Testimony: Doctors Under Pressure from St. Luke's Hospital

St. Luke's opponents contend that system hoards patients, squeezes out competitors.

BY AUDREY DUTTON
adutton@idahostatesman.com

BOISE • Linda Duer, executive director of the Idaho Physicians Network, remembers the evening one of the network's board members, Dr. Randell Page, broke some big news:

His business, Saltzer Medical Group, probably was going to sell itself to St. Luke's Health System.

The conversation happened two years ago, long before Saltzer made the leap and joined St. Luke's — a decision that prompted a trial now underway in U.S. District Court.

Saltzer has dozens of doctors on staff and, at the time, was the largest group of its kind in Idaho. But, according to Duer, Page told her that night that Saltzer's future was uncertain, and he worried that the fast-growing St. Luke's system might squeeze Saltzer out if they didn't join forces.

Duer's Sept. 25 testimony was initially redacted from trial transcripts but released publicly this week.

U.S. District Judge Lynn Winnmill is presiding over the lawsuit in which the Federal Trade Commission, Idaho Attorney General, St. Alphonsus Health System and Treasure Valley Hospital allege that St. Luke's and Saltzer broke antitrust laws when Saltzer sold itself to St. Luke's at the end of last year. The trial began Sept. 23 and is expected to end Oct. 18.

The lawsuit hinges on whether the Saltzer buyout would reduce competition for primary medical care in the market Saltzer serves. St. Luke's argues that its buyout is actually good for competition and is vital to building an insurance network of its own — one that would pay for quality instead of quantity. During a break in that 2011 board meeting, Duer and Page met in the lobby of an insurance company's office, she said.

"What the hell are you doing, Randy?" she recalled asking, referring to his announcement that Saltzer would probably sell to St. Luke's.

"Linda, I'm damned if I do, I'm damned if I don't," Duer said Page told her. "If I do it, everyone will be mad, everyone will be upset. If I don't, St. Luke's will build a clinic wherever I go. They have more money; they have more resources."

"They are already building the specialist clinic out by Costco. There is no way that I can compete with that."

That was the only reason he offered for wanting to sell to St. Luke's, Duer told a lawyer for Idaho's Attorney General's Office.

A St. Luke's attorney objected to Duer's testimony, but Winnmill overruled the objection.

The Idaho Physicians Network has doctors who, through IPN contracts, can see 236,000 patients who are covered by various insurance companies.

Duer has been executive director for 13 years and said the Idaho Physicians Network is the second largest in the state. Blue Cross of Idaho is the largest, she said.

An attorney for St. Luke's later said Duer's business — a network of about 13,000 providers statewide — competes with a St. Luke's-affiliated network.

Duer testified that she worried about whether networks like hers can survive the changes in reimbursement brought by the Affordable Care Act, such as paying for quality instead of quantity —

NOT YOUR ORDINARY HOUSE FLY

The good news — and bad news — of the fly infestation this season.

BY MYCHEL MATTHEWS
mmatthews@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • There's good news — and bad news — about this fall's fly infestation.

The good news is the flies that stalk us in the fall are not really nuisance flies — although many people might argue.

"The flies that we are dealing with now are called 'cluster flies,' not house flies or 'dirty flies' that breed in garbage," said Tony McCammon, a University of Idaho extension educator in Twin Falls. "These are not the disgusting dirty flies that come from manure or rotting food."

Cluster flies — entomologically known as Pollenia rudis — are not the same flies we battle all summer, he said.

Cluster flies don't bite and they don't carry diseases like ordinary house flies, McCammon said. In fact, they are not a house fly at all.

Generally, house flies are in the pupa stage now, and won't be flying around again until spring.

Feeling better now? Cluster flies are a nuisance only because some invade homes for a short time, looking for a place to stay warm.

They tend to cover the sunny south and west sides of buildings, searching for an entrance into a wall. In nature, they hiber-nate under the bark of trees or under piles of leaves.

Cluster flies descend on the region each year in late summer and fall. Once they get inside a home, they will hang from ceilings and sunny window sills, sometimes hanging off light bulbs in clusters.

Larger than the common house fly, they fly in slow motion, lumbering into things like faces and hairdos — thus the nicknames: "face flies" and "sticky flies."

"The only reason they land on you is they are looking for salt and other nutrients to get them through the winter," said McCammon.

Cluster flies will spit on skin, then mop up nutrients with spongy mouthparts, he said.

When freezing temperatures arrive, most will escape into protected spaces to spend the next few months, giving the

WENDELL DAIRY WORKER KILLED IN ACCIDENT

TIMES-NEWS

WENDELL • A local dairy worker was killed Tuesday in a tractor accident.

Cecelio Garcia Gaucin, 45, was repairing a tractor in a silage pit at Verbree Dairies in Wendell when the tractor ran over him.

Gaucin "was lying between the front and rear tires when something went wrong," said Shaun

Gough, Gooding County sheriff. "The tractor somehow started by itself. It was in forward gear and full throttle."

No one was in the cab at the time.

Gaucin had worked at the dairy for more than a decade, Gough said.

Verbree Dairies has set up an account at Farmers National Bank to benefit the Gaucin family.

Student Hopes to Upgrade Curriculum through Schools' Chief Tom Luna

BY C. COLT CRANE

BURLEY • High school senior Hayden Allred today will meet with state Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna in Boise to explain a learning process he developed called LAIR — Learn, Apply, Imagine, Reflect — in hopes of having it implemented statewide.

When Luna made a comment on his Facebook page about getting laptops to every Idaho student, Hayden posted a comment. Within an hour, the student said, Luna replied that he liked what the senior had to say and wanted to meet with him.

"Looking back, this is how I've done all of my learning without realizing it," said Hayden, 17. "Technology is more than a computer lab or an iPod cart; it's the actual language and curriculum of the age."

The Burley High student already has met with Cassia County School District officials to discuss his ideas.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stocks Fall on Third Day of Government Shutdown

NEW YORK (AP) • Investors sold stocks across the board Thursday as a U.S. government shutdown dragged into its third day and the nation inched closer to a critical deadline to raise its borrowing limit.

Stocks opened lower and fell steadily throughout the morning. The Dow Jones industrial average slumped nearly 200 points, but later pulled back from its slide.

Investors fretted that Republicans and Democrats were no closer to ending the budget impasse. In a speech, President Barack Obama said there was only one way out of the shutdown: “Congress has to pass a budget that funds our government with no partisan strings attached.”

GOVERNMENT SHUTDOWN

Fewer Services and Facilities Available to Hikers, Hunters

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • If you plan to run for the hills this weekend, be prepared to rough it.

The partial U.S. government shutdown has forced mandatory closures of federally developed public lands throughout Idaho.

Before heading out for an autumn hike or hunt, remember that any public land with controlled access will be closed.

This means campgrounds, parking lots, restrooms, fire pits and boat ramps all are off limits.

So are visitor centers and other developed recreation sites.

Hikers, hunters and other recreationists still may access trailheads and drive on U.S. Forest Service and U.S. Bureau of Land Management roads.

The shutdown doesn't apply to state parks, however. Idaho's state-managed parks and developed lands are still open to the public.

Thursday was the last day for campground occupants to leave. If they didn't, federal employees who weren't furloughed would fine them. Remaining staffers are providing security and emergency services during the shutdown.

Sheriff's Office Monitoring Buhl-area Horses after Complaint

TIMES-NEWS

BUHL • The Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office is monitoring the owner of several horses after a complaint.

The call about six underweight horses prompted deputies to visit a home southeast of Buhl on Sept. 28.

"There was hay and water on site for them," said sheriff's spokeswoman Lori Stewart. "The owners are working with the sheriff's office."

Deputies asked the owners to have a veterinarian check the horses.

The sheriff's office will make sure the owners are following through and the horses are gaining weight, Stewart said.

C3 Call Center Hires to Benefit Child Advocates

BY JOE CADOTTE
jcadotte@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The C3/ CustomerContact Channels call center in Twin Falls is filling 100 permanent, full-time positions and will donate $100 to Court Appointed Special Advocates for every person the call center hires, said Tahna Barton, CASA executive director.

CASA relies on volunteers who help children navigate the court system during neglect or abuse cases.

The donations from C3 is much needed because around 65 percent of the children appointed by CASA don't have volunteers assigned to them, Barton said. That means CASA employees will pick up the slack, she said.

"If we spend all the time working cases we can't foster volunteers to keep them and keeping volunteers is just as important as recruiting them," she said.

The money from C3 will help train up to three CASA volunteers who can advocate for 30 children per year, she said.

"This is a win-win situation for everyone," she said. "Our community gets much needed, high-quality jobs and our organization will receive a generous cash infusion to further our efforts to see that every abused or neglected child cannot only be safe but have the opportunity to thrive."

The plan for C3 to hire in Twin Falls is part of the company's nationwide expansion effort, said Jay Fort, Twin Falls C3 manager.

Weekend Expected to Warm Up

Brian Neudorff
Meteorologist

Cold temperatures have settled into southern Idaho and will persist through today.

Many locations this morning will fall to near, or even below, freezing. High temperatures for this afternoon will only reach the low 50s. That's almost 20 degrees below the average high this time of year.

The good news is the cold won't last going into the weekend. Temperatures will lift back into the 60s for Saturday and upper 60s for Sunday. A lot of sunshine is expected, so it will be a nice fall weekend.

Temperatures in the 70s are expected on Monday afternoon, but another cold front will bring plunging temperatures by the middle of next week. The coming system shouldn't bring much, if, any precipitation.

Cable One Loses Turner Channels During Start of MLB Playoffs

BY JOE CADOTTE
jcadotte@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • This is a bad time to be a baseball fan if you planned to plunk down on the couch and watch the games on Cable One.

A spat with Turner Broadcasting System led Cable One to drop nine channels for more than 13,000 viewers in south-central Idaho Tuesday.

One of those channels is TBS, which broadcasts most of the Major Baseball League playoff games, said Russ Young, general manager of Cable One in the Magic Valley.

Tune in to CNN, HLN, Cartoon Network, TNT, TBS, TruTV or TBS, and you'll get a black screen with this message:

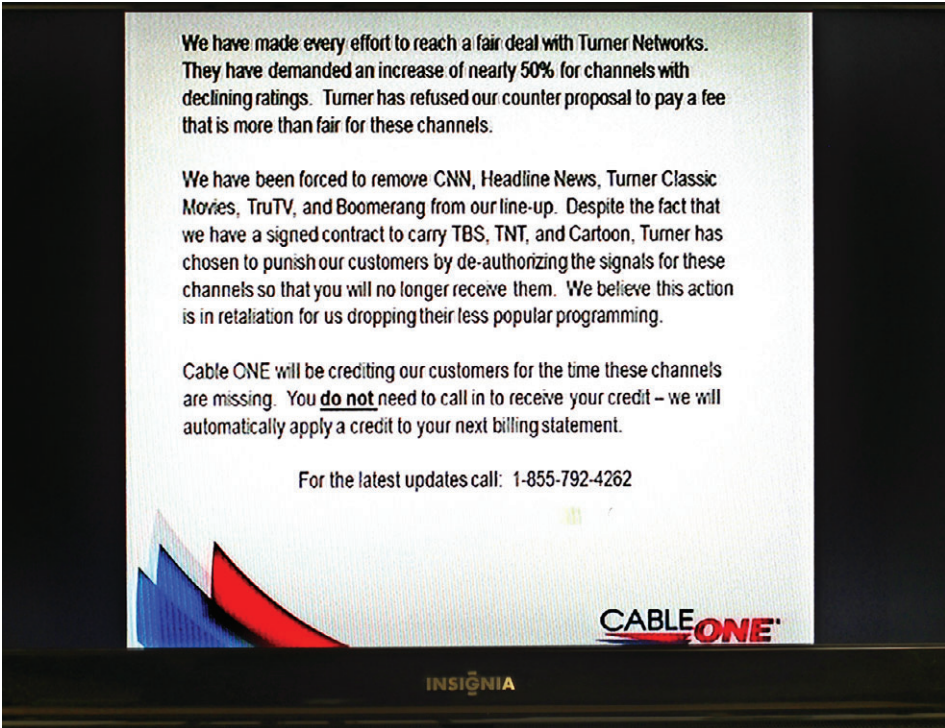

"... Turner has decided to punish our customers by de-authorizing the signals for these channels so that you will no longer receive them. We believe this action is in retaliation for us dropping their less popular programming. Cable One will be crediting our customers for the time these channels are missing..."

Customers need not call, it says, as they'll be automatically reimbursed for the missing channels.

