant hunting season opens statewide Saturday, Oct. 5, and runs through Oct. 11 for licensed hunters 15 or younger. The week-long hunt opens a half-hour before sunrise statewide and continues to a half-hour after sunset, the Idaho Department of Fish and Game said. Youth hunters must be accompanied by a licensed hunter 18 or older; one adult may accompany more than one youth.

The daily bag limit is three cocks, and the possession limit is six after the first day — except on wildlife management areas where pheasants are stocked, where the daily limit is two cocks and four in possession.

Pheasants will be stocked on the Payette, Montour, Fort Boise, Niagara, Sterling, and Market Lake wildlife management areas before the youth hunt opening.

The regular season opens Oct. 12 through Dec. 31 in Area 1; Oct. 19 through Nov. 30 in Area 2; and Oct. 19 through Dec. 31 in Area 3. Shooting hours start a half-hour before sunrise in all three areas, except on Fort Boise, C.J. Strike, Montour and Payette River wildlife management areas, where shooting hours start at 10 a.m.

Area 2: Bannock, Bear Lake, Bingham, Bonneville, Butte, Caribou, Clark, Custer, Franklin, Fremont, Jefferson, Lemhi, Madison, Oneida, Power and Teton counties.

Area 3: Ada, Adams, Blaine, Boise, Camas, Canyon, Cassia, Elmore, Gem, Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln, Minidoka, Owyhee, Payette, Twin Falls, Valley and Washington counties, including all islands in the Snake River except Patch and Porter islands.

Fish and Game releases pheasants at nine wildlife management areas in southern Idaho: Fort Boise, Payette River, Montour, C.J. Strike, Sterling, Market Lake, Mud Lake, Cartier

Slough and Niagara Springs. To hunt pheasants there, hunters 17 years old or older must have a WMA upland game bird permit. The permit allows hunters to take two pheasants per day and up to six total in possession.

Sage Grouse Hunters, Harvest Up Slightly in Idaho

JEROME • Hunter numbers and harvest of sage grouse were up slightly over the opening weekend compared with the past two years, the Idaho Department of Fish and Game said Monday.

From the six check stations held throughout southern Idaho targeting sage grouse hunters, 620 hunters checked in 308 birds, a Fish and Game release said. That compares with 563 hunters with 270 birds in 2012, and 615 hunters with 277 birds in 2011.

On average, 0.5 birds were harvested per hunter per day, and it took about 6.1 hours for a hunter to harvest one bird, Fish and Game said. Hunter success was slightly higher in the Owyhees, but otherwise was similar across southern Idaho.

Fish and Game workers queried hunters on their success, number of hours hunted, and numbers of birds observed. They also collected a wing from each bird checked.

“Although the weather was cooperative on opening weekend, biologists are hopeful that the higher numbers are a sign of good productivity this year,” the Fish and Game release said.

Fish and Game biologists will gather in early December to examine wings from upland game birds collected at check stations, in wing barrels, and through a mail-in wing envelope program. By examining each wing, biologists are able to determine if the wing is from an adult or juvenile bird. For sage grouse, they are also able to tell the sex of the bird. The ratio of juveniles per adult is an indication of annual chick production.

This information helps biologists understand trends in population numbers.

The 2013 sage grouse hunting season runs Sept. 21-27.

What’s New at Soldier Mountain?

Kristi and Don Schiermeier ran the Soldier Mountain Ski area for two seasons before actor Bruce Willis bought the property in 1997. In October 2012, Willis donated it to a new nonprofit.

Last year the nonprofit did well despite a late start to last year’s ski season, Kristi Schiermeier said, and would have broken even financially if it would’ve had 3,000 more skiers.

A number of changes were made last year at Soldier Mountain, including a new magic carpet, a 12-passenger snowcat for cat skiing/boarding adventures, lodge renovations and fresh paint on many buildings. Cat skiing is off-trail, downhill skiing accessed by a tracked vehicle instead of a skilift.

A variable frequency drive was installed for a chairlift last year, which allows employees to slow the lift to accommodate beginners. This season, another will be installed, Schiermeier said.

The new snowcat includes a 47-inch television. When cat skiers and snowboarders wear head cameras, they can watch the footage of their last run as they head back up the mountain. Visitors will also be able to watch a safety video inside the cabin as they head up the mountain so they’re not wasting ski time, Schiermeier said.

During the coming year, Soldier Mountain will be able to host weddings, she said.

Ski area officials also hope to offer a bike experience in the summer. Visitors would hook their bikes to a chairlift and ride to the top of the mountain.

Schiermeier said they hope to do more summer activities this year, as well as expand ski programs for schoolchildren.

Fish and Game Sets Vehicle, Equipment Auction Oct. 23

NAMPA • A public auction of vehicles and other equipment used by the Idaho Department of Fish and Game is set for Wednesday, Oct. 23, at Dealers Auto Auction, 3323 Port St. in Nampa.

The auction starts at 1 p.m. and includes vehicles, ATVs, snowmobiles and motorcycles.

Hunting

Here are some more details for big game hunters.

Deer

Last fall, deer hunters killed 49,656 deer, a 12 percent increase from the 2011 harvest of 44,328 deer.

Fish and Game also saw a bump in deer tags sales for the first time since 2008. Tags sales were up from 132,068 in 2011 to 134,232 in 2012.

That made the success rate for deer hunters in 2012 about 37 percent versus 32 percent in 2011. However, success rates both years were actually higher because not all who buy tags actually hunt.

Mule deer narrowly edged out whitetails in the 2012 harvest, 25,073 versus 24,583. While that may look close to a tie, when you look at hunter success, whitetails probably get the nod.

Predominately whitetail units dominate the top five general season hunts for harvest and hunter success.

Fish and Game offers two tags, a general tag that allows a hunter to take either species, and a whitetail tag that allows a hunter to take only a whitetail but hunt during the November rut.

General deer tags are sold at nearly three times the rate of whitetail tags, according to Fish and Game statistics.

Although general tag hunters can also shoot either species, whitetail hunters tend to have a higher success rate because there are longer seasons and generous either-sex opportunities.

Elk

Elk hunters will probably see a similar harvest to last year, and if the last five years are an indicator, it will likely be within a couple thousand elk of last year’s.

Harvest has been fairly steady since 2008, ranging from a high of 17,470 in 2010 to a low of 15,135 in 2011.

But Idaho’s elk hunting is puzzling and hard to pin down due to many factors. One thing is clear, hunters killed more elk in 2012 than in 2011 — 16,369 versus 15,135.

