Sex offender registry
a helpful tool.

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • About 226 people in Twin Falls County are registered sex offenders. But what about the ones who aren’t on the list?

Sheriff’s Staff Sgt. Doug Sugden oversees the county’s sex offender registry and often gets calls from worried residents when a sex offender moves into their neighborhood.

“I tell them do nothing,” Sugden said.

By knowing who the offender is and where he or she lives, you’ve won more than half the battle.

“You have to worry about the guys and gals not on my list,” he said.

For the most part, compliant registered offenders want to move on with their lives and generally behave well.

“People on the registry are monitored,” he said. “They know they’re on the radar.”

This month, Sugden’s office will send out letters to registered offenders strongly urging them to turn their lights off on Halloween and not participate in festivities.

While parents can use the registry to avoid offenders’ homes, Sugden said, the key to keeping kids safe is education, even if it’s a difficult subject.

“Be comfortable talking to your kids about what’s right and wrong,” he said.

Bottom line, Sugden said, is that the registry is a helpful tool that puts information in the public’s hands.

“You know they’re convicted, and you can keep your kids away,” he said.

T.F. Council Approves Permit Process to Jump from Evel Knievel’s Launch Site

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Big Ed Beckley has permission to land where Evel Knievel never touched down, but whether Beckley will get permission to launch from Twin Falls — where the hype all began — is uncertain.

Although Beckley paid nearly $1 million to land on the north side of the Snake River Canyon, Twin Falls officials have approved a permitting process for the famous launch site without requiring applicants to secure a landing site.

That means anyone can apply to jump from the mound of dirt where Knievel did nearly 40 years ago.

During Monday’s council meeting, members said they

Tractor Driver Dies of Injuries

TIMES-NEWS

HANSEN • A tractor driver involved in a crash east of Hansen Oct. 2 has died.

Salvador Centeno, 58, of Kimberly, died at Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise, the Idaho State Police reported Monday.

Centeno had been put on life support after last Wednesday’s crash.

He was driving his 1978 John Deere tractor eastbound on U.S. 30 near milepost 229 about 7:30 a.m.

George Rietkerk, 55, of Wendell, also was heading east on U.S. 30, pulling an empty livestock trailer with his 2006 Dodge R3500.

Rietkerk failed to yield and rear-ended the tractor, which was moving at about 20 mph, State Police reported.

Both drivers were taken by ambulance to St. Luke’s Magic Valley Medical Center.

Centeno then was transported by air ambulance to Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise.

“At this time, no charges have been filed,” said State Trooper Jeff McConnell.

Rietkerk was listed in good condition Monday afternoon at St. Luke’s.

McConnell said he expects to finish the accident report next week, and the next step will be up to the Twin Falls County prosecutor’s office.

McConnell said he talked to Rietkerk later that day.

“There was no reason why he was unable to see the tractor,” McConnell said. “He just neglected to see the vehicle. It was an error on his part.”

“There is definitely a problem with people speeding on U.S. 30, but there is no evidence that he was going over the speed limit.”

The tractor was legally marked with slow-moving-vehicle signs, the trooper added.

Centeno worked for Hollifield Farms since 2007, said Larry Hollifield. Centeno has a young son and an 18-year-old daughter.

Pedestrian Killed Just Outside of Twin Falls

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A Jerome man was killed Sunday night while crossing Kimberly Road just east of Twin Falls city limits, the Idaho State Police reported.

Douglas S. Cornelison, 50, was crossing U.S. 30 about 10:30 p.m. near its intersection with N 3300 Road.

Jay L. Overmon Jr., 40, of Kimberly, was driving west on U.S. 30 in a 1999 Dodge Durango when he struck Cornelison, state police said.

Cornelison died at the scene. The crash is still under investigation.

CSI will hold a writing workshop, “Cobalt Skies and Pelican Ballet,” 3-5:30 p.m. at Ritter Island. Free; preregister: 208-948-0089.

Stocks Fall as Government Shutdown Drags On

NEW YORK (AP) • Investors sent the Standard & Poor's 500 index to its lowest close in a month Monday as few signs emerged of a deal to end the U.S. government shutdown and raise the nation's borrowing limit.

Senate Democrats moved to introduce legislation to raise the nation's debt limit without the unrelated conditions Republicans have said they are seeking. The White House signaled it would accept even a brief extension in borrowing authority to prevent an unprecedented default by the United States.

Curious Mind
Municipal Band's Stipend
Offsets Babysitting and Fuel

I'm surprised at the cost of the band to the city. Who gets paid and how much? I thought the members volunteered.

Kimberly Williams-Brackett
Curious Mind

The Twin Falls Municipal Band is a 501(c)3 nonprofit corporation, said band President Sandy Hacking.

The articles of incorporation bylaws can be found on the Secretary of State's website, sos.idaho.gov, she said.

"Each individual has to meet a minimum of three concerts and rehearsals to receive a payment to offset babysitting and fuel," said Hacking. Members could get $30 a week during the concert season.

The municipal band's annual budget relies completely on city funds for operational costs. The city council granted the band's annual request of $21,200.

In addition to the stipends for 55 members, the money was used to increase family and community enrichment.

"We no longer provide brass instruments but provide percussions for the band," said Hacking. "We purchase six pieces of music a year. Although we have our own music library, we don't want to hear the same music year after year so we rotate the music."

Hacking said back in the '50s, the state funded the band. The city took on the responsibility in the early 1960s.

Summer 2013 marked 108 years for the Twin Falls Municipal Band, the longest-running municipal band west of the Mississippi River.

The band assembles June through August at 8 p.m. every Thursday at the Twin Falls City Park's bandshell.

Brian Neudorff
Meteorologist

After a warm weekend and Monday with temperatures in the 70s, another shot of cooler air will arrive across southern Idaho today. A cold front moved through the state Monday night and early this morning. Winds will be breezy out of the west-southwest, gusting to near 25 mph and temperatures will be almost 20 degrees colder than they were on Monday.

Another storm system will dig in across the Pacific Northwest and become stalled across the region on Wednesday and into Thursday. While we won't see a lot of rain, showers and even a few mountain snow showers are possible. Low temperatures will remain in the mid-30s across the Magic Valley and the high-20s in the mountains.

The Magic Valley can expect isolated to scattered rain showers on Wednesday, but those above 6,500 feet could see a mix of rain and snow.

Showers should come to an end Thursday afternoon. It will remain quiet and dry Friday into Saturday. Temperatures will also remain in the upper-50s to near 60 Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The next weather system to bring colder air and more showers could be on Sunday and Monday.

Brian Neudorff is the chief meteorologist for KMVT-TV and KTTW FOX 14. Email at Brian-Neudorff@neuhoffmedia.com or call 208-733-100 x3047.

OBITUARIES

Chad Ernest Browning

Sept. 19, 1935-Sept. 29, 2013

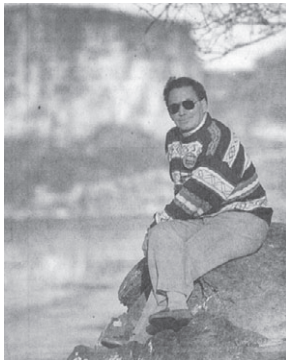

TWIN FALLS • Chad Ernest Browning, age 78, passed away Sunday, Sept. 29, 2013, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center.

He was born Sept. 19, 1935, to Ernest P. and Mae F. Browning in Twin Falls. He lived on a farm in Murtaugh until 1945 when the family moved to Jerome. Chad graduated from Jerome High School in 1953, where he was active in athletics and student government. He attended Idaho State University and was a proud member of the men's basketball team. He served in the U.S. Army and was stationed at Fort Ord, Calif. He returned to Twin Falls where he worked at the Twin Falls Flour Mill before going to work for the city as recreation director in 1961. He was promoted to City Parks and Recreation director in 1983. During his tenure, Thomsen, Vista Bonita and Ascension Parks were opened, as well as Sunway Soccer Complex, Oregon Trail Youth Complex and the city swimming pool. He was instrumental in making improvements to Dierkes Lake and opening the first section of the Canyon Rim Trail. While director, the youth soccer program was started and he was part of the original skate park committee. Chad retired from his position with the city in 1996 after 35 years of service.

Chad was married to Joyce Stastny and Janet Browning before marrying his current wife, Margo Craig, in 1996. Chad had just celebrated his 78th birthday, and he and Margo had recently celebrated their 17th wedding anniversary. His retirement years included travel to Nevada, California, Arizona and Washington to visit family, and a visit to Mazatlan, Mexico. Two of his favorite places to visit were Jackpot and Las Vegas, Nev., where he would often be found at a blackjack table. He looked forward to joining his 7 a.m. coffee group weekday mornings at Idaho Joe's, where he, Leon, Doc, Karl, Paul, Chuck and Dennis enjoyed coffee, conversation and discussing sports. He often commented on the great hospitality and service of the waitresses there.

The family wishes to thank the caring staff at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center and Drs. Desmond, Narasimhan and Scholes for their fine care.

Chad is survived by his wife, Margo; sister, Janice (Dick) Moon of Bois; son, Lindy (Jacki) Browning of Lake Tapps, Wash.; daughter, Kristi Hughes of Twin Falls; five grandchildren, Brianne and Connor Hughes of Menifee, Calif., Casey (Julia) Browning of Orting, Wash.; Joshua (Frances) Goeken of O'Fallon, Mo., Zachary (Michelle) Goeken of Cheyenne, Wyo.; and great-grandchildren, Cameron and Mariah Goeken of Cheyenne, Wyo. He also leaves behind a stepson, Tom (Dayane) Chapman, of Las Vegas, Nev.; and a stepdaughter, Sheri Chapman of La Crosse, Wis.; seven step-grandchildren; and six step-great-grandchildren. Chad was preceded in death by his parents; and his daughter, Kim Moll.

Chad was an ardent sports fan (football, baseball and basketball). In his younger years, he played men's slow pitch softball. While once an Oakland Raiders fan, he most recently followed the Green Bay Packers and Aaron Rodgers. Chad was also a fan of the Atlanta Braves and Boston Red Sox.

A memorial service is scheduled for 5 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 10, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. The family would like to suggest that those who attend his memorial service wear their favorite sports team attire.

Chad shared a special bond with his dog, Schatze, who provided great comfort to him and was a loyal companion prior to her death. In lieu of flowers, Chad's family suggests that contributions be made in his memory to the Twin Falls Community Foundation to help fund the new dog park. Contributions will be accepted by TFCF, P.O. Box 5632, Twin Falls, ID 83301 or via its website www.twinfallscommunityfoundation.org (Baxter's Dog Park.)

Condolences and memories can be shared at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home's website: www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

Parke's apologizes for the photo error and is happy to rerun the obituary at their cost.

Darrell Austin (D.A.) Heider

May 16, 1922-Oct. 6, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Darrell Austin (D.A.) Heider was born May 16, 1922, in Miller, S.D., to Henry and Esther Heider. He was the third of five sons and one daughter, all of whom preceded him in death. The family moved to Twin Falls, Idaho, in 1936. He courted and married Marcela Rappeleye on May 28, 1943. After Marcela's death, he married Mary Jane Carlisle.

He was drafted and served in the Army Air Corps as a tech sergeant, flying numerous missions from England to Germany as a bomb site technician during World War II. He was proud to be a veteran and loved attending the 490th Bomb Group reunions.

After the war, Marcela and Darrell were sealed in the Logan LDS Temple on Jan. 8, 1945. He established Heider Floor Service, and they settled in Twin Falls, where they raised their four children, Lee Heider (Jan), Will Heider (Mary), Sherri Heider Wright (Steve) and Terrie Heider Gillenwater (Richard). He was very active in Scouting, earning a Silver Beaver Award. He helped many young men earn their Scout-ling awards. He served as a bishop and many other callings in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

He served as parks and recreations and solid waste director for Twin Falls County for more than 20 years. During that time, he built several county parks, including Lud Drexler Park, Balanced Rock Park, Rock Creek Park, Murtaugh Lake Park, Centennial Park and Owsley Bridge Park. He built them with a very limited budget and he was very proud of the benefit they continue to provide to the citizens of Twin Falls County.

Darrell is survived by his wife, Mary Jane; his four children and Mary Jane's four children; their 40 grandchildren and 65 great-grandchildren. He will be remembered for his love of hunting, skiing, hiking, tote goating, traveling, restoring his Model A and participating in the Model A Club. His life was filled with fun, adventure and hard work. He died at the age of 91 on Sunday, Oct. 6, 2013.

The funeral for Darrell will take place at 11 a.m. Wednesday, Oct. 9, 2013, at the Kimberly LDS Stake Center, 3850 N. 3500 E. of Kimberly with Bishop Satterfield conducting. Burial will follow at the Twin Falls Cemetery with military honors by the Magic Valley Honor Guard and Idaho National Guard. A viewing will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 8, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls, as well as from 10 a.m. until 10:45 a.m. Wednesday at the Kimberly LDS Stake Center.

Services are under the direction of Trent Stimpson and staff at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, Twin Falls.

Condolences may be left for the family by visiting www.reynoldschapel.com.

Ronald Burl Masoner

July 24, 1926-Oct. 4, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Ronald Burl Masoner, 87, of Twin Falls, passed away Friday, Oct. 4, 2013.