Turner wrote on its website: "Despite our best efforts, we were unable to reach an agreement with Cable One for our portfolio of leading networks... Turner has a long history and well-earned reputation as a fair and reasonable partner to our distributors and we have worked diligently with Cable One to come to a resolution, even offering an extension that expired at noon today (Tuesday)."

"We are simply asking that Cable One pay the established and accepted rates already in the marketplace for our portfolio and remain willing to discuss a new agreement that recognizes the strength and value of our networks and the popular programming they offer."

The dispute has disrupted subscribers' plans in Twin Falls.

DREW NASH • TIMES-NEWS

A notice from CableOne is seen on a Wednesday in Twin Falls.

"I came home (Tuesday) and found my husband was vacuuming and not watching baseball, so I knew something was wrong," said Edie Schab.

Schab was at Buffalo Wild Wings on Thursday to watch the L.A. Dodgers and Atlanta Braves, a game she said she'd have watched from home if Cable One still carried TBS.

"We're really unhappy," she said. "Especially during the playoffs. At first I thought it was all Cable One's fault, but then I read that it was a Turner issue. It did give me some empathy."

Not enough, evidently. Schab said she had planned to drop Cable One even before she lost access to MLB. She intends to buy NFL Ticket because of Cable One's lack of sports.

Trish Niemann, spokeswoman at Cable One headquarters in Phoenix, said she couldn't comment on how much money customers would be reimbursed but said it's loosely based on how many channels they have.

Local manager Young said a standard Cable One package costs $57 before taxes and includes about 60 channels.

That's a little less than $1 per channel if divided equally. But the refunds might be more complicated because carriers charge different rates per channel, he said.

Cable One has never before experienced such a big blockage, Niemann said.

"Idaho has gone through a few local broadcasters, on a much smaller scale, limited to one city without one channel," she said. "But nothing of this size."

Cable One's contract with Turner ran out at midnight Monday for CNN, CNN Español, HLN, TCM and Boomerang, she said. The contract shouldn't have expired for TBS, TNT and Cartoon Network for several years, Niemann said, but TBS pulled those channels to "punish" the cable company for not renewing the other channels.

The company doesn't expect to go more than one billing cycle without the nine channels, she said. Cable One will try to get those back or replace them. In the meantime, Cable One's lawyers are weighing whether to take legal action against Turner, Niemann said.

Woman Charged with Setting House on Fire, Kids Inside

BOISE (AP) • A 35-year-old Garden City woman is charged with setting fire to a southeast Boise house while three kids were inside.

Jodi Renee Bassett was arrested Wednesday night on suspicion of first-degree arson and three counts of felony injury to a child for the Dec. 19 fire. She was scheduled to be arraigned Thursday.

Court records say the children were able to escape unharmed before explosions blew out windows and left the garage door bulging.

Firefighters called the blaze suspicious, and police say they have evidence that implicates Bassett.

Officials did not say how old the children are.

St. Luke's

a goal St. Luke's says it can only achieve by acquiring groups like Saltzer.

ECONOMIST: REFERRALS DROP

St. Alphonsus, the largest St. Luke's competitor, brought economist Deborah Haas-Wilson to court Thursday to back up its claims that St. Luke's owning Saltzer would cause a staggering drop in admissions to its hospitals and referrals to its doctors.

"There are very few rivals in this market for St. Luke's, and only one — St. Alphonsus — that has enough, a high enough market share to really provide some competitive constraints on St. Luke's inpatient market," she said. "It's close to a duopoly."

Haas-Wilson looked at data, including insurance claims, to see whether St. Luke's-acquired doctors would "steer" patients to St. Luke's once they became part of the system. She looked at five areas of medical care.

St. Luke's says it does not, in any way, pressure doctors to keep patients inside the system. A witness early in the trial said the system's software at one point made a "default" referral to other St. Luke's doctors and centers. But St. Luke's CEO David Pate and others have said physicians are encouraged to use their best judgment.

Haas-Wilson told Winmill that, historically, when St. Luke's buys a doctor's practice, admissions to St. Alphonsus hospitals drop "dramatically."

St. Luke's has offered some explanations, such as physicians sometimes using "hospitalists" to admit patients instead of admitting the patients under their own names. Haas-Wilson shot down those explanations.

A St. Luke's lawyer noted that Haas-Wilson did not consider whether St. Alphonsus still had plenty of patients coming through the doors after losing the St. Luke's referrals. That could mean it isn't being harmed.

Nick Genna, administrator of the small, surgical Treasure Valley Hospital in Boise that also is suing St. Luke's, earlier said a group of orthopedic surgeons had about 490 procedures at Treasure Valley Hospital before it was purchased by St. Luke's. That dropped to zero two years later, after it was owned by St. Luke's, he said.

Curriculum

"I've always done a lot with computers and technology, and I wanted to come up with something to help bring technology into education," he said. "We started coming up with things, and I figured out my own philosophy about how to learn through technology and how to apply it. "I got paid to speak for an hour about technology?"

Hayden also has had speaking engagements with the Kimberly School District, the Cassia County Administrators Meeting, Heyburn Elementary and Burley High School.

"That was the intimidating one — speaking in front of my own teachers," he said.

Hayden's the first to admit he's not a normal kid. At age 9, he started a duct-tape wallet business and sold hundreds of custom wallets.

At 12, having become interested in computer programming and animation, he began reading computer code textbooks for fun and taught himself how to code programs.

"Technology has always been important to me," Hayden said. "I started programming in sixth grade, and it was always just simple projects. Then I found out I could do video games with it, so I started looking into Xbox Live's Indie Games, and it was an awesome platform. I started making games for the (Xbox) Marketplace, and I had better sales than I imagined. If I couldn't find it on the Xbox and I wanted to play with my friends, I'd just make it."

Toward the end of eighth grade, he won a first-place prize in the Idaho Meth Project's Paint the State contest. In ninth grade, Hayden took part in Business Professionals of America and won first place in Digital Media Production. He then went to Washington, D.C., and placed 13th nationally.

In 2012, he said, he directed and filmed the Burley High Homecoming Lip Dub project on YouTube.com, getting more than 10,000 views.

Hayden said he helps other students and teachers with video editing, audio recordings, computer troubleshooting and coding in addition to his own studies and extracurricular activities.

Hayden recently started making board and card games to help other students learn math, writing and even programming.

"I've always liked making games, and now I can actually help people with it," he said.

"It's all part of this LAIR idea. It's about getting technology into schools, which they're doing already, but it's in a different sense. It's about giving people the actual tools instead of just giving them the thing to run the tools."

Hayden said his initial goal was to get programming into everybody's hands. Now he's looking for long-term changes.

"Technology isn't going away, and it's becoming a bigger and bigger part of our everyday lives," he said. "I can't go anywhere without my phone now, and it wasn't like that just a few years ago. Things are changing so fast that you can't just dust your old textbooks off. We're used to multi-tasking. We're used to using things on our phone. For some of us, it's hard to pay attention because we just can't learn from a book anymore. Technology needs to be in students' hands in the right way so we can use these tools to progress.

"There's no application of what we're learning," he noted. "I spent a whole year in chemistry, and I never understood the periodic table. I started working on this game and in two weeks, I had a complete understanding of how everything works. If I would have done that earlier in the year, chemistry would have been so much easier for me. People don't learn how they did 10 or 15 years ago."

Hayden has some big ideas to improve education systems, but he tries to keep himself grounded.

"I wouldn't be anywhere without a good support system. My parents have been amazing, and my teachers have always been great. I know I'm not a normal kid."

WHAT'S NEXT?

Monday: St. Luke's starts laying out its case, likely starting with testimony from CEO David Pate.

Tuesday: Judge B. Lynn Winmill hears arguments from Charles Brown, attorney for news groups, including the Times-News. Brown will try to convince the judge to open the courtroom to the public. More than half of the testimony in the first eight days was completely or partly closed to the public. Winmill has ruled that portions of the trial can be confidential to protect trade secrets. The hearing is set for 3:30 p.m.

The trial is expected to continue through Oct. 18 at the federal courthouse in Boise.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • A Salt Lake City pediatrician will stand trial for the murder of his ex-wife, a judge ruled Thursday while taking note of the doctor's bizarre behavior after the woman's death more than two years ago.

Third District Judge Robin Reese ruled after two days of testimony from prosecution witnesses in the case of John Brickman Wall, 49, who has been charged with murder in the September 2011 death of his ex-wife, Uta Von Schwedler, a University of Utah biologist.

A medical examiner ruled she died from drowning as well as a fatal amount of Xanax but said he wasn't sure if it was a homicide or suicide. Police called the death suspicious but didn't arrest Wall until April of this year.

Wall's attorney says he will plead not guilty at his next court appearance Oct. 21.

Reese said this week's evidence hearing showed Wall "was angry at the deceased over a long period of time," The Salt Lake Tribune reported Thursday.

Flies

impression that the population dies off. Many will hibernate in walls and attics — thus another nickname: "attic flies."

Cluster flies do not reproduce indoors. When spring arrives, they emerge from semi-dormancy and return to their natural habitat.

"These cluster flies are fairly innocuous," said Ian Robertson, an entomology professor at Boise State University.

"They lay their eggs in the soil, not in dead animals or decaying matter," as dirty flies do, Robertson said.

When the eggs hatch, larvae take up residence inside earthworms, where they feast until they reach the pupa stage. Three or four generations of cluster flies emerge each year, mostly unseen by human eyes until fall.

The bad news is: It's best to let sleeping cluster flies lie.

Once cluster flies settle in walls of a home, it's not a good idea to exterminate them, said Robertson. They will leave in the spring, then you can seal the cracks in your home before next fall.

"Large numbers of dead flies in your walls could attract carpet beetles, which feed on just about anything organic," Robertson said. "Carpet beetles are potentially very destructive.

"It's better to have cluster flies sleeping in your walls than carpet beetles in your house."

Nevada Board OKs Bond Sale to Pay Off Fed Debt

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) •

A state board Thursday authorized a bond sale to wipe out Nevada's debt to the federal government for meeting jobless benefits, a move that will save employers an estimated $12 million over three years.

The state Board of Finance unanimously approved the plan a day after the Employment Security Council recommended rates employers will pay in 2014 to feed Nevada's unemployment insurance trust fund.

If bonds are issued — a determination to be made by Employment Security Division Administrator Renee Olson — the average state rate will be 2.1 percent on $27,400 of a worker's wages, down from the current 2.25 percent. Officials estimate fees on the debt service will be somewhere between 0.5 percent and 0.8 percent, meaning the overall state levy will remain essentially the same from this year.

OPINION

Despite Hiccups, Region's Economy Remains Strong

Dutchmen Travel Trailers Inc. announced its plans last week to soon shutter its Burley plant, costing the region 160 jobs.

Such a closure is a blow to any community. Tax revenue and employment are essential for a community's growth.

But the relative lack of panic from Burley and Cassia County officials struck us strange, but also a positive sign.

"We have people coming to this state looking for an existing facility. That's just another opportunity," said Burley Mayor Terry Greenman.

Greenman's optimism could be viewed as political spin, but we think there's something to it.

Much of the region's industry is rooted in agriculture, a point reinforced by last year's opening of the massive Chobani plant in Twin Falls. But the Magic Valley's economy continues to diversify. And it's that industrial fluidity that gives us hope that closures of large plants, such as those in Burley over the past decade, are nothing more than hiccups.

It was a gut punch to the community when JR Simplot took with it 600 jobs in 2003 when its Heyburn plant went dark. But, since then, 10 manufacturing businesses opened plants in the small city.

The Magic Valley — with its breadbasket of dairies and farms, a willing work force and governments offering rewards to newcomers — is a proving desirable place for industry to set up shop.

In a nation riddled with the dilapidated remains of a bygone industrial age, the Magic Valley is in the midst of a fabrication renaissance. While manufacturers sent jobs abroad and the nation hurdled toward the Great Recession, industry continued to grow here. State Labor Department data tells a decade-long story of a growing, evolving economy.

We haven't worked through the growing pains, yet.

Jerome's overtaxed sewer is a prime example of how many communities aren't prepared to handle an influx of industry. Local governments must be willing to make the infrastructure investment if they want the long-term reward.

Dutchmen's closure is ultimately a cautionary tale of how fast something can disappear. Local officials can't become too complacent or begin courting just one kind of manufacturing. Having Chobani yogurt in the refrigerator is a welcome expression of local pride. But even the yogurt giant isn't bulletproof.

It's the Magic Valley's industrial diversity that makes it strong. And, with a little taxpayer investment in sewers and roads, the region could be a manufacturing hub for decades to come.