But the number of elk hunters has been on a downward trend since 2008.

That year, Fish and Game sold 92,565 tags to hunters, compared with 80,577 elk tags last year — a drop of 11,088 tags in five years. Elk tag sales peaked at around 100,000 in the mid-1990s.

While statewide elk harvests have fluctuated in the last five years, fewer hunters means the statewide success rate has trended upward from about 17 percent in 2008 to about 23 percent last year.

So what’s the deal with elk hunting?

Several factors are likely at play. The public perception that Idaho’s elk herds have seen precipitous declines is out there, and it is partially true.

Fish and Game estimates Idaho’s elk population is about 107,000 animals. The state is divided into 29 elk management zones, and most are meeting or exceeding Fish and Game’s population objectives.

But the dark spots are pretty dark. There’s been a steady shift of elk and hunters away from the classic elk country — the mountains and forests of Central Idaho and the Clearwater area that were traditionally popular during the October general season bull hunts.

According to Fish and Game’s draft elk plan: “Since the mid-1990s, cumulative elk populations in the Lolo, Middle Fork, Sawtooth and Selway zones have declined from more than 30,500 elk to just over 14,500 (a 52 percent decline) since the mid-1990s.”

Those elk herds “continue to be suppressed by predators and habitat declines,” Fish and Game said.

The plan also states that herds in southern Idaho and the prairies and agricultural areas of North Idaho are “mostly robust.”

Growing elk herds are now more likely to be found in rangeland and agriculture lands where hunters can have more difficulty accessing them because of private lands or tags are limited by controlled hunts.

The news is not all bad, and adaptable hunters have found success.

Some elk hunters have shifted their efforts from general any-weapon seasons targeting bull elk to archery seasons, muzzle-loader seasons, either-sex controlled hunts and other opportunities.

The number of antlerless elk tags can also have a substantial effect on the overall elk harvest. In most places, Fish and Game limits cow tags, which tend to have a higher success rate.

Antlerless elk accounted for 41 percent of the 2012 elk harvest, according to Fish and Game statistics.

Part of the decline in elk tag sales can also be attributed to fewer nonresident tags sold.

That’s partially due to the quality of elk hunting, but also due to the economy. A nonresident license and tag costs $571.50, which is more expensive than many neighboring states with comparable hunting quality.

Other states have also seen a drop-off in nonresident tags, which points to a weak economy that keeps hunters at home.

Wolf Update

One can hardly talk about elk without wolves coming up, so here’s an update on Idaho’s wolf population.

Fish and Game estimated there were about 683 wolves at the end of 2012, which is down from a high of 856 in 2009.

But estimates are done in winter, and there’s a spike in the population in the spring after pups are born.

Despite that, wolves are likely being held in check in parts of the state like Southern Idaho, where open terrain and conflicts with livestock mean high wolf mortality.

Hunters and trappers are also getting more effective at taking wolves.

“Hunters have made a pretty big impact,” said Jon Rachael, state big game manager for Fish and Game.

Trappers are taking a larger percentage of the harvest. During the 2012-13 season, hunters killed 195 wolves and trappers caught another 119.

There were 425 known wolf deaths last year, which includes wolves killed for preying on livestock, and those poached or killed by other causes, Rachael said.

While that number may seem high, wolf populations can easily grow by 20 percent a year or more if unchecked, which means after spring pups, Idaho’s 683 estimate from winter with 20 percent growth would be 819.

Wolf season opened Aug. 30. Fish and Game has reported six wolves harvested so far this season.

Creek

property owned by the Purdy family, said Dayna Gross, conservation manager for The Nature Conservancy.

The project’s first phase will happen downstream of the bridge that separates the two landowners.

Crews will dredge the channel — which is expected to take 24 to 30 days — and move sediment, Gross said.

Once that’s complete, water will be diverted and work will start on reconstructing the dam that forms Kilpatrick Pond and cleaning out the lower pond.

Phase two of the project — with work upstream of the bridge on The Nature Conservancy’s property — won’t happen until next year.

During the restoration’s first phase, public access will be restricted at the construction area.

Fishing from Kilpatrick Road Bridge to just downstream of the dam will be restricted for the rest of the 2013 season, as well as duck hunting.

“It’s dangerous to have people wandering around,” Gross said.

Private property owners and organizations can restrict public access but can’t close certain areas. Closures must be approved by the Idaho Fish and Game Commission.

Outdoor enthusiasts are advised to stay away from areas at Silver Creek with restricted access but aren’t prohibited from entering those areas.

“If they access it legally and didn’t trespass to get there, they still have the right to hunt and fish following rules and restrictions for that activity,” said Doug Megargle, regional fisheries manager for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

But restrictions are for public safety, he said.

Why the restoration project?

Silver Creek has long been a sacred site for fly fishers and outdoorsmen because of its insect hatches and spring-fed waters. But sediment buildup slowed flows and pushed up water temperatures, creating stressful conditions for trout. In Kilpatrick Pond, now shallow, water temperatures increase almost 10 degrees in a stretch of less than a mile.

Restoration plans include enhancing streamside habitats, creating a more diverse stream channel and stabilizing existing sediments by creating wetlands. Several access points will be created along a portion of Silver Creek to improve public access.

The restoration project will also reconfigure the dam — incorporating fish passage and the ability to release water from the bottom of the pond to help manage water temperature.

The Nature Conservancy plans to host a site visit in mid-October for people interested in seeing what’s happening with the project. A date hasn’t been set.

Weekly or bi-weekly project updates will be posted on the conservancy’s website, Gross said.

SUN VALLEY • In Ski Magazine’s 26th annual readers’ survey, Sun Valley Resort climbed three rungs to No. 4 among North American ski destinations. Sun Valley earned top-three rankings in six of the poll’s 20 service categories – grooming, lifts, on-mountain food, off-hill dining, service and lodging – and finished among the top 10 in 13 criteria. In the latest poll, a resort release said, Sun Valley climbed in almost all of its important categories, including grooming, lifts, lodging, family programs, character, digital presence and overall satisfaction.

Early Snow Hits Several Southwest Idaho Ski Areas

BOISE (AP) • Snow is falling early in some parts of the state – including a couple of ski areas. Officials reported snow at Brundage Mountain near McCall Tuesday and a light dusting atop the mountains at Bogus Basin outside of Boise. Forecasters are calling for more snow the rest of this week with heavy, early-season dumps north of Ketchum. Meteorologists are predicting as much as 10 inches to accumulate near Galena Summit through Thursday. Similar projections are being made for other parts of the state. In eastern Idaho, scattered rain and snow is expected for the Snake River Plain as overnight lows dip to freezing. Northern Idaho is also predicted to get rain, but for now will avoid the colder temperatures capable of creating snow.