He was born in Rupert, Idaho, the son of Charles M. and Emma Masoner, on July 24, 1926. He graduated from Rupert High School and then entered the U.S. Army Air Corps and served during World War II. Following his stay in the U.S. Army Air Corps, he returned to Idaho and began working for the various airline companies. He worked and managed the Twin Falls Airport, retiring after 35 years of faithful service in 1987. He loved music, planes, trains, automobiles and sailboats. Ronald's true love was his music; he came from a musical family and it remained a big part of his life, from the marching band as a youngster to playing the organ all his life. Ronald was pilot who enjoyed flying every kind of plane and sailplane. He won first place in 1965 for the longest sail plane distance. He always loved an adventure. He and his friends built a tow rope to the top of Magic Mountain so they could enjoy skiing. He also loved sailing, building model trains and the outdoors. He supported his family in their activities and supported his children in their life endeavors. Ronald was the support system for his family, always being there for his family.

Surviving are his children, Charles (Stephanie) Masoner of North Las Vegas, Nev., Wayne (Nancy) Masoner of Springfield, Ore., and Brian (Julie) Masoner of Twin Falls; along with four grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his parents, brothers and sisters, Meryl, Reva, Manfred and Elwood.

Ronald's joyous spirit was a testament to all around him. As a child, he was a happy baby and earned the nickname "Hap." That nickname followed him all his life. He enriched the lives of all he came in contact with, be that children he led in Scouting to the doctors and nurses who added him in his later years. He will be deeply missed by all who knew and loved him.

A celebration of life will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 10, Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls, with private inurnment to follow at the MAR Cemetery in Rupert. Military honors will take place under the auspices of the Magic Valley Honor Guard and the Idaho National Guard.

Those who wish may share memories and condolences on Ronald's memorial page at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

Parts Manager

My name is Jeff and I have lived in the Magic Valley for almost 25 years. We enjoy many of the outdoor activities the area has to offer including camping and riding ATVs. We have raised our children in the community and continue to believe it is a great place to live. I have worked in Chevrolet parts for over 20 years and have been the Parts Manager at Chevrolet of Twin Falls for the past 8 years.

Chevrolet of Twin Falls is proud to employ over 50 members of the local community. Many of our team members grew up and attended school in the Magic Valley and now have families that are following in those traditions. Several have grown their careers with us and continue to be a valuable part of what makes the Chevrolet of Twin Falls Family a welcoming place to do business.

Health Law Glitches: Will They Be Fatal or Fleeting?

WASHINGTON (AP) • The glitch-ridden rollout of President Barack Obama's health care law has opponents crowding: "Told you so!" and insisting it should be paused, if not scrapped.

But others, including insurance companies, say there's still enough time to fix the online enrollment system before uninsured Americans start getting coverage Jan. 1.

After emergency repairs over the weekend, consumers in different parts of the country Monday continued to report delays on healthcare.gov, as well as problems setting up security questions for their accounts. The administration says the site's crowded electronic "waiting room" is thinning out. Still, officials announced it will be down again for a few hours starting at 1 a.m. Tuesday for more upgrades and fixes.

Despite the confusion, the insurance industry has held off public criticism. Alarmed that only a trickle of customers got through initially, insurers now say enrollments are starting to come in and they expect things to improve.

The last major federal health care launch — the Medicare prescription program in 2006 — also had big startup problems. Government leaders who oversaw it say things could look very different in a couple of months for Obama's law if the administration manages to get a grip on the situation.

"There wasn't enough time for testing, so the dress rehearsal became opening night," said Michael Leavitt, who as President George W. Bush's top health official, was responsible for the Medicare drug plan debut.

"The moment of truth is going to come in the middle of November, when people want to see the real deal," said Leavitt, who currently heads a consulting firm that advises states on the health overhaul. "If they don't have this running smoothly by then, it's going to be a bigger problem than we're seeing today."

The insurance industry is calling for patience. "This is a marathon and not a sprint," Karen Ignagni, head of the trade group America's Health Insurance Plans, said in a statement. "We anticipate enrollments will continue to increase in the days and weeks ahead."

Obama's law — also known as the Affordable Care Act — was designed to provide insurance for people who don't have access to coverage on the job. Middle-class uninsured people can buy a government-subsidized private plan, while the poor and near-poor will be steered to Medicaid in states that agree to expand the safety net program. The online insurance markets were envisioned as the 21st century portal to an overhauled system.

But when the health care markets went live last week, millions of curious Americans overwhelmed federal and state insurance websites. The level of interest could be read as a good sign, since polls just prior to the launch found most uninsured people unaware it was coming. Yet for many, the consumer experience was like a Saturday morning spent twiddling thumbs at the local motor vehicle department.

Some prospective customers got a screen that told them to wait — and nothing happened, for hours. Others started to sign up and got trapped by a recurring glitch when they tried to set up security questions to protect their personal accounts. Some who got through all the way to the end found their sessions had timed out, and they had to start over.

The federal website that serves 36 states wasn't the only problem; several states also had a rough launch. As Republicans opposed to "Obamacare" showed they were willing to shut down the government in an effort to stop it, the administration seemed to be its own worst enemy.

OBITUARIES

Anna Faye O'Donnell

May 10, 1921-Oct. 2, 2013

Anna Faye O'Donnell, 92, died Wednesday, Oct. 2, 2013, at Bridgeview nursing center in Twin Falls.

Anna Faye Rooker was born in Jerome, Idaho, on May 10, 1921, the youngest of five children of James W. and Martha J. Rooker. Her father was a farmer; she grew up on the family farm just a few miles outside of Jerome and then on the Broadford Road farm near Bellevue. She attended elementary school and began high school in Jerome, then transferred to Bellevue High School midway through her freshman year when her family moved to Bellevue. She graduated from Bellevue High School with the Class of 1939.

Shortly after graduating from high school, she married John S. (Jack) O'Donnell. They built a home on Main Street in Bellevue. While her children were young, she remained a homemaker and did not work outside the home. She was active in the Parent Teacher's Association and in community affairs. She was a 4-H leader, an LDS Primary teacher and an active supporter of Bellevue School sport teams. She regularly helped organize and cater the annual Bellevue July Picnics and was key volunteer leader organizing the servers for the Bellevue Labor Day celebrations. In the 1960s, she became a cook and then head cook in the school lunch programs in Bellevue and Hailey. In 1975 shortly after the death of her husband, she became supervisor of all of the Blaine County School lunch programs. She held that position for almost 20 years.

Also in the mid-1960s, she became the Bellevue City Clerk and held that position for more than 30 years, working for several mayors and city councils. In the 1990s, the City Council recognized her many years of service to Bellevue by naming the newly created park in the northeast part of town the Anna Faye O'Donnell Park. For many years prior to that park being built, the basketball court in her front yard was a place of fun for the youth of Bellevue. It gave her great pleasure for young people to have places to play sports and to have her name associated with the park. In the spring of 2008, she was honored by her selection as the Bellevue representative to the Blaine County Historical Society's Heritage Court.

She was a lifelong member of the LDS Church, an affiliation that she inherited from her parents who were devout members of the Church. They took pride in a nugget of family history that as a small girl, her great-grandmother and her family were in the party that came west with Brigham Young on the trip across the plains to settle in Utah. Anna Faye lived in Bellevue from 1936 until 2007, when she moved to assisted living facilities in Twin Falls.

Anna Faye enjoyed a long and happy life, filled with love and caring for her family and friends. She exhibited a strong sense of community pride. Her good works made Bellevue the special place she held in her heart for it. Her quiet will and a strong determination to achieve whatever she determined needed to be done inspired her family and friends.

Once a worthy goal was established, she would never give up until it was successfully completed. She always put others ahead of herself. She was dedicated to her work, but was always willing to help and support her friends and family. She lived by the Golden Rule: "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you."

Anna Faye was predeceased by her husband, her parents, her three brothers, a sister and a grandson. She leaves behind three children, John R. (Violet) O'Donnell of Groton, Mass., James A. (Jean) O'Donnell of Gilbert, Ariz.; and Mary R. Eskridge of Twin Falls, Idaho; seven grandchildren; and 15 great-grandchildren. Anna Faye was a wonderful woman, mother and friend who will be well remembered and missed.

Wood River Chapel will coordinate services scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 17, at the Hailey LDS Church. Burial will follow at Bellevue Cemetery. In lieu of flowers please send a memorial to a charity of your choice in her name.

Friends are invited to leave a condolence, share memories and light a candle at www.woodriverchapel.com.

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

Staff Sgt. Doug Sugden, of the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office, shows an email alert sent to people who sign up to receive updates from the Idaho State Police Sex Offender Registry.

Registry

While labels are helpful, Sugden said, the registry is a tool, not complete information.

“Not everybody on the registry is a predator or a pedophile,” he said. Some are rapists; others might be child pornography collectors.

Shows like “To Catch a Predator,” which show people trying to commit the most heinous kinds of sex crimes, create some misplaced fear about sex offenders, Sugden said.

By the Numbers

The registry lists two types of sex offenders.

Most people are simply categorized as a sex offender. An offender must pay $80 annually, verify his or her address by mail quarterly and have an in-person address check once a year.

Those listed as violent sexual predators pay $20 quarterly, have quarterly in-person address checks and verify their addresses by mail monthly.

Failure to comply with these requirements can lead to a 10-year prison sentence and a $5,000 fine, on top of any earlier sentence for the sex crime.

While deputies handle probation checks with sex offenders, police must be called for any criminal activity, such as drugs, within city limits, city spokesman Joshua Palmer said.

In the past, Twin Falls received a grant to help keep tabs on offenders within the city, but that grant ran out, Palmer said.

Many smaller cities, especially in Idaho, don't have their own designated department to monitor registered offenders, he said.

Bannock County has 255 adult registered offenders and has two full-time and three part-time office employees rotate collecting the offenders' information, that county sheriff's office advises.

Sugden monitors all the offenders on Twin Falls County's registry.

An additional position has been authorized, and the sheriff's office will decide how that person's work will be used, county Commissioner Terry Kramer said.

Sugden said because his office is at the Division of Motor Vehicles, the work will be focused there, with cross-training a possibility. Work at the DMV also includes concealed weapons permits and DMV business.

The Four Ps

Generally, Sugden said, he doesn't like to hear the details of crimes committed by the people he monitors.

“I just care that they register,” Sugden said. “I tell them I don't care what you did or didn't do.

He said he tries to treat each person who registers with respect. That way, they don't mind coming in and updating their information.

When someone convicted of a sex crime is put on probation or parole and moves to Twin Falls County, they go see Sugden.

New registrants must complete the “Four Ps,” Sugden said: paperwork, prints, picture and “pay me.”

Each person must fill out paperwork with information including address, phone number, email, vehicle information, passport status, weight, scars, marks and piercings.

Sugden uses software called Offender Watch to keep track of it all.

With that software, he can see when another county imports a person's information if they've moved.

The software also helps Sugden notify the public about status changes.

“As soon as I hit enter, notifications begin,” he said.

When Sugden started in 2006, 136 people were on the registry.

Now he manages about 226.

A number of things go into the increase, he said, including more people coming forward and more prosecution.

“We just didn't talk about it before,” he said.

People who have been released from prison must register, too, he said.

Increased Internet and electronics use also could contribute to the number of sex criminals being caught.

“These things have been going on for years and years,” Sugden said. “Now they're more publicized. People are more aware.”

Beckley to have the necessary permits or permission from the city by Jan. 1. The city's deadline for RFQs ends Oct. 18.

“This is a quick turnaround,” Rothweiler said. “There are timelines that have been imposed upon this process as well.”

It's not a perfect system, though. When Councilwoman Rebecca Mills Sojka asked what would happen if the city awarded the permit to anyone other than Beckley, city staffers didn't have a clear answer.

“It just puzzles me,” Sojka said.

“It's a puzzle to all of us,” said City Attorney Fritz Wonderlich. “There may not be an event. That is an option.”

Despite the unanswered questions, the council passed the permit application process 5-1. Sojka voted against the resolution, and Mayor Greg Lanting was absent.

Burley Musician Gary Bench Dies at 45

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Gary Robbins Bench loved singing, teaching and composing guitar music, finding humor in everyday life, promoting other people's talent — and talking with everyone who crossed his path.

Bench, 45, of Burley, passed away Sunday after having a stroke. He had been hospitalized for weeks.

“His goal in life was to entertain,” said older brother Dorian Bench.

Gary coordinated the talent at the Cassia County Fair free stage for the past 16 years.

“That was his baby,” said Art Smith, Gary's singing partner.

Dave Horton, of Farmer's Insurance, shared an office wall with Gary in downtown Burley.

“He would practice his singing every day, and I could hear him through the walls,” said Horton. “He was an all-around nice guy.”

Another brother, Jay Bench, said he got Gary started on the guitar by teaching him some blues licks during a visit home from college.

“I didn't touch the guitar again after that semester,” said Jay. “But he took it and ran with it and taught himself to play.”

Gary started working at his parents' business, Nuts & Things, after high school and managed it over the past several years. He also operated a business that organized talent for shows and provided sound systems for events. He coached and promoted new musicians and performed at hundreds of venues in southern Idaho.