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

First Amendment to the United States Constitution

THEIR VIEW

Public has Right to Know about St. Luke's Trial

The following editorial ran in Thursday's Idaho Statesman:

With all of the saints involved in the antitrust trial between the Valley's two biggest hospital systems, it is hard to imagine there could be so much devil in the details that the public and media would be barred from huge portions of the proceedings.

Yet that has been the case with the trial pitting Saint Alphonsus Health Systems against St. Luke's Health System, from its beginning on Sept. 23 until today. Entire days have been off-limits to the press and public and ruled AEO — attorney eyes only. The same has been true for much individual testimony. Though redacted transcripts have been distributed during the course of the trial, this limited view of the evidence and the testimony challenges our perception of an open proceeding.

For that reason, the Statesman along with The Associated Press, Idaho Press-Tribune, the Times-News and the Idaho Press Club have filed a motion as "intervenor" asking the court to provide "immediate access to the remaining trial proceedings, for unredacted videotape depositions and exhibits as used at trial." It also asks the court for an order setting aside Pretrial Order, Dkt. 20, pursuant to the constitutional requirement set forth by the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals insofar as it denies access to the complete judicial process.

In his pre-trial order of Sept. 17, U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winmill began by saying that "court proceedings and records are presumptively open to the public." He went on to reference Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes: "The trial of causes should take place under the public eye ... because it is of the highest moment that those who administer justice should always act under the sense of public responsibility, and that every citizen should be able to satisfy himself with his own eyes as to the mode in which a public duty is performed."

But later in his order he seemed to open up the door to closed testimony under prescribed circumstances, such as "when a witness is testifying in large part about sensitive business information (designated as AEO) ... the only realistic alternative is to close the courtroom."

That may be realistic during the pre-trial discovery phase, and for a judge and all of the attorneys involved around the case, but it only creates doubt and suspicion among the press and the people.

At issue is whether St. Luke's should be able to own a large physician practice in Idaho and Oregon that used to be independent. It is the opinion of the Saint Alphonsus and its co-litigants (Federal Trade Commission and the state of Idaho) that such ownership could increase prices for consumers.

How can the public know the right answer if at times the courtroom is closed for testimony on that question? Our motion concludes that the management of the trial "flies in the face of what is right." It is our duty to intervene in cases where a judge and the lawyers from both sides determine for the public what the public has a right to know in the midst of a "public" trial.

While some business practices may indeed be sensitive for competitive reasons, we seek more than a redacted account of the practices of the two major nonprofit health care providers in our region as we all navigate a new paradigm in health care.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Paper Layout Is Confounding

What has happened to the front page of the Times-News?

On Friday, I was perusing some older copies of the Times-News that I had saved due to certain historical events when it dawned on me the huge change that has been made to the front page.

Where are all the headlines? No longer does the front page show the most sensational newsworthy events of the day. Instead, it bears the resemblance of a community newsletter. Nothing to grab the attention of the reader's first glance; just a mingling of human interest stories that were once used to fill space in the local news section. Don't get me wrong; many of these stories are well told and are an interesting read but, really, are they front-page material?

I travel between northern and southern Idaho many times a year, as well as to other states. When I spot a newspaper rack and see a paper with an interesting headline, it compels me to purchase the paper. I can't imagine that the Times-News sells many papers from the racks it has spattered about Magic Valley. Now one has to peruse the entire paper as news is dispersed throughout all sections of the paper.

I have been amazed at some of the places I find certain articles in the paper. Perhaps this is why so many folks are using the Internet rather than sitting down in the morning with a cup of coffee and perusing the day's news.

Maybe a good piece of journalistic practice should be returned to the readership of this newspaper.

Both Humans and Animals Welcome at Pet Blessing

The flyer read "The Blessing of the Pets." It sounded a little silly but I put the date in my calendar anyway.

On the appointed day, my dog, Maggie, and I nervously approached the crowd outside the Ascension Church. Not only had I never been to this particular church, I wasn't entirely sure Maggie was going to behave herself. My nerves turned to guilt; I'd bounced between a few churches in the Magic Valley but never fully committed. Panic set in, should we even be here? Is it fair to ask someone whose church I don't attend to bless my somewhat errant Jack Russell?

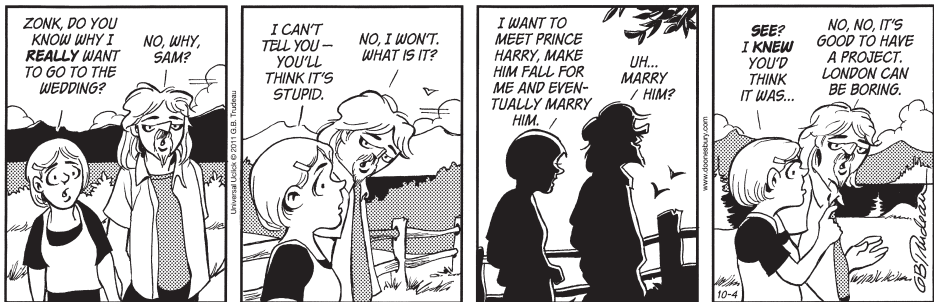

I reached the front of the line and Pastor Deb asked for Maggie to be blessed with energy and strength; my heart twitched. Maggie has been with me for 10 years through the good and bad, and she's changed my life for the better.

God led me to Maggie, and she led me on a leash back to him and found me a church home. Mysterious ways? Not if you love your dog like I do. Maggie is looking forward to her second blessing this year for St. Francis' Feast Day, the patron saint of all animals.

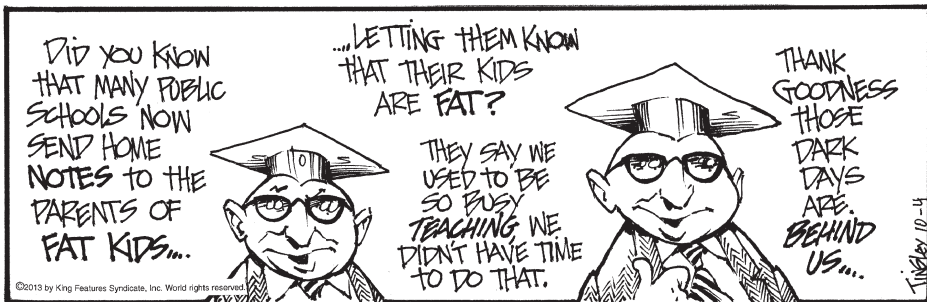

All ages (human and animals) and species are welcome to attend Ascension Church's Annual Pet Blessing, Sunday, Oct. 6, at 3 p.m. The event will benefit the Magic Valley Humane Society and representatives from the CSI vet tech program will be on hand to assist our furry friends.

Boat-hopping Baby Bear Removed from Lake Powell

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • Utah wildlife officials have relocated a baby black bear that was exploring boats and mingling with visitors at Lake Powell last weekend.

The Salt Lake Tribune reports boaters near Face Canyon spotted the animal on the beach last Friday and climbing on houseboats on Saturday.

Park rangers finally chased the 30-pound bear away from the beach, but the animal returned hours later and swam up to a houseboat.

Officials with the state Division of Wildlife Resources arrived on Tuesday to remove the bear.

They found him on a houseboat and tranquilized him.

Wayne Gustaveson with DWR says the bear jumped off the boat and started swimming but passed out, so a DWR biologist jumped in the lake and saved him.

Officials later released the bear in a remote area of southern Utah.

In this Tuesday image provided by the Utah Division of Wildlife Resources, a young bear lies in a boat after being rescued from drowning after eluding officials, at Lake Powell, Utah.

Australian Museum to Display Replica of Mont. Dinosaur

BY KARL PUCKETT
Great Falls Tribune

BYNUM, Mont. (AP) • Employees of the Two Medicine Dinosaur Center here have painstakingly built a replica of a 75-million-year-old Montana dinosaur so it can be shipped overseas for display in an upcoming exhibit at the Australian Museum, that country's equivalent of the Smithsonian Institute.

More than 2,000 bones excavated several years ago 15 miles west of town were used as a guide in reconstructing the daspletosaurus, a relative of Tyrannosaurus rex that ruled Montana back when it was subtropical.

"This was the top predator that was alive at that time so it ate pretty much whatever the heck it wanted to," said Dave Trexler, a paleontologist at the dinosaur center.

The finished product — a life-sized replica of the apex predator — was to be shipped this week to the Australian Museum in Sydney. Employees are excited to have a local dinosaur displayed on such a large stage.

The exhibition, which opens Nov. 23, is called "Tyrannosaurs, Meet the Family." The daspletosaurus from Montana will be one of many species in the Tyrannosaurid family from around the world that will be displayed. The Australian Museum is billing the exhibition as the world's first to shine a light "on this legendary dinosaur family."

"First of all, it means that people in other countries know that these dinosaurs are from Montana," Trexler said.

The Australian Museum paid the small nonprofit Dinosaur Center, whose focus is research, a "significant sum" to make the replica, Trexler said.

Montana dinosaur pieces exhibited internationally often don't specify that they came from Big Sky Country, Trexler said. In this case, a placard will say the daspletosaurus was provided courtesy of the Two-Medicine Dinosaur Center in Bynum.

If visitors of the Australian Museum want to see the real bones, they will have to visit the center in Bynum, he adds.

Cost of the materials to make the dinosaur was $60,000. If the center wants to make another one for itself, it won't cost as much, Trexler said. That's because the center has now done much of the up-front work, such as making molds.

IDAHO

Prison Company Leaving Idaho

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • Private prison giant Corrections Corp. of America will leave Idaho after more than a decade marked by scandal and lawsuits surrounding its operation of the state's largest prison.

The Nashville, Tenn.-based company will not bid on the next contract to run the Idaho Correctional Center south of Boise, CCA Vice President Brad Regens said in a letter Thursday to the Department of Corrections.

The decision came as Idaho State Police, aided by a forensic auditing firm, is investigating allegations of possible contract fraud and falsified staffing reports involving CCA.

A federal judge also has held

CCA in contempt of court for failing to abide by the terms of a settlement agreement reached with inmates in a lawsuit claiming high rates of violence and chronic understaffing at the prison.

CCA spokesman Steven Owen said the company is taking appropriate steps to remedy staffing problems at the prison and is committed to reimbursing taxpayers for any unverified hours.

CCA's contract with Idaho ends on June 30, 2014.

"We have delivered exceptional value to Idaho's taxpayers through cost savings, and we've also provided outstanding rehabilitation programming to the inmates entrusted in our care," Regens wrote in the letter.

It's not clear, however, whether Idaho's $29 million contract with CCA represented an actual cost savings. An investigation by The Associated Press in 2012 showed it would likely cost the Idaho Department of Corrections the same amount of money or less to have state employees run the facility.

Idaho Department of Correction Director Brent Reinke has asked the state Board of Correction at least twice if his department should examine whether it would be cheaper for the state to run the prison, but both times he was rebuffed.

The Idaho Board of Correction had the option to extend CCA's contract for two more years but decided in June against it. Instead, the state will issue a formal request for proposals later this year.

At the time, the board didn't rule out the possibility that it would select CCA to run the prison under a new contract.

Regens, however, said the company does not intend to submit a proposal.

"We will focus our efforts during the remainder of the contract term on ensuring the facility continues to operate in a safe and secure manner," he said in the Wednesday letter. "We will work closely with the department to ensure a smooth and orderly transition."

CCA has acknowledged that its employees filed staffing reports with the state that incorrectly showed it had the contractually required number of guards on duty during several months in 2012.

Owen, the company's spokesman, said the unverified hours were only a fraction of total staffing requirements at the prison. The company has maintained that the understaffing did not result in an increase of violence or any security problems at the prison.

"We are working day in and day out in the facility to make sure what happened never happens again," Owen said in an email to The Associated Press. "If a post cannot be filled there is a process to document what steps were taken to fill it and, if it couldn't be filled, what was done to address the impact of the vacancy."

CCA officials didn't rule out a possible return to Idaho. The letter said CCA

"looks forward to the opportunity to serve the department in the future."

Monica Hopkins, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Idaho, said she was glad to hear CCA was leaving the state after several years of litigation and the federal judge's ruling holding the company in contempt.

"Unfortunately the state hasn't realized that it's time to take back ownership and operation of their own facility, so there's no guarantee that this won't happen with another private contractor," Hopkins said. "CCA was bad for Idaho. It was detrimental for the taxpayers. And it's time for the state to exercise the proper role of government and operate its own facilities."

Idaho Aims to Make Gay Couples Recalculate Taxes

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • Idaho aims to require same-sex couples who are legally married elsewhere but live in Idaho to recalculate their federal Internal Revenue Service filings before filing their state taxes, potentially forcing them to do more work than married couples of the opposite sex to comply with state law.