Astronomical Range of the Human Eye

Other than the exceedingly rare near-Earth mini-asteroid, the moon is the closest celestial body that can be seen without a telescope. But there’s actually quite a variety of astronomical objects within the range of the naked eye. Most of the planets are sufficiently bright. Currently, Venus and Saturn are visible in the western twilight after sunset; Jupiter and Mars are in the east before dawn. Venus and Jupiter are brighter than any star; Mars and Saturn appear like moderately bright stars. Of the remaining planets, only Neptune requires a telescope. Seeing Mercury is a matter of timing: Six times a year it gets far enough from the sun to pierce the glare. Uranus is for experts only, requiring a clear, dark, moonless sky, good eyes, and skill with a star chart to distinguish it from the faintest of stars. One asteroid (Vesta) reaches naked-eye brightness around the time of its closest approach to the sun, but only if Earth is near it at the time (which happens only every three years or so; the next time will be in April). Roughly once a decade, a comet comes close enough to be seen with the naked eye. Comet ISON may do that at the end of November. The visible stars are all within a few thousand light years, only a few percent of the way across the

Hunting? Don’t Spread Noxious Weeds in Idaho’s Backcountry

TWIN FALLS • During Idaho’s hunting seasons, thousands of people traverse Idaho’s backcountry. So the threat of spreading noxious weed seeds from infested areas is at a high level, state weed officials warned. “Most noxious weeds are now in their seed stage, and that means it’s crucial for people who are traveling in Idaho’s outdoor regions to be careful and not accidentally pick up and spread noxious weeds and weed seeds from one area to another,” said Roger Batt, statewide coordinator for the Idaho Weed Awareness Campaign. Even a few seeds can start a new noxious weed outbreak, the campaign’s press release said. Weeds can become lodged in ATVs, off-road vehicles, pack animals and hunting gear, then carried from one area to another. Drive pickups, ATVs and off-road vehicles only on designated roads and trails away from weed-infested areas. ATVs, vehicles, trailers, pack animals and hunting and camping gear should be cleaned before moving to a new area. Also, use only feed that is certified as noxious-weed-free for horses and pack animals. A list of outlets selling certified weed-free hay and forage is available on the Idaho Weed Awareness Campaign’s website at www.idahoweedawareness.com. Get a free copy of Idaho’s Noxious Weed Book, available via the campaign’s website, to help identify noxious weeds. The book has color photos and detailed information about different species. Have a GPS unit? You can map weed infestations and report them to local noxious weed authorities, Batt said. State weed officials have identified 66 kinds of noxious weeds in Idaho, including infestations in wilderness and backcountry areas. These weeds choke out native vegetation which deprive deer, elk, bighorn sheep and other wildlife of their natural food sources.

Ask Fish and Game: Hunter Orange

Question: Are hunters required to wear hunter orange? Answer: The Idaho Department of Fish and Game recommends that all upland and big game hunters wear hunter orange whenever they are hunting. But hunter orange is required only when hunting the nine Fish and Game wildlife management areas where pheasants are stocked. The areas are Fort Boise, C.J. Strike, Payette River, Montour, Sterling, Market Lake, Mud Lake, Cartier Slough and Niagara Springs. The minimum requirement is 36 square inches of hunter orange above the waist; an orange ball cap fulfills this requirement. Waterfowl and turkey hunters are not required to wear hunter orange. Though the statewide hunting accident rate is low, more than 70 percent of recorded incidents are visibility related, Fish and Game said.

KENYA TERRORIST ATTACK

FBI Agents Work in Nightmarish Scene at Mall

Working near bodies crushed by rubble in a bullet-scarred, scorched mall, FBI agents began fingerprint, DNA and ballistic analysis Wednesday to help determine the identities and nationalities of victims and al-Shabab gunmen who attacked the shopping center, killing more than 60 people.

A gaping hole in the mall's roof was caused by Kenyan soldiers who fired rocket-propelled grenades inside, knocking out a support column, a government official said. The official, who insisted he not be identified because he was sharing security information, said the soldiers fired to distract a terrorist sniper so hostages could be evacuated.

The current death toll is 67 and is likely to climb with uncounted bodies remaining in the wreckage of the Nairobi mall. Another 175 people were injured, including more than 60 who remain hospitalized. At least 18 foreigners were among those killed.

Al-Shabab, the Somali Islamic extremist group which carried out the attack, said Wednesday that foreigners were a "legitimate target." Witnesses have told AP and other media that gunmen rounded up people, asked questions about Islam that a Muslim would know and told the Muslims to leave the mall. Still, some Muslims were among the victims.

'Forever Grateful': Saved Mall Goers Thank Police

"I will be forever grateful for those three brave and selfless Kenyans," said Lyndsay Handler, a New Yorker who was among those rescued from the roof in the first hours of the siege that began Saturday. "Words cannot fully capture the depth of this gratitude, but anyone who has come close to losing a child or spouse can understand."

Undercover police officers armed only with pistols and walkie-talkies like those who rescued Handler and her husband and 2-year-old daughter helped save countless lives in the initial minutes of the attack — heroics the American and others they brought to safety say have gotten little attention.

Video from inside the mall shows how security personnel worked to save lives. In one, a man thought to be a plainclothes police officer was seen scooting on his belly across the shopping center's ground floor to coax a mother and her two children lying next to a cafe counter to stand up and rush out. -AP

Syrian Rebel Groups Break with Exiled Opposition

BEIRUT (AP) • Nearly a dozen of Syria's powerful rebel factions, including one linked to al-Qaida, formally broke with the main opposition group in exile Wednesday and called for Islamic law in the country, dealing a severe blow to the Western-backed coalition.

The new alliance is a potential turning point, entrenching the schism within the rebellion and giving President Bashar Assad fuel for his long-stated contention that his regime is battling Islamic extremists in the civil war.

The Turkey-based Syrian National Coalition — the political arm of the Free Syrian Army rebel group — has long been accused by those fighting inside Syria of being a puppet promoted by the West and Gulf Arab states supporting the Syrian rebellion.

Wednesday's public rejection of the coalition's authority will likely be extremely damaging for its future in Syria, particularly at a time when the U.S. and Russia are pushing for peace talks.

"If the groups involved stand by this statement, I think this could be a very big deal — especially if it develops into a more-structured alliance instead of just a joint position," said political analyst Aron Lund.

