$1 Million Powerball Win for Twin Falls Man

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls just got one more millionaire — before taxes.

Jeremy Spells won the $1 million Powerball prize from the Oct. 9 draw on a ticket he purchased at the Gowen Road Chevron in east Boise, announced the Idaho Lottery Tuesday.

Spells is currently the office manager at Twin Falls' Carino's Italian.

"I work in both Twin Falls and Boise, so occasionally if I have a couple of extra bucks, I'll pick up a Powerball ticket," Spells said in the lottery's press release. "I checked the ticket at a retailer and they told me to bring it to Boise. I still didn't believe it, so I called the winning numbers hot line about 50 times just to make sure."

Spells then told his wife the news when she returned home late after Bible study Thursday night. Tired from a long day, she didn't believe it either.

"We're still in disbelief," Spells said after receiving the check.

The Spells plan to pay off their house and car and invest the remaining amount, the press release said.

For its part in selling the winning ticket, Gowen Road Chevron receives a bonus from the Idaho Lottery of $20,000.

This is the second $1 million prize a Twin Falls resident has won in the past two years. In February 2012, Bill Edson won $1 million after purchasing a winning ticket at the Stinker Station at 880 Shoshone St. W.

Twin Falls Oasis Stop 'N Go on Addison Avenue is the only gas station in the state to ever have two six-figure winners in a two-year period.

Money Flowing in Race for Idaho's 2nd

TWIN FALLS • U.S. Rep. Mike Simpson, R-Idaho, raised more than $437,000 in the third quarter, a career quarterly high according to his campaign financial reports filed last week with the Federal Elections Commission.

Simpson is running for an ninth term in Idaho's 2nd Congressional District.

Due to the partial U.S. government shutdown, the Federal Election Commission's website is only partially operational, however, both Simpson's and his opponents reports were posted by Tuesday evening.

Simpson received donations from more than 340 donors between July and Oct. 1, with most of the contributions coming from nearly 90 different political action committees from around the country.

Donors included several from the Magic Valley's prominent dairy and agriculture leaders. Idaho Dairy-men's Association executive director Bob Naerebout, dairy farmer Tony Vander Hulst and Davisco Foods International general manager Jon Davis all contributed $500. Glanbia Foods Inc.'s PAC also gave $500.

Simpson's campaign reported it has about $600,000 cash on hand.

Idaho Falls attorney Bryan Smith raised $275,100 in his third quarter, more money than any other previous Simpson contender.

According to that campaign's statement, Smith's bid raised more than $400,000 in four months and has about $300,000 still in the bank.

Smith received only one contribution from the Magic Valley. Rick Martin, owner of Martin's Merc, gave $2,600 to the Smith campaign.

Smith kicked off his campaign with the endorsement of Club for Growth. Tuesday, Citizens United Political Victory Fund, the affiliated PAC of Citizens United, announced its Smith endorsement while contributing $10,000 to his campaign. The 2008 Citizens United Supreme Court decision struck down the amount PACs can contribute to federal campaigns, ushering the era of super PACs.

Homeowners Leery of a Possible Knievel Anniversary Launch

Aaron Witherspoon tells stories outside his home Tuesday about the pandemonium that inundated the neighborhood in 1974 during Evel Knievel's attempted canyon jump in Twin Falls.

TWIN FALLS • Mention Twin Falls' most famous mound of dirt to its surrounding homeowners, and all you get is a heavy eye roll.

Forty years ago, hundreds of trespassers invaded the narrow, windy Pole Line Road that leads right to the launch location Evel Knievel used in 1974.

The visitors swarmed private yards, pulled down fences and bathed in the ditches lining the normally secluded road.

It was a chaos that Aaron Witherspoon has no interest in sticking around to see repeated.

Standing outside his modest home along the Snake River Canyon rim, with Knievel's jump site just to the east, Witherspoon pointed to his lawn's border.

"When Knievel was here, my dad built a fence around this lawn to keep them out. But every night he was out here with a shotgun scaring people off," he said.

His concerns have grown since Big Ed Buckley secured state permission to land on the canyon's north side. The Texas stuntman hopes to celebrate Knievel's 40-year anniversary of coming to Twin Falls, but first he must secure city permits for the south side of the canyon.

City council members are collecting requests for qualifications from any applicant to be evaluated by city staff. The document requires detailed descriptions of the

Jerome's Mayoral Candidates Seek Change

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

JEROME • The city of Jerome needs a change.

It's a platform that all four mayoral candidates have made their top priority. Together, they point to a recent string of turnover in critical city leadership positions and increased concerns of the city's transparency and communication failures.

Mayor John Shine argues that the city's troubled image has improved, and he is focusing on improving customer service for Jerome citizens.

When he was first elected in 2009, Shine said, he worked with city staffers to create and distribute a city newsletter. Today, the newsletter has more than 400 subscribers.

"These are little things, but they are important," he said. "These are things that I worked with a lot of people to start."

Yet larger issues, such as improving citizen trust with the city council, takes time and experienced leadership, Shine said.

Over the past year, Jerome officials accidentally billed a resident $96,700 for responding to the city's largest downtown fire. Several months later, the city's fire chief resigned, soon to be followed by the city administrator.

Shine said he wants to move forward. By replacing the positions, the city can move forward to attract more businesses to increase its tax base.

"We need to get the downtown in an Urban Renewal District," Shine said. "it would help in our downtown revitalization. I was on the urban renewal board before mayor so I have experience with that."

For the rest of the candidates, "economic development" is also the campaign buzzword.

City Councilman Dale Ross said he's running for mayor to help develop a formalized economic strategy for the short and long term.

Earlier this year, he voted no when the council asked Jerome voters to approve a $48 million bond to improve and expand the city's wastewater treatment plant. He argued that the expansion could be done more cheaply and intelligently. Several weeks later,

Vote Greenman in Burley, but Hold Him Accountable

We wouldn't call the Burley mayoral race a coin flip, but it's not much better.

Mayor Terry Greenman, seeking a second four-year term, edges out his opponent, Merlin Smedley, in both style and substance.

But the mayor's resistance to accepting responsibility for the issues Burley has faced under his watch is troubling.

We questioned him about the future of police service in Burley, a controversy that arises between the city and Cassia County every year or so, that uses the people as political fodder. It's an issue birthed in political grandstanding and brinkmanship on both sides.

But Greenman panned any indication that his administration is in any way culpable. He instead lobbed accusations of illegal backroom negotiations and underhanded tactics at county commissioners.

"We have men there with no accountability, only entitlements," he said of county commissioners. "People want the position more than they want to do what's right."

Even if Greenman's perspective has merit, his administration was an equal player in this year's contentious negotiation for continued Cassia County Sheriff's Office coverage in Burley. When asked about a long-term deal to end the annual or bi-annual standoffs, he again pinned any potential blame for the inability to achieve the goal squarely on the county.

"They're used to the good-old-boy system," he said. "And that's going to be a problem."

Greenman takes ownership in one of the other big issue in Burley's election cycle — the proposed municipal airport expansion.

He's a supporter of relocating and expanding the facility, a move that would permit private jets — the preferred transportation of the corporate set — to frequent Burley. We're unsure of his contention that yogurt giant Chobani would have more closely eyed Burley had the city's airport been more accommodating. But we agree that the potential expansion, assuming the yet-to-be determined price tag makes sense, could be an economic benefit to the community.

However, Greenman's contention that the airport is a safety problem — pointing to a 2011 crash that killed four people taking off in a small aircraft — isn't valid. National Transportation Safety Board investigators pinned the crash squarely on a string of pilot errors, not a short runway.

Smedley is staunchly opposed to any expansion of the airport. He considers it an expensive folly. We disagree.

The Massachusetts Department of Transportation determined in a 2011 study that the 38 regional municipal airports in that state pump several times the annual municipal investment into the local economy, through job creation and tax revenue, especially on fuel sales. The economic benefit is especially strong at jet-ready airports.

There's a couple significant differences in style between the two Burley mayoral candidates.

Greenman touts himself as a strong leader. Smedley counters that Greenman's micro-managing has made the Burley City Council and city administrator powerless and ineffective.

A strong executive, answerable to the people at the voting booth, is a good thing.

We found much of Smedley's platform significantly wanting in detail and nuance. He's simply not up to the job.

The race for Burley's top post doesn't offer the strongest field. But Greenman is the right choice on Nov. 5.

Come Jan. 1, he must step up and take accountability for his part in the issues that plague Burley. Pointing fingers at everyone else isn't becoming of a leader, especially from a mayor who so regularly points to his own fortune.

Are our Limousines Helping Hackers?

By John Reed

Foreign Policy

Kevin Mandia, CEO of the cybersecurity company Mandiant, takes a lot of limo rides. Normally, his limo company emails him PDF copies of his invoices after every trip. Recently, though, something changed.

"I've been receiving PDF invoices not from them, but from an [advanced hacking] group back in China; that's awesome," Mandia said recently. He only caught the attack when the hackers sent receipts on days when he hadn't used the car service.

Emailing a malicious file from a fake or hijacked email account belonging to warning to other American businesses — is the intimate knowledge that the hackers seemed to have about Mandia's business.

It's not like that kind of information is just posted on Facebook. Mandia also doubts that Chinese hackers have gained access undetected to his company's networks. Mandia suspects that Chinese intelligence operatives simply showed up at public events where he was speaking and took note of his limo company.

"At a lot of these presentations, I'm standing here talking, and there are 10 foreign nationals from China. It could be they saw"

Mandia using the limo, he said.

This is a textbook example of how Chinese spies don't just target American business moguls via spearphishing and other cyberattacks. They use a combination of old-fashioned espionage and hacking to target anyone they've got a serious interest in.

If you thought that espionage was going totally digital, think again.

Reed reports on the frontiers of cyber war and the latest in military technology for the Foreign Policy blog Killer Apps.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

White House is the Problem

We are still waiting for the answer on Bengazi, IRS.

All this Obama does is skip from one scandal to the next. This Clinton woman and her group have never cleaned up. This president lied to the mothers and fathers and wives of the four Americans that were killed. So make this Obama person accountable. No more cover up. If he doesn't, impeach him on lying.

As for Joe Biden, he's a joke, along with Harry Reid, arm-waving Nancy Pelosi of California.

And you senators and congressmen, get it together. We are the people you work for, not that bum at the top.

Talk about welfare; he's the biggest person there — housing, food, clothes and better free travel at our expense.

Where does this president get $67 million to pay for these people to help with this health bill? Out of whose pocket?

And I'll say it again and again. Stop sending our money overseas. Take care of our own.

Let's get someone in office who'll take care of us and our country. Get these jobs going. This government doesn't give a damn about us, only them.

'Stop Obamacare' Lecture this week in Twin Falls

Choose Freedom — Stop ObamaCare" is the title of a presentation by Dr. Michael Ritze, DO, a family doctor who will be speaking Thursday, Oct. 17, at 7 p.m. at the Red Lion Hotel in Twin Falls. Please attend!

We have been blessed with the most individual liberty and freedom of any people who have ever lived due to our God-inspired Constitution. However, we are rapidly becoming a socialist country and headed toward world government under the communist-controlled United Nations. The leadership of both parties is contributing! Why is the Republican Establishment trying to destroy the pro-constitutional Tea Party patriots? The Establishment alienated them during the last election which resulted in Obama winning.