Tax Commission spokeswoman Liz Rodosovich said Thursday the agency altered its 2013 income tax forms following June's U.S. Supreme Court decision invalidating parts of the federal Defense of Marriage Act. That prompted the IRS to rule same-sex couples, legally married in jurisdictions that recognize their marriages, will be treated as married for federal tax purposes.

Idaho is among 35 states that forbid same-sex unions, following a constitutional amendment approved by voters in 2006.

Its new tax instructions are meant to inform people who have been legally married in one of the 14 states that allow same-sex marriages, but are required to file income tax returns in Idaho, that they may have extra bookkeeping before filing their Idaho income taxes.

"In the past, Forms 40 (full-year resident) and 43 (part-year resident) have included a line saying that the taxpayer needs to use the same filing status for Idaho as on the federal return," Rodosovich told The Associated Press in an email. "That language has been removed."

Idaho's new rules require that those who file a joint federal return as a same-sex couple must file an Idaho return as a single people or, if they qualify, head of household.

Then, they must recalculate their federal tax return, as if they'd used single or head of household status.

Only then should they file their return with the state, making sure they include their recomputed federal return for Idaho Tax Commission auditors to review.

Otter, Others Honor Cenarrusa at Capitol

BOISE (AP) • Idaho's top elected officials have paid their respects to Pete Cenarrusa, a sheep rancher and popular politician, who died Sunday at age 95.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter, first lady Lori Otter and others like Lt. Gov. Brad Little and Secretary of State Ben Ysursa gathered at the Capitol Thursday for a brief ceremony honoring Cenarrusa.

The Otters placed a wreath at the side of Cenarrusa's closed casket, which remained in the Capitol rotunda Thursday for public viewing.

Cenarrusa is the longest serving elected official in state history and served nearly 36 years alone as Idaho Secretary of State. He also served nine terms in the Idaho House.

A funeral mass will be held Friday at St. John's Cathedral in Boise, then Cenarrusa will be buried Saturday at Bellevue Cemetery.

Idaho Judge Tosses Twitter Tussle over Sun Valley

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • An Idaho judge has dumped a complaint by an Internet entrepreneur and former Wall Street analyst accusing the Sun Valley resort and Twitter Inc. of stealing his handle.

Fifth District Judge Robert Elgee dismissed Leonard Barshack's lawsuit with prejudice, according to documents on Idaho's court website.

Barshack, who founded the Internet email listing service Bigfoot, sued Sun Valley and Twitter in May after losing his "Sun Valley" name on the social media site.

Earlier, the company had told Barshack that his account bearing the name was engaged in "non-parody impersonation," something forbidden by San Francisco-based Twitter. Its policy mandates an account's profile information "make it clear that the creator of the account is not actually the same person or entity" as the subject of the impersonation.

Company spokesman Jim Prosser said Thursday his company was pleased with the outcome of the lawsuit.

Among other things, Elgee said in his Sept. 24 ruling that a claim that Twitter broke a contract established when Barshack set up his original handle was without merit.

Barshack, who now tweets using the handle "iwassunvalley," insisted Thursday the case wasn't yet over, even while conceding the judge's judgment, issued Sept. 24, appeared to be a "resounding defeat."

Barshack declined to comment on whether he might pursue the matter further.

Wendell Trojans Dethrone Declo

Helmandollar gets biggest win in 3 years.

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

WENDELL • Even with the 37-degree temperature Thursday night, Wendell head football coach Jon Helmandollar didn't mind the bucket of ice water his players dumped on his back after the Trojans' 7-6 victory over Declo.

"It's been a long time coming for these kids and they deserve it," said the coach, who notched the biggest win of his three years in Wendell and handed Declo its first conference loss in five years.

By knocking off the five-time defending Canyon Conference champs, Wendell (3-1 overall, 2-0 Canyon) is in the driver's seat with two conference games to go.

"Ever since I was a freshman, I wanted to beat Declo my senior year," said Wendell's Jacob Rocha, who scored Wendell's touchdown

Gooding Punches Playoff Ticket

Senators QB scores three touchdowns in win over Kimberly.

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

KIMBERLY • By the end of the night, The Gooding Senators had a bigger number on the scoreboard than the temperature in degrees fahrenheit on the field, and in their new no-huddle offense, they believe they'll create much greater disparity between the two as the season wears on.

Gooding got three touchdowns from quarterback Wyatt Williams and beat Kimberly 39-7, clinching a playoff berth and at least a share of the SCIC title with three games left to play.

"We treat each game like a conference championship and Filer is conference championship No. 3," coach Cameron Andersen said.

Gooding took its first drive 17 plays, settling for a field goal, but establishing running back Kaden Barrus, who finished with 85 yards and a touchdown.

With star back Torin Brunson being held out until he's 100 percent, Gooding was not short on weapons.

The elusive quarterback Williams had 91 rushing yards, despite four runs for losses in which he failed to follow his blocks.

"We understand with Wyatt at quarterback we are going to lose some yards sometimes," Andersen said. "It's tough to take a magician and tell him not to do tricks."

Gooding's new offense, which often resets plays after the defense is aligned, relies on multiple players playing multiple positions.

"It takes a lot of practice reps," Andersen said. "(The offense) will come when we need it and it's a better offense when we get later in the season. We are a long, long ways away, but they are starting to get some of the nuances and that's a big deal."

Two-way all-state player Josh Finley was lined up at multiple positions on offense before settling in at running back in the second half.

Running behind holes created by a dominant offense line, Finley added 79 yards.

With so many talented players touching the ball, Gooding must use a no-mercy approach.

"Its all about mental toughness and wanting to beat the other team into the ground, show your physical toughness and strength," Williams said. "We have so many weapons."

If that wasn't enough, many of those same players on offense are equally effective on the other side in the Senators 4-2-5, like the safety Williams.

The Senators defense tackled Kimberly players for losses on 14 plays.

Division I prospect Cole McGinnis had a sack and forced fumble, and was one of two linemen to create double-teams, according to Andersen.

"Someone who is lost on our D-line is Joe Arkoosh," Andersen said.

The 230-pound senior played end, with McGinnis inside, and it was fellow lineman Jake Sluder who feasted, racking up two sacks and multiple tackles.

"We have a lot of good guys on the defense," Sluder said. "Our defensive line is really good."

Casey Holmes had a late touchdown to deny Gooding the shutout.

BUHL • There were some bright spots for the winless Filer Wildcats against rival Buhl on Thursday night.

"There was a few things," said Filer head coach Bill Reynolds. Namely, stuffing Buhl at the 1-yard line on fourth- and goal, successfully executing a gutsy fake punt out of its own end zone to pick up a first down and scoring a touchdown — just the Wildcats' second TD of the season.

Unfortunately for Filer (0-5, 0-1 SCIC), all of that came long after the game was decided.

Buhl senior Adam McLean caught three first-half touchdown passes from senior quarterback Kade Crossland as the Indians rolled to a 34-0 halftime lead en route to a 41-6 homecoming win.

"Feels pretty good," said McLean, who caught five passes for 95 yards, including scoring catches of 23, 20 and 5 yards, respectively.

"Just got to concentrate and catch the ball," said McLean. "It's our second conference game, so I had to step it up and catch the football."

Crossland completed 8 of 14 passes for 140 yards.

"He threw some great balls and Adam made some great catches," said Buhl head coach Stacy Wilson.

The Indians (2-3, 1-1 SCIC) got it done on the ground as well, with senior running back Kenny Gutierrez rushing for 93 yards, including a pair of first-half touchdowns. Tegen Tonge added 71 yards and a score.

Defensively, Buhl took advantage of four Filer turnovers and held the Wildcats to less than 50 yards of offense in the first half.

But Wilson was frustrated with his team's lackluster effort after intermission.

"We've got to put four quarter together," he said. "That's our model all year and we haven't done it yet."

Reynolds said Filer's offensive line showed some progress, but tackling continues to be a struggle for his

CSI Volleyball Falls to Rival SLCC

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho volleyball team hates losing. It hates losing on its home floor more.

It hates losing to its rival Salt Lake Community College most of all, but what might be even more frustrating about Thursday's four-set loss to the Bruins is how it went down.

In the 25-22, 26-24, 23-25, 25-23 defeat, the fourth-ranked Golden Eagles played uninspired for the better part of three sets. The team found its rhythm in the late third and early fourth sets, but a mental error and two physical mistakes undid all its hard work.

"The first three points, we did what we were hoping we could do, but it trailed off. We were uneventful, we were unattached, and I think we picked and chose when we wanted to compete," CSI coach Heidi Cartisser said. "They were more worried about whether they were going to get a good pass, a good set or a good hit. It wasn't a team effort."

The Golden Eagles could have folded in the third set.

They trailed 19-15 and were six points from going away in three sets. But Pati Anae ripped off six kills in a seven-point stretch to flip the tables and force a fourth set.

A mistake made early in that set came back to haunt CSI at the worst possible time. Libero Braiden Johnston served at 2-3 down, in place of Anae. Then Johnston went to serve for Alex Johnson, Anae's opposite in the formation — except liberos can only serve for one player.

It went uncalled as the error was caught mid-point, which Salt Lake had won. By the time Johnston came back around to serve for Johnson, it was 20-all, and the error was called to make it 21-20. CSI crumbled a bit but forced it back to 23-all, where a block error and a setting error ended the match.

"We've got to get a lot more mentally tough and be able to perform under pressure," Cartisser said. "And we need to figure out how to work for each other instead of working for ourselves."

Anae had 12 kills for CSI, while Mercedes Vaughn had 10. Salt Lake was led by a match-high 18 kills from Carol Grosso.

The Golden Eagles are back in action on Saturday when they host 13th-ranked Snow College, a five-set loser at No. 16 North Idaho on Thursday.

Fitzgerald Rescues Draw for Community School Boys

TIMES-NEWS

SUN VALLEY • Jay Fitzgerald's free kick with two minutes remaining, his second goal of the game, salvaged a draw for the Community School boys soccer team, which tied Gooding 2-2 Thursday in a matchup of High Desert Conference frontrunners.

Fitzgerald opened the scoring 15 minutes in, but Gooding countered with a goal by Jesse Cardenas just before halftime.

Filiberto Gallegos netted for the Senators in the 64th minute to set the stage for a frantic finish.

WENDELL 3, DECLO 1

on a 24-yard pass from Alex Swainston in the second quarter. "This is a dream come true. Ever since I was little in fifth and sixth grade football, I've wanted to go to state and win, and this is the first step. This is just the beginning."

Wendell's defense bent but never broke. The Trojans halted Declo four times inside their 30-yard line. The Hornets threw everything they had at Wendell's defense — from ground-and-pound double wing to roll-out passing — but the Trojans were the aggressor as Valentin Tobias, Armando Jimenez and Rocha sacked Declo quarterback Travis Shroeder.

"We knew they were going to that butt-sniffer, so we had to contain the middle and make sure they couldn't get those easy yards up the middle," said Rocha. "That was our main game plan, but we were also going to be disciplined in the secondary."

Swainston, Wendell's star dual-threat quarterback, injured an ankle in the third quarter. With his mobility limited, so was the Trojans' offense.

"It takes about half of (the offensive playbook) away. It was tough, but we battled through and tried to get some first downs," Helmandollar said.

Added Rocha: "(Swainston) is a big part of our offense, but we win as a team. We weren't going to let the game slip away from us."

Trying to punt with 10 minutes remaining in the game, Wendell botched the snap and gave Declo the ball on the Trojan 4-yard line. Boston Webb dove in for the touchdown and Declo was an extra point away from tying or taking the lead.

But Shroeder's pass to Hayden Hanson fell incomplete and Wendell remained ahead 7-6 with 8:37 to go.

Then, having been saved by its defense all night, the Trojan offense went out and finished off the Hornets.

Swainston handed off to Rocha, Chase Camayo and Logan Bowers. Rocha bulldozed his way to a first down on fourth-and-1. Swainston converted another key fourth-and-6 with an 8-yard pass to Kaleb Bowers as Wendell ran out the clock.

"We knew it was going to be a battle," said Swainston, who said his ankle should be fine for next week's home game with Glenns Ferry. "We knew we had to fight and come through adversity and that's what we did."

The loss was Declo's first in the conference since Oct. 10, 2008, when the Hornets 33-20 at home to Valley.

Jeffers Overcomes Odds for NBA Chance

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MANKATO, Minn. • Bullets whizzing past his head, Oth-yus Jeffers picked up the stroller carrying his young niece and rushed her into the house.

He hurried back out the door to help his sister, who had been shot in the leg by her then-boyfriend during a domestic dispute. She looked at her brother, dressed in joggers' pants from Illinois-Chicago University and his trademark Jordans, which almost never left his feet. As Jeffers went to check on his sister, she saw blood trickling out of his left pant leg and staining his sneakers.

