Simpson Only Idaho Lawmaker to Back Funding Bill

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

WASHINGTON, D.C. • Only one Idaho lawmaker voted to approve the congressional bill passed Wednesday to avoid a financial default and reopen the federal government after a 16-day shutdown.

The bill, which passed 81-18 in the Senate and 285-144 in the House would allow the U.S. Treasury to continue borrowing through Feb. 7 and reopen the U.S. government through Jan. 15.

U.S. Rep. Mike Simpson, R-Idaho, voted in favor of the measure while U.S. Sens. Mike Crapo, Jim Risch and Rep. Raul Labrador opposed it.

Simpson acknowledged that his approval of the bill might be unpopular with some of his Idaho constituents, but he said the potential economic consequences of the congressional stalemate outweighed the politics of his decision.

“The easiest, most politically expedient thing for me to do would have been to vote no and protect my political right flank,” Simpson said. “Doing so, however, would have been the wrong thing to do for my constituents and our economy.”

The eight-term congressman is facing a tea party challenger, Bryan Smith, in his 2014 re-election bid.

Simpson also said that the bill contains flaws, but it would prevent future unnecessary strain on Idaho’s economy.

“This bill, while far from perfect, preserves the progress Republicans have made in reducing spending and moving toward a balanced budget,” he said. “The fight over Obamacare may now move to another venue, but the fight is far from over. While I strongly believe we should continue working to delay the entire law for one year, I also tend to believe that Obamacare may collapse of its own weight. I don’t think it will work.”

Smith, said he would not have voted in favor of the bill.

“I would vote no on the (deal) because the deal raises the debt limit without any substantial cuts in spending and no major changes to Obamacare,” Smith said.

The anti-tax group, Club for Growth which has taken credit for persuading Smith to run for office announced Wednesday that lawmakers should not vote for the deal. The organization is known for finding extremely conservative candidates to run against Republicans that break from their agenda. They warned lawmakers voting in favor of the bill would reflect poorly on their annual scorecard.

U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo, R-Idaho, said he opposed the deal because it did nothing to rein in government spending.

“It does almost nothing to address our long-term mandatory spending and debt problems or correct the still-unfolding problems with the president’s health care law,” Crapo said in a news release.

The stop-gap funding measure all but assures another standoff in January, said U.S. Sen. Jim Risch, R-Idaho, adding that the federal government continues to over spend.

“The United States faces serious long-term debt and spending challenges that we must confront now,” Risch said. “Sadly this deal kicks the can down the road for three months and I could not support it”

Hidden History Wilbur Hubbell: Buhl's National League Hero

BY MYCHEL MATTHEWS
mmatthews@magicvalley.com

BUHL • Baseball pitcher Wilbur William Hubbell believed he had found the rainbow's end.

Hubbell was considered one of the best athletes in Idaho. Hubbell played on Buhl's 1914 Idaho State Champion high school football team, and excelled at baseball, basketball, track and swimming.

In 1919, the 22-year-old right-handed pitcher from Buhl jumped right to the majors. The 6-foot 2-inch hurler was touted as a coming star when he signed with the New York Giants.

But real success eluded him.

At the end of his rookie year, the Giants traded Hubbell to the Philadelphia Phillies.

In 1920, Hubbell won 9 of the 18 games that he pitched, and 9 of the 16 games he pitched in 1921.

In May 1922, the Phillies played the Brooklyn Dodgers in front of 2,500 fans at Shibe Park in Philadelphia.

In the opening inning, Hubbell pitched to Tom Griffith, and Griffith drove a line drive, striking Hubbell's head.

"The ball flew like a projectile from a gun," wrote The New York Times that day.

COURTESY PHOTO
Wilbur Hubbell, of Buhl, is seen at the age of 25 in this 1922 Philadelphia Phillies baseball card.

The result was a severe concussion and a fractured skull. The fracture radiated in three directions above Hubbell's right ear, the paper reported.

"Hubbell is at the Stetson Hospital fighting for his life," the Times wrote. "The injury is probably fatal."

Phillies owner William Baker telegraphed Mrs. Hubbell in Buhl, telling her to come to Philadelphia immediately.

But Hubbell didn't die, and after recovering, he continued to play — albeit poorly — for the Phillies.

Several years later, he seemed to regain his confidence.

In 1924, the Times Herald of Cattaraugus, N.Y., wrote that Hubbell five years before, "had started in search of the end of the pitching rainbow. He made an exhaustive study of baseball, the Einstein theory, ragtime playing and Mah Jong in his efforts to locate the baseball pot of gold. But until the '24 season, his search seemed fruitless."

The season started well, but fizzled. The Phillies traded Hubbell to the Brooklyn Dodgers — the Brooklyn Robins, as the team was known then. In 1925, Hubble was traded to the minors.

He went on to play for the Minneapolis Millers, the Reading Keystones, the Seattle Indians, the Oakland Oaks, the Sacramento Senators, and finally, at the age of 35, the Portland Beavers in 1932.

Hubble died in Lakewood, Colo., in 1980, at the age of 83.

WEATHER

Expect a Week of Wonderful Weather

Yet again, the weather looks wonderful. We will see plenty of sunshine, warm temperatures and cloud-free days over the next week. A strengthening, high-pressure system will dominate our weather for the next 7 to 10 days.

The high pressure system, located just off the Washington Coast, will push the jet stream well into Canada. That means warmer air and sunny and dry conditions through the end of October. Any rain chances will be kept at bay as weather systems move along that jet stream well north of Idaho.

Temperatures will be a little chilly at night, dropping into the lower- to mid-30s. But daytime temperatures will be much warmer, climbing into the upper-50s and lower-60s.

Enjoy the beautiful weather pattern.

ONLINE: The Secret Life of Sugar in the Root

At the "On Assignment" blog, Times-News journalists take you behind the scenes as they work. Here's an excerpt from a post by Mychel Matthews:

"Sugar comes from beets?" asked the transplant to the Magic Valley. I nodded. "She didn't say any-

"Yep, that plant with the giant leaves and ugly root that looks like half turnip and half potato.

"I've toured Amalgamated Sugar Co.'s Twin Falls plant, and I've seen how sugar is extracted from the root. But I've never thought much about how — or why — sugar gets there in the first place.

"Recently I interviewed Dave Scantlin, one of the sugar company's agriculture managers, about why this year's sugar beet crop has a low sugar content. Scantlin said the sugar content will rise as the weather cools and the days get shorter.

"Whoa! Back up there, buddy!

"What is going on in that plant?" I asked. ..."

Electronic Medical Records System in Spotlight at St. Luke’s Trial

BY AUDREY DUTTON
Idaho Statesman

St. Luke’s Health System says it will spend $200 million on a new electronic medical records system. The system will be fully launched sometime after 2017.

The launch of the Epic system is under the spotlight in a U.S. District Court trial against St. Luke’s. The cost of electronic medical records systems is frequently cited as a major reason for independent doctors to seek employment with larger health systems.

St. Luke’s is defending its purchase of Nampa’s Saltzer Medical Group — a buyout that Saint Alphonsus Health System, Treasure Valley Hospital, the Federal Trade Commission and the Idaho attorney general say broke antitrust laws and gave St. Luke’s too many primary care physicians in the area.

St. Luke’s argues that its electronic medical records system is superior to other systems now in use. Health-care providers who use the St. Luke’s system can share data and patient records more easily, and their patients can participate more actively in their care, St. Luke’s officials have said in court.

But it will be years before St. Luke’s is using the system throughout its hospitals and clinics. St. Luke’s Chief Medical Information Officer Marc Chasin testified Wednesday that St. Luke’s is still using old systems for nursing, hospital and emergency-room care. A patient who saw doctors at Saltzer, St. Luke’s in Boise and St. Luke’s in the Magic Valley would use three different portals to access his medical record online, Chasin said.

The Boise-based health system plans to start an “affiliate” program that will allow independent doctors to use the Epic system. St. Luke’s will cover 85 percent of the cost — the most St. Luke’s can pay under the law — for those doctors to be hooked up with Epic’s software.

The first practice to jump in is Women’s Health Associates, a six-doctor group located in a St. Luke’s medical office building in Downtown Boise.

Chasin said St. Luke’s will spend about $1.4 million on the pilot launch for Women’s Health Associates. The independent group will bear about $100,000 of the cost of the Epic software, he said.

That doesn’t count ongoing support, which will cost St. Luke’s $20,000 to $24,000 per doctor per year, he said.

Other hospital systems have reportedly spent anywhere from $80 million in New Hampshire to $1 billion in California on Epic, the system St. Luke’s is adopting.

Gunshots Fired after Argument over Trailer Tires, Police Say

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

BUHL • An argument about backhoe trailer tires led to gunshots, police say.

Just before 3 p.m. Saturday, Buhl police went to a home near the intersection of 4200 North and Carter Back Road in Buhl for a disturbance.

A woman there said her brother-in-law, James Lloyd Harral, had been in a fight with Paul Edwin Arnold and that Arnold had tried to shoot Harral at his house near 1200 E. 4300 N.

On Tuesday, Arnold, 57, was arraigned on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon and two battery charges. His bond was set at $100,000. A preliminary hearing is scheduled Oct. 25.