The 1966 book, "Tragedy and Hope" by Carroll Quigley, is very revealing. He had access to records of the elite power broker network and how they conspire to attain total global control. Quigley exposes this worldwide conspiratorial network while supporting it because he felt that it was too late for the little people to turn back the tide of globalism. He felt that a manmade millennium of peace would occur if we gave up our individual liberties and independence to these men secretly operating behind the scenes. He felt that the elitists are the hope of the world. All who resist them represent the tragedy. Thus, the book title.

No small group could wield such gigantic power unless millions of people were "in on the take or duped" into following the iron-clad regimentation of the conspiratorial elitists behind the scenes. These elitists have succeeded in taking control of the leadership of both parties. They are striving for a United Nations world government using tremendous quantities of money to control our guns, education, political parties, medicine, the media, etc.

To stop their conspiratorial goal, we must get out of the United Nations by passing H.R. 75.

he voted yes with the council to a $35 million bond to go before judicial confirmation. Ross said he also would reduce the city's wastewater fees by reducing the amount of base-rate fees on which the city relies. "We're not giving any incentive to our big industry users to reduce their wastewater," he said. "If someone wants to reduce their wastewater amount by half, then their bill should reflect that. Right now it doesn't." Because he has served a full term on the council, Ross said, he can become mayor without a steep learning curve. "We owe it to our citizens to be as efficient as possible," he said. "I'm aware of the issues, I've been involved in the city and when I take that office, I can hit the ground running immediately. We don't have time to wait." Former Councilman Joe Skaug said he's seeking the top job to help repair the relationship between the mayor's office and citizens. Skaug said he's gained leadership and management experience not only from his prior term on the council, but also from overseeing the largest car show in south-central Idaho for nine years. As mayor, he said, he would make sure the city administrator's position would be a visible and strong position. He would rely on the department heads to make informed decisions and find better solutions, and this could mean reducing certain positions. "We can save the taxpayer money," Skaug said. "Does a town the size of Jerome really need a spokeswoman?

Why not let the mayor or the city administrator be the voice? We're not Twin Falls, we're not Boise, we're Jerome." Skaug said he would like to include more of Jerome's Hispanics on city committees and in city hall. "I'm looking forward to the day we have a Hispanic city council member," he said. "It's wrong to exclude them when they make up one-third of Jerome." Banker Dave Davis said he is running for the first time because he too is ready to see an improvement in the city. "I see the need to change directions," Davis said. "We need someone with business sense and business experience. I believe our taxes and user fees are high, and we need to address the city's operating expenses." Like his opponents, Davis stressed improving business in Jerome, but he suggested hiring a full-time economic development director. The city has a community development director who also functions as the spokeswoman, but Davis said that position might need to be reconstructed to better serve the community. By filling the empty city administrator position and hiring someone solely to market Jerome to business, the city could increase its tax base and reduce taxpayer fees, Davis said. He also said he would find ways to reduce operating costs to slim the city's budget.

"My plan is to ask the city administrator and department heads to present a plan to the city council on how to reduce expenses in the budget," he said. "This, coupled with promoting economic development, will help reduce our taxes over time."

TWIN FALLS • One of the most common arguments between reporters and public officials is what information the public can see. Turns out, reporters and public officials are both wrong half the time about the laws, said Idaho Attorney General Lawrence Wasden.

Reporters, citizens and public officials from throughout south-central Idaho gathered Tuesday night to iron out some of those wrinkles.

“If I was playing the National League, batting 500 would be a great big deal. But in open meeting, public record issues, its dismal,” Wasden said. “So if we can walk out of here tonight improving our batting average on issues of open records and public meetings, then we will have succeeded.”

Two skits early in the event portrayed a reporter getting his facts wrong about a city council executive session.

Twin Falls spokesman Joshua Palmer played Crusty the reporter, and Times-News reporter Brian Smith played Trusty the city clerk.

“They still in there talking about Lyle’s lawsuit?” Crusty asked.

“Yeah, the city council is having a meeting, and no, you can’t go in there,” Trusty said.

“I don’t know about these closed meetings, Trusty. It seems a little illegal,” Crusty said.

“C’mon Crusty, you know as well as I do that open meeting laws allows executive sessions with the city attorney with impending litigation, and it says right on the agenda that they’re talking about Lyle’s lawsuit,” Trusty said.

In the second skit, a group of city council members made budget decisions in a restaurant while a reporter secretly listened.

Smith, KMVT Anchor Aimee Burnett and Twin Falls Councilwoman Suzanne Hawkins played the council members.

“We’ll pave County Line Road to Maple before the first frost. You two OK with that?” Smith asked.

“I can go along with that if we take it another half mile past Maple,” Hawkins said. “That way, we’ll get some nice new pavement in front of my brother-in-law’s house.”

“I think we need to stop at Maple,” Smith said.

“C’mon Craig, work with me on this. I think I can help with the zoning problem with the nuclear power plant by the wildlife sanctuary. No one needs to know it’s your dad behind this,” Hawkins said.

“What I’m interested in, though, is what we’re going to do about the county prosecutor,” Burnett said. “I think he’s getting a little big for his britches. I think he’d get a little smarter if we cut $50,000 out of his budget.”

After the scene, Wasden explained to the crowd of about 75 that it’s not illegal for city council members to hang out with each other outside of work. But it is illegal for a governing body to conduct its business outside of a public meeting.

Events such as the public records forum in Twin Falls help the media and government work together to better inform the public.

“The open meeting law and the public records act are really important to us as citizens, because it’s what opens the doors and allows you and I to observe what government does and to obtain information from our government,” Wasden said. “That is critical to a democracy. It’s critical to our republican form of government. It’s really important that we know and understand what our government is doing. That’s why those laws are important.”

The forum is part of an effort between the attorney general and the group Idahoans for Openness in Government to raise awareness about public record laws.

The Times-News sponsored the event.

TERROR TRIALS

Libyan Pleads Not Guilty to Terrorism Charges

BY LARRY NEUMEISTER
AND TOM HAYS

Associated Press

NEW YORK • An alleged al-Qaida member who was snatched off the streets in Libya and interrogated for a week aboard an American warship pleaded not guilty to bombing-related charges Tuesday in a case that has renewed the debate over how quickly terrorism suspects should be turned over to the U.S. courts.

Despite calls from Republicans in Congress to send him to Guantanamo Bay for indefinite interrogation, Abu Anas al-Libi became the latest alleged terrorist to face civilian prosecution in federal court in New York, the scene of several such convictions.

Al-Libi, wearing a thick gray beard, looked frail and moved slowly as he was led into the heavily guarded courtroom in handcuffs. An attorney said he had come to court from a New York hospital, where he was treated for three days for hepatitis C and swollen limbs.

The 49-year-old al-Libi was captured by American commandos during an Oct. 5 military raid in Libya and questioned for a week aboard the USS San Antonio.

He was indicted more than a decade ago in the twin 1998 bombings at the U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania that killed 224 people, including a dozen Americans. If convicted, he could get life behind bars.

Known as one of al-Qaida's early computer experts, al-Libi is accused of helping plan and conduct surveillance for the attacks. He is believed to have used an early-generation Apple computer to assemble surveillance photographs.

The defendant kept his hands folded on his lap as the judge read the charges in a courtroom secured by about a dozen deputy U.S. marshals. The judge ordered him detained after a federal prosecutor called him a "clear danger."

Republicans stepped up their criticism of Obama for his administration's handling of al-Libi, saying he should have been sent to the American prison at Guantanamo Bay for more interrogation instead of being taken to the U.S. and given access to civilian courts and the legal protections they provide.

"He was a treasure trove of information," said Sen. Lindsey Graham of South Carolina.

"The most dangerous thing we could do as a nation is to treat a captured al-Qaida terrorist as a common criminal, read them their Miranda rights and put them in civilian court before we have a chance to gather intelligence."

New York Republican Rep. Peter King, a member of the House Intelligence Committee, said: "The real issue is the intelligence. Once he gets a lawyer, he holds the cards. ... Put it this way: Now he decides whether he will talk."

Democratic Sen. Patrick Leahy of Vermont defended the administration, saying dozens of terrorists have been arrested and continued providing information. "Wouldn't it be nice if we demonstrated to the rest of the world that we're not afraid of these people, that we have the best court systems in the world and we're going to use them?" he said.

Al-Libi's family and former associates have denied he was ever a member of al-Qaida.

"The presumption of innocence is not a small technicality here," his court-appointed attorney, David Patton, said in email sent after the hearing. In a 150-page indictment, al-Libi "is mentioned in a mere three paragraphs relating to conduct in 1993 and 1994 and nothing since. ... There is no allegation that he had any connection to al-Qaida after 1994, and he is eager to move forward with the legal process in this case."

Al-Libi's lawyer also said the defendant goes by the name Nazih Abdul-Hamed al-Ruqai.

The prosecution in the United States is in keeping with a policy of bringing suspected al-Qaida sympathizers and operatives to civilian courts rather than military tribunals.

The civilian court prosecutions have continued before and after the Obama administration was forced to reverse its plans to prosecute 9/11 mastermind Khalid Sheikh Mohammed and several others in federal court in Manhattan.

House Shutdown Plan Fails; Now Senate

BY DAVID ESPO

AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON • Time growing desperately short, Senate leaders took command of efforts to avert a Treasury default and end the partial government shutdown Tuesday night after a last big attempt by House Republicans abruptly collapsed.

Aides to both Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid and the Republican leader, Mitch McConnell, expressed revived optimism about chances for a swift agreement — by Wednesday at the latest — that could pass both houses. Their efforts toward a bipartisan resolution had seemed likely to bear fruit a day earlier before House conservative were given a last-minute chance for their version.

As hours ticked down toward Thursday's Treasury deadline, the likeliest compromise included renewed authority for the Treasury to borrow through early February and the government to

While a day of secret meetings and frenzied maneuvering unfolded in all corners of the Capitol, Sen. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., stood on the Senate floor at midafternoon and declared, "We are 33 hours away from becoming a deadbeat nation, not paying its bills to its own people and other creditors."

Court Likely to Uphold Michigan Measure on Race

BY MARK SHERMAN

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Supreme Court seemed prepared Tuesday to uphold a voter-approved ban on taking account of race in college admissions.

The court heard arguments over a 2006 change to the state constitution to prohibit the University of Michigan and other state schools from any consideration of race when they decide whom to admit.

The justices' focus was more on whether they could craft a narrow ruling to uphold Michigan Proposal 2 or would have to overrule earlier cases that protect minorities' rights to participate in the political process.

Affirmative action supporters say the amendment itself is a form of discrimination because of the burden they face to repeal the constitutional provision.

That argument did not appear to make much headway with the conservative justices, who have been hostile to considerations of race in education and politics in a series of cases in recent years.

Obama Presents Afghan War Vet with Medal of Honor

BY DARLENE SUPERVILLE

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Four years after risking his life in Afghanistan, William D. Swenson solemnly received the Medal of Honor on Tuesday in a case of battlefield bravery with some odd twists: The young Army captain questioned the judgment of his superiors, and the paperwork nominating him for the award was lost. He left the military two years ago but wants to return to active duty, a rare move for a medal recipient.