"It basically means that some of the biggest mainstream Islamist forces within the so-called FSA are breaking up with the political leadership appointed for them by the West and Gulf states, to cast their lot with more hardline and anti-Western Islamists," he said.

In a joint statement, 11 rebel groups that are influential in Aleppo province in the north, including Jabhat al-Nusra, which is listed as a terrorist organization by the U.S. State Department, said they rejected the authority of the Syrian National Coalition as well as Touma's appointment.

ANTI-SHUTDOWN BILL ADVANCES; BIG BUDGET FIGHT STILL LOOMS

BY DAVID ESPO

AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON • Unanimous but far from united, the Senate advanced legislation to prevent a partial government shutdown Wednesday, the 100-0 vote certain to mark merely a brief pause in a fierce partisan struggle over the future of President Barack Obama's signature health care law.

The vote came shortly after Texas Sen. Ted Cruz held the Senate in session overnight — and the Twitterverse in his thrall — with a near-22-hour speech that charmed the tea party wing of the GOP, irritated the leadership and was meant to propel fellow Republican lawmakers into an all-out struggle to extinguish the law.

Defying one's own party leaders is survivable, he declared in pre-dawn remarks on the Senate floor. "Ultimately, it is liberating."

Legislation passed by the Republican-controlled House last week would cancel all funds for the three-year-old law, preventing its full implementation. But Senate Democrats have enough votes to restore the funds, and Majority Leader Harry Reid labeled Cruz's turn in the spotlight "a big waste of time."

Any differences between the two houses' legislation must be reconciled and the bill signed into law by next Tuesday to avert a partial shutdown. The issue is coming to the forefront in Congress as the Obama administration works to assure a smooth launch for the health care overhaul's final major piece, a season of enrollment beginning Oct. 1 for millions who will seek coverage on so-called insurance exchanges.

Health and Human Secretary Kathleen Sebelius told reporters this week that consumers will have an average of 53 plans to choose from, and her department estimated the average individual premium for a benchmark policy known as the "second-lowest cost silver plan" would range from a low of $192 in Minnesota to a high of $516 in Wyoming. Tax credits will bring down the cost for many.

Republicans counter that the legislation is causing employers to defer hiring new workers, lay off existing ones and reduce the hours of still others to hold down costs as they try to ease the impact of the bill's taxes and other requirements.

"Obamacare is destroying jobs. It is driving up health care costs. It is killing health benefits. It is shattering the economy," said Cruz.

Topsy, a search engine

that's a preferred partner of Twitter, calculated on its website during the day that there had been about 200,000 tweets containing the words "Ted Cruz" in the previous day.

Eight months in office, he drew handshakes from several conservative lawmakers as he finished speaking and accolades from tea party and other groups. Chris Chocola, president of the Club for Growth, said Americans owe "Cruz a debt of gratitude for standing on principle in the fight to stop Obamacare."

In addition to the praise, Cruz he drew a withering rebuttal from one fellow Republican, Arizona Sen. John McCain.

McCain read aloud Cruz's comments from Tuesday comparing those who doubt the possibility of eradicating the health care law to former British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and others who had suggested Adolf Hitler and the Nazis could not be stopped in the 1940s.

"I resoundingly reject that allegation," said McCain, whose grandfather led U.S. carrier forces in the Pacific during World War II, and whose father commanded two submarines.

"It does a great disservice to those Americans who stood up and said 'what's happening in Europe cannot stand.'"

Even with the 100-0 vote, the legislation faces several hurdles that must be overcome as both houses and lawmakers in both parties work to avoid a partial shutdown next Tuesday.

The struggle over restoring funds for the health care law is by far the most contentious unresolved issue.

Senate Democrats also want to increase funding for federal firefighting efforts without making offsetting cuts to other programs.

Massive Earthquake Devastates Pakistan

Earthquake survivors struggle for food, shelter.

DALBADI, Pakistan (AP) • Survivors built makeshift shelters with sticks and bed sheets Wednesday, a day after their mud houses were flattened in an earthquake that killed 285 people in southwestern Pakistan and pushed a new island up out of the Arabian Sea.

While waiting for help to reach remote villages, hungry people dug through the rubble to find food. And the country's poorest province struggled with a dearth of medical supplies, hospitals and other aid. The quake flattened wide swathes of Awaran district, where it was centered, leaving much of the population homeless.

Almost all of the 300 mud-brick homes in the village of Dalbadi were destroyed. Noor Ahmad said he was working when the quake struck and rushed home to find his house leveled and his wife and son dead. "I'm broken," he said. "I have lost my family."

At least 373 people were also injured, according to a statement from the National Disaster Management Authority, which gave the latest death toll.

ed some of the injured, but due to a scarcity of medicine and staff, they were mostly seen comforting residents.

The remoteness of the area and the lack of infrastructure hampered relief efforts. Awaran district is one of the poorest in the country's most impoverished province.

Just getting to victims was challenging in a region with almost no roads where many people use four-wheel-drive vehicles and camels to traverse the rough terrain.

"We need more tents, more medicine and more food," said a spokesman for the provincial government, Jan Mohammad Bulaidi.

Associated Press images from the village of Kaich showed the devastation. Houses made mostly of mud and handmade bricks had collapsed. Walls and roofs caved in, and people's possessions were scattered on the ground. A few goats roamed through the ruins.

The Pakistani military said it had rushed almost 1,000 troops to the area overnight and was sending helicopters as well. A convoy of 60 Pakistani army trucks left the port city of Karachi early Wednesday with supplies.

Pakistani forces have evacuated more than 170 people from various villages around Awaran to the district hospital, the military said. Others were evacuated to Karachi.

One survivor interviewed in his Karachi hospital bed said he was sleeping when the quake struck. "I don't know who brought me from Awaran to here in Karachi, but I feel back pain and severe pain in my whole body," he said.

Jan said he didn't know what happened to the man's family. He was trying to contact relatives.

Local officials said they were sending doctors, food and 1,000 tents for people who had nowhere to sleep. The efforts were complicated by strong aftershocks.

Habitat for Humanity® of the Magic Valley, Inc.

HABITAT FOR HUMANITY OF THE MAGIC VALLEY (HFH-MV) has Much to Celebrate, but more to do....