Officers found a gun magazine and a Barreta single-action pistol with one .22-caliber spent shell casing still in the chamber. Six unfired rounds were still in the magazine.

Police found Harral lying on the living room floor, sweating and having difficulty breathing. He had dried blood on his hands and complained of dizziness and head pain.

While waiting for paramedics, police spoke to Harral about what happened:

Harral said he’d been washing clothes at a laundry in Buhl when Arnold called him. Arnold was fixing a backhoe tractor and trailer and wanted Harral to help him inflate the tires. Harral told Arnold he’d have to do it himself, then finished his laundry.

When he got home, Arnold pulled up “screaming something about blowing the tires on the backhoe trailer,” the police report says.

James Lloyd Harral said he was “fighting for his life, praying the gun did not go off in his face,” according to a police report.

Harral told Arnold he didn’t want to hear it and continued driving up the lane to his house, but Harral followed.

When Harral got out of the pickup, Arnold pulled a gun out of his back pocket and told Harral he could “not hesitate in killing him right there.”

“If you pull a gun on somebody you better use it,” Harral said he told Arnold.

As Harral walked away, Arnold fired two shots, he said. Harral told police he kept walking away when Arnold came up behind him and hit him in the head, possibly with the gun, then tried to throw him to the ground.

The two began to wrestle. Harral eventually got on top and told Arnold they were “too old for this s—.”

After he let Arnold up, Harral said, Arnold hit him again in the head, the two began to wrestle and it appeared Arnold reached for the pistol again.

Harral said he was “fighting for his life, praying the gun did not go off in his face,” the report says.

Harral told police he eventually wrestled the gun away and ran to his pickup, locking the doors.

As Harral tried to start the pickup, Arnold tried to open the hood, but Harral escaped to his brother’s house, where he dropped the pistol in the doorway.

Deputies later found Arnold at his house and arrested him.

Arnold told police on Sunday that he was explaining the situation about the blown-out tires on the backhoe when Harral “went into a tizzy, grabbed a gun off the table and left.”

Arnold said he tried to call Harral, waited a half hour and went home.

Perez Pleads Not Guilty in Immigration Scam

BY JOHN SOWELL
jsowell@idahostatesman.com

BOISE • Celia Perez, 40, of Jerome, pleaded not guilty to 12 counts of mail fraud during an appearance Wednesday before U.S. Magistrate Candy Dale in Boise.

Perez is accused of cheating Mexican immigrants seeking legal status in the United States out of thousands of dollars after posing as an immigration attorney. She offered her clients help in submitting applications to help “fix their immigration problems” and “make the immigration process go faster,” according to court documents.

Perez is not listed as an attorney in Idaho, according to an online directory maintained by the Idaho State Bar.

Dale agreed Wednesday to release Perez from custody, but banned her from using a computer or accessing the Internet. She was also ordered to surrender her passport and to have no contact with witnesses in the case. She must remain in Idaho and wear a monitoring device.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Justin Whatcott told the judge such stringent measures were necessary to ensure no other people are victimized.

“There is concern this defendant, if released, would return to the criminal activity that led to this indictment,” Whatcott said.

Additional charges are under consideration, Whatcott told the judge. Outside of court, he declined to say whether there may be more victims.

Dick Rubin, the chief Boise federal defender, said Perez has lived nearly her entire life in Idaho and is not a flight risk. He said she knew she was under investigation and could be apprehended, and that she gave herself up when she was indicted.

Rubin told the judge she would not have any trouble abiding by the prohibition against computer use because the government confiscated all of her computers as part of the investigation.

The government alleges that Perez’s scheme began in December 2006, when she contacted a family in Mexico and said she could help them obtain permanent resident status for their daughter, who was living in the Los Angeles area.

Perez allegedly wrote back and forth to the woman for more than six years, collecting fees for services and to supposedly pay application fees to the U.S. government. In all, the family paid her $11,300, the government alleges.

Prosecutors contend Perez promised another family in Arizona to help a woman with an immigrant visa. That family paid her $19,365 between 2012 and earlier this year.

Perez is scheduled to go to trial Dec. 9.

Heyburn Man Arraigned on Murder Charge

BY C. COLT CRANE
Times-News

RUPERT • The Heyburn man accused of killing Craig Glen Short and fleeing to Texas appeared Tuesday for the first time in a local court.

Christopher Cruz, 21, appeared by video feed from Cassia County’s jail for his arraignment in Minidoka County District Magistrate Court.

Cruz is charged with first-degree murder and attempted first-degree murder in Short’s fatal shooting Aug. 2 in Heyburn.

No motive has been established for the shooting, Sheriff Eric Snarr said.

Cruz was extradited last week with his girlfriend, Stephanie Paulina Juarez, who is jailed on charges of violating probation in Cassia and Jerome counties. Officials would not say whether she also may face charges in the murder.

Cruz remained silent for most of the arraignment, only acknowledging that he understood the charges and wanted a public defender.

He was arrested Sept. 24 in Edinburg, Texas, and will have a preliminary hearing here at 1:30 p.m. Oct. 28.

Firefighters Respond to Smoke Report, Find Fire Inside Wall

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls Fire Department discovered a fire burning inside the walls and under the floor of a home Monday night after the homeowner reported smelling smoke.

Battalion Chief Ron Aguirre said firefighters quickly extinguished the fire at 684 River View Drive.

No one was injured, and while the fire caused some damage, the house is not a loss, he said.

Aguirre said the fire was caused by heating equipment in the house, but said a report on the exact cause isn’t complete.

“We have a good idea of how it started,” he said.

This type of fire isn’t uncommon, he said, and the homeowner “addressed it perfectly” by calling firefighters “when they sensed something was wrong.”

20 Years Later, Man Completes Final Home on Toner Drive

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

PAUL • There was no easy chair waiting for George Toner when he hit age 65.

“I needed something to do,” said Toner, now 84.

A mechanic by trade, he changed careers in 1972 and founded Toner Construction.

His legacy — 14 townhomes that it took him nearly 20 years to build — now lines both sides of a cul-de-sac street in Paul.

A pilot, he sold his plane and hangar and used the money to purchase 5 acres, now called Toner Drive.

This week, he settled in a chair, perching a cup of coffee on his knee and began light banter with a neighbor and his two employees as they added thoughtful touches to the last home to be completed on the street.

As he looked down the street at the neat row of homes, his pride was obvious.

Toner explained that townhouses have a much thicker dividing wall between what appears to be a duplex.

“I haven’t been out of a job for 70 years,” Toner said, indicating that he’s not sure what project he will tackle next.

That’s what worries me, he said.

“I knew better than to think he would really retire,” said his son, Dan Toner, who does construction work for his father.

A neighbor to the west of Toner Drive, Jerry Ennis, a former dentist with a practice in Paul, said he walked past the subdivision every morning and evening on his way to work.

George and Rosie Toner look at some of the townhomes on Toner Drive that George built after his retirement.

“I watched him build every one of the townhomes and it’s been quite an experience,” Ennis said. “I decided I needed to keep an eye on him. And I also get a free cup of coffee when I stop in.”

Ennis has become a regular visitor during break times.

Toner and his wife, Rosie, have been married 66 years and she has meticulously kept scrapbooks chronicling her husband’s ventures.

“It didn’t surprise me that he didn’t retire,” Rosie said. “He always has to be doing something.”

Toner built the couple’s first home, which was 16 by 24 feet — with only a few hand tools. With every paycheck, Toner bought more lumber.

“It was only four rooms but when we moved in, we owned it,” Rosie said.

He built four other homes for his family over the years, including a home in Paul, not far from Toner Drive.

Each one, he said, taught him new lessons.

Many of the features he enjoys in his own home, including top-of-the-line cabinetry and an electrical system with master light-control panels in the master bedrooms and garages, he incorporated into some of the townhomes.

“Once you have them, you just can’t live without them,” Toner said. He also designed the homes to require no external maintenance.

Toner’s small crew performs all the construction work, except laying marble and taping the drywall.

“It just takes us too darn long to tape drywall,” he said.

Most of the time, Rosie said, he had two employees helping him.

Maxine Becker purchased the first home Toner completed, nearly 20 years ago.

“All of the homes are very nice because George is very fussy about his work,” Becker said. “It was his dream to live long enough to finish all of the houses.”

Becker said Toner often helps residents on the street by performing light maintenance duties at their homes, including changing light-bulbs.

Jim and LaVon Tuckness are thrilled with the home they moved into a couple weeks ago.

Kimberly an attractive place for residents.

Richman said if he was re-elected, he would want to improve and expand the city’s bike paths. He would be able to start that immediately, Richman said, because he already knows the basics of city government.

“I have the most experience on the council right now,” he said. “It takes a little while to learn how city government works.”

Fellow Councilman Kip Thompson doesn’t have quite as much experience as Richman. He was appointed to the council by Mayor Tracy Armstrong after former Councilman Brandon Hoobler left for another job out of state.

“I don’t think I ever would have ran cold turkey,” Thompson said. “But it was a good experience and I would like to know how what we’ve done moves forward.”

Thompson said the city is spatially disconnected. If re-elected, he would push for more sidewalks to connect the growing suburbs together, while also adding more bike lanes.

“I think we need to enhance what we already have,” he said.

Paying off more of the city’s debt and finding long-term strategies to the city’s infrastructure are also issues the city will face in the next few years, Thompson said.