Two hours before the college junior was scheduled to work out for a handful of NBA scouts to help him make a decision about staying in school or entering the draft, Jeffers had been shot in the thigh, and he didn't even realize it.

"I didn't know until she told me," Jeffers said. "Then when I pulled my pants down and moved my leg, the blood squirted out."

Doctors told Jeffers that the bullet traveled a zigzagging pattern through his leg, somehow missing every major artery before exiting on the other side of his leg. In what has been a recurring theme during his 28 years on this planet, he hardly missed a beat. Jeffers was back on the court doing basketball drills in a week.

"Everybody around me calls me Wolverine because I always seem to heal up quicker than I should be doing," Jeffers said with a non-chalant chuckle.

That isn't even the half of it for Jeffers, who lost two brothers to gun violence before he graduated high school and tore the ACL in his right knee weeks before he was set to sign a guaranteed contract with the Washington Wizards. Now he's fighting for the last available spot on the Minnesota Timberwolves' roster, and he wouldn't have it any other way.

"What he's been through is how he plays," said Wolves President Flip Saunders, who coached Jeffers in Washington. "He's hard-nosed, kind of a mad dog that just gets after it and really competes. He basically goes at it where he understands that nothing's given to him."

And so much has been taken away.

Jeffers was 8 years old when his brother, Gerome, was shot and killed.

"My brothers always played basketball," he said. "They went to AAU tournaments and things like that. So I was used to them leaving, but I wasn't used to them not ever showing up again. And it hit me a little bit later, when I was nearing 9. Where's Gerome and where do we go from here?"

team, which has now been outscored 180-13 for the season. The Wildcats' lone score came on a 5-yard TD toss from Kaleb Whitlock to Zach Sharp. But it was too little, too late against a solid Buhl squad.

"They're always tough," Reynolds said of the Indians. "They're well coached, they're very disciplined. We knew what we were coming into. Our boys just weren't mentally prepared. They haven't been able to get up for the games."

another TD on 12 carries.

Duplicating such a performance against BYU will be tough. The Cougars rank No. 23 nationally in total defense and contained Keeton quite effectively in a 6-3 win over Utah State last season.

"Schematically, they're very sound in what they do," Utah State coach Matt Wells said. "They run to the football, they tackle well in space, and they play with high-level energy. They're high-effort guys. That is stuff I don't believe is born into players, it's coached into them. I've got a lot of respect for them and what they do on defense."

Five things to watch for when BYU and Utah State play tonight:

ENHANCED RIVALRY: BYU and Utah State battle for the Old Wagon Wheel for the 83rd time. The Cougars hold a 45-34-3 lead, but the series has been more fiercely contested since the Aggies won 31-16 in 2010 to snap a 10-game rivalry losing streak. A total of six points has decided the last two games, both BYU wins.

LINEBACKERS VS LINEBACKERS: Utah State and BYU share a common strength, a dominant group of linebackers. Kyle Van Noy has a team-best 29 tackles for the Cougars. Uani Unga (28 tackles) and Alani Fua (22 tackles) are right on his heels. For the Aggies, Jake Doughty has a team-best 50 tackles. Zach Vigil (46 tackles) and Kyler Fackrell (28 tackles) are also a force in stopping offenses.

BALL SECURITY: If turnovers are a deciding factor in this game, it could play into Utah State's favor. The Aggies rank No. 22 nationally with a plus-5 turnover margin. BYU, on the other hand, has struggled to hold onto the ball. The Cougars are 118th in the FBS with a minus-6 turnover margin and coughed up the ball five times against Middle Tennessee.

With its first win in SCIC play, Buhl now has its sights set on hosting a playoff game — something it can accomplish with a win over Kimberly later this season.

Said Wilson: "It's huge for us and we've got to get ready to go next week and hopefully get another win against Canyon Ridge."

Weeden Rallies Browns past Bills

CLEVELAND • Quarterback Brandon Weeden replaced injured starter Brian Hoyer and rallied the Cleveland Browns to a 37-24 win Thursday night over the Buffalo Bills, who also lost starting rookie quarterback EJ Manuel with a knee injury.

Weeden threw a 37-yard touchdown pass to Josh Gordon in the third quarter as the Browns (3-2) won their third straight and temporarily moved into sole possession of first place in the AFC North.

Safety T.J. Ward intercepted rookie Jeff Tuel's pass and returned it 44 yards for a TD with 1:44 left to end any comeback hopes for the Bills (2-3).

Hoyer sustained a potentially serious right knee injury on a scramble in the first quarter, and Manuel was forced out after taking a helmet to his right knee on a run in the third. Neither returned and their injuries could impact both teams' seasons.

Service Academy Football on This Weekend

BALTIMORE • Football is on for Army, Navy and Air Force this weekend although some other service academy sports are still suspended because of the government shutdown.

The Defense Department said Thursday everything was on hold at Navy through Sunday except for Saturday's football game against Air Force. According to Navy's website, 19 events were either postponed or canceled on Saturday and Sunday, including men's and women's soccer games, swim meets and a women's volleyball match at home against Colgate.

Air Force has women's volleyball and soccer matches scheduled for Saturday and Sunday that will be postponed.

Navy and Air Force received the go-ahead to play football because the game is not funded by the government. A sellout crowd is expected. Army will play its game at Boston College, too.

It's unclear if the service academies' games could still be in jeopardy beyond this weekend.

Source: Haden Expected to Be on Playoff Panel

A person with knowledge of the process tells The Associated Press that Southern California athletic director Pat Haden, Arkansas athletic director Jeff Long and Clemson athletic director Dan Radakovich are expected to be members of the College Football Playoff selection committee.

The committee will pick the four teams that will play for the 2014 national championship.

The person spoke on condition of anonymity Thursday because the committee members were still being finalized by conference commissioners.

CBS.com has reported that Wisconsin AD Barry Alvarez and West Virginia AD Oliver Luck were expected to be on the committee.

BCS executive director Bill Hancock has said the commissioners likely will have the 12-to-18 member panel completed by the end of this season. Haden is a former USC quarterback.

Musial Mementos on the Auction Block

ST. LOUIS • Fans of St. Louis Cardinals great Stan Musial will get a chance to own a piece of his personal collection — items ranging from game-worn jerseys to championship rings to harmonicas — through an online auction that's now under way.

Musial died in January at age 92, a year after his wife died. The family kept many mementos and donated many others.

Musial's grandson, Brian Musial Schwarze, says Stan the Man's modest home in Ladue, Mo., was filled with items even relatives didn't know existed.

With so much stuff, the family decided to auction some of it off.

The auction of 400 lots of items began Thursday. Heritage Auctions of Dallas is hosting the online auction. Bidding closes Nov. 7 through Nov. 9, depending on the lot.

TODAY'S NATIONAL MAP

Big Matchups in the NFC North

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Pack is back — on the field, that is, after a bye. And the first chore is a big one: Green Bay needs to beat Detroit at Lambeau Field or fall far behind in the NFC North.

Not that Chicago, the other contender in the division through the first month of the season, has an easy challenge on Sunday, either. The Bears host undefeated New Orleans.

Not much has gone the way the Packers projected early in the schedule, and their only victory is against struggling Washington. The fourth-week bye helped them heal up, and now they feel it's time to make a statement in the division before it's too late.

Besides, their 21-game, regular-season home winning streak against Detroit is the longest in NFL history.

"If we were 3-0, the fact that it's a division game is pretty important, adds a little more significance to the game," defensive tackle B.J. Raji said. "We're aware that a good team is coming in here, but I believe if we play well, we'll have a good chance."

Chicago comes off a sloppy loss at Detroit, and faces the prolific New Orleans offense. Even with the Saints on a short week after Monday night's romp over Miami, the game offers little comfort for the Bears.

"Their ability to run the ball, their ability to pass the ball," Bears safety Chris Conte said, listing what impresses him about the Saints. "They have (running back Darren) Sproles, who is a big threat, and they also have Jimmy Graham; guys on the outside, Marques Colston — tons of guys who can just push the field, fast guys. And their ability — Drew Brees — to move safeties and find guys deep. "They're doing a great job."

DETROIT (3-1) AT GREEN BAY (1-2)

The Lions can score — so can the Packers, of course — and their offense has nice balance with the emergence of Reggie Bush as a force. Bush comes off a 173-yard game, including a 37-yard touchdown run against the Bears, and has been a perfect complement for star receiver Calvin Johnson.

NEW ORLEANS (4-0) AT CHICAGO (3-1)

Careful isn't necessarily in Drew Brees' vocabulary because even when he gambles, such as throwing into triple coverage to Jimmy Graham, the brilliant tight end comes up with a TD catch.

NEW ENGLAND (4-0) AT CINCINNATI (2-2)

Other than Tom Brady, the one player the Patriots probably couldn't afford to have go down is nose tackle Vince Wilfork. He did against Atlanta with a torn Achilles tendon, so New England will be without the heart of its improved defense.

SEATTLE (4-0) AT INDIANAPOLIS (3-1)

OK, no more questioning the Seahawks' road skills after that gutsy comeback victory at Houston. Seattle's defense should be good enough to win anywhere, so this will be a test because Indy is showing some versatility with the ball.

BALTIMORE (2-2) AT MIAMI (3-1)

After that stinker in Buffalo, the Ravens are in a tough spot. They need Joe Flacco to avoid turnovers (five interceptions against the Bills) and for the running game with Ray Rice and Bernard Pierce to wake up.

The Dolphins were sent back to earth by New Orleans last weekend, and a previously staunch defense was exposed, particularly in pass coverage. Plus, QB Ryan Tannehill is getting hit too much, on pace to set a team record for being sacked and perhaps threaten the league mark of 76.

KANSAS CITY (4-0) AT TENNESSEE (3-1)

The Titans' turnaround could get derailed with emerging quarterback Jake Locker out for several weeks with a hip injury. At least they have a veteran backup in Ryan Fitzpatrick, and they'll likely turn to Chris Johnson and the ground game more often.

Kansas City, only the second franchise to go 4-0 after a two-win season, is winning with solid defense, especially the pass rush, and a conservative attack. The Chiefs had their first giveaways last Sunday, yet still routed the Giants.

DENVER (4-0) AT DALLAS (2-2)

Peyton Manning's 16 TD passes are the most through four games in any season, on pace for 64, which would shatter Tom Brady's record of 50.

Dallas has allowed 10 touchdown throws already, but at least the Cowboys can get after the quarterback, with 14 sacks. They have little chance of pulling off an upset if they can't slow Manning and crew.

HOUSTON (2-2) AT SAN FRANCISCO (2-2)

Yet another quality matchup, with both sides having something to prove as they look up in their division.

The Niners were awful in their last home game and got manhandled by the Colts. Then they blew out St. Louis in a short week and have had plenty of time to prepare for the Texans.

NEW YORK JETS (2-2) AT ATLANTA (1-3), MONDAY NIGHT

It's getting to be a dire time for the Falcons, who have gone from nearly making the Super Bowl to an also-ran behind the Saints in the NFC South. Their defeats have been close, but that might be even more worrisome — can they close the deal? They rank 29th in red zone efficiency.

SAN DIEGO (2-2) AT OAKLAND (1-3)

Break out the caffeine to stay awake for this one. The Raiders share a stadium with the Athletic, and a baseball playoff game was scheduled there Saturday night, 8:35 local time.

The Chargers' offense can be dynamic and Rivers is off to a good start, behind only Manning in passer rating. Oakland's pass defense is decent, but must slow down TE Antonio Gates, who is back to top form.

CAROLINA (1-2) AT ARIZONA (2-2)

Coming off a 38-0 rout of the Giants, the Panthers believe they are ready for some steady success. A stumble here would set them back significantly.

The key could be whether Arizona's run defense, ranked second, can stop the No. 3 rushing game Carolina brings. The Panthers let QB Cam Newton run more against New York, and it worked brilliantly.

PHILADELPHIA (1-3) AT NEW YORK GIANTS (0-4)

An Eagles win could lift them into a tie for first place in the avert-your-eyes NFC East if Dallas falls to Denver. Then again, if the Giants win, they'd be back in contention.

Philly's defense can't seem to cover or tackle in the open field, but it likely will concentrate on rushing Eli Manning, who's already been sacked 14 times. New York has only four sacks, and chasing down Michael Vick isn't easy.

JACKSONVILLE (0-4) AT ST. LOUIS (1-3)

Even with the Rams struggling — no running game, inconsistent defense — they are a big favorite over the Jaguars. Gus Bradley's first stint as a head coach has been unrewarding so far in Jacksonville, where people are beginning to whisper the dreaded "0-16."