Twenty two years ago, in 1991, a small group of volunteers founded HFH-MV as an affiliate of Habitat International. Their goal, to help serve the low income housing needs in South Central Idaho. Today, the HFH-MV founders' dream is alive and thriving with a large group of volunteers, donors, and three staff members working family by family to provide simple, decent housing. We invite you to be part of this joyous team. Much has been accomplished; much remains to be done. To date, HFH-MV, in partnership with many volunteers, donors and our Habitat Families consisting of 134 children and 71 adults, has built or refurbished 39 homes to sell to these families at an affordable price (with no interest). HFH-MV receives monthly income from all these homes (most mortgages are for 25-30 years) enabling HFH-MV to survive, to grow, and to give the hope home ownership can provide to more low income families.

FAMILIES NEEDED

HFH-MV is currently in family selection for our 2014 build season. Should you know a family in need, please direct them to our offices or www.habitatmagicvalley.org for a pre-application.

DONORS & VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

PLEASE HELP US

We have volunteer needs at the ReStore, on-sites and in the office. Ages 17 and older are welcome, large groups needed for our new and improved ReStore. Call 735-1233 or go to www.habitatmagicvalley.org to register online.

A&B IRRIGATION DISTRICT Minidoka and Jerome Counties, Idaho NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to the order of the Board of Directors of A&B Irrigation District, a Special Election will be held in the District on from the hours of 1:00 o'clock P.M. to 7:00 o'clock P.M., for the purpose of voting upon the question and proposition of raising funds in an aggregate principal amount not to exceed $7,000,000 through the issuance of bonds and/or through an arrangement with a money lending institution for the purpose of funding the Unit A Pumping Plant #2 and Lake Walcott Recharge projects, together with the costs and fees incidental thereto, including costs and fees related to the issuance of bonds and/or entering into an arrangement with a money lending institution.

The question to be submitted to the electors shall be by ballot reading substantially as follows:

SHALL THE A&B IRRIGATION DISTRICT BE AUTHORIZED TO RAISE FUNDS FOR THE DISTRICT IN A PRINCIPAL AMOUNT NOT TO EXCEED $7,000,000 THROUGH AN ARRANGEMENT WITH A MONEY LENDING INSTITUTION AND/OR THROUGH THE ISSUANCE OF BONDS, WHICH BONDS SHALL MATURE OVER A TERM WHICH MAY BE LESS THAN BUT WHICH SHALL NOT EXCEED TWENTY (20) YEARS FROM THEIR DATE, FOR THE PURPOSE OF FUNDING THE UNIT A PUMPING PLANT #2 AND LAKE WALCOTT RECHARGE PROJECTS, TOGETHER WITH RELATED COSTS AND FEES, SAID MONEY LENDING ARRANGEMENTS AND/OR BONDS TO BE PAYABLE FROM ASSESSMENTS AGAINST PROPERTY WITHIN THE DISTRICT AS PROVIDED BY LAW, ALL AS SET FORTH IN THE RESOLUTION OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS ADOPTED ON SEPTEMBER 10, 2013?

The following information is provided pursuant to Section 34-439, Idaho Code:

The interest rate anticipated on any bonds issued pursuant to the authority sought is 5.6% per annum. The range of anticipated rates is from 4.0% to 6.0% per annum. The total amount to be repaid over the life of the proposed bonds, principal and interest, based on the anticipated interest rate and a maximum term of 20 years, is estimated to be $11,311,813.

The District's only existing indebtedness is the repayment contract with the United States Bureau of Reclamation relating to the initial construction of the project in the amount of $767,323.87.

Qualified electors may vote at the District's east yard located at 700 N Meridian, Rupert, Idaho 83350 and the District's west yard located at 1100 W 100 S Paul, Idaho 83347.

Qualified electors, under the general laws of Idaho, eighteen (18) years of age or older who are United States citizens who own land in the District and have resided in Minidoka County or Jerome County for at least thirty (30) days next preceding the election, and who execute the elector's oath in the form required by law, and no others, will be permitted to vote at said special election.

Any qualified elector may apply to the District Secretary for an absentee ballot. The application must be in writing, must be signed by the applicant, and must contain the name of the elector, his/her home address, and the address to which the ballot shall be forwarded. An application for a mail-in absentee ballot must be received by the District Secretary not later than 5:00 p. m. on the sixth day before the election. An application for in-person absentee voting must be received by the District Secretary not later than 5:00 p.m. on the day before the election, and absentee ballots must be received by the District Secretary not later than 7:00 p. m. on the day of election in order to be counted. Application for an absentee ballot may be made by using a facsimile machine. The District's facsimile number is (208) 436-3151.

If at the special election 2/3 of the qualified electors voting at such election assent to the raising of funds as set forth in the resolution of September 10, 2013, the District will issue bonds of the District and/or enter into arrangements with money lending institutions. Any Bonds issue pursuant to this authority may be issued in one or more series and will mature annually over a term which may be less than but which will not exceed 20 years from their date, will bear interest at a rate or rates agreeable to the District, and will be payable from assessments levied upon property within the District in the manner provided by law.