Nancy Duncan, a retired Hospice administrator, is running for office for the first time.

“I never thought I’d be involved in politics,” she said. “But as I grow older, I want to be involved in things that matter.”

As a member of Kimberly’s enhancement program, Duncan said she’s in the middle of collecting surveys to find out what residents want more of in their city. Once the survey is completed, she and the city would have a thorough amount of

Two County Employees Chided over ‘Ghost Camera’

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) • Two

county employees in Montana have been reprimanded after a motion-activated camera was installed in a little-used room in the health department in the hopes of capturing paranormal activity.

An internal investigation found that no crimes had been committed, The Montana Standard reported. Butte-Silver Bow County Chief Executive Matt Vincent said he could see the humorous side of the situation, but questioned the judgment of the employees involved.

“Whenever you’re talking about ghosts it’s off the wall,” he said. “But it’s serious in that the public gives trust in us and we need to take that seriously, and setting up cameras in public buildings to catch paranormal activity, I don’t think that is gaining the public’s trust” and possibly other new companies, Anthon said

Anthon was part of a group that toured the company’s plant in Portugal.

“We are thrilled to build our first U.S. location in Idaho,” Joao Miranda, CEO and co-founder of Frulact, said in the press release. “After looking at locations in Idaho, Utah, Wyoming and Nevada, we selected the city of Rupert because of the sense of their community, and a commitment that Rupert is ready and currently in position to guarantee that Frulact can start immediately with the construction of our factory in order to meet our objectives. ...”

Family-owned Frulact Group has its headquarters in Maia, Portugal. Founded in 1987, it produces fruit-based preparations for international food industries with locations in Portugal, France, Morocco and South Africa. Frulact develops custom fruit preparations for food labels in the dairy, beverage, ice cream and industrial pastry markets throughout Europe, Africa and the Middle East. Frutlact Group has more than 500 employees, and more than 35 percent have university degrees, company officials said.

“I had the opportunity to meet with members of Frulact’s senior management team, and I was impressed by their professionalism, knowledge and commitment to excellence — in their company, in their product, and in their partners,” Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter said in the press release.

Jan Rogers, executive director of Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization, said Rupert stayed competitive against other communities because of the Rupert voters who supported a major wastewater facility upgrade completed in 2012.

“The foresight by voters to improve their wastewater treatment operations played a significant role in Frulact’s decision to select Rupert for their very first American operation,” Rogers said.

The city approved a $14.2 million bond issue that funded the bulk of a phased wastewater upgrade.

Anthon said that while he visited with people who worked at the company’s Portugal facility, he was struck by how happy they appeared and how much they liked working for the company.

“It’s hard to imagine a better fit for the community,” he said.

Rogers said walking into the company’s Portugal plant was like walking into any major U.S. company.

“Everything was very nice and very well maintained,” Rogers said.

The state was proactive in bringing the business to Rupert, Anthon said.

The city will seek state grants to help place sewer, water and electrical lines for the plant, he said.

“Frulact’s facility here will impact this community in so many positive ways for many years to come,” Rupert Mayor Michael Brown said in the press release.

Police Release Sketch of Hunt Area Robbery Suspect

TIMES-NEWS

JEROME • Four armed male suspects with masks and black clothing entered a victim's home in the Hunt area of Jerome County around 10:30 p.m. Sunday, said Lt. Daniel Kennedy of the Jerome County Sheriff's Department.

With help from the Twin Falls Police Department, Jerome County investigators compiled a composite sketch of the only unmasked suspect in the home invasion robbery.

The suspect is described as about a 5-foot-11-inch to 6-foot white male in his mid 50s to early 60s with short gray hair and a "distinct dimple on his chin," the sheriff's department said in a Wednesday press release.

Investigators said the suspect speaks English with a heavy German accent.

Sketch of suspect

"We usually associate home invasion with people who force their way into your house; it's kind of like carjacking except it's in the home," Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall told the Times-News.

"There was no major injuries as a result of this," McFall said, adding that releasing further details could taint the investigation.

Kennedy said Monday he did not believe the public was in danger.

Police encourage anyone with information on the suspect, or information regarding suspicious activity in the Hunt area during the first part of October, to call the Jerome County Sheriff's Department at 208-324-1911.

Second University of Idaho Presidential Finalist Visits Twin Falls

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The second of five finalists for the president of the University of Idaho met with the public Wednesday in Twin Falls.

Jack Payne, senior vice president for agriculture and natural resources and administrative head for the Institute of Food and Agricultural Science at the University of Florida, told the audience it was great being back in the west.

Payne has a Ph.D. in wildlife ecology and a master's degree in aquatic ecology from Utah State University.

He said during the 15 years he lived in Utah, he often visited Idaho to pheasant hunt. He described himself as an outdoor enthusiast.

"Will this guy stick around long enough to make a difference?" Payne said. "I will promise you I will remain in this position as long as the trustees and the people of Idaho want me to stay."

Payne shared how he left academia for a time to work for Ducks Unlimited, a wetlands and waterfowl conservation group, serving as national director of conservation from 1996 - 2001.

He has been at the University of Florida for three years and said his work there has prepared him for the University of Idaho leadership post. "I have a faculty of 3,000, a $340 million budget and 13 research stations. I mention all that to let you know that this experience has prepared me to take this next step," Payne said.

He also said the university's land grant mission is crucial.

"What you are doing in Twin Falls, what I saw in Idaho Falls and what I will see in Boise is very, very important," Payne said. "Land grant universities built this country and continue to build this country."

Two challenges Payne said he would tackle are faculty and staff salaries and enrollment.

The next visit will be by James Applegate, a consultant for higher education and philanthropy. He will meet the community at 12:30 p.m. Oct. 23 at the Stonehouse Event Center, 330 Fourth Ave. S., in Twin Falls.

Idaho Prison Board Gives Corizon Medical Contract

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • The Idaho Board of Correction has awarded Corizon Health Inc. a new contract to continue providing medical and mental health care to the state's prison inmates.

The Department of Correction and Corizon have had a rocky relationship. The state has been under pressure from a decades-old lawsuit filed by inmates to improve medical care, and a court-appointed expert concluded more than a year ago that Corizon's medical care at one Idaho prison amounted to cruel and unusual punishment. Corizon countered that it was meeting national prison standards and commissioned its own report backing that claim.

Idaho has since reached a settlement with inmates that calls for increased medical staffing and other major changes to the way medical and mental health care is provided in state prisons.

The fine details of the settlement are still being polished, but it should go into effect in the coming months, and if the Idaho Department of Correction fulfills the terms for two years with no problems, the three-decades-old lawsuit will officially close.

Four companies submitted bids to take over the prison health care contract, and the proposals were scored based on technical details and overall cost. Corizon's bid had the highest overall score, though it was also the most expensive proposal at nearly $41 million a year. The other three companies — Centurion, a joint venture of MHM Services Inc. and Centene Corp.; Correctional Healthcare Companies Inc.; and NaphCare Inc. — have until Oct. 23 to appeal the award.

The two proposals with the highest overall scores were presented to the Idaho Board of Correction on Tuesday in a "blind bid," which means the names of the companies weren't revealed to board members or others at the meeting until a decision was made.

Corizon's new contract will cost the state $15.31 per offender, per day — for an annualized cost of about $40.9 million. The Brentwood, Tenn., company's technical evaluation score was 600, about 40 points higher than Centurion, which had the next-highest score.

Naphcare had the best score for cost at 400 points — about 40 points higher than Corizon — but Naph-care came in 60 points lower than Corizon on the technical evaluation score.

Corizon's current contract with IDOC gave the company a per-inmate, per-day rate of $14.52. The contract also allows the state to assess a fine of sorts — called "liquidated damages" — if Corizon fails to meet some of the contractual requirements. So far this year, IDOC has assessed nearly $27,000 in liquidated damages against Corizon, according to records provided by the agency.

IDAHO AT A GLANCE

Pocatello Father Gets 15 Years for Son's Death

POCATELLO • A Pocatello man convicted of voluntary manslaughter in the death of his son has been ordered to spend at least seven years in prison.

Anthony Blake Viles was sentenced Tuesday by 6th District Judge Stephen Dunn. Viles was originally charged with first-degree murder in the death of 6-year-old Afton Allison in April 2012, but later the charged was reduced.

During the sentencing hearing, Viles apologized and said he thinks of his son every day. Dunn said imposing punishment in the case was difficult and pointed to testimony that Viles didn't intend to kill his son when he struck him. Still, Dunn said it's important to send a message about the care of children.

Man Charged with Raping Woman He Met Online

BOISE • Bail was set at $1 million for a 26-year-old Meridian man charged with raping a woman he met online.

The Idaho Statesman reports Jeremy E. Threatt made an initial appearance before 4th District Magistrate Judge Theresa Gardunia on Tuesday on charges of sexual intercourse without consent and forcible penetration with a foreign object. Gardunia ordered a mental evaluation to determine if Threatt is competent to stand trial.

The woman reported she had met Threatt online and agreed to meet him at his house on Sunday. She said he raped her shortly after she arrived at his house.

Meridian Police Lt. Jamie Leslie says the woman escaped the house, went to the hospital and called police. Threatt was arrested Sunday.