Gary was a gifted organizer, a talent that was highlighted through one of his promotion businesses, said sister Zena Rae Bench.

“He gave many young people their first shot on the stage,” said Zena Rae said.

Once when they were children, she said, Gary organized a job for the younger siblings thinning beets.

His organizing complete, he slept in the car while they worked in the fields.

Zena Rae said Gary contributed to many benefits for people in the community, and he loved his singing gigs at the senior centers.

Gary was also an experimental gardener, trying his hand at raising cobs of popcorn, Indian corn and goji berry bushes, she said.

“I'm going to miss his humor,” said brother Adrian Bench. “He had this perspective on things that nobody else has. One Thanksgiving about 10 years ago, he wanted gravy so I gave him gravy — on his green JELL-O — and he never let me forget it.”

“No one can tell jokes like Gary,” said Merijane Bench, Gary's sister-in-law.

“Everything was up for grabs to make up a funny story or write a song about. He saw the humor in everything around him, and that gift always brought joy and a giggle, or hard-core tears from laughing so hard, to everyone he came into contact with. The world needs more people like Gary.”

Bench self-released three CDs of his music. Many of his songs are funny, but some are serious.

“He never married, but he was a romantic and a lot of the songs he wrote in that vein,” said Smith.

Smith said Gary was one of the top sound-system operators in the area but was humble and often “flew under the radar.”

He also gave guitar lessons and taught young performers how to increase their stage confidence.

Often customers at the store could persuade Gary to break into a silly song, Smith said.

But, “He also had a stubborn streak.” Gary stubbornly stuck to playing old country music even though a switch to a more popular genre may have launched a career turn, Smith said.

He was especially fond of children. As the youngest of 10 children, Gary had numerous nieces and nephews whom he loved to tease.

“He spoiled every one of his nieces and nephews,” said Zena Rae.

Zena Rae said Gary communicated well with the old and young.

His niece, Meihwa Tanielle Bench Alvarez, said she remembers sharing music and jokes with Gary until their teeth were dry and their sides hurt from laughter.

“I remember Gary as one of the most fun, sarcastic, and fun-loving people I know. We would be found singing, making jokes and writing songs in the Nuts & Things Store late into the night,” said nephew Tom Bench. “He was my uncle, but we acted more like best friends. Gary loved people. And they loved him back.”

Smith said many people will sorely miss Gary.

“Talk about someone leaving a hole in your life after they've gone.”

Heyburn Man Extradited for Short Murder

BY C. COLT CRANE
Times-News

EDINBURG, Texas • The man accused of the Aug. 2 shooting death of Heyburn resident Craig Glen Short was extradited to Idaho on Monday to face a murder charge.

Christopher Cruz, 21, of Heyburn, was arrested Sept. 24 in Edinburg, Texas following a manhunt.

Cruz fled with his 32-year-old girlfriend, Stephanie Pauline Juarez, following the shooting, police said.

“They both had an extradition hearing in Texas,” said Minidoka County Sheriff Eric Snarr. “Both Cruz and Juarez have waived their extradition and are in the process of being returned to us to face charges.”

Cruz was arrested on one charge of first-degree murder and one charge of attempted first-degree murder. Juarez faces a pair of probation violation charges from Cassia County and Jerome County.

Snarr and the Minidoka County Prosecutor Lance Stevenson on Monday declined to provide further details, including the alleged motive for the killing.

Two other Mini-Cassia residents were arrested in Texas with Cruz and Juarez. Christopher Ray Van Every and Gisela Garcia, both of Heyburn, helped the couple leave the Mini-Cassia area. The four-some traveled more than 1,700 miles to Texas, police said. Van Every and Garcia will face charges in Texas for harboring Cruz and Juarez.

“We do not have charges on them,” said Snarr of Van Every and Garcia.

Computers Stolen from Twin Falls County

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls police are investigating a burglary at a county treatment and recovery clinic.

At first, Twin Falls County commissioners said urine samples, a fingerprint screener and computers were taken this weekend from the building at 239 Third Ave. W. Later Monday, they corrected themselves, saying that only computer equipment was taken.

The theft occurred sometime between Friday and Sunday, Commissioner Leon Mills said.

Police are taking statements and doing interviews, city spokesman Joshua Palmer said Monday afternoon.

There was no sign of forced entry, Commissioner Terry Kramer said.

“There are only locks on the door for that area, no deadbolts,” he said. “We might want to consider adding deadbolts.”

Security cameras in the parking lot and the building may help capture the thief, Kramer said.

Bart Davis, Wife Forgive Son’s Killer

The man who killed Bart and Marion Davis’ son 10 years ago is due to be paroled soon. And they won’t oppose his release.

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • At an April 9 parole hearing with his wife, Marion, seated next to him, state Senate Majority Leader Bart Davis told Idaho’s three parole commissioners that the couple wouldn’t oppose the release of the man who killed their boy, Cameron Wade Davis, 23, at a Boise keg party in March 2003.

Do only your jobs, Davis said. If Vincent Craig Olsen were ready for life outside prison, he would respect their decision.

Although a hearing officer recommended against paroling Olsen so soon, Davis’ words helped tip the balance, clearing the way for the now 32-year-old Olsen to serve the remainder of his 25-year manslaughter sentence beyond prison walls.

Olsen could leave the South Idaho Correctional Institution by next week.

Davis, who agreed to speak to The Associated Press only reluctantly about his testimony that day, said it wasn’t just Vincent Olsen’s future at stake.

Davis and his wife saw in Olsen’s parents, Craig and Lenna Olsen, good people who were suffering, too.

“We saw their hearts ache,” Davis wrote in a statement to the AP. “With time, we prayed for them. With a little more time, we prayed for their son. Our loss is real, but now there is comfort.”

Something else bound the Davis family to the Olsens, too: They also knew what it meant to lose a child. In 1999, their 16-year-old son, Eric, was killed when a makeshift cannon he’d constructed exploded at the family’s Boise home.

Bart Davis said he “does not believe there is a family ... that understands like the Olsen family,” says a transcript of the 15-year Republican lawmaker’s comments from the parole hearing.

Vincent Olsen declined an interview request but sent a statement to the AP.

“It is hard to describe the feelings of regret I have for taking Cameron Davis from their lives,” he wrote. “I owe to them unpayable debts, both for what I did and for the mercy they have shown.”

Early March 14, 2003, Cameron Davis, a computer science student at Boise State University, was at a party house near campus.

Olsen, then a 21-year-old BSU engineering student, arrived after 12:30 a.m.; he’d been drinking, and a .45-caliber revolver was hidden beneath his clothing.

The two young men didn’t know each other but had similar backgrounds: Cameron Davis was a lawyer’s son, and Vincent Olsen’s father was a Boise surgeon. Both were Eagle Scouts and members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Cameron Wade Davis

Both experienced troubles: Davis had several scrapes with the law, including for underage drinking.

In April 2002, Olsen was arrested for resisting arrest and drunken driving; Boise police officers had to break open his car window and pull him out. Friends said he looked for fights.

At the party, Olsen and Davis argued. Davis threw beer on Olsen. Olsen drew his gun, firing two shots.

When police arrived, Olsen had fled. Cameron Davis lay dead.

Hearings such as Olsen’s in April often are charged with emotion, said Olivia Craven, executive director of the Idaho Pardons and Parole Commission.

A partition divides families of victims from the families of convicts.

Craven met with Davis a month before the hearing, not only to tell him of what to expect — it was Olsen’s first chance at release, and Davis’ first parole hearing — but also to gauge his sentiment.

What she remembers most was that Davis, the second-highest-ranking Senate leader, asked for no favors.

Following his release, Vincent Olsen will live with his family in Boise. He must remain free of drugs and alcohol. Any friendships he establishes must have his parole officer’s approval.

In a statement to the AP, Craig and Lenna Olsen acknowledged the Davis’ terrible loss.

“Only people with their generosity of spirit could absorb all that and still be willing to offer a healing hand to our family,” they wrote.

Davis concedes it’s hard to forgive, but he knows it’s possible.

“We learned that if we truly asked God to remove something awful from our hearts, and replace it with peace, forgiveness, and joy, he would,” he wrote. “We can’t fully explain it. We only know it is true.”

University of Idaho Presidential Finalists Schedule Forums in T.F.

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The five finalists to be the next president of the University of Idaho will be in Twin Falls this month to meet with the public.

The finalists are: James Applegate, a consultant for higher education and philanthropy; Donald Birx, chancellor and professor at Pennsylvania State-Erie; Laurie Stenberg-Nichols, provost and vice president for academic affairs at South Dakota State University; Jack Payne, senior vice president for Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Florida; and Chuck Staben, provost and vice president for Academic Affairs at the University of South Dakota.

All five luncheon forums will be at 12:30 p.m. at the Stonehouse Event Center, 330 Fourth Ave. S., in Twin Falls. People are asked to RSVP by noon today to Linda Brandon at lbrandon@uidaho.edu or call 208-736-3603.

Birx will meet with community members Wednesday; Payne, Oct. 16; Applegate, Oct. 23; Staben, Oct. 25; and Nichols, Oct. 30.

All five candidates also have scheduled stops in Moscow, Coeur d’Alene, Idaho Falls and Boise, said Don Morishita, a member of the presidential search committee and superintendent of the Kimberly Research and Extension Center.

“We were able to talk them into making a stop in Twin Falls,” Morishita said. “More than anything, we wanted the candidates to meet the people at the different locations. We just felt it was important for the public to have some input.”

During the hour-long forums, each candidate will say a few words and answer questions from the audience.

Morishita said he will forward feedback from the forums to Emma Atchley, chairwoman of the search committee.

The search for a new president began earlier this year when former President Duane Nellis accepted the top administrative post at Texas Tech University. The state Board of Education will interview the five finalists in late October and hopes to announce the new UI president in November.

Motor Home Burns in Filer

The owners did not live in the motor home and hadn’t used it in a while, he said.

Firefighters cleared the scene at about 11:30 p.m., he said.

Monday, firefighters were still investigating the cause of the fire.

The Filer Fire Department was called at about 8:30 p.m. to 3842 North 2381 East, near the junction of U.S. Highway 93 and U.S. Highway 30.

No one was in the motor home when the fire started and no one was injured, said Filer Fire Chief Bud Compher.

Motorist Runs Into Crowd of Pedestrians near Boise Church

BOISE (AP) • Police are investigating a motorist who crashed into a crowd of pedestrians who had just left a funeral at a Boise church.

Authorities say nine people, including a 5-year-old child, have been taken to the hospital for injuries.

The collision occurred Monday afternoon on the city’s west side.

Boise Police Spokeswoman Lynn Hightower said the motorist was parked next to the sidewalk before he unintentionally accelerated into the crowd gathered outside a Mormon church.

Police have not identified the driver, who was not hurt. But a female passenger in the vehicle was among those taken to the hospital for medical care.

T.F. County Commission Removes Coroner’s Fees

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls County is no longer the only Idaho county to charge for coroner’s services. County commissioners unanimously voted Monday to remove the coroner services fee. The contentious $40 fee was approved by the 2004 county commission to help cover the coroner department’s expenses. While the fee is common nationwide, Twin Falls was the first and only county in Idaho to begin charging for responding to a scene of death and signing off on a cremation certificate. But after eight years, the public has never fully embraced the fee, said Commissioner Terry Kramer. Many cries of outrage over the fee fell on current Coroner Dennis Chambers. While it was never heavily enforced, Chambers sent a letter to the commission earlier this year asking to abandon the fee. When Chambers took over as coroner in 2002, the commission asked him to give a presentation on what fees the department could adopt to help bring in revenue. While he expressed his dislike of the service fee in 2004, the commission went ahead and approved it anyway. “I never liked the fee,” Chambers said. “But when it was approved, it was now part of my job, I had to send the bill.” Chambers said it wasn’t until this year that he learned removing the bill wouldn’t negatively affect his department’s budget. “I think it helped during the lean times,” he said. “But removing it will only have a minimal impact on the budget so I said it’s time to get rid of it.” The fee brought in about $12,00 to $14,000 a year, said County Clerk Kristina Glascock. The coroner department budget is just shy of $249,500. Chambers is up for reelection next year. While the removal of the fees could come across as a political move, Chambers said that wasn’t his intention. “Do I hide in my office and keep a fee I don’t like because I don’t want to appear like I’m making a grab for the election?” Chambers asked. “No. This is the time to address this.” Undertakers viewed the fee as an unnecessary burden for grieving families already facing a multitude of costs when a loved one dies, said Mike Parke, owner of Parke’s Magic Valley Funeral Homes. Parke, who spoke out against the levy in 2004, was elated when the Times-News told him the fee’s demise. “It would be like an officer of the law showing up to your house for an investigation and then handing you a bill,” Parke said. “I’m happy to see it go away.”