ORDINANCE NO. 684
AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF GOODING, STATE OF IDAHO, A MUNICIPAL CORPORATION, AMENDING ORDINANCE NO. 666 BY AMENDING SECTION 8 REGARDING THE REDEMPTION OF IMPOUNDED DOGS; ALSO AMENDING SECTION 9 BY CHANGING THE PENALTIES; PROVIDING FOR THE SEVERABILITY OF EACH SECTION OF THIS ORDINANCE AND REPEALING ALL ORDINANCES IN CONFLICT HEREWITH.
NOW, THEREFORE, be ordained by the City Council of the City of Gooding, State of Idaho as follows:
Sections 1, 8 and 9 of Gooding City Ordinance No. 666 shall be amended to read as follows:
Section 1: DOGS RUNNING AT LARGE. It shall be unlawful for any owner, possessor or person who keeps any dog to permit the same to run at large upon the private premises of others or upon the streets, alleys, sidewalks, highways, vacant lots, school grounds or other public places within the City of Gooding. A dog shall be deemed to be running at large when off or away from the premises of the owner, possessor, or keeper thereof, and not under the immediate control of such owner, possessor, or keeper, or his agent or servant or a member of his immediate family, either by leash, cord or chain, provided, however, that any dog on the premises of a city park, or school grounds must be controlled by a leash not exceeding ten (10) feet in length held in the hand of the person controlling the dog. Procuring a license and tag shall not authorize the running at large of said dog.
Doogs in a vehicle, whether in the front, back, on top, or on the hood shall be secured so they cannot jump out of the vehicle. Person failing to secure such dog shall be punished as set forth in Section 9 as amended.
Section 8: REDEMPTION OF IMPOUNDED DOGS. Any dog impounded may be taken from the pound by the owner, or any authorized person, upon exhibiting to the animal control officer or other authorized person having charge of said pound a receipt, from the City, showing that the license fee has been paid for such dog, and upon paying the City an impounding fee of ten dollars ($10.00) for the first offense, forty dollars ($40.00) for the second offense ~~taking place within one (1) year~~ and eighty dollars ($80.00) for the third offense ~~taking place within one (1) year~~. Any dogs committing more than three (3) offenses ~~within one (1) years~~ shall be disposed of in a humane manner. All impounded dogs not redeemed within seventy-two (72) hours may be offered for sale at a price not less than the costs of impoundment and keeping, or any additional sum determined to be reasonable by the animal control officer, including any license fee. Alternatively, such dog shall be turned over to an animal rescue group, that has appeared before and been approved by the Council, if adoptable.
Section 9: PENALTIES. Any owner, possessor or person violating any provision of this Ordinance shall be, upon conviction or entry of a guilty plea, be guilty of an infraction and shall be fined as follows:
1. First Offense - $50.00 plus court costs
2. Second Offense ~~within one year~~ - $100.00 plus court costs
3. Third Offense, ~~within one year and thereafter~~, - $150.00 plus court costs
This ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage and publication.
Passed by the City Council of the City of Gooding, County of Gooding, State of Idaho, this 16th day of September, 2013.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on December 31, 2013, at the hour of one o'clock p.m. of said day, at the offices of Land Title and Escrow, Inc., 706 Main Street, Gooding, Gooding County, Idaho, the Trustee, Alliance Title & Escrow Corp., will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash in lawful money of the United States of America, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property situated in the County of Gooding, State of Idaho, and described as follows, to wit:
The East 53 feet of Lots 17 and 18 in Block 85, East Gooding Addition, to the City of Gooding, Gooding County, Idaho, as the same is platted in the official plat thereof, now of record in the office of the Recorder of said County.
The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above described real property, but for purposes of compliance with Idaho Code Section 60 113, the Trustee has been informed that the street address of 517 5TH AVENUE EAST, GOODING, IDAHO, may sometimes be associated with said real property.
Said sale will be made, without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances, to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust made and entered into on July 8, 2011, by and among CYNTHIA SNELL, an unmarried woman, as Grantor, and ALLIANCE TITLE AND ESCROW, as Trustee, and HOPKINS U.S. FUND L.L.C., an Idaho Limited Liability Company "as trustee for the benefit on a parity for all Series "US" Debenture Holders," as Beneficiary; said Deed of Trust having been filed of record on July 11, 2011, as Instrument No. 238289, Official Records of Gooding County, Idaho. The beneficial interest of said Deed of Trust was assigned for purposes of security to IDAHO INDEPENDENT BANK, an Idaho banking corporation, by an Assignment for Security dated March 29, 2013, and filed of record on April 2, 2013, as Instrument No. 244352, Official Records of Gooding County, Idaho. The naming of the above Grantor(s) is done to comply with Idaho Code Section 45-1506(4)(a); no representation is made as to the responsibility of Grantor(s) for this obligation.
The default for which the sale is to be made is that no monthly installment payments under a Deed of Trust Note dated July 8, 2011, in the amount of $360.05 per month for June 2013 and each month thereafter have been made, together with monthly impound fees in the amount of $142.11 for June 2013 and each month thereafter, plus accruing late charges and any other charges lawfully due under the note, deed of trust, and Idaho law.
The balance owing as of the date hereof on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is the amount of $28,892.62 in principal; plus accrued interest at the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum from June 21, 2013; less a credit of $839.25 for sums held in suspense; plus service charges, late charges, and any other costs or expenses associated with this foreclosure as provided by the Deed of Trust or Deed of Trust Note, or by Idaho law.

DEAR ABBY: I'm three months pregnant. Before I got pregnant, my husband and I enjoyed having wine with dinner or a margarita when we were out on the town. We didn't drink to excess, but have enjoyed alcohol in moderation.

Obviously, I can't drink anymore, but my husband carries on like nothing has changed. I'm becoming resentful every time we go out to eat.

I asked him once if he'd quit drinking until our baby arrives. He looked shocked and said, "Why? I'm not

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

pregnant." I guess I feel left out because he's having fun. I want him to suffer with me, and this is really getting on my nerves. Any advice?

—RESENTFUL IN TENNESSEE

DEAR RESENTFUL: Yes. If you feel you are missing out on "fun" if you can't drink, you have a potential alcohol problem. Tell your husband that when he drinks in front of you, it makes you crave alcohol, and ask again that he respect your feelings and not do it. A considerate husband and father-to-be should respect that you are doing the heavy lifting (literally) and help all he can.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 28-year-old man who was born disabled. I have not had a date in years. I'd like to date and have a girlfriend, but when women look at me, all they see is my wheelchair.

I'm a good person, well-mannered, respectful, caring and compassionate. Any advice you can offer would be appreciated.

—LONELY IN ILLINOIS

DEAR LONELY: I'm glad you wrote because it's important that you not allow yourself to be isolated. Get out and participate in activities you enjoy that include like-minded people. While you may have been born disabled, I'm sure you have abilities and talents that would be welcomed if you choose to volunteer them.

If you haven't already, search the various online dating sites for both disabled and nondisabled individuals or contact a disability advocacy organization for guidance or to help you get access. Seek advice within the disabled community (in person or online) from individuals who have more experience with dating than you do. They can also help you navigate any physical barriers that might prevent you from dating, if that's an issue.

There's a saying, "Seek and ye shall find," and it applies in your situation. I wish you the best of luck.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's much older sister has no problem calling to ask for money, but never calls just to say hello or to see how he's doing. This has been going on for almost 10 years. She'll tell us she or her sons need it for bills or school expenses.

He has talked to her about it, but nothing has changed. We both work hard, while she refuses to ask the children's father for a cent. Should we continue to give her money because it may affect our nephews if we don't?

—AUNT IN THE SOUTH

DEAR AUNT: That you have tolerated this for 10 years tells me you and your husband are kindhearted and responsible people, and I respect that. However, fathers have a legal responsibility to support their children, and your sister-in-law should make sure it happens whether that involves hiring an attorney to help or applying for funds from the state to see her boys are taken care of. If you must give her money, give her enough for a consultation with an attorney because "Sissie" appears to have been using you.