Idaho Gets $1.29M from Feds to Fight Teen Suicide

BOISE • Idaho programs to reduce the state's high suicide rate among young people are getting a financial boost from the federal government.

The State Department of Education announced Tuesday it's received a $1.29 million grant for suicide-reduction efforts over three years.

This will provide the seed money for the Idaho Lives Project, a partnership with groups including the Idaho Suicide Prevent Action Network.

Idaho ranks among the top five states for teen suicides and in the top 10 states for overall suicides.

One reason: Young people in the state's rural hinterlands may not have access to prevention and mental health services.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna aims to use this federal grant to equip schools and communities with the resources necessary to keep kids from taking their own lives.

Man Pleads Guilty in Deputy Shooting Case

NAMPA • A southwestern Idaho man who shot two Canyon County sheriff's deputies has reversed course and pleaded guilty to aggravated assault.

After initially pleading not guilty, Kyle Alan Batt pleaded guilty on Wednesday in 3rd District Court to two counts of aggravated battery on a law enforcement officer.

Batt, who is 28, faces a sentence requiring him to spend at least 30 years in prison. He's already been sentenced to 15 years in prison in federal court.

In exchange for Batt's plea, Canyon County Prosecutor Brian Taylor agreed to drop sentencing enhancements for inflicting great bodily harm.

Prosecutors say Batt fled when deputies tried to arrest him last October and that he then lured them into an ambush, shooting both multiple times.

Both deputies survived.

Batt's sentencing is set for December.

CSI Preps for Final Home Stretch

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • There is still more than a month left in the junior college volleyball season, but the College of Southern Idaho is preparing to bid its gymnasium farewell for the season.

At least, as far as the schedule reads.

CSI resumes its final home stand of the regular season starting tonight against Utah State-Eastern. The Golden Eagles play Colorado Northwestern on Saturday and then host Blue Mountain (Pendleton, Ore.) next Thursday.

Then it's off for the final four matches of the regular season, and possibly away for the region tournament as well — CSI needs to make up two games on Salt Lake in the final five matches to host the region tournament for the second straight season.

At the halfway point of Scenic West Athletic Conference play, the eighth-ranked Golden Eagles trail the sixth-ranked Bruins by one game in the standings. Salt Lake is 5-0, CSI is 4-1. North Idaho is third at 3-2 and Snow is fourth at 2-3.

Salt Lake hosts Snow on Saturday, while CSI and North Idaho entertain Utah State-Eastern and Colorado Northwestern. Salt Lake has each of the other teams in the top four coming to its gym, leaving the Bruins in the driver's seat for tournament hosting rights.

CSI would have to exceed Salt Lake's conference record or win a tiebreaker. If they finish tied at 9-1 in the conference, Salt Lake would earn hosting rights by virtue of going longer without hosting the tournament, but in that scenario CSI would own the top seed for the tournament due to Scenic West bylaws.

The Golden Eagles rolled past Utah State-Eastern earlier in the season, winning 25-19, 25-20, 25-22 in Price, Utah. Mercedes Vaughn and Natasa Savovic led the team with eight and seven kills, respectively, in that match.

Bronco Defense Rising to Occasion

BY RYAN HOWE

rhowe@magicvalley.com

BOISE • In Boise State's win last Saturday at Utah State, the Aggies had a chance to steal momentum heading into halftime after blocking a BSU punt.

Utah State tried to fade routes to the left corner of the end zone, going right at junior cornerback Bryan Douglas.

He played picture-perfect coverage and denied both passes, the Broncos blocked the ensuing field goal attempt and went into halftime and the second half riding high on adrenaline.

The play of Douglas, who collected his team-best fourth interception against the Aggies, is just one example of the young Bronco defense growing into its cleats.

"We're definitely playing much like a defense as a whole now, where everybody is playing on a string," Douglas said.

Statistically, Boise State's defense has improved immensely in its last two games, sandwiched around a bye week. Through their first four games, the Broncos hovered around 100th in the nation in total defense. Today they're ranked 60th.

Douglas said a lot of credit goes to the defensive line and linebackers, who have eight quarterback sacks the last two games combined. Coach Chris Petersen called those sacks "critical."

"We count on those guys," Douglas said. "Everybody's job is to make everybody else's job easier on defense, whether it's the D-line getting pressure on the quarterback or us having great coverage."

The No. 1-ranked rushing defense in the Mountain West was on the field Saturday at Romney Stadium. That's Boise State's Beau Martin puts pressure on Utah State quarterback Darell Garretson Saturday at Romney Stadium in Logan.

Utah State. But an uninformed observer would have told you the superior defense in that game was the Broncos, besides a few breakdowns.

"There's always room to get better. We made a couple mistakes, even though we had a great game as a defense," Douglas said.

It starts with senior nose guard Ricky Tjong-A-Tjoe, the leader of the defense according to safety Darian Thompson. Defensive tackle Armand Nance and end Demarcus Lawrence are among the top four team leaders in tackles.

"It starts in the lines, like we always say, and we're proud of those guys for progressing," Petersen said. "I think our defense in general is getting better. We talk about Bryan Douglas in that secondary playing good and then you get your D-line to put a little pressure."

But where is the Bronco defense's biggest area of improvement?

"Our confidence is up," said Douglas. "Everything we emphasize in practice, we execute it on the field."

Congress Votes to End Shutdown, Avoid US Default

BY DAVID ESPO
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON • Up against a deadline, Congress passed and sent a waiting President Barack Obama legislation late Wednesday night to avoid a threatened national default and end the 16-day partial government shutdown, the culmination of an epic political drama that placed the U.S. economy at risk.

The Senate voted first, a bipartisan 81-18 at mid-evening. That cleared the way for a final 285-144 vote in the Republican-controlled House about two hours later on the legislation, which hewed strictly to the terms Obama laid down when the twin crises erupted more than three weeks ago.

The legislation would permit the Treasury to borrow normally through Feb. 7 or perhaps a month longer, and fund the government through Jan. 15. More than 2 million federal workers would be paid_ those who had remained on the job and those who had been furloughed.

After the Senate approved the measure, Obama hailed the vote and said he would sign it immediately after it reached his desk. “We’ll begin reopening our government immediately and we can begin to lift this cloud of uncertainty from our businesses and the American people.”

Later, in the House, Rep. Harold Rogers, R-Ky., said, “After two long weeks, it is time to end this government shutdown. It’s time to take the threat of default off the table. It’s time to restore some sanity to this place.”

The stock market surged higher at the prospect of an end to the crisis that also had threatened to shake confidence in the U.S.

Highlights of Government Shutdown, Debt Limit Bill

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GOVERNMENT SHUTDOWN: Ends it immediately, finances federal agencies through Jan. 15. Workers furloughed without pay when the shutdown began Oct. 1 receive back pay.

DEBT CEILING: Government’s authority to borrow money extended until Feb. 7. Using streamlined procedures, Congress could vote to block the debt-limit extension, but that effort was certain to fail. No constraints on Treasury Department’s ability to move funds among accounts once debt limit is reached, in effect extending government’s ability to avoid default several weeks beyond Feb. 7 if needed.

HEALTH CARE LAW: Department of Health and Human Services must certify it can verify income eligibility of people applying for government subsidies for health insurance. By next July 1, the department’s economy overseas.

Republicans conceded defeat after a long struggle. “We fought the good fight. We just didn’t win,” conceded House Speaker John Boehner as lawmakers lined up to vote on a bill that includes nothing for GOP lawmakers who had demand to eradicate or scale back Obama’s signature health care overhaul.

“The compromise we reached will provide our economy with the stability it desperately needs,” said Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, declaring that the nation “came to the brink of disaster” before sealing an agreement.

Senate Republican leader Mitch McConnell, who negotiated the deal with Reid, emphasized that it preserved a round of spending cuts negotiated two years ago with Obama and Democrats. As a result, he said, inspector general must report on the agency’s safeguards for preventing fraud.

LONGER-RANGE BUDGET ISSUES: In accompanying agreement, House-Senate bargainers will negotiate over issues like budget deficits and spending levels. Bargainers must issue report by Dec. 13, but they are not required to come to agreement.

OTHER ITEMS: No pay raise for members of Congress in 2014; $636 million for firefighting for the Interior Department and the Forest Service; allows work to continue on Olmstead lock in the Ohio River between Kentucky and Illinois; lets Federal Highway Administration reimburse Colorado up to $450 million for flood-damaged roads, exceeding usual $100 million cap; extra $294 million for Department of Veterans Affairs to reduce backlogs of benefits claims; funds for National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration to continue work on two weather satellites; extends expired authority for Defense Department to support African forces hunting warlord Joseph Kony, leader of rebel group Lord’s Resistance Army.

“government spending has declined for two years in a row” for the first time since the Korean War. “And we’re not going back on this agreement,” he added.

Only a temporary truce, the measure set a time frame of early this winter for the next likely clash between Obama and the Republicans over spending and borrowing.

But for now, government was lurching back to life. Within moments of the House’s vote, Sylvia Mathews Burwell, director of the Office of Management and Budget, issued a statement saying “employees should expect to return to work in the morning.”

After weeks of gridlock, the measure had support from the White House, most if not all Democrats in Congress and many Republicans fearful of the economic impact of a default.