Retired Army Lt. Gen. James Vaught asks a Navy official a question during a 2012 meeting. Vaught, who in 1980 planned an unsuccessful rescue of hostages in Iran, died last month.

Gen. James Vaught, Planner of 1980 Attempt to Rescue Hostages in Iran, Dies

THE WASHINGTON POST

James Vaught, a retired Army lieutenant general who was a decorated combat veteran and was best known for leading an unsuccessful attempt to rescue 53 U.S. hostages held in Iran in 1980, died Sept. 20 in Conway, S.C. He was 86.

A son, James B. Vaught Jr., confirmed the death. The Horry County, S.C., coroner, Robert Edge, told the Associated Press that Gen. Vaught apparently drowned after falling into a pond from a pontoon boat. He also had signs of heart disease.

In November 1979, soon after Iranian militants seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, Gen. James Vaught began planning a military operation to rescue the hostages. The rescue attempt became a defining moment of the presidency of Jimmy Carter, as the fate of the hostages loomed over the public imagination throughout the 1980 presidential campaign.

Vaught, then serving as the Army’s director of operations and mobilization, was the chief planner of a complicated mission dubbed Operation Eagle Claw.

Personnel and equipment from the four major service branches were included in the effort, which required the coordination of Navy helicopters, Marine Corps pilots, Air Force transport planes and Army commandos. It was among the first engagements of an elite Army unit known as Delta Force.

The operation was set in motion April 24, 1980, when eight Navy helicopters took off from the USS Nimitz, a Navy aircraft carrier in the Persian Gulf. Vaught directed the mission from a base in Egypt, with telephone links to Defense Secretary Harold Brown and national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski in the White House.

There were obstacles from the beginning, including a communications blackout among the helicopters and a severe dust storm in the Iranian desert that caused one helicopter to turn around and return to the Nimitz.

Two other helicopters encountered mechanical problems, leaving only five capable of flying to Tehran. From the beginning, Gen. Vaught and other military planners had said that no fewer than six helicopters were required to carry out the mission.

Vaught and commanders on the ground recommended to Brown and Brzezinski that the operation be called off. Carter agreed and made the final decision.

Soon afterward, the rotor blades of a helicopter attempting to refuel at a staging area in Iran struck an Air Force transport plane. Eight U.S. service members died in the fiery accident. The wreckage was left in the desert, along with secret information aboard the aircraft.

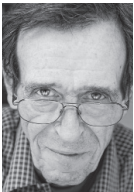

Military observers considered Operation Eagle Claw a colossal failure, and several congressional and military investigations were launched. An early review by a military panel cited poor communications and faulted the Joint Chiefs of Staff for not subjecting Gen. Vaught’s plan to a critical analysis.

Years later, Gen. Vaught said he was hampered by turf battles among the military branches.

Photographer at RFK Assassination Dies

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) • Photojournalist Bill Ep- pridge, whose career included capturing images of a mortally wounded Robert F. Kennedy, has died at age 75.

He died Thursday at a Danbury hospital after a brief illness, said his wife, Adrienne Aurichio. Ep- pridge was at the scene on June 5, 1968, when Kennedy, then a U.S. senator who had just won California’s Democratic presidential primary, had addressed campaign supporters at a Los Angeles hotel and was walking through its kitchen. He took some of the most well-known images after Kennedy was shot. One of those images, published in Life magazine, showed Kennedy lying on the floor in a pool of his blood, a hotel employee

Ep- pridge’s career also included stints working for high-profile magazines such as Sports Illustrated and National Geographic. He photographed a wide range of subjects, including the Beatles, young people in what was then the Soviet Union, the Olympics, wars and Woodstock.

Ep- pridge, who lived in Connecticut, always had a camera with him, Aurichio said.

A book of Ep- pridge photographs of the Fab Four, “The Beatles: Six Days That Changed the World. February, 1964,” is coming out early next year, Aurichio said.

Ep- pridge’s funeral will be private, with a memorial service to follow, she said.

Designer of Pioneering Braille Math Code Dies

DETROIT (AP) • Abraham Nemeth, the blind designer of the internationally recognized Nemeth Braille Math Code that simplified symbols for easier use in advanced math and science, has died at his home in suburban Detroit, relatives said Thursday. He was 94.

Nemeth, who was originally discouraged from pursuing his passion for math because of his blindness, died of congestive heart failure on Wednesday at his home in Southfield, said his niece, Dianne Bekritsky. She said her “uncle Abe” had passions ranging from science to music — he even worked his way through college by playing the piano in bars — and was long devoted to the blind community.

Nemeth started working on the code in the 1940s, seeking a simpler system to what was being used at the time. The New York native, who also spent 30 years as a mathematics professor at the University of Detroit Mercy, continued to develop the math code until the end of his life and has been lauded for his work by the blind community and advocates.

But the innovations almost didn’t happen. Nemeth originally studied psychology after counselors discouraged him from pursuing math because he was blind, Bekritsky said. He went on to earn his master’s degree in psychology from Columbia University. Encouraged by his wife to pursue his passion, Nemeth went back to school to study math, which led to his pioneering work with Braille codes, Bekritsky said.

“The best kind of charity you can give to a person is giving them the ability to make do on their own. The independence they get with the Nemeth Code is invaluable,” she said.

Nemeth started developing the Braille math code while working at the American Foundation for the Blind in New York and taking math classes at Brooklyn College.

Ship Capsizes Off Italy: 114 African Migrants Die

BY NICOLE WINFIELD
Associated Press

ROME • The rickety fishing boat was the third of the night to head toward the tiny Italian island of Lampedusa, overloaded with African migrants seeking a better life in Europe. Most never reached shore.

After the boat started taking on water, someone on board set a fire to get the attention of passing ships. The flames spread and panicked passengers surged to one side to avoid the fire. The vessel capsized, and hundreds of men, women and children who didn't know how to swim were flung into the Mediterranean Sea.

At least 114 people died and some 200 were still unaccounted for late Thursday, Italian officials said.

"We need only caskets, certainly not ambulances," said Pietro Bartolo, chief of Lampedusa health services.

It was one of the deadliest accidents in the perilous crossing thousands make each year, seeking a new life in the prosperous European Union. Smugglers charge thousands of dollars a head for the journey aboard overcrowded, barely seaworthy boats that lack life vests.

Lampedusa, 70 miles (113 kilometers) off Tunisia and closer to Africa than the Italian mainland, has been at the center of wave after wave of illegal immigration.

"It's an immense tragedy," Mayor Giusi Nicolini said.

Between 450 and 500 people were believed to be on board the boat, which set sail from the Libyan capital,

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The body of a drowned migrant is being unloaded from a Coast Guard boat in the port of Lampedusa, Sicily, Thursday. A number of people died when a ship carrying African migrants toward Italy caught fire and sank off the Sicilian island of Lampedusa, spilling hundreds of passengers into the sea, officials said Thursday. Many migrants have been rescued, but the boat is believed to have been carrying as many as 500 people. It is one of the deadliest migrant shipwrecks in recent times and the second one this week off Italy: On Monday, 13 men drowned while trying to reach southern Sicily when their ship ran aground just a few meters (yards) from shore at Scicli.

Tripoli, and capsized about a half-mile from Lampedusa; health commissioner Antonio Candela said only 159 were rescued. Bartolo initially put the death toll at 94 but said it would certainly rise as search operations continued. Italian coast guard divers later reported seeing another 20 bodies on the ocean floor.

In Rare Case, Palestinians Reclaim Settlement Land

BURKA, West Bank (AP) • Palestinian farmers on Thursday reclaimed lands they had lost decades earlier to an Israeli settlement, celebrating a rare legal victory their lawyer said illustrates that Israel's settlement enterprise is reversible.

In the 1970s, Israel had seized several hundred acres from residents of the West Bank village of Burka to build the Israeli settlement of Homesh. The settlement, along with three others in the West Bank, was razed in 2005, in connection with Israel's withdrawal from the Gaza Strip at the time.

However, Palestinians were not allowed to return to their lands after the 2005 demolition of Homesh because the military did not rescind the land seizure order and prevented access to the area, said attorney Michael Sfar.

After more than two years of court petitions, the military agreed several months ago to rescind the seizure order and last week lifted access restrictions, said Sfar of the Israeli rights group Yesh Din.

The military confirmed it had acted in line with the petitions.

On Thursday, farmers returned to their land for the first time. "I feel as if I was dead and

A Palestinian waters flowers planted in tear gas canisters in the village of Bilin, near the West Bank city of Ramallah, Wednesday. The tear gas canisters were collected during years of clashes with Israeli security forces.

now I am alive again," said Fathallah Hajjeh, 64. "I never felt such joy. We are rooted to this land."

About 500 acres of land were reclaimed, said Emad Saif of the Burka local council.

The return of the land shows that "the settlement project is reversible," said Sfar.

Since capturing the West Bank, Gaza and east Jerusalem in 1967, Israel built and expanded dozens of settlements that are now home to more than half a million Israelis.

Palestinians hope to establish a state in those territories, but say settlement expansion makes it increasingly difficult to draw borders between Israel and a future Palestine.

Israeli-Palestinian negotiations on the terms of a Palestinian state resumed in late July, but gaps remain wide and expectations are low on both sides that a deal can be reached.

Egypt's Muslim Brotherhood Keeps Protests Alive

CAIRO (AP) • Graffiti around the Egyptian capital proclaim the Muslim Brotherhood's call for new anti-military protests Sunday — dotting walls, light poles and signposts for miles down main avenues and near the presidential palace from which the group was ousted three months ago. It's an impressive show of survival, giving the image that the Brotherhood is everywhere, just under the surface.

But the Brotherhood is in an existential crisis, unsure how to adapt under the heaviest crackdown since the 1960s, carried out by a new military-backed government determined to end the group, at least in the form it has been in for the past 85 years.

With neither side interested in talking for now, the Brotherhood's crippled leadership is reduced to minimizing its losses until it finds an exit from the crisis. It is turning to its international leaders for help in decision-making and waging a campaign of persistent, if small protests to prove it cannot be crushed.

Few political organizations in the world have undergone a reversal as dramatic as the Muslim Brotherhood. It was the dominant force of Egypt's fledgling democracy after the 2011 fall of autocrat Hosni Mubarak. It rode the first free elections to win the presidency and parliament, and was poised to mold the country to its vision. Now, three months after the military coup that removed President Mohammed Morsi, it has been virtually decapitated, much of its leadership in prison, the rest in hiding and on the run.

Morsi has languished in military detention, unseen by the outside world, since the July 3 coup. He faces trial, as do the Brotherhood's top leaders and some 2,000 other jailed members.

The Brotherhood's nationwide network of members has fled underground, and the group that often boasted it represents the real Egypt finds itself vilified by government officials, the media and a large sector of the Egyptian public as extremists and terrorists.

Now it and the new government are locked into what is effectively a long, possibly violent process that will determine how the Brotherhood could fit into a democracy that those who toppled Morsi say they want to build. Many Egyptians say Morsi's year in power proved the Brotherhood is fundamentally undemocratic and seeks only to monopolize power. Hard-line Brotherhood opponents say it can have no place in politics, but moderates recognize it cannot be permanently repressed in a truly free system.

California Gives Immigrants Driver's Licenses

LOS ANGELES • California on Thursday joined the growing list of states that allow immigrants who are in the U.S. illegally to obtain driver's licenses — a measure supported not only by Latino activists but by police chiefs and insurance authorities.

Democratic Gov. Jerry Brown signed the bill in front of a cheering crowd of immigrants and their supporters, predicting other parts of the country will follow the example set by the nation's most populous state.

The licenses, which are expected to become available no later than January 2015, will carry a special designation on the front and a notice stating that the document is not official federal identification and cannot be used to prove eligibility for employment or public benefits.

"This is only the first step," Brown said outside City Hall in Los Angeles. "When a million people without their documents drive legally and with respect in the state of California, the rest of this country will have to stand up and take notice. No longer are undocumented people in the shadows."

Ten other states have enacted measures to give driver's licenses to immigrants in the country illegally, many of them in the past year, according to the National Immigration Law Center.

Some of those states issue only one kind of license. But laws in many states, including Oregon and Colorado, create distinctions between the license given to immigrants and the one issued to other drivers.

House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio, speaks to reporters following a meeting with President Barack Obama at the White House in Washington, Wednesday. Obama and congressional leaders met at the White House on the second day of a partial government shutdown. Boehner says it was a nice conversation but suggested little progress was made.

FEDERAL EMPLOYEES

Bills Would Grant Missed Pay to Federal Workers

THE WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON • House and Senate lawmakers this week proposed legislation to retroactively pay the roughly 800,000 federal workers who are furloughed because of the partial government shutdown that started Tuesday.