Idaho Mine Claim Owners Sue over Forest Access

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • Several Idaho mining claim owners sued the federal government late last week, the latest front in an effort by groups across the West that want to expand motorized backcountry access using a Civil War-era law. The lawsuit, filed Friday in U.S. District Court in Boise, argues the U.S. Forest Service illegally restricted use of four roads in Idaho County that make up the so-called “Buckhorn Creek Trail System.” The claim is similar to a lawsuit in Utah that was resolved earlier this year when the federal government agreed to open three roads, allowing all-terrain vehicles into that state’s western desert. In the Idaho County case, owners of historic mining claims accessed by roads extending deep into the Nez Perce National Forest are demanding a judge affirm the public’s right to use the roads. They contend Forest Service officials outstripped their authority since at least 2001 by barring the people from accessing roads used for more than a century, not only to reach mining claims, but also to hunt, fish, camp and sightsee. “I don’t see this as a part of a movement, other than people are kind of waking up and figuring out their rights are being taken away by a federal government that’s being oppressive,” said Wesley Hoyt, a Clearwater, Idaho-based attorney for the group calls itself Open Roads 4 Idaho, on Monday. “We’re going to do a quiet title action, so we can determine whether or not the Forest Service has the authority to restrict access.” A phone call on Monday to Nez Perce-Clearwater National Forests Supervisor Rick Brazell, named as a defendant in the lawsuit, wasn’t immediately returned. Two weeks ago, Open Roads 4 Idaho’s 13 members convinced Idaho County commissioners to be a part of the lawsuit, said Commissioner Skip Brandt. “Everybody agreed the only way the Forest Service can actually recognize this claim” is to ask a judge to validate it, Brandt said. The miners are relying on an 1866 law, known as R.S. 2477, which allows states or localities to claim ownership over historic routes crossing public lands. The law was repealed in 1976, though it left in place protection for existing roads. The problem: Many of those roads, including in Idaho County and across much of the West, were never recorded on official documents. As a consequence, it’s led to protracted disputes in recent years about just which dirt paths crisscrossing the region’s remote hinterlands actually qualify for local control. For instance, in Utah, there are more than two dozen active lawsuits claiming more than 14,000 roadways or paths are protected under R.S. 2477.

TWIN FALLS • Rebecca Behrens and Mehli Marcellus scored once, while Madeline Watkins and Lindsey Williams each scored twice as the Bruins capped regular season play in the Great Basin Conference with a shutout win, finishing 9-1-0 in conference play. Head coach Katie Kauffman said her girls are nearly healthy heading into the conference playoffs, which the No.1 seeded Bruins begin Saturday at Sunway Soccer Complex after resting during a first-round bye. Goalkeeper Allison Simmons (concussion) is expected back for the playoffs. Twin Falls faces Highland today in a non-conference playoff warm-up.

BURLEY 3, JEROME 2

JEROME • Kestle Masoner scored twice, while Tally McCombs added a third for the Bobcats, sending them to a win and ensuing coin-flip for homefield advantage in the opening round of the Great Basin Conference by virtue of a regular season tie for 4th place in the conference (both 3-9-2). Burley also won the coin toss, giving them the home-field in Thursday's opening round playoff rematch against the Tigers. Ashley Cox and Gaby Cervantes scored for Jerome. The winner of the first-round game will face Twin Falls on Saturday.

RIVERHAWKS
CLAIM GBC TITLE

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Monday afternoon featured two rivals vying for the league championship, in front of a spirited and large crowd witnessing a match that was in the balance until the dying minutes. In other words, everything a soccer “derby” should be. In the end, Canyon Ridge cemented its season-long status as the team to beat in the Great Basin Conference boys soccer race, beating Twin Falls 3-1 on the strength of two goals from Hadir Saad. The Riverhawks claimed the regular-season conference championship and with it the top seed for the 4A District IV Tournament, which begins Thursday. Canyon Ridge and Twin Falls both earned first-round byes before Monday’s matching, making the head-to-head matchup as much a celebration of the city’s soccer resurgence as it was a clash for the conference title. “We don’t normally play in front of so many people, and that was really great,” said Canyon Ridge senior Oscar DeLaTorre, who opened the scoring with a curling 20-yard free kick 13 minutes in. “Yeah, a lot of them were for the other team, but I love hearing that many people cheering, shouting your name.” Saad doubled Canyon Ridge’s lead four minutes after DeLaTorre’s strike, when Saad took an early cross from Christian Muniz and smashed a first-time volley into the far corner of the goal. But Twin Falls got a goal back near halftime when Canyon Ridge goalkeeper Josh Clark failed to collect a cross, and Alexander Escobedo’s pressure forced Jordan Shighihara to head the ball into his own net. That set up the proverbial grandstand finish, but Saad put paid to that with six minutes remaining when he stabbed home a rebound attempt to ensure the west side of Twin Falls would claim the victory and the league. “We just never give up and we keep fighting,” said Saad. “We know that the way we play works against any team, and we just stay together. It wasn’t anything I did, it was all about what the team did.” Canyon Ridge is in action on Saturday back at Sunway Soccer Complex for the second round of the district tournament, while Twin Falls hosts Highland at Bruin Stadium on Tuesday for its final regular-season game. Both teams are understandably flying high into this district tournament more than any other in years past, when they were perennially expected to be among the first teams eliminated. Now they both have aims on the state tournament. “Going from last place to second place in the conference is a great achievement for us,” said Twin Falls coach J.J. Stagge. “I thought 3-1 was harsh (on the balance of play). We had a couple of goals that we shouldn’t have let in. We had 10 great minutes to start the first half and 10 great minutes to end the first half, and it was the 20 in between that killed us.” Stagge paid special tribute to central defender David Geske, who has played forward this season but reverted to his past position out of necessity for this match and squashed more than a handful of promising Riverhawk forays.

Twin Falls High School sophomore Morgan Winsryg Olson (9) fights with Canyon Ridge's Kylie Greenawald (14) during their game Monday in Twin Falls.

MONDAY PRESSER

Season Comes to an End for Two Key Boise State Players

News released three days after Utah State loses star quarterback for remainder of year.

NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

BOISE • Friday night’s match-up in Logan, Utah, between Boise State and the Aggies will likely decide the winner of the Mountain West Conference’s Mountain Division, and thus a berth in the inaugural conference championship game in December. The circled-date contest lost much of its luster over the weekend. Utah State quarterback Chuckie Keeton tore his anterior cruciate ligament in the team’s loss to BYU and will miss the rest of the year, while Broncos head coach Chris Petersen informed the media on Monday that freshman running back Aaron Baltazar (a.c.i) and special teams standout Ebo Makinde (torn pectoral) will join him in street clothes on the opposite sideline this weekend. Baltazar started the game against Southern Miss after sophomore Jay Ajayi fumbled for the third time in two weeks in the loss to Fresno State. The freshman left early in the first half and did not return. After the game, Petersen said Baltazar was “dinged.”

It turns out it was much more than that. Sophomore Jack Fields moves up to No. 2 on the depth chart while junior transfer Derrick Thomas slides up to three. “We’ve got some guys there,” Petersen said. “We’ve been saying from day one that you need more than one or two guys at that position, so we have a few guys that we feel like will continue to progress and the next guy, whether its Derrick Thomas, (Fields), will get more repetitions and that’s good.” Baltazar’s impressive freshman campaign ends with him averaging 4.7 yards per carry. The freshman was a standout during fall camp and rose to the second spot on the depth chart prior to the season opening loss to Washington. Baltazar had 92 yards rushing and two touchdowns against Fresno State after Ajayi’s fumble. While Baltazar was a key rotational player, senior safety Ebo Makinde was likely more important to his unit – special teams. One of college football’s fastest players, Makinde played four games and finished with six special teams tackles. He played on multiple special teams units, and his speed was key in influencing punt and kick returns. “He doesn’t get any more football,” Petersen said.

“We’re going to play our best guys (on special teams) and Ebo was definitely one of those guys for sure. He had been doing a really good job and I think our team and our coaches know how important that guy was in the role he was in. A lot of times from the outside you don’t see how important that is but he was doing a very nice job.” Curse of Losing Chuckie Prior to Keeton’ season ending-injury, the Aggies were down just 10-7 to BYU, and more importantly, seemed to be in total control of the Mountain Division. Utah State ended up losing 31-14 to the Cougars with back-up Craig Harrison at quarterback, and are now one touchdown underdogs to Boise State, a team they likely would have been favored by at least a touchdown had Keeton stayed healthy. Aggies head coach Matt Wells said the set-up for Friday’s game hasn’t changed “at all” because of the injury. “If you would have told me at the beginning of the season that we would have been 3-3 going into Boise State I would have laughed at you and I wouldn’t consider you an Aggie fan, but it happens,” Harris said. “Our goal is to win the Mountain West and we’re 2-0 and in a great position to do that.”

Broncos
 Biggest NFL
 Favotire in Vegas Books

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAS VEGAS (AP) • It looked like a mismatch even before Peyton Manning hooked up for his first touchdown pass to Wes Welker and the rest of the NFL found out just how bad the Jacksonville Jaguars really are.
 But now it's official. The Denver Broncos are the biggest favorite ever in an NFL game in this gambling city, a whopping four-touchdown pick Sunday at home against the hapless Jaguars.
 Sports books in and around Las Vegas make Manning and the Broncos a 28-point favorite over Jacksonville, unheard of in an industry where half-point swings can be huge and most teams are rated within a few points of each other. But even the big line hasn't stopped people from betting money on the Broncos, even after they didn't cover the spread in Sunday's 51-48 win over the Dallas Cowboys.
 "It didn't take people long to jump on the Broncos bandwagon, which is at its capacity now," said Jay Kornegay, who runs the sports book at the LVH hotel. "And we expect that to continue."
 Though the city's legal sports books don't keep historical records on such things — and the NFL refuses to even acknowledge that betting lines exist — those in the industry say the lopsided point spread surpasses the 26-point margin for favored Pittsburgh against Tampa Bay in 1976 when the Buccaneers were an expansion franchise and the Steelers got within a game of the Super Bowl.
 More recently, the biggest favorite was New England as a 24-point pick over Philadelphia in 2007, the year the Patriots made it through the regular season undefeated.
 "You have a team that can't seem to get out of their own way against a team that put up 51 points on Sunday," said Jimmy Vaccaro, vice president of sports marketing at the South Point hotel. "Everything feeds into this. It's the best versus the worst."

NFL MONDAY NIGHT

Smith, Folk Lead New York Jets
 Past Atlanta Falcons in 30-28 Win

ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Jets safety Josh Bush hits Atlanta Falcons wide receiver Roddy White, forcing a fumble that was recovered by Falcons' Julio Jones during the first half of an NFL game Monday in Atlanta.

Jets' rookie quarterback recovers to complete three touchdown passes after making a number of early mistakes.

ATLANTA (AP) • After plenty of mistakes in his first four games, Geno Smith suddenly looked like a wily ol' veteran for the New York Jets.
 The rookie quarterback threw three touchdown passes, didn't turn the ball over at all and guided the Jets on a clutch drive that set up Nick Folk's winning field goal on the final play, giving New York a 30-28 victory over the struggling Atlanta Falcons on Monday night.
 After the Falcons went ahead on the first play after the two-minute warning, Smith calmly completed four straight passes and also broke off an 8-yard run that set up Folk's 43-yard field goal as time expired.

 The Jets (3-2) have been waiting for this sort of performance from Smith, who came into the game leading the NFL with 11 turnovers, including eight interceptions. The previous week, he was picked off twice and lost two fumbles in a 38-13 rout by the Tennessee Titans.
 But this was a different Geno. He completed 16 of 20 passes for 199 yards, threw almost as many touchdown passes as he had in the first four games (four), and zealously protected the ball.
 "My confidence is always sky-high," Smith said. "Nothing can bring me down. I'm just going to continue to work. And we're putting this one behind us. We're getting on that bus, well enjoy it for a little bit, then get back to work."

 Smith put in extra work at practice to cut down on turnovers, and it sure paid off.
 "It's a mindset," he said. "I made it my duty to come out here and not put the ball on the ground and not put my team in jeopardy. It came down to a last-second drive against a tough Atlanta team on the road. We stood up tonight. It just speaks volume to this team's character."
 The Falcons rallied from a 27-14 deficit in the fourth quarter, going ahead on Matt Ryan's 3-yard touchdown pass to Levine Toilolo with 1:54 remaining.

 Jacquizz Rodgers scored on a pair of touchdown runs, and Ryan also threw a scoring pass to Jason Snelling.
 But the Falcons (1-4) are now mired in their longest losing streak since 2007. Considered a Super Bowl contender at the beginning of the season, they head into a bye week mired in a three-game skid.
 "He's a rookie," Atlanta safety William Moore said, "and we make him look like a 10-year veteran."
 The Jets led 17-7 after a goal-line stand on the final play of the first half, which turned out to be awful big at the end of the game.

Atlanta had two cracks at the end zone on fourth-and-goal from the 1. The first attempt resulted in an incomplete pass, but the Jets were called for pass interference when they grabbed Gonzalez as he tried to get open.
 The Falcons again passed on a chip-shot field goal, and curiously decided to hand it to their smallest back — Rodgers is just 5-foot-6 and 196 pounds — for a power run behind the Falcons' shaky offensive line. Rodgers was swallowed up by the New York line, sending the Jets racing off the field in celebration while the Falcons staggered to their locker room to a round of boos from the Georgia Dome crowd.
 But Rodgers and the Falcons rallied in the second half.