IF SEPTEMBER 26 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Find ways to expand your horizons by networking or joining groups of like-minded people during the next six to eight weeks. Your street smarts are in full flower, so this is a good time to make shrewd business or financial decisions or make headway with your career. Your efforts may pay off with a raise or more reliable long-term security. Make crucial decisions or put ideas into motion during November for the best chance of success. Next March and April, when your charm is at a peak, is an excellent time to find a soul mate, make a romantic commitment, or interview for a new job.

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Ask and you will receive. This is a good day to ask for favors, make promises or to participate in a team project. Stability and enduring values will see you through a dilemma.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): If you build logically, you can make a lasting improvement. You have the ear of those with the power to grant favors. Make a point of being generous and kind to your significant other.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lay the foundation for the future. This could be a good time to shift funds, merge assets, or make an important financial decision because you'll get sound advice from others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You could wander off to look for a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow or accept an opportunity right under your nose. Visualize the things you want to own and they may appear.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Fan the flames of your fantasies. Put projects into motion that require vision and a firm grasp of possibilities. It will be very easy to get cooperation and assistance from others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Promises are like peaches and it's up to you to pick the best ones. If you make an important decision or accept an opportunity, it's likely everything will unfold exactly as planned.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your special someone might appear to have a roving eye, but you might invite seductive flirtations, too. A little competition might make you appreciate each other more and improve your relationship.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): When opportunity knocks, jump to your feet and answer the door. Start a new project, a new hobby, or go shopping for items that reflect good taste. Your efforts can bring large rewards.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): New fancies could go hand-in-hand with fine opportunities. Keep your ear to the ground and hook up with helpful connections. Careful strategies can't compete with sincerity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Friends will never fail to defend you. Ride the tides of popular opinion and focus on achieving your goals. You'll have a cheering squad to encourage you in every endeavor.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Make the most of your mojo. People may think you're more attractive or talented than you really are, so use this to your advantage. Ask for favors or help from others.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Brilliant ideas drop on your head. It makes sense to make apple pie when apples fall from a tree and into your lap. Don't attempt the difficult when something easy is there for the picking.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"We ne'er can be Made happy by compulsion."
— Samuel Taylor Coleridge

One of the most dangerous emotions for a bridge player is that of premature euphoria. It is easy to be on your guard when you can see traps set all around you, but it is more difficult to remain alert when the road seems very clear.

Declarer succeeded in bringing home four spades today after West led the heart queen. He won the trick in dummy and played the spade king, which East took before cashing his heart winner and exiting with a second trump. At this point, declarer could have been forgiven for relying on the diamond finesse, which succeeds if either minor-suit honor is well-placed or if diamonds split. As the cards lie, this line would be doomed to failure.

South, however, saw a little further into the hand. He cashed the diamond ace first, then came back to hand with a trump and led a diamond to dummy's queen. East could take his king, but was endplayed. When he returned a heart, it allowed declarer to ruff in dummy and discard his club loser.

The point of the hand is that if the diamond finesse succeeds, you do not need to take it at once. You have enough entries to lead up to the queen-jack twice later on and get a discard for your potential club loser. Had the diamond queen held, declarer would have led a club to the ace and another diamond toward the jack. He could always fall back on the club finesse eventually if nothing else worked.

ANSWER: The safest way into the auction here is to double rather than to bid two hearts. Yes, you might miss a 5-3 fit, but equally a 4-4 club fit might play better than an eight- or seven-card heart fit. Your objective in overcalling here is not to bid game, but to hope to find a fit, or to push the opponents up. Doubling is the best way to do that.

Today is Thursday, Sept. 26, the 269th day of 2013. There are 96 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Sept. 26, 1789, Thomas Jefferson was confirmed by the Senate to be the first United States secretary of state; John Jay, the first chief justice; Edmund Randolph, the first attorney general.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1777, British troops occupied Philadelphia during the American Revolution.

In 1892, John Philip Sousa and his newly formed band performed publicly for the first time, at the Stillman Music Hall in Plainfield, N.J.

In 1914, the Federal Trade Commission was established.

In 1918, the Meuse-Argonne offensive, resulting in an Allied victory against the Germans, began during World War I.

In 1937, the radio drama "The Shadow," starring Orson Welles, premiered on the Mutual Broadcasting System.

In 1952, philosopher George Santayana died in Rome at age 88.

In 1955, following word that President Dwight D. Eisenhower had suffered a heart attack, the New York Stock Exchange saw its worst price decline since 1929.

In 1960, the first debate between presidential nominees took place in Chicago as Democrat John F. Kennedy and Republican Richard M. Nixon faced off before a national TV audience.

In 1962, Maury Wills of the Los Angeles Dodgers stole his 100th base during a 13-1 victory over the Houston Colt .45s. "The Beverly Hillbillies" premiered on CBS. The cult film "Carnival of Souls" premiered in Lawrence, Kan., where parts of it had been filmed.

In 1969, the family comedy series "The Brady Bunch" premiered on ABC-TV.

In 1986, William H. Rehnquist was sworn in as the 16th chief justice of the United States, while Antonin Scalia joined the Supreme Court as its 103rd member.

In 1990, the Motion Picture Association of America announced it had created a new rating, NC-17, to replace the X rating.

In 1991, four men and four women began a two-year stay inside a sealed-off structure in Oracle, Ariz., called Biosphere 2. They emerged from the structure on this date in 1993.

Ten years ago: President George W. Bush and Russian President Vladimir Putin opened a two-day summit at Camp David. The government issued a recall for Segway scooters, citing instances in which riders fell off when the batteries ran low. A magnitude 8 quake rocked Japan's northern island of Hokkaido, injuring more than 750 people. British rock singer Robert Palmer died in Paris at age 54.

Five years ago: Hollywood screen legend and philanthropist Paul Newman died in Westport, Conn. at age 83. In their first debate of the presidential campaign, held at the University of Mississippi, Republican John McCain portrayed himself as a battle-tested elder running against a naive rookie, while Democrat Barack Obama suggested McCain was a hothead who'd made the wrong choices on the Iraq war, corporate taxes and more. Swiss pilot Yves Rossy leapt from a plane over Calais, France, and crossed the English Channel on a homemade jet-propelled wing in 13 minutes.

One year ago: President Barack Obama and Mitt Romney both campaigned in Ohio, where Romney said his Massachusetts health care law was proof that he cared about ordinary Americans. A judge in Pennsylvania upheld perjury charges against two Penn State administrators in the Jerry Sandusky case. Rebels in Syria set off two car bombs in Damascus that engulfed the army headquarters in flames.

‘We Can Grow From This’

The Dutchmen plant’s exodus will be a blow to Burley’s tax base and employment figures.