The House back-pay measure could be up for a floor vote as early as Saturday, according to Rep. Frank Wolf, R-Va., who introduced the bill on Tuesday along with sponsor Rep. James Moran, D-Va. As of Thursday, 120 lawmakers, including 18 Republicans, had added their names to the measure.

“Everyone I’ve talked to about this bill seems to be for it,” Wolf said Thursday of his colleagues in the House.

All of the Republicans who co-sponsored the House measure are from Virginia, a state with a high concentration of federal workers. They include Wolf and Reps. Rob Wittman, Scott Rigell and J. Randy Forbes.

On the Senate side, Sen. Benjamin Cardin, D-Md., has proposed nearly identical back-pay legislation, with 15 Democrats, including Sens. Barbara Mikulski of Maryland, Mark Warner of Virginia and Timothy Kaine of Virginia, co-sponsoring the bill.

“Hardworking federal employees did not cause our fiscal crises, nor did they contribute to the legislative gridlock,” Cardin said in a statement. “It is our responsibility to assure these public servants, mostly middle class and struggling to get by like so many other Americans, will be made whole again when it finally ends.”

No Republicans had co-sponsored the Senate measure as of Thursday.

Labor groups have commended the two back-pay measures. National Treasury Employees Union President Colleen Kelley said in a letter to the sponsors that federal workers are “unsure when they might be able to return to their federal offices, unsure whether or not they will be able to make their next rent or mortgage payment and frustrated and scared about their future.”

Several other GOP lawmakers this week expressed reservations about the back pay because of the national debt.

Free Classes for Furloughed Employees

THE WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON • Class is in session for furloughed federal workers.

The Georgetown University School of Continuing Studies is offering six free courses to people who are out of work because of the government shutdown.

“We saw there was a need to really stay connected and engaged,” said Walter Rankin, the school’s dean.

Rankin said the shutdown hit close to home: His partner is a furloughed federal worker. And at a recent retreat, he realized how many faculty members knew someone affected by the shutdown. He said they decided then to put together a list of courses.

Boehner Aims to Avoid U.S. Default

THE WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON • With the government shuttered and a deadline for raising the debt limit just two weeks off, anxious Republicans began steering the party away from a dead-end debate about the health-care law and toward discussion of a broader deal to reduce the nation’s debt.

In meetings with small groups of rank-and-file lawmakers, House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio, has emphasized that he will not permit the country to default for the first time on its debt. Given that a bloc of hard-line conservatives is unlikely to vote to increase the limit under any circumstances, Boehner has told fellow Republicans that they must craft an agreement that can attract significant Democratic support.

“This needs to be a big bipartisan deal,” Rep. Tom Cole, R-Okla., a close Boehner ally, said as he emerged from a luncheon meeting in the speaker’s office Thursday. “This is much more about the debt ceiling and a larger budget agreement than it is about Obamacare.”

One lawmaker, speaking on the condition of anonymity, said Thursday that Boehner has even suggested that he may be willing to risk the fury of conservatives by relying on a majority of Democratic votes — and less than a majority of Republicans — to pass a debt-ceiling increase. Doing so would recall the vote tallies on the huge political defeats Boehner suffered earlier this year as he agreed to head off year-end tax increases and provide federal relief to victims of Hurricane Sandy.

THE JOURNAL & COURIER, BRENT DRINKUT

Demonstrators hold signs while protesting outside the Lafayette, Ind. office of U.S. Representative Todd Rokita, Thursday. They were protesting the government shutdown and Rokita’s stance on it.

A senior aide denied that Boehner has suggested such a strategy. Meanwhile, senior policy aides were at work on last-ditch alternatives that could win the support of a majority of Republicans, such as increasing the $16.7 trillion debt limit for a short period — mere days or weeks — to force Democrats to the negotiating table.

“Speaker Boehner has always said that the United States will not default on its debt, but if we’re going to raise the debt limit, we need to deal with the drivers of our debt and deficits,” Boehner spokesman Michael Steel said in a written statement.

The shift in strategy among Republicans caused a brief sensation Thursday, as political analysts speculated that Boehner, who has long acknowledged the dangers of a default, may be ready to give up the fight. But Republicans pushed back hard against that idea. Although it may have been a mistake to shut down the government in a quest to dismantle President Barack Obama’s health-care law, they said, that does not mean they will roll over on the debt limit without concessions from Democrats.

“I don’t think there’s energy in the Republican caucus to have any kind of default on the debt limit,” said Rep. James Lankford, R-Okla., a member of the House leadership who represents the conservative class of 2010. But “we need a long-term plan to take future debt ceiling increases off the table.”

Increasing the debt limit for “a couple days, a week” would be a “horrible way” to jump-start talks, Lankford said. “We’d rather just get it resolved.”

A very short-term increase in the debt limit could wreak havoc on the economy and financial markets by dragging the debate well beyond Oct. 17, when the Treasury will exhaust its borrowing authority and begin relying entirely on incoming revenue to pay the nation’s bills.

On Thursday, the Treasury Department released a report on debt ceiling “brinksmanship” that examined the economic fallout from a similar impasse in 2011, when the nation came within days of defaulting on its obligations.

The report found that consumer confidence plummeted in the months before the 2011 debt limit deadline. So did the stock market, robbing the nation of $2.4 trillion in household wealth, including $800 billion in retirement assets. Interest rates also spiked, raising borrowing costs for home buyers, businesses and consumers, with the effects lingering long after the crisis was resolved.

Driver Killed in D.C. after Chase to Capitol

THE WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON • A woman with a 1-year-old child in her car was fatally shot by police near the U.S. Capitol on Thursday, after a chase through the heart of Washington that brought a new jolt of fear to a city already rattled by the recent Navy Yard shooting and the federal shutdown.

The car was registered to Miriam Carey, 34, a dental hygienist from Stamford, Conn., law enforcement officials said, adding that they believed Carey was the driver.

District of Columbia Police Chief Cathy Lanier said that the driver tried to breach two Washington landmarks and that the incident was not an accident.

But officials also said it did not appear to part of any larger or organized terrorist plot.

The chase began about 2:15 p.m. at a White House security checkpoint, where the black Infiniti driven by the woman struck a barrier and a Secret Service officer. The woman drove away from that fortified icon and headed straight for another: the Capitol.

During the chase, police officers opened fire twice, both times in areas busy with tourists and office workers. The Capitol itself was locked down, as a bitter debate over the government shutdown was interrupted by echoes of shots, officers with guns and an urgent order to “shelter in place.”

The end came outside the Hart Senate Office Building, at Maryland Avenue and Second Street NE. The woman’s car got stuck. Officers fired another volley. Then, moments later, an officer emerged with the child, carrying the toddler quickly away as new waves of officers arrived.

Authorities said the woman was not armed, and although the incident was first reported as a shooting at the Capitol, the only shots were fired by officers.

Police said there was no indication that the woman was part a larger threat. But they said little about why she had suddenly become a threat herself.

“I am pretty confident this was not an accident,” Lanier said at an evening news conference.

Putting a Modern Spin on a Greek Tragedy

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Although it was written millennia ago, "Oedipus Tyrannus" has plenty of themes audiences can relate to today.

Students in the College of Southern Idaho's theater department plan to take a modern spin on the classic Greek tragedy.

It tells the story of Oedipus, who becomes the king of Thebes, and is destined to kill his father and marry his mother.

The driving force of the play is identity, said actor Coltyn Giltner, who plays Oedipus.

Oedipus is a complex role to play, he said, and the character doesn't know he killed his father.

"He's fated to do all this from birth," said Laine Steel, a communication/theater professor who's directing the play. "This is a play about belief, really."

CSI's production of "Oedipus Tyrannus" opened Wednesday. More performances are at 7:30 p.m. tonight and Saturday, as well as Oct. 9-12, in the college's Fine Arts Theater.

Sophocles' tragedy was first performed in 429 BCE. That poses a challenge for cast members, who have to take "an ancient Greek tragedy and connect it with a 2013 audience," Giltner said.

The show has a lot of ties to modern times, Steel said, including a theme of the failure of political figures to accept responsibility for their actions.

"Everyone thinks they know Oedipus, but it's really not the story people like to think it is," he said.

During the rehearsal process, cast members have been on an interesting discovering process of "just how relevant the play really is," Steel said.

"Hopefully, some of that will come across to the audience," he said.

The show reflects on how people pay lip service to their beliefs, Steel said. That's reflected partly through a pile of junk overlaid in the middle of a half-circle stage.

About a dozen cast and crew members started rehearsing for the play shortly after Labor Day.

During a rehearsal Sept. 25, the cast practiced a scene where Oedipus finds out he unknowingly killed his father.

As they rehearsed, the sound of hammering came from backstage as work continued on the set.

Back in ancient Greek times, theater was a community-based, religion-centric experience.

During CSI's production, it won't be a passive experience for audience members. They'll be engaged in ways never done before in the history of the college's theater department, Steel said.

Then the show opens this week, expect a modern version of a Greek drama.

"Our image is more like a tailgate party," Steel said.

And many of those will come in handy during the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club's annual October Feast. "It's a true German dinner," said Parrish, chairman of the event committee. October Feast returns from 4:30-8 p.m. Wednesday at the Turf Club. A German polka band will perform from 5-7:30 p.m. They'll come wearing traditional Bavarian attire. dish, homebaked rolls and ice cream. Plus, there will be sauerkraut, which includes pineapple. "It's much more tasty than what you used to eat with hot dogs in elementary school," Parrish said. October Feast is the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club's major fundraiser of the year for youth projects — including scholarships for students to attend Boys and Girls State and music scholarships for choral groups. The club also provided funding to help construct an indoor baseball and softball facility at Canyon Ridge High School. CREEPY CAMPUS

Albion Haunted Mansions Scare up a Good Time

ccrane@magicvalley.com

ALBION • The Halloween season has returned to Mini-Cassia.

The frightful holiday lurches forward, dragging a multitude of traditional activities suitable for all ages. From hay rides to pumpkin patches, fun-lovers and thrill-seekers are in for a treat.

One of the area's most recent traditions can be found among the deserted buildings and residence halls of the old Albion College. The campus is home to an annual Halloween event — Haunted Mansions of Albion.

The old Albion College sits on the outskirts of Albion. Once a formal teacher's college, the old campus now operates as a reminder of Idaho's past and, during the Halloween season, a ghoulish taste of the macabre.

"We've added a lot of new stuff this year," said Troy Mortensen, owner and operator of the mansions. "We spend a lot of time setting up and training our actors so that people can come up here and enjoy it."

Albion College has been a stark landmark in Albion for many years. The first thing motorists see after coming over the mountain before descending into the small town of Albion is the old campus and its imposing buildings.

Once a place of learning, the campus takes on a sinister facade as the sun sets and the shadows begin to creep across the forbidding grounds.

The natural state of disrepair of the old buildings is a big part of what attracts visitors to the campus year after year.

Mortensen and his family take pride in keeping the campus looking old and spooky.

"We want it to seem haunted," he said. "We want it to feel old and creepy. We've had a lot of talk of taking one of the buildings and cleaning it up, but when we start doing that it loses a lot of the charm."

The work that goes into getting the buildings ready to go for opening night is no simple feat.

"We start prepping about three months beforehand," Mortensen said. "We spend approximately $25,000 every year in props and rebuilding the paths through the buildings. It's a lot of work. By the first of September, we're into the full swing of getting it running."

In addition to changing up the routes through the haunted mansions, Mortensen and his crew put a lot of work into ensuring the experience will be remembered by visitors.

"We want people to be able to walk through these old buildings and really get a feel for the atmosphere and kind of let them walk through the darkness and find out what scares them," he said.

About 60 employees — including actors and effect artists — help elicit screams from visitors.

"We have a professional make-up person on hand and we spend the time to train our actors in way that they know and understand how to time their scares, as well as be aware of safety issues," Mortensen said.

The campus is an inviting place with multiple fire barrels scattered around the

Studio Event Celebrates Wood River Art Scene

SUN VALLEY • More than 50 artists will open their studios in a couple of weeks to give visitors an inside look at the creative process.

Wood River Valley Studio Tour opens to community members on Oct. 19-20.

An artist reception is 5-8 p.m. Oct. 19 at the Wood River Fine Arts gallery in Ketchum.

Community members are invited to spend the evening mingling with artists over drinks and appetizer.

The Wood River Valley Studio Tour is partly to celebrate the honor of ArtPlace Magazine naming Ketchum as one of its top 12 small art towns in the United States.