The nation's highest military honor — a sky blue ribbon and medal — was clasped around Swenson's neck by President Barack Obama at the White House. The president described how Swenson repeatedly exposed himself to enemy fire to recover fallen comrades and help save others during a battle against Taliban insurgents in the Ganjgal valley near the Pakistan border on Sept. 8, 2009. The fight claimed five Americans, 10 Afghan army troops and an interpreter.

Swenson is the second Medal of Honor recipient from that fight, just the second time in half a century that the medal has been awarded to two survivors of the same battle, Obama said. Two years ago, Obama presented the Medal of Honor to Marine Cpl. Dakota Meyer for heroic actions in the 2009 fight.

Obama noted that although America's highest military honor has been bestowed nearly 3,500 times, never before had the public been able to see any of the bravery it was designed to recognize. Video taken by the medevac crew's helmet cameras shows Swenson delivering a severely wounded soldier to the helicopter and kissing him on the head before returning to the heat of battle.

Demonstrators hold up a sheet with writing reading in Italian ‘Priebke murderer’ outside the Society of St. Pius X, a schismatic Catholic group, where Nazi war criminal Erich Priebke funeral was taking place, in Albano Laziale, on the outskirts of Rome, Tuesday.

Priebke Lawyer Calls Off Funeral amid Protests

BY NICOLE WINFIELD, COLLEEN BARRY AND MICHELE BARBERO
Associated Press

ALBANO LAZIALE, Italy • The bitterly protested funeral of Nazi war criminal Erich Priebke was called off hours after it was to have taken place Tuesday by his lawyer, who said police prevented friends and family members from attending amid a noisy protest against the planned religious ceremony.

Shouting “murderer” and “executioner,” hundreds of people jeered as Priebke’s coffin arrived for the funeral Mass to be celebrated by a splinter Catholic group opposed to the Vatican’s outreach to Jews. Protesters even heckled a priest arriving at the gates, yelling “Shame.” One woman fainted.

But Priebke’s lawyer, Paolo Giachini, told The Associated Press the funeral did not take place “because authorities did not allow people to enter who wanted to come in. Everything was ready. We were waiting for those who should have arrived to participate.”

They included Priebke’s son Ingo, other lawyers in Giachini’s firm, along and some younger, right-wing sympathizers, Giachini said. “They were there for a religious ceremony. They didn’t have banners or other political manifestations,” he said.

The casket remained inside and Giachini said he did not know what would happen next. He said he was turning over responsibility for future decisions to the family and expressed disappointment at the “indignities” that prevented the ceremony.

Since Priebke’s death on Friday at age 100, debate has raged over what to do with his remains. Pope Francis’ vicar for Rome refused him a funeral in a Catholic Church and Rome’s police chief backed him up, citing concerns for public order.

Priebke participated in one of the worst massacres in German-occupied Italy during World War II, the slaughter of 335 civilians at the Ardeatine Caves outside Rome. Tensions have been high ever since he died and left behind an interview in which he denied Jews were gassed in the Holocaust.

No one appeared ready to handle Priebke’s service, until, in a surreal twist, the schismatic Society of St. Pius X in the city of Albano Laziale south of Rome stepped forward to celebrate the funeral Mass. The society, known for the anti-Semitic views of some of its members, celebrates the pre-Vatican II old Latin Mass. Where Priebke will be buried remains unresolved.

The society was formed in 1969, opposed to the modernizing reforms of the Second Vatican Council, particularly its outreach to Jews. It split from Rome after its leader consecrated bishops without papal consent. It currently has no legal standing in the Catholic Church.

As Giachini spoke by telephone from within the splinter group’s complex late Tuesday evening, Italian television broadcast images of scuffles between demonstrators protesting the funeral and right-wing extremists who were among those denied entry.

“They are trying to enter because they want to take the casket,” Giachini said. “I don’t know ... they want to damage it, as they did to Mussolini. They want to enter by force and tear everything apart.”

Italy’s fascist leader Benito Mussolini was killed by partisans in 1945, and his body was strung up in a Milan piazza.

Despite Giachini’s statements that demonstrators protesting the funeral were trying to enter the grounds, witnesses said there were no signs that the crowd tried to breach police lines at the society’s gates. Rather, they said the right-wing demonstrator threw bottles and rocks.

Police declined immediate comment on the dynamics.

In a statement, the society said it agreed to perform the funeral at the family’s request because “no matter what the guilt or sins” anyone who dies reconciled with God and the Church “has the right to celebrate Mass and a funeral.”

“We hereby reiterate our rejection of all forms of anti-Semitism and racial hatred but also of hatred in all its forms,” the society said.

COLORADO SHOOTING

Officer: Holmes Gave ‘Self-satisfying’ Smirk

BY DAN ELLIOTT
Associated Press

CENTENNIAL, Colo. • A police officer responding to the deadly Colorado theater shooting testified Tuesday that he asked James Holmes twice whether he had an accomplice, but Holmes only looked at him and smiled.

Officer Justin Grizzle described the smile as “a self-satisfying offensive smirk” during a pretrial hearing over Holmes’ statements to police before he was read his Miranda rights.

Holmes

Grizzle and officer Jason Sweeney were among the first officers to arrive at the back exit to the theater on July 20, 2012, and found Holmes standing beside his car. It was a chaotic scene with screaming and bloodied victims still fleeing the theater as officers handcuffed Holmes and searched him.

They said Holmes didn’t resist when they told him first to raise his hands, then to lie on the ground.

Sweeney said that when he asked Holmes if there was another shooter, Holmes answered “No, it’s just me.”

Sweeney said officers couldn’t see through the tinted passenger side windows to detect whether anyone was inside, so they looked in through the open driver’s door. No one was inside.

“It was just chaos with everybody trying to figure out what was going on,” Sweeney said.

According to documents and testimony in the case, officers also asked Holmes questions about weapons and explosives. Roughly two hours would pass before the chaos subsided and detectives would read Holmes his rights — anything you say can be used against you.

Holmes’ lawyers argue that delay violated his constitutional rights and that anything he told the arresting officers should be barred from his trial.

Prosecutors say that the officers urgently needed to know whether Holmes had an accomplice who could still be shooting and killing people at the Century 16 theater in Aurora. They contend that the questions were legal under a public-safety exemption to the Miranda rule.

Barring the use of Holmes’ statements would likely have a limited impact on his trial because his lawyers have acknowledged he was the shooter and the trial is expected to focus on whether or not he was legally insane at the time of the shooting.

Holmes is accused of slipping into a suburban Denver theater and opening fire on more than 400 people who were watching a midnight showing of a Batman movie. Twelve were killed and 70 injured.

Holmes, then 24, had just quit a Ph.D. program in neuroscience at the University of Colorado, Denver.

He pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity to more than 160 counts of murder and attempted murder. His lawyers say he was in the grip of a psychotic episode.

Prosecutors are seeking the death penalty.

High Court Will Review EPA Global Warming Rules

BY MARK SHERMAN AND DINA CAPPIELLO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Supreme Court agreed Tuesday to decide whether to block key aspects of the Obama administration’s plan aimed at cutting power plant and factory emissions of gases blamed for global warming.

The justices said they will review a unanimous federal appeals court ruling that upheld the government’s unprecedented regulation of carbon dioxide and five other heat-trapping gases.

The question in the case is whether the Environmental Protection Agency’s authority to regulate automobile emissions of greenhouse gases as air pollutants, which stemmed from a 2007 Supreme Court ruling, also applies to power plants and factories.

The court’s decision essentially puts on trial a small but critical piece of President Barack Obama’s toolbox to tackle global warming — a requirement that companies expanding existing industrial facilities or building new ones that would increase overall pollution must evaluate ways to reduce the carbon they release, as well. For many industrial facilities, this is the only way heat-trapping gases will be regulated, until the EPA sets national standards.

That’s because the administration’s plans hinge on the high court’s 2007 ruling in Massachusetts v. EPA which said the EPA has the authority, under the Clean Air Act, to limit emissions of greenhouse gases from vehicles. Two years later, Obama’s EPA concluded that the release of carbon dioxide and other heat-trapping gases endangered human health and welfare, a finding the administration has used to extend its authority beyond automobiles to develop national standards for large stationary sources.

The administration currently is at work setting first-time national standards for new and existing power plants, and will move on to other large stationary sources. But in the meantime, the only way companies are addressing global warming pollution is through a permitting program that requires them to analyze the best available technologies to reduce carbon dioxide, the chief greenhouse gas.

The president gave the EPA until next summer to propose regulations for existing power plants, the largest unregulated source of global warming pollution.

EPA Administrator Gina McCarthy said the court will take up “a very narrow legal question” and otherwise confirmed “that EPA has the authority to protect public health by reducing carbon pollution under the Clean Air Act.”

Michael Gerrard, a law professor at Columbia University and director of its Center for Climate Change Law, saw it somewhat differently. “From an environmental standpoint, it is bad, but not catastrophic,” Gerrard said. He added that it would have been far worse if the court decided to question the EPA’s conclusion that greenhouse gases endanger human health and welfare.

Environmental groups generally breathed a sigh of relief that the court rejected calls to overrule its 2007 decision or review the EPA’s conclusion about the health effects of greenhouse gas emissions.

“It’s a green light for EPA to go ahead with its carbon pollution standards for power plants because the court has left standing EPA’s endangerment finding,” said Joanne Spalding, the Sierra Club’s senior managing attorney.

Newtown, Conn., to Keep School Razing Under Wraps

BY DAVE COLLINS
Associated Press

HARTFORD, Conn. • When the old Sandy Hook Elementary School is demolished, building materials will be pulverized on site and metal will be taken away and melted down in an effort to eliminate nearly every trace of the building where a gunman killed 26 people last December.

Contractors also will be required to sign confidentiality agreements and workers will guard the property’s perimeter to prevent onlookers from taking photographs or videos.

The goal is to prevent exploitation of any remnants of the building, Newtown First Selectman E. Patricia Llodra said Tuesday.

“We want to be absolutely certain to do everything we can to protect the privacy of the families and the Sandy Hook community,” she said. “We’re going to every possible length to eliminate any possibility that any artifacts from the building would be taken from the campus and ... end up on eBay.”

Demolition is set to begin next week and be finished before the Dec. 14 anniversary of the shootings.

Town voters last month accepted a state grant of $49.3 million to raze the building and build a new school, which is expected to open by December 2016.

The contractors’ confidentiality agreements, which were first reported Monday by The News-Times of Danbury, forbid public discussion of the site as well as photographs or disclosure of any information about the building.

Llodra, the superintendent of schools and other town officials have been discussing how to handle the demolition for weeks. Llodra said they want to shield the victims’ families and the community from more trauma, and don’t want any part of the school used for personal gain.

Most of the building will be completely crushed and hauled away to an undisclosed location. Some of the demolition dust may be used in the foundation and driveway of the new school, Llodra said. The town also is requiring documentation that metal and other materials that can’t be crushed and are hauled off-site are destroyed, she said.