Wacha,
 Cardinals edge Pirates 2-1 to knot NLDS

PITTSBURGH • Rookie Michael Wacha took a no-hit bid into the eighth inning and the St. Louis Cardinals showed off their October poise, edging the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1 Monday and setting up a winner-take-all Game 5 in the NL division series.
 The Cardinals improved to 7-1 over the last three years when facing elimination in the postseason.
 Pedro Alvarez hit his third home run of the series, connecting with one out in the eighth for Pittsburgh's only hit in Game 4.
 Wacha and the St. Louis bullpen made Matt Holliday's two-run homer stand up. Trevor Rosenthal worked around a two-out walk in the ninth, retiring Andrew McCutchen on a popup for his first postseason save.
 Game 5 will be Wednesday in St. Louis, with ace Adam Wainwright starting for the Cardinals. The Pirates had not announced their starter.

A's top Tigers 6-3
 for 2-1 AL
 division series
 lead

DETROIT • Brandon Moss, Josh Reddick and Seth Smith homered for the Oakland Athletics, who chased Anibal Sanchez in the fifth inning and beat the Detroit Tigers 6-3 on Monday for a 2-1 lead in their AL division series.
 Moss broke a 3-all tie in the fifth with a solo shot, and Smith's two-run drive later in the inning ended Sanchez's day. It was an impressive offensive show after the teams split two tense, low-scoring games in Oakland.
 Oakland can close out the series Tuesday.
 Sanchez, the American League's ERA leader, allowed six runs — five earned — and eight hits in 4 1-3 innings. Jarrod Parker gave up three runs in five innings for Oakland, and the Tigers couldn't rally against the bullpen.

Paint Me Pink Color Run

Valley High School seniors Marlee Musmann and Kim Wilbanks are staging a color run/walk for their senior project. The race is Oct. 12 at Hazelton Park, with registration at 9 a.m.

Cartisser said outside hitter Jordan Burgon played well.

"She was a spark-plug for us," Cartisser said. "Other than that we were subbing people in and out and looking for someone who could light a fire for us."

Cartisser was frustrated that her team didn't take advantage of the chance to beat a top team in the nation on the road after a win against Snow College.

"What I am most disappointed is we take a giant step forward and we are just okay with that," Cartisser said. "I would like to see us try to take more. We take one step and try to breath instead of looking to take another step. We aren't moving backward we just need to keep moving forward and perform like CSI volleyball every time we have a match. I'm looking for consistency."

Canyon Ridge Zombie Run

The inaugural Canyon Ridge Zombie Run 5K race will be held Oct. 12 at Rock Creek Park. Registration is at 9 a.m. with the race at 10 a.m. The race features four zombie chase zones. Cost is $30 and includes a T-shirt.

Money You Forgot?
75 Owners of Unclaimed Property in South-central Idaho

Many Idahoans’ names, for one reason or another, end up on the state’s unclaimed property list.

People get divorced, get remarried or move out of state. And sometimes they don’t leave the bank a forwarding address.

“Unclaimed property” usually doesn’t refer to land or a house. Rather, it’s money — checking accounts, savings accounts, stock dividends, mutual funds and utility refunds — or items stored in a safety deposit box. At times coins, gems, jewelry and stamps are reported unclaimed by hospitals, hotels and financial institutions.

Businesses turn over those assets to the state, which tries to reunite the stuff with its owner — or its heirs.

The Idaho Treasurer’s Office provided this sampling of 75 people who own unclaimed property valued at more than $100. Their last known addresses are in south-central Idaho.

But many other people are on the list, too. Be proactive by searching your own name at sto.idaho.gov. You might be surprised by what you find.

Valiant Firearms & Ammo
Now Runs ‘The Gun Room’

BY JOE CADOTTE

jcadotte@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • This isn’t where you go to buy your father’s old .30-30.

Mike and Kayla Cuellar have been running Valiant Firearms & Ammunition for more than five years, but until last week they only sold firearms as special orders for existing customers. Now they run “The Gun Room,” a portion of their shop dedicated to high-end, Idaho-made rifles and handguns.

“We’re not going to turn anyone away, but our focus is definitely on people who want to put money into a firearm that’s going to be a quality weapon they can use, whether it’s for sport, training for defensive, a what-if zombie (scenario) or whatever,” said Kayla Cuellar.

The factory in Twin Falls is one of the only gun stores in Idaho that manufactures ammo, sells weapons and offers advanced defensive firearms training under one roof, said Mike Cuellar.

Valiant supplies ammunition to retailers and law enforcement agencies throughout the northwest, including 15 police departments in southern Idaho. Branching out to individual sales is part of the Cuellar’s plan to diversify their business, an important characteristic in an industry where the market is determined by suppliers, politics and crime.

“Our next step is careful, calculated growth,” Kayla Cuellar said. “This is our biggest year ever. People buy in bulk and large quantity. We don’t like to have the big spikes in purchasing. We’d rather have a normal market where we can have steady growth.”

It’s the couple’s long-term goal to supply high-quality batches of weapons and ammo nationwide, said Mike Cuellar.

“We have product stocked in here that you will not find anywhere else in the Magic Valley, higher end gun parts,” he said. “Things that are just not readily available for people in the community. For example, if people want to buy a gas block for an AR-15, they’re going to have to get online and purchase, that’s the type of item I want here.”

Mike Cuellar likens his vision to Black Hills Ammunition, which he said focuses on smaller batches of quality product.

“They started in their garage with a hand press and have grown into something big, but they are nowhere as big as the big manufacturers that deal in quantity and cheap ammunition. I don’t want to go there. I much rather go the Black Hills route and stay relatively small and produce very high quality product because there’s a market for that.”

Although there is no law restricting the amount of ammo the Cuellar’s can sell, Mike Cuellar said, they have to be vigilant to protect themselves and their communities.

“There’s no law that says I have to, but I still feel a responsibility as a business owner and citizen to not just pass stuff on because it is a sale,” he said. “I’m playing close attention to customers, who they are and what they’re doing with (my products).”

There have been a handful of cases over the years that the couple said they had to deny customers ammunition.

“One individual came in and had ordered a large quantity of stuff,” he said. “Something didn’t feel right so I sent him on his way. Several weeks later there was a major issue with the gentleman and I got a call from a family member that asked us not to sell him anything.”

The new Gun Room will specialize in tactical rifles, parts, accessories and 1911 handguns manufactured by Intacto Arms in Boise.

While their firearms are intended for intermediate to advanced shooters, Valiant’s ammo and training courses run the gamut.

Their “high precision,” ammo includes “all of the common stuff,” said Mike Cuellar. Bulk amounts of ammunition can be purchased in batches of 500 to 10,000, including 5.56 mm, .308, .40 S&W, .38 Special, .357 Magnum and 9 mm.

The couple also teaches beginner to advanced firearms courses, pretty much everything besides hunter safety training, Kayla Cuellar said.

St. Luke's Mental Health Clinic Open in Hailey

HAILEY • St. Luke's Clinic - Mental Health Services opened today in Hailey, said Jenny King, of St. Luke's Wood River, in an email to the Times-News. An open house will be from 4 to 6 p.m. Friday at 1450 Aviation Drive, Suite 202.

When the Department of Health and Welfare closed its offices in Bellevue two years ago, there was concern that the reduced mental health services would have a dramatic impact on health in the Wood River Valley, she said.

The new clinic will provide mental health services through a full-time psychiatrist, Dr. Tim J. Stoddard, and licensed clinical social worker Gay Miremont, LCSW. The goal is to offer short-term, solution-focused treatment in conjunction with primary care providers.

"Investments in the treatment of underlying mental health issues, particularly for those with limited or no resources, is crucial to the health of our community," said Cody Langbehn, CEO of St. Luke's Wood River. "We are pleased to offer these much-needed services and welcome Dr. Stoddard to our community."

CSI Offers Industrial Maintenance Technology Program

TWIN FALLS • Registration is open for a non-credit Industrial Maintenance Technology program, also known as Millwright Training, at the College of Southern Idaho, said Doug Maughan, CSI public relations director.

The fast-track course will run from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays, Jan. 6 through Dec. 19, 2014, at the CSI Wind Energy Building, 496 Madrona St. in Twin Falls.

Students who earn their certification will satisfy entry requirements for the food processing, manufacturing and mining industries, Maughan said. Students will receive foundational skills in blueprint reading, problem-solving, rigging, vibration analysis, installation and maintenance of mechanical equipment; basic welding, hydraulic and pneumatic systems; mechanical drives, OSHA safety and CPR; industrial tools, equipment, electronics, repair, fabrication, shaft alignment and preventive maintenance.

Interested people should inquire as soon as possible because class space is limited. The course costs $1,000 for each of the three sessions, spring, summer and fall. Fees can be paid per session. The textbooks cost about $300. For more information, contact Gary Dewey at 208-732-6367 or 208-421-2555. Students may register at workforce.csi.edu

Magic Valley Advertising Federation Offers Social Media Seminar

TWIN FALLS • The Magic Valley Advertising Federation is offering lessons on how to maximize the benefits of social media for your business, said Donna Cleland, federation board member, in an email to the Times-News.

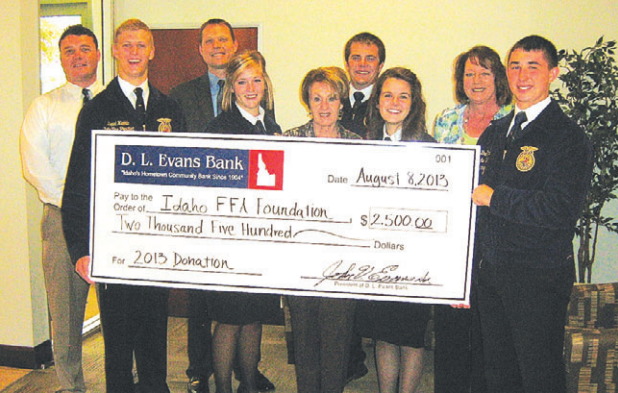

The seminar will be at 11:30 a.m. Thursday at the Shilo Inn in Twin Falls. The cost is $10 for federation members and $25 for non-members.

Reservations are requested by the end of today.

Guest speaker Melissa Cleland of Southwest Idaho Consulting will share "The Eight Best Ways to Use Social Media."

"You'll learn history, facts and actual examples of simple things that you can use to get your organization noticed on social media platforms," Donna Cleland said. "You'll learn how to measure your return on investment, negative/positive mentions and even retail store traffic."

Cancellations must be 24 hours in advance or you will be invoiced. Please call Cleland at 208-308-0830 to RSVP or email mvadfed@gmail.com

D.L. Evans Bank Donates $2,500 to Idaho Future Farmers of America Foundation

TWIN FALLS • D.L. Evans Bank in Twin Falls donated $2,500 to the Idaho Future Farmers of America (FFA) Foundation last week, said Zehireta Avdic, bank marketing officer.

"This donation will help fund career development and leadership programs for Idaho FFA members statewide," Avdic said. "FFA is a national organization preparing youth for leadership and careers in science, business and technology of agriculture."

FFA has been an integral part of agriculture programs in Idaho high schools since 1929, she said.

Twin Falls Welding Distributor Supports Coats for Kids Fundraiser

TWIN FALLS • Airgas, a welding distributor in Twin Falls, donated $920 to the Burley Fire Department Friday for its kids' fundraisers, said Airgas Branch Manager Chad Wilkinson in an email to the Times-News.

Airgas raffled an ESAB Welder and donated ticket sales to the fundraiser, Wilkinson said.

"Myself and Airgas would like to thank everyone that bought raffle tickets and helped us raise money for this great cause," he said. "I would also like to thank the Burley Fire Department, Local 3308, and the Burley Fire Department volunteers for taking on and leading this great cause. I look forward to making this an annual event and continue to grow this every year. Myself and Airgas are very proud to help out the community we live in."

Clear Springs Foods Invests in Business Plus

BUHL • Larry Cope, president and CEO of Clear Springs Foods, and Cally Grindstaff, vice president, presented a check to Business Plus last month in support of the local nonprofit's 2013-2015 campaign, said Rebecca Wildman, Business Plus director.

Clear Springs Foods is a private, employee-owned company with more than 360 employees and a model of total vertical integration, Wildman said. The organization is dedicated to high-quality "from egg to market" transitions, with attention to water quality, sustainability, fish feed manufacturing, state-of-the-art research, product development, distribution, sales and marketing, she said.

Clear Springs Foods has been a long-time supporter of Business Plus in its mission to support regional economic development, job creation and the efforts of the Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization.

FAA Brings Back Some Workers as Shutdown Drags On

BY JOAN LOWY

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Federal Aviation Administration officials say 800 furloughed employees, including some safety inspectors, are being asked to return to work this week despite no end in sight to the partial government shutdown.

The recalled workers include about 600 inspectors and other safety employees in the agency's Flight Standards office. The Professional Aviation Safety Specialists union says that's less than a quarter of all furloughed Flight Standards inspectors. The inspectors check to see whether airlines are maintaining their planes according to FAA rules, among other duties.

Also being recalled are 200 engineers, inspectors and safety staff who approve new plane designs and equipment and register new planes. Manufacturers of small planes and business jets say the shutdown threatens to halt $1.38 billion in near-term deliveries of new planes.