Boehner and the rest of the top GOP leadership told their rank and file in advance they would vote for the measure. In the end, Republicans split 144 against and 87 in favor. All 198 voting Democrats were supporters.

Final passage came in plenty of time to assure Obama’s signature before the administration’s 11:59 p.m. Thursday deadline.

That was when Treasury Secretary Jacob Lew said the government would reach the current $16.7 trillion debt limit and could no longer borrow to meet its obligations.

Tea party-aligned lawmakers who triggered the shutdown that began on Oct. 1 said they would vote against the legislation. Significantly, though, Texas Sen. Ted Cruz and others agreed not to use the Senate’s cumbersome 18th-century rules to slow the bill’s progress.

In remarks on the Senate floor, Cruz said the measure was “a terrible deal” and criticized fellow Republicans for lining up behind it.

DISASTERS AROUND THE GLOBE

Philippine Quake Damages Historic Churches

LOON, Philippines • The earthquake that struck the central Philippines and killed at least 144 people also dealt a serious blow to the region’s historical and religious legacy by heavily damaging a dozen or more churches, some of them hundreds of years old.

As rescuers reached some of the hardest-hit areas on Wednesday and the death toll from the quake a day earlier continued to rise, images of the wrecked religious buildings resonated across a nation where 80 percent of the population is Roman Catholic.

The bell tower toppled from Cebu city’s 16th-century Basilica of the Holy Child_ a remnant of the Spanish colonial era and the country’s oldest church building_ becoming a pile of rubble in the courtyard. Other churches on the neighboring island of Bohol, epicenter of the quake and a popular tourist destination known for its beaches, were also damaged, some beyond repair.

“The heritage old churches are also very close to the hearts of the Boholanos,” said Bohol Gov. Edgardo Chatto, using the term for residents of the island.

He said authorities would attempt to restore the historic churches, but some may never return to their former state.

49 Believed Dead in Plane Crash in Laos

BANGKOK • A Lao Airlines flight crashed Wednesday in the Southeast Asian nation, apparently killing all 49 people aboard, including passengers from 11 countries, the Lao government said.

The Ministry of Public Works and Transport, which operates the airline as a state enterprise, said 44 passengers and five crew members were aboard flight QV301 from the Lao capital, Vientiane, to Pakse in the country’s south. Earlier reports had said there were 39 passengers on board.

“Upon preparing to land at Pakse Airport the aircraft ran into extreme bad weather conditions and was reportedly crashed into the Mekong River,” the ministry said in a statement. It said there was no word of survivors. The airline flies an ATR 72-600 twin-engine turboprop plane on the 290-mile route. The aircraft is configured with 68-74 seats, said maker ATR.

Typhoon, Mudslides Kill 17 in Japan; 50 Missing

TOKYO • A typhoon caused deadly mudslides that buried people and destroyed homes on a Japanese island Wednesday before sweeping up the Pacific coast, grounding hundreds of flights and disrupting Tokyo’s transportation during the morning rush. At least 17 deaths were reported and nearly 50 people were missing.

Hardest hit from Typhoon Wipha was Izu Oshima island, which is about 75 miles south of Tokyo. Rescuers found 16 bodies, most of them buried by mudslides, police and town officials said.

Dozens of homes were destroyed, and about 45 people were missing.

A woman from Tokyo died after falling into a river and being washed 6 miles downriver to Yokohama, police said. Two sixth-grade boys and another person were missing on Japan’s main island, Honshu, the Fire and Disaster Management Agency said.

More than 350 homes were damaged or destroyed, including 283 on Izu Oshima, it said.

The typhoon, which stayed offshore in the Pacific, had sustained winds of 78 miles per hour, with gusts up to 110 mph, before it was downgraded to a tropical storm Wednesday evening. The storm was moving northeast, off the northern Japanese island of Hokkaido.

Hirschfeld Exhibition Opens in New York City

NEW YORK (AP) • A new exhibition on caricaturist Al Hirschfeld begins with a video of Whoopi Goldberg talking about his wicked sense of humor.

Goldberg tells how Hirschfeld embedded the word "NINA" 40 times into a poster of her 1984 one-woman Broadway show after she complained of not being able to find the signature trademark he began inserting into his line drawings after the birth of his daughter Nina in 1945.

"The Line King's Library" opens at The New York Public Library for the Performing Arts at Lincoln Center on Thursday. The exhibition, on the 10th anniversary of Hirschfeld's death and 110 years since his birth, was compiled from the library's extensive collection of Hirschfeld material.

Hirschfeld, who died in 2003 at the age of 99, was celebrated for his linear calligraphic caricatures of theater, dance and film personalities. The drawings appeared on album covers, film posters, magazines and in The New York Times for 75 years.

Being "Hirschfelded" was "akin to getting a Tony award," said David Leopold, the show's guest curator and Hirschfeld's archivist for the last 13 years of the artist's life. "It meant you had arrived."

The exhibition includes drafts, sketch books, journals and video of Hirschfeld and some of his most famous subjects talking about each other, including Arthur Miller, Carol Channing, Carol Burnett and Zero Mostel.

His 1970s series on Pulitzer Prize-winning plays and their authors on Broadway, including Tennessee Williams' "A Streetcar Named Desire" and Miller's "Death of a Salesman," is also included.

Another highlight is a print so rare that even Hirschfeld didn't have an extraordinary lithograph of the dancer and choreographer Martha Graham in motion. Created in 1969, only one print was ever made.

Hirschfeld created some 10,000 drawings during his lifetime. About 70 are in the show in addition to more than 250 other works in slide shows and on iPads.

Choosing what material to include was like "saying we're going to make an exhibition from King Tut's tomb," Leopold said. "You know you're going to find gold in every drawer and every shelf and then you get to decide which gold is the best."

The exhibition also focuses on his influences, including Balinese shadow puppets that he saw while on a 10-month trip to the Indonesian island in 1932. A painter at the time, Hirschfeld noticed how the bright Balinese sun bleached out all the color.

The exhibition is a cross-section of his well-known theater drawings and lesser-known works, such as his early movie and advertising posters, she said, adding: "It's fun to look at the kind of work that you don't always associate with Al Hirschfeld."

Q. What can I do to prevent osteoporosis?

A. Osteoporosis makes bones thin and is a major culprit in falls that can affect your independence. If you have osteoporosis, even a minor fall can result in a fracture serious enough to affect your ability to take care of yourself. Talk to your doctor. Request a bone density test that will assess the current health of your bones. The doctor may suggest prescription medication that improves bone health. Many experts also suggest over-the-counter calcium pills and Vitamin D supplements. Physical activity can help keep your bones strong. Quitting smoking can also improve bone health. Why not schedule your bone density test today?

ON TARGET: YOUR WEEKLY HUNTING REPORT

We are now full swing into the Idaho hunting season. General and controlled hunts for deer are underway with hunters having much better success after the recent weather systems passed through southern Idaho. With recent snowfalls in the higher elevations, coupled with colder temperatures, hunters are seeing more game throughout the day.

The past week: Good numbers of deer were taken last week. Reports from Units 48 and 49 have been favorable, with a few incidental bears being seen by deer hunters. Hunters are still struggling a bit in the border Units 54, 55 and 47 seeing large bucks, but that should get better as the season continues.

Antelope: Antelope hunters are still having steady success, with a good number of exceptional trophies being taken this year.

Elk: Elk season opened this week for general and controlled hunts. Units 54 and 47 generate some of the best elk trophies, not only in Idaho but in the entire West. The muzzleloader season in those units this year did not produce elk, so the rifle hunters should have great opportunities to bag a great trophy.

Youth: I am glad to say that I am seeing a lot of young hunters this year and have had quite a few bring trophies into my shop. Our future is our youth, and this applies to outdoor sports as well. I challenge our sportsmen and sportswomen to introduce a youngster to the outdoors this year. And teach them to be good stewards of our resources.

Walleye Netting Probes Salmon Falls Fishery

BY VIRGINIA HUTCHINS
vhutchins@magicvalley.com

ROGERSON • Scott Stanton steers a small motorboat into a cliff-lined corner of Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir — close enough to the southern end to hear the honking on Goose Island — and stops beside a buoy marked “scientific sampling gear.”

As bio-aide Damian Hainer hauls up a long gill net, fish after fish flop into his tubs: trout, suckers, northern pikeminnows and finally the walleye these men are after.

“Be careful with him, because he’s barely hanging and he’s on small mesh,” the regional fisheries biologist tells Hainer.

On shore at Greys Landing, south of Rogerson, wait the Idaho Department of Fish and Game colleagues who will measure, weigh and dissect each walleye caught in their six gill nets. This Oct. 8 research will provide data on the sport fishery’s health and condition — data meant to compare Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir’s walleye with fisheries elsewhere in the U.S. and Canada. Their standardized protocol: “fall walleye index netting.”

Idaho walleye anglers asked for this monitoring. Almost a decade ago, they suspected overharvest and feared a collapse of the walleye fishery here — one of only three in Idaho.

So Doug Megargle, regional fisheries manager, initiated three years of baseline index netting at Salmon Falls Creek and Oakley reservoirs. (One immediate finding: The walleye were still plentiful at Salmon Falls. They just had plenty to eat that year and weren’t biting for anglers.) Now, five years later, the fall walleye index netting is beginning its twice-a-decade schedule at Salmon Falls.