Aid Group Calls for Humanitarian Access in Syria

BY RYAN LUCAS AND KARIN LAUB
Associated Press

BEIRUT • A general director of Doctors Without Borders called Tuesday for greater access for humanitarian aid to Syrians suffering in their country’s civil war, and urged the international community to show the same urgency to help them as it did to address dismantling Syria’s chemical weapons stockpile.

The Syrian conflict, which began as a largely peaceful uprising against President Bashar Assad in March 2011, has triggered a humanitarian crisis on a massive scale, killing more than 100,000 people, driving nearly 7 million more from their homes and devastating the nation’s cities and towns. With the country now carved up into rebel- and regime-controlled areas, providing desperately needed food and medical aid has become a colossal — and dangerous — task.

“You have an industrial-scale war, but you have a very kind of small-scale humanitarian response,” said Christopher Stokes, a general director for Doctors Without Borders. “There is a recognition that greater humanitarian access is needed for life-saving assistance, but at the same time we don’t see the mobilization.”

The United Nations Security Council issued an appeal in early October for immediate access to all areas of the country to deliver humanitarian aid, including across conflict lines. Still, organizations that provide assistance continue to struggle to reach all the people who need it.

Stokes said the aid community has long been told that it’s impossible to grant full access to all regions affected by the fighting, and that “one side is always blaming the other” for the impasse.

But the recent agreement to grant international inspectors unfettered access to every site linked to Syria’s chemical weapons program “has shown is that it is possible, if the international political willingness is there, to grant access and free movement to aid agencies to go into these enclaves,” Stokes said.

“Cease-fires could be organized as was done to allow chemical weapons inspectors in, they could be organized to allow in medical convoys,” he said.

Doctors Without Borders says it currently runs six field hospitals in rebel-held areas, and supports 70 medical facilities in contested areas of the country and regions controlled by the government or the rebels.

Tanya Ann (Hepworth) Storti

April 16, 1948-Oct. 14, 2013

BOISE • With the recent passing of Tanya Storti, the city of Boise lost one of its most outstanding, adored and compassionate citizens. Tanya passed away in her sleep in the early morning hours of Monday, Oct. 14, 2013, in her home surrounded by those she loved most — her husband, Craig; and three sons, Tyler, Jack and Jeff.

Tanya was born in 1948 in Pocatello to John and Donna Hepworth. After a stint in Salt Lake City, where her father attended law school, Tanya spent the bulk of her childhood in Buhl, Idaho. Though always exceptionally intelligent and a capable student in the traditional school subjects, Tanya tended to focus more of her energy on social endeavors and the arts, especially playing the piano. She further refined her considerable social skills as an undergraduate at the University of Idaho, where despite never missing an opportunity for fun (and occasionally innocent mischief), she earned a degree in English. She forever cherished the lifelong friends and array of memories she made while in Moscow and as a member of the Delta Gamma sorority.

Following graduation, Tanya sought adventure in San Francisco, where she worked at a law firm. She returned to Idaho a couple years later and spent several years as a popular young teacher in Rupert, Idaho. It was during this time that she reconnected with Craig Storti, with whom she had been acquainted back in Buhl. The two married in 1972 and remained best friends and completely in love for 41 years. Craig made her heart flutter. Before settling in Boise to raise their children, the newlyweds (accompanied by Clarence, their first “child” and first of the several basset hound puppies to join the family in subsequent years) lived in multiple locations on both coasts while Craig fulfilled his service as a captain in the Marine Corps. Many of the geographically and culturally diverse people they met during those years remain close friends today.

For the last 40 years, Tanya and Craig have made Boise their home, and that is where together they undertook achieving their highest priority in life — raising three sons. Her boys were her biggest source of pride and her greatest accomplishment.

Being a wife and mother are two areas where Tanya truly shined. As the oldest of four children, she helped raise her younger sister, Janet, and brothers, Charlie and Jeff, especially after the premature loss of their mother to cancer. During that time, she and Craig hosted every holiday and they also opened their home for varying periods of time to Tanya’s brothers and often their friends. Among other things, those visits produced lasting memories and some epic games of Pinochle, in which Tanya’s competitive streak and unmistakable cackle reached legendary status and where many (mostly) unfounded accusations were cast that Tanya was employing some of her dearly departed Grandma Nana’s questionable strategies and score keeping. Many similar card games and athletic competitions followed the extended family to their cabin on the lake in McCall and to the slopes of Sun Valley, where Tanya always held her own and relished the quality time with family amidst the breathtaking scenery.

Despite going to night school to earn her master’s degree (with nearly straight A’s) in psychology from the College of Idaho, Tanya never missed her boys’ basketball games, soccer matches, golf tournaments and other activities. All along, Tanya maintained close contact with an extraordinary group of friends (the “Hogs”), the members of which have been inseparable and continually supportive and nurturing for decades. While raising her sons, Tanya filled the little free time she had with a voracious appetite for books, an occasional session at the antique piano handed down through the Hepworth family, and lots of competitive and recreational tennis. She also was at the helm for a successful “Follies” production on behalf of the Junior League of Boise.

When the kids left the nest, Tanya undertook what became a years-long series of home redecorating efforts (including a rather notable “gold period”), continued her tradition of throwing fantastic parties and dove headfirst into becoming an avid gardener widely known for her prized tomatoes. Though their children’s educational and professional careers spread them to various locations across the nation, Tanya and Craig have enjoyed countless family get-togethers in and out of state for holidays and (more often) for no particular occasion whatsoever. Always a phenomenal cook herself, Tanya took the lead on such trips in experimenting with whatever exotic and gourmet cuisines were available.

Tanya accomplished all of the foregoing (and so much more) while also fighting breast cancer on three separate occasions, each approximately 10 years apart. Each time, Tanya directly approached the disease with the tenacity, good nature and humor with which she tackled every aspect of her genuinely full life. She overcame intensive treatment regimens to conquer her cancer in the late 1980s and late 1990s and took great pride in sharing her wisdom, experience and compassion with a number of other cancer patients who contacted her for advice. When the cancer resurfaced in 2011 following a long overdue family golf trip to Scotland, she fought a brave and relentless battle for two years, during which she faced many incredible obstacles. Throughout, Tanya never once felt sorry for herself or made any excuses and instead masked her constant pain and discomfort in order to ease the burden on her family and friends. Thankfully, her battle and her life came to an end absolutely on her terms and with her family by her side.

Tanya was preceded in death by her maternal grandmother, Maud “Nana” James; her parents, John and Donna Hepworth; and Blossom (her second basset hound). She is survived by her sister, Janet (Lynn) Askew; brothers, Charlie (Margaret) Hepworth and Jeff (Leslie) Hepworth; her husband, Craig; sons, Tyler (Natalie) Storti, Jack Storti and Jeff Storti; numerous dear nieces and nephews; and by her third basset hound, Norman.

The funeral is scheduled for 2 p.m. Friday, Oct. 18, at St. Michael’s Episcopal Cathedral, 518 N. Eighth St. in Boise, Idaho. In lieu of flowers, the family respectfully requests that friends and family consider donations to the St. Luke’s Health Foundation or Saint Alphonsus Breast Care Center.

Memories and condolences may be shared with the family on Tanya’s memorial webpage at summersfuneral.com.

Shirley Price Jolley

April 26, 1924-Oct. 15, 2013

BURLEY • Shirley Price Jolley, 89, of Burley, passed away at the Cassia Regional Medical Center in Burley in the early morning of Tuesday, Oct. 15, 2013, from a sudden illness.

Shirley was born April 26, 1924, in Oakley, Idaho, to Lucia Claire Hunter and Horace Eugene Price. She was the second of five children. She graduated from Burley High School in 1942. Soon after, she married the love of her life, Frank Dearold Jolley, on July 7, 1942, in the Logan Utah LDS Temple. She always had a strong testimony of the temple and of eternal families. After Frank passed away, she often spoke of being reunited with him in the eternities. She was a devoted and beloved mother, grandmother and great-grandmother. She knew and loved each of her posterity and was a force of good in their lives. Every year, each child would receive a heartfelt, handwritten birthday card from Grandma Jolley with her signature $2 bill enclosed.

Her heart was in the kitchen. When we weren’t raiding her cookie jar, we were sitting down with her listening to her sing old war tunes and telling us about her many adventures. She was constantly crocheting and doing crosswords. She was an avid reader and was always teaching us new words. Shirley was a faithful member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. She faithfully served in various callings, including Relief Society and Young Women president. She was teaching the Beehive class when she was 80 years old. She adored seeing her grandchildren serve missions and doing temple work. She was a perfect example of unwavering faith, prayer and righteousness to her family and countless others.

She is survived by her five children, Luanne (Bob) Shepherd of Albuquerque, N.M., Nancy (Larry) Plowgian of Salt Lake City, Utah, Reed Jolley of Burley, Patricia (Richard) Ellis of Salt Lake City, Utah, and Julie (Kent) Pincock of Burley; 21 grandchildren; 65 great-grandchildren; one great-great-grandchild; and her two sisters, Sue Sheen and Jo Thompson. She was preceded in death by her husband, Frank; her parents; and her two brothers, Larry and Robert Price.

The funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Friday, Oct. 18, at the Burley LDS 3rd and 7th Ward Church, 2200 Oakley Ave. in Burley, with Bishop David Hansen officiating. Burial will be in Gem Memorial Gardens. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 17, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 9 until 9:45 a.m. Friday at the church.

BUHL • Martin Vaclav Novak, 87, of Buhl, passed away Saturday, Oct. 12, 2013, at his home.

Martin was born March 3, 1926, to Martin Novak and Anna Novak Holeinsky in Buhl, Idaho. Martin attended grade school at Deep Creek School and graduated from Castleford High School in 1943. After graduation, Martin enlisted in the Marine Corps, where he served as a cook, a driver and a sharpshooter in Iwo Jima during World War II. When he returned home, he worked in the potato industry, where he met and married his only true love, Mildred Brixey. Together they had five children. Martin worked for the Pet Milk Company for 40-plus years until he retired. He also farmed west of Buhl for almost 50 years.

He was preceded in death by his parents; his wife, Millie; daughter, Judy; one brother; and one grandson. Martin leaves behind his children, Joyce Freeman, Justine (Lonnie) Wright, Janice Carter (John Peterson) and John Novak; 15 grandchildren; and 26 great-grandchildren.

Dad loved to fish and hunt, but most of all he loved his family. He will be best remembered for his loving, echoing, loud voice (so the neighbors say), his honesty, integrity and thriftiness. He will be greatly missed by his children and grandchildren.

The funeral for Martin will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Oct. 18, at the First Christian Church in Buhl, Idaho. A viewing will be held between 5 and 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 17, at Farmer Funeral Chapel in Buhl, Idaho.

William David Tandy

Aug. 9, 1951-Oct. 12, 2013

FARMINGTON, Utah • On Saturday, Oct. 12, 2013, William (Bill) David Tandy returned peacefully to his Heavenly Father after a courageous battle with leukemia (AML) surrounded by his family, who will miss him mightily in their lives.