Social Security Judge Accused of Disability Scheme

BY STEPHEN OHLEMACHER

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • A retired Social Security judge in West Virginia collaborated with a lawyer to improperly award disability benefits to hundreds of applicants, according to a report released Monday by congressional investigators.

The report accuses retired administrative law judge David B. Daugherty of scheming with lawyer Eric C. Conn to approve more than 1,800 cases from 2006 to 2010.

"By 2011, Mr. Conn and Judge Daugherty had collaborated on a scheme that enabled the judge to approve, in assembly-line fashion, hundreds of clients for disability benefits using manufactured medical evidence," said the report by the staff of the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee.

"The report describes how one lawyer, several judges and a group of doctors took advantage of the situation and exploited the program for their own personal benefit," Sen. Tom Coburn, R-Okla., said at a committee hearing Monday. "Together, they moved hundreds of claimants onto the disability rolls based on manufactured medical evidence and boilerplate decisions. As a result they saw millions of dollars flow their way, promotions at work and had bad behavior ignored."

Conn runs a law firm specializing in disability cases in Stanville, Ky., near the West Virginia border. Daugherty, who was a judge based in Huntington, W.Va., retired in 2011 after questions were raised about his relationship with Conn, the report said.

Conn appeared at Monday's Senate hearing but declined to answer senators' questions, asserting his constitutional right against self-incrimination. Daugherty also attended the hearing but left before he was called to testify, said Sen. Tom Carper, D-Del., chairman of the committee.

Carper said Daugherty had been subpoenaed to testify. Carper said he would consult with other senators before deciding how to respond to Daugherty leaving.

Two doctors who did work for Conn's clients told the committee that they are honest doctors with nothing to hide, though one doctor, Srinivas M. Amisetty, said it was a mistake for him to sign medical forms that Conn's office had filled out for him.

A. Bradley Adkins, a psychologist in Pikeville, Ky., said he, too, signed forms filled out by Conn's office.

A third doctor, David P. Herr of West Union, Ohio, declined to answer senators' questions, invoking his constitutional right against self-incrimination.

According to the report, the Social Security Administration paid Conn's firm more than $4.5 million in attorney fees from cases heard by Daugherty from 2006 to 2010. In 2010, Conn was the third highest-paid disability lawyer in the country, the report said.

Investigators reviewed Daugherty's bank records and found $96,000 in unexplained cash deposits, the report said.

"From 2003 to 2011, Judge Daugherty's bank records contain regularly occurring cash deposits totaling $69,800, the source of which is unexplained in the judge's financial disclosure forms," the report said. "From 2007 to 2011, his daughter's bank records list similar cash deposits totaling another $26,200. When asked about the $96,000 in cash deposits, Judge Daugherty refused to explain their origin or the source of the funds."

Fictional Anchor Ron Burgundy Pitches for Chrysler

BY TOM KRISHER

AP Auto Writer

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. • When you've got the smallest marketing budget of the Detroit Three automakers, you have to take risks to get your TV spots noticed.

That's why Olivier Francois, Chrysler's marketing chief, gambles a lot. He's following successful ads featuring rapper Eminem and movie star Clint Eastwood with a pitch from a fictitious character — egotistical airhead television anchorman Ron Burgundy from the 2004 movie "Anchorman: The Legend of Ron Burgundy."

And this time, Francois got the talent to pitch a refurbished version of the Dodge Durango SUV for free. Paramount Pictures, he said,

ASSOCIATED PRESS

This undated photo provided by Chrysler shows Will Farrell as the 'Anchorman' character Ron Burgundy as part of the new 2014 Dodge Durango advertisement.

bartered work on the commercials by Will Farrell, who plays Burgundy, in exchange for the promotion in the ads of an "Anchorman" sequel that is due out in December.

"We can't compete on the money," said Francois, a Frenchman behind the gritty 2011 Super Bowl image ad for Chrysler with Eminem in his hometown of Detroit, and the follow-up spot featuring Eastwood talking about America making a comeback.

Chrysler is by far the smallest of the Detroit car companies and has the lowest advertising budget. Last year, it spent $1.9 billion in the U.S., about 40 percent less than rival General Motors' $3.1 billion, and almost 20 percent below Ford Motor Co.'s $2.3 billion. GM was the second-largest advertiser in the nation, while Ford ranked sixth and Chrysler No. 11, according to the trade publication Advertising Age, which uses figures from Kantar Media to estimate spending and rank the top 100 advertisers.

So in order for Chrysler to compete, it has been creative to multiply the impact of its ads, Francois said at an event Monday at Chrysler's headquarters held to formally unveil the ads.

Farrell, Francois said, was given a free hand to write and produce the ads. Initially he was supposed to make three-to-six television commercials, but ended up with 70, all featuring Farrell in a 1970s burgundy suit. Most of the ads talk about the SUV's gas mileage, power and infotainment technology.

Some are funny, such as when Farrell, playing an incredulous Burgundy, talks back to the navigation system, or when he thinks "mpg" is a word instead of an abbreviation for miles per gallon.

Some of the ads even have sexual innuendo, but those aren't scheduled to make television or the Chrysler Internet sites.

Targets of US Raids Plot Terrorism in Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) • U.S. interrogators headed to an American warship in the Mediterranean to question a suspected Libyan al-Qaida operative linked to the bombings of U.S. embassies in Africa, as new details emerged Monday about plots planned by a Kenyan militant who escaped a U.S. raid in Somalia.

The two operations, thousands of miles apart in Africa and approved by President Barack Obama, signaled an American readiness to go after militants in nations where authorities are unable to do so, even years later.

The suspect captured in Tripoli is under U.S. federal indictment but was being held in military custody aboard the USS San Antonio in international waters — detained under the laws of war as an enemy combatant.

A computer expert known as Abu Anas al-Libi, he is accused of using an early-generation Apple computer to assemble surveillance photographs in Nairobi ahead of the deadly 1998 bombing of the U.S. Embassy, according to a former U.S. law enforcement official.

The surveillance information was presented to Osama bin Laden, who approved the bombing, said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity because he wasn't authorized to speak about the case.

Meanwhile, a Kenyan intelligence report asserted the country had foiled attacks plotted by Abdulkadir Mohamed Abdulkadir, the Kenyan militant who eluded capture by a team of U.S. Navy SEALs in a pre-dawn raid in Somalia on Saturday. Also known as Ikrima, he was identified as the lead planner of a plot by the al-Qaida-linked al-Shabab militant group targeting Kenya's parliament building and the United Nations office in Nairobi in 2011 and 2012.

The report by Kenya's National Intelligence Service, which was leaked to The Associated Press and other media in the wake of the Sept. 21 terror attack on Nairobi's Westgate Mall that killed more than 60 people, lists Samantha Lewthwaite — a Briton dubbed the "White Widow" — as one of several "key actors" in the plot, which also targeted Kenyan military installations and top Kenyan political and security officials.

Lewthwaite, who was married to one of the suicide bombers in the 2005 attack on London's transit system, escaped capture when she produced a fraudulently obtained South African passport in another person's name. Late last month, Interpol, acting on a request from Kenya, issued an arrest warrant for Lewthwaite.

The report makes no mention of Abdulkadir in relation to the Nairobi mall attack, though in an entry dated exactly one year before the start of the four-day siege, it said al-Shabab operatives in Nairobi were planning to mount "suicide attacks on an undisclosed date, targeting Westgate Mall and Holy Family Basilica."

Frank Cilluffo, director of George Washington University's Homeland Security Policy Institute, said the Navy SEALs operation in Somalia underscores the threat posed by the convergence of insurgent groups, particularly al-Shabab and the Yemen-based al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula.

While Ikrima may not be a household name, he said, "you have someone who is truly a go-between between al-Shabab, AQAP and probably al-Qaida central."

ATTACKS SURGE IN EGYPT

Islamist militants retaliate one day after a clash that killed more than 50 people.

CAIRO (AP) • A string of attacks killed nine members of Egypt's security and military forces and hit the country's main satellite communications station Monday, in an apparent retaliation by Islamic militants a day after more than 50 supporters of the ousted president were killed in clashes with police.

The attacks show a dangerous expansion of targets, including the first strike against civilian infrastructure in the heart of the capital. They also blur the lines between the wave of Islamist protests against the military ouster of President Mohammed Morsi, and an insurgency that had been previously been largely confined to the northern Sinai Peninsula.

It is also likely to harden positions of the military-backed government and its opponents, making reconciliation more difficult.

"We are at war with them," said Mohammed Ibrahim, the country's interior minister in charge of security forces, pointing to militant groups. He suggested the surge in attacks, particularly the targeting of the satellite station — which left a minor damage on one of the dishes — was in retaliation for the government crackdown on Sunday's protests.

"This is an attempt to prove they are still around and are not broken," he told The Associated Press, without specifying which groups are behind the attacks. "They also aim to confuse, to distract" security forces.

In another development Monday likely to give momentum to the government crackdown on Islamists, a panel of judges recommended the dissolution of the Muslim Brotherhood's political party, the Freedom and Justice Party, which was registered months after the 2011 ouster of autocrat Hosni Mubarak.

The judges' recommendation said the party represents an outlawed group. The recommendations will be delivered to a Cairo court reviewing a case demanding the party's dissolution on Oct. 19.

Another court had already ordered a ban on the Brotherhood's activities, and froze its assets, a decision currently reviewed by a government appointed committee amid legal challenges from group members.

Ashraf Badreddin, a member of the FJP, said authorities had already shut down offices of the party long before a court decision, telling Doha-based satellite broadcaster Al-Jazeera Mubasher Masr that the recommendation was "politicized."

At least 2,000 of the group's leading and mid-level members have been detained, including Morsi, and head of the FJP, Saad el-Katatni. Most of them will face trial on charges that range from murder and inciting violence to abuse of power and conspiring with foreign powers. Hundreds others died in a violent crackdown on protests and sit-ins held by Morsi supporters.

Authorities accuse pro-Morsi supporters of seeking to create chaos to discredit the new government. The government declared it is waging a war against terrorism.

Pro-Morsi supporters deny they resort to violence.

Ahmed Mostafa, a Brotherhood student leader, said there are plans to hold rallies at universities this week to denounce the killings and the military leaders, saying authorities are engaged in a campaign to pull his group and supporters toward violence, or armed confrontation. There are also calls for protest in Cairo's central Tahrir Square.

He dismissed accusations that Islamists are behind the surge in attacks.

"We reaffirm that peacefulness of our actions is stronger than weapons," he said. Such attacks, he said, "may be fabrications by intelligence agencies to justify their campaign against (us)."

A suicide bomber struck a security headquarters in the town of el-Tor, in southern Sinai, earlier Monday, killing three policemen, wounding 55 others, and damaging the building. Southern Sinai is famous for its beach resorts such as Sharm el-Sheikh and has been generally spared the violence of the northern tip of the peninsula in the past six years. Attacks there in 2005 and 2006 left dozens, including tourists, dead.

Near-daily attacks against security forces and soldiers in the volatile northern Sinai Peninsula have increasingly resembled a full-fledged insurgency, especially in the three months since the ouster of Morsi. Ibrahim said counter-insurgency operations there have pushed militants into neighboring southern Sinai.

AT A GLANCE

Three Americans Win Nobel Prize in Medicine

THE WASHINGTON POST

Three American researchers won the Nobel Prize in medicine Monday for their insights into the traffic-control system for living cells — discoveries that the awards committee hoped would lead to future treatments for epilepsy, diabetes and immunological disorders.

The winners, who will share the $1.2 million prize, are James Rothman, 62, a cell biologist from Yale University; Randy Schekman, 64, a professor at the University of California at Berkeley; and Thomas Sudhof, 57, a Stanford University neuroscience researcher.

In announcing the award, the Nobel Assembly at Karolinska Institutet in Stockholm said the men "solved the mystery" of how cells organize their transport systems with timing and precision.

The researchers' work, which was done separately (although Rothman and Schekman collaborated at one point early in their careers), revolves around tiny bubble-like structures called vesicles that act as cargo carriers. They showed that these bubbles act in a similar way in organisms as different as yeast and humans. While the honorees expressed gratitude for the prize, their comments about their work were tinged with worry about the future of biomedical research after years of cuts in federal funding.

Schekman, whose first major grant was from the National Institutes of Health in 1978, said winning the Nobel Prize made him reflect on how his original proposal might have fared in today's depressed funding climate. "It would have been much, much more difficult to get support," he said.

Likewise, Rothman wondered: "Would I have been able to have the initiative, to take the risk? I really am very concerned I would not have been."

Sudhof said that the funding situation in Washington "worries me tremendously."

"I do think there's a danger that . . . the system will stop and we won't progress at the rate that would benefit our nation," he said.

Elizabeth Smart Memoir Details Kidnapping

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SALT LAKE CITY • Minutes after 14-year-old Elizabeth Smart was snatched from her bedroom in the dead of night, a police cruiser idled by along a neighborhood street as she was forced to the ground at knifepoint. "Move and I will kill you!" her captor hissed.

It was one of several fleeting times Smart watched a rescue slip away during her nine-month ordeal, she recounts in "My Story," a 308-page book released by St. Martin's Press on Monday.