Five years is long enough to forget.

“It’s kind of like having a second kid: ‘Oh, now I remember,’” says Regan Berkley, kneeling in the cold sand of Greys Landing with a small pick. She’s freeing fish from a gill net.

As Stanton and Hainer return in the boat with more heavy tubs, Fish and Game workers spread long nets on the sand. Each with a net pick like Berkley’s, they kneel in a line of bent backs. It’s laborious work.

“We often get volunteers one year. Not so much the second year,” Megargle says.

On the back of each pick is a “frustration blade,” and the dozen pickers have Megargle’s permission to use it.

The crew’s numbered tubs track which sand-coated trout and suckers came from which randomly selected location in the reservoir. But walleye are counted and dropped into wet burlap sacks, to wait underwater at the reservoir’s edge.

(TOP) A researcher shows the teeth on a walleye. (ABOVE) Damian Hainer, a bio-aide for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, collects walleye and other fish caught in a net in Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir.

Among the pickers in waders and gloves is Lisa Lam, a seasonal employee of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare. She’ll take some of the walleye, when today’s researchers finish with them, for Health and Welfare to test for mercury and other bio-accumulated substances.

The mercury cited in Health and Welfare’s fish-consumption advisories builds up in the tissues of big fish that eat smaller fish in this reservoir. After they switch from eating insects and plankton, Salmon Falls walleye begin a diet of yellow perch, juvenile sucker, northern pikeminnow, spottail shiner, redbside dace, crappie, juvenile walleye and stocked rainbow trout.

Fish and Game reservist Derek Thomas of Burley plucks a northern pikeminnow from the teeth-lined mouth of a walleye, and Megargle lays the pikeminnow on the walleye to compare their sizes. The eaten is half the length of the eater.

Also among the net pickers is Jeff Dillon, the state fisheries manager from Fish and Game’s headquarters. He and Megargle talk quietly about the sizes of walleye they’re seeing in the nets.

Anglers lately have reported catching smaller walleye, Megargle says. The explanation might be a big spawning year in 2009 or 2010, and fish of that age might be more abundant in the reservoir.

He’s hoping to see most age years represented in this day’s catch — one indication of a healthy fishery. Today’s measurements also consider annual mortality, a fish’s length at age, its condition (reasonable weight for length), proportion of males to females, age at sexual maturity, physical deformities and fat weight. Fat tells biologists something about the forage availability in Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir.

Idaho Walleye Unlimited is particularly interested in this data, to draw anglers to its tournaments on the reservoir.

Its classic, the Father’s Day walleye tournament, attracts 40 to 60 boats, says club member David Keever of Twin Falls. He’s at Greys Landing today to wait for the walleye not claimed by the Health and Welfare representative. Their destination: club coolers, then a fish feed.

The Father’s Day tournament used to draw competitors from as far away as the Dakotas. But in harder economic times, most out-of-staters are from Utah now, Keever says.

The local club uses its conservation budget from a national walleye federation to plant habitat in the reservoir — dead junipers, cabled together and anchored.

As Keever talks and the research crew folds empty nets, a chilling wind kicks up sand and whips a pair of tents. Gulls circle above Greys Landing. Fish and Game employee Jennifer Posey holds up a big walleye for her colleagues’ camera phones.

“He’s probably an original planter, back in ’73,” Keever says.

Fish and Game imported and released walleye in three Idaho reservoirs, the state’s only sanctioned walleye fisheries. Fish and Game will do its fall walleye index netting next year on Oakley Reservoir, also called Goose Creek Reservoir. The third and less important walleye fishery is Oneida Reservoir near Pocatello.

Keever didn’t know what walleye were when he moved to Twin Falls in 1974. He remembers a puzzled trout fisherman in the ’70s bringing a walleye into Blue Lake Sporting Goods to get it identified.

Idaho anglers aren’t puzzled anymore.

“We quit eating trout when I got onto these a

Annual Ski Adventure Film Shows in Sun Valley

SUN VALLEY • Winter sports filmmaker Warren Miller’s “Ticket to Ride” — his 64th annual feature film — will show in Sun Valley next month.

Shows are at 7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 1, and at 5 and 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 2, at the Sun Valley Opera House.

Tickets are $18 at Sturtevant’s in Ketchum, the Opera House box office (208-622-2244) and eventbrite.com. Buy 10 or more tickets and get a discount by calling 800-523-7117. Everyone attending “Ticket to Ride” receives a voucher for a free lift ticket to Soldier Mountain and a voucher for $25 off a purchase of $100 or more at Sturtevant’s.

The film takes you on an action-packed journey with skiers and snowboarders: the “epicenter of big lines” in Alaska, Montana’s Big Sky Country and the winter playgrounds of Kazakhstan, Iceland and Greenland. The trams and trains in Switzerland climb to Mount Eiger, as the fishing boats in Norway carry you to the islands of Alesund.

The film’s athletes includes World Cup champions and Olympians Seth Wescott, Ted Ligety and Julia Mancuso, plus legendary ski mountaineers such as Chris Davenport, and freeskiers Colby West and Sean Pettit, promoters say.

Park and pipe veteran Gretchen Bleiler throws down in Aspen. Jess McMillan, Julia Mancuso and Sierra Quitiquit explore the expansive terrain that is Iceland’s Troll Peninsula, and a snowboard segment in Valdez brings together Seth Wescott and Rob Kingwill.

Warren Miller shows are a pre-season party — film attendees have a chance to win ski vacations, heli-trips, prizes and gear.

Birthplace of the finest projectiles on the planet: Barnes Bullets of Mona, Utah.

The Shocking Truth about Barnes Bullets

Hunters much more experienced than I loudly proclaim that Barnes Bullets of Mona, Utah, produces some of the most consistently accurate and deadly game bullets on the planet.

They’ll get no rebuttal from me because the 20-plus big game animals that I have seen taken or personally shot with their bullets have, without exception, given up the ghost immediately. It hasn’t mattered if it was a spindly 90-pound sage flat antelope, a chunky 180-pound swamp whitetail, a mule deer buck of more than 200 pounds, or a mature bull elk at the distant edge of the meadow; they have all taken the hit, crow-hopped in a 30-yard semicircle and then flopped to the ground dead.

To avoid being overly graphic, let me just say that the wounds have been shockingly devastating.

Although Barnes produces an extensive line of varmint, muzzleloader, handgun, tactical, shotgun sabot, multi-purpose “green” and conventional copper-jacketed lead core projectiles, it is their 100 percent homogeneous copper TSX (triple shock X) and TTSX (tipped triple shock X) lines that are the belles of the ball.

According to company president and X bullet creator Randy Brooks, the triple shock acronym refers to the fact “that the bullet delivers a triple impact — one when it first strikes the game, another as the bullet begins opening, and a third devastating impact when the specially engineered hollow-point cavity fully expands to deliver massive hydraulic shock and maximum energy transfer.”

Much of the magic lies in the nose of these malleable copper projectiles, which peels back uniformly along four engineered fracture lines to form four razor-edged petals — the characteristic X — from which the bullet derives its name. Even in the smaller calibers, these mini-buzz saws handily slice through vital organs and heavy muscle tissue, often blasting on through bones and thick elastic hides to effect complete pass-through penetration and maximum blood loss.

That’s a whole lot of syllables, but what it boils down to is that X bullets drop game like no others.

If shooting properly, we’ve come to expect quick, humane kills with very short blood trails and few, if any, wounded or lost critters. Throughout our decades-long reloading and hunting careers, my family and acquaintances have flirted with just about every conventional cup-and-core and premium bonded bullet on the market. Some have equaled their double-diameter expansion and near 100 percent weight retention, but none have surpassed the X bullets’ lethality in our experience.

For years, the X bullets were offered solely as a reloading component, but now you can head to your favorite retailer or hop online to make a purchase from Barnes’ extensive and expanding selection of factory loaded ammo — its Vor-TX rifle, handgun and Safari lines. Banking on the proven performance of the Barnes TSX design, a number of high-profile ammunition firms — Black Hills, Cor-Bon, Federal, Norma, Weatherby and recently Remington, with its new Hog Hammer ammo — have chosen to top their premium cartridge lines with the Utah-produced projectiles. High praise indeed.

Load up a couple of boxes of Barnes TSX or TTSX-tipped cartridges this fall, and please don’t forget to email me some of your photos from the skinning shed.

Walleye

a few years ago,” says Idaho Walleye Unlimited member Earl Olsen of Twin Falls, pulling coolers out of a truck beside the researchers’ tents.

Treat walleye right and it tastes like lobster, adds club member Terry Reeves of Twin Falls.

Fisheries technician Joan Harding, the note taker of today’s fall walleye index netting, needs to log 200 walleye in her field notebook with the yellow waterproof cover. Her penciled figures total only 172, so the men on the boat will reset two gill nets and the researchers will be back tomorrow.

But today’s catch can’t wait — at least not longer than it takes for Harding to feed the crew a lunch of pulled pork sandwiches on paper plates.

Stanton divides the crew into two teams: one for walleye, one for everything else.

In the non-walleye tent, regional wildlife biologist Brad Lowe lays one fish at a time into measuring trays manned by Berkley, another regional wildlife biologist, and Randy Smith, regional wildlife manager. Berkley and Smith announce species and lengths to Megargle, who types them into a handheld computer. “RBT 406” is a rainbow trout, in millimeters. “LSS 540” is a largescale sucker.