He was born Aug. 9, 1951, in Lynwood, Calif., the only son and youngest of three children born to Ervin Lee Tandy and Marge O'Dell Tandy. He graduated from Granada Hills High School in San Fernando Valley, Calif. He joined the United States Air Force in 1971 with the rank of airman. He left the military briefly to serve an LDS mission to Spain. When he returned from his mission, he attended BYU, where he met and married Rajeanna Martin, formerly of Burley, Idaho, in the Salt Lake LDS Temple. He rejoined the Air Force and, over their 35-year marriage, they raised five children and lived in many places around the world. After retiring from the military as a lieutenant colonel, they settled in the Salt Lake City area.

Bill loved his family and enjoyed doing many things with them, especially fishing. He also loved to serve others in whatever capacity he was called upon to do. He was active in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints since his conversion at age 19.

He was preceded in death by his parents and several aunts and uncles. He is survived by his wife, Rajeanna Martin; their five children, William David Tandy Jr., Sarah Rajeanna Styles (Craig), Matthew John Tandy (Christina), Jennifer Marie Lee (Gerald) and Amanda Susan Tandy; seven grandchildren, Cameron Styles, Levi Tandy, Thomas Lee, Wyatt Lee, Crystal Lee, Jessica Lee and Kia Lee; his sisters, Karen Tandy Pelle and Susan Tandy Olson (John); two nephews, Chuck and Casey; and several cousins.

Magic Valley Sprouts New Restaurants

BY JOE CADOTTE
jcadotte@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • In two months, two restaurants have opened in the Magic Valley and another pair are on the way.

The eateries will collectively account for around 75 jobs in the area.

Most of the restaurants are well received or highly anticipated by a growing population in south-central Idaho. Others receive mixed reviews.

What's certain is food options in the area are becoming more diverse as communities expand.

What's new?

GREAT HARVEST BREAD

Thirty-one people have written reviews on tripadvisor.com about Great Harvest in Idaho Falls, most rate the store "Excellent" or "Very Good," a handful rate the Idaho Falls location as "Poor" or "Terrible."

The Bread Company that opened in Twin Falls Sept. 27 has been well-received according to the store's owners, but haven't been around long enough to garner a solid online review status.

"I haven't had much time to get out and talk to other business owners. People from Fred Meyer come in all the time and tells us how happy they are we're here," said Sophia Bates, co-owner. "We get a lot of that. We do have some new customers that have never tried Great Harvest Bread, they're surprised at all we offer."

Sophia and Derek Bates desire to open a bakery has been rising for more than 10 years, when they saw Twin Falls as the growing hub of south-central Idaho, they put their resources toward opening a franchise here.

"It's been extremely challenging. We aren't business majors, we didn't go to school in business," Sophia Bates said. "We just had to have the support of the franchise to help us, they have supported us immensely every step of the way. We did everything that needed to happen to help the business come alive, a lot of things we did was a real learning process along the way."

While she is new to the area, Sophia Bates plans to modify their menu to match the encroaching holiday season.

"We're just going to continue to work hard and become more efficient in our production, try and jump more into the community as much as we can, serve the community and we just are trying to do our best to nourish people with our bread," she said.

Great Harvest's sandwich lineup in Twin Falls includes:

- Ham & Swiss: Tender slices of honey smoked ham and Swiss cheese
- Turkey & Swiss: Lightly smoked turkey breast and Swiss cheese
- Roast Beef & Provolone: Sliced roast beef and aged provolone

Great Harvest Signature Sandwiches are made with thin sliced red onion, romaine lettuce, sliced tomato, salt and pepper; and with the recommended bread or your choice of sandwich bread.

- California Cobb: Fresh avocado, smoked turkey breast, and crispy bacon, with a bleu cheese spread
- Pepper Bleu Roast Beef: Roast beef with bleu cheese spread

- Louisville Chicken Salad: Chunks of white and dark meat chicken in a seasoned mayonnaise dressing with sweet & spicy pecans
- Tuna Salad: Chunk white albacore tuna with a seasoned mayonnaise dressing
- Harvest Veggie: Fresh pepper rings, cucumber slices, provolone and cheddar cheeses with red pepper garlic spread

CACTUS GRILL

This summer has been a rollercoaster ride for the Cactus Grill, from local hot dog stand legend to the sole Kimberly sitdown restaurant.

When Home Depot decided to evict the Cactus Grill from its parking lot earlier this summer in Twin Falls, the Times-News received dozens of comments from people lamenting the legendary hot food stand.

Since reopening as a restaurant in Kimberly Aug. 8, owner Billy Elser said things have been going beyond his expectations.

"Business is smokin' man, just incredible and then some," Elser said. "We did half a year's sales in four weeks."

While online reviews are limited about the grill, the sheer word-of-mouth praise about the American food restaurant is far reaching, most who know them, praise them.

While hot dogs were the favorite at the Twin Falls location, Elser said wieners aren't as much of a hit at the restaurant, but the redone menu stands on its own.

"Our biggest complaint: we're too small," he said. "We seat approximately 42 people. The first eight weeks we were open, it was standing room only."

Some of the Cactus Grill menu includes: burgers, sandwiches, wraps, hand-cut steaks, seafood and salads. The most popular item so far is the Tuscan Chicken and Pasta: Thinly sliced chicken breast, crimini mushrooms, sundried tomatoes, bacon and a house spiced cream sauce over angel hair.

Soon to Open in Twin Falls

DICKEY'S BARBECUE PIT

Based in Dallas, Dickey's is the largest barbecue chain with 340 locations nationwide, said J.T. Thomson, franchiser for the Twin Falls location.

Outside of a handful of backyard pit masters and the standard ribs on area menus, south-central Idaho is considered by many to be "barbecue starved."

While Dickey's aims to strike the missing barbecue link in Twin Falls, the buffet style pit has mixed reviews online.

Online customer reviews from various locations range from "the best barbecue I've ever had" to "the toughest and blandest meat I've ever had and overpriced for what they offer."

Texas-raised pit master Omar Alvarez of Burley said Dickey's is "not one of the better chains, but will probably pack them in."

Dickey's franchiser Thomson says it's the best barbecue on earth.

"We slow smoke our meat onsite. We use real hickory wood. We get whole briskets, choice cuts, rub and marinate them," Thomson said. "It's the real deal. Our ribs are amazing. We won the Blue Ribbon at the 2013 Utah State Fair for best ribs."

Wintertime is the busiest season for Dickey's, Thompson said. Dickey's offers smoked turkeys for Thanksgiving.

"Catering is absolutely one of the most important aspects of our business," he said. "It brings home families and get-togethers."

Dickey's is expected to open in time for Thanksgiving, Thompson said.

The menu includes barbecue sandwiches with pickles, onions and a tomato-based sauce, as well as meat plates and "big barbecue" family options for picnics, families and catering.

The meat plates include:

- Texas style chopped beef brisket
- Sliced beef brisket
- Southern pulled pork
- Virginia style ham
- Marinated chicken breast
- Tender turkey breast
- Old recipe polish sausage
- Spicy cheddar sausage
- Fall-off-the-bone pork ribs

Sides include:

- Barbecue beans
- Creamy coleslaw
- Potato salad
- Jalapeno beans
- Green beans with bacon
- Baked potato casserole
- Caesar salad
- Fried okra

GHENGIS KHAN MONGOLIAN RESTAURANT

Entrepreneur Jonathan Spendlove of Mountain Home wants to open the Mongolian Restaurants in Twin Falls to cap off his retirement from Big Sky Oil Company three years ago.

"I've always wanted to open a restaurant," Spendlove said. "Choosing Mongolian was a spur of the moment decision, I've always loved Mongolian food."

Although there are at least two other restaurants in Twin Falls that sell Mongolian food, Spendlove said his will be the only one that specializes in the style exclusively.

"Basically the other two you have in town, A Mongolian grill is an afterthought," he said. "That's what we're going to put all of our effort to."

Like many others, Spendlove saw Twin Falls as the best spot in the state to invest.

"It's booming in Twin Falls, your population is good and I felt it was a good move," he said.

Spendlove hopes to open his grill before December.

what to serve vegetarians when they come for Thanksgiving or actually any dinner. This squash dish is so delicious everyone will want it.

7. If squash is not tender, continue to cook. You can remove the top and cook until done.

ONLINE: Idaho Shut Out of 2013 GABF Medals

Community blogger Steve Koonce writes about craft beer at "Idaho on Tap."

An excerpt from his latest post: "Sadly, no Idaho breweries scored any hardware at this year's Great American Beer Festival. However, the winner's circle expanded to include a bunch of breweries that had never won before or breweries that had only won a couple of times in the past. Case-in-point, the top three breweries - Figueroa Mountain Brewing (California), Dry Dock Brewing Company (Colorado) and Beachwood Brewing and BBQ (California) - were all relative unknowns that took home five medals each. Beachwood also took home best Mid-Size brewpub of the year..."

AUTUMN WINES

Here are wines to help with a sudden fall chill, including some from the historic California wineries featured in the Smithsonian’s program “America’s Wine: The Legacy of Prohibition.”

DAVE MCINTYRE
Special to The Washington Post

Gundlach Bundschu Merlot 2009/2010

Three stars
Sonoma Valley, Calif., $32
It’s easy to focus on new names and labels while taking older wineries for granted. And in our decade-long aversion to merlot since the movie “Sideways” made us fall for pinot noir, we tend to forget how good merlot can be. Here’s a worthy reminder. Alcohol by volume: 14.5 percent.

Bacchus in D.C. and Maryland.

Pedroncelli Zinfandel Mother Clone 2011

GREAT VALUE Two and a half stars
Dry Creek Valley, Sonoma County, Calif., $18
“Mother clone” refers to vines propagated from the original vines in the vineyard purchased by John Pedroncelli Sr. in 1927. This wine is textbook Dry Creek zin, with raspberry and cranberry flavors and a spicy edge that suggests wild sage. ABV: 14.8 percent.
DOPS.

La Posta Campodifiori 2012

Two stars
Benevento IGP, Italy, $22
This lovely wine from central Italy sings for its supper of seafood, with briny minerality and pinpoint acidity backing its core of citrus. It’s a food wine, though I can hardly resist gulping it. ABV: 13.5 percent.

Kysela. Sawtooth Skyline Red 2010

GREAT VALUE Two stars
Idaho, $15
I’m a big fan of this winery for its outstanding Riesling, delightful chardonnay and succulent syrah. This juicy blend of cabernet sauvignon, merlot, tempranillo, petite sirah, petite verdot, malbec, syrah and grenache defies any paradigm of a red blend from anywhere around the world by combining Bordeaux, Spain, California and the Rhone in one. It’s a wine that could be found nowhere else but America, and it shows a sense of adventure that comes through in the glass. ABV: 13.5 percent.
Vino 50/Siema.

Enate Chardonnay-234 2012

GREAT VALUE Two stars
Somontano, Spain, $15
Spanish chardonnay? Why not, when it’s this good: an excellent unoaked version with lots of tree-fruit flavors and mineral talc notes, along with a hint of tropical fruit and an invigorating citrus finish. No, it isn’t masquerading as Chablis, the pinnacle of unoaked chardonnay, but this is a delicious expression of the grape. ABV: 14 percent.

M Touton.