A collaboration of artists has joined in an effort to attract visitors and art lovers to see their studio process and work close up.

The two-day event will feature artists from Bellevue to Ketchum.

The studio tour will also include an artist education series. Sessions include "Photographing Your Artwork," "Heart and Head Marketing of Art" and "Marketing Your Art Through Digital and Social Media."

The Wood River Valley Studio Tour, Inc. is an Idaho non-profit organization celebrating the artistic talent of the Wood River Valley.

When we talked last week, Parrish described the bratwurst that will be served at October Feast as "just incredible."

Take a Run (or Walk)

The College of Southern Idaho's physical education department hosts a color run Saturday.

Come wearing white clothes and expect to get covered in food-grade color or powder throughout the event.

Across town, another fundraiser is also happening Saturday — Bras Across the Canyon.

Participants will walk along the Perrine Bridge waving bras to raise awareness about breast cancer. Proceeds benefit the Wellness Tree Community Clinic.

For details on these events and many others, see the full calendar in this section.

show Oct. 12 catered by Raspberry's at 6:30 p.m. costs $50 for $10 more you can also attend the late show and dance. The late performance and dancing at 9 p.m. costs $20.

Another highlight, one more entrenched in festival history, is the Sheepdog Trials. It will feature 50 of the nation's best sheep-herding dogs competing to see which can round up a herd of sheep first.

The sheep are usually not cooperative, having spent all summer roaming mountain meadows north of Sun Valley.

"This is authentic Idaho," said Curt Mays, who is overseeing the trials. "These sheep dogs perform their skills with such alacrity, finesse and focus. And these skills are witnessed by just a very small percentage of people around the world."

New York Times best-selling author Mark Kurlansky — who wrote "The Basque History of the World," "Salt," and other books — will speak as part of the festival's Sheep Tales gathering at 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 11 at the nexStage Theatre in Ketchum.

He will also preside over a storytelling workshop from 9-10:30 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 12 at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts center in Hailey.

Several woolgrowers and chefs will offer hands-on fiber and cooking demonstrations.

Among them is Felix Gonzalez, who followed his father to Sun Valley after his father left Spain in 1955 to herd sheep in order to carve out a life for his family.

"He did it because of us and he was proud to become an American citizen," Gonzalez said. "My dad, he didn't like the sheep, though."

Lawn Care for Winter Snowfall

by Jeffrey Anderson, All About Lawns Columnist

This has been a very snowy winter in many parts of the country--some long-standing records have been broken, with the amount of snow received. It may seem strange to think about your lawn when you are shoveling 2 feet of snow off your driveway, but attending to a few yard chores now, may save you some headaches this spring and summer.

Your Lawn Care for Winter Helps Avoid Future Problem Areas

People who live in regions that normally get a significant amount of winter snowfall often know about the potential problems it can cause with their yard. However, if you live in an area that has received much more snow than usual, there are a few lawn care chores you should perform that perhaps you hadn't considered.

The longer that snow remains on your yard, the more potential for various snow molds to develop next spring. Brown and yellow patches may form in the summertime, caused from snow mold or other winter damage.

As the snow begins to melt, you may notice that some areas of your yard have more snow accumulation or don't receive as much sun. Take a few minutes to redistribute this snow to areas where the snow is melting quickly. More winter seasonal lawn care tips include:

- Making sure that ice-melting salt does not get on the grass.
- Removing winter thatch as soon as the lawn is dry in the spring.
- Not allowing melted snow to accumulate in low spots.

DEAR ABBY: My kids attend a private school that has made it a goal to be a “blue ribbon” school. To that end, teachers pile on so much homework that many of our parents send our kids to bed after three hours and finish it ourselves. Our kids are completely overwhelmed with senseless piles of busywork.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

This summer, our children had to read four substantial books and complete hefty vocabulary packets and math packets that required most of us parents to hire tutors. Our children are stressed, anxious and depressed. We have never indulged them with a lot of video game or TV time. I have considered pulling my kids out of this school, but the public schools around here are awful.

Parents are miserable. Kids are miserable. We want them to have a decent education, but we also want them to be happy people — and right now, no one is happy.

— PRESSURED MOM OF PRESSURED KIDS

DEAR PRESSURED: Are you aware that some educators feel that students should have no summer vacation at all, and should be in class year-round? The assignments your children were given may have been designed to keep their skills sharp so they would be prepared for the fall term. Because you and other parents feel your children are being overburdened with busywork, it's time to address this as a group with the principal so you can voice your concerns and get an explanation.

DEAR ABBY: My 12-year-old grandson lies often. His parents are trying to give him consequences for his lying as a “team effort.” I don't want to be the stern grandma and have him bad memories of me. When he lies to me, should I look the other way and ignore it or follow through with my own consequences?

— GRANDMA IN ST. PETE, FLA.

DEAR GRANDMA: Would you prefer your grandson remember you as the grandmother whose eye he could spit in, tell her it's raining and she would accept it? It would be better to ask him why he feels it is necessary to lie to someone who loves him, tell him that you expect honesty from him and if you don't receive it there will be MORE consequences. Remember, you are also a part of the team, and this is an important life lesson he needs to learn.

*** **

DEAR ABBY: My only son is 18. He didn't attend his prom. He quit school and goes to night school instead. I'll never see him in a cap and gown, holding his diploma. On top of that, he told me six months ago that he's bisexual and that he has a boyfriend in the U.K. I'm having a hard time with all of this.

I taught my son to love and respect everyone, regardless of race, religion or sexual orientation. Now I'm afraid I won't have any grandchildren. Even more upsetting, he wants to move to the U.K. to be with his 26-year-old boyfriend.

I feel so cheated — no prom, no graduation, no grandchildren! I'm scared and I cry every day. How do I accept him being him?

— CHEATED IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR CHEATED: OK, so reality isn't in sync with your fantasy about how your son would turn out. But why are you dwelling on the negative?

Your son is completing his high school education, and with his GED could very well go on to college or a technical school. While he didn't attend his prom, he has found a meaningful relationship. He may eventually give you the grandchildren you long for — other same-sex couples have done it.

So look on the bright side. If you count your blessings, encourage him and accept the man he loves, you could have a life of adventure and international travel, a warm relationship with both of them and gain a son.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

“Coleridge holds that a man cannot have a pure mind who refuses apple-dumplings. I am not certain but that he is right.”
— Charles Lamb

Despite the combined North-South high-card strength, three no-trump is a poor contract. But it is hard to stay out of since North should not try to land on a pinhead by passing two no-trump. So imagine that South declares today's deal in three no-trump, against which West leads the spade seven.

With one defender holding an established suit, declarer can only run seven tricks before giving up the lead, so two more tricks must be generated from the hearts. Moreover, these extra heart tricks will have to come without letting West obtain the lead.

South therefore must assume that East holds the heart ace and no more spades. To trick two, a heart is led, and if West plays the seven, dummy ducks! East must win the trick, and now declarer regains the lead and plays a heart to the jack, achieving his goal.

Note: If West produces the heart 10 or queen on the first round, dummy covers cheaply. At the next opportunity, declarer plays a second heart and ducks West's seven. This line risks an extra undertrick, but is the only way to come close to making the contract.

Curiously, there IS a defense to three no-trump, but not one that any mortal would find. West cashes a top spade and leads a second, letting East discard the heart eight. Now West can follow with a high heart when the suit is first led and can no longer be kept off lead.

ANSWER: Were you tempted to bid on? I can understand that, but your partner's decision to reraise to four hearts — instead of describing his hand with a call of four of a minor — leaves him in absolute control here. You can double or pass, but should never bid on without freak distribution here.

IF OCTOBER 4 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Between now and the beginning of November, you may be caught up in a romantic fantasy or inspired to make some cherished ambitions a reality. Sometime during the next four to six weeks, find time for a vacation or weekend getaway to refresh your spirit. By late November, your business sense is at an all-time high, but you won't get a free ride or favors without strings attached. Honor existing obligations, but don't undertake any new ones or add to your financial burdens. The answers to your prayers may appear in January. That's the best time to launch important new plans or make alterations in your life. If you want to change jobs, make a career move, or find a soul mate, late January looks promising.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Foot the bill, but let someone else leave the tip. When you insist on being too independent it can stand in the way of intimacy. You don't want to rely on other people, but they may need to feel they are needed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): When you're feeling down and out you need a friend. Social affairs may revolve around business or work, and because your job is demanding, you may miss out on pleasant occasions. Stay in touch with friends.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): It takes determination, dedication, self-discipline and effort to make dreams come true. Use the knowledge at your fingertips to develop a plan so you can act on your most cherished imaginations next week.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Take the high road when dealing with situations that involve moral standards or ethics. You will earn respect and help your reputation by adhering to your convictions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): There's a reason it's called the "strength" of your convictions. If you give in to the temptation to do something underhanded you may get away with it, but you'll weaken your standing in your own eyes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): If you have a one-track mind, you have no choice but to reach your destination. Even the most strenuous tasks eventually get completed through tough-mindedness. Spend quality time with an affectionate companion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Open mindedness can open doors. Create your own opportunities, then work hard to take advantage of them. Loved ones are willing to accept an apology or may surprise you by showing extra appreciation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): One is the loneliest number. You may be feeling somewhat isolated or out of the loop because of pressing commitments or responsibilities. Keep in touch with relatives and friends in far-away locations this weekend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Chatterboxes let cats out of bags. The tendency to say whatever crosses your mind might create a brief conflict. Count on a close companion to give you wise advice or helpful guidance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An unconventional outlook puts you at the head of the class or in a position to call the shots. However, this doesn't mean it's a good time to make a crucial decision or put irrevocable changes into motion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Insignificant acorns eventually grow into mighty oak trees. Consistent effort might not earn immediate applause, but will bring self-satisfaction. Keep plugging away at a pet project or business plan.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Act with honesty and sincerity. People will be more likely to grant favors or give you a recommendation if they know you're trustworthy. At the same time, there may be a bit of self-interest involved.

Today is Friday, Oct. 4, the 277th day of 2013. There are 88 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Oct. 4, 1957, the Space Age began as the Soviet Union launched Sputnik 1, the first artificial satellite, into orbit. James R. Hoffa was elected president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. The family comedy series "Leave It to Beaver" premiered on CBS.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1777, Gen. George Washington's troops launched an assault on the British at Germantown, Pa., resulting in heavy American casualties.

In 1822, the 19th president of the United States, Rutherford B. Hayes, was born in Delaware, Ohio.

In 1861, during the Civil War, the United States Navy authorized construction of the first ironclad ship, the USS Monitor.

In 1887, the International Herald Tribune had its beginnings as the Paris Herald, a European edition of the New York Herald.

In 1931, the comic strip "Dick Tracy" created by Chester Gould, made its debut.

In 1940, Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini conferred at Brenner Pass in the Alps.

In 1958, the first trans-Atlantic passenger jetliner service was begun by the British Overseas Airways Corporation (BOAC) with flights between London and New York.

In 1959, the Soviet Union launched Luna 3, a space probe which transmitted images of the far side of the moon.

In 1960, an Eastern Air Lines Lockheed L-188A Electra crashed on takeoff from Boston's Logan International Airport, killing all but 10 of the 72 people on board.

In 1970, rock singer Janis Joplin, 27, was found dead in her Hollywood hotel room.

In 1976, agriculture secretary Earl Butz resigned in the wake of a controversy over a joke he'd made about blacks.

In 1980, fire broke out aboard the Dutch cruise vessel Prinsendam in the Gulf of Alaska, forcing the 520 people aboard to abandon ship; no deaths or serious injury resulted. (The ship capsized and sank a week later.)

In 1991, 26 nations, including the United States, signed the Madrid Protocol, which imposed a 50-year ban on oil exploration and mining in Antarctica.

Ten years ago: A Palestinian woman blew herself up inside a restaurant in Haifa, Israel, killing 21 bystanders.

Five years ago: Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice met with her Indian counterpart, External Affairs Minister Pranab Mukherjee, in New Delhi, where they lauded but did not sign a new agreement opening up U.S. nuclear trade with India. The U.S. military said it had killed an al-Qaida in Iraq leader (Mahir Ahmad Mahmud al-Zubaydi) suspected of masterminding one of the deadliest attacks in Baghdad, several other recent bombings and the 2006 videotaped killing of a Russian official. A North Korean news agency reported on leader Kim Jong Il's first public appearance in nearly two months.

One year ago: A day after his first debate with Mitt Romney, which had been widely seen as a victory for Romney, President Barack Obama suggested that his Republican rival hadn't been candid about his policy positions during the faceoff. The Nielsen company said an estimated 67.2 million people had watched the debate; it was the biggest TV audience for a presidential debate since 1992.