“They’ll all be rounded anyway,” Megargle says, getting a reaction — and laughter — from Smith and Berkley.

Smith has been killing his eyes trying to read millimeters, he says. But he keeps announcing exact measurements anyway: RBT 347. Chiselmouth chub 171. As Lowe quickly empties tub after tub, Hainer’s tubs fill. He’s at Megargle’s elbow, puncturing the air bladder of each sucker, trout or chub with a knife. It’s a job descriptively dubbed “fizzing.”

These non-walleye will be recycled — their carcasses dumped into the water to be eaten, returning their nutrients to the reservoir’s ecosystem. The fizzing ensures they’ll sink. Fish and Game doesn’t want anglers reporting a fish kill.

Work in the walleye tent is slower and more deliberate. Blowing sand accumulates on the scales, and everyone squints as Stanton hands out the jobs.

Dillon washes the sand off each walleye in a bucket, measures its length and holds it in the weighing pan for Lam to lodge a tiny, numbered scrap of paper in the corner of its mouth. Sally Rose, a Fish and Game administrative assistant, reads off the walleye’s weight for Harding, who records everything in a handheld computer.

Stanton takes the job he calls “crackin’ backs.”

He slits open each fish and piles the fat from its body cavity onto a paper plate on the scale in front of wildlife biologist Bruce Palmer. While teaching Rose how to determine walleye sex and maturity, Stanton extracts each walleye’s gonads and skeins for a separate weighing.

Then Stanton does something more precise than it appears: With pliers, he cracks the walleye’s spine at just the right point and pops open its head cavity to reveal the two otoliths. He picks out each tiny otolith with forceps and smears away its mucus on the back of his glove. Those bonelike plates from each walleye ear will be stored in vials for now. Later they’ll be cut, sanded and examined under a high-resolution microscope to determine the fish’s age. Scientists read otoliths like tree rings — one new ring a year. Stanton’s back cracking also reveals something that nobody measures but everybody respects: the walleye’s teeth. Translucent, sharp and numerous, they’re the terror of Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir.

BUCKS AND BULLS CONTEST GIVES HUNTERS BRAGGING RIGHTS, PRIZES

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • After Jeff Frost bought a local taxidermy business eight years ago, he started receiving requests to get involved with conservation groups. While the groups had individual banquets, there wasn't something that drew everyone to one place.

"What I was noticing is there was no opportunity for Magic Valley sportsmen to come together as sportsmen under one roof," the Intermountain Taxidermy and Worldwide Adventures owner said.

So he teamed with Sportsman's Warehouse and Rob Green Auto Group to create the Bucks and Bulls trophy contest. The annual contest later picked up another primary sponsor — Advantage Archery — and is supported by many other individuals and businesses.

Now in its eighth year, the Bucks and Bulls big-game contest returns. The deadline for entries is 6 p.m. Dec. 31.

It's free to enter the contest, but racks must be clean and free of meat. There are about a dozen categories to choose from. In addition to bragging rights, winners take home prizes.

Reese Widmier, general manager at Sportsman's Warehouse, said the contest isn't for the businesses to gain anything, but "for the community to enjoy the outdoors."

The number of people who enter the contest varies each year, he said. Last year, more than 200 people participated.

There are rifle, muzzleloader and archery divisions for mule deer, elk and antelope. There's a whitetail division, as well as women's and children's mule deer categories.

"Any trophies taken legally in the state of Idaho are welcome," Frost said. "We'd love to display them."

Prizes are awarded for first-, second- and third-place winners in each category. First-place winners will take home a shoulder mount from Intermountain Taxidermy and World Adventures and a $300 gift card to Sportsman's Warehouse. Second-place winners receive a $200 gift card, while third-place winners receive a $100 gift card.

For the archery categories, winners will receive prizes from Sportsman's

Area conservation groups are also invited to raise money and awareness for their individual groups, Frost said.

Share Your Big Game Photos

Those pictures of a proud hunter with a big-game harvest are Idaho classics. And when you harvest an animal worth bragging about, why not show the world?

Magicvalley.com is showcasing our readers' big-game photographs. We're accepting photo submissions to feature in a special online gallery, and we publish some of our favorites in the print edition of the Times-News, too.

Submitting photos online is simple and easy — just go online to Magicvalley.com/submit/. Include all the information that other hunters will care about, such as the size, species and location of your catch. Of course, you should include the successful hunter's name and town, too.

This photo gallery isn't limited to southern Idaho; local hunters who travel elsewhere to hunt may submit big-game photos from their trips, too.

'Summit Idaho' Premieres on Free Ketchum Screen

KETCHUM • The premiere screening of Outdoor Idaho's "Summit Idaho" will be 6-8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 23, at The Community Library, 415 Spruce Ave. in Ketchum. It's free to the public.

The episode will air for the first time at 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 24, and repeat at 7 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 27, to open Outdoor Idaho's 31st season on Idaho Public Television.

In "Summit Idaho," IdahoPTV producer Sauni Symonds and videographer Jay Krajic follow groups of mountain climbers who reach the summits of four Idaho mountain peaks: Vienna Peak in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area, Gilmore Peak in the Lemhi Mountain Range, He Devil in the Seven Devils Mountains and Scotchman Peak in the Panhandle's Scotchman Peaks proposed wilderness area.

The steep ascents in winter and summer culminate in magnificent views of four Idaho terrains.

Symonds, Krajic and Bruce Reichert, the show's executive producer, will answer questions following the 30-minute screening.

Tying Demo at Fly Fishers' Meeting

TWIN FALLS • Fall steelhead fisherman, don't miss this demonstration.

The Magic Valley Fly Fishers will meet at 7 p.m. today, Oct. 17, at River Rock Grill, 1824 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

The meeting will feature fly tying demonstrations of several patterns. Les Reitz, a master steelhead fly tyer, will tie his killer Laser Butt Skunk steelhead flies of varying colors. Other tyers will demonstrate traditional trout flies. They will have enough materials on hand for you to bring your own tying vise and learn to tie from the experts. "These demonstrations are a great way to learn new patterns and get more experience with different techniques, materials, tools and all the background of tying which is so much a part of fly fishing," the club's press release said.

Also tonight, expect a couple of DVDs featuring nationally renowned fly fishermen, plus the "round robin" of fishing reports from members who fish various waters throughout the region. Anyone interested in fly fishing is invited.

Ask Fish and Game: Waterfowl Shooting Hours

Question: I picked up the waterfowl regs, but I can't find the shooting hours chart.

Answer: Shooting hours were not included in the waterfowl rules brochure this year, the Idaho Department of Fish and Game said. Legal shooting hours are from one half hour before sunrise to sunset. Waterfowl hunters can find sunrise and sunset hours for the area they will be hunting online at: http://aa.usno.navy.mil/data/docs/RS\_OneDay.php. They are also available through smartphone apps, websites and GPS units.

A chart of shooting hours is available on the waterfowl page on the fish and Game website at: http://fishandgame.idaho.gov/public/docs/rules/wf\_shootingHours.pdf. Or in a Shooting Hours pamphlet available at license vendors and local Fish and Game offices.

The commission usually holds a public hearing in conjunction with each regular meeting; people may address the commission on any topic having to do with Fish and Game business.

An agenda will be posted on the Fish and Game website (fishandgame.idaho.gov) when available.

Ask Fish and Game: Use of Life Jackets

Question: Are waterfowl hunters required to wear life jackets in a boat?

Answer: Idaho law requires a life jacket on board for every passenger, and a throw-able personal flotation device is required in boats more than 16 feet long. Occupants 14 and younger in a boat shorter than 20 feet are required to wear a life jacket if the boat is under - way, the Idaho Department of Fish and Game said.

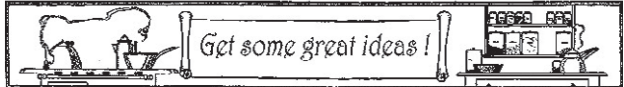

But life jackets work only if they are worn. Overloaded boats and failure to wear life jackets are leading reasons Idaho typically loses a couple of waterfowl hunters every year, Fish and Game said. A life vest helps preserve body heat and keeps even an unconscious person afloat.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"That we who live by honest dreams Defend the bad against the worse."

— Cecil Day-Lewis

In today's deal South drove to game by showing his two-suiter, then guessed to rebid four clubs rather than gamble out three no-trump, and was raised to five.

The defenders led two rounds of hearts, then East exited passively with a small diamond. Declarer won in hand, cashed two top clubs, then crossed to the spade ace, took the club finesse, and claimed the rest when diamonds behaved.

While East was telling his partner that there was nothing he could have done, West was wearily shaking his head in a successful effort to irritate East; can you see why?

There is a defense to five clubs, though it is hard to find. After winning two heart tricks, East can see that the main hope to defeat the contract is by winning a club trick. He should also realize that, given the chance, declarer will lead two rounds of clubs and find out East has the guarded club jack, then cross to dummy, and finesse the nine. To prevent this, East must shift to a spade at trick three and remove declarer's side-entry to dummy before he finds out about the 4-1 club split. The bidding indicates the likelihood of South having solid diamonds (and shifting to a spade would not help declarer avoid a diamond loser if he has one).