Dilled Salmon and Mushroom Cakes

BY STEPHANIE WITT
SEDGWICK
Special to The Washington Post

Makes 6 salmon cakes

These cakes were inspired by the showy Russian dish called kulebiaka, a salmon fillet covered with a mushroom mixture, then wrapped in puff pastry. But this version is streamlined and quick. It might not have as much wow factor, but the winning flavor combination is there in a dish good for any night of the week. I like to pair the cakes with a green vegetable and rice or orzo spiked with freshly grated lemon zest and chopped fresh dill.

Ingredients
1 1/2 tablespoons mild olive or vegetable oil
1/2 cup finely chopped onion (about 2 1/2 ounces)
4 ounces white or cremini mushrooms, cleaned and stemmed, then cut into generous 1/4-inch cubes (about 1 3/4 cups)
Kosher salt
Freshly ground black pepper
1/4 cup dry white wine
1 pound skinless, boneless salmon fillet, cut into 1-to-2-inch chunks
1/2 cup plus 2 tablespoons panko bread crumbs
2 tablespoons whole or low-fat sour cream (do not use nonfat)

2 tablespoons chopped dill
Steps

Heat 1/2 tablespoon of the oil in a medium nonstick saute pan or skillet over medium-high heat. Once the oil shimmers, add the onion and stir to coat. Reduce the heat to medium and cook for about 3 minutes, stirring a few times, until the onion starts to soften. Add the mushrooms. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Increase the heat to medium-high; cook, stirring every minute or so, until the mushrooms start to brown. Stir in the white wine and cook for 2 to 3 minutes, until almost all of the wine has evaporated. Transfer the mushroom-onion mixture to a clean plate to cool for 15 minutes. Wipe out the pan, which you’ll use to cook the salmon cakes.

Pulse the salmon in a food processor, being careful not to reduce it beyond pea-size chunks. Transfer to a mixing bowl along with the mushroom-onion mixture, 2 tablespoons of the panko bread crumbs, the sour cream and the dill. Lightly season with salt and/or pepper. Mix gently to incorporate, then form into 6 balls of equal size. Heat the remaining tablespoon of oil in the same pan or skillet over medium-high heat. Spread the remaining 1/2 cup of panko bread crumbs on a plate. Working quickly, place a salmon ball at the center of the crumb plate. Gently flatten it into a 3/4-inch-thick cake. Turn it over to evenly coat both sides with the crumbs. Transfer to the hot pan. Repeat until all of the cakes are formed and in the pan; discard any remaining crumbs. Reduce the heat to medium; cook the cakes for about 4 minutes on the first side, until golden, then turn them over and cook for about 3 minutes, until the second side is lightly browned and the cake is cooked through. Transfer the cakes to a platter or individual plates to rest for 5 minutes before serving.

Walmart Announces Disciplined Expansion

NEW YORK (AP) • Walmart Stores Inc. is embracing a disciplined approach to expansion as it responds to a challenging global economy and increasing consumer demands for more convenience.

The world’s largest retailer said that it’s closing some stores in China and Brazil to boost productivity in those markets, while it’s accelerating the expansion of small stores in the U.S. at a faster pace than that of its supercenters. It aims to tether these small stores to supercenters, which will act as mini warehouse hubs for their smaller cousins.

The plans, announced at the retailer’s annual analysts’ meeting on Tuesday, come as the discounter aims to cut costs in the face of increasing pressure from expanding competition. That includes online retailers like Amazon.com as well as dollar stores, which have been rapidly adding locations and winning customers with low prices and easy access.

Walmart expects to roll out the new distribution strategy in the first of three markets in March, though it declined to say where. It is testing some of the aspects of the plan in areas like Gentry, Ark., where it operates a Walmart Express store, which is less than one-tenth the size of a typical supercenter.

The retailer operates more than 4,000 stores in the U.S., most of them supercenters. But it’s seeing its smaller stores like Neighborhood Markets, which currently number about 300, and Walmart Express, which operate 20 locations, as vehicles for growth.

BACKtalk

If you wear out your body, where are you going to live?

Fortunately, your body is more durable than your car, appliances, etc. Unfortunately, we sometimes take better care of our things than we do ourselves.

A healthy body is capable of repairing injuries and maintaining proper function. All functions of the body are under the control of the nervous system. Stress to the nervous system can result in malfunction. One of the most common areas of stress occurs in the spine.

Stress and strain, poor posture and trauma can all lead to spinal misalignments, loss of balance and movement. These changes can cause irritation to the nervous system as it leaves the spine. The result is pain and dis-ease.

Basiled Beets and Strawberries

Makes 1 1/4 cups (7 servings)
MAKE AHEAD: The puree can be refrigerated in individual containers for up to 1 week or frozen for up to 6 months. From Tucker Yoder, executive chef at the Clifton Inn in Charlottesville, Va.

- Ingredients
- 1 cup peeled, chunked raw beets (may substitute 4.2 ounces peeled cooked beets)
 - 1/4 cup reserved water (optional)
 - 1 cup hulled, coarsely chopped strawberries
 - 12 basil leaves, coarsely chopped
- Steps

Heat a few inches of water in a medium saucepan over medium-high heat.

Place the beets in a steamer basket that fits in the saucepan. Cover and steam for 10 to 12 minutes or until the sharp tip of a knife passes easily through the beets. Reserve 1/4 cup of the water from the pan.

Transfer the beets to a food processor, along with the strawberries and basil. Puree until smooth; if desired, add some or all of the reserved water for a looser consistency. Cool to room temperature before serving.

This dish was inspired by her fish tacos with mango salsa, which are a favorite at her table.

- Ingredients
- Flesh of 1 mango, cut into small cubes
 - 1 large red onion, diced (1/4 cup) and sliced (1 cup)
 - 7 ounces cooked corn kernels, drained
 - 8 leaves basil, cut into thin strips
 - 3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil

- Juice of 1 lime
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cumin
- Kosher salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- Pinch ground cayenne pepper (optional)
- 1 pound skinless tilapia or cod fillets
- Flesh of 1 ripe avocado, cut into slices, for serving
- 1 cup spinach, stemmed, then coarsely chopped
- 1/4 cup sour cream, for serving (optional)
- Eight 6-inch flour tortillas, warmed
- Water

Steps

For the adults: Combine half of the mango, the diced red onion, corn, basil, 1 tablespoon of the oil, half of the lime juice and all the cumin in a mixing bowl. Season with salt and black pepper to taste and with the cayenne pepper, if desired.

Heat the remaining 2 tablespoons of oil in a large saucepan over medium heat. Once the oil shimmers, add the sliced onion and stir to coat. Cook for 2 to 3 minutes, then add the fish and cook for 3 to 4 minutes per side, just until it flakes when poked at with a fork. Reserve 2 tablespoons of the cooked fish (without any onion) for the baby's portion.

Add the remaining lime juice to the fish-onion mixture; season with salt and pepper to taste. Transfer to a bowl for serving. Place three-quarters of the avocado, a small bit of the chopped spinach, the sour cream, if desired, and the warm tortillas, wrapped in a cloth napkin, in separate bowls for serving.

For the baby: Combine the remaining mango, 2 tablespoons of the cooked fish and the remaining chopped spinach in a separate deep mixing cup; use an immersion (stick) blender to puree until smooth. Add water 1 tablespoon at a time to achieve the desired consistency.

Use a fork to mash the reserved avocado with a teaspoon or two of water in a small bowl to a smooth, soft consistency. Serve with the pureed fish mixture.

Where to Find Baby Food Recipes

I found Jenny Carenco's "Bebe Gourmet: 100 French-Inspired Baby Food Recipes For Raising an Adventurous Eater" to be very useful. I also found great ideas in "The Baby and Toddler Cookbook: Fresh, Homemade Foods for a Healthy Start" and the "Beaba Babycook Recipe Book." A lot of times though, I will simply start with what's freshest at the market and then let my imagination wander from there.

Get Gourmet Sausages in Chicago

BY CARYN ROUSSEAU
Associated Press

CHICAGO • Doug Sohn has made an art of the traditional Chicago-style hot dog, replete with mustard, onions, pickle relish, dill spear, tomatoes, celery salt and sport peppers. (No ketchup!) But if you stop your order there, you'll miss much of the joy of eating at his Hot Doug's restaurant on the city's northwest side. Because what really draws the crowds — and foodies from afar — is Sohn's menu filled with rare sausages curated to offer up spicy and sweet, ethnic and American, and all served for about $10 or less.

It's what earns Hot Doug's the title "The Sausage Superstore and Encased Meat Emporium." Things like smoked and spicy alligator sausage with crayfish etouffee mayonnaise and smoked blue cheese drizzled with honey; or apple, pear and port wine elk sausage with cherry-apricot mustard, double cream brie and pate de campagne; or even red mole turkey sausage with chipotle Dijonnaise, queso asadero and fried tortillas.

Sohn has a rotating stockpile of about 100 recipes that he's created and gets his meats from about dozen sausage makers. He says he knew he hit it big when the sausage companies started coming to him.

So there are two menus, the basic hot dogs, Polish sausages, bratwursts and corn dogs. That menu doesn't change, though the names of the dishes do. For example, a hot link is now known as an Anna Kendrick (previously Britney Spears, Jennifer Garner or Keira Knightley).

The other menu lists the gourmet dogs and it changes week-to-week, based on inventory, and has about a dozen dogs on it.

"There are new ones coming on and off the board all the time," Sohn said recently.

He also serves fries made in rendered duck fat, but only on Fridays and Saturdays. Foie gras is on the menu, too. This got Sohn into some trouble a few years ago when Chicago banned the goose and duck liver delicacy. He was fined $250 when he refused to stop serving it. The city later repealed the ban.

It's no surprise that the line into Hot Doug's can stretch along the side of Sohn's brick Chicago two-flat before his 10:30 a.m. opening, and sometimes down the block. He's got fans. His book, "Hot Doug's: The Book," features pages filled with people who have Hot Doug's tattoos.

Inside, the walls are decorated with hot dog-themed pictures, posters and memorabilia, including "Critical Links: A History of Encased Meats."

Sohn said his clientele include tourists, mostly on Saturdays, but also mothers and children, police officers and construction workers. You can tell it's important that he not only be seen as a

JEROME REPEATS
AS BOYS SOCCER
DISTRICT CHAMPS

Jerome's Jose Granados (7) and Wood River's Sage Kelly (10) fight for possession of the ball during the 4A District IV boys soccer championship Tuesday at Jerome High School. Jerome won the match 1-0.

For second year in a row and fourth time in the past six years, Jerome leads 4A District IV.

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

JEROME • For the second year in a row and the fourth time in six years, the Jerome High boys soccer team won the 4A District IV championship Tuesday.

Tigers goalkeeper Edgar Juarez kept his net clean and Jose Granados' goal in the 18th minute was all Jerome needed to defeat Wood River 1-0.

"It's an honor. It's our town, we all live here, we all grew up here. We're pretty much a family," said Juarez. "It means a lot. It's an honor walking in to school and seeing what we accomplished right there in the trophy case."

As district champ, Jerome (14-4-0) qualifies for the 4A state tournament, Oct. 24-26 at Brothers Park in Caldwell.