BURLEY • The Dutchmen plant in Burley will close up shop by Nov. 15 and the Indiana-based recreational vehicle manufacturer will take about 150 jobs with it.

Dutchmen Manufacturing came to Burley in 2007 with the help of state and local government entities. Former Idaho governor Jim Risch presented more than $1.5 million in state funds to help the manufacturer start producing travel trailers at its Burley site.

Dutchmen’s pending closure is another chapter in the decade-long roller coaster of manufacturing in the Mini-Cassia region. It’s an industrial landscape that’s seen significant investment since 2004, but also lost some large-scale manufacturers.

Dutchmen’s exodus — a blow to the city’s tax base and employment figures — leaves behind ready-to-use infrastructure, city officials said. The buildings Dutchmen is leaving, for example, are a potentially attractive asset to would-be tenants.

“There are a lot of things that this community has done right. It’s a shame to see Dutchmen go, but they are leaving a perfectly good building,” said Burley Mayor Terry Greenman. “We have people coming to this state looking for an existing facility. That’s just another opportunity.”

Burley Mayor Terry Greenman

From 2004 to 2012, Burley was able to bring in more than 10 notable businesses to help boost its economy, the state Department of Labor reports. Coast to Coast Carports, Mull-holland Positioning Systems and Hy-Line N.A. are among the list of businesses that have bolstered the town’s economy.

But a string of closures over the same period — JR Simplot, Kraft Cheese and now Dutchmen — cast a shadow over the future of manufacturing in Burley.

Simplot’s closure and the Great Recession in 2008 hit Cassia County especially hard. Unemployment jumped from 3.7 percent in September 2008 to 6.8 percent by September 2010, according to the Labor Department. That number has ticked down to 5.7 percent as of August, a full percentage point below the state average.

The loss of 600 jobs at Simplot in 2003 “woke” Burley up, Greenman said.

“Since that time, 38-plus businesses have come to town to replace all of those jobs and more. Sometimes when things happen, it isn’t a negative,” Greenman said. “It’s a wake-up call so we can see for ourselves who we really are and what we can do to invite businesses.”

Greenman also cited the McCain Foods expansion that was currently in progress for Burley.

“They’re going to build a new plant here and, from what I understand, it will have 140-some employees with a $54 million payroll. That’s huge.”

Watco LLC came to Burley in 2013 bringing with it 30 jobs and a $2.5 million annual payroll. In addition to Watco and the McCain Foods expansion, DOT Foods is currently expanding its presence in the Mini-Cassia area.

Per-capita income in Cassia County, with its historic reliance on agriculture, has lagged well behind the state. But local earnings surpassed the state average in 2010, as the local economy evolved into a more industrial one.

And, though the occasional closure stains a decade of growth, the general trends leave local officials optimistic about the future.

“We are a strong community,” Greenman said. “We can grow from this.”

Twin Falls Man Dies in Idaho 25 Crash

TIMES-NEWS

JEROME • A Twin Falls man died in a Tuesday evening crash on Idaho Highway 25, the Idaho State Police said Wednesday morning.

Delmis D. Beedle, 74, died of his injuries at the scene.

At about 9 p.m. Tuesday, near milepost 4 in Jerome County, Beedle was eastbound in a 2007 Pontiac G6. His vehicle struck the rear of a 2000 Kenworth driven by Jose J. Zarazua Zavala, 61, of Twin Falls, also east-bound.

Beedle was wearing his seat belt at the time of the crash, ISP said.

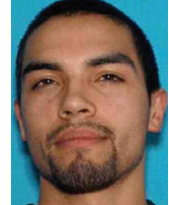

All lanes on Idaho 25 were blocked for about five hours. The crash is still under investigation.

Man Arrested in Connection with Heyburn Murder

EDINBURG, Texas • Almost two months after Craig Glen Short was found dead at Christopher Cruz’s residence in Heyburn, Cruz was arrested in Edinburg, Texas on Tuesday.

After the Aug. 2 shooting of Short, about 50 officers were on scene from the Minidoka and Cassia county sheriffs’ offices, the Heyburn Police Department and Idaho State Police. Idaho Fish and Game officers helped secure the scene, where evidence was processed for 12 hours.

The case involved more than two homes and “a lot of evidence,” Minidoka County Sheriff Eric Snarr said at the time, declining to elaborate.

Cruz, 21, was suspected of shooting Short at Cruz’s residence at 423 S. 850 W., after a witness fled the scene to call 911.

A manhunt was launched and Cruz was declared “armed and dangerous.”

At the time of the shooting, police were searching for Cruz and a possible accomplice, girlfriend Stephanie Pauline Juarez, 32, of Heyburn. Juarez has not been charged, but she remains a person of interest in the case.

Cruz is being held at the Hidalgo County Sheriff’s Office in Edinburg, Texas on a $1 million bond for charges of first-degree murder and

One Body Recovered at Craters of the Moon

Search to resume for second missing woman.

BY JOHN SOWELL
Idaho Statesman

The search will resume early today for the second of two Boise women missing after a trip to Craters of the Moon National Monument.

A body had been recovered just before dark Wednesday about two miles from a popular Craters trailhead parking lot. Butte County Sheriff Wes Collins said the dead woman is “definitely” one of the missing hikers. The identity of the dead woman will be released this morning after family are notified, Collins said.

Jo Elliott-Blakeslee

“It definitely looked like she had gotten lost and was trying to hike out,” Collins said.

Jo Elliott-Blakeslee, 63, a physician at the Eastern Oregon Correctional Institution in Ontario, and Amelia Linkert, a retired special-education teacher at Lowell Scott Middle School in Meridian who turns 70 today, were scheduled to return from Craters of the Moon on Saturday, two days after they arrived at the monument southwest of Arco.

Friends and relatives described the women as experienced in the outdoors and unlikely to leave their dogs for long.

Friend and former colleague Deanna Salazar-Brown said Elliott-Blakeslee spends a lot of time outdoors and visits Hawaii each year.

“It doesn’t surprise me that she was hiking and camping over there,” Salazar-Brown said. “I’m really stunned and concerned to learn she’s missing.”

The two women parked their trailer at a KOA campground in Arco, about 22 miles northeast of the monument, Monument Superintendent Dan Buckley said. Their two labradoodle dogs and cellphones were found in a pickup truck parked at the Tree Molds Trailhead at the south end of the monument’s popular driving loop and hiking trails.

Collins said he does not think the women were victims of a crime. Their purses and other items were still inside the truck parked at the trailhead.

“We’re open to any possibility, but we don’t see any signs of foul play,” Collins said.