Even if South were void in spades and had 100 honors in trumps, it would take an iron nerve (or a peek) to finesse against the jack on the first round.

ANSWER: With three-card support for partner, you should simply raise to four clubs. Even though your partner did not relay with a call of two no-trump, you should play the bid of three clubs as natural and forcing. That being so, you can raise and let partner revert to spades if he sees fit.

DEAR ABBY: You gave some nice advice to “Afraid of the Loss” (June 25), who wrote concerning the impending death of a beloved pet. I think your suggestion of a support group is helpful, but having lost a pet I had for 16 years, I have experienced the deep pain this man will feel.

DEAR ABBY
 Jeanne Phillips

Adding a second pet to his home while his pet is still alive often energizes an older pet. When the time comes, it will help the human to have another loving pet to help with the grieving.

As I learned, only time was able to take the deep hurt to a place where I could think of him without tears. Keeping the ashes of a pet can be comforting, whether you choose to bury them later or tuck them away in your home.

Most important is having a plan for when that moment comes so you automatically know what needs to be done. It really helped to have all the details of his final moments thought out so I felt in control.

I wouldn't have missed the love of my dog even knowing the pain that has to come in the end. It's something that should be on everyone's bucket list.

— CATHY IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR CATHY: My thanks to you and all the readers who sent heartfelt letters supporting “Afraid.” It's easy to see why dogs are called man's best friend because of all the love, affection, entertainment and companionship they give us, and why we only want the best for them in this life and after. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Your pet is your child. Anyone who doesn't understand that isn't worth worrying about when the loss occurs. Will it hurt? Of course. But the pain does ease in time.

When my first dog died, I spoke with a grief counselor at the local veterinary college. It didn't make my pain disappear, but it helped me to understand it more. Your pet does not live in the future, but in the moment. Enjoy every moment you have together and accept the unconditional love your pet has given you. You WILL get through it.

— DEBIN BELMONT, MICH.

DEAR ABBY: Having shared the love of many pets over the years, I have found that dealing with the loss of our furry friends never gets easier, no matter how many times you go through it. I just reflect on all the cherished times I shared with them, and I know I did my best to make their lives grand. I know I'm better off for having shared their company.

Having rescued all of my past and current pets from shelters, I saved them from an uncertain life. I gave them a loving home with affection, stability and a warm bed. While they all leave us at some point, their memory lives on in our hearts.

I think Irving Townsend said it best: “We who choose to surround ourselves with lives even more temporary than our own, live within a fragile circle, easily and often breached. Unable to accept its awful gaps, we would still live no other way. We cherish memory as the only certain immortality, never fully understanding the necessary plan.”

— FOURPAWS FATHER

DEAR ABBY: “Afraid of the Loss” is not alone. Anyone who has known the love of a dog knows the fear of losing that unmatched companionship.

When my dog was reaching the end of his lifespan, a fellow dog-lover advised me to get a puppy. I'm passing her advice along to “Afraid.” Get a puppy or go to the shelter and adopt a dog — any dog. You will save the dog, and the dog will save you right back.

IF OCTOBER 17 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: The year ahead may entail learning to aim for permanence, but the essential lesson is that hard work pays off. A club, organization, or peer group can provide you with better financial skills and ignite your ambitions in the upcoming four to six weeks. Take the plunge by gambling on a new career, job, or financial stratagem in December when a long-term project can bear fruit. You may be inspired to work extra hard, but could escape for a weekend of romantic fun just as easily. If you prove your worthiness, a reward or opportunity to make further headway with your ambitions may appear in April.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Work or other obligations can keep you apart from a loved one. Be sure to touch base and keep the lines of communication open. Shifting conditions or a confusing situation may keep you on edge all weekend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Money talks, but doesn't converse. Hold discussions with a significant other or close friend in order to make wise decisions. Keep your eyes trained on the horizon, as well as the future, when making crucial plans.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You're a sharp cookie and know enough to leave a trail of crumbs to follow when you're lost in a maze. Friends or family members could be confusing or misdirecting you. It's up to you to learn the truth.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Balancing the checkbook and vacuuming the rug are a bit boring. It might be prime time to take up a new study and enrich your mind. You can delve deeply into a subject; become an expert through diligent research.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Park the piggy bank and turn the key in the lock. You may be tempted to try out new ideas, but they could prove costly. Sit on your hands and don't put any new irons in the fire. Rent an educational video.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Body language speaks volumes. You know you're safe if the barking dog wags its tail. Take advantage of every indication of friendliness, but don't rely on intuition. When in doubt, ask for advice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't judge the book by its cover. Someone with a quiet appearance or demeanor may impress you with inspiring conversation and an impressive resume. Pick someone's brains for sound knowledge.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Wake up to some wisdom. This could be a good time to ask for advice or reassess your future by talking over your plans with a mentor. Turn on an educational TV channel or read a good book.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Live and learn, and learn, and learn. You might be in the mood for a fun-filled evening with a group of friends and a scintillating social life. You can gather beneficial knowledge by networking.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Bow to tradition, but don't be afraid to rebel against the ridiculous. It may be a good time to re-define your ambitions and gather more information. A partner or close friend can offer sound suggestions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Safely watch them whiz by in the fast lane. You might be content with familiar social customs and well-worn procedures, but may be thrown in contact with those who entertain progressive ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Rest on your laurels. It's a good idea to take a break from competitive activities for a few days. A play on your sympathies could be emotionally or financially draining, so remain aloof from new relationships.

Bill

Crapo, Jim Risch and Rep. Raul Labrador opposed it. Simpson acknowledged that his approval of the bill might be unpopular with some of his Idaho constituents, but he said the potential economic consequences of the congressional stalemate outweighed the politics of his decision. “The easiest, most politically expedient thing for me to do would have been to vote no and protect my political right flank,” Simpson said. “Doing so, however, would have been the wrong thing to do for my constituents and our economy.”

The eight-term congressman is facing a tea party challenger, Bryan Smith, in his 2014 re-election bid. Simpson also said that the bill contains flaws, but it would prevent future unnecessary strain on Idaho’s economy. “This bill, while far from perfect, preserves the progress Republicans have made in reducing spending and moving toward a balanced budget,” he said. “The fight over Obamacare may now move to another venue, but the fight is far from over. While I strongly believe we should continue working to delay the entire law for one year, I also tend to believe that Obamacare may collapse of its own weight. I don’t think it will work.” Smith, said he would not have voted in favor of the bill. “I would vote no on the (deal) because the deal raises the debt limit without any substantial cuts in spending and no major changes to Obamacare,” Smith said. The anti-tax group, Club for Growth which has taken credit for persuading Smith to run for office announced

Wednesday that lawmakers should not vote for the deal. The organization is known for finding extremely conservative candidates to run against Republicans that break from their agenda. They warned lawmakers voting in favor of the bill would reflect poorly on their annual scorecard. U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo, R-Idaho, said he opposed the deal because it did nothing to rein in government spending. “It does almost nothing to address our long-term mandatory spending and debt problems or correct the still-unfolding problems with the president’s health care law,” Crapo said in a news release. The stop-gap funding measure all but assures another standoff in January, said U.S. Sen. Jim Risch, R-Idaho, adding that the federal government continues to over spend. “The United States faces serious long-term debt and spending challenges that we must confront now,” Risch said. “Sadly this deal kicks the can down the road for three months and I could not support it.”

judging competition in Oklahoma. Teams from Canada and the U.S. compete at the Oklahoma event. “There are teams from northern Idaho, southern Idaho, all over Idaho,” said McMurray. “These are great kids. They are eager to compete, honest and we’ve never had trouble with discipline in any form. They’re just great kids.” The event was held at the John Firth Ranch in Heyburn. Students worked in teams to evaluate different soil samples. “They learn to look deeper than the plow layer to make determinations about the soil and they learn to recognize soil factors and soil characteristics,” said McMurray.

Eighteen schools from Idaho were represented at the soil judging event. Area volunteers were on hand to assist the students during the competition. Group leaders and site “pit bosses” were comprised of members of the Cassia Soil and Water Conservation District as well as the Cassia County Commissioners. Following judging, the students and participants gathered at Burley High School for an awards banquet where winners were announced and honored for their efforts. This year’s winners are as follows:

- High overall individual score: Jade Mendenhall, Burley High School
- 1st place team — Kuna FFA
- 2nd place team — Troy FFA
- 3rd — Gooding FFA
- 7th — Burley FFA

Five Moose Shot Dead in Three Days in N. Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • Five moose were illegally shot dead earlier this month in northern Utah, the state Division of Wildlife Resources said Wednesday. Investigators believe it was the work of poachers acting separately over three days in Summit and Wasatch counties. Some of the moose were shot at close range by high-powered rifles. Witnesses watched two of the shootings but couldn’t identify the hunters.

The Utah Division of Wildlife is asking the public for help solving the Oct. 5-7 shootings. Moose hunting is closely regulated in Utah and limited to bulls. The season runs from Sept. 14 to Oct. 17 across a dozen hunting units, but none of the five moose was taken legally — one was a cow and another a calf. No tags were left with any of the moose. They were shot and left in place, said Mark Hadley, a spokesman for the Division of Wildlife Resources.