She writes that she was so terrified of the street preacher who kidnapped her that when she was rescued by police in a Salt Lake City suburb in March 2003, she only reluctantly identified herself.

Between the heartbreak of missed chances, Smart writes, she was treated as a sex object by Brian David Mitchell and as a slave by his wife, Wanda Barzee. She says they denied her food and water for days at a time.

A U.S. attorney called it one of the kidnapping crimes of the century. Smart, a quiet, devout Mormon who played the harp and loved horses, vanished without a trace from her home high above Salt Lake City.

Smart, now 25, is married, living in Park City, finishing a music degree at Brigham Young University and traveling across the country giving speeches and doing advocacy work. She created the Elizabeth Smart Foundation to bring awareness to predatory crimes against children. For her, the book was another way to help bring nine months of brutality to a close.

NATION + WORLD

Since the Shutdown:

Oct. 1:

- 12:01 a.m. EDT: Government's new fiscal year begins, partial federal shutdown starts.
- 1:11 a.m.: The House stands by its language delaying required individual health coverage and blocking federal health insurance subsidies for Congress, and requests formal negotiations with the Senate.
- 8 a.m.: Federal health care exchanges open.
- 10 a.m.: The Senate rejects House effort for formal bargaining.

Oct. 2:

Embarking on a strategy of voting to restart popular programs, Republicans push bills through the House reopening national parks and the National Institutes of Health and letting the District of Columbia municipal government spend money. Democrats mostly vote "no," saying the entire government must reopen. Obama discusses the impasse with congressional leaders at the White House but participants report no progress.

Oct. 3:

The House votes to pay members of the National Guard and Reserves and finance veterans' programs.

Oct. 4:

The House votes 247-164 to finance federal disaster aid programs, and 244-164 to finance feeding programs for infants and pregnant women. The shutdown fight is increasingly tied to the need for Congress to renew federal borrowing authority by Oct. 17 or risk an economy-rattling government default. GOP leaders increasingly shift their conditions for passage of the shutdown and debt limit bills to deficit reduction.

Oct. 5:

The House votes 407-0 to pay furloughed federal workers when the shutdown ends. Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel says he is bringing most of his department's 350,000 furloughed workers back to work immediately.

Oct. 6:

House Speaker John Boehner says House won't pass bills ending shutdown or raising debt limit without negotiations on GOP demands.

THE WASHINGTON POST-ABC POLLING

Republican Disapproval Grows in Budget Battle

THE WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON • Disapproval of congressional Republicans' budget wrangling after a week-long shutdown has shot up to 70 percent, with 51 percent disapproving "strongly," according to a new Washington Post-ABC News poll.

At the same time, President Barack Obama's approval rating has ticked up due to improved marks among moderate Democrats and independents. No group, however, earns positive marks for their handling of budget negotiations overall.

Some 45 percent approve of Obama's handling of budget negotiations, up slightly from 41 percent last week. A still larger 51 percent disapproves of Obama, with 39 percent of the public disapproving strongly. Obama's fellow Democrats have not been as resilient. Fully 61 percent of Americans now disapprove of congressional Democrats (up from 56 percent last week), with strong disapproval rising nine points (to 45 percent).

Republicans in Congress are worse off still. A Post-ABC poll last week found 63 percent disapproving of Republicans, a number that has grown to 70 percent in the past week. Strong disapproval has grown from 42 to 51 percent over the same period.

The poll finds Democrats and Republicans have become convinced that the opposite party is in the wrong on budget negotiations, but are far less united in support of their own leaders. Just 52 percent of Republicans, for instance, approve of how Republicans in Congress are handling budget negotiations. Fully 89 percent of Republicans disapprove of Obama, with 74 percent disapproving strongly. An identical 89 percent of Democrats disapprove of Republicans. The wide unpopularity of Republicans in Congress in budget talks is in large part due to a schism within Republicans themselves. By 59 to 39 percent, conservative Republicans approve of the way their party's members of Congress have handled budget negotiations in combined interviews over two weeks. But Republicans who identify as moderate or liberal split narrowly: 44 percent approval to 49 percent disapproval.

This ideological split within the Republican party comes into sharper focus when looking at the most conservative party members. Republicans who describe themselves as "very conservative" approve of Republicans in Congress by 68 to 32 percent. Those who are just "somewhat conservative" split 51 to 45 percent in two weeks of combined poll results.

By contrast, Obama wins wider approval from his fellow partisans that spans Democrats' ideological wings. Fully 77 percent of Democrats approve of Obama's handling of budget negotiations, including 84 percent of liberals within the party. Among moderate and conservative Democrats, three quarters approve of Obama, up 11 points from last week.

The Post-ABC poll was conducted Oct. 2-6 among a random national sample of 1,005 adults reached on conventional and cellular phones. The overall results have a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 3.5 percentage points. Sampling, data collection and tabulation by SSRS of Media, Pa.

Defense Workers Return, Others Remain in Wait

Effects of continued shutdown deepening for workers, general public

WASHINGTON (AP) • A government shutdown is having far-reaching consequences for some, but minimal impact on others.

Mail is being delivered. Social Security and Medicare benefits continue to flow.

But vacationers are being turned away from national parks and Smithsonian museums, and that's having a ripple effect on those businesses and communities that rely on tourism. Borrowers applying for a mortgage can expect delays, particularly many low-to-moderate income borrowers and first-time homebuyers.

A look at how services have been affected, and sometimes not, by Congress failing to reach an agreement averting a partial government shutdown.

AIR TRAVEL

Federal air traffic controllers remain on the job and airport screeners continue to funnel passengers through security checkpoints. But safety inspections of planes, pilots and aircraft repair stations by government workers have ceased because federal inspectors have been furloughed.

BENEFIT PAYMENTS

Social Security and Medicare benefits continue to be paid out, but there could be delays in processing new disability applications. Unemployment benefits are also still going out. The state of Arizona opted to stop welfare benefits averaging $207 a week to about 5,200 families, despite assurances from the federal officials that the state would be reimbursed.

MAIL

Deliveries continue as usual because the U.S. Postal Service receives no tax dollars for day-to-day operations. It relies on income from stamps and other postal fees to keep running.

RECREATION

All national parks are closed. Grand National Canyon National Park was shut down for only the second time since it was created in 1919. The Grand Canyon averages 18,000 tourists per day in October, which has left hotels, concessionaires and tour operators losing money by the hour.

In Washington, monuments along the National Mall have been closed, as have the Smithsonian museums, including the National Zoo. Among the visitor centers that have closed: the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island in New York, Independence Hall in Philadelphia and Alcatraz Island near San Francisco.

National Wildlife Refuges have been closed off to hunters and fishermen just as hunting season was getting underway in many states. Normally, hunting would be allowed on 329 wildlife refuges and fishing allowed on 271.

HEALTH

New patients are not being accepted into clinical research at the National Institutes of Health, but current patients continue to receive care. Medical research at the NIH has been disrupted as some studies have been delayed. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has been severely limited in spotting or investigating disease outbreaks such as the flu or that mysterious MERS virus from the Middle East.

FOOD SAFETY

The Food and Drug Administration and Centers for Disease Control and Prevention say they could handle recalls and high-risk foodborne outbreaks, but they are less likely to discover them because most of the people who investigate outbreaks have been furloughed.

Routine food safety inspections conducted by FDA are suspended, so most food manufacturers won't have to worry about periodic visits from government inspectors to make sure their facilities are clean. U.S. food inspections abroad have also been halted.

USDA's federal meat inspections are proceeding as usual, however. USDA inspectors are on the lines every day in meatpacking plants and are required to be there by law for the plants to stay open.

EDUCATION

The Education Department has said that a shutdown beyond a week would "severely" curtail the cash flow to school districts, colleges and universities and vocational rehabilitation agencies that depend on department funds. For example, colleges rely on department funds to pay ongoing expenses for staff in programs for disadvantaged students. The department would not make additional details available on Friday about the number of districts, colleges and universities and vocational rehabilitation agencies that could more immediately feel the impact of a shutdown.

TAXES

Americans would still have to pay their taxes and file federal tax returns, but the Internal Revenue Service suspended all audits. The IRS also will not be processing any tax refunds during the shutdown. Got questions? Sorry, IRS call centers will not be staffed, though automated lines are still running.

LOANS

Borrowers applying for a mortgage can expect delays, especially if the shutdown is prolonged. That's because many lenders need government confirmation of applicants' income tax returns and Social Security data. Mortgage industry officials say they expect bottlenecks on closing loans if the shutdown stretches on for more than a few days.

The delays will particularly hit low- to moderate-income borrowers and first-time homebuyers who are seeking government-insured mortgages for single-family homes from the Federal Housing Administration.

Multifamily FHA mortgage approvals are suspended. Action on government-backed loans to small businesses is also suspended.

It's business as usual for Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac loans, which are not impacted by the shutdown.

HOMELAND SECURITY

The majority of the Department of Homeland Security's employees have stayed on the job, including uniformed agents and officers at the country's borders and ports of entry, members of the Coast Guard, Transportation Security Administration officers, Secret Service personnel and other law enforcement agents and officers. U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services employees continue to process green card applications. However, the four Federal Law Enforcement Training Centers, run by DHS, have shuttered training operations for federal agents. The closure of those services could delay when newer employees with the Border Patrol, Customs and Border Protection and Capitol Police can go on the job.

LAW ENFORCEMENT

The FBI estimates that in all, about 80 percent of its employees are working around the country. The FBI has about 34,000 employees. All FBI field offices around the country and the legal attache offices around the world are staffed and are prepared to meet any immediate threats and are protecting life and property. However, activities are suspended for other, longer-term types of investigations of crimes that don't involve an immediate threat. Training and other support functions have been slashed.

MILITARY

The military's 1.4 million active duty personnel remain on duty. About half of the Defense Department's civilian employees were furloughed, but Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel ordered nearly all 350,000 back on the job. The shutdown created a ripple effect with some defense contractors. Lockheed Martin said Monday that it was furloughing about 2,400 workers.

WORK SAFETY

Federal occupational safety and health inspectors have stopped workplace inspections except in cases of imminent danger.

VETERANS SERVICES

Most services offered through the Department of Veterans Affairs continue because lawmakers approved money one year in advance for the VA's health programs. Veterans are still visiting hospitals for inpatient care and getting mental health counseling at vet centers at outpatient clinics. Operators are also staffing the crisis hotline, but regional offices are not taking calls.

The VA continues to process payments providing veterans compensation for disabilities and pensions. However, claims processors are no longer being required to work 20 hours of overtime per month, which VA officials say is stalling progress in reducing the disability claims backlog, which stood at 418,500 at the end of September. It has since risen by about 200.

The VA said that nearly 10,000 workers within the Veterans Benefits Administration and within the VA's Office of Information Technology were being furloughed on Monday and Tuesday. Access to all regional offices will be suspended as a result.

If the shutdown continues into late October, the VA warns that compensation and pension payments to veterans will be halted.

Opening Lead: Club five

Since my column started appearing online, my correspondents have been writing to me from all around the world. But I believe today's deal may be the first provided to me by an Indian correspondent. Shantanu Rastogi from Lucknow sent me on a deal that arose in the finals of the Indian Senior trials in April this year.

As you can see, six diamonds looks like a very comfortable affair, but North took the precipitous decision to leap to the no-trump slam, and East alertly doubled. This is the Lightner double, named after the American expert Theodore Lightner, asking for the lead of dummy's first-bid suit.

I could not resist a smile when I read Shantanu's somewhat acerbic description of the West player as a Godzilla — the same term Zia Mahmood had used to describe a partner more dangerous to his side than the opponents. Be that as it may, West led a club, and declarer won in dummy and advanced the heart queen. East took the trick, and found out to his dismay that after the run of all the minor-suit winners, he could not now protect himself from the spade-heart squeeze whether he returned a heart or a spade,

As the commentators sagely noted after the event, the slam still goes down if East refuses to take either of the first two heart tricks, since declarer no longer has any communication between his hand and dummy. I'm not sure why this play is hard to spot, but it is.

ANSWER: This hand is surely strong enough to drive to game, since even facing a minimum balanced hand, your singleton may still leave partner cold for game. That said, some play mini-splinters (a jump to three no-trump over one spade or to three spades over one heart showing a raise to game, with 9-12 points and an unspecified splinter). I'll write about this soon in the Sunday letters column.