Wood River (9-3-4) must travel to Twin Falls on Thursday to face the Bruins. The winner of that game will earn the district's second state playoff berth.

Jerome's repeat title didn't come easy.

"Tough competition, Wood River, always. They put up a fight, but we managed to get the win," said Jerome's Yovani Martinez. "It feels extremely great to get this win."

The Tigers scored when Antonio Granados sent the ball through to his cousin Jose Granados, who beat the keeper one-on-one.

"Pretty lucky," Jose Granados said.

Juarez earned the shutout despite dinging his shoulder during a corner kick.

"No pain, no gain," said Juarez. "Pain is a weakness, you've got to keep going and push through it. That's what I did and we came out with a win."

LOCAL ROUNDUP

Twin Falls Boys KO Canyon Ridge

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Taylor Haman scored twice as the Twin Falls boys soccer team finally beat Canyon Ridge this season, eliminating the Riverhawks from the 4A District IV Tournament on Tuesday with a 3-1 win.

David Geske scored the other goal for the Bruins (9-7-2), who will host Wood River on Thursday for the district's second and final berth in the 4A state tournament.

Canyon Ridge's goal came from Om Basnet, after the Riverhawks had fell behind 3-0.

They end their season at 12-3-1.

3A DISTRICT IV TOURNAMENT GOODING 3, BUHL 2

TWIN FALLS • There was no fairytale ending for Canyon Ridge this time.

The Twin Falls girls soccer team quashed any thoughts of a second straight upset early in Tuesday's 4A District IV championship match, scoring twice in the first 15 minutes on the way to an 8-0 win for the Bruins' third successive district championship.

The game came three days after Canyon Ridge stunned Wood River 2-0 in the tournament semifinals.

"That was a wake-up call for us, and I looked at it like if they beat Wood River, maybe it can happen to us too," said Twin Falls' Lindsey Williams, who scored a hat trick in the title game. "We knew that they were a very improved team and we needed to get it together for this one."

The Bruins (12-4-1) have never lost to Canyon Ridge, but there were stretches where the Riverhawks (11-7-0) managed to hold Twin Falls at bay. There were the two goals in the first 15 minutes, but that was it for the first half.

Then, though, Twin Falls blitzed the Canyon Ridge goal for a half-dozen in the second half. Maddie Watkins scored twice, and there were solo goals by Becca Behrens, Peyton Karl and junior varsity call-up Leslie Varela, who stabbed home the final goal with a deft touch from the outside of her right foot.

"I really think it's a mental thing," Canyon Ridge coach Christa Tackett said. "We've never even gotten to third place (in the district tournament) before, so we need to focus on the positive things that are happening. I'm sure the girls will come out ready to go, because they really do want (to qualify for state)."

Twin Falls advances to the state tournament next weekend in Caldwell. The Bruins finished third last year in their fifth straight tournament appearance. But when they're judging themselves against the likes of perennial powers Centure, Bishop Kelly and Middleton, third place may not cut it this year.

"We want to be there at the end," Watkins said. "I don't think we'll be satisfied with anything other than No. 1."

The Riverhawks have another chance to get there, when they play Wood River for the second time in five days, this time at home.

Canyon Ridge's win over Wood River on Saturday was the first one over the Wolverines in program history. Now they'll have to do it again, but the Riverhawks will have an interested party from across Blue Lakes Boulevard.

"Obviously, first we want to make sure we're there," Williams said about the state tournament. "But after that, when you stop thinking of them as our rivals, I'd really like for them to get there too, and I think they can do it. If they get there, they'll definitely have earned it."

Service Bowl Presale

Advance tickets for the Canyon Ridge-Twin Falls football game, scheduled for Friday, are available for presale at both schools' front offices.

the 3A state tournament.

Juan Carlos Rodriguez also netted for the Trojans (11-2-1), while Jorge Valera scored and had an assist.

Roger Figge scored the goal for the Cutthroats (12-4-2), who host Buhl in a winner-to-state, loser-goes-home game Thursday.

Wendell visits Gooding for the district title on Thursday.

GIRLS SOCCER 4A DISTRICT IV TOURNAMENT WOOD RIVER 7, JEROME 0

TWIN FALLS • Jesse Cole had a hat trick for Wood River as the Wolverines eliminated the Tigers.

Brigitte Thomas, Samantha Sutton, Cheyanne Stopol and Tatum Morell all added single goals.

Jerome ends the season at 5-12-1. Wood River (10-5-1) will play at Canyon Ridge on Thursday.

Whitney Engelmann and Jordan Fitzgerald scored two goals apiece, while Sam Busby also scored for the Community School. Lilly Jenner scored and had three assists in the match.

The Community School (14-0-0) will host Filer on Thursday for the title.

Sherman, Revis Make Lock-down CBs an NFL Must-have

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Darrell Green is not impressed. The Hall of Famer looks around today's NFL and sees a lack of talent at his old job.

"When it is most needed, in my opinion, the corner-back position is probably producing at its lowest level," Green said. "Guys like myself and Deion Sanders and Mike Haynes — this is the time when we would be saying, 'Yes! This is great! We want you to pass.'"

Seattle's Richard Sherman, Tampa Bay's Darrelle Revis and Denver's Champ Bailey think that way, too, making lock-down corner-backs must-haves nowadays. With quarterbacks flinging the football around like never before, those back-end guys get more chances to flourish or fail. They define their teams' Ds.

Still, as Green points out, special ones are rare. Check the numbers: Through Week 6, QBs averaged a passer rating of 81 when targeting players covered by cornerbacks, higher than any season since at least 1995, according to STATS.

"This generation, they're behind the 8-ball, because these offenses and quarter-backs are incredible," said Green, who played for the Washington Redskins from 1983-2002. "Better corner-backs would make defenses better."

Thanks to rules changes and offensive innovation, games are averaging 45.90 points in 2013, which would be the second-most in NFL history (the record is 46.48 in 1948). Games are averaging about 710 total net yards and slightly more than 490 yards passing, both on pace to break marks set in 2012. The 289 touchdown passes are the most through Week 6, an average of 3.14 per game that would be the highest in the Super Bowl era.

"If you keep getting that passing game going more and more, you're going to keep seeing how important it is to have good corners," Bailey said.

"I would say now you've got to have more than one," he said, "and that's the hard part."

Seattle pairs the 6-foot-3 Sherman with 6-foot-4 Brandon Browner.

"If you don't have good corners, it can be a long day," Sherman said, "regardless of what you're doing on offense or how your front seven is playing."

Used to be wideouts got a ton of attention: Randy Moss, Terrell Owens, Chad Ochocinco.

Now it's the diva DBs.

Sherman, for one, is "a vociferous guy," as his college teammate at Stanford, Colts quarterback Andrew Luck, put it. Sherman isn't shy about telling the world just how good he is — he engaged Revis in a Twitter spat over who's better — and the entire NFL notices what he says and how well he defends.

"The kid from Seattle's got a big mouth," Jets coach Rex Ryan said in a bit of takes-one-to-know-one commentary from a top defensive mind, "but he can play, you know?"

Ask Sherman to list top corners, and he'll mention Revis, New England's Aqib Talib, Cleveland's Joe Haden, Tennessee's Alterraun Verner, Arizona's Patrick Peterson.

"Elites," Sherman called them.

Ryan used to have Revis; he still has Antonio Cromartie.

"You can be more aggressive. You can play more man coverage — true lock-down, man coverage — if you're fortunate to have one like that. Some of the other ones, you've just got to play zone," Ryan said. "We want to attack you and we want to dictate. We don't want to ... just play zone or play scared."

Revis thinks the same way. "I think a lot of DBs panic

in this league, because the (receivers) get up on them and get on top of them," he said.

"I flip it," Revis explained. "They're the ones who are the prey."

Even if Revis didn't have his best outing against Philadelphia's DeSean Jackson on Sunday, he still helped the Bucs with a fumble recovery. Even if Bailey, in his first game this season after spraining his left foot, was troubled Sunday by Justin Blackmon, he still picked off a pass intended for Blackmon on a 2-point conversion attempt that could have pulled the Jaguars into a surprising halftime tie with the Broncos.

These guys change a game's complexion, and not only with pick-6s: There have been 25 interceptions returned for TDs already, putting the league on pace for 70, one fewer than last season, which had the most since the NFL expanded to 16 games in 1978, STATS said.

Superior cornerbacks give a defense more options. They force offenses to alter game plans.

Look at the way Talib shadowed Saints tight end Jimmy Graham on Sunday, helping hold him without a catch.

Through Week 6, STATS has Talib ranked second among NFL cornerbacks for lowest opponent QB rating when targeted, behind only Verner. They're tied with an NFL-high four interceptions.

From 1995 (when STATS data begins) through 2012, Sanders ranked No. 1 in opposing QB rating, followed by Patrick Surtain. Among active corners, Revis was fourth, Atlanta's Asante Samuel sixth, Bailey 13th, Talib 17th. Sherman, in his third NFL season, doesn't have enough targets to qualify; his numbers for 2011-12 would put him second.

And Green? He was eighth during that period.

"Cornerbacks (are) born with something. Not a lot of coaches can teach it. Not a lot of players can play it," Green said. "It's definitely one of the toughest positions. I don't want to get too down on them, because I know what they have to face."

LOCAL BRIEFS

U.S. Stuns Panama, Saves Mexico

Graham Zusi and Aron Johannsson scored in second-half stoppage time, and the United States rallied for a 3-2 win at Panama on Tuesday night that left Mexico's World Cup hopes alive and knocked out the Panamanians.

The U.S., which clinched a World Cup berth last month, didn't use most of its starters, and Gabriel Torres put Panama ahead in the 18th minute in a downpour at Panama City. Michael Orozco tied it the 64th minute, just as Costa Rica took a 2-1 lead at home against Mexico.

Luis Tejada scored in the 83rd, putting Panama within minutes of a fourth-place finish and a berth in next month's playoff against Oceania champion New Zealand. Mexico, which last missed the World Cup in 1990, would have been eliminated.

But Zusi scored 1:24 into three minutes of stoppage time, and Johannsson added his first international goal at the 2:40 mark, giving the U.S. a record-tying 22 points in the hexagonal, the final round of the North and Central American and Caribbean region.

Seven More Reach World Cup

England and defending champion Spain qualified for the World Cup on Tuesday night along with Russia and Bosnia-Herzegovina, which earned its first berth as an independent nation.

Chile and Ecuador earned the final two automatic spots from South America, while Honduras claimed the final automatic berth from the North and Central American and Caribbean region, the 21st of 32 slots for the field in Brazil next June.

Wayne Rooney scored in the 41st minute and Steven Gerrard in the 88th to give England (6-0-4) a 2-0 win over Poland at London's Wembley Stadium and first place in Group H by one point over Ukraine (6-1-3). The Three Lions qualified for their 14th World Cup and fifth in a row.

France, Portugal, Greece, Ukraine, Romania and Iceland also finished second in their groups, winding up in Monday's draw for the eight-team European playoffs next month along with Sweden and Croatia. The four playoff winners also will earn berths.

With a population of just over 300,000, Iceland would be the smallest nation to qualify for a World Cup. Trinidad and Tobago, at about 1.3 million, was at the 2006 tournament in Germany.

The seedings for the playoffs will be determined by Thursday's FIFA rankings. Denmark (4-2-4) had the poorest record among the nine second-place teams and missed out on a playoff berth.

Who's Got Next? Grizz Owner Wants Jordan

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. • Memphis Grizzlies controlling owner Robert Pera is starting just his second season as head of an NBA team, though that isn't stopping him from challenging the game's most iconic player.

Pera, who had a 1-on-1 preseason challenge against Grizzlies guard Tony Allen canceled several weeks ago, decided to seek a contest against Charlotte Bobcats owner Michael Jordan with $1 million going to charity.

The challenge came in a Twitter exchange Monday where Pera apologized about cancellation of the Tony Allen showdown, which would have resulted in a $100,000 donation to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

Someone suggested the Grizzlies owner just change it to an owners match with Pera facing off against Dallas Mavericks owner Mark Cuban.

Pera's response was he would make quick work of Cuban, so instead he called out the third-leading scorer in NBA history.

Taekwondo Olympian from Jamaica Tests Positive

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) • A Jamaican who competed in taekwondo at the London Olympics said Tuesday he tested positive for a banned substance.

Kenneth Edwards said he was notified a month ago about the diuretic and is awaiting results of a backup sample. A diuretic reduces body fluids and can mask drug use. He added he has not competed since July.

"I remain committed to being a professional athlete and would not do anything to compromise that position," he said in a statement. "I have every intention of challenging these findings."

Jason McKay, captain of Jamaica's combined martial arts team, told The Gleaner newspaper he supports Edwards.

"From what we understand, a diuretic has appeared in his sample, which we are sure must be a mistake of some sort because, apart from his unquestionable honesty and integrity, there is no practical reason for him to be taking a diuretic, or any masking agent, when not competing," he said.

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 16, the 289th day of 2013. There are 76 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Oct. 16, 1962, President John F. Kennedy was informed by national security adviser McGeorge Bundy that reconnaissance photographs had revealed the presence of missile bases in Cuba.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1793, during the French Revolution, Marie Antoinette, the queen of France, was beheaded.

In 1859, radical abolitionist John Brown led a group of 21 men in a raid on Harpers Ferry in western Virginia. (Ten of Brown's men were killed and five escaped. Brown and six followers ended up being captured; all were executed.)

In 1901, Booker T. Washington dined at the White House as the guest of President Theodore Roosevelt, whose invitation to the black educator sparked controversy.

In 1912, the Boston Red Sox won the World Series, defeating the New York Giants in Game 8, 3-2 (Game 2 had ended in a tie on account of darkness).

In 1942, the ballet "Rodeo", with music by Aaron Copland and choreography by Agnes de Mille, premiered at New York's Metropolitan Opera House.

In 1943, Chicago Mayor Edward J. Kelly officially opened the city's new subway system during a ceremony at the State and Madison street station.

In 1952, the Charles Chaplin film "Limelight" premiered in London.

In 1962, the New York Yankees won the World Series, defeating the San Francisco Giants in Game 7 at Candlestick Park, 1-0.

In 1972, a twin-engine plane carrying U.S. House Majority Leader Hale Boggs, D-La., and U.S. Rep. Nick Begich, D-Alaska, disappeared while flying over a remote region of Alaska; the aircraft was never found.

In 1978, the College of Cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church chose Cardinal Karol Wojtyla to be the new pope; he took the name John Paul II.

In 1987, a 58-1/2-hour drama in Midland, Texas, ended happily as rescuers freed Jessica McClure, an 18-month-old girl trapped in an abandoned well.

In 1991, a deadly shooting rampage took place in Killeen, Texas, as George Hennard opened fire at a Luby's Cafeteria, killing 23 people before taking his own life.

Ten years ago: The U.N. Security Council unanimously adopted a resolution aimed at attracting more troops and money to help stabilize Iraq and speed its independence. Three American soldiers were killed during a clash at a Shiite Muslim cleric's headquarters in Karbala. Pope John Paul II celebrated his 25 years as pontiff before a huge crowd in St. Peter's Square. The New York Yankees won the American League Championship Series, defeating the Boston Red Sox 6-5 in Game 7.

Five years ago: A volatile Wall Street pulled off another stunning U-turn, transforming a 380-point loss for the Dow Jones industrial average into a 401-point gain.

One year ago: With national polls showing a dead heat three weeks before Election Day, President Barack Obama and Republican nominee Mitt Romney met for their second debate. During the town-hall-style encounter in suburban New York, Obama accused Romney of favoring a "one-point plan" to help the rich at the expense of the middle class, while Romney countered by saying "the middle class has been crushed over the last four years." The Detroit Tigers beat the New York Yankees 2-1 to go up 3-0 in the American League Championship Series.

DEAR ABBY: My 17-year-old daughter confided that she has become sexually involved with her boyfriend and asked if I would buy condoms for her. I agreed that she should protect herself and bought her a box of 12.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

A week later, she informed me that she needed another 12-pack. When I asked why she had run out so quickly, she confessed that she has been supplying them to her girlfriends. Apparently they can't confide in their moms the way she can with me.

My dilemma is that condoms are expensive and, on one hand, I don't want to be the one supplying a group of kids. On the other hand, if I can help to prevent an unwanted pregnancy, maybe it's worth it. What do you think I should do?

— SAFE SEX
ADVOCATE
IN ILLINOIS

DEAR SAFE SEX ADVOCATE: If your daughter's friends are old enough to be sexually active, they and their boyfriends should also be responsible enough to provide their own birth control. Generally, teens do not need the permission of their parents to receive information about it. Because you want to help them avoid unwanted pregnancies (as well as STDs), direct them to the nearest Planned Parenthood Center for low-cost or no-cost birth control and instruction on how to use it. There are 18 of these health centers in Illinois. To find the one closest to you, visit plannedparenthood.org.

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of three wonderful girls. The problem is my husband thinks the way to make them love him is by allowing them everything I don't. I'll give you some examples:

I don't let the girls eat anywhere except at the table, so my husband brings treats into the family room. I try to limit high-sugar/fat items like chips and candy, which he buys for them on a regular basis. I also try to adhere to a regular bedtime schedule, while he thinks nothing of stretching lights-out to an hour or more later.

Then he complains that the girls won't listen to him, so I must be in charge of the discipline. While this makes him Fun Daddy in our house, it makes me

... MEAN MOMMY
IN OHIO

DEAR MOMMY: It appears you're not just raising three wonderful girls, but also coping with an immature, overgrown boy. Parenthood is supposed to be a united, consistent partnership, a team effort. Your husband is sabotaging you and ignoring that one of the responsibilities of parenthood is establishing rules and limits that children should live with.

Your husband needs parenting classes, and if that's not possible, some sessions with a child behavior expert who can explain the consequences of what he's doing to his daughters in the name of being "Fun Daddy." From my perspective, there isn't anything funny about it. You have my sympathy.

DEAR ABBY: I work at a senior retirement community, and the residents have a Halloween party each year. In the past, there were prizes for the three best costumes. However, last year they stopped giving prizes because one of the residents is a professional artist and costume maker, and the association felt it would be unfair to the others to have him compete.

This year it was decided not to hold the contest at all. The residents are disappointed. How can they continue to have the costume contest and include the professional?

DEAR DRESSED UP: Ask the artist/costume designer to be the judge.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

*"She is neither pink nor pale,
And she never will be all mine;
She learned her hands in a fairy-tale,
And her mouth on a valentine."*
— Edna St. Vincent Millay

When the ladies came back from their local duplicate, Cinderella was about to ask how they had done when the look on her stepmother's face persuaded her to stay silent.

Before long, however, a hastily scrawled diagram, showing just the North and South hands of today's deal was thrust under her nose. Before she could suggest a line in four spades, Cinderella's stepmother explained that she had received the friendly defense of ace and a second heart. She had ruffed, cashed the spade ace and king, then led a club toward her hand. East had flown up with the ace and played a third heart, letting the defenders take their ruff for down one.

Whatever Cinderella thought of this line, she was too discreet to do more than sympathize and offer her condolences. One of her stepsisters claimed that she had done much better. After the same lead and continuation, she had won the heart in hand and drawn three rounds of trumps, then had led the diamond queen from her hand. East had signaled count, so West worked out to duck the diamond twice, and therefore declarer went down here as well.

The fairy godmother was looking so smug that Cinderella simply had to ask her what she had done. She too had received the defense of two rounds of hearts, and she explained that she had simply ruffed the second heart high. Now with trumps 3-2 it was easy to take out all the spades and give up a diamond and a club.

ANSWER: Your partner has invited game, and you have a dead-minimum hand with no fit. Yes, you do have two spade stops — that means two tricks if you play the hand in three no-trump. But where are the other seven coming from? Pass and hope partner has a play for his contract.

IF OCTOBER 16 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your natural friendliness attracts people from your circle of co-workers and business acquaintances during the next four to six weeks. Your ambitions are enhanced and a new set of friends might push you in the right direction. In December, you may be inspired to ask for a promotion or seek a better salary. Your networking expertise, as well as your financial maneuverings, can blend into a successful whole, so put crucial end-of-the year financial plans into motion. Singles might find a congenial romantic partner for a short-term relationship.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Put a lid on your brash and carefree ways. Try to be a bit more considerate of co-workers during the next several days. Hold off on starting new projects or initiating new contracts, as you may end up in a muddle.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't let a tempest in a teapot spill over and spoil your plans. A brief flurry of misunderstandings will calm down quickly unless you add fuel to the fire. You may be too anxious to please others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Avoid being sidetracked. When looking for fame and fortune, you could take a wrong turn. A family member or partner might offer wise counsel. Wait to start a new project or make a decision.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Every wise old owl knows when to swoop down on a mouse and when to stay in the tree. Ignore friends or acquaintances who seem determined to stir up a pot of trouble or who prod you to take unnecessary risks.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Mix a cocktail of business with pleasure. You have a mind for business, but could meet up with those who prefer to play around on the side. Make some valuable connections while the mood for socializing lasts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It's time to step down from a carousel of fun. Spending money on new and exciting things may have provided pleasure, but today you might give in to a whim and buy something unsuitable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be prepared to adjust to an unforeseen change of plans. Those you meet today may suffer from a lack of objectivity or oppose your desires. Give partners a long leash if they seem determined to give in to a whim.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Sit on the fence and you won't end up on the wrong side of it. Avoid making spur-of-the-moment decisions or capricious purchases. Your best laid financial plans could be disrupted at the eleventh hour.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Rolling stones might not gather moss, but they can cause a landslide. Build momentum to make necessary changes by gathering support. Be as friendly as possible to the greatest number of people.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't go on a wild goose chase. Sweet romance could develop a sour taste if you push for commitment or begin a secret affair. Concentrate on learning more about an important subject and improve your mind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You gravitate toward those who resist authority or flaunt tradition. You may be enamored of someone who appears to live a glamorous life. Enjoy new acquaintances, but don't go on a spending spree.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Forego fads that fade fast. Unique experiences might have their merits, but being one-of-a-kind has its drawbacks, too, especially when dealing with a herd mentality. Right now, it's best to stick to the tried and true.