IF OCTOBER 8 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: The more organized and conscientious you are in the coming months, the better equipped you'll be to succeed in your ambitions. Learn to shoulder your responsibilities with pride and set a sterling example in the next several months. Small setbacks will only serve to teach you wisdom and add to your ambitions. Remember that flexing your muscles makes you stronger and more capable.
In January, you can throw caution to the wind and grab any opportunities that come your way. Not all promises will be fulfilled, but you should receive rewards for your hard work and enjoy a more carefree existence.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine
Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your efforts to be warm and friendly may not turn out as planned, so stay out of the limelight. Don't get a haircut, buy new clothing, or make a romantic overture today, as you may not be pleased with the results.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Enjoy the sterling values that experience builds. If trying to change things hasn't worked, maybe you should stick to the conventional and honor traditions.
Hold off on having romantic heart-to-heart discussions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Detail-oriented work is not a deterrent. A cut-and-dried approach makes quick work of tiresome details like the balancing your check-book. However, family disputes and emotional issues can't be solved with analysis.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): High spirits need to run in low gear. In an effort to entertain or amuse others, you could go to extremes or exceed the limits of good taste. It isn't that you're doing anything wrong, just doing too much.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22):
Keep on trucking. Even if you feel the weight of responsibilities weighing on your shoulders, rest assured that good things are happening in the background.
Someone is working behind the scenes on your behalf.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept.
22): Imposing your high standards on others could place an invisible barrier between you and them. Sometimes painstaking analysis isn't enough, but going overboard with tea and sympathy can backfire, too.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22):
Whimsical ideas falter and could fall flat. This isn't the time to make plans for the future or ask for a commitment. You are too easily swayed by a need for love and could look for it in all the wrong places.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov.
21): Keep your finger pressed firmly on the leak. Keep money tucked away in your pocket for the next several days. Keep your heart on a leash, as well, since any new romantic encounter could lead to disappointment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your generous nature may be rewarded. But don't get carried away and ignore your responsibilities or make sudden changes of plan. This is not the right time to sign contracts or make large purchases.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Use precision to make a decision. You can reach a pinnacle of achievement by carefully staying within boundaries. Bypass new investments and avoid making major purchases.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb.
18): You could be in a light-hearted, sociable mood
when someone else is in deadly earnest. Don't offend others by being silly or frivolous at the wrong moment.
Your kind gestures could easily be misunderstood.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your partners and loved ones may only see things in terms of black and white, while you can see all the shades of gray. Temporary differences of opinion will soon evaporate and might not even really exist.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I go out to dinner once a month with a couple we have known for years. "Joe" is an active conversationalist, while my husband is fairly quiet.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

The problem is Joe addresses only me and stares at me throughout the meal. I think it's just a bad habit he has acquired. To no avail I have tried various seating arrangements to avoid the constant stare. It makes me very uncomfortable. I feel bad for my husband, who is totally ignored, but doesn't seem to care as long as the food is good!

How do I get Joe to include my husband in the conversation and rest his gaze elsewhere? I would never say anything to "Mrs. Joe" about it because I don't want to make her uncomfortable, too. I really want to continue the friendship and the socializing, but I'd like to feel more relaxed at the dinner table. Any suggestions?

— DISTRESSED DINER

DEAR DISTRESSED: You are not helpless. The next time Joe directs his comments and questions only to you, toss the verbal ball to your husband and say, "Honey, what do YOU think about that?" It will give him an opening to enter the conversation.

As for the staring, Joe may not be aware of what he's doing. You could bring it to his attention by simply saying: "You keep looking at me, Joe. Do I have food in my teeth? Is my lipstick smeared?" Then haul out a compact and make a show of checking for yourself. It may help to curb his discomfiting habit.

DEAR ABBY: I'm single and have grown children. I know I am not going to live forever, and I want to make sure I am not a burden to them even after death. I have a will and no bills beyond my house and normal living expenses. What else do I need to do to make sure everything is taken care of when I'm gone?

— PREPARING IN ADVANCE

DEAR PREPARING: Do you have an advance directive for health care in case you become so ill before your death that you can't speak for yourself? Do you have at least one health care advocate who will ensure your wishes are carried out? Do you have a cemetery plot selected and paid for, so your children won't have to do it? How about money set aside for your funeral or memorial?

If the answer to each of these questions is yes, all you need to do is make certain your children are aware of it. If not, then get busy!

DEAR ABBY: I'm 14 and in the eighth grade. Some of my friends have problems with body odor. It makes it hard for me to be around them. They are all nice people, but sometimes I can't breathe when I'm near them.

Some of my other friends say I should tell them, but I'm not sure how without hurting their feelings. The odor ranges from breath to body. Abby, they are known throughout our school for being "the smelly ones." How do I tell them without offending them?

— BREATHLESS IN

BEACHWOOD, OHIO

DEAR BREATHLESS: I agree that telling people they have bad breath or body odor can be embarrassing. But to do so is not hurtful, in fact, it is doing the person a huge favor. The way to do it is PRIVATELY. This is important because your friends are probably not aware that they have a problem or have been causing one.

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 8, the 281st day of 2013. There are 84 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Oct. 8, 1871, the Great Chicago Fire erupted; fires also broke out in Peshtigo, Wis., and in several communities in Michigan.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1869, the 14th president of the United States, Franklin Pierce (puhrs), died in Concord, N.H.

In 1918, U.S. Army Cpl. Alvin C. York led an attack that killed 25 German soldiers and captured 132 others in the Argonne Forest in France.

In 1934, Bruno Hauptmann was indicted by a grand jury in New Jersey for murder in the death of the son of Charles A. Lindbergh.

In 1944, "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet," starring Ozzie and Harriet Nelson, made its debut on CBS Radio.

In 1945, President Harry S. Truman announced that the secret of the atomic bomb would be shared only with Britain and Canada.

In 1956, Don Larsen pitched the only perfect game in a World Series to date as the New York Yankees beat the Brooklyn Dodgers in Game 5, 2-0.

In 1957, the Brooklyn Baseball Club announced it was accepting an offer to move the Dodgers from New York to Los Angeles.

In 1962, Chuck Hiller of the San Francisco Giants became the first National League to hit a World Series grand slam; the shot came in Game 4 against New York Yankees pitcher Marshall Bridges. (The final score of the game was Giants 7, Yankees 3.)

In 1967, former British Prime Minister Clement Attlee died in London at age 84.

In 1970, Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn was named winner of the Nobel Prize for literature.

In 1982, all labor organizations in Poland, including Solidarity, were banned.

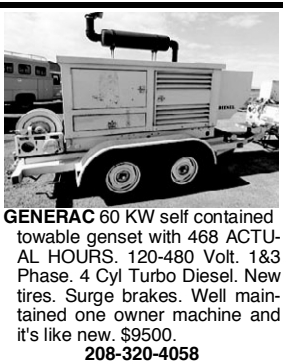

In 1992, former West German Chancellor Willy Brandt died in Unkel, Germany, at age 78.

Ten years ago: A day after being elected governor of California, Arnold Schwarzenegger said he was promised "a very smooth transition" by ousted Gov. Gray Davis and vowed to "open up the books" in dealing the state's ailing economy. Americans Peter Agre and Roderick MacKinnon won the Nobel Prize in chemistry; American Robert Engle and Briton Clive Granger won the Nobel Prize in economics. Jarome Iginla of the Calgary Flames was tabbed to become the first black captain in NHL history.

Five years ago: After a day of bouncing higher and lower, Wall Street plunged again. The Dow Jones industrial average lost another 189 points to close at 9,258 — the sixth straight day of losses for the Dow. German farmer Karl Merk, who received the world's first complete double arm transplant, told reporters that incredulity gave way to joy when he woke from surgery to discover he had arms again. Japan's Osamu Shimomura and Americans Martin Chalfie and Roger Tsien won the Nobel Prize in chemistry. Stage and TV actress Eileen Herlie died in New York at age 90.

One year ago: Republican presidential nominee Mitt Romney accused President Barack Obama of being too passive in his dealings with conflicts in the Middle East. Speaking at Virginia Military Institute, Romney called for the U.S. to work with other countries to arm the rebels in Syria. Obama declared a national monument at the Keene, Calif., home of Cesar Chavez, the late founder of the United Farmworkers Union. Auto club AAA said the average price for a gallon of regular gasoline in California had climbed to $4.67, the highest in the nation, amid refinery disruptions and corrosion issues in an important pipeline.

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

Staff Sgt. Doug Sugden, of the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office, shows an email alert sent to people who sign up to receive updates from the Idaho State Police Sex Offender Registry.

Registry

While labels are helpful, Sugden said, the registry is a tool, not complete information.

"Not everybody on the registry is a predator or a pedophile," he said. Some are rapists; others might be child pornography collectors.

Shows like "To Catch a Predator," which show people trying to commit the most heinous kinds of sex crimes, create some misplaced fear about sex offenders, Sugden said.

By the Numbers

The registry lists two types of sex offenders.

Most people are simply categorized as a sex offender. An offender must pay $80 annually, verify his or her address by mail quarterly and have an in-person address check once a year.

Those listed as violent sexual predators pay $20 quarterly, have quarterly in-person address checks and verify their addresses by mail monthly.

Failure to comply with these requirements can lead to a 10-year prison sentence and a $5,000 fine, on top of any earlier sentence for the sex crime.

While deputies handle probation checks with sex offenders, police must be called for any criminal activity, such as drugs, city spokesman Joshua Palmer said.

In the past, Twin Falls received a grant to help keep tabs on offenders within the city, but that grant ran out, Palmer said.

Many smaller cities, especially in Idaho, don't have their own designated department to monitor registered offenders, he said.

Bannock County has 255 adult registered offenders and has two full-time and three part-time office employees rotate collecting the offenders' information, that county sheriff's office advises.

Sugden monitors all the offenders on Twin Falls County's registry.

An additional position has been authorized, and the sheriff's office will decide how that person's work will be used, county Commissioner Terry Kramer said.

Sugden said because his office is at the Division of Motor Vehicles, the work will be focused there, with cross-training a possibility. Work at the DMV also includes concealed weapons permits and DMV business.

The Four Ps

Generally, Sugden said, he doesn't like to hear the details of crimes committed by the people he monitors.

"I just care that they register," Sugden said. "I tell them I don't care what you did or didn't do."

He said he tries to treat each person who registers with respect. That way, they don't mind coming in and updating their information.

When someone convicted of a sex crime is put on probation or parole and moves to Twin Falls County, they go see Sugden.

New registrants must complete the "Four Ps," Sugden said: paperwork, prints, picture and "pay me."

Each person must fill out paperwork with information including address, phone number, email, vehicle information, passport status, weight, scars, marks and piercings.

Sugden uses software called Offender Watch to keep track of it all.

With that software, he can see when another county imports a person's information if they've moved.

The software also helps Sugden notify the public about status changes.

"As soon as I hit enter, notifications begin," he said.

When Sugden started in 2006, 136 people were on the registry.

Now he manages about 226.

A number of things go into the increase, he said, including more people coming forward and more prosecution.

"We just didn't talk about it before," he said.

People who have been released from prison must register, too, he said.

Increased Internet and electronics use also could contribute to the number of sex criminals being caught.

their first shot on the stage," said Zena Rae.

Once when they were children, she said, Gary organized a job for the younger siblings thinning beets.

His organizing complete, he slept in the car while they worked in the fields.

Zena Rae said Gary contributed to many benefits for people in the community, and he loved his singing gigs at the senior centers.

Gary also was an experimental gardener, trying his hand at raising cobs of popcorn, Indian corn and goji berry bushes, she said.

"I'm going to miss his humor," said brother Adrian Bench. "He had this perspective on things that nobody else has. One Thanksgiving about 10 years ago, he wanted gravy so I gave him gravy — on his green JELL-O — and he never let me forget it."

"No one can tell jokes like Gary," said Merijane Bench, Gary's sister-in-law. "Everything was up for grabs to make up a funny story or write a song about. He saw the humor in everything around him, and that gift always brought joy and a giggle, or hard-core tears from laughing so hard, to everyone he came into contact with. The world needs more people like Gary."

Bench self-released three CDs of his music. Many of his songs are funny, but some are serious.

"He never married, but he was a romantic and a lot of the songs he wrote in that vein," said Smith.

Smith said Gary was one of the top sound-system operators in the area but was humble and often "flew under the radar."

He also gave guitar lessons and taught young performers how to increase their stage confidence.

Often customers at the store could persuade Gary to break into a silly song, Smith said.

But, "He also had a stubborn streak." Gary stubbornly stuck to playing old country music even though a switch to a more popular genre may have launched a career turn, Smith said.

He was especially fond of children. As the youngest of 10 children, Gary had numerous nieces and nephews whom he loved to tease.

"He spoiled every one of his nieces and nephews," said Zena Rae.

Zena Rae said Gary communicated well with the old and young.

His niece, Meihwa Tanielle Bench Alvarez, said she remembers sharing music and jokes with Gary until their teeth were dry and their sides hurt from laughter.

"I remember Gary as one of the most fun, sarcastic, and fun-loving people I know. We would be found singing, making jokes and writing songs in the Nuts & Things Store late into the night," said nephew Tom Bench. "He was my uncle, but we acted more like best friends. Gary loved people. And they loved him back."

Smith said many people will sorely miss Gary.

"Talk about someone leaving a hole in your life after they've gone."

being returned to us to face charges."

Cruz was arrested on one charge of first-degree murder and one charge of attempted first-degree murder. Juarez faces a pair of probation violation charges from Cassia County and Jerome County.

Snarr and the Minidoka County Prosecutor Lance Stevenson on Monday declined to provide further details, including the alleged motive for the killing.

Two other Mini-Cassia residents were arrested in Texas with Cruz and Juarez. Christopher Ray Van Every and Gisela Garcia, both of Heyburn, helped the couple leave the Mini-Cassia area. The four-some traveled more than 1,700 miles to Texas, police said. Van Every and Garcia will face charges in Texas for harboring Cruz and Juarez.

"We do not have charges on them," said Snarr of Van Every and Garcia.
